The Descendants of Nathan and Rebecca Fobes

Nathan Fobes was a soldier of the Revolutionary War, and after the close of this war located at Chester, Mass., where he owned a small hillside and rocky farm, on which he could hardly support his numerous family.

When they heard of the "New Connecticut" the oldest son David came to Wayne with his cousin Joshua in 1803, stayed only one summer and then returned with not very brilliant accounts of the country.

In 1805, another son Jabez came to Wayne to prepare a home for his parents and family who had already purchased lands.

In June, 1806, Nathan Fobes arrived with his wife Rebecca (Parsons,) and family, and every one of his children settled around the old home and not a mile from it, all owning farms.

This made ten families resident in Wayne Township.

The summer of 1807 was very wet so land could not be cleared in time to plant corn for their support, and before the next harvest all suffered from the scarcity of food.

When Nathan Fobes moved to Wayne there were eight or ten families of Indians living about a mile East of where he located. They had a small village of about forty persons. Omic was the chief, and they were a portion of the Massasauga band of the

The first wedding in Wayne Township was in the winter of 1807, when Sarah Fobes, daughter of Nathan and Rebecca, was married to Philemon Brockway. All grown people in the township were invited as guests and attended the wedding.

Justus and Nathan Fobes Jr. served in the War of 1812, Justus as a sergeant, and Nathan as a bugler, and Nathan, from the exposure and work was taken sick and he and Justus started home from Maumee. Nathan died on the way, at Unionville, Lake County, where he was buried.
