PLUMBAGO, GRAPHITE and BLACKLEAD either in the Raw or Ground state.

If, after years of research, you have succeeded in producing a Standard article that you desire shall be kept at the forefront of your Trade, you will be wise to remember it will be Quality that will keep it there—your good name will be but a secondary consideration.

To ensure this, your raw materials must be uniform, and it behoves you to deal with Firms who specialize in the commodities you require.

In these times, you cannot afford to experiment with Indifferent materials, thereby jeopardising the position you have fought so hard to secure in the Markets of the World.

We deal in three allied commodities Only,

PLUMBAGO, GRAPHITE and BLACKLEAD

and we have made a Study of them.

This experience is at your disposal.

If you, therefore, require a material upon which you can always rely and which will always be uniform in every detail,

WE HAVE IT,

and moreover, we can supply at the

procurable in the Trade.

Counter samples and prices upon application.

—Direct Importers— and Wholesale Suppliers of All kinds of either in the Raw or Ground state.

Large quantities of Standard qualities always in stock, distributed throughout the United Kingdom.

UNIFORM DELIVERIES ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED

If you require a material upon which you can always rely and which will always be uniform in every detail,

WE HAVE IT,

and moreover, we can supply at the

procurable in the Trade.

Send us your enquiries and, let us prove we can satisfy you.

SOUTH WALES

SOUTH WALES consists of substantially the larger half of the Principality, and comprises six counties, viz.:—Brecon, Cardigan, Carmarthen, Glamorgan, Pembroke and Radnor; which have the following areas and population:—

	Acres. Administra- tive Co.	Population		Males.		Females.
		1911.
Brecon ...	469,281 ...	59,287 ...	30,669 ...	28,921
Cardigan ...	443,189 ...	59,879 ...	26,918 ...	32,961
Carmarthen..	588,472 ...	100,406 ...	80,045 ...	80,361
Glamorgan ...	518,865 ...	1,120,910 ...	582,180 ...	538,730
Pembroke ...	393,003 ...	89,960 ...	43,462 ...	46,498
Radnor ...	301,165 ...	22,590 ...	11,340 ...	11,250

Only two of these counties are inland, Radnor and Brecon, or Brecknock; all the others reach the sea, and present a coast line, fairly regular on the north-west, but very irregular on the west and south, owing to the existence of several large bays and many indentations. Cardiganshire, the north-western county, preserves an almost unbroken sea-front, from the estuary of the Dovey to that of the Teifi, the only interruption being at New Quay, where there is a small bay and a bold headland. Pembrokeshire, which follows, is a broad peninsula, with several small bays on the north, and the promontory called Strumble Head; on the east is the broad expanse of St. Bride's Bay, closely shut in on the north and south, St. David's Head and Ramsey Island forming the point of the northern horn, and the islands of Skomer and Skokholm lying at the opposite extremity: further south are St. Ann's Head, Milford Haven, Freshwater Bay and St. Gowan's Head, and eastwards, Caldy Island, which is nearly opposite Tenby. The Carmarthenshire coast is comparatively unimportant, but gives its name to a long open bay, including the estuaries of the Taf and Towy, and the Llŵchwr or Barry river inlet on the east. Glamorganshire includes the Gower peninsula, which is about 15 miles long by 8 in extreme breadth, and is bounded on the north by the Barry inlet; on the east is Rhosily Bay, with Worms Head; on the south, Port Eynon Bay, Oxwich Bay, lying between Oxwich point, and Pell-du Head; and to the east, Swansea Bay, on which that town stands, and which is sheltered on the south by the Oystermouth or Mumbles promontory. The rest of this coast stretches out with a boldly convex outline into the Bristol Channel, and includes Cardiff, where is the outlet of the river Taff.

The physical features of South Wales are much varied, and present strong contrasts, the hilly, and in parts mountainous regions being largely moorland, but often thickly wooded, and alternating with deep and secluded gorges, expanding into open valleys, traversed by foaming and rushing torrents, which at length become wide rivers, flowing placidly through beautiful and diversified scenery of hill, wood and valley, to the sea. The mountains are of considerable, though not overpowering height, and arrange themselves in several groups, or divisions: one great range begins at St. David's Head, and is continued in a north-easterly direction through Cardiganshire into Radnor, it includes the Preeceley mountains (1,754 feet) and peaks south of Rhayader, rising to 2,120 feet. From Mid Wales to the north-east runs another range, including the heights of Cilycwm Forest and Cefn Llwydlo, near Llan-dowry, and east of it the Mynydd Bwlch y Groes, and Mynydd Epynt, continued past Builth by the Aberedw Hills, to Radnor Forest (2,163 ft.). In Carmarthen and Brecknock shires are the Black Mountains, or Great Forest, extending eastwards from Llandilo Fawr, with a maximum height of 2,596 ft. and continued by the Brecon Beacons, of which the loftiest peak is Pen-y-Fan (2,910 ft.). In the northern part of Glamorganshire, enclosing the Vale of Neath on the south, is another range, stretching from Neath to beyond Aberdare, the highest peak being Craig-y-Llyn (1,971 ft.) nearly opposite Glyn-Neath. But the scenery of South Wales derives its greatest strength and beauty from the exquisite picturesqueness of its streams and rivers; and though, in many cases, the smaller rivers and valleys have been defiled and their attractions destroyed by the nature of the industries pursued beside and around them, the larger ones, for the most part, still remain fair and unpolluted, and present to the visitor an ever varying succession of delightful prospects. On the western side, the chief rivers are the Rhedol and Ystwyth, both of which debouch at Aberystwyth; the Ayron, falling into the sea at Aberayron, and the Teifi, whose outlet is at Cardigan: flowing south into wide adjacent estuaries below Carmarthen, there are the Taf and Towy; the Neath discharges itself at Neath; the Taff and Rumney at Cardiff, and the Sirhowy and Usk at Newport. The eastern side is traversed, somewhat circuitously, by the famous Wye, which, between Llangurig and Hay, displays some of its finest scenery, unmarred by the later ebb of tidal water.

The Welsh coal fields extend southwards from some isolated districts near Shrewsbury, and occupy, generally, the whole of South Wales, but narrowing towards the west, their greatest breadth, between Merthyr and Cardiff, being rather over 20 miles; and there are other coal districts stretching across Pembrokeshire. The presence of these great coal fields maintains not only a very widely spread mining industry, but also important and extensive iron works, and others devoted to the smelting of copper and tin. Lead mines are worked in Carmarthen and Cardigan shires, and silver is also found in small quantities. To facilitate the traffic created by these various industries, a large number of railways have been constructed, especially in Glamorganshire, where they form a perfect network of inter-communicating lines, mostly leading in the direction of Cardiff and Newport.

The principal lines of railway are the Great Western, whose system extends from Hereford, and from Bristol (viâ Severn Tunnel), throughout the sea-bonnd counties as far as Cardigan, Fishguard and Haverfordwest. From Carmarthen on the main line is a branch to Aberystwyth.

The London and North Western runs south from Shrewsbury through Builth and Llanwrtyd Wells to Llan-dowry and Llandilo, and also has some local sections west of Merthyr, and in Pembrokeshire.

The Midland enters Brecknockshire through Hay and Brecon to Swansea.

The Mid Wales line, a continuation of the Cambrian system, runs from Llanidloes to Three Cocks Junction on the Midland railway.

The Taff Vale railway is confined to Glamorganshire, and has its chief terminus at Cardiff, but includes branches from Pontypool to Merthyr, Aberdare and Treherbert. There are also several canals.

The Agriculture, like the climate, is necessarily much affected by local physical conditions, and but little of the soil, comparatively speaking, is under cultivation; much of the land on the banks of the greater rivers is meadow and pasture, and it is along the valleys of these rivers that the soil is most fertile, and the crops accordingly most abundant. At the same time, the hills and mountain sides, though unproductive, are largely used as grazing land for cattle, ponies, and flocks of diminutive sheep, which are allowed to roam about at will, and are only collected for the winter or periodically. Flannel of excellent quality is manufactured in Wales generally, and in many cases this industry is carried on by cottagers in their homes. The commerce of South Wales may be most comprehensively understood by a reference to the accounts given under its principal centres, viz.: Cardiff, Swansea, Port Talbot and Barry.

In the 6th century of South Britain, inhabited, in turn, by pre-Aryan and Celtic tribes, until they were overpowered by the Romans, who introduced the elements of civilization and a settled form of government, but on their retirement in A.D. 410, the tribal system was resumed, and the country reduced to a state of anarchy. It was then invaded by the Irish Danes and the Saxons of Wessex and Mercia, and Offa, in 779, built the famous Dyke from the Dee to the Wye to mark off his dominions, and protect them against Welsh incursions. In the meanwhile the country was divided into a number of petty states, each jealous of the other, and constantly engaged in paltry and purposeless feuds and sanguinary conflicts, until at length, Rhodri Mawr (Roderick the Great), King of Gwynedd (A.D. 843), having, by some means, largely added to his original patrimony, apparently became ruler over nearly the whole of Wales. He died in A.D. 877 and left three sons, to whom he is said to have allotted Gwynedd or North Wales, Powys-land, and South Wales or Dynevor respectively. Howel Dha, his grandson, and second Prince of South Wales, was a famous chieftain, and attempted, but failed, to create a spirit of national unity, and after submitting himself with other Welsh Princes to Alfred the Great, died in A.D. 948, and the Saxon power being unable to maintain order, the country again fell into confusion.

In 1015 Llewelyn ap Sitsylt or Cecil, fifth Prince of South Wales, acquired a leading position, and his son, Gryffydd, who became King of Gwynedd in 1039, in 1044 was master of all Wales, but two years later did fealty to England, and was eventually slain by his own subjects in 1064. Wales, which had during the rule of this Prince been overrun in 1063-4 by Harold and Tostig, was invaded in 1081 by William the Conqueror, and the subjection of South Wales was ensured in 1090 by the defeat and death of Rhys ap Tewdwr Mawr, 11th Prince of this line; several other Princes succeeded in turn to the sovereignty, the last, according to Dr. Heylin, being Meredydd ap Owain, 17th in order, who died in 1235, and the barons of South Wales finally submitted themselves to Edw. I. in 1277. The territories conquered by William I. and his barons and knights, became known as the "Lordship Marches," and had all the rights of Palatine Eardoms: the Lords Marchers, one hundred and forty-two in number, held regal power within the limits of their respective districts, owing allegiance only to the King, to whom also internal disputes had to be referred; nevertheless, the King's writ was inoperative on the Marches, and all offences were said to be against the peace, not of the King but of the Lord. Yet, although their power individually was great, they were collectively weak, being as much divided as the Welsh chieftains themselves. The latter, who in Mid and North Wales still maintained a bold front, and displayed much activity, constantly opposed the invaders, and up to the time of his death in 1240, Llewelyn ap Iorwerth, Prince of Gwynedd, made unceasing attacks upon the Lords Marchers and even succeeded in wresting from them some part of their conquered territory. By the Act 28 Edw. I. c. 2 (1354) these regal Lords were made dependents of the Crown, and Hen. VIII. by an Act in the 27th year of his reign (1536), incorporated Wales with England, and thus restrained their powers, and they are said to have been finally suppressed by the Act 1 Wm. and Mary, c. 27 (1689), but this is not, even up to the present day, fully acknowledged, there being still several gentlemen of estate who claim for themselves the title of "Lord Marcher."

The political history of Wales may be said to date from the reign of Hen. VIII. who made the whole country "shire-ground," i.e. divided it into counties, and by the above and subsequent Acts gave it a form of local government and parliamentary representation, but no parliamentary returns for Wales now appear to exist until the Parliament of 33 Hen. VIII. (1541-2), in which all the counties of South Wales (except Cardigan) and most of the principal boroughs are represented; for the next parliament, 37 Hen. VIII. (1545), no returns have been found; but in those of 1 Edw. VI. (1547) the county and borough of Cardigan both appear, Brecon and Radnor being omitted, and there is no full parliamentary return of all the 12 Welsh counties and boroughs until 7 Edw. VI. (1552-3). South Wales now returns 18 members, of whom 11 represent Counties, 3 Parliamentary districts, and 4 the towns of Swansea, Cardiff and Merthyr.

Municipal institutions had their rise during the Norman and later periods, and over 30 towns in South Wales either are, or have been, municipal boroughs; of these, 10 claim prescriptive rights. Some of the earliest charters of incorporation were granted by the territorial lords, and the later royal charters principally by the Plantagenet and Tudor monarchs, but in one or two cases of existing corporations, their existence is little more than nominal, and the Mayor, in one instance at least, is appointed by the lord of the manor; independently of this gentleman, there now appear to be in South Wales 16 actual Municipal Corporations.

The Welsh system of Judicature originated in the establishment by Edward IV. in 1479 of the "Court of the President and Council of Wales." This court held its sittings at Ludlow, and under its auspices a special Court of Justice, known as "The King's Great Sessions in Wales," was held twice a year, and this arrangement was continued until, in 1822, the Common Law Commissioners, as the result of an enquiry, reported that its maintenance was not desirable, and by an Act of Parliament passed in 1830, the Special Great Sessions were abolished, and new Circuits created, which are now served by the ordinary judges of the High Court.

The Ancient Courts of Probate and Depositories of Wills have of late years been consolidated and re-settled, and as regards South Wales, are now located as follows:—the Consistorial Episcopal Court of Carmarthen and that of the Archdeacons of Cardigan and St. David's are both at Carmarthen; in the former, which retains many testaments from other parts of the diocese, the wills date from 1600; in the latter, only from 1746; the Consistory Court of the Archdeaconry of Brecon is at Hereford, and besides the counties of Brecon and Radnor, it includes the parishes of Kerry and Mochtre in Montgomery, Cwmyoy and Oldcastle in Monmouth, and 8 parishes in Herefordshire, and its wills date from 1625; the Consistorial Court of Llandaff remains there, and has wills from 1590; the Palmers' Guild at Ludlow, once the chief seat of the Welsh Judiciary, also had testamentary jurisdiction, and wills proved under this authority from 1304 to 1499, are now in the custody of the Town Clerk.

Christianity is said to have been introduced into Wales in the 2nd century, and according to Bede and the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, through Llearwg, Lucius or Lud, a King of the Britons, who is affirmed to have sent an embassy to Eleutherus, bishop of Rome (177-92), desiring to be instructed in the Christian faith: for this purpose, "two most religious doctors," by name Dwyvân and Fagan, were sent to Britain, and having baptized Lucius and his people, preached to them the Gospel of Christ. Subsequently an Archbishopric was founded at Caerleon-Usk, for the government of the Church in Wales, and transferred, c. 519, to St. David's, although that see and monastery was probably not fully established till A.D. 600; it remained archiepiscopal or quasi-archiepiscopal until 1115, since which date the occupants of this see have held the status only of bishops. It now includes the entire counties of Cardigan, Carmarthen and Pembroke, Brecon, except the parishes of Beaufort and Hirwain, and, saving three entire and parts of three parishes, in Radnor, besides the deaneries of East and West Gower in Glamorgan, and it contains 418 benefices.

The first church at Llandaff is said to have been founded by the King Lucius already mentioned, and the earliest known bishop is St. Dubricius, who was consecrated by St. Germain, died A.D. 612. This see comprises the entire county of Monmouth, Glamorgan, except the deaneries of East and West Gower, parts of two parishes in Brecknock and part of one parish in Hereford, and it contains 275 benefices. All the Welsh sees were made subject to Canterbury by a decree of Innocent III. in 1203.

The Ecclesiastical architecture of South Wales, generally considered, is not particularly interesting, although churches are numerous, but in some cases they are more noticeable on account of the military character of their towers, evidently built for purposes of defence. The grandest examples are, of course, the magnificent Cathedral of St. David's, the elegant and admirably restored Cathedral of Llandaff, and the great cruciform priory Church at Brecon, and there are others which present features of special interest, among which may be named the priory Churches of Llanbadarn Fawr, Llanddew, Haverfordwest, Llantwit, Gurfreston and Carmarthen. During the last half of the 19th century much was done in the restoration or building of churches in Wales.

The formal separation from the Church took place in 1811, and the sects now chiefly represented are the Calvinistic, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, Baptists, and Congregationalists.

Education in Wales has certainly made great strides, and is now pursued with unmistakable enthusiasm by all classes. What may be called "popular education" began with the Rev. Griffith Jones, vicar of Llanddowor, in Carmarthenshire, who, in 1730, established a system of "circulating schools," which, however, had only a local character. On the passing of the "Elementary Education Act, 1870" (33 and 34 Vict. c. 75), School Boards were formed throughout England and Wales. Welsh education received a further impetus by the operation of the "Welsh Intermediate Education Act, 1889" (52 and 53 Vict. c. 40), the purpose of which is "to make further provision for intermediate and technical education."

The University of Wales is a federal University of the three University Colleges of Aberystwyth, Bangor and Cardiff. Under its charter of 1893 and a supplementary charter of 1906 it has power to grant degrees in the faculty of arts, science, law, music, medicine and theology.

There is also the important Theological College of St. David's at Lampeter, also empowered to grant degrees.

The antiquities of South Wales, both pre-historic and mediæval, are numerous, varied, and of the highest interest. Cromlechs and meini-hirion or longstones are common, and the latter sometimes bear Ogham or other inscriptions; Cromlechs are more prevalent in Pembrokeshire than elsewhere, but are often imperfect, their slabs having frequently been used for fencing and kindred purposes: Camps are met with in almost every locality, and in some parts, the cliffs, immediately above the sea, show traces of having been strongly fortified, and this is especially the case on and about St. David's Head: Offa's Dyke is yet perfect in many places, and some British and Roman roads are still in evidence; there are also many wells or springs, some of which possess medicinal or curative properties, while others, believed to have magical powers, are tenaciously regarded with superstitious veneration. The mediæval antiquities include, besides a number of monastic churches still in use, the more or less extensive ruins of various abbeys and priories, the chief of which are Neath and Ewenny in Glamorgan, Cwmhir in Radnorshire, Talley or Tallac in Carmarthenshire, Strata Florida in Cardiganshire and Haverfordwest and Monkton in Pembrokeshire: there are also a few ruined chapels, such as St. Govan's near Pembroke, and St. Justinian's and St. Nun's chapels near St. David's, and the chapel of St. Mary's College, also at St. David's. The ruined Castles of South Wales are mostly of a military character, but in some cases, such as Manorbier and Llawhaden, were residential, rather than defensive; those most worthy of note are Caerphilly, Haverfordwest, Kidwelly, Langharne, Llanstephan and Pembroke.

Among the seaside resorts, Tenby holds the first place, and may be described as a miniature Scarborough, possessing both north and south sands; the town, still encompassed by its ancient walls, is a pleasant one, and has an attractive neighbourhood. Other popular watering places are Saundersfoot, Pendine, Manorbier and Penally, all on Carmarthen bay; Oystermouth or Mumbles on Swansea bay; Dale, near Milford Haven; Solva, on St. Bride's bay; St. David's; and Fishguard, Newport and Aberaeron, on Cardigan bay. The chief inland resorts are those which attract visitors on account of the medicinal qualities of their wells, or springs, and comprise, Llandrindod in Radnorshire; and Builth, Llangammarch and Llanwrtyd in Breconshire. The waters of Llandrindod and Builth are similar, and include both saline, chalybeate and sulphur springs; those of Llanwrtyd are, in parts, similar, while at Llangammarch is a spring highly charged with chloride of barium. To these places may be added Pont-Neath-Vaughan near Glyn-Neath, which is largely visited on account of the numerous fine cascades created by the rivers Perdyn, Little Neath, Mellte and Hepste in their tumultuous descent through the rocky and picturesque gorges with which this locality abounds; and there are other splendid waterfalls near Erwood and Resolven, and at Ystradgynlais.

COUNTY COUNCILS OF SOUTH WALES

BRECON, CARDIGAN, CARMARTHEN, GLAMORGAN, PEMBROKE AND RADNOR

Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vic. c. 41.

Under the above Act each of the counties above mentioned (except the county boroughs of Cardiff, Merthyr Tydfil and Swansea) are separate and distinct administrative counties (sec. 451b) governed by a County Council, consisting of aldermen and councillors.

The chairman of each council, by virtue of his office, is justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police for each county is under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions and the County Council, appointed as therein mentioned (sec. 9).

The coroners for each county are elected by the County Council, and the clerk of the peace appointed by each joint committee, and may be removed by them (sec. 83-2).

The clerk of the peace for each county is clerk of the County Council (sec. 83-1).

The administrative business of each county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the justices) is transacted by the County Council.

BRECONSHIRE

The Council meets at the County Hall, Brecon, in the months of January, April, July and October, on the last Friday in each month at 11.30 a.m.

GEOLOGY OF SOUTH WALES

(Revised to 1919.)

NATURAL HISTORY AND SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES.

South Wales Institute of Engineers, Park place, Cardiff: Proceedings.

Cardiff Naturalists' Society: Report and Transactions.
Royal Institution of South Wales; Swansea.

MUSEUMS.—Cardiff Free Library and Welsh Museum of Natural History, Arts, and Antiquities. Museum of the Royal Institution of South Wales, Swansea. University College of Wales Museum, Aberystwith. Merthyr Tydfil (small collection in Free Library).

PUBLICATIONS OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Coloured Maps on the scale of one inch to a mile. Old Series.—Brecknockshire, sheets 36, 41, 42, 56 n.w.; 56 s.w.; 57 n.e.; 57 s.e.; Carmarthenshire, sheets 37, 38, 40, 41, 42 n.w.; 42 s.w.; 56 s.w.; 57 s.w.; 57 s.e.; Cardiganshire, sheets 40, 41, 56 n.w.; 57, 58, 59 s.e.; 60 s.w.; Glamorganshire, sheets 20, 36, 37, 41, 42 s.e.; 42 s.w.; Pembrokeshire, sheets 38, 39, 40, 41, 58; Radnorshire, sheets 42 n.w.; 42 n.e.; 56, 60 s.w.; 60 s.e.

Maps.—New Series.—Sheet 229, Carmarthen; 230, Ammanford; 231, Merthyr Tydfil, Dowlais, Aberdare, &c.; 232, Abergavenny; 246, Worm's Head; 247, Swansea; 248, Pontypridd; 249, Newport; 261 and 262, Bridgend, Cowbridge, Aberthaw, and coast near Kenfig; 263, Cardiff, Penarth, Barry.

Each of the New Series Maps is published in two editions. In the first, or Solid Edition, only the stratified rocks are shown. In the second, or Drift Edition, the surface deposits of boulder-clay, gravel, sand, &c., are also indicated by colours.

These maps are further illustrated by the Horizontal Sections, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11; and by the Vertical Sections, Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 47, 50, 81, and 83.

The British Association met at Swansea in 1848, and again in 1880 (with [Sir] A. C. Ramsay as president in the latter year); and at Cardiff in 1891. In the bulky volumes which contain the Annual Reports for these three meetings there are several papers referring to the geology of South Wales, especially a paper by Prof. Rupert Jones upon the coal-field in the Report for 1891, p. 614.

Introduction to Geology.—For an account of the general principles of geology and of the special terms used, and to enable the reader to compare the strata of Wales with those of England, we may, perhaps, be permitted to refer to Harrison's Text Book of Geology, fifth edition, 1903, published by Blackie and Son.

THE rocks which form South Wales are in the main a prolongation of the same beds which constitute the northern division of Cambria; one great difference is due to the fact that volcanic action was not nearly so rife in this southern area during the deposition of the Ordovician or Lower Silurian strata; as a consequence of this, the rocks of South Wales are of a more uniform degree of hardness, so that the scenery is less grand and striking.

On the other hand, owing to the great development of the Upper Carboniferous rocks, the mineral wealth of South Wales far surpasses that of the more beautiful and tourist-attracting region further north.

The bottom rocks of Wales may be said to form part of the foundations of the British Isles. Although these old rocks only appear at the surface in the west (with some minor outcrops in the midlands), yet they undoubtedly extend eastwards, undulating deep down beneath newer rocks, right under London and the east and south of England. Lying thus at the bottom it is evident they must be the oldest or first-formed of the various layers or beds of rock which constitute our islands. Though geology does not profess to estimate in years the age of any system of rocks, yet it is certain that all the great leaders in that science would concur in affirming that, in all probability, the old rocks which we see forming the peninsula of St. David's were in part ejected from volcanoes as lava-flows and ashes, and in part deposited as mud and sand on a sea-bottom more than one hundred millions of years ago. Yet we know well that they were not the first rocks which formed a solid crust on the surface of our planet.

In studying South Wales, then, let us commence on the extreme west, where the oldest rocks crop out or come to the surface, and then describe the beds as they rest one upon another, layer upon layer. We shall then approach the south-east, where the newest stratified rocks of the region form the cliffs along the estuary of the Severn, near Cardiff. The maps and memoirs published by the Geological Survey will be found to be of the greatest assistance.

ARCHÆAN OR PRE-CAMBRIAN ROCKS.—During recent years our knowledge of the origin of rocks has been considerably extended, chiefly on account of the employment of methods of microscopic examination. Our views on some of the more ancient rocks especially have been in cases entirely changed since modern methods of research have been in use. Consequently the old Pre-Cambrian rocks of St. David's Head have been the subject of changing opinions. The chief literature will be found in the List of Papers at the commencement of this article, but we will base our account on one of the latest papers, that by Mr. J. F. N. Green, in 1908. The Pre-Cambrian rocks of the St. David's area consist of tufts and lavas of volcanic origin—to these the name Peibidian has been given. After these rocks had consolidated dykes of igneous rock were intruded into them, one of these intrusions being the granophyre, to which Dr. Henry Hicks gave the name Dimetian, thinking it was older in age than the Peibidian. The whole series of rocks has been greatly disturbed, but otherwise the different varieties compare closely with those of the Uriconian series found in Shropshire. They have been divided as follows, commencing with the first formed,—1, Penrhwi Series (red and green volcanic tufts); 2, Treginnis Series (trachite, andesite and rhyolite); 3, Caerbwly Series (fine-grained felspathic rocks, with a bed of conglomerate); 4, Ramsay Sound Series (schistose and slaty rocks, with tufts). The whole Peibidian series attains a thickness of over 5,000 feet.

CAMBRIAN SYSTEM.—Resting on the flanks of the old "Pre-Cambrian Island" formed by the altered volcanic rocks we have described above, we find conglomerates composed of rounded masses of quartz embedded in a purple matrix. These form the base of the whole Cambrian Formation; they are overlaid by green, purple and grey flaggy sandstones, 3,000 feet thick, with intercalated red shales, which contain some of the earliest undeniable traces of animal life yet known on the surface of the globe. Porth-Clais Harbour is the best place to find these fossils.

The lowest division of the Cambrian system is called the Caerfa Series, and consists of conglomerates, flaggy sandstones, and red shales, altogether attaining a thickness of more than 1,500 feet. Succeeding these are the Solva Series, which with the Menevian Series form the Middle Cambrian beds. The Solva beds, well developed at Solva Bay, are purple, red and grey sandstones, with a thickness of 2,000 feet. A thickness of 750 feet makes up the Menevian beds (so named from Menapia, the old Roman station at St. David's), which consist of black shales and flags. The Upper Cambrian is represented by the Lingula Flags, which are grey and bluish sandstones and slates, 2,000 feet in thickness. They are exposed in Whitesand Bay, Solva Harbour, near Caerfega, and in the north-west portion of Ramsey Island. At Brawley and Hayscastle, east of St. David's, there are Cambrian beds, which can be compared with the Caerfa and Solva series of St. David's. The record of Tremadoc Slates, belonging to a higher division of the Upper Cambrian, at Ramsey Island and Whitesand Bay, is probably incorrect, but dark shales and mudstones of this age occur near Carmarthen and Llanarthney.

ORDOVICIAN SYSTEM.—The rocks of this system are readily distinguished from those of the Cambrian by the nature of the fossils they enclose. The commonest of these are the graptolites, lowly forms of life now extinct. The variations in their forms differ in the various layers of rock; hence we are able to distinguish the various rock-beds by means of these fossils, although the beds themselves may look alike. We can recognise four divisions in the Ordovician rocks of South Wales: (1) (at the base) the Skiddavian Series; (2) the Llandeilian Series; (3) the Caradocian Series; (4) Ashgillian Series. They occur in three main tracts: (1) North of St. David's from Whitesand Bay and Ramsey Island to Cardigan and beyond; (2) from near St. Bride's Bay to New Quay Road; (3) from Haverfordwest through Carmarthen and Llandeilo to Llandovery. The Skiddavian series were previously called the Arenig Beds; they are black slates with numerous graptolites, and are exposed on the north side of Whitesand Bay and at Llanvira.

In Abereddy Bay we see black slates, flags and sandstones, with some bands of limestone, and also beds of indurated volcanic ash, the result of eruptions of submarine volcanoes during the deposition of the strata; a considerable, but uncertain thickness of the beds is shown, perhaps 3,000 feet. These Llandeilo Flags extend to Fishguard and the Preveley Hills (1,754 feet high); curving eastward, we trace them past St. Clare and Carmarthen to Llandeilo, Builth and Llandrindod. At Llandewi Felley, Lampeter Felley and Llandeilo there are good beds of limestone—the oldest in Wales—which are quarried for lime.

No sharp line of demarcation has been drawn between the Caradocian beds and the Llandeilian below. Nor in South Wales is there any rigid line between them and the overlying newer Lower Llandovery Rocks; together these occupy a wide area, including the whole of Cardiganshire, and extending thence into the surrounding counties, forming, in fact, the desolate, almost desert-like region of "Mid-Wales." The strata undulate so that their real thickness can scarcely be determined, but it must be considerable, perhaps above 4,000 feet; there is an absence of the lava flows and ash-beds which distinguish the Caradocian series in the Snowdon district, instead of which we find clay-slates, with grits and hard sandstones, and conglomerates or pudding stones in the upper part. In South Wales an important and characteristic series of shales—the Dicranograptus shales—are developed between them. The cliffs around Aberystwith show the beds to be wonderfully contorted, and to be dipping westwards towards the sea. Further east workable slates occur at Deril's Bridge, Corris, Tregaron, Strata Florida, Goginan, &c.; then the great mass of Plinlimmon (2,481 ft.) is formed of another group of grit-beds, with some quartz conglomerates. Good sections of the Caradocian shales and limestones occur at Haverfordwest and Narberth, and again near Llandovery.

At Gogolan, near Pumpsant, in Carmarthenshire, there are quartz veins in hard Caradoc grits, which were worked for gold in the time of the Romans; several gold ornaments, including a beautifully-wrought gold necklace, have been discovered here.

The Ordovician rocks of Mid-Wales are also rich in the ores of several bumber minerals; these were formerly largely worked, thus the returns for 1881 show:

Cardigan.—Copper ore, 286 tons, value £2,099; lead ore, 4,593 tons (containing 28,735 oz. of silver), value £4,365.85; zinc ore, 3,453 tons, value £9,806. But in 1903 only 49 tons of copper ore, of the value of £515; and 1,823 tons of lead ore, of the value of £12,593, were obtained. In 1912 the returns were nil, but the demand for metal during the war was so great that working was recommenced, and in 1916 there were obtained in Cardigan 1,163 tons of dressed lead ore, valued at £23,663, and 435 tons of zinc ore, valued at £4,684.

Carmarthen.—Lead ore (from Rhandir Abbot, near Llandovery), 687 tons (silver, 2,054 ozs.), value £8,216. But in 1912 the returns were nil, although the war demands brought the production of lead ore in 1916 up to 26 tons, valued at £520.

SILURIAN SYSTEM.—The strata of this division rest unconformably on the lower rocks. First we find the Upper Llandovery Beds (or May Hill Sandstone), grey and yellowish sandstones, 800 feet thick, seen in Marloes Bay (west of Milford Haven); a long, narrow strip crops out east of the town of Llandovery, and a similar outcrop is found 5 or 6 miles west of Builth.

The Tarannon Shales.—These are pale-coloured or purple unfossiliferous shales and slates, which rest on the May Hill Sandstone in the localities above named.

The names Llandovery and Tarannon belong to an older system of classification which was based on the characters of the rock-beds. Often, however, rock-beds vary in mineral character as they extend from one area to another. Hence local names may be given. For convenience of exact comparison of age, it is essential that a comprehensive term should be used. Hence we can refer the Llandovery and Tarannon beds to the lowest division of the Silurian rocks—the Valentian series.

The Woolhope Beds are well developed in Radnorshire; at Corton near Presteigne, at Nash Scar, and near Old Radnor, the Woolhope limestone is seen as a thick and massive, sometimes subcrystalline, rock. The intrusive igneous rocks which form the hills of Hanter, Worsel and Stanner have metamorphosed the limestone. The latter rock is largely quarried, for there is no other calcareous bed between this region and the coast-line of Cardigan.

Wentlock Beds.—These are thick beds of shale, traceable from south of Llandeilo, in a long narrow strip (1 to 3 miles wide), past Myddfai, Builth, and thence to Newtown: they dip to the south-east.

Ludlow Beds.—These are also shales, with a band of concretionary limestone (Aymeryst limestone), passing up into fine-grained sandstones. They form the surface of the eastern half of Radnorshire. From Llandeilo to Narberth no Upper Silurian strata are visible, the strata being here overlapped by the Old Red Sandstone.

The Woolhope, Wentlock and Ludlow beds in South Wales belong to the Middle Silurian or Silopian series.

THE OLD RED SANDSTONE FORMATION.—The passage from the Silurian beds into the rocks which lie above them is marked by a change in the colour of the rocks from grey to red. The strata we have now to describe consist of red, yellow and chocolate coloured sandstones, red marls, and irregular layers of sandy concretionary limestone called conestones, the total thickness being from 4,000 to perhaps 8,000 feet. All the beds are apparently conformable from the lowest to the highest, but the fossils indicate a lower and an upper portion, with a considerable lapse of time between. The "Old Red" forms the greater part of the counties of Hereford and Monmouth; it enters Brecknockshire from the east, forming all the surface from Crickhowell to Hay, Talgarth, Brecon, and Mynydd Epynt, rising in the Brecknock Beacons to a height of 2,862 feet. Passing out of Brecknock the outcrop or surface occupied by the Old Red narrows rapidly, and runs as a band 3 or 4 miles wide by Detwydd to the mouth of the Towy, and thence to Narberth. All along this line from east to west—viz., from Crickhowell to Narberth—the Old Red Sandstone dips to the south and disappears in that direction under Carboniferous rocks; passing underneath the entire coal-field of South Wales, it rises up again on the south, but here its continuity is broken by the sea. We find it running east and west of Milford Haven and forming the south half of Caldy Island; it passes across the centre of the peninsula of Gower (from Burry Holmes to Oxwich Bay), and then patches of it crop out from near Bridgend to Cardiff, whence it curves round northwards to join the main mass in Monmouthshire.

At Skrinkle Haven and West Angle on the coast of Pembroke, the passage upwards from the Old Red Sandstone to the Carboniferous Limestone is excellently displayed; the two formations are evidently quite conformable, shales, sandstones and limestones alternating in turn at the junction.

Scales, plates, and spines of ganoid fishes, with obscure plant-markings, are all the remains of life which the Welsh Old Red has yielded, and they favour the idea generally held that the beds are of fresh-water origin, having been deposited in great lakes, land-locked fiords, or estuaries. The red colour of the rocks is due to the warm climate of the period, when the atmosphere had an oxidising and desiccating influence.

CARBONIFEROUS SYSTEM.—The famous coal-field of South Wales occupies an area of 1,000 square miles in the south of the principality. It has a length from west to east of 85 miles, between St. Bride's Bay in Pembroke and Pontypool in Monmouth, and the extreme breadth from north to south is 20 miles.

Carboniferous Limestone.—This well-known blue or grey, tough, compact, semi-crystalline rock forms at the surface a rim round the entire coal-field, except at the extreme western end in Pembroke, where both Limestone and Millstone Grit are absent (or have been faulted out), and where consequently the Coal-measures rest directly upon Silurian and older rocks. Below the surface the limestone underlies the whole coal-field; all the colliery pits would if continued downwards at last enter it. It is finely seen in the bold coast cliffs near Stackpole, where it is much contorted. The thickness of the Carboniferous Limestone varies from 500 to 1,000 feet. Four outliers mark the former extension of these rocks to the north of the coal-basin; the principal outlier is Pen Cerrig Calch, north of Crickhowell, a grand isolated hill capped with Millstone Grit.

Some beds in the limestone are crowded with the remains of crinoids (sea lilies), others have the structure of oolites, and some are dolomites. The last have an economic aspect which will be referred to in a later paragraph. Until recent years the Carboniferous Limestone used to be subdivided according to the nature of the various rock-beds, but as these are found to vary in different parts of the country, it was desirable to establish a system of "zones," based on the fossils found in the limestone. These can be conveniently referred to by symbols, and enable comparison readily to be made between various horizons in different parts of the country. Thus, there is a general similarity in the Carboniferous Limestone in the area with which we are dealing, and hence it has been called the "South Wales Province," a term comparable with, say, the "Mid-Pennine Province." The typical order of beds in South Wales with their modern classification is as follows: At the base the Lower Limestone Shales, called the Cleisostora zone, or "K" beds, after a fossil coral that is found at that horizon. The Main Limestone follows, and the lowest zone is named after another coral—the Zaphrentis zone, or "Z" beds. Then, in upward succession, follow the zones of Caninia (C), Seminula (S), and Dibunophyllum (D). Each of these zones is characterised by an assemblage of fossils, and is named after a dominant species. The dolomites, already referred to, occur in the upper part of a "C" zone, and in the lower part of "S." The whole of the Carboniferous Limestone here has been called the "Aronian," from its typical development in the Avon Gorge.

The Millstone Grit is a hard, coarse sandstone, the uppermost bed of which is known as the "Farewell Rock," a term used by miners because there is no chance of getting workable seams of coal when that bed is reached. As this Millstone Grit rests upon the Carboniferous Limestone, it forms, in the same way, a rim or edge round the coal-field.

It is best seen on the north crop from Kidwelly, eastwards by Cross Inn, to Penderyn; here it forms a table-land in which rivers rise and run southwards to the sea, cutting deep north and south valleys across the coal-fields. After sweeping round Bloreage and passing east of Pontypool, the Millstone Grit is seen only at intervals on the south crop, as south of Caerphilly and north of Bridgend. Its thickness it varies from 250 to more than 1,000 feet, being poorly developed at the eastern end of the coal field but expanding westward.

Coal Measures.—These include beds of shale, sandstone, ironstone, and coal, of a thickness exceeding 8,400 feet. Three divisions in the series are recognised, although there is a continuous succession throughout. After the Lower Coal Measures were deposited a "Pennant phase" started. This resulted in the laying down of sandy and gritty rocks (Pennant Grits), commencing first on the western part of the field and progressing gradually to the east. Consequently these grits occupy a higher position in the coal-measures on the eastern end than they do on the west. The Lower Coal Measures are rich in coal, there being 34 seams, of which 8 are more than 2 feet in thickness. Bands of ironstone also occur. No workable coals occur in the Pennant Grit of the eastern end of the coalfield, but they develop to a workable extent west of the Paff. The Tillery or Red Ash Seam marks their base. The Upper Coal Measures consist of shales and sandstones, with the Mynyddislwyn seam (the most noted in South Wales) at the base. The famous coal-seam is now nearly worked out. The change in the character of the coal-seams in the South Wales field is well known. They are chiefly bituminous in the east, but become anthracitic as they extend westwards. In Pembrokeshire all the coal is anthracitic. In area the whole of the coal-field is about 1,000 square miles. The number of coal-seams varies from place to place. In Pembrokeshire there are 10 seams and 23 feet of coal; Carmarthen 18 to 34 (47 to 88 feet); Glamorgan 24 to 48 (66 to 124 feet); and Monmouth 11 to 21 (38 to 47 feet) (Prof. Kendall). The total quantity estimated as remaining available in 1905 was 26,470 million tons. The output in 1917 was 3½ million tons.

All the great iron-works, as Risca, Pontypool, Blaenavon, Ebbw Vale, Merthyr Tydvil and Aberdare, stand upon the Lower Coal-measures, situated most favourably with the coal and iron-ore around and beneath them, and the Mountain Limestone within a very short distance. Of late years, however, most of the iron-ore used in the Welsh blast-furnaces has been imported from other districts.

THE EARTH MOVEMENTS TO WHICH THE COAL-FIELD OF SOUTH WALES OWES ITS FORM AND ORIGIN.—After the deposition of the great series of limestones, grits and shales with coal-seams, which constitute the Carboniferous system in South Wales, the whole of these rocks (together with the older strata which lie beneath them) received a great—though very slow and steady—push from the south, by which the entire region was elevated, and the beds of rock thrown into a broad synclinal or trough-like structure extending from east to west. To this movement the name of Armorican has been given, from the marked effects it has produced in Brittany. It also originated the great syncline of Devon and uplifted the Mendip Hills. At a later date a similar pressure from the east ridged up the rocks along a north and south line, of which the Usk inlier of Silurian rocks gives evidence, and so terminated the coal-field on the east. On the west the Coal Measures run out to sea in St. Bride's Bay, so that we cannot tell whether there is a partial uplift in that direction. The great faults which run across the district from north-north-west to south-south-east are due to a third movement (apparently of depression), which, as it is parallel to the axis of Charnwood Forest in Leicestershire, is spoken of as "Charnian." Lastly, we see on the north and north-west side of the South Wales Coal-field evidences in the way the strata are crushed and forced southwards of a fourth great force acting from the north and north-west, which has been named "Caledonian," from the effects which it has also produced in the north-west of Scotland. To the combined action of these four great earth-movements the coal-field of South Wales owes its present form and structure.

THE TRIAS.—There is very little of this formation in South Wales. Patches of Dolomitic Conglomerate lie west of Cardiff, near Newton Nottage, Coychurch, St. Fagans and Llandaff; these are overlaid by Keuper Red Marls, which are also seen at the base of the cliffs near Penarth. Everywhere the Triassic strata rest unconformably upon the edges of the older rocks beneath them.

THE RHETIC FORMATION.—The cliffs beneath Penarth and Lavernock expose the finest British section of the grey marls, black shales and whitish limestones, which constitute the Rhetic beds. At the base, at Penarth Head, are the strikingly-coloured red marls of the Trias; then come the grey and "tea-green" marls, here 28 feet thick, surmounted by black shales, 24 feet thick, which contain the famous bone-bed, a hard sandy layer full of teeth, scales, bones, &c., of fishes and reptiles.

Above these as we walk towards Lavernock we see the White Lias Series, 18 feet thick, composed of grey and brown sandy shales, with irregular beds of limestone. The total thickness of the Rhetic beds is not more than 60 or 70 feet; and they constitute true passage-beds between the Trias below and the Lias above them.

THE LOWER LIAS.—Lower Lias shales and limestones lie upon the Rhetic beds on the south coast of Glamorgan, from Penarth, westwards past Barry Island, Aberthaw, and Dunraven Castle, to the mouth of the river Ogmore, and run inland as far as Cowbridge, where they rest upon the upturned edge of the Carboniferous Limestone. The Lias is, in this district, close to its ancient shore-line, and at Sutton and Southerndown it becomes a conglomerate formed of limestone pebbles, representing an ancient beach. The limestones are worked in this district to make cement, &c., in the quarries at Brocastle, Llanblethian, Laleston, Bridgend, Ewenny, SURFACE DEPOSITS.—The Glacial Period.—The traces of the former presence of glaciers are, perhaps, not quite so clear and abundant in South as in North Wales; for this the nature of the rock-masses, the minor elevation of the land, and its position further south are mainly accountable. "There are well-marked grooves or striations of a glacial character on the rocks of the coast of Pembroke at Trwynbrwddyn, Porthclais and Pel-dal-deryn. Boulder clay with ice-scratched stones is common, and the chalk-flints mingled with stones native to the district are not uncommon on the mainland and in Ramsey Island. Flints are also found in quantity, mingled with ice-scratched erratics, all along the low ground of Glamorganshire, north of the Bristol channel between Cardiff and Bridgend, and boulder-clay is indeed common, here and there, all over South Wales." At many points along the "north-crop" of the coal-field, the Millstone Grit and the Mountain Limestone show rounded outlines (roches moutonnées), and are striated and even polished in places—phenomena which can only be explained by supposing the passage over the rocks of large masses of ice (glaciers). Large boulders of Millstone Grit (known as "Arthur's Stone") and of Old Red conglomerate are numerous on the peninsula of Gower. Recent researches have shown that the Brecknock Mountains were the gathering-ground during the glacial period of a great mass of ice, which descended thence to the south and east in the form of glaciers, passing along the deep valleys which cross the coal-field from north to south. The southern half of Pembrokeshire is, however, free from any traces of the former presence of ice.

The Raised Beaches and Submerged Forests, which occur at several points on the coast-line, mark oscillations of the land since the Glacial Epoch.

THE RIVER-SYSTEMS OF SOUTH WALES.—The courses of the rivers in South Wales are remarkable in that for the most part they ignore the present geological structure of the country; running in deep narrow valleys from north to south, and cutting across the hills, instead of following what one might imagine would be their natural lines of direction along the great east and west valleys. It was formerly supposed that such rivers as, for example, the Ebbw, the Sirhowy, the Rhymney, the Taff, &c., followed lines of weakness marked out for them by the great north-north-west faults; but the mapping by the Geological Survey has shown this theory to be an error; for the faults and the rivers cross one another in almost every instance. Mr. A. Strahan has shown that these abnormal river-courses are, so to speak, inherited ones; and that they are due to the fact that when these rivers first began to flow, the surface of South Wales was constituted of quite different strata from those which form it at the present day.

Of the Secondary Formations, we find only the Trias and the Lias now existing in South Wales; but there are proofs that each of these formerly extended over much more ground than they occupy at the present day. But there is also good evidence for believing that the Oolites—and (more especially) the Cretaceous strata, including the White Chalk—once stretched westwards and covered the greater part of Wales. As the Chalk was doubtless deposited in a clear and fairly deep sea, the close of the Secondary period must have seen a large part of Britain well under water. But in the succeeding Tertiary times, we have direct proof of the existence of an immense pressure—the Caledonian movement we have already named it—exerted from the north-west.

This pressure ridged up the strata along lines running from north-east to south-west, and so originated the present water-shed of South Wales which runs in that direction, starting from near Fishguard. From this watershed the first rivers began to run in pre-Pliocene times; some, as the Teifi, to Cardigan Bay, on the north-west; and others, as the Usk, Taff, &c., to the south-east. The early courses of these southerly and easterly flowing Welsh rivers lay, therefore, over a gently-sloping surface of the chalk, and in this they each cut a valley. Many ages—some millions of years probably—have passed since that day; the chalk has all been swept away from South Wales (although the occurrence of flints in certain of the river-gravels still tells of its former existence) by the agents of denudation; but the rivers still ran along their old lines and in their old directions. They have deepened their valleys greatly, and they now run over strata of a quite different geological age to that over which they flowed in their early days, but they preserve their old courses, although these are in direct opposition to the present geological structure of the region which they drain.

ECONOMIC GEOLOGY.—The great mineral wealth of South Wales lies in its coal. Its mode of occurrence is described in the account of the "Coal Measures," and the fullest details can be obtained from the comprehensive memoirs published by the Geological Survey and referred to in the list of papers at the commencement of this article. The recent economic conditions have shown that there is a demand in this country for sand for open-hearth steel furnaces, for silica-rock and gannister, and for dolomite as a basic flux. Accordingly the Geological Survey recently turned its attention to these mineral resources. Raw materials for silica-bricks are obtained from the Millstone Grit in South Wales. In Brecknockshire the Grit is worked at Toryfoel Quarry, near Hirwain, and at the Penwyllt Quarries, 9 miles north-west of Hirwain. In Carmarthenshire the localities are Blaen Llynfell (Black Mountain), Garnbica, near Llandybïe, Mynydd-y-gareg, near Kilwely, Gareg-fraith, 2 miles N.E. of Brynamman, and tlangwenlais, near Llandybïe. Glamorgan produces material at Braemaen and Kilhepste, near Hirwain, Ton-y-Gilfach and Luest, near Glyn Neath, Brynïau, near Dowlais, and Stormy Down, near Pyle. Clegars Castle Quarry, at Templeton, near Narberth, is the only one for the silica raw material in Pembrokeshire. Sands for furnace-hearths are obtained from the Old Red Sandstone at Abercriban, and from the Millstone Grit at Clydach, in Brecknock, also from Llandybïe, in Carmarthenshire. Dolomite from the Carboniferous Limestone has been used for basic refractory material. It is worked at the Llanelly and Clydach Quarries, near Clydach Station in Brecknockshire. Much of the limestone also at Castell coch Quarry, Tongwynlais, near Cardiff, has been dolomitised, but how much it is suitable for steel-hearths is not yet determined. The mineral barytes is used in this country for the manufacture of white paints, wall-papers, for bleaching flannel, and for asbestos goods. Much of our requirements came from Germany. Consequently the altered conditions have led to a survey of this country's resources. In Wales this mineral occurs in veins in Carmarthen at the Bryn Towy and Nant Mine and at the Cystanog Mine, 2 miles east of Carmarthen. In Glamorgan it was found at the Llan-gan Mine. These mines have all been disused for some years.

Iron-ore also used to be mined in South Wales. The ore is hematite, and occurs in association with the Carboniferous rocks. The mines are at Llanharry (Cardiff Hematite Ore Co. Ltd.), Trecastle (abandoned), Bute, Mwyndy and Giarth (abandoned). The Carboniferous Limestone is quarried for building stone at Town Quarry, Tenby, and also at Williamston Quarries, in Pembrokeshire. It is known as "Welsh Limestone," and is a compact, blue-grey stone. The Coal Measures yield the Pontypridd Stone, a hard, blue-grey micaceous sandstone, and the Pennant Stone, a close-grained rock of the same colour. The Pennant Stone is quarried at Llwydu Quarries near Gt.ais. From Glamorgan comes the White Querella Stone, and the green variety. They are fine-grained sandstones from the Rheitic, quarried at Bridgend.

PREHISTORIC MAN.—Probably the earliest traces of human habitation in this region are the stone implements found below the present floors of the caves in the Carboniferous Limestone of Gower and the south-east of Pembrokeshire, and at Coygan in Carmarthenshire.

The numerous caves of Gower were explored by Col. Wood and Dr. Falconer in 1850; here, beneath layers of stalagmite, great numbers of bones of extinct species of mammals—as the mammoth, long-haired rhinoceros, cave lion, cave bear, hyæna, &c., were found, together with flint flakes and a very fine flint arrow-head. Many specimens from these caves may now be seen in the Swansea Museum.

The caves near Tenby and on Cady Island gave almost precisely the same evidence; they were explored in 1865 by Mr. Smith, of Gurfreston, and the Rev. E. H. Winwood. The stone implements of the caves are of great antiquity, and probably belong to the Older or Palæolithic Stone Age.

Of stone tools found elsewhere, on or near the surface, which belong to the Newer or Neolithic Stone Age, we may note a polished celt, or axe-head, found at Cardiff, now in the British Museum. It is $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, but appears to have been worn down by much use, and to have been re-ground: a very similar specimen was found at Melyn Works, Neath. Two finds from Breconshire may be recorded. In a barrow (burial-mound) near Hay, a flint flake or knife was found; and another (measuring $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches by 2 inches) was discovered with an urn at Tyddu-Llaneien. A remarkable stone axe-head, made of some felspathic rock, and perforated for a handle, was found at Llanmadock in Gower, and is now in the Museum of the Royal Institution at Swansea. Another perforated axe-hammer made of diorite came from Llanrhian in Pembrokeshire.

A highly-polished siliceous stone, pointed at each end, which was found in the ruins of St. Botolph's Priory, Pembrokeshire, illustrates the method by which holes were bored in those days. Close to it lay a water-worn pebble, in which a hole had been bored to the depth of half-an-inch apparently by friction with the pointed end of the other stone.

To go back to the period when metals were unknown in this country, and when the only tools used by the savage-tribes who then inhabited South Wales were made of stone, bone or wood, we should have to pass over an interval of time of great duration. Of the later or "Bronze Age," to which the earliest metal objects belong, there are scanty traces in this district: while of antique iron objects few or none have been found; and, indeed, this is what we should expect, for while stone, if undisturbed, is practically indestructible, iron rapidly rusts away under the influence of air and moisture. Recent discoveries seem to indicate 1800 B.C. as the probable date of the commencement of the Bronze Age in Britain.

ABBEY-CWM-HIR (or Gollan and Cefn Pawl) is a scattered parish on the London road through New Radnor and Rhayader to Aberystwyth, and on the banks of the Clywedog rivulet, 216 miles from London, 6 miles north-east from Rhayader, 6 miles north-west from Penybont station on the London and North-Western railway, and 9 miles from Llandrindod Wells, in Knighton hundred, Rhayader union and county court district, Presteigne petty sessional division, rural deanery of Melineth-ultra-Ithon, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Mary, erected in 1866 on the site of an older edifice, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch with a carving of the "Ascension," and a tower with short spire, containing 3 bells: under the communion table lies interred Sir Hans Fowler, 5th and last bart. of Harnage Grange and Abbey-cwm-hir, d. 1 March, 1775, to whom a monument has been erected; the stained west window is a memorial to Francis Aspinall Phillips esq. d. 1866, and there is a monument to Francis Phillips, d. 1850: the carved stone reredos represents the "Last Supper": there are 170 sittings. The registers, included with those of Llanbister, date from the year 1682; the independent register dates only from 1837. The living is a vicarage, net value £158, with 110 acres of glebe land, in the gift of the trustees of the late G. H. Phillips esq. (d. 1886), and held since 1918 by the Rev. William Russell Jones L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a Baptist chapel at Bwlch-y-sarnau, erected in 1829, seating 230 and one at Cefn Pawl with 170 sittings. Near the church and on the banks of the Clywedog stream are the ruins of Cwmhir Abbey, founded, it is said, by Cadwallon-pp-Madoc in the year 1143, or, according to other authorities, in 1199, by Prince Llewellyn and Fitz Gervase, for 60 monks of the Cistercian order and dedicated to St. Mary, but the eastern portion seems never to have been completed. In 1401 it was pillaged and then destroyed by Owain Glyndwr and in 1536 was dissolved; the gross value of the revenues being estimated at £28 17s. 4d.: in Nov. 1538, the possessions of the monastery were demised for 21 years to John Turner, gent. and they were subsequently held by the Fowler, Hodges and Hastings families: in 1824, the property, then amounting to 5,219 acres, or more, was purchased by Thomas Wilson esq. of London, who, in 1837, disposed of it to Francis Phillips esq. and it now belongs to Major Francis G. P. Phillips J.P. of the Abbey Hall: the existing ruins consist only of fragments of the outer walls of the nave and western walls of the transepts of the Transitional abbey church, with a few attached shafts still retaining their bases: three of the bases of the nave piers, still in situ, and the south-west pier of the central tower, also in situ: Mr. Wilson, during his tenancy, caused the site of the church to be cleared, and in the course of this work, a number of carved capitals and heads, coins, seals, keys, lead and iron work, fragments of stained glass and some human remains were discovered, and also a coffin-shaped slab, incised with a cross, and arranged on either side of it the inscription:—HIC IACET MABLI C' AIE P'CIET' DE: this slab, found in the nave, covered a stone-lined grave, containing a perfect skeleton, and is now lying on the north side of the churchyard. Mrs. Phillips, a former owner, about 1804, cleared other portions of the site, and brought to light the bases of two doorways leading from the south aisle into the cloisters, besides carved capitals and other fragments of sculpture, and in or about 1895, the late Mr. Stephen W. Williams F.S.A. of Rhayader, made some further excavations at the east end of the ruins and on the south side of the church, including the site of the cloisters. Between the years 1540-42, a portion of one of the arcades, comprising five piers and six arches, was removed to Llandiloos church and there rebuilt to form an arcade between the nave and a new north aisle, and numerous fragments recovered from the ruins are built into the terrace wall in the garden of Abbey Hall. The nave, 242 feet in length, consisted of fourteen bays, and had vaulted aisles, including which, the breadth was nearly 70 feet, and the total length of the transept 135 feet 5 inches. The cloisters appear to have formed a rectangular space about 120 feet long from west to east, and 100 feet from north to south. Prince Llewellyn, who was slain at or near Cefn-y-bedd, about 3 miles from Builth, 11 Dec. 1282, in a skirmish with the English, is believed to have been buried in the Abbey church. Abbey Hall, the seat of Major Phillips, is a fine mansion of stone, commanding a splendid view of the hilly scenery around. In the rear of the grounds are extensive peach houses and a vinery. The soil is sand and clay; sub-soil, stone and clay. The chief crops are wheat and roots, but the land is principally pasture. The area is 11,345 acres; rateable value, £5,284; the population in 1911 was 379.

ABERAVON

ABERAVON is a municipal borough, market town and parish, the head of a petty sessional division, contributory to Swansea district of boroughs, on the right bank of the river Avon, near its entrance into Swansea Bay, half a mile from Port Talbot station on the Great Western railway, 6 miles south-east from Neath, 11 east by rail from Swansea, 32 west from Cardiff, 72 from Bristol and 187½ from London, via the Severn tunnel, in the Aberavon division of the county of Glamorgan, Neath hundred, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Upper Gronoeth (western division) and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. Aberavon station on the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway is locally in the parish of Margam. The Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway from Treherbert, opened in July, 1890, and extended in March, 1895, to Neath and Swansea connects the town with the Rhondda Valley and other important coal and mineral districts. The line took 14 years to construct and cost £1,000,000. The scenery in the neighbourhood is very beautiful, the hills ranging in altitude from 1,200 to 1,500 feet; there are 3 miles of excellent beach here, a road to which was opened in 1887 and is named the Victoria road. The town was incorporated in 1867, under the "Muni-icipal Corporations Acts," and consists of a mayor, four aldermen, who are elected for 6 years, and twelve councillors, four of whom retire annually by rotation; the borough has a commission of the peace. Aberavon, together with Kenfig, Loughor, Neath and Swansea, forms the Swansea parliamentary district, returning one member. The town has been thoroughly drained at a cost of £4,250, and is supplied with gas from works established by a limited company, but since purchased by the Corporation. A supply of excellent water is obtained from a reservoir having a capacity of 9,000,000 gallons, filled by mountain springs and situated two miles distant from the town; the works are also the property of the Corporation.

The church of St. Mary is an edifice of Welsh sandstone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, and was rebuilt in the year 1860 on the site of the old parish church; it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, choir vestry, porch and a western tower of more recent date containing 8 bells; the east window is stained; the fine rosettes, with figures carved by H. H. Arnstead A.R.A. was the gift in 1890 of the late Mrs. Llewellyn, of Baglan Hall, as a memorial to Griffith Llewellyn esq.; the organ was provided at a cost of £600; the church was enlarged and the tower strengthened in 1899 at a cost of £3,000; there are 800 sittings. The registers of baptisms and burials date from the year 1597; marriages, 1744. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of five trustees, of whom the Bishop of Llandaff is one, and held since 1918 by the Rev. David William Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and surrogate.

The church of St. Tello, for Welsh services, was built in 1893 and affords 200 sittings.

The church of St. Paul's, the gift of Sir Arthur P. and Lady Vivian, was erected at SANDFIELDS at a cost of £7,000, and is served by the clergy of St. Mary's.

The Catholic church of St. Joseph, in Church street, erected in 1862-3, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style and will seat 300 persons: the Rev. Philip Kelly, priest in charge.

There are several chapels for Dissenters.

A church and institute for sailors, in connection with "The Missions to Seamen," was erected in 1903, at a cost of £800, and affords 200 sittings.

New municipal offices in Water street were completed in 1915 at a cost of £15,000. The building is surmounted by a clock tower; the ground floor is let out in shops. The fire station is in Water street and contains a motor fire engine.

Aberavon, Port Talbot & District General Hospital was opened in March, 1916, for 16 patients.

In the borough are tin works, a foundry and engineering works.

A market is held on Saturday, and pleasure fairs are held in April and September.

A new market, erected by the Corporation to replace that destroyed by fire, was opened in 1909.

The Aberavon and Port Talbot Golf Club have an 18-hole course here.

The trustees of the late Charles Evan-Thomas esq. of Neath, Glam. (d. 1902), are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are the Earl of Jersey, G. R. P. Llewellyn esq. of Baglan, the trustees of the late Miss Talbot, and Col. Sir Arthur Pendarves Vivian K.C.B., V.D. The soil is sand and gravel; subsoil, coal and mineral. The area of the civil parish and municipal borough is 2,168 acres of land, 43 of inland water, 46 of tidal water, and 1,393 of foreshore; rateable value, £56,396; population in 1901, 7,533, and in 1911, 10,505.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 10,259.

The population within the parliamentary limits in 1911 was 27,266; the number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1914 was 4,806.

ABERAYRON is a small town and seaport at the mouth of the river Aeron, on the shore of Cardigan bay, with a terminal station on the Lampeter and Aberayron branch of the Great Western railway; it is the head of a union and county court district, in the county of Cardigan, 2.5 miles from London, 13 north-west from Lampeter, 16 south-by-west from Aberystwith, 22
 north-west from Cardigan, 36 north from Carmarthen, 76 north-west from Pembroke and 66 north from Swansea, hundred of Lower Har, petty sessional division of Lower Har and Aberayron, rural deanery of Glyn-Aeron, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. Davids. In 1894, under the "Local Government Act, 1894," an Urban District Council was established, the district comprising the civil parishes of Henfynyw Lower and Llanddewi Aberarth Lower. Holy Trinity, a chapel of ease to St. David's, Henfynyw, is a building of stone in the Florid Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and a tower at the south-west angle, containing a bell; there are 400 sittings; the services are conducted by the Rev.
 Evan Evans B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, vicar of Henfynyw, and rural dean of Glyn Aeron. The Town hall, in Market street, is a rectangular building of stone and is the property of Lieut.-Commander Alban Lewes Gwynne R.N., C.B.; it comprises a court house and council chamber, and a market is held on the ground-floor every Wednesday. A Public Library was established in 1883 and contains 1,600 volumes. The principal hotel is the Feathers Royal Hotel. Fairs

ABERCYNON, formerly called "Navigation," is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1905 from Llanwonno and Pontypridd civil parishes; it is 3 miles north-by-east from Pontypridd, and has a station on the Pontypridd and Aberdare section of the Taff Vale railway. The Aberdare and Glamorganshire canals form a junction here, where there is a quay. Abercynon is governed by the Mountain Ash Urban District Council, of which it forms a ward, and is in the Pontypridd division of Glamorganshire, Higher Miskin petty sessional division, Pontypridd union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Donat, erected in 1898 at a cost of £3,800, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave with gallery, and one aisle, and will seat 500 persons. The register dates from the year 1808. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £197, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1908 by the Rev. Daniel Ellis Jones Lic.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Calfarra Baptist chapel, erected in 1888, will seat 850. Moriah Baptist chapel, erected in 1894, has 400 sittings. The Welsh Baptist chapel, erected in 1906, has 350 sittings. Bethania Congregational chapel, erected in 1894, will seat 900. Mount Zion Congregational chapel, erected in 1903, has 250 sittings; there are also two Wesleyan chapels. The Workmen's Hall and Institute, opened in 1905, contains a reading room and lending library, besides a large hall and other rooms. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 8,181.

ABERDARE.

ABERAMAN, ABERCWMBOI (formerly called CAPCOCH), ABERNANT, CWMAMAN, CWMBACII, CWM-DARE, GADLYS, LLWYDGOED, ROBERTSTOWN AND TRECYNON.

ABERDARE is a market town, the head of a county court and bankruptcy court district, and an extensive parish, in the hundred of Miskin, petty sessional division of Higher Miskin, union of Merthyr, rural deanery of Aberdare and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; it is 167 miles from London (by Great Western railway), Bristol 59, Bridgend 37, Llanelli 36, Newport 35, Swansea 26½, Cardiff 24, Neath 10, Pantypridd 12 and Merthyr 5; and has a station on the Pontypool and Swansea section of the Great Western railway, which forms junctions at various points with the Neath and Brecon, Swansea Valley, Taff Vale and The Dare and Amman branches. The junction with the Merthyr branch is at Gelly Tarw. The Vale of Neath line was amalgamated with the Great Western railway in 1865, and has stations at Abernant, Hirwain and Llywcoed. The Taff Vale Railway Company has stations here, and at Aberaman and Mountain Ash, with a junction at the latter place connecting with the Great Western railway. The Dare Valley railway is connected with and under the management of the Taff Vale Railway Company; the above railways have branches to all the iron works and principal collieries in this district.

A tramway system between Treycnon and Aberaman was opened in 1913, and cars run every few minutes. Trackless omnibuses on the Cedes-Stoll system connect Cwmdare, Cwmaman, Abernant and Abercwmboi with the trams.

Aberdare is a division of the parliamentary borough of Merthyr, returning one member to Parliament, and includes Mountain Ash. The town was governed by a Local Board of Health from 1858 until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council.

The town is on the river Cynon, in a picturesque valley, surrounded by high mountains, and has within the last 60 years sprung from an inconsiderable village to a town of great importance, few places in South Wales having, during this period, shown a greater improvement. The principal streets are Commercial street, Victoria square, Canon street and Cardiff street. The town is lighted with gas by a company formed in 1849, and also by electricity; it is well paved, and is supplied with water from works at Nanthir, Nantymoe and Bwlfa, the property of the Urban District Council; there are three reservoirs with a storage capacity of 120,000,000 gallons, viz. 1.—Nantymoe reservoir, 73 million gallons; Nanthir reservoir, 40 million gallons and Bwlfa reservoir, 7 million gallons. An extensive and efficient system of sewerage has been carried out at a cost of £25,000, and supplementary works were completed in 1900 at an estimated cost of about £5,000.

The Abernant and Llywcoed Ironworks have not been in operation since the strike of 1875. The neighbourhood abounds in mineral wealth, and collieries are continually being opened in the surrounding district; the collieries afford employment to many thousands of persons, and give to the town its chief support. The principal coal proprietors are the Marquess of Bute, Powell Dyffryn Steam Coal Co Limited, Bwlfa and Merthyr Dare Steam Collieries (1891) Limited, Cwmaman Coal Co. Limited, Werfa Dare Colliery Co. Limited and David R. Llewellyn.

The parish church of St. John the Baptist, formerly a chapel to Llantrissant, is a plain but ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a western turret containing one bell: the church was restored in 1859 at a cost of £900, and again in 1915 at a cost of £550: there are 200 sittings. The churchyard, which is closed against interments, has been laid out with walks and furnished with seats. The registers date from the year 1734. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Bute, and held since 1914 by the Rev. James Abraham Lewis B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and rural dean of Aberdare, & surrogate.

St. Elvan's, a chapel of ease to the parish church, erected in 1852, at a cost of £6,000, stands on an eminence and is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of a chancel, nave, aisles, north transept, porch and a western tower with spire, containing a clock and 8 bells: in the north transept there is a memorial window to Mrs. Rees: the stained east window was presented by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, in memory of their president, the Rev. Canon Jenkins D.D. a former vicar, and there are others to Edward C. E. Williams and Herbert E. Evans, erected in 1878, and to Daniel Rees, of Glendare, erected in 1893: a screen was erected in 1890 to the memory of Mrs. Mary Johnson, by her sons: the church was restored and enlarged in 1911 at a cost of £7,000: there are 1,000 sittings.

St. Mary's church, MAESYDREF, erected in 1865, at a cost of £5,000, as chapel of ease to the parish church, is an edifice in the French Gothic style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles and a tower with saddle-back roof, containing one steel bell: at the west end of the nave, under the level of the floor, is a baptistery: the west door has carvings in stone of descending angels: all the services are in Welsh: there are 600 sittings.

St. John the Evangelist's, ROBERT'S TOWN, built in 1890 at a cost of £610, as a chapel of ease to the parish church, is a plain building of stone consisting of nave only, and has a western bell-turret containing one bell: there are 150 sittings.

St. Fagan's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1820; the church, at TREYCNON, 1½ miles north-west, destroyed by fire, and rebuilt at the expense of the late Lady Windsor, in 1854, at a cost of £5,000, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, and a tower, erected in 1909, containing 2 bells: in the chancel is a fine stained window: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1855. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence and half an acre of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Landaff, and held since 1903 by the Rev. Richard Jones, of St. Aidan's.

St. Winifred's, in Windsor street, TREYCNON, erected in 1835 as a chapel of ease to St. Fagan's, is now used as a church hall.

St. James's, Llywcoed, a chapel of ease to St. Fagan's, erected in 1895 at a cost of £1,200, is a building of red brick, consisting of chancel, nave and a western turret containing one bell: there are 200 sittings.

St. David's Presbyterian Church of England, in High street, erected in 1879, at a total cost, including the site, of £4,500, is a building of local Pennant stone, with Bath stone facings, in the Gothic style, and has a tower with spire 85 feet in height: there are 400 sittings: adjoining the church is a hall seating 150 persons.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. Joseph, with presbytery attached, is in Monk street; the church has 300 sittings.

For other places of worship, see pp. 53 & 54. The Aberdare cemetery, in Hirwain road, opened in 1853, was enlarged in 1897 to 50 acres, and has two mortuary chapels.

The Town Hall, in High street, is a stone building, and is also used for the offices of the Urban District Council.

The Liberal club, in Cardiff street, contains news and reading rooms, a library of about 2,200 volumes, reception and committee rooms and a fine billiard room: there are about 300 members.

Aberdare Central Public Library, in High street, was opened in 1904 and contains about 15,000 volumes.

Aberdare Memorial Hall, Seymour street, was erected in 1895, at a cost of about £4,000, as a memorial to the Rev. R. Bowen Jenkins M.A. vicar 1883-93, who gave the site.

The Public Hall, in Canon street, was first opened in 1858 as a temperance hall. The sittings of the registrar of the county court are held here; and the hall is also let for meetings, theatrical entertainments and concerts: it will hold 1,500 persons.

The Aberdare and District General Hospital, opened in 1917, was formerly Abernant House, which was purchased for £1,000 from the Marquess of Bute and converted to its present use at a cost of about £10,500. The local medical practitioners form the honorary medical and surgical staff.

The two principal hotels and posting houses are the "Boot" and "Black Lion."

The Police Station is in Station street. Petty Sessions are held every wednesday in the Court house, Market street, which was built in 1914. The sittings of the county court are also held here.

The Fire Engine House, erected by the late Local Board of Health, is opposite to the Police station.

The market, chiefly for the sale of provisions, is held on Saturday in the New Market, which was erected in 1903, at a cost of £6,000, in the centre of the town, and is very commodious. Fairs are held on April 1st and 16th, and November 13th for cattle.

Here is a brewery.

Lloyds Bank Limited, Barclays Bank Limited and the London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited have branches here.

Four newspapers are published here, namely: "Aberdare Leader," "Y Darian," "Aberdare Weekly Post" and "Mountain Ash Weekly Post."

The Hospital for Infectious Diseases, at Treycnon, was established by the late Local Board of Health in 1878, at a cost of £3,000, for the isolation of small pox.

The Aberdare and Mountain Ash Joint Small Pox Hospital is at Cefnpenar.

Aberdare Park, which extends over 40 acres, was given by the Charity Commissioners to the churchwardens, and by them to the late Local Board of Health, by whom it was opened in 1869, has been tastefully laid out at a cost of about £5,000, and contains two small lakes.

The principal residences are—The Mardy, now (1910) vacant, and Plas Newydd, of Rees Jenkin Rhys esq.

The Marquess of Bute, who is lord of the manor. Lieut.-Com. G. R. Lock R.N. James Price William Gwynne-Holford esq. of Buckland, Bwlch, Lord Aberdare, The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, The Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. Lord Wharton, Mrs. Windsor Lewis and David Price Davies esq. are the principal landowners.

The soil is principally clay; subsoil, various. The chief crops are oats, potatoes, roots and pasturage.

The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 15,066 acres of land and 117 of water; rateable value, £218,540. The population of the parish in 1881 was 35,533; in 1891, 40,917, and in 1911, 50,830.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: Aberaman, 15,000; Blaengwawr, 8,923; Gadlys, 7,796; Llwydcoed, 8,507; Town, 10,514.

The population of St. John the Baptist ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 21,389; of St. Fagan, 7,955, including 153 persons in the Merthyr Tydfil Union Poor Law Institution Industrial School; and of Aberaman, 18,598.

ABERAMAN, or Treaman, 1 mile south-east with a station on the Taff Vale railway, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1888. The church of St. Margaret, built in 1883, at a cost of £5,000, wholly defrayed by Sir George Elliot bart. M.P. is a cruciform building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts and an eastern turret containing one bell; in the chancel are five stained windows of Munich glass: the west window is also stained, and in 1899 a brass lectern was presented in memory of Arthur V. Linton: an inscribed brass within the building records the dedication of the church and its erection in memory of Margaret, wife of Sir George Elliot and their daughter Elizabeth, on the 20th September, 1883; there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £269, with residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Joseph Morgan B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

St. Barnabas', in Bedford street, erected in 1897, at a cost of £500, as a chapel of ease to St. Margaret's, is an iron building, and will seat 220 persons: all the services are conducted in Welsh.

Aberaman Church Hall was built in 1912 at a cost of £2,200.

The Aberaman Workmen's Hall was opened as the Grand Theatre in 1908, with seats for 1,500. The Institute and Free Library, in the same building, opened in 1909, comprises, in addition to a smaller hall, committee rooms, two billiard rooms, private baths, gymnasium &c. The library contains 5,000 volumes in the lending department.

Abercwmboi (formerly Cap Coch) is 2½ miles south-east, and is ecclesiastically a conventional district. St. Peter's church is an iron building with 200 sittings. The Rev. Thomas Jones M.A. of Durham University, has been priest in charge since 1918. Abercwmboi Workmen's Hall and Institute, built in 1914, contains a hall that is let for entertainments, and has a seating capacity for 750 persons, also reading and billiard rooms; the cost was about £2,500.

ABERNANT is 1½ miles north-east, and has a station on the Hirwain and Merthyr Tydfil branch of the Great Western railway. St. Matthew's Mission church, a chapel of ease to the parish church, was erected in 1889, and is an iron structure consisting of nave and a turret containing one bell: there are 150 sittings.

CWMAMAN is 2½ miles south. St. Joseph's church, formerly a chapel of ease to St. Margaret's, Aberaman, and formerly an iron structure, erected in 1883, was rebuilt in 1890, at a cost of £1,500, and is now an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave (rebuilt in 1916) and a western turret containing one bell: the western window is in memory of the late William Cates: the altar was given by Lady Aberdare: there are 500 sittings. Cwmaman is ecclesiastically a conventional district since 1912. The value of the living is £200, and has been held since 1924 by the Rev. Isaac James Williams L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The Bishop of the diocese has the appointment of the incumbent.

Cwmaman Public Hall and Institute, erected in 1891 by, and the property of, the colliers of the district, was enlarged in 1905, when a hall to seat 450 persons was added at a cost of £2,500; it contains a library of about 6,000 volumes, reading, billiard and other rooms, and a lecture hall, seating 1,000 persons, which is let for public entertainments, theatricals &c.

CWMBACH, 1½ miles east, is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1919 from the parish of Aberdare. The church of St. Mary Magdalen, erected in 1881-2, at a cost of £1,500, is a structure in the Gothic style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, south porch and a turret containing one bell: a screen has been presented by the students of Cuddesdon Theological College, near Oxford: the register dates from 1919; there are 350 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £ , in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1919 by the Rev. J. Jones.

Cwmbach Public Workmen's Hall, Institute and Library was built in 1911: the library has about 2,000 volumes.

CWMDARE is 2 miles west. St. Luke's, a chapel of ease to St. Fagan's, built in 1887 at a cost of £672, is a plain edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, and a western turret containing one bell: there are 190 sittings.

Llwydcoed is 2½ miles north, with a station on the Hirwain and Merthyr Tydfil branch of the Great Western railway.

ABERDULAIS, see Neath.

ABEREDW is a parish in the county of Radnor, on the river Edw, with a station on the Cambrian railway, 4 miles south-east from Builth, 11 north-west from Talgarth and 10 north-east from Llandrindod Wells, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Colwyn, county court district and union of Builth, and in the rural deanery of Elwel, archdeaconry of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Cawydd is an ancient building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and a tower containing one bell: it has been completely restored since 1887 and affords 120 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1690; burials, 1695; marriages, 1700. The living is a rectory, with that of Llanfaredd annexed, joint net income £236, with half an acre of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1903 by the Rev. James Hughes Lloyd M.A. of Glasgow University. Prince Llewellyn of Wales lived in the castle here (now in ruins), and being pursued by the enemy took refuge in a cave in the mountains. There is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1871, with 150 sittings. Lord Glanusk C.B., D.S.O., J.P. is lord of the manor. Lord Merthyr G.C.V.O. and William Thomas Rees esq. are the principal landowners. The land is chiefly pasture. The area is 4,807 acres of land and 54 of water; rateable value, £2,397; the population in 1911 was 217.

ABERGWILLY (or Abergwili) is a parish, on the Towy and Gwili rivers, in the Carmarthen division of the county of Carmarthen, in Elvet hundred, Carmarthen union, county court district and petty sessional division, in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's, with a station on the Central Wales and Carmarthen Junction branch of the London and North Western railway, 266 miles by London and North Western railway, 243 by Great Western railway from London and 2 from Carmarthen. The church of St. David, opened December 8th, 1843, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, north porch and a western tower containing one bell: the east and four other windows are stained: in the church is an interesting monument to Richard Davies, Bishop of St. Asaph, 1560, and of St. Davids, 1561-81, who was buried there: there is also a handsome brass lectern presented as a memorial to Frances Charlotte Jones, the wife of William Basil Jones D.D. Lord Bishop of St. David's, d. 27 Sep. 1881: the stone which caps the spire of Abergwili church is invested with peculiar interest as being that on which was fixed the stake at which Bishop Robert Ferrar suffered at Carmarthen, 30 March, 1555: the number of sittings are 378. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a vicarage, with Llanvihangel-Uchwogwili annexed, joint net income £295, with 14 acres of glebe land and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Thomas Thomas B.A. of St. David's, Lampeter. The church of the Holy Cross or Capel-y-groes, was built in 1888-9, at a cost of £1,317, and affords 136 sittings. The chapel of St. Michael, Llanvihangel Uchwogwili, also in the parish, was rebuilt in 1912 at a cost of £800, and will seat 132 persons. There are three Congregational chapels, one Baptist and two Calvinistic Methodist chapels. The charities amount to £12 yearly. There is a woollen manufactory and a slate quarry. The present palace of the Bishops of St. Davids, situated here, is a mansion in the Elizabethan style, improved by Archbishop Laud, when Bishop of St. Davids (1621-7), who also consecrated the chapel attached to it; the house was burnt down in 1904 and rebuilt in the same style; it is beautifully placed amidst groves of trees, and is surrounded by hills: other principal seats are Castell Pygyn, the residence of William S. Gwynne Morris esq.; Bryn Myrddin, the residence of Edward Harold Morris esq.; Cwmgwilly, the residence of Major Grismond Phillips, and Ystradwrallt, the residence of Major E. W. L. Urquhart. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 8,244 acres of land, 71 of inland water and 4 of tidal water; assessable value, £10,591; the population in 1911 was 1,452.

A portion of the village of Nantgaredig is in this parish. Post, M. O. & Telegraph Office (Letters should have Carmarthenshire added).—David Arthur, postmaster. Letters are received through Carmarthen. The telegraph office is at the railway station for collection only, but Carmarthen, 2 miles distant, is the nearest for delivery

ABERPERGW is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1861 from the parish of Cadoxton-juxta Neath, in the Neath division of the county of Glamorgan, hundred, union, county court district and petty sessional division of Neath, rural deanery of Upper Gronoath (western division) and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. It is about one mile from Glyn-Neath station on the Vale of Neath section of the Great Western railway, and about 10 north-east from Neath. The church of St. Catwg is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, porch, and a turret containing one bell: there are two memorial windows, and in the church two recumbent effigies of the Williams family: there ABERPORTH is a watering-place and village, partly in the parish of Blaenporth, in the county of Cardigan, at the head of Aberporth harbour, a small inlet on the south side of Cardigan Bay and is 7 miles north-east from Cardigan station on the Whitland and Cardigan section of the Great Western railway, 8 from Newcastle Emlyn and $7\frac{1}{2}$ from Gwbert, in the hundred of Troedyran, petty sessional division of Lower Troedyran, union and county court district of Cardigan, and in the rural deanery of Sub Aeron, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. The harbour affords a safe anchorage for small vessels. The church of St. Cynfil, on an eminence, is a modern building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, north porch, and a turret containing one bell: there are stained windows and the church affords 140 sittings. The registers date from the year 1662. The living is a rectory, net income £142, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1917 by the Rev. David John Evans B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The English service is held at 10.45 a.m. There are three Methodist chapels, two at Aberporth and the other at Blaenanerch. The walks eastward, along the cliffs, are exceedingly picturesque, and include Pembryn sands, about $\frac{1}{2}$ miles in extent; westward is the lonely little cove known as "Cribach," surrounded by lofty cliffs covered with a profusion of wild flowers; the bay affords safe boating and bathing, and most of the private houses offer accommodation for visitors.

ABERYSCIR, or Aberysker, is a parish on the west bank of the Yeir close to its confluence with the Usk, 3 miles west from Brecon and 1 mile west from Cradoc station on the Neath and Brecon railway, in the county of Brecknock, hundred of Merthyr Cynog, petty sessional division of Merthyr, county court district of Brecon, union of Brecknock and in the rural deanery of Brecon (first part), archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Mary (or St. Cynidr), which stands close to the confluence of the rivers Yscir and Usk, is a plain building with a belfry containing 2 bells: it was restored in 1860 and in 1884 a vestry was added: the church affords 114 sittings. The register dates from the year 1721. The living is a rectory, net income £135, with one acre of glebe and residence (built in 1891), in the gift of Mrs. Ann Davies, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Joshua Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is an independent chapel at Abegyscir. The Parish Hall, erected in 1910, at the cost of Miss Williams, of Penpont, will hold about 150 persons. Aberyscir Court, built in 1837, is the property and residence of Francis D. Dickinson esq. J.P. On the river bank opposite to the church are the remains of a Roman station called ABERYSTWYTH is a town, seaport and municipal borough and health resort, the head of a union and county court district, in the county of Cardigan, and has a terminal station of the Cambrian as well as of the Great Western railway. It is 208 miles from London by road, 289 by Great Western railway via Carmarthen and 238 by London and North Western railway or G.W.R. via Shrewsbury, 38 by road and 98 by rail from Cardigan, 56 north from Carmarthen, 148 from Manchester, 144 from Birmingham, and 172 from Bristol, in the hundred of Gene'r-Glyn, petty sessional division of Lower Gene'r-Glyn, rural deanery of Llanbadarn Fawr, archdeaconry of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's. The name Aberystwyth is derived in part from the Cymric "aber," "a confluence," this being the spot where the streams of the Rheidol and Ystwyth unite. From the beautiful position which Aberystwyth occupies in the centre of Cardigan Bay, together with its mountain scenery, including the celebrated Plinlimmon (2,469 feet), the romantic beauty of the Rheidol and the Cymach at Devil's bridge; the warmth and salubrity of its climate and the attractiveness of its buildings, it has for many years been popular as a watering place. The beach here is of shingle with patches of sand, and amongst the stones, pebbles of crystal, cornelian, jasper, onyx, trap stone, mochas and agate are met with, and are much sought after by visitors and polished by lapidaries. The various reefs afford the naturalist opportunities for gathering varieties of fucus and other algae and corallines. The easy slope of the beach enables bathing to be carried on at all times. Fishing boats belonging to the port are distinguished by the letters A.B. The harbour was transferred to the Corporation and regulations made by 37 and 38 Vict. c. 120 (1873), and its limits were defined in 1847, by the "Customs Act, 1846" (9 and 10 Vict. c. 102), to commence at New Quay head, and to continue to the North bank of the river Dyssyn. The town consists of four streets running parallel with the sea front, and a number of others crossing these, mostly at right angles. Some of the streets are of good width and planted with trees, and there are good shops of every sort.

The Marine parade, which immediately faces the sea, is a splendid crescent-shaped promenade about a mile in length and very wide, lined from end to end with houses and hotels, mostly large and of good style, and is also well furnished with seats, and at intervals along the sea wall are steps to the beach. Since 1866 the Corporation have spent upwards of £20,000 in paving, maintenance, and improvement, so that this parade is now one of the principal features of the town.

The Promenade Pier at the south end of the Marine terrace is a light and elegant structure about 700 feet long, the pier head being 45 feet wide, built in 1865, at a cost of about £12,000; it is constructed upon the rocks, which are covered at high water, and has comfortable seats on each side for its whole length; the views afforded of the castle, town and bay are highly attractive. Promenade concerts are also held on the pier during the season. In 1895 a pavilion, erected at the shore end, at a cost of £8,000, was opened by Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, then Princess of Wales.

The town is said to have been a borough by prescription, and was formerly governed, under a charter of Henry IV. by a mayor (chosen annually at the Court Leet), recorder, chamberlain, bargesses and other officers, but on the passing of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 & 6 Wm. IV. c. 76), it was reconstituted, under the style of "The Mayor and Burgesses of the Town, Borough and Liberty of Aberystwyth," and the Corporation now consists of a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors. In conjunction with Cardigan, Lampeter and Newcastle-Emlyn the borough sent one representative to Parliament, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1855" (48 and 49 Vict. c. 23), the representation of the borough was merged in that of the county. The borough has a commission of the peace. Drainage works have been carried out by the Corporation at a cost of £13,200.

The town has also been supplied, at a cost of £20,000, with a supply of pure water from Llyn Llygnd Rheidol, a lake 11 acres in extent, on the northern side of the Plinlimmon mountain. The water is conveyed from an altitude of nearly 2,000 feet to the sea-level at Aberystwyth, a distance of 18 miles, in iron mains.

The Gas Works, in Llanbadarn road, were erected in 1900, and are the property of a private company; the present paid up capital is £35,000, and there are about 2,000 consumers. The Promenade and principal streets are now lighted by electricity by the Chiawick Electricity Supply Corporation Limited, and the light is largely used in the shops and the principal hotels and residences.

The Ecclesiastical parish of St. Michael was formed in 1861 out of the civil parish of Llanbadarn Fawr.

The late church of St. Michael, which stood near the castle and the sea, was a modern cruciform structure, in a poor style of Gothic, erected in 1833, but was wholly removed in 1894.

The present church of St. Michael and All Angels, which occupies a site a short distance east of the old building, was erected in 1890, at a cost of over £9,550 including the site, and consecrated 30 Sept. 1890; it is of Yorkshire stone in the Geometric Decorated style, from designs by Messrs. Nicholson and Son, architects, of Hereford, and consists of chancel, with north chapel, nave of four bays, aisles, organ chamber, vestry, north and south porches and a bell-cote at the east gable of the nave containing one bell. In 1906 one bay and a half were added to the nave, and a western tower erected. The east window is stained, and beneath is an elaborate reredos of fine Ancaster stone, with a carved reproduction in the centre of "The Lord's Supper," after Leonardo da Vinci; both the window and reredos were given in memory of the late Thomas Jones and his wife, of this town, by their daughters; in the chapel is a memorial window to Elizabeth Evans of Waterford, presented by her daughter; there are triple sedilia under arched canopies, and a piscina, and on the north side a credence niche and an ambury: the church has also a monument by Chantrey, and will afford over 1,250 sittings, over half the number being free.

The adjoining churchyard contains a number of singular memorials consisting of low and narrow brick walls, with gravestones let into them as tablets. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1788; marriages, 1804; and burials, 1791. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £367, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1918 by the Rev. Canon David Williams M.A. of Durham University.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1887; the church, originally erected in 1886, at a cost of £5,700, was enlarged in 1888 by the addition of tower and transepts, and further enlarged in 1899, when a chancel, organ chamber and vestries were built, at a total cost of £12,000: it is constructed of local stone with Bath stone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, from designs by Messrs. Middleton and Son, of Westminster, and now consists of chancel, nave, transepts, north porch, organ chamber, vestries, and an incomplete central tower containing one bell: the nave roof of oak is of the hammer-beam type so common in Norfolk, but simpler in detail, being enriched with mouldings and some curving; the organ was provided in 1892 at a cost of £400; the handsome carved oak pulpit was presented by Dr. Jacob Roberts, of Aberystwyth, and the brass eagle lectern in 1895 by a member of the congregation: the font is a memorial to the late Miss Jones, of Frou-y-gog; the church plate was the gift at Easter, 1892, of John Watkins esq. of North Parade: the church was reseated in oak in 1906, in memory of Mrs. John Roberts: there are 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1886. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £276, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1887 by the Ven. David Williams M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, prebendary of St. David's, arch-deacon of Cardigan, and surrogate.

St. Mary's, Gray's Inn road, erected in 1866 as a chapel of ease to the parish church of St. Michael, is a building of native stone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, north porch and a western bell turret containing 2 bells: the organ from the old parish church has been removed here: there are sittings for about 450 persons, of which half are free. The services are in Welsh.

The Catholic church of Our Lady of the Angels and St. Winefride, in Queen's road, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, erected in 1874 from designs by Mr. George Jones, of this town, and consists of chancel and nave only; the magnificent altar of carved stone was the gift of Mrs. Gillow, of Hampton Park, Hereford: the church has 300 sittings.

The English Presbyterian chapel, in Bath street, erected in 1871, is a building of stone, faced with Bath stone, and will seat 450 persons. The English Wesleyan chapel, in Queen's road, erected in 1871 at a cost of nearly £3,000, is a building of stone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English and Decorated styles. It has a tower and spire, and will seat 450 persons.

The English Congregational chapel, in Portland street, built at a cost of £2,600, and opened in July, 1866, is an edifice of native stone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English and Decorated styles, and has a tower and spire, 80 feet high; in 1880 a lecture room and 6 class rooms for the Sunday school, and a residence for the minister were built, at a cost of £2,300: the chapel will seat 500 persons.

St. Paul's Welsh Wesleyan chapel, in Great Darkgate street, built in 1880 at a cost of £6,000, is in the Classic style, and will seat 700 persons.

The English Baptist chapel, Alfred place, erected in 1871 at a cost of £2,000, is an edifice in the Gothic style, from designs by Mr. Richard Owen, architect, of Liverpool, and affords 450 sittings; there are schools underneath for 350 children.

Salem Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapel, situated at the bottom of Portland street, erected in 1894-5, at a cost of £2,300, and enlarged in 1907 by the addition of two transepts, is a building of local stone, with Grinshill stone dressings, in the Gothic style, and will seat 450 persons.

For other places of worship, see page 76.

The Public Cemetery, 6 acres in extent, is on the road to Llanbadarn, and has an entrance from the road near Idongawsa: it is well laid out, and has two chapels, in the Late Perpendicular style, from designs by Mr. W. Spaul, of Oswestry: the first interment took place on the 4th September, 1860; it is under the control of the Town Council acting as Burial Board.

The Town Hall, in the Queen's road, is a building of stone, in a modern Classic style, and contains a large central hall and other apartments for the use of the bench and bar and for the business of the County Court and offices of the town clerk. A county court is held here monthly, as well as the Admiralty and Bankruptcy Courts for the districts of Aberystwyth, Aberayron, Dolgelly and Machynlleth. Aberystwyth is a district registry of the High Court of Justice. The borough magistrates hold their sessional meetings here every Wednesday, and occasionally also the County Magistrates' and the County Council meetings are held.

The Clock Tower, erected by public subscription in 1857, in Great Darkgate street, on the site of the Old Town Hall, at a cost of £1,100, from the designs of Mr. Trevor Owen, of Liverpool, is a building of native stone with Bath stone dressings, containing a fine clock presented by the Pryse family, of Gogerddan; it is illuminated at night, and connected with it is a drinking fountain, over which is a bronze casting representing "Christ and the Woman of Samaria."

The Coliseum is a large hall in Terrace road, capable of seating 1,400 persons. The Masonic hall is in Market street.

Aberystwyth Public Baths, in Bath street, were erected in 1880 by a company, and include a large swimming bath, as well as other baths, but they are at present (1919) closed.

The County Police Station, Great Darkgate street, is a substantial building erected by the county at an outlay of £1,500, and contains offices for the chief constable and quarters for two sergeants and two constables, with cells for prisoners; there is also a magistrates' room, where the county and borough petty sessional courts are occasionally held.

The Corn, Butter and Cheese Market, the property of the Corporation, in Market street, was erected in 1870 from the designs of Mr. George Jones, architect, of this town and restored in 1898 from plans by Mr. T. E. Morgan; it is a plain structure of local stone, very commodious, and well suited for its purpose. The Meat and general Market is in St. James' square. The New Market Hall, the property of the Corporation, is a large and lofty structure, and serves also as an assembly room, and is well adapted for concerts and theatrical purposes.

The market days are Monday and Saturday, and the first Monday in every month is also a cattle fair or market. Fairs for horses and cattle are held on the 10th of May and in September, and the two first Mondays after the 12th November are called hiring fairs, when farmers and masters meet for hiring servants.

The London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited, Barclays Bank Ltd. the National Provincial and Union Bank of England Limited and Lloyds Bank Limited have branches here.

The Public Slaughter House, in Smithfield, the property of the Corporation, was designed by Sir James W. Szlumper, and erected at a cost of about £2,000.

Here are engineering works, iron foundries, enamelled slate works, a tannery and a brewery; a considerable trade is also carried on in timber, agricultural and mining implements.

The Royal National Lifeboat Institution has a station here, founded in 1861, with a boat called the "Elizabeth Lloyd."

The principal hotels are the Queen's, the Bell Vue, the Lion (Royal), the Talbot and the Hydro.

The Aberystwyth Infirmary and Cardiganshire General Hospital was originally established in 1821, in Little Darkgate street, as a dispensary, but in 1885 a new building of local stone was erected from the designs of Mr. Bruce Vaughan, architect, of Cardiff, on the side of a hill overlooking the town from the north, at a cost of £5,000, left for that purpose by the late Joseph Downie esq. who also endowed it with £25,000; it contains 27 beds. The infirmary is supported in part by voluntary contributions.

The Elysium grove, on the Penglais estate, at the north end of the town, is a very picturesque walk, for admission to which a charge is made.

The ruins of the Castle occupy a commanding position to the west of the town: around the rocky hill forming the site of these remains is an extensive promenade, and the grounds immediately adjoining the ruins have been laid out in walks with seats at intervals, and afford fine and extensive ocean views: the castle was erected about 1109 by Gilbert Strongbow, son of Richard de Clare, Earl of Striguil; Gwynedd Owain, in 1142, captured and burnt it: in 1164 it is said to have been destroyed by Rhys ap Gruffydd, and again in 1207 by Maelgwyn; Llewellyn, prince of North Wales, rebuilt the castle, and it was afterwards alternately held both by the Welsh and English during a long period of continual strife: in the reign of Henry IV. it was taken and held by Owain Glyndwr until 1408, when the English regained it, and in 35 Henry VIII. the Earl of Pembroke was appointed captain of the fortress: in 1631 a mint was established in it by grant from Charles I. for whom it was garrisoned during the civil war. It was, however, ultimately captured in 1647 by the Parliamentary forces, and was then dismantled; the ruins as now standing consist of a number of isolated fragments; but one embattled tower is still fairly perfect, and bears a flagstaff.

Pen Glais, commonly called "Constitution Hill," which flanks the town on the north, is about 460 feet high, and commands a splendid view of the town and bay. Plinlimmon to the east, and Cader Idris and the Carnarvon shrine ranges to the north; the descent on that side leads to Clarach bay, a small inlet, receiving a mountain stream.

Pen Dinas, an eminence about a mile south, is 400 feet above the sea level, with a steep declivity on the western side: on the summit are the remains of an ancient British encampment and a column in honour of the great Duke of Wellington, who died 14 Sept. 1852, erected by the late Major Richards, of Bryneithyn.

The Devil's Bridge, the beautiful valley of the Rheidol, and the fine falls of the Mynach, about 12 miles distant, form the principal attractions in the neighbourhood, and are easily reached by means of the Vale of Rheidol Light railway, which has its terminus at the Devil's Bridge; excursion brakes also run to Devil's Bridge daily during the season, taking the direct route above the valley of the Rheidol on the outward journey, and returning by the north road, via Pont Erwyd; the road, which, according to the survey of the Ordnance department, is at the ninth mile-stone 071 feet above the sea level, both here and at other points affords many splendid views, with the twin summits of Plinlimmon in the background amid a noble range of hills. A descent of three miles from this point brings the visitor suddenly in view of the wonderful chasm, surmounted by the Hafod hotel, from the grounds of which only the bridge and falls can be viewed; the facilities for exploring the beauties of the Mynach and Rheidol Falls in detail have of late years been greatly increased, a light bridge of wrought iron having been thrown across the bottom of the ravine, which, without intercepting the view, affords the pedestrian an opportunity of enjoying a view of the cascade from either side, and relieves him from incurring the toil of a double journey: the chasm in the rocks is upwards of 100 feet deep, although in some places scarcely 3 feet wide. The Mynach descends in a succession of falls on the northern side of the bridge, the first being 18 feet in depth, the second 60, and the third 20, when the stream

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF

The University College of Wales (one of the constituent colleges of the University of Wales), erected from the designs of Mr. J. P. Seddon, architect, of London, and opened in 1872, was originally intended for an hotel, upon which a sum of £30,000 had been spent, when it was sold to a committee for £10,000 for the purposes of a college. The style is of a mixed character, chiefly Early English, and the buildings form an extensive but irregular pile, including two lofty but dissimilar towers close together, and next these a porch of two pedimented arches converging outwards to a pier on the pavement. A fire occurred in 1885 which destroyed the north wing; it has since been reconstructed at a cost of £40,000 and made more suitable for college purposes. In 1894 the Government promised a grant of £10,000 towards completing the building, on the condition that £5,000 should be locally contributed. This amount was secured and the new central block was opened in 1898; a commodious hall of residence has also been erected for 200 women students and was opened in 1896 by H.M. Queen Alexandra, when Princess of Wales, and is now called "The Alexandra Hall." A Charter of Incorporation was granted to the college September 10th, 1889. Towards the support of the college a sum of upwards of £60,000 has been voluntarily contributed, and a grant of £8,000 yearly is received from the Government. The Welsh Library of the College, which included the Floyd collection of MSS. and the Jones and Davies collections, was handed over to the National Library of Wales in 1909. The education is non-sectarian, and the fees do not exceed £12 yearly for Arts, and for Science £16. In addition to the faculties of Arts, Science, Law and Music, there is a department for the training of secondary teachers, another for elementary teachers (day training department); and also an Agricultural Department, with a special laboratory for giving instruction in agricultural chemistry, a well-equipped dairy and a farm, at which practical instruction is given in agriculture. This department receives annually a grant of £1,000 from the Board of Agriculture, and besides college work the operations of this department are extended to the affiliated counties is obstructed and broken by masses of stone, among which it makes its way, and then finally rushes over the precipice in a grand cascade of 110 feet: the original Pont-ar-Mynach is supposed to have been built by the monks of Strata Florida, but has also been attributed to the Knights Hospitallers, who were at one time owners of considerable property in this neighbourhood: in 1753, the ancient structure having begun to exhibit signs of decay, a new arch was erected above it at the expense of the county, and the old bridge then left beneath to moulder away: but both the upper and lower bridges have since been restored. About two miles higher up the Rheidol is the Parson's bridge, a rustic timber structure, resting on precipitous rocks, overhanging the torrent; at Pont Erwyd, three miles from the Devil's bridge, are two single arched bridges, and close to the Godgerddan Arms inn is another fine fall. Other excursions of interest may be made to the fine church of Llanbadarn Vawr, the ancient causeway or breakwater called "Sarn Cynfein," the Monk's Cave, the Llyfiant valley and its double cascade; Hafod, where Handel is said to have composed the "Hallelujah Chorus"; Corris and Cader Idris; the splendid sands at Borth, Strata Florida Abbey, Talyllyn lake, Plinlimmon, Towy and Aberdovey.

The Corporation are lords of the manor, under the charter granted by Henry IV.: the land was chiefly then sand hills, covered by water at spring tides nearly as far as the mountains, but is now nearly all built on, and about four-fifths of the town belong to the Corporation: the land is let on leases of 99 years, 60 of which have expired, and the Corporation now grant renewals of 75 years on the existing leases on payment by the lessees of a fine and annual ground rent, based upon the present annual value of the property. A large number of leases having been renewed, the Corporation rental is now over £2,000 annually. Capt. Edward Athelstan Lewis Powell J.P. Sir Lewes Thomas Loveden Fryse bart. the Earl of Lisburne, George Williams Parry esq. Major Hugh Edward Bonsall, Matthew Lewis Vaughan Davies esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. and Reginald James Rice Loxdale esq. are the chief landowners in the neighbourhood.

The area of the borough and civil parish is 1,090 acres of land, 7 of inland water, 21 of tidal water and 82 of foreshore; rateable value, £50,374; the population in 1911 was 8,412. By a Local Government Board order of 1914 parts of Vaeonor Lower and Isandre were added to the borough.

The population of Holy Trinity ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 3,449; and of St. Michael, 4,962 of Cardigan, Penbroke, Carmarthen, Brecon, Radnor, Montgomery and Merioneth. The farm receives a grant of £200 a year from the Board of Agriculture and has been equipped largely at the expense of the County Councils of the surrounding district. From its central position, with regard to the whole of the Principality, as well as its great accessibility from England, healthy climate and magnificent scenery, the college undoubtedly offers many attractions. The number of students during the session 1918-19 was over 700.

The Theological College is a stone building fronting the pier, formerly a hotel: it was purchased by David Davies esq. M.P. in 1906 & presented to the Calvinistic Methodist Connexion as a residential theological college, at a total cost of about £30,000. The professors & students of Trevecca College, Breconshire, were transferred hither in the autumn of 1906. There are now (1919) about 28 students, mostly graduates

THE NATIONAL LIBRARY OF WALES.

The National Library of Wales, founded by Royal Charter, March 1907, for the furtherance in Wales of higher education & literary & scientific research, & for the collection & preservation of the literature of the Celtic peoples. The first portion of the library building was erected at a cost of £110,000. A new building to cost about £200,000 is in course of erection on a site given by the late Lord Rendel, on a hill overlooking the town. The foundation stone was laid by His Majesty King George V., July 15, 1911. Several collections have been added to the library by gift & by purchase, the most valuable & important being the library of Sir John Williams bart. G.C.V.O. which includes the Hengwrt & Peniarth manuscripts, the finest collection of Welsh MSS. extant; rare early Welsh books from Shirburn Castle, collected early in the 18th century by the Rev. Moses Williams, & manuscripts & rare books from several other sources, collected during 40 years by Sir John Williams. The Copyright Act, 1911, gives the library the right to a copy of all books published after July 12th, 1912. The number of printed books in the library is rapidly approaching 300,000. The funds of the library are derived from a grant in aid voted annually by Parliament, the amount for the current year being £7,100. The Treasury made a grant of £50,000 towards the cost of the buildings on condition that a like sum was collected by public subscriptions; the total amount of subscriptions received to date is £61,374. The library is open to readers from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily; Saturdays, 10 to 1. Forms of admission can be obtained by written or personal application to the librarian

AMMANFORD is a mining town and parish, formed in 1903, partly from the parishes of Llandeblie and Bettws, with a station on the Brynamman and Pantyffynnon branch of the Great Western railway, and is in the Llanelly division of the County of Carmarthen, on the road from Llandilo to Llanelly and Swansea, 8 miles south from Llandilo, and 17 east from Carmarthen, in the hundred of Iscennon, Amman Valley petty sessional division, county court district of Llandilo, union of Llandilo Fawr, rural deanery of Llandilo, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The parish is governed by an Urban District Council of 15 members, formed in 1903, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894." The town is lighted by electricity supplied by the Ammanford Electric Supply. In 1910 that part of Ammanford Urban District situate in the parish of Llandeblie was added to the Bettws parish, and together they form the ecclesiastical parish of Bettws-cum-Ammanford. The church of St. Michael's and All Angels (Welsh services only are held), erected in 1885, at a cost of £1,257 7s. 7d. is an edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry, and a bell cot containing one bell; there are 200 sittings. The church of All Saints, partially erected in 1915 at a cost of £9,500, is a building in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave, two aisles and tower (incomplete): there are 550 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £500, and has been held since 1910 by the Rev. John Walden Jones B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, Congregational and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. In the parish are timplat works and collieries. The Ivorites Hall is used for concerts, theatricals and public meetings, and will seat about 600 persons. Brynffin is the property and residence of the Rev. W. Richard. Lord Dynevor D.L., J.P., W. N. Jones esq. J.P. and Henry Herbert esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The area is 944 acres; rateable value, £15,338; the population in 1910 was 3,500, and in 1911, 6,074.

BARGOED is a large and rapidly increasing town and with the villages of Brithdir and Deri was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1904 from the parish of Gelligaer; it is in the north-east of the county of Glamorgan, with a junction station on the Brecon and Merthyr and Rhymney railways, 3 miles north-east from Gelligaer, about 16 miles north from Cardiff, and 12 south-east from Merthyr Tydfil, in the Caerphilly division of the county of Glamorgan, lower division of Caerphilly hundred, Lower Caerphilly petty sessional division (with the exception of the hamlet of Brithdir, which is in the Merthyr division), Merthyr union and county court district, rural deanery of Caerphilly, and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Gwladys was enlarged in 1878 by the addition of a chancel, at a cost of £1,600. The living is a vicarage, yearly value about £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1904 by the Rev. Thomas Richards B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There are several Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels in the parish. The Police court, in the Hanbury road, was erected in 1911 at a cost of £2,300. The area and rateable value are included with the parish of Gelligaer; the population in the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 12,515.

BRITHDIR is a hamlet, 5 miles north from Gelligaer and 1½ north from Bargoed, with a station on the Rhymney railway. Here is a mission church dedicated to St. Paul. The chapel of ease, at Capel Brithdir, on the mountain, is a building of stone consisting of nave only, and affording 150 sittings. Attached is a graveyard. Ysgwyddgwyn, or Deri, is 4 miles north from Gelligaer, and 2 miles south from Dowlais station, on the Brecon and Merthyr railways, and has also a mission church. The chief industry is mining.

BARRY

BARRY is a town, parish and seaport on the Bristol Channel, with a station on the Barry railway from Hafod, in the Rhondda Valley, forming a junction at Cogan with the Taff Vale railway to Cardiff and Penarth; there are also branch lines connecting the dock with the Rhondda, Aberdare and Merthyr Valleys coal fields, which join the Taff Vale at Hafod and Treforest, and the Great Western at Peterstone and St. Fagans; the town is 178 miles from London, 8 south-west from Cardiff, 5 west from Penarth, 31 east from Swansea and 20 from Newport, Mon. in the Southern division of the county of Glamorgan, head of a county court district, in Dynas Powis petty sessional division and hundred, Cardiff unions, rural deanery of Barry and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. Barry, until the commencement of the dock in 1884, was a small village of no importance, having at the census of 1881 only 17 inhabited houses, in which 18 families resided, the total population being then 85; by 1891 it had grown into a town and has now become a place of much consequence. The town is seated on rising ground, commanding views of the Bristol Channel; it was governed by a Local Board from July 12, 1888, until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council. The district governed comprises the places of Barry, Cadoxton, Merthyr Dovan and part of Sully; it is lighted with gas by the Barry Urban District Council Gas and Water Department, from their works at Barry Dock, established September 25, 1886, by a company and acquired by the Council in November, 1894; the reservoirs at Pencoedre and Stumpball have a total capacity of 1,200,000 gallons, and there is a pumping station at Biglis, Cadoxton.

The parish church of All Saints, erected in 1508 at a cost of £3,000, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel and tower, erected in 1515, nave and vestries; there are sittings for 450 persons. The register dates from the year 1620. The living is a rectory, attached to that of Porthkerry, joint net yearly income £550, with residence, in the gift of the joint owners of the Romilly estate, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Thomas William Welch L.D. of Lampeter, and surrogate.

The church of St. Nicholas, chapel of ease to All Saints, standing on an eminence about half-a-mile west of the town, is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1876, on the site of an older church, at a cost of £2,740: it consists of chancel, nave, north vestry, south porch and a western bell-cote, containing one bell: there are 180 sittings. The services are conducted by the clergy of the parish church.

The church of St. Mary, in Holton road, Barry Docks (in the parish of Cadoxton), is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style of the 15th century, erected so far as completed, at a cost of £6,200, on a site given by Mrs. Jenner, of Wenvoe Castle: it consists at present of chancel, with side chapel, nave, organ chamber and vestries, and contains an organ, provided at a cost of about £700: the font, given by the children of the district, is a replica of that in the church of Kinig: the eagle lectern of teak was presented by Mrs. W. Phillips, of Cadoxton, and the candlesticks by the Rev. G. H. Jenner, rector of Wenvoe. There are sittings for about 600 persons. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £300, in the gift of Mrs. Jenner, and held since 1902 by the Rev. John Smith Longdon M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is also rector of Cadoxton, where he resides, and rural dean.

The church of St. Paul, erected at a cost of £5,000, on a site given by Mrs. Jenner, of Wenvoe Castle, and consecrated in Sept. 1893, is a structure of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, and aisles, and will seat about 550. For particulars of living, see Merthyr Dovan.

The church of St. John (Welsh) is an iron building, and will seat 250.

The Catholic church of St. Helen, in Court road, was erected in 1907, at a cost of £2,000.

The English Congregational church, built of stone, with lecture hall and class rooms attached, in Windsor road, was erected in 1903 at a cost of £10,500; the church seating 600 and the lecture hall 400.

Bethesda Welsh Congregational chapel, High street (formerly the Public Hall), was built in 1887, and purchased for its present uses in 1891 at a cost of £1,100; it will seat 600 persons.

The Presbyterian chapel in High street, erected in 1895, at a cost of £3,000, is a building of stone and will seat 550 persons.

The United Methodist chapel, Court road, Barry Dock, is a building of stone, erected in 1905 at a cost of £2,700, and will seat 600 persons.

For other places of worship, see page 96.

The Barry Seamen's Institute, in connection with the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, standing in Dock View road, is a structure of brick, erected in 1890, at a cost of £900, subscribed chiefly by Cardiff merchants: the building comprises coffee bar, reading and service rooms.

The Glamorgan Residential Training College for Women Students, opened in 1914, is built upon a site overlooking the town. It consists of three blocks of buildings connected by covered pathways. The middle building contains a central hall, library, science laboratories, art, handwork and class rooms. On either side stand the hostels, each providing for 65 students.

The County Police Station in Holton road, Barry, erected in 1886, comprises quarters for an inspector, three sergeants and 16 single constables, and has four cells: a new court house and offices adjoining were erected in 1891; the petty sessions are held here twice weekly; there is a branch station at Harbour road, containing 3 cells and quarters for a sergeant and 10 constables, and another at Weston hill, Cadoxton, with quarters for 1 sergeant and 8 constables.

The Barry Sanatorium for infectious diseases is at Merthyr Dovan.

An accident and surgical hospital was erected in 1909 by the Urban District Council at a cost of £6,341; there is provision for 21 beds; it is maintained by the Council and managed by a committee consisting of nine members of the Council and one co-opted by the Council, who meet monthly at the Council offices.

The Public Free Library in Holton road, Barry, was opened in Nov. 1892, and contains 11,680 volumes; attached to the library are three reading rooms, viz.: one at Barry and one each at Cadoxton and Barry Island respectively.

The Barry Railway Company's offices, erected on a plateau, comprise a three-storied building, covering 2,060 yards.

The statue of the late David Davies, who died in 1890, was erected by the Barry Railway Company.

Near Barry are the ruins of Barry castle, founded by a Norman knight named De Barri, in the 13th century; a gateway and portcullis chamber alone are now remaining. The trustees of Lord Romilly (a minor) are lords of the manor and the principal landowners. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, has limestone. The chief crops are wheat, oats and pasture.

The area of the Urban District and parish is 3,666 acres of land, 204 of inland water and 294 of foreshore; rateable value in 1919, £273,195; the population in 1919 was 36,503, including 1,250 on board coasting vessels.

BARRY DOCKS AND RAILWAYS.—The Barry Railway Company has about 65 miles of railways, to connect the dock with the various collieries and also with the Taff Vale Company's lines at Penarth Dock. The collieries in the Rhondda and Aberdare valleys are reached by means of junctions with the Taff Vale railway, at Hafod and Treforest, and the collieries in the Llynvi, Ogmore and other valleys in that neighbourhood by a junction with the Great Western railway at Peterstone. They have also junctions with the Blymney railway at Penrhos and Energlyn, and with the Brecon and Merthyr railway at Duffryn Isaf. The Vale of Glamorgan railway affords a direct route from the Llynvi, Garw, and Ogmore coalfields to Barry Dock, a distance of about 20 miles, and is worked by the Barry Railway Company; this line has junctions with the Great Western railway at Bridgend, and with that Company's Ogmore Valley branch. Barry Dock No. 1 was opened in 1889, and is on the north shore of the Bristol Channel, about 9 miles south-west of Cardiff and occupies the eastern side of the old channel between Barry Island and the mainland. The Docks entrance is at the eastern end, and lies well under the shelter of the high land of Barry Island from all westerly and south-westerly winds, and is sheltered southward and to the south-east. The breakwaters completely protect the only points of exposure. From Barry Island to Sully Island, which is about 3 miles east, there is good anchorage ground. The waterway between the breakwater heads is 350 feet, and the entrance is lighted by an oscillating white light of the fifth order exhibited in a lighthouse, 44 feet above high water ordinary spring tides on the west breakwater head, and a fixed white light on the east breakwater head. The channel has been dredged a distance of 450 yards from the breakwater heads to the entrances to the dock, of which there are two, one leading to the basin available for 2½ hours before and the same after high water, and the other, known as the Lady Windsor lock, can be used at any state of the tide, the entrance channel having 16 feet of water at low water ordinary spring tides. Barry is consequently the only port in the Bristol Channel at which vessels can enter or leave at any time or state of the tide.

The basin entrance, and the opening, or passage between the basin and Dock No. 1 are 80 feet wide. Both are closed by single pairs of gates which are worked by direct acting hydraulic rams. Timber guiding jetties, 200 feet in length, are erected seaward of the basin entrance and one jetty of masonry, with timber fenders, 600 feet long, is to the west of, and leads to the entrance to the Lady Windsor Lock. The depth of water on the sill of the original dock entrance is as follows:—

High water ordinary spring tides.....	37.7 feet
Low water ordinary spring tides.....	1.6 "
High water ordinary neap tides.....	29.3 "
Low water ordinary neap tides.....	9.7 "

The available depths are 3 feet more at the centre of the inverts, but as the bilges of vessels are now oftentimes very square, the depths safely to be relied on are as above, at which depths the bilges of flat-floored vessels will pass free everywhere. The extra depth at the centre, however, may be of great utility in the case of vessels of exceptional draught, which could be kept in the centre of the entrance.

No. 1 Dock is 3,100 feet in length, and the maximum width is 1,100 feet, divided at the western end by the mole into two arms 1,500 feet long and about 500 feet wide, and 1,200 feet long and 300 feet wide respectively; the full width is left at the eastern end for a length of 1,600 feet. The water area of the dock, with 26 feet of water at high water of neap tides, is 70 acres, but the water area of the dock at high water, ordinary spring tides, is 73 acres.

No. 2 Dock is 3,338 feet long with a width of from 400 to 600 feet, and lies to the eastward of Dock No. 1, from which it is approached by a passage closed by a caisson, and has an area of 34 acres. The north side of this dock, the greater part of which is sloped similar to Dock No. 1, is fitted with ten high-level coal tips, and three high-level movable tips. The south side is constructed with a perpendicular wall, and is reserved for the import trade, for which ample sidings, sheds and warehouses are provided. A transit shed 500 feet by 160 feet was constructed in 1901 for imports. At the east end two timber ponds of an area of 6 acres and 35 acres respectively were also constructed for the use of the timber trades.

The Lady Windsor Deep Water Lock, which leads direct from the sea to Dock No. 1, has a length of 647 feet, a depth of 60 feet, and is 65 feet wide, and occupies the space immediately west of the basin. It can be divided by means of gates into two locks, each large enough to take an average size steamer. The gates, of which three pairs are provided, are similar in construction to those at the original basin and entrance, and worked in the same manner. The depth of water in the sills of the lock is as follows:—

High water, ordinary spring tide	49.8 feet
Low water, ordinary spring tide	13.7 "
High water, ordinary neap tide	41.4 "
Low water, ordinary neap tide	21.8 "

Vessels drawing 13 feet of water can enter and leave the docks through Lady Windsor lock at low water, ordinary spring tides, and vessels drawing 18 feet can enter and leave at low water during 15 days in each month. Traffic by road and railway is carried across the passage and over the Lady Windsor lock by means of two rolling bridges. The basin, which is 600 feet long by 500 feet wide, with an area of seven acres, has vertical walls, and the eastern side is used for a large timber import trade, a considerable portion of which goes to the Midland Counties.

The shipping of coal at Dock No. 1 takes place on the north side of the dock, on the mole, at the west end of the dock, on the east side, and at the west end of the south wall. On the north side are 11 fixed coal-tips at distances apart varying from 174 to 300 feet, so as to suit the hatchways of different ships, and also one movable tip, while provision has been made for the erection of two further movable tips. There are six fixed tips on the mole, 300 feet apart, one at the west end of the dock, two on the south wall, and three movable ones. Additional tips are in course of erection on the south wall, three fixed and two movable. In dock No. 2 the coal is shipped on the north side by ten high level fixed tips, and three high level movable tips. These tips have lifts of 37, 42 and 45 feet, and are each capable of lifting 20 tons. The greatest quantity of coal shipped from one tip in one hour is 592 tons. By using three of the movable tips, and at the same time a fixed tip, coal can be put on board a vessel through four hatchways at the same time, by this means very quick despatch can be given. All tips are provided with two weighbridges, one on the full and the other on the empty roads. The sidings are so arranged that the full waggons are drawn down to the tips by means of a hydraulic capstan, and the empty waggons clear themselves by gravity.

All work of the dock is carried on by hydraulic pressure, and pumping engines for this purpose are placed in engine houses, one at the south-east end, one at the north-west end of Dock No. 1, and one near the south-east end of Dock No. 2. The stone for the walls was brought partly from the shore near Sully, where a red sandstone is found, and the remainder and larger portion from a quarry of mountain limestone near Wenwoc, about 4½ miles northward of the dock: the quins, sill stones, copings and similar parts are of Cornish granite. The whole of the docks, coal tips, sidings, workshops, stations and works are lighted by electric light, with an installation of 140 arc lights, of 2,500 candle power, and 4,000 incandescent lamps of from 16 to 500 candle power. There are three graving docks, two at the north-east corner, belonging to the Barry Graving Dock Company, the largest being 778 feet long, 100 feet broad, and 27 feet deep; the other, near the Lady Windsor lock, is the property of the Barry Railway Company, and is capable of accommodating the largest merchant steamer afloat. The pumping machinery for this graving dock consists of six centrifugal main pumps capable together of pumping 136,000 gallons per minute, and two small drain pumps capable together of pumping 12,000 gallons per minute. They are supplied with steam at 100lb. pressure from 8 Lancashire boilers. The water can be either pumped into the docks or into the sea. Two of these graving docks can accommodate four large vessels at the same time. The capital expended by the Company upon various works up to December, 1912, was £6,338,798. The first sod was cut by the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. then Lord Windsor, in November, 1884. The first pump began to work in March, 1895, and the second in October, 1895. The dock was opened for traffic on the 18th of July, 1889.

BARRY ISLAND (so-called) is a popular seaside resort formerly surrounded by water but now joined to the mainland by two good roads; it lies on the north shore of the Bristol Channel, and has a terminal station on the Barry railway one mile south-west from Barry, in the county of Glamorgan and ecclesiastical parish of Sully, but for all civil purposes is included in the Barry Urban District.

The island is laid out with roads and walks, the narrow spur of land terminating at Friars Point forming a natural promenade, from which extensive views of the channel are obtained.

Whitmore Bay, between Nell's Point and Friars Point, is a crescent-shaped inlet with firm and beautiful sands, entirely free from pebbles and thoroughly safe for boating and bathing.

The Mission Church of St Barok is an iron structure;

BORTH is an ecclesiastical parish and a watering place, in the townships of Cyfoeth-y-Brenin and Henllys, on the shore of Cardigan Bay and in the county of Cardigan, 3 miles south of the river Dovey, with a station on the Cambrian railway, 8 north from Aberystwyth and 210 from London, and is in the hundred of Geneu'r-Glyn, Aberystwyth union and county court district, Upper Geneu'r-Glyn petty sessional division, rural deanery of Llanbadarn-Fawr, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. The sands here are very firm and admirably suited for bathing, and extend for about 3 miles along the coast to the estuary of the Dovey. The village, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, consisted only of a few fishing cottages, and owes its modern growth and popularity to its fine sands and to the fact that it was selected in 1876-7 as the temporary abode of Uppingham school; the village consists of a street, about a mile in length, running parallel with the shore, with a number of lodging houses, and a large hotel, once occupied by the Uppingham boys. It is supplied with water from the neighbouring wells. The church of St. Matthew is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1879 and consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are 264 sittings. The register dates from the year 1879. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1912 by the Rev. Edwin Philip Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Here are

BOSHESTON (or Bosherton) is a parish in the county of Pembroke, and on the Bristol Channel, 5 miles south-by-west from Pembroke, which is the nearest railway station, and about 14 from Tenby, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Castlemartin, county court district of Pembroke Dock, union of Pembroke, and in the rural deanery of Castlemartin, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, north porch, and a tower containing 3 bells; in the south transept is a recumbent effigy of a lady of the 14th century, under a crocketed canopy, and a half-effigy of an ecclesiastic, both of which were placed in their present positions in 1853; the chancel contains a double piscina and an almyer, and in the south transept is a single piscina and a hagioscope. The stained east window, a triple lancet, and the oak lectern are memorials to the late Rev. William Allen M.A. for over 40 years rector here. The church was repaired in 1853 and affords 120 sittings. The registers date from the year 1670. In the churchyard is an ancient stone cross, rising from a graduated base of three steps. The living is a rectory; net income £160, with 65 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Earl Cawdor, and held since 1013 by the Ven. Archdeacon David Edward Williams M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. In a bleak valley, near the coast, and almost hidden from view by the cliffs, stands St. Govan's or St. Gofen's chapel, a small edifice of the latter part of the 13th century; it is a plain, rectangular structure, with a vaulted roof, about 27 feet in length, and retains a stone altar, a piscina and an ambyry; on the north side is a round-headed doorway, leading to a recess in the rocks, said to have been the abode of an anchorite; there are three windows, and a few rude steps lead up to the chapel, near which is a holy well, and a narrow but perilous fissure in the cliffs to the west is called the "Huntsman's Leap." Bosherton Mere is a funnel-shaped cavern or fissure, communicating with the sea, and in which the tide and wind under certain conditions produce a roaring sound, heard at a considerable distance; on the Style hills is an ancient rectangular camp. The trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, are the principal landowners. The soil is limestone; chief crops, oats, barley and roots. The area is 1,635 acres, 29 of water and 50 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,033; the population in 1911 was 134.

BRECHFA is a parish in the Carmarthen division of the county of Carmarthen, 6½ miles north from Nant-gareid station, on the Central Wales and Carmarthen Junction branch of the London and North Western railway, 12 north-east from Carmarthen, and 10 north-west from Llandilofawr, in the hundred of Cathinog, petty seasonal division and county court district of Llandilo, union of Llandilofawr, and in the rural deanery of Llandilo, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Teilo, erected in 1893, at a cost of £1,300 and restored in 1904, is a building of douling stone, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch, and a turret containing 2 bells. The church affords 120 sittings. The registers of baptisms and burials date from the year 1780, marriages 1806. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £150, in the gift of Mrs. Philipps and the Hon. R. G. G. Morgan Grenville alternately, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Thomas Jones, of St. Bees. The church room, erected in 1909 at a cost of £300, affords 300 sittings. There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel. Mrs. Philipps is the principal landowner. The soil is clay; the chief crops are barley and oats. The area is 534 acres; rateable value, £341; the population in 1911 was 91.

BRECON

BRECON, or Brecknock, is a municipal borough, market and union town, head of a county court district, petty sessional division and chief town of its county, in the hundreds of Merthyr and Pencelly, rural deanery of Brecon (first part), archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's, and is 190 miles by rail and 170 by road from London, 59 from Bristol, 38½ from Hereford, 40½ from Swansea, 33 from Neath, 22½ from Merthyr, 26 from Abergavenny and 14 from Crickhowell. The town has railway communication with the north via Three Cocks Junction, Builth and Llanidloes: eastward by the Hay and Hereford line; to the south via Merthyr or Neath, these lines uniting at Brecon, and westward by way of Three Cocks Junction, Builth road & Carmarthen, or via Neath and Swansea. The Brecon and Merthyr and Cambrian lines unite at Talylyn, a short distance north-east of the town; still more to the north-east, between Brecon and Hay, is Three Cocks, the junction of the Hay and Hereford and Cambrian railways. A service of motor omnibuses to run between Abergavenny and Brecon, passing through Crickhowell, was begun by the Great Western Railway Company, 1 July, 1905: these vehicles also carry the mails. The Brecon and Abergavenny canal was completed in 1311 and communicates with Newport and Bristol.

Brecon is situated in a picturesque valley, surrounded by magnificent scenery, the Brecon beacons on the south rising to a height of 2,010 feet, being a conspicuous feature; the town is on the banks of the rivers Usk and Honddŷ, here crossed by several bridges, the chief of which, spanning the Usk and connecting Brecon with Llanfaes, consists of four arches and is strengthened by massive angular buttresses. H. Lloyd, translating from the "Cambria" of Caradoc, says that in the fifth century the town was under the jurisdiction of a petty chieftain, named Brychan, from whom the county derived the name of Brycheiniog. In the reign of Henry I. Bernard Newmarch, who conquered Bleddyn ap Maenarch, at that time Prince of Brycheiniog, demolished Coer Bannon and employed the materials in building a castle, adjacent to which, in process of time, a town arose, called by the Welsh, Aber Honddŷ, and, becoming the capital of Brycheiniog, received from the English the name of Brecknock or Brecon.

Brecon borough for some considerable period returned one member to Parliament, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885" (43 and 49 Vict. c. 23), the representation of the borough was merged in that of the county. It is the seat of the assizes and quarter sessions. The town was incorporated in the reign of Philip and Mary, but under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 & 6 Wm. IV. c. 76) the corporation now consists of a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors, who act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. The borough has a separate commission of the peace. The town has several good streets, one being of considerable width; it is lighted with gas by a company, formed in 1870, well paved and is supplied with water from works, situate about one mile south-west of the town, the property of the Brecon Corporation; the reservoir has a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons, with two filter-beds, capable of holding 96,000 gallons of water each. The whole town was thoroughly drained by works carried out during 1876-9 by the Corporation at a cost of £10,000. The sewage outfall works are 1½ miles east of the town.

The Promenade, a delightful walk along the side of the river Usk, and a little south of the Castle, was constructed and planted with trees by the Corporation, and extends from the mouth of the Honddŷ westwards; it is amply furnished with seats, and forms an agreeable resort for visitors; at its western extremity is a boat-house, where boats can be hired for excursions on the fine stretch of water about a mile in length, formed here by the Corporation on a portion of the river Usk, and known as "Newton Pool"; this pool also affords good bathing facilities.

The Captains' Walk is a broad and high terrace, about 250 yards in length, extending in a gentle curve from the Shire Hall to the river Usk, where there still remains a fragment of the old town wall, with a window opening; the walk is shaded on the outside, where it overlooks a road, with large trees, and seats have been placed at intervals. In the grounds of Watton Mount, opposite the Shire Hall, is another portion of the old town wall.

The Priory Groves, which is the name given to the thickly wooded slopes on the north side of the ravine of the Honddŷ, begin immediately east of the priory church and may be reached either from the churchyard or by an iron footbridge from the street, known as the "Strut": the groves are intersected by several paths and densely overshadowed by fine trees, with thick underwood, and continue eastward for over half a mile, affording a sheltered and very agreeable strolling place.

The church of St. John the Evangelist or the Holyrood belonged to the Benedictine priory, founded in 1055, by Bernard Newmarch, and is a grand cruciform structure, in the Norman, Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of choir, with Havard's chapel on the north and sacristy on the south side, clerestoried nave, aisles, north transept or Battle chapel, south transept or Norman chapel, north porch and a fine central embattled tower, about 90 feet in height, with angle turret, and containing 5 bells: the eastern portions, including the chancel, transepts and central tower, were considered by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. to date chiefly from about 1220-30: the nave, with its aisles, was rebuilt or transformed in the Decorated period, being also lengthened westward, but the piers of the nave arcades, though altered by the 14th century builders, are Norman: in this period also the eastern chapels and the transept were completed and an upper stage added to the tower: Havard's chapel, on the north side of the chancel, is a Decorated work, constructed out of earlier chapels, and opens into the choir by two doorways, one of which is cut through a fine canopied arch of the 14th century, and into the transept by two open arches, now clumsily blocked with screen work: the chancel retains a triple drain, three sedilia and aumbries, placed on either side of the altar: the magnificent east windows, consisting of five graduated lancets, form a memorial to the officers and men of the 24th Regiment (South Wales Borderers), who fell at Isandlwana, Jan. 22nd, 1879; the great west window is a memorial to the Rev. Prebendary H. Williams M.A. for 34 years vicar of the parish, and in the transept is a large stained window, the gift (in 1903) of the 2nd Battalion South Wales Borderers, in memory of their comrades who fell in the South African War: the vaulted stone roof of the choir, continued by Sir G. G. Scott from the incomplete vaulting shafts of the ancient architecture, is interesting as the completion of a design at least six hundred years old: the sacristy, on the south side, exhibits some remains of a double piscina, and there are traces of the chapel of St. Laurence, which stood south of it: in the south wall are the stairs of a wall passage: four guilds made chapels in the nave aisles; the tailors and shoe makers on the north and the weavers and buckers on the south, while the glovers met under a thorn tree in the churchyard: at the east end of the nave on either side, are flights of stairs formerly leading to the roof loft: the font is a very early example, and is possibly pre-Norman: in the north aisle, under a finely moulded and recessed arch of the Decorated period, lies the recumbent effigy of a civilian, and of a layman and his wife, 1359; at the west end of the north aisle, placed on a massive wooden slab, lies a wooden effigy of a lady, 1355; the upper portions of the arms are gone, otherwise this figure is in fairly good preservation: the floor of the Havard chapel is covered with slabs bearing inscriptions, arms, and in some cases figures in relief; on the south side is an altar tomb, with recumbent effigies to Sir David Williams Kt. justice of the King's Bench, and Margaret, his wife, 1613; in the wall of the south aisle is a doorway leading into the cloister: the total length of the church internally is 205 feet, the width varying from 29 feet in the chancel to 34 feet 6 inches in the nave, or 60 feet including the aisles: the late Prof. E. A. Freeman considered this church to be "indisputably the third church not in a state of ruin in the Principality," standing next in order after the cathedrals of St. David's and Llandaff, and speaks of the choir as furnishing "one of the choicest examples of the Early English style"; and Sir G. G. Scott, when reporting on the fabric in 1860, described the quality of the architecture to be "as good and well studied, and as refined as can be found in any building of its period, in this, or perhaps in any other country": after the Dissolution in the reign of Henry VIII. the Priory lands were granted to Sir John Price, the great Welsh antiquary, and from him descended through the female line to the present owner, Lord Camden: the Priory church became a parish church, but the owners of the Priory lands retained certain rights as to the chancel, which they still possess: in 1836 the then Lord Camden repaired the chancel roof, and various renovations were effected subsequently, but it was not until 1861 that the true restoration of the building was begun, under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott B.A. when the beautiful choir, tower and transept were restored, and the pinnacles replaced at the east end of the choir: in 1874-5 the work was resumed, and the entire restoration completed at a total cost of £7,200: the church was re-opened on Whit-Tuesday, 1875, by the Bishop of St. David's: three stained windows were erected in 1890, and a new organ provided at a cost of £1,300: there are 2,000 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1727; marriages, 1735. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of St. Mary annexed, net yearly value £251, in the gift of Rev. Arthur Garnous-Williams, vicar of Bettws-Penpont, and others, and held since 1897 by the Right Rev. and Ven. Edward Latham Bevan D.D. of Hertford College, Oxford, Lord Bishop of Swansea and archdeacon of Brecon.

St. Mary's church, in the centre of the town, is a long and comparatively low building of stone now chiefly in the Gothic style, but retaining some of the Norman arches of the original church, and consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a massive embattled western tower, containing 8 bells: the tower has been carefully restored, the bell framing renewed, and bells rebung, at a cost of about £1,500: the stained east window is a memorial to John Church Pearce Church, given by his father, Lient.-Col. William Pearce K.H. J.P.; a memorial stained window was added in the south aisle in 1890 to John Kirk esq.: the church was restored, enlarged, and its arcades in part renewed in 1857, and it now affords 1,000 sittings, of which half are free. The register (of baptisms and marriages only) dates from the year 1685. The living is annexed to the vicarage of St. John the Evangelist.

St. David's church, in LLANFAES, is an edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower with spire, containing 4 bells: the stained east window was erected in memory of John Church Pearce Church, son of Lient.-Col. William Pearce K.H. J.P.: the church was rebuilt in 1850 at a cost of about £1,100: there are 260 sittings. The register dates from the year 1700. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £450, with $\frac{3}{4}$ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Archdeacon of Brecon, and held since 1915 by the Rev. John Simon B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

The Mission chapel in Avenue road, erected in 1888 as a memorial to the late David Thomas esq. is a small building of wood and cement, and will hold about 120 persons.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. Michael, erected in 1850-1, at a cost of about £2,000, is a stone edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave and a bell turret: adjoining is a residence for the officiating priest.

For other places of worship, see p. 116.

The Cemetery, close to the town, has an area of 5 acres, with two mortuary chapels: it cost £3,000 and was opened in 1858: it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

The Shire Hall, opened in 1842, is a building of stone in the Grecian Doric style, erected at a cost of about £12,000, from designs by Thomas Henry Wyatt esq. of London: it contains a fine and spacious court, large grand jury room, with a witnesses' waiting room attached, judges' robing and retiring rooms, counsels' robing room, and various other offices: there is also a second court, in which the criminal business is carried on. In 1904 offices for the county treasurer, county surveyor and clerk to the Education Committee were added. The quarter sessions are held at the Shire Hall, petty sessions for the county being held in the second court every alternate Friday: the sittings of the county court are also held here bi-monthly; meetings of the county council are also held here in January, April, July, October and November, on the last Friday in each month at 11.30 a.m. with the exception of the November meeting, which is held at 12 noon.

The Guild Hall, in High street, is an edifice of stone, first erected in 1775, restored in 1809 by Sir Charles Morgan, and partly rebuilt, at the cost of about £4,000, by Colonel John Morgan, twice high sheriff and eight times mayor of the borough, who also presented the clock: it comprises an assembly room, a large room in which the meetings of the town council and the borough sessions are held, and a mayor's parlour. In the Guild Hall is a fine life-size portrait, by B. S. Marks, of Col. John Morgan, presented to him by the townfolk of Brecon. There are also oil paintings of the late Dr. James Williams and Miss Gwenllian Morgan (first lady mayor of Brecon), and a bust portrait of the late Bishop Lloyd of Bangor. The municipal insignia include two maces, a mayor's chain and a corporate seal. The two maces are of silver, 24 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length, and have slender shafts, and semi-globular heads, surrounded by a rich double banding of fleur-de-lis, so arranged that the upper half forms a circlet; on the flat top are the royal arms; these maces probably date from the reign of James I.: the mayor's chain and badge, presented in 1881, by Lewis Jones esq. is of gold, and consists of 20 small knobs or bosses, united by links in short lengths: the pendent badge displays the town arms, viz.: "on a field arg. a mantle of estate gu. doubled ermine"; the ancient seal is lost: the modern seal is circular, and also bears the same arms.

The County Police Depot, completed in 1866, adjoins the Shire Hall, and consists of a block containing chief constable's and general public offices, clothing store &c. and sergeants' residence, together with lock-up containing 5 cells, warder's room &c. communicating by corridor with the main building; the new building faces the Captain's walk, and was erected at a cost of about £2,000.

The Brecknockshire Agricultural Society, established in 1755 and revived in 1817, is the oldest institution of the kind in the Principality, and holds its meetings at the Shire Hall; in 1890 the meeting was visited by H.R.H. the late Duke of Clarence K.G.; the exhibitions of the Society are usually held at Brecon in the month of September of each year; Mr. William Thomas Isaac is the sec. and Mr. James Morgan the treasurer. The general market place is in High street, the market day being Friday. The cattle market is in Free street; it is very well supplied, and is a great market for cattle, sheep &c. Fairs are held on the first Tuesday in every month, and the third Tuesday in May, June, July, August, September, October, November and December. The first Tuesday in May and November are pleasure and hiring fairs. The market place, formerly the property of the Brecon Markets Company, now belongs to the Corporation, and contains a valuable clock, presented by the late Col. John Morgan.

His Majesty's Prison, in Newgate street, the smallest in Great Britain, and originally built in 1780, was enlarged in 1858 and 1871, a chapel, kitchen, reception room, male infirmary, magistrates' room, governor's office, chief warder's room, clerk's office, and store rooms and a house for the governor being erected at the same time on the eastern side of the gaol. The Old Borough Gaol, in the Postern, on the banks of the river Honddŷ, erected in 1842, is a very small and plain building of stone, and is now used as a dwelling house.

A bronze statue of the great Duke of Wellington, by John Evan Thomas esq. F.S.A. of London, was erected in 1854, facing the Bulwark.

The drinking trough, in the Bulwark, was erected in 1902 at a cost of about £50, to commemorate the coronation of His late Majesty King Edward VII.

The County and Borough Savings Bank, in the Watton, is open on Fridays from 12 noon to 2 p.m. and Saturdays 7 to 8 p.m.

The Brecon and County Club, Lion street, established in 1881, has over 100 members.

The Liberal Club, in the Bulwark, established in 1894, has about 200 members; Mr. T. Roy Parry, sec.

The Northcote Constitutional Club, formerly in the Street, but now in Lion street, was opened in March, 1903, and has about 140 members; the Tredegar Conservative and Unionist Club, in the Street, was opened 15th December, 1904; it contains reading, smoking and billiard rooms &c. and has about 104 members.

The Church House Club, in Lion street, has about 120 members.

The principal hotels are the "Castle," overlooking the Usk and having attached grounds, in which stand the remains of the castle; the "New Lion" in the Street; and the "Wellington," all of which are first-class family and commercial houses.

The "Brecon and Radnor Express," published Wednesday, the "Radnor Express," published Tuesday, and the "Brecon County Times," published Wednesday for Thursday, are the county papers.

The Brecknock County and Borough Infirmary, in the Watton, was founded in 1832, for the treatment of the sick poor of the county, and is supported by voluntary contributions; it contains 16 beds. The number of in-patients in 1918 was 147 and of out-patients, 244.

The principal charities are as follows:—The Bough-wood, founded by Rice Powel, in 1686, has an income of about £500 yearly, and is spent principally in apprenticing boys to various trades; several parishes share in the benefits of this fund: Games' almshouses, for 6 poor women, are situated in Llanfaes, and were founded in 1721 by Catherine Games, who also left the sum of £600, the interest to be applied for the use of the inmates: the Gwendwr charity was founded by Sir David Williams, in 1612; Matthew Berrow left £50 in 1726, the interest of which is annually applied in apprenticing one boy of the town of Brecon: Sybil Collinson left by will, in 1815, the sum of £1,000 in trust, £1 to be given yearly to each of the 12 women in the almshouses, the rest to be applied to the support of the schools and distributed among the poor: George Price Watkins, in 1814, left £1,000 3 per Cent. Consols, the interest to be given annually to the poor of the parishes of St. John's and St. Mary Brecon: in 1674 Edmund Jones esq. then of Buckland, in the county of Brecon, conveyed certain premises in High street Superior ward to trustees for ever, the rents to be applied for the placing out and settling one or more poor children of the borough, apprentices; the yearly value of the charity is about £80: there are also other smaller charities.

Brecon Castle was originally built in the reign of William the Conqueror, by Bernard de Newmarch, already mentioned, who constructed it of material taken from the Roman station Bannium (Caer Bannau), and made it his chief residence. The existing remains are inconsiderable, but the principal portion, standing in the grounds of the Castle Hotel and immediately overlooking the river Honddu, comprises two embattled towers, rising from the river bank, with the crenellated wall uniting them, and another block, running west, and comprising the great hall, now roofless, and an undercroft: the window openings are intact, those of the great hall being tall lancets, slightly cusped: the southern tower contains several rooms which have been partially restored, and from its summit, and the adjoining parapet of the great hall, an excellent view is obtained of the town, the river Usk and the Beacons: within an open area in the Castle the bases and portions of columns of an undercroft remain in situ, and there are other fragments: the Castle wall, continued from the north tower, crossed the road above the bridge over the Honddu to what is now called the Ely tower, a semi-octagonal structure, of which only part of the basement is now left, occupying a lofty mound in the garden of the house opposite. The Benedictine Priory, already alluded to, was founded about 1095, by Bernard de Newma ch, as a cell to Battle Abbey, Sussex: at the Dissolution there were seven monks, and revenues estimated at £112. The remains, apart from the church, are situated on an ascent close to the river Honddu, surrounded by luxuriant groves, and comprise a range of buildings extending from the south aisle of the church for about 45 yards and apparently forming the west side of the cloisters: these buildings comprise store places, a coach house, and at the south end a dwelling house: on what was once an upper floor in the coach house is a square-headed fireplace, the upper slab of the mantel being a 16th century gravestone: the Priory house, about 25 yards distant from the south transept, is outwardly a modern mansion west of the church, and adjoining the road is another building which has been repaired and new-roofed, and from this runs the precinct wall, which is pierced by two gateways.

Camden road and the Watten were planted in 1882 with trees, those in the latter road being the gift of the late Mrs. Cobb, of Nythia.

Near the town are the remains of several Roman camps or stations, one of which, about three miles distant, called "Caer Bannau," is supposed to have been formed by Ostorius Scapula, the first Roman general who penetrated into this part of the country. It stands on the north bank of the river, and its walls and entrance gateways may still be traced. To the south of the town are the Beacon mountains, rising 2,910 feet above the level of the sea, and being the highest peaks in South Wales.

Brecon was the birthplace of Mrs. Siddons, the celebrated actress, who was born in a house in High street, now known as the "Siddons wine vaults," July 5th, 1755, being the eldest daughter of Mr. Roger Kemble, the manager of an itinerant company of comedians; she died in London, June 8th, 1831 and was buried at Paddington, in the churchyard of which is a fine seated effigy of white marble: here also was born Dr. Hugh Price, the founder of Jesus College, Oxford, who died in 1574, and Mr. Theophilus Jones, an historian, who died in 1812.

Dinas, the seat of John Conway Lloyd esq. J.P. is beautifully situated on the banks of the river Usk, about 1 mile from the town.

Ffrwdrech is the seat of Capt. J. D. D. Evans J.P. Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, and the Marquess Camden are chief landowners.

The soil is clay; subsoil, principally clay and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, roots and pasturage.

The area of the municipal borough is 2,868 acres; rateable value, £28,422; the population in 1911 was—St. John the Evangelist, 1,825; St. Mary, 2,446, including 156 military and 47 other inmates of the barracks; St. David Within, 1,505, including 94 officers and inmates in the Poor Law Institution and 28 in H.M. Prison.

The area of St. David Within parish is 537 acres of land and 15 of water; rateable value, £3,773. The area of St. David without parish is 2,271 acres of land and 2 of water; rateable value, £2,342. The area of St. John the Evangelist parish is 1,534 acres of land and 18 of water; rateable value, £7,276. The area of St. Mary parish is 704 acres of land and 27 of water; rateable value, £16,328.

LLANFAES, on the opposite bank of the Usk, is connected with Brecon by a bridge.

Parish Clerks (St. Mary's), H. Jones, 31 Struet; (St. David's) David Morgan, 7 Llandaff row.

VENNYFACH is a township and hamlet in the parish of St. John the Evangelist, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles west. The area is 1,420 acres of land and 30 of water; rateable value, £1,593; the population in 1911 was 79.

CASTLE INN and CHRIST'S COLLEGE are parishes not included in the municipal borough, and will be found in their alphabetical order in the Directory.

COLLEGES

The College of Christ of Brecknock stands on the banks of the river Usk & is built on the site of a priory of Dominican friars. It was made collegiate in 1541 by Henry VIII. who, for the purpose of teaching "good manners to the surrounding population" removed to Brecon a college that existed at Abergwill, in Carmarthenshire. The college, as founded by the king, was a collegiate church, with its dean & prebends or canons, on a foundation similar to that of Westminster Abbey. By the Cathedrals Act the ecclesiastical character of the institution was destroyed & a new institution of a purely educational nature was created in its stead. The only traces of its ecclesiastical character are now found in its beautiful chapel & the Divinity Lectureship attached to it. The college is now a public school administered under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, by a body of governors, including the Bishops of Llandaff & St. David's, Lord Tredegar, Lord Glanusk & the Principal of St. David's College, Lampeter. Formerly the scholars were largely drawn from the town of Brecon, but they are now chiefly boarders residing in the head master's & assistant masters' houses. The college buildings, situated in grounds of about 35 acres in extent, may be divided into three portions—the old monastic church of the Dominican priory, which, roughly speaking, forms the north end of the group; the new school buildings, which run north & south at right angles to the church & by a long internal corridor of about 120 feet in length form a connection between it & the third part of the group, namely, the previously existing school buildings & head master's house. Of the church, which was dedicated to St. Nicholas, only the choir is now intact, & is used as the school chapel; it is about 66 feet long by 26 wide, & 63 feet in height, & affords a remarkably good & pure example of the Early English Pointed style, and the fine east window contains figures chiefly outlined on the glass: on the walls are several monuments, including one to George Bull, bishop of St. David's, 1705-10 & another to Theophilus Jones, an historian of the county at the beginning of the 19th century: the west end of the chapel is filled up by a solid wall with a deeply moulded entrance, which has been surmounted by a bell-turret & inclosed by an ante-chapel, in which are some interesting monuments, with effigies in marble, to the Lucy family & others: the remains of the nave consist of the main walls up to about the height of the window sills, & a part of the main arcade on the north side, with a circular-headed north doorway & the lower part of the west window: a portion of the east end of the north aisle was restored some years ago & is used as a vestry: the chapel is lofty & of good proportions, and has a modern timber roof of pointed form—boarded and richly panelled in pitch pine from the designs of Mr. Seddon, of London: the side windows form on the north side a continuous row of plain lofty single lancets, eleven in number: on the south side are four similar windows, opposite the four eastermost on the north side; internally these windows have their jambs deeply splayed, so as almost to meet, & are formed into an arcade, with shafts at the meeting of the splays, & deeply moulded arches with a continuous label above: the east window is of five lights with plain lancet heads under a main arch & label; there are also a very good piscina & sedilia of native stone—the latter surmounted with beautifully moulded arches: the interior is seated with oak benches and choir-stalls, & the walls have been panelled in oak to a height of five feet: a wooden floor has also been laid down; the panelling was the gift of R. D. Cleasby esq. of Penovre; the expense of the rest of the work was defrayed by various donors, a list of whose names hangs in the ante-chapel; the total cost was nearly £400. A group of buildings designed by Mr. J. B. Fowler, architect, is so arranged as to form, with the chapel on one side & the older school buildings on the other, a large quadrangle. The "Big School," measuring about 30 feet in length by 25 in width, forms the principal portion of the new block. The upper windows form a range of lancets, built of dressed native stone, resembling the lancets of the chapel, & the whole length is divided externally into four bays by massive buttresses, also assimilated to the style of the old work. The space underneath the large schoolroom is divided into three large class rooms. Beyond this block is the main entrance & staircases, lighted by a large & lofty bay window of imposing character. Opposite the large schoolroom, on the second landing of the staircase, are the science lecture room & the laboratory—both closely connected. Underneath there is one class room, about 40 feet long by 13 wide. Beyond is another block, which belongs mainly to the head master's house; in it are the lavatories & dressing-rooms, with two sets of private studies overlooking the cricket & football grounds, which command a magnificent prospect towards the Beacons; these were erected about the year 1875. Of the previously existing school buildings, the greater portion, including the dormitories & head master's house, was built about 1861, from the designs of Messrs. Pritchard & Seddon, in a good style of domestic Gothic. An octagonal kitchen with lofty roof forms a pleasing feature in the group. Adjoining this portion of the building are two rooms of great interest, as having formed part of the old monastic buildings; one of these is a finely-proportioned room of 65 feet long by 23 wide (used at present as the school-house dining hall), with a good & well-preserved mediæval oak roof, & an ancient & massive stone fire place, which has been judiciously restored; the other room is used as a library. The cost of the newer buildings with the restoration of the old ones has been altogether about £24,000. A boarding-house, known as the "Hostel," was opened in 1890. It stands in the college playing fields, where there are also an excellent cricket pavilion and five-courts and a workshop, in which carpentry is taught. A chemical laboratory was added in 1906 at a cost of £11,000. Head Master, Rev. Robert Halley Chambers M.A.; Rev. A. E. Donaldson M.A. & G. H. Isitt M.A. assistant masters; shorthand, A. J. Corbett; cricket professional, E. Smart

The Congregational Memorial College, Camden road, erected at a cost of about £12,000, opened in Sept. 1869, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of the college proper in the centre, with residences for two tutors on each side. The number of pupils in the college is about 36. The course extends over six years—three years for the study of arts at the University College, Cardiff, & three years for the study of theology at Brecon. The college is associated with the University of Wales. It was established as a separate institution in 1755 for the education of suitable young men for the Congregational ministry, more especially in Wales. Candidates must be unmarried, & the period of study, including nine months' probation, is six years. Attached to the college are:—The Thomas Scholarship of £20, tenable for one year, & the Rees Scholarship of £20, tenable for two years, & open to students in other Congregational colleges in England & Wales, if natives of South Wales, & three entrance scholarships called the "John Jones Scholarships," & valued at £10 each. Professors, Rev. Thos. Lewis M.A., B.D., F.T.S. (principal), Rev. D. Miall Edwards M.A. Rev. Joseph Jones M.A., B.D. & Rev. John Evans B.A. (financial secretary); Rev. D. A. Griffith Garth, secretary

BRIDELL is a parish in the county of Pembroke, 2 1/2 miles west from Kilgerran station on the Whitland and Cardigan railway, and 3 south from Cardigan, partly in the hundred of Kemmes, but chiefly in that of Kilgerran, in the petty sessional division of Kilgerran, Cardigan union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Kemmes, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. Davids. The church of St. David is an ancient building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a turret containing 2 bells; the church was restored in 1873 at a cost of £717, and affords 77 sittings. The registers date from the year 1705. The living is a rectory, net income £124, in the gift of the freeholders of the parish, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Daniel Williams B.A. of St. David's College, Llan-peter. At PEN-Y-BRYN is a Baptist chapel. The sum of £6 derived from the will of the late Lady Sophia Lloyd is distributed to six poor people every Christmas. In the parish is an Orgham stone dating from the 4th century. All the land is in the hands of small freeholders. The soil is light; chief crops, barley and oats. The area is 2,219 acres; rateable value, £1,735; the population in 1911 was 225.

INCLUDING COITY, DAUDY, NEWCASTLE, ABERKENFIG AND OLDCASTLE

BRIDGEND, by the Welsh called "Penybont-ar-Ogwy," is a civil parish and small market and union town, in the Ogmere division of the county of Glamorgan, hundred of Newcastle, petty sessional division of Newcastle and Ogmere, Bridgend and Cowbridge union and Bridgend county court district, Cardiff court of bankruptcy district, and in the parish of Coity, Gronoath Lower rural deanery (Western division), and Newcastle Lower, in rural deanery of Upper Gronoath (Eastern division), and in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llan-daff; it has a station on the Great Western railway (South Wales line), and is also the junction of the Llynvi and Ogmere railway, from Bridgend to Maesteg, and of the Barry Co.'s railway from Bridgend to Barry and Cardiff, and is 173 miles by rail from London, 60 from Bristol, 26 from Swansea, 20 from Cardiff, 18 from Neath, 11 from Llantrissant, 8 from Maesteg and 7 from Cowbridge. The river Ogmere, which separates the parishes of Oldcastle and Newcastle Lower, runs through the town and falls into the Bristol Channel at a point about four miles distant; the river is crossed by a single arch bridge, built in 1912, at a cost of £5,200, to take the place of the old three arch stone bridge, erected in 1821.

The town is divided into Bridgend in the centre. Oldcastle on the south-east and Newcastle on the west, and consists of several clean and well-built streets; it is not incorporated, but its affairs, formerly administered by a local board of health, formed in May, 1803, are now under the control of an urban district council, constituted under the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73). The Urban District was enlarged by Local Government Board Order No. 46,365, dated April the 1st, 1905, so as to embrace the parishes of Newcastle Lower and Oldcastle and parts of Coity Lower and Daudy, and the whole formed into the civil parish of Bridgend; the Urban District is divided into North, South and West, each returning three members.

Gas and water are supplied by a company. The water supply is obtained from Flynnon Schwyll, 2 miles distant, and is pumped into a low reservoir of 500,000 gallons, and then into a high level reservoir of about 50,000 gallons for Newcastle hill. A new reservoir was completed in 1905 at Flemingsdown, in the parish of St. Bride's Major, with a capacity of 1,250,000 gallons, and the water after passing through filter beds, is pumped into a service tank 270 feet high. Electricity, both for power and lighting purposes, is supplied by the Urban District Council works.

St. Mary's, NOLTON, is an ancient chapelry: the present church, a chapel of ease to Coity, was erected at a cost of over £7,000, and consecrated in November, 1887, taking the place of the previous building, which is now used for Sunday school and similar purposes: it is a fine building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel with south aisle, north transept, nave with clerestory, aisles, and a tower with spire at the north-west angle: the east and west windows and seven others are stained: the font is dated 1632 and was removed from the original chapel: a large organ was erected in 1905: there are 550 sittings.

The Church Institute, in Nolton road, was erected in 1912, at a cost of about £1,800.

The Catholic church, erected 1856, and dedicated to St. Mary, is a plain building of stone, consisting of sanctuary, nave and western vestry, and capable of holding 200 persons: attached is a school and a residence for the priest.

For other places of worship, see page 125.

The Cemetery, at New Town, was formed in 1894, and consists of 4 acres of land purchased by the then local board at a cost of £3,500, including the erection of a caretaker's lodge and a mortuary chapel: it is now under the control of the Urban District Council.

The Glamorgan County Mental Hospital (Angelton), standing about a mile and a half from the town on the road to Maesteg, forms a large pile of buildings principally in the Gothic style, and consists of a main building with three detached blocks; the central portion comprising the medical superintendent's house and the public offices; on the right, towards the public road, are two large detached blocks for male working patients; and on the left the church, engineer's offices and works, as well as a large block for female patients, connected with which are the laundry and drying ground: on the north side is the church, a small building of stone in the Gothic style, with sittings for about 400: on the south side is the Asylum farm: the dining hall is a lofty room, 80 feet long by 40 feet wide: the buildings and airing courts cover about 12 acres, and altogether the grounds include about 82 acres. The number of patients in December, 1918, was 525 males and 264 females.

The Parc Gwyllt mental hospital, on Cefn Hirgoed common, about a mile distant, consists of several blocks for males and females respectively, and one for the laundry: with offices and quarters for officials: the hospital was considerably enlarged in 1894 by the addition of a new block on the male side, and in 1895 by another on the female side: artisans' workshops have also been added. The number of patients in December, 1918, was 517 females and 389 males. The total cost of the two asylums up to 1905 was about £377,000. Water for both hospitals is now supplied by the Garw Water Company, from the Dinbath springs.

The Town Hall, in Dunraven place, is a large building, containing the offices for the shop inspector and the clerk to the magistrates.

The Meat and Vegetable Market, in Caroline street, was opened in 1906.

Cattle market, in Market street; sales held every Saturday.

The Free Library, in Wyndham street, was erected in 1907 at a cost of £2,000, and is a building of red brick with stone dressings.

The Conservative Club, in Wyndham street, erected by a limited liability company, and opened in 1893, contains reading, dining, smoking, billiard rooms, rifle range, a library and refreshment bar; the Earl of Dunraven and Mountearl K.P., P.C., C.M.G. is president.

The Ogmore Club, in Caroline street, a non-political club, has also reading, dining, smoking and billiard rooms.

In front of the Cottage Hospital is a drinking fountain, erected in 1862 by the late Countess of Dunraven, in memory of John Randall esq.

A considerable amount of trade is carried on here, and a great market is held on the 1st and 3rd Mondays in each month. The fairs are held on April 1st, Holy Thursday and November 17th.

Here is a brewery and an iron and brass foundry; lime is also manufactured here to a large extent.

The "Dunraven Arms," in Wyndham street, and the Wyndham Hotel, in Dunraven place, are the principal hotels.

The interest of £10 is yearly distributed to the poor of the parish of Newcastle.

The Cottage Hospital, facing Caroline street, was built in 1895, and contains 8 beds, and during 1918 72 patients were admitted.

Nothing remains now of the Castle of Oldcastle, erected near the river Ogmore by Sir Summont Turberville, son of Sir Payne Turberville.

The principal residences are:—Court Colman, the seat of William Herbert Clydwyn Llewellyn esq. J.P. and Bryntirion, the residence of George A. Harrison esq.

The principal landowners are the Earl of Dunraven and Mountearl K.P., P.C., C.M.G. who is lord of the manor; Capt. A. Fletcher, Lt.-Col. John Ilyd Dillwyn Nicholl D.L. J.P. of Merthymawr House, William Herbert Clydwyn Llewellyn esq. J.P. and Col. John Pictou Turberville.

The soil is principally gravel; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, roots and pasturage.

The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 1,217 acres; rateable value, £39,901; the population in 1901 was 6,662 and in 1911, 8,021 (including 11 officials and 242 inmates of the Poor Law Institution).

ABERKENFIG, a thickly populated hamlet in the parish of Newcastle Higher, consists mainly of one long street, on the road from Bridgend to Maesteg and the River Ogmore, half a mile south from Tondŷ railway station, 2½ miles north from Bridgend. St. John's church, 3 miles north of Bridgend, is a chapel of ease to Newcastle, and is a building of stone in the Gothic style, erected at a cost of £2,000, and consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a bellry containing one bell: there are 350 sittings. The Rev. Robert J. Hawksworth Lic.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, has been resident curate since 1917. Gas is supplied by the North's Navigation Collieries Limited, whose works are within half-a-mile. The Rural Sanitary Authority of Bridgend and Cowbridge (now the Pen-y-Bont Rural District Council) constructed works for a water supply in 1887, and the service reservoirs, containing 90,000 gallons, also supply the adjoining hamlet of Tondŷ; the water is obtained from the works of the Garw Water Co. A system of subsidiary drainage was carried out in 1901. Here are brick works. There are Calvinistic Methodist, Baptist, Ebenezer and Wesleyan chapels, and St. Robert's Catholic school chapel, a building in the Gothic style, erected in 1879, and seating 200 persons.

COITY extends 2 miles north-east. Coity Castle is an extensive ruin, supposed to have been built by Griffith, the fourth son of Jestyn ap Gwrgan, before the Norman conquest: it afterwards, in 1091, came into the possession of Sir Payne Turberville, one of the twelve Norman knights who came to Glamorgan with Sir Robert Fitzhamon, and married the daughter of Morgan ap Mewry, the last of the British lords of Coity; the property afterwards descended through eleven successive Turbervilles till the death of Sir Richard Turberville. In the time of Queen Elizabeth it was in the possession of the Gamage family, which became extinct in the last century, when the castle was sold to the Wyndhams, and, by the marriage of that family into the family of Quin, is now the property of the Earl of Dunraven and Mountearl. The parish church of St. Mary, Coity, about 2 miles north-east, is a cruciform building of stone, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a central embattled tower, containing 6 bells: in the church are two figures in stone of a man and a woman, supposed to represent Sir Payne Turberville and his wife: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. John Harding M.A. formerly rector of this parish: the church was restored in 1859 at a cost of £860, and has 270 sittings. The registers date from the year 1720, and include those of St. Mary, Nolton. The living is a rectory, net income £200, in the gift of the Earl of Dunraven and Mounteal K.P., P.C., C.M.G. and held since 1912 by the Rev. Thomas Pritchard Price B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and surrogate.

The area of Coity Higher in 1911 was 2,937 acres of land and 8 of water; rateable value, in 1913, £13,894; the population in 1911 was 1,864, including 140 officials and their families and 866 inmates of the County Mental Hospital.

By Local Government Board Order, No. 46,365, which came into operation on the 1st of April, 1905, Coity Lower was transferred to Bridgend Urban District.

Sexton of Coity, Thomas David, Coity.

NEWCASTLE HIGHER is a civil parish. St. Iltyd's, or St. Leonard's church, otherwise Newcastle church, in the rural deanery of Gromesth Upper, Eastern division, is an edifice of stone in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 bells; the six old bells were recast and two new ones added in 1904 by Richard Knight Prichard esq.: the nave was rebuilt and a north aisle added at a cost of £1,200 in 1849: the chancel was rebuilt and enlarged and a new vestry added in 1894 at a cost of £3,000. An ancient coped coffin slab, with Celtic ornamentation, probably of the 9th century, which until 1849 served as the step of a doorway on the north side of the chancel, and two interesting tombstones, which until 1890 formed the steps of the west doorway, are now placed within the church under the tower; the stained east window is a memorial to the Venerable Henry Lynch Blossie, Dean of Llandaff and vicar of Newcastle from 1835 to 1877: there are 350 sittings. A lych-gate was erected in 1903 by S. Llewellyn esq. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1745; marriages, 1755; burials, 1764. The living is a vicarage (with the curacies of Laleston (St. David) and Tythegston (St. Tydwg) annexed), joint net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1901 by the Rev. David Phillips B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The church of All Saints' at PEN-Y-VAI, 2 miles north, a chapel of ease to Newcastle, was erected in 1902 by R. W. Llewellyn esq. of Beglan, and consecrated Nov. 1903: it is an edifice of local stone, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, and a central tower containing a chiming clock and 5 bells: the reredos is of alabaster inlaid with gold mosaic, and has figures of three apostles and three panels illustrating episodes in the life of Our Lord: at either corner, under the tower, are busts of the four Welsh bishops who held the sees at the date of erection: the font represents the Angel of Baptism: there are 240 sittings. The register dates from 1903. The curate's stipend of £120 yearly is provided by the founder of the church. Rev. Horatio R. Prothero B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, has been curate in charge since 1916. The castle of Newcastle stands above the north side of the church, and is protected on the east and north by its situation on the edge of a precipitous cliff. The remains consist of a courtyard and flanking towers. The southern gateway, a fine specimen of Norman work, was probably part of a building erected by Sir Simon de Turberville in 1150 A.D. This was not the first Newcastle, for the church is called Newcastle church in a document dated 1106 A.D. In 1226 Newcastle was burnt by the Welsh.

The area is 2,158 acres of land and 12 of water; rateable value, £15,190; the population in 1911 was 4,298, including 141 officials and their families and 788 inmates of the County Mental Hospital.

BRITON FERRY.

BRITON FERRY is a parish and seaport town at the entrance of the Neath river, and on the north-east of the Bay of Swansea, with stations on the Great Western and Swansea Bay railways, 2½ miles south of Neath, 7½ east from Swansea, 35½ from Cardiff, 75½ from Bristol, and 191 from London via the Severn Tunnel, in the Aberavon division of the county of Glamorgan, Neath hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Upper Gronoath (western division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. There is a ferry across the river from Church street to Briton Ferry Road and Jersey Marine railway stations, in Coedfranc township. The rapid rise of this place to commercial importance has been mainly owing to the formation of an excellent floating dock covering an area of 13 acres, and the construction of the South Wales mineral railway, which connects the docks with the extensive mining districts of Glyncoerwrg and Maesteg; the Great Western railway obtains for its direct communication with Merthyr Tydfil, Aberdare and other towns, and in 1895 the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway company opened a large iron swing bridge across the river, affording a direct line of transit to Swansea docks, and to the Rhondda Valley and other important coal districts. The Dock, which is the property of the Great Western Railway Co. is fitted with efficient hydraulic appliances for the shipment of coal, discharge of ballast and other purposes. Iron, steel and tinplate working is carried on here, and employs a large number of hands. The town was governed by a Local Board from March 4, 1879, until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council. It is lighted with gas from works in Regent street west belonging to the Urban Council, who have also obtained a provisional order for a system of electric lighting, and a sub-station and accessories have been erected at a cost of £3,534. The water supply is obtained from works at Cefn Court, constructed by the Urban Council at a cost of upwards of £35,000, sanctioned under the "Neath Corporation Water Act, 1894." St. Clement's (now the parish church), erected in 1866, at a cost of £3,000, from the designs of the late Mr. John Pritchard, architect, of Llandaff, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, transepts, two chapels, south porch and a turret at the junction of the nave and chancel, containing 2 bells; in the chancel are three stained widows, including one given by the late Philip William Flower esq. in 1821, and two erected as memorials to the Rev. David Lewis M.A. vicar 1863-1902; the reredos was erected in 1890, at a cost of about £150, by the parishioners and friends of the Rev. David Lewis M.A. to commemorate his 25th year as vicar; an altar cloth was presented by G. H. Davey esq.; the organ cost £600; the church was inclosed in 1880 with iron railings and gates facing the Neath road, the gift of G. H. Davey esq.; in 1893 a new pulpit of Caen stone was erected, and in 1900 a new choir vestry was added; there are 485 sittings. The register dates from the year 1667. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £600, in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1902 by the Rev. Thomas Lloyd Williams B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and surrogate. The ecclesiastical parish of LLANSAWEL was formed in 1913. The church of St. Mary, formerly a chapel of ease to St. Clement's, was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1891-2, at a cost of £1,775; it is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and an embattled western tower, containing 2 bells. The register dates from the year 1913. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £180, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff and held since 1913 by the Rev. Lewis Henry Walters B.A. of David's College, Lampeter. There are 500 sittings. The Mission church of St. John the Baptist, Giant's Grave, erected in 1878, at a cost of £601, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, western porch and a turret containing one bell; there are 150 sittings. St. Thomas' mission church, Neath road, erected in 1881, is a plain stone building, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret, with spire containing one bell; there are 150 sittings. There are also Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. A cemetery of five acres, the gift of the 7th Earl of Jersey, was formed in 1822, and has two mortuary chapels; it is under the control of the District Council, acting as a burial board. The Public Hall & Institute in Neath road was erected in 1910. The Public Library and Council Offices, erected in 1901 at a cost of upwards of £4,000, occupy an elevated site in the Neath road presented by the 7th Earl of Jersey, who also contributed £500 towards furnishing the library; the buildings are of red brick with Bath stone dressings and contain a Council chamber and offices and reference and lending libraries of 4,406 volumes; adjoining is a BRONGWYN is a parish and small village in the county of Cardigan, 2½ miles north-west of Newcastle in Emlyn terminal station on the branch from Pencader of the Great Western railway, 6¼ south-east-by-east from Cardigan, 22 from Lampeter, and 284 from London, in the hundred of Troed-yr-aur, petty sessional division of Penrhiwpal, county court district and union of Newcastle-in-Emlyn, and in the rural deanery of Sub-Aeron, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, porch and tower containing one bell: the church affords 74 sittings. The register dates from the year 1790. The living is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Bettws Emyr, joint net income £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1909 by the Rev. Richard Lloyd Jones B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Bettws Ewan. There is a Congregational chapel. The soil is slaty. Chief crops, wheat and potatoes and some land under pasture. The area comprises 1,645 acres, of which 7 are water; rateable value, £1,371; the population in 1911 was 240.

BRONLLYS is a parish and village in the county of Brecknock, on the road from Brecon to Hereford, 1 mile north-west from Talgarth station on the Cambrian railway, about 8 north-east from Brecon and 7½ north-west from Hay, in Talgarth hundred, Hay union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hay, archdeaconry of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's. The village is supplied with water from works the property of the ratepayers. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone in the Early Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a detached tower at the east end containing 6 bells: the church retains an ancient font: the stair to the roof loft also remains, as well as a fine old wooden screen, and there are many monuments: the church was restored in 1889-90, at a cost of £1,200, and affords 175 sittings. The register dates from the year 1755. The living is a vicarage, net income £190, including 10 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of Capt. Walter de Winton J.P. of Maesllwch Castle, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Thomas Hincley Beavan, who is also vicar of Llanellieu. The Calvinistic Methodist chapel here was built in 1865. The charities are those of Miss Sibyl Williams and the rector of Llandefalle and a deposit at Brecon Savings Bank. Malting is carried on in the parish. Near the church is the site of a British camp, surrounded on three sides by a deep ditch, the side of the square nearest the church being unprotected. Bronllys Tower or "Castle," a circular structure, supposed to date from the early part of the 12th century, stands on the left bank of the Llynfi, a tributary of the Wye, and occupies the summit of a mound of earth, in great part artificial, rising about 30 feet from the ground, and evidently of much earlier date than the tower which it supports. There are abundant traces to indicate that a castle of some importance once existed here, but the present tower, probably the keep, now alone remains. There are some old buildings now used as stables. The first historical mention of Bronllys or Brendllys Castle is by Giraldus Cambrensis (Gerald de Barri), who flourished in the 12th century and who mentions it as being in the possession of the Cliffords, of Clifford Castle; it was afterwards held by the Bohuns, lords of Brecon, then by the Staffords, one of whom, Humphrey de Stafford, 1st Duke of Buckingham of that name, fell at the battle of Northampton, 27 July, 1460. Subsequently it was granted to Sir David Williams, of Gwernyfed, and passed from him to Sir Roger Vaughan, of Porthamel. In 1608 it was the property of Sir Robert Knollys, in right of his wife, who was of the Perthamel family, and was conveyed by him to a Mr. Cecil; after various other alienations the property descended to Lady Mary Catherine Ashburnham, daughter of the 5th Earl of Ashburnham (d. 1913), and is now the property and residence of John Gittoes esq. In 1350, Bedo Bronllys, a celebrated bard, lived at Bronllys Castle. The South Wales Sanatorium, which was opened in September, 1918, was built with the funds placed at the disposal of the King Edward VII. Welsh National Memorial Association, and treatment is given therein to patients suffering from tuberculosis; patients are admitted on the recommendation of the tuberculosis physicians of the various areas in the principality and are admitted free; under the Ministry of Pensions scheme, discharged sailors and soldiers are being treated also; the sanatorium is built on approximately 23 acres of land, and has 304 beds. Hugh Archibald Christy esq. J.P. is lord of the manor and the principal landowners are Lord Tredegar, the Welsh National Memorial Association, Mrs. Hora-Ruthven, David Price Hopkins esq. J.P. and Mervyn Thomas Davies esq. J.P. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and oats. The area is 2,188 acres; rateable value, £4,486; the population in 1911 was 321.

 Parish Clerk, Jonathan Owens.

BRYNAMMAN, CWMLLYNFELL and QUARTER BACH.

BRYNAMMAN is a village and an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1889 from the civil parishes of Llandilo Rural and Quarter Bach in Carmarthenshire, and Llangwyl in Glamorganshire; it is on the Nantmelyn stream in the Amman valley, and has a junction station of the Great Western and Midland railways; 250 miles from London, 18 north-east from Swansea, 18 north-east from Llanelli and 14 south from Llandilo, in the Llanelli division of the county of Carmarthen and Neath division of Glamorgan. Pontardawe and Llandilo unions, Pontardawe, Llandilo and Llangadock petty sessional divisions and county court districts, rural deanery of Llandilo, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The water supply is drawn from the mountains, and is under the control of the Llandilo-Fawr Rural District Council. The church of St. Catherine, erected in 1881, at a cost of £1,731, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisle, organ chamber and a belfry containing one bell: there are 300 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1908 by the Rev. Edward Jenkins Davies L.Th. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There are Congregational, Baptist and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. Here are tin plate works, and these with collieries are the principal industries. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 5,072.

Parish Clerk, Lewis George Hodson.

CWMLLYNFELL, with a station on the Midland railway, is a village in the ecclesiastical parish of Brynamman, and in the civil parishes of Llangwyl and Llandilo. The church of St. Margaret's, built in 1905, is an edifice of local stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, organ chamber, a porch and baptistery and a bell-gable with one bell: there are sittings for 250 persons. The Rev. David Williams L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, has been curate in charge since 1919. Here are Congregational, Calvinistic and Methodist and Baptist chapels.

BRYNAU, see Swansea.

BRYNCETHIN, see St. Bride's Minor.

BRYNGWYN is a parish in the county of Radnor, 5 miles west from Whitney station on the Midland and Neath and Brecon railway, 6 north by west from Hay station and 7 north by east from Erwood station on the Midland and Cambrian railways respectively, and 9 east by south from Builth, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Painscastle, Hay union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Hay, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Michael and All Angels is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret containing 2 bells. The church was restored in 1874-77, at a cost of £1,050, and affords 110 sittings. The register dates from the year 1614. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £179, with 8 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1809 by the Rev. William Thomas M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. There is a Congregational chapel at RHOSGOCH, erected in 1839, with 160 sittings. Richard Jones left in 1706 a sum of £9 yearly for such poor persons in the parish as are not in receipt of parochial relief. Major Walter de Winton J.P. is lord of the manor and Thomas Griffiths esq. is the principal landowner. The soil is gravel; the principal crops are oats and turnips and there is some pasture land. The area is 4,587 acres; rateable value, £2,193; the population in 1911 was 194. Parish Clerk, Edwin Minton.

Letters are received through Clyro, Hereford, which is the nearest money order office. The nearest telegraph office is at Hay, 6 miles distant BRYNMAWR (Big Hill), anciently Wain-belygen (Willow-tree common), is a market town in the county of Brecknock, formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1875, and into a civil parish under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by Local Government Board Order No. 40,981, Oct. 1st, 1900, and comprising those parts of Aberystwith, Llanelly and Llangatock in the Urban area.

It has a station on the London and North Western railway, 14½ miles from Merthyr Tydfil, 22 from Cardiff and 152 from London, and is in the hundred and union of Crickhowell, petty sessional division of Bryn-mawr, county court district of Tredegar, rural deanery of Crickhowell, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The town was governed by a Local Board from 1851 until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council, by which the town is divided into five wards; it is lighted with gas by the Brynmaur and Blaينا Gas Co. and is supplied with water from a gathering ground on Cym mountain, the property of the District Council; the reservoir on Llangatock or Cym Hill, 2½ acres in extent, has a capacity of 10 million gallons. The parish church of St. Mary, built and consecrated in 1874, was rebuilt in 1900 of red sandstone with Hollington stone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles and a western turret containing 2 bells; there are 450 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1850, marriages from 1872, and burials from 1883; the cemetery register of burials dates from 1883. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £220, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1916 by the Rev. Frederick Thomas Oswell L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who is also surrogate. The Catholic chapel of St. Mary was built in 1863. There is an English Presbyterian chapel, built in 1874, and an English Congregational chapel, built in 1909. The cemetery, opened in 1853, has an area of 11 acres, cost £1,500, and is under the control of the District Council. The Church House and Institute, in Beaufort street, was opened in 1919. The Free Library, the gift of the late Andrew Carnegie esq. (d. 1919), was erected in 1905, on a site presented by the Duke of Beaufort, in Alma street; it contains news and magazine rooms and a library of 3,000 volumes. The Institute adjoining was opened in 1907. The Market chambers, in Beaufort street, have an inclosed market place annexed; the hall will hold 400 people, and is used for theatrical and other performances and lectures, and in the adjacent rooms the public business of the town is transacted. The New Market Hall, erected at a cost of £2,500, will hold 1,400 people. It is used on Saturdays as a market for general produce, and is also let for entertainments. The clock was presented by Mr. Charles Morley. The market day is Saturday. Fairs are held on Whit Monday and on Monday before 25th September. Bryn-mawr was once an important seat of the iron and coal trades, but the coal is exhausted and the iron ore not suitable for the present mode of manufacturing steel. The area of the Urban district and civil parish is 1,437 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £19,745; the population in 1911 was 7,582 in the civil, and 7,274 in the ecclesiastical parish.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: Central, 1,507; North-Eastern, 1,337; South-Eastern, 1,472; Southern, 1,566; Western, 1,700.

BRYN SADLER, see Llantrisant.

BUILTH, or Builth Wells, is an inland watering-place and market town in the county of Brecon, with a station on the Cambrian railway and another at Builth Road, about 1½ miles distant, on the London and North Western and Cambrian railways, 171 miles from London, 88 from Birmingham, 110 from Liverpool, 130 from Bristol, 58 from Shrewsbury, 70 north-west from Gloucester and 25 north from Brecon, the county town, and is the head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district, in Builth hundred, and in the rural deanery of Builth, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. Builth is called by the Welsh "Bualt," a term derived from "bu," an ox and "alt," a wooded eminence, signifying an oxhill or oxenhill; in ancient documents it is styled "Llanfair-yu-Muallt," and was evidently a great grazing district; the town is very pleasantly seated in the valley of the Wye, which passes through and separates it from Radnorshire, and it is surrounded by some of the most magnificent mountain scenery in South Wales: owing to its agreeable climate and celebrated mineral springs, it is a favourite place of resort for invalids and others, and the attractiveness of the surrounding scenery causes it to be much frequented by tourists. The town railway station of the Cambrian Railway, from Brecon to Llanidloes, is in Radnorshire, on the opposite side of the Wye, which is here spanned by a stone bridge of six arches, erected in 1779 at the joint expense of the counties of Brecon and Radnor; the station on the same line at Builth Road, is the Central Wales Junction of this line with the London and North Western, and the trains run, for the most part, connectedly. By Local Government Board Order No. 32,187, the rural part of Builth civil parish was added to the Urban District, which was re-named Builth Wells. The town was governed by a Local Board from February, 1866, until the formation under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," of an Urban District Council; it consists chiefly of a single street, and is well paved and supplied with water from two springs, 4 miles south-east of the town, and stored in two reservoirs holding 122,000 gallons: the town is lighted with gas by a company formed in 1864. An effective system of sewerage has also been carried out, and several terraces of good houses have been erected. The river Wye joining the Irfon at Aberpool, near here, forms a considerable stretch of water about a mile in length, affording good boating, and boats can be hired at the boat house on the Groe Green. Nearly all the fishing is preserved, but trout fishing is obtainable. The church of St. Mary, Llanfair-yu-Builth, an ancient edifice of Norman origin, was entirely rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1875, at a cost of about £4,967, of which amount the patron gave upwards of £1,000: it now consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled tower of the 14th century on the south side, containing 6 bells: in the church is a recumbent effigy, much mutilated, to John Lloyd, of Towy, 1585; the figure is in armour, with ruff, and round the neck a double chain; the inscription, on brass, was in 1809 loose in the parish chest: there are sittings for about 450 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1687; marriages, 1770. The living is a vicarage, net income £218, with 20 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Miss Thomas and others, and held since 1070 by the Rev. Henry James Church Jones M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, who is also perpetual curate of Llanddewi'r Cwm. A hall for church purposes, on land adjoining the church, was opened in Sept. 1900. The Congregational chapel, erected at a cost of £1,800, and opened in July, 1860, is a building of native stone in the Italian style, and has 500 sittings: underneath the building is a schoolroom for 300 children. The Memorial Baptist chapel at the west end of the town was built in 1899, at a cost of £2,500, and will seat 600 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, also at the west end of the town, was rebuilt in 1897, at a cost of £1,030, and has 500 sittings. The Presbyterian or Calvinistic Methodist chapel in the Strand, built in 1747 and rebuilt in 1824, was again rebuilt in 1903 at a cost of about £5,500, and will seat 950 persons. At the east side of the town, on an eminence, are the remains of the castle, a fortress dating from the 11th century; little of the fabric now exists, but the moat is still fairly perfect. The Lower Market, adjoining the Bridge, contains a range of shops on the ground floor, with a market below; above is a large room which is now used as a cinematograph hall &c. The Strand hall is now used as a wool store. An agricultural show, aquatic sports, and an Eisteddfod are held annually. The principal hotels are the "Lion" and "Crown," and there are numerous boarding and lodging houses. The market day is on Monday. Fairs for cattle, sheep and pigs are held on the 16th February, Monday next before May 11, May 25th, June 27th, July 16th, Builth feast, last week in August, October 2nd, first Monday in November and December 7th. Fairs for horses are held on the 2nd February, 16th April, 16th July and 16th October; when any of the above days fall on a Sunday the fair is held on the following Monday.

The Builth Cottage Hospital and Convalescent Home was erected and furnished in 1896-7, at a cost of £2,738, being part of a sum of £6,000, given by the Misses M. and E. Powell, of Wye Side, Builth. The balance of £3,262, together with a further sum of £340, collected in the town of Builth to commemorate Queen Victoria's Jubilee, forms the present endowment fund. The building was opened 27 Oct. 1897, and has at present 16 beds and 1 cot. The number of patients admitted during the year 1909 was 59. A further sum of £1,000 was received in 1899 from Miss Thomas, of Llwyn Madoc, as an addition to the endowment fund of the hospital.

The Public Recreation ground lies between the town and the river Wye, alongside which is a pleasant path, leading to the rapids; the grounds were extended in 1900, and a boating pavilion added; a band plays on the ground during the season—May to October—under the control of the Recreation Committee.

The Park Wells mineral springs, situated about a mile from the town, are reached by a pleasant walk along the banks of the Wye to the junction of the Irfon, which is crossed by a swing bridge. These springs possess renovating properties of extraordinary character; the most singular circumstances in connection with them is, that though placed at distances of only a few yards apart, they differ entirely in quality, being either saline, sulphur, or chalybeate; there are 1st and 2nd class pump rooms, with conveniently arranged hot and cold sulphur and saline baths.

Analysis of the Saline Mineral Water of Park Wells, near Builth Wells, Breconshire, January 17, 1891, by Professor Atfield Ph.D., F.R.S., F.I.S., F.C.S. Professor of Practical Chemistry to the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, author of a Manual of Chemistry and a Handbook of Water Supplies &c.

One imperial gallon contains:—

Chemical Name.	Chemical Definitions.	Grains.
Chloride of Sodium	NaCl	878·300
Iodide of Sodium	NaI	traces
Bromide of Sodium	NaBr	traces
Nitrate of Sodium	NaNO ₃	·450
Chloride of Ammonium	NHCl	·440
Chloride of Lithium	LiCl	1·250
Chloride of Calcium	CaCl	249·375
Sulphate of Calcium	CaSO ₄	·204
Carbonate of Calcium	CaCO ₃	1·590
Chloride of Magnesium	MgCl ₂	6·416
Iron, with traces of Aluminium and Manganese } Silica	Fe ₂ O ₃ SiO ₂	·238 ·714

Remarks.—The analysis shows that the mineral water of Park Wells, Builth, is a true saline water, in composition not unlike the corresponding saline springs of Homburg, Kissingen, Kreuznach and Wiesbaden. Thus the four chief springs of Homburg yield over 1,000 grains average of solids per gallon, these Park Wells, Builth, spring gives over 1,100; the Homburg solids being 30 to 80 grains of the bitter chloride of magnesium (Park Wells, Builth, 64), 70 to 170 grains of chloride of calcium (Park Wells, Builth, 250), and nearly 800 grains average of chloride of sodium (Park Wells, Builth, nearly 900). These Homburg waters contain no lithium. The leading Kissingen springs are saline, but only to about half the extent of this Park Wells, Builth, water, and they also by my analysis contain much less lithium. This Builth water is not unlike Kreuznach water, but the latter contains, according to my analysis, somewhat more lithium. The Wiesbaden waters are similar to but weaker than this Builth water.

Analytical data.—Potassium, a trace; sodium, 345·442; lithium, 0·206; ammonium, 0·148; barium, none; strontium, none; calcium, 90·560; magnesium, 1·621; oxide of iron, including traces of aluminium and manganese, 0·238. The radicals of—sulphates (SO₄), 0·144; nitrates (NO₃), 0·328; carbonates (CO₃), 0·955; chlorides (Cl), including traces of iodides (I) and bromides (Br), 698·621; silica (SiO₂), 0·714; organic matter, an insignificant trace.

Glance wells sulphur and chalybeate springs and baths are about $\frac{3}{4}$ mile west from the town, and have adjoining a convenient residential house for visitors.

Cwm Llewellyn, a wooded ravine, where Prince Llewellyn fell, 11 April, 1240, and Cefn-y-bedd, his burial place, Aberedw rocks and cave, Erwood, Boughrood, Garth hill, and other interesting spots may be conveniently reached from this place. Lord Glanusk C.B., D.S.O. who is lord of the manor, Stanley P. M. Blich esq. Edward David Thomas esq. D.L., J.P. and Major Charles Harcourt Gam Wood D.L., J.P. are the principal landowners. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The soil is sandy; subsoil, gravel and stone. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 675 acres of land, 26 of water; rateable value, £7,807; the population in 1911 was 1,710, including 7 officials and 42 inmates of the Poor Law Institution.

SCHOOLS.

The County Intermediate School, now a Secondary school under the Board of Education & the Central Welsh Board, was opened in May, 1899, under the provisions of the "Welsh Intermediate Education Act, 1889," in order to provide an intermediate technical education for boys & girls from such parts of the counties of Brecon & Radnor as may be deemed expedient. The school is controlled by the Central Welsh Board. The building is of stone in the Tudor style & was erected at a total cost of £3,907. Besides eight county scholarships, each of the value of £6, there is in connection with the school an endowment called the Evans' Trust, left by the late Mrs. Evans, widow of Dr. Evans, of New College, Hampstead, & a native of Llanafan. The trustees distribute annually a sum of nearly £230 in school fees & an additional sum to help maintain the boys at the school, the payments varying from £6 to £14. Elections, by examination, of boys, the sons of farmers residing in the hundreds of Builth & Colwyn & adjacent parishes, take place in July. Successful candidates who cannot attend the school daily from their homes are awarded, in addition to the exhibitions, bursaries of £8 each, or if they can attend school daily by train, the amount of their railway fares. If the successful candidates reside in Radnorshire they are allowed in addition a sum to make good the extra fees charged for pupils not residing in Breconshire. The exhibitions & bursaries are tenable for three years. Lesser exhibitions or bursaries may also be awarded to unsuccessful candidates at the discretion of the trustees.

BURRY PORT.

BURRY PORT is a seaport adjoining the village of Pembrey, in the Llanelly division of the county of Carmarthen, union of, county court district and petty sessional division of Llanelly, with a station, called Pembrey and Burry Port, on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, 14 miles north-west from Swansea, 4 west from Llanelly, and 16 south-east from Carmarthen. By an Order of the Carmarthen County Council, dated November 1st, 1902, and confirmed by Local Government Board Order dated March 31st, 1903, Burry Port was formed into an Urban District and civil parish. The harbour, on the north side, at the entrance of the Burry river, is well sheltered; the outer or tidal harbour is 15 acres in extent; the east dock is a floating dock, with an area of about half an acre, capable of admitting vessels of 1,800 tons burden; it has entrance gates 45 feet wide and a depth of 22 feet at ordinary spring tides and 15 feet at neap tides, deepening to the sea; these docks are the nearest for shipping the anthracite coal from the Gwendraeth and Trimsaran valleys. The west floating dock has been closed. The principal exports are anthracite coal, fire clay and tin plates. By an Act of Parliament passed in 1866 the Burry Port and Gwendraeth Valley Railway Company were empowered to purchase the Llanelly and Kidwelly canal, for the purpose of forming a railway up the valley, and it was accordingly opened in 1869, for coal and mineral traffic, and for passenger traffic in 1909. In March, 1899, the line was extended to Llanelly, giving direct access to the chief works there, and also to stations on the Llanelly and Mynydd Mawr Railway. In this locality are the extensive copper and tinplate works, and several collieries, mainly anthracite. The town is supplied with water from Llanelly and from springs, but the copper and lead works receive their supply from a reservoir, at Cwm Capel, capable of holding twenty million gallons, and the tin works from the Morlais river, about 5 miles off. The church of St. Mary, erected in 1876-7 by Messrs. Elkington, at a cost of about £7,000, as a memorial chapel of ease to Pembrey, was opened December 9th, 1877, and is in the Gothic style of the 13th century; it consists of chancel, nave, aisles and an eastern tower with spire containing 5 bells; there is a memorial window in the chancel to George Richards Elkington and Mary Augusta his wife, erected by their five sons: there are 500 sittings. There are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. The club and reading room was erected in 1891 on a site given by the Burry Port and Gwendraeth Valley Railway Company, and is open to the captains of ships trading between this and other ports, and to such persons employed by the company, local works, and residents at Burry Port, as may be elected members. The Parish Hall, in Stepany road, erected in 1894, is used both for church purposes and for public entertainments, and will seat 500 persons. There is a public library in Station road. The area is 1,374 acres; rateable value, £14,969; the population in 1911 was 4,599.

BURTON is a parish in the county of Pembroke, to the north of Milford Haven, with a ferry to Pembroke; it is 1 mile east from New Milford terminal station on the Great Western railway, 2½ north from Pembroke, 6 west from Milford and 7 south-south-east from Haverfordwest, in the hundred of Rhos, petty sessional division of Roose, county court district of Haverfordwest, and union of Pembroke, and in the rural deanery of Roose and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel with the chapel of St. Andrew on the south side, nave, north aisle, north transept, south porch, and an embattled western tower; a sanctus bell hangs above the chancel arch; in the centre of the chancel is an altar tomb, adorned with shields of arms, to commemorate Richard Wogan; the south chapel and chancel have each a piscina and the porch a holy-water stoup; three of the windows are stained; the font is square and of early date; the church was restored in 1689, again in 1865-1867, and again in 1899, and affords 300 sittings. The registers date from the year 1681. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £184, with 45 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Evan Lewis Jones M.A.

CADOXTON juxta BARRY is a town standing on the north shore of the Bristol Channel, with a station on the Barry railway, from which a branch line runs to Penarth on the Taff Vale railway, and is 17½ miles from London, 2 miles east from Barry, 3 west from Penarth, 6½ south-west from Cardiff and 18½ from Newport (Mon.), in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Dynas Powis hundred and petty sessional division, Cardiff union and county court district, rural deanery of Barry and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. This ancient civil parish has been amalgamated with Barry. Until the commencement of the works for the docks at Barry, in 1884, Cadoxton was an unimportant village, but it has since rapidly grown into an important commercial centre: the present town is pleasantly seated on an eminence 150 feet above the sea level, and was governed from 1888 by a Local Board for the parishes of Barry, Cadoxton, Merthyr Dovan and part of Sully, until the present Urban District Council was constituted under the "Local Government Act, 1894." Main sewers were laid down in 1891 in all the principal streets, with a fall into the Bristol Channel, at a cost of £18,000. The town is lighted with gas from works at Barry Dock, and supplied with water from reservoirs at Pencoedre and Stumpball by the Barry Urban District Council. The church of SS. Catwg and Illtyd, in the old village, is an ancient building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 3 bells, two of which are cracked: the nave was thoroughly restored in 1885 at a cost of over £500, when a new roof was erected, pulpit and pitch-pine seats added: a stained window was inserted on the south side in 1887, by Caroline Spickett, in memory of her parents: on the south side, in the wall, are remains of the stairs formerly leading to the ancient road left: the chancel retains its piscina, and there is a stoup near the porch door: the chancel, divided from the nave by a Gothic arch, is in a very dilapidated state: there is a lancet window at the east end in five compartments, and a rose window above which has been blocked up: the font is ancient: on the walls of the chancel are tablets to Watkin Thomas, gent. ob. 17 Sept. 1666, and to Ann his wife; to Jane Thomas, wife of Edward Eustance, former rector, ob. 9 Jan. 1704; to George Fowler M.A. rector of this parish, ob. 21 Aug. 1646; and to Edward John, ob. 25 Oct. 1799: there are about 80 sittings. The register dates from the year 1711, but the entries are missing from 1806 to 1813, after which of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Calvinistic Methodist chapel, built in 1884, has 150 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel, at Hill Mountain, erected in 1860, seats 120, and there is a Baptist chapel at Sardis, erected in 1822, seating 450; another at Guildford, and an iron mission church at the Hill. Williamston, the seat of Sir Owen Henry Philipps Scourfield bart. D.L., J.P. is a mansion surrounded by a large park. The trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, are lords of the manor, and Sir Owen H. P. Scourfield bart. is the principal landowner. The soil is slaty with rag; small crops of wheat, barley and oats are grown, but the land is mostly under pasture. The area is 3,472 acres of land, 2 of inland water, 4 of tidal water and 194 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,143; the population in 1911 was 983.

The depot of the Trinity House Corporation is in this parish.

they are complete. The living is a rectory, net income £350, with 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1902 by the Rev. John Smith Longdon M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is also rector of St. Mary's, Barry Dock, which is in this parish, and rural dean. The church of St. Aidan, in Main street, erected at a cost of £2,500, has institute rooms attached, and will seat about 500 persons. Bethel English Presbyterian church, in Court road, is a building of local stone, erected in 1893, at a cost of £1,300, and will seat 450 persons. St. Mary's church for the Barry Dock district, was erected in 1905 (for particulars see under Barry). The Welsh Baptist chapel, in the old village, is an old building with burial ground attached, and will seat about 200. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapel, Pontypridd street, is a stone building in the Gothic style, erected at a cost of £1,800, opened 11 Jan. 1891, and has 500 sittings: in the basement is a large room for meetings &c. capable of seating 450 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, Church road, is a Gothic stone building, erected about 1862 at a cost of £700, and has 400 sittings. The Barry Cemetery of 3½ acres, near Merthyr Dovan church, formed in 1289, has been enlarged at a cost of £7,724, and now comprises 17½ acres; it is under the control of the Barry Urban District Council, and has a mortuary chapel, erected in 1893 at a cost of £1,200, and a caretaker's house, built at a cost of £500 in 1891. In Vere street is a branch of Barclays Bank Limited. The principal hotels are the "Royal," at the corner of Main street and Barry road, and the Wenwae Arms hotel, near the station. Brick making is carried on here, but the inhabitants are chiefly engaged at the docks. Here are the remains of a monastery. Mrs. Jenner is lady of the manor. The principal landowners are the owners of the Wenwae estate, William Richard Basset esq. and Richard E. Spencer esq. The soil is clay and limestone; subsoil, red marl. The chief crops are wheat and oats, with some pasture. The population in 1901 was 16,569, and in 1911, 20,829.

CADOXTON-JUXTA-NEATH, see Neath.

CAERAU is a village and parish on the Cowbridge road, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Ely station on the Cardiff and Swansea section of the Great Western railway and $\frac{3}{4}$ south-west from Cardiff, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Kibbor hundred, Llandaff petty sessional division, Cardiff union and county court district, rural deanery of Penarth and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of local stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing one bell: there is an early stone font and several memorial stones with quaint epitaphs, and there are two stained windows: the church was fully restored in 1835-6, at a cost of £800, and affords 75 sittings. The earlier registers, dating from 1741, have been lost; the present register dates only from 1790. The living is a vicarage, with Ely annexed, net yearly value £250, including residence and 38 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1913 by the Rev. David Lewis Marsden B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Ely. There is an English Congregational Mission hall. Mrs. Traherne is lady of the manor. The principal landowner is Lord Wharton. The soil is gravel; subsoil, red clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. The area is 773 acres; rateable value, £2,279; the population in 1911 was 237.

CAERPHELLY is a market town in the county of Glamorgan, near the range of hills which runs through that county and stretches northward into Brecknockshire, in the Caerphilly division of the county and in the parish of Eglwysilan, 179 miles from London by rail (via Cardiff), 49 from Bristol, 7 from Cardiff, 12 from Newport (Monmouth), 6 from Pontypridd and 59 from Swansea, in the hundred of Caerphilly, Lower Caerphilly petty sessional division, Pontypridd union, Cardiff county court district, and in the rural deanery of Caerphilly and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The Caerphilly station of the Rhymney railway, and of the Pontypridd and Newport railway, opened in the autumn of 1887, is on the south side of the town; a branch line, 4 miles in length, was opened in 1894 to Senghenth, where coal is found in considerable quantities. Caerphilly is supposed to have been formerly a borough, but its privileges were lost in the reign of Henry VIII. The town stands in a broad valley inclosed by mountains, the descent to it from Cardiff being beautifully picturesque, and in many parts characterized by features of grandeur and sublimity. The houses are in general small and neatly built, but without order or regularity, and there are some modern dwellings. The Local Board, formed by Local Government Board Order No. 20,218, dated April 4, 1893, now the Caerphilly Urban District Council, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," comprises within the district the parishes of Eglwysilan and Llanfabon. The district is divided into seven wards. The town is supplied with water and gas by the Rhymney and Aber Valleys Gas and Water Co.

Caerphilly ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1850 from Bedwas (Mon.) and Eglwysilan. The district of Pwll-y-pant has been severed from the ecclesiastical parish of Caerphilly, and attached to that of Llanbradach. The church of St. Martin, erected in 1870, at a cost of about £5,500, and consecrated by Dr. Ollivant, Bishop of Llandaff, 17 Dec. 1879, is a building in the Early English style, from designs by the late Mr. Buckridge, architect, of London, carried out under the supervision of the late Mr. John L. Pearson R.A. and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, vestry, north porch and a tower containing a clock and 8 bells: the tower was erected in 1910-11 at a cost of £1,780, in commemoration of the visit to Caerphilly of His late Majesty King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra: the bells were the gift of Miss Anthony, The Grove, Caerphilly: the stained east window is a memorial to the late Baroness Windsor: the organ was erected in 1891 at a cost of £516: the church was enlarged in 1905 at a cost of £4,000, and will seat about 800 persons. The register, included in that of Eglwysilan, which dates from 1689, has entries of marriages in St. Martin's church from the year 1754. The living is a rectory, net income £266, with 125 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Thomas Walter Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

Barclays Bank Ltd. the National Provincial and Union Bank of England Limited and Lloyds Bank Limited have branches here.

At Pwll-y-pant are extensive quarries, the property of the Marquess of Bute, but not now (1919) worked.

Cattle fairs are held on February 28th, April 4th and 5th, Trinity Thursday, July 10th, August 25th, October 9th, November 16th and the Thursday before Christmas.

Caerphilly Castle.—The ancient castle of Caerphilly is a stupendous and truly magnificent pile, standing in the centre of the town, on a level space, bounded on the north and south by lofty hills and expanding on the east and west into a beautiful vale, skirted by the river Runney on the one side and on the other by the Taff: it appears to have been of Norman origin, and was enlarged at successive periods, chiefly by Hugh le Despenser, the favourite of Edward II. for whom it was wrested from the Mortimers, its ancient possessors: the buildings in the several courts, together with a spacious area, were inclosed within a lofty outer wall of great thickness, strengthened with massive buttresses and defended at intervals by square towers, between which a communication was kept up by an embattled corridor: in the outer court were the barracks for the garrison, from which a magnificent gateway, flanked by two magnificent hexagonal towers, gave access by a drawbridge over the moat into an inner ward, where another massive gateway, strongly defended by a portcullis, the grooves of which still remain, led into the court containing the state apartments; this court, seventy yards in length and forty wide, is enclosed on the north side by a lofty wall strengthened by buttresses and pierced at intervals by loop-holes for the discharge of missiles, and on the other sides by portions of the buildings and towers-guarding the entrances: the great hall, a noble apartment, seventy feet in length, thirty-five wide and seventeen high, was lighted by four lofty ogee windows of beautiful design, finely wrought in the Decorated style; and at a height of twelve feet from the floor, ornamented corbels support clustered vaulting shafts four feet high: the roof, which was of timber, rested on small clustered shaft-rising above mutilated heads, carved in stone; these now sustain a modern roof, placed over the hall a few years since, on the occasion of the visit of the Royal Archaeological Society; the western entrance to this court was also over a drawbridge, through a splendid arched gateway, defended by enormous bastions. The most conspicuous feature in the ruins is the greater part of a huge circular tower, about 50 feet in height, the summit of which has for centuries overhung the base about nine feet, being apparently preserved from falling by nothing but the tenacity of the cement with which it was constructed: these imposing remains are especially remarkable for their extraordinary extent, which comprises an area of not less than thirty acres, and the ruins themselves are the most magnificent of any now remaining in the Principality, and present an august memorial of a structure which, in its pristine splendour, could have been rivalled by few similar edifices in the kingdom.

In the neighbourhood Roman and other remains have been met with, and it has been thought by some that Caerphilly was a Roman station, corresponding to the "Jupania" of Ptolemy. From the old mansion, called Watford, near Caerphilly, George Whitefield, the eminent preacher, was married to Mrs. James (a widow), of Abergavenny; this marriage, which took place at St. Martin's church, Caerphilly, is entered in the old register of Eglwysilan church, as follows: "George Whitefield and Elizabeth James, married, November, 1741: John Smith, vicar."

The Marquis of Bute is lord of the manor, and James Goodrich esq. the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C. C.B. Lord Tredegar and E. W. M. Corbett esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The Cwm is the seat of Daniel Thomas W. Davis esq. J.P. The chief crops are hay, wheat and barley. The soil is gravel; subsoil, various, chiefly clay. The area of the entire parish of Eglwysilan is 10,192 acres of land and 52 of water. The area of Caerphilly ecclesiastical parish is 3,255 acres; population in 1911, 10,278.

The area of the Urban District is 14,426 acres; rateable value, £120,432; the population in 1901 was 15,835 and in 1911, 32,844.

The population of the wards in 1911 was:—Abertridwr, 5,549; Caerphilly North, 5,255; Caerphilly South, 4,976; Nelson, 2,877; Senghenydd, 5,898; Taff's Well, 2,865; Ystrad Mynach, 5,483.

Aber and Senghenith (or Senghenydd) are large mining villages on the Rhymney railway, where there are extensive collieries. They will be found under separate headings.

ENERGLYN, a hamlet of Eglwysilan parish, includes the town of Caerphilly; Hendredenny, another hamlet, is one mile west-by-north; Park, 3 north-west; Rhyd-y-boitham, 1½ west; and Van, a hamlet in Bedwas parish, Mon. half mile east.

CAMROSE (or Camrhos) is a parish in the county of Pembroke, lying to the west of the West Cleddau river, 4 miles north-by-west from Haverfordwest and 6 miles west from Carbeston Road station on the Great Western railway, in the hundred of Rhos, petty sessional division of Roose, union and county court district of Haverfordwest, and in the rural deanery of Roose and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Ismael is an ancient building of stone in Early English style, consisting of chancel, long nave, and an embattled western tower containing one bell, and there is a sanctus bell hung above the chancel arch: the chancel retains a piscina: the font is of Norman date: the fabric shows traces of having been at one period much larger: it affords 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1716; marriages, 1749. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £191, including 23 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1889 by the Rev. William Andrew Tute M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is a Congregational chapel at KEYSTON, founded in 1787, with 150 sittings, and a Baptist chapel in the village, erected in 1838, with 160 sittings. The Church room and Sunday school is a building of stone, erected as a memorial to Catherine, wife of J. L. G. P. Lewis esq. of Henllan. Camrose House, a mansion of stone, standing in grounds of about 42 acres, is the seat of Charles Lewis William Allen Penn esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor. Miss Fortune, John V. S. Bennett esq. William Bird Allen esq. J.P. and Sir Charles Philipps bart. are the principal landowners. The soil varies between clay, shale with rab and sand. The chief crops are barley, oats, wheat and roots. The area is 8,353 acres of land and 15 of water; assessable value, £3,445; the population in 1911 was 697.

Lewiston, 2 miles north-by-east; Keyston, 2 miles south-west; Pelcomb, 1½ miles south; and Wolfsdale, 1 mile north-by-east, are hamlets in this parish. Here is a Congregational chapel, built in 1827, with 280 sittings.

CAPEL COLMAN is a parish in the county of Pembroke, one mile from Boncath station on the Whitland and Cardigan section of the Great Western railway, $6\frac{1}{2}$ south-by-east from Cardigan, and 6 south-west from Newcastle Emlyn, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Kilgerran, county court district of Cardigan and union of Newcastle Emlyn, and in the rural deanery of Emlyn, archdeaconry of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Colman is a modern building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch and a western tower containing one bell. The church was restored in 1909. There are 130 sittings, including the family pew for Cilwendeg. The registers of baptisms and burials date from the year 1777. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £90, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, erected in 1894 at a cost of £1,200, in the gift of A. P. Saunders Davies esq. of Pentre, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Morris James Maraden B.A. of St. David's, Lampeter, who is also rector of Llanfilangel-Penbedw. There is a Congregational chapel, built in 1748. In the parish is an Ogham stone dating from the 14th century. Cilwendeg Park is the property of Arthur Picton Saunders Davies esq. D.L., J.P., the mansion is of Bath stone, surrounded by a finely wooded park of 150 acres; it is at present (1919) unoccupied. A. P. Saunders Davies esq. and Maj. John Vaughan Colby are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; chief crops, wheat, barley and oats. The area is 777 acres; rateable value, £648; the population in 1911 was 155.

CAPEL CYNON is an ecclesiastical parish in the county of Cardigan, formed by order in Council from the parish of Llandysilio Gogo, and is 8 miles from North Llandysil station and the same north-east from Newcastle Emlyn terminal station, both on the Great Western railway, and 276 from London; it is in Moyddyn hundred, Aberayron union, county court district and petty sessional division, and in the rural deanery of Sub Aeron, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. For all civil purposes it is included with Llandysilio Gogo. The church of St. Cynon is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a turret containing one bell, and affords 110 sittings. The register dates only from the year 1822, the earlier registers being lost. The living was constituted a rectory 27 Sept. 1859, net yearly value £92, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1905 by the Rev. Thomas Lloyd L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The mission church of St. David's at Talgareg, erected in 1898, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and a turret containing one bell, and affords 170 sittings. There are Congregational and Unitarian chapels. Henry, Earl of Richmond (afterwards Henry VII.) is said to have camped here with his army when on his way to Bosworth Field in 1485, and to have worshipped in the church daily with his officers for a period of at least six months whilst waiting for his army and supplies from Pembrokehire, where they had landed. Two fairs are held here annually on Ascension Day and on Michaelmas Day respectively, and are generally large and well attended. These fairs are said to have had their origin in the custom which once prevailed of assembling here at Ascensiontide and Michaelmas for the purposes of public worship and the partaking of Holy Communion, in consequence of which the neighbouring farmers and others were wont to bring hither large supplies of provisions and other goods for the throngs of visitors. Here is a well, or spring, noted for its purity, and formerly held to possess medicinal and curative properties. The soil is gravel; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley and some land under pasturage. The area and rateable value included with Llandysilio Gogo; the population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 345.

CARDIFF,

INCLUDING ROATH, CANTON, SPLOTLANDS, ADAMSDOWN, GRANGETOWN, MAINDY, BLACKWEIR AND CATHAYS.

CARDIFF is a city and seaport, a municipal, parliamentary and county borough and the capital of Glamorgan, on the river Taff, about 2 miles from its efflux into the Bristol Channel; it is in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Kibbor, petty sessional division of Dinas-Powis, union and county court district of its own name, rural deanery of Cardiff and diocese and archdeaconry of Llandaff.

The South Wales division of the Great Western railway has a station in the town. Cardiff is also the terminus of both the Taff Vale and Rhymney railways and the Barry Railway Co.'s line from Barry Dock joins the Great Western and Taff Vale railways at Cardiff.

It is distant by rail from Aberdeen, 24 miles, Birmingham, 119; Caerphilly, 9½; Carmarthen, 75; Cowbridge, 24½; Derby, 156; Edinburgh, 372; Glasgow, 340; Haverfordwest, 105½; Hereford, 51; Holyhead, 223; Leeds, 213; Liverpool, 155; Llantrissant, 11; London, 170½; Manchester, 168; Merthyr, 24; Milford Haven, 115; Newcastle-on-Tyne, 311; Pembroke, 113; Pembroke Dock, 115; Pontypridd, 12; Rhymney, 22; Shrewsbury, 102½; Sunderland, 309; Swansea, 45½; Tenby, 94; Treherbert, 23; Worcester, 80½; Ystrad, 20; and via Severn Tunnel from Bristol, 40½; Exeter, 84; Plymouth, 137½; Portsmouth, 109½; Southampton, 90½; and Weymouth, 113; and by water—from Dublin, 242; Cork, 204; Waterford, 152; Bristol, 28; and Burnham, 20.

Extensive alterations and additions were carried out in 1895 for increasing the traffic facilities on the Great Western railway, including a new line from the Dock feeder to the passenger station, joining the Taff Vale railway, near Grangetown station; new buildings at the passenger station on the down side, and a new station at the junction of the branch to Clarence Road docks, the line of which has been doubled for the convenience of the Taff Vale and Barry Co.'s passenger service to Clarence Road, where a new passenger station and goods yard was erected in 1899, and another goods yard at Newtown, completed 1900.

The total cost (exclusive of land) is estimated at about £150,000, and the work was carried out under the superintendence of Mr. W. A. Cashman A.M.I.C.E.

In 1899 the Great Western railway quadrupled their line between Cardiff and Newport and provided extensive sidings at Newtown and Pengam for the increasing traffic from the Monmouthshire valley.

The London and North Western Railway Company have also communication with the town via the Rhymney railway. The Taff Vale railway, constructed under the superintendence of the late L. K. Brunel C.E. and opened in the year 1840, extends from the Butte Docks to Merthyr Tydfil, and has various branches, one of which proceeds up the Rhondda Valley, and is connected with the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway at Treherbert, with the London and North Western railway, and the Brecon and Merthyr at Merthyr and with the Great Western at Cardiff. Quaker's yard and Llantrissant, the total length being 124 miles; the company are also lessees of the Penarth harbour, dock and railway; and the Penarth Extension railway. The Rhymney railway affords direct access to Dowlais and Rhymney, and in conjunction with the London and North Western to Ebbw Vale, Tredegar, Blaenavon and other stations in the north of Monmouthshire; it has also connection with the Brecon and Merthyr railway at Bargoed and the Great Western at Hengoed. The Aber branch to Senghennyth, about 3 miles in length, was opened for traffic in 1804, the total mileage being 42½ miles. In 1910 a new bridge was erected over the Rhymney railway at the eastern end of Monthermer road, at a cost of about £2,300.

The Cardiff Railway Company obtained Parliamentary powers in 1897 to construct a railway from near Llanishan on the Rhymney railway to Pontypridd, thus forming a junction with the Taff Vale railway at Treforest; in 1898 the company also obtained the necessary powers to extend this line to their new dock at Cardiff.

The Glamorganshire Canal, opened in 1794, is about 26 miles in length, and was the connecting link between Merthyr and Cardiff prior to the opening of the Taff Vale railway; the length of canal at Cardiff for loading and discharging vessels is over a mile, average width, 100 feet; depth, from 9 to 13 feet; width of gates of sea-locks, 27 feet, and length of lock, 130 feet: there are wharves for shipping coal and iron: the fall from Merthyr to Cardiff is about 600 feet, and there are 51 locks.

Wharves and warehouses were erected in 1895 for the storage of tin plates, of which over 11,000 tons were shipped in 1894; the Great Western railway is now connected with the lower portion of the canal by means of their riverside branch, and the canal company have also laid down railway sidings as far as the sea lock. Since the acquisition of the canal by the present company in 1885, it has been thoroughly dredged, new wharves and warehouses erected at all the principal towns and villages between Cardiff and Merthyr, and a fleet of boats built to run daily between these towns. This service is worked in connection with all the Bristol channel steamers, and thus affords a through route to and from all the important ports of the kingdom.

An iron swing bridge over the river Taff, connecting Grangetown with the docks, and called the Clarence Bridge, was opened by his Royal Highness the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale in 1890.

The town derives its name from the words "Caer Dâr," the fortress on the Tâf, and was originally built by Morgan ap Hywel ap Rhys, but from the departure of the Romans till the conquest of Glamorgan very little is known of its history. It eventually became the capital of the kingdom of Gwent, and so continued until its destruction by Cadwaladr, after which it was rebuilt by Morgan ap Hywel, about the year 900; only, however, to meet with a similar fate a short time afterwards. Caradoc, of Llancarfan, says it was rebuilt by Iestyn ap Gwrgan. Fitzhamon, a Norman knight, having at length become the sole master of Glamorgan, enlarged and almost rebuilt the town, removed the old castle, and erected in its place a durable and magnificent structure, the remains of which are still to be seen. About this time the town was surrounded by walls, flanked with towers, and had five entrance gates; the whole being encompassed with a ditch communicating above and below with the river Taff. In 1404, in the reign of Henry IV. the town was besieged by Owain Glyndwr, son of Gruffudd Fychan, of Glyndyrdwy, and with the exception of one street, in which was a priory of Friars Minor, who were favourable to his cause, was wholly destroyed; he also became master of the castle and in part dismantled it. The Benedictine priory of St. Mary's, founded before 1147 by the Earl of Gloucester, was a cell of Tewkesbury, and existed until the dissolution of religious houses by Henry VIII.

Cardiff formerly consisted of the parishes of St. John and St. Mary, and of Roath and Canton, but on Sept. 20, 1903, they were united as one civil parish. The Parliamentary borough comprises in addition to these parishes the boroughs of Cowbridge and Llantrissant, and sends one member to Parliament. The borough, as extended by the "Cardiff Corporation Act, 1875," consists of the old borough of Cardiff and so much of the parishes of Roath, Leckwith and Llandaff, viz. Canton, as lies between the old boundary of the borough and the following boundary, that is to say, from the point at which the Roath brook touches the north-east angle of the present borough, south-east along the said brook to the point at which it is crossed by the South Wales Railway; thence eastward along the south side of the said railway to the river Rumney; thence southward along the said river to the sea, and along the seashore to the westernmost mouth of the river Ely; thence up the river Ely, to the point at which it is crossed by the road from Cowbridge to Llandaff; thence eastward to the point at which it meets the Pencisely road; thence along the Pencisely road to the point at which it meets the present boundary of the borough and along the said boundary to the point first mentioned.

Cardiff is a borough by prescription, and its privileges were confirmed by James I. and James II. and by Letters Patent of 28 Oct. 1905, it was created a city, and the chief magistrate raised to the dignity of Lord Mayor. On the passing of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 and 6 Wm. IV. c. 76), the corporation was remodelled, and now consists of a lord mayor, ten aldermen and thirty councillors: in 1890 the borough was divided into ten wards, each having a presiding alderman and three councillors: the borough has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions, the lord mayor, during his year of office, being the chief magistrate; but there is a stipendiary magistrate.

Under the Local Government Act, 1888 (51 and 52 Vict. c. 41), Cardiff is declared a county borough for certain purposes of that Act. The corporation is also the Urban Sanitary Authority, and soon after the passing of the Act, carried out a system of drainage. The streets are regular, wide and well paved, and the general appearance of the town exhibits little that is ancient.
