Walter Rossiter Webster, when 15 years old went to Georgia to be company for his sister, Caroline (Webster) Kellogg, who was then residing in Jackson Co., Ga. After remaining there one year, returned to Harwinton, Ct., and went to school for six months. Then returned to Georgia, and became a clerk for his brother-in-law, Kellogg and Co., in Hall County, 9 miles South of Gainesville, Ga. Remained there a year and then went with a stock of goods to sell to the Cherokee Indians, on the Etowah River three quarters of a mile south of Canton. Remained in that business two and a half years. Then went into company with his brother-in-law, Kellogg, in Forsyth Co., Ga., six miles north of Cumming, Ga. Was in business there two and a half years. Then went to Rome, Floyd Co., Ga., and was in business there two and a half years, as a member of the firm of Sanford, Kellogg and Co., and while there was married. From there removed to Crossville, Lumpkin Co., Ga., bought a farm and opened a store, under the firm name of Webster and Julian. Was there nine years (16 miles south of Dahlonega). Sold out there and moved to a farm on Coosa River, 16 miles from Rome, Floyd Co. Remained there five years, and then sold farm, and removed to Cave Springs, six miles southeast, in Floyd Co. Purchased a Hotel and Store house, opened a stock of goods, and kept a Hotel and Livery Stable. In 1855 was sent to State Legislature, from Floyd Co., for two years. Was Post Master at Cave Springs, also Secretary and Treasurer of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, located at Cave Springs, for five years, and one of the Board of Trustees for 19 years. Afterwards sold out and removed to Rome, Ga., and went into the State Railroad office as General Ticket Agent, with office in Atlanta. Held that office nine years, during which time the war of the Rebellion came on, and he was obliged to get away. Says he took his family, and negroes and lived for ten months on the cars, keeping away from the enemy. After the war returned to Atlanta. Was in Railroad office under Gov. Joseph E. Brown before the war. After the Confederate surrender the new Governor, R. B. Bullock, displaced him from his office on the Railroad. Dec. 1, 1873, he again took a position on the Western and Atlanta Railroad, as General Purchasing Agent, under Joseph E. Brown, who had become one of the Lessees of the road, and the President of the Board. He was Deacon and Clerk of Decatur Baptist Church, at the time of his death.

4. William Burnham Webster, of Harwinton, Ct., b. Dec. 27, 1808, mar. at Burlington, Ct., Oct. 19, 1837. Sarah Adelia Hull, of Burlington, who was b. in North Haven, Ct., April 11, 1817, daughter of Elisaph and Rhoda (Clark) Hull. Elisaph and Rhoda (Clark) Hull, became communicants of the Episcopal Church, at East Church, where the town of Plymouth, Burlington, and Bristol join, in the year 1839.

William Holcomb Webster, the original author of this book, was a son of the above, and he prepared in connection with his father's marriage the following notes upon his maternal ancestry, which we insert at this point.

1. The Clark Family.—Stephen Clark was born in England, and married a Burr, who was born and died in Cheshire, Ct. Diamond Clark, son of Stephen was born in Cheshire, Ct., about 1750, and enlisted for service in the Revolutionary War, Feb. 28, 1778, for three years, in Capt. Joseph Mansfield's Co., in Col. Return Jonathan Meigs's Regt., 6th of the Conn. Line, but was rejected at the muster in March, 1779. He died in Burlington, Ct., March 27, 1835, aged 85 yrs. He mar. (1) Sybil Tuttle, of Hamden, Ct., b. in 1754, who died at Burlington, Ct., Aug. 10, 1794, aged 40 yrs., daughter of Enos and Martha (Brockett) Tuttle, both of whom died in Hamden, Ct. He mar. (2) Sally Bunnell, of Burlington, Ct., b. in 1759, and died in Burlington, Ct., Nov. 23, 1839, aged 71 yrs.

CHILDREN: (Clark) (All b. at Burlington, Ct.) (1) Lois Clark, 1785, died in Burlington, May 15, 1838, aged 52. (2) Rhoda Clark, April 27, 1788, mar. Dec. 30, 1811, Elisaph Hull, and died in Burlington, April 16, 1873. (This was the grandmother of W. H. W.) (3) Phebe Clark, b. in 1791, mar. Ithra Brockett, of Burlington, Ct. She died March 19, 1872, aged 81 yrs. (4) Wooster Clark, b. in 1809, mar. Maria Parks, and died in Burlington, Jan'y 16, 1835, aged 35 yrs. The end.

2. The Hull Family.—Benjamin Hull, b. Aug. 7, 1726, at North Haven, Ct., son of Joseph and Lydia (Blakeslee) Hull, m. in March, 1746, Anne Hill, b. May 29, 1726, dau. of Stephen and Rebecca (Bishop) Hill. Stephen Hill, b. Apr. 1, 1709, m. June 7, 1725, Rebecca Bishop. He was the son of John Hill, b. Jan. 10, 1650, who m. Jan. 13, 1680, Hannah Graunis. John Hill was the son of Robert Hill.

Joseph Hull, the father of Benjamin Hull, was b. in England, but died in the United States. He (according to statement by my grandfather) went to England during the War of the Revolution, and died there, or according to a statement of the son of my grandfather's brother, Elijah, he was during the War of Revolution working in the fields with one of his sons when a small force of men suddenly appeared and seized, and carried them both away with only the clothing they wore, and that, although search was made, they were never seen or heard from again.

Joseph Hull, b. Aug. 11, 1672, was the son of Jeremiah Hull, and m. July 12, 1722, Lydia Blakeslee.

Jeremiah Hull, father of Joseph, d. June 13, 1700. His estate, 241 pounds was settled June 10, 1709. To his son John he gave lands in the "Westfield;" to Joseph, his house and lands in "Yorkshire Quarter," and at "Oyster Point;" he (Joseph) to maintain "my present wife." He mentions his daughters, Mary Hotchkiss, Sarah Chidsey, and Martha Hull.

The estate of Joseph Hull was probated Oct. 31, 1765, when Joseph, Benjamin and Daniel agreed to divide the property in equal shares, and in the same year Lydia appears as the widow of Joseph.

Benjamin Hull and Anne Hull, his wife, had the following children, born in New Haven, Ct.: John, b. Oct. 17, 1747, given below as Oct. 28, 1748; Hannah, b. June 8, 1749; Elijah, b. Oct. 13, 1750; Benjamin, b. May 22, 1753. But the probate of the estate of Benjamin Hull, Oct. 15, 1782, of which Benjamin and John were administrators, shows a widow and seven children, but their names are not given. The following is a summary of the children of Benjamin and Anne Hull Hull.

CHILDREN: (Hull) (All b. at North Haven.) (1) John, b. Oct. 28, 1748, mar. Martha Pardee, b. at North Haven, July 6, 1747, where both died, he, in 1823; and she, in 1815. (2) Joseph, said to have been a Tory, and suffered confiscation of his property. His name and that of his wife, Hannah, appear on the Congregational Church records in 1760. After the confiscation, he probably removed to, and died at Norfolk, Ct. (3) Benjamin, was alive from 1770 to 1781, and in the latter year had a child baptised in the Church of England. He is not traced in North Haven after 1796. He was enrolled as a member of the Episcopal Society from 1784 to 1790. (4) Philip. (5) Name not known, but he is the one who was seized and carried off to England with his father.

John Hull, b. Oct. 28, 1748, who mar. Martha Pardee, had the following CHILDREN: (All b. in North Haven.) (1) Sarah, 1768, died in North Haven, in 1772. (2) John, 1771, mar. Hannah Wool. They, or at least he died in Oxford, N. Y., in 1864. (3) Sarah, 1773, died at North Haven, in 1793. (4) Ebenezer, 1775, mar. in North Haven, Beda Jacobs, and died in Oxford, N. Y., in 1851 or 1852. (5) Patty, 1777, died in North Haven, in 1786. (6) Eli, 1779, mar. (1) in Hamden, Ct., Amelia Dickerman, who died in Hamden; and he mar. (2) in Milford, Ct., Mehitable Pardee, who died, same place; and he mar. (3) in Southford or Southport, H. Talmadge. They died in Hamden, in 1856. (7) Rosanna, 1781, mar. in North Haven, Thomas Smith. She died there, 1851. (8) Elijah, b. 1784, mar. in 1812 or 13, in North Haven, Nancy Blakeslee, b. in North Haven, in 1757. A son, John William, resided in '91 in North Haven, and has a son named John.

(9) Elisaph Hull, b. Oct. 30, 1786, the grandfather of William Holcomb Webster, died at Burlington, Ct., Jan'y 22, 1876. Rhoda (Clark) Hull, his wife, b. at Burlington, Ct., April 27, 1788, died there April 16, 1873. They were mar. Dec. 30, 1811, by Joshua Barnes, Esq., in North Haven, Ct.

CHILDREN: (Hull) (All b. in North Haven, Ct.) (1) Lucinda, Oct. 25, 1812, died Jan'y 1, 1840 or 39, aged 26 yrs. (2) Patsy, b. Feb. 2, 1816, date of death not reported. (3) Sarah Adelia, b. April 11, 1817, mar. William Burnham Webster, father of W. H. W. (4) Sylvanus, b. June 27, 1820, mar. (1) Eveline E. Pond, in Plymouth, July, 1839, who died Sept. 14, 1846, aged 19 yrs.; and (2) Florilla Clark, in Burlington, April 9, 1843. He died Jan'y 28, 1873. He had by his first wife, Eveline E., b. July 30, 1840, who mar. Isaac Hartwell, of Rochdale, Mass. He had by his second wife, George S.; and Burton. (5) Elisaph Andrew, b. Sept. 7, 1824, mar. (1) May 9, 1849, in Wolcottville, Ct., Sarah Jane Burr, who died Jan'y 23, 1862, aged 30 yrs.; and he mar. (2) in Blandford, Mass., Sept. 10, 1862, Sarah V. Russell. (6) Eli Lucius, b. June 14, 1823, date of death not reported.

Note. The most of the members of the Hull family in North Haven, Ct., are said to have been identified with the Church of England. In a list of land owners of New Haven, Ct., in 1643, appear the names of Richard Hull and Andrew Hull. The site of John Hull's house is given in '92, as Lyman M. Hyde.

3. The Merriam Family.—The following notes on the Merriam family, says William H. Webster, are the recollections of my uncle, Ozias Lomis Webster given in June, 1879. ——— Merriam, probably of Meriden, Conn., mar. (1) Miss Lankton; and (2) Miss Blakeslee. CHILDREN: (Merriam) (By first mar.) William, b. Cheshire, Conn., July 16, 1751; Ebenezer; (By second mar.) Merritt, Rual, Ruth.

(1) William Merriam, by first mar., named above, a farmer, of Harwinton, Conn., to which place he removed from Meriden, Conn., mar. Nov. 5, 1772, at Harwinton, Deborah, dau. of Captain Joel and ——— (Holcomb) Catlin, b. Sep. 19, 1750.*

The first record of him in Harwinton is dated, Aug. 7, 1773, when George Willis of Hartford deeded to him 60 acres of land in Harwinton. (At about the same time a deed of land in Harwinton was made to his brother, Ebenezer Merriam.) Several other parties deeded tracts of land to William Merriam, which made him one of the largest land owners in the town. The most of this land belonged to the place on which my grandfather, Ozias Webster, afterwards lived, on which my father, William B. Webster, was born.

It was claimed by my uncle, Ozias L. Webster, that William Merriam served as a substitute in the war of Revolution, but some of the present residents of Harwinton, '91, allege that he was a Tory and that he and one Prindle and other Tories hid in a cave East of Merriam's house, which has been "handed down" as the "Tories Den."

He d. at Harwinton, Conn., March 28, 1800, aged 50 years.

CHILDREN: (Merriam) (Probably all b. in Harwinton, Conn.) Hannah, Aug. 17, 1773; Deborah, April 21, 1775; William, Jr., Feb. 14, 1777;

William Burnham Webster (continued) was a farmer, teacher, surveyor and mechanic. He was educated at common school and academy in his native town, Harwinton, Litchfield Co., Conn. He spent his early life on his father's farm, but commenced teaching at the age of twenty, and taught as follows: In 1829 in Burlington, Ct., receiving $10 per mo. and board; in 1830 in Bristol, Ct., receiving $12 per mo. and board; in the winter of 1835 at Grafton, Lorain Co., Ohio, for three months, spending however seven months from home, one month of which was given visiting with his uncle, Charles Webster, in Morrow Co., Ohio, much of the rest of the time being given to the trip out and back, especially the latter one which he assisted a man in driving a drove of horses from Ohio to Morristown, N. J.; in 1836 he was teaching at the old Methodist Church place in Burlington, Ct.; in 1837 on West Street, Bristol, Ct., where he received $18 per mo. and board and where he had his largest school, averaging from 20 to 100 pupils a day; in 1838, the winter after he was married, his school was in East Plymouth, Ct., and in 1839, the year of the birth of his oldest son he had a school in the Hayden Dist. in Harwinton, Ct. During the winter of 1831 he was employed in canvassing the upper counties of New Jersey for subscribers for a "Family Encyclopedia" compiled by Chas. A. Goodrich and published by Cook & Belknap of Hartford, Conn. The most of 1832 and 1833 were spent on his father's farm, where he assisted in the winter of 1833 in building a saw mill (which was burned by an incendiary in March, 1834).

He was appointed early in life as a reading clerk at the Episcopal Church in East Plymouth, Conn., where he was also confirmed; in 1839 he was appointed as one of the wardens of the Episcopal Church at Harwinton, to succeed his father who had been warden for many years and was getting too old to attend to the duties. He retained this position until 1845 when he removed to Wolcottville, Conn., where he found that he had already been chosen warden of the church there in anticipation of his coming, and he held this position until he removed from Wolcottville in 1849. While at Wolcottville he was engaged in the manufacture of cotton cloth, in company with other parties, through whom he lost heavily, and with whom he was subsequently involved in a long and expensive law suit which impoverished him and compelled him to start life anew. In 1852 he removed to a small village in the town of Watertown, on the borders of Waterbury, now known as Oakville, Ct., whence he removed in 1852 to New Britain, Ct., where he spent the remainder of his life. He studied surveying when he was nineteen years old and when 21 was appointed by the Superior Court at Litchfield, Ct., county surveyor for the county of Litchfield, and he retained this position until he removed from the county in 1849.

1. Zenas Webster, born Sep. 3, 1786, m. Dec. 1, 1814, Parnell Palmer, b. Feb. 25, 1794. He died near Edwardsville, Madison Co., Ill., May 14, 1844, and she July 18, 1872. She lived with her son Hiram Zenas and died at his home in Marion Co., Iowa. She is buried in Peoria, Mahaska Co., Iowa.

He served in the War of 1812 in Cap. Burnap's Co., Vermont Militia.

In the year 1811, Mich. 11, he purchased land of Alfred Tucker of Hartland, Windsor Co., Vt., 20 acres in the S. W. corner of lot 3, in the 3d range, paying $150, and was himself of Hartland. June 2, 1819 he was of Woodstock, Vt., and sold the above land to Cratia and Martin Billings, both of Hartland. Nov. 25, 1819, he was of Woodstock, Vt., and sold to James Crooker "one undivided half of the farm on which I now live, which I hold by deed from the same James Crooker, dated Dec. 29, 1817."

Evidently soon thereafter he removed to the "far west." A letter written by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Parmelia Thomas, dated Woodstock, Vt., Jan. 13, 1833, and addressed to him at Edwardsville, Ill., declares: "Once more I take up my pen to address you, though at so great a distance that it seems almost like addressing the inhabitants of another world. When I realize the land and seas that divide us, and the probability of never again beholding you face to face, my heart dies within me."

The letter continues: "The Indian depredations committed in your section of the country caused us much anxiety as we feared that you were sufferers with others of your own state." After further remarks about reading all the comments of the home papers concerning the assaults of the Indians, and expressing a fear that the Almighty is about to come out in judgment against the United States for the abuse of the many blessings which He has bestowed on them, she adds: "We feel, however, a good degree of confidence in the wisdom and skill of our Chief Magistrate. . . . I know of no one better qualified than President Jackson. He is a Mason, it is true, and he is also a Republican of the old school—for the latter principle I love and regard him. This you know is our inheritance, and never shall I forget the zeal with which our dear father espoused and advocated the best interests of his country. He was a decided Jackson man. We know not, Brother, whether you and your wife, are Jackson men or not; or whether you are Anti-Mason or not; on these points you have remained silent."

June 28, 1871, Parmel, widow of Zenas Webster, in good hand, aged 77, of Pella, Marion Co., Iowa, made application for a pension. She alleged that he enlisted at Woodstock, Vt., where she married him, Dec. 1, 1814, under the name of Parnel Palmer, Rev. Seth Sterling, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating; that her husband, Zenas Webster died in Madison Co., Ill., near Edwardsville, May 14, 1844. She said she was residing at the time of this application with her son, Hiram Z. Webster about seven miles North East of Pella. She was identified by Melville M. Palmer, a grandson of Mrs. Webster, aged 39, of Young America, and Chester W. Palmer, a nephew of Mrs. Webster, of Monmouth, both in Warren Co., Ill. Her attorney wrote July 3, 1871, that she had lived until recently with a son-in-law, Geo. W. Holcomb, five miles from Young America, and that both Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb had died within a few months. Report in the Bounty Land case shows that Zenas Webster served in Capt. Burnap's Co., Vt. Vols., from Sep. 17 to Nov. 30, 1812. It shows the marriage, Dec. 1, 1814, of Parnel Palmer and Zenas Webster, certified by the Clerk of the town of Woodstock, Vt.

Zenas Webster settled near Edwardsville, Madison Co., Ill., where he died May 14, 1844. The family then removed north to Ogle County, thence to Young America, now Kirkwood, Warren Co., Ill., and finally to Pella, Marion Co., Iowa. The date and place of her death not obtained.

"He was several times married", and the names of his wives and their children severally have not been obtained. Those that follow were probably the children by his wife, Martha Vaughn.

1. Justus Webster, (not a son by Martha Vaughn) b. 1781, in Whitestown, now Oneida Co., N. Y., a farmer, may have been a son of Daniel Webster the Revolutionary soldier, but the proof is yet lacking. The name is however entered here that it may not be overlooked in future investigations. That he was not a son of Martha Vaughn is evident from legal papers involving her heirs cited in Chapter XII.

To aid in such investigation we append the following notes. He apparently removed from Oneida County to Bloomfield, Ontario Co., N. Y., with, or in advance of Daniel Webster, who is assumed to have been his father.

1804, Nov. 12, Justus Webster of Bloomfield, Ontario Co., N. Y., purchased land in township No. 16 of Asher Saxton of Bloomfield.

1806, Justus Webster was of the town of Clarence, Erie Co., N. Y., and married, while a resident of Clarence, Eliza Doney. Her sister, Electa Doney, married Asa Chapman, also of Clarence.

Eliza Doney Webster was a devoted reader of Shakespeare and named her sons after characters in his plays. She died and is buried at Clarenceville, near Farmington, Mich. His death is not recorded.

CHILDREN: Henry Bolton, probably originally Henry Bolingbroke, after Shakspear's King Henry the IV. He was born in N. Y. state. Belarius; Varrus, probably d. in early life; Gorduras, b. Apr. 21, 1812; Marv, b. Clarence, N. Y.; Helen; Mortimer; Vorigus or Arviragus; Amanda; Sophia; Eugenia. The end.

2. Martha Webster, no date of birth found, m. James Parmele, a farmer. Both died at Adams Basin, Monroe Co., N. Y., he, Oct. 1, 1858, and she, Sep. 30, 1873, and both are buried in the Fairfield Cemetery at Spencerport, N. Y. James Parmele was a Justice of the Peace for 28 years in town of Ogden, and never had a decision reversed by a superior court. He was a soldier, war of 1812.

CHILDREN: (Born in Mendon, Monroe Co., N. Y.) Betsey, 1806; George Webster, Feb. 8, 1808; Amos, Nov. 16, 1810; Charles Henry, Mich. 8, 1819.

Burlingame. She d. Mich. 24, 1881, at Adams Basin, N. Y., and he, June 24, 1889. James Parmele, Adams Basin, N. Y., a son, died April 16, 1911.

Mr. Parmele was born in Ogden in 1834, on the farm where he had lived all his life, and where his father was born and lived except for six years, when he went to Lynchburg. Forty-eight years ago the deceased married Miss Martha W. True. In politics Mr. Parmele was a staunch Democrat. He was a prominent member of Etolian Lodge, F. and A. M. Besides his wife, the deceased leaves two daughters, Mrs. A. W. Myers, of Albion, and Mrs. W. B. Norton, of Sweden; one son, Ransom T. Parmele, of Ogden, and one sister, Mrs. Jane N. Baird, of Hamlin.

(3) Amos, a ship-carpenter and farmer, m. Hannah Flagg. He d. June 6, 1879.

(4) Charles Henry, a farmer and miller, m. June 12, 1839, Elizabeth J. Hunt. He d. Mich. 8, 1898. Mrs. A. T. Ward, a dau., lives at Adams Basin, N. Y., and S. L. Parmele, oldest son, at 135 Hoyt St., Buffalo, N. Y. The end.

3. Betsey Webster, no date of birth, m. Ambrose Beach. She died in Monroe, Monroe Co., Mich.

SECTION 2.—Children of Joel (Joseph, Josephⁿ, George, Thomas, Gov. John) and Hannah (Allen) Webster of Enfield, Ct.

1. Orrin Webster, b. 1793, in Conn., of Wilbraham, Hampden Co., Mass., married Abigail Warner of same place. Orrin Webster was in the War of 1812: drafted at Wilbraham into Capt. Joseph Carew's Co., Mass. Militia, and served from Sep. 13, to Nov. 2, 1814. Jan. 1851, (in poor hand) aged 58, at Wilbraham, applied for a pension.

CHILDREN: Mrs. Mary Mills (Roswell P.) of North Wilbraham, Mass., wrote Apr. 10, 1901, that she was a daughter of Orrin Webster, who was born in Conn., and that she, (Mrs. Mills) had three sisters: Louisa Webster, b. 1818; Abigail Upham, b. 1821; Mary P. Mills (herself) b. 1824; Samantha Webster, b. 1827. She further stated that her father had the following brothers and sisters: Horace, Norman, Peter, Isaac, Joel, John, Philura, Hannah. The end.

2. Horace Webster, b. 1795, of Springfield, Mass., a farmer, and single, son of Joel and Hannah Webster, died of a diseased liver, Sep. 6, 1862, aged 68 years.

He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and, April 10, 1852 (in fair hands) aged 57, of Springfield, Hampden Co., Mass., applied for a pension. Enlisted at East Windsor, Conn., and was discharged at New London, Conn. Third Auditor reports his service as private in Capt. Strong's Co. of Conn. Militia from Aug. 13 to Oct. 26, 1814.

It appears from the statements of two witnesses in the case that Horace Webster had a brother, Orrin Webster, who served at Boston, in Lt. Russell's Co. of Mass. Militia in the War of 1812. Also that the said Horace at one time lived at Wilbraham, Hampden Co., Mass., where, or at Springfield, it is probable Orrin enlisted in Mass. service.

Mch. 17, 1855, Horace was still a resident of Springfield, Mass., but he may have gone West soon after and located his warrant. The end.

3. Norman Webster, a farmer, b. Feb. 8, 1802, at North Wilbraham, Hampden Co., Mass., m. Mch. 23, 1831, Sarah Shaw, b. First Division, showing the Great Grandchildren of Capt. Noah and Mercy Steele Webster by their daughter Mercy who married John Kellogg Belden of West Hartford, Ct.

1. Anne Whitall Belden, no date of birth, d. in Niagara Falls, N. Y., in June, 1846, unmarried.

2. John Whitall Belden, no birth date, was a miner and died in California. No children.

3. Rev. William Webster Belden, b. June 25, 1820, at Moscow, Livingston Co., N. Y., a Congregational minister, entered as a private in the 41th Mass. Vols., and was promoted Oct. 4, 1864, to Hospital Chaplain, at Atlanta, Ga., by President Lincoln, and resigned the following Winter on account of ill health. He mar. (1) Aug. 23, 1849, Sarah Treat; and (2) Aug. 31, 1852, Mrs. Elizabeth Passmore Tabor, and (3) Dec. 6, 1898, at Thomaston, Ct., Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas Gilbert, youngest dau. of Hon. Seth Thomas, the pioneer clock maker of Connecticut.

Rev. Wm. Webster Belden studied for the ministry in the Yale Divinity School, 1845-48, and began his ministry at Litchfield, Conn., in Dr. Lyman Beecher's old church. Was ordained, Aug. 23, 1848. He was successively pastor of the Fitch Memorial Church near Norwich, Ct., Attleboro, Mass., Bristol, Ct., (June 1876, four years) and Newburyport, Mass. After nearly 50 years he returned to West Hartford, Ct., his early home.

Of his third marriage the press gave the following account: "The two first knew each other as schoolboy and girl, sixty years ago in Thomaston, and grew up to be sweethearts as he prepared for college, and she finished her education in the village school. When the young man went to college the two corresponded and renewed their pledges of constancy from time to time. But old Seth Thomas had no sympathy with higher education, and desired that his daughter should marry a mechanic like himself. He frowned on the suit sternly, and eventually broke the engagement. He expressed contempt for a reader of poetry and a lover of books. The young folks separated, and in the course of years lost sight of each other. In time Miss Thomas married a farmer, George Gilbert, and, truth to tell, lived happily with him for a quarter of a century. He soon became a large holder in the stock of the manufacturing companies of her father. At his death she inherited his fortune, and eventually that of her father also. Young Belden finished his college course, and has for half a century been connected with many of the smaller Connecticut churches. He too married, and in time lost his wife. A few months ago a friend spoke of the gentle Mrs. Gilbert living alone in Thomaston. Mr. Belden wrote to his former sweetheart, and found that half a century had not abated her regard for him, and the two hearts were reunited."

He died Dec. 6, 1901, in New Haven, Ct. His second wife died in 1896. Other dates not obtained.

CHILDREN: (Belden) William Passmore; Benjamin, d. 1865, aged 5 years and 5 months.

(6) Paul Leicester Ford, m. Sep. 18, 1900, in Brooklyn, N. Y., Mary Grace Kidder. He d. May 8, 1902. She res. 1914, in New York City, N. Y. CHILDREN: Lester Ford.

Paul Leicester Ford was crippled for life by a fall from his nurse's arms, and so was unable to attend college, but from his father's ample library, compiled many works and developed a fine literary taste and became a writer of great promise. He m. in 1900, Miss Mary Grace Kidder, of Brooklyn and settled in a beautiful home purchased from the sale of a single novel. He was shot and killed, Thursday, May 8, 1902, by his brother, Malcolm Webster Ford, who then shot and instantly killed himself. Malcolm had been disinherited by his father because of his absorption in athletic sports. His father died in 1891. Malcolm claimed that his brothers and sisters agreed to share the estate with him and the will was probated without contest. This agreement if made, was not committed to writing and in a later contest the case was decided adversely to Malcolm, whose mind, it is claimed, became unbalanced and the double tragedy followed.

(7) Emily Ellsworth Ford, m. Apr. 21, 1891, at Brooklyn, N. Y., Roswell Skeel, Jr. Res. 1914, Irvington-on-Hudson.

Mrs. Skeel has edited "Notes on the Life of Noah Webster," in two volumes, compiled by her mother, Emily Ellsworth Fowler Ford, deceased, and privately printed in 1912, by members of the Ford family. Mrs. Skeel says in the Introduction: "My mother never finished this biography of her grandfather. . . . The earlier chapters were largely based upon a manuscript prepared by Rev. Leonard Bacon, which formed the beginning of an intended biography of the lexicographer. The intention of Mr. Bacon was for some reason abandoned, but what he had written was preserved, and is now in the New York Public Library."

These volumes are a compilation of Mr. Webster's diary, correspondence, essays, with a sketch of the early Webster family (appendix), including personal reminiscences by Mrs. Ford, which are among the best features of the book. The pen-touches of Mrs. Ford give a life-likeness and tone to the great man's character which are usually lost in the drapery of the great scholar. To all desiring a fuller insight into the labors and triumphs of Dr. Webster, this work is commended.

Capt. Lynn was an officer in Morgan's Regiment, War of Revolution. William Eugene Webster entered Trinity College, Hartford, Ct., which he left before graduating, to enter West Point, where he remained for two years, when he was obliged to leave on account of ill health. He then became a civil engineer. Being in Cumberland, Md., on the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion, he entered the cause of the South, and with his family made his way to Richmond, where he became Chief Executive officer of the Richmond Arsenal. At the battle of Cold Harbor, on a call at noon, by Gen'l Rhodes, to whose staff he belonged, for volunteer aids, he entered his services. Mrs. Gen'l Lee entreated him not to go into the battle, but he rode to the window, threw in his purse and replied, "I must for the afternoon." He was killed by the bursting of a shell while in the act of dashing forward to rally a broken line. His first battle was his last. He died June 27, 1862. The Regiment underwent a thorough training at Washington, D. C., for engineer duty. Afterwards, in McClellan's campaign on the Peninsula, Lieut. Webster was detailed to superintend the building of two bridges over the Chickahominy river near Richmond, and after to see to their destruction on McClellan's retreat. In this duty he labored with five hundred men of his command, waist deep in water for 18 days, and frequently under fire of the enemy. His labor and exposure brought on a fever, he became very ill, and was taken to New Haven, Ct., to the home of his aunt, Mrs. Prof. Chauncey A. Goodrich, where he died Aug. 9, 1862. He and his brother were devotedly attached to each other, but from their situations at the opening of the war, conscientiously embraced opposite sides, William Eugene following the line of his mother in Virginia, and Calvert Stuart the line of his father and his New England ancestry. SECTION 2.—Children of Ashbel (Ashbel, Jonathan "the miller," Jonathan, Dea. Jonathan, Robert, Gen. John) and Mercy (Sweatland) Webster of Bolton, Ct., Cazenovia (Union), Madison Co., and Cuba, Allegany Co., N. Y.

1. Plumley Webster, b. Jan. 8, 1779, m. (1) Sep. 17, 1801, probably at Cazenovia, N. Y. (Union), Lydia Pond, and (2) Mrs. Harriet Straight.

Real estate records show that Plumley Webster purchased land of William Dow, on lot 89, town of Fabius, N. Y., July 18, 1806. Also that he bought land of Munson Pond in the town of Truxton, N. Y., Sep. 23, 1813, and later sells to William Perry, of the same place, Sep. 29, 1830.

Lydia Pond, the first wife of Plumley Webster, may have been a daughter of Munson Pond, or some relative of his. Plumley Webster finally settled in Cuba, Allegany Co., N. Y., near his brother Israel, and here spent the remainder of his life. Mrs. Philinda Vaughn, Franklinville, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1894, says: "Almost the first thing I can remember was hearing him (uncle Plumley) sing, as I lay in my tundle bed near the old fireplace in North Cuba. He fell I think, in the Spring while making sugar, and injured his spine and broke his hip, making him a cripple for life, and making him crazy as long as he lived. Not long after this, his wife died, and his children moved to Illinois. He lived at my father's house for quite a while and then with aunt Mercy (Powers) for a long time. When her husband died, he came to our house again and staid until he died. He generally went once a year to visit uncle Israel and uncle George. His wife may have died before he was hurt."

He died in April, 1859, and is buried in the North Cuba Cemetery, although no stone marks the spot. CHILDREN: Byron, b.

Aug. 2, 1802; Harriet; Hannah; Clara. Resumed in Chapter LXXIV.

2. Jesse Webster, b. Sep. 19, 1780, m. Mrs. Betsey Rouse, nee Daniels. She was a sister of John Daniels, Sr., and an aunt of John Daniels, Jr., of Fabius, N. Y., who married Esther Woodruff, dau. of Gurdon and Anna (Webster) Woodruff, of Keeney Settlement. Jesse Webster lived on the West side of Chautauqua Lake, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles South of Mayville, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., on Wilcox Bay, and died about 1857, and is supposed to be buried in Hunt's Cemetery. But M. R. Webster personally searched that cemetery, Aug. 19, 1908, and the new cemetery near by, and the Magnolia Cemetery south of Chautauqua, and found no tombstone to mark the place. CHILDREN: Elton, drowned at 2 years. The end.

3. Ashbel Webster, a farmer, b. Feb. 15, 1782, mar. (1) at De Ruyter, Madison Co., N. Y., Nov. 2, 1804, Lois Page; and (2) Avis Burton, b. Sept. 15, 1791.

It is not known who the parents of Lois Page were. But real estate transactions show that Dec. 6, 1805, Daniel Page sells to Samuel Page, both of DeRuyter, N. Y., and both have dealings with Ephraim Page of Canaan, Columbia Co., N. Y. These were probably close relatives. John Page was a brother of Lois Page.

Avis Burton was a sister of John Ellis Burton of Madison, Madison Co., N. Y., and William Burton of New York City. Who their parents were has not been learned. John Ellis Burton left home at nine years of age, a year after the death of his father. Some say that he learned his trade, harness making, at Bridgeport, Ct.; others at Salem, Mass. He m. in Cheshire, Berkshire Co., Mass., July 25, 1811, Esther Carpenter. He settled in Madison, N. Y., about 1808, in which case he retracted his steps to Cheshire, Mass., to claim his bride. It is said that John Ellis Burton was born in Rhode Island in 1786. It is surmised that his father's name was John, since the name was given this son, and Avis Burton Webster gave the name to her son, John Burton Webster. It is quite possible that while the Burtons were from Rhode Island, these belonged to the Stratford, Fairfield Co., Ct., branch, among whom Judson Burton is a common name, and John Ellis Burton named one of his sons Rufus Judson Burton.

About 1817, Ashbel Webster went into Susquehanna Co., Penn., to clear land, saw lumber, and make for himself a home. He located somewhere on the Hop Bottom Creek, one says "ten miles south of Montrose, at a place there known as Jacob Woods, within seven miles of the Susquehanna River." Here was born their last child, John Burton Webster, Feb. 15, 1819, and in a little more than thirteen months, Avis, the mother, died. Her body was carried several miles to a clearing and buried on a farm owned by Mr. Wright. Ashbel Webster sold his land to Palta Swetland, and the grave was about two miles from that farm. The husband cut her name and other data in a stone and placed it at the head of her grave. It was standing soon after 1860, but later efforts to locate the grave have been unavailing. After her death the husband returned to Cazenovia (Union) with his children and the puny babe of fifteen months. He was soon injured in the month of May by a yoke of oxen. After an apparent recovery, he worked two or three weeks for Mr. Ebenezer Fuller, when in a serious condition with his side developed, and after a lingering illness of three years, he died at the home of his father, March 7, 1823. This in part is the account given by his brother, Israel Sweetland Webster, of Cuba, N. Y., to the writer Sep. 17, 1878.

He was buried in a little Cemetery not far from the house, and the tombstone is inscribed: "Ashbil Webster, Jr., died Mar. 7, 1823, in the 40th year of his age.

"His mind was tranquil and serene,
No terror in his looks was seen;
His Saviour's smile dispelled the gloom,
And smoothed his passage to the tomb."

His first wife died at De Ruyter, N. Y., June 17, 1807; and his second wife at Hop Bottom, Susquehanna Co., Pa., April 9, 1820, and he at Cazenovia (Union), N. Y., March 7, 1823.

The following is taken from a published memoir appearing at the time. "On Thursday, Aug. 28, 1881, Chester Webster, one of the first settlers in Oakland county died at his home in the township of Pontiac, in the 90th year of his age, after a lingering illness of several months, attributable rather to his extreme age than to any other cause. Mr. Webster was born in Westfield, Washington county, N. Y., Jan. 13, 1795, and moved thence when five years old to Fabius, Onondaga County, N. Y. He remained there until 1821 when he came to Michigan, arriving here Oct. 12 of that year. He at first lived with his uncle, Aaron Webster, Auburn, this county, and accompanied Capt. Parks on a survey expedition to Genesee county in the fall of 1821. Two years later he went back to the State of New York, and returning to Michigan married Miss Polly Matilda Whitney Dec. 7, 1823, in the township of Troy, this county, Johnson Niles, a Justice of the Peace, performing the marriage ceremony. Mr. Webster at once purchased and improved the farm which was to be his homestead for the next sixty-one years, the remainder of his lifetime. Nature had endowed Mr. Webster with a strong will and an iron constitution. Until broken down by affliction he was a man of great industry, energy and perseverance, and, until in his declining years, possessed good judgment and a rare memory. At the time of his death he had thirty-six grandchildren, and nineteen great grandchildren."

He died Aug. 28, 1881, and she died Nov. 4, 1887. She was a member of the Baptist church. At her death there was living thirty-nine grandchildren, and twenty-four great grandchildren.

4. Abel Webster, b. Oct. 13, 1812, a merchant, was left an orphan at the age of 8 years. Began early to take care of himself. At the age of 17 years, taught his first school, at Attica, N. Y. At the age of 23 became partner of Nelson Wolcott, in general merchandize store, at Java, N. Y.

In 1837 removed to Wethersfield, N. Y., and went into partnership with his father-in-law, Ormus Doolittle, in general trade. At the age of 25, was elected Supervisor of Wethersfield. In 1845, ran on Whig ticket for Member of State Assembly, and was defeated by one vote. In 1846, was elected County Clerk of Wyoming County, and removed his family to Warsaw, the County Seat, and held the office for three years. He then engaged in the dry goods business in Warsaw, and continued in that business until his death. He was also at various times interested in other business enterprises; carried on a lumberyard for several years; was interested in a foundry; also owned and carried on a saw-mill in Allegeny County. He took great interest in the growth of Churches and Schools; was a vestryman of Trinity Church at Warsaw, and a trustee of the public schools for a number of years; and was several times elected Supervisor of the town. He was ambitious and although fighting poor health accumulated a snug fortune, the greater part of which he lost through an intriguing partner just before his death.

He mar. at Wethersfield Springs, N. Y., Dec. 16, 1855, Caroline Doolittle, daughter of Ormus and Lydia (Rood) Doolittle, b. at Wethersfield Springs, May 11, 1816. Her father, with his brother Reuben, were among the first settlers in that part of the country, laid out and mostly built their village; gave lands for and built St. Clements Church, and her father, late in life, founded Doolittle Institute, an Episcopal School, including four buildings, at Wethersfield Springs. She was well educated for the times, attending the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, at Lima, N. Y., where, among other things, she became proficient in music. After her husband's death, she resided at Wethersfield Springs until 1873, when she removed to Midland, do Co., Mich., where she died, Sept. 1, 1884; he having died at Warsaw, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1861.

SECTION 3.—Children of Mabel (Jonathan, Jonathan "the miller," Jonathan, Dea. Jonathan, Robert, Geo. John) Webster and her husband Samuel Fox of Orford Parish, East Hartford, Ct., Keeney Settlement, and West Dryden, Tompkins Co., N. Y.

1. Edmund Fox, b. March 31, 1788, at Glastonbury, Ct., a farmer, mar. March 9, 1810, in Fabius, Onondaga Co., N. Y., Sally, daughter of Reuben and Rebecca (Keeney) Cadwell, b. in East Hartford, Ct., April 10, 1791.

Reuben Cadwell, b. June 28, 1763, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, from East Hartford, Ct. Enlisted, Apr. 1778, "for the war" under Capt. John P. Wyllys, and Col. Samuel Wyllys. He was the son of Matthew and Mary Vansant (or Van Zant) Cadwell of East Hartford, Ct. Matthew Cadwell, b. 1740, was the son of John and Dorothy (Kilburn) Cadwell of Hartford, Ct. John Cadwell, b. Nov. 30, 1702, was the son of Matthew and Abigail (Beckley) Cadwell of Hartford, Ct. Matthew Cadwell, b. Oct. 5, 1668, was the son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Stollins) Cadwell, the settler and ferryman of Hartford, Ct.

Mary Vansant was of East Windsor Hill. Her mother, Hannah Vansant made a Will Jan. 28, 1783, in which bequests are made to her son, Christopher Vansant, and the following "to my children:" John Vansant, Anne Vansant, Mabel Loveland, wife of Lot Loveland; Mary Cadwell, wife of Matthew Cadwell, Sarah Ritter, wife of Daniel Ritter, and the heirs of my daughter, Hannah Cole, deceased. Witnesses: John Wells, Richard Risley, Samuel Wells.

Hannah Vansant, who made the above Will, was the dau. of John Risley, Jr., of Hartford, Ct., (John, Richard, Richard) and Hannah Keeney, dau. of Joseph and Hannah (Hills) Keeney of Glastonbury, Ct. Hannah Vansant was own sister of Mabel Risley, wife of Jonathan Webster, bap. Oct. 7, 1705, son of Jonathan and Esther (Judd) Webster, which see. Joseph Keeney, b. 1666, was the son of Alexander Keeney of Wethersfield, Ct.

Joseph Hills was an early householder in Glastonbury, Ct., and his dau. Hannah Hills married the above Joseph Keeney. In his Will, dated May 2, 1713, Joseph Hills of Glastonbury makes bequests as follows: "To my present wife, Elizabeth; to my sons, Joseph Hills and Henry Hills; to my daughters, Hannah Keeney, Susannah Kilburn, and Dorothy Holbister. To Benoni Hills, but it is not said that he is a son. March 12, 1699, Joseph Hills of Glastonbury gave two pieces of land, 12 acres in all, "for fatherly love" "to my daughter, Hannah Keeney, and my son-in-law, Sergt. Joseph Keeney of Hartford," the land, in or near Hockanum, bounded by Richard Risley, Jonathan Hills, John Haynes. Witnesses: Eleazer and Thomas Kimberly. Thus, through Mary Vansant, mother of Reuben Cadwell, father of Sally Cadwell, who married Edmund Fox, appears the line of Alexander Keeney of Wethersfield, Richard Risley (Wrisley) one of the founders of Hartford, and Josephine Hills of Glastonbury, Ct.

Edmund Fox removed with his father about 1810, to Dryden, Tompkins Co., N. Y., but the influence of the Cadwells and other relatives who remained in Fabius, led to their return, about 1824. They spent the remainder of their lives on the "old Fox farm" in Keeney Settlement. From a memorial written at the time of his death, the following is an extract:

"Mr. Webster was on his return home, after spending a few months in California for his health, and was taken suddenly ill, and died of pleuro pneumonia. He was born in Hampton, Washington Co., N. Y., Jan. 10, 1824. He received an Academic education at the Troy Conference Academy, Poughney, Vermont, and came west when 24 years of age, and settled in what is now the town of Omro, Wis. Mr. Webster was a man of calm judgment, and for his courteous regard for the feelings and opinions of other men, was universally respected. He was honored with the confidence of his neighbors and fellow townspeople, who frequently selected him for places of trust and responsibility. For thirty years past he had occupied some position in the public affairs of this community, all the way from district clerk to a member of the Assembly. So long as it was agreeable to him to do so he represented his town in the county board, and in 1878 he was elected a member of the legislature of 1878-80, and was re-elected the next year, serving two years. His mother was a woman of strong character and earnest piety, and through her influence he came to man's estate, thoroughly grounded in right principles of action, and determined to conform his life to a high moral standard. Although not a communicant of any church, Mr. Webster was a believer in God and in the great fundamental truths of religion, and a liberal supporter of the church. The last months of his life were spent upon the Pacific coast, and though he was suffering from feeble health, they were full of delightful experiences." The end.

widow) Crane. Res., 1899, Unionville, Hartford Co., Conn. He d. March 23, 1904.

A most remarkable coincidence was the death yesterday afternoon of two aged brothers, at the same time and of the same disease, but in different places. Martin and Alpheus Porter died at 2:30 o'clock of the grip, of which both had been ailing about a week. Martin died at his home in Avon, while Alpheus expired at his home in Farmington. Neither knew that the other was ill.

Martin Porter was 91 years and 6 months and 26 days old, while Alpheus was 89 years and 3 mos. old. Both were prominent men in the neighborhoods in which they lived and died. Both were born in a house which stood on the same land as the house in which Martin died now stands.

Although both brothers outlived their wives, both celebrated their golden weddings, Alpheus in 1902 and Martin in 1887. The brothers had commissions in the Union army during the Civil war, Martin being captain. Martin Porter was for many years engaged in the lumber business in the South, but he returned to his native town many years ago. Alpheus was one of the first daguerreotypers in this state, learning the business from Broadbent, who was taught by Daguerre.

Both brothers were greatly interested in the Russian-Japanese war, and followed the movements of the armies on large maps which they had tacked on the walls of their rooms. The brothers will be buried together in Unionville on Saturday. Separate services will be held where each died and a double funeral will be held later in the Stone Church at Unionville.

Both funeral processions met simultaneously without either waiting a moment for the other.

7. Rev. Sylvester Munroe Webster, b. Oct. 19, 1820, a farmer and minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church. "The History of Methodism in Wisconsin," says of him.

"The first minister appointed to this charge (Maxville Mission, Buffalo Co., West Wisconsin Conference, 1857) was Sylvester M. Webster. He came as a volunteer under Elder Bolles' direction, and labored with great success. The religious awakening which attended his labors was not confined to his charge. The work spread over four counties, viz., Buffalo, Pepin, Dunn and Eau Claire. The whole valley of the Chippewa felt its influence. Many of the converts were among the roughest specimens of humanity—raftsmen, river men and lumbermen. He was admitted into Conference in 1857; ordained Deacon by Bishop Scott in 1860, at Sparta, Wis., and received a location in 1863."

He was of a sanguine, hopeful temperament, and though he lost financially in a saw mill and other ventures, and removed to Marshall Co., Minn., where he located on a farm, and toiled hard to extricate himself from his difficulties, he continued to preach to the end of his life. In this his wife was a helpmate indeed, being a female preacher, of touching and pathetic address.

SECTION 1.—Children of James (James, Timothy, Capt. Stephen, Dr. Jonathan, Robert, Gov. John) and Sabrina (Cattin) and Mrs. Lydia (Benjamin, nee Hawley) Webster of Litchfield, Ct., and Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y.

1. James Russell Webster, b. Jan. 20, 1806, of Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y., m. July 2, 1829, Elizabeth Nicholson, dau. of Isaac and Margaret Mullender, b. at Seneca, N. Y., June 20, 1810. She was of Geneva, N. Y., when married. He was a Coal and Lumber Dealer at Waterloo, N. Y., and in 1863-'64, Assessor of Internal Revenue there. She d. at Waterloo, N. Y., in 1889. He d. Jan. 4, 1899.

He was a total abstainer from intoxicants and tobacco, and when a farmer he united with others in a league not to sell grain for distillation. He often found it difficult to rally men to the raising of his buildings because he would not allow strong drink on such occasions.

"He lived to see six generations of his family, and he represented at that time four generations, every voter being a Republican. He often related an interesting gathering which occurred at the house of his uncle Lyman at Hudson, N. Y., the occasion being the re-union of a father and five brothers, the first time all had met after an absence of fifty years. The day of the meeting they visited a photographer where they had their pictures taken in a group. In the evening they held a prayer meeting where they united their voices in praise and prayer, all being professed followers of Christ. Their united ages at death was about 535 years, being an average of about 90 years; their united weight was some over one thousand pounds. The grandfather's two brothers reached the advanced age of one hundred, and one hundred and ten years respectively."

In the Fall of the same year he was admitted to the bar, and began to practice in the United States Courts. Mr. Payne is the grandson of Judge Elsie Payne, founder of Hamilton, N. Y. He went to Illinois from Seneca Falls, N. Y., with his parents in 1837.

He was, in April, 1861, one of a committee of three to organize a Company at Waukegan; enlisted himself April 17, 1861, and served as Lieutenant for three months. Returning to Waukegan, he organized a company for three years; joined the 37th Regiment of Illinois Infantry as Captain of Company C. He served for three years and a half; being promoted to Major, thence to Lieutenant Colonel; Brevetted Colonel, and afterward appointed Brevet Brigadier General.

General Payne participated in twenty-one battles and skirmishes among which were, Pea Ridge, Prairie Grove, and the siege of Vicksburg; for bravery in these battles were his promotions given. He was Commander of the Post of Booneville, Mo., Oct., 1861—Jan., 1862, and Picket Officer of Gen'l Frank Herron's Division, at Vicksburg.

He was, in the Fall of 1864, elected to the General Assembly of Illinois, to represent Lake County. In 1866 he was again elected to the Legislature. In 1869, he refused all further political offices, and practiced law in Chicago from 1869-1886, when his health failed from the injuries he had received during the war, and he entered the government service as Special Examiner of Pensions, hoping to regain his health by the travel entailed in the business.

2. Burton Collins Webster, b. Jan. 5, 1860, was convicted and sentenced for a term of years for killing Charles E. Goodwin because of an insult to the alleged wife of said Webster.

In his trial in New York city in 1892 he gave his name as Burton Cuthbert, and his birth place, Richmond, Va. He also claimed to have taken a partial course in Columbia College, and to have studied law with District Attorney, N. H. Miller, in 1878-79; then to have gone West with the expectation of getting into the office of the General Solicitor of the Northwestern R. R., but there being no vacancy, he obtained a place as paymaster in a pork and beef packing establishment. In 1883 he went into the "bookmaking" business, a sort of clerk for persons engaged in gambling on horse races, and while thus employed in New York City, he killed Goodwin. Evelyn Granville, as she was known on the comic opera and burlesque stage, was Webster's alleged wife. During the trial he formally married her and she gave birth to a child in Jan., 1892. He had been previously married, but was separated from his first wife by whom he had no children. Records of Geneva, Kane Co., Ill., show, "Burton C. Webster of Chicago, Ill., aged 25, m. Oct. 2, 1881, at Aurora, Ill., to Charlotte L. Picard, aged 20, of Chicago, Ill." The end.

1. Sophia Jane Webster, b. Feb. 10, 1841, d. at Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 31, 1866.

2. Edward Hannegan Webster, b. Feb. 21, 1843, an Attorney and Real Estate Broker of Kansas City, Mo., was educated in the common schools of his native place, Benton, Ind. At sixteen he began learning the printer's trade in the office of "The Northern Indianian," at Warsaw, Ind.

The Civil War came on and he enlisted, April 19, 1861, at Warsaw, Ind., as a private in Company E, 12th Indiana Infantry, and was mustered in May 5th, 1861, for one year. The regiment was mustered into the United States service July 23d, 1861, and sent at once to Harper's Ferry, Va., where, six months later, he was promoted to Sergeant.

He was with his regiment at the capture of Martinsburg and Winchester, Va., when Gen'l Shields won against Stonewall Jackson. The regiment was discharged at the end of the year, May 19, 1862. Sergeant Webster immediately reenlisted, and helped to reorganize the regiment, which was mustered into the United States service for three years, August 17th, 1862, in which he was commissioned Second Lieutenant in Company F. He was subsequently detailed to duty as Inspector General on the staff of Gen'l John Mason Loomis commanding 1st Brigade, 1st Division, 15th Army Corps, Army of the Tennessee.

He took part, with his regiment, in the battle at Richmond, Ky., August 30th, 1862, where six thousand Union soldiers, under Gen'l Nelson, made an all-day fight against thirty thousand Confederates, under Gen'l Kirby Smith. The regiment lost 30 killed, and 143 wounded. The Union forces were finally all captured except about 860. Lieut. Webster, who had become separated in the darkness from his command, was making his way alone through the woods, carrying an empty musket, when he met, and, by strategy, captured three Rebel Cavalrymen all heavily armed, and took them with him to Lexington.

He was at the siege of Vicksburg, and immediately upon its surrender, July 4th, went with the regiment to Jackson, Miss., where he was under fire from July 12th to 15th, when the place was taken. He was complimented for bravery in the battle of Missionary Ridge, November 24th, 1863. Was promoted to First Lieutenant, and took part in the battle of Resaca, Ga., May 28th, 1864, where he led a charge on the enemy's works. He fought also at Dallas and at New Hope Church, and was again complimented at the battle of Kennesaw Mountain.

With his regiment he was engaged in the battle of Beech Tree Creek, July 20th; Atlanta, July 22d; Ezra Church, July 28th, and August 3d, and Jonesboro, August 31st. He, with his regiment, accompanied Sherman in his "March to the Sea," and was engaged in the last battle of that campaign at Bentonville, N. C.

During his service he took part in twenty-one battles, marched with his regiment through Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South and North Carolina, a distance of more than six thousand miles, and at the close of Sherman's campaign, spring of 1864, he was promoted to Captain of Company A.

The Twelfth Indiana was a famous regiment. "Within an hour," says Reuben Williams in "The Northern Indianian," "three men gave up their lives," bearing the flag at Richmond, Ky., when 5,000 Federal troops withstood the assault of 30,000 Confederates. In the Grand Review of the Army of the Tennessee, at Washington, D. C., (Sherman's Veterans) the Regiment was given the right of the line, and was the first to pass the President's stand, Captain Webster with his Company A, leading. During his war service he was a number of times Judge Advocate of courts martial, and was the Recorder of Commissions in his Division. He was honorably discharged at Indianapolis, Ind. June 14, 1865. After the war, fall of 1865, he located in Kansas City, Mo. He began reading law at that time and in 1867 was admitted to the bar. In politics Mr Webster was a Republican. He was honored with the offices of City Assessor and Alderman. He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and a Mason.

In the summer of 1893, pressed by the suspension of several banks, he assigned his business. Failing health compelled him to seek other climates, and he spent six months in Mexico. Returning he settled in Denver, August, 1894, but died the December following, lying unconscious the last three weeks.

He married, Sep. 21, 1875, Medora Richardson, born Dec. 30, 1850, at New Holland, Ohio, youngest daughter of Nathaniel Rodney and Corilla (Shipley) Ferguson, early settlers of Kansas City from Ohio. Henry Clay Kellogg was Col. of the 43d Georgia Regiment in the Confederate Army. His military service during the war was as follows: He was Regimental of the 14th Georgia in 1861, and served in Western Virginia. In December he resigned on account of ill health. In March, 1862, his health having improved, he raised a Company of 115 men in Forsyth County and rendezvoused at Big Shanty, Ga. On the organization of the Regiment he was elected Major, afterward promoted to Lieut.-Col. then to Colonel. Served most of the time in the Western Army, Tennessee, Kentucky, Vicksburg, Miss., and was with Kirby Smith when he went to Kentucky. Returned to Vicksburg, was at Missionary Ridge in the defeat of Bragg by Sherman, and then with Joe Johnson back to Atlanta. Was with Gen. Hood in his raid through Alabama and to Nashville, back to Georgia, through South Carolina, then in front of Sherman into North Carolina, when surrender was made by General Lee. Was twice wounded, and the ball from first wound, received at New Hope, Ga., was not removed. The other was caused by a bursting shell at Nashville on the Franklin Pike. He was in many severe battles and during the last six weeks of service commanded the Brigade, not as Senior Colonel, but by assignment.

Hon. Morris Catlin Webster was elected Speaker of the Legislature of Connecticut of 1913. For twenty-four years he has been Secretary and Superintendent of the New Britain (Conn.) Malleable Iron Works Company, interspersing his time with farming at Harwinton, his birth-place. He inherits the blessing of a good name, and an honorable and distinguished ancestry. Three of his ancestors were Revolutionary soldiers and one earned distinction by carrying General Arnold, when wounded, from the battlefield at Saratoga. Through his mother he is connected with the Catlin family, so many of whom have held prominent and responsible positions in the state. Mr. Webster was educated at Winchester Institute, then a flourishing military academy in charge of Col. Ira W. Pettibone, and began business in the employ of Hart, Merriam & Co., of Hartford where he remained six years. From Hartford he went to Milwaukee, thence to New York, then engaged for himself in business at Terryville, and in 1878 accepted the position of Secretary and Superintendent of the Malleable Iron Works in New Britain, which he still holds. In New Britain Mr. Webster began his political career. He served three years in the Common Council, is serving his twelfth upon the School Board, was Representative in the Legislature of 1897, 1911 and 1913, and has served two years as Mayor. He was a state Building and Loan Commissioner from 1901 to 1907. He has always been prominent in church work and is known as a believer in and a member of several secret societies in New Britain. His wife is a member of one of Connecticut's oldest families, one of those that settled Windsor in 1636.

Address, 1913, Terryville, Conn., R. F. D.

CHILDREN: (All born in Conn., the first at Terryville, the others at New Britain) Walter Barber, Nov. 12, 1876; Sarah Lucila, May 28, 1879; Ellen Anna, July 24, 1882. All, 1913, unmarried. The end.

SECTION 5.—Children of Adaline Webster (Abijah, Amos, Capt. Moses, Ens. William, Robert, Gov. John) and her husband, George Hampton Julian, of Crossville, Lumpkin Co., Ga.

1. Hon. Abijah John Julian, b. Dec. 2, 1842 (see portrait) m. April 19, 1864, Minnie Amelia Bailey.

He was a Confederate soldier in the Civil War, serving fourteen months in the 43d Georgia Infantry; six months in Armstrong's Cavalry, and sixteen months in Gen. Joseph E. Wheeler's Cavalry. He continued in service until the surrender in North Carolina, April, 1865, receiving his pay-roll May 4, 1865.

It was while a soldier that he married. His mother was the only white person on their farm, and he secured from Gen. Wheeler, at Tunnel Hill, Ga., a sixty-day furlough and went to Alabama, where Dr. S. S. Bailey, father of his intended, had taken refuge from Summerville, Ga., and was married, the wedding being thus hastened that his mother might have a white companion during his absence in the army. He returned to his command before his furlough expired.

After the war he spent four years as a merchant and bookkeeper, but owning a large farm at Wooley's Ford, in Forsyth Co., Ga., he returned to it with his mother, "improving," as he said, "my health as I improved my farm."

In 1880 he was elected to the Legislature, serving four years in the House, and two years in the Senate. In 1901 he secured a Rural free delivery mail line for his region, one of the first in Georgia, and the first in the 9th Congressional district. He established a Rural Telephone Line to Gainesville, Ga., which has grown to over forty lines. He has been President of "The Wooley's Ford Farmers' Telephone Company" since 1906.

He received the unanimous vote of the Democratic side of the House of Representatives in Congress for Doorkeeper, but being in the minority they could not elect him.

By appointment of the Governor of the State of Georgia, and by the direct vote of the people, he has held many offices of trust and honor. No act of his gives him greater pleasure than the deciding vote which he cast in the House which passed the Local Option Law, a bill which as Chairman of the Committee, he had brought forward. This was soon followed by state-wide prohibition.

Mr. Julian is a member of the Baptist church, having been up to 1913, fifty-four years a member, and forty years a Deacon; he is also a past-master mason. His res. '13, is Gainesville, Hall Co., Ga.

First Division, showing the Great Grandchildren of Charles and Hannah Phelps Webster by their son, Ozias Webster of Harwinton, Ct., who married Hannah Merriam.

SECTION 1.—Children of William Burnham (Ozias, Charles, Capt. Moses, Ensign William, Robert, Gov. John) and Sarah Adeline (Hull) Webster of Harwinton, Burlington, New Britain, and Berlin, Ct.

1. William Holcomb Webster, a lawyer, (see portrait) b. January 24, 1839, at Burlington, Ct., was the lamented author of this book, whose death before its completion brought wide spread regret. The event was foreshadowed in his own mind, and a few years before it occurred, he confided to the final author (1891) the fear that he might not live to bring the work to publication, and requested him, in case his fears were realized, to finish the task, which a merciful Providence has permitted.

William Holcomb Webster was graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, Ct., in 1861, and he immediately enlisted as Second Lieutenant of Co. I, Fifth Connecticut Volunteers. He was discharged in 1863 for disabilities and returned to his home in Connecticut, where he soon became Provost-Marshal.

After the war he served in Louisiana during the reconstruction period. In 1869 he was appointed Chief of the Old War and Navy Division of the Pension Bureau, where he remained until 1886, a period of seventeen years. Here he did some of his best work, compiling, among other things, "Connecticut Men in the Revolution," a great volume published by the State of Connecticut. In it are gathered the names of the officers and soldiers of that period, by companies and regiments, and the pensioners, both men and widows. It was a matter of keen disappointment to Mr. Webster that his name was not allowed to appear in the volume, and credit was not given for his exceptional service in its production.

The fulness of the record of Webster's and others whose names appear in this book, covering all the wars, is due chiefly to his familiarity with these official sources of information.

He completed a course in the Columbian Law School, and was graduated in 1871. In 1886, President Grover Cleveland appointed him Chief Examiner of the Civil Service Commission, and, until his death, he served in that capacity with distinguished ability.

On the occasion of his death, the Civil Service Commission met the day before his burial, and held a service, attended by all the employes of the Commission, and representatives of many of the Government Departments. Addresses were made, and these, with an official tribute were published in a memorial volume from which the following statement of his work is taken.

"On Monday afternoon, March twenty-third, Major William H. Webster, Chief Examiner of this Commission, died suddenly. At the beginning of the Commission's work, in 1883, Major Webster was Chairman of the Central Board of Examiners, on detail from the Pension Office, where he was a chief of division. Much of the credit of the organization of that board and its work belongs to his early efforts in the cause. On August 23, 1886, upon the advancement of Mr. Lyman, who was then Chief Examiner, to be Commissioner, Major Webster was appointed Chief Examiner by President Cleveland.

"The United States Civil Service Commission desires to record in its minutes an expression of its appreciation of the high character, unusual abilities, and manifold services of Major Webster, who for over nine years was Chief Examiner of the Commission. His death is a personal bereavement to each Commissioner, yet it is as a public official that they especially wish to speak of him here. From the enactment of the civil-service law he was interested in the work of the Commission, and every year increased his devotion and usefulness to the betterment of the public service. He was painstaking, faithful, and just in all his duties. His conclusions were formed only after thorough and conscientious consideration of the questions before him, but once formed, were sturdily maintained, yet always with courtesy and kindness.

"The Commission feels it due to the memory of Major Webster to make record of this official tribute, and it is ordered that this minute and the action of the Commission and its employes at the memorial meeting be communicated to the secretaries of the various boards throughout the service."

Commissioner John R. Proctor presided and said, "Coming into the building and finding the flag at half mast, and passing through the vacant rooms, I cannot address you. * * * I cannot fittingly express my feelings over my own great personal loss, and the great loss to you and to the public service. I will call upon my fellow-commissioners."

Commissioner William C. Rice spoke in part as follows: "He is not dead; he is just away," is a verse of James Whitcomb Riley's which comes with special meaning as we think of the hearty man, alert to so many varied interests, who a few hours ago was our associate. There is, too, something peculiarly comforting and peaceful in the thought that his last earthly act was to take the attitude in which he prayed, and to know that as he knelt his spirit returned to the God who gave it. He was a faithful churchman, a brave soldier, strong in all his beliefs, firm in his friendships, pain-taking in his work, seeking always to be just in his judgment. He was trusted, and was worthy of trust in every relation of life."

Commissioner John B. Harlow: "This friend of ours who has gone before us was a manly, brainy, conservative man, and a safe adviser. This Commission has lost by his death its right arm."

Hon. Charles Lyman, former Civil Service Commissioner: "I think that I rejoice in the fact that my friend, as I might have expected, was faithful to the end. In every duty, in every responsibility, in every relation of his life, so far as I know—and I know pretty well what his life was—he was faithful, honest, true, everywhere and to the last, and he went out as he had expected to go, suddenly. You all know, I suppose, or most of you, that he had looked forward to this kind of departure."

"A word about the life of this man. He was one of those of whom there are a great many, especially in New England, not poor in the sense that he was deprived of the ordinary blessings that make life comfortable in his boyhood, but poor in the sense that he was early compelled to make his own way in the world, to rely upon his own energies and exertions to advance his fortunes. He earned by one means or another money enough to take his course in college. When the war broke out in 1861 he was in his senior year in Trinity College, and, like a great many other patriotic young men, he left the college and went into the army and served throughout the war, served faithfully and served honorably, and at the close of the war still remained in the service and was assigned to duties which were trying, which were difficult, and which taxed the capacity of those persons who were assigned to them to the utmost—duties which required absolute integrity, ability of the highest order, and courage which knew no flinching. Major Webster fulfilled expectations in this service. Retiring from the army he entered the civil service of the Pension Office and rose through the various grades to the position of chief of one of the most important divisions in that office, and held that position until he became Chief Examiner of the Civil Service Commission. You all know what his life has been here and what his work has been here. I need not enlarge upon it. You can not know it better than I know it. When a vacancy occurred in this office in the position of Chief Examiner, it became a very serious matter who should fill it. There were applicants whose claims were pressed with the utmost persistency. Major Webster was not an applicant, but the Commission, in looking over the ground, in canvassing the field felt that it was wise and best for the public service to pass by all of those who had applied for the place and to ask the President to appoint him. He did appoint him. And I stand here today, after nine, almost ten, years from that time, to say, as I look back upon it, that no mistake was made. You know that no mistake was made. Major Webster, in every emergency, in every position in which he has been placed during these ten years of service as Chief Examiner, has been true to the oath which he took. He has performed his duties intelligently, faithfully, courageously, and impartially."

Mr. John T. Doyle: "Major Webster was one of those heroes who formed the blood and shew by which our common country was preserved. He crowned his patriotic service in the war by aiding in peace to make our civil service purer. Times of peace have their victories as well as times of war. * * * It was almost a providential benefaction that the direction of the examinations (Civil Service) should have been put in the hands of a man of experience, industry, courage, self-reliance, honesty, and balance. A man of timid or vacillating mind would have retarded, if not wrecked, the infant work."

Mr. F. M. Kiggins: "As a public official his career at this office was one of untiring industry. He did not seem to know the limit to a day's work. He believed that he could not give too much time and thought to the work of this Commission, the cause which he loved so well, and in which he enlisted his best energies for so many years. * * * The Chief Examiner occupied a position in this office which required absolute integrity as well as the highest order of ability. As to his integrity, it was never questioned, and as to his ability, it has been seen and felt in the work of this Commission for many years."

Mr. Theodore L. DeLand: "I did not expect to speak today on Major Webster's death. No more did I expect two days ago that he would pass so suddenly from us. The day that he left the office for the last time I was in his room with him up to about half-past four. He was then happy and buoyant, and gave every evidence that he was in full possession of his health and strength. A few little matters were discussed. He said, 'I will take them up with you in the morning.' That morning is an indefinite time for me now. In one short half-hour after that conversation his noble spirit had passed away."

"I feel keenly Major Webster's death. I was related to him by distant ties of kinship. Two hundred years ago we had a common ancestor. It was one of the pleasures of Major Webster's life, one of his amusements, one of his pastimes, to search among the people of this country for those who were directly or indirectly related to him. It was a fascinating study for him. He knew more of our family history than we knew ourselves. He was an example of untiring industry. Long after the hour when ordinarily the official would close his desk and retire from the office, the Major would remain, diligently at work. I will take this occasion to say in public that he was a slave to duty. It has been said that when the Almighty gives life to the child he stores up in that child just so much physical and mental energy. I fear that Major Webster drew too rapidly upon his allotted energy. I am satisfied that he died of overwork."

Mr. Luther W. Covell: "I certainly think that of all the men with whom I have ever been associated, Major Webster was absolutely the most just and fair man that I ever had to deal with."

Mr. William J. Washburn: "He was more than a friend. He was a wise counsellor. He was a guide. He was an instructor. He had a reverence for law, human and divine, far surpassing that of most men. That was one of the strong traits of his character, and with this in view he always did what he had to do justly, honestly, and courageously. That he always acted intelligently no one can doubt. No one doubted his ability. No words of mine can do him justice. More eloquent than rhetorical expression and more enduring than Parian marble is the work he has done, the life he has lived, and his influence must remain with us."

Mr. F. E. Camp of the Pension Office: "During all the years that we worked side by side he was always the same. There was in him the most absolute devotion to duty, and in his work the most painstaking thoroughness that I ever saw in official life."

Mr. William J. Rhees of the Smithsonian Institution: "It affords me a melancholy pleasure to attend the memorial services of one so well entitled to honor and remembrance as Major W. H. Webster, and especially to testify of his interest and useful labors in the society of the 'Sons of the American Revolution.'"

"As a patriotic citizen, who had borne arms himself in behalf of his country, he was deeply impressed with the objects of this society, which are 'to perpetuate the memory of the men who by their services or sacrifices during the War of the American Revolution achieved the independence of the nation; to unite and promote fellowship among their descendants; to inspire them and the community at large with a more profound reverence for the principles of the Government founded by our forefathers; to encourage historical research in relation to the American Revolution, to acquire and preserve the records of the individual services of the patriots of the war; to foster true patriotism, and to maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom.'"

"He became a member of the society on the 20th of April, 1891, a year after its organization, claiming descent as a great-grandson, on his paternal side, of Charles Webster, and on his maternal side of Diamond Clark, both having served with honor as privates in the Connecticut Militia during the War of the Revolution. He took the deepest interest in the society, faithfully attended all its meetings, served on its committees of 'Advancement' and 'Recruiting,' and was elected in 1895 on the board of managers and as historian. In the latter capacity he read at the last annual meeting, February 22, 1896, obituary notices of the members who had died during the year. He served during the last six months on the committee to prepare a year book or register of the society, in which genealogies of the members and records of the revolutionary services of their ancestors are to be published. To this work he gave unremitting attention, and his painstaking efforts to secure accuracy and to eliminate errors, either of statement or in typography, were of the highest value and importance. He was well fitted for this task, having been engaged for several years in editing the 'Record of Connecticut Men in the War of the Revolution,' published by the State, and also having undertaken an extensive genealogical work relating to his own family."

Mr. S. Herbert Giesy, Trinity, '85: "I did not expect this privilege of expressing my esteem and affection for Major William H. Webster, and I can hardly add anything to the tributes so earnestly paid that able and genial man by his collaborators in the Civil Service Commission. But as a fellow alumnus of Trinity College, as a brother in his college fraternity, Psi Upsilon, and as a member of St. Thomas' Church, where I saw him Sunday after Sunday, I would not be properly regardful of his friends in those several associations if I did not here voice the affection and regard that they felt for him. We of Trinity College are proud of his abilities and of what he has accomplished as Chief Examiner of the Civil Service Commission and as the friend and exponent of the reform which that Commission represents. The graduates of that institution will be extremely proud to hear of the estimate placed upon Major Webster's work by the active workers for the improvement of the civil service and the admiration which they felt for his many personal qualities.

"He said to me once, 'I am a Joiner.' He was. He belonged to the Sons of the American Revolution, he was a Mason, he belonged to the Loyal Legion, and was a member of a Grand Army post. * * * A Trinity Alumni meeting never occurred without his presence."

These are samples of the estimates of his character and achievements given by a few of the twenty-three speakers at the memorial services. They have been selected because they cover the main facts in his history, and each accentuates some phase of his varied life.

As noted above, he was a member of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Masonic fraternity, the Grand Army of the Republic, the Alumni of Trinity College, and a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

2. Lurana Webster, b. July 19, 1821, died early, but taught school a few years before her death.

3. Joseph Elijah Webster, b. Oct. 27, 1825, m. Nancy Belcher. On the occasion of his death, July 19, 1907, the following facts appeared in the public press:

"Uncle Joe" as he was affectionately and familiarly known, was one of the best known men in Verona township. In religious belief he was a Universalist, in politics a strong Democrat. With a better education than most in his early manhood he held many offices of trust in this county. In later years for many terms he was an assessor of taxes. He was a fine historian and astronomer and a keen and remarkably successful sportsman. Full of dry wit, he was a genial companion. Since the death of his wife, Nancy Belcher Webster, which occurred fourteen years ago on the 6th day of August, he had lived most of the time alone, until fourteen months ago, when the widow of his foster son left her home in Towner, North Dakota, and came to care for him. His last year was one of the happiest of his life. Although his memory was impaired, owing to his advanced years, it was his good fortune to remember well the happy incidents of his life."

His wife, Nancy Belcher, died Aug. 6, 1893, and he, July 19, 1907, and both are buried in the Durhamville, N. Y., Cemetery. CHILDREN: (adopted) George Harper Webster.

George Harper Webster died suddenly in New York City, March 13, 1903, of heart disease, aged 57 years. He left a widow and two daughters, Miss Leitzia and Mrs. James J. Pierson, of Towner, North Dakota. His son, James Carlton Webster was a member of the 9th U. S. Infantry. He died on Long Island just after his return from Cuba in the Spanish-American war. The end.

Engineer Webster's death was the result of injuries received in a collision, which took place on the Vermont Central Railway between Randolph and Bethel, April 24, 1868. He was running a down freight train. On arriving at Randolph he received an order to meet an up-passenger train which was late at Bethel. He immediately left Randolph, running at the rate of speed specified in the time table, viz, 12 miles per hour. But unfortunately, when within about three-fourths of a mile of Bethel, just as his engine was turning a very sharp curve, on the inside of which were high rocks completely obscuring the track, he encountered the up-passenger train, running at a high rate of speed, the conductor and engineer of which had run by the station. Bethel, designed as their meeting place. The concussion was terrific. Both engines were totally wrecked, destroying the first two cars and their contents of the freight train, instantly killing the baggage master, severely injuring the express messenger, and bruising and horribly scalding engineer Webster.
