Do You Have A Pride in Your Family History?

If you do, the families' record is best perpetuated by means of artistic portraits that will last for future generations.

To most people their ancestors are, at best, memories; by means of the modern art of photography, living likenesses may be handed down from one generation to another. The Hallberg Carbon Portraits will last for centuries and can keep a connecting link of families for unlimited future time. It is wonderful. Call at HALLBERG'S STUDIO and see this everlasting photography.

PRAIRIE FARMER - Chicago

Illinois' Oldest and Best Farm Paper

PRAIRIE FARMER was the first farm paper published in Illinois and has worked consistently for seventy-five years for the advancement of the welfare and prosperity of Illinois farmers.

PRAIRIE FARMER was the first paper to endorse Dr. Hopkins' wonderful system of maintaining soil fertility, which is doing so much to increase the production of Illinois farms.

PRAIRIE FARMER was the first paper to recognize the importance of the county advisor work in Illinois, and has supported and pushed this work from the start.

PRAIRIE FARMER is the only paper which has taken up political questions in Illinois from a non-partisan standpoint. Through the letters from "Bill" it has given farmers a view of the inside working of the state government, and revealed some of the causes of graft and inefficiency.

PRAIRIE FARMER was the first paper to publish complete articles and authentic photographs on the first outbreak of the Foot and Mouth Disease. It also conducted a poll of the members of the Illinois Legislature that convinced farmers that their slaughtered stock would be paid for, thus removing the principal cause of opposition to the work of the State and Federal authorities.

PRAIRIE FARMER stands for the Illinois farmer first and all the time, treating all questions fairly and honestly.

PRAIRIE FARMER doesn't try to tell the farmer how he should farm. He knows his own farm better than we do. But we do try to give him the experience that other successful farmers and experiment station men have, so that he can learn their ideas and adopt any that may look good to him. The PRAIRIE FARMER is newsy, cheerful and always working for the farmers' best interests.

These are a few of the reasons why PRAIRIE FARMER is subscribed for and read by more farmers in Illinois than any other farm paper published.

"SPEAKS FOR ITSELF"

ONE MAN ALL PURPOSE

THE Parrett Tractor enjoys a very good reputation—everywhere you hear the Parrett Tractor spoken of by everybody in unusually praiseworthy terms. This fact is clearly and definitely the result of uninterrupted service in the fields of over one-hundred neighbor Illinois farmers.

This is significant, because, as a result of the successful performance referred to, our increase in business for the year just closing is 500 percent.

Your Tractor investment is important. It represents so much ability to accomplish work. In this respect the Parrett offers more per dollar invested than other Tractors.

LIVESTOCK FARMERS' MEDICINE CHEST

By Dr. A. S. Alexander in Prairie Farmer.

When a farmer can employ a competent graduate veterinarian at reasonable expense it always is best to do so, and in all serious cases such expert help should be used even if the expense will be considerable. Unfortunately it is not always possible to find such an expert or he may live at such a distance that an ordinary or trivial case will not warrant the expense of his employment, or the nearest veterinarian may not be a properly qualified practitioner, or is one in whom the stockman has no confidence.

For these reasons every owner of animals should keep some simple remedies on hand, and these are necessary even on farms where professional assistance can readily be had. It should be understood, however, that the untrained farmer should not attempt the administration of strong poisons, alkaloids and many preparations used hypodermically by a graduate veterinarian. Such preparations are extremely dangerous in the hands of the layman and are liable to do much more harm than good. The trained surgeon also should be depended upon for all major operations.

A cupboard may be set apart for storing medicines in a cool, dry place and where freezing will not occur in winter. A glass graduate and scales will be necessary for measuring and weighing medicines. Powdered drugs should be kept in tightly closed glass fruit jars and should be plainly labeled. They may soon lose their strength if exposed to the air. Poisons should be kept on a separate part of a shelf partitioned off for the purpose and away from simple, harmless drugs. Ointments, with the exception of fly blister, should be made up fresh at time of use. Liniment may be prepared and kept indefinitely if well corked.

The medicine case should also have a special division in which to keep a few instruments, bandages, suture silk and absorbent cotton; or better still, these may be kept in a handbag for immediate use as required. The emergency bag should contain a roll of absorbent cotton, several rolled three-yard bandages of unbleached muslin in strips three inches wide, a pound or two of oakum, a spool of strong suture silk, half a dozen suture needles of assorted shapes and sizes, most of them large; a half-ounce, short-barreled, strong-nozzled hard rubber syringe, a two-ounce metal syringe, a cow trocar and canula for tapping a bloated animal, a pair of curved shears, a combination operating knife containing a curved bistoury, a probe pointed bistoury and a strong straight scalpel, a few milking tubes and a teat bistoury, an artery forceps, metal probe, castrating knife and pair of horse clippers.

These will suffice, but there are many other useful instruments such as a clinical thermometer, horse trocar, catheter and dentistry "float," which may be added from time to time. Some of the medicines to be listed later may also have a place in the emergency kit or bag, notably those needed for the treatment of wounds, and at hand should be a strong quart drenching bottle and ten feet of quarter-inch cotton rope with which to hold up a horse's head for drenching. A veterinary force pump is added on a large farm, but its place may be taken by three feet of new lawn sprinkling hose fitted with a large tin funnel. This is used to give a horse or cow a rectal injection. There should also be a six-foot piece of new half-inch rubber tubing for use in giving a cow or mare a vaginal injection.

Simple necessary medicines may best be listed under the following special heads:

Physics.

Epsom and Glauber Salts. Average dose for an adult cow, one pound in three pints of warm water. Dose for a horse, 12 ounces.

Castor Oil. Especially useful for young animals. Dose for a calf or foal, from 1 to 6 tablespoonfuls shaken up in milk.

Raw Linseed Oil (not boiled, which is poisonous). Average dose, one pint for constipation and to follow a dose of colic medicine, or contain medicine for colic.

Barbados Aloes (freshly powdered). Average dose, one ounce, to be given to an adult horse as a "physic ball."

Wound Medicines.

Keep in stock one pint each of carbolic acid and coal tar disinfectant and a gallon can of the latter for dipping and disinfecting purposes. Two teaspoonfuls to a pint of water ordinarily makes a sufficiently strong solution. Bleeding is stopped by applying Monsel's solution of iron on oakum or cotton batting, or applying Monsel's powder. As a wound lotion also keep on hand a mixture of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc in one pint of water. This is called "white lotion" and should be plainly labeled "poison" and well shaken before use.

Dusting Powders.

A dusting powder of equal parts of slacked lime, charcoal and sulphur is useful for application to surface wounds and sores. Boracic acid also is needed and a little iodoform may be added to keep flies away.

Liniments.

Keep on hand a pint (pound) each of turpentine and aqua ammonia. One ounce each of these mixed with a pint of soft water, in which two raw eggs have been shaken up and the mixture left for 24 hours, will make a good stimulating liniment; or one ounce of each may be mixed with 6 to 14 ounces of raw linseed oil to make a very strong or comparatively mild liniment.

Lotions.

"White lotion" for wounds has already been mentioned. Equal quantities of lime water and raw linseed oil make "carron oil," an excellent lotion for burns. Two to four ounces of Goulard's extract and one to two ounces of glycerine in one quart of soft water form a useful lotion for scratches and mud fever or itchiness and "gumminess" of the legs. A good lotion for inflammation of the udder is made by mixing together one part each of fluid extracts of poke root and belladonna leaves and one part of turpentine with five parts of sweet oil, melted lard or camphorated oil. It is made weaker or stronger as required. Anodyne lotion for painful swellings is made by combining equal quantities of tinctures of opium, aconite, belladonna and druggists' soap liniment. A small quantity of chloroform may be added. Mouth lotion consists of an ounce of powdered borax or alum in a quart of soft water; eye lotion of half a dram each of sulphate of zinc and fluid extract of belladonna in a quart of soft water.

Tonics.

Fowler's solution of arsenic is a good general tonic for rundown, thin, hidebound horses and those afflicted with chronic skin diseases or heaves (broken wind). The average dose is half an ounce (one tablespoonful) given night and morning until one quart has been given. The medicine may then be gradually discontinued, taking at least a week to the work. Dried sulphate of iron (copperas), dose one dram night and morning, is another good tonic, commonly combined with an equal dose of ground gentian root or ginger root, nux vomica, saltpeter and fenugreek as a condition powder. The dose is one tablespoonful of the combination of drugs mixed in the feed night and morning for ten days. Omit sulphate of iron for pregnant animals. Nux is poisonous and must therefore be given with care. It is most useful as a nerve tonic and appetizer.

Colic Medicines.

Keep in stock one pound each of laudanum (dose, 1 to 2 ounces); essence of ginger root (dose, 1 to 2 drams); sulphuric acid (dose, $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 ounce); turpentine (dose, 1 to 2 ounces); granular hyposulphite of soda (dose, 1 to 4 ounces). A dose of each of the first three medicines in a pint of water containing two ounces of hyposulphite of soda will prove effective for most colics. Two ounces of turpentine in a pint of raw linseed oil may be given for "wind" (flatulent) colic, or following the other medicine when the pain of "cramp" (spasmodic) colic has subsided.

Fever Medicines.

Powdered saltpeter is an important drug for animals. It is given in the fever of influenza, founder (laminitis) or lymphangitis (milk leg, also for stocking of the legs and other large swellings. A dram is the average dose. Give it every four or six hours in fever, twice daily for swellings, or with tonics as a condition powder, and in double doses for founder or milk leg. Do not give it in colt distemper, when abscesses are forming. It may often be administered in drinking water or a bran mash or damp feed. It also is given in tablespoonful doses once or twice daily for garget of the cow. Beware of aconite often given for fever. It is too dangerous a poison to be safely used by anyone other than a trained doctor.

Blister.

An effective blistering ointment is made by melting together three parts of lard and one-quarter part of finely shaved yellow beeswax, and then stirring in one part of powdered cantharides (Spanish fly). Stir in a tin dish until cold, then store in a capped glass fruit jar. It improves with age. When using this blister clip off the hair, wash the skin clean, dry it perfectly. Tie the horse up short in his stall, rub the blister in for fifteen minutes and then smear on some more blister. Wash the blister off in 48 hours and then apply a little lard daily. Do not cover a blistered part, or rub it on the loins, or on top of the hips, or use it after a poultice, or on irritated skin, or in very hot or cold weather.

Absorbents.

Never be without tincture of iodine to swab on swollen glands, tumors, forming abscesses, bony growths, capped or puffed joints, indolent sores or wounds, canker of the mouth in pigs and ringworm spots. It also is useful to inject into abscesses, fistula and lump jaw cavities. Iodine ointment is made by mixing one dram each of iodine crystals and iodide of potash in one ounce of lard. This is used on swellings, sore necks and shoulders, puffs of all sorts, tumors, forming abscesses, ringworm spots and enlargements of the udder. As an absorbent blister rub up one dram of biniodide of mercury with two ounces of the fly blister already mentioned and use on bony growths, such as splints and ringbone, callouses, indolent sores, tumors of the udder.

Worm Medicines.

Gasoline is kept on most farms and in tablespoonful doses in six ounces of milk is the best remedy for stomach worms in sheep. Lambs take less in proportion. Two ounces of turpentine in a pint of raw linseed oil is effective as a starting dose for a "wormy horse." Follow with worm powders composed of equal parts of salt, sulphur and dried sulphate of iron. Dose, one tablespoonful night and morning for a week, then skip ten days and repeat. Omit iron for pregnant animals. For worms of swine give one teaspoonful of turpentine in slop for three consecutive days for each eighty pounds of body weight; or one dram of dried sulphate of iron in slop for five successive mornings for each hundred pounds of body weight. Where swine are known to be seriously infested with worms, give eight grains of santonin and five grains of calomel in a little slop for each hundred pounds of body weight. Divide the pigs into lots of five and give the medicine in a little slop after starving the animals for eighteen hours. Care must be taken to give only the doses here prescribed, else damage may be done.

Disinfectants.

In the paragraph on wound medicines it has been advised to keep carbolic acid and coal tar disinfectant in stock. To these may be added formaldehyde, bichloride of mercury tablets and permanganate of potash crystals. In disinfecting a stable a solution of four or five ounces of formaldehyde to the gallon, or a 1-1,000 of bichloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate) or a 1-30 solution of carbolic acid or coal tar disinfectant should be used after a thorough cleaning of the premises. For wounds a 1-1,000 solution of corrosive sublimate also is the most effective disinfectant and a 1-500 solution should be used for disinfecting when a spore-forming germ, like that of anthrax, is present. Permanganate of potash is a useful mild disinfectant (antiseptic and deodorizer) in a 1-5,000 to a 1-50 solution. The weaker solution is used lukewarm for vaginal injection purposes, while the 2 per cent solution is useful for injection into cavities from which come bad-smelling discharges and for swabbing sores (cankers) of the mouth. As a wound lotion it is usual to employ a 2 to 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid, or lysol, or coal tar disinfectant. Carbolic acid is also much used as an internal disinfectant in contagious abortion. Two drams of the acid is well diluted with water and mixed in soft feed for each pregnant cow every other night throughout pregnancy. Peroxide of hydrogen one part and clean water two or three parts is a popular disinfectant for cleansing foul wounds.

Scour Medicines.

The farm medicine chest would not be completely stocked without some remedies for diarrhoea or scours. A mixture of one part of salol and two parts of bismuth (first prescribed years ago by the writer) has become a standard remedy among farmers. The average dose is one teaspoonful given two or three times a day and washed down with milk or water. The dose may be doubled in bad cases and for larger calves and foals. Prepared chalk, powdered alum, sulphur, powdered catechu, rhubarb and ginger root are also much used for diarrhoea.

Administering Medicines.

Small doses of liquid medicine, such as the average two-ounce dose of a fever medicine or tonic solution, are best given by means of a half-ounce hard rubber syringe. Expert veterinarians sometimes give such medicines or bad-tasting drugs in gelatine capsules, or in form of a "ball." Worm, condition and tonic powders are mixed in damp grain feed. A large dose of liquid medicine is termed a "drench" and is given from a strong, long-necked bottle. A few inches of rubber hose may be fitted on the neck of such a bottle.

To drench a horse, back him into a stall, place a running noose of soft, small cotton rope or "clothes line" upon the upper incisor teeth, under the upper lip, and draw the noose tight, with the knot of the rope to the front. Throw the loose end of the rope across an overhead beam, raise the horse's head, hold it there by means of the rope and pour the medicine into the mouth a little at a time until all is swallowed. Do not squeeze the throat of the horse when giving medicine and never pour the medicine into the nostril. If the horse will not swallow, pour a teaspoonful of cold water into a nostril and swallowing will instantly occur.

To drench a cow, place her in a stanchion or tie her in a stall. Walk up on her right side (milking side). Pass the left hand across her face and into her mouth. Hold her head in a straight line forward and slightly elevated, not turned to one side. Pour the medicine very slowly into the right side of the mouth. Let the head down instantly if the medicine causes the cow (or horse) to cough. Fluid given too fast passes into the paunch and is practically wasted. Administered slowly, it largely goes to the third and fourth stomachs and absorption takes place in the latter.

Sheep have to be very carefully drenched from a bottle to avoid choking. Swine take medicine through a hole cut in the toe of an old shoe thrust into the mouth or from a short, strong rubber hose fitted in the neck of a strong bottle. Dogs take medicine in capsules inserted in meat or from a bottle or spoon emptied into a pouch formed of the lip and cheek.

Avoid "doping" animals unnecessarily. Medicine should only be given when the animal is sick, should be the right medicine, and is best prescribed by an expert.

Ivan G. Shurt's White Heifer

CONTROLLING CONTAGIOUS ABORTION.

From Prairie Farmer.

Contagious abortion among cattle, the annual loss from which was estimated a few years ago to be $20,000,000, is spreading so rapidly through the country that from an economic standpoint it threatens to become one of the most important of animal diseases. Formerly confined almost exclusively to dairy cows and farm beef herds, it has now found its way to the range, where losses in such instances have run as high as one-half of the calf crop. Here the conditions are such as to make its control difficult. For this reason it is important that stockmen should realize the seriousness of the disease and the necessity for the adoption of measures for preventing its spread.

At the present time sanitary and hygienic measures are the only means of control which have demonstrated their effectiveness. The drugs and proprietary preparations which have been advocated for the cure or prevention of the disease are regarded by the specialists of the department as ineffective, and their use cannot be recommended. On the other hand, it is certain that proper disinfection of premises, and in particular of breeding animals, will do much to minimize losses.

Recently preparations known as "bacterins," consisting of a suspension of the killed organisms of abortion, and serum obtained from infected animals, have come into use and can be obtained from several firms who manufacture biologic products. These products are still in the experimental stage, and much time must elapse before their true value can be determined. Notwithstanding this fact, this line of treatment offers the most scientific and reasonable method of combating the disease, and our only hope of eventually controlling abortion lies in the future development of an effective vaccine or serum.

The organism which causes the disease may be conveyed from cow to cow by means of the bull or may enter the system with contaminated food. All aborting animals and all showing a discharge should, therefore, be isolated from the healthy members of the herd in order to eliminate, so far as possible, infective material. Infected stables should be thoroughly cleansed with a standard disinfectant, applied with a force or spray pump, the disinfection of the contaminated stall being repeated after each abortion. Manure and contaminated litter should be promptly removed and plowed under to prevent access to it by other cattle. Detailed instructions for the disinfection of both the cow and the bull are contained in Circular 216 of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

Many herd owners fail to observe these precautions because they do not realize that the infection is present in their herds. The disease is insidious; it usually requires a long time to develop, does not reveal itself by warning symptoms, and does not, indeed, appear to affect in any way the general health of the animal. In consequence, it is quite likely that the infection will have spread throughout the herd before the owner is aware of any danger. There are, it is true, certain tests which can be employed to ascertain the presence of the infection, but from a practical standpoint these possess some drawbacks. All infected animals do not abort. Furthermore, after two or three abortions, cows appear to acquire a natural immunity, and are thereafter quite capable of normal reproduction, although they continue to react to the tests. A positive reaction, therefore, does not necessarily mean that a healthy calf will not be born.

On the other hand, the fact that several animals have aborted within a short period is in itself suggestive evidence of the presence of the disease. Furthermore, it sometimes happens that in cows which have acquired immunity, although apparently healthy themselves, the infection persists and they are able to transmit the disease to others. For this reason, when the infection has once established itself in a herd, the whole herd should be considered infected, and all abortions, retained afterbirths and all tendency to sterility should be regarded as manifestations of the disease.

This does not mean, however, that all infected animals are to be disposed of. As a matter of fact, in herds in which the disease has gained a foothold, a cow that has aborted once or twice is in some ways more valuable than one that has not. It is safe to say that in practically no case do more than three abortions take place, and in the majority of instances there are not more than two. Cows which are not made sterile will in all probability resume normal reproduction. On the other hand, if they are removed to make way for fresh animals, there is a strong possibility that the newcomers already are, or soon will be, infected, and are actually further from immunity than the old ones. The elimination of infected animals is therefore not to be recommended as a means of controlling the disease, unless their value is not great enough to warrant the expense of treatment.

A train of complications often accompanies abortion, and of these retained afterbirths is perhaps the commonest. This, if neglected or improperly treated, may result in absorption of poisonous products, septicemia, and death. Also sterility may follow, ruining the cow for everything except slaughter. Calf scours, too, seems more destructive in herds affected with abortion.

These complications, together with the great loss in calves and the lessened milk production, make the wide and ever extending distribution of the disease a matter of tremendous importance, both to the dairy and beef industries.

CORN STALK DISEASE.

By Dr. D. McIntosh, University of Illinois, in Prairie Farmer.

This disease is caused by horses and cattle eating diseased corn stalks and especially diseased corn. In the chemical analysis of the diseased stalks and corn, nothing has been found so far which would cause poisoning if eaten by horses or cattle.

Some ears of corn are affected with smut, some with fungus, and some with "worm dust," as it is called. From experiments that have been made none of these substances eaten separately will cause poisoning. When the diseased stalks and corn are eaten in sufficient quantities they undergo a process of fermentation in the stomach, eliminating a poisonous gas, and if enough of this gas should be formed and become absorbed into the system it acts on the nerves, causing paralysis of the hind legs, and affects the nerves of respiration, causing death.

This peculiar disease is found in some parts of the country and not in others and all the corn fields in the same locality are not affected. The reason of this is not known.

The symptoms of this disease are weakness, staggering, and partial or complete loss of the use of the hind legs, and as the disease advances the animal becomes unable to stand, it falls and struggles or has convulsions, and soon dies.

The only preventive is not to feed the diseased corn to horses or cattle and to keep them out of the corn stalk fields until late in the winter. Diseased food of any kind is unsafe and should never be fed to horses.

In the early stage of the disease the best treatment is to give 2 ounces aromatic spirits of ammonia and 2 ounces sweet spirits of nitre at a dose in a pint of cold water and repeat every half hour until five doses have been given. This stimulant seems to counteract the action of the poison and should be tried.

NEW REMEDY FOR WORMS IN HOGS.

From Prairie Farmer.

Santonin, which was formerly widely used as a remedy for worms in hogs, is practically unobtainable at the present time owing to foreign trade conditions. The following treatment has been found to be very effective in experiments by the department of agriculture: Withhold all feed and water for 24 hours, then give each pig a tablespoonful of castor oil to which has been added oil of American worm-wood as follows:

Small pigs, 2 to 3 months old, 35 drops.

Pigs weighing 50 to 100 pounds, 50-100 drops.

Larger pigs, teaspoonful.

Each pig should be dosed separately if the best results are to be obtained. In case separate dosing is impracticable, on account of lack of assistance or other circumstances, the pigs may be sorted out into lots of half a dozen each, according to size. Thoroughly mix the castor oil and wormweed oil in proper quantities with a small quantity of milk or mash, and give it to the pigs, watching them carefully to see that none gets more than his share. Attempting to dose too many pigs at the same time in this manner will result unsatisfactorily, as some will get more and others less than they should. This treatment should be repeated in a week or 10 days to secure 100 per cent efficiency.

HOW BIG A SILO SHALL I BUILD?

Allow 40 pounds of silage per day for each mature cow and half this amount for each head of young stock.

From the accompanying table find the dimensions of the structure that will hold the total quantity needed. The figures are based on silos that have been filled with well matured corn, which has been allowed to settle 48 hours, and then refilled.

The deeper the silo in relation to its diameter and the tighter and better it is built, the smaller the allowance that must be made for spoiled material. In any case it is wise to build a bigger silo than you absolutely need to allow for shrinkage, an unexpectedly long season and a possible increase in the size of your herd.

The cost of filling will vary with the degree of system employed, the distance of hauling involved, the quantity of labor, etc. From records kept on nineteen Illinois farms, it was found to vary from 40 to 67 cents per ton, with an average of 56 cents.

HOW TO BUILD A PIT SILO

By Albert Miller, in Prairie Farmer.

The first thing to do in building a silo of this type is to get an 8-inch posthole auger, with additional gas pipe to extend it to the required length; then auger down at the place where the silo is intended to be made, and find out beforehand the nature of the soil, also how far down it is to the first water vein.

Then, after having the necessary materials on hand, such as brick, cement and sand, make a radius pole and mark off the circumference of whatever the diameter of the silo shall be. Then start digging, being very careful to get the first three or four feet exactly plumb and true to the required circle. If the soil is of such a nature that it will stand well without any danger of caving, then it is best to dig it all out as deep as necessary or not any deeper than within a foot or so from the water vein. After excavating the whole silo a scaffold can be arranged very easily by simply standing four 2 by 6-inch scantling inside, long enough so they reach within four or five feet from the top where some footboards can be nailed across at several places and plank laid down to work from. The brick should continue well down below frost line, but not any higher than about five feet above ground. A flat cover with building paper over it is all that is needed for a roof, and it should be made so it can easily be removed at the time of filling the silo.

For hoisting the dirt out in digging the silo the best way is to use a so-called hay derrick, with a swinging arm, such as is used for stacking hay. This arm will swing to almost any part of the silo, and after the team hoists the dirt the man that dumps the dirt can easily swing it away from the silo. A 50-gallon kerosene barrel makes an elegant pail for hoisting the dirt. The handle must be made from about $\frac{7}{8}$ -inch rod iron, and it must be hooked a little below center on the barrel, which makes it very easy to dump the full barrel of dirt; no matter how heavy the load, if it balances it turns over as easy as a barrel churn. Only one barrel is needed. Thirty barrels an hour can easily be sent out of the silo, even in the hardest clay, with two men digging 10 feet per day on a 12-foot diameter silo.

This type of silo can also be made where there is nothing but pure quartz sand, where the digging part is a snap; but in such a case the brick wall must be continued clear down to the bottom. As the sand caves in easily, it requires a little more care, but there is no need of any curbing by going at it in the right way.

The cost of building a silo of this kind, especially where it can be centered right to the dirt wall, is remarkably low as compared with all types above ground. A silo 12 feet in diameter and 20 feet deep costs for the material and mason work, about $35. It should take no more than two days digging it out; that is, to have two men in the silo digging; one to dump the dirt and one to handle the team. One mason should do the cement work and brick laying in two more days; thus it takes only $35 cash money for material and mason work, and a total of four days' work to complete a silo that will take care of five acres of good corn; thus we see that it would cost more to fix a storing place above ground, even if we would build it out of the very poorest and cheapest lumber, or any other material on the market.

This, however, is not the largest gain, even though it is well worth taking into consideration. The greatest gain and satisfaction comes in when the perfectly pure unfrozen silage comes up with a flavor similar to a can of delicious fruit from a cellar. Why have a cellar? Why not have vegetables and fruit upstairs or above ground? Old mother earth is a great preserver. Jack Frost is the greatest destroyer.

FINDING WEIGHT OF SILAGE

From Prairie Farmer.

In computing the amount of silage in a silo it is first necessary to find the number of cubic feet of silage. This is done by multiplying the diameter of the silo by itself by .7854, and by the depth of the silage. Thus since the silo is 16 by 40 we have: 16 by 16 by .7854 by 40 equals 8042.496 cubic feet.

Next we multiply the number of cubic feet by the mean weight of a cubic foot of the silage. From a table giving the mean weight of silage per cubic foot, which was published in PRAIRIE FARMER Oct. 23, 1915, we find that the mean weight of a cubic foot of silage in a full 40 foot silo is 45.5 pounds. This would give a total of 365,933,568 pounds, or approximately 183 tons of silage.

In case your silo is not full we are reprinting the table, from which you can figure the weight of silage for various depths:

Depth of Silage	Mean Weight of Silage Per Cubic Foot
1	18.7
10	26.1
15	29.8
20	33.3
25	36.5
30	39.0
35	43.0
40	45.5
45	47.0
50	48.5

The Illinois Experiment Station found that it cost $3.30 per ton to produce silage. This was of corn that yielded considerable more than 20 bushels per acre. At this price, however, it would probably give you but a fair profit on your silage.

SEALING THE SILO

From Prairie Farmer.

Practice in sealing silos ranges from leaving the top in the shape it is at the close of filling to covering with straw on which, after it is thoroughly wetted, are sown oats, their germination forming a dense mass that shuts out the air. If no special steps to seal the silo are taken the farmer may expect to find from a foot to a foot and a half of silage at the top which is unfit to feed.

Some farmers wet the top of the silage and sow oats directly upon it. On many farms cornstalks from which the ears have been removed are available for silo sealing. This is a very convenient material for the purpose, as the stalks may be run through the silage cutter following the ear corn. The cut cornstalks should be packed thoroughly and soaked with water.

SILAGE FOR DAIRY COWS

While silage is an excellent feed for dairy stock, it should be combined with some other leguminous feed, such as clover, cow peas, or alfalfa, owing to its insufficient productive quality.

The leguminous material will tend to correct the deficiencies of the silage in dry matter, protein, and mineral constituents. A ration of silage and, say, alfalfa hay alone is satisfactory, however, only for cows which are dry or giving only a small amount of milk and for heifers and bulls. Cows in full milk require some concentrated feed in addition to hay and silage, as they can not consume enough of these feeds to keep up a large flow of milk and maintain body weight.

The amount of silage to feed a cow will depend upon the capacity of the animal to consume feed. She should be fed as much as she will clean up without waste when consumed along with her hay and grain. Raise or lower the amount until the proper quantity is ascertained. Generally speaking, a good cow should be fed just short of the limit of her appetite. If she refuses any of her feed it should be reduced at once. The small breeds will eat 25 or 30 pounds per day; the large breeds 40 or more; and the medium-sized ones amounts varying between.

Ironclad directions for feeding cows can not be given. In general, however, they should be supplied with all the roughage they will clean up with grain in proportion to butterfat produced. The hay will ordinarily range between five and 12 pounds per cow per day when fed in connection with silage. For Holsteins one pound of concentrates for each four pounds of milk produced will prove about right. For Jerseys one pound for each three pounds of milk or less will come nearer meeting the requirements. The grain for other breeds will vary between these two according to the quality of milk produced. A good rule is to feed seven times as much grain as there is butterfat produced.

The following rations will be found good:

For a 1,300-pound cow yielding 40 pounds of milk testing 3.5 per cent:

	Pounds
Silage	40
Clover, cowpea or alfalfa hay.....	10
Grain mixture	10

For the same cow yielding 20 pounds of 3.5 per cent milk:

Silage	40
Clover, cowpea or alfalfa hay.....	5

For a 900-pound cow yielding 30 pounds of 5 per cent milk:

Silage	30
Clover, cowpea or alfalfa hay.....	10
Grain mixture	10
Grain mixture	5

For the same cow yielding 15 pounds of 5 per cent milk:

Silage	30
Clover, cowpea or alfalfa hay.....	8
Grain mixture	5

A good grain mixture to be used in a ration which includes silage and some sort of leguminous hay is composed of—

	Parts
Corn chop	4
Wheat bran	2
Linseed oil meal or cottonseed meal.	1

In case the hay used is not of this kind some of the corn chop may be replaced by linseed or cottonseed meal. In many instances brewers' dried grains or crushed oats may be profitable substituted for bran, and oftentimes gluten products can be used to advantage in place of bran or oil meals.

The time to feed silage is directly after milking or at least several hours before milking. If fed immediately before milking the silage odors may pass through the cow's body into the milk. Besides, the milk may receive some taints directly from the stable air. On the other hand, if feeding is done subsequent to milking, the volatile silage odors will have been thrown off before the next milking hour. Silage is usually fed twice a day.

DAIRY COW FEEDS

From Prairie Farmer.

Farmer's Bulletin 743 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture contains a number of grain feed mixtures for dairy cows, which may be of interest. We will quote a few of them.

Grain mixtures to be fed with roughages of the low protein class, such as corn silage, corn stover, timothy or millet hays, etc.:

Mixture 7—Per centage of digestible protein, 19.4:

400 pounds corn meal.
200 pounds cotton seed meal.
300 pounds gluten feed.
400 pounds dried brewers' grains.

Mixture 9—Percentage of digestible protein, 18.4:

300 pounds corn cob meal.
200 pounds cotton seed meal.

Grain mixtures to be fed with high protein roughage, such as clover, alfalfa, etc.:

Mixture 12—Percentage of digestible protein, 14.1:

400 pounds corn meal.
100 pounds cotton seed meal.
100 pounds gluten feed.
100 pounds wheat bran.

Mixture 18—Percentage of digestible protein, 15.5:

100 pounds corn meal.
100 pounds oil meal (old process).
100 pounds ground oats.

Grain mixtures to be fed with combination of low and high protein roughages, such as silage and clover or alfalfa hay, corn stover and clover hay, mixed hay or oat and pea hay:

Mixture 23—Percentage of digestible protein, 16.4:

200 pounds corn and cob meal.

The Swanson Children and their Pony

100 pounds cotton seed meal.
Mixture 25—Percentage of digestible protein, 16.4:
100 pounds corn meal.
100 pounds ground oats.
100 pounds cotton seed meal.
100 pounds wheat bran.

Give the cow all the roughage she will eat up clean. Grain mixture should be fed in the proportion of one pound of grain to three to four pounds of milk.

SOME FACTS ABOUT STOCK FOOD

Water is contained in all foods and feeding stuffs. The amount varies from 8 to 15 pounds per 100 pounds of such dry materials as hay, straw, or grain, to 80 pounds in silage and 90 pounds in some roots.

Dry matter is the portion remaining after removing or excluding the water.

Ash is what is left when the combustible part of a feeding stuff is burned away. It consists chiefly of lime, magnesia, potash, soda, iron, chlorin, and and carbonic, sulphuric, and phosphoric acids, and is used largely in making bones. Part of the ash constituents of the food is stored up in the animal's body; the rest is voided in the urine and manure.

Protein (nitrogenous matter) is the name of a group of substances containing nitrogen. Protein furnishes the materials for the lean flesh, blood, skin, muscles, tendons, nerves, hair, horns, wool, casein of milk, albumen of eggs, etc., and is one of the most important constituents of feeding stuffs.

Gluten is the name given to one of the most important of the nitrogenous substances classed together under the general term "protein." "Wheat gum," obtained by carefully chewing wheat, is a familiar example. It is the gluten of flour that gives consistency to the dough.

Carbohydrates.—The nitrogen-free extract and fibre are often classed together under the name of carbohydrates. The carbohydrates form the largest part of all vegetable foods. They are either stored up as fat or burned in the body to produce heat and energy. The most common and important carbohydrates are sugar and starch.

Fibre, sometimes called crude cellulose, is the framework of plants, and is, as a rule, the most indigestible constituent of feeding stuffs. The coarse fodders, such as hay and straw, contain a much larger proportion of fibre than the grains, oil cakes, etc.

Nitrogen-free extract includes starch, sugar, gums, and the like, and forms an important part of all feeding stuffs, but especially of most grains.

Fat, or the materials dissolved from a feeding stuff by ether, is a substance of mixed character, and may include, besides real fats, wax, the green coloring matter of plants, etc. The fat of food is either stored up in the body as fat or burned to furnish heat and energy.

CARE OF HORSES

From Prairie Farmer.

Here are a few rules prepared by the Boston Work Horse Relief Association that may as well be observed on the farm as in the city:

Load lightly, and drive slowly.

Stop in the shade if possible.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.

When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose, and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet, but not his legs.

If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar water if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpeter.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee, warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran and a little water, and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

SOLDERING

By P. O. Barnfield, in Prairie Farmer.

Soldering is so simple and is useful in so many different ways that one naturally supposes every farmer would have a soldering outfit if he thought he could use it to advantage. On this supposition I beg to offer some suggestions which have come from actual experience.

No special ability or experience is required. It is, of course, true that deftness and accuracy naturally follow experience, but good results will as surely follow if one will keep the following points in mind.

The soldering outfit consists of a soldering copper (good size, not under two pounds), a bar of half and half solder, a piece of salammoniac, and a small bottle of muriatic acid with a small brush for applying.

Heat the soldering copper not red hot but about the same as a flat iron would be heated for ironing clothes, wipe off the dust on a rag, take a file and rub the surface at the point till copper is clean and bright, then press the hot copper down the salammoniac till it makes a depression. Place the end of the bar of solder in this depression and with the copper melt off two or three drops of solder. Remove the bar and rub the copper hard into the depression, but not so as to push the solder out over the edge. Keep this up till the copper is well coated with a smooth bright coat resembling tin. You are now ready for business. Remove every particle of dirt from the parts intended to be soldered. Usually it is necessary to scrape the surface with a knife or file if greasy or very dirty, and then with a small brush apply the muriatic acid. Rub the surface with the brush to remove particles. Now rub surface to be soldered with the hot copper, using solder as desired. If the solder stands in globules and does not spread over the surface it is because there is some foreign matter between the solder and the surface and the cleaning process should be repeated with more care.

Solder will stick to almost any kind of metal if there is no foreign matter on the surface. Since the parts of a copper under the tinned surface are easily melted, it should never be heated to a red heat.

In mending granitewear or copper, a copper harness rivet or a tinner's rivet may be inserted after cleaning the surface around the hole. Get the boys started to making measures and buckets, funnels and flue caps. Ask that these be made a specific size and see how quickly they will grapple with problems in mensuration. It also might keep them out of town some evenings.

HOW TO JUDGE TRACTOR HORSEPOWER.

From Prairie Farmer.

Nearly everyone knows the definition of a "horsepower" as given in school arithmetics, etc., namely, "the power required to raise a weight of 33,000 pounds to a height of 1 foot in one minute." As this is a definite, fixed unit of power, one would naturally suppose that the horsepower ratings of two tractors would be a logical and reliable means of comparing their ability to perform work; that a tractor rated at 30 horsepower on the drawbar would be twice as powerful and capable of doing twice as much work as one rated at 15 horsepower on the drawbar, for example. This supposition would be correct but for the fact that there has been no definite standard used in ascertaining the horsepower developed by tractors and the percentage of the power actually developed which should be taken for their catalogue rating. The various manufacturers have followed their own judgment in the matter, and as a result several methods of rating are being used, with a consequent lack of uniformity.

It is because of this fact that at the present time it is quite common to find two tractors doing practically the same amount of work and clearly of about equal power although with widely different catalog ratings. It is obvious that either the outfit with a low catalog rating has been underrated by its manufacturer or that the second machine has been overrated, or perhaps both have occurred. It would seem advisable, therefore, that steps be taken to bring about a standard rule for ascertaining and designating the horsepower of tractors. It is not so important, perhaps, what particular method is followed so long as the same method is used by all manufacturers, thus avoiding having machines of the same power given such varying ratings.

A movement is already on foot in the department to bring about the adoption of some standard. Until one has been decided upon and adopted, it is suggested that farmers, in comparing different makes of tractors, should give particular attention to the number of plows pulled and the amount of work done by the various machines, and that less attention be paid to the catalog ratings.

When outfits can be seen working side by side, as at the tractor demonstrations which are being held throughout the country, the amount of work done is of more value in comparing the relative power than are the manufacturers' ratings, unless exactly the same method has been used in each case.

It is obvious that two tractors—each pulling the same number of plows of equal size, at equal depth, in the same soil, and each moving at the same speed—are exerting practically equal amounts of power on the drawbar. In such case, if each is pulling its normal load, they should have the same drawbar rating. It is not at all uncommon, however, as previously stated, to find tractors under such conditions with widely different ratings. By using as a standard the amount of work done by different tractors, therefore, a very fair comparison of the drawbar horsepower can be obtained. With this known, a good idea of the power of the motor can be gained. If, in the case just mentioned, one of the machines was considerably heavier than the other, it is apparent that it would require more power to move its own weight and that it would therefore not be capable of exerting on the drawbar as large a percentage of the motor's total power as would the other machine, assuming that the loss of power through gears, etc., in the transmission was the same. It naturally follows that the motor on the heaviest machine would develop more power on the belt than would the one on the lighter outfit.

The terms "brake" or "belt" horsepower mean exactly the same thing and are used to denote the amount of power which the engine will develop and transmit to a belt for stationary work, such as threshing. This amount of power may be computed by different formulas or may be ascertained definitely by actual measurement with a proper apparatus. This accounts for some of the lack of uniformity in ratings. Some companies carefully measure the amount of power developed by each engine before it leaves the factory and then give their engine a catalogue rating equivalent to its maximum power output; others will deduct a certain amount from the maximum horsepower as ascertained and rate their engine at various percentages of this figure in order to be on the safe side, and to underrate their outfit rather than overrate it, while some companies do not measure the amount of power the engine actually develops, but compute it. With the diameter of cylinder, the length of stroke, and the number of revolutions per minute known, the horsepower which will be developed by an engine can be computed with a fair degree of accuracy, although there are a number of formulas used, several of which give somewhat different results.

In comparing the power of two tractors the speed at which they are moving must always be considered. A tractor pulling two plows at 2 miles an hour will do the same amount of work as one pulling one plow and traveling at 4 miles an hour, other conditions being equal, and the horsepower developed at the drawbar is the same, because the element of time enters into the determination of horsepower. The slower any given tractor is geared to move the greater will be the load which it can pull at the drawbar, as it pulls it less rapidly. The amount of work done and the total amount of power exerted will remain practically the same.

It is obvious that in the case mentioned the tractor pulling one plow and running twice as fast as the one pulling two plows must move its own weight over the ground twice as many times as will the other tractor. If the weight of the two tractors is the same, it will be seen that twice as much power has been expended in moving the weight of the high-speed tractor as has been used by the one with low speed.

A great many farmers find it difficult to understand why a tractor of, say, 10 horsepower at the drawbar will not pull as heavy a load as will 10 horses. This is not because a mechanical horsepower is less than the amount of power developed by a horse, but is because of the fact that a horse has an enormous overload capacity—that is, he is capable of exerting for a short time a great deal stronger pull than he should normally maintain hour after hour.

A tractor, however, has very little overload capacity when pulling its normal load. Thus, if a tractor with a drawbar rating of 10 horsepower pulling its normal load of plows under average conditions should strike a particularly hard spot where the draft was doubled for a few minutes it would stall; while 10 horses under similar conditions could readily increase their pull sufficiently to meet the increased draft.

From this it will be seen that in cases where the draft will vary (and this occurs in practically all kinds of farm work because of grades, soil variation, etc.) the load which a tractor will handle satisfactorily is that which it can pull up the steepest grade or through the toughest soil in the field. This load may be only half of what it can pull under more favorable conditions in the same field. It will also be apparent that the working load of a tractor under ordinary farm conditions is considerably less than the normal load for its drawbar equivalent in horses, that is, a tractor of 10 horsepower on the drawbar will not pull, except under constantly favorable conditions, the load which a 10-horse team would normally pull. The difference might be said to be entirely in the overload capacity of these two prime movers. With a tractor its maximum power is practically its normal power because it is capable of pulling this load continuously, but cannot carry anything in excess of this. On the other hand, the horse's normal load is much less than what he can do in an emergency.

LIGHTNING RODS PROTECT BUILDINGS

From Prairie Farmer.

"It is generally agreed now that lightning rods, properly installed, do afford a considerable measure of protection to farm buildings, a fact which is indicated by the more favorable insurance rates which many insurance companies offer in insuring farm buildings that are properly rodded," says K. J. T. Ekblaw of the department of farm mechanics, University of Illinois.

"One insurance company of Michigan states that the small sum of $32 has been paid in four years for damage done to rodded buildings by lightning, although a total risk of fifty-five million dollars was taken. Another company taking risks amounting to fifty-nine million dollars, in the same period of time on both rodded and unrodded buildings, paid for damage done by lightning more than a thousand times as much as the other company paid on wired buildings. A prominent fire insurance adjuster states that in his experience, for every dollar's worth of damage done to properly rodded buildings, there was $1,168 damage done to unrodded ones. In other words, there was indicated on efficiency of 99.9 per cent in favor of wired ones.

"Some of the points to be kept in mind in installing a system of lightning rod protection are as follows:

"(1) Either copper or galvanized iron may be used for lightning conductors. The cable form is satisfactory and the weight of the copper should be at least three ounces per foot, while that of the galvanized iron should be twice as much.

"(2) All parts of the wiring should be connected up into one system. No blind ends or stubs should be left ungrounded. Joints should be made very securely and the contact made as perfect as possible by soldering and brazing.

"(3) The conductor should be firmly fastened to the building instead of being insulated from it, as is sometimes done. The purpose of the conductor is to take the lightning charge away from the building; insulation prevents this.

"(4) The conductors should follow ridges and sharp corners in the buildings. No sharp turns in the conductor itself should be made.

"(5) Aerial terminals should be located at the ends of ridges and on the ridges at intervals not to exceed 20 feet. Any terminal point on the roof should have an aerial terminal of its own. The aerial terminals should be at least two feet high, firmly braced in upright position, securely fastened to the main cable, and provided with a galvanized or nicked wrought iron point.

"(6) Good earth connections are absolutely necessary. Commonly accepted forms consist of a metal plate buried below the level of permanent moisture, into the soil to a depth of eight or ten feet, securely fastened to the conductor itself.

"(7) All metal masses, such as metal roofs, radiators, hay fork tracks, etc., should be connected to the main system.

"(8) Use good materials, install them properly, and no fear of lightning need be felt."

WHEN THE BELT SLIPS

From Prairie Farmer.

The slipping of belts is a great annoyance, but it is not always remedied by tightening the belt. Ordinarily, if the proper-sized belts and pulleys are used and properly put in, there should be little or no slipping at all. Often the slipping of a belt is due to the overload carried by it. There is economy in using wider belts than is the usual practice. Many a three-inch belt is made to do the work of a four-inch belt, much to the annoyance of the operator and the ruin of the belt.

However, when an immediate remedy is needed, a small quantity of powdered whiting, sprinkled on the inside of the belt, is very good and is the least harmful of any similar application.

The use of beeswax, rubbed on the inside of the belt or on the pulley is a very good remedy in cases of emergency.

Many people use powdered rosin on a slipping belt but this is bad practice because it soon dries the leather and causes it to crack.

KILLING STUMPS.

By Carl Livingston, University of Wisconsin, in Prairie Farmer.

Covering soft maple and elm stumps with salt would surely kill the stumps, but there is no question but that this process would be very much more expensive than it would to blow them out with dynamite or to pull them with a stump puller.

In regard to pouring coal oil on the stumps, if enough is poured on I presume it would kill the stumps, but I imagine a small quantity would injure them very slightly.

From time to time we have rumors of kerosene being applied to stumps through holes bored in the top and allowed to stand for some time. It is claimed that these stumps may be burned out very easily and completely. However, we have never yet run across any case of where this process of stump removal has been economical.

If anyone is especially anxious to kill the stumps quickly, I would advise him to go along with a spade and mattock and take the dirt away from the roots for six inches below the ground line and peel the bark from the stump.

TRACTOR DONT'S

From Prairie Farmer.

In order to assist the user in preventing most of the common gasoline engine troubles, the Bull Bulletin in a recent issue gives the following don't's:

Don't put gasoline into the tank without straining it through a chamois; there may be water in the gasoline, or some sediment that would clog up the carburetor or mixing valve.

Don't handle gasoline by the light of a lantern or other open light. If you have no electric light where the tank is located, never fill it except by daylight.

Don't attempt to run an engine without providing sufficient lubrication.

Don't over-oil the engine. Just enough in the right place is better than a quart.

Don't use common black oil on small bearings. Such oil is not suited to the purpose.

Don't get oil or grease on the wires of the battery circuit; it will ruin the insulation.

Don't hold a spark plug wire more than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch away from the engine with the current turned on, when testing. There is danger of ruining the spark coil.

Don't throw away a spark plug unless it is broken. A spark plug does not wear out, and the only attention it requires is usually nothing more than grinding.

Don't screw a spark plug on too tight. It may "bake" fast. Graphite, is available, should be used on the threads.

Don't throw away any batteries in winter until you have tried thawing them out. Often they are only congealed or frozen up.

Don't leave the battery switch closed when the engine is not running.

Don't leave the gasoline turned on when the engine is not running.

Don't attempt to connect more cells of battery in a set than recommended by the maker of the engine. You may overload the spark coil and burn it out.

Don't leave strands of wire sticking out around connections. They may cause a "ground" in the circuit.

Don't attempt to use any method to warm up the carburetor in cold weather that might ignite the gasoline. Cloths that have been wrung out of hot water are the safest means of heating the carburetor if necessary.

Don't run your engine when overheated.

Don't drive the engine if it makes an unusual noise or squeak; stop at once and remedy the defect.

Don't drive with a slipping clutch; study its connection and master the methods of adjustment.

Don't drive if the lubricator is out of order.

Don't make a noise when changing gear.

Don't race the engine.

Don't measure the depth of gasoline with a dirty stick.

Don't allow a leaky gasoline pipe to go unrepaired; a spark or a hot exhaust pipe might cause the gasoline to ignite.

Don't forget to properly lock any nuts after making an adjustment, nor neglect to replace split pins which you may have withdrawn.

Don't lubricate the gear with too thick a grase.

Don't put too much lubricant in a gear-box.

Don't over-lubricate anywhere.

THE TRACTIONER'S DREAM.

By George Fitch.

The tractor on the farm arose

Before that dawn at four,
It drove the cows and washed the clothes,
And finished every chore.

Then forth it went into the field.
Just at the break of day;
It reaped and threshed the golden yield,
And hauled it all away.

It plowed the field that afternoon
And when the job was through
It hummed a pleasant little tune
And churned the butter, too.

And pumped the water for the stock,
And ground a crib of corn,
And hauled the baby 'round the block
To still its cries forlorn.

Thus ran the busy hours away
By many a labor blest;
And yet, when fell the twilight gray
The tractor had no rest.

For while the farmer, peaceful eyed,
Read by the Tungsten's glow,
The patient tractor stood outside
And ran the dynamo.

RULES FOR PRODUCING HIGH QUALITY EGGS.

From Prairie Farmer.

Chickens must be healthy, good size and not mongrel.

Plenty of clean nests must be provided in chicken houses or places where the hens lay.

Setting hens must be separated from the laying flock.

Broody hens must be broken up immediately or transferred to place where the setting hens are housed.

Eggs must be gathered daily in cool weather and twice daily in very warm or extremely cold weather.

All eggs must be kept in a cool, dry and well ventilated place.

A warm kitchen, damp cellar, or in a room where oil, onions or strong, odorous vegetables are kept is very unsatisfactory, as eggs readily absorb odors.

A dry, cool, clean, well ventilated cellar or cave is the best.

Never wash eggs, as it spoils their keeping qualities.

Use very small, dirty eggs at home or market them in regular cases, not in the association cartons.

Eggs of questionable quality must not be marketed through the association.

Always keep the eggs as cool as possible and away from direct rays of sun.

Market all eggs at least twice a week in summer and fall and not longer than once a week during the rest of the season.

After June 1, all mature males must be confined and sold and infertile eggs produced.

USEFUL INFORMATION

To find the diameter of a circle multiply circumference by .31831.

To find circumference of a circle multiply diameter by 3.1416.

To find area of a circle multiply square of diameter by .7854.

To find surface of a ball multiply square of diameter by 3.1416.

To find side of a square equal in area to a given circle, multiply the diameter of the latter by .8862.

To find cubic inches in a ball multiply cube of diameter by .5236.

Doubling the diameter of a pipe increases its capacity four times.

Double riveting is from 16 to 20 per cent stronger than single.

One cubic foot of anthracite coal weighs about 58 pounds.

One cubic foot of bituminous coal weighs from 47 to 50 pounds.

One ton of coal is equivalent to two cords of wood for steam purposes.

A gallon of water (U. S. Standard) weighs $8\frac{1}{8}$ lbs. and contains 231 cubic inches.

A cubic foot of water contains $7\frac{1}{2}$ gallons, 1728 cubic inches, and weighs $62\frac{1}{2}$ lbs.

Each nominal horse-power of a boiler requires 30 to 35 lbs. of water per hour.

To sharpen dull files lay them in sulphuric acid until they are eaten deep enough.

ORGANIZING THRESHING RING

By Frank I. Mann in Prairie Farmer.

I do not know of a draft of by-laws suitable for a threshing ring, but it would be an easy matter to draw up such if desired. Most of the threshing rings are held together by a "gentleman's agreement," which, as a rule, is just as good as a "cut and dried" constitution and by-laws, and more likely to be observed.

The plan of procedure is to get all the parties in the ring present at a meeting, and if any are not present let them agree to observe the provisions agreed upon at the meeting. Elect a chairman and secretary. The secretary is to keep a record of all measures acted upon by the meeting, and these minutes are in fact the by-laws to be observed later. Usually, an executive committee of about three members are chosen, and this executive committee has full powers to decide matters not decided at the general meeting, to contract with engine and separator men, either by the circuit or threshing and other matters not previously agreed upon.

Usually the general meeting decides who is to furnish separator and engine and the price to be paid under a contract with owners of machines. The number of acres to be threshed is ascertained and the number of men to be furnished is distributed among the members according to acreage. In an average ring each 40-acre field furnishes one man; 80 acres, two men, and 100 acres or more, three men. A timekeeper may be agreed upon at the general meeting, and the timekeeper keeps accurate time the separator is running on each job. At the end of the threshing season a "clearance" is made of the work or men furnished during the season, and those who have received less help than supplied receive the difference, which, of course, is paid by those who have given less than received. This "clearing" of help furnished has a good tendency to keep peace in a neighborhood, and is equitable.

If the ring is a large one, as many of the details should be agreed upon at the general meeting as possible, so as to avoid future misunderstandings. The order in which the jobs are threshed should be understood, and a rotation agreed upon for future years, so no set of members will be thrown either first or last; the hours for commencing and stopping work each day should be understood; the executive committee should have power to decide if any laborer furnished is inefficient. Let the Golden Rule be the motto and the minutes be the by-laws, and among men there will be harmony.

PREPARING POULTRY FOR MARKET.

From Prairie Farmer.

Grasp the chicken, when killing, by the bony part of the skull. Do not let the fingers touch the neck. Make a small cut with a small, sharp pointed knife on the right side of the roof of the chicken's mouth, just where the bones of the skull end. Brain for dry picking by thrusting the knife through the groove which runs along the middle of the roof of the mouth until it touches the skull midway between the eyes. Use a knife which is not more than 2 inches long, one-fourth inch wide, with a thin, flat handle, a sharp point, and a straight cutting edge.

At least 30 per cent of all the poultry coming into the New York market is incompletely bled. Much of it is so badly bled that it results in a loss of from 2 to 5 cents a pound, as compared with the corresponding poultry which is well bled and in good order. Aside from the bad appearance of incompletely bled chickens, their keeping properties are very inferior. The flesh loses its firmness sooner; its flavor is not so good.

A very large proportion of the unsightly poultry in our markets aside from the rubbing and tearing of the skins, is caused by an incomplete removal of the blood. This is evidenced by red dots which frequently occur where the feathers have been removed, especially over the thighs and wings, or by the small veins, which mar the appearance of the neck. Generally it is the neck which shows most plainly the presence of blood in the fowl, or that a wrong method has been used in cutting the blood vessels in an attempt to empty them. The neck is the first part to discolor, becoming first red, then bluish red or purple and finally green as aging progresses.

A Watch Makes the Best Gift because it combines beauty with usefulness. Everyone takes pride in the ownership of a reliable timepiece and no other gift expresses more love or friendship. But give a good watch. Let me show you a line that has no superior. All kinds of Watches, Clocks and Jewelry. Columbia Grafanolas and Records.

THE BUREAU COUNTY FARM BUREAU

By C. J. MANN, Agricultural Advisor

At the Farmers Institute held in Princeton in February 1914, it was proposed that the farmers of Bureau county organize for the specific purpose of putting a trained agriculturist in the field to assist in general agricultural improvement. A temporary organization was perfected, the supervisors acting as directors in the various townships to solicit membership. At the start a membership fee of $1 was asked but it was soon evident that to finance the work properly would require a $10 fee. This change led to some confusion and a compromise was effected providing for active members at $10 per year and associate members at $1 per year. The privileges of the members are defined in the constitution as follows:

Any resident or land owner of Bureau County may become a member of this Association upon payment of the membership fee and signing the Constitution and By-Laws. Only Active members shall have the vote, each membership having one vote. And the active members shall also have gratis the following privileges: Farm visits from and consultation and correspondence with the County Agriculturist at all reasonable times. His name shall be placed on the Association Mailing List for the receipt of literature, and he may attend all meetings held under the auspices of the Association. He may also share the privilege of Co-operative buying and selling of grain, seeds, stock, fertilizers, etc., or other Co-operative undertakings of the Association. The associate members shall have all the privileges of the active members except the vote and the farm visit of the County Agriculturist.

Among those who were most active in perfecting the organization were A. W. Otis, the Methodist minister at Walnut; Harry B. Paden, Ohio; Phillip D. Gillham, Princeton; J. J. Shugart, Princeton; J. E. Monier, Milo; Wilbur C. Trimble, Walnut; Ansel Piper, E. F. Norton, Neponset; D. G. Reder, Mendota; J. C. Sweitzer, Ohio; A. M. Montgomery, John Becker, Geo. Wolfersberger, Ray Sapp, Wyanet; Chas. Kelley, O. W. Mason, Durbin Downey, A. W. Dix, Buda.

The association was perfected and began work June 1, 1914, with the following officers: President, A. W. Otis, Walnut; Vice President, D. G. Reder, Mendota; Secretary, H. B. Paden, Treasurer; A. H. Ferris, Princeton.

Charles J. Mann, of Gilman, Ill., a graduate of the University of Illinois and employed in the soil survey of the United States Department of Agriculture for eight years, was employed as agriculturist. Offices were chosen over Delano's store in Princeton and completely equipped for the work.

The first field work undertaken was the dissemination of the information relative to alfalfa. There were then about 150 acres of alfalfa in the county but through the efforts of the agriculturist this has been increased to several thousand acres and alfalfa is rapidly becoming a standard crop for the county. The value of limestone for alfalfa has been definitely proven in many cases. The cut showing limed and unlimed alfalfa on the farm of Joe Schwab in Milo Township is typical.

Every farm in the county has some land that should be raising alfalfa and very definite information can be given through the agriculturist relative to all phases of this crop.

The value of limestone for clover has also been conclusively demonstrated as illustrated by Lyman Sutton in Milo Township and dozens of other places.

From the numerous observations made by the agriculturist it is evident that most of the soil in Bureau county is acid and good results will be had from limestone. There are, however, some places where the soil does not require limestone and in some cases farmers have applied the stone where it was not needed. It is in such cases that the agriculturist can be of assistance by going over the farms and giving definite information as to where limestone can be used with profit. In the two and one-half years of the work over 10,200 tons of limestone have been used in all parts of the county.

Since clover is the very foundation of soil fertility and most farmers are having trouble in growing good clover, the service of demonstrating how good clover can be grown by means of limestone is one upon which a value cannot be placed because of its very highness.

During the out break of hog cholera in 1914 the agriculturist received the cooperation of the veterinarians of the county and kept a supply of serum and virus on hand in Princeton. Hundreds of hogs were saved by the treatment and much information was obtained which will be valuable in future outbreaks. Very little hog cholera has occurred in the county since and it is thought that if farmers will keep lots and houses thoroughly disinfected, give only pure water and good feed and keep mineral food for them that hog cholera need no longer be feared in the county. What such a condition will mean to the farmers of Bureau county is beyond estimate.

The use of rock phosphate has been advised under many conditions and most of Bureau county soils require phosphorus to increase their fertility. The demonstrations to date of rock phosphate have been successful and every year there will be an increasing amount used.

It is possible with phosphate to so build up the soil to produce 100 bushel crops over a large acreage. If farmers can be induced to once use this material and keep it up until four tons per acre have been applied the value of this work will be beyond computation.

In the spring of 1915 a campaign for the eradication of oat smut was carried on by the agriculturist. Many farmers were persuaded to treat their oats with formaldehyde. The results of the treatment were gratifying and all over the county farmers treated either part or all of their oats as demonstrations which showed conclusively that the treatment will eradicate smut. In 1916 the campaign was resumed with the result that the druggists sold enough formaldehyde to treat 85,500 acres and the state board of agriculture estimates that there were only 85,800 acres in the county. Of course some of the formaldehyde was used to treat potatoes for scab and some was not used after purchasing, but it can be definitely stated that the treatment of oats for smut is an established practice in Bureau county. The money value of this work cannot be determined but it has already saved the farmers enough oats to pay for many years services of the county agriculturist.

In the spring of 1915 a campaign was begun to establish a high yielding corn for Bureau county. The agriculturist planted 300 ears of corn, an ear to the row, on three different types of soil. By this the variation in the yielding power of corn was thoroughly established. Not all of each ear was planted in 1915 and in 1916 some of the high, medium and low yielding ears were grouped and planted in plots side by side. The result will show a great advantage in this method of selecting high yielding corn. Farmers were asked to plant several ears to individual rows and 33 responded with a test of 1700 ears. The highest yielding ears will be planted in multiplying plot in 1917 and corn obtained to distribute to those contributing. Farmers will again be asked to make such plantings in 1917 as a test of 10,000 acres is desired. By this method will eventually be selected a high yielding corn adapted to Bureau county conditions.

If by this cooperation a strain of corn can be selected which will out yield the present strains even five bushels per acre, the cost of the work will have been paid for many years.

In the spring of 1916 several varieties of oats were tested out by individual farmers, because of the trouble with lodged oats, some good early varieties are demanded and by these tests have proven that they will stand up better and yield just as well as the Silvermine which has been the standard variety. The actual value of this grain improvement work cannot be estimated but will be apparent as time goes on.

The seeding of wheat to avoid the Hessian fly has been an important project. In 1914 there was much damage from the fly and later seeding of the next crop was advised. The injury was much less in 1915 and that fall, some acreage was seeded too late so that injury from winter killing resulted. In 1916 seeding between September 21, and September 28, was urged and it is believed that thus the fly and winter killing can both be avoided.

The utilization of alkali and sand dune lands have received considerable attention.

It has been demonstrated that in the inability to get potash, straw is very valuable to apply to alkali and peaty soils. It has also been shown that sweet clover will stand the alkali and permit as much income from pasture and seed as a corn crop. Its use is advised for all alkali land.

It has been shown that alfalfa will grow and produce excellent revenue on the sand hill land and if farmers can be induced to seed this crop, thousands of acres that are at present bringing in but little revenue will be brought to a high state of production. In many cases soil treatment is necessary but information regarding this can be received from the agriculturist.

Some work along livestock lines has been done and will receive more attention in the future. More and better livestock is being urged over the county by the Breeder's and Feeder's association which is affiliated with the improvement association. An effort will be made to get farmers to cooperate in getting better bulls and boars into the county and when conditions warrant, a combination sale will be an annual feature. The production of baby beef is receiving especial attention with the idea of producing the calves on the farm.

Looking to social improvements several farmers' clubs have been organized over the county and have been very successful.

Through the association much saving has been effected in the purchasing of limestone, phosphate, and alfalfa, clover, and rape seed. The total amount thus saved is difficult to estimate, but a member can easily save his membership fee in the purchase of such commodities.

When the agriculturist visits a farm, a plot is made showing the fields and crops. All other information possible is secured and after a thorough inspection of the fields, testing the soil and getting an understanding of the problems at hand, he makes recommendations for improvement relating to crop rotations, soil treatments, varieties of grain to be grown, stock selection, feeding, etc. All this information is kept on file in the office and can be referred to at any time. The members can call him to the farm at any time for any important matter or otherwise visits are made at least once a year when possible.

With a well trained man giving his entire time to this sort of work improvement is certain to come. Soils will be more productive, better yielding grains will be grown, better stock will predominate and Bureau county will be a better place to live. But the whole matter of agricultural improvement is slow. Soil improvement is slow, crop improvement is slow and stock improvement is slow.

But the work to date shows that there is room for improvement and progress has been satisfactory. Nor is this work a one man's job. It requires the cooperation of the farmers in the county. If the farmers desire to build up their soil, grow better crops and make the community a better place in which to live they can be assisted to good advantage by the agriculturist.

Plans are under way to reorganize the association for a second three year period, beginning June 1, 1917. The name will be changed to the Bureau County Farm Bureau, and there will be but one membership with a fee of $10 per year. The County Board made an appropriation to the association of $2,000 for 1916 and again for 1917. This appropriation is fully justified because farmers not members of the association are getting many benefits indirectly and can consult with the agriculturist free of charge and have access to weekly newspaper articles referring to advised methods of farm operations.

are cooperating in the work of the extent of $1,200 per year and through the University special men qualified on special subjects can be obtained to assist the agriculturist. With the county appropriation of $2,000 and the government and state's $1,200 it is thought that a membership of 400 at a $10 fee is necessary to make the work of most value in the future. The farmers of the county will probably be solicited or application can be made direct to the agricultural office, Princeton, for membership pledge card.

GLUE METHOD OF INOCULATION

By Frank I. Mann in Prairie Farmer.

The glue method of inoculating clover and alfalfa seed is not only cheap and easy, but it is nearly "fool proof;" that is, it is not necessary to be very particular about all the details to have it successful in its results. A pound of glue may be dissolved in a gallon of water or in two or three gallons of water, without any appreciable difference in the results; and a quart of dry dirt, or a gallon of dry dirt, may be sprinkled on the seed after it has been moistened with the glue water. As a rule, about a quart of dirt may stick to the seed, and the rest of the dirt may be screened out or not, just as you prefer, as the amount of dirt is not material, if there is enough. In preparing the dirt, however, a little care should be used to secure it from a place where the bacteria are active, as shown by the nodules formed, and if the host plant, in this case sweet clover, has grown in the same place for several years the inoculation will be better. This dirt should not be dried in the sun, as direct sunlight is fatal to bacteria of nearly every kind. The dirt should be finely pulverized and sifted through a fine sieve, but this is not much trouble, as so small an amount is used.

In the case of small seed, like clovers, a solution of one pound of glue to two gallons of water is satisfactory, and then the solution is so dilute not many lumps of seed are formed by sticking together. If there should be, it is easy to rub and screen them out.

VIABILITY OF GARDEN SEEDS

In his book, Productive Vegetable Growing, Prof. John W. Lloyd, of the University of Illinois horticulture department gives the following as the length of time seeds may be expected to retain their vitality:

	Years		Years
Asparagus	5	Mustard	4
Bean	3	Okra	5
Beet	6	Onion	2
Cabbage	5	Parsley	3
Carrot	4	Parsnip	2
Cauliflower	5	Pea	3
Celery	8	Pepper	4
Corn, Sweet	2	Pumpkin	5
Cress	5	Radish	5
Cucumber	10	Rhubarb	3
Eggplant	6	Salisfy	2
Endive	10	Spinach	5
Kale	5	Squash	5
Kohlrabi	5	Tomato	4
Leek	3	Turnip	5
Lettuce	5	Watermelon	5
Muskmelon	5

It is always safest to test seeds that have been kept more than a year before planting, because they are not always kept under the best conditions and if not will deteriorate faster than is indicated in the foregoing table.

About two tons of fresh farm manure are required to produce one ton of common barnyard manure six months old, with losses as indicated.

This is the average composition and the average selling price of twelve brands of so-called "complete" fertilizer offered for sale in Illinois. Only 70 pounds of the phosphorus is guaranteed available, 18 pounds being insoluble. The cost of this 88 pounds of phosphorus in raw rock phosphate would be $2.64.

ERADICATING HEDGE

By Frank I. Mann in Prairie Farmer.

You can not kill a hedge fence entirely by burning or cutting off the tops during the winter or spring. There is so much stored material in the roots to be used in making growth that the roots or stumps will start buds and grow the coming season. If you could cut it or burn it during late summer or early fall—during August in this latitude—after the growth has been made and before the wood has begun to harden, most of the plants will be killed, if not all.

To get rid of a hedge, however, it is not a bad plan to burn it or cut it off close to the ground during the winter when there is more time to work at it, and depend on cutting off the new growth that comes once or twice during the next summer. One close cutting should be made in August, just before the wood commences to harden, so that this young growth is not permitted to store any food in its roots for another year. If all tops have been burned or cut close to the ground the new growth next summer may be kept down without much work by cutting off with a mower or heavy scythe. A close cutting throughout one summer and fall will usually kill all the hedge, though sometimes an occasional plant may show another year. If not allowed to mature any wood during the fall the hedge or any plant is easily killed. If your hedge is where you can permit it to grow it would pay to let it grow for posts. It will pay more per acre than your corn land.

KILLING RATS.

From Prairie Farmer.

Saturate cloths large enough to fill the entrances of the holes with carbon-disulphide, perhaps a large teaspoonful to each cloth. Poke the cloth down as far as possible, then fill in with dirt. This gas is very heavy and when it evaporates it settles into the bottom of the holes, killing old and young. This gas is also very satisfactory in killing gophers and woodchucks.

PRAIRIE FARMER

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

PRAIRIE FARMER answers free of charge any questions relating to agriculture sent in by its readers. These questions are not answered by referring to the encyclopedia, but by practical men, who are authorities in their particular lines. One of the foremost veterinarians in the United States answers all questions relating to animal diseases. Our legal questions are handled by one of Chicago's most prominent lawyers. Frank Mann answers most of our soil and crop inquiries. Livestock questions are answered for the most part by the editor. We are careful to have every answer absolutely correct and practical.

Where questions are urgent an immediate reply by mail will be given. If you want a reply by mail detach one of the coupons and pin it to your letter to insure it reaching the proper department without delay.
