THE WATKINS FAMILY OF NORTH CAROLINA

CHAPTER I.

Since the days of my early youth, I have taken a keen interest in any narrative that purported to be anything of a "family history" or that had to do with the exploits of those of the name who have lived and died in the years gone by. Unfortunately I did not during the lifetime of my father, or of others from whom I could have learned much, attempt to record any of the memorials of their virtues or even to trace out the genealogy of our family. The matter has pressed itself on my attention until in recent years, in a limited way, and as occasional opportunity would permit, I have endeavored to learn at least the names and as much of the history of my paternal kindred as a busy life would permit.

It having been my purpose to publish the results of my inquiries only for the benefit of my family and for circulation among my friends, I can with propriety say that my family pride has not suffered from the information I have been able to gather. It must, indeed, be a laudable purpose for any father to cherish the hope that he might, by pointing out family virtues to his children and other younger members of the family, direct them to the accomplishment of only the worthy and noble things in life.

The Watkins name is commonly met with throughout the South and, to a large extent, throughout the North. Many distinguished men of the name have crowded the avenues of both public and private life, both before and since the War of the Revolution. In early Colonial times many of the name were conspicuous for acts of patriotic devotion to their country, especially in Virginia and the Carolinas. The records show that many were active in resisting the oppressions of the Colonies by the King of England and in the gaining of our National Independence. It is beyond the purpose of this paper to even attempt to enumerate the many Watkins and kindred families who contributed worthy sons to our cause during the Revolution, or who were true to the best interests of the country in the years of its early history. So, also, it is beyond the scope of this effort to attempt anything like a complete genealogical record of that branch of the Watkins family to which my family belongs. I shall be compelled to leave the further pursuit of that undertaking to some other member who may, perchance, have the time and inclination to follow it with greater zeal than I have been able to put into it.

I have been much interested in a short history of the descendants of one Thomas Watkins, of Chickahomony, Virginia, written and first published by Mr. Francis N. Watkins, of Prince Edward County, Virginia, in 1852. I have also read with interest the genealogical records and historical facts of certain of the Watkins families in Colonel James Edmonds Saunders' "Early Settlers of (North) Alabama," published by Col. Saunders' daughter, Elizabeth Saunders Blair Stubbs, which for the most part has to do with those families who emigrated from Virginia to Georgia and North Alabama in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and whose connections with Thomas Watkins of Chickahomony, Virginia, were established. My investigations lead me to believe that the names recorded in the two above mentioned genealogies represent only a small part of the many members of the family who had their descent from the two or more early settlers of the Watkins family in Virginia.

So far as I have been able to ascertain there has been written no history of the many Watkins families of North Carolina. There can be little doubt but that the early Colonial families of the name both of Virginia and North Carolina were not descended from one original emigrant, but were the descendants of several brothers or brothers and cousins who emigrated to Virginia from Wales.

One of the earliest names to be found in recorded history is that of James Watkins, an emigrant who came over in the Phoenix in 1607, and mentioned as having accompanied "Captain John Smith" in his explorations in the New World, especially of the Chesapeake Bay. Likewise there are records of others of the name among the "Early Virginia Immigrants," conspicuous among whom are the names of Thomas Watkins, 1635; William Watkins, 1643; Edward Watkins, 1654; John Watkins, 1653, and others.

We find these and other names very common in early Colonial days, and in increasing numbers until when the first census of the United States was taken in 1790 there were about 100 Watkins heads of families and about 600 members in Virginia and 55 heads of families and 375 members in North Carolina. Since that time they are numbered by the thousands and are "scattered all over America."

One of the earliest names I have met with in the North Carolina records is that of John Watkins, whose name appears as a witness to the will of John Harrison of Albemarle County in February, 1693 (Grimes Abstract N. C. Wills, p. 151). John Watkins was a juror at a court held in Chowan County, November, 1716 (Col. Records N. C., Vol. 2, p. 266). So, also, a John Watkins was a member of the company commanded by Capt. Samuel Corbin at the Spanish Alarm at Wilmington in 1748 (Col. Records N. C. Vol. 22, p. 281). Shedrick Watkins is mentioned as a private in the army, April 4, 1777. (Book 16, p. 1180 Col. Records). John Watkins was appointed Lieutenant for Defense of Western Country, January 4, 1787 (Book 18, p. 450). Leavell Watkins was in militia (Book 22, p. 282, N. C. Records). John Watkins was also in the Revolutionary War (N. C. Records, Vol. 16, p. 1188). John Watkins was appointed by Committee of Safety, June, 1775, to patrol from Beatly's Swamp to Perry's Creek (N. C. Records, Vol. 10, pp 25 and 63).

We notice in the old County Court records of Beaufort County at a court held at Bath Town, March, 1756, John Watkins was appointed Constable "from Chuckawinity to Hardee's Run." The territory over which John Watkins reigned as a constable is now in Pitt County. Lieut. Watkins (Col. Records, Vol. 15, p. 754), Lieut John Watkins of Edgecombe County (N. C. Records, Vol. 18, p. 450), are also mentioned.

There are numerous evidences of the early migration of members of the family from Virginia to the near-by counties of North Carolina. There were several settlements made along the banks of the Tarr and Pamlico rivers in the counties of Pitt, Craven, Edgecombe, Nash and Beaufort. I have been unable to establish just what, if any, the connection is between the immediate families about whom I am to write and those families enumerated as descended from Thomas Watkins of Chickahomony, Virginia. In many ways I notice we find many points of similarity as well as many of the same family names in both groups of families which would lead one to think that both are at least sprung from the same parent stock.

Mr. Francis N. Watkins, in his genealogy above referred to, mentions the fact that it has been often claimed that there was a marked resemblance, personal and intellectual, between the various members of the Watkins family. However much that may be true, it has been my observation that they are in some respects a strongly marked race, and possess certain striking characteristics in whatever stations in life we find them. One trait, I am proud to claim, I have generally found to exist is a rugged honesty combined with a proper amount of common sense, which with individual industry and enterprise, has quite generally made them of sterling worth in the communities wheresoever found. As a family they are usually quiet and unassuming, but of independent and self-reliant spirits. They have been known as brave men always. As soldiers in the late Civil War many of them were conspicuous for acts of the very greatest bravery, of whom my father's grandfather, John Watkins, I have heard it said, alone contributed twenty-one sons and grandsons.

The absence of complete records prior to 1770 in many of the counties of North Carolina make success in genealogical research very difficult previous to that time. It is impossible to say who was the first of the name to settle in the Province of North Carolina, unless it be the John Watkins before alluded to, who was living in Albemarle County in 1693. The great number of land deeds, however, to many of which I have had access, show that from the very earliest days members of the family in North Carolina had assumed positions of importance and had become well established as landed proprietors.

One of the earliest of the names I have met with is that of Thomas Watkins, who died (apparently) without male issue, and whose will was proven at the January court, 1754, Perquimans County (Grimes Abst. N. C. Wills, p. 394). William Watkins, planter, of Beaufort County, received a grant of land from the Earl of Granville, Sept. 18, 1744. Previous to that time Edward Salter of Bath County (same as Beaufort County), in the Province of North Carolina, Sept. 10, 1730, conveyed 295 acres of land on the south side of Pamlico River to William Watkins, planter. William Watkins, in 1755, conveyed land to his oldest son, John Watkins. The will of William Watkins, probated Oct. 14, 1773, at the Pitt County court, mentions sons, John and William; sons-in-law, Francis Buck, James Cason, William Ormond, James Jones; daughters, Sarah Buck, Elizabeth, Ann and Rachel, wife and executrix, Christian (Grimes Abst. N. C. Wills, p. 394). Pitt County was cut off from Beaufort County in 1761.

Edward Watkins of Hanover County, Virginia, conveyed land to one Elias Fort of Edgecombe County, N. C., Oct. 29, 1764, in exchange for land in Edgecombe County on the Tarr River. A more complete search of the records of the counties of Pitt and Edgecombe might disclose which, if any, of the sons of this Edward removed to North Carolina from Virginia.

There are numerous deeds of record to and from Henry Watkins, planter, in Edgecombe County during the years between 1760 and 1770. So, also, we find about this time numbers of land deeds to and from John Watkins and Thomas Watkins of Edgecombe County, conveying lands along the banks of the Tarr River. It may be that an extended examination of the records will disclose to us whether one of these was not the father or grandfather of Levin Watkins, referred to in the following pages.

The names most frequently met with in the years immediately subsequent, from 1770 to 1790, in Edgecombe and Pitt counties, are John, William, Thomas and Sarah of Pitt County; and Stephen, Levin (sometimes written Leaven), James, Mitchell, Peter, John, John (son of John), Daniel and Benjamin of Edgecombe County. These are some of the principal names I find in the Eastern counties of North Carolina previous to the close of the Revolution. There were other families in the counties further back in the interior of the State. I have made no effort to learn anything about them or to study their movements. I have noted the fact that of the names above mentioned many of them are contemporaneous with, and are the same family names as those given as the brothers and sons of Thomas Watkins of Chickahomony, Virginia. I have noted also that Thomas

William Whitfield Watkins

Anna Knowles Watkins

Watkins of Chickahomony, Virginia, had a brother, Stephen Watkins, who was born in 1720 and died in 1755. He had children, Stephen and Elizabeth, who lived in Amelia, Virginia. It is a coincidence worth mentioning that a number of Levin Watkins' descendants referred to later bear the names of Stephen and Elizabeth. My father had an uncle and several great-uncles named Stephen. His only sister was named Elizabeth Amelia. Doubtless a more exhaustive search of the records may disclose what the connection may be, if any at all, with the Stephen Watkins of Amelia, Virginia, mentioned by Mr. Francis N. Watkins in his book.

The published list of the 55 heads of households of the family in North Carolina at the time of the first United States census, taken in 1790, will disclose who they were and where they lived at that time. It is principally my purpose to register, as far as possible, the names of the descendants of Levin Watkins (my father's great-grandfather), who was probably born in Pitt or Edgecombe County, and who lived and died in Duplin County, N. C., to which county he moved his family at an early age soon after marriage.

I am keenly aware of the fact that there are many imperfections in this paper and that it lacks much of being as thorough and as complete as I would have it. Possibly these deficiencies may be supplied in a future edition. The Watkins Gleanings, as well as the few copies of some of the records which I have collected, will be found in the subsequent pages of this book. They should be interesting as well as helpful to any of the family who might desire to follow the investigation further. I have been dependent entirely upon correspondence for most of the information obtained and no one who has not tried it knows what a difficult undertaking it is to write a history of any family as numerous as the Watkins family seems to be.

CHAPTER II.

The ancestor from whom those whose names are given in the subsequent pages of this record sprung was Levin Watkins. He lived and died in Duplin County, N. C. He was probably born about the year 1740. What I know of him I have gathered from public records and from family traditions. Up to the present time I have been unable to learn for certain what his father's name was. I have thought it most probable that he was a son of John Watkins and a grandson of William Watkins, referred to in Chapter I, whose will was recorded in Pitt County, N. C., Oct. 17, 1773. A lady interested in the family writes: "It is certain that the name Levin (Watkins) can always be traced to the eastern shores of Virginia." This is but additional evidence that Levin Watkins' family moved from Virginia to North Carolina at an early time.

It is certain that Levin Watkins and his wife lived in Edgecombe County from the date of their marriage until the year 1774. We have the record of the conveyance of 495 acres of land on the south side of the Tarr River in Edgecombe County, made to him March 7, 1770. A number of deeds of record after that time disclose the fact that his wife joined him in disposing of this land, the last conveyance being made in December, 1773. About that time he moved to Duplin County, where he lived and died in the year 1812. My information is that he was a man of kind and generous nature and much respected and beloved, especially by his own relatives. He was a man of the highest character and large influence in the county in which he lived. It has been claimed that he was a zealous supporter of the rights of the Colonies against the usurpation of the King of England. The records I have had access to do not disclose whether or not he saw service as a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Undoubtedly he took an active part as a militiaman or as a member of the Committee of Safety in the Cause of American Independence.

Unless it be that the name Leavell Watkins, referred to in Vol. 22, p. 282 N. C. Records as being in the militia, was intended for Levin Watkins, which I am inclined to think was the case (since nowhere else have I met with the name Leavell Watkins), we have no authentic record of the part he played in the history of his country before the year 1789.

It is certain that he deserved and received consideration at the hands of his countrymen at that time; for that year, as shown by the published records, together with James Kenan and James Gillespie, he represented Duplin County in the Convention at Fayetteville. For many years afterwards he represented the people of his county as State Senator from Duplin County in the North Carolina Legislature; his terms of service being as follows, viz: 1794-5, 1798-9, 1800-1-2-3.

In this connection it is interesting to note that he was the predecessor in this office of Rufus King of Duplin County, who afterward moved to Alabama and became United States Senator from that State and was elected Vice-President of the United States when Mr. Filmore was elected President. (Rufus King's home was in Dallas County, Alabama.) I have heard my father say that he was told by his mother that there was a close relationship between the families of Levin Watkins and Rufus King, whether by blood or marriage I am not able to state.

Of the times and character of people of North Carolina at that time, among whom Levin Watkins lived and made his influence felt, the following extract is taken from Wheeler's History of North Carolina, Vol. 1, p. 30:

"No freer county was ever organized by man. Freedom of conscience, freedom from taxation except by their own consent were first objects. No one could collect a debt the cause of action of which arose out of the colony within five years; the emigrant received a bounty of land. These simple laws suited a simple people, who when oppressed were as rough as the billows of the ocean. They submitted to no unjust laws, they bowed their necks to no earthly monarch."

A very interesting bit of information about Levin Watkins and his family is that furnished me a number of years ago by a prominent North Carolina minister, Rev. J. D. Hufham, aged then 82 years:

"Watkins: Levin lived and died in Duplin County. The dwelling which he built for himself, in that day a fine one, was still standing a few years ago. The plantation lies along Whiteoak branch, a tributary of Goshen Swamp. The house stands on a hill which, sloping to the north and the south, affords a beautiful view each way. After the death of Mr. Watkins the property passed into the hands of the late Stephan Graham of Kenansville, and I think it is now held by the Kenans who are his heirs.

Mr. Watkins was a Senator in the Legislature of North Carolina, 1794 and 1795; also 1799 to 1803. He was a member and also a deacon of the Baptist Church on Bear Marsh, which was organized in 1763, and was a man of large influence throughout the country.

John Watkins, son of Levin, was a member of what was then called the House of Commons in the Legislature of North Carolina, 1820 and 1821. The records in the courthouse at Kenansville will show what county offices he held. Sallie Watkins, daughter of Levin, married Needham Whitfield, being his third wife—there were four—and had among other children, Dr. Bryan Watkins Whitfield of Demopolis, Alabama. There was another Watkins who moved from Duplin into Sampson County and died during my boyhood. The people called him

"Siah"—I think his name was Josiah—and he left one child, Jesse, who may be alive now. The widow of 'Siah Watkins married a man named Carroll and they moved to Dyer County, Tennessee.

Of the ancestors of Levin Watkins I cannot give you any information. My opinion—and it is only an opinion—is, that the Watkins family of Duplin County in a branch of the great Virginia family of that name; that they came over into Bertie as did the Whitfields, the Bryans and many others, and moved over into Duplin. I think there is a grand-daughter of Levin Watkins, an old lady, now living in Mount Olive."

(I regret to state that the grand-daughter of Levin Watkins referred to died before I was able to get any information from her.) We know that Levin Watkins had two brothers, one Mitchell Watkins, who emigrated to Georgia, and Peter Watkins, who moved to Kentucky, about the year 1801. I know nothing of their descendants.

Levin Watkins was married twice, first to Edith Hiliard, a daughter of a prominent planter of Edgecombe or Northampton County, North Carolina, and second to Sarah Fonville, originally Sarah Becton, daughter of John Becton, of Craven County, whose will was proven in 1753 (See Grimes Abstract of N. C. Wills). John Becton appears to have been a man of great wealth, as indicated by the terms of his will.

This record could be extended beyond the limits I have proposed with interesting observations and information gathered about the above mentioned families and allied families of Bryan, Whitfield, Hatches, and others.

I have been unable to include in the record of the names of the descendants of Levin Watkins any except those whose families emigrated to Alabama and Mississippi in the early part of the last century. So far as I have been able to learn them these are enumerated in subsequent pages. Levin Watkins by his first wife had eight sons, possibly nine, and one daughter, and by his second wife two sons and one daughter. The following interesting record of the descendants of Levin Watkins comes from one of his grandsons, Dr. R. E. Watkins, who lived and died in Eutaw, Alabama:

"The first of the Watkins family in the United States were three brothers who came over from Wales, Levin, Mitchell and Peter Watkins, brothers. Descended from the above stock: Mitchell moved to Georgia and Peter to Kentucky in about the year 1801 or 1802. These lived originally in Duplin County, N. C. Levin Watkins, our grandfather, married Edith Hilliard and had by her Thomas, Jesse, John, Sally, William, Mitchell, Levin, Peter and Bryan. Levin Watkins' wife, Edith, died and he married Sarah Fonville, originally Sarah Becton. By her he had Brice, Becton and Sarah. James Watkins married a Miss Fanny Hooks and had five children, Needham, Thomas, James Becton, and Needham lived in Scott County, Mississippi, when last heard from. James went to Arkansas. Jesse never married, but died in Greene County, Alabama. John married Polly Gilmore in North Carolina and had about fourteen children, Stephen, Sophy, William, John, Bryan, Cicero, Levin, Peter, Elizabeth, Lucy, James, Edith, Sallie. He lived in Mississippi and he and his wife are both dead. Their children live near where he lived, what few of them are living.

Sallie married Needham Whitfield and had two children, Edith and Betsy, both dead.

William married Miss Peterson; died in Bibb County.

Mitchell married Miss Penny Coleman; had Levin, Kindred, Sally and Rebecca. Levin lives in Kemper County, Miss. Kindred died in Texas and Sally married Mr. Jos. Smith. Rebecca married Sam Robinson, have seven children and live in Anderson County, Texas.

Gaineswood, near Demopolis. Residence of Gen. N. B. Whitfield.

Levin married a Miss Sallie Coleman, had two children, Narcissa and Eliza. Married Sam Taylor, who died, and she lives near Warsaw, in Sumter County, Alabama. Eliza married John Newton Hutton and lives in Greene County, Alabama.

Peter married a Miss Catherine McDuffie and had three children, Caroline, and, and died in Mississippi near Brandon.

Bryan married Miss Susan Anderson and had three children, Thomas, Elizabeth and Susan Jane. His wife, Susan, died, then he married Lucy Johnson, daughter of Edward Brown, and by her had Robert Emmett, Edward, Martha, Sarah, Agnes, John B. and Isaiah Becton.

Becton married in North Carolina and had one child, Elizabeth Becton. He died in North Carolina. Brice and Sarah, both dead.

This statement was given to me I think, in the year 1862, by my father, Bryan Watkins.

R. E. WATKINS."

CHAPTER III.

Thomas Watkins is mentioned as one of the sons of Levin Watkins. He was doubtless the oldest. I know nothing of him or his descendants, if he had any. Jesse Watkins, another son, never married. He died in Green County, Alabama. James Watkins, another son, married Miss Fannie Hooks, of Duplin County. I know nothing of him except what is said of him in the record of Dr. R. E. Watkins given in the preceding chapter.

Charles Hooks, of Duplin County, a relative of James Watkins' wife (Fannie Hooks), was elected to Congress in 1817 and again in 1821 and 1823. He also moved to South Alabama where doubtless some of his descendants are now living. One of the most graphic descriptions I have seen of the "Battle of Moore's Creek," was that recorded in Wheeler's North Carolina Sketches and given (in her own words) by Mary Hooks, a sister of Hon. Charles Hooks. She was the wife of Ezekiel Slocumb, a member of the North Carolina Commons in 1812 to 1818.

John Watkins, who was born Nov. 20, 1780, was the third son of Levin Watkins. He was my father's grandfather, which is the only explanation necessary to be made of the fact that I have learned more of him and his descendants than of the other descendants of Levin Watkins. Though he died many years before I was born, I have heard much of his life and character from other members of the family who remembered him.

John Watkins was married at an early age in Duplin County, N. C., to Miss Polly Gilmore, daughter of John Gilmore. He raised a large family of children, most of whom were born in Duplin County, North Carolina. He was a plain, unassuming man of the highest character, particularly distinguished for his industry and benevolence. It is stated that "he was held in the very highest esteem by the people of his county in North Carolina," and that it was with much regret that they consented to give him up when, led by that spirit of adventure which prompted so many at the time, he decided to seek his fortune in the "wilds of Alabama and Mississippi." As previously noticed, it is a matter of record that he was a member of what was then known as the House of Commons in the North Carolina Legislature in 1820 and 1821. It is also certain that he held other county offices, the identity of which may be ascertained by consulting the county records at Kenansville.

John Watkins and his family (many of whom had then grown to maturity) removed about the year 1830 to Green County, Alabama, where he lived for a number of years, until about 1837, when as one of the early settlers in a new country, he located at Palo Alto, a few miles west of what is now the city of West Point, Miss. He bought a farm there, where he died in 1866. His wife died in 1861. It is stated that he was a well-to-do planter and was greatly respected and beloved, especially by his own kinsmen. He possessed in a remarkable degree two of the predominant traits of his family—honesty and courage. It was doubtless because of these traits and because of his fine sense of right and justice that he was often called upon to act as "arbiter of disputes" in controversies arising between his neighbors.

Among some of his old papers now in existence I have noted several manuscripts showing certain settlements he made with the probate court as guardian for his minor brothers and sisters in North Carolina, under date July 6, 1815; also several old letters which he received from his nephew, Gen. Nathan B. Whitfield, of Demopolis, Ala. These letters written, the first in 1853, are characteristic of the times in which they are written, and especially indicative of the very affectionate regard in which John Watkins was held by his kinsmen.

It was never my pleasure to know any of his sons and daughters whose names are given in this record. They all died before I reached maturity. My own grandfather, Bryan Watkins, died when my father was a child, in 1854. As has been stated, John Watkins contributed many sons and grandsons to the cause of the Confederacy. The late Dr. W. B. Gunn of West Point, Miss., who was a grandson, writes interestingly of their valor on many fields of battle. I have heard my father say that his brother, John Hatch Watkins, was one of the bravest men he ever knew. It is stated that Stephen G. Watkins (oldest son of John Watkins) contributed to the cause five brave Confederate soldiers, of whom one, Stephen, was killed in the war; two, Thaddeus H. and Dr. Wm. Bryan Watkins, were fearfully wounded, and one, John L. Watkins, became captain of his company. Stephen G. Watkins, the oldest son, married Polly Kornegay of Duplin County, N. C., and had four sons and daughters. Their sons, Capt. John L. Watkins and Thaddeus H. Watkins, died some years ago in Clay County, Miss., each having passed their seventieth birthday. They were greatly respected and beloved by all who knew them. I am much indebted to the untiring efforts of Mrs. John R. Egger of West Point, Miss., (daughter of Thaddeus H. Watkins), for valuable assistance in securing the many names for this record.

Of the sons and daughters of John Watkins, Edith, the oldest, married Robert McGowen of York, Ala. They had eight sons and daughters whose names, together with their descendants, are enumerated in a subsequent chapter. I know but few of this family. Many prominent descendants are now living in the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee. Mr. T. P. McGowen and his brother, W. E. McGowen, are prosperous merchants of Cuba, Alabama. I am much indebted to Mr. T. P. McGowen and Mrs. M. B. Hightower of Hattiesburg, Miss., for the names of the descendants of Edith Watkins and Robert McGowen.

William A. Watkins, another son, died in 1858 near West Point, Miss. He was married to Elizabeth Wooten and had one son, who was killed in the war in 1863, and four daughters, whose descendants, representatives of many families, are widely scattered. Among the families represented are Kennedy, Ellis and others. One of the daughters of William A. Watkins married Robert Ellis. They had eleven children. He is dead, but his widow, Bettie Watkins Ellis, is now living at Lake Charles, La. One of her sons, Dale Ellis, is a prominent business man and planter of Tallulah, La. The descendants are enumerated below:

Captain John R. Watkins was another son of John Watkins, who was a captain in the Confederate army, and did valiant service for his State throughout the four years of fratricidal strife. He died at the age of 78 in Clay County, Miss. Mr. John T. Watkins, a son, is now living in West Point. John R. Gates, a grandson, lives in Memphis, Tenn. There are many other descendants whose names are given in this record.

Sophriann, a daughter, married Glisson Swinson, in North Carolina. They lived in Mississippi. Two sons, John and William, died in the war. One son, James Swinson, married Lucinda Youngblood; another son, Alphions, married Callie Calloway. The entire family moved to Texas in 1869.

Polly Watkins, a daughter, married Lewis Stephens. They raised a large family and have many descendants. One son, Hubert Stephens, a member of a company (Chickasaw Guards) under Capt. W. F. Tucker, 11th Mississippi, was in many battles in the Civil War. He was killed in 1864 at Petersburg, Va. Another son, Cicero Stephens, was wounded five times in the war in as many battles. I know few of the representatives of this family. Frank B. Stephens, at this time (1917) is a member of the Mississippi Legislature from Clay County. John G. Thompson and his brother, William L. Thompson, prominent business men of West Point, Miss., are grandsons.

Bryan Watkins (my grandfather) married Susan Whitfield, daughter of Hatch Whitfield, and lived and died (at the age of 30) near Aberdeen, Miss. They had three sons and one daughter. I have heard it said that Bryan Watkins (like many others of the family) was a man of gentle bearing and commanding appearance and that he enjoyed great personal popularity. I have often heard my father lament the untimely death of his father. Though he could not remember him, he was taught to revere his memory. The daughter (Aunt Amelia) became the wife of Mason Cummings, a gallant Confederate soldier and an attorney of Aberdeen. The children of this union are splendid men and women. All but one live in Texas. Hon. Bryan Yancy Cummings is an attorney at Hillsboro, Texas. Dr. John Hatch Cummings is a prominent business man of Hearne, Texas. The oldest daughter, Lelia, married a Mr. Hardy in Texas. Emma married Sam Montgomery. They live in New Orleans. The name of Sam Montgomery is well known throughout Louisiana. Besides being a well-known practicing attorney he has held many offices of trust and honor in the city of New Orleans. The youngest daughter, Sue, married Geo. A. Duren, state engineer for the State of Texas.

Uncle John Hatch Watkins' children live in Louisiana and New Mexico. My own brothers live here in Aberdeen. One sister, Mrs. John Gibson, lives in Memphis, Tenn. The other sister, Mrs. Wiley P. Harris, lives in Jackson, Miss.

To the memory of my own dear father I would dedicate this humble effort to record some of the memorials of the virtues of our family, among whom his virtues were not the least. To his great spirit, manifesting itself to me in a thousand ways as only the wise and affectionate father could, I owe most that I am and hope to be in this world.

His life-long friend, Major S. A. Jonas, editor of the Aberdeen Examiner, paid the following tribute to his memory :

"The death of Dr. W. W. Watkins, president of the Bank of Aberdeen, at an early hour Tuesday morning, after a long illness, cast a gloom over our city. He was a remarkable man in many respects, big of brain and indomitable in spirit; self-reliant and ardent in his attachments; independent in thought and action; progressive and prophetic in all of his undertakings, he would have been a man of mark in any community.

In early life he was fatherless; to a large extent raised by a step-father who little understood or appreciated the yearnings and possibilities of the 'bare-foot boy.' As little more than a child he ran away from home to join the Confederate army, and served with honor to the end.

The surrender found him without education or resources, but with the indomitable will that characterized him, by hard study while at his bread-getting and the reading of the very best literature attainable—a practice never abandoned—he became one of the best-informed men in a community noted for its erudition, and achieved the profession of physician, which he practiced for years as the foundation of a fortune that became colossal.

Early appreciating the advantages of land investment and agriculture he put all his earnings and savings into real estate, and at his death was an extensive prairie planter with over five thousand acres of the choicest land, besides many smaller tracts in the county, three plantations in the Delta, valuable holdings in Memphis and Birmingham and in his home town. He also owned a majority of the stock in the Bank of Aberdeen.

To scores of people, white and colored, he was a benefactor, and we know of numerous instances of his aid and patience where other resources would have failed.

He was considerable of a traveler, having visited all sections of this country and toured Europe and the East.

He will be greatly missed by all of us. We were personally favored by his confidence and friendship, and will long miss the many pleasant conversations at buggy side and desk when he detailed results of financial investments or agricultural experiments.

Our deepest sympathy goes to the devoted wife and sons and daughters who mourn a loving and indulgent husband and father."

Of the many sons and daughters of John Watkins, not the least splendid were the daughters. Lucy Eliza married John White of Clay County. It is said that she was the favorite of the family. I have thought that this must have been true, for every member that I have talked with about the family has had some "glowing accounts" to give of the splendid virtues of this good woman. She died without issue in 1880.

Another daughter, Elizabeth Amelia, was married three times, first to a Mr. Lowe of Alabama, second to Rev. William Gunn, and third to Geo. W. Grimes. She had only one child, the late Dr. W. B. Gunn, to whose kindly interest I am much indebted for inspiration and encouragement in this effort. Ivy Gunn, Robert Gunn, J. B. Gunn, of West Point, are the only living representatives of this family.

James Becton Watkins, the youngest son of John Watkins, was married in 1859 to Nancy Gosa. They had one son, John Becton, and two daughters, Mary B. and Sallie. Mary became the wife of Dr. William V. Saul of Montpelier, Miss. This splendid woman died a few years ago at her home at Montpelier. The following tribute to her memory was taken from a newspaper published in West Point:

"Miss Mary Watkins was born at Griffith, Clay County, Miss, Oct. 17, 1859. Here she grew up to womanhood among her relatives and friends, a universal favorite.

She was married to Dr. W. V. Saul, of Montpelier, May 25, 1884. So suited did she and Dr. Saul seem, it is scarcely possible to imagine a happier wedded life than theirs, while she shared all the anxieties and all the joys of their union.

She was a most devoted mother, leaving four loving and broken-hearted children to mourn her going. Dr. Willie Saul was only a step-son but he knew no difference in treatment or love.

No neighbor was better loved, or kinder to those in distress. She accepted Christ as her Savior some twenty years ago. She enjoyed her religion because she lived it. She verily 'walked with God.' As one who shared the hospitality of her home, I can never forget it. She was so universally cheerful and hopeful in folks and God that she made those who came in contact with her more devout.

She died on March 31.

'Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep,
A calm and undisturbed repose
Unbroken by the last of foes.'

Is surely her lot, so richly deserved.

CHAPTER IV.

Sally Watkins, daughter of Levin Watkins and Edith Hilliard Watkins, was born in Duplin County, North Carolina, February 28, 1777. She married Needham Whitfield. Her only descendants are the descendants of her daughter, Betsy, who married her cousin, Gen. Nathan Bryan Whitfield, of Demopolis, Alabama. Their numerous descendants are widely scattered.

The name of Gen. Nathan B. Whitfield holds a very high place among the many prominent members of this talented and well known family whose lives and characters have become integral parts of the history of Alabama and Mississippi. He was a man of undoubted genius, of great energy and industry. It is said that he was the possessor of great wealth (how much inherited and how much acquired I have not been informed). I have had very interesting accounts from my father and other members of the family of the "gay and happy life of ante-bellum days" down in South Alabama. My father's maternal grandfather, Hatch Whitfield, moved from North Carolina to Demopolis before finally settling in Monroe County, Mississippi, in 1837.

Of the sons and daughters of Gen. Nathan B. Whitfield and his wife, Betsy, Mary Elizabeth married Wm. Whitfield of Columbus, Miss.; Dr. Bryan Watkins of Demopolis married Mary Alice Fortescue and raised a large family; Nathan Bryan married Medora Shackelford of Sumner County, Ala.; Edith James married Gen. C. W. Dustan of New York; Betsy Winifred married Col. F. E. Whitfield, a brilliant and successful attorney of Corinth, Miss. Their only son, Edwin Nott Whitfield, is a successful attorney in New York City.

This narration could be extended much beyond what I have intended in detailing incidents of interest in the life of Gen. Nathan Whitfield. It is said that he was the possessor of a "decidedly musical talent" and that he found ample time to cultivate the aesthetic side of life.

The late W. W. Finley, President of the Southern Railroad, in a letter to the Tupelo Journal Sept. 17, 1913, in giving some early history of South Alabama, has the following to say about Demopolis:

"I have been much interested in looking up the followers of Napoleon who settled in Alabama early in the last century, and it has occurred to me that the readers of our Southern newspapers might be interested in a brief account of one of the most romantic attempts at colonization made in the Southeastern States.

"The location of this colony was in what is now the fertile and prosperous region in Southwest Alabama, of which the thriving city of Demopolis is the center.

"For pioneer romance, hardship and misfortune, which later gave place to a cultured and wealthy and antebellum civilization and present-day prosperity and development, that region enjoys a historic interest unique in American annals.

"In the early history of this great agricultural country—then dense forest and wild canebrake—are woven the names of men and women who had played conspicuous parts in the greatest drama of war and nations the world has ever seen. Men who had led armies in conflicts the result of which had changed the map of Europe, and women who had adorned the Imperial Courts of France, took up the life of pioneers in the endeavor to found in the then primeval forest, a colony to cultivate the vine and the olive. The story of their misfortunes and trials in the rude life of the frontier and the utter failure of the venture is one full of interest.

* * * * *

"A single olive tree in Demopolis and a grapevine or two near Greensboro mark the places they left. Demopolis—city of the people—the name given the settlement by the exiles from Bourbon rule, and Marengo, the name given the county in which it lies in honor of one of Napoleon's great victories, together with a few French names, borne by the descendants of those who remained, serve to show today that the country was one peopled by sons and daughters of France. Though the French established no characteristic civilization in Marengo County, built no monuments, and left no houses to mark their impress upon the land, it is still upon the people in refinement, in gentleness and in princely hospitality.

"As the colony began to disintegrate American settlers moved in, many honorably buying the colonists' grants for fair consideration. Among them were cultured and talented young men who not only cleared the land and put vast areas under cultivation, but established a civilization of the highest class. The land on which the French had labored so vainly to grow the vine and olive responded bountifully to the Southern planter and by 1850 had become one vast area of plantations, penetrated by numerous broad roads, and inhabited by thousands of happy and industrious people, living on estates maintained in highest cultivation. In the midst of this civilization there arose many stately homes, among them being some of the handsomest mansions of the South. 'Gaineswood' is a Demopolis show place which has been visited by architects from all parts of the country and was declared by an eminent authority the 'purest type of Grecian architecture in America.' It was built by Gen. Nathan B. Whitfield on the site of the home of George Strother Gaines, who was the government agent dealing with the Choctaws at the time the French settled Demopolis. In 1863 'Gaineswood' was the headquarters of General Polk. 'Bluff Hall,' another handsome home, is second only to 'Gaineswood,' and many other homes erected prior to the war between the states are still found in Demopolis and the surrounding country."

The descendants of Gen. Nathan Bryan Whitfield and his wife, Betsy, are given in the annexed catalogue, for which I am indebted to the kindly interest of Mr. Jesse G. Whitfield, a grandson, of Demopolis.

William Watkins is mentioned as another son of Levin Watkins. I know nothing of him or his descendants except what is stated by Dr. R. E. Watkins, viz., that he married a Miss Peterson and died in Bibb County, Ala.

Another son, Mitchell Watkins, married Penny Coleman. Their descendants are widely scattered. Many of them live in Kemper County, Miss. Mr. C. H. Watkins, of DeKalb, Miss., a grandson, has furnished the names of the descendants, which are included in the catalogue of names annexed. Those living in Kemper County are among the representative citizens of that county.

Levin Watkins, another son, was born in Duplin County, N. C., in 1791, and died in Warsaw, Sumpter County, Ala. He was married twice: first to Sallie Coleman (she was a sister to Mitchell's wife); second, to Mary Thompson. A long list of splendid men and women are descendants of Levin Watkins. Two of Levin Watkins' (the second) grand daughters are now living: Mrs. Sallie Hatter and Mrs. Robert Hibbler, of Gainesville, Sumpter County, Ala.

Of the sons and daughters of Levin Watkins (the second), Elizabeth Jane married John N. Hutton and had sons and daughters as follows: Mrs. Sallie Hatter, Augustus C. Hutton, John A. Hutton and Josephine Hutton. Another daughter of Levin Watkins (the second), Narcissa, married Samuel Taylor in Green County, Ala. Representing this family are Mrs. Robert Hibbler; Julian J. Gill of Starkville, Miss.; Samuel Taylor Barnes, Wm. W. Barnes, J. R. Barnes, and Mrs. C. W. Brumley of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dr. S. W. Taylor of Warsaw, Ala.; Earl Taylor of Marietta, Ala.; and many others.

Of the lives of Levin and Bryan Watkins, sons of Levin Watkins, I know little. I have never met any of their descendants. I infer from the very affectionate regard in which their memories are held by their descendants that they were men of splendid character from every point of view. I have had very interesting accounts about them in correspondence with Mrs. Hibbler, who, in common with many others, exhibits much interest in the history of her kindred for whom "the attachment reaches to the remotest relative."

Bryan Watkins, another son of Levin Watkins, was born in Duplin County, N. C., and died in Green County Ala. He was married twice: first to Susan Anderson, and second to Lucy Johnson, originally Lucy Brown. I am much indebted to the kindly interest of Judge T. W. Coleman of Eutaw, Ala., a relative of Levin Watkins' wife and nephew of Bryan Watkins' wife, Susan Anderson, for information about this family as well as about the family of Levin Watkins (the second). Of the sons and daughters of Bryan Watkins, Robert Emmett was the oldest. He married a Miss Oliver and lived and died in Eutaw, Ala., leaving two daughters, Lucy Watkins and Anna Watkins. Lucy Watkins married Edwin Wilson of Eutaw, and Anna married John Pool. Of Robert Emmett Watkins it is said that he was a man of the highest character and held in the highest esteem by all, both young and old. He was captain in the Confederate army and did valiant service for his country throughout the war.

Another son of Bryan Watkins was William E. Watkins. The following account of his death was taken from a Green County, Ala., newspaper a few years ago:

"Capt. Wm. Edward Watkins of Huntsville, Texas, died in Houston, Texas, June 28, 1915, aged 84. He was born in Green County, Ala., April 18, 1831. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Lucy Watkins Jardines, of Texas. His wife was Miss Irene Wynne, daughter of Col. Erasmus and Mrs. Sophronia Wynne."

Martha Ann, daughter of Bryan Watkins, married Jack Baker and had three daughters: Mrs. Leighton Winn, of Stewart's Station, Hale County, Ala.; Mrs. Stewart living near Mobile, and Mrs. Cooper of Green County.

John B. Watkins, another son of Bryan Watkins, married a Miss Brown, daughter of George Brown of Sumpter County. One son, George, lived in Louisiana.

Brice Watkins and Bector Watkins, sons of Levin Watkins, lived and died in North Carolina. I know nothing of their descendants.

ADDENDA

WHITFIELD-BRYAN FAMILIES

The following is an extract from "The North Carolina Historical and Genealogical Register," Vol. 1, No. 4, pp. 567, 568, 569 and 577:

"The WHITFIELDS came from Lancashire, England. This record begins with the first Whitfield who came to North Carolina. WILLIAM WHITFIELD came from England the early part of the eighteenth century and settled in Nansemond County, Va. He married ELIZABETH GOODMAN of Gates County, N. C., in 1713, then settled in Bertie County, but eventually moved to Rockford, Lenoir County, N. C. They had four sons and six daughters. WILLIAM, Matthew, Luke and Constantine; Mary, Margaret, Sarah, Patience, Elizabeth and Charity.

The second WILLIAM WHITFIELD (son of WILLIAM WHITFIELD and ELIZABETH GOODMAN), born May 20, 1715, died March 31, 1795. Married Nov. 6, 1741, RACHEL BRYAN (daughter of NEEDHAM BRYAN and his first wife ANNE ROMBEAU). RACHEL BYRAN was born June 10, 1723, died November, 1780.

Issue, four sons and five daughters, viz.:

- (1) WILLIAM WHITFIELD III, born June 1, 1743, died March, 1817.
- (2) Elizabeth Whitfield, born March 16, 1746.
- (3) Sarah Whitfield, born April 16, 1749; died Jan. 22, 1780.
- (4) Charity Whitfield, born April 6, 1756; died August 21, 1818.
- (5) Needham Whitfield, born Feb. 20, 1758; died April 6, 1812.
- (6) Bryan Whitfield, born Feb. 9, 1754.

(7) Rachel Whitfield, born Sept. 16, 1760.

(8) Mary Whitfield, born May 18, 1763.

(9) Lewis Whitfield, born 1766.

WILLIAM WHITFIELD, III. (son of WILLIAM WHITFIELD and wife RACHEL BRYAN) married first Hester Williams, daughter of Joseph Williams of Duplin County, and had issue:

- (1) William Whitfield IV, married Mary Beck
- (2) Mary married Buckner Killebrew.
- (3) Bryan married first Miss Miller, 2nd Miss Grady.
- (4) Joseph married Miss Grady.
- (5) Needham married Miss Nevill.
- (6) Lewis married Miss Wimberly.
- (7) Betsy married John Keatly.
- (8) Rachel married 1st John Hurst, 2nd Joseph Miller.
- (9) Sallie married 1st Thomas Collier (brother of Probst Collier), 2nd Mr. St. George.
- (10, 11, 12, 13) Died in infancy.

WILLIAM WHITFIELD, III. married 2nd Mrs. Sallie Hurst (daughter of Sallie Oliver) and had issue:

(14, 15, 16) Died in infancy.

WILLIAM WHITFIELD, III. married 3rd HEPSIBAH HATCH. Issue:

- (17) HATCH WHITFIELD,
married his cousin, HEP-SIBAH (daughter of
NEEDHAM and BETSY
HATCH WHITFIELD.

NEEDHAM WHITFIELD, I., died April 6, 1812, and was buried at White Hall, Wayne County, N. C."

"WILLIAM BRYAN came to America, settled in Isle of Wight County, Va.; afterwards he and two sons, NEEDHAM and John Bryan, came to North Carolina about 1722. His son WILLIAM re-married in Virginia and is thought to be the ancestor of William Jennings Bryan.

WILLIAM BRYAN I. was said to have come originally from Ireland. He is buried in Pasquotank County, N. C. He married in England, about 1689, ALICE NEEDHAM, said to be the daughter of LORD NEEDHAM. They had one son, NEEDHAM BRYAN, born Feb. 23, 1690, who came from Virginia and settled at Snowfield, Bertie County, N. C. He married ANNIE ROMBEAU, Nov. 11, 1711. She died Jan. 16, 1730. August 24, 1732, he married his second wife, Susanna Harrell. She died in 1752. Then he married third Sarah Woodward. They are all buried at Snowfields.

NEEDHAM BRYAN and ANNIE ROMBEAU, his first wife, had one daughter and two sons, viz.:

- (1) RACHEL BRYAN, married WILLIAM WHITFIELD Nov. 6, 1741.
- (2) William Bryan married Elizabeth Smith (daughter of John Smith).
- (3) Needham Bryan married Nancy Smith (daughter of John Smith)."

Rev. William Leigh was ordained by the Bishop of London in 1772. * * * He married the daughter of BENJAMIN WATKINS, Clerk of Chesterfield County.

The name of WATKINS is often to be found on our vestry books as members of the vestries in different parishes. Many of the name for a century past has been found in different connections. In the year 1745 a Mr. THOMAS WATKINS, of Henrico, son of EDWARD WATKINS, is presented for reflecting upon the Established Church, and saying, "Your churches and chapels are no better than synagogues of satan." He was, however, dismissed without fine or injury. This was probably the commencement of defection in that family from the Established Church. I have before me a pamphlet by Mr. FRANCIS WATKINS, of Prince Edward, in which is contained a full genealogy of all the branches of this wide-spread and respectable family, so far as it can be ascertained, to the present time. It is supposed to be of Welch descent. The name of James Watkins appears among the early emigrants to Virginia in 1607 or 1608. He was a companion of Smith in his perilous voyages of discovery in Virginia, and may, it is supposed, have been the first ancestor of the family;

but nothing was certainly known except of the descendants of THOMAS WATKINS, of Swift Creek, Cumberland County—now Powhatan—whose will bears date 1760. He had eight children. His eldest son, THOMAS, of Chickahominy, is spoken of thus by the late BENJAMIN WATKINS LEIGH, his great-nephew: "Of Thomas Watkins, of Chickahominy, I have heard very full accounts from my mother (wife of the Rev. William Leigh, of Chesterfield), and from my uncle, Thomas, both of whom knew him well. He was a man of the highest respectability in every point of view, and in particular a man of indefatigable industry." He reared a large family of children, four sons and seven daughters, from whom have proceeded numerous families of numerous names, in, and out of Virginia. Of his sons, Joel Watkins, of Charlotte, Mr. John Randolph of Roanoke, in a manuscript left behind him, says: "On Sunday, the second of January, departed this life Colonel Joel Watkins, beloved, honoured, and lamented by all who knew him. Without shining abilities or the advantages of an education, by plain, straightforward industry, under the guidance of old-fashioned honesty and practical good sense, he accumulated an ample fortune, in which it is firmly believed there was not one dirty shilling." Much is said of the worth and piety of the other children of Thomas Watkins, in the pamphlet referred to, and of the descendants of the same, which is worthy of perusal. In the appendix of the same there is a special notice of his brother, Benjamin Watkins, youngest son of the first Thomas, of Powhatan, who married Miss Cary of Warwick. He was the first clerk of Chesterfield County, which office he held until his death. He was a man of genius, a scholar and patriot, took an active part in the affairs of the Revolution, and was a member of the Convention of 1776. The Rev. Mr. Leigh, of Chesterfield, married his daughter, and was the father of the late Benjamin Watkins Leigh, of Richmond, and the present Judge William Leigh, of Halifax; also of Mrs. Finnie of Powhatan, and Mrs. Harris, of Petersburg. One of the sons (Thomas) of Benjamin Watkins, the clerk of Chesterfield, married Rebecca Selden, daughter of Miles Selden, of Henrico parish. Their daughter Mary was the first wife of Benjamin Watkins Leigh of Halifax, and their daughter Hannah, Dr. John Barksdale of Halifax. Their eldest daughter (Hannah) of Benjamin Watkins married a Mr. William Finnie, of Amelia, from whom descended numerous families of Finnies, Royalls, Wore-shams, Sydnors, and others in Virginia, South Carolina and the West. It will be remembered that we have spoken of a Rev. Alexander Finnie, as a minister in Prince George in the year 1774, and probably before that. On inquiry we find that he was connected with this family, but how nearly cannot be ascertained. He may have been closely allied to the first named William Finnie, of Amelia.
