PETER JOHNSTON,

WHO CAME TO AMERICA FROM LOCKERBY, SCOTLAND,
IN THE YEAR 1773, AND SETTLED IN

WILTON, N. Y.

ALSO A SHORT HISTORY OF THE CLAN OF
JOHNSTON, OF ANNANDALE.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY CHARLES ERNEST JOHNSTON.

One hundred copies.

1900.

OWING to the want of documentary evidence the history of the early settlers of this country is frequently of a legendary nature; and these legends, in being handed down from generation to generation, become so distorted as to be of little real value as regards persons, while they doubtless portray in natural colors the character of the times.

Saratoga County, New York, was settled mostly by people of Scotch and Dutch descent, some of the settlers coming from the New England colonies and others from the Old World direct. Of the latter class were the Johnstons and Laings. Some say that John Laing came to America from Dumfriesshire, Scotland, in 1771, but there is a tradition in both families to the effect that the Laings and Johnstons came over on the same vessel, and it is known that the Johnstons came in 1773. It is not known whether they were acquainted in Scotland, but they lived only about fifteen miles apart—the Johnstons at Lockerby, and the Laings at Langholm. Both families settled in Palmerston, Saratoga County, N. Y., a little east of Mt. McGregor. Palmerston was also called Palmertown, and Thomas Johnston spelled it Parmertown; it was named for a family of Palmers, who were among the first settlers. The township has since been named Wilton.

Peter Johnston was a Presbyterian in Scotland, but it seems that he found no place of worship of that denomination at his new home, and he therefore attended the Dutch Reformed Church. Preachers were scarce and schoolmasters not much more plentiful, and the consequence was that both religion and education received severe setbacks. From the Puritans the settlers borrowed superstition and witchcraft, and probably came to believe in them as thoroughly as the Puritans themselves, although they did not carry their inquisitions so far. Susanna (Cleveland) Johnston used to tell in all seriousness of a witch in the form of a cat that used to torment her husband. The cat would come up to him on dark nights, run all around him, pass between his legs, and do all sorts of antics to worry him; and try as he might, he could never strike it or kick it. It was believed that the wife of one of the neighbors was the instigator of the witch, as they were not on friendly terms with her.

Superstition was rampant. Even the most trifling incidents were clothed with the greatest significance, and every old crone could tell the signs for all things, from a circle around the moon to the dropping of one's scissors or the itching of one's nose. Spooks and hobgoblins, too, were matters of every-day gossip, and mothers often frightened refractory children into obedience by threatening them with a visit from the bogie man.

The chief industries of Saratoga County were farming and cutting timber for spars and piles. These timbers were made up into great rafts, and when the Hudson was swelled by the spring thaws they were floated down to Troy, Albany, and New York. The Johnstons and Laings were all thus employed, cutting spars in the winter when they could do nothing on the farms. In after years some of them made a specialty of the lumber and timber business, notably William Johnston, son of Andrew.

Dwelling-houses were not of the best construction for sanitary purposes, the wind and snow finding numerous chinks open to them in the winter, while the summer sun beat down on the roofs, making the unfinished attics veritable sweat-boxes and opening cracks through which the rain trickled without hindrance, keeping the busy housewife yet busier with pails and pans to prevent everything from being flooded. When it is remembered that these attics were usually the sleeping apartments of the children; that they often slept three and four in a bed; that they had to sleep between two feather ticks in the winter to keep from freezing, and in summer lie on sheets spread on the floor to keep from smothering, it is not to be wondered at that so many died young. Coughs and colds were allowed to run their course, no measures being taken to keep the children housed until they were "down sick." Then mustard plasters for the chests, roasted onions or slices of salt pork for the throats, and red peppers steeped in vinegar for a gargle, were the remedies that fetched them around. As a natural consequence, pulmonary troubles and ague were prevalent, and in time the weaker ones developed consumption—sometimes quick consumption, but more frequently that long, lingering disease that destroys only after years of wasting sickness. From this disease few families were entirely exempt. Jane M. Laing, granddaughter of both John Laing and Peter Johnston, made this entry in her diary in 1831: "Scarcely a day passes but the knell of death rings in our ears and reminds us of our own departure to that silent country destined for every human being, which none can escape." Three years later she had joined the silent procession.

The Dutch fashion of bundling was in vogue in the early days of Saratoga County and did not die out entirely until about 1820. In accordance with this custom, when a young man was paying court to a young woman they remained with the rest of the family around the kitchen fire until bedtime. Then the master of the house would wind the clock and throw a large log on the fire, and the household would retire with the exception of the lovers. They were privileged to sit up until the log burned out, after which time the young man must either go home or bundle with the girl. It is safe to say that the majority adopted the latter course.

The life of the pioneer was not one long dream of bliss. Nearly all of them could tell tales that would make the Leather Stocking green with envy. The forests abounded with bears, timber wolves, and panthers; rattlesnakes and other poisonous reptiles lurked in every swamp, and the redskins and white renegades stood ready to plunder and destroy without a moment's warning. Most of the Indians were friendly, but it did not require much fire-water to start them on a rampage, and the housewives were frequently interrupted in their daily labors to feed some surly buck who was too lazy to prepare his own meal.

These friendlies, as well as the hostiles, were great bluffers, and when a redskin wanted anything he always impressed upon his hearers that he was a very important person in his tribe. "Me big Injun," he would say; "me want muck-a-muck." After the housewife had handed out the muck-a-muck in the form of some cold victuals and the copper-colored tramp had gorged himself to his satisfaction, he would usually want a smoke to settle his dinner. So he would produce his pipe and announce, "Me heap big Injun, me want kinnikinnik." The tobacco having been passed out, he would load up his pipe and squat down by the door, smoking and snoozing until the inspiration should seize him to move on.

The Indians, except when on the war path, seldom disturbed the houses of the whites, and many stories are told of deeds of kindness performed by them to settlers who had done them a good turn. They would enter a door without knocking unless it had an "Indian lock." This consisted simply of a small pole laid diagonally from one of the lower corners of the door to the opposite upper corner, and is supposed to have been a sign of privacy among the Indians in their own villages. At all events, it was said that no self-respecting Indian would violate this sort of lock.

When the farmer went out to work in the field his rifle was his constant companion. If he did not have to use it for self-protection the chances were great that he would have an opportunity of killing some sort of game for his dinner. At night he left his gun loaded and hanging in a convenient position, so that on a moment's notice he might seize it to dispatch the bear that was invading his pigsty, drive off the wolves from his sheepfold, silence the panther whose screams disturbed his rest, or shoot the marauder lurking around his barn. Many of the women, too, learned to handle arms, and one of them used to tell with great pride how she poked her rifle through the cat-hole and killed a man who was trying to steal one of their horses while her husband was gone to the village for supplies.

As a consequence of the frequent collisions with the British, French and Indians, the settlers banded themselves together as militia and minute men. Once a year they assembled for drill and muster, and these occasions soon assumed an important phase from a social standpoint. When the men were thus congregated they naturally drank more liquor than on ordinary occasions, and many of them grew more and more argumentative with each draught. The slightest difference of opinion frequently led to personal encounter, so that in time "muster day" became a recognized day of riot. When one man had a grudge against another he did not go and have it out on the spot, but waited for the next muster day and then wiped out the score for the past year. This custom brought into use a colloquial expression for the word fight. A hair-pulling bout between two boys was spoken of as "a little muster"; when two men engaged in bloody fisticuffs they were said to have had "quite a muster," and a general riot was denominated "a regular muster."

When Vermont was admitted to the Union in 1791 there was a large influx of people into that State from Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New York, as well as from the British possessions on the north. Several of the Cleveland family moved into the northern section; the Sherwoods were already there, and two of Peter Johnston's family, Thomas and Jane, went there within the next ten years. Lake Champlain offered a ready and easy route from Saratoga County, and the fertility and picturesque grandeur of the country brought many settlers. The climate in winter was severe, however, and for this reason many of the New Yorkers did not care to remain there. The Johnstons, Sherwoods, and some of the Clevelands moved out of Vermont and settled in central New York during the first decade of the 19th century. The Erie Canal project gave an impetus to this section as well as to western New York, and the Sherwoods moved out into Orleans County before the canal was started. Thomas Johnston remained in Oneida and Lewis counties until the canal was completed, and then moved by boat to the same vicinity as was selected by the Sherwoods. Here the old Saratoga County bugbear, consumption, again developed in the family, and in order to escape it Thomas removed to Ohio. Many of those who remained in Orleans County were carried off by the insidious disease, and not a few of their descendants received it as a heritage. Of those who moved into the West few, if any, have died of consumption except those who had the disease before making the change.

The name of Peter Johnston appears on the rolls of at least three New York military organizations in service during the Revolution; the 8th company of the 2d battalion of the line, and the two regiments of Albany County militia commanded by Col. Abraham J. Van Alstine and Col. Cornelius Van Veghten, respectively. The legendary record handed down in the family under discussion indicates that this Peter Johnston was in the militia; and from the fact that the names of both Peter Johnston and John Laing appear as privates on the rolls of Capt. Ephraim Woodworth's company, Col. Cornelius Van Veghten's regiment, it is safe to assume that this is the organization in which he served.

Peter's descendants have been represented in all the wars from the Revolution to the late war with Spain, excepting only the Mexican war. As a rule they have held minor positions—most of them having been privates—although a few have been commissioned officers. The westward march of civilization from New York and Ohio has likewise had its quota of his progeny, and members of this family are now located in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Nebraska, Montana, California, Washington, Alaska, and perhaps other States and Territories. Most of them are farmers, but some have taken up professional and mercantile pursuits, and all have been up to the average in success. The percentage of criminals has been remarkably small, and longevity is well above the average duration of human life.

THE CLAN OF JOHNSTON.

In olden times the realm of Scotland was ruled under the feudal system, the people being divided into tribes or clans, each under the direction of a hereditary chief, whose word was the law of his followers and who acknowledged allegiance to none but the King. Most of the followers of the chief adopted his surname, exceptions occurring when a clansman was noted for a particular act or occupation. Thus the Fletchers were hereditary arrowmakers to the McGregors; the Stewarts were lord high stewards for nearly two centuries before their accession to the throne; the Gows were smiths; the Ballochs were a family living near the mouth of a lake, and many other names might be enumerated to illustrate the point.

Scotchmen were known as highlanders, lowlanders, or borderers, according as they lived in the high, mountainous lands, the lower lands along the coasts, or the borders of England. Of these, few but the highlanders are true descendants of the original Scots, the others being, for the most part, of mixed descent, the highlanders calling them "sassenach" or Saxons. It must not be understood, however, that all the sassenach are of Saxon descent; they may be Danish, Norman, Norwegian, or of any of the other people who came over and assisted in forcing the Picts and Scots into the highlands. In the middle ages the highlanders were easily distinguished from the others from the fact that they wore a peculiar garb of many colors, each clan having a special weave of its own, so that it might be told at a glance from the plaid, or tartan, a man wore to what clan he belonged. In modern times several of the lowland and border families and clans have adopted tartans, so that the possession of one is not now necessarily an evidence of highland descent.

The border clans were also known as the "Riding Clans," from the fact that they usually went mounted. And here may be found the derivation of the word raid, for when the borderers went riding (or raiding, as they pronounced it) they seldom returned empty-handed. Many stories are told of housewives' serving spurs to their husbands for breakfast when the larder was empty, and there is little reason to doubt that this really was a custom in some sections.

In the 13th century there lived in the mountainous district of Anandale, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, just north of the Firth of Solway, a small but hardy clan of borderers, whose chieftain was called John. They were probably of Saxon origin, and up to this time they were but little known except for their frequent excursions across the border to steal cattle from their hereditary enemies, the English. But as time went on and the clan grew stronger, their chieftain became anxious to take his place among the chiefs of the larger clans; and a little after the middle of the 13th century he applied to the Earl of Annandale, who was the grandfather of Robert Bruce, to purchase a tract of land near the center of the district. The deal being consummated, it became necessary to give a name to the tract in question, and in the charter Bruce called it Jonistoun (or Johnstown), and the chieftain, now Laird of Jonistoun, was called Sir John de Jonistoun. His clansmen were thereafter known as Jonistouns or Johnstouns, and through changes in orthography the name is now spelled Johnstone or Johnston. Several genealogical writers have fallen into the erroneous belief that the name is synonymous with Johnson, but a glance at the derivation of the names easily discloses the error. Johnson means son of John, while Johnston signifies John's town; the one shows locality, the other indicates descent. The names become identical by the dropping of the t in Johnston, but are no more synonymous than Felton and Felon. Many persons complain that it is difficult to pronounce the t in Johnston, but the same persons find little inconvenience in sounding the same letter in Charleston, Hunston, Thurston, Funston, and the like.

The Johnstons were a prolific clan, as well as hardy; and in the next two centuries after adopting the name they became strong enough to excite the jealousy of their neighbors, the much stronger clan of Maxwell, of Nithsdale, and many a bloody fight took place before the Johnstons established their supremacy at the battle of Dryfe Sands in 1593, in which the Maxwells were completely routed, leaving their chief, Lord John Maxwell, dead on the field.

At this time the chief of the Johnstons was Sir James, and the immediate cause of the quarrel was that he had displaced Lord Maxwell as Lord Warden of the West Marches, in which capacity his business was to apprehend and arrest all violators of the law. The Johnstons had hitherto found little favor in the royal eyes, and it is said that when the King issued his commission he remarked jocularly, "We will now set a thief to catch a thief." Whether this imputation be true or not, it is certain that Sir James discharged his trust in such manner as to merit royal recognition, and from this time forth the clan enjoyed great prosperity and the chiefs were frequently advanced in rank and honor.

Sir James was succeeded by his son James, who was created Lord Johnstone in 1633 and Earl of Hartfell in 1643. The Earl was succeeded in turn by his son James, created Earl of Annandale and Hartfell in 1661. The successor of the second earl was his eldest son, William, who was created the first Marquis of Annandale in 1701. By his first wife William had two children; James, second marquis, who died in 1729 without issue, and Henrietta, who married Charles, first Earl of Hopetoun, their descendants being known as the Hope-Johnstones of Annandale. By his second wife William had a son named George, who was the third and last marquis. He died insane in 1792, since which time the title of Marquis of Annandale has been in abeyance, although there have been many attempts on the part of several members of the clan to have their claims to the succession recognized by the House of Lords. In commenting on this fact in his "Fair Maid of Perth," Sir Walter Scott says:

"Every Scotchman must regret that the name of Johnstone should have disappeared from the peerage, and hope that ere long some one of the many claimants for the minor honors at least of the house of Annandale may make out a case to the satisfaction of the House of Lords. The great estates of the family are nearly entire, and in worthy hands—they have passed to a younger branch of the noble house of Hopetoun, one of the claimants of the elder titles."

The title of Marquis of Annandale has not been revived, but there are now two of the clan whose names figure in the British peerage and baronetage; Baron Derwent and the Baronet of Westerhall. Of the other branches of the Annandale family may be mentioned those of Gretna, Newbie, Galabank, Mylnefield, Wamphray, Elphinstone, and Raecleuch. An illegitimate branch of the family were for many years Lords Ruthven, of whom mention is made in "The Scottish Chiefs." Sir William Wallace is also said to have been brought up in the family of a Johnston, and the assertion is quite credible, as his home was in Lanark, just north of Annandale.

Besides the Annandale family, there are in Scotland the Johnstons of Bierholm, Sheens and Warriston, all border families and possibly connected with the larger family, and another family, commonly known as the "north country" Johnstons, of Cults, Aberdeenshire. This last family is quite distinct from the Annandale group, being descended from a gentleman named Stephen Cherie, who married Margaret, daughter of Andrew Garioch, of Caskieben, in 1380, and with her obtained an estate called Johnston. His descendants took the name of Johnston, seemingly preferring that to their own name of Cherie. This estate was a barony in the beginning of the 16th century. The north country Johnstons bear the arms of the Annandale family quarterly with those of Garioch, of Caskieben. Their crest is a phoenix in flames, and their motto, Vive ut postea vivas.

In Scotland it was allowable for each knight to wear the same design on his shield as his chief, some change in color or line being necessary, of course, to distinguish one from another. The first lords of Annandale were the Bruces, whose arms were silver, with a red saltire (diagonal cross) and a gold chief (band across the upper section); and while serving as vassals of the Bruces the Johnstons wore for their arms a silver shield with a black saltire and a red chief. After the Bruces came the Randolphs, whose arms consisted of three red cushions on a silver field; and in order to show their allegiance to their new masters the Johnstons put three gold cushions on the red chief of their shields. When the Johnstons were raised to the peerage their arms were confirmed in the above design, which is officially described, "Argent, a saltire sable, on a chief gules, three cushions or."

The crest of the clan is a winged spur, or "flying spur," as Sir Walter Scott calls it. There is a legend explaining the way in which the crest was awarded, which recites that while John Baliol was King of Scotland, Edward, King of England, tried to make him acknowledge Scotland to be tributary to England, and Robert Bruce, then Earl of Carrick, bitterly opposed the scheme. Edward, upon hearing of Bruce's opposition, laid a plot to seize him, and was only prevented by Baliol's sending the chief of the Johnstons to Bruce with a warning. Baliol did not wish to write to Bruce for fear the message should be intercepted by the followers of Edward, so he sent a spur to which was tied a bird's wing. Bruce took the hint and saved himself by flight, and when he became king he conferred the crest of the winged spur upon the messenger.

When Sir James Johnston was Lord Warden of the West Marches his motto was Alight thieves all; but when the chief of the clan was raised to the peerage the motto was changed to Nunquam non paratus, which may be translated, Never unready. This motto was particularly appropriate, as it is said that when the chief used to muster his clan for battle it was the custom for him to ask, "Men of Annandale, are ye ready?" and the answer was invariably, "Aye, ready!"

JOHNSTON, OF ANNANDALE.

ARMS.—Argent, a saltier sable, on a chief gules, three cushions, or.

CREST.—A knight's spur, argent, winged, or.

MOTTO.—Nunquam non paratus.

The clan badge is the red hawthorn.

Besides the mottoes given in the foregoing there are several others belonging to various divisions of the Johnston family, among which may be mentioned the following :

Ad arma paratus.....	Prepared for arms.
At spes non fracta.....	But hope is not lost.
Caute et sedulo.....	Cautiously and carefully.
Cave paratus.....	Be prepared and beware.
Ex sola virtute honos.....	Honor springs from virtue alone.
Onus sub honore.....	Burden under honor.
Securior quo paratior.....	The better prepared, the more secure.
Semper paratus.....	Always ready.
Servabo fidem.....	I will keep the faith.
Sic paratior.....	Thus more ready.
Sine fraude fides.....	Faith without dishonor.
Vive ut vivas.....	Live that you may have life.
Vive ut postea vivas.....	Live that you may live hereafter.

The Johnston tartan consists of a symmetrical arrangement of blue and green squares, with yellow and black stripes. Imagine a checker-board in which all the black squares in the odd-numbered rows are blue, all in the even-numbered rows are green, and every white square on the board is of alternating blue and green diagonal lines; passing through the middle of each row of green squares, both lengthwise and crosswise, is a yellow stripe between two small black lines, and passing through the middle of each row of blue squares, lengthwise and crosswise, is a set of three small black lines. This will give a very good idea of the tartan. An interesting book, called "Scottish Clans and their Tartans" (published by W. & A. K. Johnston, Edinburgh,) shows the tartans of the principal families and clans in colors. This work may be seen in most of the public libraries, or may be bought of Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, for a dollar a copy. Shawls, belts, rugs and cravats in most of the tartans, as well as saxon-cloth tartan by the yard, may be obtained from John Catto & Sons, Toronto, Canada.

The Johnstons and Scotts were near neighbors in Scotland, and probably nobody was more familiar with the characteristics of the Annandale men than Sir Walter Scott. It may be well, therefore, to take a little time for the consideration of certain passages in his "Fair Maid of Perth," in which he gives considerable prominence to the Johnston clan.

At the beginning of Chapter VIII may be found a few lines of poetry which the author labels "Old Ballad," but which savants have decided were original with him. It was his custom to put a small poem or sonnet at the head of each chapter, and when he could not find what he wanted he made one up, labeling it "Anonymous," "Old Ballad," and the like. At all events, a careful search of all the available old ballads has failed to discover many of them, and the chances are that he wrote them himself. The lines referred to run as follows:

" Within the bounds of Annandale
The gentle Johnstone's ride;
They have been there a thousand years,
A thousand more they'll bide."

So much for antiquity. In order to give some idea of the affiliations of the clan, Scott introduces in the same chapter a man whom he doubtless considered typical of their esquires. The man gives this account of himself: "My name is Devil's Dick of Hellgarth, well known in Annandale for a gentle Johnstone. I follow the stout Laird of Wamphray, who rides with his kinsman the redoubted Lord of Johnstone, who is banded with the doughty Earl of Douglas; and the Earl and the Lord, and the Laird and I, the Esquire, fly our hawks where we find our game, and ask no man whose ground we ride over."

It is a well-known fact that the Johnstons fought with the Douglasses before the former were strong enough to shift for themselves. In the various fights between the Johnstons and Maxwells, long before the battle of Dryfe Sands, the Annandale men were frequently beaten to a rout, and on more than one occasion they were saved from annihilation by the friendship of the powerful clan of Douglas. In order to show the alliance between the two clans, the King at Arms, in granting an escutcheon to the Baronet of Westerhall, placed in the base of the Johnston shield the "Bloody heart" of the Douglasses. This cognizance is the pride of the Douglas clan, and was given in recognition of the attempt on the part of the Earl of Douglas to carry the heart of Robert Bruce to the Holy Land.

Still another passage in the same volume gives an insight into the character of the times, as well as of the people. The paragraph is self-explanatory: "Do you see yonder five or six men, who are riding so wildly on the other side of the river? These are Annandale men; I know them by the length of their lances and by the way they hold them. An Annandale man never slopes his spear backwards, but always keeps the point upright or pointed forward. I will say them no scandal. If you were in their own glens they would use you hospitably, and you would have nothing to fear; but they are now on an expedition. All is fish that comes to their net. There are amongst them who would take your life for the value of your ear-rings. Their whole soul is settled in their eyes to see prey, and in their hands to grasp it."

The adjective "gentle," so frequently seen in old works in connection with the name Johnston, seems not to have been strictly appropriate, unless it were used ironically. It had its origin in the olden times when bards sang of brave deeds, and when alliteration received more attention than rhyme. A well-sounding word was worth more to the bard than one strictly characteristic, and for this reason he sang of the doughty Douglasses, the proud Percys, the jingling Jardines and the gentle Johnstons.

The seat of the Johnston clan was at Lockerby, near the center of the district of Annandale, and the castle of Lockwood was situated at that place. Lockerby was later made a part of the burgh of Lochmaben, from which it is distant some three miles. The inhabitants of the town were formerly, and are doubtless to this day, mostly of the two families of Johnston and Jardine. There is an old yarn often told in Scotland to bring out this point. It seems that a traveller was passing through Lockerby, and being both hungry and weary, he sought a place where he could get food and rest. After being repeatedly refused the accommodations he desired he lost heart, and raising his hands in distress he cried, "Are there no Christians here who will save a poor man from starving?" An old woman poked her head out of a window above him and answered, "Na, na, there's nae Christians here; we're a' Johnstons and Jardines."

The attempt on the part of England to suppress the Presbyterian religion led many Scotchmen to migrate to Ireland and America. A large number of Johnstons went to Ireland after the fall of Londonderry, most of them settling in Antrim; and their descendants have become so closely indented with Ireland that many of them consider the name Irish, not knowing of their Scotch origin. There is little doubt, however, that if records were available every man who has come honestly by the name of Johnston could trace his ancestry back to the borders of Scotland.

INTRODUCTION.

THE compiler has taken no little pains to obtain accurate information concerning all points brought out in this genealogy, and if errors have crept in, it has been through lack of data, not from any want of good intentions. While some of those of whom information has been requested have failed to respond, the relatives have generally been very obliging in the matter.

It would be difficult to specify exactly which ones have been of greatest assistance, but the compiler feels that it would be unjust not to mention such tireless co-workers as Mr. Charles W. Johnston, Miss Mary A. Perkins, Mrs. David Shafer, Miss Cora E. Laing, Mrs. Jas. McCarty, Dr. Homer Belding, Mr. Deming Sherwood, Mrs. Geo. G. Anderson, Mr. John Bidelman, Mr. Andrew Hutchison, Mrs. Thos. Allison, Mrs. L. C. Smith, Mrs. F. L. Evans, Mrs. Mary J. Anthony, Mrs. Jonathan Howland, Mrs. William Watts, Mrs. Ralph H. Hatch, Mrs. Oscar F. Bayne, Mrs. Dewane Bogue, and Mr. Chas. L. Tilden.

Further information will be gladly received, and will be duly recorded if addressed to Lieut. C. E. Johnston, U. S. Revenue Cutter Service, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

PETER JOHNSTON.

1. PETER JOHNSTON was born in Lockerby, Annandale, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, in the year 1735. It is not positively known what his father's name was, but there is a tradition that it was Thomas. Nothing whatever is known as to the name of his mother. The chronological record of this man in Scotland is somewhat mixed, but it appears that he was married about 1763 to Jane Mundle, who is believed to have been the daughter of Andrew and Betsey Mundle. They settled in Lockerby and there had two children, a son and a daughter. Some say that the son was the older, but others say not, and the family records of the two would indicate that the daughter was the first born. The children were:

2. ELIZABETH b. Mar. 22, 1765; d. about 1848; m. Wm. Laing.
3. ANDREW b. Sep. 6, 1769; d. Mar. 4, 1846; m. (1) Susannah Hillman, (2) Abigail King.

Tradition says that there was also a son Peter, but nothing definite has been learned on this point. In 1771 Peter was made a freeman, gild-brother and burgh of the burgh of Lochmaben, which included the town of Lockerby. Jane (Mundle) Johnston died about 1771, and about a year later Peter married (2) "Susannah Johnson, daughter of Archibald Johnson," according to the only family record which mentions her name at all. It is questionable, however, that her name was Johnson, for the name Johnston was so prevalent in and about Lockerby as to create a strong presumption that her surname was the same as her husband's. In 1773 Peter applied for and received a certificate of good character, signed by the magistrates of the burgh of Lochmaben, with the intention of setting out for America. He took his wife and children with him, and it is supposed that they embarked from Dumfries to New York. It is further supposed that John Laing and his family, from Langholm, Dumfriesshire, took passage on the same vessel—there is a tradition in both families to that effect. At all events, it is positive that they settled on adjoining tracts in Palmerston, Saratoga Co., N. Y., the name of which township was afterwards changed to Wilton. This was a newly settled tract, and the pioneers had to make the best of a hard life for many years. Wilton is not far from the Hudson River, and the Johnston and Laing families were engaged in farming and cutting timber, making the latter into rafts, which were floated down to Troy, Albany and New York. When the war of the Revolution broke out Peter first joined a company of minute men for home protection, but afterwards enlisted in the 13th regiment of Albany County militia, known as Col. Cornelius Van Veghten's regiment. John Laing enlisted in the same regiment, both serving as privates in Capt. Ephraim Woodworth's company.

Another tradition in the Johnston family is to the effect that a brother of Peter came over with him and settled in Virginia, but there is nothing tangible on this matter. Several of the name have come over from time to time, some settling in Virginia, but none has yet been identified as coming from this stock. In 1727 the grandfather of Joseph Eccleston Johnston, the Confederate general, came from Scotland and settled on the James River, in Virginia, and his name also was Peter. It is possible that this is the clue to the tradition. Children of the second marriage:

4. JANE b. Dec. 22, 1773; d. Dec. 1, 1839; m. Wm. Sherwood.
5. THOMAS b. Aug. 30, 1777; d. July 22, 1858; m. (1) Lucy Benedict, (2) Susanna Cleveland.
6. NANCY b. Nov. 27, 1778 (?); d. Aug., 1856; m. James Runciman.
7. MARY b. Mar. 28, 1784; d. Nov. 17, 1821; m. James E. Millett.

Peter's second wife, Susannah, died in Wilton, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1787, and he is said to have married again—a widow by the name of Benedict—but no record of such marriage has been found. The want of family records is accounted for by the fact that the house was destroyed by fire, together with most of its contents. Peter Johnston died in Wilton, N. Y., Sept. 13, 1798, aged 63 years. He and Susannah were buried in the cemetery near Emerson's Corners, in Wilton.

2. ELIZABETH JOHNSTON (commonly known as Betsey), eldest daughter of Peter Johnston, was born at Lockerby, Annandale, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, Mar. 22, 1765. Emigrated with her father, step-mother, and brother Andrew to America in 1773, and spent her girlhood on the farm in Palmerston (Wilton), Saratoga Co., N. Y., where her father settled. Their nearest neighbors were John Laing and his family, who are believed to have come to America on the same vessel that brought the Johnstons. The Laing and Johnston children grew up together, and about 1785 Elizabeth married WILLIAM LAING, son of John and Helen Laing. They settled in Wilton and lived there the best part of their lives. In 1816 William was appointed a master of the court of chancery, which position he held for many years. The scourge of consumption, so prevalent in Saratoga Co. in those days, invaded their family circle, and in the year 1824 three of their children fell victims to its ravages; two of the others were afterwards cut off by the same disease. Their son John C. always lived at home, and after his death the parents lived in Northumberland with their son Paisley until they died. Their son Drew died while serving in the war of 1812, and his son, William Drew Laing, was brought up in the family of his grandparents as one of their children. William died about 1846, being survived by Elizabeth about two years. Both were buried in the private burial place on the property of his brother, Thomas Laing, but after the sale of this land the bodies were disinterred and removed to the cemetery at Schuylerville. Children:

3. ANDREW JOHNSTON, son of Peter by his first wife, was born at Lockerby, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, Sept. 6, 1769. He emigrated with his father to America and settled with the family on a farm just east of Mt. McGregor, Saratoga County, N. Y., in what is now the township of Wilton, but was then called Palmerston. As a young man he worked on the farm with his father, and, together with several others, among whom were his half-brother Thomas and Thomas Laing, engaged in cutting rafts of timber which they floated down the Hudson to Albany and New York. Andrew purchased a tract of land in Northumberland, Saratoga County, near the old Fort Miller bridge, and on Dec. 10, 1795, he married Susannah Hillman, who was born on the island of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., Apr. 3, 1775. She bore him nine children:

- SUSANNAH b. Oct. 26, 1796; d. July 6, 1800.
- ANDREW b. June 17, 1798; d. July 31, 1800.
- OWEN H. b. Aug. 8, 1800; d. Apr. 25, 1829; unmarried.

- ANDREW b. Nov. 1, 1810; d. Oct. 6, 1830; unmarried.
- JOHN b. and d. July 6, 1815.

Susannah (Hillman) Johnston died in childbirth July 6, 1815, and on Oct. 19, 1816, Andrew married Abigail King, a native of Vermont, who was born May 30, 1789. She bore seven children:

- 15. SARAH ANN b. Oct. 11, 1817; m. William Fisk Gaylord.
- 16. ELIZABETH b. Mar. 17, 1819; d. Apr. 18, 1887; m. William Drew Laing.

- PETER D. b. Apr. 21, 1833; d. Jan. 1, 1853; unmarried.

Andrew Johnston died on his farm in Northumberland, Mar. 4, 1846, in the 77th year of his age. He was buried on his own land, as were most of the other members of the family, but the bodies were afterwards removed to the cemetery in Schuylerville. The following is a copy of an obituary published at the time of Andrew's death:

"The subject of this memoir emigrated to this country from Scotland when a child and was among the pioneers who settled this town; and when young he consecrated himself to that Saviour who has been his support through his wearisome pilgrimage and who did not forsake him in his last moments on earth.

"He had long been an exemplary member of the Consistory of the Reformed Dutch Church in this place; and had reared a family of twelve children, ten of whom are still living; and all of them had been trained up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and rise up and call him blessed.

"His deep piety, exemplary patience and heavenly conversation, through all the trials and ills of this life, have justly entitled him to the appellation of a man of God, and no doubt secured him through grace a place among the saints in light."

Abigail (King) Johnston survived her husband many years, dying in Northumberland, June 11, 1868, aged 79 years. The children of the second marriage were, as a rule, much hardier than those of the first, many of these being consumptive.

4. JANE JOHNSTON, daughter of Peter by his second wife, was born in Palmerston (Wilton), Saratoga Co., N. Y., Dec. 22, 1773, and was there married June 23, 1795, to WILLIAM SHERWOOD, son of Nathan Deming and Roxanna (Noble) Sherwood, who was born in Fairfax, Franklin Co., Vt., July 15, 1774, but was then living in Northumberland, Saratoga Co., N. Y. They settled in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., and remained there until the spring of 1803, when they moved to Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y. Here they lived about four years, moving thence to Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y. Three years later they settled on a farm on Maple Ridge, near Millville, same county, where they passed the remainder of their lives. Jane died there Dec. 1, 1839, and was followed by William Nov. 1, 1846. Both were buried in Millville. Thomas Johnston, Nancy (Johnston) Runciman and John Sherwood, a brother of William, also lived in this vicinity. Homer Sherwood, youngest son of William and Jane, took charge of the old homestead during the latter years of his parents' lives, and after their death he succeeded to the title of the property. Jane was the personification of kindness and was dearly loved by young and old. William was a heavy, thick-set man, and of such dark complexion that he was commonly known as "Black Bill." It is said that he and John did a large amount of smuggling from Canada when they lived in Vermont, and were generally considered "tough customers." It is related that on one occasion William was coming from across the border with a quantity of dutiable goods, when he was suddenly halted by a revenue officer, who demanded an inspection of his load. William's wagon was built something like a fishmonger's, having a lid which was fastened down with a hasp and padlock. In obedience to the inspector's demand he promptly leaped to the ground, opened the box, and invited the officer to proceed with the inspection. While the officer was standing on his tiptoes, rummaging the load, William suddenly seized him by the legs and threw him into the box, closing the lid and locking him in. He then drove several miles out into the woods and made his own terms. Children:

SHERWOOD.—William Sherwood was descended from Thomas Sherwood (1586-1655), who came to Boston from England in 1634, in the following line: William, Nathan (1738-1823), Joseph (1712-?), David, of Fairfield, Conn., Isaac, of East Chester, N. Y., Thomas, of England.

5. THOMAS JOHNSTON, son of Peter by his second wife, was born in Palmerston (Wilton), Saratoga Co., N. Y., Aug. 30, 1777. He lived with his parents on the farm near Mt. McGregor and received a common-school education. His father desired him to be a minister and sent him away to be educated, but Thomas did not finish his course and never adopted the calling, although to the end of his days he was ever ready for an argument on religious topics, and often neglected his work to expound his doctrines to whomsoever should bring the subject up. His father was a Presbyterian, but early in life Thomas concluded from his researches that baptism by immersion was the only true form, and he consequently identified himself with the Baptist church, although he did not become a member for many years. In 1800 he married Lucy Benedict, daughter of Elisha and Thankful (Gregory) Benedict, of Northumberland, N. Y., and settled in that vicinity. A son was born to them the next year, but both mother and child died within a few days. Lucy died Aug. 4, 1801. Thomas then put his affairs in Northumberland into the hands of his half-brother, Andrew, and set out for Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., where his sister, Jane (Johnston) Sherwood, was living. Here he was married, Nov. 25, 1801, to Susanna Cleveland, daughter of Stephen and Polly (Goodin) Cleveland, who was born at Bennington, Vt., Oct. 2, 1781. Susanna's mother was dead, and she is supposed to have been living with her grandparents, the Goodins. This family did not favor the attentions of Thomas on account of his first wife being dead so short a time, and after the marriage the relations between the Goodins and Thomas Johnston were never cordial. Thomas bought a tract of land in Georgia, adjoining Fairfield, and settled there with his bride, remaining until 1804, when, being pressed for deferred payments on the land, he had to sell out to save his improvements. He then thought of returning to Saratoga Co., N. Y., but the prevalence of consumption there deterred him. He did go there occasionally, however, and assisted his brother Andrew and Thomas Laing in rafting season. He next bought a piece of land in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., and lived there until 1811, when he moved out to Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y., where his father-in-law, Stephen Cleveland, had already moved. While here, the war of 1812 broke out and Thomas enlisted in Capt. Earl Fillmore's company, Col. Stone's regiment, N. Y. militia, in which he served 188 days as a private. Susanna afterwards drew a pension for this service. In 1822 Thomas moved his family to Leyden, Lewis Co., N. Y., remaining there only about three years, and moving thence to Shelby, Orleans County, where he bought a fine piece of land on Maple Ridge, not far from Millville. His sister Jane preceded him to Orleans County, and was living in Barre, near Shelby. Thomas' oldest daughter, Polly, who married Theodore Perkins while the family lived in Lee, also moved to Orleans County and settled in Ridgeway. Lucy, the second daughter, married Horace Perkins, brother of Theodore, and settled on a farm near Medina. Besides these, there were the families of John Sherwood, brother of William, and Solomon Baker, who married Minerva Cleveland, sister of Thomas Johnston's wife, living in the same vicinity. Andrew Johnston and his son William went there to look over the ground and were so favorably impressed that they were on the point of moving there, but were deterred by the severe illness and subsequent death of Andrew's son, Andrew. In 1831 Jefferson Runciman, son of Thomas' sister Nancy, moved to Orleans County, and was soon followed by the whole Runciman family. It was while living here that Thomas joined the church; he was baptized at Medina, July 4, 1830. The only serious drawback to this section was the prevalence of consumption, due probably to the sudden changes occasioned by the cold, raw winds from Lake Erie on the northwest, and from Lake Ontario on the north and northeast. In 1831 two of Thomas' sons,

Peter and William, developed symptoms of the disease, and in the spring of 1832 the whole family, except Stephen and Lucy, started for the Western Reserve. They took passage on a canal boat to Buffalo and sailed thence by steamer to Cleveland, Ohio. From there they went in two wagons to Brunswick, Medina County, Ohio, and settled on a farm in that vicinity. The change cured Peter, but William died the following winter. Polly remained in Brunswick all the rest of her life, but in November, 1838, Thomas moved with the rest of his family into the adjoining county of Lorain, settling on a farm on the east branch of the Black River, about a mile south of the present site of the village of Grafton, then called Rawsonville. They were among the pioneers of this locality, and the old orchard they planted, as well as part of the old log house, is still standing. The place was afterwards bought by Justin Preston and became known as the Preston farm. Still later it passed into the hands of William Drew Perkins, grandson of Thomas, and has since changed hands several times. When the children were all married the old folks sold the farm and went to live with their youngest son, Paul, in LaGrange. Here Thomas succumbed to an attack of apoplexy, July 22, 1858, and was buried in the cemetery situated on the center road, about three miles east of that place. Susanna continued to live with Paul and died on his farm in Grafton, near the old homestead, July 19, 1873. She was buried beside her husband, and a slightly monument marks their last resting place. Thomas was small of stature, but was known as a fighter. It is told of him that on one occasion, while in church, he heard the noise of a brawl outside, and deacon though he was, he could not resist slipping out and mixing up in the row. On another occasion he was holding a protracted meeting and became engaged with one of his brethren in a discussion which led to hard words. Thomas curbed his temper in order to avoid a scandal in his church, and drove home with his little son Paul. The more he pondered upon the language that had been used, the more indignant he became; and upon arriving home he let his son out, and turning around drove back and gave the man an unmerciful beating. It seems that somewhere back on the Cleveland side of the family there was a skeptic, and whenever Thomas was twitted about his children's lack of religion he would say, "Yes, that's the old Cleveland devil coming out." He had but one objectionable habit, chewing tobacco, and this he carried to such an extent that one person, in describing it, said, "He almost eat it." Susanna was tall and straight as an arrow; she was considered a very handsome woman before time and care brought the wrinkles to her face, and though she lived to be ninety-two, she never lost the right to be called a handsome old lady. She was an excellent housekeeper and a good manager, and it was largely due to her efforts that matters went as well as they did on the farm. To Thomas and Susanna were born twelve children, all but one of whom reached majority; and that one, Betsey (34), was scalded to death by falling into a cauldron of boiling water. The children were:

CLEVELAND.—Susanna Cleveland, who married Thomas Joluston, was of a prolific family, the descendants of which are legion. Moses Cleveland is said to have come to Woburn, Mass., from Ipswich, Suffolk, Eng., in the year 1635, as an indentured apprentice to a housewright. He is supposed to have been born in 1624; became a freeman in 1643; married Sept. 26, 1648, to Anne Winn, daughter of Edward and Joanna Winn, who bore him 11 children: Moses, Hannah, Aaron (ancestor of Grover Cleveland), Samuel, Miriam, Joanna, Edward, Josiah (ancestor of Gen. Moses Cleveland, founder of the city of Cleveland), Isaac, Joanna (again) and Enoch.

Edward Cleveland, seventh child and fourth son of Moses, was born in Woburn, Mass., May 20, 1663; married Deliverance Palmer, who bore him 9 children; after her death he married Zeruah Church, but she bore him no children; he d. in Sept., 1746, at Canterbury, Conn.

Children: Deliverance, Palmer, Edward, Abigail, Isaac, Samuel, Mary, George, and Elizabeth.

Isaac Cleveland, son of Edward, was born at or near Kingston, R. I., about 1696; married Susannah Johnson, daughter of William and Mary Johnson, who bore him 7 children; date of death not of record. Children: Johnson, Lemuel, Susannah, Deliverance, Mary, Elizabeth, and Isaac.

Johnson Cleveland, eldest son of Isaac, was born at Canterbury, Conn., Oct. 29, 1722; date of death not recorded; married Ruth Storey, who bore him 6 children: Stephen, Solomon, Lydia, Lemuel, Benajah and Mary.

Stephen Cleveland, eldest son of Johnson, was born at or near Bennington, Vt., Aug. 27, 1754; died at Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y., Aug. 3, 1843; married Polly Goodin, daughter of Thomas and Silence (Norris) Goodin, who died about 1795 in Middletown, Vt. The exact number of children is not known, but there were 3 daughters and 1 son, perhaps 2. The daughters were: Susanna, who married Thomas Johnston; Minerva, who married Solomon Baker, and Betsey Elizabeth, who married Sterling Case. The son was Thomas, who lived in Lee, N. Y., at the time of the death of Stephen. In 1840 Stephen was recorded as a Revolutionary pensioner, living in Lee, N. Y., with Harry Cleveland, who may have been another son. Stephen was a private in Captain Sloan's company, Colonel Patterson's regiment, Massachusetts militia, during the Revolution. It is believed that he also served in Capt. Isaac Tichenor's company, Colonel Ebenezer Walbridge's regiment, Vermont militia. Susanna always called him Captain Cleveland, but this was apparently a title of courtsey.

Mr. Edmund Janes Cleveland, of 191 Sigourney street, Hartford, Conn., has recently published an extensive genealogy of the Cleveland family.

6. NANCY JOHNSTON, daughter of Peter, was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Nov. 27, 1778(?). The year of her birth is somewhat in doubt, and it is possible that she was a year older than Thomas who was born in 1777. It is generally conceded, however, that Thomas was the older. There is little of record about this branch of the family, but it is known that about 1795 Nancy married JAMES RUNCIMAN, of Washington Co., N. Y., a son of John Runciman, a native of Scotland, and a blacksmith by trade. They lived at Lake George and other places in the vicinity of Saratoga County until about 1802, when they settled in Wilton. In 1831 their son Jefferson married and removed to Orleans Co., N. Y., where Thomas Johnston and Jane (Johnston) Sherwood lived, and in a year or so they were followed by the rest of the Runciman family. James died in 1848. Nancy moved to Michigan with her son John and died near Laingsburg in August, 1856. She lived part of the time with her daughter Susannah, who also went to Laingsburg. Children:

- WALTER b. about 1796; d. in infancy.
41. SUSANNAH b. July 30, 1797; d. Nov., 1877, North Platte, Nebr.

7. MARY JOHNSTON, daughter of Peter, was born at Palmerston, now called Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Mar. 28, 1784. In 1806 she married JAMES E. MILLETT and settled on Spruce street, New York City. There is no available record of the name of James' father, but his mother was named Mary Millett; she afterwards married Samuel Ellis. Mary died in New York City Nov. 17, 1821, and James died at the same place in November, 1824. They had four children:

48. JAMES W., b. about 1808. Went to South America as a young man and became lost to the family. No further record of this man is available.
49. WILLIAM ELLIS b. Nov. 17, 1811; d. Aug. 20, 1885; m. Mary Brower Couenhoven.
50. HENRIETTA J. b. about 1816; d. about 1856; m. about 1838 to Daniel Spinage, by whom she had a daughter Caroline, who married a Mr. Smith. Nothing further is known of this family.

MARY ELLIS b. about 1820; d. Mar. 22, 1845; unmarried.

8. DREW LAING (Elizabeth, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., about 1787. He was married about 1808, but the name of his wife has not been learned. On Nov. 14, 1812, he enlisted as a private in Captain Seth Perry's company, Colonel Prior's regiment, N. Y. militia, war of 1812, and died Feb. 18, 1813. The records of the War Department do not show whether he died of wounds or disease, but as his regiment was not engaged in any battle at that time, it is concluded that he died of disease. His widow afterwards remarried and moved away, taking her daughter with her, while her son was taken into the family of his grandparents, William and Elizabeth (Johnston) Laing. There were two children:

51. MARY b. about 1810. Further record wanting.
52. WILLIAM DREW b. Dec. 15, 1812 (?); d. Feb. 16, 1892; m. Elizabeth Johnston.

9. PETER LAING (Elizabeth, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., June 25, 1788. He took up the study of medicine as a young man and became a practitioner in his native town. On Nov. 17, 1810, he was married to Mary Calkins, who was born in Saratoga Co. in 1791. In 1833 they joined the army of pioneers then moving into Michigan, and settled at Ann Arbor, where Peter practiced his profession for three years, and where his wife died Sept. 21, 1835. To this union were born:

53. WILLIAM PAISLEY b. June 26, 1813; d. Mar. 14, 1896; m. Achsah Mariah Chapel.
ANNA b. Mar. 5, 1815; d. Feb. 14, 1816.

In 1836 Peter set out with his son William and his son-in-law Mason Phelps, and on Sept. 24 of that year they took up claims in the township of Sciota, Shiawassee Co., Mich., on the Grand River road. With the exception of Samuel Carpenter, who was accidentally killed shortly after he settled there, these three men were the first to locate in this vicinity. Peter recognized the possibilities of the site, and at once began the erection of a log cabin on his property, with the object of opening a tavern. This tavern, the first building erected in Sciota, was a mere shanty of logs, with no floor but the bare ground, and no chimney except a hole in the roof; the fireplace was made of loose stones piled up in one corner. But despite its rudeness this tavern soon became a famous landmark and one of the most popular roadside resorts in that section of the State. In 1837 Peter had a postoffice established in the tavern, and at his request it was called Laingsburg. Other buildings were shortly erected in the vicinity, and these became the nucleus of the now thriving town of Laingsburg, on the Jackson, Lausing and Saginaw railroad (part of the Michigan Central system). The town was platted in 1860 and incorporated in 1871. Peter and his children held various town offices, as did also his cousin, John Runciman, who moved there in 1845. On June 22, 1844, Peter married (2) Mrs. Laura Kemp, of Sciota, who bore him two children:

CHARLES A. b. July 2, 1845; d. Sept. 26, 1847.

60. PAISLEY b. Apr. 26, 1848; m. Anna Stacia Corcoran.

Dr. Peter Laing kept the tavern up to the time of his death, which occurred suddenly, Apr. 14, 1865. He was a man of considerable prominence, exercising as he did the manifold functions of physician, host, postmaster, founder of the village, and proprietor of some 300 acres of land in the vicinity.

10. PAISLEY LAING (Elizabeth, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., in 1798, and died in Schuylerville, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1869. His first business venture was in a dry goods store in Northumberland, Saratoga Co., but he afterwards gave this up and kept a hotel. He was a man of sterling character and high mental endowments, and was known as one of the leading citizens of his vicinity. He was elected to office several times, and held the positions of supervisor of the town and justice of the peace for a number of years. In his private life he was undemonstrative, but nevertheless held kith and kin in great affection. His wife was Katherine Francis, daughter of Abraham and Martha (Knapp) Francis, a native of Connecticut. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jonathan Howland, at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., in 1877. Children:

61. MARTHA FRANCIS b. ———; d. 1884; m. Henry B. Scott.

11. HELEN LAING (Elizabeth, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., in 1800. She lived with her parents until her marriage, about 1820, to PHILIP HINKLEY, son of Nathan and Hannah (Crosby) Hinkley. Her married life was brief, for she died Mar. 3, 1824, of consumption, leaving an only child,—

69. MARY JANE b. Aug. 5, 1823; m. John Anthony.

On Mar. 3, 1825, Philip Hinkley married (2) Esther North, daughter of Firman Benjamin and Alida (Vandenberg) North, who bore him four children: Julia Naomi m. James G. Phillips; Nathan m. Mary Jane Johnson; Ann Alida m. John W. Cook; George Byron m. Caroline Deyo.

12. JANE MUNDLE LAING (Elizabeth, Peter) was born in Wilton, N. Y., in 1807, and died there of consumption Jan. 1, 1834. A diary which she kept for something more than a year, about 1830, and which has passed into the possession of her niece, Mrs. Jonathan Howland, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., tells of a trip she made from Wilton to Shelby, Orleans County, in company with her cousin, Peter Brown Johnston, to visit her relatives in that vicinity. This diary contains many interesting genealogical facts, and is of no little value in giving an insight into the life of the people of that time. At home, Jane seems to have been the ministering angel of her neighborhood, for she was almost constantly on the go from one place to another, nursing the sick, helping the poor, sewing for the numerous children of her friends and relatives, and carrying sunshine into many a grief-stricken home. She also had a decided leaning toward poetry, and several pieces of her composition are still extant, which show her to have been a girl of education and deep religious sentiment. She evinces in her diary a feeling of something deeper than friendship for her cousin, Peter Johnston, and it is known that there was an understanding between them, if not a positive betrothal. Peter's mother held Jane in great affection and esteem, but as the girl was already in the early stage of consumption, she advised her son against a union which could not but soon make him a widower. Much against his inclinations, he accepted her advice, but events proved that she was right, for Jane died of the malady within the next three years.

13. WILLIAM JOHNSTON (Andrew, Peter) was born near Fort Miller bridge, Northumberland, Saratoga Co., N. Y., July 28, 1802.

Lived with his father and worked on the farm until his majority. On May 12, 1835, he married Hannah Mason Slade, daughter of Capt. Obadiah and Sarah (Lee) Slade, of South Hartford, Washington Co., N. Y., who was born Dec. 29, 1803. Obadiah Slade was a captain in the war of 1812, and his father, Peleg Slade, was a colonel in the Revolution. Immediately after his marriage William took up his residence at Bacon Hill, where he worked at the carpenter's trade for several years. He subsequently engaged in the mercantile business with Messrs. Baucus and Pearsall at Bacon Hill, and was associated at the same time with E. Raymond in getting out rafts of spars and piles which were floated down the Hudson. The latter business gave him a wide acquaintance with jobbers at Troy, Albany and New York. In 1854 he gave up his business in Saratoga County and bought the farm of Obadiah Slade, near South Hartford. Here he was instrumental in having the old Congregational church repaired, and after it was reopened he confessed his faith and became a member. Hannah (Slade) Johnston died November 5, 1869, and on April 26, 1876, William married Mrs. Julia (Austin) Schermerhorn, daughter of John Austin, of Moreau. They remained on the farm until the death of William, which occurred Nov. 19, 1888. He was a highly respected citizen and possessed that tact and enterprise which brought success to all his ventures. His first wife bore him three children:

70. JUDSON SLADE b. Mar. 14, 1836; m. Harriet Williams.

71. MARY CORNELIA b. Apr. 17, 1841; m. James McCarty.

14. SUSANNAH HILLMAN JOHNSTON (Andrew, Peter) was born in Northumberland, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Mar. 1, 1808. Lived on the farm with her parents and was there married in the spring of 1850 to CONSIDER TABOR, son of Gideon (?) and Polly Ann (?) Tabor. They settled in the village of York, Livingston Co., N. Y., and lived there until 1865, when they removed to Roots, Jackson Co., Mich. There they spent the rest of their lives, both dying on the farm which he bought and which passed from him to his daughter, Hannah Frances Tabor. Consider Tabor was born in Westchester Co., N. Y., Apr. 23, 1806, and died Nov. 12, 1876; he was twice a widower before his marriage to Susannah Johnston. She survived him nearly fourteen years, dying Aug. 30, 1890. One child:

ii. Amy b. Aug. 15, 1876; d. May 16, 1893.

15. SARAH ANN JOHNSTON (Andrew, Peter) was born in Northumberland, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Oct. 11, 1817. On Nov. 26, 1841, she married WILLIAM FISK GAYLORD, son of Edward and Ruth (Fisk) Gaylord. He was a harnessmaker by trade, and they lived in Northumberland for several years after their marriage. William afterwards went to Texas and died in the town of Dennison in 1855. Two years later the family moved to St. Louis, Mo., where the two daughters married, and Mrs. Gaylord afterwards moved with the younger one to Chicago, Ill., and still resides there. Three children:

Lived with her parents until July 7, 1846, when she married EGBERT BENSON LOSEE, son of Simeon and Sarah (Eckert) Losee, who lived in the same neighborhood. After their marriage they settled first in Bacon Hill, where Egbert was a merchant. They afterwards moved to Gansevoort, and there remained until they died. Mary died May 25, 1882, and Egbert Feb. 10, 1892. The following is an extract from an obituary published at the time of the death of Mrs. Losee:

"The sudden death of this estimable lady has brought deep sorrow to a large circle of friends, and although in the church and society others will perform her labors and occupy her place, in the desolate home where her virtues shone most conspicuously, her loss is irreparable. Her life was beautiful in its generous, self-sacrificing spirit, filled with those countless acts of love and kindness in which true nobility of character is shown. Her intelligence, vivacity and ever-ready sympathy made her a companion whose society was sought by all who knew her. For many years she has been a member of the Reformed Church, and the community will long remember her earnest zeal in all its interests and her unassuming persistency in laboring for its welfare."

To Egbert and Mary Losee were born two children:

They settled in Phelps, N. Y., but in 1818 moved to Barre, Orleans Co., where they lived until about 1838, when they went to Gaines. Five years later they removed to Millville, remaining there only a year, finally settling in Waterport, Carlton township, about 1844. Here James died Jan. 30, 1867, his widow surviving him until May 13, 1881, when she died at Albion. Mr. Hutchison operated a sawmill in Waterport. Children:

21. WALTER SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., May 21, 1799. Moved with his parents to New York, and while at Barre, Orleans Co., married, May 31, 1829, Ann Juliana Ferguson, daughter of James and Mary (Weylie) Ferguson, who was born Nov. 16, 1806, near Alexandria, Va. The District of Columbia then embraced her birthplace, but in 1846 all the territory on the Virginia side of the Potomac was retroceded to that State. They at first settled in Barre (now Albion), N. Y., but about 1835 moved to Ridgeway. Walter learned the trade of shoemaker, currier and tanner from his father, and worked at it the best part of his life, varying this occupation from time to time with farming. About 1840 he moved to a farm in Shelby, at which place his wife died Aug. 10, 1854. She had four children:

- 85. OPHELIA ROSEMOND b. Nov. 17, 1832; d. May 19, 1875; years later he exchanged his farm in Shelby for a smaller one in Oak Orchard, where he died Apr. 9, 1868. To his second wife were born:

- 89. CHARLES WALTER b. Apr. 21, 1861; m. Mary J. Verbrage.
- 90. JOHN WOOD b. Dec. 7, 1862; m. Jessie Sprung.

22. ELIZA SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., Oct. 27, 1800, on the second day of the week. Moved to Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., with her parents, and was there married, Mar. 15, 1821, to CHARLES LEE, son of Judge John and Sarai (Wheat) Lee, who was born in Wardsboro, Windham Co., Vt., June 21, 1793. They settled in Barre, where Eliza died Feb. 6, 1838. Children:

- 91. JEROME b. Apr. 20, 1822; d. Mar. 24, 1889; m. Gertrude Smith.
- JOHN b. Aug. 5, 1824; d. Jan. 17, 1853.
- WILLIAM b. Mar. 31, 1826; d. May 11, 1829.
- 92. MARY JANE b. June 5, 1830; m. Harmon J. Tilden.

On Dec. 20, 1838, Mr. Lee married (2) Eliza Underhill, daughter of William and Sarah (Stoddard) Underhill, who bore him—

- I. Richard Henry b. Sept. 6, 1840; d. June 19, 1866, unmarried.
- II. William Underhill b. Dec. 21, 1843; m. Frances N. Church, Feb. 7, 1867; res. Medina, N. Y. One child—
i. Mary E. Lee b. May 20, 1872.

Charles Lee died in Barre, N. Y., July 28, 1877. He was a successful farmer and a man of sterling qualities. John Lee, his father, was selected to name the township of Barre, and was for many years the judge of Genesee County. John was a son of Benjamin and Esther (Baker) Lee, of Massachusetts. Benjamin was born in Concord, Mass., Jan. 5, 1718, and died in Barre, Mass., May 4, 1796. He was a captain of militia in both Massachusetts and New York, and was also a representative from Massachusetts, serving on many committees of importance. Benjamin's father was Henry Lee, son of Joseph Lee, son of John Leigh, who came to Ipswich, Mass., from London, Eng., about 1632. A genealogy of this family was published in 1888.

23. WILLIAM SHERWOOD, Jr. (Jane, Peter) was born in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., Mar. 11, 1802, and died at Lockport, N. Y., Aug. 7, 1852. He went with his parents in their various moves until they finally settled in Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., and while living in that place he was married to Lovisa Tullar, daughter of Reuben

Tullar, who was born in St. Albans, Vt. William learned the trade of tanner, currier and shoemaker, and settled first in Millville, N. Y., but about 1834 moved out to Brunswick, Medina Co., Ohio, at which place his uncle, Thomas Johnston, had settled. Here he remained for some ten years, plying his trade, and then moved back to Orleans Co., N. Y., making and dealing in shoes at Lockport. He came to his death by drowning in the Erie canal. Children:

- 93. GATES b. Dec. 27, 1832; d. Dec. 26, 1898; m. Mary Wright.
FRANK b. Apr. 10, 1835, Brunswick, Ohio; d. April 27, 1870, Eagle Harbor, N. Y.; unmarried.
- 94. HENRY b. Feb. 10, 1840; m. Amelia Rowley.

24. CAROLINE SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born in Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y., Oct. 21, 1803. All that is known of this family is that Caroline married MASON SMITH, and that some fifty years ago they lived in Marietta, Ohio. They are said to have had three children: Paul, Walter, and a daughter whose name is not of record.

25. LUCY SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born in Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y., Aug. 30, 1805. Moved to Orleans County with her parents and was there married to AZEL REEVES GOULD, settling in Medina. They afterwards moved to Dansville, Livingston Co., where Lucy died April 13, 1836, having had—

- 95. ELLEN b. 1830; d. 1884; m. Stephen Young.
- 96. JEANNETTE b. 1832; m. Jeffrey Amherst Wisner.
MARY b. 1834; d. 1838, Bath, N. Y.

In September, 1836, Azel Gould married (2) Henrietta Porter, at Ossian, Livingston Co., and settled at Bath, Steuben Co. The children of the first marriage were brought up in ignorance of their Sherwood descent, and it was not until years afterward that they learned of it through their uncle, Homer Sherwood. To the second marriage were born seven children, three of whom died young; the other four were: Azel Reeves, Jr. (1844), James William (1846), Laurretta (1848), and Beulah (1850), all born at Bath, N. Y.

26. MARY POLLY SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born in Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., Mar. 7, 1807. On Sept. 25, 1829, she was married to Dr. ALMON VALENTINE BELDING, son of Selah and Electa Belding, and settled in Caryville, Genesee County. In 1837 they moved to Millville, Orleans County, where he practiced his profession off and on for some thirty years. When the California gold fever broke out in 1849 Dr. Belding joined a party, among whom were Azel Gould and Mason Smith, to go to California via Panama. On the way from Panama to San Francisco yellow fever developed on board the ship, and after studying the disease for a short time, Dr. Belding decided that it ought to yield to quinine in large doses, to be administered as soon as the disease showed itself; he followed out this theory, and with such success that there was not a single fatality during the passage. This treatment for yellow fever is now largely practiced by experts and yields excellent results. After knocking about California with varied luck for some time, Dr. Belding returned to his home in New York and resumed his practice of medicine. He earned the reputation of a man of great talents, but his roving disposition prevented him from staying in any one place long enough to build up a lucrative practice. In the latter part of the sixties he moved his family to Rochester, where his wife died Apr. 19, 1872. He now lives in Rochester with his daughter, and though 94 years of age (1900), still has a remarkably clear memory of the events of his earlier days. He is the sole survivor of sixty-five physicians who were his contemporaries in and about Millville. Children:

- 97. WILLIAM HOMER b. Jan. 8, 1833; m. Amelia E. Sherwood.
- 98. EDWIN WARREN b. Nov. 27, 1838; m. Mary Banford.
- 99. MARY AMELIA b. Feb. 22, 1848; m. Abram C. Angle.

27. HARRIET SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born in Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., May 28, 1812. Married JOSIAH ATWOOD, but died without issue in early womanhood.

28. HOMER SHERWOOD (Jane, Peter) was born at Phelps, Ontario Co., N. Y., Sept. 25, 1814. Moved with his parents to Millville and remained on the farm with his father until his marriage to Margaret Mason, daughter of Allen and Cynthia Mason, Oct. 17, 1838. She was born Sept. 16, 1819. After his marriage Homer took charge of the old homestead and remained there until he died, Feb. 11, 1891. His wife died June 24, 1884. He was an excellent farmer and a good manager. His farm was noted for being free from foul seeds, and he was frequently imposed upon by his neighbors, who would bring their foul grain to exchange with him for seed, which he would cheerfully do, and then he would screen out the foul seed before he would send the grain to market, thereby sustaining no little loss. It is related that a friend looked all over his farm for weeds on one occasion, and much to the old man's chagrin, succeeded in finding one mullein. Millville is in the center of the apple industry, and it was a source of great pride to Homer that his apples were considered by the Boston merchants as second to none packed in Orleans County. He was scrupulously honest and would allow no fruit to be packed that would not bear the most rigid inspection. To Homer and Margaret were born ten children:

- 100. MYRON b. Mar. 5, 1841; d. Sept. 1, 1879; m. Martha Lyman Gillette.
- 101. FRANCIS b. Sept. 10, 1842; m. Sabra Maus.

- 104. JULIA b. Sept. 24, 1848; m. Henry F. Gillett.
CASSIUS HOMER b. Sept. 20, 1850; d. Oct. 10, 1851.
LLOYD b. Oct. 14, 1852; d. June 16, 1854.
- 105. LAURA JANE b. Sept. 14, 1855; unmarried.
- 106. ALICE M. b. Sept. 8, 1858; unmarried.
- 107. VIRGINIA SALENA b. July 11, 1862; m. John W. Arnett.

29. POLLY MARIA JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born in Georgia, Franklin, Co., Vt., Oct. 11, 1802. Moved with her parents to Lee, N. Y., and while there married THEODORE PERKINS, of Rome, N. Y., in 1822, and settled in Rome. He was son of Daniel and Persis (Billings) Perkins, and was born at Enfield, Conn., June 7, 1799. Polly and her husband moved to Orleans Co., N. Y., about the same time as her parents, and settled on a farm in Ridgeway. They remained there until the spring of 1832, and then moved with the rest of the family out into the Western Reserve and settled in Brunswick, Medina Co., Ohio, where by diligence they succeeded in making a good farm out of the tract of wilderness upon which they built their home. They lived in Brunswick the rest of their days, and were an upright and highly respected family. To them were born seven children, all but one of whom reached maturity, and that one died in infancy of scarlet fever. Polly died Apr. 6, 1882, and was survived by her husband until Nov. 2, 1883. The children were:

- 108. MORRIS MATTHEW b. Oct. 1, 1824; d. Mar. 16, 1875; m. Rachel Davis.
CHARLOTTE JOHNSTON b. Apr. 15, 1826; d. June 2, 1834.

30. PETER BROWN JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., July 21, 1805. Moved with his parents to New York and Ohio, and being the oldest son, was of material assistance to his father in erecting and establishing the old homestead in Medina County, Ohio. On Oct. 3, 1833, he married Nancy Sarah Maria Searle, daughter of the Rev. Roger and Sally (Pomeroy) Searle, at Stroungsville, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio. She was born at Plymouth, Conn., Feb. 17, 1817. Roger Searle was reputed to be the first Episcopal clergyman that ever preached the Gospel in Ohio. He went there in 1817, being hauled in a sled from Pennsylvania; and when his guide informed him that they had reached the State line, he got out, and kneeling in the snow, offered thanks for his success in that wild country. Peter eventually settled on a farm in Ashland, Ashland Co., Ohio, where he died June 26, 1876. During the civil war he served for some time as teamster for a regiment of Ohio troops, but was not regularly enlisted. After his death his family moved to Paola, Kansas, and his widow still resides there with her son. They had four children:

114. WILLIAM THOMAS b. Feb. 4, 1835; m. Alphonsine A. Hibbard.

ELLEN OPHELIA b. Jan. 20, 1837; d. Aug. 1, 1843.

116. FRANCES ELLEN GERTRUDE b. Jan. 11, 1852; m. William Allee.

31. STEPHEN CLEVELAND JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., Sept. 17, 1807. Moved West with his parents as far as Orleans Co., N. Y., where he opened a general merchandise store at Millville. In May, 1836, he married Sarah Dianthe Dresser, daughter of Leonard and Mary (Tombs) Dresser, who was born at Millville, Mar. 21, 1820. They lived in Millville until the spring of 1843, when they moved to Grafton, Lorain Co., Ohio, and settled on a farm near the village of Belden. In 1866 he moved to Toledo, Ohio, and engaged in the wholesale paper business, in which he continued until his death, Nov. 2, 1872. He was a successful business man and an honorable and highly respected citizen. His wife died at Toledo, Dec. 2, 1866. They had two children:

117. MARTHA SUSANNAH b. Aug. 8, 1837; m. F. W. Preston.

EVA b. Aug. 21, 1851; d. Sept. 17, 1861.

NOTE.—In an old album which belonged to Jane M. Laing there appears the item, "Stephen C. Johnston and Maria Metcalf married April 30, 1833," but nothing is known in his family of such marriage.

32. LUCY BENEDICT JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., Feb. 21, 1809. Moved West with her parents as far as Medina, Orleans Co., N. Y., and there married about 1828, HORACE BILLINGS PERKINS, a brother of Theodore, who married Polly Johnston. (For Perkins ancestry see page 42.) Horace was born Mar. 2, 1803, probably at Rome, N. Y. They settled on a farm near Medina, N. Y., and both died there; Horace, Nov. 7, 1855, and Lucy, May 7, 1874. Her life was one of care and sorrow, for of her nine children she lived to bury seven, six of whom reached maturity only to be carried off by that dread disease, consumption. There seemed to be something in the climate of Orleans county which aggravated the disease, for two sons who went out West, Jay and William, grew up to be strong and hearty men. Eugene also went out with his brothers, but returned to Medina. He had not been there long before consumption developed and carried him off. Lucy's resignation to her cheerless lot was almost saintly. The children were:

- 118. JAY b. Oct. 19, 1830; m. Lucy Ann Sperry.
ESTHER JANE b. Sept. 30, 1832; d. Sept. 20, 1852.
JULIA b. Feb. 6, 1834; d. Mar. 30, 1856.

- 119. WILLIAM DREW b. July 16, 1838; unmarried.
CALVIN b. Aug. 20, 1840; d. 10 days later.
PERSIS b. May 10, 1842; d. Oct. 15, 1860.
ALICE b. Mar. 24, 1843; d. June 9, 1861.
EUGENE b. May 23, 1847; d. Mar. 24, 1869.

33. WILLIAM LAING JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., Aug. 4, 1810. Moved West with his parents, and while in Orleans county learned the shoemaker's trade of his cousin, Walter Sherwood. Here he developed consumption, from which he died at Brunswick, Ohio, Dec. 15, 1832, shortly after the family moved there. His remains were afterwards removed to the cemetery in Grafton, where his parents were buried. He was unmarried. It is proper to remark here that William was the only one of the twelve children of Thomas and Susanna who died from natural causes before passing the prime of life.

34. BETSEY MINERVA JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y., Apr. 26, 1812. Her mother left her playing in the yard when she was a little over two years old, but was horrified to find by her screams, a few minutes later, that she had fallen into a cauldron of boiling water. The child died in a very few moments; date, Nov. 19, 1814. This was the only serious accident that ever befell the family.

35. DREW MILLETT JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y., Feb. 5, 1814. Moved West with his parents and was one of the chief supports of his father on the old farm in Grafton, Ohio. He was the tallest of all the boys, being six feet in his socks, and had the reputation of being the "boss fighter" of the community. He cared little for social polish, and in his youthful days he and a boon companion, "Bill" Rowe, were known as the "Pair of stags." He was an expert shot and probably killed more big game in the early days of Lorain County than any other one man. For some time he was handicapped by a cataract which formed on his right eye, but he soon overcame this obstacle by learning to shoot left-handed. On Jan. 3, 1843, he was married to Philinda Bathsheba Andress, daughter of John Andress, of Grafton. They went to Wood Co., Ohio, for a couple of years and then returned to Grafton. About 1850 they moved to Iowa and settled on a farm in Jasper County, on the North Skunk River, where Drew was engaged in breaking prairie at first, but later on took to freighting across the continent in a prairie schooner. He made two trips to California and return and was very successful, from a monetary standpoint; he then said he would make one more trip, after which he would settle down at home and enjoy the fruit of his labor. Accordingly, about 1859, he set out, taking his son with him; but that was the last his wife ever saw of him or the boy. Naturally supposing that they had been killed by Indians, she returned to Ohio with her daughter, living among her relatives until her death, which took place in Avon, May 25, 1883. In the fall of the same year Drew wrote a letter to his daughter from Savannah, Mo., saying he was very sick; but the letter was misdirected and did not reach her family until after her death. In the spring of 1884 Drew wrote to his brother Charles, telling him of his condition, and the latter at once made inquiry for further details. In response to this letter Charles received a telegram from one David Hummon, of Fillmore, near Savannah, saying that if he wished to see Drew alive to come to his house at once. Charles started without further delay, and after a hard ride over almost impassible roads, succeeded in finding the cabin of Hummon, where Drew lay in the last stages of chronic bronchitis; but by diligent nursing Charles revived him sufficiently to remove him to his home in Elyria, Ohio. Here Drew seemed to rally for a time, and found much pleasure in talking over old times with the few remaining companions of his youth; but the disease was too firmly seated, and he succumbed to it May 18, 1884. He was buried beside his father and mother. It seems that after leaving Iowa, Drew and his son soon separated and never saw each other again. Children:

120. OWEN OSCAR b. July 2, 1844; m. Maggie Ann West.

121. ELLA PHILINDA b. Dec. 30, 1847; d. Jan. 17, 1884; m. Theodore L. Snow.

36. BETSEY MINERVA JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y., Dec. 3, 1816. Moved West with her parents, and at Grafton, Ohio, about 1840, married ELIHU FRANKLIN TERRELL. They settled in Ridgeville, same county, and had—

122. ELIHU FRANKLIN b. Mar. 5, 1843; m. Bridget Ann Lawless.

Soon after the birth of this child the husband died, and Betsey then married JOHN POTTER and settled in Warren, Ohio. About 1850 they moved to Cleveland, where Mr. Potter was engaged along the water front. Betsey died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jacob Hauck, at Beebetown, Medina Co., Ohio, Mar. 24, 1894. By her second husband she had:

123. FRANCES b. Oct. 31, 1849; m. (1) James Haughey, (2) Jacob Hauck.

EMMA b. Sept. 17, 1851; d. Apr. 4, 1855.

GEORGE b. Dec. 25, 1852; d. Feb. 8, 1855.

124. GEORGE (2) b. May 4, 1855; res. Cleveland, Ohio; unmarried.

37. SARAH JANE JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter), always called Jane, was born at Lee, Oneida Co., N.Y., Jan. 28, 1819. Moved to Ohio with her parents, and while living at Grafton married IRA SANFORD THORP, Jan. 19, 1842. They settled on a farm near Kingsley's Corners, Grafton township, where both died. Sanford died Aug. 10, 1885, and Jane followed him July 6, 1892. Children:

125. SARAH MELISSA b. May 15, 1843; m. William N. Shoop.

126. MARY AUGUSTA b. Aug. 28, 1850; m. Robert Nesbett.

38. LOIS ANN MILLER JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Lee, Oneida Co., N. Y., June 22, 1821. Went with her parents to Ohio, and while at Grafton married DAVIS GREGORY about 1840. They settled in Liverpool, Medina Co., Ohio, and lived there until the California gold fever broke out in 1849. Shortly after this Gregory went to California, leaving his family behind. He was not successful in his venture, and after a few years he spread a false report of his death. Lois waited to hear something definite, but nothing ever came; and about ten years later she accepted the attentions of an old friend, Virgil Horace Worden. In order to be on the safe side her brother Charles, who was a lawyer, advised her to procure a divorce before marrying again, and this she did. She then married VIRGIL HORACE WORDEN, and settled on a farm in Columbia, Lorain Co., Ohio, remaining there the rest of their lives. Virgil died Oct. 16, 1875, and the next year Davis Gregory returned and wanted her to take him back; but she turned him out of the house, and he soon disappeared. Lois died Jan. 25, 1881. By Davis Gregory she had—

127. OPHELIA b. July 13, 1842; m. Hugh Coyne.

128. SUSANNA AUGUSTA b. Feb. 27, 1844; m. Grove Hance.

129. VIRGIL HORACE b. Nov. 5, 1846; d. Sept. 12, 1885; m. Mary Doneghue.

CHARLES ANDREW b. June 10, 1848. Enlisted as a private in company H, 124th O. V. I., and was killed in the battle of Resaca, May 14, 1864.

By Virgil Worden she had—

LULU b. Aug. 19, 1862; d. June 16, 1875.

39. CHARLES WARNER JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born in Leyden, Lewis Co., N. Y., June 29, 1823. Went with his parents in their various moves until they finally settled in Grafton, Ohio, working on the farm and attending school when practicable. In this manner he acquired the rudiments of an education which he developed by three years' study in the academy of Prof. John P. Combs, in Elyria. Desiring to become a physician, he began to study medicine with Dr. George Underhill, of LaGrange, afterwards attending two courses of lectures in the medical department of the Western Reserve College at Cleveland, Ohio, from which institution he received a diploma in the spring of 1852. On Christmas, 1848, he was married to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Carlos and Mercy (Lake) Fisher (the name was originally Fish, but was changed to Fisher when Carlos moved to Ohio), who was born at Hamden, Delaware Co., N. Y., Nov. 13, 1826. They made their home in LaGrange. Together with his brother Paul, Charles engaged for one season in the drovers' business, making a tour of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa, employing George Barchard, of Grafton, as a helper. In April, 1849, after taking the first course of lectures at the Western Reserve College, Charles went to Savannah, Ashland Co., Ohio, at which place he practiced his profession until the winter of 1851-52, when he returned and took the second course of lectures and was graduated. He remained in Savannah until April, 1854, when he sold out to Dr. John Inghram and returned to LaGrange. Here he opened a drug store in connection with his practice of medicine, and this store he retained until 1859, at which time he sold out to Mrs. Henry Helm. He had become tired of the medical profession, and for the last three years had devoted himself to the reading of the law during spare moments, and in February, 1859, he was admitted to the bar. On the 22d of the following April he moved to Elyria, and has been a resident of that place ever since. He has gradually worked himself to the front in his profession, and is now one of the most widely known attorneys in the Western Reserve. He was prosecuting attorney from January, 1876, to January, 1882, at which time he declined a renomination. In 1864 he bought a small piece of property near Avon Point, Lake Erie, which formed the nucleus of a fine vineyard; he worked it himself at first, but now has a man to do the work, and the family spend the summers at the vineyard, returning to Elyria after the crop is picked. Charles has taken little active interest in politics. He was at first a Democrat, and while living in Savannah did a little stumping for that party with William B. Allison, now Senator from Iowa. On account of the attitude of the Democratic party upon the Missouri Compromise and the question of slavery, he went over to the other side, and has since been a staunch Republican. He served for some time as chairman of the Lorain County Central Republican Committee, and during this time became intimately acquainted with the Hon. John Sherman. Although well advanced in years, he still practices his profession, and is senior partner of his son-in-law, Mr. James H. Leonard, in the law firm of Johnston & Leonard, Elyria, Ohio. To Charles and Mary were born five children:

CHARLES MILTON b. Sept. 7, 1850; d. Jan. 7, 1851.

CHARLES FISHER b. Mar. 14, 1852; d. Feb. 25; 1854.

130. MARY CLEVELAND b. Dec. 20, 1857; m. James H. Leonard.

131. MARTHA LAKE b. Sept. 13, 1861; m. Wm. E. Barnhart.

132. CARLTON FISH b. June 10, 1869; m. Laura C. Hill.

40. PAUL MILTON JOHNSTON (Thomas, Peter) was born at Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., April 12, 1827. Moved with his parents to Ohio and there worked on the farm until his majority. He acquired such education as was afforded by the common schools, and afterwards was engaged for some time in teaching. Engaged with his brother Charles in a tour of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin as drovers. On Christmas Eve, 1857, he was married at LaGrange, Ohio, to Maria Hicks Obitts, daughter of Jacob and Betsey (Gillett) Obitts, who was born at Antwerp, Jefferson Co., N. Y., Apr. 17, 1834. Paul engaged in the general merchandise business with George Robbins, Freeman Sheldon, and Lionel Sheldon. About 1860 he moved to Liverpool, Medina County, where he opened an iron foundry with George W. Noble. He was a very strong man, and while here he carried a hog a quarter of a mile on a wager. He won the bet, but soon paid dearly for it, for within the next few days he was stricken with apoplexy, from the effects of which he never fully recovered. He lay at death's door for several weeks, but finally recovered sufficiently to do ordinary work. About 1864 he sold out his interest in the foundry and bought a farm in Grafton township, near Kingsley's Corners. In 1869 he traded this place for another on Black River, about a quarter of a mile from the old place where his father settled. Here he lived in comparative comfort for several years, but on Aug. 12, 1875, he had the great misfortune to lose his wife, after a long illness, following the birth of a son. During this illness Paul nursed her day and night for nearly two weeks, at the end of which time he was himself a wreck. He was naturally of strong constitution, and would doubtless have recovered but for the death of his wife, of whom he was fond beyond the average conjugal love. After her death he took no interest in life, and although he survived her more than five years, it was ever his express wish to be with her. To add to his troubles, he fell upon the ice in the streets of LaGrange the next winter (he had leased the farm for a year and gone there to live), and broke the cap of his right knee in three pieces, rendering him a cripple for the rest of his life. In the following year he moved back to the farm, but was dependent upon his sons William and Charles for all the work in the fields, and upon his daughter Lena for the care of the house. His youngest son, Paul, jr., was taken by a maternal aunt, Mrs. Julius Beeman Gott, of LaGrange, upon the death of the mother. In 1879 William married, and Paul then sold the farm and bought a place in the village of Grafton, where he died Nov. 28, 1880. Children:

- 133. WILLIAM BYRON b. Nov. 10, 1858; m. Allie D. Hastings.
- 134. HELENA MARIA b. Sept. 7, 1863; m. Henry H. Rawson.
- 135. CHARLES ERNEST b. Mar. 1, 1866; m. Rosalie Magagnos.
- 136. PAUL MILTON, jr., b. June 9, 1875; m. Hattie Underhill.

OBITTS (Obits, Opits).—From Silesian German Opitz. John Michael Opitz, or Opits, is said to have deserted the German army by swimming the Rhine, in company with one of his comrades. He then came to America and secured employment at Amsterdam, Montgomery Co., N. Y., in 1775, at which time he was about twenty years of age. Married Nancy Boshart, who bore him four sons and six daughters. Their son Jacob (b. Amsterdam, N. Y., May 10, 1795; d. Penfield, Ohio, July 15, 1850) m. Betsey Gillett (b. Otsego Co., N. Y., Nov. 21, 1806; d. LaGrange, Ohio, May 26, 1874) daughter of Samuel and Lucy (Collar) Gillett. They had ten children, of whom the fifth, Maria Hicks Obitts, married Paul Milton Johnston. Jacob spelled his name variously, as Opits, Obits and Obitts.

42. JOHN RUNCIMAN (Nancy, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Nov. 27, 1803. Lived with his parents in youth, learning from his father the blacksmith's trade. Moved to Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., with the rest of the family about 1832, and thence in 1849 to Laingsburg, Mich., which place was founded by his cousin, Dr. Peter Laing. Here John plied his trade for many years, and was also a justice of the peace for a long time. In 1824 he married Mary Kimpland, who was born Nov. 5, 1803, and died July 14, 1873. They had no children, but in 1833 they adopted Ruena Maynard, and in 1852, Charles H. Thompson. After the death of his wife, John lived with Ruena at Ovid, Mich., up to the time of his death, Aug. 7, 1889. Ruena married Dexter B. Proper, who was a private in company K, 24th Michigan Infantry during the civil war.

43. THOMAS JEFFERSON RUNCIMAN (Nancy, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Jan. 2, 1805. In Sept., 1831, he married Dorcas B. Newton, of Wilton, and in the following month moved out to Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., where his uncle and aunt, Thomas Johnston and Jane Sherwood, lived. For several years he worked for William Parsons, of Millville, and later went to East Shelby, where, in 1850, he bought a 55-acre farm. Here he remained until 1883, when he removed to South Barre, at which place he died May 5, 1886. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and was highly respected in his community. He had no children, but adopted a girl who was known as Ann E. Runciman. She married Thomas Rollings and settled in Barre, removing later to Ray, Genesee Co. Of her three children two are living; Thomas Jay Rollings, of South Barre, and Mrs. Nellie H. (Rollings) Smith, of Ray.

44. ELIZABETH RUNCIMAN (Nancy, Peter) was born in Wilton, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1808. Married WILLIAM PHILLIPS. Last heard from at Logansport, Indiana. They had three children:

138. MONROE.

139. MALVINA.

140. PETER.

45. MARY RUNCIMAN (Nancy, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., Sept. 14, 1812. Moved to Orleans Co. with her parents and there married, Dec. 6, 1836, JONAS BAYNE, son of George and Mehitabel (Slote) Bayne, and settled in Medina, where she died Jan. 19, 1883. They had six children:

- 141. JONAS SLOTE b. Sept. 7, 1837; d. June 18, 1864; m. Eliza Kirby.
- 142. JEROME MERTON b. Dec. 9, 1838; d. Dec. 22, 1871; unmarried.
- 143. OSCAR FITZELAN b. Oct. 11, 1842; d. Oct. 5, 1892; m. Eunice Bridgman.
- 144. HENRY CLAY b. Mar. 17, 1844; d. Dec. 17, 1864; unmarried.
- 145. ELLEN AMELIA b. Sept. 2, 1847; d. May 6, 1879; m. Alfred Shaw.
- 146. IDA MAY b. Nov. 15, 1853; m. Dewane Bogue.

46. WALTER RUNCIMAN (Nancy, Peter) was born in Wilton, N. Y., May 1, 1814. Moved to Orleans County about 1832, settling at Albion, where he died in 1840. He married Clarinda Harrington, who bore him one child, a daughter:

- 147. JENNIE RUNCIMAN; m. Rufus Johnson and lived near Laingsburg, Mich. She died there aged about 25, without issue. This branch of the family became extinct with her.

47. NELLIE J. RUNCIMAN (Nancy, Peter) was born in Wilton, N. Y., Feb. 9, 1817. Moved to Orleans County with her parents. Married (1) THOMAS TINNEY, of Pennsylvania; he died, and she married (2) — BROWN. Last heard from near Logansport, Ind.

49. WILLIAM ELLIS MILLETT (Mary, Peter) was born in New York City, Nov. 17, 1811. Upon the death of his parents he and his brother and two sisters were brought up in the family of their guardian, Mr. Christian N. Couenhoven, of Hastings upon Hudson, Westchester Co., N. Y. On Oct. 30, 1833, William married Mary Brower Couenhoven, daughter of his guardian and Mary (Brower) Couenhoven, who was born July 7, 1813. The Couenhoven residence was destroyed by fire and most of the Millett family records were burned up, which accounts for the want of statistics in this family. For many years William was engaged in the piano and music business on lower Broadway, New York City. He died Aug. 20, 1885, and was survived by his widow until Sept. 23, 1890. To them were born eight children:

HENRIETTA b. Oct. 12, 1834; d. Nov. 7, 1840.

WILLIAM ELLIS, jr., b. Nov. 7, 1836; d. Oct. 5, 1856.

- 153. HENRY LAING b. June 3, 1851; d. Nov. 16, 1875; m. Hattie Gillett.

52. WILLIAM DREW LAING (Drew, Elizabeth, Peter) was born in Wilton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., probably on Dec. 15, 1812, although this date is somewhat in doubt. His father died while serving in the army during the war of 1812, and his mother afterwards remarried and left Drew—as he was called—in charge of his grandparents, William and Elizabeth (Johnston) Laing. On Dec. 15, 1836, he was married to his cousin, ELIZABETH JOHNSTON (16), daughter of Andrew and Abigail (King) Johnston, and settled in Northumberland, where he plied his trade of carpenter and joiner for many years. In 1865 the family moved onto the old homestead of Andrew Johnston, in Northumberland, and remained there until 1884, when the house took fire and burned down, together with all the outbuildings. The farm was then sold to Mr. E. W. Town, of Northumberland, and the family removed to Schuylerville, where Elizabeth died April 18, 1887. Drew survived her about five years, dying Feb. 16, 1892. Combining as he did a genial disposition with a high moral character, he was deservedly one of the most popular men in his vicinity. Children:

- 154. FRANCES ELIZABETH b. Aug. 26, 1838; m. Wm. J. Slade.
- 155. SUSAN EUGENIA b. June 29, 1840; m. (1) Andrew J. Chubb,

Josephus and his brother John were the first settlers in what is now the township of Woodhull, Shiawassee Co., Mich. On Nov. 1, 1836, they arrived at Laing's tavern, in the adjoining township of Sciota, and soon afterward secured title to two pieces of land near the Forks, not far from Laingsburg. John then went for his family, while Josephus, who was a bachelor, hired William Hildreth, and on Dec. 2, 1836, began the erection of the first house in Woodhull. It was 16 by 20 feet and was constructed of logs, with the exception of the door, which was made of a dry goods box they had brought from New York. In the fall of the following year Josephus sowed the first field of wheat in the township. The facilities for communication were then so poor that it took nine days to make a trip from Wayne County to Woodhull. In 1839 Josephus bought a kit of tools and a bellows and put up a blacksmith's shop on his farm—the first of the kind in the vicinity. He also erected the first frame dwelling in Woodhull. Mr. Barnhart entered the Railway Mail Service Oct. 10, 1879, at St. Louis, Mo., and was promoted from time to time, holding the position of Assistant Superintendent of the Seventh Division for five years. On Oct. 1, 1887, he tendered his resignation to accept a position with a street car company at Kansas City, Kansas, being elected successively Land Agent, Auditor, and Superintendent. In 1896 he severed his connection with the company and accepted a position with an Eastern publishing company as commercial agent, traveling for this company about a year. He then accepted a position with the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad, of which system he is now Tax Commissioner and Special Agent Mail Service. In 1895 he was elected President of the Board of Education of Kansas City, Kansas, which position he still holds. In 1897 he was made Master of Arts of Oberlin College. 132. CARLTON FISH JOHNSTON (Charles, Thomas, Peter) was born at Elyria, Ohio, June 10, 1869. Lived with his parents until after his graduation from the Elyria High School, in 1887, and then, declining a college education, started out West to "grow up with the country." He first went to Kansas City, Kansas, where his sister Martha Lake was living, and tried his hand at various jobs, but without much success. He then secured a position in the Railway Mail Service as postal clerk and was assigned to the run between St. Louis and Council Bluffs, on the Wabash line. He has continued in this service, and from the handling of newspapers and fourth-class matter he has risen to be chief of his car. He has been in several wrecks, but has had the good fortune to come out uninjured. On Sept. 10, 1894, he was married to Laura Constance Hill, daughter of John and Eliza Louise (Dagan) [Watts] Hill, of Council Bluffs, who was born in that city Oct. 24, 1871. Her father's name was originally Hiller, but was changed to Hill when the family came to America. He was born in Herenberg, Wurtemberg, Germany, June 11, 1834; came to America as a boy and settled near Cleveland, Ohio. Eliza Louise Dagan was born at Cleveland, Ohio, May 8, 1841, and at the time of her marriage to Mr. Hill was a widow; her first husband, Charles Wicks Watts, was killed during the civil war. Carl and Laura took up their residence at St. Louis after their marriage and have been there ever since. Carl takes an active interest in politics and is a member of the Merchants' League Club, a Republican organization at St. Louis. One child:

- 340. LOUISE FISHER b. Jan. 4, 1901.

133. WILLIAM BYRON JOHNSTON (Paul, Thomas, Peter) was born at LaGrange, Ohio, Nov. 10, 1858. Moved with his parents to Liverpool and Grafton, Ohio, living most of his boyhood and all of his youth on a farm. He received his education in the public schools at Grafton, Ohio, and completed the course of study then prescribed for the high-school course. He passed an examination before the county board of examiners and received a teacher's certificate when but sixteen years of age. He followed school teaching for several years and was rated as a successful teacher. After his father became crippled William assumed charge of the farm; and to his credit it is pertinent to say that the farm never paid so well before. In his youthful days William manifested a desire to become a student of the law, but his designs were frustrated by his father, who discouraged any attempt in that direction. On Nov. 20, 1879, he married Miss Allie D. Hastings, eldest daughter of John B. Hastings, a prominent Democratic politician and business man of LaGrange. In 1880 he engaged in the furniture business with his father-in-law and continued in mercantile pursuits, for which he was never fitted, with varying fortunes for about six years. In 1886 he took Horace Greeley's advice to young men and "went West," locating in Scott County, Kans., where he was one of the founders and promoters of Scott City, the county seat. Here he speculated in real estate during the memorable Kansas boom, and following the inclinations of his youth he also entered upon the study of law under the tutorship of L. V. Cra-veus, Esq. He was admitted to the bar in 1889 and immediately entered into practice. The hard times struck Kansas this year and he returned to his native State. In 1891 he was elected mayor of his native town. He moved to Elyria in 1893 and entered into the practice of law, a vocation congenial to his nature, where he may still be found. He was always a Republican in politics and soon became recognized as one of the leaders of the party. Although young in the profession of law, he has been successful beyond the average, and his future appears to be very bright. Children:

CECILE CORA b. Oct. 11, 1880; d. May 14, 1895.

EDNA MARIA b. Feb. 28, 1884; d. Jan. 20, 1890.

134. HELENA MARIA JOHNSTON (Paul, Thomas, Peter) was born at Liverpool, Ohio, Sept. 7, 1863. Moved with her parents to Grafton, and after the death of her mother became the housekeeper for the family, although at that time she was but twelve years old. This necessarily interfered with her schooling to a certain extent, but she attended the Grafton public school and finished the course there with an excellent record. Upon the death of her father, in 1880, the family broke up and she was offered a home with one of her maternal uncles, but the spirit of independence was too deeply rooted in her to accept, and the estate being as yet unsettled, she went to work on a farm near LaGrange. Here she became engaged to HENRY HUBBARD RAWSON, son of Zera and Martha (Ames) Rawson, of Pittsfield, an adjoining township. He was born at Pittsfield, Nov. 5, 1860. In April, 1883, he went with his parents to Vermontville, Eaton Co., Mich., where he opened a general merchandise store, and as soon as he became established he sent for Lena, as she was always called, to come and join him. He met her at Jackson, Mich., May 16, 1883, and they were immediately married and proceeded to Vermontville. They were doing well in the store when the explosion of a lamp set fire to the building, totally destroying it, together with all of their stock. They then returned to LaGrange, Ohio, where he engaged in several different enterprises for a couple of years and then went out West in search of employment. This venture was not a success, however, and after driving a stage for several months he returned to Ohio. He next became agent for a portrait company, at which occupation he was ably assisted by his wife. While thus engaged he was offered a situation as traveling salesman for a Detroit piano concern, which he accepted, and he has been on the road most of the time since, representing various companies. Children:

He attended the Elyria High School until May, 1883, when he secured by competitive examination an appointment as cadet at the U. S. Naval Academy, at Annapolis, Md.; entered the academy May 17, 1883, and was graduated in June, 1887; took the prescribed two-years' cruise, and after final graduation in 1889 was honorably discharged at his own request. The following year he went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was engaged for about a year as route agent on the San Francisco Examiner, after which he accepted a position as assistant inspector of steel at the Pacific Rolling Mills. While here he took an examination for the position of third lieutenant in the U. S. Revenue Marine (afterwards changed to Revenue Cutter Service); received an appointment to that grade May 30, 1891, and was assigned to the cutter Corwin in the Bering Sea fleet. On Feb. 24, 1892, he was married to Rosalie Abbie Magagnos, daughter of Jules Antoine and Josephine (Plummer) Magagnos, of Oakland, Cal., whom he met in Honolulu while he was a naval cadet. After serving three years in the Bering Sea fleet, Charles was ordered East, serving on several stations on the Great Lakes and the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.
