EARLY HISTORY OF THE DANIEL and DANIELS FAMILIES

Gar

DANYELL OF ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND.

The first Danyell of Rydeleggh was Robert Danyell, to whom letters of protection were granted 21, June 1385 on his departure for Scotland on the King's Service in the retinue of John Devereaux. He was commissioned with Richard de Cholmondlegh to arrest all disturbers of the peace of the Hundred of Nantwich.

In 1389, Robert Danyell of Rydeleggh with Robert Danyell of Lyme entered into a recognizance for the release of John Cole.

Robert Danyell, married Alice de Rydeleggh about 1395 by whom he had a son:—

Robert Danyell, Lord of Ridly, heir of his mother Alice, II of Henry V.

Robert Danyell and Alice his wife occur again in 1402.

The name Robert Danyell subsequently occurs in Recognizance Rolls down to II of Henry V., whom the "Escheator is commissioned to enquire of the value of the lands of Robert Daniell, a Crown debtor."

In Harlean Mss. 2151, (Page 108,) are church notes taken at Daresbury, Cheshire, England, in 1572, which mention among other Coats of Arms then existing here in painted glass, the Arms of Hallum, Daniel, Dutton, Warburton, Starkey, Norris and Astons; and grave-stones in the Churchyard marked with crosses the heads of which were florees, and which had swords at the sides of them, indicating, most probably, the sepulchres of Crusaders.

SAMUEL DANIEL, POET LAUREATE.

At Appleby Castle, Cumberland, Samuel Daniel was "tutor to the high-spirited Lady Anne Clifford, daughter of George Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, the celebrated adventurer, to whose beauty and accomplishments he pays many flattering compliments in his works.

In this castle there is a portrait of Daniel, painted by order of Lady Anne Clifford, as part of the family group of Cliffords. She is represented, at the age of fifteen "standing in her study, dressed in white, embroidered with flowers, her head adorned with great pearls; one hand is on a music book; her flute lies by her side."

Samuel Daniel was the son of a music-master, born near Taunton, in Somersetshire, 1561. His poetical works are republished in Volume 4 of the "Works of the British Poets."

A poetical sketch of this Poet Laureate written by Fitz Geoffrey, is as follows:—

If Spencer merits Roman Virgil's name,
Daniel at least comes in for Ovid's fame.

If Spencer rather claims Appollo's wit,
Virgil's illustrious name will Daniel fit.

No higher than Apollo can we go
But, if a loftier title you can show,

That greater name let Spencer's Muse command,
And Daniel be the Phœbus of our land;

For, in my judgment, of the God of verse
In English would heroic deeds rehearse,

No language so expressive he would choose
As that of English Daniel's lofty Muse.

He succeeded Spencer as Poet Laureate to Queen Elizabeth, and was also a great favorite of the Court of James I.

As such, he was a Troubadour of the 16th and 17th centuries. He died October 1619.

ARNAUT DANIELS, TROUBADOUR

There is a painting in the "Museum de Vatican," Rome, of Arnaut or Arnold Daniels, of Normandy, as a Troubadour.

The Troubadours, as poet-warriors, were conspicuous during the Crusades. They "belonged to a race, language and literature which, at one time, seemed on the point of obtaining intellectual supremacy in Christendom." Their art was called the Gay-Saber. Richard Cour-de-Lion collected some of the most eminent Troubadours at his Court.

The following is a poetic relic of that romantic age:—
(Translation.)

No nymph my heart can wound,
If favour she divide
And smile all around,
Unwilling to decide;
I'd rather hatred bear
Than love with others share.

DANIELS OF MASSACHUSETTS

A History of Oxford, Mass., by George F. Daniels, published in 1892, contains the following extract:—

"Daniels, Daniell Joseph, supposed to have been the son of Robert Daniels of Watertown, was of Medfield, Mass., in 1660; settled on West Side of Charles River, now Millis. His house was burned by Indians 1676; married Mary Fairbanks; had, with others, Joseph Daniels, born 1666. He and Joseph Jr., were among the incorporators of Medway in 1713. Joseph Jr., had:—

David Daniels, born 21 of February 1699; married Magdalen Partridge; had with others, Seth, born Oct. 1737, who married Unity Thurston, and had, with others, Joseph, born Oct., 14, 1777 who married September 4, 1793 Susan Fisher and had with, 12 other children:

Seth, born Sept., 14, 1794, who settled in Oxford 1816.

The History of Medway, Mass., contains the early history of the Daniels Family, in Medway. It was published by the Town 1885; edited by Rev. E. O. Jame-

The author begins his Genealogy of the Daniels Family by writing:—

Daniels, in England, and in the early history of this country, was spelled Daniell. In the Encyclopedia of Heraldry it occurs thirty-two times, and is spelled twenty-six times Daniell, five times Daniel, and but one Daniels.

The persons earliest in America of this name were Robert Daniells or Daniel of Watertown, Mass., in 1636 William Daniell of Dorchester 1648 and Joseph Daniell of Medfield in 1649. Their descendants, down to a comparatively recent date, and in some lines to the present time, as appears by their autographs, have spelled the name Daniell. But the Medway branch of the family for some years, have generally spelled the name Daniels, although the late Deacon Paul Daniell used the ancient spelling to his death which occurred in 1873.

Robert Daniel or Daniels, the great ancestor of those of the Daniels name in Medway, came from Cheshire, England prior to 1636, and settled at Watertown, Mass. He was grantee of five lots, and purchased the "homestead" of Nicholas Jacobs, consisting of thirteen acres of land situated not far from the present site of the United States Arsenal.

He was admitted Freeman 14 March, 1639 in Watertown, Mass. His wife upon being married was Mrs. Elizabeth—Daniel, who died 2 Oct., 1643. In 1651 Mr. Daniels removed to Cambridge, Mass., when he married 2 May, 1654, Riana Andrews, second wife. Mr. Daniels died 6 July, 1655.

Bond's History of Watertown, Mass., says:—
Robert Daniels died 6 July, 1655, upwards of 60 years of age. After 1651, he removed from Watertown to Cambridge where he died.

Robert Daniels, his son, sold lands in Watertown and his will is dated 1661-2. It is also probable that Sam'l Daniels of Watertown was his son. He was a planter and sold 127 acres of land to Nathaniel Coolidge April 2, 1667.

The Chetham Society Publications, Volume 97, (Page 95,) notices the Daniel or Daniels Family and Robert Daniel as follows:—

Peter Daniel by wife—left issue:—
1. Peter Daniell, Captain of the Foot in the Army of Charles I. 1643.

2. Henry,
3. Richard,
4. Robert,
5. Thomas,

6. John,

7. William Daniell of Wigan, County Lancaster, aged 40, 8 April 1665.

8. Thomas Daniell, a Lieutenant in the Army, killed at Brumford 1643.

William Daniel (No. 7.) was Colonel of a Regiment in Scotland upon the restoration of King Charles II.: Governor of the Garrison and Citadel of Ayre in Scotland, and afterwards, by speciale command of his said Majesty, carried his regiment into Portugall; where he was instrumental in obtaining the victory in the plain of Evora, against Don John of Austria, Spanish General, 1663.

Robert Daniel, above named, could have been in point of time the Robert Daniel or Daniels who came to Watertown, Massachusetts.

ISAAC DANIELS of BOSTON.

William Daniels died in Boston, leaving a will dated 1678, in which he names, his son John Daniels, who was his father's executor. The latter died September 1765, leaving a son

Isaac Daniels who was, at that time about fourteen years old—and therefore born 1751. The Probate Court appointed John Crehore of Milton, Massachusetts, guardian of the person and estate of said Isaac Daniels, a "minor under 14 years of age, son of John Daniels of Milton, husbandman".
