PREFACE.

The first edition of this little work is out of print, and was too limited to supply copies to many persons who desired to possess it.

This, taken in conjunction with the fact that many interesting details bearing upon the earlier history of the family have come to light since the issue of the former edition, and that the names and particulars of many members of the family not included in that edition have now been added, must be taken to justify the issue of a new edition.

Several of the notes in the first edition relate to legal documents and official entries of various kinds which are not considered to be of general interest, and are therefore omitted.

The compiler takes this opportunity of acknowledging his indebtedness to Mr. Tenison Groves for the many particulars he has supplied from time to time from documents in the Public Record Office, Dublin; also to Miss Catherine Jane Hamilton, for examining and extracting MSS. in the British Museum; also to Dr. Charles H. Thompson, for much interesting information obtained at Somerset House and the British Museum and elsewhere.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION (1891)

The following Notices were compiled mainly from original sources, to which reference is made from time to time.

The Compiler at the outset disregarded all statements which had come to his hands relating to the Rev. Nicholas Hamilton and his ancestors other than those borne out by documentary evidence, and proceeded to construct the genealogical tree upon the information derived from such documents ; he has been careful to verify from more than one source every important statement whenever possible to do so, and to test the accuracy of his conclusions by comparison of dates and other particulars ; wherever any reasonable doubt appeared to exist for such conclusions, he has given the data upon which he relied so that the reader may judge for himself.

The documents to which reference is made consist principally of Chancery Bills, Equity Exchequer Bills, and testamentary papers such as wills and letters of administration deposited in the Public Record Office, Dublin. The number of litigious proceedings in which different members of the family were engaged in the seventeenth and beginning of the eighteenth centuries, no doubt arose from the complications caused by the Irish Rebellion of 1641, the Great Rebellion, and the Williamite Wars of 1689-91.

The documents relating to the Chancery and Equity Exchequer Bills contain a mine of information for the genealogical enquirer, and it is to be regretted that the indices to them do not give more particulars, so as to avoid the necessity of referring to many documents in searching for a few.

The military particulars were supplied by Lieut.-Colonel Charles James Hamilton, late of "The Buffs," to whom the Compiler is indebted for his kind assistance.

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY.

According to the accounts usually given to the origin of the Family of Hamilton, the earliest progenitor in Scotland was Gilbert, who is stated to have passed from Leicestershire in England into Scotland in the thirteenth century.

Sir William Fraser, who edited "The Manuscripts of the Duke of Hamilton,"¹ came to a different conclusion. He states that Walter Fitz-Gilbert, whom tradition makes to have escaped from England in 1323, was settled in Scotland long previous to that year. His ancestry, however, still remains a mystery, though the most plausible suggestion is that he belonged to a Northumbrian family. About the year 1209 Roger and Robert de Hameldon appear in Northumberland. A Walter FitzGilbert appears in 1201; his wife was Emma de Umfraville. The de Umfravilles were a great baronial family, and bore, equally with the ancient Earls of Leicester, a single cinquefoil on their shield. The origin of the three cinquefoils in the Hamilton escutcheon may, perhaps, be traced to this source. This heraldic fact tends to confirm the alleged Northumbrian descent of the Hamiltons.

On the 28th August, 1296, Walter FitzGilbert [obviously not the same person whose name appears in 1201] paid homage to King Edward I at Berwick, and in the "Ragman Roll" is described as "Walter fitz Gilbert de Hameldone."

David FitzWalter was present at the coronation of King Robert II in 1371, and affixed his seal to the Settlement of the Crown upon King Robert's eldest son. The seal is still in good preservation bearing three cinquefoils, and the legend "Sigill David Filii Walteri."

King Robert II, by charter dated 11th November, 1375, ratified an exchange of lands between Sir Robert Erskyne and David de Hamylton, son and heir of David FitzWalter [filii Walteri], Knight. This second David was the first to assume the surname of Hamilton, it having been previously used apparently as a territorial designation.

1. Eleventh Report, appendix part VI. "Historical MSS. Commission," 1887. Edited by William Fraser, Edinburgh.

Sir William Fraser¹ gives the descendants of Walter FitzGilbert as follows :—

He was twice married—his first wife dying before 1320 ; he married secondly Mary Gordon by whom he had two sons—David, the ancestor of the Hamiltons Earls of Arran and Dukes of Hamilton and Abercorn ; and John, who married Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Alan Stewart of Darnley and Crookston ; their son, Sir Alexander Hamilton, knt. of Innerwick, who died before 1454, married Elizabeth, da. and co-heir of Thomas Stewart Earl of Angus, by whom he had a son Sir Archibald. Sir Archibald married Margaret, da. of John Montgomery of Thornton, by whom he had a son Sir Alexander (the second of Innerwick), who married Isobel, da. of John Schaw of Sauchie. The last-named Sir Alexander had four sons, (1) Hugh, the ancestor of the family of Innerwick ; (2) John ; (3) Alexander ; and (4) Thomas of Orchardfield and Priestfield in Midlothian. The latter married Margaret Caul and died in or before 1537 leaving two sons. The eldest Thomas being the second of that name at Orchardfield and Priestfield, was made a Burgess of Edinburgh in 1541, and was killed at the battle of Pinkie on 10th Sept., 1547 ; he married Elizabeth, da. of Robert Leslie of Innerpeffer, and had two sons, Thomas of Priestfield, the father of the 1st Earl of Haddington, and John, who became a secular priest of the Roman Catholic Church, and distinguished himself by great zeal and activity in its service ; he was imprisoned in the Tower of London in 1609 and died there in 1610. George, the 2nd son of Thomas Hamilton and Margaret Caul, was created a Burgess of Edinburgh with his brother in 1541. Besides these two sons Thomas Hamilton of Priestfield had others, whose names have not been ascertained. (Vide Fraser's "Memorials of the Earls of Haddington," Vol. I., p. 17, and cf. "Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland," Vol. III., p. 383).

Sir William Fraser states that the earliest document in which the crest of the oak tree with the cross-cut saw appears is dated in 1525, and that in 1457 James, 1st Lord Hamilton, used a crest an oak tree without a saw.

CHAPTER II.

THE HAMILTONS OF PRIESTFIELD IN SCOTLAND WHO SETTLED IN IRELAND.

From the above statement it will be seen that Thomas Hamilton the second of Priestfield died in 1547 leaving his eldest son and other sons whose names have not been ascertained. The descendants of the eldest son are to be found in the family of the Earls of Haddington, and from documents in the Public Record Office, Dublin, it appears that some other members of the family of Priestfield settled in Ireland taking part in the Plantation of Ulster under James I. It may be assumed that they were descendants of one of the sons of Thomas Hamilton whose names have not been ascertained.

From the documents now referred to it appears that William Hamilton "of Priestfield in the Realme of Scotland" settled in the County of Tyrone under the Earl of Abercorn, and being a person of Scottish nation or descent, was in 1616 granted freedom from the yoke of Scottish servitude and given all the rights and privileges of an English subject. This appears by the Patent Roll of the 17 August in the 14th year of James I, and could only have been necessary by reason of his having been born in Scotland before James I succeeded to the Throne of England.

The lands of Ballyfatton in Tyrone where William Hamilton had settled were granted to him for ever at a rent of £18 6s. yearly by Claud Lord Strabane on 3rd June 9 Charles I (1634)—(see claim lodged by William Hamilton 4th of Ballyfatton in 1701 with Trustees of Estates forfeited in 1690).

William Hamilton is described as "of Priestfield" in the will of his brother Hugh, dated 20th May, 1637; and also in a Chancery Bill, dated 8th Dec., 1672, in which John Hamilton of Termegan, Co. Tyrone, was plaintiff and William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton was defendant. John Hamilton, the son of William who settled at Ballyfatton, is described as "of Priestfield in Scotland" in an Equity Exchequer Bill, dated 14th May, 1681, filed by his widow Elizabeth Hamilton, otherwise Fleming, against her grandson John Hamilton.

Two sons of John Hamilton, who is described as of "Priestfield," in the Bill dated 14th May, 1681—namely, William Hamilton of Callidon, Co. Tyrone, and his brother Capt. John Hamilton are also described as "of Priestfield," the former in the will of the Rev. Hugh Cunningham, dated 27th August, 1660, and the latter in a Chancery Bill dated 8th June, 1686, brought by Robert Hamilton of Carrowbeg, Co. Tyrone, and Janet his wife against Margaret Hamilton and others. Thus it will be seen that several members of the family who settled in Ireland were regarded for a long period as still belonging to the Priestfield family.

William Hamilton, who settled in Ballyfatton in 1616, made his will, dated 13th May, 1637, and deposited it in the Castle of Strabane, where it was burnt, probably when Strabane was invested by Sir Phelim O'Neill in 1641. He was taken prisoner by the Irish Rebels and carried off to Doe Castle, a stronghold (which still exists) of the MacSwiney's near Creeslough in Donegal with Robert Hamilton of Carrowbeg—son of his brother Hugh and husband of his grand-daughter Janet. He suffered great privations, and died in the year 1642 while a prisoner in the hands of the rebels. His will, although the original document had been destroyed, was proved at Londonderry Assizes on the 22nd June, 1652, by his younger son William Hamilton, who had acquired the lands of Ballyfatton by purchase from William Hamilton (his nephew), a grandson of the first owner of Ballyfatton. No entry of the will is to be found in the Consistorial Court of Derry. These particulars relative to his death and will are derived from the "Answer," dated 23rd May, 1677, by Robert Hamilton and Janet his wife to a Chancery Bill filed on the 6th November, 1676, by William Hamilton, who proved the will, and from the "depositions" of witnesses taken in connection with those legal proceedings.

The above statement of the sufferings and death of William Hamilton at the hands of the rebels is almost the only reference to the Rebellion of 1641 in any of the documents relating to this family; and, it is hard to reconcile the continued existence of the family in apparently undiminished numbers after that great trouble had passed away with the usual accounts of the great numbers stated to have been massacred by the rebels.

Another incident occurred which connected the Ballyfatton family with the Rebellion. James Hamilton Lord Strabane, who had joined Sir Phelim O'Neill, the leader of the rebels, and whose estates were in consequence forfeited, died at Ballyfatton on the 16th June, 1655, being "a Roman Catholic and papist recusant."—(Ulster Inquisitions, Tyrone I, Tempore Interregni, Strabane, 1 August, 1658). Sir Phelim O'Neill's estates were also forfeited, and comprised to a large extent the lands which were granted to Capt. William Hamilton, as will appear hereafter.

William Hamilton of Priestfield, who was the first owner of Ballyfattan, married Janet Moore by whom he had two sons John, and William, of whom later (p. 12). John Hamilton his eldest son is described as "of Priestfield"—(See Exchequer Bill, 14 May, 1681, Elizabeth Hamilton alias Fleming against John Hamilton and others). He married Elizabeth, da. of Sir Hugh Conyngham (?) and who married secondly Hugh Fleming. Their children were (1) Capt. John Hamilton "of Priestfield" (p. 6), who was killed at Lisnagarvey, Co. Armagh, on the 6th Dec., 1649, and to whom admn. was granted 10 July, 1660—to William Hamilton his brother; (2) Capt. William Hamilton of whom later; (3) Janet, who married her cousin Robert Hamilton of Carrowbeg, and three other daughters; (4) Isabella; (5) Katherine and (6) Margaret. Capt. William Hamilton married Margaret, da. of Lieut.-Col. James Galbraith (M.P. for Strabane 1639—see Galbraith of Clanabogan, Burke's L.G.), and was owner of the Callidon Estates. He died 22 Jan., 1672, and his will was proved 28 June, 1673. The children of Capt William Hamilton and Margaret Galbraith were (1) John Hamilton, of whom later; (2) William, whose will was proved 28 April, 1686; (3) Elizabeth, who married John Leslie, Dean of Dromore; (4) Agnes, will proved 1740; (5) Magdalen, will proved 1743; (6) George, will pro. 1699; (7) Hans, admn. 1709; (8) James, will pro. 1688; (9) Hugh; (10) Henry.

John Hamilton the eldest son of Capt. William and Margaret his wife was M.P. for Strabane 1692; he also owned the Callidon Estates; he mar. Lucy, da. of Anthony Dopping, Bishop of Meath—(see Dopping-Hepentall; cf. Derrycassan, Burke's L.G.); his will was pro. 4 March, 1713. He had two children—William Hamilton, who died without issue in 1723, and Margaret, his heiress, who married on 30th June, 1738, John Boyle 5th Earl of Cork and Orrery (Chap. IV., p. 8).

In the list of those attainted by James II in his Parliament held in Dublin in 1689 the names of the following members of the family appear:—John Hamilton of Callidon, William Hamilton of "Ballyfattane," George Hamilton of Callidon, Robert Hamilton of Carrowbeg, and Margaret Hamilton of Callidon, widow—(The Earl of Belmore's Parliamentary Memoirs of Fermanagh and Tyrone, pp. 365-6).

CHAPTER III.

THE CALLIDON HAMILTONS.

Capt. John Hamilton of Priestfield was an active cavalier in the service of King Charles I, and expended a considerable sum of money in levying a troop of horse in Ireland and transporting them to Scotland and from thence to England in the King's service in a time when the exigency of the royal cause stood most in need of such assistance. He was killed on the 6th Dec., 1649 (as mentioned in the last chapter), and after the Restoration his brother William Hamilton, then of Lough Currine in the County of Tyrone, who had himself rendered services to the royal cause, and had endured sufferings in that cause, was rewarded by a grant of a part of the forfeited lands in the Barony of Dungannon in Tyrone; which forfeited lands were appointed for satisfaction of arrears due before 1649.¹

Capt. William Hamilton, having claimed payment of the moneys due to his brother and himself, the Commissioners whose duty it was to deal with such claims, ascertained that the amount due was £19,763, and after a retrenchment of 7s. 6d. in the pound to provide lands for the native Irish, there remained to be satisfied in lands a sum of £12,362. By letters patent dated 27th February, 19th Charles II and 15th July, 20th Charles II, lands of large extent were granted to William Hamilton and comprised the Callidon Estate.² The Callidon Estate, as before mentioned, passed subsequently into the hands of Margaret Hamilton, who married John 5th Earl of Cork and Orrery.³ The estate was sold towards the end of the eighteenth century to the Earl of Caledon, having been previously offered, it is said, to the ancestor of Sir James Stronge of Tynan Abbey for £70,000, and to the first Earl of Belmore for £90,000⁴

The arms of Hamilton of Priestfield are given in Burke's "General Armoury," 1852, thus:—Gules, or a chevron between three cinquefoils argent, five buckles azure. These arms are not, however, registered with Lyon King at Arms, and Burke's authority for them is not known. They resemble closely the Hamilton arms used by the Earls of Haddington, who represent the senior branch of the Priestfield family. John Hamilton of Callidon, the eldest son of Capt. William Hamilton, married Lucy, daughter of Anthony Dopping, Bishop of Meath. He and his wife presented a Communion paten to Callidon church on which the following inscription and the arms of Hamilton impaling Dopping appear:—"Hanc patinam sacram Johannes Hamilton de Calidon Armiger et Lucy Hamilton alias Dopping, uxor ejus ecclesiæ parochiali Sancti Johannis de Aghalow, D.D., A.D. 1712." The arms are as follows:—Hamilton: Gules, three cinquefoils ermine, on a chief or a lion passant guardant of the first, between two thistles proper. Crest, out of a ducal coronet or, a demi lion gules holding in the dexter paw a thistle of the first. Dopping: Gules a chevron ermine, and in base a plate a chief chequy argent and azure.

An interesting point arises in connection with the Hamilton arms inscribed upon the Callidon paten. Excluding the "two thistles proper" they are identical with those given in the "Hamilton Manuscripts" (edited by T. K. Lowry) as the arms of the County Down family to which that work relates, but no relationship between the Callidon family and the County Down family has been traced. William Hamilton of Callidon in his will, dated 20th January, 1672, appoints "his cousin," Sir Hans Hamilton, Bart., one of the overseers of his will. Sir Hans was one of the County Down family, but how this cousinship came about does not now appear.

William Hamilton of Callidon was in 1661 appointed guardian of Gustavus Hamilton, then a minor, afterwards the first Visct. Boyne, son of Sir Frederick Hamilton, Knt., of Manorhamilton, Co. Leitrim; and also guardian of Hanna Hamilton, afterwards the wife of Sir William Gore, Bart., of Manor Gore, Co. Donegal, and of Sidney Hamilton, afterwards the wife of Sir John Hume, Bart., of Castle Hume, Co. Fermanagh. They were the minor daughters and co-heirs of James Hamilton, eldest son of Sir Frederick Hamilton, and succeeded to the Manorhamilton estates—(see Anderson's "History of the House of Hamilton," p. 244).

CHAPTER IV.

MARGARET COUNTESS AND CORK AND ORRERY.

To return to Margaret Hamilton (chap. III, p. 6) who succeeded to the Callidon¹ Estates as sole heir of her father, John Hamilton, the second possessor of those estates.

John Boyle was born in 1707; was educated first under the private tuition of Fenton the poet, and afterwards at Westminster School and Christchurch, Oxford; he succeeded his father as 5th Earl of Orrery in 1737; D.C.L. of Oxford in 1740; F.R.S. in 1750; and, on the death of his cousin in 1753, became 5th Earl of Cork. He was the intimate friend of Pope, Swift, Tom Southerne ("the last remaining of the wits of the reign of Charles II"), Dr. King, an Oxford celebrity, Faulkner, the noted Dublin bookseller, and many others. Besides the translation of Pliny's Letters, mentioned in the correspondence with his wife, he was the author of a Life of Swift, and "Letters from Italy" and other works. Bishop Berkeley said of him that he "would have been a man of genius had he known how to set about it." There is a mezzotint portrait of him done from life in 1741 in the National Gallery, Dublin.

Lord Orrery had married in 1728 Lady Harriot Hamilton, daughter of the 1st Earl of Orkney. She died in 1732 leaving two sons and a daughter. He remained a widower for six years.² In April, 1738, he commissioned his friend the Earl of Kildare to make a proposal of marriage on his behalf to Margaret Hamilton. There is no account of how or where he had met her, but the warmth of his affection for her which appears in so many of his letters, shows that he was attracted by something more than the great fortune she was reputed to have. The "Gentleman's Magazine," in announcing the marriage, stated that she had "one of the largest fortunes in Europe." That this was an exaggeration is clear from references to money difficulties in this correspondence. The offer was conveyed in a letter in

1. The spelling was changed to "Caledon" in the eighteenth century.

2. This sketch is compiled from the "Orrery Papers," edited by the Countess of Cork and Orrery; London: Duckworth & Co., 1903.

which Lord Kildare said that Lord Orrery was "very much confined by his first settlements, but, Madam, your fortune's so ample it will make you and your family quite easy."

With Lord Kildare's formal proposal Lord Orrery enclosed a letter in which he asked to be allowed to see her in person, but this was not permitted until Dean Dopping,³ her uncle and guardian, had been satisfied as to his fortune and settlements.

At this time Lord Orrery appears to have been in Dublin, having come over from England to press his suit; and Margaret was at Dean Dopping's house, Lowtown in the County of Westmeath. Between the proposal and the marriage only two months elapsed, during which he went backwards and forwards from Dublin to Westmeath several times, besides writing several letters to her in the intervals between his visits. The replies to these letters have not been published; he however showed one of them to his friend Dean Swift, who "said many fine things upon it," and asked when he (the Dean) should write to her, to which the Earl replied, "not until after the marriage," intimating that he looked upon the Dean as a possible rival.

The marriage took place from Dean Dopping's house on the 30th June, 1738, after which they went to Caledon. Shortly after, in writing to a friend from Caledon, Lord Orrery speaks of his wife as having "a sweet temper, good sense, many engaging accomplishments, such as singing, playing, working, reading, in perfection, and all this without a grain of affectation."

In November, 1738, the correspondence began which continued throughout their joint lives. From first to last his letters show his great affection for her.

The correspondence opened from Duke Street, Westminster, and during an absence of about a fortnight five letters passed. In the early part of their married life the Earl seems to have enjoyed living at Caledon, although his amusements did not (he says) include hunting, drinking, shooting, or playing at nine-pins. As an occupation during his first winter there he undertook, what he describes as a great work, a translation of Pliny's Epistles, in which he intends to make Pliny express himself as if he had written in English. He, however, enjoyed some country pleasures, such as planting trees and making other improvements.

3. Anthony Dopping, Dean of Clonmacnois, afterwards Bishop of Ossory, son of Anthony Dopping, Bishop of Meath.

In a letter written from Caledon in May, 1740, he says, " My trees flourish, my lawn looks green, and my walks nice. My gardens are encompassed by a river, whose borders are covered with goodly trees, the boast and glory of the County of Tyrone ; thus you see I am fixed among bounties of nature profuse to me in every blessing that this earth affords amidst this scene of uninterrupted joy."

In a year or two he tired of being so far from London. The result of his distaste for Caledon was that the property was neglected and his financial affairs suffered. Lady Orrery writes from Dublin in April and May, 1746, where she was detained because of a lawsuit relating to their affairs, and points out to him that if he were to come over from England and remain in Dublin for a few months it would mean a gain of eight or ten thousand pounds. She became so well informed in legal matters that she sent a message to a friend of the Earl's saying, if he had any business to be done at law he could not employ a better " Solicitor " than herself.

In May, 1746, she returned to Caledon to find the trees he had planted much grown, and the place " sweetly laid out " ; and in September, after much pleasurable looking forward on her part, he joined her there, having stayed for some time at Broghill Castle in Cork on his way from England.

In July, 1748 she writes from Caledon, and in speaking of the eclipse of the sun in that year, tells a story of Dean Swift about the eclipse of 1715. The Dean had mounted his steeple to observe the eclipse. All the town were assembled in the streets, and many hundreds near him. Swift got a speaking trumpet, and making three formal " O yes's " proclaimed that the Dean of St. Patrick's had adjourned the eclipse till that " sennight," on which all the people returning to their homes, lost the sight.

In January, 1751, we again find Countess Margaret writing from Caledon. She was then reading Swift's works, no doubt in Lord Orrery's edition, which she mentions in a later letter. In speaking of Swift's bitterness against Presbyterians, which she was confident did much harm in keeping up divisions and sowing dislike " in the breast of one honest man to another honest man," she refers to her own feelings, and says that for herself, until her husband's superior reasoning made her look upon all prejudice as " unjust, a great folly, and indeed a great wickedness," she had held both Presbyterian and Roman Catholic in the utmost abhorrence. At this time her letters from Caledon extend from January, 1751, to March, 1752. Besides matters of domestic and local interest we find her occupied with many intellectual subjects—largely indeed arising from her study of Swift—and showing a considerable power of independent thought. In one of the earliest of Lord Orrery's letters to her, he spoke of "your favourite Queen Elizabeth," and in a letter of hers to him in 1751 after remarking that Queen Elizabeth died in the most fortunate period imaginable, her last speech in Parliament testified her mind as undecayed as her first, when she declared her people were both her husband and children, she says—"If I shut my eyes I can fancy Elizabeth admitted into (not the Christian, but) the heathen paradise. What a contention would there be among the illustrious dead who shall have this glorious Queen for his wife! Would it be a sin to bring Solomon, Cæsar, Henri IV of France, Pope Sextus Quintus, Prince Henry Plantagenet (V), Antony even from Cleopatra, the Black Prince, and Oliver Cromwell. Elizabeth will not take Solomon, because he is wiser than herself. She would have preferred the Black Prince as an English hero only she is his grand-daughter (sic); she coquets a little with the Pope and the two Henrys, kicks Oliver to Tartarus, and accepts the hand of Cæsar."

There are many references in the letters to Lord Orrery's children by his first wife; Lord Boyle, afterwards Lord Dungarvan when his father succeeded to the Earldom of Cork in 1753; the Hon. Hamilton Boyle, who succeeded his father as 6th Earl; and Lady Betty, who married Sir Thomas Worsley, Bart. Lady Betty must have been a mere child when her father married Margaret Hamilton. She is often mentioned with the children of this second marriage. The latter were Edmund, who succeeded his brother Hamilton as 7th Earl; Lady Lucy, who married George, 4th Viscount Torrington; and Lady Kitty, who died young.

Some of Lady Orrery's own relations are mentioned. Her aunt, Mrs. Magdalen Hamilton's name frequently occurs. In a letter from Dublin, where her aunt lived, she writes: "My aunt Hamilton is vastly fond of the children and delighted with all their words and actions. She finds all the beauties of grandmothers and great-grandmothers for a thousand generations back in Lucy, and in Edmund all the spirit and courage of the Stuarts, Hamiltons, Seatons, Gordons, Murrays, Douglasses, etc., etc., whether loyal or rebel that have inhabited Highland or Lowland and could possibly give a drop of blood to her ancestors for these five thousand years past."

The only other reference to ancestral matters is in a letter to her husband, in which she says that both had Welsh ancestors—a statement which their known pedigrees does not elucidate.

The last letter from Lady Orrery is one written from Florence in January, 1755, to Mrs. Dopping.

She and her husband and Lucy were spending the winter, partly on account of her health, and partly for Lucy's education; the latter, she says, was very good and very cheap. It included playing, singing, dancing, writing, drawing and Italian.

Lady Orrery died in 1758, and her husband followed her to the grave towards the end of 1762; both lie in the family vault in St. John's Parish Church of Frome Selwood, a little town built on part of the ancient forest of Selwood in Somersetshire.

The editress of the "Orrery Papers" makes the following comment upon Countess Margaret:—"From the letters of Margaret Hamilton we may gauge the sterling value of a character that constituted her at least as great a mainstay to her husband morally as were her estates to his circumstances. Throughout her correspondence—much of it from private reasons could not be reproduced—every sentence, nay every word, is inspired by overflowing tenderness towards her husband and family; a judicious tenderness which does not preclude the occasional honest expression of difference in opinion, where his welfare is concerned. Her piety was unaffected and free from narrow-mindedness; her perspective understanding ripened by cultivation—despite barbarous irregularities of orthography—and wifely partiality at times overweighted her judgment of his compositions."

CHAPTER V.

WILLIAM HAMILTON THE SECOND OF BALLYFATTON AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

William Hamilton the second son of the first settler of that name at Ballyfatton married Isabel, daughter of William Hamilton of Loughmuck who held the lands of Termegan and a house in Strabane under the Earl of Abercorn as well as other lands in Tyrone. William Hamilton, whose name is at the head of this chapter, purchased Ballyfatton from his nephew, William Hamilton of Priestfield (chap. 2, p. 4). (See Chancery Bill, 10th Dec., 1670, Jane Galbraith and others against William Hamilton, sen., of Ballyfatton, and Answer of William Hamilton, jun., 7 July, 1671). His will is dated 2 Oct., 1680; it was proved 30 June, 1681, by Patrick Hamilton his son; the seal upon the will shows the paternal coat of Hamilton, viz.: gules, three cinquefoils ermine. The following were his children:—(1) William Hamilton, 3rd of Ballyfatton. He married Margery, da. of Robert Galbraith of Dowish, Co. Donegal ; settlement dated 13 Dec., 1653—(see above-mentioned Chancery Bill, 10 Dec., 1670). He and his wife died in 1674 (in the lifetime of his father) and were buried at Caledon. For the descendants of this marriage see below ; (2) James ; (3) Charles ; (4) Frederick ; (5) John ; (6) Archibald ; (7) George ; married Christian, da. of Mathew Stronge of Clonlee and Ann his wife—(see Stronge of Tynan Abbey, Co. Armagh Bart. Burke's Peerage) ; lived at Island Moore, Co. Donegal ; died in Derry during the seige ; admn. to his brother, Patrick Hamilton of Killeter, 26 July, 1670 ; left one daughter Anna. (8) Patrick Hamilton of Killeter ; see chap. VIII. p. 17, for his descendants. (9) Margaret ; (10) Marjory ; (11) Katherine ; (12) Jeane, married John Lowry, ancestor of the Earls of Belmore ; (13) Isabel, married David Brown.

The sons of William Hamilton the 3rd of Ballyfatton (p. 12) were : (1) William Hamilton the 4th of Ballyfatton, who in 1701 lodged a claim with the Comrs. of the Estates forfeited in 1690 to get back the lands ; he married Sara * * * For his descendants see below.

(2) Capt. James Hamilton of Lough McNab, O.S.P. 1730 ; will pro. 11 May, 1731 ; buried at Caledon.

(3) Lieut.-Col. Archibald Hamilton in Lord Mountjoy's Regt. of Foot, O.S.P. ; will pro. 22 Sept., 1712.

The sons of William Hamilton the 4th of Ballyfatton were :—

(1) Archibald Hamilton of Ballyfatton, Cornet of Dragoons ; married first Jane Nesbitt by whom he had two sons, Willim Hamilton of Ballyfatton and Eden, Co. Donegal [ancestor of the Hamiltons of Mossvill—(see Burke's L.G.)], for whose descendants see chap. VI, p. 14. George, in the army ; killed at Almanza, O.S.P., and one da. Sarah, married John Tredennick of Camlin, Co. Donegal. Cornet Archibald married 2ndly Lettice Fairlie (will pro. 22 Sept., 1761) by whom he had six sons : Archibald of Dublin, M.D. (will 1777) ; Richard ; John, Capt. in the army ; killed at Seringapatam ; James, Alderman of Dublin (will 1798) ; Sampson, in the army, O.S.P. ; Galbraith, ancestor of the Hamiltons of Castle-Hamilton—(see Burke's L.G.), and one da. Margery, m. Peter Paumier.

(2) Charles of Fortstewart, for whose descendants see chap. VII, p. 16.

(3) Galbraith, who leased portion of Ballyfatton from his brother, Cornet Archibald, 8 July, 1741 ; term 21 years ; bequeathed same to his nephew James Hamilton of Fortstewart (chap VII, p. 16) by his will dated 12 Nov., 1776.

CHAPTER VI.

WILLIAM HAMILTON OF BALLYFATTON, CO. TYRONE, AND OF EDEN, CO. DONEGAL, AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

William Hamilton, the eldest son of Archibald Hamilton of Ballyfatton, Cornet of Dragoons (chap. V., p. 13), was High Sheriff of Tyrone 1757 ; he used the following arms (which are the same as those of the Dukes of Abercorn) : 1st and 4th gules, three cinquefoils ermine for Hamilton ; and 2nd and 3rd, argent, a ship with sails furled and oars sable, for the Earls of Arran ; and his descendants claim that their first ancestor who settled at Ballyfatton was a kinsman of the first Earl of Abercorn. He m. his cousin Mary White of Whitehall, Co. Antrim (to which family Sir George White, the defender of Ladysmith, belonged), and had two sons, William Hamilton, who died s.p., and James Hamilton of Eden and Ballyfatton, J.P., b. 1745, who m. his cousin Mary Hamilton of Fortstewart (chap. VII, p. 17), and by her (who died 1854, aged 94) had the following children :—(1) William Hamilton, of whom presently ; (2) James Hamilton of Dublin ; died s.p. ; (3) John Hamilton, Capt. R.N., served under Lord Nelson, and was present at the Battles of Copenhagen and Trafalgar ; m. Miss Richards of Macmine Castle, Co. Wexford, and died s.p.—(see Burke's L.G.) ; (4) Charles Hamilton, who died young ; (5) Timothy Hamilton, Capt. Irish Brigade, served under Bolivar and was killed ; (6) George Hamilton of Eden, J.P. ; died s.p. ; (7) Galbraith Hamilton of Eden and Ballyfatton ; m. twice, but died s.p. ; (8) Margery Hamilton, died unmarried ; (9) Maria Hamilton, died unmarried.

The eldest son William Hamilton was b. at Eden, Co. Donegal, 17th March, 1788 ; at the age of 16 he became an Ensign in the 42 Highlanders (Black Watch), and while serving with his regiment at Gibraltar distinguished himself. In 1809 he took part in the campaign in the Peninsula under Sir John Moore, and was in the retreat which terminated in the Battle of Corunna, where he was wounded. In the autumn of that year he took part in the unfortunate Walcheren Expedition where, like many others, he suffered from fever, and retired. However, shortly afterwards he rejoined the service as a " volunteer " with the 95th Rifles, and in 1811 joined the 1st Batt., then advancing from the lines of Torres Vedras. He took part in the storming of Ciudad Rodrigo, where he was severely wounded, and in the Siege of Badajoz. He served through the campaigns of 1811, 1812 and 1813, and was present at the Battles of Salamanca, Vittoria and the Pyrenees. At the storming of San Sebastian the first man up the ladder carried by the Forlorn Hope men of the 1st Batt. was Lieut. Percival, who was in command and who was desperately wounded. Hamilton, who was second, on gaining the top, received a bullet under the eye and fell back into the ditch where he lay a long time. Although his wound was considered to be mortal, he recovered, but as he lost his palate, he was obliged in 1813 to retire finally from the service, because he could not "give the command." (This account is taken, in a much curtailed form, from the "Rifle Brigade Calendar" for 1894, compiled by Major Willoughby Verner of that regiment).

In August, 1816, he m. Mary, da. of Capt. Power, 9th Lancers; and died 4th May, 1828, leaving the following children:—(1) James Paumier Hamilton, of whom presently; (2) William Hamilton of Seaview; m. 1851 Jane, da. of Anthony Brownless, and died s.p.; (3) Anne Jane Hamilton; m. 1 Jan., 1852, Sir Anthony Colling Brownless, K.C.M.G., Grand Cross of St. Gregory the Great, Chancellor of the Univ. of Melbourne, only son of Anthony Brownless of Peynitz Hall, Kent (for their issue see Burke's Colonial Gentry).

The elder son, James Paumier Hamilton, Recorder of Cork and County Court Judge and Chairman of Quarter Sessions, E.R., Co. Cork, and a Bencher of the King's Inns, Dublin, m. 1850 Martha (she died 11th May, 1917, aged 94), da. of Anthony Brownless of Peynitz Hall, Kent, and grand-da. of Anthony Brownless and Anne his wife, da. of Michael Colling of Darlington, Durham, and died 1892, leaving an only son William John Paumier Hamilton of Mossvill, Co. Donegal—(see Burke's L.G. Mossvill was the name of the old residence at Ballyfatton, Co. Tyrone, burned by the army of James II), J.P., Lieut.-Col. 3rd Brigade S. Irish Dvn. Royal Artillery, late of 41st Regt, Director of the Donegal Rly., Quarter-Master of the Londonderry Remount Depot, 1914, representative of the family of Hamilton of Ballyfatton; b. 19 Jan., 1852; m. 18 Oct., 1888, Louisa, 3rd da. of Major Francis D'Arcy Irvine of the Indian Army—(see Burke's L.G.); has a son James Paumier Hamilton, who enlisted at 16 in a cavalry regt. and was given a commission as Lieut. in the Connaught Rangers in 1915; was wounded in France and has received two medals; and two daus., Mary Maud Mervyn Hamilton, who m. Dr. J. P. Ryan of the R.A.M.C., who obtained the M.C.; and Ailne Constance Hamilton.

CHAPTER VII.

CHARLES HAMILTON OF FORTSTEWART AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Charles Hamilton, son of William Hamilton the 4th of Ballyfatton (p 13) ; will 4 Jan., 1775, had two children, James, who purchased the portions of Ballyfatton leased to Galbraith Hamilton (p. 13), and a da., who m. —Harvey. The children of James Hamilton were (1) Mary, who m. her cousin James Hamilton of Eden (p. 14) ; (2) Margery ; (3) Sarah ; (4) Galbraith ; and (5) James. The last named James Hamilton had four sons—James, John, Timothy and Charles, and the latter Charles Hamilton had four children—James, who resided at Ballyfatton, Micah Cary, Martha, and Marjory. The last named James Hamilton m. first Margaret McIlwain of Carnisk, Co. Donegal, by whom he had the following children : (1) Charles, who married Mary Dickson and died without issue ; (2) John Harris Hazlett ; (3) James ; (4) William ; (5) Mary ; (6) Eliza ; (7) Margaret ; (8) Anne ; and (9) George Alexander. James Hamilton the father of these children m. 2ndly Harriet Arnold.

George Alexander Hamilton, who resided at Ballyfatton, m. Sarah Elizabeth Swiney, by whom he had the following children : (1) Mary, ob. 1904 ; (2) Norah ; (3) James Hazlett ; and (4) George Cecil, ob. 1900.

James Hazlett Hamilton, who resides at Ballyfatton, m. 20 June, 1905, Florence B. Kildahl, and has three sons and one da. : Philip Cecil, b. 1906 ; John Harris Hazlett, b. 1910 ; James Alexander Hazlett, b. 1913 ; and Elizabeth Mary.

CHAPTER VIII.

PATRICK HAMILTON OF KILLETER, CO. TYRONE, AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Patrick Hamilton, whose name appears among the sons of William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton (chap. V, p. 13) was admitted a member of the Hon. Society of the King's Inns, Dublin, 20 Nov., 1671, and became in due course an attorney-at-law. He is mentioned in the will of his mother-in-law, Anne Newburgh, pro. 28 May, 1712, and in numerous Chancery and Equity Exchequer Bills and other legal proceedings from 1680 to 1715. He married Jane, one of the three daughters and co-heirs of Arthur Newburgh, High Sheriff of Tyrone in 1667 (will pro. 13 May, 1675; seal to will: Or, three bends azure within a bordure engrailed gules). Arthur Newburgh was the 2nd son of Lieut.-Col. Thos. Newburgh (will pro. 28 June, 1660), who owned estates in England, also in the Counties of Donegal, Tyrone and Fermanagh, and was one of the Comrs. of Customs in Ulster 1683, and Member for Derry, Donegal and Tyrone in the Parliament of the Protectorate 1654-6. From Capt. Thos. Newburgh, the eldest son of Lieut.-Col. Thomas Newburgh, were descended the Newburghs of Ballyhaise in Cavan. Arthur Newburgh married Ann, one of the daughters and co-heirs of James Downham, Dean of Armagh (will pro. 13 July, 1681), who was the son of George Downham Bishop of Derry and Ann his wife, daughter of William Harrison, Prebend of Windsor. The Bishop was the son of Wm. Downham, Bishop of Chester; he died 17 April, 1634, and was buried in Derry Cathedral. The arms of Downham, Bishop of Chester, are given in Bedford's "Blazon of Episcopacy" thus:—Azure, on a chevron between two doves argent, beaked and legged gules, in chief, and a wolf's head erased of second in base a rose gules between two clasped books of the third, garnished or. Jane, another da. of Dean Downham m. Walter Cope of Drumnilly, Co. Armagh—(see Burke's L.G.). Lettice, the second da. of Arthur Newburgh, m. George Hamilton of Milburn, Co. Derry, brother of Lieut.-Genl. Frederick Hamilton of Milburn, Lanark, and Walworth, Derry, M.P. for Coleraine, the original of Morton in "Old Mortality." His third da. married George Cary.

The children of Patrick Hamilton of Killeter were :—(1) William, born in Dublin ; baptized 19 Sept., 1684, St. Michan's, Dublin ; educated at Dungan, Co. Donegal ; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 30 April, 1700, aged 17 ; Tutor, John Elwood—(see Matriculation entry T.C.D.) ; M.A. ; in Holy Orders ; Curate in Londonderry 1715 ; Rector of Termonamongan, dio. of Derry 8 August, 1716 ; a faculty granted 6th May, 1734, to enable him to hold also the Rectory of Camus-juxta-mourne in same dio. ; died 26 May, 1765 ; will proved by his son, Sir Patrick Hamilton, knt., 17 July, 1768. For his descendants, see below ; (2) Gustavus, of whom see chap. IX, p. 20 ; (3) Newburgh, of whom see chap. X, p. 24 ; (4) Charles, of whom see chap. XI, p. 26 ; (5) George ; (6) Ann, m. — Godfrey ; (7) Isabella, m. — Jones ; (8) Lettice ; will pro. 3 October, 1766.

William Hamilton the eldest son of Patrick of Killeter, married Angel * * * * and had the following children :—(1) John Hamilton, his eldest son in Holy Orders ; had two sons (will of Lettice Hamilton proved 8 July, 1763) and settled in America (will of Sir Patrick Hamilton, see later) ; (2) Thomas Hamilton, formerly of Strabane, then of Annesbrook, Co. Meath, Dorset Street and Leeson Street, Dublin ; will pr. 24 Oct., 1792 ; m. Ann Rouse, otherwise Slicer, dau. of Thomas Payne of Oberstown, Co. Meath ; settl. 25 Nov., 1752. She was party to a deed of mutual agreement dated 13 Dec., 1792, with her son W. S. Hamilton relating, among other things to the lands of Barley Park, Co. Tyrone, which had been the subject of litigation in which Patrick of Killeter was concerned, and Termonamongan, Co. Tyrone, which are mentioned in the will of Anne Newburgh (p. 17). The children of Thomas Hamilton were William Slicer Hamilton, Annesbrook, Co. Meath ; in Holy Orders ; m. first Sarah Crowe ; secondly, in 1813, the Hon. Sophia Hamilton, da. of the 4th Visct. Boyne. (She was m. three times—first to William Low of Lowville, 1796 ; secondly, to the Rev. W. S. Hamilton, 1813 ; and thirdly, to the Rev. Bigoe Henzell) and Angel, baptized 1 April, 1761, St. Anne's, Dublin. These children are mentioned in the will of their grand-uncle, Charles Hamilton (chap. XI., p. 26) ; (3) Patrick Hamilton, Knt., Alderman and Lord Mayor of Dublin 1760 ; m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Meredyth of Greenhills, Co. Kildare. He died at Twickenham (p. 23) ; will pr. 18 Oct., 1780 ; (4) Jane, m. Adam Harvey, in Holy Orders, Rector of Termonamongan, and afterwards, on 28 July, 1769, appointed to Camus-juxta-Mourne, and died 30 Oct., 1793 ; (5) Lettice, m. William Young of Coolkeiragh House, Co. Derry, and had four daus.—(a) Ann, m. 1 Nov., 1770, James Lendrum of Magheracross, Co. Fermanagh—(see Burke's L.G.) ; (b) Lettice ; (c) Catherine ; and (d) Jane. (6) Ann, m. George Maighee, in Holy Orders, Rector of Camus-juxta-Mourne 1768, who died July, 1769.

To the descendants of Patrick Hamilton of Killeter—that is to say, to the greater number of the persons whose names appear in the succeeding chapters of these memoirs, it is a question of considerable interest from a genealogical point of view whether his relationship to the Hamiltons of Priestfield can reasonably be assumed. The statement that he was related to that family is the only important one in this work which is not founded on direct information, and the interest which attaches to it, will perhaps justify the somewhat laboured reasoning which follows. The question is, was he the same person as Patrick, the son of William Hamilton, the second of Ballyfatton, and therefore a descendant of the Hamiltons of Priestfield?

The circumstances which point to the parents of Patrick of Killeter being William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton and Isabel his wife when taken separately are not conclusive, but when taken as a whole make that relationship practically certain.

The point which led to the conclusion that a relationship existed between Patrick and the Ballyfatton family which first emerged in the investigation of the documents in the Record Office was that Alexander Hamilton, son of William Hamilton of Termegan, was his uncle;¹ and consequently that that William Hamilton was his grandfather—it was first thought his paternal grandfather. It was then noticed that William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton had married Isabel, daughter of William Hamilton of Termegan, and that they had a son Patrick. The obvious conclusion to draw from these facts is that William Hamilton of Termegan was his maternal grandfather, his paternal grandfather being William Hamilton of Priestfield and first of the name at Ballyfatton.

The following facts go to confirm this conclusion. William and Isabel had sons named Patrick and George; Patrick of Killeter had a brother George; Patrick was active in proving his father's will although only one of the executors, and there is endorsed upon the original will these words: "My father's will, dated 2nd October, 1680," obviously written by some person who had the charge of it in the testator's lifetime—presumably Patrick, who proved it. Patrick of Killeter was an attorney-at-law in 1680, and, if he had charge of the will, would most likely have so endorsed it; the father of Patrick of Killeter was alive in 1675;² William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton, his presumed father, was alive in 1675.

1. Vide "Answer," dated 2nd May, 1710, of Patrick Hamilton to Equity Exchequer Bill, dated 24th Nov., 1709, filed by Alexander Hamilton.

2. Vide "Answer" of Patrick Hamilton, dated 26 Jan., 1682, to Chancery Bill filed 19 Jan., 1682, by James Hamilton, Archdeacon of Raphoe.

The name of Patrick's eldest son was William and he had a daughter Isabella—names no doubt to be found in other Hamilton families at the time—but which were nevertheless the names of his presumed father and mother. In a Chancery Bill, dated 22nd May, 1687, Patrick of Killeter is plaintiff with Thomas Knox who was a trustee for him, and in the will of Thomas Knox, dated 25th Sept., 1717, the latter left a legacy to his uncle Patrick Hamilton, and another legacy to Patrick's son George, and mentions also his cousin William Hamilton "of Killeter" and his cousin James Hamilton "of Lough McNab." Patrick of Killeter had a son named William, who was Rector of Termonamongan in 1717, in which parish Killeter is situate. He also appears to have had a son named George. James Hamilton of Lough McNab, who was alive in 1717, was the son of William Hamilton the third of Ballyfatton who was the son of the second of that name. Thomas Knox might have been a nephew of Patrick of Killeter by being the son of one of the daughters of William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton. Patrick of Killeter would therefore have been his mother's brother and a son of William of Ballyfatton. Thomas Knox's mother being a daughter of William of Ballyfatton would also account for James of Lough McNab being his cousin. One point is, however, certain, namely that Isabel the wife of William Hamilton the second of Ballyfatton was either Patrick's mother or his aunt; the above facts go to show that there is a strong presumption in favour of her having been his mother. No other parents have been found for Patrick of Killeter among the many persons named Hamilton residing in the County of Tyrone whose names have come down to us; and no fact has been discovered in any of the numerous documents in the Record Office, Dublin, relating to the family which is inconsistent with this theory of his parentage.

CHAPTER IX.

THE REV. GUSTAVUS HAMILTON AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Gustavus Hamilton, son of Patrick Hamilton of Killeter (chap. VIII, p. 18), was b. at Killeter, Co. Tyrone; educated at Omagh; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 5 July, 1710, aged 15; Tutor, John Elwood—(see Matriculation Entry T.C.D.); Scholar 1713; B.A. 1715; M.A. 1722,

In Holy Orders. Curate of Enniskillen, dio. of Clogher 1720-28 (or 1730); Vicar of Errigle Trough, same dio. 4 June, 1730; a faculty granted to hold also Rectories and Vicarages of Gallow, &c., dio. of Meath 1741-2. He m. (at Enniskillen) Jane Cathcart 13 Jan., 1721-2. Their children were (1) Anna Catherina, bap. at Enniskillen 5 Jan., 1723, of whom later (chap. XX, p. 51); (2) Jane, bap. 20 April, 1724; (3) Nicholas, bap. 4 June, 1725; buried 29 June, 1726; (4) Malcolm, bap. 29 June, 1726; buried 3 May, 1727; (5) Lettice, bap. 4 August, 1727; living in Dublin in 1770; (6) Nicholas, of whom later (chap. XII, p. 28); (7) George, ob. 1741; (8) Gustavus, of whom later (p. 23); (9) Elizabeth, of whom Mrs. Harmsworth (p. 55) has a miniature painted by Gustavus her brother.

There seems to have been a tradition in the family that the Rev. Gustavus Hamilton was descended from Gustavus Hamilton, Governor of Enniskillen in 1688-9, but no evidence of this fact has been found.

Traditions of this kind sometimes rest upon very slight foundations, and the foundation in this instance may have been that Jane Cathcart, the wife of the Rev. Gustavus Hamilton, was descended from the Hamiltons of Monea, near Enniskillen, to which family the governor belonged. The only fact known definitely about the relations of Jane Cathcart is that Anna Cathcart, the widow of Alan or Allen Cathcart, was her aunt.¹ Jane was probably the daughter of Malcolm Cathcart and Jane Foster his wife, who was baptized in St. Audoen's, Dublin, on 7th Nov., 1697. Alan Cathcart does not, however, appear to have belonged to the family of that name who were related to the Monea Hamiltons.²

It is remarkable that four of the children of the Rev. Gustavus and Jane bore Christian names which are found in the Monea family—namely, Anna Catherina, the name of the governor's mother; Malcolm, which occurs several times; Nicholas, which appears as the female form—Nichola; and Gustavus. Anna Cathcart in her will mentions another niece of hers whose name was Anna Catherina, and her own name—Anna—was also a name in the Monea family. Anna Hamilton, a sister of Lewis or Ludovic Hamilton, the father of the Governor Gustavus, married Gabriel Cathcart, and there were numerous descendants of that marriage named Cathcart living at the end of the 17th and beginning of the 18th centuries. Anna Cathcart's maiden name may have been Cathcart, and the descent may have been

1. Vide will of Anna Cathcart, proved 5th Dec., 1735.

2. Vide "Monea Castle and the Hamiltons," "Ulster Journal of Archaeology" (1894-5), Vol. I., note to p. 269; also, Pedigree of the Monea Hamiltons in Vol. IV., p. 140 through a brother of hers. There is nothing to show why the name Gustavus was given to the Rev. Gustavus Hamilton. He was undoubtedly the son of Patrick of Killeter,³ and no connection with any family in which Gustavus was a family name has been traced.

He had, as stated above, been Curate of Enniskillen from about 1720 to 1730 when he became Vicar of Errigle Trough in the Diocese of Clogher in Ulster. In 1741 he was presented by the Crown to the Rectories of Gallow, &c., in the Diocese and County of Meath; but to enable him to hold this benefice with Errigle Trough it was necessary that he should obtain a faculty or dispensation from the Primate. On his presenting a petition to the Primate (Boulter), a request was sent to the Bishop of Clogher to certify the value of the Vicarage of Errigle Trough, and to inform His Grace how the cure of that Vicarage could be most conveniently served. The Bishop (Stearne) certified that Errigle Trough was of the yearly value of £100; that the petitioner was a very worthy clergyman and both deserved, and considering his very numerous family needed (the two livings); "and as to the distance (between the two livings) I can say very little, all that I know is that I wish it was smaller." A similar request was sent to the Bishop of Meath (Price), and he certified that Gallow, &c., was of the yearly value of £150; but as to the distance from Errigle Trough "I am pretty much a stranger. Mr. Hamilton is a gentleman of a very worthy character, and has a very numerous family, and therefore, if your Grace thinks fit, may be a proper object of the favour." The dispensation was accordingly granted by the Primate, who does not seem to have noticed that both Bishops avoided answering the somewhat important question whether both livings could be conveniently served together—a matter of some doubt, because Errigle Trough is in the most northerly part of Monaghan and includes part of Tyrone, and Gallow being in the most southerly part of Meath near the borders of Kildare, is separated from it by about 50 miles.

The Rev. Gustavus Hamilton was possessed of lands in the County of Monaghan known as Kellyslavan with a mill and watercourse. He held them under lease, dated 4th October, 1734, from James Hamilton for his own life and those of his eldest and second sons, Nicholas and George, at the yearly rent of £28 with a covenant for perpetual renewal on payment of half a year's rent as a renewal fine. George died in 1741 and the Rev. Gustavus in 1755, leaving Nicholas his eldest son and heir at law, who neglected to claim a renewal until 1763. On the 5th May, 1774, a decree was made by the Court of Exchequer in Ireland declaring him entitled to a new lease of the lands. From this decree an appeal was taken to the House of Lords, with the result that it was reversed and Nicholas lost the lands.¹

3. This appears from his Matriculation Entry in Trin. Coll., Dublin, 5 July, 1710.

Family tradition magnified the loss of these lands—which do not appear to have been of any great value—into the loss of a considerable landed estate.

The Reverend Gustavus died on the 28th August, 1755, and was buried in the graveyard of St. Mary's, Twickenham in a grave which in 1781 received the remains of his nephew, Sir Patrick Hamilton. The inscription on their tombstone—which is not now legible—has been preserved in the "History and Antiquities of Twickenham," by Edward Ironside (Vol. X, Bibliotheca Topographia Britannica) "Here lieth the remains of the Rev. Mr. Gustavus Hamilton, who died 28th August, 1755, aged 59 years. Also the remains of Sir Patrick Hamilton, knt., and Alderman of the City of Dublin, who died August 22, 1780, aged 64 years." It may be assumed they both died at the house in Montpelier Row, Twickenham, of Charles Hamilton, the brother of the former and the uncle of the latter—(see Chap. XI. p. 26).

Gustavus Hamilton, son of the Rev. Gustavus Hamilton (p. 21), was a well-known miniature painter in Dublin. He was born probably at Errigle Trough in the Diocese of Clogher, where his father had a living, in 1739. He died of decay at Cork Hill, Dublin, aged 36 years, and was buried at St. Werburgh's, Dublin, 18 Dec., 1775. He was a member of the Society of Artists in Dublin, and exhibited a case of miniatures at their first exhibition in 1765. In 1769 he lived at No. 1 Dame Street; and in 1770 he was one of the members of the Society who entered into a deed in reference to their Exhibition Room in William Street (now the Court of Conscience)—(vide Gilbert's History of Dublin). John O'Keeffe, in his "Recollections," published in 1826, mentions "Three youths of considerable merit—James Riley, Gustavus Hamilton, the son of a clergyman, and my brother Daniel." They lived in the house of a Mr. Dickson in Capel Street. "These lads who painted birds and flowers so admirably turned out distinguished painters in miniature." "Hamilton was encouraged and patronized by ladies of the first rank there." Examples of his work are still to be had in Dublin. There is a very good miniature by him in the National Gallery, Dublin. The portrait of him which is reproduced in this book is from a portrait in pastel, painted by himself. That portrait with a signed fruit piece in oils had been in the possession of William Maffett (ob. April, 1865—see chap. XX, p. 51), a grand-nephew of the painter and both pictures were purchased at the auction of Mrs. Marcella Maffett's effects in August, 1918, by C. B. Harmsworth, Esq.—(see chap. XX & XXI).

CHAPTER X.

NEWBURGH HAMILTON.

Newburgh Hamilton, son of Patrick Hamilton of Killeter (p. 18) was born in the Co. of Tyrone in 1691-2; educated at Raphoe, Co. Donegal; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 14 Feb., 1707-8, aged 16; Tutor J. Elwood—(vide Matriculation entry T.C.D.). Left College without taking a degree. Lived in London, was a writer of plays, and was in the employment of Thomas Earl of Strafford and of his Dowager Anne Countess of Strafford, as an agent or man of business. He witnessed the Earl's will, dated 22 June, 1732, and made an affidavit in 1739 in reference to the signing of it. In a letter dated 9 Jan., 1739, from Lord Wentworth to his father Lord Strafford,¹ he says, "Mr. Handel rehearsed yesterday a new Oratorio called Saul, and Mr. Hamilton thinks it a very good one." Lady Strafford, in a codicil dated 20 March, 1754, to her will, made the following bequest "Then I leave to Mr. Newburgh Hamilton (if living with me at the time of my death) the sum of £30 a year for his life to be paid by my executor." In an affidavit which he made in 1754 with regard to her will, he states that he was well acquainted with Lady Strafford "by living in her family many years." There are several letters from Newburgh Hamilton to the Earl of Strafford relating to matters of business from 1728-54 in the British Museum ("Addl. MSS.," Vols. Nos. 22253-4 and 31142). Several of these letters, where the enclosing fold is preserved, are sealed with red or black wax, the seal impressions, which are wonderfully fresh and distinct, shew a coat of arms with crest and motto; the coat has four quarterings:—1st and 4th; gules, 3 cinquefoils ermine pierced of the field for Hamilton; and 2nd and 3rd Or, 3 bendlets azure within a bordure gules for Newburgh.

1. "The Wentworth Papers, 1705-1739," James J. Cartwright, P.R.O., 1883.

Crest : oak and frame saw in a ducal coronet and the motto "Through."
In the same collection of letters there is one from Newburgh's brother, Capt. Charles Hamilton, written from York in Feb., 1735-6, to Lord Strafford, thanking him for a present of venison.

In the British Museum catalogue the following works by him are mentioned :—"The Doating Lover, or the Libertine Tamed," "A Comedy as it is acted at the Theatre in Lincoln's Inns Fields," dedicated to the Duchess of Hamilton and Brandon MDCCXV. "The Petticoat Plotter," "A Farce in two acts as it was acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane and the New Theatre in Lincoln's Inns Fields," MDCCXX. In 1743 J. & R. Tonson published "Samson," an Oratorio as it is performed at the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden. Altered and Adapted for the Stage" by Newburgh Hamilton from the Samson Agonistes by John Milton; set to music by George Frederick Handel. In a codicil, dated 6th August, 1756, to the will of George Frederick Handel there is the following legacy: "I give to Mr. Newburgh Hamilton of Old Bond Street, who has assisted me in adjusting words to some of my compositions, one hundred pounds." Newburgh Hamilton was buried in the graveyard of St. George's, Hanover Square, London, on the 19th September, 1761.

On the 1st October, 1761, letters of administration were granted by the Prerogative Court of Canterbury in the goods of "Newburgh Hamilton, late of the Parish of St. George's, Hanover Square, in the County of Middlesex, Esquire," to Charles Hamilton, Esquire, his brother.

In "Biographia Dramatica" (ed. 1812 by D. E. Baker) it is stated, apparently incorrectly, that Newburgh Hamilton lived in the family of the Duke of Hamilton; also that neither of the two plays mentioned met with success, but that the first of them ("The Doating Lover") was "supported through three performances, for the sake of the author's benefit, whose interest was so strong and his acquaintance so extensive that he was enabled to lay the pit and boxes together, at the advanced price of six shillings for each ticket."

CHAPTER XI

CAPT. CHARLES HAMILTON, SON OF PATRICK HAMILTON OF KILLETER.

Charles Hamilton was appointed Ensign in Colonel Dubourgay's Regt. of Foot 1716 ; Lieut. in Co. Richard Lucas's Regt. of Foot (now 38th or South Staffordshire Regt.) 1722 ; Lieut. in the 10th Dragoons (now 10th Hussars) when three new troops were raised for it in 1726 ; Capt. in 1743 ; retired before 1754. The 10th Dragoons were raised in 1715, Humphrey Gore being the first Colonel. Charles Churchill (son of Charles Churchill, brother of the great Duke of Marlborough) became in 1723 the next Col. Richard Viscount Cobham succeeded him in 1745, and Sir John Mordaunt became Col. in 1749. Charles Hamilton describes himself in his will, dated in 1781, as " late a Capt. of a troop in a Regiment of Dragoons commanded by Sir John Mordaunt." Cobham's Dragoons fought with distinction at Culloden (16th April, 1746), Charles Hamilton serving with the regiment, and in May and June of that year was stationed at Forfar in charge of his dragoons during which time James Wolfe (then A.D.C. to General Hawley and afterwards the Hero of Quebec) had considerable official correspondence with him which illustrates the unpleasant character of the work in hand—namely, hunting of rebels and seeking for arms, cattle and other property of the rebels. There are three letters from James Wolfe to Charles Hamilton published in the " Life and Letters of James Wolfe " by Beckles Willson, 1909 ; and in all of them the writer states that the Duke of Cumberland, to whom Charles Hamilton's letters had been shown, was well satisfied with the way in which his duties had been carried out.

The approval of his commanding officer did not, however, save him from trouble arising out of this discharge of his duties, for we find that legal proceedings were taken against him in the Court of Session in Scotland in July, 1746, by one Thomas Ogilbie, a merchant of Dundee, he then being quartered in the town of Forfar, because he had caused cattle to be turned out of Ogilbie's lands to make room for the horses of his Dragoons ; and because he had taken possession of the mansion house of Cowl in the occupation of David Ogilbie ; and, in the quaint language of Scots law, had " roused his whole household furniture, horses, cattle and other movables and had intimated a sale of all his growing crops." The Complainer Thomas Ogilbie and his tenant David were admittedly rebels, and Charles Hamilton in his defence stated that he was merely carrying out his orders in taking their property. This did not avail him in the eyes of the judges, and at the first hearing, the case was decided against him—perhaps the fact of his being a southroner was not in his favour. He then brought an appeal, when he had the assistance of the Crown lawyers—the petition for appeal being prepared by the Lord Advocate—with the result that the proceedings were dropped, and his expenses were paid by the Treasury. The petition for appeal brought out the fact that at the first hearing it was assumed that he had put the money obtained at the "roup" or sale of the Ogilbie's goods into his own pocket, the truth being that he had distributed all of it among his Dragoons.¹

Charles Hamilton mentions his house at Montpelier Row, Twickenham, in his will and directs that he is to be buried at Teddington Churchyard. He bequeathed his house at Twickenham and other property to his nephew Thomas Hamilton "of Annsbrook in the Kingdom of Ireland," and expresses a wish that someone of the family would live in his house. He also mentions his grand-nephew William and grand-niece Angel, children of his nephew Thomas.

Charles Hamilton died on the 7th January, 1784, aged 90 years, and was buried at Teddington on the 13th January, 1784. His will, which is dated 25th March, 1781, was proved in the Court of Prerogative on the 13th January, 1784. It is to be observed that Sir Patrick Hamilton, who was a nephew of Charles Hamilton, died at Twickenham on the 22nd Aug., 1780—probably at the latter's house.

In the "Memorials of Twickenham," by the Rev. R. S. Cobbett, M.A., the following particulars are given of Montpelier Row where Chas. Hamilton lived and which is now called Montpelier Road:—"About the year 1720 Capt. Gray, who then possessed an estate at Twickenham, built on a part of it a row of houses called Montpelier Row, and for the convenience of the inhabitants he erected in 1727 a 'small neat chapel.' Montpelier Row, which contains about twenty-four houses, intersected about two-thirds of the way down by Twickenham chapel has frequently supplied residences to persons and families of distinction, some few of which may here be mentioned. The row runs at right angles to the river on the south side of the Richmond Road from exactly opposite North End House to South End House at its lower termination." "At the end of the last century Capt Charles Hamilton inhabited No. 12."

CHAPTER XVIII.

CAPT. JAMES MATHEW HAMILTON AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

James Mathew Hamilton, the 2nd son of the Rev. Nicholas Hamilton (chap. XII p. 23) was b. 26 Sept., 1768, at Tollynakill, Co. Down ; he died on a farm on the Coldwater Road near Orillia, Ontario, 16 Nov., 1844, and was buried in the old graveyard by the Church of England in Orillia, Ontario. He entered the 5th Foot (Northumberland Fusiliers) as Ensign 26 Oct., 1786, the regt. being then stationed in Ireland, and on the 24 May, 1787, embarked for Canada. After a voyage of two months they landed at Quebec, and on the 6th Sept., 1787, left by batteaux for the interior, his destination being Fort Michilimackinac on Mackinaw Island, which is situate at the junction of Lakes Huron and Michigan. This fort was at that time belonging to and within the United States, being one of the many frontier posts of which Great Britain retained possession of as security for the carrying out of the Treaty of Versailles. The post was a very important one, being the then entrepot to the Great Unknown West for fur-traders and adventurers.

It was at this post that Ensign Hamilton met his first wife, Louisa, da. of Surg.-General David Mitchell, to whom he was m. 15 Nov., 1791.

At this place remote from civilization there was no clergyman or Justice of the Peace, and in order that the ceremony should not be delayed, they were married by the commanding officer of the post ; the record reads :— " This day was (sic) married by Edward Charlton, Capt. in 5th Regt. and commander of the post before the subscribing witnesses—Jas. Mathew Hamilton, Ensign, to Miss Louisa Mitchell, daughter of David Mitchell by his lawful wife.

Witness,

Benjamin Roche,

Lieut. 5th Foot.

W. Glendowe,

Ensign 5th Foot.

D. Mitchell, Surgeon.

J. M. Hamilton,

Ensign 5th Regt. Foot.

Louisa Mitchell, now Hamilton,

Edward Charlton,

Capt. Comdg. 5th Foot."

In June, 1790, the regt. was transferred to Detroit on the Straits of St. Clair River where it remained until 1792, and later to Fort Niagara on the U.S. side of that river. While stationed here circumstances arose which seemed to make it advisable for J. M. Hamilton and his wife to go through the marriage ceremony again, and it was accordingly performed in the Freemason's Lodge at Newark, Upper Canada, by the Rev. Robert Addison and was recorded in the register which now belongs to St. Mark's Church, Niagara, Ontario. The entry is as follows:—"August 24th, 1792—Capt. James Hamilton to Louisa Mitchell his wife. They had been previously married by some commanding officer or magistrate and thought more decent to have the office repeated."

On 16th July, 1794, Hamilton became Lieut. and in 1795 was in charge of Fort Chippewa on the Niagara River. In 1796 the regt. was transferred to Quebec, and in 1797 the officers and sergeants were sent back to England. J. M. Hamilton became Capt. 11 Aug., 1799, and in that year took part in the Expedition to Holland; on the 12 March, 1800, he sold out, after which he appears to have resided in London (England), where his wife died leaving one child, Elizabeth Ann (Betsy). While in London he made friends with the Rev. Basil Woodd, D.D., Rector of the Parish of St. Mary-le-bone, and eventually m. Louisa Jupp, Dr. Woodd's sister-in-law.

J. M. Hamilton remained in England for many years after his second marriage. He appears to have lived in London at first, after which he moved to Cornwall, residing successively at Megavissey, St. Austell, and Bodmin in that County. He then lived in or near Plymouth for some years, and in the year 1829 determined to return to Canada. After an uneventful voyage of ten weeks and four days in the brig "Salamis" of Sunderland, he and his family landed in Quebec. Some delays and difficulties occurred before he succeeded in obtaining a grant of land in what is now known as the township of Matchedash on the North River in the Province of Ontario. The tract was in its wild state, and the first work to be undertaken was to cut boundaries through the dense forest of White Oak. Much of the land was prairie suitable for growing cereals, root crops and hay. Here two of his sons built a log-house where they spent the first winter alone, subsisting chiefly on Indian corn and wild birds, and having as neighbours timber wolves and other wild animals. The following spring the boys were joined by their father accompanied by a house-keeper, bringing with them some cows and oxen. After ploughing the prairie land they made a garden and sowed oats and wheat. Hamilton leased a saw-mill on the Severn River where timber for the new house was prepared. The house was two stories high, built of planks two inches thick, well calked between, which made a warm comfortable dwelling, if not very ornamental. Here the large family lived and prospered, receiving visits from young men from the not far distant settlement of Penetanguishene, and, as more permanent guests, two young cousins, sons of Francis William Hamilton, a Solicitor in Dublin—J. M. Hamilton's brother. Their stock soon numbered 60 head of cattle and a dozen milch cows and in one year they produced 1,000 lbs. of cheese. Hamilton resided afterwards with his wife and one of his younger sons on a farm which he purchased near Orillia, Ontario, where he remained until his death. James, his eldest son, did not leave England until long after the rest of the family had emigrated, and received more educational advantages than his brothers and sisters. He carried on a school for boys in Toronto for some years; later he was in the employment of the Bank of Upper Canada, becoming finally their Agent at London, Ontario, where he lived until his death in 1896. William Basil Hamilton was the second son. He left the farm at Matchedash and became a merchant at Penetanguishene in Ontario, from whence he moved to Collingwood, then a small hamlet. He became its first Mayor and later, Postmaster, which appointment he held until 1882, resigning in favour of his eldest son, William Anderson Hamilton. He continued to live at Collingwood until he died in 1892, leaving his wife and a large family of sons and daughters. Amongst his sons was Lauchlan Alexander Hamilton, who for 20 years was the executive head of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the sale and development of their twenty-five million acres of land, operating in that capacity from Winnipeg in Manitoba to Vancouver in British Columbia. He was the surveyor who laid out the original town site of Vancouver City. Another son, Heber James Hamilton, was in 1892 a Missionary of the English Church in Canada to Japan, and later the first Bishop of Mid-Japan.

Their children were:

(a) The Honourable Harold Vyvyan St. George Harmsworth, b. on 2nd August, 1894; educated at Fonthill and Eton. Irish Guards; 2nd Lieut. August, 1914; Lieut. November, 1914; Capt. January, 1917. Was Aide-de-camp to F.M. Lord French, 1917. Served in France; three times wounded; severely wounded at Cambrai in Nov., 1917; died in London, 12 February, 1918; buried at Hampstead Cemetery with military honours 15th Feb., 1918; was awarded the Military Cross, but the announcement only appeared after his death. The official report of the services for which the award was conferred states: "In an attack he led his company forward under heavy fire, and himself put out of action two enemy machine-guns. It was entirely due to his splendid example that his company reached their objective."

(b) The Honourable Vere Sidney Tudor Harmsworth, born 25th Sept., 1895; educated at Osborne and Dartmouth Naval College. Entered the Royal Navy as a midshipman. Retired in consequence of deafness caused by gunfire; took service in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve in which he was a Lieut.; was present at the bombardment of Antwerp, October, 1914; was interned in Holland, from whence he escaped; served at Gallipoli and in France, and was killed in action at the battle of the Ancre, 13 Nov., 1916. The Commanding Officer of his battalion (the Drake Battalion of the Royal Naval Division) wrote of him:—"The men of his battalion who survived the action are thrilled with pride in his name. He led his company in the attack on the trenches. In going across No Man's Land he was wounded in the throat. In spite of this he rallied a party of another battalion, and such of his own battalion as were in his immediate neighbourhood, and led the attack on the first German trenches. He saw that these were cleared of the Germans, and advanced with a number of men on the second line. In or near this line he was again wounded, this time on the right shoulder. Almost immediately he got up and collected such men as were near him, and led the attack on the third line. Just before reaching it he was hit by a shell, and instantly killed. During the greater part of this time he was commanding the attacking line, and by his endurance and courage got the men forward at a critical juncture." His father founded the Vere Harmsworth Chair of Naval History at Cambridge in his memory, November, 1918.

CHAPTER XXIII.

RECORD OF MILITARY SERVICES.

The record of the military services of some of the descendants of the Rev. Nicholas Hamilton (son of the Rev. Gustavus Hamilton) is remarkable.

These services commenced in the year 1776 and have continued during five successive generations. Three of his sons—John, James Mathew, and Charles Frederick ; and four of his grandsons—the sons of John Hamilton—Nicholas, John Spring, William, and James Bunbury Hamilton served in the 5th Foot (Northumberland Fusiliers).

In the year 1809 John Hamilton, who was known in the family as " Handsome Jack," and his four sons were all in that regiment at the same time, and all served in the Peninsular War. Captain John and his sons Nicholas and William took part in the Battle of Roliça, Vimeira and Corunna ; and John Spring in Nivelle, Vittoria, and Salamanca ; and James Bunbury in Salamanca. Captain John had served in the American War of Independence and was taken prisoner. His son John Spring was taken prisoner after Salamanca, and was detained by the French at Verdun until the peace of 1814. Besides the four sons of Captain John already mentioned his younger son, Thomas Talbot, was also in the army, having entered the 19th Foot in 1813. The only son of Captain John who was not a soldier was the Rev. Richard Hamilton. He had no son but his grandsons—Walter Alfred Hamilton Grimshaw, and Edmund Ussher Grimshaw are or have lately been in the army.

The most distinguished of Capt. John's sons was Nicholas, who eventually in 1851, after more than half a century of service, attained the rank of Major General.

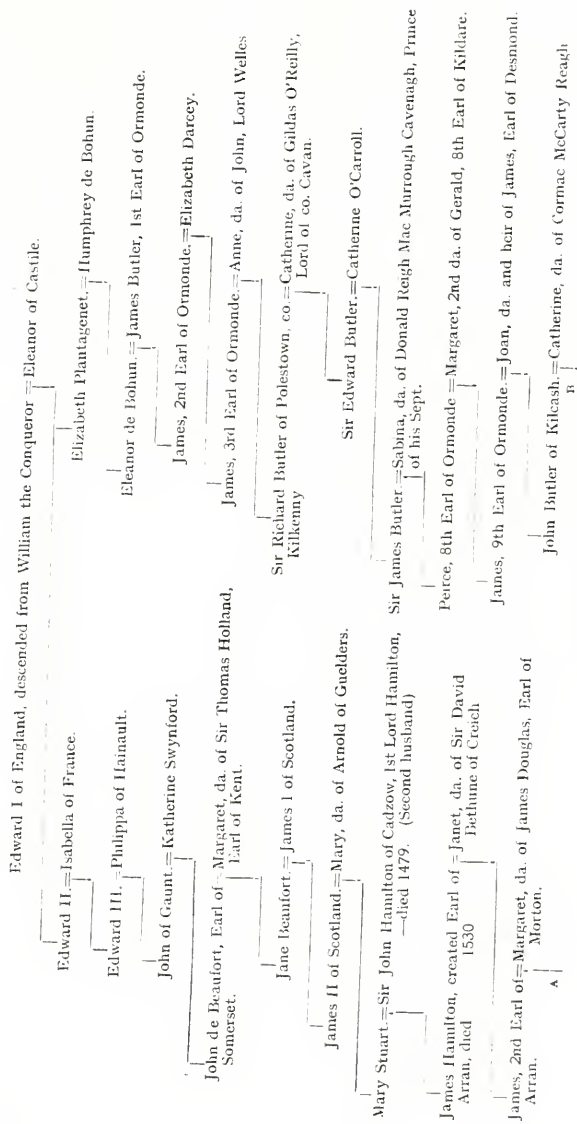

All the sons and grandsons of General Nicholas adopted a military calling, and a great-grandson of his—Hugh W. R. Hamilton—served in the Royal Engineers in Mesopotamia in the force which re-captured Kut-el-Amara, where his father, a grandson of the General's, Brigadier-General William George Hamilton, D.S.O., C.B., C.S.I., was taken prisoner in 1916 and only released in November, 1918.

Another grandson of General Nicholas', Lieut.-Col. Archibald Samuel Hamilton, while commanding the 14th Battn. of the Durham Light Infantry, received wounds in action on Hill 70 in Flanders on September 26th, 1915, from which he died on October 13th, 1915, and his brother, Brigadier-General Alexander Beamish Hamilton, C.B., died in January, 1919, from illness contracted on active service in the Great War.

The only son of John Spring Hamilton, Charles Pratt, and two sons of the latter, John Butler and Charles James Hamilton, also followed the same profession. Two great-grandsons of Charles Pratt Hamilton, Cuthbert John Hamilton Clibborn and Cecil Hamilton Clibborn, were likewise in the army; the former was killed in action in France on December 14th, 1915, and the latter died of wounds on April 10th, 1916; while a third great-grandson of his, Derek Percy Cox, who served in the Royal Flying Corps, was killed in a bombing expedition over Germany on 21st August, 1917.
