VOLUME II.

History of Erie County

BIOGRAPHICAL HISTORY—CONTINUED

A. Elverton Sisson, who ranks among the prominent attorneys of Erie County, was born at Dayton, N. Y., Jan. 12, 1851, being the son of Nathaniel and Salina (Phillips) Sisson.

The Sisson family is of English descent, having settled in that country in 1066, and having held New England residence since 1640. The first American ancestor was Richard Sisson, born in 1608, who came to America soon after the landing of the "Mayflower." He settled at Portsmouth, R. I., where he possessed lands that long remained in the family. He afterward became owner of large tracts of land in Dartmouth, Mass., his death occurring in 1684. James Sisson, son of Richard Sisson, from whom A. Elverton Sisson is of the sixth generation in descent, married Lydia Hathaway, daughter of Arthur and Sarah (Cook) Hathaway. John Cook, father of Sarah, and Francis Cook, father of John Cook, were passengers on the Pilgrim vessel Mayflower, while the maternal grandmother of Lydia Hathaway, Sarah (Warren) Cook, was a daughter of Richard Warren, who also sailed on that vessel. Most of the Sissons of early years were members of the Society of Friends. James Sisson, of the second American generation, was a collector of taxes for the Massachusetts town in which he lived, and suffered imprisonment because he would not collect the Church of England tax.

Nathaniel Sisson, great grandfather of A. Elverton, was a native of Dartmouth, Mass., born Nov. 11, 1756, and died at Queenstown, N. Y., on May 10, 1840. His wife, Grace Gifford, was also a native of Dartmouth, Mass., born Sept. 16, 1761, and died at Queenstown, on Sept. 4, 1843. The grandfather, Benjamin Sisson, born Jan. 22, 1791, was a native of Queenstown, and died at Brant, N. Y., in 1874. In 1820 Benjamin Sisson moved from Queenstown, N. Y., where his father had settled at the close of the Revolutionary War, and established a home near Buffalo. For many generations the majority of the Sisson family were Quakers, but Benjamin, the grandfather, was debarred from the church, as he had married Sally Ferris, a woman outside the faith. Nathaniel, father of A. Elverton Sisson, was a farmer and a native of Erie County, N. Y., born in 1821, his wife, Salina Phillips, being born near Glens Falls, N. Y., in 1819. Mrs. Sisson was a daughter of Samuel D. and Hannah (Wing) Phillips. The Wing family, on the maternal side, was also identified with the Society of Friends, and was long established at Glens Falls, and Sandy Hill, N. Y., whither different members had moved from Massachusetts, prior to the migration of the Sisson family. In 1854 Nathaniel Sisson settled in Crawford County, Pa., and five years later moved to Springfield, Erie County, where he died in 1885. His first wife passed away in 1851, the year of the birth of A. E. Sisson, of this sketch.

A. Elverton Sisson received his education in the common schools of Crawford and Erie County and at the Kingsville, Ohio, Academy, the West Springfield, Pa., Academy, and the North East, Pa., Seminary. He taught school and was in business a short time, then began the study of law, and in 1881 gained admission to the bar of Erie County; and almost from the start gained favor as an attorney. His political activities began early and in 1885 and 1886 he held the chairmanship of the Republican County Committee, the following year being elected prosecuting attorney of Erie County. He succeeded himself in this office through reelection in 1890, his being the first instance in which a prosecuting attorney of Erie County had been elected for two successive terms. In 1900 he became the candidate of his party (Republican) for state senator, was elected and re-elected in 1904 and again in 1908, thus setting a new mark as being the first senator from the Erie district to hold a seat in the Senate for three successive terms. At the conclusion of the session of 1907 he was elected president pro tempore of the Senate and again became presiding officer of that body of the Legislature in 1909. During the special session of the Senate in 1906 he served as a member of the committee investigating the state insurance department and in 1909 was chairman of the committee on railroads, and a member of the commission created at the session of that year to investigate all transactions in connection with the building and furnishing of the Pennsylvania State Capitol, and several men were sent to the penitentiary as a result of this investigation. President of the Senate, a member of the most important senatorial committee, and one of the leaders of his party, Mr. Sisson displayed rare political genius and wrote boldly a record of public service that will long endure.

Mr. Sisson was elected auditor general of Pennsylvania on Nov. 2, 1909, having been the unanimous choice of his party for that office. At the notification meeting informing Mr. Sisson of his nomination for this office, the chairman of the meeting spoke in part as follows: "Senator A. E. Sisson, you are the unanimous choice of the Republicans of Pennsylvania for the office of auditor general. There existed special reasons for your selection for the office. You have an excellent reputation as a lawyer, your capacity and integrity as a business man are generally recognized, as legislator of wide experience for years, you have been identified with public affairs. You are familiar with the duties of auditor general and no other man in this state possesses higher qualifications for the performance of those duties. You are a public spirited and progressive citizen and your selection by the convention should be enthusiastically ratified at the polls." The fulfillment of the above prediction is now a matter of history and Mr. Sisson's efficient administration of the office has added to the lustre of his achievements in public life and has given a new appreciation of generous talents already recognized. In 1920 he was again elected to the state Senate, and his term expired with 1924. In 1907 he succeeded in securing an appropriation from the state of Pennsylvania of $150,000 for constructing and building the "public steamboat landing or wharf upon state lands of the Port of Erie, by producing State Street northwardly into the harbor commencing on the north side of the public dock at the foot of State Street in the City of Erie, and extending northwardly about 600 feet, and 100 feet in width, to the harbor line established by the U. S. engineer." The splendid dock at the foot of State Street is the result of this legislation secured by the then Senator Sisson.

In 1909 and 1911, he, with others, secured the enactment of legislation in Pennsylvania that brought about the building of the splendid Perry's Victory Memorial at Put In Bay, commemorating the victory won by Commodore Perry and his fleet at the Battle of Lake Erie, and in 1913 he was instrumental in securing an appropriation by the state of Pennsylvania of the sum of $150,000 for raising and restoring the brig "Niagara" and "the erection of a permanent marker, arch or memorial at the city of Erie, Pa., commemorating the building of the fleet at that place, as well as the splendid manner in which, in the hands of the brave Commander Perry and the gallant men who fought with him, it performed its errands at the Battle which followed its construction," and in 1921, when a member of the Senate, he prepared, introduced and aided by Hon. J. Reed Craig, member of the House from Erie, secured the enactment into law of a bill providing that the Presque Isle peninsula and certain water property in the Bay of Presque Isle "be preserved, maintained, improved, enlarged, and forever held as a public park, to be known as Pennsylvania State Park at Erie."

Mr. Sisson was president of the Pennsylvania Perry's Victory Centennial Commission and treasurer general of the Interstate Board of Perry's Victory Commissions, the latter of which built the splendid monument at Put In Bay, Ohio, and now that board and commission has become a national commission and he is vice president of it. He took a very active part with others in bringing about the erection of that memorial, which has now, by act of Congress, been made a national memorial. He was a member of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission and is a member of the Pennsylvania State Bar Association, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Society of New York, the Erie Club, the Harrisburg Club of Harrisburg, Pa., and the Elks Lodge of Erie. He is affiliated with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and has taken an active interest in all these organizations, availing himself of the special benefit of each as often as possible.

On Dec. 13, 1888, Mr. Sisson married Miss Lena L. Spencer, daughter of Dr. H. A. Spencer, a leading physician of Erie for a number of years. They have a son, Spencer Alec Sisson, a practicing attorney of Erie.

Spencer Alec Sisson, son of A. Elverton Sisson and Lena L. (Spencer) Sisson, was born in Erie, Nov. 2, 1889. He completed his public school course with graduation from Erie High School in 1908, going thence to Princeton University, there receiving his Bachelor's degree with the class of 1912. Choosing the profession of law, he entered Harvard Law School, whence he was graduated LL. B. in the class of 1915. In the autumn following, Mr. Sisson was admitted to the bar of Erie County and on Feb. 14, 1916, was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He began practice with his eminent father and so continued until Dec. 6, 1917, renewing the affiliation in November, 1919, under the firm name of A. E. & S. A. Sisson, of Erie.

Mr. Sisson enlisted in the United States Naval Reserve Force, Dec. 6, 1917, and was released from active duty April 10, 1919, serving in the supply corps with the rank of ensign.

He is a Republican in politics and a member of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church of Erie. He is a member of the American Legion, the Pennsylvania and the Erie County Bar associations, the University Club and the Kakhwa Club of Erie.

At Malletts Bay, Vt., on Aug. 11, 1917, Mr. Sisson was married to Miss Marguerite Amy Nash, the daughter of George and Isabelle (Marshall) Nash. They have a daughter, Lois Marshall Sisson, born at Erie, Jan. 25, 1921, and a son George Spencer Sisson, born likewise at Erie, on Nov. 1, 1922.

Dr. F. E. Ross, physician of Erie, who has practiced his profession for 25 years, is a native of Pennsylvania. He was born at Waterford, Dec. 2, 1872, and is the son of L. M. and Nancy Jane (Lunger) Ross.

L. M. Ross, deceased, was born at Waterford, Pa., in 1841. He was a son of James S. Ross, who died in 1885. He moved to Waterford Township in 1851 and was engaged in lumbering for some time. His wife was Sarah Ann Wilson, a native of Vermont. L. M. Ross was a farmer in early life and later engaged in the threshing business. He died in January, 1921, and his wife died in October, 1919. Mr. and Mrs. Ross, who were married at Waterford, Pa., in 1863, had two children: Hattie Elizabeth Wells, born in 1863, lives at Waterford, Pa.; and Dr. F. E., the subject of this sketch.

After receiving his preliminary education in the schools of Waterford, from which he was graduated in 1894, Dr. F. E. Ross entered the medical school of the University of Buffalo, from which he received his degree in 1897. The following year was spent in the Buffalo General Hospital and in 1899 Doctor Ross came to Erie and established his practice at 137 East Eighth Street. After seven years he removed to 2012 Peach Street, later to 154 West Eighth Street, and in 1919 he located at his present address, 134½ West Ninth Street. Since 1912 Doctor Ross has specialized in pediatrics, after having spent a year in study at the Children's Hospital in Boston. He has been connected with the staff of Hamot Hospital for 18 years and is also a member of St. Vincent's Hospital staff.

On June 20, 1901, Doctor Ross was married to Miss Myrtice E. Watson, a native of New York and a daughter of Stephen and Emma E. (Bull) Watson. To Doctor and Mrs. Ross three sons have been born: Cecil E., born Dec. 7, 1902, a student at Allegheny College; Everett L., born June 17, 1907, a student; and Robert W., born Sept. 21, 1912.

Doctor Ross is identified with the Medical Society of Erie County, the Pennsylvania Medical Society, and the American Medical Association, Erie Clinical Society and Erie General Dispensary. He and his family hold membership in the First Methodist Episcopal Church and are well and favorably known in the community.

Leonard Pasqualicchio, president of the Bank of Italy, is a representative business man of Erie. He was born at Troia, Italy, April 28, 1886, and is the son of Pasquale and Josephine Pasqualicchio. The Pasqualicchio family came to America in 1891. The father and mother are both deceased.

Leonard Pasqualicchio worked his way through school as a printer's boy. Erastus Chidester was one of seven brothers: Hezekiah, Philo, Erastus, William Rush, Julius, Velorus and Royal Canfield; all but the last were born at Cornwall Bridge, Conn. His birth was on March 23, 1789, son of William and Martha (Dean) Chidester. He married Lydia Sackett, at Canfield, Ohio, in 1813, and they raised a family of three sons, Clark, Julius and William N., and two daughters, Caroline and Martha. He moved to Richland Grove, near Swedonia, Mercer County, Ill., where they celebrated their golden wedding and here resided till his death, March 10, 1866. His wife, Lydia Sackett, who survived him several years, was born Nov. 1, 1790, afterwards went with her eldest son, Clark Chidester, to Fairfield, Jefferson County, Iowa, where she died Feb. 23, 1872, at the mature age of 82 years, and was buried at Brookville, Jefferson County, Iowa.

William Chidester, born in Williamstown, Mass., in 1757, was a son of William Chidester, who with his brother Jonathan, emigrated from Wales to America. The latter settled in New Jersey, the former in Williamstown, Mass. When quite young the Indians attacked the town, killed a number of the inhabitants, and carried away several women and children, among whom was Mrs. Carter, sister-in-law of William, Sr. Together with Mr. Carter and others he followed their trail and overtook them near Wilkesbarre, Pa., where a battle ensued and both were killed. William, Jr., soon after went to live with his uncle, Hezekiah Carter, who resided at Cornwall, Litchfield County, Conn., and was brought up by him. He married Chloe Peck in 1779, by whom he had one son, but his wife and son died in less than two years.

The following account of the father, William Chidester, and his journey to the then West, is from the lips of his son, Erastus: "William Chidester was a soldier in the War of the Revolution, at first drafted as a militiaman under Samuel Canfield of New Milford, Conn. He enlisted in the company of Capt. Theodore Woodbridge, Eleventh Connecticut line, under command of Colonel Homan Swift, in which he served four years. He participated in the battles of Brandywine and Monmouth. At the expiration of his term he was discharged, returned to Cornwall, and married Martha, daughter of Thomas Dean of that place. He began keeping house near Cornwall bridge, and followed his trade of tailor here for three years. He then bought a nearby farm on which he lived until 1802, when he exchanged it for land in Canfield in what was then called New Connecticut in the Northwest Territory, later known as the Western Reserve, State of Ohio. He left Cornwall April 27, 1802, arriving at his destination, Canfield, Ohio, June 2nd. His large family and household goods and stores were conveyed in two wagons, one drawn by a team of horses, the other by oxen, with a led cow. His route was up the Hudson to Newburgh, where he crossed in a piroque at one load. Thence proceeded to Easton on the Delaware, which was crossed in a flat boat in two loads; thence by a then lonesome and dangerous road over the Allegheny Mountains to Fort Pitt; crossing the Monongahela here, they journeyed down the south bank over a mere trail in the rough hills to Beavertown. They forded the Ohio about a mile and a half below, thence reached Canfield, Ohio, in two and one-half days. He selected plot No. 15, first division in the woods, the next house west of his being then 15 miles distant. Three years afterwards he removed to plot No. 18 in the third division, where he lived, and in 1811 built a frame house for his son, Royal Canfield Chidester, the first white child born in that settlement. After the admission of Ohio in 1803 he was elected justice of the peace, which office he held until his death, Feb. 26, 1813. He also served as township trustee and commissioner of Trumbull County. His wife, Martha, survived him a number of years and drew a pension on account of his services in the Revolution."

He was born in the Village of Wiszyn, near Dantzig, in Pomerania, then West Prussia, Germany, now Poland, Sept. 18, 1879, and is the son of John and Frances (Klawiter) von Nagorski. In 1888 the family came to the United States and in May of that year took up their residence in Erie.

The family name of Nagorski was corrupted by erroneous spelling initiated by an uncle, Alois Nagorski, who was an early settler in Erie, and who upon his naturalization wrote his name Nagosky. This last spelling is wrong and was caused, perhaps, by a desire to simplify the name and make it less difficult to pronounce.

Mr. Nagorski received his early education in the public schools of his native land and was about 11 years of age at the time that the family immigrated to America. He was reared in Erie and continued his primary education in St. Stanislaus' parochial school, after which he took up his preparatory work in Sts. Cyril and Methodius Seminary at Detroit, Mich.

He became interested from the very beginning of his legal career, in the material, economical and moral improvement of the Polish immigrant. He has defended the Polish people from unjust attacks, and has from time to time written illuminating articles in the press, dispelling prejudice and disseminating truthful information. In co-operation with Rev. Andrew Ignasiak, he organized the East Side Building and Loan Association in the year 1907, for the purpose of stimulating savings and creating funds to facilitate the building of homes and improving living conditions. This association has been very prosperous, and he is still its solicitor. He was also one of the initiators of the Bank of Erie, now the Bank of Erie Trust Company, of which he is a director and solicitor. Besides the inter-

M. C. A.

He takes active part in the problems of the American citizens of Polish descent in this country, and in Americanization work amongst the people of his descent. The most influential of these organizations, and which will be remembered during the late great war rendered such effective service, is the Polish National Alliance, of which he is a member and president of the local lodges. He is a member of the University Club, and the Elks.

In 1918 and 1919 he represented his constituents in the city council as finance director and vice-mayor.

He is a Republican in politics. In the year 1916 in the campaign for assembly, he came within 34 votes of being elected over the combination Republican-Democrat candidate. His defeat, however, was a victory for the Republican party because his winning precincts also gave Henry A. Clark a fine vote, which resulted in the election of Mr. Clark to Congress. Mr. Clark won by 613 votes from his Democratic opponent, Charles N. Crosby.

Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Knights of Pythias, Elks Lodge, and the Loyal Order of Moose. He is a Republican and during his long term of public service as an official he has been most progressive and efficient.

Joseph H. Williams, deceased, was a substantial and highly esteemed citizen of Erie. He was born at Burlington, N. J., Oct. 29, 1839, a son of Samuel S. and Sarah (Hutchinson) Williams, the father a native of Burlington, N. J., and the mother of Bucks County, Pa.

The Williams family is an old and highly esteemed family of New Jersey, and John N. Williams, the paternal great-grandfather of the Erie Joseph H. Williams, served in the Revolutionary War in a New Jersey regiment. He met his death at the Battle of Monmouth, and his son Daniel, the grandfather of Joseph H., was born near that battle ground in Monmouth County, and died in Burlington, N. J., and the maternal grandfather of Mr. Williams died in Bucks County, Pa. The latter was an Englishman by birth.

Joseph H. Williams spent the early years of his life in his native city of Burlington and in 1861 he volunteered in three month's service in the Civil War, but being refused on account of the company being full, he again volunteered in February, 1864, in Company F, 186th Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and served until the close of the struggle. Four of his brothers were also in the war, two serving in the 112th Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, one in the Third New Jersey Regiment and one was in the Construction Corps. Previous to joining the army, Joseph H. Williams had learned the bricklayer's trade and coming to the City of Erie in 1872 he began contracting and building and continued along that line of work until his death. Mr. Williams, in company with Robert T. Shank, built some of the leading business places and beautiful homes of Erie and during its existence was one of the largest contracting firms in the county. Among the fine residences constructed by them was the home of Mrs. C. W. Strong. He died Dec. 23, 1913.

Mrs. Nancy B. (Crane) Williams, probation officer of Erie County, is among the highly esteemed women of Erie, and a member of one of the county's prominent pioneer families. She was born in this city, Jan. 12, 1852, and is the daughter of James and Priscilla (Roberts) Crane.

James Crane was the son of Abiatha Crane, one of the pioneers of Erie and a soldier of the Revolutionary War. He established the Crane Stone Quarry Company in Erie, which was owned by him until his death in June, 1852.

Nancy B. Crane was reared and educated in Erie and on Oct. 14, 1870, was united in marriage with Joseph H. Williams, now deceased. A sketch of Mr. Williams appears in this volume.

To Joseph C. and Nancy B. (Crane) Williams were born six children, as follows: Charles Hutchin, born July 31, 1871, married Clara Jackson, and they live at 117 East Fifth Street, Erie; Joseph Crane, born July 8, 1877, mention of whom is made below; Max C., born Sept. 29, 1879, married Louise Greger, served as chairman of the Erie County Republican Committeemen from 1919 until 1924, and they live at 217 East Avenue, Erie; Robert K., born Oct. 28, 1882, married Mamie Olivett, lives at 823 East Sixth Street, Erie; Sarah, born Jan. 10, 1884, married C. The Crane Family. The following is taken from the Cleveland Sunday Leader of April, 1903: "History of an Illustrious Family. Many descendants of Abiathar Crane, one of Erie's pioneer settlers, now reside in this section. The Cranes are among the earliest pioneers of Erie County, Elihu, Miles, and Abiathar Crane, coming from New England and settling in the western part of the county in 1797, in the vicinity of Cranesville. Abiathar Crane later moved to Erie and located in its eastern suburb. No family in the county has a more honorable record than that of the Cranes. Jasper Crane, who came from England in 1637 with Alice, his wife, was the emigrant ancestor. Their son, Jasper, was one of the committee of safety to protect the New Haven colony against De Ruyter, the Dutch Admiral, who cruised in the Long Island Sound and threatened the settlements. During the Revolutionary War, the Connecticut colony, to increase facilities for coast defense, put into service three boats or galleys, one being called 'The Crane,' named in honor of the family who stood so loyally by the colony. It was sent to New York to assist in its defense under General Washington and even the exact cost of the 'Crane' has been recorded, £1,013, 6s, 10d.

"Of the other Cranes who gave service to their country there was Ebenezer Crane, a private of the militia, designated as the 'Lexington Alarm.' Members of the family served as privates, corporals, and captains, not only in the Revolutionary War and all colonial wars, but in that of 1812 and the Mexican War. Anyone who can claim a Crane as an ancestor has no trouble in proving eligibility to the various patriotic societies, Colonial Dames or Revolutionary Daughters and Sons. Love of country has ever been a distinguishing trait of the family as well as upright business principles. No descendant so far as is known, has ever been a criminal, a pauper, or a suicide. The family is descended from Lord Arundell's family, and inherit the blood of Charlemagne and Hugh Capet, both of whom claimed to spring from Pharmond, and from him to Antenor, king of the Crimenians, B. C. 443. Chilton, near Gudbury, in Suffolk, is the home of the Cranes. They lived at Chilton Hall, a moated manor or some distinction and were lords of the manor. The Cranes in England have borne five coats of arms, whether all of one family is not certain, although there is reason for believing that they were special grants made for special services. The several Armorialia are lacking in mottoes with one exception.

"A member of the Crane family of Cheshire county, England, on noticing his neighbor Corbett's motto, 'God Feeds the Crows,' wrote for his motto, 'He who feeds the crows will not forget the Cranes.' In Chilton Church is an elaborate marble monument to the memory of Liv. Robert Crane, who was knighted by James I. Of Jane Anne Arundell it is recorded that she left by will, which was proved in 1521, money for wax tapers for the day of her burying and afterwards for use at mass, also money for bells to ring dirges at her obsequies. A John Crane was clerk of the kitchen to James I, a position of much honor. A Robert Crane of Suffolk, was one of the gentlemen chosen by King Charles II to be made knight of the Royal Oak. He had an estate of $75,000 per year."

Henry J. Sevin was a prominent art dealer for more than fifty years in the City of Erie. He was born in this city, Jan. 14, 1856, was educated in the city schools, and at the age of 13 years entered the business firm of his father. His father, Jacob Theodore Sevin, son of a teacher, was born at Gruenstatt, Rhine Bavaria, Germany, Oct. 28, 1812, and died Aug. 17, 1888. His mother, Catherine Albrecht, was born at Erbach, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, and died Oct. 14, 1871. She was the daughter of a cloth manufacturer. Both of Mr. Sevin's parents are buried in Erie Cemetery.

The Sevin family were originally French Huguenots and came from Orleans, France. To escape the Catholic persecutions of the early 17th century they fled to Germany. There is a legend that up until this time the name had been Nives, and that it was now written backward and spelled Sevin to escape detection. This is substantiated by the old Sevin crest which bears in the lower portion of an ornamental shield, a cluster of snow flakes. The Latin plural of snow is nives, denoting the origin of the name and its original spelling.

Jacob T. Sevin was educated in the public schools of Germany and was graduated from the Gymnasium, a school which corresponds to our high school. He was a student of Latin and spoke German, French, Italian, Spanish and English. His father was a school teacher by profession and Jacob also taught school when a young man. Later he became a journeyman worker, following a mechanical and constructive bent and a desire to travel. He was an expert wood turner, also a turner of metals, horn, and other mediums. In 1849 he was forced to flee Germany because of his republican tendencies and lack of sympathy with the German monarchy. He then came to the United States and to Erie, because his brother, Dr. Charles Sevin, had located here the year previously. These traits of mechanical ability, desire to travel, and independence of thought are apparent in his children and grandchildren.

In 1846, three years before leaving Germany, Jacob Sevin married Catherine Albrecht. Two children were born there, Ernestine and Elizabeth Sevin. Ernestine taught in the public schools of Erie, was organist and choir leader in St. Paul's German Lutheran Church for many years, and later married Ernest Waeldin of Brooklyn, N. Y., where she made her home from that time until her death in 1923. Elizabeth became a pianist and teacher of music. She did not marry and died in 1917. Five more children were born in Erie: Carrie Sevin who married Jacob Eichorn and who died in 1916; Margaret Sevin, who married Charles B. Weunschel and is now living at 328 West Fifth Street, Erie; Charlotte Sevin, who married William S. Sherwood and is living at 435 West 10th Street, Erie (both Margaret and Charlotte were school teachers before their marriage). Charles Theodore, who is in the art business in Buffalo, N. Y., and lives at 785 Ashland Avenue; and Henry J. Sevin, the subject of this sketch.

Jacob Sevin continued in Erie his trade of wood and metal turning, making various articles such as canes, pipes, and later picture frames. This was the beginning of the art business in this city and of Sevin's Art Store. His first place of business was at Seventh and State Streets, at about 705 State Street. It was in this building that Henry J. Sevin was born in 1856. Later the business moved just above Eighth Street on State, where the Penn Building now stands. Here it remained until 1863 when the shop was moved to 17 West Seventh Street and a house erected at 15 West Seventh Street. In 1873 the firm of J. T. Sevin and Sons was formed, the house was moved to the rear, and the present building at 15 West Seventh Street was erected. Here the sons, Theodore and Henry, developed the art business while their father conducted a repair department at No. 17. By 1884 the art business had grown considerably. In this year the sons erected a two-story building at 912 State Street, moved the art business there, and formed the firm of J. T. Sevin's Sons. Their father continued the repair department at 17 West Seventh Street until his death in 1888. In 1897 another change took place when the firm of J. T. Sevin's Sons was dissolved and C. Theodore Sevin moved to Buffalo, N. Y., to open an art store on Main Street. In 1903 Henry J. Sevin remodeled and enlarged the building at 15 West Seventh Street and moved back to the old stand. In August, 1924, he retired from active business and died April 18, 1925. The business is now being conducted by his daughter Gertrude K.

On Oct. 19, 1881, Henry J. Sevin married Fredericka Mehl. She was an Erie girl, having been born and reared in this city. Her parents came from Alsace which belonged to France during the time they lived there. Her father, Michael M. Mehl and her mother, Catherine Witter, were married in 1834 and had several sons. Michael Mehl was not in sympathy with the military program of France and did not want his sons subjected to the enforced military training so he brought his family to America and settled in Erie. It was his intention to go farther west but his wife had wearied of traveling and requested that they go no farther, so they remained in Erie. Michael Mehl brought with him from Strausburg a number of instruments and formed the Mehl Band, the first brass band in Erie. His sons went to the Civil War with it. Michael Mehl died in 1880 and his wife in 1887. They are buried in the Erie Cemetery.

Of the children born to Henry J. Sevin and wife, Harry Louis Sevin is now living in Birmingham, Mich. He is manager of the Detroit Branch Office of the Theodore L. Dodd Company, manufacturers' agents. In 1914 Harry Sevin married Ethel Love of Hartford, Conn. They have three boys, William, Harry Louis, Jr., and Frederic Robert. Gertrude Katherine the eldest daughter, was graduated from Syracuse University in 1910. In 1911 she was appointed professor of biology and head of that department at Agnes Scott College, a college for women in Decatur, Ga., a suburb of Atlanta. In 1915 she returned to Syracuse University for a year of study and was granted a master's degree in June, 1916, and elected a member of Sigma Xi, the national honorary science society. In the fall of 1916 she went to Adelphi College for women in Brooklyn, N. Y., where she was head of the biology department until June, 1923. In August of this year when her father retired from business, his daughter, Gertrude, decided to give up her teaching profession to take over and continue the art business which her father had successfully carried on for so many years. A younger daughter, Madeleine Sevin, was with her father in the art business for a number of years. In 1918 she married Dr. Donald S. Sterret, the orthodontist. They have three children, Virginia, David, and Martha. Two younger sons, Frederic William and Robert Edward are twins. They both were graduated from the University of Michigan in 1917 as mechanical engineers. During the World War they served with the Curtis Aeroplane Corporation as assistants to the chief engineer. Frederic W. Sevin is at present with the Vacuum Oil Company as a lubrication expert working out of their Detroit office. Robert E. Sevin is associated with the Union Iron Works of Erie.

After the close of the war he located in Ontario County, New York, where he became possessed of a tract of land 18 miles in extent by a trade with the Indians. Impressed with the favorable location of the then new town of Erie and believing that it was destined to become an important commercial center, he sold his Ontario estate and with his wife and sons, Charles, John and Manning, started for the frontier. They reached the harbor of Erie on July 1, 1795. Two other sons, Rufus S. and George, later came by way of Pittsburgh. He died March 19, 1797, at the age of 53 years. Rufus S. Reed, the most prosperous and best known of the sons of Colonel Reed, always remained in Erie. He was born at Uxbridge, Mass., Oct. 11, 1775. He started a store in 1796, which did a large trade with the Indians, the soldiers and the settlers. In 1797 he began an extensive fur trade with the Indians which was very profitable. His boats ran constantly on the lake, loaded with shore goods one way, and furs the other. He secured a large government contract for supplying the western posts with beef, pork, flour and whiskey. He became an extensive owner of lake vessels and was the foremost man in enterprise in the whole lake country. Rufus Reed was married twice, his first wife being Dolly Oaks of Palmyra, N. Y. In 1801 he married Agnes, daughter of Gen. William Irvine, who bore him one son, the well known Gen. Charles M. Reed. Rufus Reed died at the age of 70 on June 1, 1846, leaving the largest fortune that had been accumulated up to that time in the lake shore region.

Lewis W. Olds. A man of good business talents and ability, Lewis W. Olds is intimately associated with one of the most important manufacturing industries of Corry, being president of the Climax Manufacturing Company, builders of geared locomotives, and also interested in timber lands in Washington. A son of Mason O. Olds, he was born March 30, 1865, at Youngsville, Warren County, Pa. He comes of New England stock, his grandfather, Elisha Olds, a lineal descendant of Phineas Olds, who was a son of Ezekiel Old, of Brookfield, Mass., having been born and brought up in Vermont, and who served as corporal and captain in the war of the Revolution, being in the Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1777, also in the Battle of Lexington. Ezekiel Old also served in the French and Indian wars, as mentioned in History North Brookfield, pages 214-215 and 697.

Ezekiel was the son of Capt. William Old who took part in the siege and capture of Louisburg in Queen Anne's War in 1747, and William Old is a son of Dr. Robert Old who settled in Windsor, Conn., in 1669, having come from England in that year and settled in Connecticut. The letter S was added to the surname Old as mentioned, pages 44-45 of History Suffolk, Colony Massachusetts 1660-1749, published by Hezekiel Spencer Sheldon.

In company with his half-brothers, Joel and Gilbert Olds, Elisha Olds migrated from the Green Mountain state to Pennsylvania in pioneer days, making the entire journey with teams. Locating in Erie County, he bought a tract of forest covered land on Mill Creek, being one of the earlier settlers of that part of the county. Making a clearing, in which he erected a log cabin, he began the improvement of a homestead. After he had well started his farming operations, he took advantage of the water on the place, developed the water power, erected a saw mill and a pump shop, and was one of the pioneer lumber and pump manufacturers of Erie County. Succeeding in his labors, he cleared a goodly portion of his land, erected a substantial set of frame buildings and there resided until his death at the age of 67 years. He was three times married. He married first Abigail W. Flint, who was born in Vermont, a daughter of James and Jerusha Flint. He married second Mary A. Deming, of Kenosha, Wis., and married for his third wife, Mrs. Electa (Chase) Huie. By his first marriage he had 13 children, as follows: James P., George, Oby, Oro, Mason O., Allen, Welcome, Henry, Delight, Moses, Nellie, and Martha. One child died in infancy. Of his second marriage two children were born, Dana E., and Walter R.

Mason O. Olds was born July 21, 1836, at Belle Valley, Mill Creek Township, and was there reared on the home farm, receiving his education in the pioneer schools of his district. Beginning when young to assist his father in the shop and mill, he became familiar with the business, and on attaining his majority went to Youngsville, Warren County, Pa., where he engaged in the manufacture of pumps until 1870. Coming in that year to Corry, he established a pump factory, which he conducted successfully until his death, two years later, while yet in manhood's prime. His wife, whose maiden name was Eliza Mead, was born at Youngsville, Pa., in 1838, a daughter of Joseph Mead, a pioneer farmer of Warren County. She died in 1906, aged 68 years.

The only son of his parents, Lewis W. Olds received a practical education in the public schools of Corry, after which he commenced his business career as a bookkeeper for the Climax Manufacturing Company, accepting the position in 1885. After a few years of faithful work in that capacity, he became financially interested in the business as a part owner, and in 1904, when it was incorporated, Mr. Olds was elected president of the company and has since devoted his entire time and energies to its interests.

Mr. Olds married in 1885 Nellie Raymond, whose father, Murray M. Raymond, and grandfather, Francis Raymond, were born in Columbus Township, Warren County, Pa., where her great-grandfather, Seth Sears Raymond, was a pioneer settler, and where her great-great-grandfather, Zachariah Raymond, a Revolutionary soldier (mentioned in Book 1298, Massachusetts, Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War, page 1013) spent his last years. Seth Sears Raymond came to Warren County when the country round-about was in its primeval wildness. Buying a tract of timber land in Columbus Township, he cleared and improved a homestead on which he lived many years. When ready to give up active labor, he removed to the village and there lived retired until his death. Brought up on the home farm, Francis Raymond early turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, and having purchased land in Columbus Township was there engaged in general farming during his active life, residing there until his death, at the age of four score years. His wife, whose maiden name was Della Colegrove, was born in Concord Township, where her parents were early settlers. Murray M. Raymond was born June 10, 1843, and grew to manhood on the home farm. During the Civil War he served one year in the Union army, after which he engaged in the lumber business for a time. He later established himself in Corry as a manufacturer and was president of the Raymond Manufacturing Company. He married Seraphina Bishop, who was born in Columbus Township, a daughter of Joseph Bishop. Joseph Bishop's mother's maiden name was Sallie Burk, daughter of Joseph Burk, who served in the Revolutionary War at Newberry, Guilford, and Westminster, mentioned in Vermont Revolutionary Roll, book 991-12, page 353. She died in 1903, leaving three children: Nellie G., wife of Mr. Olds; Frank M., and Harriet. Mr. and Mrs. Olds have one son living, Murray Raymond Olds, born in 1890. Their first son, Mason O., was born in 1887 and died in 1904.

They established their home at Harbor Creek, Pa., where he was employed by the Cass Woolen Mills, which are now extinct. In 1861 they removed to North East where he founded the Cass & Grimshaw Woolen Mills. Mr. Grimshaw became a prominent citizen of this section and died in 1877. Arold Albert Freeman stands as a splendid representative of the legal profession in Erie County and is among the most prominent citizens of Erie. He was born on the old Freeman farm in Crawford County, Pa., July 4, 1850, and is the son of Arold and Mary (Davis) Freeman.

Arold Freeman was born near Metuchen, N. J., July 26, 1807, and was a son of Arold Freeman, who was born in the same neighborhood in 1770. His father, Thomas Freeman, was born in New Jersey in 1748, and was the son of Henry Freeman, Jr., born in Woodbridge, N. J., in 1717. The last named was of the first generation of American born members of the family. His father, Henry Freeman, Sr., was born in England in 1670 and emigrated to America in 1683, landing at Philadelphia.

Arold Freeman, father of the subject of this sketch, followed the occupation of farming throughout his entire life and died in Crawford County, Sept. 11, 1888. His wife was born in that county in September, 1810, and was a daughter of Isaac Davis, of Welsh descent and a pioneer of Crawford County. She died Jan. 10, 1877, after having reared a family of seven children.

Arold Freeman, whose name introduces this review, remained on the old home farm of the Freeman family in Crawford County until he attained the age of 19 years. Leaving the district schools, he entered the state normal school at Edinboro, and was there graduated with the class of 1872. He afterward engaged in teaching school for a few terms in order to obtain money with which to complete his education and after acquiring his literary course he entered the medical department of the Buffalo University, from which he was graduated with the class of 1876, winning his M. D. degree. The same year he located in Erie, where he engaged in the practice of his profession for five years until his health became impaired and he was forced to put aside the duties of his chosen calling. About that time he was elected to the office of alderman and while filling that position he also read law familiarizing himself with the leading textbooks and commentaries during his five years' aldermanic term. In 1886 he was admitted to the bar and at once entered upon the practice of law, in which he has continued successfully to the present time. His ability at the bar is evidenced by the large clientage accorded him.

While his professional duties make heavy demand upon his time, Mr. Freeman has also been recognized as an active worker in the ranks of the Democratic party and in 1888 was made its candidate for assemblyman, being defeated by only 72 votes. The same year he was elected a member of the Erie School Board and served for three years, while for one year he was president of the board. During that period he agitated the subject of building a free school library, earnestly advocating this work and is conceded to be the originator and chief promoter of the project, a report of the secretary of the board giving him credit in this way.

Concerning the beginning of the Public School Library in Erie the following is taken from the report of Prof. H. C. Missimer for the years of 1897-99. "The final realization of a public library is the work of the Board of Education of the City of Erie. The library idea was first presented to the board by its text book and rules committee, of which A. A. Freeman was a member. In July, 1890, it recommended that $100 for the purchase of books of reference as the foundation of a school library and that all fines collected by city aldermen coming to the school board be used for library purposes. This motion was also made by Mr. Freeman as a member of this committee. In his inaugural address as president of the board in June, 1891, Mr. Freeman still further developed his ideas of a library, and in a letter to the Evening Herald of May 31, 1894, he advocated the establishment of a free non-sectarian public library under the supervision of the board of education. He pointed out the provisions of the law by which a library might be established and he argued that the board of education should therefore establish and maintain such a library. The honor of originating such a library for our city, under the control of the board of education clearly belongs to A. A. Freeman." This is perhaps quoting enough of this report, enough to say that a law was drawn by Mr. Freeman and submitted to a committee by the board, of which Benjamin Whitman, H. C. Missimer, and A. A. Freeman were invited members, in February, 1894, and adopted. Largely through the efforts of Gen. D. B. McCreary, member of the senate, and Col. E. P. Gould, member of the house, the bill became a law June 28, 1895. The library grounds were bought and building provided for during the years 1896 and 1897. Such in brief is the history of the origin of the public school library of Erie."

Mr. Freeman has at all times been interested in matters of general improvement, reform and advancement, and wherever the opportunity has presented for a good work or for assistance in any worthy movement he has not been found wanting. He was one of the incorporators of St. Vincent's Hospital, drafted the plans for its organization and for many years its attorney. He is also attorney for the Sisters of St. Joseph, representing them in legal interests since his admission to the bar.

The following is from a speech delivered by Mr. Freeman on the occasion of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of St. Vincent's Hospital: "I am very glad to meet with the members of the Corporation at the beginning of the 50th year of the establishment of the St. Vincent's Hospital. The first building was erected in the year of 1875 on the south side of 24th, about midway between Sassafras Street and Myrtle Street. The building was in size 60x90 feet and cost about $7,000. The hospital was placed in charge of seven Sisters of St. Joseph, under the supervision of Mother Agnes, assisted by Sister Ambrosia, who afterward became the Mother Superior of the order, and Sisters Clotilda, Anastatia, Jerome, Agatha and Mary. These seven sisters devoted their whole time to the hospital. There was no mention of the hospital in the city directory of 1875, but in the issue of 1876 we find this note: 'St. Vincent's Hospital —In charge of the Sisters of St. Joseph. Open to all nationalities and creeds. Dr. J. L. Stewart, Physician.' This announcement continued to 1889, Doctor Stewart being mentioned in each directory down to 1889 and he continued in charge until his death in 1890. I was called many times to assist Doctor Stewart from 1876 until 1881 and I have no recollection of meeting any other physician at the hospital during that time. After the death of Doctor Stewart, Dr. C. W. Stranahan was at the head of the physicians in charge, assisted by other members of the profession. A few years prior to the establishment of the hospital, Mother Agnes Spencer came to Erie and organized a small band of women pledged to Chastity and Poverty into the Order of the Sisters of St. Joseph, objects of this organization being 'the relief and support of the sick, destitute and disabled persons, the maintenance of orphans, the care and education of youth and other works of charity.' For many years St. Vincent's was the only hospital in the City of Erie. Sole credit must be given to this small band of women, who without money, maintained and developed this hospital by their work and prayers, aided by such voluntary contributions as they might receive from the community. In order that they might be better able to carry on their work in the City of Erie a charter was granted by the Erie County Court, May 2, 1882, to the Sisters of St. Joseph by the corporate name of "Sisters of St. Joseph of Northwestern Pennsylvania." But the time came when this institution could no longer be supported by voluntary contributions and the work of the devoted Sisters and the medical profession. On Dec. 14, 1894, a charter was granted to the St. Vincent's Hospital Association, to establish and maintain in the City of Erie a hospital in which medical and surgical attention and nursing may be given to all who may need and desire it without regard or distinction of race, color or religion, and under that charter St. Vincent's Hospital has been conducted and maintained, and the history of which can be better given by those who have been in closer touch than I have. But never let it be forgotten that this work and success was made possible by that little band of devoted women, led by Mother Agnes, followed by Mother Ambrosia Powers and turned over to this association. At the time Mother Ambrosia Powers was appointed superintendent of the hospital a medical staff was appointed consisting of Dr. C. W. Stranahan, chief of staff, assistants, Dr. Wallace Hunter and Dr. H. H. Forringer, specialist, Dr. J. H. Delaney. You will pardon me if I add here that owing to the well known principle universally adhered to in the medical profession, that no patient that came to this hospital ever lacked for the best of professional care and treatment, regardless of their ability to pay."

Mr. Freeman was married to Miss Josephine Finn, who was born in Chautauqua County, N. Y., but was reared in Erie County, a daughter of Nehemiah L. and Lucina (Weaver) Finn. She is a descendant in the fourth generation of William Finn, who came as a stowaway from Ireland and when the vessel reached Castle Garden was sold for his passage to a Doctor Carpenter, of Long Island. He afterward married the doctor's daughter, Helen. Their son, Anthony Finn, removed to Orange County, N. Y., while Nehemiah Finn, the grandfather of Mrs. Freeman, located in Greenfield Township, Erie County, and was one of the first to make and ship butter from this town to New York City, shipping by lake to Buffalo and thence to the Erie Canal to the Hudson and on to the metropolis. His son, Nehemiah Finn, Jr., became a well known and representative farmer of North East Township. To Mr. and Mrs. Freeman were born the following children: Arold R., born March 3, 1878, married Alice Blickinderfer, of Lancaster, Pa., and they have a daughter, Elinor Jane, born Oct. 2, 1907; and William Arold, born March 31, 1915, in the Isle of Pines; Robert T., born Jan. 19, 1881, has two children, Albert S., born Aug. 5, 1916, and Robert L., born July 14, 1918; Hortense, born Dec. 20, 1883; and Gladys, born July 19, 1889, married C. Harrison Lund, a sketch of whom appears in this history. Mrs. Freeman died March 2, 1921.

St. Mary's College, North East. The congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer (C. Ss. R.), whose members are called Redemptorists, is a religious order of Missionaries, founded at Scala, in the Kingdom of Naples, in 1732, by Saint Alphonsus Maria de Ligouri, Bishop of St. Agatha and Doctor of the Church. The Redemptorists came to this country in 1832, and up to the present year, 1925, have founded 60 houses in the United States, Canada and Porto Rico. For many years the congregation in America had no institution to prepare new members for the order. The means taken to supply this want gave origin to the Preparatory College, now known as St. Mary's College at North East. In 1847 at Baltimore, the Redemptorists fathers sought to provide future members for the order by instructing a small class of boys, whose inclinations seemed to indicate a calling to the priesthood, and to the religious life. In 1856 this class developed into a day school for boys who felt inspired to become Redemptorists. In 1867 this day school was in turn formed into St. Alphonsus' Academy by the Very Rev. Provincial J. Helmprecht. Rev. J. N. Berger was the first director of this academy.

DR. M. M. MSZANOWSKI

In May, 1868, Rev. Joseph Firlé succeeded Father Berger, and in the following July, Rev. Jos. Wuest was appointed Director. The latter is considered the real founder of St. Mary's Preparatory College. His energetic coadjutor was Rev. Thaddeus Anwander. They introduced a complete classical course of a regular college. For this purpose the garret of St. James' School at Baltimore was fitted up and opened on April 29, 1869, under the name of St. James College. In September, 1869, 48 pupils were present; the faculty was increased by the addition of Prof. August Messler, who taught at the college for 35 years, when death came unexpectedly, Aug. 18, 1904. In September, 1871, there were over 80 pupils on the roll. The next step in the progress of the college was its removal to Ilchester, Md., near Baltimore, where a large stone house had become the property of the Redemptorists. A frame building was added and both became known as St. Clement's College. In 1873 Father Wuest was relieved of the heavy burden as director of the college and was succeeded by Rev. Father Stuhl. The latter served to July, 1875, his successor being Rev. George J. Dusold. Rev. Joseph M. Schwartz became director in December, 1877, and during his term the college was removed to North East in 1881.

During the sixties there had been established at North East under the auspices of the Methodist Church, a seminary for the education of young people. The site chosen was on a part of the property of an old North East family named Hall, and lay on the northern limits of the borough. The building was begun in 1867, and the corner stone was laid in October, 1868. The erection of the institution cost $70,000.00, a sum too large for the Methodists to carry. The Presbyterians, therefore, joined them in the undertaking and for some years prosperity seemed to attend the institution. The Lake Shore Seminary was chartered as "a literary institution of high grade at which males and females may pursue and complete a course of study embracing English branches, ancient and modern languages, mathematics, metaphysics, music, drawing, painting and the science and art of teaching." The Presbyterians soon became dissatisfied with the joint management and withdrew, after which the Seminary was so harassed by debt that it finally closed. The trustees at one time tried to get the United States government to take over the property and use it for an Indian school. Finally, the ground and buildings were sold, in satisfaction of the debts, to the North East Savings Banks. Meanwhile, the Preparatory College at Ilchester had reached the point where it demanded larger and better accommodations. The removal of the institution having been decided upon, a chance visit to Erie by one of the Redemptorists Missionaries, Rev. A. J. McInerney, brought the news about the desirable property at North East. The papers which concluded the sale of the buildings and five acres of land to the Redemptorist Fathers were signed Jan. 31, 1881.

With the opening of the first term at North East in August, 1881, the Preparatory College entered upon a new period of existence. This new period was inaugurated on Aug. 2nd by the solemn dedication of the building, the Lake Shore Seminary, henceforth to be known as St. Mary's College. The Preparatory College was no longer an idea, an experiment; it was an institution that had been taken up into the life and activity of the congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer, of which it was now recognized as a necessary part. The nature and ideals of the institution had been stated by Father Helmpraecht, some ten years before and the objects and principles then laid down had been faithfully pursued. "The institute is to be of such a nature as to impart both moral and scientific training. The moral training is to imbue the scholars thoroughly with the spirit of the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer. The scientific training shall embrace the usual classical course and must be formally completed before a student can enter the novitiate. The first and most essential requirements for admission of students to the college are: that they have a sincere desire to become Redemptorists and that they give promise of future usefulness. The pupils shall be made to understand that all their learning, however necessary is little better than useless, if it goes not hand in hand with virtue."

The old seminary building was a two story brick structure, 168 feet long by 60 feet wide, with mansard roof and twin towers. The edifice presents practically the same external appearance that it did in 1881.

In the interior, however, the changes have been so extensive that scarcely a vestige of the old building remains. The surrounding grounds have also been greatly changed and extended. The original property of the College was increased in 1887, by the purchase of the Hall property some 12 acres, on the west side of Pearl Street, formerly the campus. A little later, during the same year, the Hitchcock property, east of the College, containing $2\frac{1}{2}$ acres with a residence in the midst of a pretty grove was added to the ground. From 1887 to 1891, two lower classes of St. Mary's College formed St. Clement's College at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. When they returned to North East the accommodations became limited and in 1893 plans were made for the erection of a faculty building. The corner stone was laid Nov. 19, 1893, and in August, 1894, the new building was dedicated. In June, 1896, the Mills property, fronting on Lake and Seminary streets, was purchased. In 1900 an electric power house was erected. On June 25, 1901, the corner stone was laid for the College Chapel, a beautiful Gothic structure, built of granite with sandstone trimmings. The altars, statuary, windows, and the decorative work of the interior are products of the best artistic taste and work, and a source of constant inspiration to ecclesiastical students.

In 1884 the Superior of St. Mary's was raised to the rank of Rector and Father Schwartz, whose labors as Superior of the College, both before and after its removal to North East, entitled him to highest praise, was appointed its first Rector. He continued in this office during two terms until July, 1890, when he was transferred to take charge of a similar college in the Western Province of the Redemptorist Fathers at Kirkwood, Mo. Rev. August Dooper was the second Rector at the College and was succeeded in 1898 by Rev. Caspar Ritter. In May, 1901, Rev. John G. Schneider became Rector. Rev. Francis Auth was appointed Rector in May, 1904, and it was during his term that the Silver Jubilee of St. Mary's was celebrated. Scarcely had the Silver Jubilee of 1906 been celebrated when Superiors were again confronted with the necessity of enlarging the College. Plans were proposed to increase the capacity of the institution, from 140 to 250 students. These plans were finally realized in 1912 when two spacious wings, the height of the College, were added to the rear of the central building. These additions were made possible by previous purchase in 1911 of the field, some 50 acres to the rear and north of the College. This purchase, however, did not include the Sam Irving property, some five acres, fronting on Lake Street, which land however finally came into the possession of St. Mary's College in 1924.

The Rev. Francis Auth was succeeded to the Rectorship by Rev. Henry Jung in 1912, the Rev. Richard Donohoe being appointed Director of the College. In 1915 Rev. Donohoe was vested with the double office of Rector and Director. In the spring of 1918 the Rectorship and Directorship devolved upon the Rev. John Beierschmidt, during whose triennium plans were matured for the erection of a spacious, commodious, up-to-date infirmary. It was, however, left to his successors to bring the project to completion. In the summer of 1922 Rev. Lawrence Jung was appointed Rector and Director, but owing to ill health resigned, and was succeeded in October, 1922, by the Rev. Louis Smith under whose first term of three years the infirmary, a structure of gray granite, was erected to the rear of the Chapel. It was also during this term that, Feb. 17, 1923, six Sisters of the Order of St. Elizabeth arrived from Germany, having generously offered themselves to care for the sick and to do the housework of the College. In May, 1924, Rev. Louis N. Smith was reappointed Rector and Director, and under his able guidance St. Mary's College still holds aloft on her hills the torch of learning and the Cross of Religion.

Cassius L. Alexander, mayor of Corry, is a leading citizen of Erie County. He was born in Wayne Township, Erie County, Jan. 24, 1875, and is a son of Robert Alexander. His grandfather, James Alexander, was born in Mercer County, where his parents located as pioneers.

Learning the carpenter's trade in Mercer County, James Alexander came to Erie County when a young man and after working there a few years as a carpenter settled in Wayne Township, where he was employed as a tiller of the soil until his death, while yet in manhood's vigor, in 1849. He married Clarissa Yeager, who was born in Wayne Township, Erie County, a daughter of Daniel Yeager. A native of Chenango County, N. Y., Mr. Yeager removed from there to Erie County, going with teams through the forests, part of the way following the path by means of blazed trees. Buying a tract of land in the timber he took possession of the cabin built by the former owner and at once began the herculean task of redeeming a farm from the forest. Industrious and enterprising, he succeeded well and in the course of a few years built a commodious frame house on the turnpike leading from Waterford to Columbus, which although but a small village was the nearest market for farm produce. In addition to farming, he made shaved shingles, which he sold at prices ranging from $1.12½ to $2 per thousand. He lived on his homestead, esteemed and respected by his neighbors and friends until his death at the venerable age of 90 years. Mr. Yeager married Polly Pole, a native of Chenango County, N. Y., and she too lived to a good old age. Mrs. Clarissa (Yeager) Alexander died when 55 years of age, leaving six children as follows: Mary Jane, Robert, Daniel, Nancy, Clara and Alice.

Left fatherless when a boy, Robert Alexander began when young to assist his mother in supporting the family, and when 12 years old began working out as a farm hand, receiving at first three dollars a month wages, and continued thus employed until 25 years of age. Embarking then in business on his own account he at first rented land for farming purposes, meeting with all of the success that he had anticipated, he soon bought a tract of 50 acres of land, nearly one-half of which was under cultivation, and began its further improvement. He erected frame buildings, cleared the greater part of the land, and at the end of 15 years sold at an advance. He subsequently purchased another farm in Wayne Township, not far from his first purchase, and there resided 23 years, until 1905, when he moved to Corry. During that time he made improvements of an excellent character, building a brick house and a frame barn, his estate ranking as one of the best and most valuable in the county, his land being unsurpassed for richness and fertility. Robert Alexander married in 1862 Sarah M. Dutton, who was born at Otselic, Chenango County, N. Y., April 5, 1846, a daughter of John Dutton, a native of the same town. Richard Dutton, the great grandfather of Mr. Alexander, was born as far as is known, in Otselic, and was there reared and married. Later in life he removed with his family to Chautauqua County, N. Y., traveling in true pioneer style with teams, taking all of his household effects with him. One of the original settlers of Clymer, he bought a tract of heavily timbered land, and on the farm that he wrested from the wilderness, he spent his remaining years. John Elmer Reed, the subject of this sketch and the author of this work, was born Feb. 27, 1865, in Millcreek Township, Erie County, Pa., in the log house where his father was born, on an eighty acre farm.

His ancestry is Scotch and English, the first of the families having entered America in the early part of the eighteenth century, settling in southeastern Pennsylvania. His great grandfather, Joseph Reed, was a captain of a company of the York County (Pa.) Militia of the Sixth Battalion, organized in 1776 composed of eight companies. The battalion was commanded in 1777-8 by Colonel William Ross, a relative of Joseph Reed from the same county. Mr. Joseph Reed was also a ferryman and tavern keeper on the Susquehanna River, owning a popular ferry below Harrisburg, as well as a large tract of land at that place.

Joseph Reed married Janet Ross for his second wife, having three children, Elizabeth, George and William. George Reed was born August 2, 1777, at the Ferry, and later married Miss Mary McCreary, a daughter of John McCreary and Rebecca (Clark) McCreary, whose farmstead was just across the river in Lancaster County. George Reed and wife removed to Millcreek Township, this county, in 1804, taking up an extensive tract of land in the Gore Tract, where they improved and resided until their deaths. They reared a large family on this farm: Joseph Reed, the elder of the children later marrying Jane Grubb, the daughter of Judge John Grubb of Millcreek Township, and settling upon the farm where our subject was born. These had three children, born in that log house: John Grubb Reed (father of our subject), George and Mary Alicia. J. G. Reed married Candace Eliza Blair, a daughter of John Wallace Blair of Girard Township, and Candace (Strong) Blair.

Joseph Reed, son of George, was born Jan. 1, 1807, in Millcreek Township. He married on Sept. 19, 1837, and died Sept. 17, 1844. Arthur Perry Zuck is well and favorably known in Erie, where he is identified with C. W. Zuck & Sons, leading greenhouse owners of this section. He was born at West Mill Creek, now known as Westminster, Pa., May 7, 1889, and is the son of Clark W. and Ocene N. (McKee) Zuck. A complete sketch of the ancestry of the Zuck family appears elsewhere in this history of Erie County.

After attending District School No. 5 for eight years, Arthur Perry Zuck was graduated from West Mill Creek High School in 1907. He immediately became interested in the business established by his father in 1880, which is known as C. W. Zuck & Sons. Mr. Zuck holds a fourth interest in this business.

ALBERT A. VON BUSECK

MRS. ALBERT A. VON BUSECK

Buseck, brought his brother and him from Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1832. The old home of the family was a valley called Busecker Thol, near the city of Giessen in the Grand Duchy of Hessen, Germany. The first record of this family in Germany cites the family as coming into Germany as Swedish noblemen, who came with Gustavus Adolphus during the Thirty Year War. For particular services rendered Germany at this time they were given the valley called Busecker Thol. They possessed the ancient title of Frieheerr (free war) which during the 17th century came to be changed to Baron. It is today merely a title of honor, but it implies considerable social status and privilege in Germany. When Baron Charles Von Buseck came to this country in 1832 he brought with him the copper plate which was a deed to the land that had been given them for particular services to their country. On this plate are the names of nine towns included in the valley. Two of these towns were named for the family, Grossen Buseck and Alten Buseck. This plate is now in possession of the Von Buseck family. Baron Charles Von Buseck and his sons, after arriving in this country and reaching Philadelphia were informed there of the good fishing and hunting at Erie, Pa., then known as Eaglesville. They walked to Erie and finally located on a 700-acre tract which is now known as Kearsage. After a time the Baron bought other farms, one being on the West Ridge, 55 acres, paying $13.00 per acre. Another farm on West Lake Road, 90 acres. Both of these farms have descendants living on them. Louis Von Buseck was married to Miss Caroline Stohlmann in September, 1840. She came from Bremen, Germany, in 1834. Their son, Albert A., was married April 12, 1886, to Miss Lucinda A. Donor. He died April 2, 1921, and his widow resides near Erie on West Lake Road on land purchased from Fred Sopp.

The Zooks (Zuck) are of an old honored German family. Zug is the ancient name. An archaeological discovery made a number of years ago in Egypt has revealed some knowledge of a tribe that existed in a remote period known as "Zugites." The name Zug is ancient in Switzerland, where there is a canton, a river, a lake, and a town of that name. In 1884 the town contained 3,000 inhabitants. On the 4th of March, 1435, in that part of the town of Zug nearest to the lake a frightful noise was heard succeeded by total disappearance of two streets with part of the town wall which sunk into the lake. In 1594 a similar calamity occurred and in 1795 a great part of the town was destroyed by fire. Zug is so ancient that its origin is past record. It is supposed to have been one of the towns destroyed by the Helvetian inhabitants mentioned in Caesar's Commentaries.

The colonial archives of Pennsylvania give the names of ten Zugs who arrived in Philadelphia from 1727 to 1776, and the present family came from one of the ten. We do not know just which.

Hermann Jerome Curtze, who has just celebrated his fiftieth year as an attorney in Erie, is known as "the grand old man of the Erie County bar." During those 50 years of law practice Attorney Curtze has served hundreds of clients, is still active in the profession and is almost a daily visitor at the courthouse, most of his work being before Judge Henry A. Clark in Orphan's Court. He was born in Erie, Nov. 30, 1847, the son of Frederick and Mary Ann (Beckmann) Curtze, the former a native of Corbach, Germany, and the latter of Annweiler, Germany.

Frederick Curtze came to the United States in 1836 and located in Erie, May 2, 1840. The Beckmann family came from Germany and settled in Fairview Township, in 1837. Mr. Curtze was by trade a silver and goldsmith. Shortly after his arrival in Erie, he took up the vocation of teacher of the German language, and later and for many years, engaged in business as a manufacturer of and dealer in oil cloths. He was a justice of the peace for 20 years. He died April 14, 1891, and his wife died Oct. 25, 1864.

Hermann Jerome Curtze was educated in the city schools and at Prof. Hermann Leo's Select School, Erie. He studied bookkeeping at Hick's Mercantile College, Buffalo, and returning to Erie was bookkeeper for the wholesale firm of Johnson & Brevillier for nearly three years. He then went to Europe and completed his education at the gymnasium of Corbach, the University of Heidelberg and at the University of Leipsic, taking the degree of Doctor of Laws at the former university. Returning after an absence of five years to Erie, he studied law under the preceptorship of Col. Benjamin Grant, was admitted to practice Jan. 4, 1875, was for a time in the office of James C. and F. F. Marshall, and has ever since been engaged in the practice of his profession alone.

Mr. Curtze was married June 4, 1878, to Henriette Goehling of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a daughter of Rev. Charles and Babetta Goehling. Mr. and Mrs. Curtze have had no children but have reared and educated several and have also sent a number of boys through college.

Mr. Curtze is greatly interested in art and has in his home a number of copies of well known oil paintings, among them being: "The Architect," a Rembrandt, the original of which hangs in an art gallery at Cassel, Germany; a panel representing the progress made by the University of Heidelberg on its 300th anniversary, by Professor Keller. The original is 30 ft. long, containing life-size figures and hangs in the University of Heidelberg. Mr. Curtze's copy, made by Arthur W. Woelle, is

HERMANN J. CURTZE

3x7 feet; "The Penitent Magdalene," a Battoni; "Lavinia," by Titian, an Italian head, the original being made 500 years ago and now in the Berlin galleries; "The Wash by the Moor," by Kraus, painted by him for the Kaiser, and which hung in his private collection; "An Inn Scene," made by Teniers in the 15th century; "With Grandmother," by Artz; "Ricks Mill Scene," by Ruisdael; "The Fisher Maid," by LeFevere; "The Good Shepherd," and the "Madonna," by Murillo, the originals of which hang in the royal galleries at Vienna and Berlin. Mr. Curtze also has in his possession a number of fine marbles, among them being "Beatrice and Scienza," by an Italian artist, who has contributed many rare pieces to the Compo Santo at Genoa, Italy; "Joan of Arc," imported from Venice; and "Springtime," by Romanelli, of Florence, Italy; "Morning and Night," by Thorwaldsen, and "Pauline Borges," by Canova.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtze are members of St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church and have always taken an active interest in all church affairs. Mr. Curtze has been treasurer of the Erie County law library for 35 years and still holds that position. He is president of the Board of Managers of the Erie Cemetery.

In January, 1925, in speaking of Mr. Curtze's 50 years of service as a member of the Erie County bar, Attorney John B. Brooks spoke as follows: "Hermann J. Curtze can well be styled 'the grand old man of the Erie County bar.' A quarter of a century ago when I first knew him he had been for many years one of the leaders of what was recognized to be one of the best bars in the state of Pennsylvania. He is still in active service, is still a leader, and stands very high in the estimation of this community, not only as a lawyer but as a citizen of the highest type. A typical lawyer of the old school, highly educated, cultured, studious, industrious, courteous, painstaking and honest, Mr. Curtze early attracted clients and for many years has had a large and lucrative practice; being recognized as an authority on conveyancing, preparation of wills, and all matters pertaining to the Orphan's Court and equity practice. By loyalty to his clients he has endeared himself to them and by serving them so well has been a factor for great good in this community. His manner of living is worthy of emulation by all of us, and I sincerely hope that for many years to come we will be able to greet Mr. Curtze at the courthouse and at our gatherings, and be greeted by him in that courteous and affable manner for which he is noted."

Judge Uriah P. Rossiter said of the veteran attorney: "No man at this or any other bar ever stood higher for integrity, ability and courtesy. His exalted ideals of professional ethics, his devotion to his clients and his loyalty to the court have been an example for all of us to emulate.

To Attorney Curtze the practice of law has always been a vehicle through which to establish the right, and no matter what his personal views as to the wisdom of the law may have been, he has tenaciously adhered to the doctrine that the inclinations of the individual are subordinate thereto. I hope he continues in life, as he always will in memory, as an ideal example of what an attorney ought to be and a judge aspires to—a scholar, a lawyer and a genial kindly gentleman, upright, honest, fearless and fair."

John F. Miles represents one of the very earliest families of Erie County, and the name which he bears is indelibly traced on the history of its pages of this country from early colonial days to the present. William Miles, his grandfather, was both a farmer and surveyor, and it was as a member of a surveying party under David Watts that he first came to Erie County. In 1795 he brought his family here, the family making the trip on horseback. He and his brother-in-law were the first white settlers here. They located in what is now Concord Township and in 1800 moved to what is now Union City, where William Miles farmed and followed surveying, and also with pack horses brought in provisions from Pittsburgh to the early settlers. In those early days he built mills to grind their corn, and on one occasion with two or three others he walked the entire distance to Pittsburgh to vote for one of the early governors. Both he and his wife are buried in the Girard Cemetery.

James Miles, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Northumberland County, Pa., in 1792, and his wife, Eliza Dunham, was born in Crawford County, Pa. In 1828 he left his parents' home and located on a farm at the mouth of Elk Creek in Girard Township, and there he spent the remainder of his life as an agriculturist, his death occurring in March, 1868. His political affiliations were with the Whig party and he at one time served as one of the commissioners of Erie County. He was also associate judge of his county and held many of the township offices. To Mr. and Mrs. Miles the following children were born: Mary J., widow of William M. Bell, is deceased; Phineas Dunham, deceased; Julia Marie, married John H. Hall, both deceased; James Miles, deceased; William W., who was killed in the Civil War; Zeruah M., deceased; John F., the subject of this sketch; and Eliza R., married A. S. M. Morgan, both deceased.

John F. Miles was born in Girard Township, Jan. 30, 1842. He was eduated in the district schools and attended Girard Academy, which was opened in 1851, and Pennsylvania State College. He has always been extensively engaged in general farming and stockraising and owns 800 acres of good farm land in Erie County, a mile of which land is located on the lake front. He was born at Spring Creek, Warren County, Pa., in 1862, and was the son of J. O. and Mary (Johnson) Deming.

J. O. Deming and his wife were born, reared and married in Warren County, Pa., his birth having occurred in 1829, and she was born in 1844. He was a prosperous farmer of his time and a highly esteemed citizen. To Mr. and Mrs. Deming were born five children, namely: L. L.; Alton A., the subject of this sketch; C. C.; Clair; Mattie; and Addie D., who died in 1908, was the wife of John H. Donaldson, of Spring Creek, Pa.

Alton A. Deming came to Erie immediately after his marriage in 1889. He soon established a contracting and building business which he carried on successfully for 15 years. He then decided to engage in the retail lumber business and located his plant at the corner of Buffalo Road and East Avenue. This business increased steadily until Mr. Deming found that a larger building and more yard space were necessary to handle the trade. Accordingly, in 1912, he erected a large two-story steel and concrete warehouse and mill-working plant with a floor space of thirty thousand square feet and with an unloading capacity of seven car loads of lumber at one time. This building has sufficient floor space to house nearly all of the rough and dressed lumber carried in stock and to take care of the mill work necessary for the trade. The entire plant is equipped with new electrical machinery. Traveling salesmen have stated that it is the largest and only storage warehouse of its kind in the retail lumber trade in the country. Mr. Deming's success was due to his strict personal attention to business and to his ability to secure good and able assistance. Mr. George W. Bauschard was for many years Mr. Deming's assistant and superintendent. After the death of Mr. Deming, which occurred June 11, 1920, Mrs. Deming, to whom was left the entire business, appointed Mr. Bauschard business manager of the firm. The business is now conducted under the name of A. A. Deming Lumber Company.

Ever since Mrs. A. A. Deming came to Erie she has been interested in social and philanthropic organizations and has been a prominent leader in church affairs. At one time she organized a Sunday School class of 269 young men in Wayne Street M. E. Church. She taught these young men for many years and always kept the membership of the class at approximately this number. The class had an orchestra of 40 pieces and a chorus of 50 voices.

For several years Mrs. Deming was president of the Ladies' Aid Society and, while holding this office, organized the Young Ladies' Auxiliary, which has proved to be of great assistance to the church. It is now known as the MacDonald Ladies' Aid Society. Besides these activities, Mrs. Deming served as organist of the church and for 25 years she was a member of and a soloist in the choir. She was also a member of the Epworth League and of the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies.

Mrs. Deming is an active member of many organizations throughout the city and has held such offices as: Worthy Matron of Erie Chapter Order of the Eastern Star; Vice-President of the Needlework Guild; Member of the Board of Managers of the Old Ladies' Home, of the Home for the Friendless, and of the Associated Charities; and also a member of the Board of the Cribb's Memorial Home at Conneaut Lake. She served as President of the Board of Managers of the Young Women's Christian Association in 1923-24, and during that time assisted in instituting the Southeast Center, Y. W. C. A., located at 961-963 Buffalo Road. She is in a large measure responsible for the success of this new enterprise. She is a member of the Women's Club, the Erie County League of Women Voters, the Republican League of Women Voters, the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Altruistic Club, the Frances Willard W. C. T. U., the Art Club of Erie, the Daughters of American Colonists, and the Erie Chamber of Commerce.

She has recently donated funds for the establishment of two memorials, a church in India to be known as the James Hubbard Bogue Memorial Church, and a chapel at Lucknow College, to be known as the Bogue-Phillips Memorial. Both the paternal and maternal records of Mrs. Deming's family are given here.

The Sacred Heart Mission House at Girard is an institution for the training of young men for the Heathen Missions. It is the second school of its kind erected by the missionary society of the Divine Word. The school was opened in August, 1912, when the first fathers and brothers of the community came to Girard. They commenced their work in the old Culbertson manse on East Ridge Road. There they operated their little Mission House with great zeal and much patience. Patience was particularly demanded. The Mission House continued in its first narrow quarters for four trying years. Then there was an end and the decision to build was definitely reached. The students were transferred to the Society's older Mission House at Techny, Ill. It required almost a year to prepare the plans for the present new building. In August, 1917, building operations began and in 1918 the building was completed.

In June, 1924, a building campaign for the construction of a new home was launched at the first commencement held at the school. Four boys were graduated. At a banquet which followed the Very Right Rev. John Mark Gannon, bishop of the Erie diocese of the Catholic church, subscribed $5,000 toward the building fund. Construction was begun in 1925, when the order of the fathers of the Divine Word, founders of the mission school, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their foundation and the 25th anniversary of their establishment in the United States.

Following graduation from the mission the boys are sent to the novitiate at Lake Beulah, Wis., and after finishing the novitiate they go to Techny, Ill., for philosophy and theology. On the completion of these studies they are ordained into the priesthood and sent on the mission. The young men who attach themselves to the order give up everything, leave their loved ones and go to distant lands to convert the heathen.

* Rev. Adolph L. Benze, deceased, was born in the historic old Fortress of Thorn, Prussia, Germany, Sept. 18, 1833, the son of Frederick and Eva Maria (dePomalianski) Benze, the latter of whom was a representative of a prominent family of the ancient Polish nobility. At the time of the birth of Reverend Benze his father was a cavalry officer in the Austrian army. Later he received his honorable discharge with the rank of captain and was then appointed prison inspector of a large district. He was born at Velpke, Brunswick, Germany, the descendant and one of the heirs of an old and influential Brunswick family, whose history is authentically traced back to 1650. He died in 1854 and his wife died in 1839; they are both buried at Neustadt, Prussia, Germany.

Adolph L. Benze secured his early educational training at Neustadt, Germany, and after two years of travel in Hungary and Germany, he came to America in 1854, at which time he was 21 years of age. He located at Lancaster, Pa., and later completed his classical education in Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg, where he was graduated. Having decided to prepare himself for the ministry of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, he was soon afterward matriculated in the theological seminary connected with the same college, and here he was graduated in 1864, in which year he was ordained by the Evangelical Lutheran ministerium of Pennsylvania. His first call was to the pastorate of the Lutheran church at Warren, Pa., where he remained eight years. In May, 1872, he received a call to the pastoral charge of St. John's Lutheran Church, Erie, leaving as a memorial to his skillful administration a flourishing congregation and a handsome new church edifice. He died Jan. 18, 1891. Reverend Benze, on account of his astonishing success in building up the largest Protestant congregation in Erie, was one of the best known men of the city. He possessed exceptional ability as a pulpit orator, and as such was widely known. His reputation, however, was more than local. A fluent writer and frequent contributor to church and secular papers, he was asked more than once to assume the editorship of one of the best known German papers in the United States. He also gained lasting recognition in another department, that of church music, by the publication of a volume of songs, and he is generally acknowledged to have been excellent, both as a poet and a composer.

On Sept. 8, 1864, Reverend Benze was married to Miss Elizabeth Kiehl, who was born at Erlenbach, Hessen, Germany, Oct. 26, 1839, the daughter of Jacob and Saloma Kiehl. They had seven children: Rev. Charles Theodore, Rev. Gustave A., Leopold Otto, Marie Louise, Albert Louis, Emma C., and Frederick W. Benze.

Rev. Charles Theodore Benze, eldest of the children of the late Rev. Adolph L. Benze, has followed in his fathers' footsteps and has thus shown himself fully appreciative of the precept and example of the late pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, to whom it must have been most gratifying that two of his sons should enter the ministry. He was born at Warren, Pa., Sept. 19, 1865, and his early educational advantages were those afforded by the public schools. He was graduated from high school in 1883 and was for a number of years a teacher of the German language, first in the Erie grammar school and later in the high school. In the field of pedagogy he was popular and successful, but he heeded the summons to a higher vocation and began the work of preparing himself for the ministry. In 1897 he was graduated from the Chicago Theological Seminary and in the same year received the order of ordination, after which he assumed the pastorate of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, Beaver Falls, Pa. In 1898 he became his brother's co-adjutor in St. John's Church, Erie, where he served as associate pastor until 1906, when he accepted the call to St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church, a mission which had been established by Rev. Gustave A. Benze, his brother. Of this pastoral charge he has since remained incumbent and his labors have not been denied a goodly fruitage, both spiritual and temporal. On Oct. 15, 1908, Reverend Benze started on a tour of inspection of the missions of the Evangelical Lutheran churches in India, and he remained abroad in this work until April, 1909, gaining valuable experience.

Reverend Benze was united in marriage with Miss Hermenia Ohl, of Milwaukee, Wis., and they have one son, Winfred Theodore.

Reverend Benze has inherited much of his father's gift of effective pulpit oratory, as well as administrative ability, and his pastorate of St. Stephen's church has been one marked by most successful work. He is a member of the Pennsylvania German Society, and the Erie County Historical Society.

Rev. Gustave Adolph Benze, A. M., D. D., succeeded his father in the pastorate of St. John's Church, where he has proven himself altogether faithful and zealous in advancing the work so long entrusted to his loved father. He was born at Warren, Pa., Jan. 11, 1867, and is the son of the late Rev. Adolph Leopold Benze, a complete sketch of whom appears elsewhere in this history.

To Rev. Adolph Leopold and Elizabeth (Kiehl) Benze were born the following children: Rev. Prof. C. Theodore, D. D., 7304 Boyer Street, Philadelphia; Rev. L. A., A. M., 940 East 22nd Street, Erie; Mrs. Mary L. Appelman, deceased; Rev. Albert L. Benze, D. D., Putnam Street, Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Emma C. Althof, East 22nd Street, Erie; Frederick W., deceased; and Rev. Gustave Adolph, the subject of this sketch.

Gustave Adolph Benze is indebted to the public schools of Erie for his early education. He was graduated from high school in 1884 and two years later from Thiel College, Greenville, Pa., with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He was then a student at the theological seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., and in 1889 was graduated from the theological seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in the city of Philadelphia. His ordination occurred in 1889, and his first charge was that of Drake's Mills and Corry, Pa., where he remained until Feb. 18, 1891, when upon the death of his father, he succeeded to the pastorate of St. John's Church in Erie, where he has since labored earnestly and effectively and with a deep appreciation of his stewardship, and where "his rare energy, administrative tact and ability and pulpit eloquence found an enlarged field of usefulness." Building on the foundations so well laid by his father, he has made St. John's one of the largest and influential Protestant churches in the city, exerting an influence far beyond the confines of his membership. Having been pastor in the city for 34 successive years, Doctor

Benze is the senior of the Protestant clergy as far as years of actual service in the city are concerned. He is the founder of St. Matthews and St. Stephen's Lutheran churches of this city and as conference president was instrumental in founding Christ Lutheran Church, Lawrence Park;

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, ERIE, PA.

Messiah Lutheran Church, Wesleyville, Pa.; First English Lutheran Church, Dunkirk, N. Y.; St. Paul's, Farrell, Pa.; Grace, Conneaut, Ohio; and First English, Ashtabula, Ohio. He built an addition to the present church at an expense of $45,000, renovated the Sunday School at a cost of $18,000, built the first St. Stephen's Chapel, and was instrumental in securing the property of St. Matthews.

Doctor Benze preaches every Sunday in two languages, English and German, to large audiences at three services. He has made his Sunday School a thoroughly graded one, edits the Parish Index (monthly), wrote a history of St. John's in English and in German, which has been commended by church historians, and has been a contributor to the daily and religious press. He has been honored highly by the church at large. He is the first and only president of the Lutheran Home for the Aged, which he founded; director of the Erie Lutheran Mission and Church Extension Society, which he helped to found; director and member of various committees of the Bethesda Home, Crawford County, Pa.; was president of the Erie Conference for 12 years, and at present is its treasurer; acting president of the Pittsburgh Synod for nine months; delegate to the former General Council and the United Lutheran Church in America for a number of times. He is secretary of the Examining Committee of the Pittsburgh Synod; was one of its trustees, member of its executive committee and is at present secretary of the Board of Northwestern Missions of the United Lutheran Churches in America.

On Oct. 7, 1903, Doctor Benze was united in marriage with Miss Alice L. Fourspring, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, and a daughter of John and Louisa (Laschinske) Fourspring. The former a native of Pennsylvania and the latter of Prussia, Germany. He is deceased and she lives at 2302 Peach Street, Erie. Doctor and Mrs. Benze have no children, but a niece, Beatrice Fourspring, makes her home with them.

Doctor Benze is a Republican.

Rev. Leopold Otto Benze, A. M., pastor of St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church, is a leading and influential citizen of Erie. He was born at Warren, Pa., March 26, 1869, and is the son of Rev. Adolph Leopold and Elizabeth Katherine (Kiehl) Benze. A complete sketch of the late Rev. Adolph Leopold Benze appears elsewhere in this history.

Rev. Leopold Otto Benze received his education in the schools of Erie and was graduated from Erie High School with distinction in 1887; from Thiel College in 1893; and from the Mount Airy Seminary, Philadelphia, in 1896. In that year he took charge of the English Lutheran congregation of Zelienople, Butler County, Pa., and was instrumental in building a handsome stone church. After eight years pastorate, he accepted a call to St. John's English Lutheran Church at McKeesport, Pa., where he was rated as one of the most successful pastors. He accepted a call to St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Erie, in the year 1909, at a time when the congregation practically did not exist, necessitating work of extraordinary difficulty. A church had to be built without funds and at the same time a congregation had to be gathered. Added to this the almost prohibitive handicap of language, as the Mission had been started in German and all German emigration had ceased. The scant material available had to be churched and Americanized. As the result of 15 years heart-breaking effort, there is now a substantial congregation in possession of a handsome church edifice, invitingly equipped, including a splendid pipe organ. Besides this the congregation has come into full possession of an attractive parsonage and acquired title to an adjoining property, later to be used for a parish house; while the language problem is all but eliminated.

On Oct. 14, 1896, Reverend Benze was married at Bethlehem, Pa., to Miss Estelle Hess, a native of Quakertown, Pa., and the daughter of Joshua K. and Adelia (Nagle) Hess, natives of Pennsylvania. The Hess family is an old colonial family of this state with many distinguished members, having settled here in 1750. Mr. Hess was a Civil War veteran and died Jan. 5, 1924. His wife resides at Bethlehem, Pa. This troupe was styled "The Heroes of the Lava Beds." They visited Europe, exhibited in Austria, Belgium, Germany, Scotland and England, and returned to this country in the spring of 1876, and were at Philadelphia during the Centennial Exposition. Dr. Wm. C. McKay and his brother, the well known government scout, Donald, were of Scotch-Indian ancestry. The doctor was not only familiar with the remedies known to Indian tradition, but was as well a graduate physician of the Willamette University, and was thus able to combine the Indian lore with the best that was known to medical science.

At the close of the Exposition the two brothers together with Colonel Edwards organized the Oregon Indian Medicine Company, and presented for the first time to civilization real Indian medicines. Continental Rubber Works. In August, 1903, the Continental Rubber Works received its charter from the State of Pennsylvania, having been organized by residents of the city of Erie, under the direction of Theron R. Palmer, who was formerly connected with the Pennsylvania Rubber Company.

The original plant of the Tribune Bicycle Works was purchased and altered to conform to the requirements of the manufacture of rubber goods.

On Nov. 12, 1903, the machinery was started and the manufacture of bicycle tires, tubes and accessories begun.

The following officers were elected: Theron R. Palmer, president and general manager; Alex Parecki, vice president; Charles Jarecki, secretary; Chas. S. Coleman, treasurer.

Such was the reputation of those whose initiative made possible the formation of the Company, that orders were received from all over the country before the samples were ready for inspection.

At first bicycle tires and tubes were the chief products, but not long afterwards the mechanical Department began to produce a varied assortment of hose, packing and other goods, as soon as the required machinery could be erected.

From the beginning success seemed to be established and it soon became necessary to enlarge the plant to adequately take care of the increasing business, until today the buildings occupy an entire square and additional space adjacent, all of which are fully occupied in the manufacture of rubber goods.

The original plant occupied one and a fourth acres, while at present, due to purchases at different times, the company owns five acres. The floor space of the plant at first was 70,000 square feet, which has been increased by reason of the erection of several new buildings, to 227,500 square feet.

The power plant as now constructed, contains automatic machinery for handling, crushing and storing coal, and for loading cars with ashes.

The number of boilers has increased four fold, all fed by automatic stokers of the best type. Another feature is the Reclaiming Plant which converts scrap rubber of all kinds into rubber suitable for manufacturing various kinds of mechanical goods.

As business grew and the reputation of the Company became established, the original capital of $200,000 was increased to $800,000 in 1910; to $2,000,000 in 1914 and to $3,000,000 in 1920.

At different times branches were opened in various cities and today they are located in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco.

The business was not confined to the United States alone, but was also extended to England, the Continent, South America and Cuba, and is under the management of C. C. Kerner, who formerly had charge of the export business at the Erie office, but who now has his headquarters at the New York Branch.

In order to supply the demand for the finest quality of rubber goods, to be distinguished from those usually sold, the Continental Rubber Works put upon the market its "Vitalic" brand, which means the best that can be made and embraces bicycle, automobile and mechanical products, and that name is known all over the world as the Standard of quality and manufacture.

The latest development of the business, and one of large and growing volume, covers the manufacture of battery boxes, for use in automobile and radio outfits.

Fairview Schools.—In tracing the history of the schools of Fairview we must go back to the time when the first settlers cut their way through the tangled masses of forests. The first schoolhouse, or rather cabin, was located on the property of William Sturgeon. It was used for two winters, taught first by John Hayes, then by Squire McCreary. This was about the year 1810. In 1812 William Sturgeon erected a regular building on the present site of the former home of Perry Sturgeon. This school was taught by Jacob Erickson and John Hayes. About 1825 another schoolhouse was built where the cement works of Jacob Fitting now stands. This was a log building painted bright red. The first teacher was Moses Johnson, who was chastised by the school board for going out at recess to play ball with the boys. He said the school board would make no such rules for him and he resigned. He was followed by Mr. Jenness. In 1844 two new frame buildings were completed and this one was abandoned. The first was built in the rear of where the Presbyterian church now stands and the second was at the east end of the village, located on the present site of the home of Lorenzo Newhouse. School was held in these until the Academy was built. Among the teachers of the two schools were Roy McCoy, Ase McCoy, J. C. Sturdevant, Mr. McLaughlin, Minnie Sterrett, Elizabeth Eaton, and Mrs. Jennie Warner Mills. The schools were well attended, as a record of Mr. Ase McCoy showed a roll call of 85 pupils in the first school. At that time he taught from 8:30 in the morning until dark.

In 1866 an acre of land was purchased from William and Harry Sturgeon for $600, and the contract for the new so-called Academy was given to Robert Holliday. The old school houses were sold. The first was bought by Mrs. M. Heidler, moved and remodeled for a dwelling house now occupied by Ralph McCray. The second was bought by Nickolas Myers and is the present barn on the lot owned by Lorenzo Neihouse. School opened in the fall of 1866. Lyman Knight, the principal, with Miss Vine Luther and Miss Thompson as assistants. Then came R. P. Holliday, D. C. Thomas, Mr. Chandler, Mr. Clinton, Mr. Freeman, M. L. Davis, Viola Eaton, Mrs. Adalaide Holliday, Mr. Billings, Mr. Curry, who gave way to Lillian Eaton on account of ill health, Mr. Jones and Joseph Rossiter. In 1891 the school house burned but was rebuilt about the same model as before. Mr. Swaney was first principal in the new building. He also began grading the pupils. Until this time every one went to school to get what he could and no grades or promotions were used.

Next in line were Mr. LeFever, Mr. Proudfit, Edward Tate, Mr. Lingo, Mr. Fox, who gave way to Mr. Shallenburger, Charles Carr, John Timmons, E. Frantz, A. Whittaker, and H. C. Herbolsheimer. In 1892 was the first graduating class for a one-year high school. Since that time additional work has been added until the spring of 1910 found the first graduating class from a four-year high school.

Earl R. Cornell, of the firm of P. R. Cornell & Son, widely known interior decorators of Erie, is a veteran of the World War. He was born in this city, Aug. 30, 1894, and is the son of P. R. and Elizabeth (Snell) Cornell, residents of Erie.

Earl R. Cornell received his early education in the public schools of Erie, attended St. John's Military Academy, Delafield, Wis., and Carnegie Institute of Technology. In 1917 he was graduated from Western Reserve University, Cleveland, and then enlisted in the army for service during the World War. He was stationed at Camp Lee with the 319th Infantry and served in France with the 305th Sanitary Train and 320th Ambulance Hospital Corps. He also served with the A. E. F. in Italy and was discharged at Camp Dix, June 13, 1919. Mr. Cornell then returned to Erie, where he is engaged in business with his father at 111 West Ninth Street. This business was established in January, 1920, and is among the fine shops of the city.

On Oct. 11, 1924, Mr. Cornell was married to Miss Charlotte Richardson of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Cornell is a Republican, a member of the Episcopal Church and belongs to the Elks Lodge, Viorus Club, American Legion, Erie Yacht Club and Chamber of Commerce. He is among the representative and successful young business men of Erie County.

The Viorus Club, of Erie, was organized in 1908 and its present roster contains names of many of the young professional and business men of Erie, numbering 68 members. The original 13 members were in the Sunday school class of C. E. Zinram, at Trinity Memorial Church, and their ages were from 15 to 18 years. Charter members included William Hug, Carleton Hug, Daniel Regan, John Humble, Charles Humble, Millard Mehl, Edward Kent, Kenneth Decker, Harry Kent, Archie LeJeal, Earl Olberg, and Earl Cornell.

William Knox was connected with the Viorus Club of Cincinnati, and the Erie boys adopted the name, derived from the Greek and Latin, and signifying the violet rays of the rising sun. Purple and gold naturally followed as the club's colors and their motto is "Not by might nor by strength, but by example". Meetings were at first conducted in the members' homes. The first club rooms were occupied in 1914 at 210 West 8th Street. Small dances were given in the chapter house of St. Paul's Cathedral. In 1912 the club sponsored the appearance in Erie of Harry Burleigh, world famed singer and composer, a native of Erie, in one of the most distinguished concerts of that season. Its first public dance was given Friday, Oct. 13, 1919, and each year since the club has sponsored many elaborate parties, including the "Oriental Ball", the "Black and White", etc. In 1922 the club published its first magazine, "The Mascot", now named the Vorian.

Entertainment alone is not the chief aim of the club. At Christmas-tide, many homes that would otherwise have been devoid of cheer, have received baskets of food from the club. No story of the Vorius Club would be complete without telling of its war service. All the boys were in service, most of them overseas, among the many thousands who were enacting America's brave role in the thrilling and terrible days of '17 and '18.

Earl Cornell, of the firm of P. R. Cornell & Son, West Ninth Street, is now the only active charter member of the club. Officers for 1924-25 are: Robert C. Robison, president; Wilfred L. Kennedy, vice president; Frederick D. Breter, financial secretary; Paul C. Wagner, recording secretary; Harold E. Adams, William F. Lewis, Max H. Morrison, house committee; William F. Liljenberg, Samuel R. Mason, Claude H. Miller, trustees.

After several moves, in accord with business changes, the club is now located at 719 State Street, with the entire third floor, 24 x 100 feet, arranged for club rooms and a dance floor of equal proportions for its social functions.

For a little over a year after his graduation he was connected with the Dean Electric Company, Elyria, Ohio, now the Garford Manufacturing Company, and then joined the forces of the Thew Shovel Company of Lorain, Ohio, with whom he was connected until Sept. 1, 1913. Mr. Vicary then located in Erie where he had interested the Ball Engine Company, now the Erie Steam Shovel Company, in the manufacture of Steam Shovels, which was a new line for this old and successful concern, which had been manufacturing steam engines for about 30 years.

At the time that Mr. Vicary's idea for the manufacture of steam shovels was accepted, only a small portion of the Ball Engine Company's plant was allotted to this work. Later the engine business was sold to a Pittsburgh concern, and the entire productive capacity of the plant, which has trebled in size since 1913, is devoted to the manufacture of power shovels.

The Erie Steam Shovel Company now produces as many of the small $\frac{1}{2}$ yd. and $\frac{3}{4}$ yd. power shovels as all other manufacturers of this type of machines combined. There are today over 3,400 Erie shovels and cranes in operation, working in all parts of the world, but most numerous in the United States. The success of the Erie shovel is due to an efficient organization throughout all departments of the business, which is well financed.

Mr. Vicary's ability to follow the trend of the times in the power shovel industry, coupled with the financial strength and courage and the sound common sense of the officers of the Erie Steam Shovel Company, has made the development of this concern read like a romance in the industrial world.

MATTHEW GRISWOLD

MATTHEW GRISWOLD, SR.

The Keystone Cooperative Grape Association, North East, is non-stock, non-profit and is incorporated under the Pennsylvania cooperative law that was enacted in the year of 1919. The association is purely co-operative and the only dividends being returned are patronage dividends returned to its members on a pro rata basis as to the amount of individual purchases or the amount of fruits given to the association for sale. The Keystone Cooperative Grape Association was incorporated in December, 1921, and started business after purchasing the business of the old Keystone Company, in January, 1922.

Its object is to act as purchasing agent for farm supplies, to be sold to the members, consisting of baskets, fertilizers, spray material and general farm supplies, and also to act as selling agent for its members in disposing of their crops, such as grapes, cherries, prunes, currants and other small fruits.

Back in 1896, there sprung up a Grape Union known as the "Chautauqua and Erie Grape Company", with its head office at Brocton, New York. The Grape Union represented about 90 per cent. of the total acreage of the Chautauqua and Erie grape belt. It had eight sub-divisions with their local managers, but the local manager had nothing to do with the selling of grapes grown and handled by the sub-division. One sales committee, located at Westfield, New York, sold all the grapes for its entire membership.

Prior to the organization of this Chautauqua and Erie Grape Company the method of marketing was through individual shippers, and up to this time, there were practically no outright sales, either for cash or credit, all business being done on a consigned commission basis.

The first cooperative organization deserves much credit for establishing the method of selling grapes outright on a cash basis. This accomplishment alone proved of great help in securing better returns, for the farmers and also put the selling of grapes on a business basis.

In 1901 the growers in the Erie County, Pennsylvania, grape district decided that owing to their increase in acreage, they could aid the individual grower much better by having a separate association represented in their district. The result was that the Keystone Grape Company was organized and chartered under the corporation law of Pennsylvania.

This company was necessarily a stock company as there was at that time no legal provisions for non-stock corporations; but the stock was distributed only to growers of grapes, somewhat upon an acreage basis, and the business was from the beginning managed upon lines somewhat similar to those later adopted under our new co-operative laws. The company was, from the beginning, controlled by directors who were grape growers and the aim was betterment of the industry rather than profits on the stock. The company was notably successful and, when absorbed by the new association, had a fine established business.

In the spring of 1921, meetings were held by many of the grape growers of Erie County, with the advice and assistance of the Pennsylvania State Bureau of Markets, a new cooperative association was formed. This association was organized under the Pennsylvania cooperative law of 1919 and was chartered under the name of the "Northwestern Pennsylvania Fruit Association."

An arrangement was then entered into between this new association and the Keystone Grape Company, under the terms of which the new association took over the good will of the company and the real estate consisting of office building, warehouse and basket factory, at the appraisal of $20,000.00. The name of the association was changed to "Keystone Cooperative Grape Association", the directors of the Keystone Grape Company were elected directors of the new cooperative association.

In order to provide the funds for this transaction, the members were asked to purchase three year, 6 per cent. certificates of indebtedness of the Association. The members responded by purchasing the entire amount. This transaction was completed on January 1, 1922, and the business has since been conducted by the Association.

December 31st, 1924, the Keystone Cooperative Grape Association at the close of its business, 1924, had about five thousand (5,000) acres of grapes under contract with its members. This acreage represents about 57 per cent. of the total acreage of Erie County, Pennsylvania.

Its membership is composed of 250 Concord grape growers, beginning on the east at the state line, New York, and extending west to the township of Harbor Creek, Pa.

The membership at the close of the year 1924 showed an increase of about one hundred (100) new members in two years' time. And the Association did not lose a single member in 1922 or 1923 except those who sold their farms and discontinued farming.

The Keystone sold for its members during the past three years as follows: In 1922, 8,700 tons of Concord grapes, equivalent to 780 cars; in 1923, 5,100 tons of Concord grapes, equivalent to 465 cars; in 1924, 8,222 tons of Concord grapes, equivalent to 800 cars. The grapes handled by the Association are loaded on ten different loading stations on the New York Central and Nickel Plate Railroad Company lines.

The results for the past three years were: In 1922, total sales, $684,425.02; surplus savings, $14,578.37. In 1923, total sales, $509,630.13; surplus savings, $10,042.19. In 1924, total sales, $715,294.73; surplus savings, $15,689.94. During the past three years of existence of the Keystone Cooperative Grape Association, they have paid back to their members of 1922, patronage dividends amounting to $14,326.00.

Each member in joining the Association must pay an initial membership fee of $5.00 and sign a contract and give a note based on the number of acres of grapes owned or leased by him. The amount of note is determined on the basis of $10.00 per acre of grapes, plus $25.00. The note may be made to collect damages from a member who violates his contract and they are also the emergency capital which enables the Association to obtain proper credit rating.

The officers and directors elected at the members' annual meeting, January, 1925, for the ensuing year, are as follows: President, D. C. Bostwick; vice-president, G. Will Butt; secretary, Archie D. Phillips; treasurer and manager, H. Harold Meyer. Directors: D. C. Bostwick, C. E. Leet, G. W. Butt, A. D. Phillips, F. B. Crawford, A. B. Robinson, I. H. Russell, J. W. Orton, C. A. Bell, J. P. Bingham, M. H. Smith, H. H. Meyer.

Jonathan B. Cessna, lawyer, was born in Bedford County, Pa., March 24, 1840, son of William and Rachel (Norgart) Cessna, and a descendant of Jean Cessna, a French Huguenot, who settled at Friend's Cove, Pa., in 1690; from him and his wife, Priscilla, the line is traced through their son John, who was killed by the Indians near Shippensburg, Pa., and his wife, ———; their son, John, and his wife, ———; their son, John, and his wife, ———; and their son, John, and his wife, ———; who were the grandparents of the subject of this sketch. John Cessna, his great-grandfather, was a member of the constitutional convention of 1774, which drafted the first constitution of the State of Pennsylvania; he also served as major during the Revolutionary War, and was with General Washington in suppressing the Whiskey Insurrection in western Pennsylvania; he served three terms as sheriff of Bedford County, having been chosen to that office in 1779, 1781 and 1783. John Cessna, our subject's brother, was for many years a leading politician of Pennsylvania, was speaker of the House of the State Legislature for three terms, and three times represented the 18th Congressional District in Congress.

Jonathan B. Cessna received his preparatory education in the Allegheny Male and Female Academy at Bainsburg, Pa., and was graduated at the Franklin and Marshall College at Lancaster, Pa., in 1864, and subsequently received second college degree, M. A. The following year he was admitted to the bar in Bedford County, and practiced law in that and other counties until April, 1885, when he removed to Hastings, Nebr. He had been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in May, 1868, and in January, 1876, was admitted to practice before the U. S. Supreme Court on motion of Hon. Jeremiah Black. Before his removal to the West, Mr. Cessna was connected with a number of important cases, among them that of Noble vs. The Thompson Oil Co., in which $50,000 was involved and a number of intricate points were in controversy; also another case in the oil regions between Thompson, Noble and Delemater, the amount involved being more than $100,000. In the West he was employed in a number of cases that attracted wide attention, including the Keedle Case contest in the U. S. Supreme Court of private land claims, to recover a very valuable tract of land in New Mexico worth several millions of dollars; this suit was instituted by the heirs of John G. Heath by virtue of a grant of land to him by the Mexican Government in 1821, and was one of the most important cases in litigation in recent years. He was attorney for C. L. Jones against the Railway Company in an important case in Illinois, a case to recover triple damages for illegal charges of freight under the railroad law of that state. While in Hastings, Mr. Cessna also made a specialty of land and equity suits, yet did not exclude general practice; except in the branch of criminal law. In 1905 he removed to Erie, Pa., where as usual he has always given special attention to land and equity cases. In a recent case, involving real estate of $200,000 held in trust, after argument of two days he had the distinction of winning success on every proposition he argued. In politics he has been a Republican since 1862. Having fallen on a pitchfork in 1854, he has been lame ever since, and never saw active service in the Civil War. He is deeply interested in all public questions, local and national, frequently writing and speaking on issues involving the general uplift of humanity. Among his subjects are: "Progression is the Law of Nature"; "Our Duties as Citizens to Our Republic"; "The Relation of Education to American Institutions"; "The Growing West"; "The Constitution of the United States"; "The Progress and Growth of Civil Government"; "Foreign Attachment"; "Proceeding in Rem"; "Woman Suffrage"; and "The United States as a World Power in Securing International Peace"; "Rate-Making by Commission" appeared in the North America Review for January, 1906. This article was quoted in Congressional Records during the passage of the bill, pronounced a complete answer to Attorney General Olney's article in a previous North American Review and a clear legal justification and support for the passage of the Act.

Many authorities are cited, proving conclusively that rate-making by commissions established by Congress and Legislatures was constitutional; that these bodies had a right to fix rates prima facie valid and reasonable in all courts; that such action is not a delegation of legislative power, illegal and void. The leading authority cited was C. B. and Q. R. R. Co. vs. Jones, 149 Ill. 37 N. E. 247.

In 1882 some 47 parallel cases were brought in various courts of Illinois. They were in and out of the State and Federal Courts for eight years when Cessna became interested. The Jones Case was brought from the Federal Court to the State Court, and tried at Galesburg. Judgment for $2,808 and $1,200 attorney fees paid by defendant to plaintiff's attorneys. All other cases were settled and dismissed. No plaintiff in the 47 cases in principle identical only different in amount of claim was ever successful. Jones' original claim was filed for treble damages; if also for single damages, judgment would have been several times larger. Amendment asked was barred by statute of limitation. This is one of the best considered cases in rate-making by commission to be found in the books. Appeal taken to the U. S. Supreme Court; judgment paid before called there for trial.

During the World War, he was active in the "Four Minute Campaign" making many speeches in theatres, at fairs and school houses and other public places, and was recognized at Washington as one of the oldest, if not the oldest, active campaign speaker in the service.

He was married June 12, 1872, to Katherine U., daughter of Conrad and Elizabeth A. Brown, of Erie, Pa., and they have two sons—W. Brown Cessna of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Reon B. Cessna of Kansas City, Mo., both traveling salesmen of the Monarch Manufacturing Co. of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

LaGrand Skinner, inventor, manufacturer and financier, and founder of the Skinner Engine Company, was born at Pooleville, Madison County, N. Y., May 23, 1845, and is a son of Frank and Charlotte (Eaton) Skinner.

Frank Skinner moved from New York to New Jersey, where he died in 1907 at the age of 84 years. His wife was a native of Pooleville, N. Y., whose father was a pioneer woolen manufacturer of Springfield, Mass. She died in 1901.

The boyhood days of LaGrand Skinner were spent in the little town of Eaton, where he went to reside with an uncle when he was 16 years of age. This uncle (Wood) was the second manufacturer of portable engines in the United States, and was an earnest and valued instructor to his ambitious nephew, who remained with him until 1868. During this period Mr. Skinner was not only perfecting himself in the manufacturing business, but spent considerable time in the tool room of the Remington Arms Manufacturing Company, at Ilion, N. Y. In 1868 he constructed his first engine after his own design, his work being conducted in a little shop built on the site where stood the little log cabin which had been built by his maternal grandfather. After remaining in service for about 16 years, this first product of Mr. Skinner's inventive and mechanical talent came again into his possession. In 1871 he began the manufacture of engines at Chittenango, N. Y., subsequently conducted a like business in Chicago for a time and on July 3, 1873, established a small manufacturing plant in the Lilley shop, Erie. In 1875 he formed a partnership with Thomas Wood, and the firm of Skinner & Wood occupied a new shop for their business, erected by the late John Selden in 1877, and in 1881 the proprietors built a plant themselves at the corner of 12th and Chestnut street. The firm of Skinner & Wood was dissolved in 1883, and for the succeeding two years Mr. Skinner conducted the business alone, but in 1885 the Skinner Engine Company was incorporated with Mr. Skinner as president. He was also one of the organizers of the Union Iron Works.

Mr. Skinner was married to Miss Hannah Harrington, a native of Chittenango, N. Y., and a daughter of P. D. Harrington. Two children were born to them: Allen David, connected with the Skinner Engine Company, Erie, and Helen, who died at the age of six years.

The First National Bank, Albion. (Illustration, p. 1155.) The first men, far-seeing and enterprising enough to stimulate interest and co-operation in an effort to establish a national bank for the growing boro of Albion, were Charles E. Renick, Jesse A. Hall, and Thomas Dolan. Forty-four subscribers assured a capital of $25,000, and it is of particular interest that 80 per cent. of the stock was subscribed by residents of Albion and the immediate vicinity. A lease on a frame building on State Street, owned by Mott Sherman, was secured for a term of five years at $25.00 a month, and therein the First National Bank of Albion opened its doors for business Sept. 14, 1909, with the following officers in charge: Thomas Dolan, president; John Eckert, vice-president, and Will A. Pond, cashier. Under the supervision of an active board of directors, the new institution quickly established itself in the confidence of the community and a steady progress marked the growth of the bank from its earliest days.

In 1914, a purchasing committee, Jesse A. Hall, Charles E. Renick, and Will A. Pond, concluded the deal by which the First National Bank came into possession of the property which it had occupied since its establishment.

In another five years, the bank had outgrown its first home and the pressing need of larger quarters was most gratifying to the stockholders, even though inconvenient to the working corps. Through the unceasing energy and capable management of a building committee, consisting of Jesse A. Hall, chairman; Harry Dershimmer, Dr. L. R. Umburn, and C. G. Cherry, a handsome and commodious new fire-proof structure of pearl gray brick and Onondago stone in modified Italian Renaissance architecture was formally opened to the public on March 3, 1925. The interior of the building is finished in Napoleon gray marble with fittings of mahogany. The vault is built of 18-inch concrete, reinforced with steel, and electrified copper cables. The new home of the First National Bank is on the original site of 90 feet frontage on State Street. The grounds have been landscaped and the institution is a noteworthy credit to Albion.

From the beginning of its career, the bank has paid 4% interest on deposits. A larger capital was necessitated by the demands of the rapidly growing business of the institution, and at the annual stockholders' meeting, Jan. 11, 1924, it was voted to increase the capital stock of the First National Bank of Albion from $25,000 to $50,000. The growth of the bank is attested by the following comparative table of resources:

Opened for business Sept. 14, 1909.
