PAGEANT

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 4.

3 p. m., at Choate Field.

*"All the land was full of people,
Restless, struggling, toiling, striving,
Speaking many tongues, yet feeling
But one heart-beat in their bosoms.
In the woodland rang their axes,
Smoked their towns in all the valleys,
Over all the lakes and rivers,
Rushed their great canoes of thunder."*

EPISODE I.

Scene I.

The assembling of the Council, Mattabesitt Indians.

From the forest and the mountains,
From the rivers and the valleys,
Hasten, now, O sons of Weena!

Hasten from the gentle south wind,
Hasten from the pleasant west wind,

Hasten from the north and east wind!
Sing and offer praise to Weena,
To the mighty spirit, Weena!

1st Youth:
(Leslie Saunders)

To you, wise men, and our fathers,
We have come to show our prowess;
To implore a name be given,
Worthy of our skill in hunting,
Worthy of our strong endurance,
And the Courage Spirit, Weena!
Weena! Weena!

Councillors:

Tell us, then, O youths of courage,
What it is you've done among you.

1st Youth:

I have crossed the falling waters,
Fiercely dashing far below me;
I have found the logway fallen,
That has made the crossing bridgeway,
I have twice and thrice attempted,
Then, at last, have leapt the waters!

Councillors:

Leaping Water, shall we call you;
Leaping Water! Ahuajin!
Ahuajin! Ahuajin!

2nd Youth:
(Vernon Talbot)

I have hunted in the forest,
Hunted when the trees were leafless,
For the leaves had fallen thickly,
Heaped about me in dry masses;
I have found them burning fiercely,
Fierce I've fought the fire and quenched it.

Councillors:

Evermore, then, shall we call you,
Stamp Fire! By that name, Wohela!
Wohela! Wohela!

3d Youth:
(Harold Eriksen)

By the sunny, sloping pasture,
Where the young colts feed in numbers,
I have found one that no other,
Ever dared to try the temper.
I have ridden, tossed and turning,
Clung and beating, I have tamed him!

Councillors:

For this skill in temper trying,
Kicking Horse, your name! Ossoomuh!
Ossoomuh! Ossoomuh!

4th Youth:
(William Lair) By you, wise men, and our fathers,
I've been sent on lengthy errands
To the wigwams of our neighbors
With a message of great value;
From the lightning I have fallen;
Stunned, and crawling—brought the message!

Councillors: Hit-in-the-Head! The name be given
To you, forever more! Nahmahway!
Mahmahway! Mahmahway!

5th Youth:
(George Harth) For five days, wise men and fathers,
In the marshland, in the swampland,
I have lived in seeking swamp roots,
Medicine for old and feeble;
Five long days, in thirst and hunger,
I have sought the roots, and found them!

Councillors: And for this, Swamp Root we shall call you;
The name be given—Keewis-kawin!
Keewis-kawin! Keewis-kawin!

For Weena's sake,
Ahuajin! Wohela! Ossoomuh! Mahmahway! Keewis-kawin!

Dance of the councillors and youths, in celebration of the bestowal of names.

Scene II.

The return of the warriors, who have been in combat with their enemies, the Pequots.

Councillors: Four times has the sun risen and set in the heavens, since you left us to fight the Pequots who have made their way across the Great River at the East, and no scalps we see, as tokens.

Montowese:
(Herbert I. Lee) The sun shall rise and set no more for Ahmusk, and his followers. They lie by the Great River.

Accanant:
(George Pogmore) And the moon shines down upon the graves of others.

Wayashunt:
(George Crooks) The winds shall blow no more upon the faces of many braves we left.

Mimiquae:
(Charles Cooper) The rain shall wash away the blood where they were slain, but not the anger and the sorrow of our hearts.

Montowese: Tribute must we render, otter and ermine, arrowheads and horses.

Councillors: We will move onward to the west, where the sun sets, and the wind spirit dwells.

Accanant: The trail of the Mohawks is on the West.

Wayashunt: O, my father, there are white men at the river's mouth, many of them.

Accanant: Paleface children! Seeking to share our land.

Montowese: Palefaces, but enemies of the Pequots and the Mohawks.

Mimiquae: Great are the numbers of the Palefaces, many are their lodging places at the river's mouth.

Wayashunt: We, whose loss is great in numbers, let us gather near to them for shelter.

Accanant: Great is the tribute to be paid our enemies.

Montowese: And great the desire of the Palefaces for our land. I—Montowese—am the friend of the white man, for our good. When he comes to our wigwams, I give him welcome. To the white man, I give welcome!

Welcome! To the white man, welcome!

COUNCILLORS—Fred Lobb, Howard Emory, Edwin Cowen, Leslie Rose, Theodore Afflect, Charles Chandler, Russell Foster, Clayton Francis, Charles Smith, Rudolph Hauer.

EPISODE II.—The Vision.

Scene I.

In 1660, the land upon which is located the present town of Wallingford, was surveyed by Rev. Mr. Davenport, Thomas Yale, William Andrews, John Brockett, Nathaniel Merriman and Montowese.

Mr. Merriman: (Henry L. Davis) It is here, Goodman Brockett, enclosed in the circle of these gentle hills, that our idea of a new town might fitly be carried out.

Mr. Brockett: (Charles C. Carroll) It is a sightly place, covering many good miles, if I mistake not.

Mr. Andrews: (Charles F. Williams) It is the same land, then, that some twenty years ago was bought of our friend, Montowese?

Mr. Brockett: The same. I have surveyed it before, and today will fix the boundary lines again.

Mr. Yale: (Lucius Maltby) Then it is the plan to settle the land that we see, from our numbers at New Haven?

Mr. Merriman: A Divine Providence has seemed to point the way to this end. It is said that Mr. Davenport has felt it so, though he has spoken not, since we paused here.

Mr. Davenport: (James H. Solandt) So beautiful a place in nature, as we see now, cannot but fill the mind with thoughts of the Creator of this fair land. Since standing here, that Scriptural verse has come to me with extra meaning: "My beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill." Look yonder, and see the valley land, fertile and green, and the hills yonder, of what may they not prove fruitful, in years to come? People shall live here, led by the Spirit of Progress, and by Courage. Religious Freedom shall be theirs, and Liberty. Education shall come to them, and Industry; and Justice reign through them, forever. Look yonder! And think how wondrous is the future for the dwellers of this place!

EPISODE III.

The Beginning of the Fulfillment of the Vision.

Scene I.

In 1669, the Spirit of Progress led thirty-eight brave men in New Haven, to pledge themselves to lay out a new town, which was to become the village of Wallingford.

Governor Eaton:
(T. Henry Prisk) The purpose of this committee whom I have hereby chosen to my aid, is to present before the worthy body of men we shall meet here today, the substance of this document, and witness the signing thereof.

Mr. Humiston:
(Louis Hotchkiss) Your Excellency, this is an occasion of historic moment. These men, I trust, are aware of the seriousness of their undertaking?

Governor Eaton: They shall speak for themselves, for here they are assembling. Mr. Broadley, I appoint you secretary of this meeting, that the record may be kept.

Mr. Street:
(Wilbur A. Simpson) Your Excellency, we are here as by agreement, signifying our intention of settling the new town spoken of.

Governor Eaton: My address to you, then, is not an admonition of the dangers that may beset you, but rather an explanation of the document which you are about to sign. Mr. Broadley, and it please you, we shall hear this document.

Mr. Broadley:
(Norman H. Barnes) "We, whose names are underwritten, being accepted by the committee of New Haven for ye intended village as planned, and desiring that the worship and ordinances of God may in due time be set up, and encouraged among us—do engage ourselves peaceably to submit to such settlement and civil orders, as the said committee shall direct among us—until the said village come to be an orderly establishment within itself, and lastly we do engage—to settle upon the place, by May next, come twelvemonth, if God's providence inevitably hinder not, and to observe—every the other articles agreed upon."

Governor Eaton: You have heard the reading of this document. Do ye as a body approve of its text?

Men: Aye!

Governor Eaton: Then it but remains for the guarantee of your signature.

Mr. Broadley: Samuel Street! Nathaniel Merriman! Abraham Doolittle! William Johnson! Benjamin Lewis! Samuel Whitehead! Eliasaph Preston! Eleazar Holt! Samuel Andrews! Daniel Sherman! Samuel Munson! John Harriman! John Mosse! Jero How! Daniel Hogge! Thomas Hall! Thomas Curtis! John Beech! Jehiel Preston! Samuel Hall! Eleazer Peck! Samuel Potter! John Peck! Francis Heaton! John Brockett! Zach. How! John Milles! Nathaniel How! Thomas Yale! John Ives! John Hall! Joseph Ives! Joseph Benham! Simon Tuttell! Samuel Brown! Samuel Cook! Samuel Milles! Nathan Andrews!

Governor Eaton: And nod, Mr. Street, the sanction of the Divine Spirit were needed to be implored, for this occasion.

Mr. Street: May God, who hath led men through the wilderness, lead us with honor, lead us with courage, and lead us to build our town as we build our hopes of another world, founded on the strength ever of good works. Amen.

A May Day in New England.

Courage, an unseen but ever ready equipment, went with the early settlers on their journey through new country to their intended village, and helped them to face whatever unknown dangers awaited them. In May, 1670, a little band of people arrived with all their worldly goods, with all their hopes and fears, and began the making of our present town.

Scene IV.

Evening in the New Town, a Service of Thanksgiving.

Religious Freedom was of chief importance to all colonists, but to none more than the Wallingford settlers, who desired, first of all, in their settlement document, that "the worship of God be set up among us."

"How sweet and awful is the place
With Christ within the doors;
While everlasting love displays
The choicest of her stores!

While all our hearts, and all our songs
Join to admire the feast,
Each of us cries, with thankful tongues,
"Lord, why was I a guest?"

'Twas the same love that spread the feast
That sweetly drew us in;
Else we had still refused to taste,
And perished in our sin."

EPISODE IV.

Scene I.

"The Cradle of American Liberty."

Two years before the Declaration of Independence, Wallingford men declared themselves free, at a town meeting held in protest over the passing of the Stamp Act. The Spirit of Liberty which led them to declare themselves free men, proclaimed them as forerunners of an American democracy.

Drummer:
(Henry Kane) Hear ye! Hear ye! Town meeting tonight! Hear ye!
Hear ye! Town meeting tonight! Special town meeting at seven o'clock! Hear ye! Hear ye! Town meeting tonight!

1st Man:
(Walter Winchell) What is it, what is the news?

2d Man:
(Fred Burghoff) It is the news which has just reached the colonies, of the Stamp Act which has been agreed upon in London.

Moderator:
(George H. Craig) Will the meeting come to order! This meeting has been called to bring to your attention the news of the Stamp Act passed in London, whereby all documents and paper and parchment used in business shall be stamped.

Men: Mr. Moderator! Mr. Moderator! Mr. Moderator!

Moderator: Order! I am in authority at this meeting to appeal to your sense of justice. Shall we, or shall we not, acquiesce in this injustice?

Men: No! No! We shall not!

Moderator: Did our ancestors, or did they not, purchase this township?

All: Aye! Aye!

Moderator: And they who planted at expense, and possessed in peril, did they, or did they not, bequeath this land to us?

Men: They did!

Moderator: And our inheritance is, we were born free!

Men: We were born free!

Moderator: Therefore, what action shall be taken?

Men: Mr. Moderator! Mr. Moderator!

Moderator: Order! Mr. Andrews!

Mr. Andrews: I vote that anyone who uses a sign or stamp on any documents be fined twenty shillings.

Men: Aye! Aye! I second it!

Moderator: It has been voted that anyone who uses on any paper or parchment any such stamp shall be fined twenty shillings, whereas and because—

Men: Our ancestors purchased the land; possessed it in peril;
bequeathed it to us; we are, therefore, born Free, and are Free Men of the American Colonies.

Assembly on the Green.

A patriotic demonstration in 1778, in rejoicing over the news of action favorable to the interests of the colonies being taken in courts abroad.

MINUET.

The Toasts: "May monopolizers and withholders, Tories and Tyrants meet with the confusion they so justly deserve."
"May the internal foes of America never taste the sweets of liberty."
"May the Union of the American States be perpetual and their prize, Freedom, until time shall be no more."

MINUET MEN:

Breckenridge, Miss Anne Thomas, Miss Louise Martin, Miss Nathalie Walker, Miss Elizabeth Kelly.

Scene IV.

Approach and Dispersion of the British, 1789.

The colonists were still in fear of the British when, at this time, Col. Street Hall called them to action with the alarm, "The British! The British are at New Haven! To arms! The British are coming!"

EPISODE V.

The Wallingford Union Academy, 1818.

Education has been foremost among the necessities of the town from its first foundation, and because of its schools, a just reputation has been earned beyond the dreams of its early visioners, for educational development.

Girls: Let us hear, if you can say
All the lessons, learned today;
Boys: Oh, it's reading, writing, 'rithmetic we know;
Problems in square root and compound interest, show!
Girls: Very good, boys, true as well,
Is there more, boys, that you can tell?
Boys: Yes, we learn geometry and history,
In our Union Academy.
Boys: Now, please tell us, what you can say
Of the lessons you've learned today;
Girls: Oh, it's botany, astronomy we know;
And with stitches fine, embroidering, we sew;
Boys: Very good, girls, good and true;
Is there more, girls, that you can do?
Girls: Yes, we learn to paint and draw, and gentle be,
In our Union Academy.

PUPILS:

Doris Smith, Mildred Post, Vivian Russo, Esther Zellars, Lisa Malmquist, Hattie Karolshak, Martha Eriksen, Arline Houlihan, Jennie Costa, Madeline Phelan, Lily Whitehouse, Elizabeth Cass, Everett Lobb, Everett Hall, Robert Hall, Bernard Tully, Nohrdell Post, Milton Alex, John Craig, Anson Clinton.

EPISODE VI.

An Afternoon Tea Party, 1837.

The Spirit of Industry led the men of Wallingford, soon after their arrival, to build a small grist mill. From then on, factories have changed, but have always multiplied in usefulness and numbers; for the tendency shown in the beginning to create and produce, has grown into a strong and worthy attribute.

EPISODE VII.

Procession of Vehicles.

Captain Macock Ward built, in 1755, the first chaise in this vicinity, a two-wheeled vehicle.

Ezra Rice owned the first pleasure vehicle that was ever seen in Meriden and vicinity, and this wagon had four wheels.

Th stage coach was an important social and national institution in the days of romance, revolution, powdered wig, and polite manners.

The one-horse chaise of the late 1700's was the forerunner of the buggy, the phaeton, the runabout, and the roadster.

EPISODE VIII.

War Wedding of the Sixties.

Justice demanded that men should fight for the abolition of slavery, and to many a Northern bride came the sorrow of parting, with the call to arms.

EPISODE IX.

The World War.

The Spirit of Wallingford, with the aid of her Courage, Liberty, Justice; of Industry, Religious Freedom, Progress and Education, had passed through nearly 250 years of well doing, and well being, when the great sacrifice was demanded of her, of giving her sons in service in the World War; and no prouder moment was hers than when she so generously gave of those whom it was so hard to give.

Scene I.

Spirit of War: (Leo Del Rosso)	I am the Spirit of War! I call to my aid all those who have courage to offer sacrifice, in the name of humanity!
--	--

Justice: (Lucy Roper)	You, who sound the clarion of War, do this in my name; I have led you in the cause of the oppressed.
---------------------------------	--

Liberty: (Eloise Haywood)	I am the spirit that has ever led Wallingford in the great epochs of her existence.
-------------------------------------	---

War: (Leo Del Rosso)	Sacrifice and sorrow go hand in hand with me, but Peace and Democracy shall follow after and bring joy to the world.
--------------------------------	--

Wallingford: (Elizabeth Martin)	I am the Spirit of Wallingford! Let me know sacrifice—and let me know sorrow! For I shall also know that I am on the side of the oppressed. Gladly and freely, then, I give my sons to you, in the name of humanity!

EPISODE A

Scene I.

The Vision Fulfilled.

- Mr. Davenport:*
(James H. Solandt) And as we view this place, which we hope may be so fruitful a vineyard, would that we could behold a vision of what may come to pass.
- Mr. Brockett:*
(C. C. Carroll) From so small a band of people, can greatness of numbers ever come? Or shall savage races rise from unknown quarters, and put an end to our efforts in establishing a colony?
- Mr. Merriman:*
(Henry L. Davis) Nay, let us not be discouraged by a smallness of numbers, which a Divine Providence hath prospered in this wilderness we have come to. Let us, rather, as Mr. Davenport hath said, look to a largeness of the population of the town that shall be here, and in its accomplishments.
- Mr. Brockett:* Vain imaginings, I fear, but would that they could come true.
- Mr. Davenport:* Yet I think I see the vision become a wondrous great reality!

Scene II.

Wallingford Today.

(Tune: America.)

To thee, O Wallingford,
Land of the hopes and dreams
Of ancient days;
To what thy years have brought,
To all the brave deeds wrought
To all thy lessons taught,
We offer praise.

For thee, O Wallingford,
For all thy future years,
We hope and pray;
Our hopes, like those of old,
Visions of growth behold;
Our pride and love untold,
Are thine, this day.

MARKED HISTORICAL SITES.

1. Near this spot was erected the First Church of Christ, Congregational, 1681. Before that, from 1670, the people met for religious worship in private homes.

2. John Hall Site, 1670. One of the three Hall brothers who came here at the first settlement.

3. Site of the Carrington house. Sir William Franklin, governor of New Jersey, confined here in 1775. He was the leading Tory in the Revolution and was a son of Benjamin Franklin who was one of the leading patriots.

4. Site of the Wells Meeting House, 1760. The congregation was composed of dissatisfied Congregationalists who did not like the teachings of the Rev. James Dana, pastor of the First Church, and separated from that communion. This schism was a noted event in the annals of New England Congregationalism and was the cause of much excitement here for many years.

About 1831 the property came into possession of the Episcopation and is now the site of St. Paul's church.

5. Site of John Moss, Jr.'s. homestead, 1715, now occupied by what the older inhabitants knew as the "Beach House," erected for and occupied by Moses Y. Beach, the founder of the New York Sun. To the present generation it is St. George's Inn.

6. Site of the Old Washington Hotel, famous as the Carrington Tavern in 1789 when General Washington visited Wallingford and stopped here for dinner.

7. Rev. James Dana house, 1760. The home of one of New England's most famous divines and the principal in the celebrated "Dana Controversy" that rocked Congregationalism to its foundations for many years.

8. Lieutenant Nathaniel Merriam Site, 1670. A noted and important personage among the first settlers. The first commander of the town "train band," his house was fortified for a place of refuge in 1675 at the time of King Philip's war. Here he was appointed the "keeper of an ordinary," or tavern, the first one in the town.

9. Rev. Samuel Street allotment. He was the first minister here and presided over forty years at the head of the Congregational society. He was a most saintly man and died universally lamented.

10. Abraham Doolittle lived here at the first settlement and his house was also fortified at the time of the Indian uprising in 1675. He is always referred to as Sergeant Doolittle on the old town records, and his gravestone, marked A. D. 1690, a common field stone, may be seen in the Center street cemetery. The old well is under south-west corner of the house, 304 South Main street.

11. Near this spot stood in 1847 an ancient house occupied by James Hanlon. Here, one Sunday in December of that year, came Father McGarisk, a traveling Catholic Missionary, and said the first Mass. This was the first celebration of the Holy Sacrament here in Wallingford and Catholics came from all parts of the town to be present. James Hanlon died in Illinois about 1883.

12. Nathaniel Rice place, 1670. This name was generally written Roys on the old records. Near this house stood the "Washington Elm" that it is a tradition Washington stood under as he bade farewell to Wallingford citizens in 1789.

The fine elm close by is a scion of that stock and should be preserved as long as possible as a connecting link of Revolutionary day.

THE WALLINGFORD HISTORICAL SOCIETY, Inc.

This quaint, old house which it is hoped will be the home of "The Wallingford Historical Society, Inc., for many generations to come, is very pleasantly situated on South Main street, quite near the historical Street and Merriman allotments of 1670 and within rifle range of the stockades built in 1676 when King Philip's hordes of Indians threatened all southern New England.

Under the careful supervision of President Thomas it has been entirely renovated.

He has been ably assisted by ladies of the society who exercised a most judicious taste in the choice of quaint styles of paper that thoroughly harmonize with the age of the old house.

From some rooms the paper was entirely removed, thus revealing ancient paneling of fine workmanship that would cost a fortune to procure now.

The age of this interesting place is not known as yet, but Hon. O. H. D. Fowler has traced it back on the town records to 1759.

During the Revolution it was probably occupied by the Parsons family, after whom Parsons street was named. The Parsons and Hall families were united by marriage. Esther Parsons was a daughter of Samuel Hall and mentioned on the records as widow of "Cornet" John Parsons in 1766.

Cornet being a military title ranking in olden time between a lieutenant and sergeant. Nowadays he would be called "top sergeant" and duly consigned to punishment eternal by privates under him every morning at reveille, that bugle call abhorred by lazy soldiers.

Whether or not Cornet Parsons gained his military title by active service is not known but Wallingford sent a large contingent to Cape Breton and the siege of Louisburg.

Jesse Hall deeded to Caleb Thompson, a portion of the property in 1803. Before that time it had been used as a tavern and a stopping place for the stages that used to run between New York and Boston.

President Thomas, however, denies any intention of claiming General Washington stopped here to dine when he visited Wallingford.

In 1805 Captain Thompson moved his family into the house. He was a carriage builder by trade and pursued that calling in a shop that stood in the north front corner of the yard, on the site now partly occupied by the "Liberty tree" recently dedicated by the society. He was a skilled cabinet maker and at one time made coffins in this shop.

It is a tradition that the Wallingford small boy of that period, if after dark, approached that part of South Main street in fear and trembling and whistled in boyish glee when the "coffin shop" was far behind him.

Years after this shop was moved to South Colony street and made into a dwelling house where it still stands but the weird tales connected with it are there unknown.

Captain Thompson's daughter married Eli W. Ives, who for sixteen years was judge of probate and town clerk. He was a gentleman of the old school, very dignified and precise.

One has only to go to the probate and town records of the early 40's and 50's and see how beautifully they are written to know they were kept by a gentleman of education and refinement.

Quite recently the commission granted by Governor John Treadwell in 1805, to Caleb Thompson, naming him a captain in command of a Wallingford company of infantry, came into possession of the historical society.

Some years ago it had been given the late Major Norton by Joseph Noyes, a descendant of Rev. James Noyes, who lived in the "Dana" house now occupied by George Dickerman, another of our old historic Wallingford mansions.

Mrs. Hannah Norton presented the commission to the historical society, who have had it framed and it will come back after one hundred years to the original house where it was first received by Captain Thompson.

Fannie I. Schember, to whose generosity the historical society owes the possession of this beautiful home, is daughter of Judge Ives and granddaughter of Captain Caleb Thompson. Her early childhood and youth was spent here and the place is endeared to her by countless early associations.

To her not only is the Wallingford Historical Society indebted but our entire community is under a great obligation for what is a most attractive adjunct to the literary and social life of the town.

She is a resident of New Haven at present and it is to be hoped will live many years to enjoy the pleasure and satisfaction of knowing her childhood home will be a Mecca in generations to come for the historian and the antiquarian as well as a center of community interest.

The Wallingford Historical Society was incorporated in 1919. It has about 200 members, and the purpose of the society is to collect and preserve whatever may serve to explain or illustrate the archaeology, the art and literature, the history, civil, ecclesiastical, or natural, of the state of Connecticut, especially that part thereof known as the Quinnipiac valley, including the town of Wallingford and the parts adjacent thereto, as deemed advisable; to provide in a suitable manner for their care, preservation and exhibition, to hold such meetings and provide and conduct such lectures as may aid in the scientific, literary and benevolent education of the community; to print or furnish such publications as may be thought desirable, also to do such things as may be deemed proper, and to receive, invest and care for any gift of money or other property which may be made to such society.

The officers are: Marshall K. Thomas, president; John B. Kendrick, first vice president; Charles G. Phelps, second vice president; Charles H. Tibbits, third vice president; John G. Phelan, secretary; Morgan P. Dickerman, financial secretary; George E. Dickerman, treasurer; Rev. Arthur P. Greenleaf, Marcus E. Cooke, Henry Winter Davis, Emma J. Barber, Linus H. Hall, J. Norris Barnes, Jennie V. Johnson, Edith Hart Goddard, Clarence H. Brown, trustees.

Since the organization of this society great interest has been taken in the story of our historic old town.

Many books and manuscripts are being constantly saved from destruction that will in the future be invaluable. As time passes objects of art, antique furniture, curios, and the thousand and one things that will tend to the information and education of future generations of Wallingford people will be gathered and preserved.
