December the third AD. 1825. I Andrew Belfour do hereby publish pronounce and declare the following as a Codicil to the foregoing last Will and Testament Viz: The part of my real Estate given to my Wife in case she should change her situation, is to be considered as belonging to her during her natural life, and at her death to revert to and be equally divided amongst my Children. It is also my Will that if any of my Children should arrive at the age of Twenty one Years or Marry, so that a division of the Estate becomes necessary, my Executor and Executor before named and the Child or Children so arriving at age or Marrying should each chose one indifferent person who when chosen shall have power to examine the Estate and lay off to such Child or Children an equal portion thereof, regard being had to the part bequeathed to their Mother, and the number of Children. Witness my hand and seal the date above.

December the fifth AD. 1825. A Second Codicil which I have thought proper to make to the foregoing last Will and Testament, is as follows that as it was my intention to convey to Samuel Newby the tract of Land on which he lives on his paying me the sum of four hundred Dollars together with such other sum or sums as I might lay out in improving said place, so it is my wish and desire that my Executor and Executor hereinbefore named should perform that intention of mine. But it is to be understood that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to bind me my Executors or Heirs to keep the said Land any definite length of time, but if it should be found necessary at any time to sell the said Land, he the said Samuel Newby shall have the preference as a purchaser, and if he then pays the aforesaid sum, I recommend that he should have the Land. Witness my hand and seal the date above.
