Record of the Burwell Family.

The Burwell family is of very ancient date upon the borders of England and Scotland, particularly in that region known as the Eastern Marches.

The name appears in various early records as Boralle, Borel, Burwell and Burrell, in which last form it appears in the record of the reign of Richard III. GAR

At Berwick on the Tweed, the Burrells were settled as early as 1250. They are also mentioned as of the counties of Northumberland, Devon, Essex, Sussex and Kent, and in the form of Burwell, as of the counties of Essex and Suffolk. Robert Walpole, Earl of Oxford, and premier of England, and Horatio, Lord Nelson, were descendants of the Burwells through the female lines.

The Antiquarian, Cole, says the family settled in Colton Hall in Buddington, Hoxen Hundred, by marriage with Durebough, and afterwards moved to Bougham, Theodester Hundred. The earliest mention of the Burwell family in connection with the Colony of Virginia, is Edward Burwell, who was one of the grantees under the charter of 1607 from James I. The names of Minion and William Burwell also appear in the list of adventurers for Virginia.

The ancestor of the family in Virginia was Major Lewis Burwell, who settled about 1640 on Carter's Creek in Gloucester County, Virginia. In 1646 he was a member of the deputation sent to invite Charles II. to come to Virginia. He married Lucy, daughter of the valiant Captain Higginson, one of the first commanders who subdued the country of Virginia from the power of the heathen. He died November 19, 1658, aged thirty-three years, and was buried at his seat, Fairfield, Gloucester County, Virginia, (now and for many years, called Carter's Creek).

The house was built of brick. In the old family burying-ground are the tombs of Major Burwell, his wife, and many others of the family. After his death, his widow married Colonel William Barnard, of the King's Council in Virginia. He died November 26, 1675. Married, third, Philip Ludwell, and left a son, Philip Ludwell. Philip Ludwell, husband of said Lucy, commanded Governor Berkeley's forces against Nathaniel Bacon.

Of the issue of Major Lewis Burwell and Lucy Higginson, ^{where is record of only Major, the Honorable} Lewis Burwell, of Queen's Creek, York County, Virginia, who married first, Abigail Smith (born in 1632, and died November 13, 1672), niece and heir of the Honorable Nathaniel Bacon, Senior, President of the Council, whose whole estates, which had been intended for his nephew, Nathaniel Bacon, the rebel, were bequeathed to her and her descendants.

Honorable Lewis Burwell married, second, Martha, daughter of John Lear, Secretary of the Council. She died in 1704, and was the widow of Colonel William Cole, who died in 1694, in his fifty-sixth year, and was Secretary of the Council.

A branch of the Burwell family settled in New England, John Burwell in Roxbury, Massachusetts, in 1633. The same name appears as a free planter in Milford, Connecticut, in 1632. He was from Hemel Hempstead, Hertfordshire, England; died in 1649. He left children whose descendants are scattered through the West and Northwest.

Another branch is found in Canada at Port Burwell, on Lake Erie, thought to be descendants of Major Lewis Burwell and Lucy Higginson. The ancestor of the Canada Burwells left Virginia in 1721. His name was John. His brother, James, was a British officer, wounded at the siege of Yorktown, and moved to Canada in 1783. The Burwells of Canada are descended from him. After the Revolutionary War he was rewarded by a large grant of land near Lake Erie. His great-grandson, Leonidas, was a member of the Canadian Parliament.

KING'S CREEK PLANTATION.

In 1630 Captain John Utie patented this land, being one of the first to locate on York River. His son parted with his interest to Colonel William Tayloe, who gradually secured much of the neck. He married Elizabeth Kingsmill, and she married, secondly, Colonel Nathaniel Bacon, Senior. During Bacon's Rebellion, the place was occupied by Major Thomas Whaley, with a band of Rebels, and a bloody battle ensued, in which Farrell, the leader of the Royalists, was killed. Here Sir William Berkeley, in 1677, first put foot to land after his banishment to the Eastern Shore by Nathaniel Bacon, Jr. At Colonel Bacon's death in 1694, the property passed to Lewis Burwell, who married his niece, Abigail Smith. About 1740, the whole tract between James River and York River was owned by the Burwells, from King's Creek to Queen's Creek, on the York, and from Skiff's Creek to Archer's Hope Creek on the James. James Burwell (son of Lewis) lived at King's Creek, on York River; Lewis Burwell, another son, lived at Kingsmill, on James River; and Nathaniel Burwell, another still, owned Martin's Hundred, which he obtained through his marriage with Elizabeth Carter, daughter of Robert (King) Carter. There is a stone on the side of the road going down to King's Creek neck, which marks the corner of the lands of all three, having engraved upon its sides their initials, J. B., L. B., N. B.

KINGSMILL.

This plantation is on James River, distant about four miles from Williamsburg, and, originally consisted of 850 acres, patented by Richard Kingsmill, an early settler. His daughter, Elizabeth, married Colonel Nathaniel Bacon, who left all his property to his niece, Abigail Smith, who married Major Lewis Burwell, of King's Creek. Lewis Burwell, Major Burwell's son by his second wife, Martha Lear, received this property from his father, and built upon it a large brick mansion house, with gardens and other considerable improvements. It was standing about 1800, and is described in the Virginia Gazette as two stories high, four rooms to a floor, with two wings or offices. The ground in front was terraced to the river, and there were on the place a brick brew house, stables and coach house. There was a wharf here, where, for many years, the steamer received passengers from Williamsburg. Nearly all the old structures are gone, but the plantation is still ranked among the best on James River.

the Virginia country gentleman's home of the eighteenth century, and was adorned with terraces and gardens. The house, which is very large, is built in the Flemish bond, and has two detached wings. Robert Carter's daughter, Elizabeth, married Nathaniel Burwell, of Fairfield, in Gloucester county, eldest son of Major Lewis Burwell. Their son, Carter Burwell, made it his regular residence, and at the close of the century, it was owned by his son, Nathaniel Burwell, who removed to Clarke County, where he built Carter Hall.

11427 Nathaniel married his first cousin, Susanna Grymes, at Brandon, Middlesex Co., Va., November 28th, 1772. Their children were as follows:

- 11427-1. Carter, born at "Carter's Grove," October 16th, 1773, and died there February 7th, 1810. He married Mary _____ in 1819.

CARTER HALL. GAR

This beautiful and commodious old Virginia house is most eligibly situated on a farm of nearly seven hundred and fifty acres of some of the finest blue-grass lands in the historic Shenandoah Valley, with the village of Millwood, Clarke County, as one of its boundaries. The selection of this lovely spot by Col. Nathaniel Burwell, third in descent of Major Lewis Burwell, of "Carter's Creek," Gloucester County, gives evidence of his good judgment and appreciation of nature's blessings in the picturesque surroundings in this fertile valley, with the Blue Ridge mountains extending gracefully along the Shenandoah River, but three or four miles distant. Here it was that Col. Nathaniel Burwell (2) erected this handsome and comfortable stone residence about the year 1792, taking nearly eight years in which to construct and complete it, for the use of himself and his large family, who annually left their James River home, "Carter's Grove," to spend the summers in Clarke County. This was a part of the land of Robert Carter, known as "King Carter," whose daughter, Elizabeth, married Nathaniel Burwell (1), son of Major Lewis Burwell, of Fairfield, or Carter's Creek, Gloucester County, Virginia.

CARTER HALL

Carter Hall descended to George H. Burwell, (1), the seventh child, fourth son of Col. Nathaniel (2) and Lucy Page Baylor, his wife, he being the founder and builder, and was by George used in great comfort and style till his death in 1873. It then descended to his son, George H. Burwell (2), who now owns about six hundred and fifty acres of the Carter Hall farm upon which he lives in his more modern house, "Mount Airy," with all the advantages of fertile and picturesque lands, mountain scenery and healthy atmosphere. At the base of these two sites is the grand old Carter Hall spring, covering an area of nearly an acre, with its never-ceasing copious flow of delightful limestone water, overshadowed by numerous majestic oaks, which, added to the number of the same with walnut and other growths, make the famous Former collection, CIA State Archives grove consisting of over one hundred acres, producing the attractive surroundings of the "Carter Hall" house, the place where the late Bishops Meade and Atkinson, and other distinguished kin, and friends of the Burwells, visited and spent many happy days. This grove was the camping ground and headquarters of "Stonewall" Jackson and others during the early and late campaigns of the war 1861-1865, General Jackson having moved his army from and around Winchester to Manassas and other points along the pike running from Winchester to Berry's Ferry, through Millwood, on the old road to Alexandria and Washington, the latter crossing the Blue Ridge Mountains at Ashby's Gap. Within a radius of three or four miles of Carter Hall are to be found "Greenway Court," the picturesque home of Lord Fairfax, with its old Office, (used by General Washington, for a time as Lord Fair- fax's engineer), and the White Post, to guide people to Greenway Court. (GA)

There is also "Saratoga," with a large and beautiful spring at the base of its lovely site, and its fine old colonial stone house, built by General Morgan, with his Hessian prisoners, who carried the stone in hand-barrows four or more miles from the quarries near the Opequon. These and other homes make a charming neighborhood of many of the descendants of the Burwells, Pages, Carters, Randolphs, Nelsons, Lees and others, a number of whom moved from lower Virginia to this famous valley for health and pleasure. Carter Hall, with its nearby added farms, "Spout Run" and "The Island," were beautifully and most successfully conducted under the direction of Mr. George H. Burwell (1), who was always thorough and thorough in his methods, and produced large crops of corn, wheat, hay, etc., with splendid droves of fat cattle, sheep, and many magnificent thorough bred and other horses, in his productive blue-grass fields and lime-stone water. He was always cordial and hospitable in his treatment of all classes of visitors, and was never too busy to prove that he was a real type of the good old Virginia gentleman. He was one of the most loyal sons of Virginia, brave, true, honest and upright, always courteous and most generous. His noble traits and valuable example are yet exerting their influence in his old community, and will do so for years to come.

This lovely old home, "Carter Hall," has never been out of the Burwell family till the past few years, when owned by Mr. Eben Richards, who has just reconveyed it to Mr. John Townsend Burwell (late of the U. S. N.), son of Mr. George H. Burwell (2), and grandson of Mr. George H. Burwell (1).

Carter's Creek, in Gloucester County, Virginia, not far from York River, is the seat of the Burwell family. The old brick house, very antique, was burned down about 1898. Near the house is the family burying-ground, in which are old tombstones very much broken, dating from 1675 to 1710. Among these are the following:

1. Lewis, son of Lewis Burwell and Abigail Smith, his wife. He died September 17, 1696; aged fifteen years.

Also his brother, Bacon, and sister, Jane, are buried by his side.

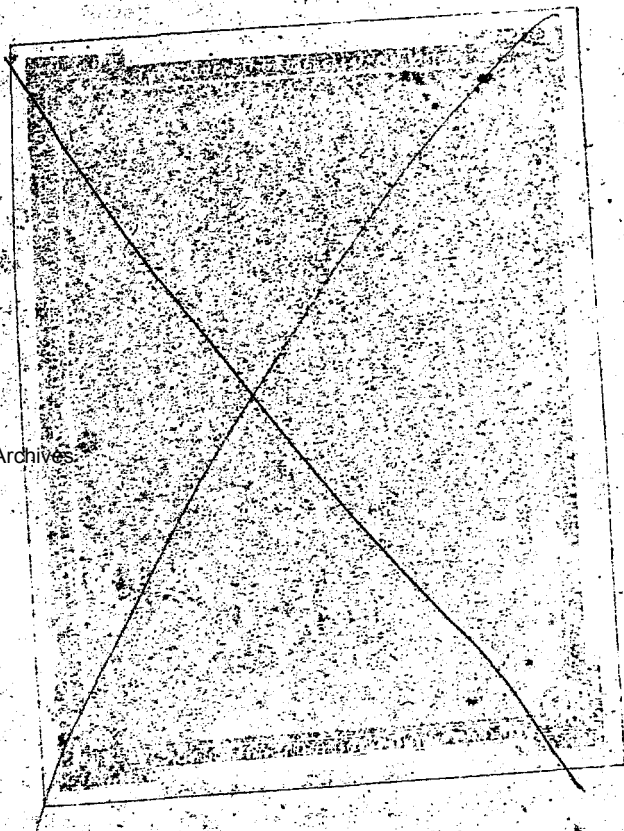

2. Abigail, wife of Lewis Burwell, of Gloucester County, Virginia. She was the heiress of Nathaniel Bacon.

3. Major Nathaniel Burwell, son of Major Lewis Burwell, died 1721; aged 41 years.

Goodwin, "Bruton Parish Church, Restored and its Historic Environments," containing all details, inscriptions, and other matters on the many tablets, including the Burwells, Ludwells, Pages, Mayos, Spottswoods, and many others of the early period, and associations of that church, and its locality; also some of the facts and proceedings at the presentation of the Bible to Bruton Church, by the Bishop of London, from His Majesty, King Edward VII., and of the Lecturn by the late Bishop Satterlee, from His Excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, October 5, 1907, the year of the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the settlement at Jamestown, and during the sessions of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Richmond, the Convention having adjourned that day to take part in the beautiful and most impressive services.

APPENDIX.

GAY

The Atkinsons, Lees, and others of the old families who moved from lower Virginia to Clarke County, because of marriages and intermarriages with the Burwells and other Clarke families, have thus been so closely related that it is considered advisable to indicate in this the connections and relationship of those so nearly associated.

11427E

Mrs. George H. Burwell, late of Carter Hall, was Miss Agnes Atkinson, of Mansfield, near Petersburg, Va., where she lived till married. Her sister, Miss Eliza Mayo Atkinson, of the same place, married Mr. William Byrd Page, of Page Collection, Clarke State Archives, of the last William Byrd, of Colonial period. These two sisters, and others below named, were descendants of William Mayo the first, of Poulshot, England; his son, Major William Mayo (2d), also of Poulshot, left England about 1713, and with his brother, Joseph 2d., went to Barbadoes, thence to Virginia, in 1723.

William located just above, and Joseph below, the site, or land, owned by their warm personal friend, Col. William Byrd, on which, later, was founded the City of Richmond, which William, as a civil engineer, planned and laid off for his friend, Colonel Byrd, without charge.

In 1726 Joseph erected, according to the old English style, the attractive and comfortable brick house on his place, on James River, and called it "Powhatan Seat," and it continued in the Mayo family for nearly one hundred and fifty years, though partially destroyed by fire, and rebuilt, practically on its old lines, in 1845, by Robert A. Mayo, with enlarged windows and handsomer interior. John Mayo, son of William 2nd, married Mary Tabb, of Gloucester County, Va.

William (3rd), son of John, married Elizabeth, one of the seven daughters of Peter Poythress, who descended from Richard Bland and Governor Bennett, who was sent to Virginia by "The London Company" about 1610, because of his eminent fitness and of an article of great interest which he had written for "The London Company."

Robert Atkinson, of Mansfield, near Petersburg, Va., married Mary, the eldest daughter of William Mayo (3rd), of "Powhatan Seat," (Henrico County), which had descended from Joseph Mayo (2nd), to John, his nephew, and from John to his son, William the 3rd, and from William to Robert Atkinson Mayo, his son.

Issue of Robert Atkinson and Mary Mayo, the eldest sister of the late Robert Atkinson Mayo:

1. Anne, who married Mr. Patterson.
2. Rev. William M. Atkinson, Presbyterian minister, father of Judge William M. Atkinson, of Winchester, Virginia; Mrs. Rev. A. C. Hopkins, of Charlestown, West Virginia, and Mrs. Eliza Perry, of the same place, both sisters of the late Misses Rebecca B. and S. Cary Atkinson, late of Charlestown, West Virginia, and Clarke County; also Mr. Broadnax Atkinson.

3. Roger, who married Miss Withers. see also
4. Rev. J. M. P. Atkinson, Presbyterian minister, and for a long time president of Hampden-Sidney College, whose daughter, Portia, married Mr. Morrison, a brother of Mrs. General Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson.
5. Rev. Jos. M. Atkinson, who married Sallie Welford.
6. Lucy Fitzhugh, married Rev. Churchill J. Gibson, father of Robt., A., the present Bishop of Virginia.
7. Jane, married Mr. Benjamin Minge.
8. Thomas, late Bishop of North Carolina. 1421E
9. Agnes Atkinson, who married George H. Burwell (1st), of Carter Hall, whose issue is stated on page 28.
10. Robert, who moved to Texas. see Eliza Helen
11. Eliza Mayo, who married Mr. William Byrd Page, of Pagebrook, Clarke County, Virginia.

Issue of Eliza Mayo Atkinson and William Byrd Page:

1. Evelyn Byrd, who married Col. Richard H. Lee, of Grafton, Clarke County, (first cousin of General Robert E. Lee.)

Their issue:

1. Mary Page.
2. Richard H., Jr.
3. Rev. William Byrd, minister in charge of Ware Parish, Gloucester County, Virginia.
4. Elise, who married Rev. James Winchester, D. D.
5. Rev. Charles H., who married Susan P., daughter of the late John Esten Cooke, the author.

RECORD OF THE BURWELL FAMILY.

2. Mary A., who married the late Captain William N. Nelson, Confederate States Army, who was shot through the lung at the first battle of Manassas, and lived till 1873.

Issue of Mary A. and William N. Nelson:

1. Thomas N., who married Susan, daughter of Dr. Robert Atkinson, of Baltimore, son of Bishop Atkinson.
2. Eliza N., who married John Woolfork, of Columbus, Georgia.
3. Evelyn Willing, who married William Turpin, of Macon, Georgia.

John Townsend Burwell, (son of George H. Burwell) who has lately acquired the old homestead, Carter Hall, is the grandson of Mr. Charles Lee, brother of Colonel Richard H. Lee, and also first cousin of General Robert E. Lee.

As it has been impossible to include in this record the names of some of the collateral branches of the various families named, a number of blank pages have been left at the end of this, for those who wish to do so, to add such names and information as they desire, as to their respective branches, for their own uses.

Among others entitled to thanks for information given, is Admiral W. T. Burwell, United States Navy.

ADDENDA.

To Hon. Lyon G. Tyler, President of William and Mary College, we are indebted for certain extracts from his "Williamsburg, The Old Colonial Capitol," on King's Creek Plantation, King's Mill, Cedar Grove, etc.

The Coats-of-Arms of Burwell, opposite page 4, and of Mayo, opposite page 16, are enlargements of those on the Tablet opposite page 34, to the memory of the Burwells and Mayos who were members of the House of Burgesses.

LONG BRANCH

Captain Robert Carter Burwell built Long Branch upon his inherited part of a tract of 5,619 acres allotted to his grandfather, Robert Burwell (a member of the Colonial Council in 1740 as his share of a grant made by Lord Fairfax in 1730. He died, unmarried, in Oct. 1813 from an illness incurred during military service in the War of 1812, leaving the estate to his sister, Sarah, and her husband Philip Nelson (3rd son of Gov. Thomas Nelson, a signer of Dec. of Indep.) In 1842 they sold it to their nephew, Major Hugh Mortimer Nelson I who married a Holker. He died in allermarle in 1863. The next owner was their son, Hugh Mortimer Nelson II (1847-1915) who married in 1885 his cousin Miss Sallie Page Nelson. At this date (1950) this charming lady has been mistress of Long Branch for over 65 years. (GA)

So Long Branch Major Nelson added: an east wing, north and south porticos, and the beautiful spiral staircase, designed by the "second" Katschs. The wallpaper of two bedrooms was made in France in 1820.

It was at Long Branch on Jan. 31, 1810 that the marriage took place of Mary, daughter of Philip and Sarah (Burwell) Nelson to William Meade, who became the 3rd Bishop of Va.

WHITE MARSH

On the Tidewater Trail in Gloucester City. This mansion is on part of the grant of 1642 to Major Lewis Burwell. The central portion, typically Georgian, is believed to have been built about 1750. The wings were added after 1800. Exact dates were lost when records of the county were destroyed in the fire which marked the fall of Richmond, where they were sent for safety from Federal raiders during the War Between the States.

White Marsh is famous for its profusion of old English boxwood and park of century-old trees. General Lee visited his cousins, the Fatts, at White Marsh. (3A)

The back of the house overlooks a beautiful stretch of meadow; cultivated land, and woods extending to Ware River 2 miles distant. The farm area of the 2,000 acre plantation is cultivated intensively. White Marsh is owned (1950) by William Ungles, a tenth generation direct descendant of Major Lewis Burwell.

CARTER HALL

The main house, one of the valley's most imposing and lovely homes, stands well above the ground, making room for its unusually high basement windows. For the central 72 feet, it has high-ceilinged rooms on both levels; beyond, the second story rooms have lower ceilings. Its handcarved woodwork is good, and several rooms have exceptionally fine decorative plaster-work. Of the two detached stone terminal houses, the one on the west was used as a school and the one on the east as a guesthouse.

Col. Burwell had 16 children. Do the 12 who reached adulthood he gave handsome estates, yet left a large fortune for his heirs. Carter Hall fell by lot to his son, Geo. H. Burwell who added the east wing and the fine portico. It was probably designed by Wm. Thornton, architect of the Capitol. The War Between the States cost Mr. Burwell a son and almost all of his property except his real estate. In 1882 Geo. Burwell II sold Carter Hall to Mrs Thomas H. Burwell, who left it to her daughters Sylvia and Marguerite Burwell. Their father sold it in 1902, and John Townsend Burwell eldest son of Geo. H. Burwell II bought it in 1908. He made several additions in his 22 years of ownership. Gerard B. Lambert the next owner restored the main house to its original appearance and made many changes in the interior. Mr and Mrs Frank E. Christopher own Carter Hall (1966)
