The Discovery of the Land.

"This is a very good land to fall in with and a pleasant land to see."—From the log of the "Half Moon."

Sir Henry Hudson, in the "Half Moon," in the latter part of August, 1609, left Delaware bay, and on Sept. 2 passed Barnegat inlet, then unnamed, and anchored for the night along the Jersey coast, probably off the site of the present Asbury Park.

"At 5 o'clock we anchored, being light wind, and rode in eight fathoms of water, the night was fair. This night I found the land to have the compass eight degrees. Far to the northward we saw high hills; for the day before we found not above two degrees of variation."—Log of the Half Moon," dated Sept. 2, 1609.

The high hills referred to were probably the Highlands, or they might have been the sand hills behind Asbury Park. The "Half Moon" arrived off the Narrows the next day at 3 o'clock. There is no doubt but that the anchorage referred to was between Asbury Park and Long Branch, and it is more than likely that it was at or near the former place, for, the Highlands would not be so "far to the northward" from Long Branch, and they may be plainly seen from the deck of a vessel off the beach at Asbury.

The Purchase of the Land.

Three Indian deeds cover the section of New Jersey embraced by old Monmouth county. They were dated in January and April, 1665-6, and were duly acknowledged before Governor Nichols of New York. On April 7, 1665-6, the governor signed the Monmouth patent.

A most curious sight the acknowledgment of these deeds must have been. Sixteen Indians, 13 white men, the governor and his executives. The Indians in their primitive dress, the whites in the dull garb of Quakers, Puritans and Long Island Dutch, the governor and his men in the uniforms of their rank.

The Indians who deeded the land were: Popomora or Popomera and his brother Mischacoing, Manavendo, Emerdesolsee, Checawsen, Shenhemun, Cramanscum, Winegermeen, Mecca, Taplawappamund, Mattamaluckanick, Zawpochammund, Kack-enham, Cattano, Norchon and Qurrmeck.

The white men who purchased the land were: James Hubbard, John Bowne, John Tilton, jr., Richard Stout, William Goulding, Samuel Spicer, Richard Gibbons, James Grover, Walter Clarke, William Reape, Nathaniel Silvester, Obadiah Holmes and Nicholas Davis, all, with the exception of the first mentioned, in the Monmouth Patent as the first proprietors.

Monmouth County was named and established March 7, 1682-3.

Revolutionary Days Around Shark River.

Shrewsbury, in which township the Shark River section lay during the struggle for independence, harbored many who preferred the British yoke to freedom.

Britten, Briton or Britton White, Josiah White, Ebenezer and Peter Wardell, Samuel, John and Morford Taylor, Peter Van Note, James Mount, Clayton Tilton, James Curles (Corlies), John and Robert Morris, Robert Stout, John Williams, and his son John, Christopher and Oliver Tallman, John Warde, Michael, William and James Price, James Pintard, Samuel Cook, James Boggs, Asael Chandler, John Hankinson, Timothy Scoby, William Lawrence, Tobias Kiker, Richard Lippincott, Benjamin Woolley, Nathaniel Parker, John Hampton, and Jacob Emmons, were all "fugitives and offenders," tories who assisted the British against their own relatives and countrymen. The lands of the above mentioned were confiscated and sold at Tinton Falls, March 29, 1779, and on May 3, of the same year, notice was given for all who had claims on any of the estates sold to bring their accounts before the Court of Common Pleas at Freehold before the twentieth of the month that they might be settled.

Some of the tories regained their lands and their descendants are still among us, but many escaped to New York and went to England and Canada. Britton White, Josiah White, John Morris, Robert Morris, James Corlies and Benjamin Woolley all have descendants now living between Deal and the Manasquan.

During the Revolution, the Continental government established many salt works along the New Jersey coast. One was located on the south bank of Squan Inlet, one on the south bank of Shark River Inlet, another on the south bank of Shark River about where the bridge now enters Belmar.

Salt was necessary for the use of the Continental army, and the rebel salt works were made the object of special attention by the British army. In April, 1778, on Sunday, the fifth, to be exact, a large party of British, mostly "Greens" and Highlanders, landed on the south side of Squan Inlet and destroyed the salt works, broke the massive iron kettles used to boil the sea water, and burned all the houses within easy reach. They recognized none among the inhabitants as friends, and greatly to the rejoicing of the rebels, it was the Tories that suffered the greatest loss. The troops later crossed the inlet and burned every house to the northward with the exception of that owned by Derric Longstreet, a Tory.

The next day, April 6, 1778, the same party landed on the south side of Shark River Inlet and destroyed both salt works there. The troops were reported to have been 135 in number, and while at work on the second building were surprised by a body of 15 mounted militia men, who routed them so badly that in reembarking the British sank two of their flat-bottomed boats.

About the time of the destruction of the salt works on Shark River, a farmer, one John Davis, lived on its banks. He owned a highly prized bay mare, which was stolen on Aug. 3, 1778, presumably by the Pine Robbers.

Duck Creek, now a muddy, silt-filled brook, then open to the sea with an ebbing and flowing tide, and water enough to float a schooner of large size, played its part in the exciting events of the times. Supplies were carried from the farms surrounding and shipped aboard schooners and sloops for Philadelphia and New York.

The Diamond, a British ship, on or about April 1, 1778, sighted the masts of a schooner lying in Duck Creek. She sailed to the inlet, landed troops, and after a brisk skirmish, landed the prize with 20 prisoners, among whom were two famous New Jersey pilots, Henry Tudor and James Bruce. The prize was taken to New York and sold.

News reached New York, July 28, 1777, of a brig which had been captured south of Deal and had been beached at that place. The rebels were reported to be busily engaged in removing her cargo inland and in stripping the hull. This brig was a prize of the British frigates Milford and Thames. She was first taken on her voyage from Oporto to Petersburg by a rebel privateer and was sent to Boston, but was retaken by the Milford and Thames frigates.

With a prize-master aboard she was ordered to New York, but, to secure fresh water, or for some other reason unknown, the officer in charge saw fit to call on the coast at the foot of Deal Lake, or Long Pond, as it was then called, then a safe and good harbor, where she was promptly captured by the

New Jersey militia, and her cargo of "oyl, lemons, wine and Brasil (Brazil) sugar" was immediately carried up country by the Jerseymen, the ship dismantled, and the hull left to go to pieces on the beach.

Long Branch was the scene of another looting. The brigantine Mary and Anne, commanded by Captain Jacobs, was captured in June or July, 1777, by Captain James Morgan and his company of militia, to the southward of Long Branch, to which place she was taken and dismantled on the beach. Her contents were sold Aug. 5, 1777, at the court house, Freehold, and doubtless the farmers lived well for some time after the sale, as the cargo consisted of "fine white sugar in boxes and casks, sweet oil in barrels, lemons in boxes, ground sumac in sacks, figs in baskets, corks cut and uncut, casks of almonds, lees of wine for clothiers" etc. Anchors, sails, rigging and the hull (that at that time lay on the beach at Long Branch) were also sold at Freehold.

Deal Lake saw its days of excitement, and, could it repeat its own history, would fill many pages. "Uncle Billy White," who died recently, a fine old man of New Jersey colonial stock, often repeated tales told by his grandfather. No dates were mentioned, but they probably come within the scope of this article.

All travel from Long Branch to Manasquan was made over a trail or road which touched both sides of Deal Lake about where the Park Avenue bridge now stands. Travelers either swam their horses over the lake, then waded with a deep flowing channel, or were ferried across in a small boat, leading the horses from the stern. The spot was favored by a band of highwaymen, who usually waited for part of the party to cross, then held up the remainder in full sight of those who had passed over, relieved them of their valuables and disappeared. After many fruitless attempts to capture them, they were surrounded while in the act of robbery by two parties of British horsemen who drove them into the channel where all were shot or drowned.

A privateer sloop was built on the south branch of Deal Lake, but before her masts were raised information was sent to the British who came in force to demolish it. The owners received notice of the approach of the enemy and after boring holes in her bottom and weighting her with sacks of gravel, sank her in the channel. The British, finding only the remains of the building, believed that she had been finished and taken to sea, so departed. The sloop was later raised and manned by patriots, pursued a glorious career among the supply boats of the British.

The dress of the Jerseymen of Revolutionary times must have been rather curious. The following items are found mentioned in contemporary newspapers:

White swanskin breeches, coats and vests. Everlasting breeches were common, and if the secret of making such an article remained with us, it would prove a great saving. Superfine coats, dresses, etc., are mentioned so often that it would almost lead one to believe "superfine" a kind of cloth. Tow shirts, trousers and coats were frequently worn, and one man was described as being clad in tow shirt and trousers with silk stockings. Red hair-plush jacket, green calimancoe trousers, red silk stockings, a cocked hat with a gold button and loop were worn in combination. An escaped prisoner "wears his own hair," so wigs were commonly used. Thomas and John ———, who will be nameless, were men addicted to drink, who had the very bad habit of enlisting in a militia company, receiving the bounty, deserting a few hours later and then reenlisting in another company, again receiving the bounty. One wore an old regimental coat faced with red, leather breeches and a wilton jacket (vest?). The other wore a cocked beaver hat with a gold button and carried a sword or hanger. White slavery was still in existence in 1776, for a slave that ran away in that year was described as "knock-kneed, wore blue cloth jacket without sleeves, old buckskin breeches, broken before, thread stockings, a beaver hat scolloped and cocked up, with an iron collar around his neck."

Ancient Names of Places and Streams in and Near the Shark River District.

Shark River was the name given by the colonists to the stream called by the Indians Nolletquesset. The aboriginal appellation is mentioned in the deed, July 25, 1689, from Houghame, Wayweenotan and Auspeakan to Nicholas Broun, of Shrewsbury, for land westward of Pequodlenoyock Hill, between the Pine Bridge and Shark River. Pequodlenoyock Hill is the eminence on County Neck between the two arms of the stream. Shrewsbury, at that time included the greater part of the present Monmouth County and the greater part of the present Ocean County, and as Nicholas Broun was styled "of Shroesbery" as early as 1675, it is possible that he occupied land on Shark River previous to the date of the Indian deed.

Thomas Webley, Jan. 10, 1698-9, in his will, described his land as "at the head of Shark River or Squancum." Thomas Chambers, Nov. 26, 1727, mentioned his "home farm on Shark River." Nicholas Havens, Sept. 2, 1723, styled himself "of Shark River," and mentioned Jonathan Allen of the same place.

The main branch of the stream was called Shark River and Shark River Brook. Before 1700, the first was the only name applied to it, and it is possible that at that time there was sufficient volume of water to warrant the title of river, as the undisturbed banks five miles from the sea indicate that a deep stream not less than one hundred yards in breadth once made its way to the sea through the channel of the present small stream, into the larger body of the present river.

A brook flows into Shark River Brook about a mile from the head of the main body of the river, through the farm of Dr. Peter Davison. This is called Sarah Green Brook, and if the tradition relative to the origin of its name is true, Shark River Brook was a much larger stream as late as the close of the Eighteenth Century. About 1790, one Sarah Green, travelling the old post road, between Trap, Shark River Village or Hamilton and the present village of Glendola, once Hopeville, while fording the brook on horseback was drawn under the water by quicksands and both horse and rider were drowned. The stream has since that date taken the name of its victim.

Jumping Brook feeds Shark River, crossing Corlies Avenue at the the water works.

The first body of water north of Shark River was designated "Duk Creek" before 1700, and is now known as Duck Creek and Sylvan Lake, the latter appellation seldom being used.

North of Duck Creek is Fletcher Lake, mentioned in a deed, 1700, as Goose Pond, by which name it is still known to many.

Wesley Lake was called Long Pond before 1700, and is depicted on the map of the United States Geological Survey as Camp Meeting Lake.

Sunset Lake, next toward the north was designated "Litle (Little) Pond" in 1700.

Deal Lake was originally described in 1687 as a "great pone," and was called later Great Pond. This stream has borne many names, among them, Corlies' Pond, White's Great Pond and White Creek, the latter given on Giberson's "Map of New Jersey," 1812. The Indian deed for Wanamassa stated that the lake was "called by the Indians Ulikaquecks." This name was derived from the Lenape words wulaku and papeek, meaning Evening Pond. Tradition gives another Indian name, Wickapeeko, either a corruption of Ulikaquecks, or derived from wikiat and papeek, meaning Pond of Abundance or Pond of Plenty.

The branches of Deal Lake have been named.

The north branch was Hogswamp Creek as early as 1692, later Marl Creek, so called from the abundance of marl showing in its banks; the branch between Interlaken and West Allenhurst (late Edgemere) was Ironwell Creek, so called from the oily ooze on the surface supposed to seep up through its bottom from oil springs below; the south branch New Bridge Creek; the branch between Wanamassa and Interlaken was Romaine's Creek. These names are no longer used.

Wanamassa was named for Wanamasoa, one of the sachems or chiefs who deeded that tract to Gavin Drummond in 1687.

Hockhockson, the name of a swamp bordering on the Shark River district, is a corruption of hockehocken (Indian Interpreter, written 1684) or haki-hakan (Zeisberger), pronounced hawk-ee-hawk-ann, meaning a field, clearing or plantation.

Wreck Pond, written Rackpond in 1715 and Wrack Pond in earlier and later records, lies north of the Manasquan.

Manasquan, Manisquan or Manasquam is mentioned in various old records, among them a deed dated 1685-6. The name is said to mean "an island with an enclosure for squaws." Menatey, pronounced may-naw-tay, was the Lenni Lenape word for island. Squaw is given in the Indian Interpreter as wife. Menateysquaw, pronounced may-naw-tay-squaw, would then mean Squaw Island. Hanne, usually han, was the word for stream. Menateysquawhan, pronounced may-naw-tay-squa-han, then, would then mean—Stream of the Island of Squaws, referring to the stream in which there was an island relegated to the use of the women.

The settlers called the land around the Manasquan by the name of river and neglected the various cognomens of tracts already named. The deed for the land near the site of the present town of Manasquan reads—"a tract of land called by the Indians Menachipanis," and "on a run going into the Manasquan." This run or stream was called Matuekackson. Meteu or Maytayu meant a turkey cock. The word is derived from meteohet, meaning—to drum on a hollow body. The turkey cock makes a drumming sound with its wings, hence meteu. Kaak was the word for wild goose. Onk, unk, ong, cong, conk, cunk, ung and sunk were locative suffixes. Matuekackson may therefore be translated—Place of Turkeys and Wild Geese, or Place of the Drumming Wild Goose.

Squankum Brook flows into the Manasquan. The common ancient spellings were Squancum and Squamcunk. The name might be translated—Place of Squaws, but it is more probable that it is derived from esquande—place of entrance or threshold, Esquandecunk—Place of Entrance, referring to the land around the spot where the brook empties into the river. This seems probable when taking into consideration the fact that the stream, where it flows near Freehold, was known in 1696 as Passequenecqua or Passe-qua-nork-qua, and the tract around it south of Freehold by the same name. It appears from old records that the land from the Manasquan north to Shark River was called by both titles, Squankum and Shark River. Going back to Shark River, the pond at the end of the south branch, now Tucker's Cove, was called in early deeds, Shark River Pond. Hogpond Neck was a point in the same vicinity.

Indians of the Shark River District.

The Indians inhabiting and claiming ownership of the land from the Raritan to Barnegat were called the Newesingshs, Na-ussins, Newasons, Never-sinks or Navesinks. They were of the Unami, Wanami or Wonamey clan, of the Lenni Lenape or Delaware tribe, of the Algonquin or Algonkin race. The Unamis were called the "Turtle clan" from heraldic device, a tortoise, called by them tulpe. Unami means—People down the River. Lenni Lenape means—First or Original People.

William Nelson, Esq., of Paterson, has written an excellent history of the New Jersey Indians, and much matter of interest concerning them is contained in Bulletin 9, Archaeological Survey, published under the direction of Henry B. Kummel, Esq., of Trenton, State Geologist.

The only permanent village site in the Shark River District, so far as is known today, was on the Hurley farm on Shark River. This was the home of Indian Will, who died about 1800, though mentioned in Mr. Salter's "Monmouth and Ocean Counties," as belonging to a century previous. Temporary village and camp sites were located in North Asbury Park; Loch Arbour, south of the power house; Whitesville, on the Brook's property; Wanamassa, where the Y. M. C. A. auditorium stood; Belmar, along the river; near Poplar; and several places on the Manasquan.

Hamilton, Shark River Village or Trap.

Hamilton, before 1800, was the one group of houses in the section known as Shark River. The community was then called by two names, Shark River Village and Trap. The first is applied to it on Giberson's "Map of New Jersey," printed in 1812. A tradition exists concerning the origin of the second name.

There was an old tavern in the village with a host named West. The wife of West, Betty by name, either with malicious intent or with an eye toward the improvement of business, induced a hitherto sober gentleman of the community to imbibe more "apple juice" than was his usual portion, the result being a three day debauch. When fully recovered, the victim stated it was the first time that he had been caught in the trap, and that it would be the last time. The name Trap was thenceforth applied to the tavern and to the village as well.

The old cemetery is the one item of interest in the village today. Here lie the bodies of members of the families of Shafto, White, Youmans, Tilton, Howland, Ely, Garrabrant, Woolley, Bennett and others of the early settlers. Tradition has it that Martha Jane Morris, grandchild of Jonathan Youmans, builder of the original church, was the first to be interred in the cemetery. Martha Jane died in 1836. The building of the church was begun in 1833, and was finished in 1835. In the cemetery is a stone bearing the following inscription:—

JEREMIAH BENNETT

DIED 1813

AGED 61 YEARS

MARY

HIS WIFE

DIED 1830

AGED 74 YEARS

It is possible that Martha Jane Morris' body was the first interred after the erection of the building, or that the bodies and stone were moved from another site, but it is also possible that a private place of burial existed on the spot before the conception of the church.

According to the church records, which are inscribed "The Shark River Church," previous to 1833 religious services were held at the homes of church members. Finding this inconvenient, Jonathan Youmans conceived the idea of a building in which to worship. Taking the burden upon himself, Jonathan, with timber donated by John Ely and an acre of land purchased from Asher Howland and Garret White, cut the timber, sawed and carted the lumber, and built with his own hands the edifice known for many years as Youmans' Chapel and Shark River Church. The original building stood from 1833 to 1889 on the site of the present cemetery, across Corlies Avenue from, and facing the site of the present building.

The first board of trustees was elected in 1833. Its members were Jonathan Youmans, Henry Youmans, John Shafto, Jeremiah B. Morris, Joseph Newman, Curtis White, and Abraham Garrabrant, the latter the only member still living in 1883.

A history of Hamilton which was published in a newspaper some years ago stated that the land was donated by Asher Howland and Garret White. The church records to the contrary, however, as they mention the purchase, the deed being dated February, 1833.

On January 4, 1851, John P. L. Tilton and Jacob Garrabrants sold to the church, for fifty dollars, one more acre, and on May 9, 1864, four more acres, at a cost of nine hundred dollars were added, the tract to be used to enlarge the cemetery and as a site for a parsonage. In 1882 the church received from Cook Howland, consideration nine hundred and seventy one dollars, a quit claim deed "for lands purchased at various times, over four acres."

The new church was dedicated Wednesday, November 9, 1890, the old building being sold that year for one hundred dollars. The cost of the new structure was five thousand, three hundred dollars; the parsonage one thousand, two hundred dollars. At that time eight hundred dollars worth of burial plots remained unsold, and the pastor reckoned the church property worth seven thousand, three hundred dollars.

The first volume of the records being missing, no complete list of the various parsons is obtainable. The two most prominent were Corbet alias "The Pine Boy," whose first circuit included the Shark River Church, and Samuel H. Morrell, who is interred in the church cemetery.

John Ely, who was born in 1773 and died in 1840, built and ran a grist mill on Shark River Brook, south of Hamilton.

John Fields built and managed a mill on Jumping Brook east of Hamilton, where the water works now stand. This was a grist mill, but a saw was added and many of the older houses of Hamilton were constructed with lumber sawed there. After John Fields, Charles King conducted the mill, and after him Allen Cook, then Peter Reynolds, and last Bowman Kisner. It was the Fields mill which induced Peter Reynolds to move to Hamilton with his family. He purchased a farm on Corlies Avenue, part of which was recently (1912) purchased by Nellie C. Allardyce.

The Webley Family.

1. Thomas Webley, owning an estate in Wales which he had inherited from his father, and having at that time an estate coming to him from his uncle, Edward Webley in Wales, made his will Jan. 10, 1698-9, dying between then and March 29, 1703, when that document was probated. He owned land which he described as being "at the head of Shark River or Squancum," where he lived. In the confirmatory deed for this tract, it is described as being "in right of Stephen and Awdry West," and consisted of 120 acres "on the north branch of the Manasquan River" next to Stephen West's tract. It is probable that this land lay not far from the present Glendola, to the south-west of the site of that village. He owned also an interest in lands at Barnegat Beach, and an "Indian wright (right) at Crosswicksum (Crosswicks) which, in his will, he desired his kinsman, Lewis Morris, to dispose of for his heirs. Nicholas Broun and William West, both living on the banks of Shark River made the inventory of his personal estate which they valued at Forty Pounds Sterling. This sum included the value of a negro boy, a slave. William Woolley and John Tilton, both of the section called Shark River, witnessed his will.

Thomas Webley, Aug. 7, 1683, witnessed the signing of the will of John Fenwick, Proprietor of New Jersey, at Fenwick's Colony, where Thomas was probably residing at that time. On Dec. 1, 1685, he witnessed the will of James Grover of Middletown, and on May 7, 1687, he was named executor of the estate of Samuel Woolcott or Wolcott of Shrewsbury; and, Thomas' wife, Andrey or Andria, witnessed the signature of the will which named him, so by that year, 1687, he had settled in Shrewsbury. Letters of Administration were granted to him and his co-executor, Judah Allen, Dec. 1, 1687.

On May 2, 1687, Stephen West of West, alias Mackatoy Island, New England, farmer, gave power of attorney to his brother William West of Shrewsbury, carpenter, for the collection of debts due him in New Jersey. This commission was transferred by William West to "my loving and trusty brother Thomas Webley," July 10, 1688.

Thomas was described "gentleman" in a deed for land at Quiahocking, a tract on the Maurice River, Oct. 25, 1701.

By his wife, Andria, who was interred in Christ's churchyard, Shrewsbury, Mar. 6, 1749, Thomas had issue.

2 Catherine, who is not mentioned with her brother and sisters in the will of Priscilla Hearce, Jan. 11, 1720-21, evidently having died previous to the writing of that document.

3 Mary, mentioned in the Hance will.

4 Ann, Andria or Andrey. "Ann" in her father's will and "Andria" in that of Priscilla Hearce. Ann was baptized May 24, 1747, then eighteen years and six months of age. She died, unmarried, in 1789, aged 61 years. She was probably the last child of her father.

5 John, of whom presently.

5 John Webley, son of Thomas, was mentioned in the will of Priscilla Hearce, as was his wife, Elizabeth ———. John signed the inventory of the effect of Thomas Hearce (Harst, Hearst, Hearse), husband of Priscilla, Jan. 2, 1720-21. John and Elizabeth were both interred in Christ's Churchyard, Shrewsbury. John died in 1775, aged 82 years. Elizabeth died in 1762, aged 67 years.

Their children:

6. Andrey, bapt. at Christ's Church, May 24, 1747, then aged 23 years, 3 months, who married John West, license dated Dec. 13, 1740.

7. John, of whom presently.

8. Catherine, bapt. May 24, 1747, then aged 21 years, 6 months, who married Peter Slocum, license dated Mar. 24, 1748-9, on June 27, 1749, at Christ's Church, Shrewsbury.

9. Mary, bapt. May 24, 1747, who married Jonathan Slocum, license dated Nov. 17, 1759.

10. Sarah, bapt. Nov. 21, 1747, age given in weeks but undecipherable, married Daniel Tabor, license dated Oct. 1, 1765.

11 Margaret, bapt. May 8, 1748, who married, Jan. 23, 1757, William Smith.

7. John Webley, Jr., married Elizabeth Wardell, license dated July 27, 1756.

The Shafto Family.

1. Anthony Shafto, of Yorkshire, England, born September 27, 1750, came to America with his first six children in 1791. His other children were born here. In the old family bible is inscribed in the hand of Robert, eldest son of Anthony, "Robert Shafto emigrated from Yorkshire, England, and landed in Philadelphia July the 8th, 1791." Anthony died January 1, 1811, and his wife, Hannah, died Feb. 6, 1828.

Children:

2. Robert, b. Sept. 27, 1780.
3. Anthony, b. Sept. 27, 1783, m. Feb. 14, 1811, Jane Brinley. His descendants live principally around Mattawan.
4. Jane, b. Mar. 3, 1785.
5. Mary, b. Nov. 5, 1786, m. Nov. 6, 1806, Edward Epworth. They had a son, Edward Epworth, b. Aug. 6, 1807.
6. Hannah, b. Oct. 25, 1789.
7. Anne, b. July 23, 1790, m. Mar. 27, 1808, John Downing.
8. Elizabeth, b. Feb. 3, 1793.
9. Sarah, b. Oct. 3, 1794, d. Mar. 14, 1795.
10. Susannah, b. Nov. 17, 1795.
11. Marrian, b. June 3, 1797, m. July 8, 1816, Thomas Bennett.
12. Rebecca, b. Feb. 17, 1799.

2. Robert Shafto came to America with his father when eleven years of age. He married, Dec. 14, 1802, Isabel, daughter of Robert Kerr, a Scotchman. Robert Kerr died Nov. 14, 1805. Isabel was born Feb. 27, 1780, and died Feb. 17, 1846. Robert Shafto died Nov. 2, 1852. He and most of his children are interred in the church cemetery at Hamilton.

Children:

13. John, b. May 25, 1803.

Shafto Notes.

The homestead of this old family lies in ruins on the north bank of Shark River Brook, between that stream and Corlies Avenue, about two miles west of Hamilton.

Data pertaining to the Shaftos in England can be found in—

Burke's "Commoners," 4 vols., 1835.

Burke's "Landed Gentry," 2 vols.

Burke's "General Armory."

Robson's "British Heraldry," 3 vols., 1830, which contains an engraving of the arms of Shafto of Whitworth.

All dates in the foregoing pedigree have been copied from the Shafto and Morris family bible, original church records and other original documents, and from headstone inscriptions.

The White Family.

1. Thomas Whyte or White, carpenter, came to America in 1670 from Deal, Kent County, England, and bought land, in 1675, from Thomas Potter and Judah Allen. Thomas died previous to Feb. 4, 1684-5, when his son, Samuel, was made administrator of his estate.

Children:

2. Samuel.
3. Thomas
4. Peter.
5. Robert.
6. Hester, m. Joseph Wardell.

2. Samuel White, also a carpenter, in right of his father, at that time deceased, Jan. 22, 1687-8, received a patent for 617 acres, counted as 560. The south boundary of this tract was Long Pond (now Wesley Lake), on the east was the sea, on the west was the barren or pine land, and on the north was a brook running along Thomas Potter's land. This tract must have embraced all of the present Asbury Park, North Asbury Park and land north of Deal Lake to a stream that once ran to the sea near Deal Beach, now filled in. Samuel died before April 28, 1698, on which day Thomas White, No. 3, became administrator of his estate. On July 5, 1698, his undated will, signed "Samuel Whyte," was probated. Samuel's wife, Elizabeth, after her husband's death, married, second, Oct. 5, 1700,

Seth Hill, of Burlington.

Child:

7. Joall (Joel?).

3. Thomas White owned and lived on a farm at Deal, part of the land patented to his brother, Samuel. In his will, signed "Thomas Whyte," and dated Nov. 9, 1712, he styled himself "gentleman." He also owned land on Goose Neck and on the road, both sides, from Deal to Long Branch. He was married twice. His second wife was Elizabeth Cole.

Children:

8. Samuel.

9. Thomas.

10. Amos.

11. Jacob.

12. Levi.

13. Rachel, m. Isaac Hance.

14. Leah.

15. Elizabeth, m. at the house of Mary White, Sept. 12, 1701, Joseph Lippincott.

16. Mary, m. Oct. 12, 1695, Richard Lippincott, of Shrewsbury.

Thomas White, No. 9, and Amos, No. 10, with Abigail White, whose relationship to the family is not known, witnessed the will of Ephraim Potter, of Shrewsbury, Dec. 21, 1716.

4. Peter White purchased lands near the present town of Shrewsbury on May 10, 1688, from Sarah Parker, widow, and her two sons, George and William. He owned, also, lands near the present

Asbury Park, and had a patent for $48\frac{1}{2}$ acres at Passequenecqua or Passe-qua-nork-qua, a tract on the creek of that name; tract mentioned in a deed, 1696, as being in Freehold, and in another as near the Manasquan River. The Manasquan extends very near to Freehold. Also, the same patent gave him $1\frac{3}{4}$ acres of meadow at the head of "Manesquam Creek." He was living at Deal in 1687, where he witnessed the will of John Chambers. He sold his land at Passequenecqua, June 22, 1697, to John Pearce, of Freehold. His will was dated Mar. 20, 1697-8, and was proved June 10, 1698. In this document he mentioned "cousins Thomas and Samuel," referring to cousins of his children, sons of Thomas, his brother. Peter married Mary

Children:

17. Peter, d. 1733.
18. Robert.
19. Thomas, d. 1747.

Robert and Thomas were both under age in 1698. There were seven daughters as well, but they were not mentioned by name in the will of their father. Three of these are known: Mary, m. Aug. 17, 1717, Jacob Lippincott. Elizabeth, m. Aug. 7, 1714, Thomas Lippincott. Jane, m. July 28, 1693, at Shrewsbury, Thomas Garwood, of Burlington.

James E. White, in his work on the descendants of Peter White, printed in St. John, New Brunswick, 1906, states that Peter's daughters were:— Mary, b. Jan. 19, 1673; m. Oct. 12, 1695, Richard Lippincott; d. May 12, 1723. Ann, m., first, ——— Sutton, second, Feb. 14, 1692, J. Cheshire. Elizabeth b. Jan. 28, 1680; m. Aug. 17, 1701, Joseph Lippincott. Sarah, no data. Jane, m. July 28, 1673, Thomas Garwood. Mr. White's work is so full of typographical errors, principally dates, that the compiler hesitates to insert the above without giving the name of the author of the work from which they were taken. Note Mr. White's record of the marriage of Mary, and compare it with the record above copied from the church record of her marriage. Also note date of Jane's marriage, 1673, which is 1693 in the Friends' records.

9. Thomas White, whose wife, Elizabeth, died Mar. 6, 1760.

Children:

20. Elizabeth, b. Dec. 7, 1725-6; m. Nov. 12, 1743, William Cook; d. July 10, 1750.

21. Samuel, b. Dec. 6, 1727-8; d. Sept. 7, 1759.

22. Mary, b. Feb. 19, 1730; m. Apr. 17, 1747, Richard Worthley.

23. Hannah, b. Feb. 10, 1734.

24. Thomas, b. July 17, 1736.

25. Lydia, b. Apr. 6, 1739; m. May 29, 1756, David Curtis, Jr.

26. Sarah, b. May 3, 1741.

27. Rachel, b. Sept. 5, 1743.

28. Jacob, b. May 9, 1746.

29. Zilpah, b. Nov. 29, 1748-9.

10. Amos White lived on Norumson Neck (Rumson Neck), and also owned land at Amboy.

Thomas, No. 9, witnessed his will, which was dated 1728-9, 27 d. 12 mo." (February). He married Dec. 2, 1708, Hannah Mills, of Shrewsbury, and died before Mar. 26, 1730, when his will was proved. Children:

30. Ziphania.
31. Amos.
32. Andrew.
33. Samuel.
34. Leah, m. Jonathan Stout.
35. Allis or Alice.
36. Jennet.
37. Hannah.

There was an Amos White who married, Nov. 12, 1743, Jean White, and either the same or another of the name married, Dec. 17, 1761, Hester Borden. It is possible that Amos, No. 31, was principal in one of these contracts.

12. Levi, married, Jan. 13, 1733, Ann Lippincott. This is the date recorded in the Shrewsbury Friends records, but the records of the Men's Monthly Meeting gives the date Nov. 7, 1733.

Children:

38. Thomas, b. Sept. 30, 1734.
39. Elizabeth, b. July 2, 1739; d. Oct. 20, 1767.

45. Ruth, m. Joshua Bond.
46. Sarah, b. May 21, 1715; m. Oct. 22, 1737, Jacob Corlies.
47. Hannah, m. Job, son of Ebenezer and Mary (Patterson) Cook.
48. Dorothy, m. April 30, 1739, Amos Chandler.
49. Elizabeth.
50. Abigail.

18. Robert White, under age in 1698, married Margaret Hartshorne. His death date is given by James E. White, Esq., before mentioned, as May 10, 1747, which was probably meant for May 10, 1774, as Robert was mentioned in the will of his son, Hartshorne, 1773, and was provided for with "a good maintenance." His second wife, Mary Price, he probably married in 1742, his license being dated Sept. 25, of that year.

Relating to Robert is the following quaint record:

"June ye 8, 1750. Then Robart White gaue in his Ear Mark to be Recorded as followeth uiz a Swollow fork Cut out of the Left Ear and a Slit Downe The top of the Right Ear. The Ear Mark that was formerly Hugh Hartshorns.

64. Curtis, b. June 8, 1758; d. Nov. 18, 1758.

Peter White, born June 19, 1748, or May 9, 1746, as records differ, died Mar. 26, 1798. His wife, Patience, was born Aug. 12, 1757.

- 84. Joseph, b. Apr. 5, 1753; d. Nov. 8, 1755.

51. Hartshorne White, styling himself "of Freehold Township," made his will Oct. 10, 1773. He mentioned his wife, Phebe, (Phebe Forman, of Middletown Point, so called in her marriage license dated July 11, 1759. In this document Hartshorne was written "of Middletown") and two daughters. Both girls were under eighteen years of age in 1773.

Hartshorne died April 12, 1774, having lived 38 years. Phebe was born in 1735, and died Jan. 2, 1775. Both were interred in the Old Tennent Church cemetery, and over both graves are inscribed stones. The executors of his estate were sworn at Freehold, April 21, 1774.

It is worthy of note that only one member of the family now (1913) living remembered the name of Hartshorne and could place him as the brother of Josiah White, ancestor of the family settled around the present Asbury Park. This was Mr. Remington White. Mr. White pronounced and spelled the name "Hartson."

Children:

85. Ursilla.

86. Margaret.

52. Josiah White, a Tory, born according to the tradition handed down by his grandson, George White, to his son, Atlantic White, on the land where Asbury Park now stands. Josiah's activity in assisting the British made him a "refugee," his person being in demand by the Continental Government. Not only did his sympathy for the British cause the loss of his property (which was confiscated and sold at Tinton Falls, April 18, 1778), but it cost him his life as well.

Two traditions exist relating to his death. The first—While sailing his schooner from Deal Lake with supplies for the British in New York, he was fired upon by patriots, and his boat being sunk Josiah's body went down with the wreckage. The second—While carrying hams from the banks of the Shrewsbury to British ships lying off Long Branch, between too heavy a load and a rough surf, he went to the bottom with his boat.

Josiah obtained a license, April 10, 1762, to wed Nancy Earley, of Middletown, Josiah being styled "of Shrewsbury" in the record.

Children:

87. Brittan M.

87. Brittan M. White was born on the site of Asbury Park in 1768, and died Dec. 5, 1855, being interred in Hamilton Cemetery. Though a mere boy during the period of the Revolution, Brittan was an active Tory, and his lands were sold with his father's at Tinton Falls. Being sought by the patriots, he joined a band of Tories and harried his own countrymen.

Two old bibles in the possession of Eastwood White contain much information relating to the White family, and the only known record of Britton's wife, who was Abigail Woolley, born May 12, 1773. Brittan purchased land along Deal Lake from Gavin Drummond in 1819.

THE CORLIES FAMILY.

(In various records spelled Corles, Curlies, Corlies, Corleis, Curleis and Curles.)

1. George Corlies, of Shrewsbury, then about 61 years of age (He styled himself "about 50" on November 2, 1704, when he attested the inventory of the effects of Thomas Potter.) "cordwinder, Being antiant," made his will "1715 25 d. 6 m." (August), and died (Friends Records) July 10, 1715. His will was proved Nov. 23, 1715.

His first wife was Exercise, daughter of William Shattock, whom he married October 10, 1680, in Shrewsbury. Exercise died September 11, 1695, and four years later, September 23, 1699, he married, second, Deborah, daughter of John and Elizabeth Hance. The will of John Hance was dated March 24, 1708-9, and was proved January 27, 1710-11.

On Mar. 25, 1687, George received a patent for 96½ acres at Passequenecqua, and 3½ acres of meadow. The farm of John Lippincott adjoined the larger tract on the south, and the 3½ acres of meadow were undoubtedly on the Manasquan, his neighbors all owning tracts of the same size there.

On Oct. 3, 1689, he purchased from Martha Wearne, 130 acres in Springfield Township, Burlington County, which he sold to Henry Wells, on Jan. 7, 1701-2.

The records of the Society of Friends credit him with thirteen children, twelve of whom are mentioned in his will, one as an expected child. Children

On March 2, 1743, the records of the Men's Monthly Meeting note that John was "to be visited for drinking to excess." His first wife evidently died previous to Oct. 4, 1756, on which date he declared his intention of marrying Patience Tilton.

THE POTTER FAMILY.

1. Thomas Potter, of Rhode Island, Jan. 20, 1687-8, obtained a patent for several tracts "at Dale." The largest of these plots consisted of 580 acres between the lands of Samuel White on the south and Francis Jeffereys on the north, from the sea on the east, to the barren land on the west. One tract, 92 acres, lay on the south bank of Whale Pond Brook, extended west to the barren lands, east to Francis Jeffereys' land which lay on the shore south of Whale Pond. A road to the sea formed the south boundary. Another tract lay in the barren lands, 500 acres, a spot impossible to locate at this time.

Thomas married twice. Ann or Anna, his first wife, born on Rhode Island, deeded with her husband, Mar. 18, 1692-3, to Mary, daughter of Adam Channelhouse, 500 acres in Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania. Ann died before 1698, as in December of that year, Thomas, with his wife Sarah, deeded 200 acres south of the "Nawsinks" river to John Bickley, Sr., of New York. On Sept. 24, 1693 Thomas deeded a lot on the north side of Sawmill Brook, and 2 acres on the south side, to Nathaniel Leonard.

The patent for the Potter lands at Deal was dated 1687-8, but Thomas had been living there for some years previous, the fact proved by his deed, May 12, 1683, to John Jerson (Ireson), "of Rhoad Island near Boston, fellmonger," in which he styled himself "of Deale, Planter." The land sold to Ireson was 500 acres in Fenwick's Colony, as per bill of sale dated "1679, 24th d. 2nd m.", which called for 500 acres on "Cohanzey Neck." John Ireson sold this land, Nov. 16, 1685, describing it "on Shrewsbury Neck" on the "River Cesaria alias Chohanzey."

Thomas Potter was born in 1630, this date being deduced from an affidavit he made on Sept. 11, 1700, concerning the boundaries of Poplar Swamp near Deal, wherein he gave his age as "about 70." His will was dated Nov. 1, 1704, he writing himself "of Freehold." The inventory of his personal estate footed ninety-eight pounds, three shillings and six pence, which sum included the value of a negro man, thirty pounds. He died Dec. 10, 1704. Sarah died Feb. 1, 1694 according to the Friends' Records, so the deed before mentioned, 1698, must have been the consumation of a sale made before Feb. 1, 1694.

Children:

2. Ephraim.
3. Mary, m. John Woolley.
4. Thomas.
5. Elizabeth.

POTTER'S CAVE.

The first settlers in New Jersey built caves wherein they lived until more pretentious dwellings were erected. These caves were dug some three or four feet into the ground, walls were built making them about three feet above the surface, and boughs were laid across the top on which sods and soil were thrown until the whole gave the appearance of a solid mound of earth with one entrance, and a hole in the roof for the smoke. Such a residence as this was built by Thomas Potter on his farm, next to the Drummond farm. Thomas erected his cave in and on a marl bank bordering on Hogswamp creek. He was a blacksmith, according to tradition, and after his house was built, the cave became his workshop. About 1860, Edwin Woolley, a descendant of Thomas Potter, while digging marl on the old farm, struck the site of his ancestor's cave, and dug therefrom a hammer, tongs and other implements, in well preserved condition.

2. Ephraim Potter, of Shrewsbury, gentleman, living at Deal, made his will Dec. 21, 1716, and died before April 15, 1717, when it was proved. The inventory of his personal estate, value seventy-four pounds, nine shillings, six pence, included one silver spoon.

Ephraim married Sarah ———, who was born May 20, 1669 and who died Sept. 6, 1715. In his will, Dec. 21, 1716, he mentioned his wife, Mary, who was his second wife by whom he expected to have a child.

Children:

7. Mary, b. Dec. 8, 1690.

18. Joseph, b. June 8, 1709-10; m. June 17, 1736, Rebecca Champlice.
19. Expected child, b. after Dec. 21, 1716.

In his will, Ephraim does not mention Amos, Thomas or Mary, but mentions Marcey (or Mercy), probably meaning Mary, and Jackson, neither given in the Friends' Records with the list of his children. It is probable that one of his daughters married a Jackson and was called by her married name. In 1723, Jan. 3, John witnessed the will of Nicholas Broun "of Menahockin." Volume 1, Friends' Records states that Ephraim, No. 2, was born "24 d., 6 m., ———," the year being undecipherable, and gives the date of his death at 1717.

4. Thomas Potter, of Freehold, yeoman, living at Deal, made his will Feb. 9, 1715-16, which was proved Feb. 9, 1715-16. He married Margaret ———, who was his sole heiress, excepting "Ephren Poter," his brother who received a small legacy. He mentioned his "home farm" of 175 acres.

18. Joseph Potter married June 17, 1736, Rebecca Champlice, and second, Abigaill ———.

THE CHAMBERS FAMILY.

1. John Chambers, of Whitby, Yorkshire, England, came to New Jersey before 1678, in which year he was living in Shrewsbury. He signed his will Aug. 13, 1687, which document was proved Dec. 27, 1687, letters of administration being granted to Mary, his wife, April 12, 1688. He settled on Rumson Neck, and owned land there and on Shark River, and a tract between the lands of Peter White and Robert Lacock. John Chambers was a joiner by trade.

Mary Chambers, John's widow, obtained a patent, dated June 23, 1696, for 60 acres between "Portupeek" and a branch of the Shrewsbury River, which tract she deeded to her son, Richard, Oct. 15, 1700.

On Sept. 22, 1694, Lewis Mattix (Maddocks or Mattox) surrendered all of his property to Mary in return for her promise to supply him with "clothing, meat, drink," etc., until his death. On Oct. 18, 1694, he made a will leaving Mary his sole heiress. This document was proved July 15, 1695.

John Chambers owned land on the south side of Shark River Brook next to the property of Hannaniah Gilford for which he received a patent May 10, 1688, 50 acres, the brook bounding it on the north with the property of Stephen West on the west. In 1693 he owned land on the Shrewsbury, and June 27, 1694, as John Chambers, "of Rariton, Somerset county," he deeded 14 acres at Piscataway. On May 28, 1702, Robert Burnet deeded him a lot in Monmouth County. Oct. 13, 1729, he witnessed the will of Israel Rikey of Somerset County, and Dec. 24, 1728, he and his son, John, witnessed the will of Robert Stiles, of Chester Township, Burlington County.

3. Richard Chambers, "mariner, of Shrewsbury," made his will June 23, 1731, and mentioned in it only his wife Ann. In the deed from his mother, Oct. 15, 1700, his trade was given as "cooper." Ann Chambers, Richard's wife, was mentioned in the will of Priscilla Hearce, Jan. 11, 1720-1. In this testament Richard was named executor, John, his brother signed as witness, and Andria, probably John's wife, was mentioned.

7. Thomas Chambers made his will Nov. 26, 1727, which was proved Dec. 14, of that year. He mentioned his "home farm on Shark River," his brother, John, and his brother-in-law, William Exceene.

THE DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT MORRIS OF SHARK RIVER.

Robert Morris (No. 2), believed to have been the son of John Morris (No. 1), the latter living west of Hamilton in 1750, the former near Glendola after the Revolution and probably previous thereto, owned land about five miles west of Asbury Park. The tract is now owned by Arthur Brisbane. Both Robert and John were Tories, and their lands were confiscated by the Continental government and sold at Tinton Falls, April 5, 1779. Despite the fact that Roberts' sympathies were for the British, several curious traditions have gathered about his memory. Some of his descendants claim he was the Robert Morris of the Revolution, the financier without whose assistance the colonies would never have gained their independence. A recent history of the Glendola church mentions his being often seen in the neighborhood riding an old white horse presented to him by General Washington. There is no doubt in the mind of the compiler of this work as to the origin of this family, and future investigations, the results of which will be printed in another volume, will doubtless show the descent to be from Lewis Morris, of Shrewsbury, son of Richard, and nephew of Colonel Lewis Morris, of New York.

Feb. 10, 1762, a Robert Morris, of Shrewsbury, obtained a license to marry Elizabeth Ellison. Later, Jan. 9, 1766, a Robert Morris married Content Dunham. The only Robert Morris living in Shrewsbury at the time and of marriageable age was Robert, of Shark River, and therefor, it may be presumed that Elizabeth was his first wife, Content, his second. With other children (?), Robert had issue:

3. Samuel Morris, born Aug. 25, 1770, who died Aug. 8, 1853. Samuel was married by the Rev. Henry Lafada, Nov. 16, 1794, to Catherine Bennett, who was born Jan. 11, 1777, and who died Feb. 27, 1850. They lived near Hamilton, then Shark River Village and Trap.

Children:

4. Robert, b. Feb. 14, 1796.
5. James B., b. Mar. 18, 1797.
6. Mary, b. July 10, 1799.
7. Jeremiah B., b. Apr. 19, 1801.

14. Adeline, b. Feb. 16, 1817.
15. John Wesley, b. Dec. 10, 1818.

The above dates of Samuel, his wife, and his children are all copied from the Morris Bible. The record of Catharine differs greatly from that on her headstone, which reads—"died July 30, 1826, aged 11 years, 11 months and 17 days." Were the stone correct, she would have been born Aug. 13, 1814. Mary m. Samuel Hurley; Lydia m. John Hall, and d. June 25, 1878; John Hall d. Oct. 10, 1878, aged 71

THE DRUMMOND FAMILY.

There were two Drummonds among the first twenty-four proprietors of East New Jersey. They were James Drummond, Earl of Melfort and of Perth, and John Drummond, of Lundine, Hundy and Preston Pans, Scotland, Treasurer Deputy to that kingdom, made proprietors by the patent of James, Duke of Yorke, Mar. 16, 1682-3. John of Lundine, was a brother of Gavin, Gawen, Gawine, Gavine or Cavin Drummond, of Edinburgh, Scotland, and of Locharbour in East New Jersey. John Drummond, was the father of Robert, of Locharbour, of Grissell, a daughter, and of a son, John. What relationship the Earl of Perth bore to Gavin is not known as the latter is not mentioned in the Scottish Peerage, but Lundin or Lundine is spoken of as a place of residence of the family of the Earls of Perth, the noble Drummonds of Scotland.

John, of Lundine, sold to his brother, Gavin, 500 acres of his 1-24 share of East New Jersey on Feb. 20-1, 1682-3, before the patent was issued by the Duke of Yorke, and when Gavin made his choice of land, the farm on Hogswamp Creek (the property now (1914) owned by Colonel Harvey) and Wanamassa formed the principal tracts of his 500 acres.

Gavin came to America on the ship "Shield," and brought with him a servant, Peter Bury. He died in 1724, but before then held several important offices, one of which was clerk of the Court of Sessions. In 1701 he wrote an account of the rescue by the people of Middletown of a prisoner, one Moses Butterworth, a confessed pirate, who had sailed with Captain William Kidd on his last voyage. The people not only rescued the prisoner, but kept the governor, justices, attorney general, clerk of the court (Gavin Drummond), and the under sheriff prisoners under guard from Mar. 25 to 29, to their great discomfort.

Gavin was chief surveyor, and in the inventory of his estate, made at "Locherber" Aug. 2, 1728, by John Chambers and Daniel Havens, was mentioned a "pocot compas," a "pare of spectickles," and "seafarin instraments," meaning pocket compass, spectacles, and surveying instruments.

Letters of administration were granted to Gavin's eldest son, Gavin, jr., Aug. 31, 1724.

THE INDIAN MAIDEN A TRADITION OF WANAMASSA.

This tale, handed down by the Drummonds, was first written for publication by Thomas Little, Esq., of Hartford. In its original form, the tradition was too lengthy to be included in this work and is therefore given briefly.

Between the south and south central branches of Deal Lake, at Wanamassa, about where the Y. M. C. A. auditorium was later erected, lay a summer campsite favored by a band of Indians from the Delaware who annually left their winter quarters and summered near the sea shore. Here they gathered clams and oysters which they dried for consumption during the cold months when fresh food was difficult to secure. Both of the above mentioned bivalves were plentiful in Deal Lake at that time, and of a large size seldom seen now, judging by specimens found spread over the Indian graves in the vicinity.

Fate, one day, left to care for the camp, a girl, Nissima, daughter of an infirm widow who had been left behind when the band departed for the coast. Fate, again busy, so ordered it that one Gavin Drummond, a young surveyor, left his party, who were at work on the land later occupied by the Hollywood Hotel near Long Branch, and with gun for game and a liquor flask for his inward comfort, he wandered far afield and found Nissima alone.

The liquor had done its work, and Gavin insulted the girl who defended herself with a knife. The Indians were heard approaching camp, and Gavin, becoming sobered by his peril, fled into the underbrush keeping a large oak between him and the approaching men, the girl permitting him to escape unhindered.

Some years later, Gavin Drummond with his helpers was engaged in surveying what is now Wanamassa. He blazed the tree which had hidden his flight and began his survey from that spot. Mr. Little quoted from the records in Perth Amboy—"beginning at a large oak tree standing on the north bank of a branch of Great Pond, running thence as the magnetic needle pointed in 1740," etc., which quotation gives the impression that the first survey of Wanamassa was made in 1740, and that the Gavin of the tradition was the grandson of Gavin the settler and pioneer. It is the impression of the compiler that the legend relates to the original Gavin, judging from the inventory of his effects, which included surveying instruments, and from the Indian deed Apr. 6, 1687, Wanamasoa, Wallammassekaman and Waywinotunce, chief sachems, to "Gaw-en" Drummond for a tract "within the branches of a great pone (Great Pond or Deal Lake) called Ulikaquecks, (on the) N. Thomas Potter and Samuel White (on the) E. the pone, (on the) S. a brook (and on the) W. (a) line of marked trees."

Some years after his first meeting with Nissima, Gavin visited the home of a cousin, a minister, who lived near the Delaware Water Gap. Here he found Nissima, who, having acquired an education, was installed in the clergyman's household, where she cared for and instructed the children. Gavin and Nissima were married, and they settled in Monmouth county.

CORRECTIONS AND NOTES.

Page 5. Line 31. Long Pond in this case probably referred to Deal Lake, though it is possible that Wesley Lake was the place meant.

Page 76. Line 16. For Van Burnt, read Van Brunt.

Page 9. Paragraph 4. Since writing this paragraph, the writer has been informed by an old resident, born on Sarah Green Brook about 1840, that as late as 1850 a boat could be rowed up the stream as far as the Post Road between Hamilton and Glén-dola.
