Introductory

In presenting to the public this, the first issue of a complete Directory of Boone County, the publisher has endeavored to compile a modern and thoroughly up-to-date directory embracing all the features that make a publication of this kind, one in which desired information as to what and where any person or anything is can be obtained without extensive search and at a moments's notice.

The contents of this directory embrace a complete alphabetically arranged list of the names of all residents of the cities and towns in Boone County, Mo., their business, occupation or profession, and address. In the section giving information regarding the City of Columbia is also given a street directory, giving the location of all streets and avenues, giving numerically along the streets the number of every building or residence, the name of the occupant or tenant and in formation as to who owns each piece of property.

Following the alphabetically arranged list of names of the residents of each city and town, is a classified business directory of that city or town in which all the business and professional firms and individuals are listed under their line of business, the line of goods they handle or the profession they follow.

Following the alphabetically arranged list of the names of the residents and the classified business directories of the cities and towns is a complete classified business directory of the entire county in which all the business and professional firms and individuals in all the cities and towns are again listed under the classification head of their line of business, goods handled, services rendered or profession followed, and the name of the city or town they do business in is given.

This directory also contains a complete rural directory giving the name, postoffice address and R. F. D. number of all people living outside of the corporate limits of the cities and towns and detailed information as to their occupation and whether they are land owners or tenants.

City Directory of Columbia, Missouri 1921

Containing a complete alphabetically arranged list of all residents 16 years of age or over, giving their business or profession, business and residence address. A classified business and professional directory of all business and professional firms and individuals with their business address. A street directory giving the location of all streets and avenues, where they are located, where they start from and where they run to, numerically along each street or avenue, beginning at the lowest number, the number of all buildings, who the occupant or tenant is, and if the occupant owns the property a * (star) appearing after the name, and if the occupant does not own the property the name of the owner is given in parenthesis below the name of the tenant. In this section is a student directory, listing all the non-resident students with their Columbia and home address and their telephone numbers.

Columbia, Missouri

Columbia, Mo., known as the "Athens of Missouri," is the metropolis and leading city in Boone County.

Surrounded as it is by a rich agricultural country, it is the principal trading point and draws a large trade from the farming community for miles in all directions.

Columbia is the county seat of Boone County and is state widely and nationally famous for its great schools, namely, the University of Missouri, Christian and Stephens Colleges for girls, all leading institutions of their kind, and a public school system embracing a high school and six ward schools in charge of a very efficient staff of teachers.

Columbia has numerous first class public and office buildings, churches of nearly all denominations are to be found here, occupying beautiful and substantial edifices.

Columbia has miles of good paved streets, an efficient fire and police department, a city water and light plant under municipal control, one of the largest shoe factories in the state, one of the best equipped printing establishments in the state, two railroads, two daily and a number of weekly and monthly papers, and several good theatres. Its financial affairs are taken care of by six banks, all enjoying good business. It is a clean city, literally and morally; its business men operate their places of business along up-to-date lines and carry stocks of goods to supply all demands. We can unreservedly recommend Columbia as a desirable place to live, do business or bring up a family in.

THE PUBLISHERS.

COLUMBIA CITY DIRECTORY 1921

POPULATION 13,320

Fractions after numbers indicate the floor; as $\frac{1}{2}$ indicates second floor, 1-3 indicates third floor.

The word street is always understood.

A name in parenthesis indicates a man's wife's name, as Jones, John (Mary), 120 Main St., indicates that John Jones is a married man and that his wife's name is Mary.

The street directory is arranged numerally by numbers of buildings and residences. It shows the head of the family residing therein or the name of the firm occupying the building or rooms therein. A star by the name indicates that the party named is a property owner and owns the building or residence at that number.

Names of firms and individuals appearing in Capital letters are the leading and enterprising firms and residents of the community. They believe that the community should have a reliable and accurate directory of this character for the use of the public and by their patronage and support have made its publication possible.

grouped together with their addresses alphabetically arranged for ready reference.

The firms and individuals whose names appear in black face capital letters are the leading and most enterprising ones in their line.

They believe that the city in which they live and do business should, as other up-to-date cities do, have a first class reliable directory.

They have patronized the directory and made its publication possible and the publisher recommends that you give them preference when you need any goods or services in their line.
