Mr. Geo. Bancroft -

My dear Sir,

Send you a copy of the Chaine Documents, of which I beg your acceptance.

See your refer to James Ingersoll's letters; are any of them printed? As he was a leading man in Connecticut, it seems to have taken the wrong side at the beginning, I should like to know the sequel of his career. Can you refer me to any source of information respecting him? -

I shall quote in my lecture your picturesque account of his reporting & putting in circulation Burke's famous speech in answer to Chas. Townsend. Your statement of this matter seems to remove the doubts of Ld. Mahon in reference to that speech. Very truly Yours,

29 March 1859. Geo. Johnson,
212 Second Avenue.

P R E F A C E.

In 1856, before quitting Europe, after an absence from home of more than six years, I gave a commission to Mr. H. G. SOMERBY to look up and make a list of the papers in the English archives relating to the old Province of Maine. The following pages contain the results of his labors in executing this commission; and altho' disappointed in some measure by the paucity of the earlier documents, especially in relation to the movements of the brave old knight, Sir FERDINANDO GORGES, the founder of the colonial settlement of MAINE, I find no reason to regret having had the examination of the records made by so competent a person as Mr. Somerby. The list shows what can be found in the archives of the State Paper Office and the British Museum, of the desired character, and leaves no room to expect anything more.

A few of the papers indicated have already found their way into print, and others may exist in some of our public records; but, with these exceptions, the mass of documents will be seen by the historical student to be a valuable accession to what was to be found in this country, either in print or manuscript, on the subject of the various enterprises for the colonisation of the northern coast of the United States.

Having met with the "DEFENCE OF SIR FERDINANDO GORGES AGAINST THE CHARGE OF HAVING BETRAYED THE EARL OF ESSEX," written by himself, among the MSS. of the British Museum, I procured a copy of it, but afterwards discovered it had been recently printed by the Royal Society of Antiquaries; it is, however, inserted at the end of these papers, together with the interesting letter of Mr. Bruce, F. S. A. to Mr. Payne Collier, Vice-President of that Society, on the subject of Sir Ferdinando's Defence.

The principal repositories of original papers relating to the New England Colonies, in print, are Gov. Hutchinson's Collection and Hazard's State Papers. With these the present catalogue has been compared, and little found in common. I have not, however, deemed it necessary to suppress the mention of any document in the catalogue because it existed in other collections, preferring to leave it to the historical student to make his own examinations and comparisons in this respect, by printing the list and abstracts complete as they were received.

Mr. WILLIS, the esteemed President of the Maine Historical Society, encouraged me to expect that the Society would be at the expence of printing this catalogue, should I offer it for that purpose; but having been governed in this matter by the interest I felt in the history of my native State, I concluded to waive such proffer, and to finish, as I had begun, in my own way.

At the time of this intrusion, Sir Samuel Argall with others were preparing to settle upon the Manahata river aforesaid which caused a demur, and King James through the Ambassador questioned the States of the Low Countries upon complaint of Lord Arundel, Sir Ferd. Gorges, Sir Sam^l. Argall and Capt John Mason. The ambassador disclaimed any authority ; nevertheless in the following year the Dutch returned and contumaciously persisted to plant and trade at the said River.*

Letter of Capt. THOMAS WIGGIN addressed to Sir JOHN COOKE, Secretary of State, beeing observations upon New England and especially the plantation of Massachusetts—speaks of the commodities and the number of the inhabitants, and describes very minutely the governor. Mentions the ill affected persons who have spread abroad reports prejudicial to the plantation. Sir Christopher Gardiner, a man notorious for his immoralities, Moreton a suspected murderer, and one Ratcliffe who had lost his ears for blasphemy. These three with other discontented persons are returned and to cover their own shame endeavour to cast imputations upon the plantation, addressing themselves to Sir Ferdinando Gorges, who led away by their falsehoods is now projecting to deprive the plantation of the privileges granted by the King and to subvert the government, which the wri^{er} fears will terminate in their utter ruin and drive the planters elsewhere.

A paper signed FERD. GORGES, being observations upon the utility of dividing New England into several provinces, to assign a governor, &c. &c. to each. That some person of distinction be elected under the title of Lord Governor or Lord lieutenant to represent his Majesty. That there be other officers appointed to assist him, such as one lord bishop, a chancellor, a treasurer, a marshal, an admiral, a master of the ordinance, and a secretary of state, with such other officers or councillors as may be deemed necessary.—These to be empowered to erect courts of justice, appoint subordinate officers and arrange other matters. If the expenses of settling this kind of government be thought too great a charge for his Majesty, doubtless there are some who would if honored with the king's commands undertake it upon favourable conditions. Care to be taken to avoid persons holding papistical or heretical opinions, &c. &c. Consideration of this subject to be referred to his Majesty's pleasure.

Letter of Sir FERD. GORGES addressed to Sir FRANCIS WINDEBANK, Secretary of State, &c.

I hope I have allready sufficiently enlarged myselfe how necessary I conceive it is some speedy course were taken for the setlinge of the affaires of New-England both for his Majesties honour and the publicke good of the subjects that doe languish for want thereof nor can I doubt but that your honour hath before this as carefully and as nobley acquainted his Majestie and their LPP^s therewith, soe soone as I may heare how it is accepted of and the resolution grounded there uppon, I will not faile (for my particular) to adde my best endeavour to satisfie any doubt that may arise in the consideration thereof if I shalbe called there unto in the meane tyme I will take upon me the humble bouldnesse to acquaint your honour that haveing had conferance with my Lord of Linsey and my Lord Gorges and some others about the state of those businesses (being both of them formerly of the councill of those affaires) and delivering to them my opinion how it might be made hon^r to his Majesty and profittable to his realmes if persons of worth might be found willing to engadge themselves as actors in the managing thereof, neither of them but seemed soe well to relish it, as they protested to me (in private) that if his Majestie were pleased to accepte of their service and to call them thereunto they would willingly undertake it uppon such terms as might be agreeable to the state of such a design, for my selfe (Sir) I hope I have allready sayd enought to manifest my zeale there unto and I beseech you to beleieve this much of me, whom (you may partly remember) had the honour to be breed under those great princes that well understood the state of their neybour and how to lay the ground to advance their ends longe before hand the better to secure their owne and to be able to affront their enemies far from home, if I have attained ought either from their principles my owne experience or practise or from any other the most activest and of best judgment and experiance that way with whom I have beene formerly acquainted in those tymes of action it was but to put the same in execution if occasion served or to leave the knowledge thereof where it was dew and for whose sakes I allwayes laboured in that kind. I could say more of the fitnessse of this businesse in that behalfe but I leave it for a fayrer opportunity knowing that tyme will produce what is not as yet commonly thought uppon and I will forbear to be further troublesome to your hon^r then becomes

A paper (endorsed SIR FERDIKANDO GORGES) from the King to upon the subject of the colonies in America. Since the undertaking of the plantations complaints of various abuses have been received, to remedy which advice has been taken with the council of state and directions given for a Governor to be sent over to take charge of public affairs, &c. &c. Being a business for the public good it is to be published throughout the realm that it is free for all well affected persons, so as to encourage the sending over with the governor a competent number of persons for plantation with one or more to superintend their employments, &c. &c. Honest and industrious people to be sent, so that the plantations may be strengthened; land to be assigned them, the same to be enlarged if thought fitting—to be appropriated to the adventurers in perpetuity. An answer is required with an account of the names of such as will interest themselves therein and what number of persons they resolve to send, to be in readines when the Council may appoint.

A paper endorsed SIR FERD. GORGES and entitled "Considerations necessarie to be resolved upon in settling the Governor for New England."—As a number of discontented persons are got into the best parts of the country who are gradually drawing thither their supporters, whether it would not be policy to lay a restraint upon this until license be obtained, that those who go over be bound to be conformable to the rites and ceremonies of the Church.—As authority is of none effect where power is wanting, whether it would not be proper to second such authority with competent power to prevent insolencies to officers, &c. &c. That as timely remedy for evils is of consequence, the better sort of the nation be called upon to second their prevention—that his Majesty may be pleased by letters to the lieutenants, and others of the several counties, to send over with the governor a competent number of persons adapted for planting, &c., &c. This paper also touches at length upon the subject of the Dutch coming into the River of Connecticut, and concludes with the following: "What fruite is to be expected from such as they are who dare to say that if a drunken governor be sent over there, if they take him drunke they will put him in the stockes and send him backe againe; whether it be not more than tyme these people should be looked unto is humbly referred to better consideration."

Reply of Sir Ferdinando Gorges to the propositions made by the Lords Commissioners for plantations in New England as to whether those interested would wholly resign their Patent to the King or stand to the same. Has conferred with them upon this topic and they leave it to his Majesty's pleasure nevertheless desire that their Patent may be confirmed with additional privileges, &c. (5 f.)

Petition of Sidrach Miller of London, Cooper, to the Privy Council. Shewing that by contract with John Mason of London, Esq. John Cotton and Henry Gardiner, and the rest of the adventurers for the province of Laconia in New England, the petitioner and his servants were transported to Pascataway, where they worked for the Company 18 months; that being sent to England by the Governor he left his two servants there who since have been discharged destitute of means or friends; that the Governor would not pay their passage money nor the Company settle the monies due to petitioner—prays for relief against so powerful a Company. That order may be given that such as are to transport anie numbers of planters into those partes may have recourse unto the governo^r assigned to receave from him direcons where to settle themselves and howe to governe their affaires for theire p^rsent p^rfits and safties, and free from the society of any turbulent spirritts to give them offence or impeachment.

That till farder order may bee had the governour may have commission to authorize some spetiall person wth the assistance of others to bee joyned wth him to governe all those wthout the limitts assigned to those of the said Bay who nowe doe languishe for want thereof and in divers letters desire that a Governour may bee sent. And are doubtfull of the wrongs to be offered them from those that are more powerfully armed wth a shewe warranting what they shall attempt in that case.

That it may be inserted in our resignacon to his Mat^{ties} his gracious pleasure to passe new Grantes unto the Patentees and others interessed in those affaires of all such partes of the Teretories formerly assigned unto them either by spetiall grantes lawfully obtained or

Letter signed FERDINANDO GORGES addressed to

Discusses at some length the necessity of supporting foreign plantations, (written in the form of objections and answers.) Submits to the consideration of the person addressed the expediency of directing a commission to the proprietor of some one province (not yet pestered with people likely to reject authority), joining some of the most discreet residents in NewEngland to inquire into the state of the country, &c. By the same means a general commission might be sent for the settling a Governor and other officers ofstate, with instructions not to divulge the same until there appears a willingness on the part of the strongest party to accede to and second it. It would be an undertaking of no little charge and difficulty, and therefore that the king would be pleased to make a competent allowance for performance of this service, &c. &c. Concluding as follows: "myselfe beinge unable to give that attendance as I in duty ought, humbly desireinge that by yo^r hono^{rs} meanes I may speedily receive knowledge of theire lordships commannes and returne to mine owne house with hope the sooner to recover my health, &c."

Letter signed GEO. BURDETT and dated Pascataq(ua), addressed to the Archbishop of Canterbury—mentions a supplication to the Lords Commissioners for plantations sent from Massachusetts, states his opinion that they are endeavouring to obtain command of the River of Pascataquay, a place possessed of numerous advantages—conceives "that his grace will judge it necessary wth all expedition to secure the river and harbour for his Majesty's use"—submits deferentially what course should be taken.—Has been told that Massachusetts magistrates have got copies of his two first letters to the person addressed, said to have been procured by M^r Vane from his Grace's chaplain, which he cannot believe was done with the consent of his Grace. Also concerning an alledged arrear of £254 said to be due to Sir Ferdinando, but proved the contrary by the Register Book. 1674-5 March

The title and case of Rob^t Mason touching the province of New Hampshire in New England. A^o 1616 King James I. sends John Mason Esq. as Governor to Newfoundland, who after remaining there two years was ordered to New England and with Sir Ferdinando Gorges made a voyage along the coast in 1619, account of which they furnished to his Majesty. A^o 1620 the King grants by charter to some of the nobility under the title of the Council of New England the territory called New England with divers privileges, who, dividing the same into several provinces, assigned a large tract of land to John Mason, which was afterwards enlarged and called New Hampshire. John Mason grandfather of Rob^t by various grants made 1620, 1629, 1635 was instated in the aforesaid province, and expended large sums of money in improving the same, appointing for his first Steward or Governor, Capt^t Walter Neale. He continued until 1633, when he was succeeded by Capt^t Henry Jocelyne, who continued until 1638. Before that time John Mason died, having expended 20000£, leaving a widow Anne executrix during the minority of his grandson Robt. A^o 1638 Anne Mason sent over Capt Francis Norton, who exercised his office very unfaithfully until 1650, in which year Joseph Mason was appointed by Anne Mason, receiving instructions to call to account Norton on account of appropriation of the property to his own use. Upon legal proceedings being taken, Norton to avoid payment went into Massachusetts and combining with others of bad principle incited the Massachusetts to seize upon New Hampshire, which design was encouraged by Frost, Cromwell's Secretary, A^o 1652. The loyal inhabitants being compelled to submit, Joseph Mason in the year following as agent for Anne Mason petitioned the Gen^l. Court of Massachusetts for redress, offering to make out the title of the heirs of John Mason to the province. A^o 1660 Robert Mason (the heir) petitioned the King to send a Gen^l Governor to New England to bound each province &c., offering to resign his grant to his Majesty, but nothing was done therein. A^o 1661 Rob^t Mason again petitioned the King for relief against the Massachusetts; enquiry into and hearing of the matter being appointed, John Leverett appeared on behalf of the Massachusetts: the damages being laid at 5000£. A^o 1664 Commissioners appointed to settle New England affairs, who not finding at Boston due reception went in 1665 into the provinces of Hampshire and Maine, where they met with a welcome reception and a ready compliance to his Majesty's letters; and upon a general meeting of the inhabitants the province was declared out of the government of the Massachusetts. The commissioners having been into most parts of the province as well as of Maine to find the inclination of the people, acknowledge that they repudiate the Massachusetts and adhere to the hope of a speedy settlement by the Gov^t of England. A^o 1667 Letters to Robert Mason assuring him of the desire of the inhabitants of both provinces to comply with the King's pleasure in settling a government. A^o 1671 Robert Mason with Ferdinando Gorges, proprietor of the province of Maine, petitions the King for the settlement of New England and restoring the petitioners to their just rights; the same was referred to the Council for foreign plantations, who in a report (August 1671) advised his Majesty to send Commissioners to New England to examine the differences touching boundaries and amicably to adjust the same, which was assented to, the Council obliging Mr Mason and Mr Gorges not to sell their interests in New England without his Majesty's leave. A^o 1672 The war with Holland put a stop to the Commission. But letters dated August in that year from Francis Champernoun and H. Jocelyne shew the earnest desire of the two provinces aforesaid to have his Majesty's Gov^t settled. A^o 1674 The war with Holland being ended, Robt Mason and Ferdinando Gorges renew their petition to the King and propose assigning their grants to his Majesty, taking others with less privileges. All which is submitted to the King and privy Council. (38 f.)

Document entitled "The case of the Governor & Company of the Massachusetts Colony in New England,"—14. Ja^s 1 3 Nov^r The tract of New England granted to forty Lords and others by the name of the Council of New England and established at Plymouth.—1628 Mar 19 the Council grant the Colony of Massachusetts to Roswell and others.—4 Mar. 4 Cha^s 1. the said grant confirmed. M^r Mason lays claim to the government of New Hampshire under a grant dated 9 Mar. 1621 and other subsequent grants.—M^r Gorges pretends to the government of Maine by grants &c. Confirmed by letters patent of the King in 1635.—A^o 1677 The matter referred to the two Lords Chief Justices. The Chief Justices after hearing all sides report to the King that they could give no opinion as to the right to the soil of New Hampshire and Maine not having the proper parties before them, &c. &c. As to Mr Mason's right of Government, both their Lordships and his own Counsel agreed that he had none. Four towns part of Mr Mason's claim excluded from the bounds of the Massachusetts. This report was confirmed by his Majesty in Council. Soon after it was signified to the Colony from the Lord Chancellor that the King had issued his pardon for coining, &c. and granted license for coining in future.—The four towns, Dover, Portsmouth, Exeter, and Hampton excluded the government of the Massachusetts, and Mr Mason having no right to govern there, petition the King to be placed under the Massachusetts Gov^t as they have been for 40 years part. The agents for the colony also petition the King to grant the same and give especial reasons wherefore.—This petition was referred to the Committee for Trade. Upon this a contra petition in the names of Mr Mason and Mr Gorges against the grant desired by the Company, the former offering to surrender his right to the King. Mr Gorges also makes the same offer, but upon examination disowns the petition. The agents having spent fifteen months in this business, and their private affairs calling for their return home, pray a hearing of these matters before the said Committee &c. (14 f.)

Council Minutes for foreign plantations.

Col. CARTWRIGHT, one of the Commissioners for hearing appeals in New England, attended and informed the Council on several points—That the said Commissioners had sent a map of New England and a book of 111 pages in folio (containing narrative of their proceeding and observations relating to the several colonies) to the king at Oxford in 1665. That another copy was given to Lord Arlington. Information respecting the country also touching the coining of money—also notes concerning the shipping and land forces. An item among the latter mentions “men able to beare arms in the province of Mayne, 1000.” (5 f.)

Letter to the king signed NICHOLAS SHAPLEIGH upon the subject of cutting mast-trees in the province of Maine upon land appertaining to Ferdinando Gorges, which mast trees had been granted to himself and another friend. The government of Gorges being wholly set aside and jurisdiction of the Bay of Boston exercised there, he fears the mast trees will be entirely destroyed—desires the prohibition of the king respecting the same. Privy Council Minutes, &c.

Read the petitions of Ferdinando Gorges and Robert Mason, complaining of their being dispossessed by the unjust dealings of the Massachusetts of their inheritances in the provinces of Maine and New Hampshire. Ordered, that the Committee for Trade &c. do take it into their considerations on the 14th and report opinion there upon to his Majesty in Council. (2 f.)

Petition of ROBERT MASON to the King and Privy Council, prays, to be restored to the possession of his inheritance in New Hampshire, which has been violently wrested from him by the Massachusetts. (7 f.)

Petition of FERDINANDO GORGES to the King and Council, praying to be restored to his inheritance in the province of Maine, which since it descended to him he has enjoyed possession of for many years through the means of Commissioners by him appointed, some of whom have been imprisoned by the Massachusetts who have wrongfully assumed the government thereof. (5 f.)

The foregoing petitions being read, Mr MASON presents their Lordships with a report of the 15th of February 1661, touching this matter, having reference to the petitions of Robert Mason and Edward Godfrey to the following effect, viz.

That from divers letters patents and examination of witnesses they find that John Mason, grandfather of Robert Mason, laid out great sums of money in settling the plantations, &c. That Edward Godfrey lived there for 25 years and discharged the office of the Governor of the province of Maine with integrity and justice according to the settled laws of this kingdom—that he has been dispossessed of his lands and office by the Massachusetts who encroaching upon petitioner's inheritance have compelled submission to their usurped government. Refers also to the endeavours of the last named colony to erect themselves into a free state or commonwealth, & their declaration that they would rather sell their colony to the King of Spain than submit to any appeal to England. That there doth not appear any pretence for the assumed authority of the Massachusetts &c. Signed ROBERT MASON—JOHN EXTON—G. SWEET—WILLIAM TURNER—Sir RICH^d FORD. * (13 f.)

* This document is found entire in Belknap's Hist. of New Hampshire, Appendix No. 16. The signatures differ.

Mr Mason, having opened many points by his discourse concerning New England, their Lordships ordered him to bring at their next meeting the state of his case in writing and to set forth his proposals and the conditions he would insist on according to what he had intimated touching some overtures made by him lately to his Majesty about surrendering his interest in New England, did on the 1st of May following present a paper of proposals which were then read, bearing the following purport—In order to establish his Majesty's interests in New England, it seems advisable upon the grounds of the petitions of Gorges and Mason that the King should interpose his authority by way of mediation. That Commissioners to the number of five be appointed to reconcile all differences, &c. The said Commissioners to proceed first to Portsmouth where are located persons of good estate and well disposed towards the king. On their arrival in New England they are to summon the inhabitants of Hampshire and Maine to hear the commission read, to dispatch a messenger with the King's letter to Massachusetts, and to appoint a town in New Hampshire for the place of the treaty. The Commissioners are further to make acquaintance with the chiefest and best inclined persons in the two provinces of Hampshire and Maine and make known to them his Majesty's intentions, &c. —If necessary for the Commissioners to proceed to any other part of New England, power is given them to leave any one of their number in such place as they may find requisite and to add others to the Commission. (25 f.)

Draught of his Majesty's declaration to the inhabitants of New England. For the peace and union of the provinces and taking into consideration the petitions of Gorges and Mason, is pleased to appoint Commissioners to repair there forthwith for the purpose of reconciling the differences, &c., and to return after three months' stay. If it be found impracticable to effect this purpose, the parties disagreeing shall be required to elect some persons as their Agents to represent them to his Majesty. The petitioners are required by themselves or deputies to attend the Commissioners on their arrival in New England. (3 f.)

Draught of a letter from His Majesty to the Massachusetts in New England upon the same subject as the foregoing, stating that Commissioners are appointed to arrange the difficulties upon the petitions of Robert Mason and Ferd. Gorges, enjoining them to acquiesce in the determinations made by the Commissioners touching boundaries, &c.

Letter from the Governor of the Massachusetts to Mr Secretary MORICE, being in reply to his Majesty's of the 11th of June 1664.

Being commanded by the King's letter to make restitution of the province of Maine (now called Hampshire) to Ferdinando Gorges or his Comm^{rs}, or to shew reason for the contrary, they submit that by their charter their grant was clearly shown to extend three miles north of the most northerly part of the Merrimack river, and to extend in a line of longitude from sea to sea in the said latitude. That in 1652 they appointed two competent persons to discover the northermost point of the Merrimack river, and that they might not be mistaken in the point where they took their station, viz where the river issued out of the lake called Winnepechochett they took the opinion of Indians of that place who testified that the river there was the Merrimack. That afterwards other skilful persons were commissioned to take the same height of the northerly latitude at the sea coast as the others had taken within the land, who accordingly set up a boundary mark—all which facts are upon record, and for the better manifestation thereof they have presented a map of the whole tract to his Majesty's Commissioners where-by it will appear that the land claimed falls within their patent. In conclusion they signify that their charter is antedated ten or eleven years to that of Sir Ferd. Gorges, which they humbly conceive will confirm their right and title, &c. (9 f.)

1666 Apr. 10.

Letter of the King to the Massachusetts—Has received from the Governor an account of all the proceedings which have taken place between them and the Commissioners who were sent into New England,

&c. Has thought fit to recall the Commissioners to learn more fully the state of the plantations, &c. Commands the governor and Council of the Massachusetts to choose four or five persons (of whom Mr. Rich^d Bellingham and Major Hawthorne are to be two) to be sent over to attend his Majesty, who will hear in person the allegations or pretensions to right on behalf of the said colony. And his Majesty's commands are that there may be no alterations with reference to the government of the province of Maine till he has heard what is alledged on all sides, but that the same continue as his Majesty's Commissioners have left the same, until his Majesty shall further determine. All persons who have been imprisoned for petitioning &c. the King's Commissioners, are to be set at liberty and no further molestation to ensue. What determinations have been made with reference to bounds and limits by the said Commissioners are still to be observed until the King's final judgment thereon, &c. &c. (11 F.)

Result of the Committee.—Their Lordships having considered the aforesaid papers order Mr Attorney and Mr Solicitor Gen^l to examine the titles of Mr Mason and Mr Gorges to the provinces of Hampshire and Maine and to report upon the validity thereof—That the King be moved to send Commissioners into New England to the number of five.—Although the charges are computed at 7 or 8000£ yet they conceive the advantages to be commensurate.—If the sending Commissioners be approved of, instructions shall be given them to end all differences amicably or they may send over their Commissioners to attend his Majesty and the case may be heard here.—If on the contrary they are refractory, the King will take advantage of the law and they must expect a barrier put upon their trade.—The opinion of the Commissioners of the Customs to be taken relative to the Acts of Trade and Navigation which affect New England, &c.

Answer of the Lord Treasurer (Wanby), stating that he transmitted the paper sent him (concerning the pretensions of Mason and Gorges) to the Commissioners of Customs, whose report he herewith encloses. (1 f.)

The Report from the Commissioners of the Customs alluded to in the foregoing. (11 f.)

Meeting of the Lords on the 2 December 1675. in order to determine something in the case of Mr Mason and Mr Gorges, touching their pretensions in New England. At which meeting was read a narrative of the settlement of the corporation of the Massachusetts Bay, drawn and given in by Mr Mason, concluding with an account given by Capt. Wyborne, Commander of one of his Majesty's Frigates, how he found the state of things there in 1673. [This narrative is given at length.] (33 f.)

Result of the Committee—

The Lords understanding that Mr Mason has an earnest desire for the speedy sending away Commissioners to New England or a new Gov^r to right him in his pretensions, having taken into their consideration the great charge, uncertainty of success and other difficulties attending thereon, think it more advisable that the King should send over the statement of complaints requiring them to send over Commissioners to arrange the matter. If they refuse this, his Majesty would then have a clear course open to him. Mr Mason being called in was advised to await the issue and recommended to prefer a petition to the Committee touching his claim to be presented to his Majesty and Council, with advice that it be transmitted to the Bostoners as a manifestations of unwillingness to treat the matter ex parte, and that they be required to send over their Agents or Attornies in the space of eight months.

(5 f.)

In pursuance of their Lordships' directions M^r MASON and M^r GORGES present their petitions as follows:

M^r ROBERT MASON's petition (concerning New Hampshire) to the King.— (28 f.)

Petition of FERDINANDO GORGES (concerning the province of Maine) to the King—Shewing that by letters patent of King James dated 1620 Nov. 3, that portion of the country called New England lying between 40° and 48° degrees of latitude, was granted to divers of the Nobility &c. by the name of the Council of New England. That by virtue of several grants from the said Council dated respectively 1622 Aug. 10, 1629 Nov. 7, and 1635 April 22, Sir Ferdinando Gorges, petitioner's grandfather, obtained a tract of land called the province of Maine, lying upon the seacoast between the Rivers of "Pascattaway" and "Sagerdahock," confirmed under the great seal of England—that by grant dated 1629 Nov. 17, Sir Ferd. Gorges conjointly with John Mason were seized in fee of other lands in New England known by the name of Laconia, &c. &c. That the said Sir Ferdinando did expend in transportation of people and building upwards of 30,000£ and by deputies, &c. governed the province peaceably for a considerable period.—That the King by reason of complaints against the settlers in Massachusetts Bay and upon the resignation of the great Charter of New England resolved to take to himself the government of New England and to have one general Governor there—That thereupon he nominated Sir Ferdinando Gorges to be Governor. All which appears by the King's declarations and Commissions (July 1637). That shortly after the troubles which arose in Scotland and England prevented petitioner's grandfather from going to his Government, but he attended the King into Scotland and was engaged in his Majesty's service during the wars in England; that his estates at home were plundered and sequestered in the time of the usurpation and he was dispossessed of his province in N. England by the inhabitants of the Massachusetts, who turning out all that held commission from Sir Ferdinando divided his lands among their own creatures. That ever since the restoration the petitioner has prayed for relief, which petition has been referred to the Committee of plantations who have made report thereon. The title has also been examined and reported on favourably. That the Massachusetts have endeavoured to enter into terms with petitioner, that he has been offered many thousand pounds for his interest in the province, but has firmly refused the same, having promised neither to sell or alienate the same without Consent of the King. That he has sustained vast losses and expenses -prays relief and the restoration of his province. (14 f.)

The above petitions being read—at the same time was presented the following report with his Majesty's order thereon.

1675 Dec. 20. Whitehall.

Have examined the pretensions of the petitioners concerning which the late Council for Plantations in Report of Aug. 12, 1671, advised His Ma^{ty} to send over Commissioners to settle the differences, &c.—Upon mature consideration, however, they do not think the plan expedient, but propose copies of the petitioner's statements, and to be sent over to the people of Boston, that they may have an opportunity of considering the allegations and empowering some one for them to answer thereto. (5 f.)

Order of the King in Council approving of the foregoing report—The Secretary of State to prepare a letter requiring the Governor and Magistrates of Boston and Massachusetts to send over Agents within the space of six months to answer the petitions and complaints of Mason and Gorges. (2 f.)

That he shall call for answer to the said letters to be given within a month after the delivery thereof, which answer he shall bring back with all speed. If opportunity occur of writing before his return, he is to render an account of his proceedings to one of the Secretaries of state.

(3 f.)

At the same time a certain paper of enquiries was read and approved of, to be given to Mr RANDOLPH for his better observation of things in New England, of which he is recommended to inform himself as much as he can during his stay there.

Enquiries respecting New England given to Mr EDWARD RANDOLPH (in 12 divisions).

(8 f.)

An Estimate or abstract of Observations upon matters in New England, of which Mr RANDOLPH is to take notice so as to confirm or disprove the truth thereof.

(5 f.)

On the 2nd Nov^r the Lords receive a letter directed to Mr Secretary Coventry and delivered by Mr EDW^d RANDOLPH, from the governor and Council of Boston in answer to his Majesty's letter of 22nd Sept. 1675, touching Mason & Gorges in the tenor following:—

1676 June 3.

Although oppressed by the Indian war and impeded by an epidemical sickness from calling a general council, they hasten to acknowledge the receipt on the 10th instant by the hands of Mr Randolph of his Majesty's letter and the petitions of Mr Mason and Mr Gorges, at the same time they signify the complaints contained in the latter as referring to the colony to be "impertinences, mistakes and falsehoods," which they doubt not to prove in a more particular answer—fear not to submit the whole matter to a just and equal determination, &c. (6 f.)

1676 12th Oct.

On the 16th Nov^r is read a Narrative of the present state of New England and other papers presented by Mr EDW^d RANDOLPH, in pursuance of his instructions and inquiries received from the Committee of 20 March 1675, the heads of which enquiries answered are as follows:

1 Where the legislative and executive powers of New England are seated ?

2 What laws and ordinances are now in force contrary or derogatory to those of England and what kind of oath is prescribed, &c.?

3 The number of the different classes of persons, their professions, &c. and how many are able to bear arms?

In the reply to this query it is stated that the inhabitants including Hampshire and Maine are computed to be upwards of 150,000.

4 The number of forces, &c. ?

5 What castles and forts, how situated and furnished ?

6 The reputed boundaries and contents of land ?

7 What correspondence they keep with their neighbours the French, and the government of N. York ?

In the reply to this enquiry occurs the following passage—"The French have held a civil correspondence with y^e inhabitants of Hampshire, Maine and the Duke's province, although the Government of Boston upon all occasions is imposing upon y^e French, &c."

8 The original cause of the present war with the Indians, the advantages, disadvantages and final end thereof?

9 The commodities imported and exported, the number of ships, and how the Act of Navigation is noticed?

10 What are the Taxes, fines and revenues &c. ?

11 How they stand affected towards the gov^t of England, and who are the most popular men ?

In the answer to the foregoing we read, "The inhabitants are generally well affected to his Majesty and his government as well the merchants, farmers, as the meaner traders & artificers who groan under the yoke of the present government, and are in daily hopes and expectation of a change by his Mat^y's resuming the authority and settling a general government over the whole country, without which it is feared civil wars will in a short time break out between the Colonies. The government of the Massachusetts daily imposing and encroaching upon their neighbors, and therefore the loyal colonies of New Plymouth and Connecticut, New Hampshire and Maine, seeing these inconveniences daily increasing by a divided government, are very desirous of submitting to a gen^l governor to be established by his Mat^y."

12 What is the present state of the ecclesiastical government, also the management of the universities? (150 f.)

A short narrative (addressed to the King) of the delivery of his Majesty's letters to the Magistrates of Boston by EDWARD RANDOLPH.

Upon his landing at Boston he waited immediately on Governor John Leverett and informed him of the object of his mission, desiring that the magistrates might be assembled to hear read the King's letters. The governor replied that there would be a meeting on other business that afternoon, to which Mr Randolph should be sent for. At this meeting were present the governor, six of the Magistrates and the Secretary, Mr Randolph, being desired to be seated, the Governor opened the letter and seeing at foot the signature H. COVENTRY, desired to know who Mr Coventry was. At the commencement of the reading Mr R. uncovered himself, whereupon three of the magistrates did the same, the remainder with the Governor being covered. The letter with the petitions of Gorges and Mason being read, the Governor told the council that the matters contained therein were very inconsiderable, and that it did not concern the government to take any notice thereof. To which Randolph replied that the King required an answer, when the governor said they would consider of it.—This closed the interview. Mr R. then waited upon some of the most eminent men in Boston and delivered Mr Mason's letters to them, giving an account of the King's letter, and the reason of his (Randolph's) coming into those parts. After two days' consideration of the council it was resolved to send an answer to the King's letter by a ship about to sail.—On the 15th of June he was sent for by the Governor and asked if he intended leaving by a ship then on the point of sailing, as in that case he should have a duplicate of the letter sent to the King, together with a particular answer to a letter from Mr Secretary Williamson. Randolph in reply told them he had other matters in charge to attend to, and that he should not return so soon, when after some conversation the governor said that "they looked upon him as Mr Mason's agent and that he might withdraw." The next day he visited the Governor again and had some discussion about violations of the laws of Navigation and Trade, &c. A few days after Randolph met with a Mr Harris who told him that upon his arrival about six months before, he being conducted to the governor, (which is the practice there,) the latter enquired of him if he knew Mr Mason—whether it was true he was coming over—and what Commissioners were to accompany him, &c. &c.

On the 23rd of June, Randolph addressed a memorial to the governor and council, reminding them of his Majesty's commands for the sending over agents, and requesting a general council might be assembled to deliberate upon an answer to his Majesty's letter, to which the only reply given was that when he was ready to sail he should have a copy of their letters to the King. About the beginning of July he went into the province of New Hampshire belonging to Mr Mason, travelling through most of the principal towns and reading Mr Mason's letter to the principal inhabitants, when he found the whole country complaining of the oppression and usurpation of the inhabitants of Boston. Being at Portsmouth, a town upon the river Pascataway, several of the principal inhabitants of the province of Maine, (since called Yorkshire by the Bostoners,) came to him with the same complaints as those of New Hampshire, earnestly entreating him to represent their condition to his Majesty and praying relief, some of them having been suffered to be ruined by the Indians for having formerly expressed their duty to His Majesty when the Commissioners were there, and for having taken commissions from them to act as Justices of the peace.—On his return to Boston he received a message from Mr Josiah Winslow that he would pay him a visit, with whom he had some discourse concerning the magistrates of Boston and the affairs of N. England, &c. During his stay in Boston he made acquaintance with many of the chief inhabitants and found the generality of them opposed to the arbitrary proceedings of their rulers. The time having expired for his return to England on the 20th of July, he went to the governor for his despatches, when he was sharply reprov'd for making his errand so public to Mr Mason's and Mr Gorges' friends in Boston, New Hampshire, and Maine, telling him that he designed to make a mutiny and disturbance in the country, &c. On his departure the governor gave him the duplicate of a letter which had been sent to Mr Secretary Coventry a month previously, and both he and the Magistrates entreated him to render a favourable account of the country, &c. *

Dec. 22.

A second petition of Mr GORGES and Mr Mason was presented to the like effect. (2 f.)

Whereupon at Whitehall, Dec. 22, 1676, the following order was made:

Order of the King in Council, upon the petⁿ of Robert Mason and Ferdinando Gorges that a day may be appointed for the hearing of their complaints. Friday the 12th day of Jan^{ry} is fixed, on which the Massachusetts agents are required to attend the Council. (2 f.)

On the 10th of January following the agents for the Corporation of Boston petition his Majesty as follows :

Petition of WILLIAM STAUGHTON and PETER BULKLEY to the King and Council :

Petitioners, being entrusted by the Governor and Council of Massachusetts to make defence to the complaints of Mason and Gorges, set forth, that the said Mason and Gorges lay claim to several tracts of land in New England by virtue of certain grants from the council of N. England, particularly Mason by Indentures dated 1621 Mar. 9, 1622 Aug. 10, 1629 Nov. 7, & 1635 April 22. Also Gorges by like indentures of 1622 Aug. 10, 1629 Nov. 7, 1635 Apr. 22 and 1629 Nov. 17th. That your petitioners have made search for the said Records in the Rolls Chapel in Chancery and other offices, but cannot find the same, that being summoned to attend the hearing fixed for the 12th of this month they submit, that without the said Grants they are unable fully to instruct their counsel, and that it probably may necessitate a double hearing ; pray therefore that Mr Mason and Mr Gorges may be ordered at petitioners' cost to furnish copies of the grants aforesaid, the petitioners being willing to reciprocate the same favor, and pray the hearing may be deferred for a farther day. (7 f.)

Whereupon on the 10th of Jan^{ry} 1676-7, at the Court at Whitehall, it was ordered, viz.

Order of the King in Council that Mr Mason and Mr Gorges and the said Agents do alternately deliver to each other true copies of such grants relating to their respective claims in New England as each party shall desire of the other, the charge to be paid by the parties that desire and receive the same, the hearing thereof to be within one week after notice given to the Clerk of the Council of such mutual exchange of copies of the grants aforesaid. (5 f.)

On the 19th of January M^r MASON and M^r GORGES petitioned his Majesty as follows :

Petition of Robert Mason and Ferdinando Gorges, showing that in obedience to His Majesty's order in Council of the 10th inst^t they did on Friday last deliver to the Agents of the Massachusetts copies of such grants as were demanded by them notwithstanding the reciprocal was denied to the petitioners, pray that His Majesty do appoint a hearing on next Council day and that the said Agents be summoned to attend. (2 f.)

1676-7 Jan^{ry} 31.

In consideration of the foregoing petition and of the readiness of the Agents to appear, His Ma^{ty} was pleased to order a hearing, viz.

Order of the King in Council. The Agents of the Massachusetts having acquainted the clerk of the Council that they had received from M^r Gorges and M^r Mason copies of the grants demanded, and the said Gorges and Mason petitioning for a speedy hearing, the matter was appointed to be heard the 7th of February next at 3 oCl. P. M. (3 f.)

Which complaints of MASON and GORGES being heard accordingly and the defence of the Agents of Boston, the following order was issued :

1676-7 Feb. 7.

Upon a hearing of the Council on behalf of Gorges and Mason and the Agents of the Massachusetts, defendants, concerning the claims to the governm^t and soil of several territories in N. England, His Ma^{ty} was pleased to refer the whole matter to the Committee of Trade and Foreign plantations, who are 1^{stly} to enter into an examination of the bounds and limits pretended to by each party. 2^{ndly} to examine the patents and charters insisted on by either side to find out and settle how far the rights of soil or government belong to either of them. For their Lordships' better assistance therein the Lords chief justices of the Kings Bench and Common Pleas are directed to give their aid to the examination which is to be conducted with all speed and reported on accordingly. (4 f.)

In pursuance of the order aforesaid the Committee met on the 31st of March, when counsel being heard on both sides legal objections were taken to the validity of petitioners' grants.—Whereupon the Lords finding that they cannot proceed regularly without the assistance of the Chief Justices before mentioned, determine to summon them for that purpose and defer the hearing, as is declared in the letter following:

1677 Apr. 3. Whitehall.

Letter signed Phillip Lloyd, addressed to Lords Chief Justices Rainsford and North, requiring their Lordships attendance in the case of Mason and Gorges on Thursday next. In order to elucidate the business, transmit their Lordships an abstract of all the grants upon which the claims of the parties are grounded. (3 f.)

Their Lordships having met on the 5th of April, the parties being called in, the Agents for the Massachusetts insist upon their right of Government in the Territories claimed by petitioners as lying within the bounds of longitude and latitude described in their charter, and that their right of possession was confirmed by an act made at the general court at Boston in 1652. As to the soil they do not lay claim thereto by virtue of their patent, but leave it to their Lordships to consider the vast expense they have been at in protecting those countries, which the complain^{ts} have never been able to do.—On the other hand Mason and Gorges claim both soil and gov^t as their inheritance by virtue of patents granted to their ancestors by the council of Plymouth. The Lords finding the case to be such as to require first the consideration of the judges as to the matter of law before the matter of fact and law could be adjusted together, in order to report to His Maj^{ty} the result of their enquiries direct an order to be prepared as follows:

1677 Apr. 5.

Order signed, Phi. Lloyd, referring the case of Mason and Gorges to the Lords chief justices, their Lordships in pursuance of his Maj^{ty}'s order having met and the Lords chief justices and parties attending, and being heard by their counsel, the committee finding that the case was not ripe to make report on to His Maj^{ty}, there being several points in law to be considered—the said Lords ordered M^r Mason and M^r Gorges to prepare a statement of their case in writing and to attend the Lord-Chief Justices therewith, also to give copy of the same to the Massachusetts agents who if they have any objections thereunto are to reduce the same to writing, to be given to the said chief Justices, rendering at the same time copy to Mason and Gorges. The which matter having been duly considered and examined, the chief Justices are desired to declare to the committee when they are ready to give their opinion therein when the Lords will meet and consider of a report to be made to the King. (6 f.)

On the 17th of July the Lords Chief Justices present the Committee with a report touching the pretensions of Mr MASON and Mr GORGES against the Government of Boston, pursuant to a reference of the 5th of April 1677, viz.

Report of the Judges in the case of MASON and GORGES.

Having received papers of the cases, and the parties having appeared, the respondents did disclaim title to the lands claimed by petitioners, and it appears that the said lands are now in possession of persons not present, whereupon they did not think fit to examine any claim to the title of the said lands without hearing the terre-tenants or some one in their behalf, but if there be any court having jurisdiction upon the place would direct the parties thither for decision of the question of property. They then examined the claim to the Government, the petitioners having waived the pretence of grant of government from the Council at Plymouth, being convinced by their Council that no such power could be transferred by law.—The question was then reduced to the province of Mayne, whereto the Pet^r Gorges made his title by a grant (15 Car. I.) made to Sir Ferdinando Gorges and his heirs of the province of Mayne and the Gov^t thereof. In reply the respondents allege that long before, viz, 4 Car. I. the Government was granted to them, and produced letters patent of grant from the Council of Plymouth, extract of which is recited.

To this it was replied that the Patent of 4th Car. I. was invalid, (1.) Because there was a precedent grant 18 Jac. I. of the same things then in being, which Patent was surrendered afterwards and before the date of the other of 15 Car. I. (2.) The grant of the Government can extend no farther than the ownership of the soil, the boundaries of which recited in that Patent wholly exclude the province of Mayne which lies northward more than three miles beyond the river Merrimack.

Having considered the matter are of opinion that the Patent (4 Car. 1) is good notwithstanding the grant (18 Jac. 1), for it appears that the Council of Plymouth had granted away their interest in the land one year previously, and it must be presumed that they then deserted the Gov^t, whereupon it was lawful for the King to establish a suitable plan of Gov^t, which was done by Patent (4 Car. 1).

Touching the second point it seems clear that the grant of the Gov^t 4 Car. I. extends no farther than the boundaries expressed in the Patent, and those boundaries cannot be construed to extend farther northwards along the river Merrimack than three English miles. For the north and south bounds of the lands granted so far as the rivers extend are to follow the course of the rivers which make the breadth of the grant:

And the words describing the length to comprehend all the lands from the Atlantic Ocean to the South Sea, of and in all the breadth aforesaid, do not warrant the overreaching of those bounds by imaginary lines, &c. &c.

And if the province of Maine lies more notherly than three English miles from the river Merrimack, the Patent (4 Car. I.) gives no right to govern there and thereupon the patent of the same 15 Car. I. to the petitioner Gorges will be valid.

So that upon the whole they are of opinion that the Respondents the Massachusetts and their successors by their Patent (4 March 4 Car. I.) have such right of Gov^t as is granted by the same Patent within the boundaries of their lands expressed therein according to the exposition before mentioned. And that the Petr Sir Ferdinando Gorges his heirs and assigns by the Patent (3 Apr. 15 Car. I.) have such right of Gov^t as is granted them by the same Patent within the lands called the Province of Maine according to the Boundaries expressed in the same Patent.

Report of the Committe to the King upon the foregoing report of the Judges concurring in the opinion of the Judges aforesaid. (5 f.)

1677 July 20. Whitehall.

Order by the King in Council upon the Report of the Committee and of the Judges:

The foregoing reports having been read at the Board on the 18th inst it was ordered that Mr Gorges and Mr Mason together with the Massachusetts agents should be this day heard upon the said Report if they had any objections to make thereto, in pursuance of which all parties attending with their Counsel and nothing material having been alleged to prevail upon the Board to differ in judgment with the said Report, His Mat^y did approve and confirm the same, ordering all parties to acquiesce therein. (4 f.)

1677 Sep. 6.

Upon the 6th of Sept^r 1677 the Agents of Boston present a paper concerning those plantations which by the Judges report appear to be without their jurisdiction, signed W^m STROUGHTON and PETER BULKELEY, shewing that between the northern bounds of the Massachusetts Colony (as retrenched by the report above stated) and the southern bounds of the province of Maine allowed and adjudged to Mr Gorges, there doth lye a small tract of land which though begun to be peopled and planted upwards of forty years since, yet by reason of the scantiness of its accommodation contains in it no more than four plantations or towns, the inhabitants few and of mean estate.

That these have never been taken in by any other Government saving that of the Massachusetts, pray that His Ma^{ty} may be moved to confirm & settle the same under the Government of the Massachusetts. (5 f.)

Order in Council.

The petition of WILLIAM STAUGHTON and PETER BULKELEY having been read, setting forth that the matters in dispute between the Company of the Massachusetts Bay and Gorges and Mason were referred to the Lords chief Justices. That accordingly they have reported that Mr Mason had no right of Government granted unto him and have excluded out of the northern former bounds of the said Colony a small tract of land in which are 4 small towns under the denomination of Dover, Portsmouth, Exeter and Hampton, with the territories belonging, situate between the northern bounds of the said Colony and the southern bounds of the province of Maine. That the inhabitants of the said four towns have petitioned his Ma^{ty} to be continued under the govt of the said Company; Ordered that copies of the petition and papers and also petition of Mr Mason and Mr Gorges be delivered to the Committee for Trade and Plantations to examine the matter and the true state of the colony and report to his Ma^{ty} thereon. Four several petitions from the towns before ment^d. (12 f.)

Narrative of Mr RANDOLPH touching the evil practices and misdemeanors of the Magistrates of Massachusetts Bay: In this is the following incidental mention of Mason and Gorges, &c.

"That these Boston Magistrates have not only injured their neighbours on the North and East, viz Mr Mason and Mr Gorges, by a forceable extent of grounds drawn from the notion of their imaginary line, but have opprest even the southern colonies of New Plymouth and Connecticut, violently enlarging their bounds upon them as his Ma^{ty}s Comm^{rs} formerly in 1665, and lately the Lords Chief Justices, have reported, terrifying these people into a compliance and quiet suffering by their overawing power."

Reply of WILL. PHILLIPS speaker on behalf of the deputies (Richard Nason alone dissenting thereunto) to — — —

Their worships having desired their concurrence in compliance and subjection to the authority declared to be from Ferdinando Gorges, Esq. Their answer is, that taking into consideration their present position as their subscriptions and oaths have bound them to the Massachusetts authority, they conceive it most agreeable to reason and the safety of the country to "equesse" * under the said authority till a seasonable opportunity of trial occur to the gentlemen of the Massachusetts and their worships before his Maty, &c. &c. Find their time consumed in fruitless and insignificant papers. To the last they signified by messenger their readiness to show their commission, although they are not convinced of any necessity to afford a copy. Have acquitted themselves of the first part of their message, which, had it been satisfactorily answered, would have spared the delivery of the second portion, viz: that in the name and behalf of the general Court of the Massachusetts they do protest against the late actings as injurious to the authority of that Court and tending to the disturbance of the inhabitants of Yorkshire, and do hereby in his Matys name require them to return to their subjection and obedience to the Court of the Massachusetts according to the articles subscribed at Kitterie, York, Wells and Sparwinck, and that they forthwith dissolve the assembly convened by them, &c. &c. All which were erected and provided at a cost of many thousand pounds by the said Gorges and Mason. A copy of a letter from Mr Joⁿ Endicott (Gov^r in chief at Boston) to Mr^s Mason.

Acknowledges her letter touching her claim and has done what he can in the affair. The Court have not arrived at any issue, having deferred the hearing. There appears a want of legal evidence, she having sent over but a part of her husband's will, recommends her sending over the whole sufficiently attested and letting Mr Joseph Mason have a proper letter of attorney. There are other defects which have obstructed the proceedings, these Mr Joseph Mason, who has been a most faithful representative in her case, can set right. Assures her of his disposition to serve her in any way.

A Postscript urges her to take a little advice of some good attorney.

Privileges granted the town of Kittery in the province of Maine by the Comm^{rs} of the Massachusetts, subscribed Simon Brodstreet, Thomas Wiggin, Sam^l Symonds, Bryan Pendleton. The town of Kittrey having acknowledged itself subject to the government of the Massachusetts for the settling of governm^t among them and the said Comm^{rs} have thought fit to grant, viz.

That the whole tract of land beyond the river of Pascataway north-erly together with the isle of Shoals, shall be henceforth known by the name of Yorkshire.

The people there dwelling to enjoy equal privileges with those on the south side of the river of Pascataway, &c.

Kittrey to remain a Township and enjoy the privileges of a Town, &c.

To enjoy the same bounds as have formerly been granted according to survey.

Each town and its inhabitants to enjoy all their rights, titles and vested interests in their houses and lands, which they possess from former grants, &c.

The town of Kittrey to send one Deputy to the Court of Election and two Deputies to each court if they see fit.

The present inhabitants of Kittrey to be freemen of the Country with liberty to vote for the Election of the governor and other officers.

The County of York to have County Courts in convenient places within itself.

Every township to have three men appointed by the County Court to end small causes, &c.

The shire may have three associates to assist such Commissioners as the Massachusetts shall send and such Magistrates as may come among them.

The whole county of York shall not be drawn unto any ordinary general training out of their county without their consent.

The inhabitants of Kittrey to have the same privileges that Dover had upon coming under the government.

All such as subscribe voluntarily before the ending of this court shall have the privilege of indemnity, &c. &c.

Certain debts and imposts being due to the inhabitants of Kittrey and Acomentieus and some debts being due from them to particular persons for public occasions, it is agreed that Mr Nicholas Shapleigh shall collect the monies due and pay the said debts, rendering an accompt within one month to the Commissioners, &c.

[There are two copies of this document. The older one has an addition to this effect, viz.:]

That some of the above articles have been infringed.

1^{stly} That the whole tract of land &c. &c. is to be henceforth called by the name of Yorkshire. Letter signed EDWARD GODFREY in the name and by the order of the General Court addressed to—.

Alludes to a combination for government entered into, as by a remonstrance and petition to the persons addressed of December last 1651 does more at large appear.

Since which time have paid obedience to sundry Acts of Parliament, declaring the Islands and plantations of America to be subordinate to the Commonwealth of England.

Conceiving themselves members of the said Commonwealth consider themselves in duty bound to render an accompt of all their proceedings as well as proceedings of their neighbours the Massachusetts towards them, who have laid claim to their Government and propriety, notwithstanding quiet possession has been had for these twenty years past, which fact is not disowned by them, their bounds as set out by the State of England being three miles this side of Merrimack river, which comes far short of this province, several other patents lying between, &c. Desire therefore their honours to give audience to M^r Richard Leader, whom they have empowered to transact their affairs, &c. (6 f.)

Petition of FERDINANDO GORGES, Esq.

To the Kinges most excellent Matie, The humble petition of Ferdinando Gorges Esq. sonne and heire of Sir Ferdinando Gorges Kn^t deceased.

Most humbly sheweth—

That the said Ferdinando Gorges yo^r petitioner's Grandfather, being divers yeares since chiefly instrumentall in discovering and reducing of New England in America to the obedience and governm^t of the lawes of this kingdome, and having spent many yeares time and vast sumes of money therein whereby he exhausted the greatest part of his fortune, and the same being thereby brought to some perfection and hopes of advantage yo^r Mat^y's late Royall father of ever blessed memory in the XVth yeare of his raigne was graciously pleased to graunt unto the said Sr Ferdinando Gorges yo^r petitioners said grandfather, his heires and assignes for ever, a patent of a considerable part thereof called the Province of Mayne, the same conteyning every way 120 miles wth very many large privileges and immunities as in and by the said patent under the great seale ready to be produced it doth and may at large appeare. Long before and since w^{ch} said graunt yo^r petitioners grandfather at his very great charge hath sent over severall persons as his deputies to governe the said place.

That certaine English inhabitants in New England called the Mathe-thewsits takeing advantage of the late rebellion have dureing w^{ch} time yo^r peticoner dust not assert his right to the said premisses without any colour of right encroacht upon all or upon the greatest part of the said premisses discended into yo^r peticoner from his grandfather as aforesaid, and that severall other persons who in trueth at most were but Tenants under some yearely rent and other services unto some small and inconsiderable part of the said premisses under yo^r peticoners grandfather, doe now clayme the same as Lords and proprietors thereof whereby yo^r peticoners grandfather's vast expenses aforesaid are like to be utterly lost and his patent (w^{ch} was the greatest patrimony that y peticoners grandfather left him) wilbe rendered unprofitable to him without yo^r Mat^{es} most gracious help and assistance.

Yo^r peticoner therefore humbly prayes yo^r Matie to take this matter into yo^r most gracious consideracon, the same being of very greate concernem^t unto this yo^r Kingdome of England, or els that yo^r Matie would be pleased to referre the consideracon thereof to yo^r counsell for forraigne plantacons to examine the whole matter and yo^r peticoners title thereunto and to certifie yo^r Mat^{ie} the trueth of the premisses.

And yo^r petitioner as in duetie bound shall ever pray for your Mat^{ies} long and prosperous voyage.

At the Court at Whitehall the 4th of April 1661.

His Mat^{ie} is gracously pleased to referre this peticon to the Councell for forreigne plantations, who upon due consideracon and examinacon had of the Pet^{rs} title to the premisses and what is by him alleadged, are to certifie his Mat^{ie} how they finde the Pet^{rs} case to stand, together wth their opinions what is fitt to be done thereupon for his just reliefe. And then his Mat^{ie} will declare his farther pleasure.

Report to the King signed ROB^t MASON, JN^o EXTON, G. SWEET, WILL TURNER, S^r RICH^d FORD (D^{rs} of Lawes) to the following purport.

That having, according to his Mat^{ys} reference upon the petition of Robert Mason of the province of New Hampshire and Edw^d Godfrey, late gov^r of the province of Maine, heard the petition and summoned all interested therein (to which none appeared except Capt. John Leveret who acknowledged that he formerly was commissioned agent of the Boston people, but now had no authority to act in their behalf) they find that John Mason, Esq., grandfather of one of the petitioners, had several grants of land from K. James, expending much money in settling plantations, &c.

That Edward Godfrey hath lived there for many years and discharged the office of governor with the utmost integrity; that moreover he hath been turned out of his place as Gov^r and evicted from his lands and estates, which the Massachusetts still detain from him to his great damage.

That about thirty years ago a house as a boundary was erected by the governors of the Massachusetts dividing the Colony from N. Hampshire. With this division they were contented until 1652, when they enlarged their bounds above eighty miles beyond their settled limits, encroaching upon the inheritance of petitioners, who by menaces and force of arms were compelled to submit.—The Massachusetts have besides for many years past endeavoured to erect themselves into a free colony or commonwealth independent of England, and rather than submit to a gov^r from thence, have asserted that they will sell the Colony to the King of Spain.

It appears by examination of witnesses that Rob^t Mason has suffered in his estate and plantation to the extent of £15,000.

All this they report to His Ma^{ty}, not presuming to hazard an opinion in a business of such importance wherein public interest and His Ma^{ty}'s government are so intermingled with the private interests of petitioners.

With a mem^dm that the original was delivered to Sir Will^m Morrice, one of the Secretaries of State. (9 f.)

Letter of DANIEL GOOKIN to FERDINANDO GORGES, Esq.

From Mr Gookin to Mr Gorges abt selling y^e province of Maine to y^e Massach^{tts}.

Sr

Though I am a stranger unto yo^u in person yet tis not improbable that you have heard of my name, because my father who bore the same name was intimatly acquainted with your honoured p'decessor Sr Ferdenando Gorges, and was interested with him in his New England affaires, as some writeings concerning that matter under Sr Ferdenandos hand and seale in my possession do evince, and tis like the same may be wth your selfe.

The providence of God having sett the bounds of my habitation in New England where I have resided neare twenty yeares and a good part of that time imployd in publiqe affaires and so have had mo . . . opertunity to understand some things relating to your selfe in your claime to the province of Mayne, as also the claime made to the same by the jurisdiction of Massacusetts, and now things grow up to a greater difERENCE then formerly betwene them and you: being studious of peace and unity in waies of righteousness among the English in this wilderness I have p'sumed to set before you a few considerations touching this affaire wherein my desires is to intend yo^r honnor and benefitt as well as the publiqe good before hinted. Sr t'is not unknowne to you (I conceive) how the body of the people in that province several years since (being wearied with annarchy among themselves) made their earnest application unto the jurisdiction of the Bay for protection and government and accordingly were accepted upon articles, submitting and swearing fidelity to the same, which agreement was to continue inviolable untill the supream power in England did release them, after w^{ch} time the extent of the line of the Massacus . . . pattent to the N. E. (never before stated) did according to the judgment of good artists therin im-ployd take in the greatest part if not all yo^r province, under w^{ch} settlement those parts have remained in a quiet posture for sundry yeares, but of late they have been interrupted upon p^tence of commission for your selfe, the consequences whereof hath tended much to the disturbance of the peace and good government of that place and I beleve hath brought but litle profit to your selves, for the body of the people in consience to their oath and articles still adhere to the gov^tment of the Bay and frequently make their adreeses to it for protection and justice, and yo^{rs} doe not appear to have strength and intrest enough to compose and satisfy them. The jurisdiction of Massachusetts have not been forward to enter into a contest wth you in this matter, finding it difficult to rule wel a remote and divided people; but the frequent solicitations of the people in that province urging a performance of covenant hath put them upon endeavors to p^rserve peace and order among them and suprese the contrary. And for that end commissioners have been once and againe sent and compositions made wth yours, But p^rsently againe broken by some among them upon p^tence of yo^r authority so that now it is probable you will heare, and y^t wth great agravations, that Mr Jordan is secured, the only end wherof is to p^rserve publique peace, for some men there are in the world who are impatient of any power that will bridle their lusts and disorders. This being the state of that affayre I pray Sir, consider whether it be not advisable for you not too readly to entertaine prejudice from those mens information nor yet countenance them in their actings which I assure you are neither for your honour nor profit, but to consult whether it be not more for your interest to make some honourable composition with the jurisdiction of Massachusetts for yo^r claime which I beeeleve they wil comply withall rather than ingage in a contest with you; and will not this more conduce to yo^{ur} advantage then a continual exhasting (what you can rationally expect from them if not more) for the suport of Government there besides the hasard and discouragement of the more sober and industrious part of the people to desert the place, which they are ready to do as I heare if thinges remaine as they are; as for yo^r propriety in any lands possessed and improved you may still reteyne yem if you please, I beleve if you did make som * in a letter or imploy some person to deale in it you may hav ble . . . some of mony paid you for your claime. A true copy attested by Fra. Corbett. (4 f.)

Petition of part of the inhabitants of Portsmouth and Strawberry Bank, signed by thirty two names with the names of six individuals petitioned against. (5 f.)

1665 Oct. 19.

Petition of the inhabitants of the province of Maine to the King, shewing that petitioners have been long distracted by the several patents and claims made for title and jurisdiction; some of petitioners "were seated by M^r RIGBY's power, some by the Massachusetts, others by possession," &c., and they are much afraid lest they be further entangled by Mr Gorges in their lands if not deeply oppressed by two high chief rents, pray to be under his Mat^{ys} more immediate government.

[A foot note states this to be a true copy of the original transcribed and compared under the above date.] (5 f.)

The case of FERDINANDO GORGES, Esq., in reference to his right and title to y^e province of Mayne in New England, w^{ch} hee claimes as heire to Sr Ferdinando Gorges, his grandfather, according as y^e same hath appeared prov'd to y^e Right Hon^{ble} the Lords Com^{tee} for For-eigne Plantac^{ions}, viz :

That Sir Ferd. Gorges having in the 15th year of King Charles obtained a grant of the province of Maine, spent upwards of £20,000 in planting and settling the same, being in hopes to receive some advantages thereby, but engaging in his Mat^{ies} cause he was plundered and imprisoned and lost possession of his province until the restoration.

Mr Gorges having represented the matter to His Mat^{ie}, and the matter having been fully discussed (the agents of the Bay of Boston pretending no title to the province but only to the government), by royal letters of the 15th of June 1664 peaceable possession of the said province was ordered to be delivered to Mr Gorges.

Consequently Mr Gorges Comm^{rs} having obtained possession, proclaimed his Mat^y administred oaths of allegiance and began to keep courts &c., but after three years quiet possession, some factious persons of the said province procured Comm^{rs} to be sent from Boston who turned out all officers civil and military, imprisoning some and seizing the Records, acting contrary to his Mat^{ys} Mandamus of the 10th of April 1666.

The Bostoners thereupon being required to come over and render an account of their proceedings, have thought proper to disobey the royal command and exhibit contempt of his Mat^{ys} authority.

The Earl of Anglesey being to make report hereof to his Mat^y in Council.

It is prayed

That Gorges may be restored to the possession of his rights in the province and that the Records may be returned.

That some of the persons who have so acted and disobeyed may be sent for over.

And that satisfaction be given to those who have suffered imprisonment for acting according to his Mat^{ys} pleasure. (7 f.)

Considerations in order to the establishment of His Mat^{ys} interests in New England.

Mr Mason having agreed to surrender the province of Hampshire to his Mat^y, which has been accepted, and Mr Ferd. Gorges being in treaty for the surrender of Maine, in order thereto it may be necessary that Commissioners about the number of five be sent with instructions and powers to effect his Mat^{ys} intentions.

That they proceed to Portsmouth where there are many of great estates well affected persons towards his Mat^y, being lately oppressed by the potent corporation of the Massachusetts.

That they make acquaintance with the principal persons in the place, letting them know, that they have a commission from his Mat^y, who now has a propriety (as well as dominion) by the surrender of the grants to the Ancestors of Mason and Gorges.

Although by the said surrender his Mat^y is vested with an undoubted legal right to the whole soil &c., contained in the said grants, yet his intentions are to give a good and secure title of inheritance of lands and tenements to all now in possession by a confirmation upon very small acknowledgements, viz. the 20th penny of the present yearly value for a yearly rent and one 20th penny present yearly value by way of fine.

That when they see a fitting disposition in the people they do treat about the improvement of Trade there and the supplying the King and the nation with masts, timber, &c. &c., and submit to certain duties and regulations as in other colonies.

That as soon as good impressions are substantiated, it be made known that the King by proclamation will declare his intention of giving his protection and encouragement to the trade of his subjects in New England.

And that if any town or province therein will not submit to the necessary duties &c. it shall be debarred from trading with England or any other His Mat^{ys} colony or plantation.

That as the Comm^{rs} may deem it necessary to leave one or more of their number in such places as they shall see requisite, they be empowered to join other persons in commission with them, &c.

That until these two provinces shall be in a good measure settled, or that some inclination towards compliance shall appear in Boston, or other lesser corporations, no applications or demands be made to them lest they intermeddle in the proceedings of the comm^{rs} in the other provinces of Hampshire and Maine. That it be most prudent to trade with them as under and upon different grounds.

That it may be sufficient in this first attempt to aim at and to obtain a submission to His Ma^{ty}s new right upon these two provinces and to the settlement of Trade and Customs there, &c. &c. (21 f.)

Considerations relating to the Expedition of the Commissioners to New England.

2500£ to be granted for the five Comm^s, viz. 500£ to each by way of advance. Also a sum of 300£ for clerks and necessary attendants on this service, making £2800, to which a further sum of 200£ may be added for other charges, the total not to exceed 3000£.

A fourth rate frigate and a small ketch to be appropriated for transporting the Comm^{rs}.

The composition to be finished with Mr Ferdinando Gorges. (4 f.)

Petition of WILLIAM, Duke of Hamilton, and ANN, Duchess of Hamilton, to the king.

Shewing that by reason of the late unhappy war persons have possessed themselves of the best and most considerable parts of the petition^{rs} lands (in the province of Maine), acquired through purchase by petitioners father Pray to be restored to their just rights.

1664 May 6.

A memorandum under this date states, that His Ma^{ty} was pleased to refer this petition to the Comm^{rs} employed to settle the affairs of New England to report their opinion thereon. (5 f.)

Report upon a petition which has been referred, signed G. Palmer, recapitulating particulars which have been already recited, touching Gorges right to the province of Maine, with certificate of its being compared with a true copy by Michael Brighthouse. (6 f.)

CHARLES the 2nd to the inhabitants of the province of Maine concerning Mr Gorges title.

Reciting that Sir Ferd. Gorges did expend a vast sum of money upon the plantation in hopes to receive some advantage therefrom by way of recompense. But the wars breaking out in England he (the said Sir Ferdinando) although between three and four score years of age, did personally engage in the king's service and particularly in the siege of Bristol by reason whereof when it was necessary for him to appear before the council and committee for Foreign Plantations, he was wholly discountenanced by them and the people in the said province encouraged to disown his government A party of the inhabitants petitioning the Massachusetts to take upon them the gov^t of that province also (which they did), Sir Ferdinando and the petitioner being ever since deprived of the issues and profits of the said province, &c. &c. Taking the same into consideration and finding petitioners' allegations and the report of counsel to be consonant, has thought fit to require them forthwith to make restitution of the said province to him, the said Ferdinando Gorges or his Commissioners, and deliver peaceable possession without delay to him or them, or otherwise without delay shew cause to the contrary. (17 f.)

Declaration concerning the province of Maine at a Council called by the Governor, Cap^t Googing, M^r Russell and M^r Lousher held at Boston 30 Nov^r 1664.

In answer to a letter directed to the Gov^r and Council from M^r Henry Joslin, John Archdale, Edward Rushworth, &c. on the behalf of Ferdinando Gorges Esq. for the surrender of the province of Maine, &c.

The council assembled do declare that the lands contained in the county of Yorke, by them called the province of Maine, were and are claimed as part of the patent granted to the Massachusetts, which patent precedes the patent granted to S^r Ferdinando Gorges, and therefore the Council may not give up the interest of the colony without the consent of the Gen^l Court who doubtless will be ready to attend his Maties order in taking their first opportunity to give his Matie their reasons for their so claiming.

The council do further believe that they have good reason to believe, that his Maty has been misinformed respecting this matter, &c. &c.

They do further declare that no commissioners ought to exercise any gov^t in Yorkshire or the province of Mayne by virtue of any Commission from M^r Gorges, but ought to continue their subjection to the Massachusetts, &c. &c.

His Maty having declared his pleasure that the Massachusetts colony shall have liberty to vindicate their right before any absolute injunction of their surrender, if any evil or inconvenience fall out by the interposition of the Comm^{rs} aforesaid, they must be accountable as the authors thereof. (5 f.)

An Answer by letter from the General Court of the Massachusetts Colony in New England upon their receipt of the copy of a peticon of Ferdinando Gorges and severall others of the province of Maine and Laconia to the peticon complaining of them for seizing of their lands and subverting their ancient government, they refusing to take the engagement to the commonwealth without King and House of Lords, whereas they, the Peticoners, had in obedience to Acts of Parliament one thousand six hundred forty eight, as they call them, taken it and advised the honorable state of it, &c.

Att our first coming hither into this wilderness and for some yeares after multitude of occasions in the beginning of soe great an undertaking did hinder our exact takeing notice of or laying claime to y^e utmost extents of our lymmits especially to the Northward, nor had wee for some tyme after our coming hither occasion to make use thereof. Yet did we never sett up our bounds three miles East of Merrimack as the petition mentioneth. But as occasion was given have always asserted the same lymmits that now wee clayme, though wee knew not certainly till tryall made where it would fall.

In the meane tyme severall persons procured pattents of certaine Tracts of land within the lymits formerly granted us. Whence it came to passe that there were severall little governments sometymes by pattents, sometymes by combination, sometymes the people left in distraction and confusion without any, and in great danger and hazard of shedding one anothers' blood.

Whereupon first divers of the inhabitants of Pascattaqua petitioned this court that as they were conceived to be within the lyne so they might be actually taken in and governed by us, which accordingly was done by commiss^{rs} sent from this Court with the ge'rall consent and good liking of all the inhabitants and persons interested therein, and soe wee have continued in peace and enjoying the fruit and benefitt of good government to this day.

After wee tooke a more exact survey of our lymmits and finding those easterly parts menconed in y^e peticon to fall within our patent, which is more antient and more authentique then any other pretended to by the petitioners, we made declaration thereof to the inhabitants resideing within the aforesaid precinets, being likewise petitioned soe to doe by divers of the inhabitants beyond Pascattaqua (a River now called Yorkeshire), and after some agitation and conference with the rest of the people there wee came to a friendly and amicable conclusion, that as they were within our pattent soe they would for ever be subject to our government, wherein they were well satisfyed and find the benefitt thereof as their petition to his highnesse doth declare.

Nor was it matter of proffit that moved us hereunto, for wee have neither received nor expected any thereby, but the obligation of duty that lyeth upon us to see the people within our pattent governed according to God, and hath been our dilligent care and endeavour and soe shall alwayes bee, that all just possessions and empowerments shall be preserved and confirmed to the true proprietors here, as it is amongst the rest of the inhabitants that have been under o^r government from the beginning.

There are severall other scattered inhabitants, that live more easterly, observing the benefitt their neighbours have reaped by good government have offered themselves to us, which yett wee are slowe to accept off, because without our lymitts which wee desire not to enlarge.

It is noe strange thing that Mr Winthrop, Mr Dudley, &c. should long since before our lymmits were exactly knowne seeme to owne those for distinct govern^{ts} which in truth were none but included in this of ours, as upon the running of our line did manifestly appeare.

Upon complaints relating to the bounds and lymits of the Patent of the Massachusetts I humble desire on their behalf that they may have notice thereof and liberty to answer for themselves before any determinacon be made in the case which being done I doubt not butt they will acquiesse in such conclusion as by the Kings most excellent Matie, or any substituted thereto by him shall make in the case.

1665 May 30. Boston.

Letter signed RICHARD BELLINGHAM in the name and by the order of the Gen^l Court, addressed to the Right Hon^{ble} Sir W^m MORRIS, one of the Secretaries of State.

The Gov^r and Council of Massachusetts Colony being commanded by his Matys letter of June 11th 1664, to make restitution of the province of Maine to Ferd. Gorges, Esq., or his Commiss^{rs}, or shew reason to the contrary, in order thereto (as in duty bound), they do declare that at the first beginning knowing their grant to extend three miles Northward of the most northerly part of Merrimack River, they found no immediate need for settling the bounds of their patent, yet the people having increased, the Court did in 1652 commission two credible persons with two artists to discover the northernmost part or branch of Merimack River, &c. &c.

Likewise afterward other skilful artists were commissioned to take the same height of Northerly latitude at the sea coast, as the former Commiss^{rs} had taken it within the land, &c.

A map of the whole tract, granted them by the King, has been sent to His Matys Comm^{rs}, whereby it will appear that the land claimed falls within the limit of their patent. Requests that he will signify to his Maty that their charter bears date ten or eleven years previous to that of S^r Ferdinando Gorges, which fact they consider sufficient to confirm their right.

(9 f.)

1665 May 17.

Attestation of SYMON WILLARD and ED. JOHNSON touching the attempt to discover the course of the Merimack river, taking with them two Indians. Having gone up about 60 miles short of the lake, they found there came two rivers into one, one from the Westward of the North, and the other from the Northward of the East. On enquiry of the Indians, which was Merimack river, the answer was, that which came from the Easterly point, which river was followed into the lake this 17th of May 1665.

An endorsement runs thus

"Amongst the papers of Mr Gorges and Mr Hartlib."

Report of his Mat^{ys} Commissioners concerning the Massachusetts. After relating the doings of the Massachusetts it goes on to state that "On the last they have usurped Cap^t Mason's and Sir Ferdinando Gorges patents and said that y^e Comm^{rs} had nothing to do betwixt them and Mr Gorge because his Mat^{ie} commanded them to deliver possession to Mr Gorge or to give his Ma^{ty} reasons why they did not."

And further on as follows—

"This Colony which hath engrossed the whole trade of New England and is therefore the richest, hath many towns, but not one regularly built within its just limits, w^{ch} y^e Comm^{rs} said to be Seconnet Brook on y^e southwest and Merimack River on the northeast, and two right lines drawne from each of those two places till they come within twenty miles of Hudsons river, for that river is already planted and given to his Royall Highness."

Again

"In this Colony the king hath very many loyall subjects, who petitioned their generall Court at his Majestys first coming in for the owning of his Matie, and now lately for complying with his Matys Commrs, but have had neither answer nor good look since. They are sorry that so few (for there are scarce above eight of the most factious) should carry on so strong a faction, yet they are so overawed, that they can do nothing to remedy it." &c. &c. (27 f.)

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

New Hampshire is the name of a province graunted to Capt ROBERT MASON about the year 1635, and was to begin on the sea coast three miles easterly of Merimack River and reaches to Piscatoquay and sixty eight miles of that breadth up into the Country, but now it is usurped by the Mattachusetts, who pretend that it is within their bounds and that the people petitioned to be within their protection; it is true that difference of opinion made a division amongst them, and a few who were for Congregationall churches did petition for their assistance by which occasion partly by force partly by composition they have engrossed the whole and named it Norfolk.

When the Mattachusetts Charter was first granted, the mouths only of the two Rivers Charles and Merimack were knowne to them, for they durst not travaile farre up into the country; presently after there was an house erected three large miles north from Merimack, which was for seventeen years called and knowne to be the bounds of the Matachusetts and in that time was the patent graunted to Capt Mason.

Mr Whelewright was banished out of the jurisdiction of the Mattachusetts and was permitted to inhabit immediately beyond that bound-house, as himself gave testimony before the Commissioners.

Mr Mason had a pattent for some land about Cape Anne, before the Mattachusetts had their first pattent, whereupon Capt Mason and Mr Craddock who was the first Governor of the Matachusetts and lived in London, agreed that the Matachusetts should have that land which was graunted to Capt Mason about Cape Anne, and Capt Mason should have that land which was beyond Merimack river and graunted to the Matachusetts.

This agreement was sent to Mr Henry Jocelin to get recorded at Boston, but before he could have leisure to goe thither he heard that Capt Mason was dead and therefore went not. Of this he made affidavit before the Commissioners, who forbore to doe any thing about the limitts of this province, till this might more fully be proved, though the generality of the people petitioned to be taken from under the Matachusetts tyranny as themselves styled it.

The Matachusetts, since they had the government of this province, have graunted and divided the land into severall townships which are very large and thinn, three of which are seated upon Pascataway river, which is a very good harbour and very capable of Fortification; here are excellent Masts gotten and dry docks might be made and upon this river are above twenty saw mills and here great store of pipe staves are made and great store of good timber spoyled.

MAINE.

The province of Mayn begins at the Easterne side of Piscataway and reacheth to Kenebec River, it was so named and graunted to Sr FERDINANDO GORGES by King Charles the first, but was usurped also by the Mattachusetts under pretence, that it was within the limitts of their Charter, and that the people petitioned to be under their government and they named it Yorkshire. One gentleman who refused to submitt to the Mattachusetts and suffered great losses by them, shewed the Commissioners a warr^t which the Mattachusetts made to have him brought to Boston alive or dead, and now demaunds justice against them. This province upon petition of the inhabitants and the differences betwixt Mr Gorges Commissioners and the Mattachusetts, his Matie commissioners tooke into his Maties protection and Government and appointed justices of the peace to governe them untill his Maties pleasure be further knowne.

The inhabitants afterwards petitioned his Majesty that they might alwaies continue under his Majestys immediate Government, and that Sr Robert Carre might continue there their Governour under His Majesty, which was lost at sea.

In this province also an Indian Sachim, who lives neare to the great lake, from whence flowes Merimack River, petitioned His Maty to take him under his protection which is also lost.

In this province there are but few Townes, and those much scattered as generally they are all throughout New England. They are rather farmes than townes, but in this province there is a Bay called Casko Bay, in which are very many islands, two outlets to the sea, many good harbours and great store of fish and oysters, crabs and lobsters. In this province as in all the rest there are great store of wild ducks, geese and deere in their seasons, strawberries, Resburies, Goosberries, Barberries, and severall sorts of Bilberries, severall sorts of Oakes and Pines, Chestnut trees and Walnut trees, sometimes for four or five miles together, the more northerly the country is the better the timber is accounted.

KENEBECK.

On the north-east side of Kenebeck River which is the bounds of the province of Mayne, upon Shipscoot River and upon Pemaquid, eight or ten miles asunder, are three small plantations belonging to his Royall highnesse, the biggest of which hath not above thirty houses in it and those very meane ones too, and spread over eighty miles of ground at least. The people for the most part are fishermen and never had any government amongst them, and most of them are such as have fled thither from other places to avoyd justice. Some here are of opinion that as many men may share in a woman as they doe in a boate and some have done so. The Commiss^{rs} for necessity sake have appointed the best whome they could find in each place to be a justice of the peace, and have ordered three of those justices of the peace in the province of Mayne, who live next to them, to joyne with them in holding of sessions till further order be taken.

In these parts are the best white oakes for shipp timber, all the lands graunted to His Royall High^s in these Northerne parts of New England except these three plantations are also graunted to S^r Thomas Temple in the Pattent of Nova Scotia.

My Lord,

In obedience to your Lord^{ps} commands here are the transactions of the Commiss^{rs} in New England breifly sett doune, each colony by it selfe. The papers by which all this and much more might have been demonstrated were lost in obeying his Mat^{ies} Command by keeping company with Capt. Peirce, who was laden with Masts, for otherwise in probability we might have been in England ten dayes before we mett the Dutch Caper, who after two houres fight took, stript and landed us in Spaine.

Your Lord^{ps} most humble servant

G. C.

My Lord,

Hearing also some Frenchmen discourse in New England of a passage from the West Sea to the South Sea and of a great trade of Beaver in that passage, and afterwards meeting there with sufficient prooffe of the truth of what they had said concerning the Beaver trade, conceiving great probability for the truth of the passage and knowing what great endeavours have been made for the finding out of a North-west passage I thought them the best present I could possibly make to his sacred Mat^{ie}, whereupon I perswaded them to come to England. I humbly begg your Lord^{ps} favour to procure from His Ma^{ty} some consideration for the losse suffering and service of your

most humble serv^t

Letter, signed SAMUEL MAVERICKE, addressed to Col. Nichols. Mentions that on the 10th of June the Court adjourned until October. Its last transaction was the making an order that the Courts by them usually kept at Pascataway and in the province of Maine, should be continued and that no notice should be taken of any other authority but theirs, &c. &c.

On the 11th of June, says the writer, we began our journey eastwards stopping at Salem, Ipswich, Newbury, Salisbury and Hampton, the inhabitants of which places entertained them well fully expecting they would have declared them freed from the Massachusetts Governm^t and would have established His Maj^{ty}s authority.—Thence they went to Pascataway, where they spent much time in inquiring into Mr Mason's right to the County of Hampshire, find that most of the people acknowledge Mr Mason's right to the province—persons living that were servants to Cap^t Mason, who showed many things that he had done—Captain Joceline, who had been his agent for many years, gave a particular account of the Massachusetts encroachment. Have summoned the inhabitants of Dover, Exeter and other towns to this place to hear his Maj^{ty}s letters read. Have received generally great respect and good entertainment—purpose when they have done in this place going over the river into the province of Maine.

Recommend the bearer of this letter J^{no} Porter, a stout resolute fellow, to his notice. Intend by a letter to expostulate with the Massachusetts upon their proceedings in a province out of their boundaries. Sr Rob^t Car and himself have signed a paper (of which the enclosed is a copy), but Col. Cartwright will not. Will write again by all opportunities, but the Massachusetts have spies every where and endeavour to get all letters into their hands. (11 f.)

When they took their departure refusing to treat farther with the general Court, it was expected they would cease any further actings in the colony as they expressed that their business was completed, and that an account of the negotiation would be rendered to his Ma^{ty}, but on the contrary have interrupted the ordinary proceedings in the Court of Justice in Yorkshire. Have seen their warrant dated 10th inst, directed to the Constable of Portsmouth for calling the people together—direct their attention to His Ma^{ty}s letter, in which a more orderly method is instructed. Copy of a letter, signed R. C. G. C. S. M. After the Court at Boston was ended, they visited the Eastern parts and first passed a tract of land laid claim to by Mr Mason, who petitioned his Majesty about it, who refered it to Sir Robert Mason and others, who made their report to the King, all which Mr Mason sent to Col. Nicolls, whom he had made his attorney. This province reaches three miles north of Merimack River to Pascataquay River and sixty miles into the country. They find many small patents in it, and the whole province to be now under the usurpation of the Massachusetts, who set up a bound house, three large miles north of Merrimaek and owned it for above twelve years, yet since claimed all this and sixty miles more to the north to be within their patent. Col. Nichols not being here, they left then, as they found them under the Massachusetts government altho^t the people seemed very earnest to be taken under that of his Majesty. From Picataqua eastward to Sagadahock and 120 miles into the country is another province, called Yorkshire by the Massachusetts and formerly the province of Maine in the Kings charter, granted to Sir Ferdinando Georges. The inhabitants of this province weary of the contests of the Massachusetts and the Commissioners of Mr Gorges, petitioned to be taken under the immediate Gov^t of His Ma^{ty}, which they (the Commiss^{rs}) did, appointing some to act as justices of the peace &c. This gave such satisfaction to the people, that they petitioned His Ma^{ty} that they may be governed for ever by his commands, which petition they have herewith sent &c. In this province are five towns, Kittery, York Wells, Scarborough and Falmouth, built all by the sea side Their towns are at the least five or six miles long, altho^t they have no more than 30 houses in them and those very mean ones. Without better government the province will never be well peopled or cultivated. The places beyond Sagadock were given to his Royall Highness by His Mja^{ty}; they have appointed some to govern there for the present, as there was great need. Upon the rivers east of Kennebec, Shipscot and Pemaquid, are three plantations, the greatest not having more than twenty houses and inhabited by the worst of characters, who are without government having, fled thither to avoid payment of debts and punishment, chiefly fishermen, who appear to have their wives in common. — July 9th they were up Piscataqua River, when they received His Maj^{ty}s letter of Janr 28 (there is a commodious and safe harbour with seven or eight ships in it) sent warrants to four towns upon that river, with intent to have the harbour fortified by them, but a prohibition by the Massachusetts and a letter by their Marshall (to the Commiss^{rs}) put a stop to these endeavours. This place deserves fortification as much as any in New England. Have been informed, that they have appointed a gen^l Court to be on Aug. 1., to consider, how to manage their opposition, for they intend to maintain the bounds of their patent, to suffer none to make warrants or orders within the same but themselves &c., notwithstanding the King write never so often to the contrary. [It concludes as follows] "Some few exceptions they may make as acts of their favour to gaine some to their party and to serve to delude the King with a shew of compliance: for if writing will serve the turne (as they suppose it will) they can keep the business in agitation, untill the King and all his Secretairies there, and all his good subjects here be weary of it; if nothing of greater consequence make them to let it fall which hope may happen, and that if his Mat^{ie} do not take some speedy course, they, who have declared their judgment^{es} against them, will be undone as also all those, who have petitioned for any redress. And that it is the case of the loyall party here, as not long ago it was in England, though they be two for one, yet they be so overawed, that they cannot help themselves. That both the readiest and surest way is for his Mat^y, to take away their Charter, which they have severall wayes forfeited, which King Charles 1st was to doe a litle before the Scotch warr in 1636 or 1637. And if his Maj^{ty} will assure the people, they shall not be tyed to religious ceremony^s, the generality of them will be contented. But this without a visible force will not be effected. This advice we have had from them, and this indeed is our owne opinions. Wee have heard severall say, though they do wish that the government was otherwise, yet they had rather suffer as they doe, then take up armes against them. And indeed without this course it will be impossible for the King ever to attaine those two ends mentioned in our private instructions. If his Maj^{ty} should now let these people rest having so much declared themselves against his authority over them, those that are well affected will never dare hereafter to declare themselves besides all the other ill consequences which must necessarily follow. Those who have declared themselves loyall are very much threatned, and in greate feare and have earnestly prest us to sollicit his Maj^{ty} for their speedy defence and safety and that they may not be afflicted or ruined for shewing their loyalty, wee therefore earnestly desire you to acquaint his Maj^{ty} with their desires in this as also of haveing there children baptized and themselves admitted to the Lords supper. If any thing be here wanting, we hope it may be supplied by Col. Cartwrights relation and subscribe ourselves, &c. &c.

1666 Apr. 9. New York.

A Letter, signed Rob^t Carr, addressed to the Lord Arlington, and endorsed "Proceedings in y^e province of Maine." Since Col. Cartwright's departure, Mr Maverick and the writer have sent copies of papers of their transactions and being come to New York, they find that Col. Nicolls has transmitted those which passed between them and the gen^l Court of Boston, &c. &c. This time twelvemonths since they sat at Warwick acting upon their commission and made an order for the removal of one Pumham, an Indian, who with his company had seated themselves upon a tract of land, called Warwick neck and (as it was reported) were encouraged to keep it from the lawful owners by the gov^t of the Massachusetts bay. Finding in December last, that Pumham had failed in obeying the said order, he entered into negotiations with him, to quit the place for a certain sum. About the latter part of February, the Indian not being gone, he went over again to Warwick, where it was reported that there was a letter for him from the Governor of the Massachusetts which proved to be from Mr Elliot, a Minister of Roxbury. Transmits copy of this letter with his answer thereto, also an account of the transaction, concerning Pumham, also one from Mr Williams, who was afterwards very instrumental in forwarding Pumham's removal. They are in a very sad condition, being in a very poor country without credit at Boston, where every thing is to be had. Receives by the last letter sent to him by the Justices of the province of Maine (Copie of which is enclosed as also of another from the same persons to Col. Nicolls); that their fears so still continue which by the advice and approbation of Col. Nicolls, he trusts to lessen and eventually remove, &c. &c. (14 f)

His Ma^{ty} having received full information from his Commiss^{rs} who were sent into N. England of their reception and treatment in the several colonies, in all of which they received great satisfaction except in that of the Massachusetts, and having been fully informed of all the passages and proceedings which have been between the said Commiss^{rs} and the Council of the Massachusetts, and the belief of those who govern that colony that the Commission is an apparent violation of their charter, and also that his Ma^{ty} hath no jurisdiction over them, &c. &c. His

Ma^{ty} has thought fit to recall the said Comm^{rs} to the end he may receive a more particular account of the state and condition of the plantations and of the particular differences and debates which they have had with the Massachusetts, that he may pass his final determination thereon, The King's express command is that the government of the Massachusetts do forthwith make choice of five or four persons (of which Mr Rich^d Bellingham and Major Hawthorne shall be two), the others such as the Council shall make choice of, and he will in person hear what may be alledged on behalf of the colony, when he will make it appear, how far his intentions are from infringing the Royal Charter granted thereunto, &c. And he futher commands that "there may be no alterations with reference to the government of the province of Maine till his Ma^{ty} has heard what is alledged on all sides, but that the same continue as his Ma^{ty}s Comm^{rs} have left the same until His Ma^{ty} shall further determine." He further commands to be set at liberty all persons who may have been imprisoned for petitioning or applying themselves to His Ma^{ty}s Comm^{rs}. And for the better prevention of all differences with regard to bounds &c., his pleasure is that all determinations made by his said Comm^{rs} with regard to bounds and limits may still continue and be observed until his Ma^{ty}s final determination, &c. &c. Inform him that the "tumultuous distractions" formerly feared are daily increasing in the province which they are unable to restrain. Whereas the Court has received petitions from several towns and persons of Yorkshire, lamenting their distracted condition for want of the exercise of government from hence and expressing sorrow at their revolt, but excusing themselves as being drawn away by the deceitful management of Mr Edw^d Rishworth; they in reply observe that it was they themselves and not this court, that did bring about the distractions complained of, yet notwithstanding considering the right they have by charter &c., together with many other weighty considerations thereunto them moving, the court thinks fit to take care for the settling of order under their government in these parts and to that end to give commission to certain gentlemen to repair thither to keep a Court, &c. Copy of papers endorsed "Orders concerning the government of Maine."

At a general Court held at Boston, May 21, 1668. Whereas the colony of the Massachusetts in observance of the trust committed to them by Royal Charter with the free and full consent of the inhabitants of the County of York did exercise government over the people of that county, and whereas, above three years past, some interruption has been made to the peace of that place by some who have unwarrantably drawn the inhabitants of that County to subjection unto officers that have no Royal warranty, this Court doth judge meet to declare their resolutions again to exert their power of jurisdiction over the inhabitants of the said County of York. And do hereby in his Ma^{ty}s name require all the inhabitants there settled to yield obedience to the laws of this colony as have been orderly published, and to all such officers as by authority of the Royal Charter and order of the Comm^{rs}, whom this Court has nominated and empowered, &c., to keep a court on the first Tuesday in July at York, and for that end have commanded the Secretary to issue warrants to the inhabitants to meet and choose grand and petit Jurors, Constables and other officers, &c. This order is accompanied by a notice to Nath. Masterson, Marshal of the County &c.

1664 June 11.

K. Charles II^d to the Inhabitants of the province of Meyne, concerning Mr Gorges' title.

Whereas Ferd. Gorges Esq. has by petition shown that his grandfather, Sir Ferd. Gorges, deceased, did (15 Car. 1) obtain grant of a certain part of N. England entituled the province of Maine and that he did expend over 20,000£ in the planting thereof, &c. with the hope of receiving some advantage therefrom and that during the late unhappy wars (although between three and fourscore years of age) he did personally engage in the kings service particularly at the siege of Bristol, by reason whereof when he appeared before the Council for foreign plantations, he was wholly discountenanced by them, and the people encouraged to disown his government, while a party of the inhabitants petitioned the Massachusetts to take upon them the government of the province, which was done depriving the said Sr Ferd. Gorges of the issues and profits, &c.

That the agents for the Massachusetts declared, that they, whom they represented, did not claim any title to the said province, but only governed the said until orders from home respecting its gov^t. All which has been referred to counsel who find that Sir Ferd. Gorges obtained a grant &c., that possession was afterwards assumed by the Massachusetts &c. That petitioner's Commissioners since the restoration have endeavoured to get possession, proclaiming the King and beginning to hold Courts &c. as formerly, but were disturbed and hindered therein by the Massachusetts. The Royal pleasure is, that possession be restored forthwith to petition^r or his Commissioners, or otherwise that without delay reason shall be shown to the contrary. (15. f.)

A paper with the following address:

These for

His Excellence EDMOND ANDROS, KNIGHT, Governor generall of all His Royal Highness, his territories in America, and headed "Bounds of Nova Scotia."

Lord Sterling's Nova Scotia by K. Chas. I. ordered to be delivered unto the French 1633. Nova Scotia was bounded as follows. Cape Britton was the eastern bounds and from thence westward to Santo Croix right against the eastern end of the Grand Munhane and a league eastward from Pascattamaquade.

Cap^t Walter Neale made Gov^r by the council of Plymouth A^o 1631 of all N. England, that was not formerly granted to others, the western bounds began at the eastern end of Boston patent and went eastward as far as Santo Croix. During all his time the French never claimed any land to the westward of Nova Scotia. But two years after the said Neale had left the country, Monsieur Donee was sent by Monsr. Commander Rasolio, living at the Lahave eastward from Cape Sable some 40 leagues, with a ship to discover the coast of Nova Scotia and N. England, and in Penobscott Bay in a great fog Tho. Willett coming from Pemaquid to his house at Penobscot, in a small shallop, came foul of the s^d Donees ship. Donee took him and made him pilot to his house at Penobscott and forced him to give him a bill of sale of his house and land and every thing appertaining thereto, but sent Willett away in the said shallop. Coming to his owners at Plymouth, they procured a ship of 32 guns an Ipswich man to go and retake the said Penobscot with some land forces of their own, Capt. Standish being commander of them.

Meantime the said Donee had fortified himself planting upon a mount four or five great guns, the Plymouth forces coming to the place demanded a surrender, Donee seemed to be willing upon honorable terms but they refused; then Donee told them, they must win it before they should enjoy it, after this Donee played his part so well, that the great ship and Plymouth soldiers were forced to quit the place.

(This doct is written in a very loose disjointed style.)

1685 Sept. 8.

Articles of peace agreed upon this day between his Ma^{ty}s subjects inhabiting the provinces of New Hampshire and Maine and the Indians inhabiting the said provinces.

Signed Robert Mason, Walter Barefoot, Francis Hooke, John Davis, Robert Elliot, Henry Green and eleven Indians with facsimile of their marks. (A copy.) (6 f.)

1681 May 4th.

In a copy of some proceedings of assembly under this date there occurs a copy of an entry of a letter to Rob^t Mason, Esq., from the Council, dated Portsmouth, to this effect, viz :

That the Council having seen and read sundry of his declarations which he had set up in public places within the province, and also particular letters sent to them, charging them as great offenders &c., and bringing several false allegations against them, for the disproving of which they desire him to give them a meeting on Friday next about noon, at the house of Mr Partridge, to make out the said charges, or otherwise they will declare him to be a slanderer, &c. As to the other matter, that he will carry all matters and lay them before His Maj^{ty}, it is an error to suppose the council have no power which they hold by virtue of their commission, &c.

[Mr Mason instead of coming to the Council in person according to the request contained in the above sent a reply by letter as follows, dated Kittery, May 5, 1681.]

That he stands to the justification of whatever he may have written in his public declarations or letters to the Council, having good testimony for proof thereof and which he has always declared he would lay before His Ma^{ty}, and which they thinking themselves concerned have by declaration of 23^d April declared, that they will disprove altho' they know not from him either the persons accused or the crimes. Admires their hasty conclusion that they are the parties intended to be charged by his letter of 6th April, wonders moreover that they want to be judges in their own cause, a custom unprecedented among Englishmen, &c. Acknowledges his loyalty and the right of the Crown, &c. Yet considers it a duty to protest against unlawful proceedings under colour of a Royal Commission. It is they, who have made themselves parties concerned, he (Mr. Mason) is their lawful proprietor, und so declared by his Ma^{ty} and His Council, and there is no judge between them and him but the King to whom alone he will give in his charge, &c. (12 f.)

1683-84 March 3. Sagadahock.

Letter, signed John Allen and Lawrence Dennes, addressed to Capt. Anthony Bracket, giving an acc^t of their proceedings. Have sent two Indians to Naconick, to bring in all the Saganores there or elsewhere, that may be found. Have sent other messengers to summon certain Indians named or obtain their answers, concerning their treacherous dealing against the English—request him to do the like, and to send them an account of his proceedings. (4 f.)

1683-84 Febr. 11.

Letter, signed Francis Hook, directed to Cap^t Walter Barefoot at Great Island. Received on Sat^y night last, a letter from the Captⁿ of the Fort of Casco, requesting ammunition and provisions, suspicion of a sudden rising of the Indians instigated by one Casteen, a Frenchman. Their first intention is to attack the Fort of Pemaquid, &c. (3 f.)

1683-4 Mar. 11. Prov^e of Maine.

Letter from Francis Hook to Edw^d Cranfield, Gov^r of New Hampshire, Mentions the receipt this day of two letters, one from Casco, the other from Cape Porcus, signifying suspicion of plots from the Indians. In Casco all business is laid aside, in order to erect garrisons for their safety. Some Indians have been of late at the house of James Andrews in Casco and have carried away some webbs and have openly declared their intention of killing some Englishmen, &c. Such a state of things requires every preparation, &c. (3 f.)

1683-4 Febr. 21.

Letter signed Lawrence Dennes, addressed to his loving friend, Captⁿ Anthony Bracket, Commander in chief at Fort Loyal in Casco Bay, and dated from New Towne, on Roussick Island, in the province of Maine. Acquaints him of the threats used by the Indians towards the English—Report of an Indian woman to a young man living in Kennebeck. Indians gone for Canada, supposed to fetch ammunition. (3 f.)

1683-4 Febr. 23. Fort Loyal.

Letter from Capt. Anthony Bracket to Major Davis. Acknowledges his from the Council, by Mr Masterson—did not write to him the full of what he knew from his friend, lest it should put the province in an uproar, also his friend desired he should not make much stir about it lest the Indians should kill him for discovering their plot. The night before Mr Mastersons arrival three men came from Kennebeck with a letter about the Indians (these men live on the west side of Kennebeck river which belongs to Maine) to know what they should do to secure themselves. Not knowing what the province would do could say nothing, they being not above six or seven families on this side the river. They resolve to withdraw their families immediately and come to the town near the fort. The letter which they brought is enclosed. Ten Indians started for Canada supposed for ammunition. A token left in Mr Gend-all's house by an Indian, when the Indians send for it, Mr G. is to hasten away with all speed. Cap^t Sharp, Command^r of Pemaquid Fort, has sent for Medockawanda. The men of Mocees, a Kennebeck Sagamore, have left him, he himself stays at Pemaquid, &c. &c. (6 f.)

Rob^{tum} Wadley, gen^t defte.

King James by patent under the great seal 3 Nov. 18 Jac. granted unto the Plymouth Council, all that part of the main land of America, lying between 40° and 48° North latitude to be called New England &c.

The said Plymouth Council by their indenture, dated 10. Aug. 1622 did sell to S^r Ferdinando Gorges and Cap^t John Mason all that part of the main land of N. England, lying between the Rivers of Merimack and Sagadahock and to the further head of the said river.

The said council, by indenture, dated 1629 Nov^r 7, by the mutual consent of the said Ferdinando Gorges and Cap^t Jⁿ Mason did make a partition of the lands aforesaid and did grant to Cap^t John Mason, his heirs &c., all the land lying between the rivers Merimack and Pascataqua and to the furthest head of the s^d river. All which lands were confirmed to the said Cap^t Mason by the said Council by indenture dated 1635, Apr. 22, to be holden of his Maj^{ty} his heirs &c. in fee, and to be called N. Hampshire. Rob^t Mason, grandson and heir of Cap^t John Mason, by letter of Attorney, dated London 1644, May 3, did constitute Rich^d Nichols, his lawful Attorney, and assignee with full powers to dispose of lands, &c. And likewise one other Attorney under him.

The said Col. Rich^d Nicholls by his letter of Attorney, dated 1666, Nov. 20, did appoint Major Nicholas Shapley to be his lawful Attorney.

The s^d Nicholas Shapley by indenture, dated 1667, May 10, did grant and demise to Cap^t Walter Barefoot all that tract of land, containing 1000 acres, situate at or adjacent to the falls at Lampereel river, where one Rob^t Wadley lives, together with the said falls, &c.

The king in his Commission for the Gov^t of this province and also by his royal letters, hath set forth the title of the s^d Rob^t Mason and his ancestors to the province of New Hampshire. The gen^l Court of the Massachusetts having usurped this province did about the year 1660 grant unto Samuel Symonds of Ipswich gent. 640 acres of land at Lampereel river.

The s^d Samuel Symonds in Sept 1664 grants a moiety of the s^d lands to his son Herlakenden Symonds and his assigns; A^o 1664, Sept. 24., sells the s^d 320 acres to Walter Barefoot; Walter Barefoot sells the same to Robert Wadley 1669, June 10th.

Rob^t Wadley being deeply indebted to Barefoot and having several suits depending, they by consent submit all matters to arbitration as by bond dated 1670, Dec^r 8.

The arbitrators award that Barefoot's deed of sale of the 320 acres &c., be made void (as per award, dated 8th of March 1680,) and releases to be given mutually.

In pursuance whereof Rob^t Wadley under his hand dated 1671, May 8, gives Barefoot a gen^l release and surrenders all right and title of the s^d lands to the s^d Barefoot. Whereupon Barefoot gives him a release. Notwithstanding which the s^d Wadley has ever since kept possession of the lands and mills having no title thereto.

NOTE. Walter Barefoot having purchased the lands in question of Symonds in the year 1664 upon the Massachusetts title and finding it not good in law, and that the premises of right did belong to Rob^t Mason Esq., did in 1667 obtain a grant and confirmation of the same with others from Nicholas Shapley, agent of the s^d Robert Mason, and by virtue of this title from the s^d Mason to the s^d Barefoot is the lawful owner of the s^d lands, NOTE. At the trial at the Court of Pleas held at Portsmouth (N. Hampshire) 1682 Feb. 13., the s^d Wadleigh relying on a partial jury produced no evidence nor offered any thing to the Court, but words in his defence.

The bill of costs (independent of the damages which the said pl. Walter Barefoot had sustained by destruction and waste of his timber, cut at his own mills and converted by being kept out of possession of his said land above 10 years computed at no less than 1000 £) is this :

N.B. This Vol. contains a number of papers relating to Wadleigh and Barefoot, viz. pag. 524-566, and elsewhere.

One of these papers, pag. 602, mentions Robert^t Wadleigh's return from England, his appeal being dismissed by the council Board. He was formerly an Assembly man and had three sons condemned in Gore's rebellion and is himself now chosen again. The eldest of his sons is pardoned, one of them is dead and the other kept in prison until further orders.

This is mentioned in a letter from the Gov^r and Council of N. Hampshire to the Board of Trade, under date of 1684, May 23.

Memorandum concerning the province of Maine with Mr Attorney Gen^{ls} opinion thereon.

The King by letters patent constitutes a corporation under the name of Massachusetts Bay, with a grant of a tract of land in N E., whereof the boundaries are denoted.

Under colour of which boundaries, the Corporation possessed themselves of two other neighbouring provinces belonging to proprietors Which proprietors appealed to the King in Council for relief and had judgment given them by his Maj^{ty} for the restitution of their proprieties. Meanwhile the corporation bargained with one of the proprietors for 1200£ by deeds in the name of certain merchants and have since exercised jurisdiction in the province of Main and laid taxes in the name of the proprietor.

Meantime this corporation is dissolved by judgment upon a scire facias

Qu. whether the province of Main do not likewise devolve to His Ma^{ty}?

[The opinion appended is as follows, signed R. Sawyer] Upon consideration of this case I conceive the trust of the government of the province of Maine, w^{ch} was in the corporation, is devolved to the King, and as to the trust of the propriety of any lands there not sold to private prop^{rs}. I conceive the same will be attendant upon such government his Ma^{ty} shall appoint there towards defraying the charge thereof, it being a trust for a Corporation for the government of that place.

Reference of the petition of Richard Wharton of Boston in N. England, touching lands in the province of Maine.

By the king and privy Council

Upon reading this day the petition of the aforesaid Rich. Wharton, praying his Maj^{ty} to take into his Royal protection and government divers lands &c. (purchased from the ancient Indian proprietors) under such quit rents, &c. as His Maj^{ty} shall think fit. Ordered that this petition (copy of which is enclosed) be referred to the Lords of Trade to report to His Ma^{ty} and Council thereon. (4 f.)

The petition of Rich^d Wharton of Boston in N. England. Showing that petitioner by purchase (from sundry persons, who originally derive their right from the Council of Plymouth, Sir Ferd. Gorges and his Comm^{rs}. and from the ancient Indian Saggamores and proprietors) being seized in fee simple of an entire tract of land, lying between the river of Kennibeeck and Cascoe in the province of Maine, as also of an island lying near called the Sebascoa Diggen, with other small islets &c, adjacent, which main land for nearly sixty years has been planted and improved by M^r Thomas Purchase and others whose rights are now vested in petit^r and is bounded southerly towards the main ocean by a tract of land, called Small Point (sold by Sir Ferd. Gorges in A^o 1637 to Sir R^d Edgecumbe of Mount Edgecombe, Co Devon, and to the North westward of Pejepscot runs into the main land above twenty miles, four miles on each side a small river, called Andros Coggan river, which by a precipice empties itself into the westernmost branch of Bay of Kennibeeck.

Most of the inhabitants in consequence of the Indian wars have deserted those parts. And petit^r understanding his late Ma^{ty}s displeasure at the purchase made by the agents of the Massachusetts refrains from further improvements &c., until His Maj^{ty} shall take the land under his immediate protection, which the Indians await with subjection—probable advantages to the crown, the situation being capable of establishing various fisheries, prays the King to take under his protection the lands aforesaid with such quit rents &c., as may seem meet to confirm to petit^r the said lands, &c. &c. (7 f.)

The answer of the Agents of Massachusetts Colony to Mr Rob^t Mason's case.

3 Nov. 18 Jac. They agree the patent to the Council of Plymouth to be the same as is set forth.

9 Mar. 19 Jac. Admit Mr Mason has a deed of this date, supposed to be a grant from the Council of Plymouth to John Mason of certain tracts of lands, said to be part of N. Hampshire.

10. Aug. 20. Jac. Acknowledge to have seen an old parchment, produced by Mr Mason, supposed a grant of this date to Sr Ferd. Gorges and John Mason of certain lands, &c.

But they object unto both those deeds.

1. That the boundaries especially of the first of them are obscurely expressed.

2. That with those deeds there never was possession.

3. Both grants contain in them a letter of Attorney to make livery from the Council of Plymouth, but no livery appears to be made or any possession taken &c, whereby the execution in law remained still in the Council which granted all those lands in question to the colony of the Massachusetts, (19 Mar. 3 Car.) which was afterwards in the next year (4 Mar. 4 Car. 1) granted and confirmed to them by the King's letters patents, in pursuance whereof several of the patentees did immediately transport themselves into N. England, where they have ever since continued, &c. There was a law made A^o 1651 for quieting of possessions, which had continued so from 1652 and should so remain until 1662, from any future claim, which will bind Mr Mason, if he had any right, and all others not claiming according to the time therein.

As to the other grants mentioned in Mr Mason's case, they being all subsequent to the grant to the colony, they conceive no answer need be given. Only that it would appear that Mr John Mason had no confidence in his two former pretended grants, seeing he took such subsequent grants from the Plymouth Council. Admit also that by virtue of one of the subsequent grants to Mason and others in 1631 (not in his case) some possession was taken in the void places of colony, but soon after quitted by Mr J^{no} Mason from whom petitioner Rob^t Mason assumes to claim.

They further answer that as to the power of governing the colony which is the chief matter at issue, they say that no power of governing those provinces is granted to Mason by the Council of Plymouth, and if granted had been clearly void. But the same was granted by the s^d letters patents (4 Car. 1) to the Company of the Massachusetts including the said lands claimed by Mason and Gorges, which has ever since been executed to the great satisfaction of the people who earnestly desire the same to continue. Nor is it possible for Mess^{rs} Mason and Gorges if they had the Government, to protect the people within their alledged claim, as experience has already proved. (11 f)

1684 May 14. N. Hampshire.

Letter signed Edw^d Cranfield, addressed to the Committee of Trade. Since his last the Indians to the eastward in the province of Maine have been very disorderly, threatening to kill the English and burn their houses. Has written to the Governors of the several colonies to request they would send to the leaders of the Indians who are called Sagamores to endeavour to promote a good understanding. Nevertheless the government of the Massachusetts, himself and Council thought fit to solicit Col. Dungan for the assistance of the Moquaers and some of the southern Indians in case of a war, which was readily complied with. Necessity of peace, as there is no money in the Treasury, can get none, although he has earnestly prest the point in two assemblies. Has been obliged to suspend Mr Elliot, one of the council and a great owner of ships (in whom he has been much mistaken) and recommends for confirmation Mr Francis Champernoun and Mr James Sherlock. Mr Fryer gone to live out of the province. Account of seditous speeches, spoken at a town meeting by Mr Mather, Minister of the North Church in Boston and Mr Nowell, one of the Magistrates there, against his Mat^{ys} declaration sent here concerning the Quo Warranto, telling the people that the inheritance which God had given them was going to be taken away as was Naboths vineyard, exciting them to arms in its defence, reminding them of David, that it was better to fall into the hands of God than of man. Also that a Minister near Boston on the 20th last past declared Hugh Peters to be a martyr and unlawfully put to death. The same spirit prevalent amongst others in the province. Affidavits of approbrious speeches alluded to, that the King knows nothing of the writer and Mr Mason's coming hither, but were sent by the Duke of York. Such virulent speeches of the Ministers contaminate the peoples minds. Death of the brother of Mr Randolph whom he left his deputy—Canary wine and French commodities being more plentiful than ever in Boston, it is necessary to have the vacancy supplied. Conceives that the continuing the Taxes and other Imposts will be the most effectual way of establishing the Church of England and silencing these. Considers it will be a work of great time before they can be brought to it by assemblies, there "being such a canker among the generality of the people". &c. &c. (13 f.)

A paper, entitled Abstract of His Ma^{ty}s K. Ja^s 2^{ds} grant and confirmation of lands at Pejepscot in N. England.

Whereas Rich^d Wharton has been a sniter to the King, to confirm to him divers lands and islands at or near Pejepscot in the province of Maine, the same is granted and assigned to him paying yearly * * * * * reserving the 5th part of all gold and silver, &c. The said land also ordained a manor to be called by the name of * * * manor, the said Wharton, his heirs &c., to be Lords and prop^{rs} of the same with jurisdiction &c., as customarily exercised within the realm of England. Liberty of religion conceded to such as yield due obedience to the laws, &c., also power to the s^d Wharton, to erect fairs and markets and with the consent of the gen^l Governor and Freeholders to make by-laws, Liberty of Ships or vessels to enter and clear with the chief officer resident on the manor. No crimes or misdemeanors (excepting treason or felony) arising within the manor or actions under £100 to be tried elsewhere. Planters or residents within the said manor may bring their commodities to any part of the united Kingdom, subject to no more dues than paid by subjects born within the realm. The said Wharton may erect within the s^d manor convenient ports, havens &c., for the lading and unlading ships, provided that this grant do not restrain any of His Ma^{ty}s subjects from fishing on the coast, &c. (6 f.)

[The draft of this grant in extenso occurs at pag. 207 of the same Vol. 4. It therein describes the tract as divers lands at or near Pejepscot in the province of Mayne, together with divers lands, islands and other places, adjacent, lying upon and between the rivers of Kennebec, Amdrose Coggan and Cascoe Bay within the province of Maine, granted formely in the time of the late King to Thomas Purchase late of Pejepscot, and Geo. Way of Dorchester, Co. Dorest (England) which have been in the possession of the s^d Purchase and Way for nearly 60 years and lately by the heirs of the s^d Purchase and sundry Indian Sachems sold and conveyed to Rich^d Wharton and his heirs, paying as a yearly quit rent to the King six beaver skins, &c. &c.

The Lord's of Trade &c., having read the enclosed draught of Mr Whartons grant, desire the opinion of Mr Attorney Gen^l thereon.

1686 May 1.

The opinion of the Attorney gen^l (R. Sawyer), is, that there is nothing unfitting his Ma^{ty} to grant, it amounting only to a confirmation of such lands as he is already seized of by purchase.

N. B. The name of the manor is left blank in this draft.

Letter to JOHN WINTHROP, Governor of Connecticut.

1670 Boston.

Right Honorable

I was at Boston in the Massachusetts Colony when Mr John Pell arrived there, by whom I had the great favour of your Lordships letter. He came into that Harbour very opportunely for the expedition of his business. For one Mr John Bankes, a neighbour of Mr Thomas Pell, deceased and one of those whom he had intrusted with the estate, was in a vessel of Fairfield [the place where Mr Pell had lived] returning thither and met the ship coming in and came back with Mr John Pell to Boston. Where I spake with them both and upon the reading of your Lordships letter informed Mr Bankes that I had full assurance from your Lordship and divers others that the person there present was Mr John Pell and he to whom Mr Thomas Pell deceased had given his Estate. And that very day, Mr John Pell inbarqued with Mr Bankes, and sailed towards Fairfield carrying also with him my letters to the magistrate and others there, certifying the same to them concerning him with desires of all good loving respects to him and their helpfulnesse as his occasions should require, and that order might be taken forthwith for his quiet possession of that estate. I have heard since of his safe arrival and welcome there and that he hath accordingly the possession of the lands and houses and goods to which he had right both at Fairfield and Westchester, which is a place neere New York, where his uncle had also a considerable plantation, with good accommodations belonging to it.

My Lord, the relation which I am now presenting to your Lordship is of a very strange and prodigious wonder this last summer in this part of the world, that the like hath been knowen for the whole manner of it I doe not remember that I have read or heard.

There was an hill neere Kenebunke River in the province of Maine (the eastern part of New England) which is removed out of its place and the bottom turned upward. The time is not certaine when it was done, but that it is so is very certaine. And it is concluded by those who live neerest to it, that it was removed eyther the later end of June or the beginning of July last. The relation which I have from credible persons concerning the manner of it is this, viz. that the hill being about eyght rodds from Kenebunke River side on the west side of the River, about foure miles from the sea, was removed over the drye land about eyght rods or perches, and over the tops of the trees also which grew between the hill and that river, leaping as it were over them into the River, where it was placed (the upper part being downward) and dammed up the river till the water did work itself a passage thorow it. The length of the hill was about two hundred and fifty foote, the breadth of it about fourscore foot, the depth of it about twenty foot. The situation of the hill as to the length of it was norwest and south east. The earth of it is a blue clay without stones. Many round bullets were within it which seem to be of the same clay hardened. I have not yet seene the place my selfe, but sent purposely to inquire into the truth of what had beene reported concerning it. And had this relation from Major William Phillips who dwelleth not farr from the place and Mr Herlakenden Symons, who went to the place and took very good notice and brought me the same report of the truth and manner of it, which I had before received by a letter from Major Philips in answer to my letter of enquiry and told me that the earth of the hill did not lie between the former place of the hill and river, but was caried together over the tops of the trees into the river, which seemes to be as if it were blowne up by such a force as caried the whole body of it so farr together. I had fro' them some few of those rounds bullets, I think there were but two or three, and some pieces of the earth in other formes which were found upon that now-upper part, which was before the lower or the inward bowells of that hill. As also a small shell or two of a kinde of shell fish, like some shell fishe commonly founde where the sea floweth, but how they should be within that hill is strange to consider. I have sent all that I had thence with other things to the Royall society for their repository. I understand also from some of those parts, that there was no notice taken of any earthquake about that time, nor did I hear of any in other parts of the country. I give your Lordship the relation only of this prodigie as I had it upon the best inquiry I could make, leaving the discussion of the natural causes which might concur a matter too hard for man to comprehend, but the power of his Almighty arm is herein manifest to all who weigheth the hills in a balance and at whose presence the heavens drop, the hills are melted like wax. Sinai it selfe is moved. I hope to have opportunity to see the place and if any other matter considerable upon my observation or further inquiry shall appeare, I shall be obliged to give your Lordship further account thereof and for present am bold humbly to subscribe my selfe.

Right Hon^{ble} Your Lordships most obliged humble servant

Memorandum concerning the province of' Main.

PROVINCE OF MAIN.

The King by his letters Patents constitutes a Corporation by the name of the Massachusetts Bay with the grant of a Tract of Land in N. England, whereof the boundaries are specified.

On pretence of w^{ch} boundaries that Corporation some years past possessed themselves of two other neighbouring provinces belonging to their respective proprietors.

W^{ch} proprietors having lately appealed to his Ma^{ty} in Council for relief had judgment given them by his Ma^{ty} for the restitution of their proprieties.

In the mean time that Corporation bargains with one of the proprietors for his province and twelve hundred pounds, possessed themselves by deeds in the name of certain merchants of New England, and have since that time exercised a jurisdiction in the province of Main and laid Taxes in the name of ^{re} Proprietor.

In the mean time the Corporation is dissolved by judgment upon a seire facias.

Q^{re}, whether the province of Main do not likewise devolve to his Ma^{ty}.

THE OPINION OF MR ATTORNEY THEREON.

Upon consideration of this case I conceive the trust of the Govern^t of the province of Main, w^{ch} was in the Corporation is devolved to the King, and as to the trust of the propriety of any lands there not sold to private proprietors, I conceive the same will be attendant upon such government his Ma^{ty} shall appoint there towards defraying the charge thereof, it being a trust for a corporation for the government of that place.

Memorial of Col. Wolfgang W. Romer, his Ma^{ty}s chief Engineer in America, touching the five rivers. Addressed to the Earl of Bellemont, Cap^{tn} Gen^l and Governor in chief of his Ma^{ty}s provinces of Massachusetts Bay, N. York and N. Hampshire, KENNEBECK RIVER.

This river is a fine one and convenient for great ships when they are once got two leagues within the islands that are before its mouth, which islands lie to y^e maine sea, they are then safe from all danger, and afterward the river is navigable for great ships up as far as Newtown, and tho' it be navigable higher up yet this is somewhat hazardous by reason of the little island and rocks which lye in the middle of the river whose rapid course makes it stil more hazardous for ships.

As to the soil that of Rowsick Island on w^{ch} Newtown formerly stood is very good, and so is the land that lies towards the west and south-west along the s^d river. There are also several excellent meadows thereabout. Your Lord^{sh} will see in the Chart the course and depth of the s^d river.

There was never any other fortification but that at Newtown, which was a small square Fort palisado'd. Therefore I have mark'd on the Chart the places which ought to be fortified, not only for the defence of the mouths of the river, but also for that of the river itselfe within the country, and this last I hold very necessary, because the savages have two Forts at the head of the river which are cal'd Naridgwack and Comewquantick. They have two Jesuits in each Fort which do great hurt to the Kings interest and that of the publick, because they instil into those people an aversion and hatred for his Ma^{ty} and his subjects. Before the war there was a palisado'd Fort on Damarascove island for defence of the Fishermen and a litle higher there was another place, called Capenewagin, where the people cured their Fish and two harbours where they secured their vessels from storms, and tho' those harbours lie open to the sea yet in case of necessity they serve the turn, when the fishermen cannot get into Kennebeck river.

SIR FERDINANDO GORGES
AGAINST A CHARGE
HAVING BETRAYED THE EARL OF ESSEX,
WRITTEN BY HIMSELF.

From a MS. in the British Museum.

With a letter from JOHN BRUCE, Esq., Treasurer of the Society of Antiquaries, London, to JOHN PAYNE COLLIER, Esq., Vice President of the same Society, communicating the MS for publication in the Archaeologia, Vol XXXIII

SIR FERDINANDO GORGES.

5, Upper Gloucester Street, Dorset Square,
18th December 1849.

MY DEAR MR. VICE-PRESIDENT,

AMONG the many striking incidents which occurred during the trial of Robert Earl of Essex in 1601, none seem to have more strongly attracted the attention of the people than those which relate to the evidence and conduct of Sir Ferdinando Gorges. The testimony of Sir Ferdinando excited the impetuous Earl much more than the ungenerous selfishness of Bacon, and almost as much as the vituperation of Sir Edward Coke, or the sudden interference of Sir Robert Cecil. When I first heard, Mr. Vice-President, that you were engaged upon a life of the Earl of Essex, you may remember that I mentioned to you, that there existed in the Cotton Collection of MSS. a paper written by Sir Ferdinando, purporting to be his defence against the popular clamour raised against him for his conduct towards the Earl. I should have preferred that you should yourself have been the first to print this paper in your forthcoming work; but, upon your assurance that it will be more agreeable to you that I should communicate it to the Society of Antiquaries, I now send you a transcript of it, and will thank you to lay it before the Society. I shall accompany it with a comparatively brief comment, in the hope that the whole subject will shortly be fully treated by yourself.

It is now many years since I first became acquainted with this MS., I am not aware that it has been used by historical writers, nor indeed that it has been noticed by any one, save by Mr. Cayley in his life of Sir Walter Raleigh, and by that diligent and accurate searcher into historical antiquities, Mr. Jardine, in the first volume of his excellent collection of Criminal Trials. Mr. Cayley extracted one paragraph from it; and Mr. Jardine described it as being a spirited and wellwritten defence, but without giving any extracts or any further particulars of its contents. It seems to me that it well merits all that Mr. Jardine has said in its commendation, and fully deserves to be added to the many invaluable historical documents which have been printed, from time to time, in the Archæologia.

The evidence of Sir Ferdinando Gorges consisted of two examinations, or confessions, dated the 16th and 18th February, 1600-1. The originals still exist in the State Paper Office. They can only be read, with any accuracy, in Mr. Jardine's account of the Trial of the Earl of Essex. All the other narratives are so imperfect, and one of them—that by Bacon—(I fear it must be decidedly stated) is so shamefully garbled, that no reliance can be placed upon any of them.

Sir Ferdinando's first examination sets forth that, being absent from London, no doubt at Plymouth, of which place he was the queen's governor, the Earl of Essex wrote him a letter full of complaint of his usage by the court, and desired him to repair to town by the 2nd of February. He came up accordingly, and reached London on that day. He waited upon the Earl that same night, and saw him, privately, two or three times in the course of the week following. He details several discussions which took place in the course of the night of Saturday the 7th February, after the Earl had determined to resort to arms, respecting the course which ought to be adopted. He also states various circumstances of no very great moment, respecting the proceedings of the 8th—"the rebellion unius diei," as it was termed in scorn by Queen Elizabeth.

Sir Ferdinando's second examination relates to an entirely new subject, and one of fatal import to the Earl of Essex. In it, Sir Ferdinando states that he was present, on the request of the Earl, at a meeting of the Earl's friends held on the Tuesday before the insurrection. At that meeting the persons assembled—the conspirators as they may be justly termed—were encouraged by the production of a list of one hundred and twenty "Earls, Barons, Knights, and Gentlemen," whom the Earl reckoned upon as his friends. Three projects were submitted to the meeting for their decision. 1st. Should they begin by attempting the Tower, or the Court? Or, 2nd. Should they first rouse the City? Or, 3d. Should they make a simultaneous attack upon both the Tower and the Court? After considerable discussion the general opinion seemed to incline towards making their first attempt upon the Court, and Sir John Davis proceeded to assign the places of the several leaders. Sir Ferdinando's examination continues as follows, in a passage altogether omitted by Bacon. "Having proceeded thus far, I was asked what I thought of it; my answer was, I utterly disliked that course, for besides the horror of it wherewith I found myself afflicted, I saw an impossibility for that means to accomplish it. The means they did urge to be sufficient, for, as they seemed to assure themselves, the greatest resistance that was likely to be made was by the guard; and of many of them there was no doubt to be had, for they had been my Lord's servants. Notwithstanding, I would not condescend to that course; whereupon my Lord of Southampton, in a kind of passion, demanded this, 'Shall we resolve upon nothing, then? It is three months or more since we first undertook this.' My reply was, 'It was more than I knew.' I was demanded what I could then advise that my Lord should do? 'If there be a necessity,' I answered, 'that he must do something, let him stir his friends in the City, of whom you say he is so well assured.' This was so evil liked of, that we brake up, and resolved of nothing, but referred all to my Lord of Essex himself. After this I never saw my Lord, nor heard anything from him, until Saturday night; when he resolved the next day to put in practice the moving of his friends in the City, upon the occasion aforesaid; and of my opinion was Mr. Littleton."^a

This portentous testimony seems to have stung the Earl of Essex to the quick. He saw instantly its deadly bearing, and set himself to counteract the effect which it was calculated to produce upon the peers. Up to this moment the evidence had been given, not vivâ voce, but, according to the common practice of that time, by reading written examinations of the witnesses. The Earl challenged the production of Sir Ferdinando "face to face." Sir Ferdinando was sent for, and the Court waited for his appearance. He arrived in custody, and was brought into Court. The Earl met the glance of his late confederate with features, as Camden remarks, pale and discomposed. The haughtiness with which he had outfaced and outwangled Sir Edward Coke altogether disappeared, and with obvious sorrow, as well as anger, he proceeded, not to deny the main facts alleged in the evidence of Sir Ferdinando—that he never did—but to insinuate doubts as to his honesty. "Good Sir Ferdinando," remarked Essex, "I pray thee speak openly whatsoever thou dost remember; with all my heart I desire thee to speak freely; I see thou desirest to live, and if it please her Majesty to be merciful unto you I shall be glad, and will pray for it; yet, I pray thee, speak like a man." Sir Ferdinando referred to his examination as containing all that he could remember: "Further," he added, „I cannot say." Essex rejoined, "Sir Ferdinando, I wish you might speak anything that might do yourself good ; but remember your reputation, and that you are a gentleman. I pray you answer me : "Did you advise me to leave my enterprize?"

Sir Ferdinando answered, "My Lord, I think I did."

"Nay," said Essex, instantly taking advantage of the slip, "It is no time to answer now upon thinking; these are not things to be forgotten. Did you indeed so counsel me?"

One can enter into the feeling of anxiety with which the reply was waited for. Sir Ferdinando seems to have shrunk before the supercilious and indignant bearing of the Earl, but his answer was decided, "I did."

Turning from the fatal witness to the peers, Essex exclaimed, "My Lords, look upon Sir Ferdinando, and see if he looks like himself. All the world shall see, by my death and his life, whose testimony is the truest."

A few words passed between the Earl of Southampton and Gorges, and then, it is stated in the account of the trial, "Sir F. Gorges withdrew;" it was under the imputation, and with the general belief, that he had sold himself to the enemies of his patron and political chief, and had secured his own safety by straining his testimony against the impetuous but high-minded Earl.

This was only one of the popular charges against Sir Ferdinando. It will be remembered that when rumours came to the court, on the morning of Sunday the 8th February, that Essex was gathering his adherents and fortifying his house, the Lord Keeper Egerton, the Lord Chief Justice Popham, Sir William Knollys, and the Earl of Worcester were sent to the Earl to demand an explanation of his intentions, and to charge him on his allegiance to disband his followers. After some delay the noble messengers were admitted at the wicket-gate of Essex House, but they were admitted alone, all their servants being kept out. In the courtyard they found themselves in the midst of a tumultuous assembly, which greeted them with threats and exclamations of "Kill them! Kill them!" Essex interfered. He silenced the ferocious clamours of his desperate band, but let the dignified ambassadors within doors, and there made them his prisoners. They were committed to the custody of a party of musketeers, commanded by three gentlemen, of whom one was Francis Tresham, afterwards concerned in the Gunpowder Plot. Essex then immediately sallied forth to make his attempt to rouse the city. As soon as it became clear that he should fail, his mind reverted to his noble prisoners in Essex House. Hemmed in on every side, it seemed scarcely possible for any one to get out of the city to communicate with them, but Essex directed Sir Ferdinando Gorges to make the attempt, and, if he succeeded, to release the Lord Chief Justice, and request him to accompany Gorges to her Majesty and inform her what was really the Earl's design. Gorges accomplished his errand; but, when he proposed the intended mission to the Lord Chief Justice, the stout legal functionary boldly refused to accept his liberty, unless his fellow-prisoner the Lord Keeper, was also permitted to depart. Gorges declared that he thought the Earl's design would be best accomplished by releasing all the prisoners, and he accordingly did so. Essex's friends were of opinion that Gorges did wrong, and suspected that he overstepped his commission in order to ground a claim for mercy to himself. They argued that these prisoners were hostages in the Earl's hands; that so long as he had them in his custody he had the power of making terms for himself; when they were gone, the Earl was at the mercy of his enemies. This was a second charge against Gorges.

A third charge against him arose out of a meeting between himself and Sir Walter Raleigh. Raleigh was one of the earliest to hear of the Earl's wild intentions. Sir Ferdinando was his relation. Raleigh sent to him, early on the morning of the insurrection, to come in all haste to Durham House, to speak with him. Gorges communicated the message to the Earl, who consented that he should go, but directed him to hold his interview, not in Durham House, but on the Thames. He did so, and the following is Gorges's account of what took place. "As for the conference that past between Sir Walter Raleigh and myself, it was only this. I protest to the Almighty God! When his boat came to me (he being all alone, and I having with me two gentlemen) he told me that he had sent for me to admonish me to make all haste out of the town, down to my charge, for that there was a warrant out for the sending me to the Fleet. For his kind advertisement I gave him thanks, but told him withall (for that I knew the present occasion would presently discover itself) that it came too late, for I had engaged myself in another matter. He further inquiring of me what it was, I told him there were two thousand gentlemen that had resolved that day to live or die free men. He pronounced unto me that he heard not of it until that morning, but did not see what they were able to do against the Queen's authority. My answer was, it was the abusing of that by him and others that made so many honest men resolve to seek a reformation thereof. His reply was, that no man was without a colour for their intent, and therefore advised me to look unto myself and to remember my duty and allegiance. I answered, I knew not any man that did not more respect his allegiance than his life, as the end would make apparent; and thus he parted to the Court and I to Essex House." The people, with whom Essex was extremely popular, suspected that at this interview Gorges contrived to communicate to "the fox", as Essex termed Sir Walter Raleigh, the particulars of the Earl's intended movements, and thus enabled the government to make timely preparation to receive him. Gorges declares that he did not leave Essex House to meet Raleigh until nine o'clock, by which time "it is well known the Queen and Lords were already advertised of the Earl's preparations, and had given order for drawing men from the villages about the city for the present defence of her Majesty's person, and resolved that certain of the Lords of the Council should go to Essex House."

The defence of Sir Ferdinando is principally directed against the three points which I have indicated. Calm, forcible and argumentative, it is written with spirit and vigour, and there is a touching pathos in the conclusion which it would be difficult to surpass. Wringing under the imputations which the Earl had cast upon him, he yet extenuates and excuses his mistake; he joins no vulgar cry nor prejudice against him; he does not seek to save himself by flattering the Earl's enemies, or traducing his memory, but declares, with a manliness which one does not like to believe to have been disjoined from honesty, that he esteemed him to be inwardly as full of worth and virtue as he was outwardly beautiful and adorned in the opinion and the eyes of the world. "Who was there," he says, "that seemed more industrious and careful to nourish virtue in all men than he? Whether he was a divine or soldier, a wise commonwealth's man or a good lawyer, to all these he endeavoured to be an excellent benefactor and faithful protector. And who was there that seemed more willingly to expose himself to all hazards and travail for his prince's or country's service than he? Who ever more willingly spent his own estate, and all that by any means he could get for the public good of his country? The daily experience that I had thereof, and the undoubted opinion of his good meaning therein, was the cause that bound me so inseparably to him. . . . He was of the same profession that I was, and of a free and noble spirit. But I must say no more, for he is gone and I am here. I loved him alive, and cannot hate him being dead. He had some imperfections—so have all men. He had many virtues—so have few. And for those his virtues I loved him; and when Time, which is the trial of all truths, hath run his course, it shall appear that I am wronged in the opinion of this idle age. In the meantime, I presume this that I have said is sufficient to satisfy the wise and discreet; for the rest, whatever I can do is but labour lost."

There are many circumstances connected with the position and character and subsequent life of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, which I should have thought it right to consider if I had entered fully into the question of the truth or falsehood of the charges brought against him in connection with the Earl of Essex. In your forthcoming work I am sure that all those circumstances, with probably many others which your researches at the State Paper Office have made you acquainted with, but of which I am ignorant, will be fully and fairly dwelt upon. In that confidence I comply with your wish in publishing the following paper, and, having done so, leave the subject with pleasure in your able hands; and I am,

My dear Mr. Vice-President,

Yours very truly,

JOHN BRUCE.

John Payne Collier, Esq., V.P.S.A.

&c. &c. &c.

MS. Cotton. Julius F. vi. fol. 423.

A breefe answer to certayne false, slanderous, and idle objections made agaynst S^r Ferd. Gorges, knighte, as if he had ben a man of purpose imployed to practize the ruine of the late Earle of Essex, playnly shewing the untruthe and impossibility thereof. Written in the Gatehouse.

To the ho^{ll} and discreete who ar nether partiall in affection nor voyde of understandinge.

In this my discourse, I coulde have ben contented to have intreated my ho^{ll} and worthy frenndes (who have always knowne mee by many likelyhoods and probabilityes, more then in the discourse it selfe I shall speake of) to implore theyr labors to have satisfied any reasonable man for the disprovinge of that w^{ch} is so com'only and slaunderously bruted of mee: but that I know it needelesse, in as muche as every wise and vertuouse nature, duly wayinge what is sayd wth every circumstance, will not* of the love they beare to vertue it selfe, seeke to approve and manifeste theyr owne wisdoms and generouse mindes by contradictinge the vanity of the worlde, or condemninge the base natures of those that be so lavish in censuring of any whome they have knowne or hearde to have alwayes helde the raputacon of an honest man, espetially at that time when his case is such that hee nether can or may make a free answer for the approbacon of his innocency therein. I am not ignorant, how the distemper of the time hath caused the idle humors of men's braynes, that are almoste in a frenzy wth the mallice of theyr hartes, to disgeast it selfe into theyr untamed tongues, and now findinge a subject of whome they may freely speake, they spare not to make apparant the vildnes of theyr natures. An other kinde of creature I have heard of that will heare nothinge but wth theyr eyes, see nothinge but wth their eares, for what shaddow they see they will force it to be a substance, and in som cases all substance must bee but shaddowes; so heddy or senseles the common people ar, carefull only to swime wth the streame, and will not bee capable of understandinge themselves, or sensible of any other kinde of vertue in others, who (although they cannot deny the truthe, or enter into the reason for w^{ch} thinges were don, yet will they say somethinge to ease theyr stomacks, and speake like themselves) will curse and rayle at the innocent, as if theyr conceytes were gospels, or the reports (w^{ch} they have uncertaynly receaved) oracles. But I know the hol^l, wise, and vertuouse, as they ar sparinge to censure evell of a well deserving minde, so can they, and will, (I asshure my selfe,) both judge and speake the truthe, to the approvinge of my honest affection to my deceased freinde (howsoever I may seeme to acknowledge my selfe to have forgotten my duety to her Mat^y, for w^{ch} my offence I acknowledge my selfe to have receaved mercy and justice) To this I know som bookewise gallant may happely carpe at my labors, bycause it wantethe ether forme, eloquent wordes, wise sentences, or any other such like exceptions, w^{ch} (I confesse) may be justly taken unto it; but my hope is that the worthy and those of judgmente will looke into the matter and sence and beare wth these faultes, and also pardon these defectes of my rude and harsh manner of writinge; remembreinge it is the labor but of a playne souldier, and on that is no scholler, who is desyrous only to deliver the truthe in its owne nature and kynde for the satisfyinge of his hol^l and privat freindes, and not the travayle of a cunninge sophiste y^t will take upon him to make white black, and black white; such learninge I never affected, if I had, my leasure would never have afforded mee time to practise it.

Peruse this therfor wth patience, I pray you, and censure not of on parte untill ye have read the whole, for each doubte that my arise will be answered wth that w^{ch} doth follow; and the heavenly God open your eyes, and give y^r heartes understandinge that ye may sensibly feele (w^{ch} I doubt not but you will when you have read that w^{ch} followethe) the wronges w^{ch} I have receaved by those false imputacons wherwth all I am charged; in the meane time assiste mee, I desyre you, wth your prayers to the Almighty, that he will give mee patience in this my untimely afflictions to indure unto the ende that his divine pleasure will lay upon mee, to whose æternal protection I hartely commende y^u. From the Gatehouse, the 14th of June, 1601.

CAP. I.

The unlikelyhood and impossibility that I could consente to the betrayinge of my L. of Essex.

Great is the disadvantage that a man hathe, who is to justify his innocency in those thinges for w^{ch} he is condemned by the worlde, w^{ch} for the most parte is blinded in affection, or ignorant of the truthe, for whatsoever hee can say or write is read or heard wth a præjudicate opinion, every on beleeving that a man is bounde to speake for himselfe, or to excuse his owne faultes. Notwithstandinge, sithence the truthe beareth the no shame, or needeth to be deckt wth no colours but its owne, never blushing, how disgracefully soever respected, I offer the examinacon of that w^{ch} followeth to the wise and discreete, who will (I doubt not) confesse, if I weare as able to make it appeare that I did not forget my duty to her Ma^{ty}, to whome I must aeknowledge it was moste due, as I am able to prove I discharged my faythfull love to my Lo. I should not need to be now behouldinge to any for my life, or indure of Essex, y^t miserable affliction I doe, by w^{ch} meanes I have brought my selfe and my estate to ruine, how innocent soever my harte were from intendinge any evell, or knowinge any evell to be intended or purposed to the person or authority of her Highnes.

And I hope no man did ever esteeme mee to be ether a foole or a made man; but if I had consented to the ruine of the Earle of Essex I had shewed myselfe to have ben bothe. For was there ever any that had his witts or understandinge that would enterprise such a matter and not compounde for his rewarde, or at the least be freed himselfe from all after daungers? And the world may see that nether of these I have don; and unto mee I am assured it is to apparenthe, for I do continually feele the heavy indignacon of her Ma^{ty} justly to lye upon mee; and besides that I have all places of commaunde and commodity taken from mee to the undoinge of my selfe and mine, my person is still detayned in prison, where how longe I shall remaine God only dothe knowe, or after what manner I shall com out, when I do, whether as a banished, a confined, or a dead man, but if otherwise, I must aeknowledge it to bee more of her Ma^{ties} gratiouse and infinite mercy then of my merit. or by mee to be expected, by reason of any promise or composition that ever I ether made, propounded, concluded, or thought on. And for matter of rewarde I am so far from expectinge any as I shall thinke myselfe infinitely happy to enjoy my life and liberty, wth leave only to seeke my fortune where I shall finde best meanes to make it. But if any thinge had ben voluntarily don by mee to the prejudice of the Earle, shurely this needed not to have befallen mee. If it be objected, notwithstandinge, all this misery I suffer is but a color to blinde the worlde wthall, I must answer, I know my reputacon and estate doth not depende upon the vulgar or greater parte of the people, but only upon her Ma^{ties} gratiouse favor, and the estimacon and regarde theyr Lo^{pps} have of mee, whome if I could have satisfeyed would have ben a sufficient warrante and protection to have avowed my proceedinge whatever I had done in that behalfe. And if I have no neede to make use of any such polesy in respect of satisfyinge the worlde, muche lesse have those by whose authority I still remayne in durance. Therfor out of question it is not don for polesy nor indured of mee for pleasure, but only inflicted for a ponishmente for my offence. Agayne, let them behoulde (that this thinke) who is in possession of all that ever I had, and they shall finde that they ar the freindes and allyes of those, whome it is saide I did practise wthall. And doth any man thinke so great a wronge could be offered mee, if I had so well deserved as it is sayde or imagined I did, by bringinge to lighte and ruin so daungerouse a practise, and so great an enemy, as that was beleevied the Earle woulde have ben? No, no, it standethe not wth nature to endure, if I could will or chuse, therfor no reason to beleve it.

Further, I desyre that all men should know, that I am not ignorante what it is and how unworthy an enterprise it were, for any of reputacon to accepte or undertake to be treacherouse where hee pretendethe faythfull and unfayned love, and I will speake thus much for my owne parte nether to deceave others nor to flatter myselve, ther was yet never any, man to whome I protested love unto that afterwarde I could possibly hate, though I cannot as an only freinde love many at once, nor yet like him that doth unjustly hate the person of * love, much lesse condisente to the betrayinge of him, to such as were his enemyes, and to mee no assured freindes.

Lastly, in this my discourse it is to be noted, that whatsoever I did confesse or could have don was but of matter acted and consulted of from the laste of January 1601 to the 9th of February 1601; and that I had not hearde from my Lorde in 2 yeares before, till the letter hee sente for mee to com upp. Also, that hee never unfoulded any thinge to mee but his purpose and a desyre to be free and secure from the malice and powre of his private enemyes. That hee had matter sufficiente to penne them from the person and p'sence of her Maty whensoever hee should have meanes to have a free and safe accesse to her himselve. And I, perceavinge that hee intended to make his way by force wherwth to resiste any opposition of (those he called) his enemyes, before I would joyne with him I expected and conditioned to assure me uppo his soule and salvacon hee intended no p'judice to the person of her Mat^{tye}; secondly, not to take by force or unjust meanes the life of any, but to proceede in the course of his complaynte to the Queene and psecution of his enemyes accordinge to the lawe and justice of the lande.

* Probably this should be "the person I love." It is printed as it stands in the MS.

Thus much is Lopp in effecte acknowledged at the barr the day of his arraynmente; wherfor if (as it is manifest) I knew nether of his intente before the instante, nor perswaded him to any treasonable action, how could I bee employed by any to practize upon him as it is sayd (though unprobably) I was?

The contrary will appeare when the truthe (that for a season may be sicke but yet will never dye) shall com to lighte, for I always advised him and bound him by oathes, to his allegiance, shewed him in his extremity the safest course, although hee could not lay hould on it; but if I had ben employed to practise upon him, I might have found meanes to have ben continually at his hande, nether would I have heald him to any justifiable a course, nor ever advised him to keepe himselfe from any lawful advantage his enemyes might have agaynst him, and evermore to deale upon good groundes, and never to violate ether lawe or conscience.

Howbeit I heare that Sr Christop. Blunte hathe confessed former practises and purposes more then ever I heard of, or would have condescended unto if I had ben accequaynted wth them; wherfor (if so it were) I was deceived by his oathe and protestacon, and not hee by mee for any thinge I did. And I assure myselfe that when the Almighty God his will is to bringe to lighte the truthe, the worlde will confesse I have ben most unjustly and falsely belyed by those reportes that have ben so confidently bruted of mee. In the meane time, I pray you to examine the particulars, wth my answers and y^r judgmentes, and afterwarde speake accordinge to y^r vertues and noblenes of your mindes in the defence of the innocent what you thinke or knowe.

CAP. II.

The cause and manner of my goinge to Sr Walter Rawly, and my conference w^t him, not any wayes p^jjudicall to the Earle his proceedings.

To com to the particulars of those objections wherby it seemethe to be most manifeste I was employed to practize agaynst the Earle. First, I will beginne wth that conference I had that Sunday morninge wth Sr Wal. Rawligh, at what time, it is sayde, I did laye open all his counsell and purposes. The likelyhood and truthe of this is best to bee understoode if you consider the cause of my goinge unto him and the manner therof.

First, I was sent unto that morninge by Sr Walter Rawligh to com in all haste to Durram Howse, to speake wth him, and by any meanes I was to go by water. But before I wente, I advertised my Lord of as muche, shewinge him wth all the direction and manner how I was assigned to goe (w^{ch} I needed not to have don if I had purposed any treachery), who upon counsell and deliberation was willinge I should goe, but directed to speake wth him upon the Thames, the w^{ch} I observed, and to take wth mee a garde for the securinge of my returne, doubting least any thinge might bee purposed for the impeachinge therof.

Next is to be considered the time, w^{ch} was full nine of the clock before I went from Essex Howse, before w^{ch} it is well knowne that her Mat^y and the L^{ds} were advertised of my Lord his preparation (though the particular of his intente was not knowne), and had given order for the drawinge in of men from the villages about the city for the present defence of her Mat^{res} person, and resolved that certayne of the Lordes of the Councell should go to Essex House, to assaye if, by commande or admonishment, the presente fury could have ben appeased, or at least deferred, till better provision of offence or defence might bee made, and those LL were arrived at Essex Howse comminge by lande as soone as my selfe that come and went by water, the w^{ch} could not bee upon any resolution taken of any conference wth Sr Walt. Raleigh, for they were departed from the Courte before hee could bee arrived there. Also, in the morninge before this ther had ben a com'aundemente given to the City, that every man should bee in a reddines both in person and armes, but notwithstandinge to keepe wthin his howse, till they received further directions or com'aundement what to doe.

As for the conference that passed between Sr Walt. Rawley and my selfe, it was only this, I protest to the Almighty God. When his boate came to mee (he beinge all alone, and I havinge wth mee two Gent) he toulde mee that hee had sente for mee to admonish mee to make all haste out of the Towne downe to my charge, for that there was a warrant out for the sendinge mee to the Fleete. For his kinde advertisement I gave him thanks, but told him wthall (for that I knew the present occasion would presently discover itselfe) that it came to late, for I had ingaged my selfe in an other matter; hee farther inquiringe of mee what it was, I told him ther were two thousand Gentleme that had resolved that daye to live or dye free men. Hee pronounced unto mee, hee heard not of it untill that morninge, but did not see what they were able to do agaynst the Queenes authority. My answer was, it was the the abusinge of that, by him and others, that made so many honest men resolve to seeke a reformatiō therof. His replie was, that no man was wthout a colour for theyr intente, and therfor advised mee to looke unto my selfe, and to remember my duty and allegiance. I answered, "I knew not any man that did not more respect his allegiance then his life, as the ende would make apparent;" and thus hee parted to the Courte and I to Essex Howse.

In all this what was by mee discovered or don that became not a free spirit, or wherin did it give prejudice to my Lorde his proceedinges? If it bee demaunded of mee why I did not take Sr Walt. Rawley then; —First, it was not a matter I ever purposed, though many vaynely perswaded mee so to doe; secondly, I never held it an acte fittinge amongst mee to betray any that repose trust in us, and hee puttinge himselfe into my handes, wth what honesty could I have avowed so barbarous a deede, unlesse hee had given mee the first occasion by violent deedes and unkinde words, for ether of the w^{ch} I was both resolved and prepared. And at my returne I delivered unto my Lorde particularly what had passed between Sr W. R. and my selfe, all w^{ch} he receaved wth his applause and good likinge, as it is to be testified by those that were then present and yet alive.

CAP. III.

The delivery of the Lodes was by the Earles allowance and direction when they had no hope to make any other benefit of the'.

As concerninge my delivery of the LL. of the counsell, w^{ch} if I had not don (as it is sayd) the Earle might have made what composition hee had listed, both for himselfe and others, it beinge a matter of the greatest consequence, and most likelihood of truthe, I thought it fit to give the more particular accounte of my doinge in that behalfe, shewing (wthall) bothe the reasons and necessity that that advise and resolution was to be followed; therby approvinge my purpose unto my Lorde and the rest to be good, and it was the only counsell to be followed, and absolute hope that remayned for him, in so great an extremity.

For, when I saw that in all likelyhood and reason ther was no hope left for him to recover his owne howse, perceavinge that all the portes and passages were guarded and defended, and findinge that diverse, both nobles and others, had quited him, som of the best that remayned devisinge by what meanes to shifte for themselves, all w^{ch} I was nether so voyde of judgment or understandinge but did well know and perceave; in consideration wherof, when wee came to the chayne at Ludgate, and saw it defended wth men armed and in good order, havinge their officers and theyr heades, and seeminge no meanes that wee had sufficient to force them, I thought it best to attempte som other course, and first I made tryall, by fayre language to Sir John Lucy^a (that had commande of the troopes w^{ch} defended that place), to give my Lorde a free passage; in the w^{ch} not prevaylinge, I returned to my Lorde, to shew him how impossible it was for him to passe that way, wth the meanes he had, as also to know what other resolution or course hee woulde take; to whome havinge delivered my opinion, I gave him further to understande what I thought fit as the laste and only hope for him to depende on, remembringe him that now hee was to make benefit of the Lords that were in his howse, wth all, if so it pleased him, I would attempte to go alone unto them, and wth them to go to her Maty, by whose meanes and sollicitacon only ther was hope shee might be drawne to some tolerable condicions of peace.

To this my opinion I was perswaded by many reasons; as, first, I knew into a greater inconvenience hee could not fall then at the present hee was in, seeing that all hopes hee depended on had fayled him, notwithstandinge I knew the affliction and feare that was apprehended (through the opinion that was conceived of the greatnes of my Lordes meanes to be far more then it was) might bee no small reason to perswade an acception of submission wth security rather then to hazarde a course daungerous wth doubt of successe; and to bringe this to passe I made the lesse doubt, if I might my selfe have come in a place to have delivered my Lordes tale, or at the leaste so far forth to have possest her Maty of the causes that moved my Lord to this his attempte, and the reasons that drewe the noblemen and gent' to joyne wth him, wherby the prosecutinge of it wth extremity might have ben deferrd, or the offence of the rest made more excusable; ether of these, as occasions should have offred, I purposed to have prosecuted, as afterwar-des in the best fashion I coulde I did, as it is well knowne to som of the Lordes

Now I was the more confident in this my opinion, out of the observation I had made of the unwillingnes of the people's dispositions to offer any thinge agaynst my Lorde or any of his, notwithstandinge any proclamations or com'aunde that had ben given, wherby I was out of doubt if my Lord coulde (as my hope and advise was to him to do) but have kept himselfe but three houres longer in the citty (wher I was shure his dispayre could not bee so easily perceaved) to have brought ether all or the most of this that I have spoken of to passe. And of this my opinion I was not much deceived, as heereafter you shall perceave. Heereupon, after som doubt that my Lord had made of the impossibility of my recoveringe Essex Howse, and som hope that hee sawe was to be expected, if I could get thither, by that meanes, hee gave mee directions to goe, referringe the manner of my proceedinge to my owne discretion, the time nor place not permitinge any large instructions or directions to be given; wheruppo' I departed, havinge only used the name of my Lord Cheefe Justice unto him, mindinge indeede that none shoulde have gon but him. But when I arrived at Essex Howse, and had made reporte of as much as I thought fit to his Lorpp, and had desyred hime to be goinge, hee refused it, except my Lorde Keeper might also go wth him; wherupon I, that knew ther were no delays to bee used at that time, made replye therunto, as a matter so intended, and therfor desyred theyr Lordppps more at large, in the boate, what was my Lorde his petition and desyre to obtayne from her Maty, as also the particular reasons that moved both himselfe and the rest of the nobility to untetake that course they had begunne.

When theyr Lorppps were settet in the boate, wher my Lo. of Worcester was also, I first, as briefely as I coulde, delivered unto them what a number of people there were assembled in the behalfe of my Lo. of Essex, and the doubt what the successe heerof might bee, wth all the daunger that might insue if my Lorde were forced to make his passage over the belly of the subject, to give himselfe a free and safe accesse to the soverayne Maty, and therfor that all industry and indeavor to prevente the one and the other was to bee used, no delays to bee made, nor neece poyntes to bee stooode upon; that theyr Lorppps, as the fathers of the kingdom, under her Highness, were now both to shew theyr wisdoms and authoreties.

Then my next peti'con was, that her Maty might know from my Lorde the occasion that forced him and his freindes to joyne themselves together in this loathsom extreame and last refuge of armes, notwithstanding if my Lorde and they had ben mistaken by any false informacon, that then all matters might easily have ben pacified.

In the meane time, that her Maty would be pleased for the present pacifyinge of the fury of men intraged, as also the security of her owne person and preservation of that blood the w^{ch} was like to be spilte, to graunte a gratiouse assurance that my Lord and the rest might bee free from exceptance of that dayes attempte, and that shee would bee pleased to graunte her gratiouse promise to heare wth her owne eares both what hee was able to say in his owne justificacon and excuse of his freindes, to whose mercifull feete both hee and they desyred in all humility to throwe downe themselves, so as they might not bee persecuted by any injurious suggestions of theyr privat enemyes for what they had don that day, to prevente whose indirect dealinges they had don as they did.

All this theyr Lor^{pps} assured mee to acquaynt her Mat^y wthall, by the w^{ch} time wee were arived to the Courte; then they required mee to follow them, w^{ch} I did into the privy chamber, and theyr Lor^{pps} goinge to the Queene I sollicitied what they had undertaken so effectually, as I perceived by those that came up and downe, that ther was som reason to hope of the good successe therof, the rather for that I understand my Lorde Admirall and Mr. Secretary ware sent for to resolve on some course to be taken therin, but at this instante Mr. Secretary receaved advertisemente that my Lorde was fledd unto his howse, wher-uppon it was apparent that then the Earle was at her Mat^{tes} mercy wthout any conditions, and I was instantly com^{itted} to pryson, where ever since I have remayned. Thus y^u have seene that my delivery of the L^{ds} was upon advise and direction of my Lorde himselfe, out of the understanding and hope of good thereby to have befallen him, and it was that time when ther was no hope for him to make any other benefit of them, himselfe havinge reason to despaire the recovery of his howse, and indeede no reason to attempte the goinge thither, knowing if hee were driven out of the city his howse coulde afforde no meanes of defence, and therfor it is falsely sayde that I did it either dishonestly or treacherously, as to all men of honor or wisdom by this it may appeare.

CAP. IV.

It is manifest in all reason that if I had not d^{id} the L^{ds} yet they could not have ben profitable to the Earle.

But, admit the Lords had not ben delivered, what hope was ther in reason for him to have receaved any benefit by them? for ther was none of y^m but was much respected and beloved by him, besides two of them were neere allyed unto him in blood, and might have ben suspected for theyr to muche love unto him, espetially they havynge ben so frequent and ordinary wth him in all his former troubles, as also at the instant before this fell out; the other 2, as it was generally beleevd, were esteemed to bee partially inclyned in affection and love towards him, in regarde of the opposition of his enemies; and therfor as well in nature as honor hee could not admit or condiscent that they should have indured wronge for his sake; also consideringe that they came thither in peaceable manner, as messingers or mediators to intreate his desistinge from any violente course to bee intended; but, admit it had com unto that, they must have offred theyr petition unto her Ma^{ty} for theyr owne saftyes, for the obtayninge of her grace and mercy to my Lord and the reste for what had past. Doth any ma' thinke that her M^{ty} would not or did not more respect her own honor, saftey, and the publicke peace of her kingdom (all the w^{ch} seemed at that time to bee in question), then theyr Lor^{ppes}? Although hee would have ben troubled and perplexed no doubt for them, notwthstandinge it had not ben fit, nor safe, to have spent much time in parlying about theyr freedoms, not knowinge what practises or partes were a foote, espetially seeinge diverse of her nobility ingaged, and others both of great estate and many freindes, and what roote it had taken, or into what head it was growne, could not suddenly be knowne, and therfor to prevente the greater mischeeffe the lesser was to bee chosen.

Wheras it may bee objected, the Prince in her honor would never have suffred the Lordes to perish; termes of honor in case of extremity Princes ar least ceremonious to observe, espetially when they remember, in all humayne actions ther is nothinge w^{ch} wth lesse perill they may not temporize and except then rebellion, in the oppression wherof ther is no greater vertue then expedicon, for that by how muche it is suffred by so much it riseth into degrees of worse, as a soare that is lingered growes in the ende a cure doubtfull; and therfor knowinge that wise providence is truely more hono^{le} then fonde ceremonyes can possibly bee profitable, in as muche as the on giveth security wth contente, the other threatning daunger wth shame, they should not have give any impedimente to her expedition, consideringe farther, that it is better to p'vente a mischiffe in time then to repent in idle complemente to late.

Besides, what knew her Ma^{ty}, upon a sudden and consideringe the probabilityes aforesayde, but that they might have ben linked in counsell and confederacy wth the rest, or at least have willingly stayed there to bee a meanes, if the worse had not hapned, to have by theyr sollicitacon drawne her Ma^{ty} to the pardoninge of his offence for the redeeminge of theyr lives; and why shoulde shee not bee doubtfull or suspitouse of this, hearinge how many did applaude if not joyne themselves in the enterprise? Last of all, if these arguments be not sufficient in the conceytes of any not acquainted wth the polesyes and resolucons of princes, let inquiry be made of the Lordes themselves, who had reason to know as much as others and to hope for the beste, and I assure my selfe that they will answer that they verely do beleeeve that they must have dyed wth the reste, before the prince would have yealded to more then was afterwarde assented unto. And, out of this theyr assurance, they have thought themselves both in honor and nature bounde to requite mee wth any thinge that either was or is in their powres, to the savinge of my life. But, if since they have founde that so difficult a matter, wth keepinge my blood from beinge taynted, how unable had they ben to have pacified the princes indignacon agaynst my Lorde and the rest? and it is playne that nether the respect of theyr authorities, nor the greatness of theyr favors, can continew unto mee either my places, or procure from her Ma^{ty} any kinde of meanes, so much as to defray the charge of my imprisonmente, much lesse to mayntayne my estate or reputacon, so small is my gettinge by the on, and so great is my misery by the other; wherby it is manifest I did nothinge as a false affected freinde, but do heereby approve my meeninge to my Lorde of Essex was not evell in my delivery of the Lords, nor was it don wthout discretion or understandinge, as well as leave and direction, as also hope of soyn good therby to have ensued to his Lor^{pp}; nor if they had remayned could they have ben profitable unto him, as by this that hath ben sayde may playnely appeare, therfor if it did not yealde that successe that was desyred ther was no faulte in my endeavors.

CAP. V.

The cause of my confession, and the somme therof no more then my Lord himselfe might have acknowledged wthout the impayinge of his cause.

Now, as concerninge my confession, the w^{ch} is the next thinge to be spoken of, ether why it was so much or any thinge at all? I shall desyre you to consider these 3 thinges; first, if I had refused to have sayd any thinge, it might have ben beleevd that I had ben meerey obstinate; secondly, in seeminge to make a free and playne confession, it was the better to bee credetted that I dealt sincerely and truly; lastely, makinge relacon of thinges that might seeme of moment to mee, beinge in themselves wayed and considered by theyr judgmentes that were to have them in handlinge, I knew they would appear of no valewe or importe, as by the examinac'on of the particulars may ap-peare, as also the sequell and tryall, for hee was not condemned upon any thinge in my confession but for that of Drury-house, wherof I was not the first author (as by this it doth or may most playnly appeare,) but was only to acknowledge that the w^{ch} was then alreddy by other men confessed, and if I had denyed it might have ben a just occasion for my freindes to have left mee, whose favors I healde, in hope that I of all others would deale playnely and truely in delivery of my knowledge; and therefore to make it appear I was nether obstinate, nor acquainted wth any former matter, I seemed so freely to acknowledge those public actions of his the w^{ch} in all reason I knew could not bee concealed, but that of Drury howse I was unwilling to call into my memory, till I sawe so good tokens that it was discovered by others, as I founde it; if I had denyed it, ther had ben no way wth mee but deathe, wherfor, beinge demanded concerninge that matter, I answered what had ben formerly discovered, never acknowledging other then that it was a private enterprise intended only against certayne particular persons, and no other ende did I know it, had I pronounced to the eternall God, for that w^{ch} others have confest of themselves and theyr purposes, to bee otherwise then it did beare shewe of, and that themselves had publicly protested, I am no ways guilty of, for all mens oathes and protestacons to mee was of theyr love and allegiance to her Ma^{ty}, and that while I did not knowe but that it had ben lawful for mee to joyne my selfe wth them, som of the w^{ch} number I so dearly loved as ther was nothinge save the daunger of my soule that I would have refused to have don or adventured for theyr sakes, as in the sequell heerof it hath appeared. And the reason why I ackknowledge I had means to have taken or killed Sr Walter Rawlegh, was the better to make it appeare that ther was nether malitiose or boucherouse course intended to him or any, and also to give him cause to acknowledge himselfe in that respecte behouldinge unto mee, whereby to take from him occa'ion to exercise his powre, w^{ch} I knewe to be great at that instante, to my ruine, for I did beleewe hee could not in reason bee so voyde of humane respect as not to requite on courtesy wth an other, as also it was no matter of treason against her Ma^{ty}, but rather manifestac'on of the contrary, approvinge this intente to bee particular agaynst Sr Walt' Rawly and others.

CAP. VI.

The cause of my com'inge to avow my confession, the choyse beinge not in mee, and my Lord his speeches unto mee rather out of his misconceite then any just cause given him of me.

If it bee demaunded why I did com furthe and avowe any thinge agaynst him, I must answer, the choyce was no more in mee then in my Lord to have refused to have com to his arraynemente, nor so much neither, for hee could but dye, the w^{ch} he was assured of, and I might have som hope of life if I seemed not wilfull or obstinate. But hee denyinge somthinge that I had confessed, and I beinge at hande so neere as the Gate Howse to the Hall of Westminster, it was thought fit I should bee sent for, to approve it, although the matter itselfe w^{ch} hee did denye was nothinge; for when I came, hee demaunded whether, yea or noe, I advised him from the attempte of y^e Courte? wherunto when I answered I did, I desyred to have it testified by my Lorde of Southampton, then also at the barre. But in truthe what was either my perswasion or dissuasion to prove that hee did urge any suche thinge? Or, put the case it was a question propounded by him to his friendes, as so it was, where every on was to speake his opinion, and I differinge from others, might thinke it no enterprise for my Lorde to undertake, and theruppon might ether dislike or dissuade it, and afterwarde, beinge in question for the same, might deliver in favor of my selfe what my advise was then. This, I say, was nothing to my Lorde of any such momente, in regarde of ether what was don by him or confessed by others, that hee needed to have desyred mee to have ben brought before him.

Agayne, let it bee imagined, that, in private conference betweene my Lorde and mee, I did speake som wordes that might shew a possibility for him to accomplish his desyre if hee would attempte the Courte, upon w^{ch} privat conference, callinge it to minde, might thinke I could not confesse I had dissuaded him from it, and therfor might conceave it to bee a matter imaged agaynst him rather then truly delivered by mee. As also my confession beinge the first and only evidencce as then was read unto him, although the laste receaved. But why should I be more excepted agaynst for my cominge thither, beinge brought out of cloase prison, then those that were both neerer unto him in blood and of Ho^{le} authority, that came to justify agaynst him more then I did? w^{ch} as it was not in theyr choyse as then to do otherwise, much less was it in mine, and therefor me thinkes it is an unreasonable thinge for any to expect an answer of mee, for my doinge as I did in that behalfe, much lesse do I deserve to bee condemned by it. By this y^u see, I could nether do lesse then was done, nor willingly did what I did, that might give cause of dislike or p'judice unto my Lo., wherfor I doubt not but, the p'misses considered, I cannot receave just blame for cominge in place, beinge brought thither by publick authority; and while I was there I did not aggravate any thinge agaynst him, but ether answered in my owne excuse, or to the question hee propounded, shewing to the worlde, w^{ch} I could not conceale, both my greefe and shame to bee so unfortunately miserable, that must bee brought in publick to condemne my selfe and accense my freinde.

Wheras it may bee objected—Q. What sayd my Lord unto him at the Barre? To the w^{ch} I answer, it were a harde taxe layde upon mee to require of mee a reason of every misconceyte or error my Lo. com'itted; but, bycause this concernethe my selfe, I am the willinger to acknowledge that hee had in som sorte just cause for his sayinge and doinge as hee did. First, for that ther had, as then, no other evydence ben read unto him, nor, happely, did hee thinke that any man else had confessed ought, wherfor resolvinge wth himselfe to denye the whole, hee was of opinion that the next way was to disgrace the credit of the reporter, and to lay upon him an imputacon hee coulde, therby to disprove the likelyhood of the truthe therof. Secondly, for that hee might bee of opinion, or at leaste it mighte so seeme unto him, that I had com thither voluntarily, and that I had my life given mee to justify any thinge agaynst him, out of w^{ch} misconceate hee might enter into a rage and mallice towards mee, and therfor out of the bitterness of his spirit hee might speake as hee did, althoughe, of the twoe, I had most cause to bee offended wth him, that had for his sake both undon my selfe and mine, and in his quarrell lost all that I had, and my life, at that time, for oft I knewe, as farfoorth in question as his.

CAP. VII.

The Conncell and resoluc'on of my Lo. of Essex the Sattarday night before hee went into the city, and the reasons that perswaded his freindes to give theyr assentes therto.

Her Mat^y received dayly advertisemente of the concourse of people and greate resorte of Lordes and others to Essex howse, contrary (as it seemed) to her Highnes admonitions to him at the time hee was made keeper unto himselfe, and doubting wthall what the issue therof might bee, the rather in regarde of the eminent causes of suspicion that were made apparente, considerenge the discontented natures and dispositions of diverse of those that were most frequent and ordinarily noted to be neerest him, both in counsell and affection; and therfor to prevente any inconvenience that might be such a toleration insue, it was determined by her Mat^y that hee should bee sent for before the Lordes of the Councell, whome shee required to admonish him of the manner of his livinge, and to com'aunde him to drawe him selfe to a more retyred fashion, or otherwise shee should bee forced to take another course wth him.

Upon this resolucon Secretary Harberte was sent to Essex Howse to require the Earle to com before the Lordes of her Mat^{ys} Councell, then at Salisbury courte, who havinge delivered his message, receaved for answer from the Earle, that he desired to be excused for that time, in as much as hee was not well at ease, but the truthe was indeede that hee presentlye apprehended a doubte leaste somthinge had ben discovered of what hee had formerly practised, and this suspition was the rather confirmed in him by reason that so hee had ben informed of som of his freindes, who advertised him of as muche, to the ende to hasten him forward to the execution of what hee had deeply ingaged both himselfe and them, and therfor imaginenge himselfe and his freindes better able to answer what they had don by armes then by lawe, he resolved ether to approve his purpose good or to dye in the defence therof.

But, upon this sudden mutacon and chaunge of resolucon, all his former councells and purposes were altered, for nowe hee had made himselfe a defendante that before was resolved to bee an assaylante; such is y^e successe of those whose desyre is greater then theyr courage, or whose wordes ar not seconded in so desperate a case wth deedes. His freindes upon this beinge assembled, hee acquainted them what had past, and to make his conceaved opinion the more undoubted, hee declared the manner howe hee was assigned to com unto the Lordes, the w^{ch} was privat and by water, makinge no doubte if hee had so gon hee should have presently ben sent to the Tower; and, the better to confirme this in the concayte of the rest, hee declared farther, that hee was advertised that ther were warrantes signed for the apprehendinge of diverse others, wheruppon every man beginninge to distrust the worste, and to thinke how to p'vent as much as lay in theyr powers, it was p'sently disputable, whether it were best to attempte the courte or to move the city or to go else where, but the opinion that all was discovered gave reason that the courte was provided sufficiently for defence, espetially ther beinge in our powers no meanes wherthall to make p'sent attempte upon it; upon the w^{ch} consideracon and reasons that designe was given over; then it was demaunded what reason my Lord had to be assured the citizens would take armes in his behalfe, wherupon after many likelyhoods given, ther was no doubte of that to be made, then ther was no man but p'sently gave way to that opinion of attemptinge the puttinge them in armes, by whose helpe it had ben in his power to have don any thinge. The while this was in dispute ther came on to the dore, to whome my Lord himselve wente, and as hee reported, hee was a messenger that came unto him from som of his freindes in the citty, who had sente to let his Lor^{ship} know that ther had ben a brute of som harde measure intended agaynst him, and therfor desyred his Lor^{ship} to acquaynt them wth the truthe therof, and wthall to send to them his pleasure what they shoulde doe, for that they were reddy and most desyrous to hazard themselves in any thinge to defend him agaynst the mallice of his private enemyes. To this hee returned them many thanks, and wthall sent them worde what had past, promisinge that they shoulde heare more from him that night or the next morninge, willinge wthall that they should stand upon theyr garde, for so would hee, and if they heard hee was assaulted they to com unto his reskewe; if they were, then hee and his freindes would com unto them. This direct message was the thinge that made all doubt of the citizens' forwardnes to joyne wth my Lorde to bee out of question; wheruppon it was resolved, the next morninge to put in execution the resolution of goinge into the citty, such an extremity by his delayes from time to time had hee runne himselve into, as now his laste hopes were absolutely to depende upon the giddy multitude, from the w^{ch} daunger nether coulde the importunity of his freindes perswade him, nor his owne knowledge of the doubtfull estate wherin hee stode make him any thinge the forwarder to the executinge of that hee had begunne. For still, when it came to the issue of actinge, so many difficultyes did appeare as were sufficient to deferre it from day to day, or rather, as I suppose, it being wthhelde by a certayne fatall timerousnes, hee did let passe alwayes the opportunity, in so much as so it hapieth for the most parte, when the execution of great enterprises bee deferred, his purpose began to bee suspected. For her Mat^y sendinge for him to com before her Lordes was the occasion to approve that a guilty conscience is a thousand witnesses, for it was his refusall to go unto them that discovered the certaynty of his purpose to attempte somthinge, although they could not conjecture what it was he intended, till the very instante of his goinge into the citty, as since it did manifestly appeare; so far was that from knowledge the w^{ch} had 4 monethes before ben disputed on, and so neere was hee to the toppe of his desyre, if folly and fortune had not hindred it. But by what I have since hearde I am of opinion that som of his owne freindes, observinge his couldnes, did cause this fayned message to bee sente unto him, therby to sharpen his disposition, as also to take all occa'on of doubte from others whome hee founde very unwilling to hazarde any thinge upon the people's unstable humors; and in bothe these his purposes hee was nothinge deceived, had that ben all to have ben thought upon. Notwthstandinge ther was not so much credit given unto the people, but that the conclusion and last determinacon was, that the next morninge, both my Lo. and the rest of the uoble men and gentlemen should go on horsback into the Citty, and then if they had founde them backwarde on whome hee depended, so as hee might have reason to despaire in theyr aydes, they and hee together, beinge to the number of 200 horse, to have presently departed towards any other parte or partes of the kingdom hee had pleased. But if y^u desire to know of mee how it came to passe that hee neglected this councell and went afterwarde on foote, I can say no more to satisfy you, but that such a passion is sudden feare as it maketh a man to runne, not whether councell directeth him, but whether theyr fortunes will leade them, not suffering them to consider of the perill, but makes them often times to refuse the safest meanes, and to neglect the thinges w^{ch} should do theyr security; yet when I demaunded of him how chance hee would go before his horses came, hee answered, that hee would not stay for them; but I suspected hee forgat to give directions for them over nighte, as hee undertooke to doe. This I hope will bee sufficient to satisfy those of wisdom and understandinge that the councell and advise hee received from his freindes wrought not his ruine and downefall, but rather his not followinge it; neither yet do I see how it can bee in reason so confidently beleaved that hee was betrayed by those hee reposed a trust in, except in this message promisinge ayde when ther was no suche thinge intended; wherfor I, as I expect salvation, am no wayes guilty, but did verely beleeve it to bee an undoubted truthe, or otherwise I could never have ben drawne to consente to have depended upon them, although it may bee I should not have refused to runne the fortune of the rest as I did, but more unhappy than any other, that am condemned to be false in my affection and treacherously to have betrayed my friendes; but the unlikelyhood therof by this that I have sayde, I doubt not but doth playnely appeare to all indifferent mindes or sounde judgements.

I have declared unto you the truth, and delivered y^u the reasons as neere as I can, of all that passed, wherby I assure my selfe y^u will rest fully satisfied of my honest meaninge and true love to my Lorde, howsoever it is otherwise understoode; and I do not a little mervayle what it should bee that hath ben the occasion so suddenly to settle and establish this so false and so loathsom a conjecture of mee. I thinke they that have knowne mee can witnesse (howsoever I must confesse I have offended the Almighty God, and do deserve for my sinnes agaynste his divine Ma^{ty} greater punishments then hetherunto I have endured,) yet I have not delighted my selfe in any loathsom or dishonest humor, nor so lived in the place where I have had com'aunde that I can bee justly accused to have spent my time ever as a gluttonouse drunkerde, a riotouse person, or that I could ever subject my nature to accept of bribes, or consente to extortions or unlawfull actions, nor did I ever seeme to be negligent or careles of the truste reposed in mee. If any of these thinges (I say) could have ben objected or justely approved agaynst mee, havinge so many and so great enemyes as it is knowne I have alwayes had, ther is no doubt but I should have hearde of it longe agoe. As for my faythfull and unfayned love unto my Lorde of Essex, what better demonstracons or assurances can be ginen by any, or who is hee that in effecte did more to approve and assure the same then I have don, it being wth every circumstance wisely considered and truly knowne? For what is ther more to bee looked for of a freinde then to loose all the worlde doth esteeme deereste for his love sake? And so much have I not refused to make apparente. In a word, I protest no man doth live that did more honestly and faythfully love him then I did, nor none did adventure or advise more to have saved his life then my selfe, if it had taken effecte, nether was it don ether in respecte of reward or benefit I ever had by him, for estate it is well knowne, it was never in his power to make mee; those places and authorities I had were merely given mee by her Ma^{ty}, much against his likinge, for at that time hee was an earnest snitor for Sr Cary Raynoldes to have had the forte of Plymouthe, and his graces of honor were bestowed on mee, as bothe before and since hee had don on diverse others nether better deserving nor worthyer descended then my selfe; and yet, bycause y^u shall knowe I did not love him out of a childish affection, or a base disposition to serve my owne turne by his fortunes, I will in a worde give y^u a faythfull and true accounte for doinge as I did in that behalfe. First, I noted him to bee in the opinion of her Ma^{ty} of greatest esteeme, and best worthy of any subiecte. At that time houldinge my selfe bounde to reverence her affections and applaude her choyce, I was willinge to make shewe therof by the approbacon of the use of my service to bee at his disposition and commande; and yet I must confesse I did not this absolutely before I founde in him a willingenes and desyre to imbrace it, not yet nether untill both by my freindes and my selfe I had made observation of his worthe and vertue, the w^{ch} inwardly I perswaded my-selfe had ben rooted in him, that outwardly made him so bewtiful, and so adorned in the opinion and the eyes of the worlde as hee was, for, I pray you, who was ther that seemed more industrious and carefull to norish vertue in all men then hee? Whether hee was divine or souldier, a wise commonwealthes man, or a good lawyer, to all these he indeavoured to be an excellent benefector, and a faythfull protector. And who was ther that seemed more willingly to expose himselfe to all hazardes and travayle for his princes or contries service then hee? Who ever more willingly spent his own estate, and all that by any means hee coulde get, for the publick good of his contry? The dayly experience I had therof, and the undoubted opinion of his good meaninge therin, was the cause that bounde mee so inseperably to him. But if yⁿ say that in this hee aymed at an other ende then the love of vertue only; if so hee did hee hathe carryed his rewarde wth him; for my parte, in all my knowledge of him and private conference wth him, I can nether affirme nor lay any any suche thinge to his charge. Thus yⁿ see I nether childishly nor basely exposed of my love to my Lorde at the first, and I have helde for an invincible maxime, that ther is no polesy to true honesty, nor love but where true vertue is, and therfor it is very unlike I should go so much agaynst my owne principall as to consent to betray my freinde, espetially for those partys who had never given mee a cause of love to do any such thinge for them, nor by reason of theyr place could I expecte the like assurance as from himselfe I had, for wee finde by com'on experience, as well as the old proverbe, that like will to like, and every man will keepe company wth such as he is himselfe; hee was of the same profession that I was, and of a free and noble spirit. But I must say no more, for hee is gon, and I am heere; I loved him alive, and cannot hate him being dead; hee had som imperfections—so have all men; he had many vertues—so have fewe; and for those his vertues I loved him; and when time, w^{ch} is the tryall of all truthes, hath runne his course, it shall appeare that I am wronged in the opinion of this idle age. In the meane time, I p'sume this that I have sayde is sufficiente to satisfy the wise and discreete; for the rest, whatever I can do is but labor lost, and therfor I purpose not to trouble you nor myselfe at this time any farther.
