This account of the Crawford family of Oakham from 1750 to 1860, sometimes called The Crawford Book, was written by General William Crawford. It is printed by the Oakham Historical Society to insure its preservation. Additions, chiefly of dates, made by persons who have used the manuscript, are put in brackets.

William Crawford was Captain of the Washington Grenadiers in the war of 1812, and became afterwards Brigadier General in the Massachusetts Militia. He represented Oakham in the Massachusetts Legislature, was State Senator, and, for many years, Chairman of the County Commissioners of Worcester County. He served the town also as town clerk, selectman, and member of the school committee, and was a teacher of great excellence in Oakham and neighboring towns.

He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1807.

THE CRAWFORD FAMILY OF OAKHAM, MASSACHUSETTS.

The Crawford Family, which is the subject of the subsequent record, is, if tradition can be relied on, of Scotch descent, but left its native country at a date unknown and came to the County of Tyrone in Ireland, where it remained till the commencement of the year 1713, when it emigrated to America, and arrived at Boston in the Colony of Massachusetts during the spring or summer of the same year, and there took up its residence till its removal to Rutland. At what particular time it arrived at Rutland is not known, but it must have been previous to the organization of Rutland under its act of incorporation as a town, for it appears by ancient records that the grant of what is now Rutland was confirmed to the children of Major Simon Willard of Lancaster and others, by an order of the General Court passed on the twenty-third day of February, 1713; that the first clearing or felling of trees therein commenced in 1716; that the families of the settlers commenced moving there on the twenty-third day of September, 1719; and that it was incorporated as the town of Rutland at the session of the General Court begun on Wednesday the thirtieth day of May, 1722.

The first meeting of the settlers under the act of incorporation was held on the last Monday of July, 1722, for the choice of town officers. At this time the family of Crawfords was there and must have been included among the inhabitants incorporated, inasmuch as one of the family was then chosen into office. From this it is evident the family was among the first settlers in the town and was established there before the year 1722.

Aaron Crawford arrived at Boston, Massachusetts, from the parish of Capp, County of Tyrone, Ireland, in the year 1713, with his wife, whose maiden name was Agnes Wilson, accompanied by three sons, whose names were 1, Samuel; 2, John; 3, Alexander; who were born in the parish of Capp in the County of Tyrone, Ireland. Alexander was three years of age when he arrived in Boston; of course he must have been born in 1710.

After their arrival in America they had born daughters Martha [an error as this daughter was born in Ireland in 1706] and Isabelle, son Moses, and daughter Mary [born in Rutland April 15, 1721].

Aaron Crawford was one of the first settlers of Rutland and died there, also his wife Agnes, and were buried in the graveyard in the center of the town.

[Aaron was born in Ireland 1677, died in Rutland August 6, 1754. Agnes his wife was born in Ireland 1677, died in Rutland December 10, 1760.]
