The town is lighted with electricity, and supplied with water from a small reservoir near the town, the property of the Rural District Council, and conveyed from thence into the town, where there are eight public taps. The church of St. Andrew, supposed to have been founded by Sir Andrew Perrott about 1250, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style; it was rebuilt in 1881, at a cost of £3,500, and consists of chancel, nave, transept, north porch and an embattled tower containing a peal of bells, completed in 1801 at a cost of £271; an arcade of three lofty arches, on massive piers, separates the nave and chancel; the stone pulpit is a memorial to the Rev. H. Lewis, late of Stowmarket, Suffolk, who died in 1876; there are 400 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year

1685; marriages from 1754, but the earlier portions are very imperfect. The living is a rectory, with Robeson Wathen annexed, net income £354, with 80 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1914 by the Rev. William Evans M.A. of Downing College, Cambridge, and surrogate and rural dean. The Congregational chapel, in St. James' street, erected in 1858, has 500 sittings; the new Wesleyan chapel, in Station road, erected in 1905 at a cost of £1,065, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, and has 130 sittings; the Baptist chapel, in High street, erected in 1889, is an edifice of blue-stone, in the Gothic style, and affords seats for 600 persons. There is also a Baptist chapel at Mollleston, founded in 1667, seating 350 persons. A cemetery of 2 acres, adjoining the church, was formed in 1855, at a cost of £1,000, and is under the control of a joint committee. A charity, producing £30 yearly, left in 1832 by George Devonald, is applied to educational purposes. The town was considerably improved in 1870 by the removal of several blocks of old buildings and the erection of new houses, and similar improvements have been steadily carried on. A market was built in 1833 near the Old Market square, but the latter is still chiefly used. The court house, a substantial and centrally situated edifice of stone, was built in 1864 and is used as a county court. The County Sessions room, in St. James' street, is used for magisterial business. The Rutzen Arms is a comfortable hotel. A market is held on Thursday, well supplied with provisions. Fairs are held monthly on the Wednesday following Haverfordwest fair, and this is ruled by the Acts of the fairs at Carew and Pembroke; a second fair is held in October for the hiring of servants; only two fairs have fixed dates, and these are held on the 2nd and 20th of June. The fairs held here are noted for the sale of the famous black cattle of the Castle Martin breed. A dog show is held annually in December, in the market house. A cattle is known to have existed here as early as 1092, when it was captured by Arnulph de Montgomery, son of the Earl of Shrewsbury, by whom it was given to Stephen Perrott, who strengthened and entrenched it: in 1183 it was demolished by Rhys ap Gruffydd, Prince of South Wales, but being rebuilt it was again destroyed by Llewellyn ap Iorweth, Prince of Wales, in 1220; another fortress, occupying the site of the present massive ruins, and built by Andrew, son of the above Stephen Perrott, was destroyed in 1257 by Llewellyn ap Gruffydd: in the reign of Edward III. the castle became by marriage the property of the Earl of March, who having been executed in 1329, his estates became forfeited to the Crown, but were restored to his grandson, whose descendant, Richard, Duke of Gloucester, alienated them to the Bishop of St. David's: subsequently again reverting to the Crown, they were granted by Henry VIII. to Sir Rhys ap Thomas, lord of Carew Castle; in 1546, being then a portion of the Slebech colchery, they were granted to Thomas Barlow, of Barlow, Colchester, and during the civil war were seized by the Parliamentary party, but were re-bestowed on the Barlow family at the Restoration, and in 1680 this family obtained a charter from James II. to hold markets and fairs and to receive tolls: these tolls and the manorial rights are vested in the Narberth Cattle Market and Fairs Co. Limited. Baron de Rutzen is lord of the manor, and Sir C. E. Gregg Philipps bart. Wilfred H. P. Lewis esq. and Henry Seymour Allen esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is various; the crops are wheat, barley and oats, but the land is chiefly pasture. The area of Narberth civil parish and Urban District and parliamentary borough is 122 acres; rateable value, £3,689; the population in 1911 was 1,105.

NASH, formerly extra-parochial, is a small parish in the Pentyrrid division of the county of Glamorgan, on the Cowbridge and Llantwit road, 3 miles south-west from Cowbridge terminal station on the Taft Vale railway, 2½ miles north from Llantwit Major, in Cowbridge hundred, Bridgend and Cowbridge union, Bridgend county court district, Cowbridge petty sessional division, Lower Gronreath rural deanery (western division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. There was formerly a private chapel here, dedicated to St. Osmond, but it has long since been disused. There is a charity of £1,000 left by R. C. N. Carne esq. a former owner of Nash, and invested in Consols; the interest, £25, is for the benefit

NASH is a parish in the county of Pembroke, 2 miles north-east from Pembroke and 2½ from Pembroke Dock stations on the Great Western railway, and 9 west from Tenby, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Castlemartin, county court district of Pembroke Dock, and union of Pembroke, and in the rural deanery of Castlemartin, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Mary is a small and ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel and nave under a single roof, and a belfry containing one bell: in the chancel is the effigy of a knight in armour, removed here from the churchyard in 1882: the church was repaired in 1891, and affords 105 sittings, of which 50 are free. The registers, including Upton, date from the year 1742. The living is a rectory.

NEATH.

WITH CADOXTON, ABERDULAIS, SKEWEN, LLANTWIT AND TONNA.

NEATH is a municipal borough, market town, seaport, and parish, the head of a poor law union, two petty sessional divisions and county court district, on the south side of the Neath or Nedd river, which is navigable for vessels of from 300 to 400 tons burthen, with a station on the South Wales main line and another on the Vale of Neath section of the Great Western railway. The Neath and Brecon Railway Co. have a line from Neath to Brecon, with running powers into the Neath Low Level station of the Great Western railway. The Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway have a branch from their main line, with a terminus station, opened in 1895, in the south-west part of the town, which forms a direct route to Swansea Docks and the Rhondda Valley. Neath is 7 miles east-north-east from Swansea, 38 west from Cardiff, 78 from Bristol, and 103½ from London by the Great Western railway, via the Severn Tunnel, in the Neath division of the county of Glamorganshire, hundred of Neath, rural deanery of Upper Gnoneath (western division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The town is a borough by prescription, but under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1832" (5 and 6 William IV. c. 76) the Corporation was remodelled, and now consists of a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors. The borough has a separate police force and commission of the peace. The town is lighted with gas and electricity, and supplied with water from works on the Groll Estate. A new reservoir was constructed in 1896. The gas works, water works, electrical works, markets, cemetery, tramways and slaughterhouse belong to the Corporation. Neath division of Glamorganshire now forms the Parliamentary district, returning one member. The Neath Canal, from Abernant to Briton Ferry, and the Tennant Canal, afford convenient water communication from all parts of the valley to Neath and Swansea. The Neath Canal, which runs a course of 11 miles, terminating at Glyn Neath, has 10 locks, and is 12 feet deep; it is the property of a company. Neath claims, as a place, a high antiquity, being, as is generally allowed, identical with the "Nidum" of Antoninus, and the hills and valleys by which it is surrounded abound in mineral wealth, the apparently inexhaustible character of which has chiefly contributed to the mercantile importance and continued prosperity of the town.

The parish church of St. Thomas the Apostle is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and a massive embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells: the east and west windows and three windows in the south aisle are stained: the church was restored in 1874 at a cost of £2,600, when the galleries were removed and the whole church re-seated with open benches and chairs; it was again restored in 1909: the organ was presented by Sir Humphrey Mackworth about 1796. There are sittings for about 700 persons, and the services are conducted entirely in Welsh. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1692; marriages, 1694. The living is a rectory, with Llantwit annexed, joint net yearly value £300, with glebe (£84) and residence, in the gift of the University of Cambridge, and held since 1018 by the Rev. Gwilym Francis M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford.

The church of St. David, a chapel of ease to that of St. Thomas, erected in 1866, at a cost of £10,000, on a site presented by the late Howel Gwyn esq. of Dyffryn, is a cruciform building of local blue sandstone, with Bath stone dressings, and bands of red sandstone introduced, in the Florentine Gothic style of the 13th century, and consists of apsidal chancel, five windows of which are stained-d, nave, aisles, transepts, north transept aisle (used as vestries), south porch, narthex with seven bays, and a tower, 88 feet high, at the south-west angle of the chancel, with massive pinnacles at the angles, and a spire 152 feet in height, and containing a clock and one bell: the west window was the gift of the widow of the late R. P. Morgan esq. The services here are conducted in English, while the parish church is used entirely for services in Welsh.

The church of St. Catherine, MELINCRYTHAN, also a chapel of ease to the parish church, and locally in the parish of Llantwit, was erected in 1890, at a cost of £3,000, and opened in May, 1891; it is a building of local blue stone with Bath stone dressings in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a bellry containing one bell: the pulpit, of polished Devonshire marble, was given by O. H. Thomas esq. in memory of his wife, and the font, of Caen stone on polished marble columns, by the children of the Sunday school: the east window is stained: the church affords 510 sittings. The site, half an acre, was the gift of Edward Evans esq. of Eaglesbush. The register dates from 1894. To this church a bequest of £500 was made by the late Miss Place, of Neath; it has also an endowment of £10 per year, given by the late Mrs. Grant. Parish rooms were erected in 1904 at a cost of £2,000.

The Catholic church, in Cistle street, dedicated to St. Joseph, was formerly a Wesleyan chapel; it has 200 sittings. The meeting place of the Society of Friends, in The Lett, occupies part of the site of the old castle, and has 150 sittings, with a burial ground adjacent. Bethany Welsh Baptist chapel, London road, is a building in the Greek Classic style, with 700 sittings. The Welsh Congregational church (Ma-s-yr-haf), Windsor road, erected in 1769 and rebuilt in 1864, is an edifice of Welsh stone with Forest of Dean stone dressings, and has sittings for 780 persons.

For other places of worship see pp. 669 and 670.

The Town Hall, standing near the centre of the town, is an old building of the Doric order, and contains a spacious court room for magistrates' and county court meetings, capable of seating 600 persons. The county court sits here monthly; in the basement are the offices of the borough police; the hall is also let for public meetings. The municipal insignia comprise two maces, a mayoral chain and borough seals. The maces are of silver, and form a pair, each being 27 inches long; the shafts are divided by bands into two lengths, and on the foot knobs are inscriptions and the date 1706; the heads bear the national emblems, and are surmounted by crowns with orb and cross, within which, on the flat top, are the Royal Stuart Arms. The mayor's chain, provided in 1872, is of gold, and has a pendent badge, emblazoned with the town arms. The oldest of the seals, dating from the end of the 17th century, is circular, and displays an embattled tower, with buildings on each side, and round this a marginal legend; the second seal is a modern copy of this. The Gwyn Hall, in Orchard street, erected in 1837-8 by the corporation, at a cost of about £7,000, on a site presented by the late Howel Gwyn esq. of Dyffryn, is a building of blue sandstone with Bath stone dressings, in the Gothic style, and consists of a large public hall, holding 1,500 people, a council chamber and municipal offices; in the hall is a fine toned organ, given by Mrs. Gwyn; the Glamorganshire county council hold meetings here half yearly; the meetings of the borough council and of various county authorities are also held here. In front of the hall, on a granite pedestal, is a fine bronze statue of the late Howel Gwyn esq. designed by Maggi, and erected in 1888 by the principal residents of the neighbourhood and county.

The county constabulary offices, in Windsor road, have an attached police court, erected in 1862.

The Public Library was formerly in Church place; new premises, in Victoria gardens, erected at a cost of £4,500, were opened Nov. 7, 1905. The building contains reading rooms and a reference and lending library of about 5,000 volumes.

The Constitutional Club, in Orchard street, was erected in 1885, on a site given by the late Howel Gwyn esq. and cost nearly £3,000; it is a building of red brick, relieved with Bath stone dressings, and consists of a large reading-room, dining, smoking and billiard rooms, and a hall for entertainments, which will seat about 250 people; there is also a library, containing about 900 volumes, and baths were added in 1891; the club was furnished at a cost of £1,000, and has 450 members, and the building was erected by a limited company and leased to a committee.

The Liberal Club occupies premises in Orchard street, comprising billiard, smoking and reading rooms, a reference library of over 200 volumes, and attached is a bowling alley and quoit ground. The Working Men's Club, in High street, was erected in 1898, and contains billiard, smoking and reading rooms, and a skittle alley. The Masonic Hall, in Queen street was erected in 1848.

The market is in Green street, market days being Wednesday (which is the principal market) and Saturday. There is also a market for the sale of horses, cattle &c. on the last Wednesday in every month. Fairs are held on the last Wednesday in March; hiring fair, also stock, horse and wool, 1st and 2nd Wednesday after 12th May; June, Trinity Wednesday; July, last Wednesday, cattle and horse; September, and Thursday, sheep, cattle and horse and the great pleasure fair of the year; fannel fair, October, last Wednesday; hiring and horse and cattle, 1st and 2nd Wednesday after 12th November. The general market was reconstructed in 1905 at a cost of nearly £8,000.

The Glamorganshire Farm School, which is under the control of a committee, was established in 1858, at Hwadref-Genol, and removed in March, 1875, to the present building at Ty-Segar; it is a structure of stone, seated on the slope of a hill overlooking the town and valley of Neath. It is available for 70 boys.

In the vicinity are copper smelting, spelter and tinplate works, fire brick manufactories, chemical works, several foundries and collieries, and a brewery. The principal exports from the Port of Neath are iron and tin plates, copper, spelter, fire bricks, coal and culm; of coal about 300,000 tons are sent coastwise and abroad yearly.

Charities, amounting to £2, are distributed in bread. Alderman Davies left various lands, the rents of which, amounting to about £100 per annum, are assigned to the support of the school in St. David's street.

On the east side of the river are some remaining fragments of the castle, included in the domains of Jestyn ap Gwrgan, lord of Morgawg; it was repaired and enlarged, c. 1090, by his kinsman, Richard de Granville, one of the twelve Norman knights who assisted Robert Fitz Hamon in the conquest of this portion of Wales, but in 1231 was burned by Llewellyn ap Iorwerth; the existing remains comprise the principal gateway, flanked by two massive drum towers, and portions of the curtain walls, and of a south-east tower, probably once commanding a ford across the river.

One mile from the town, in the village of Neath Abbey, are the picturesque ruins of the Cistercian abbey of St. Mary and Holy Trinity, founded in 1130, by Richard de Granville, and colonised from Savigny. In 1224 the monastery was burned. Leland describes it as "the fairest abby in Wales," and its beauty and magnificence, and the tuneful melody of its bells, were commemorated in 1500 by the native bard. At the dissolution there were eight monks, and the revenue was estimated at £132 yearly. The remains, now surrounded by a railway and coal pits, include a great part of the walls of the church, and much of the domestic buildings; the nave, of seven bays, was over 100 feet in length, the choir of three bays, which also had aisles, 50 feet, and the transept, with two chapels in each wing, 140 feet; the total length, internally, was about 220 feet; the cloisters, about 108 feet square, were on the south side of the church; on the east side of the cloister were the sacristy and chapter house, now destroyed, and a block of buildings, part of which, in 1650, was converted by Sir Philip Hoby into a dwelling house, which, though ruinous, still retains its mullioned windows: this block also retains a wide passage, with a vaulted double gateway, several vaulted rooms, and a vaulted common room of four bays; on the west side are the cellarium, the upper storey of which has three fine lancets in the south gable, a porch, dark entry, and some rooms east of these, now converted into a cottage for the caretaker. The figure of an ecclesiastic, said to represent Adam de Caer-Merddyn, abbot of Neath, was, in 1845, in the grounds of Court Herbert. In 1833 some excavations were made by the Rev. H. H. Knight at the east end of the church, when a portion of the Decorated tile pavement was uncovered, and displayed the arms of King John, and the families of de Clare, Turberville, Mowbray, de Granville, Despenser, and Montacute, and some of these are now in the museum at Swansea. Further excavations were carried out in 1840 by the Neath Philosophical Institution, but as yet little has been done towards ascertaining the actual plan of the abbey, and the ruins are at present thickly enshrouded with ivy. Here, in 1326 (November 5 to 7), the unfortunate Edward II. found a temporary refuge, shortly before his murder at Berkeley Castle. 27 September, 1327.

Dyffryn, the seat of Joseph Edward Moore-Gwyn esq. D.L., J.P. has extensive grounds, and is about two miles distant from the town.

Cadoxton Lodge, the seat of Charles Combe Tennant esq. J.P. is pleasantly situated a short distance from the town. The grounds afford some of the most delightful views in the neighbourhood, comprising a great portion of the Vale of Neath.

Eaglesbush Home, the seat of Mrs. Rice Evans, stands on elevated ground, and affords a charming prospect of the surrounding country; the mansion, rebuilt in 1876, has been for many generations the residence of the Evans family.

The principal landowners are the trustees of the Gnoil Estate, Joseph E. Moore-Gwyn esq. D.L., J.P. Lord Dynevor and Sir J. T. Dillwyn-Llewellyn bart.

The area of the parish, town and municipal borough is 1,402 acres of land, 26 of water, 30 of tidal water, and 52 foreshore; rateable value, £69,247; the population in 1911 was 17,586, including 6 officers and 125 inmates in the Poor Law Institution, and 76 in the Glamorganshire Reformatory for Boys, Ty-Segar.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish (Neath St. Thomas with Llantwit-juxta-Neath, St. Iltyd) in 1911 was 21,353.

The population within the parliamentary limits in 1911 was 18,451.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: No. 1 Castle ker North, 7,879; No. 2, Melyn or South, 9,707. Verger of St. David's church, Roger Thomas.

MELINCRYTHAN is an eastern suburb, partly in the borough, but mostly in the parish of Llantwit. The Great Western Railway Co. have railway carriage repairing works and extensive engine sheds here.

CADOXTON-JUXTA-NEATH is a large parish and village, 1 mile north, in the hundred of Neath, Neath union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Upper Gronoath (western division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. It includes the townships of Blaenhonddan, Coedfrank, Dyffry Clydach, Dylais Higher, Dylais Lower, Neath Higher, Neath Lower and Ynysymond. The village is lighted with gas from works at Neath. The church of St. Catwg is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle and a battlemented western tower containing six bells; there are nine stained windows and a very fine toned organ, which was restored and enlarged, and an organ chamber was erected in 1881, at a total cost of £506. A marble font and a marble reredos were added in 1909. There are 550 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1786; marriages, 1754; burials, 1785. The living is a vicarage, net income £305, with 13 acres of glebe, and residence, rebuilt in 1901, in the gift of Henry Nathaniel Miers esq. J.P. and held since 1900 by the Rev. John Daniel James B.D. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Gronoath Upper. The principal landowners are Lord Dynevor, Sir J. T. Dillwyn-Llewellyn bart, Joseph Edward Moore-Gwyn esq. D.L., J.P. and Charles Coombe Tennant esq. J.P. The soil is clay; subsoil, coal and clay band iron stone. The chief crops are oats and barley, but the land is chiefly in pasture. The area of Blaenhonddan township is 3,447 acres of land, 21 of water, and 7 of tidal water, and 3 of foreshore; rateable value, £18,104; and the population in 1911 was 3,633. The area of Dylais Lower township is 5,204 acres of land, and 23 of water; rateable value, £4,901; and the population in 1911 was 576. In 1905 the township of Neath Middle was amalgamated with Neath Higher. The area of Neath Higher township now contains 6,871 acres of land, and 51 of water; rateable value, £13,601; the population in 1911 was 3,097. The area of Neath Lower township is 2,055 acres of land, and 46 of water; rateable value, £3,349; and the population in 1911 was 432. The area of Ynysymond township is 1,512 acres; population in 1911, 523. The population of Cadoxton ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 6,711.

Parish Clerk, Mrs. E. Jones.

Dylais Higher, including Crynant, Onllwyn and Seven Sisters, will be found under a separate heading.

DYFFRYN, 2 miles north-west from Neath, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1873, from Cadoxton and Skewen ecclesiastical parishes; it includes Bryacoch. The church of St. Matthew, erected in 1871 by the late Howel Gwyn esq. at a cost of £4,500, who also gave the site, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, vestry and a southern tower containing a clock chiming the quarters and 6 bells, placed in 1875 at a joint cost of £650; the stained west window was erected in 1900, in memory of the late Howel Gwyn esq. and Mrs. Gwyn, by their nephew, J. E. Moore-Gwyn esq. who at the same time built a western vestry; in the same year the parishioners presented a stained window as a memorial to Mrs. Gwyn, and there are ten other stained windows; the font, of Caen stone, supported by four marble shafts, was the gift of the late Mrs. Moore, of Plymouth; the church was enlarged in 1884-5, by the erection of vestries, and a brass chancel screen was erected and some decorative work carried out, at a total cost of £760, defrayed by the late Howel Gwyn esq.; there are 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1871; marriages, 1874. The living is a vicarage, not yearly value £294, with residence, in the gift of J. E. Moore-Gwyn esq. D.L., J.P. and held since 1871 by the Rev. John Charles Thomas M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, and formerly rural dean of Gromeath Upper (Western division). The vicarage house was erected in 1883 by the late Howel Gwyn esq. at a cost of £7,000, who also presented the site and land adjoining. The population in 1911 was 1,067.

Sexton, Anthony Bulman.

BRYNCOCH is a hamlet, 2 miles north-west from Neath. Here is a colliery and a Congregational chapel, erected in 1857 and re-erected in 1910, seating 200 persons; also a Baptist chapel.

SKEWEN, 1½ miles east, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1844 from the parish of Cadoxton-juxta-Neath, and includes Coedfranc, Dyffryn-Clydach and Neath Abbey; it is lighted with gas from works at Neath. There are three stations on the Great Western railway in the parish, viz.:—Neath Abbey, Skewen and Briton Ferry Road; and one station on the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway, viz.:—Jersey Marine. The church of St. John, locally in Neath Abbey, was consecrated in 1857, it is an edifice of Welsh sandstone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an open turret with one bell; the stained east window was presented by Mrs. Jones, of Rockfield, in memory of her late husband, who also gave a massive polished marble pulpit; in the chancel are two memorial windows to Edward Ackland Moore and his wife; the church affords 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1851. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of the Crown and the Bishop of the diocese alternately, and held since 1915 by the Rev. David Morris L.Div. The new vicarage at Neath Abbey, built in 1905, is pleasantly situated 200 feet above sea level, and affords good views of the surrounding country. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, a mission church in connection with the parish church, erected in 1904 at a cost of upwards of £2,000, is a building in the Gothic style, and affords 375 sittings. At Mooretown is a mission church, also in connection with the parish church, erected at the expense of the late John Newall Moore esq. J.P. (d. 1905), and consisting of chancel and nave, with sittings for 400 persons. There are Baptist, United Methodist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Here are chemical and tinplate and copper smelting works and two collieries, and a large oil refinery is now (1916) in course of erection. The Coedfranc public library, in Evelyn road, was erected in 1905 at a cost of £2,000. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 9,584. The area of Coedfranc township is 3,781 acres of land, 31 of water, 59 of tidal water, and 925 of foreshore; rateable value, £37,843; and the population in 1911 was 8,099. The area of Dyffryn Clydach township is 1,720 acres of land and 15 of water and 1 of foreshore; rateable value, £7,725; and the population in 1911 was 1,780.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Widlake.

At Briton Ferry Road is a ferry across to Briton Ferry; there are fine sands here, much resorted to in the summer time. In the grounds of the Jersey Marine hotel is a lofty round tower overlooking the sea.

ABERDULAIS, or Aboordylais, is a village, 2 miles north-east, with a station on the Vale of Neath section of the Great Western railway, in Blaenhoddan and Lower Dylois townships, and lighted with gas from works at Neath. Here are extensive tinplate works. The Tennant canal passes through the village and crosses the river by a viaduct. There are two Calvinistic Methodist chapels and a Baptist chapel, erected in 1857, with 500 sittings.

CILFREW, a hamlet in Blaenhoddan township, is 1 mile north-east from Aberdulais, and has a station on the Neath and Brecon railway, and also Congregational and Calvinistic Methodist chapels: here are tinplate works.

LLANTWIT-JUXTA-NEATH is a large and scattered parish, 1 mile north-east from Neath, in the rural deanery of Upper Gromeath (western division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Iltyd is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a square tower containing 2 bells: there is a curious old stone font: the church was restored in 1859, at a cost of £500, and has 250 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1695; marriages, 1696. The living is a rectory, annexed to the rectory of Neath, in the gift of Cambridge University, and held since 1912 by the Rev. Gwilym Francis M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, rector of Neath, and surrogate. Llantwit Cemetery covers an area of eight acres and has a mortuary chapel: this cemetery serves generally for the parishes of Llantwit and Neath; there is also a new cemetery at Llantwit which covers an area of 5 acres and has a mortuary chapel. Cimla, about 1½ miles east from Neath, consists of scattered farmhouses. Here is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel; at Melincrythan, in Llantwit Lower, is a Welsh Congregational chapel, erected in 1880, and seating 680 persons. No manorial rights are exercised. The principal landowners are the Earl of Jersey and the South Wales Whitworth Mineral Estates Limited. The soil is clay; subsoil, coal and clay band iron stone. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area of Llantwit Lower township is 4,268 acres of land, 33 of water, 7 of tidal water, and 4 of foreshore; rateable value, £14,716; the population in 1911 was 5,165.

Parish Clerk, Ivor Gwynne Trick.

TONNA is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1908, 2 miles north-east from Neath, from the civil parish of Llantwit, and is lighted with gas from works at Neath. The church of St. Anne, erected in 1891-2, at a cost of £5,000, defrayed by the late Rev. David Griffiths, and opened in 1893, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, transepts, and a tower on the north side, with spire and containing three bells: five of the windows are stained: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1908. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £340, in the gift of J. B. G. Price esq. and the Archdeacon of Llandaff, and held since 1910 by the Rev. T. Meredith Williams B.A. of Lampeter College. There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel, and a colliery in the district. On a hill overlooking the valley is an ivy covered round tower, from which a charming view of the Vale of Neath is obtained. The population in 1911 was 1,277.

NEVERN is a picturesque village and very widely scattered parish, in the county of Pembroke, on the river Nevern, which is here crossed by a bridge: the village is 8 miles from Crymmych Arms station on the Cardigan and Whitland branch of the Great Western railway and 2 east from Newport (Pembrokeshire), in Cemnaes hundred and petty sessional division, Cardigan union and county court district, rural deanery of Kemas, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Brynach is a building of stone in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: on the south wall is a tablet to the Rev. David Griffiths, a former vicar, d. 1834, and to his wife, d. 1828, placed by their children; on the north side are memorials to the Bowns of Llwyngwair, dating from 1708, and on the north chancel wall is another, with arms, to George Lloyd, of Cwmglynn, Eliza his wife and their ten children, dated 1722: the family vault of the Warrens of Trewern, on the south side, dates from 1710, and was closed in 1849: the three stained east windows were erected by James and Harriette Bowen, of Llwyngwair, in memory of their children, James Robert and Leonard Oliver Edward, who died in 1878: on the south side of the chancel is a memorial to George Thomas Bowen, d. 1861, placed by his parents: there is also a stained window erected to James Bevan Bowen, d. 1907: there are 480 sittings: in the churchyard is a very remarkable cross, standing 10 feet out of the soil, the shaft being 10 inches thick, and the cross itself 2 feet wide; it is ornamented with interlaced carving and also bears abbreviated inscriptions. Here also is an ogham stone, 6 feet high, supposed to date from the 5th century, and having a Latin inscription. The register dates from the year 1663. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Kilgwyn attached, net yearly value £160, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1911 by the Rev. Lewis Roderick, of St. David's College, Lampeter, who is also vicar of Bayvil. There is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1841, with sittings for 400 persons, a Calvinistic Methodist chapel, a Congregational chapel at Brynberian, founded in 1690, seating 372, and one at Velindre, erected in 1810, with 350 sittings. Here is a reading room erected in memory of James Bevan Bowen, of Llywngwair. The river here affords good trout fishing. Rogers's charity consists of £800 in Consols, the interest of which is given to the poor in beef and barley yearly by the vicar and Parish Council on St. Thomas's Day. There are two cromlechs in the parish, the one at Pentre Evan, now under government protection, probably being the largest and best specimen of its kind existing; the capstone weighs upwards of 20 tons, and is supported on three upright monoliths, about 10 feet in height; the other, called "Llech-y-Drybedd" (Tripod stone), is on a farm, and has also a very large and weighty capstone: scanty remains exist of the Early Norman castle, near which is a cross cut in the rock, and below it a kneeling place for pilgrims and wayfarers. Llywngwair, the seat of George Bevan Bowen esq. J.P. stands in a well wooded area, and is approached by a bridge over a lake. Sir Martene Owen Mowbray Lloyd bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and lord marcher of the barony of Cemmes. The principal landowners are Mrs. Lloyd, G. B. Bowen esq. Mrs. Owen, David George esq. and Sir M. O. M. Lloyd bart. The chief crops are barley, wheat, oats and hay. The area is 14,712 acres of land, 2/3 of water, 9 of tidal water and 156 of foreshore; rateable value, £7,425; the population in 1911 was 952.

Parish Clerk, David Owen.
The nearest post office is at Velindre, Pemb. 1 1/2 miles east, & the nearest telegraph & money order office is at Newport (Pembroke), 2 miles west

NEWBRIDGE-ON-WYE is a village on the river Wye, in the counties of Radnor and Brecon, 5 miles north from Builth, with a station on the Cambrian railway, and was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1882, from Llanafanfawn, in Breconshire, and Llanwyr, in Radnorshire. It is in Rhayader union, county court district and petty sessional division and in the rural deanery of Melineth Ultra Ithon, archdeaconry of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's. The church of All Saints, erected in 1823, at a cost of £4,000, is a fine building of native stone in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, south porch and a tower with lofty spire containing 4 bells: the organ, added in 1894, was the gift of Mrs. Lister Venables. There are three stained windows, one of which is a memorial to Admiral Lord Lyons, who died 23 November, 1858, and to his sister Catherine, d. 30 December, 1857, and was placed by their niece, Agnes Miuna Venables; the others are memorials to Jos. Henry Venables and Henry George Lister Venables, d. Jan.

1876: there are 200 sittings, all of which are free. The register dates from the year 1883. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1902 by the Rev. James Herbert Alexander Griffiths M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. There is a Baptist chapel here, founded in 1727, with 350 sittings. Here is a reading room and billiard room and miniature rifle range, given by Mrs. Venables, of Llydsinam. Horse fairs are held here on Oct. 17th and Nov. 11th. The population in 1911 was 623.

NEWCASTLE, see Bridgend.

NEWCASTLE EMLYN is a small town and parish on the banks of the river Teifi, in the Carmarthen division of the county of Carmarthen, and is the head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district, with a terminal station on the branch from Pencader of the Great Western railway, and 3½ miles from Henllan station on the same line, and is 246 miles from London, 10 from Cardigan, 19 from Carmarthen, 19 from Lampeter, and 8½ west from Llandyssil, in the rural deanery of Emlyn, archdeaconry of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's. That portion of the town in the county of Cardigan formerly constituted the parliamentary borough of Adpar, which in conjunction with Aberystwyth, Cardigan and Lampeter, formed the Cardigan parliamentary district, returning one member to Parliament, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885" (48 and 49 Vict. c. 23), the representation of the borough was merged in that of the county. Newcastle Emlyn was constituted a civil parish and Urban District, from Cenerth civil parish, by Local Government Board Order, No. 35,609, which came into operation April 1, 1897, and the town is now governed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by a council of nine members. The Castle, the ruins of which still remain, was rebuilt by Sir Rhys ap Thomas, and from its position on the site of an earlier fortress the town derives its present name, "New Castle"; like most of the Welsh strongholds it was held by the Royalists during the Cromwellian rebellion, but eventually surrendered to the Parliamentary army, and was dismantled. The site of the fortress is nearly surrounded by the river Teifi, which at this spot takes a remarkably serpentine course, so that it nearly describes the form of the letter N. Newcastle Emlyn was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1843 from the civil parishes of Cenerth, in Carmarthenshire, and Llandyfrig in Cardiganshire, and includes Adpar, which is also in Cardiganshire. The town is lighted with electricity generated by water power, and is supplied with water from a reservoir, constructed in 1905 by the Urban District Council above the farm of Cwm, about a mile and a half from the town. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in 1842, is a building consisting of apse, nave, south porch, and a western tower containing 2 bells: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1842. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £295, including some land, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1913 by the Rev. Gifford Evans B.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter, rural dean of Emlyn, and surrogate. The Baptist chapel, built in 1875, has 600 sittings. The Congregational chapel, founded in 1723, rebuilt in 1844, and enlarged in 1880, will seat 600 persons. Bethel Calvinistic Methodist chapel, originally built in 1820, was rebuilt in 1869, and has 800 sittings. A cemetery of 3 acres and 22 poles has been formed at a cost of £400; it is under the control of a board of trustees from the Nonconformist chapels. The County Court, which is the most important building in the town, is in the Italian style, and was erected in 1870. The market is held on Friday. The Cawdor Hall, erected in 1892 by the 2nd Earl Cawdor (d. 1898), includes a reading-room, supported by the subscriptions of the members. Cilgwyn is the residence of Charles Home Lloyd Fitzwilliams esq. D.L., J.P. The trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, are lords of the manor and principal landowners. The area of the urban district and parish is 197 acres of land and 11 of water; rateable value, £2,648; the population of the civil parish in 1911 was 922, including 3 officials and 26 inmates in the Poor Law Institution, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 1,702.

NEWPORT is a seaside resort and bathing place on Newport Bay shore of St. George's channel, at the mouth of the river Nevern, and a parish, 249 miles from London, 7 east from Fishguard and Goodwick station on the main line of the Great Western railway, and 10 north-west from Crymmych Arms station on the Cardigan and Whitland branch of the Great Western railway, 10 south-west from Cardigan and 6 east from Fishguard, in the county of Pembroke, Cemmaes hundred and petty sessional division, Cardigan union and county court district, rural deanery of Kemes, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. This place* was anciently a borough, a charter of incorporation having been granted in 1215 by Sir Nicholas Martin, lord Palatine of Cemmaes, and there is still nominally a municipal body, the mayor being appointed by the lord of the manor; but this office according to sec. 21 of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1883" (46 & 47 Vict. c. 18), is purely honorary, and the Corporation has no revenue and no municipal function; the Act however specially provides that nothing in it "shall be deemed to prevent the election of the mayor of Newport (Pembroke) as heretofore or to dissolve the Corporation, or deprive the lord of the manor or the burgesses of any tolls, rights of common or other rights of a pecuniary value." The Bridge, which anciently spanned the Nevern at Penybont, was destroyed in the 16th century in order to cut off communication during a visitation of the plague; but a new bridge was erected in 1895 near the old site by the County Council and public subscription, at a cost of £1,500. The church of St. Mary, erected by William Martin in the 11th century, is a building of stone, originally Norman, but now chiefly in the Decorated style, and consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the stained east window is in memory of two former rectors: in the chancel are memorial windows, erected in 1870, to John Morgan, schoolmaster, by his former pupils, and to Ida Marion Nicholas by her mother, and there are also two windows in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Williams, of Parrog. The church was restored in 1879 at a cost of £2,580, and in 1907 a new organ was erected: there are 400 sittings. The churchyard was enlarged in 1886. The register dates from the year 1765. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £350, including 53 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Sir Martine Owen Mowbray Lloyd bart. and held since 1904 by the Rev. David Griffith Phillipps Lie Th. of Durham University, and rural dean of Kemes. There is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1812, seating 750 persons; a Baptist chapel, founded in 1790, with 600 sittings, and a Calvinistic Methodist chapel. At Parrog there is a stretch of firm sands: the inhabitants are principally occupied in agriculture and fishing. The mountain called "Carn Ingle" is in this parish. Newport Castle, a Norman structure, supposed to have been erected by William Martin in the 11th century, is now (1919) unoccupied. Sir Martine Owen Mowbray Lloyd bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor. George Bevan Bowen esq. J.P. is the principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, rock. The chief crops are barley, oats and wheat. The area is 4,495 acres of land, 8 of tidal water and 105 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,620; the population in 1911 was 1,148. Parish Clerk, Arthur Varney.

NEW QUAY and LLANLLWCHAIARN.

NEW QUAY is a small town and seaport and bathing place, and a civil parish in the county of Cardigan, 7 miles south from Aberayron railway station, on the Lampeter and Aberayron branch of the Great Western railway, 23 south-by-west from Aberystwyth, 20 north-east from Cardigan, 30 north from Carmarthen, 38 north-east from Pembroke, 38 north-west from Swansea and 278 by Great Western railway, and 261 by London and North Western railway from London; the town is in the hundred of Moyddyn, Lower Ilar and Aberayron petty sessional division, union and county court district of Aberayron, rural deanery of Glyn Aeron, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. It was governed by a Local Board from 1868 until the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), established an Urban District Council. By Local Government Board Order No. 35,609, the area of the Urban District which formed part of the civil parish of Llanllwchaiarn was constituted a civil parish. There is a small harbour, constructed in 1835, where ships of considerable tonnage can anchor. The imports are coal, culm, brick and artificial manures; the principal export is timber. The Mission church at the village of Cross Inn, about 2 miles away, is a plain building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave, and has one bell; there are sittings for 200 persons. The Calvinistic Methodist chapel will seat about 1,000 persons; the Congregational chapel here affords about 600 sittings, that at Maen-y-Groes 380, and there is a Baptist chapel seating 300. The principal hotel is the "Black Lion," which has a good sea view. The National Lifeboat Institution has a lifeboat here called the "William Cantrell Ashley." About a mile and a half westward is the "Birds' Rock," where great numbers of birds rear their young, and which is much visited by visitors. The "Wern" is a farm house about 2 miles away, in the parish of Llanarth, and here it is said Henry Earl of Richmond slept in August, 1485, on his way to Bosworth field; the room in which (as they say) he slept still retains some ancient furniture. A small fair is held here on the 12th of November yearly. On the Vronddol estate is a stone quarry belonging to John Thomas esq. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 281 acres of land and 38 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,713; the population in 1911 was 1,192.

LLANLLWCHAIARN is a civil parish, about half a mile west from New Quay. The chureh of St. Llwlwchaiarn, is an edifice of stone in the Florid Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and small western tower with spire containing one bell; there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1720. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1918 by the Rev. Henry Evans L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The principal landowners are John Thomas esq. and Miss Thomas. The soil is clayey; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and potatoes, and pasture. A lode of lead was discovered here in 1865; it is not worked. The area is 2,914 acres of land and 29 of foreshore; assessable value, £1,204; the population in 1911 was 443 in the civil, and 1,634 in the ecclesiastical parish.

CYDPLWYF is a civil parish and township, 1 mile from New Quay. The area is 735 acres; assessable value, £330; the population in 1911 was 137.

NEYLAND, or New Milford, is a parish in co. Pembroke, with a terminal station (New Milford) on the main line of the Great Western railway, 257 miles from London by road, and 282 by rail, 8 south from Haverfordwest, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Roose, union of Pembroke and county court district of Haverfordwest, and in the rural deanery of Roose, archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; it is situated on and overlooks Milford Haven, and is half a mile distant from Pembroke Dock, on the opposite shore; a steam ferry plies every few minutes between the two places. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), Neyland was by Local Government Board Order No. 41,597, dated Oct. 1, 1900, constituted an Urban District and civil parish, and the town is now governed by an Urban Council of 15 members. The South Wales hotel is near the railway station.

St. Clement's church is a temporary structure. A Cemetery of 2 acres and 12 perches was formed in 1878 at a cost of £700; the cemetery is under the control of a joint burial committee, four elected by the Slebech, joint net income £300, in the gift of the Baron de Butzen, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Charles Octavius Richard Wormald M.A. of Cambridge University, who resides at Creshborough, Haverfordwest. Baron de Butzen is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, culm. The chief crops are oats, barley and some pasture land. The area is 659 acres; rateable value, £588; the population in 1911 was 31.

OGMORE and GARW VALLEYS.

THE Ogmere and Garw Valleys form an Urban District on the rivers Ogmere, Garw and Dimbath, and comprise the entire civil parishes of Bettws, Llanyfodwg and Llangeinor, in the Ogmere division of the county of Glamorgan, with stations on the Ogmere and Garw branches of the South Wales section of the Great Western railway and Port Talbot Railway and Docks Company, and are in Ogmere hundred, Bridgend and Cowbridge union, Bridgend county court district, Newcastle and Ogmere petty sessional division, rural deanery of Upper Groneth (eastern division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The affairs of the district were administered by a Local Board, formed in Nov. 1887, but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), an Urban District Council is now the governing authority. The Urban District is divided into six wards. Water is supplied by the Ogmere Valley Water Company and by the Garw Water Company. The area of the Urban District is co-extensive with those of the civil parishes comprised therein, viz.:

Civil Parishes.	Area. Acres.	Population, 1911.
Bettws ..	5,023	2,203
Llanyfodwg	6,350	8,227
Llangeinor	6,552	16,311

Henry Campbell Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. St. David's church, erected in 1910 at a cost of £1,350, consists of nave, chancel, vestry and a turret containing one bell: there are 250 sittings; Welsh services only are held at this church. All Saints' mission room here is a large iron building and has sittings for 600 persons. A cemetery of two acres was formed here in 1888 at a cost of £1,250, and is under the control of the Llangeinor Burial Board. There is a public hall which will hold 1,000 persons. The Ffaldan Working Men's Hall and Institute, erected in 1901, is used only for concerts and other entertainments, and will hold 350 persons; attached to the hall is a reading room, lending library, billiard and game rooms. Here are the pits of the Ffaldan Colliery Co. Limited, and those of the New Braich-y-Cymer Collieries (1910) Limited. The population of Garw Valley ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 12,220.

OXWICH is a small parish in the county of Glamargan, on the shore of Oxwich bay, an indentation on the south coast of the Gower peninsula, and is 9 miles west from Killay station on the London and North Western railway, 10 from Oystermouth, 13 south-west from Swansea, and about 217 from London, in the Gower division of the county, Swansea hundred, Gower union and petty sessional division, Swansea county court district, and in the rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Iltyd is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch and a massive embattled western tower, containing one bell, inscribed
 "Sancta Maria, ora pro nobis"; in the church is an altar tomb to the De la Mares, who restored the church in the Norman period; the church was restored in 1893 by Miss Talbot, and in the course of the work some inscribed slabs were met with bearing the names of two former rectors of the 12th and 14th centuries;
 there are 100 sittings. The registers of baptisms date from the year 1728; marriages, 1724; burials, 1724.
 The living is a rectory, annexed to that of Nicholaston, joint net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of Lady Blythswaad, and held since 1918 by the Rev.
 Latimer Daniel Davies B.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge, and B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.
 There is a Wesleyan chapel. Oxwich Castle, which stands near the village, was founded, it is said, by Henry de Newburgh or Bellomont, Earl of Warwick, in the reign of Henry I. and about the middle of the 16th century Sir Rice Mansel (d. 1588) erected the tower and gateway, still bearing his arms—a chevron between three maunches; the remains are now in part occupied as a farmhouse, and include an ancient dove-cote. At Oxwich Bay, on the southern shore of Gower, are Bone Caves, resembling those of the South Devon coast, and containing deposits of remains of extinct animals, supposed to have been carried there by the carnivorous beasts of a remote palaeontological era. Lady Blythswaad is the sole landowner. The soil is sandy loam; snbsoil, limestone.

 The chief crops are barley, oats and roots. The area is 1,248 acres of land and 17 of water, 2 of tidal water and 469 of foreshore; rateable value, £872; the population in 1911 was 178.

PATRICIO, Patrishow or Partrishow, is a small parish in the county of Brecknock, and on the Gwynne-fawr river, 5 miles from Talgarth station, on the Midland and Neath and Brecon, and Cambrian railways, 6 north-east from Crickhowell, and 6 from Abergavenny, in the hundred, union, county court district and petty sessional division of Crickhowell, and in the rural deanery of Crickhowell, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Ishow is an ancient edifice of stone, chiefly of the Perpendicular period, but with some remains of a structure of much earlier date; as now standing, it consists of chancel, nave, south porch, a small western annex, and a western bell-cote containing 2 bells: the total length is only a little over 40 feet, and the width from 16 to 17 feet: the chancel has an east window of two lights, with a plain bracket on either side, and two square-headed windows and a priest's doorway on the south side, but there are no windows on the north side either of the chancel or nave, except a small one lighting the stairs to the rood-loft, which are approached from the nave by a doorway on the north side: the rood-loft itself, 4 feet in width, and one of the most interesting features of the church, is of oak, in the florid Gothic style, and splendidly carved, with a vine bearing clusters of grapes, and the figure of a serpent at the base on either side: the work is attributed to an Italian artist, and the screen is thought to have been presented by the Herbert family, who were landowners here during the 14th and 15th centuries: below the rood-loft are two stone altars, still retaining their original pre-Reformation positions, but that on the south side is considerably larger than the one on the north; one of the table slabs still exhibits several consecration crosses: the south wall of the nave is pierced by a single window of three lights, and in the porch is a holy water stoup; at the west end of the nave is a small attached structure, apparently of earlier date than the main fabric, and entered by a doorway on the south side; it contains an altar, and was probably a bede-house, or the abode of a recluse; the font consists of a cup-shaped basin on a low cylindrical shaft and circular base; it is coveal with the original church dedicated in 1060, and bears a now imperfect inscription, which may be read "Menhir Me Fecit (In Te(m)pore Genillin"; but it is evident from the style of the characters that this legend is an addition, and not of earlier date than the 13th century: in the church is preserved a copy of a black-letter Welsh Bible of 1620: in 1008-9 the church was repaired under the direction of Mr. W. D. Caröe, architect, at a cost of over £1,000: there are 60 sittings: in the churchyard stands the base of a cross of the 13th century. The registers date from the year 1728. The living is a chapelry annexed to the rectory of Llanbedr, joint net income £190, with 32 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Duke of Beaufort, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Thomas Cyril Wyndham Lewis B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Llanbedr Rectory. On the bank of Nant Mair, and near the church, is a well or spring, lined with stone slabs, and known as "Fynnon Ishow," and once believed to possess curative, if not miraculous properties. The Duke of Beaufort is lord of the manor and Walter Gabb esq. is the principal landowner. The land is under agriculture, with some pasturage. The area is 1,471 acres of land and 8 of water: rateable value, £592; the population in 1911 was 43.

PEMBREY is a parish and village, including the villages of Trimsaran and Pwll, and is 5 miles west from Llanelly, 14 south-east from Carmarthen and 229 miles from London by Great Western railway, and has a station (Pembrey and Burry Port) on the Llanelly and Carmarthen Junction section of the Great Western railway, another one in the village and a halt at Pinged, on the Gwendreath Valley railway. The parish is in the Llanelly division of the county of Carmarthen, hundred of Kidwelly, Llanelly petty sessional division, union and county court district, in the rural deanery of Kidwelly, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's: there is a haven here with an excellent channel, under the control of the Earl of Ashburnham. The scenery is very fine and the sandy beach is good. The church of St. Iltyd is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a massive embattled western tower, containing 3 bells: the church was restored in 1911, at a cost of £3,500: there are 350 sittings: in the churchyard is a gravestone to a niece of Josephine, the consort of the Emperor Napoleon I. who was drowned off the neighbouring coast in the year 1823. The register, including that of Llandry, dates from the year 1700. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £294, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, consisting of the bishop of the diocese and Messrs. Elkington, and held since 1914 by the Rev. David Ayrton Jenkins M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. The chapel of ease of the Holy Trinity, at Pwll, was erected in 1904, and will seat 200 persons. The chapel of ease at LLANDRY, restored at a considerable expense, and enlarged in 1905 at a cost of £700, is a plain cruciform building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and transepts, and has 230 sittings. The Ashburnham Golf Club in this parish has a course of 18 holes. The Earl of Ashburnham, who is lord of the manor, Lady Howard, William Mansel Lewis esq., Trimsaran Colliery Co. Limited, Mrs. Pemberton and C. E. A. Jones esq. are principal landowners. The area is 14,592 acres of land, 186 of inland water, 350 of tidal water and 7,418 of foreshore; rateable value, £43,309; the population in 1911 was 4,549 in the civil and 9,023 in the ecclesiastical parish.

Sexton, Tom Hughes.

By an Order of the Carmarthen County Council, dated Nov. 1, 1902, Burry Port, formerly in Pembrey civil parish, was constituted an Urban District and civil parish.

PEMBROKE is a market town and an ancient municipal borough, with a station on the Great Western railway, 260 miles from London, 156 from Bristol, 7 east-by-south from the town of Milford, 10 south from Haverfordwest and 10 from Tenby; it is the head of a union, in the county of its name, hundred and petty sessional division of Castlemartin, county court district of Pembroke Dock, and in the rural deanery of Castlemartin and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The town is situated on the margin of a creek, navigable for coasting vessels of ordinary burthen, and here dividing itself into two channels, encircling the peninsula upon which Pembroke, with the castle, stands; it consists chiefly of one long street, and has three parishes, viz. St. Mary, St. Michael, and Monkton, and the borough comprises the two wards of Pembroke and Pembroke Dock, or Pater. A charter is still in existence which was granted by Henry II. in 1154, in confirmation of an earlier charter of Henry I. in 1109; these were again confirmed by successive monarchs, but on the passing of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 and 6 Wm. IV. c. 76) the Corporation was remodelled, and now consists of a mayor, aldermen and 18 councillors. The borough has a commission of the peace. Pembroke was previously a parliamentary borough, but under the "Representation of the People Act, 1918," the borough and county only returns one member.

The town is lighted with gas, from the works in Pembroke Dock, the property of the Pembroke Docks and Town Gas Co. and supplied with water from works at South Down, near Pembroke; the supply is derived from large reservoirs, fed by springs at South Down.

The church of St. Michael, which stands at the east end of the town, on the site of an ancient church, is a plain modern edifice in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and an embattled tower, with pinnacles, containing 2 bells: a stained window was placed in the north wall of the nave in 1918 by Mrs. J. James, in memory of her husband and son, and another in 1919, given by Mr. Mansel Bryant, in memory of his son, killed in Palestine. The church was restored in 1886-7, at a cost of £2,130, and has 520 sittings. A new vicarage house was erected in 1905. The register dates from the year 1748, the earlier entries, from 1711 to 1747, being included in the register of St. Mary's. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £175, with residence, in the gift of trustees of Colonel Morgan J. Saurin J.P. and held since 1910 by the Rev. John Alfred Griffith Howell Lic.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

The church of St. Mary, in the centre of the town, is a building in the Norman and Early Pointed styles, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, a small chapel on the south called the "Mayor's aisle," and a central tower containing 8 bells: the south wall of the nave is Late Norman, as is also the entrance doorway, over which is a niche; the doorway leading to the roof left remains; on the north side is a small building, now blocked, which evidently led into a small building east of the tower, probably a sacristy; in the east wall is a recess, and in the south wall over the piscina is a small but deep opening, supposed to have been used for relics; the plate includes a chalice, presented in 1645 by Colonel Poyer, who defended the castle against Cromwell, and who was subsequently shot; in the Mayor's aisle is a curious old brass, erected to a Francis Pary esq. a former mayor: the east window is of stained glass, and was erected in 1907 to the memory of the Rev. D. W. Jenkins, vicar of the parish 1880-1899; there are two stained west windows, given by Mrs. Daniel Shewin Thomas in memory of her late husband; and one in memory of Canon Phillips, a former vicar; and a tablet to Lieut. E. George, who fell in the Great War; and there are monuments to the Meyrick and Adams families; a fine reared of Bath stone, from designs by J. L. Pearson esq. B.A. was erected in 1893, at a cost of £250, and a new organ in 1890 at an expenditure of £350: the church was restored in 1874 at a cost of £3,200, and further restored in 1890 at a cost of £600. In 1900 new oak choir stalls were placed in the church, to the memory of the Rev. William Jones, a former vicar: in the south wall of the nave is a stained window to the memory of the late Henry Thomas Pratt, a former churchwarden: there is a two-light chancel window to the memory of the officers and men of the 3rd King's Shropshire Light Infantry who fell in the Great War: there is also in the chancel a window in memory of Major Treweek, a former churchwarden: in 1919 a brass tablet was added to the memory of the late Mr. L. Beynon: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1711, and includes the early registers of St. Michael and St. Nicholas. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of Colonel Morgan James Saurin J.P. and held since 1899 by the Rev. Charles Hayward Phillips M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge.

The church of St. Nicholas, at Monkton, on the extreme west of the town, formed a portion of the Benedictine priory of SS. John the Evangelist and Nicholas, founded here in 1098 by the Earl of Pembroke, as a cell to the abbey of Sees, in Normandy, and consists of Decorated choir, Norman nave with vaulted stone roof, and a central tower containing 8 bells: a considerable amount of Saxon and Pointed work still exists: the north wall of the nave is actually two separate walls, the outer one having been the south wall of the original Saxon church: north of the chancel is a chapel, restored in 1898, with an open passage intervening; triple sedilia, a piscina, a bagioscope, and the founder's tomb remain: the staircase leading to the priest's chamber over the south porch was reopened in 1866; the doorway and steps are in excellent preservation: the stained east window was erected to commemorate the visit to this church, August 23rd, 1902, of His late Majesty King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra. A chained prayer book, dated 1610, in the original leather binding, and in good preservation, was discovered by the vicar in 1904, and placed in the chancel. The church was restored in 1882-3, at a cost, including fittings, of £1,000: the choir, long ruinous, was restored in 1889: there are 300 sittings. The registers date from the year 1748, the earlier portions being included in those of St. Mary's. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £210, with residence, in the gift of Col. M. J. Saurin, and held since 1877 by the Rev. David Bowen B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, chaplain of Pembroke union, prebendary of St. David's, rural dean of Castlemartin, and surrogate.

The prior's house lies to the west and is now a farm house.

Each parish has its own burial ground. The churchyard of St. Mary's has been closed for some time, and the present burial-ground is situated at a place called St. Daniel's, about a mile and a half from the town, where there stands a church used as the mortuary chapel.

St. Michael's churchyard was closed in 1895, and a new burial ground of 2 acres, on the Upper Lamphey road, formed, at a cost of £600; it has a mortuary chapel and is under the control of a burial board of 9 members, formed in 1893.

The Monkton burial ground consists of 1 acre, and contains a mortuary chapel; the total cost was £500, and it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members, formed in 1893.

The Baptist chapel, St. Michael's square, is a building of limestone with freestone dressings in the Gothic style, erected in 1877-8, at a cost of £2,500, and seats 600. West Gate Calvinistic Methodist chapel, built in 1866, at a cost of £2,100, and remodelled and redecorated in 1878, seats about 500; a new organ was provided in 1913, at a cost of £250. The Congregational chapel, in Main street, erected in 1811, and rebuilt in 1867, will seat 700; there is also a spacious school, class and vestry rooms, and a house for the minister; the total cost of the buildings was £3,500; a new organ was erected in 1900, at a cost of £500; this chapel was first founded in 1691. The Wesleyan chapel, Main street, is a building of stone, in the Italian style, and will seat about 700 persons.

The Town Hall is a plain building, with a market underneath.

The municipal insignis include two maces, a mayoral chain and borough seals. The maces are of silver, each being 27 inches in length; they have plain shafts, divided by rings into four unequal sections: the heads are semi-globular, one being larger than the other, and they bear the date 1632, and are surrounded at the top by double circlets, the lower being reversed; on the flat tops of the heads are the Royal Stuart arms within a garter, and the initials C. R. Both maces were restored in 1890, by, and at the sole cost of, George Lambert esq. F.S.A. of London. The mayor's chain of gold was a gift to the Corporation by the ladies of Pembroke, on the occasion of the jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and has a pendant badge, bearing a representation of the borough seal, and the arms of Gilbert, Earl of Pembroke, King John, Henry VIII. and Queen Victoria. The borough seal is circular, and exhibits a square tower rising above an embattled gateway, flanked by circular turrets, and round the margin is a legend: there are also two other seals.

The Assembly Rooms, built by a company in 1866, consist of a large hall capable of holding 400 persons, lobbies, and a ball and tea room over the ball, so arranged that when occasion requires they can be thrown into one; the hall is let for public meetings and entertainments.

The Pembroke and Castlemartin Conservative Club is in Castle terrace, and has a billiard room, a reading room and other apartments.

The market, which is held on Saturdays, is chiefly for meat, eggs, butter, vegetables and farm and garden produce. There is also a cattle market, held on the last Monday in each month, in the New Cattle market, East end, and a cattle show in December.

A general fair for pleasure and hiring is held on October 10th and the Saturday following.

The Pembroke, Pembroke Dock and District Infirmary, established in 1862, occupies premises built in 1898 in East Back, as a Diamond Jubilee Memorial, and has 7 beds.

There were formerly many benefactions to the poor, but some have become extinct; those still available are: Dr. Jones's charity for apprenticing boys and maintaining poor families living in any of the three parishes, distributed at Christmas, by fifteen trustees and realising about £300 yearly, from which two apprentices are placed out; the rest, after deducting expenses, being distributed amongst the eligible poor: Dr. Powell's charity, which provides £1 yearly, distributed in bread; and Mrs. Mary Meare's charity, being the interest upon £166 in the 2½ per Cent. Consols, which is distributed yearly amongst six widows.

The principal attraction to the antiquary are the beautiful ruins of Pembroke Castle, which occupy a promontory at the west end of the town; the walls of the fortress are in parts fourteen feet thick, and for a considerable period resisted the forces of Oliver Cromwell, who conducted the siege in person, and having reduced the fortress, caused it to be dismantled: the prominent feature of the existing remains is the great circular keep, a Norman work about 70 feet in height, which stands within the inner ward, and is said to have been the birth-place, 26 July, 1455, of King Henry VII. In the rock beneath the north hall is an enormous natural cavern, called "The Wogan," 75 feet long and 50 wide, from which communication between the interior of the castle was carried on by a spiral stone staircase, and with the harbour by a sally-port; within this subterranean apartment the sound of the human voice reverberates in a musical, but peculiar manner.

The principal landowners are Sir Thomas Charlton Meyrick bart. K.C.B.; Col. Morgan James Saurin J.P.; John Frederick Lort-Phillips esq. and Sir Charles Edward Gregg Philipps bart.

The area, rateable values and population of the civil parishes and the Municipal Borough are co-extensive and are as follows, viz. :—

	Area (acres).			Rateable Value. 1919.
	Land, 1911.	Tidal water.	Fore-shore.
St. Mary (including Pembroke Dock)†	13,136	2,479	31	468

† Including 10 officers and 139 inmates in the Poor Law Institution, 118 in the Defensible Barracks, 85 in the Military Married Quarters, 342 in the Hut Encampment, 8 in the Royal Naval Hospital, and 600 on board vessels.

The municipal borough is divided into two wards, viz.: Pater, population, 1911, 11,356, and Pembroke, population, 4,337.

The area of the Pembroke and Haverfordwest parliamentary limits is 16,177 acres; the population in 1911 was 38,634, viz.:—Fishguard, 2,271; Haverfordwest, 5,919; Milford, 5,738; Narberth, 1,100; Pembroke, 18,143; Tenby, 4,363; and Wiston, 640.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register of the whole district in 1914 was 7,803, of which 3,696 were in Pembroke borough.

Parish Clerks (St. Michael) (vacant); deputy (vacant); (St. Mary's), David Williams; (Monkton), Col. Morgan James Saurin J.P.; deputy, James Morant.

PEMBOKE DOCK

PEMBOKE DOCK, or Pater, is a ward of the municipal borough of Pembroke, from which it is 2 miles by rail, with a station on the Great Western railway, and in 1844 it was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from that of St. Mary Pembroke, and is in the rural deanery of Castlemartin and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. Pembroke Dock is capable of floating the largest ships at neap tide, and across it a ferry boat plies between Hobbs' point, Pembroke Dock and Neyland in connection with the Great Western Railway Company's station. The Great Western Railway Company run through carriages from Pembroke Dock station to Paddington, and the London and North Western railway company, via the Central Wales line, to Manchester. This place was originally a farm with a house and church, then designated "Paterchurch," and the ruins of the church are still standing. The town is lighted from works in King William street, the property of the Pembroke Docks and Town Gas Co. Water is supplied by the Corporation of Pembroke. The parish church of St. John, built in 1848, at a cost of £3,000, is an edifice of limestone, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch, aisles, vestry, and a tower containing a chiming clock and eight bells, seven of which were added in 1903; in 1879 the church was beautified and improved internally at a cost of £1,500, when a pulpit of marble and Bath stone was provided, and the interior refrescoed and re-seated: there are several stained windows, including one to the memory of the late Rev. Silas T. Phillips (vicar 1894-1909): there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1848. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £315, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of the diocese, and held since 1909 by the Rev. David Lewis Prosser M.A. of Keble College, Oxford. The Vicarage house stands in its own grounds, adjacent to the church, and between the vicarage and the church is the parish room and Sunday school, built in 1883, at a cost of £1,300, and seating 400. The church of St. Patrick, at Pennar, a suburb of Pembroke Dock, erected at a cost of £2,200, and consecrated in 1895, is an edifice of limestone with Bath stone dressings, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and south porch, and will seat 320. The Rev. David Lewis Prosser M.A. has been in charge since 1910. The Catholic church, Meyrick street, dedicated to St. Mary, is a building of stone, erected in 1846, and enlarged and renovated in 1862, at a cost of over £500, and again in 1907 at a cost of £400: it will now seat about 300. The Congregational chapel, Albion square, was erected in 1865, and affords 1,050 sittings. St. Andrew's Calvinistic Methodist chapel, Bush street, erected in 1866, is a building in the Italian style; it has a stained window, and will seat 800. The Wesleyan chapel, Meyrick street, erected in 1848, will seat over 1,200; there is another Wesleyan chapel at Pennar, erected in 1870, and one at Pembroke Ferry. The Cemetery at Waterloo, opened in 1869, is four and a half acres in extent and has two chapels: it is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members. The Old Cemetery, in South Park street, now closed, occupies half an acre and contains one chapel. The Mechanics' Institute, in Dimond street, the foundation stone of which was laid June 27th, 1862, contains a reading room, and a library of about 3,000 volumes. The Temperance Hall, in Dimond street, is licensed for stage plays, and will seat 700 people. The Conservative Club, in Bush street, has a billiard room, reading, game and committee rooms. The Liberal Club, also in Bush street, has billiard and reading rooms, &c. The Victoria Nurses' Home and Meyrick Ward, in Park street, was erected in 1898-1899, for the Pembroke Dock Nursing Association. The covered Market, in Pembroke street, erected in 1826, belongs to the Corporation. The market, which is held on Friday, is well supplied with meat, fish, poultry, game, butter, cheese, fruit, vegetables, and provisions generally. The County Police station is in Charlton place. The population of Pembroke Dock ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 10,945, including 776 in the Hut and Lionion Barracks and Hospital, and 118 in the Defensible Barracks, and of Pater Ward, 11,356.

The Dockyard church, within the precincts of the Royal dockyard, is a plain edifice, consisting of small chancel, nave, aisles, and a small western tower; the interior is partly surrounded by galleries: in the chancel is a memorial window to officers and seamen lost at sea in H.M.S. "Atalanta," 10 Nov. 1813: the church was built for the officers and workmen of the dockyard, for whom seats are appropriated in the area, the north and south galleries being set apart for seamen, but the public are also permitted to attend the services: the church will seat about 850 persons. The Rev. Louis William Lancelot Walker M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge and R.N. has been chaplain since 1919.

PENALLY, 1½ miles south-west from Tenby, is a parish and pretty village, with a station on the Pembroke and Tenby branch of the Great Western railway, in the county of Pembroke, hundred of Castlemartin, in Pembroke union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Castlemartin, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Nicholas is a small cruciform edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a western embattled tower containing 5 bells, one of which is inscribed "Sancte Paule ora pro nobis:" there is a curious bagioscope in each transept: all the windows, seven in number, are stained, the east window being a memorial to Mrs. Hughes, wife of a former vicar: the church was restored in 1884 at a cost of £565, and in 1891 was lighted by electricity at a cost of £120, solely defrayed by the late Clement John Williams esq.: there are 230 sittings: in the churchyard are two fine Runic crosses, one of which was found embedded under the tower, when the edifice was restored, about 1850. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1738; marriages, 1754. The living is a vicarage, net income £160, with 12 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1873 by the Rev. David Melvill Morris M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. Sir Charles Edward Gregg Philipps bart. is the lay rector and impropror of the great tithes, which amount by tithes commutation to £183 yearly. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1887, is a building of stone, with seats for 160 persons. The parochial reading room, formerly a National school, was furnished and equipped by the late C. J. Williams esq. The Abbey, the residence of William Belingham Jameson esq. J.P. is a Tudor mansion, erected on the site of some monastic ruins, the most notable remains of which are a fine Flemish chimney and a chapel known as St. Teilo's, or St. Daniel's. Near here is a hut encampment for rifle practice on the neighbouring burrows, and here also are golf links; on a conspicuous point overlooking some limestone quarries, stands an ancient watch tower. Near Treloyne or Trellwyn farm were the head quarters during the civil war of Richard Vaughan, second Earl of Carbery, a distinguished cavalier, and about 1½ miles from Tenby is a huge cave called "Hoyle's Mouth," leading to a series of subterranean chambers, which are said to be connected with the Hogan cave beneath Pembroke Castle. Scotlandborough, another decayed mansion, formerly belonging to the Rhys family, is also near the town. The area is 2,465 acres of land and 133 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,271; the population in 1911 was 466, including 68 in the barracks.

PENARTH

PENARTH is a seaport and civil parish, about 4 miles south from Cardiff and 172 from London, in the South division of the parliamentary borough of Cardiff, Dinas-Powis hundred and petty sessional division, Cardiff union and county court district, rural deanery of Penarth and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The Taff Vale Railway Company has a station both at the town and dock. This place derives its name from two Welsh words, "Pen" a head, and "Garth" an inclosure, and its lofty ridge was, at a very early period, chosen as the spot for kindling the beacon fire to warn the county of invasion, the signal being immediately repeated on Garth Mountain and Castell Coch, and from thence transmitted to Merthyr, Breconshire and Carmarthenshire. In the year 1088, according to Powell, the Normans landed at Penarth, and marched under the leadership of Robert Fitzhamon, to Hirwaun Wrgant in company with the forces of Jestyn, the last Prince of Glamorgan, against the Prince of South Wales, Rees ap Tewdwr, whom they defeated; after the Normans had received their payment the treacherous Jestyn refused to fulfil his promise to Einon, a Welsh chieftain, who had engaged their services, whereupon Einon, going to Penarth Hill, signalled to the mercenaries to return, who, attacking Jestyn at the Heath, near Cardiff, defeated him, and eventually conquered the whole county. Robert Fitzhamon retained in his own hands the lordships of Cardiff, Dinas-Powis and Kenfig, to one of which, probably, Penarth belonged.

By the Act 38 and 39 Vict. cap. clxxv. Penarth, Llandough-juxta-Penarth and Cogan parishes were formed into a Local Government district, and governed by a Local Board until the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), established the present Urban District Council. The district has been divided into four wards. The parish is lighted with gas by the Cardiff Gas Light & Coke Co. and supplied with water from two reservoirs in the parish of Llandough, and one in the parish of Leckwith, the property of the Cardiff Corporation. A system of drainage, carried out by the owners of the Plymouth estate, at a cost of over £50,000, was transferred to the board free of cost.

By Local Government Board Order No. 44,379, which came into operation Sept. 27, 1902, the civil parishes of Penarth, Cogan and Llandough were constituted one civil parish under the name of Penarth.

The old parish church, supposed to have been built by the Normans, stood on the promontory, and was a landmark and steering point on the charts of the Bristol Channel, of which this headland affords an extensive prospect.

The existing church of St. Augustine is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1865, by the late Baroness Windsor, at a cost of about £10,000, on the site of the ancient fabric, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, a porch at the north-west corner, and a tower 90 feet in height, with saddle-back roof, at the south-west angle, containing a fine peal of 6 bells, which can be heard for many miles seaward: the east window is stained and in the south transept is a stained window, given by the late Lady Windsor, and there are other stained windows: above the nave arches are eight circular panels of Bath stone, painted with illustrations of the Beatitudes: there are nearly 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1768. The living is a rectory (with the rectory of Lavernock annexed), joint net yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Plymouth, and held since 1910 by the Rev. George Passand Turner M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and surrogate.

The church of St. Paul, in Arcot street (previously a Wesleyan chapel) was roofed and fitted as a church in 1907, at a cost of £2,500: it serves as a chapel of ease to the parish church, and seats 500 persons.

The church of All Saints, in Victoria square, erected in 1891, is an edifice of Newbridge stone, with dressings of Bath stone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave and aisles: the east window is stained: the site and a donation of £3,000 were given by the Earl of Plymouth, the cost altogether being £6,000: there are 600 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £500, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. and held since 1910 by the Rev. Alfred William Flux Dundas M.A. of New College, Oxford.

St. Joseph's Catholic church is a building in the Early English style, erected in 1877, with sittings for 120 persons: attached to the church is a school, built in 1880.

For other places of worship, see pp. 712 and 713.

The Cemetery, at Lower Penarth, was formed in 1903, and has an area of 5 acres; it is under the control of a burial committee of the Urban District Council, consisting of seven members.

The Turner House, Plymouth road, Penarth, is a private Art gallery, built in 1888 by J. Pyke Thompson esq. J.P. and is open to the public free of charge every Sunday, Wednesday and Saturday from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon; the gallery contains a collection of early water colour drawings by Turner and Girtou, Cox, Cotman and others, and also a few modern works in oil, as well as a carefully chosen series of prints after Turner, and etchings by Rembrandt &c.: there is also a small collection of choice porcelain, comprising samples of Chelsea, Worcester, Swansea and Nantgarw: the expense of keeping open the Turner house is entirely defrayed by the trustees of the late owner.

The Public Free Library, on the Stanwell and Rectory roads, was erected in 1905, in part with a sum of £4,000, given by the late Andrew Carnegie esq. (d. 1910), the site being presented by the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B.

The Diocesan Preventive Home for girls (incorporated with the Diocesan Deaconess Institution), Earl road, is for the training of 12 girls; the site, of one acre, was given by the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. and is a freehold.

During the years 1880-83 gardens were laid out along the cliff in front of the Kymin and an entrance lodge built, which, as well as the bridge at the western end of the gardens, was erected from designs by Mr. Snell, the surveyor to the Plymouth estate. To the west of Penarth is a large area of ground commanding magnificent views of the Bristol Channel and on which a large number of villa residences have been erected. There is a good cricket ground, with a pavilion; and on the beach a commodious clubhouse, provided with lookout tower, bath room and lavatories. Convenient means of access from the railway station to the beach is afforded by a walk through the dingle or the ravine, which, by the erection of a sea wall, has been converted into an agreeable promenade, and the esplanade forms a spacious carriage drive. The promenade and landing pier, opposite the swimming bath and New Esplanade hotel, erected in 1894 and opened to the public Feb. 1895, is a structure of iron, with wood planked deck and is 630 feet long with an average width of 25 feet, but the head, 120 feet long, is 60 feet wide; at the entrance are shops, refreshment rooms &c. A marine subway was constructed, about 1900, under the river Ely at a cost of about £26,000, from plans by Mr. G. T. Sibbering M.I.C.E. and is open day and night for foot passengers. The salt water baths on the beach were erected by the late local board of health, at a cost of £7,500, of which £3,000 was given by the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B.; they are in the Renaissance style, from designs by the late Mr. H. C. Harris and Mr. H. Snell as joint architects; the swimming baths are supplied with water pumped from the sea to settling tanks, when all mud in suspension is precipitated before the water flows into the baths; the two swimming baths are respectively 80 by 30 feet and 50 by 23 feet, and there are seven slipper baths supplied with fresh and sea water, both hot and cold; the large swimming bath is also made tepid when required. During the winter the baths are used as a gymnasium. The Coastguard station is a conspicuous building, occupying an excellent site, and is provided with every kind of apparatus necessary for the saving of life at sea, including a rocket stand, supplied by the Board of Trade.

The Penarth hotel is on a hill within easy distance of the dock, commanding splendid views of the Bristol Channel. There is also a large hotel on the Esplanade, facing the sea, and adjoining the Public baths. Within a short distance of the station are the Penarth nurseries, covering eleven acres. Two newspapers are published here: the "Penarth Times," every Thursday evening by Messrs. J. F. Pickford and Sons, and the "Penarth Advertiser," every Tuesday by Mr. Thomas O. Powlson. Dinas Powis castle, a Norman fortress, is about 3 miles west, and there are cromlechs at St. Nicholas and St. Lythans, from 5 to 6 miles west. The Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is principally clay; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, roots and pasturage. The area of the civil parish and Urban District (which includes the former civil parishes of Penarth, Llandough and Cogan) is 2,181 acres of land, 29 of inland water, 26 of tidal water and 217 of foreshore; rateable value, £124,400; the population in 1911 was 15,488, including 524 on board vessels.

The population of the wards in 1911 was:—Central, 2,795; North, 4,455; South, 4,511; West, 3,727.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911 was:—St. Augustine's, 2,622 and All Saints', 3,589.

PENARTH DOCKS AND TIDAL HARBOUR.

Penarth, until about 1870, was a small and unimportant village; but the increased demand for South Wales coal having much overcrowded the Cardiff docks, attention was directed to the facilities which the harbour at the entrance to the river Ely offered for shipping, and in 1856 a company was formed for the purpose of utilizing it and constructing a dock, with a line of railway branching from and having running powers over the lines of the Taff Vale Company. The harbour was opened in 1859 for the shipment of coal, and in 1865 the dock was opened and from that time to the present the shipments of coal at Penarth dock have been rapidly increasing, the export in 1908 being 4,267,535 tons. In 1865 the dock, harbour and railway were leased in perpetuity by the Taff Vale Railway Company. The dimensions of the harbour are—Length, measuring along the centre of the river, 13,000 feet; frontage on the Cardiff side, 12,000 feet; frontage on the Penarth side, 3,000 feet; average width at water line at high water for the first reach of the river, 600 feet; length, 4,000 feet; area, 55 acres; average width at water line at half tide, when water is 15 feet, 280 feet; area, 26 acres; number of staiths for the shipment of coal, 6; with provision for 4 more. Each staith is capable of shipping 150 tons per hour; depth of water in the berths at high water, ordinary spring tides, 30 feet; depth of water in the berths at high water, ordinary neap tides, 20 feet. Vessels of 800 tons burthen take the ground, and are loaded with great dispatch in this harbour. The maximum run of the tide is about two knots per hour. There is 1 crane for unloading ballast and other commodities of a capacity of 30 tons per hour. In 1857 an Act was passed enabling the Penarth Harbour and Railway Company to construct railways to, and a dock and other works on or adjoining, the south-west branch of the river Ely, and for other purposes. The commerce of the port in 1881 reached such dimensions that the leasing company decided to undertake a considerable enlargement of the property: the works carried out for this purpose were completed April, 1884. The dimensions of dock are—length, 2,900 feet; width, 370 feet; area, 23 acres. The lock is in length, 270 feet; width, 60 feet; width of sea gate, 60 feet; depth of water—ordinary spring tides, 35 feet; depth of water—ordinary neap tides, 26 feet; basin, length, 400 feet; width, 330 feet; area, 3 acres; width of entrance, 60 feet; depth of water—ordinary spring tides, 35 feet; neap tides, 26 feet. Being a tidal dock the gates can be opened at high water from sea to dock for the ingress and egress of shipping, thereby avoiding the great delay usually caused at other docks by locking through. There are 19 coal staiths in the dock and a 4 tip movable berth in the basin, and 1 berth of 2 movable staiths, each capable of loading 400 tons per hour, for loading steamers of the largest dimensions. Every provision has been made for shipping coal with the least possible breakage and the greatest dispatch, by a patent anti-breakage appliance exclusively used by this dock. There are numerous cranes, worked by hydraulic power for the discharging of ballast and iron ore. Hydraulic power is also applied to the opening and shutting the dock gates and to other purposes, affording facilities for working the dock and for the dispatch of shipping.

There are two large river wharves, 600 feet long, with hydraulic cranes, for the quick dispatch of vessels laden with iron ore. Large centrifugal pumps are fitted to the dock for increasing depth of water during neap tides. In 1912 the exports were—coal and coke, 4,179,506 tons; general merchandise, 3,199 tons; patent fuel, 7,022 tons; iron and iron work, 344 tons; tinplates, 715 tons; the imports consist of pulp for paper making, pitwood, iron ore, iron and general merchandise, and in 1912 amounted to 110,080 tons, giving a total of imports and exports of 4,300,865 tons. Near the entrance to the dock is a fine suite of offices for the use of the Customs, Dock Company and Board of Trade. Near the centre of the dock is a mission room, in connection with the Missions to Seamen's Society, built at a cost of £1,000, and containing reading and refreshment rooms both for officers and seamen.

COGAN or Cogan Pill is an ecclesiastical parish, abutting on Penarth docks, where there is a station, on the high road from Cardiff to Penarth; it is 3 miles from Cardiff. The old parish church of St. Peter, after having been roofless for nearly a century, was restored by the 3rd Marquess of Bute K.T. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1785; marriages, 1786. The church of the Holy Nativity, Cogan, erected at a cost of about £2,500, is a building of local blue lias stone in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, south transept, organ chamber, vestry and south porch. The site was given by the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B.: there are 311 sittings. The living is a rectory, amalgamated with the rectory of Llandough and Leckwith, joint net yearly value £174, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Bute, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Frank Ernest Williams, who resides at Penarth. There is a Church Mission room in Cogan village, which is served from Llandough. The United Methodist chapel, erected in 1883, at a cost of £1,400, has 350 sittings, 110 being free. There is a small reading room, a branch of the Penarth Public Free Library, opened in November, 1902, and open on week days from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Lord Colman E. Crichton-Stuart, who is lord of the manor, and the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. are the principal landowners. The soil is principally clay; subsoil, marl and blue lias. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats.

LLANDOUGH is a village and ecclesiastical parish between Cardiff and Penarth, with a halt on the line between Grangetown and Penarth Dock, 2½ miles south-south-west from Cardiff and 1½ from Penarth. The nearest railway stations are Cogan, and Penarth Dock, distant half a mile. The parish is governed by the Penarth Urban District Council. This place derives its name from the Welsh "Llan," a church, and "Dochdwy," the name of an early British saint and abbot connected with the see of Llandaff. In the early part of the 6th century, according to Tanner, St. Dochdwy came to this county with Cadvan, and built a monastery at Llandough for twelve monks or canons, which was dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and endowed by Paulentus, King of Glamorgan. The church of St. Dochdwy is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, erected in 1866 on the site of the old church, at a cost of more than £2,000, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, organ chamber, vestry and a tower on the south side of the chancel, containing one bell: there are 250 sittings: in the churchyard are remains of a highly decorated cross. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1784; marriages, 1755. The living is a rectory (with the rectory of Leckwith and Cogan annexed), joint net income £174, with residence and 30 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Marquess of Bute, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Frank Ernest Williams, who resides at Penarth. Here is an English Baptist chapel, erected in 1861, with 300 sittings. The Marquess of Bute is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is principally clay; subsoil, marl and blue lias. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The population in 1911 was 3,527.

PENBOYR is a parish in the Carmarthen division of the county of Carmarthen, 1½ miles south of Henllan station on the Llandyssil and Newcastle Emlyn section of the Great Western railway, 5 east-by-south from Newcastle Emlyn and 12 north-by-west from Carmarthen, in the hundred of Elvet, petty sessional division, county court district and union of Newcastle Emlyn, and in the rural deanery of Emlyn, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Llawddog, rebuilt in 1809, on an ancient site, is a building of stone consisting of chancel, nave and turret containing 1 bell: the church was restored in 1839, at a cost of £780, and affords 175 sittings. The registers date from the year 1752. The living is a rectory, net income £300, with 162 acres of land and residence, in the gift of the trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, and held since 1914 by the Rev. David Jenkins B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Velindre. At Velindre is the chapel of ease of St. Barnabas.

There is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1837, seating 500 persons, and a Calvinistic Methodist chapel. The trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, are the principal landowners. The soil is light and slaty; chief crops, oats, barley and wheat. The area is 6,936 acres of land and 16 of water; rateable value, £5,705; the population in 1911 was 1,273.

VELINDRE is a thriving village in this parish, with St. Barnabas' chapel of ease, and containing a number of flannel manufactories, in which most of the inhabitants are employed.

PENCLAWDD is a large village in the civil parish of Llanrhidian Higher, with a station on the London and North Western railway, 3 miles west of Gowerton station and 9 west-north-west of Swansea, in the Higher division of the parish of Llanrhidian, Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, petty sessional division of Swansea and union of Gower, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The railway extends to Llanmorlais, about 2 miles. The church, situated at Llanyrwydd, one mile south, and erected as a chapel of ease to Llanrhidian, on the site of an ancient church, is a modern building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry and a western tower with spire containing one bell: the church affords 200 sittings. A piece of land given by the late G. B. Haynes esq. has been added to the churchyard, and a boundary wall built at a cost of £250. There is also a Church hall and Sunday school room in the village, a Baptist chapel, erected in 1803, seating 430 persons, a Congregational chapel, erected in 1816, with 550 sittings, and a Calvinistic Methodist chapel. The soil is clay; subsoil, mineral. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and swedes. Many of the inhabitants depend on the fishing industry, particularly that of cockles.

PENCOED AND COYCHURCH.

PENCOED is a scattered township and village, with a station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, 17 miles from Cardiff, 4½ north-east by road from Bridgend, 7 north-west by road from Cowbridge and 7 from Llantrisant, forming, with the hamlets of Coychurch Higher and Lower, the civil parish of Coychurch, in the Ogmere division of the county of Glamorgan, hundred of Newgate, petty sessional division of Newcastle and Ogmere, Bridgend and Cowbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Lower Gro-Neath (western division) and archdeaconry and diocese of L'andaff. The parish church of St. Crallo, at Llan Grallo, in Coychurch Lower, 2 miles south-west, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, aisles and a western square embattled tower containing one bell: in the church is a recumbent effigy of the 14th century, representing Wenllïam (Talbot), wife of the 2nd Sir Payn Turberville; the hands are broken; the feet rest on a circular plate, against a sitting hare: here also is a rudely-sculptured effigy of Thomas Iwan, rector, ob. 1591, and the effigy of a child; there is also a tablet to the memory of Arthur John Williams D.L., J.P. of Plas Coed-y-Mwstwr, M.P. for South Glamorgan 1885-1895, who died 1911: in 1878 the tower fell, owing to a subsidence of the soil, but its restoration was completed in 1888, at a cost of £1,840: there are 350 sittings: in the churchyard is a Norman cross and one of still earlier date. The register dates from the year 1736. The living is a rectory, with Peterston-super-Montem annexed, joint net yearly value £314, including 42 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Dunraven and Mountearl K.P., P.C., C.M.G. and held since 1807 by the Rev. Frederick Charles Williams B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The Calvinistic Methodist chapel, built in 1771, rebuilt in 1834, and again in 1888, at a cost of £1,500, will seat 550 persons, and has a cemetery attached; there is also an English Calvinistic chapel, erected in 1907, at a cost of £1,700, and a Baptist chapel. The Public Hall, in Pencoed, was built in 1909, and will seat 1,000 persons. There are two collieries, and a colliery tool and tram manufactory. A fair is held the first Monday in June, and a fair to be held on the second Monday in October was inaugurated in 1904. The late Mrs. Elizabeth Davies, of Tregroes, bequeathed, in 1836, £800, the interest of which is £32 per annum, to be distributed equally among the poor of Upper and Lower Coychurch and Pencoed, and also the interest of £400 for two schools, one at Lower Coychurch and one at Pencoed. Mr. Morgan Thomas left a charity, the interest of which, £3 10s. per annum, to be divided among the poor of Lower Coychurch. Plas Coed-y-Mwstwr, in Lower Coychurch, is the residence of Mrs. Arthur John Williams. The Earl of Dunraven and Mountair K.P., P.C., C.M.G. who is lord of the manor, and Mrs. Blandy-Jenkins are the principal landowners. The soil is principally gravel; subsoil varies. The land is principally pasture, and the crops are barley, oats and potatoes. The area of Pencoed township is 2,212 acres of land and 6 of water; Coychurch (Higher), 3,928 of land and 4 of water; and Coychurch (Lower), 1,099 of land and 6 of water; the rateable value is, Pencoed, £11,314; Coychurch (Higher), £5,625; Coychurch (Lower), £5,490; the population in 1911 was—Pencoed, 1,894; Coychurch (Higher), 1,088; Coychurch (Lower), 303. The population of the ecclesiastical parish of Coychurch in 1911 was 4,478.

Coychurch (Higher) (or Heol-y-Cyw) is $\frac{2}{3}$ miles north from Pencoed. A chapel of ease was erected here in 1890. Here is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1897, containing 250 sittings, and a Calvinistic Methodist and a Welsh Baptist chapel.

Homfray J.P. is an ancient building of stone, with a lofty embattled central tower, commanding from its elevated position a wide and magnificent prospect: it was partly destroyed in the 15th century by the noted Welsh chieftain, Owen Glyndwr, and since that time has been twice burnt: the existing buildings surrounding the spacious courtyard are used as stables on the one side and on the other for domestic purposes: the residential part, which is semi-detached, appears to be of a much later date than the rest and is a fine square pile with embattled parapet: the grounds are very extensive. Penllyn Court is the residence of Thomas Llwwellyn Evans esq. The Earl of Dunraven and Mountearl K.P., P.C., C.M.G. is lord of the manor, and Capt. John G. R. Homfray J.P. is the principal landowner. The soil is reddish loam; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 1,962 acres; rateable value, £2,573; and the population in 1911 was 509.

PENMAEN is a small parish on the shore of Oxwich Bay in the Bristol Channel, 6 miles west from Killay station, on the London and North Western railway, and to west from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, Swansea hundred, Gower union and petty sessional division, Swansea county court district, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, small transept, south porch and a central bellcote containing one bell; during the renovation of the church a stone was found with an inscription and the date 1623; there are several stained windows, given by various donors; the church was restored, and a chancel added in 1855; the organ was presented as a memorial to the late Hon. John Aubrey Vivian, who died in 1898; there are about 150 sittings. The ruins of a more ancient church, partially covered with sand, still exist, and retain an altar stone, piscina and other features of interest. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1765, deaths 1767, and marriages 1778. The living is a rectory, net income £314, with 92 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Richard Henry Talbot M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Poor Law Institution for Gower union, in this parish, was built in 1861 on a lofty eminence overlooking Oxwich Bay; a new wing was added in 1899 at a cost of £400, and the house is now available for 60 inmates. There is an ancient tumulus at Park Cwm, another at Penmaen Burrows, and an ancient encampment. Petty sessions are held at the Gower Poor Law Institution here once every month. Parc-le-Breos is the seat of Rear-Admiral Algernon Walker-Heneage C.B., M.V.O. The Duke of Beaufort is lord of the manor. Rear-Admiral Algernon Walker-Heneage C.B., M.V.O. and Lady Blythwood are the principal landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are barley, oats and roots, but the land is mostly for grazing. The area is 995 acres of land, 4 of tidal water and 93 of foreshore; rateable value, £981; the population in 1911 was 154 in the civil parish, including 5 officers and 33 inmates in Gower Poor Law Institution, and 162 in the ecclesiastical parish.

PENMARK is a parish and village, 2 miles north-east from Aberthaw, where there are two stations, one on the Vale of Glamorgan branch of the Barry railway, and the other a terminal station of the Cowbridge and Aberthaw branch of the Taff Vale railway; it is also 2 miles north from Rhosse station, on the Barry railway, all these belonging to the Great Western system, 4 north-west from Barry, 12 south-west from Cardiff and 6 south-east from Cowbridge, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Dynas Powis hundred, St. Nicholas petty sessional division, Cardiff union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Barry, and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, chiefly in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel with a late Norman arch, nave, with a fine Perpendicular tower arch, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, restored in 1899, at a cost of about £150. There are two memorial windows, one erected in 1899, by George Neale esq. J.P. in memory of his wife and her sister, and a smaller one to Col. Boteler; there are 180 sittings. The register of baptisms, marriages and burials dates from the year 1761. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £260, including 116 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester, and held since 1501 by the Rev. Percy Mortimer M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. Here is a Welsh Calvinistic chapel. The principal charities are derived from the rent of two cottages, 2½ acres of land and the interest on £62 ros. distributed on the Thursday before Easter to poor persons not in receipt of parish relief, by the vicar and churchwardens, who are the trustees. Near the church are the ruins of an ancient castle, built soon after the Norman Conquest by one of the Umfrevilles. Mrs. Jones, who is also lady of the manor, and Lord Wharton are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,357 acres of land, 4 of inland and 7 of tidal water and 165 of foreshore; rateable value, £7,470; the population in 1911 was 495.

PENNARD and PARK MILL.

PENNARD is a small parish, bounded on the south by the Bristol Channel, 4 miles south-west from Killay station on the London and North Western railway and 8 south-west from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan. Swansea hundred, Gower union, Swansea county court district, Penmaen petty seasonal division, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The church of Saint Mary is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, small transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 2 bells: in the chancel is a marble tablet to Major Penrice, who distinguished himself in the Peninsular campaign: there are 170 sittings. In the churchyard lies an old font, supposed to have been the first used in this church. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1831; burials, 1813, and marriages, 1751. The living is a vicarage, net income £50, in the gift of Lady Lyons, and held since 1891 by the Rev. John Veale Roberts, who is also rector of and resides at Ilston. Pennard Castle, which stands on the edge of the sandhills on a rock rising from the valley, is a grey old ruin of which little now remains, save part of the outer wall including the entrance gateway; there are also near here ruins of a church, and a magnificent view of the valley and bay is obtained from this spot. PENPONT (or Bettws-Penpont), is a civil and ecclesiastical parish, the latter formed in 1884 from Llanspyddid; it is in the county of Brecknock, 4½ miles west-by-north from Brecon and 4 from Aberbran station on the Neath and Brecon railway, in the hundred and petty seasonal division of Devynock and Brecon county court district, union of Brecknock and in the rural deanery of Brecon (second part), archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The church, an ancient building of stone, was almost entirely rebuilt in 1854, under the direction of the late Sir Gilbert Scott kt., R.A. in the Early English style, and now consists of apsidal chancel, nave and a tower containing one bell; a stained window was added in 1912 as a memorial to the late Prebendary and Mrs. Garnons-Williams; there are 93 sittings. The separate registers date only from 1813, those of earlier date were incorporated with the registers of Llanspyddid. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £147, in the gift of the landowners and inhabitants of the parish, and held since 1909 by the Rev. Arthur Garnons-Williams, of Oriol College, Oxford, who resides at Abercaulais, Breconshire. Penpont is the seat of Miss Williams. Miss Williams and the Rev. Arthur Garnons-Williams are the principal landowners. There is a British encampment on the Gaer. The soil is old red sandstone. The principal crops are barley and oats and pasture land. The area is 1,991 acres of land and 14 of water; rateable value, £1,461; the population in 1911 was 89.

PENRICE (or Pen-rhys) is a parish, one mile off the high road from Swansea to Rhossili, 9 miles west from Killay station on the Swansea and Gower section of the London and North Western railway and 13 west from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, Swansea hundred, Gower union, Swansea county court district, Penmaen petty sessional division, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen, and diocese of St. David's. Penrice contained the village of Horton, a seaside resort, but by Order in Council it has been transferred to Port Eynon. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient cruciform building in the Gothic style of the 13th century, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts and an embattled western tower containing 1 bell; the church was restored in 1894 by Miss Talbot, of Penrice Castle and Margam Park, and affords about 100 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1724; marriages, 1721. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, including about 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lady Blythwood, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Ronald William Lockyer M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is also rector of and resides at Reynaldston. Penrice Castle, which passed from the Pen Rhys family in 1400 by marriage to that of the Mansels, is now an interesting ruin, overgrown with ivy, but consists of little more than a gateway. An underground passage is supposed to exist from the church to "Sanctuary farm," the site of a manuary, founded by one of the de Clares, Earls of Gloucester, in the reign of Henry III. and dissolved for supporting Owain Glyndwr. The modern mansion, called Penrice Castle, which has a fine park, is the seat of Lady Blythwood, lady of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, limestone. The chief crop is corn, but the land is principally in pasture. The area is 2,114 acres of land, 13 of water and 35 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,819; the population in 1911 was 215 in the civil and 146 in the ecclesiastical parish.

The church of St. Cristobus, rebuilt in 1841, restored 1911, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch, and a small turret containing one bell, and affords 70 sittings. The registers date generally from the year 1813, and include entries relating to Castellan. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Castellan annexed, net yearly value £84, with 33 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Alfred William Jones, of Durham University. The principal landowner is Major John Vaughan Colby. The soil is light loam; subsoil, rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and some portion is under pasturage. The area is 2,174 acres; rateable value, £892; the population in 1911 was 145 in the civil and 303 in the ecclesiastical parish.

PENTYRCH is a parish and village, on the road from Llandaff to Merthyr, 1½ miles from Taffs Well station on the Taff Vale railway, 1½ from Creigiau station on the Barry railway, 5 north-west from Llandaff, and 7 north-west from Cardiff, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Miskin hundred, Cardiff union and county court district, Llantalrisant petty sessional division, and in the rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. An excellent water supply is obtained from a reservoir on Garth mountain. The church of St. Catwg, or Cadocus, erected on the site of the old church about 1850, is a building in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 2 bells; during the progress of the restoration of the church, an ancient stone monument was discovered with an inscription in Latin to the ancient family of Matthews, originally of Castell-y-Mynach; the church was restored in 1888, at a cost of £1,200, and affords 264 sittings. The register dates from the year 1670. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £232, including 13 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop and Dean and Chapter of Llandaff alternately, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Thomas Williams L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. A district church was erected at the west end of the parish in 1889 and will seat 213 persons, and in 1902 a mission church was built on the site of the old Pentyrch works, and will seat 150 persons. The church of St. Peter's, built in 1907, will seat 232 persons. A church hall was opened in 1913, at a cost of £1,000, to seat 300. There is a Welsh Baptist chapel, built in 1877, and seating 600; a Welsh Calvinistic chapel, erected in 1860, with 600 sittings; and a Welsh Congregational chapel at Bronllwyn, built in 1858, to seat 300. There is also a Congregational chapel, erected in 1820, seating 700, and a Baptist chapel, erected in 1863, seating 350 persons, at Gwaelod-y-garth. In the neighbourhood are tinplate works, collieries, stone quarries, lime kilns, and brick works. In the parish are remains of a Roman camp and three or four wells possessing medicinal properties. The Garth mountain commands an extensive view of the surrounding country. The Marquess of Bute, who is lord of the manor, and Major Merwyn Edward George Rhys Wingfield D.L. J.P. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are oats, barley and roots. The area is 2,022 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £14,048; the population in 1911 was 2,308.

LLANBADARN-FAWR is a parish 1½ miles from Penybont station, in Cefnlllys hundred, petty sessional division of Cefnlllys, county court district and union of Rhayader, rural deanery of Melineth-Ultra-Ithon, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The river Ithon, a tributary of the Wye, flows through the parish, and is crossed by a suspension bridge, erected in 1840, at a cost of £1,100, and to the south, 2½ miles from Llandrindod, is another suspension bridge; still further south is an Alpine bridge, and near the river there is a mineral spring. The church of St. Paternus, situated in a delightful valley near the river Ithon, is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a tower containing a peal of bells given by James Luther Greenway esq. in 1912: the doorway of the porch and the tympanum over are ornamented with rude carvings of Saxon or very Early Norman date: the chancel has three good lancet windows: the Norman font has been replaced by one of modern date, but the cover has the date 1579: an inscribed Roman centurial stone, discovered at the restoration of the church, has been placed in the porch: the church plate includes a flagon, dated 1708: in the church is preserved a Welsh Bible, dated 1620, and there is a memorial to the Rev. James Jones, d. 22 April, 1733, to his father, the Rev. Samuel Jones, and his grandfather, the Rev. David Jones, all successively rectors of this parish: the church was rebuilt in 1879 under the direction of Mr. Stephen W. Williams, architect, by the three Misses Severn, as a memorial to their parents, John Chesment-Severn esq. C.B. of Pen-y-Bont Hall, d. 17 Dec. 1875, and Mary Ann (Price), his wife, d. 29 Dec. 1876; and there is an inscribed brass recording this work: a vestry and organ, the gift of the late Miss Emily Severn, were added in 1905: there is also a brass altar

LLANDEGLEY is a parish, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Cefnlllys, Kington union and county court district, rural deanery of Melineth-Sub-Ithon, archdeaconry of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Tecla is an ancient edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a low Norman western tower containing one bell: there is a brass to the Rev. W. W. Vaughan, for over 30 years vicar, who died 5 March, 1892: the church was thoroughly restored in 1876 at a cost of £1,281, chiefly defrayed by the Misses Severn and the late J. Percy Chesment-Severn esq. M.A., D.L., J.P.: the church has 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1727. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £108, with residence and 25 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Stephen Williams, of St. David's College, Lampeter, and rural dean of Melineth-sub-Ithon. There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel and a Society of Friends' meeting-house at Greenfields. The charities include an endowment of £21 annually to the school; Williams' charity of £25 is for distribution amongst the poor; there is also a charity of £21 yearly, which is enjoyed jointly with two other parishes, each having £7, which is divided among such poor persons as are not in receipt of parochial relief; this gift is managed by trustees, of whom the vicar is one. In this parish are two mineral springs, one of which is sulphurous and the other chalybeate; the former discharges a regular stream all the year round, and both retain the same degree of heat at all seasons; they are considered as strong as any of the other springs in the locality, but not being at present very well known are less frequented. The Severn Arms Hotel, one mile from Penybont station, is a convenient place of residence for visitors, and comprises assembly rooms, and a public room capable of dining 300 persons, erected for the Radnorshire Agricultural Society, which meets here annually about the latter end of August. Lord Ormathwaite, who is lord of the manor, and Mrs. Whitehead are chief landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, clayey. The chief crops are oats, wheat and turnips. The area is 3,233 acres of land and 8 of water; rateable value, £2,497; the population in 1911 was 271.

PONTARDAWE, a small town in the parishes of Rhyndwely Decks, Cilybehyll and Llanguicke, Glamorgan, is very prettily seated in the valley of the Swansea, 7½ miles north-east from the town of Swansea, and is the head of a union formed in 1875, and also of petty sessional division, in the Neath parliamentary division of Glamorgan, and in the rural deanery of East Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The Swansea canal runs through, and the Midland railway has a station here. The village is lighted by gas by the Pontardawe Gas Co. Limited. The church of St. Peter (a chapel of ease to the parish church), erected in 1862, at a cost of nearly £20,000, is an edifice of Welsh sandstone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and an embattled western tower, 200 feet in height and containing one bell; at the outside corners of the tower are two rounded columns elaborately sculptured: the church was erected at the expense of the late W. Parsons esq. of Pontardawe: in July, 1894, a reredos of Caen stone, marbles and mosaic, was erected, at a cost of about £200, as a memorial to the Rev. D. Jones, vicar 1859-92, and the Rev. T. E. Davies, curate 1883-92, who died within one month of each other in the early part of 1892; the stained east window was the gift of Mrs. Davies; the chancel floor has been raised and laid with polished marble and new choir stalls erected, at a cost of £250, defrayed by A. Gilbertson esq.: a new screen and altar have been given by Mrs. Griffiths, and sedilia by D. Hanbury Hopkins esq.; an English service is held in the morn-

PONTARDULAIS, LLANDILO (or LLANDEILO)-TALYBONT and GORSEINON.

PONTARDULAIS is a village in the parish of Llandilo-Talybont, in the Gover division of the county of Glamorgan, with a junction station of the London and North-Western and Great Western railways, and is 228 miles from London, 12 north-west from Swansea and 7 north-east from Llanelly, in Swansea hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of East Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The river Loughor bounds the parish on the western side and divides it from the adjoining county of Carmarthen. The town is lighted by electricity from works the property of a company. St. Teilo's, the parish church of Llandilo-Talybont, erected in 1851 and restored and reseated in 1879, at a cost of £550, is an edifice in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and a western tower with spire, containing one bell: there is a marble tablet to Capt. Jenkins and one to William Gronow esq.: there are 300 sittings: the old parish church of the same name was repaired in 1877, at a cost of £91, and again in 1900, at a cost of £100, but is now disused, except for an occasional service during the summer months. A new church was erected in 1900-1, at a cost of £2,300. The register dates from the year 1790. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's and J. E. Moore-Gwyn esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. William Morgan B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. A cemetery of 4½ acres was formed in July, 1903, for the parish of Llandilo: it is under the control of the Parish Council. Here are tinsplate and chemical works, foundries and collieries. The Duke of Beaufort is lord of the manors of Ynysloughor, Glyn-loughor, Prysedwin and Gwenlais. The principal landowners are Sir J. T. Dillwyn-Llewelyn bart. J. E. Moore-Gwyn esq. N. P. Cameron esq. and Mrs. Wood. The soil is clay and gravel; subsil, rock. The principal crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area of Llandilo-Talybont parish is 7,524 acres of land and 34 of water; the rateable value is £48,081; the population in 1901 was 5,994, and in 1911 was 10,705.

GORSEINON, a rising village in this parish, about 4 miles south, has a station on the London and North Western railway. It was formed into an ecclesiastical parish by Order in Council dated Oct. 14th, 1913. The church of St. Catherine, erected in 1912-13 at a cost of £12,000, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower containing 8 bells: in the chancel there is a stained glass window in memory of William Lewis esq. (d.

1902): there are 640 sittings. The register dates from the year 1913. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's and J. E. Moore-Gwyn esq. and is at present (1919) vacant. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in 1883 as a chapel of ease to St. Teilo's, at a cost of £1,821, and now attached to St. Catherine, is a cruciform building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, north porch and a central tower with spire, containing one bell, and has sittings for 250 persons. St. Catherine's (English) Mission Room here, built by William Lewis esq. was opened in 1899. There are also English and Welsh Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels here; the English Congregational chapel, erected in 1894, at a cost of £900, seats 400 persons. There are tinsplate, steel, vitrol and galvanizing works and collieries.

PONT NEATH VAUGHAN (more correctly Pont-nedd Fechan) is a small village at the confluence of the river Melite with the Little Neath, and derives its name from the single-arched bridge which here crosses the latter about a mile below its junction with the river Perddyn: it is situated in the scattered district generally known as Glyn Neath, and is about 1½ miles north-east from the village of Glyn Neath, and 3 miles from Glyn Neath station, on the Vale of Neath section of the Great Western railway. Pont Neath Vaughan lies in two counties, the portion west of the bridge being in Glamorganshire and that on the east side in the county of Brecknock, the local boundary between the two counties being formed by the river Perddyn, the united streams of the Perddyn and Neath to their union with the Melite and then by that stream towards the north-east till it reaches and proceeds along the Sychnant ravine. The village is, for civil purposes, in the hamlet of Neath Higher and parish of Aberpergwm, and ecclesiastically the Glamorganshire portion is in the same parish, but that part which lies in Brecknockshire is in the parish of Ystradfellte. It is in the Neath petty sessional division. The nearest parish church is that of St. Catwg at Aberpergwm, near Glyn Neath, but the public are allowed to attend the private chapel in the grounds of Rheola, the seat of J. E. Vaughan esq. which is midway between Glyn Neath and Resolven stations. In Pont Neath Vaughan is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel. The principal geological feature of the district is the carboniferous limestone; the hills vary in height, from 400 to 600 feet, and are broken into an endless number of valleys and glens, created by the numerous mountain torrents. The rivers Little Nédd and Melite and their tributaries the Perddyn and the Hepste, furnish, within a radius of about three miles from Pont Neath Vaughan, not less than thirteen waterfalls, besides an abundance of beautiful and romantic scenery. The "Gwladys" or "Lady" fall, which is the most easily reached of any, is about 1½ miles from the village, on the river Perddyn; here the stream precipitates itself over a rocky cliff about 40 feet in height and quite clear of it, so that it is possible to walk under the fall. Near this, but now almost concealed by bushes and underwood, is a mass of rock, weighing about 50 tons, and once a "logan" or "rocking stone," but about 1850 it was maliciously displaced by a party of navvies and every subsequent effort to restore it to its original and accurate equise has entirely failed. Above the "Lady" fall, and at a distance of about ½ of a mile is the "Crooked Anvil" fall (Ysawd Eionn Gam), where the water dashing over a ledge of rock reaches another and then descends in an unbroken sheet of 80 feet. At the confluence of the Perddyn and the Little Nédd is a picturesque and primitive bridge crossing the former, and constructed of the trunk of a tree with a rough wooden handrail; by the Middle Little Nédd fall is a bridge thrown across a branch of the stream, at the cost of some residents of Aberdare, and bearing the inscription, "Erected by Some Lovers of Nature": about a mile east of the village, to the right of the road to Brecon, stands the imposing Craig-y-Dinas (Dinas Rock), a huge and almost perpendicular mass of limestone, 170 feet above the level of the river and 425 feet above the sea level; the summit commands lovely views of the Vale of Neath. Not far away, a little to the right, rising perpendicularly out of the glen, at a height of about 300 feet, is the summit of a craig, known as Bwa-maen (the stonebow), but more commonly called "The Witch's Chair." A steep path up Craig-y-Dinas pursued across the woodland past Cilhepste farm leads to the falls on the Hepste river, of which there are two: returning to the river Melite, the Lower, Middle and Upper Glyn Gwyn falls are reached in succession: the lower is about 40 feet in height: the middle fall descends from a curved ledge of rock and is best seen from a point above it. About three quarters of a mile south of Ystradfellte and five miles from the "Angel Inn," at Pont Neath Vaughan, the river Melite, a short distance above the Upper Glyn Gwyn Fall, flows through a cavern, called "Porth-y-Ogof," which its waters have excavated through the heart of the limestone rocks at a depth of 50 feet below the road level; the south end, at which is the entrance to the cave, is beset with rocks in piles and ledges, and overgrown with bushes and ferns, presenting a most romantic effect; the yawning mouth of the cavern forms a low arch into which the river, approaching in a deep, narrow and most pellucid stream amidst the rocks, plunges into the darkness, and after a long course through the mountain it emerges at the north end of the cave by a smaller, but hardly less bold exit than its entrance; within the cave are several rocky paths diverging to the right and left, and the course of the stream can be traced a little way until it is lost in the darkness. In some part of the interior of the cave the roof is extremely low, and after passing a sort of rocky pillar, at a distance of about 200 yards along the main passage a shaft called "the belfry" or "the devil's chimney," runs up to the surface of the ground overhead and diffuses a welcome light, and at another point there is sufficient light to trace the course of the stream for a little way, but it is not possible to traverse the cavern from end to end. On the river Neath, and not far from Ystradfellte, is a smaller cave, known as "Cwmpwll-y-rhyd," which can be explored in dry weather, and is in places 30 feet in height. The mountain to the south of Pont Neath Vaughan is known as "Craig-y-Llyn," and is the highest point in Glamorganshire, being nearly 2,000 feet, and affording a fine and extensive prospect of the Vale of Neath: in the great cwms on this side are two large and placid lakes, bordered on the lower edge with marshy land, and numerous small torrent streams rush down the mountain sides. The principal inns are the "Angel," and "White Horse," which are in the village, and the "Dinas," on the Brecon road. The land here is mostly in the hands of small owners, but the Marquess of Bute has some property adjoining the village. Silica and limestone quarrying is the local industry, and tram lines from the quarries run through the valley to Glyn Neath; within half-a-mile are the limestone quarries and mill at "Cwm Corrin," and near the village on the river Melite are the gunpowder works of Messrs. Curtis's and Harvey. Post & M. O. Office.—Mrs. Sarah Taylor, sub-postmistress. Letters through Neath. The nearest telegraph office is at Glyn Neath, 1½ miles distant. The children of this place attend the schools at Glyn Neath

PONT YATES is a village pleasantly situated on elevated ground on the Gwendraeth river, with a station on the Burry Port and Gwendraeth Valley railway, which connects with the Great Western railway at Burry Port, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles south from Llangendeirne and $\frac{6}{8}$ miles north from Llanelly, co. Carmarthenshire, and is partly in the ecclesiastical parish of Llangendeirne and partly in that of Llanelly, Llanelly Rural civil parish and union and Carmarthen petty sessional division. There is a Mission Church here, erected in 1912 and attached to the parish church of Llangendeirne; Rev. William Henry Morgan B.A. has been curate in charge since 1912. There are Welsh Baptist, Welsh Calvinistic Methodist and Welsh Congregational chapels at Pont Yates, a Welsh Baptist chapel at Ponthenry (erected in 1836, seating 450), Welsh Congregational and Welsh Baptist chapels at Carway, and a Welsh Baptist chapel at Four Roads.

INCLUDING GLYN-TAFF, CILFYNYDD, COEDPENMAEN, GRAIG, TREFOREST, TREHAFOD, RHYDFELEN, GYFELLON, HOPKINSTOWN, UPPER BOAT, NORTON BRIDGE AND Pwllgwaun.

PONTYPRIDD, formerly named Newbridge, is a market town, head of a union and county court district and bankruptcy district, on the river Taff, at its junction with the Rhondda, formerly in the parishes of Eglwysfan, Llwynnon, Llantwit Vardre, Lislantrisant and Llanfahan, but in 1894 made into a civil parish by the "Local Government Act, 1864," and is in the Pontypridd division of the county of Glamorgan, hundred of Caerphilly, Miskin Lower petty sessional division, and in the rural deanery of Rhondda, archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff, 172 miles from London, 12 from Cardiff, 12½ from Merthyr, 11½ from Aberdare, 7 from Caerphilly and 5 from Llantrisant: it is a station on the Taff Vale railway from Merthyr to Cardiff, and a junction of the Aberdare and Vale of Neath railway, and of the Pontypridd and Cowbridge line, which joins the Great Western system at Llantrisant; there is also a station on the Barry Railway from Porth to Barry and Cardiff; the Pontypridd, Caerphilly and Newport (Mon.) line and the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway give the shortest route to Swansea from Newport, via Pontypridd; these, together with the Glamorganshire Canal, convey the produce of the town and neighbourhood to Cardiff and elsewhere.

The town takes its name from the celebrated bridge, called Pont-y-pridd, consisting of a single arch, spanning the Taff, erected A.D. 1750, by William Edwards, a self-taught mason and a native of Glamorgan, who, after having twice failed in his project, succeeded at length in completing the existing structure: it is a perfect segment of a circle, the chord of which is one hundred and forty feet and the height at low water thirty-six feet: each abutment is pierced with three circular tunnels, which diminishes the weight of that part of the bridge, and so prevents the light crown from being sprung, a device to which he owed his ultimate success. There is an extraordinary echo connected with the bridge which repeats the sound no less than eight or nine times. The steepness of the bridge being ultimately found very inconvenient for carriage traffic, a three-arch bridge was erected close to it by public subscription in 1857.

The town was formerly governed by a Local Board; the district was constituted by 36 and 37 Vict. cap. cxi. and extended by 42 and 43 Vict. cap. civ., so as to include parts of Llantrisant, Llanwono, Llantwit Vardre and Eglwysilan. An Urban District Council was formed under the "Local Government Act of 1894," and the town divided into six wards.

The town is supplied with water by the Pontypridd and Rhondda Joint Water Board; the supply is obtained at the source of the Rhondda Fach river, above Mardy, about 12 miles from Pontypridd; there is a reservoir at Pontlluest-Wen, holding 22,000,000 gallons, and another, begun in 1895, was completed in 1900, and will hold 242,000,000 gallons.

The Pontypridd Gas Light and Coke Company was incorporated and works erected in 1850, but other works were established in 1894 at Treforest, and are under the control of the Urban District Council.

St. Catherine's, PONTYPRIDD, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed from Glyn-Taff September 16, 1884; the church, on the western side of the town, erected 1867-8, on a site given by the Thomas family, of Ystrad-Mynach, at a cost of £7,000, is an edifice of native stone with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles (the north having been added in 1885), south porch, vestry, organ chamber and a tower with spire, 162 feet in height, and containing 8 bells, presented in 1913 at a cost of £600 by Hopkin Morgan esq.; there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1824. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. William Watkins Edwards B.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and surrogate.

St. Catherine's parish room was built in 1891, at a cost of £1,500, and in 1913 a Church Institute for men was presented to the parish by Miss Clara Thomas, Llwynmadox.

The ecclesiastical parish of GLYN TAFF was formed in 1848 from the civil parishes of Eglwysilan, Llantwit Vardre and Llanwono; the church of St. Mary, erected in 1841, at a cost of £2,000, is a building of stone in the Norman style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, two vestries and a western tower containing one bell; there are sittings for 1,000 persons. The register dates from the year 1834. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1905 by the Rev. John Gwew Jones B.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, and surrogate.

Cillynydd is a conventional district. St. Luke's mission church, RHYDFELEN, opened 1908, will seat 350 persons. The Rev. John Richard James B.A. has been curate in charge since 1914.

St. Matthew's, COEDPENMAEN, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed July 2nd, 1909, from that of St. Catherine's. The church, built in 1908 at a cost of about £5,300, is a building of brick in the Early English style, and consists at present of nave and aisles, and has 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1909. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Jenkin William Stewart B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

Llanddewi is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1913 from the parish of Llanwono. The church of St. David, at Gyeffellon, in the Rhondda Valley, erected in 1851 at a cost of about £2,000, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, porch and a bell turret; it was enlarged in 1898 at the cost of £3,000, and will now seat about 600. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £254, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. William Price L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Gyeffellon.

The English Congregational chapel was erected in 1887 from plans by Messrs. Sulman and Hennings, architects, of Furnival's Inn, London; it has 700 sittings.

Carmel English Baptist chapel, in Mill street, built in 1883, has 750 sittings. Temple Baptist chapel, in Llantrisant road, was built in 1891, and there are other Baptist chapels in Wood road and Coedpenmaen. The Tabernacle Welsh Baptist chapel, in Bridge street, was built in 1861; and there is another at Hopkinstown. The Welsh Congregational chapel, in Sion street, was built in 1870, and there is another in Graig, and an English Congregational chapel in Gelliwasted road, with 850 sittings. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapel, in Taff street, was built in 1860. The English Calvinistic Methodist chapel in Gelliwasted road, built in 1883, affords 680 sittings. The Welsh Wesleyan chapel, in Berw road, was erected in 1899, in memory of the late Rev. John Evans, of Eglwysbach, and will seat 500. The English Wesleyan chapel in Gelliwasted road, built in 1848 and enlarged in 1863, was rebuilt in 1896 and will seat about 700. The Jewish Synagogue is in Wood road.

The cemetery, at Glyn Taff, is 22 acres in extent, with two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of the Pontypridd Burial Board, formed in 1871 and consisting of 14 members.

The Lesser Town Hall, built in 1885, at a cost of about £1,600, will seat 700 persons. The Town Hall proper, erected in 1890 over the market, at a cost of about £5,000, will seat 1,700 persons, exclusive of a stage or platform; it has balconies on three sides, and three main entrances, besides three additional means of exit, and is well lighted and fitted throughout; the main hall is 66 by 53 feet, and the stage is by 23 feet, and there are two large anterooms for ladies, and one for gentlemen, dressing rooms, band room, lavatories &c. The hall is now (1910) leased by E. R. Rogers, and is used for music hall entertainments.

The Court House, a plain building of stone, was erected at a cost of £4,000.

New offices for the Board of Guardians were erected in 1914.

The Gelliwasted Institute occupies Gelliwasted House, which has been presented to the town by the owners, and fitted up as a club for young men of the town. There are now (1910) about 180 members.

The Public Free Library, Gelliwasted grove, built in 1890, at a cost of £2,000, consists of a news room, magazine and reference rooms, and ladies' room; the lending library comprises about 5,300 volumes. The upper portion of the building is set apart for a museum; the library is supported by a penny rate.

The Young Men's Christian Association buildings were erected in 1910, at a cost of £11,000.

A cattle and general produce market is held on Wednesday, and is well attended. A general produce fair is also held on Saturday, and is generally well attended. A pleasure fair is held on Easter Monday.

The chief manufacturing establishment in the neighbourhood is the Newbridge works of Messrs. Brown, Lenox and Co. Limited, anchor, chain and cable manufacturers; there are also several collieries in the neighbourhood, which give employment to the greater number of the inhabitants.

The Fire Brigade was established in 1890 and has a station in Gas road; there is electric communication from the police station to the firemen's houses.

The Cottage Hospital, on the Common, has 26 beds and four cots.

On an eminence near the town is the far-famed Logan, or rocking stone, which, although weighing about 9½ tons, can be easily rocked by pressure on the south side; it is surrounded by Druidical remains. The Ffynon-Gellyn, or Eye Well, at a short distance from the town, on the Berw road, is said to possess medicinal properties.

The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 8,094 acres of land and 146 of water; rateable value, £221,555; population in 1911, 43,211, including 29 officials and 389 inmates in the Poor Law Institution.

The population of the Urban District wards in 1911 was:—Cilfynydd, 4,921; Graig, 7,440; Rhondda, 9,504; Tonn, 3,125; Trallwn, 7,866; Treforest, 10,355.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish of St Catherine in 1911 was 8,449, and of St. Matthew, 7,060.

Sexton, Glyn Taff, Morgan Rees.
Sexton and Parish Clerk, Pontypridd, Fred Cooke, Morgan street.

GRAIG is a part of Pontypridd, adjoining on the south side. Norton Bridge, 1 mile east. Trallwn is a part of Pontypridd and adjoins the town on the north-east side. TREFOREST is 1 mile south, with two stations, one on the Taff Vale railway, and one on the Barry railway: the Catholic church here, built in 1857, is dedicated to St. Dubritius: there are also Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. The South Wales and Monmouthshire School of Mines was established here in 1914, to provide instruction of an advanced and practical character, for the purpose of training all grades of colliery officials.

CILFYNYDD-CUM-NORTON-BRIDGE, 2 miles north, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1912 from the parish of Eglwysilan. The church of St. Luke, erected in 1893, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret containing one bell: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1912.

PONTYRHILL, see Ogmore Valley.

PORT EYNON is a parish and village on the shore of Port Eynon Bay in the Bristol channel, in the peninsula of Gower, 12 miles south-west from Killay station on the Gowerton and Swansea Bay branch of the London and North Western railway, and 16 south-west from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, Swansea hundred, Penmaen petty sessional division, Gower union, Swansea county court district, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Cattwg or Cadocus is a plain edifice of stone of Pre-Reformation date, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, south porch and a turret containing 2 bells: in the chancel is a quartered shield of arms, carved in stone: the font has a large square basin and in the porch is a stoup: the south doorway is Norman: the church was restored and enlarged in 1861 by the late C. R. M. Talbot esq. M.P. and affords 168 sittings, all being free. The register dates from the year 1740. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £138, including 30½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Francis Atterbury Thomas B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a Wesleyan chapel. In the parish, on the cliff, is a cave called "Culver Hole,"

PORTH, see Cymmer and Porth.PORThCAWL, with NEWTON NOTTAGE.

PORTHCAWL is a seaport and bathing place, and the terminus of the Porthcawl branch of the Great Western railway, 9½ miles by rail from Bridgend, 4 south from Pyle station, on the Great Western railway, 30 by rail from Cardiff, 22 from Swansea and 182 from London, in the civil parish of Newton Nottage, Aberavon division of the county of Glamorgan, hundred of Newcastle, petty sessional division of Newcastle and Ogmore, Bridgend and Cowbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Upper Gbrneath (eastern division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. By Local Government Board Order, No. 29,376, which came into operation April 8, 1893, the civil parish of Newton Nottage was constituted an Urban District under the name of Porthcawl: under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), the affairs of the town are now administered by an Urban District Council of nine members. Previous to 1866 this was only a tidal port, but at that period a dock, seven and a half acres in extent was constructed, the entrance to which is protected by a breakwater, with a small lighthouse at the extreme end; till about 1902 large quantities of coal and coke were exported, but the traffic having been diverted the dock is now practically disused, the gates are never closed, and it has become again a tidal harbour. A rocket life-saving apparatus is kept here. The town is lighted with gas by the Porthcawl and District Gas Co. Limited, and is supplied with water of excellent quality by the Porthcawl Urban District Council; the supply being drawn from a deep well, and then softened and filtered by the Porter Clark process. The parish church of St. John the Baptist, at Newton, about 1 mile east from Porthcawl, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a massive western tower containing 6 bells: the church was repaired in 1885 and an organ chamber added, at a cost of £700: the inclosed in ancient stonework. Lady Blythwood is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is chiefly clay. The chief crops are the usual cereals and some roots. The area is 1,149 acres of land and 200 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,024; the population in 1911 was 207 in the civil and 306 in the ecclesiastical parish.

Horton, a sea-side resort, has been, by Order in Council in 1901, transferred from Penrice to this parish for ecclesiastical purposes.

ancient carved stone pulpit is said to be the only relic of the former church, now covered by the sea: the stone font is octangular, and also of early date: there are sittings for 300 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1715; marriages, 1762. The living is a rectory, net income £220, with 7 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of George E. Blundell esq. and Lord Holmes P.C. and held since 1903 by the Rev. Thomas Holmes Morgan, of Charsley's Hall, Oxford. Between the church and the shore is a covered well of pure spring water, to which access is gained by a descent of stone steps, and the remarkable feature of it is, that when the tide is out it is full, and when the tide is up it is empty. The church of All Saints, a chapel of ease to the parish church, is a building of stone, erected in 1913, to seat 600. The Royal Porthcawl Golf Club has links in Sker adjoining. Dan-y-graig, in Newton, is now (1910) unoccupied, and Nottage Court is the residence of George E. Blundell esq. There are three manors, viz.:—Loughor, Pembroke and Herbert. Lord Wimbome P.C. is lord of the manor of Loughor; George E. Blundell esq. is lord of the manor of Pembroke, and Colonel Grey is lord of the manor of Herbert. The principal landowners are the owners of the manors. The soil is chiefly sand and gravel; subsoil, marl and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and potatoes. The areas of the Porthcawl Urban District and Newton Nottage parish are co-extensive, and comprise 3,399 acres of land, 15 of inland water and 323 of foreshore; rateable value, £29,499; population in 1901 was 1,872 and in 1911, 3,444.

NEWTON NOTTAGE parish comprises, in addition to Porthcawl, the villages of Newton and Nottage. Newton is about 1 mile north-east from Porthcawl, and has a Welsh Congregational chapel, erected in 1826, and seating 250 persons. Nottage is 1 mile north from Porthcawl and has a Unitarian chapel, founded in 1789.

PORTHKERRY is a parish on the Bristol Channel, 2 miles west from Barry station on the Barry Docks railway and 10 south-west from Cardiff, with a station at Rhooe on the Barry railway, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Dynas Powis hundred and petty sessional division, Cardiff union and county court district, rural deanery of Barry, and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Cyrig is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a small embattled western tower containing 4 bells: there are 70 sittings. The register dates from the year 1813 only. The living is a rectory, with that of Barry annexed, joint net yearly value £550, with residence, in the gift of the joint owners of the Romilly estate, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Thomas William Welch L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at

The Rectory, Barry. In this parish is a curious British or Danish camp, commonly called the "Bulwark." Porthkerry House, now the residence of Mrs. Rees Jones, was built about 1830 by Mr. Edward Bomilly. The soil is clay; subsoil, lias limestone. The chief crop is corn, but there is much pasture. The area is 964 acres of land and 97 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,434; the population in 1911 was 181 in the civil and 4,710 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes part of Barry.

Letters received through Cardiff via Barry. Wall Letter Box. The nearest post, money order & telegraph office is at Barry, about 2 miles distant Public Elementary School (mixed & infants), erected about 1871, for 60 children; Mrs. B. Wills, mistress

PORT TALBOT is a rising district which includes the harbour works and docks, and the village formerly called "Taibach," but now incorporated in Port Talbot. There are three railway stations here (187 miles from London), viz.:—Port Talbot and Aberavon (G.W.R.), Aberavon station (R.S.B. Railway Co.) and Port Talbot central (P.T.R. and D. Co.). When this place consisted only of the docks it was called "Abermouth" or "Aberavon Port," but under an Act of Parliament, passed in 1835, the name was changed to Port Talbot. Port Talbot is 6 miles east from Neath, 12 east from Swansea and about 30 west from Cardiff, in the civil parish of Margam, and controlled by the Margam Urban District Council, and is in the Aberavon division of the county of Glamorgan, Aberavon petty sessional division, Neath union and county court district, rural deanery of Upper Gromcath (eastern division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. It was formed into an ecclesiastical parish 21 June, 1901, out of that of Margam St. Mary, and includes Blyn and Oakwood. The church of St. Theodore, erected in 1895-97 by the late Miss Talbot, at a cost of £25,000, is a building of stone in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, lady chapel and a small turret containing one bell: there are four stained windows, two presented by the late Miss Talbot, one by Major Gray, in memory of his wife, and one by Col. D. R. David's family to his memory: the church affords about 1,000 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £306, in the gift of the trustees of the late Miss Talbot, and held since 1901 by the Rev. David John Jones M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. The church of the Holy Cross is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, two transepts and a turret containing one bell: it was renovated in 1903, at a cost of £1,000, and affords 250 sittings: the services are conducted in Welsh. There is also a parish room. The church of St. Agnes was erected in 1910 at a cost of £3,000, £6,000 of which sum was the gift of the late Miss Talbot: the church consists of chancel, nave, side chapel and organ chamber, and has 611 sittings. The English Calvinistic Methodist chapel (Bethany), erected in 1879, is an edifice of stone, and will seat 600. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapel (Saron) at Tydraw, was erected in 1867, and seats 350 persons. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapel (Dyffryn), erected in 1841 and rebuilt in 1893, will seat 1,000. There are also Baptist and Congregational chapels. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1893, will seat 600. The Victoria Institute and Reading Room is an edifice of brick with stone facings, and contains billiard and recreation rooms on the ground floor, and a library and reading room above. The County Police station is a building of local stone, erected in 1898-99, at a cost of about £4,500, and includes a court house, magistrates' retiring room, four cells, a house for the inspector and quarters for the men. Public Baths were erected in 1900 by the late Miss Talbot, at a cost of £3,500. The chief industries of Port Talbot are collieries, tin and black plate works, smelting works, steel works and rolling mills, blast furnaces, copper works, coke ovens and docks. The Cottage Hospital, erected in 1893 by the late Miss Talbot, is a building of stone, containing eleven beds and two cots. Capt. Andrew Mansel Talbot Fletcher is the principal landowner.

Port Talbot was constituted a separate port on 1 January, 1904, having formerly been included in Swansea. The harbour covers an area of about 250 acres; there is a floating dock a mile in length, covering 90 acres, with a depth of 27½ feet of water. The new dock and lock of the Port Talbot Railway and Docks Co. were constructed during the period 1895-99; the lock is 450 feet long, 110 feet wide, with an entrance of 60 feet and a depth of 33 feet. The dock covers 125 acres. It has a depth of water of 27½ to 33 feet; by means of railways which have been constructed from the docks to Maesteg and the Garw and Ogmore valleys, and by the South Wales mineral district railways, large coal fields have been opened up. There are branch railways from the Port Talbot station on the Great Western railway, and from Aberavon station on the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway, to an extensive line of wharfage, where there are efficient hydraulic coal tips and cranes for shipping rails and heavy goods, and for discharging ores and other cargoes or ballast; the harbour is kept clear by dredging: there are two breakwaters, that on the northern side being 1,470 feet, and that on the southern side, 2,400 feet in length; each is 30 feet wide and 43 feet high and is formed of concrete blocks weighing from 10 to 35 tons each. The shipping arrangements are generally very convenient for coals and other exports, and iron ores can be easily landed and forwarded to the iron works at Merthyr, Aberdare and Cwmavon. The principal imports are—copper and iron ores, pig iron, pitwood and block tin; exports—coals, manufactured copper, manufactured iron, angle iron, steel plates, coal, coke and patent fuel.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 14,002, including 316 on board vessels.

PRENDERGAST now forms part of the borough of Haverfordwest, which see.

PRESTEIGNE

PRESTEIGNE is a market town, the capital of the county of Radnor and head of a county court district, and petty sessional division and is a parish, in the hundred of Radnor, union of Knighton, rural deanery of Kington and archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; it is on the river Lugg, which forms the boundary between the counties of Hereford and Radnor, and is here crossed by a bridge of three arches; it is 153 miles from London, 14 from Leominster, 18 from Ludlow, 21 from Builth, 7 from Knighton, 7 from Knighton, 13 from Penybont and 9 from New Radnor; it is the terminus of a branch line from Tilly, on the Leominster and Kington branch of the Great Western railway, which joins the Shrewsbury Hereford and Abergavenny line at Leominster.

Presteigne was anciently known as "Llanandras," a name derived from the dedication of its church to St. Andrew, and appears to have first risen into importance during the prebacy of David Martin, Bishop of St. David's, who was raised to that see in the year 1293; it is pleasantly situated in the midst of a fertile vale surrounded by hills, of which some are richly wooded; it consists chiefly of one principal thoroughfare, from which two small streets diverge early at right angles, and parallel with each other, in a direction towards the river. A Local Board of Health was created by an order of the Radnorshire County Council, confirmed by Local Government Board Order, dated 16 February, 1891, but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1892," an Urban District Council is now the governing authority. The houses, though in general small, are well built. The town is lighted with gas from works the property of the Presteigne Gas Co. Limited, and is supplied with water from a spring by the Presteigne Water Co. Limited. The surrounding scenery is finely varied and picturesque.

Presteigne was formerly contributory to the parliamentary borough of Radnor, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885" (48 & 49 Vict. c. 23), the representation of the borough was merged in that of the county of Radnor.

St. Andrew's church is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, lady chapel, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 bells; the chancel is unusually large; the east window is stained, and there are screens of teak crossing the chancel and south aisle erected in 1891 as a memorial to Thomas Pugh and Sophia Evans, who bequeathed £1,000 and £500 respectively towards the restoration of the church; in the church are several mural monuments to various members of the Owens family, formerly of Little Brampton, and a fine specimen of tapestry, formerly serving as an altar-piece, but now affixed to one of the western walls; the church was restored in 1890-1, at a cost of £5,100, and affords nearly 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, net income £645, with residence, in the gift of W. Arrowsmith esq. and held since 1898 by the Rev. Henry Leonard Kewley, who is also a surrogate.

The Baptist chapel has 500 sittings, and there is a Wesleyan chapel, and a Primitive Methodist chapel, seating 300.

The cemetery, about 1 mile from the town, is 3 acres in extent and was opened in 1869; it is well laid out, and contains two small chapels, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

The Shire Hall, in Broad street, is a building of stone, erected in the year 1825 at a cost of about £8,000, and contains fine portraits in oil of the Right Hon. Sir Thomas Frankland Lewis, of Harpton Court, for many years representative in Parliament of the county and borough, and first commissioner under the Poor Law Act; Sir John Walsh bart, lord lieutenant and M.P. for the county of Radnor, and created Baron Ormathwaite 16 April, 1868; Richard Price esq. of Norton, who represented the borough for 48 years; Richard Venables D.D. Archdeacon of Carmarthen; the Right Hon. Sir George Cornewall Lewis bart. M.P. of Harpton Court; the Rev. Richard Lister Venables J.P. late chairman of Quarter Sessions and Arthur, 2nd Baron Ormathwaite, lord-lieutenant 1875-95, and sometime chairman of Quarter Sessions.

The Assizes are held at the Shire Hall twice a year and the Quarter Sessions are also held here.

The Market Hall, Broad street, was erected in the year 1865, at a cost of about £1,300, and has an illuminated clock; the upper part of the building contains assembly and reading rooms; the former will hold 400 persons, and is licensed for theatrical performances. The market is held every Wednesday for the sale of butter, poultry, eggs &c.

Cattle markets are held every alternate Wednesday.

Fairs are held on 2nd Saturday in January, 1st Saturdays in February, March and April, 9th May, 20th June, 3rd Saturday in July, last Saturday in August, September (the date of which varies), Saturday before Hereford October Fair, 3rd Saturday in November and 2nd Saturday in December.

The principal hotel in the town is the "Radnorshire Arms," built in 1616; the "Bull Hotel," in St. David's street, and the "Duke's Arms," in Broad street, are other hotels.

There is excellent trout and grayling fishing in the neighbourhood.

At the western extremity of the town is a wooded eminence called "Warden," which is surrounded by walks for the inhabitants, and is supposed to be the site of one of the ancient castles of the Marshes. The town is indebted for this recreation ground to Edward Harley, 5th Earl of Oxford, whose brother was, at the date of the gift, rector of Presteigne. The grounds have been re-fenced and beautified, and are under the management of the Urban District Council.

In close proximity to the Warden are the beautifully laid-out grounds called "Silia," famed as containing the finest pinery in this part of the kingdom.

On Paradise farm is a golf course of 9 holes.

Greenfield is the seat of the Hon. Francis William Clegg-Hill J.P. and Ackhill that of Mrs. Jane Stephens.

The principal landowners are Lady Jones-Brydges, who is for the greater part lady of the manor, Lt.-Col. Joseph Alfred Bradney M.A., F.S.A., C.B. and John Stanhope Arkwright esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of that part of the manor known as "Broad Heath."

The soil and subsoil are various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips.

The area of the entire parish is 12,761 acres, viz.:—Radnorshire, 4,998; Herefordshire, 7,772. The population in 1911 was 1,252 in Radnorshire and 516 in Herefordshire.

The area of the Urban District and township is 2,977 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £6,760; the population in 1911 was 1,141, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 1,705.

Parish Clerk, Samuel Greenhouse.

DISCOED or Discoyd is a township, 2½ miles west-by-north, having the river Lugg for its northern boundary.

The church of St. Michael, attached to the rectory of St. Andrew, Presteigne, is an edifice of stone, restored and almost entirely rebuilt, at a cost of about £500, in the year 1869, and consists of chancel and nave, north porch, and a bell turret containing one bell; the east window, placed by Mrs. Jenkins, of the Grove, is a memorial to her family, who were formerly residents in this neighbourhood; there are sittings for 110 persons. The area is 901 acres of land and 4 of water; rateable value, £977; the population in 1911 was 70.

PYLE is a parish and village on the road from Bridgend to Neath, with a station on the Great Western railway, which is the junction for the branch to Portcawl, 18 1/2 miles from London, 6 west from Bridgend, 6 south-east from Aberavon and 3 1/2 north from Portcawl, in the Aberavon division of the county of Glamorgan, Newcastle hundred, Bridgend and Cowbridge union, Bridgend county court district, Newcastle and Ogmere petty sessional division, rural deanery of Upper Gronoath (eastern division), and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. James is an ancient building of stone in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: in 1877 the church was restored at a cost of £750, and in 1891 a further restoration, including the chancel, was carried out, at a cost of £450: there are 230 sittings. The register dates from the year 1695. The living is a vicarage, with that of Kenfig annexed, joint net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1915 by the Rev. David John Arthur B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel, and a Baptist chapel with 800 sittings, erected in 1913. The charities amount to £10 yearly. Capt. Andrew Fletcher, who is lord of the manor, and Evan Howell esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and gravel; subsoil, limestone and mineral. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,443 acres; rateable value, £9,872; the population in 1901 was 928, and in 1911 2,708 in the civil, and 3,009 in the ecclesiastical parish.

NEW RADNOR

NEW RADNOR is a market town, an ancient borough, the head of a petty sessional division, and township, on the river Summerhill, and with a terminal station on a branch from Leominster of the Great Western railway, 159 miles from London by road, or 177 miles by Worcester line via Kingston, 85 from Bristol, 10 south-west from Knighton, 8½ south-west from Presteigne, and 6½ miles west from Knighton, Herefordshire, in the hundred of Radnor, union and county court district of Knighton, bankruptcy court of Leominster, rural deanery of Knighton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford. Radnor, or as it is called in Welsh, "Maes-y-fed," signifies "the imbibing meadow," from the fact of the small stream Summerhill entering the earth here and then following a subterranean course for some considerable distance.

The town, once very extensive, was totally destroyed in the wars by the renowned Owain Glyndwr. The origin of the town is presumed to date from the time of the erection of its castle by the Mortimers, who built this fortress, intended for the protection of their territories in these parts, on an eminence commanding the surrounding country, the town also being fortified with walls, surrounded by a moat. Here, in the year 1188, Baldwin, Archbishop of Canterbury, attended by Ramphel de Glanville, Justiciar of England, and Giraldus Cambrensis, preached the crusades to the Welshmen.

New Radnor was formerly a municipal and parliamentary borough, and received charters from Queen Elizabeth and in 1738 from George II.: the borough was scheduled by the Commissioners of 1876 as a place to which the Municipal Corporation Acts might be applied, and under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1883" (45 & 47 Vict. c. 18), the corporation has been abolished. The maces formerly belonging to the Corporation seem to have disappeared, and the only known relic of the municipal insignia is the corporate seal, which is oval and 1 inch in length, and bears an ornate shield of the arms of Mortimer, but without the escutcheon of pretence; round the margin is the legend:—SIGILL: BYRG: DE NOV: RADNOR; its date is that of the last charter.

New Radnor, with several adjoining parishes, formerly constituted the Radnor parliamentary district, returning one member; but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885" (48 & 49 Vict. c. 23), the representation was merged in that of the county of Radnor. St. Mary's church, at the top of the town, erected in 1842 at a cost of about £7,300, in place of an older church, is a plain building of stone, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 5 beautifully toned bells: there is a stained window in the chancel, and also the effigies in stone of a knight and lady of the 13th century; the former is in mail armour, with hood, and carries a circular shield; the lady is clad in wimple and hood and a long flowing robe, covered by a garment with open sleeves; there are sittings for 300 persons, of which 100 are free. The register dates from the year 1644. The living is a rectory, net income £204, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1909 by the Rev. Owen Gibson Owen L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1860, seating about 150 persons, and a Welsh Presbyterian chapel, also seating about 150 persons.

In the neighbourhood are the Radnor Forest Mountains, 2,163 feet high, and in a deep ravine on the right of the road to Llanfihangel-nant-Mellan, is a waterfall called "Water Break-its-Neck." At Downton is a golf course of nine holes.

The Town Hall, in Broad street, and the County Police Station are plain structures of brick, and part of the hall is used as a Market hall.

OLD RADNOR.

EVANCOYD, KINNERTON, HARPTON AND WALTON.

OLD RADNOR is a parish, partly in Herefordshire, 3 miles south-east from New Radnor, 1 north from Dolylhir station and 2 miles north-west from Stanner station on the Radnor branch of the Leominster and Hereford section of the Great Western railway, in the hundred of Radnor, union and county court district of Kington, rural deanery of Kington, and archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford. St. Stephen's church is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, with chapels, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and a lofty and massive embattled tower at the west end, containing a clock and 6 bells: the chancel is flanked on either side by chapels, one of which contains an Easter sepulchre, and in the east window a figure of the saint; in the chancel is the organ, in which are enclosed portions of a mediæval organ case of carved oak, and both nave and aisles are crossed by a fine pre-Reformation screen, also of carved oak, and the chancel retains its stalls; there are also some remains of a stoup; the rude font, of great size, is probably the oldest Christian relic in Wales of the Early British church: under one of the chapels is the vault of the family of Lewis, of Harpton Court; the remains of the Rt. Hon. Sir George Cornewall Lewis bart. P.C., M.P. and sometime Chancellor of the Exchequer, who died 13 April, 1863, are here interred, and there are many monuments to this family. From the churchyard and tower a beautiful view is afforded of the fertile vale of Radnor. The church was restored in 1882-3, at a cost of £2,900, by Miss Miles, of Dunfield, in memory of her parents, and a stained east window inserted: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1682. The living is a vicarage, net income £280, with 14 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Worcester, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Thomas Lloyd L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Newcastle Court is the residence of Major Samuel Nock Thompson J.P., Barland of Lt.-Col. Robert O. Campbell D.S.O. and Womaston of James Allgood Beebe esq. D.L., J.P. Henry William Duff-Gordon esq. J.P. is lord of the manor. The area of the parish is 13,990 acres in Radnorshire and 843 in Herefordshire; the area of Old Radnor township is 2,040 acres; rateable value, £2,648; the population in 1911 was 341; Burlingjobb is in the township; the population of the entire parish, 1,388, of which 66 are in Herefordshire.

The following are townships in this parish:—Ednol, 4 miles north; area, 1,182 acres; rateable value, £495; the population in 1911 was 36. Evenjobb, 3½ miles north-east, Newcastle, 4 north-east, Barland, 4 east-by-north, and Burfa, 3½ east, form a township; area, 2,960 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £2,753; the population in 1911 was 245. At Evenjobb is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1841, with sittings for 100 persons. Offa's Dyke runs through part of this township. Upper Harpton is a township, 1½ miles south-east; area, 1,462 acres; rateable value, £1,452; the population in 1911 was 115. Wolf Pits is in this parish. Harpton Court, the seat of Henry William Duff-Gordon esq. J.P. is a large mansion, surrounded by beautifully wooded hills; an avenue of very fine lime trees leads from the road to the house. RADYR is a parish and village on the road from Llandaff to Pontypridd, with a station on the Taft Vale railway, 165 miles from London and 5 north-west from Cardiff, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Miskin hundred, Cardiff union and county court district, Llandaff petty sessional division, and in the rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The river Taft separates this parish from Whitchurch. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient building of stone in the Norman and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells: the church was restored in 1870 at a cost of £1,600, and affords 130 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1725; marriages, 1754. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £165, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. and held since 1892 by the Rev. David Phillips M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Christ Church, erected in 1904, is a building of Pontypridd stone with Douling stone dressings: the tower, chancel and vestries were added in 1910: the tower contains a peal of 8 bells, given by Col. and Miss H. O. Fisher; the stained glass windows in the chancel were inserted in 1912 as a memorial to Margaret C. M. Crover: there are 300 sittings. There is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1903, and also a Calvinistic Methodist chapel at Morganstown, erected in 1842. The old National school is now used as church rooms. The Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. who is lord of the manor, Harold Dahl esq. and Edward Franklin Thomas esq. are the principal landowners.

 The soil is gravel; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots, and some land in pasture. The area is 1,602 acres of land and 27 of water; rateable value, £24,517; the population in 1901 was 816, and in 1911 was 1,238.

REYNOLDSTON is a parish and village on the high road from Swansea to the Worm's Head, 9 miles west from Killay station on the Gowerton and Swansea Bay branch of the London and North Western railway, and 13 west from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, Swansea hundred, Gower union and petty sessional division, Swansea county court district, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. George is a building of stone, in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, north transept and a bell gable with 2 bells. The church was restored in 1866, and affords 160 sittings, of which 120 are free. The register dates from the year 1713, but has been irregularly kept. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £145, with 38 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Lady Blythwood, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Ronald William Lockyer M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is also vicar of Penrice. There is a Wesleyan chapel. On the borders of the parish is a cromlech called "King Arthur's Stone," the upper portion of which consists of a huge mass of millstone grit, and at Stonthall, the property of Mrs. William Crawshaw, and the residence of Charles Edwin Price esq. is a large natural cave. In the library at Stouthall is an old door resembling a bookcase, communicating with the drawing room. The "King Arthur" hotel is a convenient and good inn. Fairy Hill is the residence of Mrs. Benson. Lady Blythwood, who is lady of the manor, and Mrs. William Crawshaw are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, but the land is principally in pasture. The area is 1,059 acres; rateable value, £1,407; and the population in 1911 was 267.

REYNOLDSTON is a small parish in the county of Pembroke, a little south of the road from Narberth to Pembroke, 3 miles north-by-west from Kilgetty station on the Pembroke and Tenby branch of the Great Western railway, 8 north-east from Pembroke, 6 north-by-west from Tenby and 4 south-by-west from Narberth, in the hundred, petty sessional division, county court district and union of Narberth, and in the rural deanery of Narberth and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and an embattled western tower, containing one bell: the church affords 50 sittings. The registers date only from the year 1813, the earlier books were taken away and lost. The living is a rectory, consolidated with Jeffreyston, joint net income £300, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of St. David's, who have two turns, and Sir Charles Edward Gregg Philipps bart. and Lady Philipps, one turn, and at present (1910) vacant, who resides at Jeffreyston. Here is a Congregational chapel. Harcourt Powell esq. is the lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is clay. Chief crops, oats, barley and wheat. The area is 527 acres; rateable value, £496; the population in 1911 was 61.

RHAYADER is a parish and small market town on the Wye, with a station on the Cambrian railway, 204 miles from London, 75 from Birmingham, 48 from Shrewsbury, and 15 south from Llanidloes, in the county of Radnor, head of a hundred, petty sessional division, county court district and union, in the rural deanery of Melineth-ultra-Ithon, archdeaconry of Brecon and diocese of St. David's. The town has four principal streets, named North, South, East and West streets, it is lighted with gas by a private firm, and is supplied with water from a spring near the Gamaalt; the trade is chiefly of an agricultural character. Rhayader was formerly contributory to the parliamentary borough of Radnor, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the representation of the borough was merged in that of the county. The parish church of St. Clement is a modern structure of local stone, in the Early English style, erected in place of a large structure which fell in 1722, and now consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, vestries, organ chamber, and an embattled western tower, containing one bell: the church was some years ago partially restored and enlarged, a chancel added, and a part of the fabric rebuilt; the interior being at the same time re-seated: the tower was entirely rebuilt and the vestry and churchyard wall restored in 1888-90 at a cost of £630, and in 1898 the church was enlarged by the addition of a north aisle and vestries and an organ chamber erected; several stained windows and some furniture were also presented at the same time, and further stained windows and two oak screens were added in 1909: there are now 340 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £275, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1912 by the Rev. George Roberts B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter; the Rhayader lectureship (income £48) is in the gift of the University of Oxford, and is held by the present vicar. The Congregational chapel was built in 1698, and rebuilt and enlarged in 1836, and affords 460 sittings. The Baptist chapel was rebuilt in 1897, at a cost of £1,100, and will seat 260 persons. The Calvinistic Methodist hall, in Church street, built in 1905 at a cost of £600, will seat 260 persons. In West street are official buildings in which the magisterial, county court and other business is transacted and part is also used as a police station. A new drill hall for Territorials was erected in 1913, on the site of the old Castle leather works (destroyed by fire), and is also used as a place for public entertainments. The market day is Wednesday, with a great market on the last Wednesday in every month; a special poultry market is held on Dec. 22nd. Fairs are held throughout the year about once a month, commencing in January. In North street is an iron building, in connection with the parish church, and containing a reading room and billiard room; it is also used for public entertainments. In the reign of Richard I. there was a castle here, repaired by Rhys, Prince of South Wales, but of which few vestiges now remain. It was the ancient practice in this town, until within the last few years, on the occasion of every funeral procession for the mourners to carry small pebbles in their hands, which, on the arrival of the bier at the turn of the road leading to the church, they threw to a heap of stones accumulated there by similar means, saying "Careg-ar-y-ben," that is "A pebble on thy head." In 1783 a large number of skeletons were discovered in the churchyard, ranged side by side in a regular and orderly manner, with the exception of one of immense size, placed in a contrary direction to the rest: these were supposed to be the remains of soldiers of the Castle garrison of Rhayader, and their captain, Llewellyn-ap-Jorwerth, who were slain by the Prince of North Wales. Mrs. Sladen and the trustees of the late Rev. William Edward Prickard M.A. are chief landowners. The soil is sandy clay; subsoil, stone and sand. The chief crops are wheat and roots, but the land is chiefly pasture. The area of the parish is 189 acres of land and 5 of water; rateable value, £3,731; the population in 1911 was 961 in the civil and 1,347 in the ecclesiastical parish.

RHONDDA, formerly named Ystradyfodwg, an extensive parish comprising several hamlets, is one of the largest coal-producing parishes in Glamorganshire, and is 20 miles south-west from Merthyr Tydfil, 20 north-west from Cardiff, 25 east from Swansea and 180 from London; it forms the Rhondda division of the county, and is in the hundred of Miskin, petty sessional division of Lower Miskin, Pontypridd union and county court district, rural deanery of Rhondda, and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The parish, with parts of Llantrisant and Llanwono, was governed by the Local Board until an Urban District Council was established by the Local Government Act, 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. cap 73), the name of which has been altered to Rhondda, the number of members increased to 33 and the district divided into 10 wards. By Local Government Board Order No. 32,001, those parts of Llantrisant and Llanwono in the Rhondda Urban District were added to Ystradyfodwg civil parish (now called Rhondda) in 1894. The parish is lit with gas, formerly supplied by a limited company, but the works are now under the control of the Rhondda Urban District Council; the water supply is derived from springs above Blaen Rhondda, and conveyed thence to the works at Treherbert, the property of the District Council: a new reservoir was completed in 1914 at Llynfawr. Part of the district is supplied with water by the Pontypridd and Rhondda Joint Water Board from their works near Mardy. The parish church of St. John at Ton Pentre, erected in 1893-4 in place of the ancient church, then removed, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel with side chapel, two naves, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells: in the church is a brass tablet to the Rev. William Rhys, a former vicar of the parish, erected by his sons: the communion cup bears the date 1695: there are 450 sittings. A room for the Sunday school and mission services has been erected in the churchyard. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Llantrisant, and held since 1869 by the Rev. William Lewis, canon of Llandaff Cathedral and surrogate. A cemetery of 25 acres, near Porth, was formed in 1879 at a cost of £14,000, for Rhondda, Llanwono and Llantrisant, and has one mortuary chapel. A cemetery of 15 acres was formed in 1871 at a cost of £7,000, at Treorchy, and was enlarged in 1914 by the addition of 15 acres, for the parish of Rhondda; and there is also a cemetery of 5 acres at Mardy, formed in 1875, at a cost of £3,600; and another of 22½ acres, formed in 1830, at a cost of £7,000, at Llettriddu, between Trealaw and Porth: each contains two mortuary chapels, and since April 1st, 1896, both have been under the control of the Rhondda Urban District Council Burial Committee of 13 members. The Marquis of Bute, who is lord of the manor, the Earl of Dunraven and Mountarke K.P., P.C., C.M.G. and W. H. C. Llewellyn esq. are the principal landowners. The land is not fertile, but rich in mineral wealth; from eight to nine million tons of coal were raised in 1904. The area of the civil parish is co-extensive with that of the district of the Rhondda Urban Council, and comprises 23,730 acres of land and 155 of water; rateable value, £660,084; population in 1891, 88,351, in 1901, 113,735, and in 1911, 152,781, comprising several thickly inhabited places in which are chapels of various denominations.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 26,542.

The population of the wards in 1911 was:—No. 1, 13,483; No. 2, 16,186; No. 3, 11,988; No. 4, 11,581; No. 5, 15,260; No. 6, 14,343; No. 7, 11,532; No. 8, 17,198; No. 9, 23,042; No. 10, 18,158.

Parish Clerk, Joseph Voyle, Crawshay st. Ton Pentre.

CLYDACH VALE is an ecclesiastical parish, formed by Order in Council December 21st, 1907, from the ecclesiastical parish of Lliwynypia, 1 mile west of Tonypandy. * The church of St. Thomas, built in 1894-5, at a cost of £3,000, and enlarged in 1912 at a further cost of £1,200, is for English services only:

it is a building of stone in the late Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisle, transept, organ chamber and vestry: the church will seat 650 persons. The register dates from the year 1907. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £200, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1907 by the Rev. William Meredith Morris B.A. of London University. The church of St. Dyfrig for Welsh services has sittings for 280 persons. There are also Welsh Baptist and Welsh Congregational chapels. Names of residents will be found with those of Blaenclydach. The population in 1911 was 10,669.

PENTRE is a town 8½ miles north-west from Pontypridd and adjoins Ystrad station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway. The church of St. Peter, at Pentre, a chapel of ease to Ystradyfodwg, was erected in 1888-90, at a cost of £20,000, by Griffith Llewellyn esq. of Baglan Hall, and his wife, and consecrated by the Bishop of Llandaff, July 28, 1890: it is a handsome building of Welsh stone, in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. F. R. Kempson, architect, and consists of chancel with transeptal aisles, lofty nave of five bays, with clerestory, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 bells: over the chancel is a bell cot containing a sanctus bell: the retdos is of alabaster, decorated with marbles, mosaic and sculpture; the wall on each side of the communion table is arcaded, and above are figures in niches of the four Greater Prophets and the four Evangelists: the eastern triplet is filled with rich stained glass: the chancel is floored with tiles and marble of rich colour; the fittings are of oak: the pulpit is of different coloured stone and has sculptured panels illustrating incidents in the life of St. Peter: the font is also of varied marbles: the morning chapel has a reredos of mosaic and above it a stained window: in the church hangs a flag captured at the battle of Toksi by Field-Marshal Lord Grenfell P.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G. and by him presented to the church: there are 300 sittings. There is also a school church used for the Sunday school and for children's services and Bible and other classes. The Rhondda Urban District Council meets at the Council Offices, in Llewellyn street, Pentre, erected in 1883-84 at a cost of £4,000 for the former Local Board of Health: the Education offices are also in the same building. The Grand Theatre, in Ystrad road, was rebuilt in 1912, and has seats for 1,000 persons.

RHIGOS is a parish and scattered village, situated 5½ miles north-north-west of Aberdare, with a halt on the Great Western railway, Aberdare and Swansea branch, in the ecclesiastical parish of Ystradyfodwg, Rural District Council of Neath and union and county court district of Merthyr Tydfil. There is no church, but there are Wesleyan and Independent chapels. The Marquis of Bute is chief landowner and lord of the manor.

TON PENTRE is a large town on the western side of the river Rhondda, separated from Pentre and Ystrad-Rhondda by a bridge; it adjoins Ystrad station, which is 8 miles from Pontypridd. The church of St. David, a chapel of ease to St. John's, Ystradyfodwg, was erected in 1881 at a cost of £6,000, by the late Crawshay Bailey esq. and is an edifice chiefly in the Early Gothic style, consisting of chancel, two naves and a tower on the north side, with spire and containing one bell: there are 550 sittings. A new building has been erected for the Sunday school and for Mission services. The Maindy and Eastern Workmen's Hall and Library in Church road, erected by the workmen of Maindy and Eastern pits (Ocean Collieries), was opened in 1895, at a cost of £8,000, and the hall which was erected in 1900 is used as a picture and variety theatre. There are 2,000 members. Maindy Hall, a fine mansion of stone, standing on an eminence, is the residence of Percie George Smith esq. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in the Ocean, Gelli and other collieries.

GELLI is a hamlet adjoining the Ton and Ystrad-Rhondda, under which heads the names are given.

Here is the mission church of St. Mark, in which are a lectern and bible presented by the late King Edward VII. and His Majesty King George V. respectively.

TONYPANDY, the central town, is in the ecclesiastical parish of Llwynypia, is 6 miles north-west from Pontypridd and three-quarters of a mile south of Llwynypia station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway. St. David's church here is for Welsh services, which are held on Sundays at 8 and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. The Judges' Hall, the gift of Rees Williams esq. was opened in 1909 by H.B.H. Princess Louise. It contains a concert hall, seating 1,500 persons, besides a library and billiard room.

TREALAW is a hamlet on the eastern side of the valley, separated from Tonymandy by the river Rhondda, and is 6 miles north-west from Pontypridd and 1 from Llwynypia station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway. The church of All Saints here was erected about 1897 at a cost of £1,000, and affords 380 sittings. Services in English are conducted here by the Rev. Charles Renowden L.Div. curate of Llwynypia.

WATTSTOWN is a hamlet 1½ miles south from Tylor's Town. St. Thomas's Mission church here, attached to St. Ann's church at Ynyshir, is an iron structure; the Rev. Pierce Price is curate. Here are Welsh Baptist and Independent chapels.

The United National Collieries are here.

YSTRAD-RHONDDA, is a hamlet, 8 miles north-west from Pontypridd, with a station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway. St. Stephen's was erected in 1896 at a cost of £3,600, and consists of chancel, nave, aisle, and a western turret containing 2 bells. There is also a church mission room used as a Sunday school as well as for mission services. Ystrad Library, built in 1895, at a cost of £3,000, is a structure of brick with stone dressings, and comprises a library, reading room, billiard room, committee room, and a room for ladies. Hirwain Common, about 6 miles from here, was the scene, in 1090, of an encounter between Rhys ab Tewdwr Mawr and the Normans; the former being defeated, fled with his followers to a spot now known as Penrhys (the head of Rhys), where he was overtaken and slain with many of his men; this spot was afterwards the site of a monastery (probably Franciscan), founded by Richard de Clara, 2nd Earl of Gloucester, and dedicated to St. Mary; on account of its complicity with Owen Glendower the monastery was destroyed by Henry V. but some portions of the walls still remain; an ode exists respecting an Eisteddfodd held here under the patronage of Owen Glendower, in honour of the Virgin Mary; St. Mary's well here is supposed to possess medicinal qualities, and at one time was a great resort for pilgrims.

YNYSCYNYON is a hamlet on the eastern side of Rhondda Valley, 7 miles north-west from Pontypridd and about a quarter of a mile from Llwynypia station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway. The church of St. Cynon, erected in 1904 at a cost of £400, is an iron structure and has sittings for 265 persons. Rev. David Hughes Richards B.A. curate of Llwynypia, officiates.

CYMMER and PORTH form an ecclesiastical parish, constituted 2 Feb. 1894, from Llantrisant and Rhondda civil parishes, and is locally governed by the Rhondda Urban District Council, in the hundred of Caerphilly, Cardiff petty sessional division, Pontypridd union, rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff, 17½ miles from London, 4 from Pontypridd, 16 from Cardiff, 16½ from Merthyr Tydfil and 6 from Llantrisant. Porth has a station on the Rhondda and Ferndale branches of the Taff Vale and Barry railways. The parish church of St. John the Evangelist, Cyammer, erected in 1887, at a cost of £3,000, and enlarged at a cost of £1,500, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, organ chamber, morning chapel and a turret with a spire, containing one bell; in 1895 a new organ was erected at a cost of £300; in 1914 a reredos was erected at a cost of £150, to the memory of the late Rev. William Thomas Lic.Div. first vicar of the parish, 1894-1913; there is a memorial screen to the late J. H. Insole esq. J.P. and W. Henry Lewis esq. J.P.; there are sittings for 600 persons.

St. Paul's church, PORTH, erected in 1886, at a cost of £1,500, is an edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a turret containing one bell; in 1896 a new organ was erected at a cost of £250, and was enlarged in 1910: the church was enlarged in 1910 and now has 530 sittings. The register dates from 1886. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Daniel Mark M.A. of the University College of Wales. The Cemetery at Porth is 30 acres in extent, with one mortuary chapel, and is under the control of the Ystradfordwg, Llanwonno and Llantrisant Joint Burial Committee. Porth Cottage Hospital, erected in 1895 at a cost of £3,600, and enlarged in 1908, is a building of stone, and contains five wards of 33 beds and 10 cots; visiting days, Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. Cymmer Colliery Workmen's Institute, Cyammer, erected in 1893, at a cost of about £1,600, and enlarged in 1911, at a cost of about £2,000, is a building of stone, containing a library of about 4,000 volumes, recreation and committee rooms, and reading room. Insole's Limited, the Cyammer Colliery, and other collieries in the neighbourhood give employment to the greater number of the inhabitants. The population in 1911 was 12,780.

DINAS is a village in the civil parish of Rhondda and forms part of the new ecclesiastical parish of Dinas and Penygraig, formed in 1901 out of the civil parishes of Llantrisant and Ystradfordwg (now called Rhondda), and is 4½ miles north-west from Pontypridd and 1 from Penygraig, with a station on the Taff Vale railway; it is in the Miskin hundred, petty sessional division of Lower Miskin, union and county court district of Pontypridd, and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The English Mission church here is an iron building with sittings for 250 persons. Here are also Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 12,457.

PENYGRAIG is a town in the civil parish of Rhondda, forming part of the ecclesiastical parish of Dinas and Penygraig, formed in 1901 out of the civil parishes of Llantrisant and Ystradfordwg (now called Rhondda); it has a station on the Great Western railway and is one mile from Dinas station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway, 5 miles north-west from Pontypridd and 164 miles from London. St. Mary's church, Llanfair-ar-y-Bryn, erected in 1890, is used for Welsh Church of England services, and has sittings for 300 persons. Williamstown is a conventional district. St. Iltyd's church, erected in 1890, has 310 sittings. The Rev. David William Rees B.A. of University College, Durham, has been curate in charge since 1919. St. Barnabas mission church (English), erected in 1914, is a chapel of ease to St. Mary's, the parish church, and has 324 sittings. The living of Dinas and Penygraig is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £292, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1910 by the Rev. David Henry Simon L.Div. St. David's College, Lampeter. The Dinas Institute, built in 1893, of red brick and native stone, at a cost, including site, of £1,700, was presented to the district by Miss Caroline Williams (owner of the Dinas estate), to be used as a reading room and library. A large refuse destructor was constructed in 1914 at a cost of £64,700. Here are the collieries of the Naval Colliery Company (1897) Limited.

FERNDALE is a hamlet in the Rhondda Fach valley, with a station 9 miles north-north-west of Pontypridd, on the Taff Vale railway, and is in the civil parish of Rhondda; though a quarter of a century ago it contained but five farms, it is now a populous place, and in 1887, together with Tylorstown and Mardy, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish, but in 1900 it was separated from Tylorstown, and together with Mardy was formed into a new ecclesiastical parish under the name of Ferndale. It is in the hundred of Miskin, petty sessional division of Rhondda, Pontypridd union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The parish is lighted with gas. Christ Church, erected in 1887 at a cost of £2,237, is a building of Welsh sandstone with Bath stone dressings, consisting of chancel, nave, and a turret at the north end containing one bell, and has 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £230, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1916 by the Rev. Nathaniel Rees. The church of St. Dunstan's, a chapel of ease to Christ Church, and erected in 1905 at a cost of £2,400, is a building of native stone with Bath stone dressings, and consists of a nave, with a hall underneath. Welsh services only. The church of St. Paul, a chapel of ease to Christ Church, Ferndale, is an iron building, erected in 1877, at a cost of £500; it is now used as a parish room. There are several dissenting chapels. The Ferndale Workmen's Hall, Library and Institute is in High street; it contains a public hall, theatre, swimming bath &c. besides a library containing over 2,500 volumes of Welsh and English books. The Ferndale Workmen's General Hospital and Eye Infirmary was established in 1891 for the benefit of the workmen of the district; it is a free institution. The rapid rise of this place is due to the extensive collieries of Messrs. Davis and Sons Limited. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1901 was 15,531, and in 1911, 18,144.

Mardy is a hamlet, 11 miles north-north-west from Pontypridd and 2 from Ferndale, with a terminal station on the Taff Vale railway. In 1887, together with Tylorstown and Ferndale, it was formed into an ecclesiastical parish, but in 1900 was separated from Tylorstown, and together with Ferndale was formed into a new ecclesiastical parish, under the name of Ferndale. The church of All Saints, used for English services only, was erected in 1886, at a cost of £1,100, and is a building of Welsh stone, consisting of chancel, nave and a western turret containing one bell, and has 300 sittings. The church of All Saints, together with St. Luke's, was formed into a conventional district in 1912. The Rev. John Daniel Hughes M.A. has been curate in charge since 1910. St. Luke's Mission room for Welsh services is an iron building; the services are conducted by the Rev. James Dewi Jones, of St. David's College, Lampeter, who is also an assistant curate of All Saints, Mardy. The Workmen's Institute, erected in 1905, at a cost of £6,000, contains a large hall, with balcony, capable of holding 1,200 persons, billiard room and general reading rooms &c. Locket's Merthyr Collieries (1894) Limited are situated here.

LLWYNPIA is a town in the civil parish of Rhondda, with a station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway, 6 miles north-west from Pontypridd, and in 1879 was formed into an ecclesiastical parish, comprising the townships of Llwynypia, Tonypany and Trealaw, from the civil parish of Ystradyfodwg (now called Rhondda). It is in the Rhondda division of the county of Glamorgan, Miskin hundred, petty sessional division of Rhondda, Pontypridd union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Andrew, erected in 1876, at a cost of £2,100, is a cruciform building of stone in the Early Gothic style, consisting of chancel, with organ chamber and vestry, nave, transepts and a western bell turret containing one bell; the chancel, organ chamber and vestry were added in 1888, at a cost of about £900, and in 1904 a south aisle and porch were built at a cost of £1,000; there are sittings for 700 persons. The register dates from the year 1879. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1917 by the Rev. John Richards Pugh B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The vicarage house, which is in Tonypany, was built in 1886. There are chapels of various denominations. The New Conservative Club, opened in 1904, at a cost of £7,000, contains a fine hall, used for entertainments, meetings &c.; a spacious billiard room, with two tables, and reading, bath and other rooms. The collieries of the Glamorgan Coal Company Limited employ about 4,000 of the inhabitants. The homes for aged persons, opened in 1903, and an infirmary containing 161 beds, added in 1911, with 25 acres of land attached, provide for 320 people. They are under the control of the Pontypridd Board of Guardians. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1901 was 22,285, and in 1911, 18,718.

Clydach Vale is an ecclesiastical parish, formed from Llwynypia in 1907, and will be found under the letter C.

TREHERBERT is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1893 from Rhondda; it is in the Miskin hundred, Pontypridd union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The town lies amongst mountainous and picturesque scenery at the foot of Penpych, which rises 1,700 feet above the level of the sea, it is 11 miles north-west from Pontypridd and is the terminus of the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway, and also of the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway, opened 14 July, 1890. The church of St. Alban, TYNEWYDD, erected in 1801, at a cost of £1,600, is a small building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, and a bell cot containing one bell; there are 330 sittings. The living is a vicarage, endowed in May, 1899, net income £236, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1902 by the Rev. John David Evans, of St. Bees. The church of St. Mary, a chapel of ease to St. Alban's, and erected by the Marquess of Bute in 1867, at a cost of £4,000, is a building of Welsh sandstone with Bath stone dressings, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, porch and a bell cot containing one bell; there are over 350 sittings. All Saints', also a chapel of ease to St. Alban's, erected in 1894, at a cost of £2,380, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, south aisle and nave, and will seat 350 persons. The Public Hall, erected in 1872, at a cost of £2,500, and now the Treherbert Opera House, will seat 800 persons. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1901 was 8,826, and in 1911, 13,393.

TREORCHY is a town, 10 miles north-west from Pontypridd, with a station on the Rhondda branch of the Taff Vale railway, and is a conventional district, formed out of the mother parish of Ystradyfodwg (now called Rhondda), 19 May, 1898; it is in the Miskin hundred, Pontypridd petty sessional division and union, and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. George, CWMPARC, situated in the centre of the village, is a modern building of stone and rubble, in the Gothic style of the 15th century, from designs by Mr. George E. Halliday, diocesan surveyor, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, porch and a massive tower over 90 feet in height. The roodloft is of polished pink alabaster, and the pulpit and font of green Bridgend stone; the church affords about 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1898. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £294, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1903 by the Rev. Thomas Tissington. The church of St. Matthew, TREORCHY, erected in 1887, at a cost of £1,800, is a small building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave and a western bell cot, containing one bell; the church affords 300 sittings. The services are conducted in English. The Rev. Thomas Rees L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, has been curate in charge since 1912. The church of St. Tyfodwg, Treorchy, is for Welsh services. At Cwmparc are the collieries of the Ocean Coal Co. Limited, and at Treorchy the collieries of Messrs. Burnyeat, Brown and Co. Limited. The Ocean Collieries, Park and Dare, Workmen's Institute here, opened in March, 1895, was erected by the workmen employed at Park and Dare pits (Ocean Collieries), at a cost of nearly £4,000. The population of Cwmparc ecclesiastical parish in 1901 was 10,440, and in 1911, 15,265.

TYLORSTOWN, which takes its name from the collieries formerly belonging to Messrs. A. Tylor and Co. and now owned by Messrs. D. Davis and Sons, Limited, is a hamlet 7 miles north-north-west from Pontypridd, with a station on the Ferndale branch of the Taff Vale railway; in 1887, together with Ferndale and Mardy, it was formed into an ecclesiastical parish, but in 1900 Ferndale and Mardy were separated from Tylorstown and re-constituted as a distinct parish. It is in the hundred of Miskin, petty sessional division of Lower Miskin, Pontypridd union and county court district and in the rural deanery of Rhondda and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. Holy Trinity church, erected in 1883, at a cost of £1,400, is a building of Welsh sandstone with Bath stone dressings, consisting of chancel, nave, and a western turret containing one bell. RHOSCROWTHER is a parish in the county of Pembroke, and near the shore of Milford Haven, 6 miles west from Pembroke station, on the Pembroke and Tenby branch of the Great Western railway, and 261 from London, in Castle Martin hundred and petty sessional division, Pembroke union, Pembroke Dock county court district, and in the rural deanery of Castle Martin, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Decuman, restored in 1869, is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style of the latter part of the 12th century, and consists of chancel, with south aisle, or Eastington chapel, north transept, south transept, or Henllan chapel, north porch, south-west vestry, once a chapel, and a tower of the 14th century, with pinnacles and vane, rising over the north transept, and containing 3 bells, and there is also a sanctus bell hung above the crossing; the chancel retains a piscina, and there are others in the south chapel and vestry; the ancient altar slab, still exhibiting its two crosses, now lies in the eastern chapel, and on the south side is a recumbent female effigy of the 13th century; the original low chancel arch remains, and there are two hagioscopes, and portions of the steps formerly leading to the road left: there is an ancient Norman font now in use, and a pre-Norman font in the south-west chapel: three of the windows are stained; the church affords 170 sittings. The registers date from the year 1731. The living is a rectory, net income £275, with 85 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1918 by the Rev. Richard Roberts Jones, of St. David's College, Lampeter. The principal charity is a sum of £230, bequeathed by the Rev. G. H. Scott B.A. rector here from 1850, for church repairs and expenses. At Eastington, in this parish, are some remains of a castle of Norman date. Mrs. Mary Beatrice Mirehouse, who is lady of the manor of Eastington, Samuel Hall esq. and Col. Stanley, are the principal landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, red sandstone. The chief crops are oats and barley and the greater portion is under pasture. The area is 2,391 acres of land and 212 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,054; the population in 1911 was 135.

Sexton, David Cray.
 Post Office.—James Jones, sub-postmaster. Letters through Pembroke. Angle, 4 miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office

The National School, built in 1851, is now used as a Sunday school only; the children of the parish attend the school at Pwllerochan

RHOSSILI is a village and the most westerly parish in the district of Gower, on the rocky shore of the Bristol Channel, 14 miles west from Killay station on the London and North Western railway, and 18 from Swansea, in the Gower division of the county of Glamorgan, Swansea hundred, Gower union, Swansea county court district, Gower petty sessional division, rural deanery of West Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen, and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building in the Norman style of the 12th century, consisting of chancel, nave and a saddle-back western tower containing 3 bells; at the entrance is an arch in the Early English style; the church was restored in 1801 at the cost of £850, and affords 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1642, but is much confused and partly illegible. The living is a rectory, net income £105, with 7 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1808 by the Rev. Lewis Hughes M.A. of the University of Glasgow, who is also vicar of Llangennith. There is a Wesleyan chapel at Pitton and a Congregational chapel at Pilton Green, erected in 1821, with 300 sittings. In the parish are several camps and barrows, and two dolmens, called "Sweyne's Houses." Lady Blythswood is lady of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is very good; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,705 acres of land, 1 of water and 565 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,231; the population in 1911 was 246 in the civil and 208 in the ecclesiastical parish.

The WORMS HEAD, which is in this parish, and forms the southern boundary of Rhossili Bay, consists of two lofty rocks, extending a mile seaward from the mainland, with which they are connected by a causeway laid bare at low water: the outermost rock rises to a pinnacle about 200 feet high, and their vicinity is dangerous for shipping, as they are open to the full force of the waves of the Atlantic: the neighbouring cliffs of limestone and old red sandstone command extensive and grand sea views, with the coasts of Carmarthen and Pembroke to the north and North Devon with Lundy Island to the southward.

ST. ANDREW MINOR, see Wick.

ST. ANDREWS is an extensive parish, including the village of Dinas Powis, 1½ miles from Dinas Powis station on the Cogan and Barry railway, 5 south-west from Cardiff and 165 from London, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Dinas Powis hundred, Cardiff union and county court district, petty sessional division of St. Nicholas, rural deanery of Penarth, and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. This parish is supplied with water from Barry and Cardiff. The church of St. Andrew is a building of local stone with freestone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, porch, and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the font is Norman: the east window is stained: the chancel was beautifully decorated in 1889-91, at a cost of £150, in memory of the late Rev. H. T. Lee, of Dinas Powis, and in 1891 a stained east window was placed as a memorial to Constance M. (Lyall), wife of Major-Gen. Henry Herbert Lee J.P. of The Mount, who died in 1890: the church was restored in 1875, at a cost of £997, and affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1743. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £420, including 45 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Edward Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and surrogate, at Dinas Powis and Eastbrook are chapels of ease in connection with the parish church of St. Andrews. There are Welsh Methodist and Wesleyan chapels, and a small iron Wesleyan chapel at Eastbrook. The village green was inclosed with a low wall by Major-Gen. Lee in 1890. The parish hall was erected in 1907 at a cost of £1,560, on a site given by Major-Gen. H. H. Lee J.P. Here is a water mill and brickworks. At Dinas Powis are the remains of an ancient castle, said to be built by Jestyn ap Gwrgan, the last of the Glamorgan princes, about A.D. 1043, the ruins of which enclose a rectangular space, 70 yards long by 35 wide. The whole area within the castle has been converted into a garden. In the glebe wood is a rocky eminence called "The Bishop's Seat," so named because it was a favourite view point of the Rev. Hugh Lloyd, rector of St. Andrew's, temp. Charles I. deprived under Cromwell and raised to the see of Llandaff in 1660, which he held till 1667. The Mount is the seat of Major-General Henry Herbert Lee C.B.E. (late B.E.), J.P. and Bryneithen of David Thomas Alexander esq. J.P. Mrs. Jenner and Major-General Lee, who are joint owners of the manor, and

Col. Gore are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, rock and marl. The crops are wheat, oats and turnips and some land in pasture. The area is 3,186 acres; rateable value, £24,780; the population in 1901 was 1,620, and in 1911, 2,151, including 47 in the Truant School.

ST. ATHAN is a small village and parish, on the Llantwit and Barry road, with a station 1 mile west (locally in the parish of Llanclarvan), on the branch line of the Taff Vale railway from Llantrisant to Aberthaw, and $\frac{1}{2}$ mile north from Gileston station on the Vale of Glamorgan railway, 5 miles south from Cowbridge, 8 west from Barry, 12 south-east from Bridgend, and 15 south-west from Cardiff, in the Pontypridd division of the county of Glamorgan, Cowbridge hundred, Bridgend and Cowbridge union and county court district, Cowbridge petty sessional division, rural deanery of Gronoath Lower (eastern division) and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Athan is a cruciform building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and an embattled central tower containing 4 bells: in the south transept are two altar tombs, each with recumbent effigies of a knight in armour and his wife, the earlier being to Sir William Berkrolles, 1327, and the later to Sir Roger Berkrolles, c. 1351; each carries a shield charged with a chevron between three crescents, and the latter lies under a recessed double canopy highly enriched; the sides of the tombs are panelled and contain figures, and there is an early circular stone font: the nave was restored in 1888, and the chancel in 1890, at a total cost of £1,105; the north and south transepts have also been since restored: there are 240 sittings. The register dates from the year 1663. The living is a rectory, net income £278, including 50 acres of glebs and residence, in the gift of the widow of W. C. Rayer esq. and held since 1906 by the Rev. George Morganwg Williams Thomas Jenkins, of Worcester College, Oxford, who is also rector of Eglwys Brewis. There is an English Wesleyan chapel seating 120 persons, and a Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapel with 150 sittings. A charity of £60, left by Miss Biss, produces interest of about £3 yearly, which is divided every year among the poor of the parish. The interest of another charity of £100, left by Miss Samuel, is also divided annually amongst the poor. Here are the ruins of the castles of East and West Orchard. Mrs. Rayer, who is lady of the manor, and the trustees of the late John Samuel Gibbon esq. M.A. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,518 acres of land, 9 of water, 7 of tidal water and 196 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,757; the population in 1911 was 360.

ST. CLEARS (or St. Clare's), formerly a municipal borough, is a market town and parish of great antiquity and the head of a petty sessional division, about 9 miles on the main road from Carmarthen to Tenby, between the rivers Taf or Tave and Gining, with a station on the Great Western railway, in the parish of Llanfihangel-Abercowin, and about one mile from the town. St. Clears is about 235 miles from London, in the Carmarthen division of the county of Carmarthen, Derllys hundred, Carmarthen union and county court district, rural deanery of St. Clears, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's. The Taf and the Gining (both tidal rivers) are crossed by bridges, the latter connecting St. Clears with the Pentre portion, which is in the parish of Llanfihangel-Abercowin, but is for postal and commercial purposes regarded as part of Upper St. Clears. The town is divided into two parts: Upper St. Clears, also known as "Blue Boar," from a well-known hotel of steeple-coaching days, and Lower St. Clears. Up to the 10th December, 1880, St. Clears was governed by charters, granted in the reigns of Richard II. and Henry VI.; its affairs being managed by a portreeve and recorder assisted by other officials chosen annually by the burgesses. The Corporation was dissolved in 1830, under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1833" (46 and 47 Vict. c. 18), and its property transferred to the Charity Commissioners, by whom a scheme has been framed for its future administration by 9 trustees, two of whom (co-optative) are nominated by the other trustees, two by the Education Committee of the County Council and five elected by the ratepayers once in every five years: the income is expended in various ways in connection with the town: the trustees meet at the Town hall. The existing municipal insignia of the defunct Corporation consist only of the borough seal and two constables' staves about two feet long bearing the royal cypher "G.R. IV" and the figure of a boar: the seal, a modern one, is oval, and bears a boar passant, regardant, and a marginal legend. The parish church of St. Mary Magdalene is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early Norman style, with walls about five feet in thickness, and tapering towards the glebe here and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Traherne, and held since 1909 by the Rev. David Jenkins B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a Congregational chapel. Mrs. Traherne, who is lady of the manor, and the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. are the principal landowners. The soil is arable; sub-soil, limestone. The land is chiefly pasture. The area is 600 acres; rateable value, £3,489, and the population in 1911 was 95.

top, a feature peculiar to ancient Welsh buildings; it consists of chancel, nave and a very fine massive embattled western tower containing 4 bells; the chancel is divided from the nave by a plain but massive Anglo-Norman arch, supported on nook shafts with carved capitals: the font is Norman: the church was restored in 1883, at a cost of £528: an organ was installed in 1909: there are about 400 sittings. The churchyard is partly inclosed by a stone wall, and at the entrance, built into the wall, are the remains of an ancient cross a lych gate was erected in 1911 at the expense of Miss E. Phillips, of The Kieffe, St. Clears. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1621; marriages, 1754. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £190, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1915 by the Rev. John Maurice James B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who is also vicar of Llaninnyon. There are Congregational, Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. Charities:—Lady Mary Osborne's, given in 1719, consists of land and cottages in St. Clears producing an annual income of £46 10s. which amount is distributed in small sums to the deserving poor by the vicar and five trustees (two appointed by the Parish Council) the second Tuesday in March. There is a well-established monthly market, one of the largest in South Wales, for fat and store stock, held on the first Tuesday in every month. A "hiring fair" is held on the 12th of October. The river Taf, or Tave, is navigable for vessels of small tonnage, and previous to the construction of the Great Western railway a large shipping trade was carried on. Excellent trout, sewin and salmon fishing can be obtained in the neighbourhood. The Carmarthenshire Fox Hounds regularly meet in the district; the kennels are at "Travellers' Rest," near Carmarthen; good otter hunting is also to be had. At St. Clears railway station passengers alight on their way to Llanharan and Pendine, watering places 5 and 10 miles distant respectively; conveyances for Laugharne leave the station at regular intervals daily, and for Pendine daily, in summer. In Lower St. Clears are two mounds or tumuli, known as "Banc-y-Belli," supposed to be the site of an ancient castle. In 1890, at a farm near here called "Cwmbrwyn," Roman tiles &c. were unearthed. The narrow lane near the old Santa Clara brewery is still called "Heol-y-priordy" or Priory lane, this being the road which formerly led to the Cluniac priory of Clare, founded here before 1237 as a cell to St. Martin des Champs, and dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene; it was dissolved with other alien priories in the reign of Henry V. and the site and lands granted to the warden and fellows of All Souls College, Oxford, who now hold two-thirds of the tithe rent charge of the parish. Penycood, the residence of Thomas Nicholas esq. about 1 mile from the town, is a modern mansion, standing on an eminence in its own grounds, well stocked with trees and commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country. Sir C. E. Gregg Phillips bart. is the principal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,642 acres, inclusive of 14 of inland water; rateable value, £5,242; the population in 1911 was 929.

ST. DAVIDS (or Tyddewi) is a very ancient city on the north side of St. Bride's Bay, 268 miles from London via Great Western railway to Haverfordwest, 16 miles west by coach from Haverfordwest station and 15 miles by coach from Letterston station, on the Great Western railway, 34 south-west from Cardigan, 116 west-by-north from Cardiff, 46 west from Carmarthen, and 30 north-west from Pembroke; it is the head of a bishop's see, in the county of Pembroke, hundred of South Dewisland, union and county court district of Haverfordwest, Mathry petty sessional division, rural deanery of Dewisland and archdeaconry of St. David's.

At the time of the Roman occupation of Britain the south-western portion of Wales was held by a Cymric tribe called "Demetae," in whose territories the whole of Pembroke appears to have been included, although this district was also tenanted in part by a population distinctly Gnehic, and the country around St. Davids seems to have been the battlegrounds of different races in very early times. Richard of Cirencester, who wrote towards the end of the fourteenth century, states, in his seventh Itinerary, that the "Via Julia," the Great Roman road which penetrated South Wales, was carried on from "Maridunum" (Carmarthen) to a point on the western coast, which he calls "Menapia," and which has been supposed by some to be identical with the modern St. Davids, but it seems more probable, from a careful examination of the existing traces of this road, made in June, 1808, by Mr. Richard Fenton F.A.S. and Sir Richard Colt Hoare bart. that the actual site of "Menapia" was on "the Burrows," a sandy tract on the shore of Whitesand Bay, where some remains of uncertain date and use, commonly called the "Old Church," still exist, but do not certainly belong either to a church or to a castle; in the 5th century this district, now constituting the parish of St. Davids, was called "Mynyw," of which the Roman name "Menapia" was probably a modification, and at a later date assumed the form "Menevia," which is still retained in the style of the bishop, who is "Episcopus Menevensis."

The city of St. Davids, probably never anything more than a struggling village extending along the hill above the cathedral to the south and east, is usually approached from Haverfordwest, through the beautiful little village of Solva, 4 miles distant, and near the mouth of the river Solva or Sollach; a gentle declivity leads into the town, which consists chiefly of small irregularly built houses, disposed in five streets, known severally as High street, New street, Nun street, Goat street and Tower street, from which many alleys and passages diverge; but there are, besides the deanery and prebendal houses in the close, a number of good houses, besides other comfortable and well-built dwellings. Tower street, a steep and narrow lane, formerly called "The Popples," leads to the principal gate of the close, on passing which, the whole close, with the cathedral lying immediately in front, the magnificent ruins of the palace and of the chapel of St. Mary's College, with the peaks of Carn Llidi and Penbery in the distance, all of which had previously been hidden, are suddenly disclosed, presenting to the spectator a most striking prospect.

The parish comprises the westernmost portion of the great rocky promontory which forms the northern boundary of St. Bride's Bay, together with the islands lying off its extremity, and is divided into four townships, called "Cylchys," or "Circles," named respectively Cylch-y-Dref, near the centre; Cylch-Bychan, on the east; Cylch-Mawr, on the north; and Cylch-Gwaelod-y-Wläd, otherwise called Dewiston, on the west along the sea shore.

A good supply of water has been obtained from springs at Nine Wells, which is pumped to a service tank at the top of Clegry hill and thence laid on to the town. The city is lighted by gas.

The city is not incorporated, but there is an officer called a mayor or bailiff of court leet, whose duties consist only in collecting the chief rents belonging to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners within the limits of the city, which is co-extensive with the township or division called "Cylch-y-Dref," and to see that no encroachments are made on a common which the inhabitants hold under an old lease from the bishop and chapter; he is therefore merely an officer of the manor court, and the existing belief that the city was once a corporation appears to rest on no trustworthy authority, since "there are no burghes, charter, or other vestige of municipal institutions."

The cathedral and parish church of SS. Andrew and David, a structure of noble architectural character and great historic interest, stands in a deep hollow immediately below the town, "on a holm of level ground, where the steep side of the valley recedes somewhat from the left bank of the river Alan, which almost washes the west front of the church." The existing fabric, occupying the site of the earlier church, erected in the 10th century by Archbishop Sampson and consecrated in 1131, was the work of Bishop Peter de Leia (1176-08), and was begun in 1180, in the Transitional style of that period; but in 1220, not long after its completion, the tower fell, destroying the choir and transepts, and the rebuilding of these portions occupied from that date until about 1248, in which year the church was again much injured by an earthquake; the present Lady chapel was erected by Bishop Martyn (1290-1328), and his successor, Bishop Gower (1328-47), a munificent benefactor to the cathedral, effected considerable alterations, apparently on one uniform plan throughout the whole building, with a view "to bring the aisles and chapels into a more regular and ornamental shape;" these works included, amongst other things, the addition of a stage to the tower and the erection of the remarkable rood screen and south porch. In 1384, the large Early Perpendicular window in the south transept (afterwards much altered) was inserted, and during the period 1461-1522 the roofs throughout the main portion of the fabric were entirely renovated, probably in part from funds supplied by Bishop Tully (1461-81) and Bishop Richard Martyn (1482-3), since their arms appear on the roof of the choir and in the upper east window; the nave roof is regarded as the work of Owen Pole, treasurer (1472-1509), who possibly also reconstructed that of the presbytery; Bishop Edward Vaughan (1509-22) converted the space east of the choir into the Trinity, or, as it is now called, Bishop Vaughan's chapel, the Lady chapel being at the same time remodelled and vaulted with stone, and the tower raised to its present height. During the latter part of the sixteenth century the fabric was carefully preserved from further decay, both transepts strongly buttressed and a vestry created on the east side of the south transept, and in 1630 the cathedral was whitewashed. During the civil war the Lady chapel, the aisles of the presbytery, and for some time the transepts, were stripped of their lead covering; the latter were eventually repaired in 1696, and in 1909 completely restored. In 1789-93 the west front was rebuilt from designs by Nash, and in 1827 the chantry chapel of St. Thomas was fitted up as a chapter house.

Subsequently to 1840 modern restorations were commenced, Bishop Field's whitewash was removed and in 1843-4 the south transept was arranged as a parish church and the former vestry converted into an aisle; further restorations were also effected in 1846 and 1849, including the restorations of the roof screen and the insertion of several new windows. During the period, 1862-9, the rebuilding of the tower, a work of considerable danger, was skilfully effected under the superintendence of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and the building rendered comparatively dry by the careful repair of the roof, and the application of an efficient system of drainage, and since then the choir and presbytery, with their aisles, north transept and nave, have been completely restored, new roofs fixed over the nave and its aisles, as well as Bishop Vaughan's chapel and the cross aisle adjoining; both these portions of the church have been repaved and some restorations have been carried out in the chapter house buildings; and the total cost of these works has exceeded £43,400. The cost of the new roof and of other restorations to the south transept, of the new pavement to the nave and its aisles, with the oak ceiling to the north aisle, and of the organ case, was defrayed by the bequests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Montgomery Traherne, of Coedriglan, Glamorganshire, amounting, after payment of legacy duty, to £3,600. The vestibule of the Lady chapel, as well as the Lady chapel itself have been completely restored. These restorations, undertaken as a memorial to the late Bishop Dr. Basil Jones, Dean Allen and Dean Phillips, cost over £12,000.

The ground plan of the cathedral is unusually complicated, but may be generally described as consisting of a clerestoried nave of six bays, with aisles, and a south porch of two storeys, transepts, each of two bays, with a chapel on the east side; a choir, formed under the lantern, presbytery of four bays, with clerestory and aisles; beyond this on a lower level, the Trinity chapel, also with aisles, continued eastward and forming together an ambulatory behind the presbytery; Lady chapel of two bays, extending eastward, with an ante-chapel, and a central tower of three stages, containing one bell and a clock, erected in 1872. The west front, rebuilt under the direction of John Nash, architect, in 1793, was a bold but incongruous composition, in the Romanesque, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, hopelessly confused; its restoration to its original Transitional character as completed in 1885 exhibits a noble doorway under a round arch with enriched mouldings, above which are two tiers of windows, the lower tier consisting of an arcade of three bold semicircular arches, also richly moulded, and the upper a range of five elegant lancets; immediately over the doorway is a niche, in which is an effigy of Bishop Thirlwall, and a new circular window is inserted at the west end of each of the nave aisles: flanking the doorway are massive quadrangular turret-buttresses of three stages, with pyramidal terminations, and similar buttresses are placed at the north and south angles. The restoration, or rather the rebuilding, of the west front, intended as a memorial to the late Bishop Thirlwall, is very effective, and harmonizes with the interior of the nave. The nave, owing to the great multiplicity of its parts, the profusion of ornament and the singular richness of its fretted roof, produces an extremely striking effect, and is entirely unlike the nave of any other church in this country; the floor, following the natural inclination of the site, slightly slopes from west to east, and the six bays into which the nave and aisles are divided are of unusual width, excepting only the westernmost, which is narrower; the piers are alternately round and octagonal, with attached shafts at the cardinal points and capitals of a cushioned form: the arches are elaborately moulded on the face toward the nave and enriched with ornament of Late Norman character; the triforium and clerestory are comprised with a single range of semicircular-headed recessed arches, the lower half of which, forming a triforium, is filled in with couplets of open lancets, the spandril between each couplet bearing a richly carved roundel; clustered shafts of stone, rising between the arches comprising this combined triforium and clerestory, carry small shafts of wood, on which rests the gorgeous Late Perpendicular ceiling of Irish oak, erected by Owen Pole, treasurer, and completed by foreign artists about 1508; this antique structure is panelled, and divided longitudinally into three sections by rows of heavy pendants, connected by a system of segmental arches, the whole being laboriously carved and foliated. The fourth pier of the nave arcade on the south side, is painted with a full-length but much worn, figure in armour, wearing a coronet and carrying a sword, and supposed to represent Henry IV.; and on the same pier is another figure, now nearly effaced, of the Virgin, under a canopy; on the fifth pier of the nave, on the south side, still remains faintly outlined in colour, a helm with crest and mantling, a staff with square banner rising above it, and below, a pendant shield; the same reversed appears on the corresponding pier on the north side. The aisles, Norman and Decorated, retain on the south side most of the windows inserted by Bishop Gower, but the vaulting, begun during the Norman period and advanced by him, has never been carried out, and the roofs are now boarded with oak; at the east end of each aisle a Transitional doorway admits into the transept. The south porch, originally Decorated, has been much altered; the doorway into the church was formerly reached by a descent of five steps, but the ground outside has now been levelled and the steps removed; the arch of the inner doorway is profusely adorned with sculptured work, representing our Saviour's descent from Jesse, the father of King David; a stairway in the aisle near this door leads to the parvise chamber, in which were once preserved relics found in and near the cathedral, but these were removed in 1883 to the chapter house: the north door is Norman, slightly enriched: the font, which has four stone steps, is placed at the west end of the south aisle; it is octagonal, with a plain arcade of pointed arches, supported by eight shafts and a base of Purbeck marble. The transepts, originally Transition Norman, but rebuilt after the fall of the tower in 1220, have undergone more striking alterations than any other part of the church, and now exhibit a peculiar form of Early English Gothic, common to the churches of South Wales and the west of England: on the eastern side of each transept are three pointed arches, including those opening into the choir aisles: in the north transept, which contained the altars of St. Andrew and St. Stephen, the northernmost of these arches opens into the chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury, which constitutes the lower stage of a singular structure of three storeys, projecting at an oblique angle eastwards: this chapel has Decorated vaulting, a graceful trefoil-headed double piscina of Early English work, and a stained glass window; it was used from 1829 to 1889 as a chapter house; the second storey, which seems to have been originally occupied by the treasurer, and is now the library, was, until the restoration commenced, used as the grammar school; the third storey, now incorporated with the second, served as the treasury. The south transept, called the Chanter's or Chancellor's chapel, was used from 1843 until 1876 for the Welsh services, which have now been restored to the nave: the eastern aisle of this transept, erected in the 14th century, has been restored to its original proportions: in the south transept was an altar to the Holy Innocents: the north transept was vaulted with oak in 1871, at the expense of the Very Rev. James Allen, chancellor of the cathedral and subsequently dean. Four grand arches of noble proportions support the lantern, of which three, constructed after the fall of the tower in 1220, are pointed, while the western arch is circular and forms one of the most beautiful specimens of enriched architectural work in the whole church: an arcading surrounds the interior of the lantern, and above this is a wooden vaulting of the 16th century, which during the restoration of 1862-9 was raised one stage and redecorated in colour: the lowest stage of the tower exhibits only plain Norman ashlar work with rubble; the second stage is Decorated, with a tall, two-light window in each face, and the upper stage Perpendicular, with an open parapet and eight pinnacles.

The space beneath the lantern, 27 feet square, is occupied by the choir, a position commonly assigned to it in Norman minsters; it is entered through a massive and elaborate rood screen of stone in the Decorated style, erected by Bishop Gower, and divided on the western side into five unequal compartments, of which the central division contains the vaulted entrance to the choir; the extreme south end is occupied by the tomb of Bishop Gower, between which and the entrance is a canopied niche, with a low square aperture below filled with ogee tracery, and crocketed pinnacles on either side; the north end of the screen incloses the winding stair leading to the rood-loft and organ, and the compartment between it and the entrance contains a tomb (the roof of the canopy has the emblems of the four Evangelists painted upon it), both being marked on the western side by stone-work relieved by a triplet of three rather flattened ogee arches with detached shafts, apparently once a treredos. In 1909 three stone figures were placed in these arches, representing Our Saviour, St. John and St. Paul, in memory of the late Archdeacon Lewis. Beneath it now stands an altar table, used at the services held in the nave; the whole screen is surmounted by a projecting cornice of oak, added in 1847, and reconstructed and somewhat modified by the late Sir G. G. Scott in 1871: the vaulted passage through the screen is of two bays, with two steps in the first and five in the second; the arched openings on either side are partially closed by an iron grille, and between the bays are light iron gates, placed in 1847: the twenty-eight canopied stalls, erected by Bishop Tully, in 1460-81, are Late Perpendicular, and have misereres with grotesque carvings, all in excellent preservation: the bishop's throne, erected by Bishop Morgan about 1504, on the south side, is an imposing but graceful structure of wood 29 feet in height, the general effect being that of a framework of Late Perpendicular date, with additions in the Decorated style; it comprises three seats, a central stall for the bishop and one on either side, at a lower level, for certain attendant officers; both the thrones and stalls have been carefully and minutely repaired. The old organ, built by Bernard Schmidt in 1704 and improved by Lincoln in 1843, stood beneath the northern arch of the lantern until its removal on the restoration of the tower in 1864, when it was presented by the Dean and Chapter to the church of St. Martin, Haverfordwest; it has been replaced by a powerful instrument, built in 1883 by Messrs. Willis and Sons, and erected partly on the screen; but in order that the view might not be unduly obstructed, the heavier portions have been disposed in the transepts; the western front, facing the nave, is flat, relieved by a central and two side groups of metal open diapason pipes, those in front being tastefully ornamented; the eastern front, facing the choir, is much more elaborate and ornate, a result partly due to the projection of the central portion into the choir, each angle being occupied by separate clusters of pipes, enclosed in traceried wood-work, with crocketed pinnacles, the sides receding and terminating similarly; much of the details on this front were copied from the canopy of the episcopal throne; the instrument consists of three complete manuals, with a compass from CC to G, 56 notes, every register running throughout, and two octaves and a half of concave and radiating pedals from CCC to F, 30 notes. In 1908 it was repaired, and new stops were added.

The choir is separated from the presbytery by a parclose screen of oak, which crosses the church beyond the eastern piers of the lantern and the western piers of the presbytery, with a return to the lower pier on the north side, the corresponding space on the south side being occupied by the bishop's throne; it thus occupies a remarkable, and in this country unique, position, corresponding to, although not identical with, that assigned to it in the 14th century; in style it belongs to the transitional period from Decorated to Perpendicular, and consists below of solid panelling, while the upper portion displays a series of pointed arches filled with tracery; in the centre is a wide but quite plain arch, and a smaller opening at the south end of the screen leads to the throne. The presbytery, entered through the parclose above mentioned, consists of three bays and a half of simple, but beautiful Transition work; the piers of the arcades consist of massive columns, alternately round and octagonal, supporting pointed arches with mouldings similar to those in the nave; the clerestory—there being no triforium, has a passage way on the south side—exhibits tall lancets, one in each bay, with rich zigzag mouldings; the east end is of two stages, of which the lower displays a fine triplet with Norman and Early English details intermingled, but these openings, being necessarily blocked on the eastern side by Bishop Vaughan's chapel, have been filled with mosaics by Salvini; the upper tier was in the 15th century destroyed by the insertion of a large screen-light Perpendicular window, but this has now been removed, and four lancets, composed to a great extent of the original moulded stones and filled with stained glass, have been replaced; the roof, erected in 1472-1509, bears the arms of Bishops Tully and Martyn; Owen Pole, treasurer, Edward V., Richard III., Henry VII. and others; the ancient colouring on the panelling and main beams has been renewed, the roof itself, as well as the walls, pillars and arches, having first been most carefully repaired, and the adjacent aisles opened, roofed and restored; the stained glass in the upper east windows as well as the mosaics in the closed tier below, erected at a cost of £1,368, were the gift of the late Rev. John Lucy, rector of Hampton Lucy, Warwick, and are in part a memorial to his ancestor, William Lucy, Bishop of St. David's from 1660 to 1677; the presbytery is paved throughout with encaustic tiles, a large proportion being ancient and very good; there is a gradual rise of four paces from the choir to the eastern bay, where stands the communion table, which consists of a framework of oak, supporting a slab of fine grey sandstone; behind it, on the floor, have been placed some ancient altar slabs; the wooden sedilia, found walled up in the second bay on the south side, are of three seats, with open-worked backs, and have been repaired with much care; a piscina, apparently of the 14th century, has been placed here. Immediately east of the presbytery, and placed transversely to it, is Bishop Vaughan's or Trinity chapel, an extremely fine example of Late Perpendicular; arches of graceful proportion, partially filled with stone screens, connect it with the aisles; the rich fan-traceried roof is of two principal bays, with panelled vaulting at either end; against the east wall the base of an altar-step remains, and the place of the treredos is clearly indicated; on each side of this are two openings, looking into the vestibule of the Lady chapel, and towards either side are two windows recently discovered. In the centre of the west wall is a remarkable arched recess, discovered during the restoration, in the back of which is a circle of enriched work, surrounding a cross with equal arms, the interstices between which are pierced and open into the presbytery; the recess, when found, was filled with human remains, probably relics. Beyond the presbytery is a vaulted vestibule or cross-aisle of three bays leading to the Lady chapel and connecting the presbytery aisles, which are prolonged eastwards by a light and elegant couplet of Early English arches on either side; two low segmental arches divide this space from the Lady chapel, which projects longitudinally eastward, not centrally but rather to the south; the greater part of it is essentially Early Decorated, or, more strictly, Transitional, and traces of the original vaulting, which fell in 1775, with other details, still remain; on the south side is a fine specimen of a Decorated sedile; it was finished eastward by a flat wall, between small semi-hexagonal turrets, terminating in heavy pinnacles; and some traces are left of the open parapet formerly surrounding it; the restoration includes the mullions and tracery of the windows, which were carefully renewed in stone by the late Dean Allen. The chapel of St. Nicholas has been restored as a memorial to the Very Rev. David Howell B.D. dean of St. David's 1807-1903, and has a carved oak roof, designed by J. Oldroyd Scott and Son, architects, and executed by Mr. Edwin G. Thomas, of St. David's. The stained east window of this chapel was erected as a memorial in 1904 to Miss Mary Elizabeth Thomas, of this city.

The King Edward chapel was restored in 1910, and this completed the restoration of the cathedral church proper.

Of the tombs and monuments in the cathedral the most important and interesting is the shrine, so called, of St. David, although in fact the existing portion, which occupies the third arch from the east on the north side of the presbytery, constituted the base only of the movable shrine or feretrum; the lower part of the structure, which extends from pier to pier, consists of a kind of table pierced by three low pointed arches open to recesses backed with stone, above this rises a triplet of three arches, with modern shafts and Early English capitals; the wall of ashlar, to which these are attached, formerly displayed paintings of St. David, St. Patrick and St. Denis, and the whole was surmounted by a canopy of wood; the back, which projects slightly into the aisle, has three round arches in the base, three quatrefoils above and between these two plain squared niches, now closed; among the royal visitors to this shrine may be named William the Conqueror in 1087; Henry II. in 1171 and 72; and Edward I. and Queen Eleanor in 1284: in the north transept is the similar shrine or tomb of St. Caradoc, an ordained monk, who resided at St. Ishmael's, in Pembrokeshire, died in 1124, and was canonised by Innocent III. at the instance of Giraldus, archdeacon of Brecknock: the Lady chapel retains on the south side three elegant Decorated sedilia; and here, also, under a lofty recessed canopy, is a Decorated tomb, with faint traces of the effigy of a bishop, said to mark the resting place of Bishop David Martyn, 1238; on the opposite side is a similar canopy much defaced, and regarded as the tomb of Bishop Fastolie, 1361: there are also here several tomb slabs of ecclesiastics, much mutilated: in the centre of the presbytery is the altar-tomb of Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, and father of Henry VII. 1450; the structure is of Purbeck marble, with richly pannelled sides, but all the brasses, consisting of an effigy of the Earl, armorial bearings and an inscription, were removed during the great rebellion; a successful attempt to replace them has, however, been made under the direction of the late Sir G. G. Scott, the cost being defrayed by the late Rev. John Lucy; the presbytery also contains, under the second arch on the north side, the singularly perfect effigy of Bishop Anselm, with inscription, 1243; and adjoining this is a large coffin-shaped tomb, with the effigy of Bishop Ger vase, 1299; at the north-east angle stands an altar-tomb, with half-recumbent effigy and shields of arms, to Thomas Lloyd, treasurer, 1612: in the north choir aisle, beneath a canopied recess, is the effigy of a knight in the armour of the later 14th century, and in the corresponding arch on the south side is a similar figure; these are traditionally said to represent Lord Rhys (1196) and his son, Rhys Gryg (1233), but are believed on some authority to belong to the family of Talbot, which, in the 14th century, occupied a leading position in the Marches of Wales; in the south choir aisle is an effigy, much worn, of a priest in eucharistic vestments, resting on a lately restored base, and supposed to represent Giraldus; another effigy of a priest, with a Decorated canopy; an incised slab to Silvester, a physician, and the figure of an ecclesiastical holding a book, besides three incised coffin slabs, at present lying loose: in the north transept is another priestly effigy under a Decorated canopy; the rood screen, already described, incloses the effigies of Bishop Gower, 1347, and of two priests vested: on the south side of the nave is an altar-tomb, with effigy, to Bishop Morgan, 1504; Bishop Vaughan was buried in front of the altar in his chapel; the memorial slab remains, but the brass is lost: in this chapel lies the much worn effigy of John Hiot, archdeacon of St. David's, 1419, formerly in the adjoining north aisle, under a Decorated canopy, a fragment of which still remains; opposite, in a defaced recess, is the mutilated figure of a cross-legged knight in chain mail, of the 13th century, probably intended for some member of the Wogan family; eastward of this is the effigy of a priest, said to be of the same family, beneath a crocketed canopy; in the south chapel aisle remains the shattered figure of a knight, and opposite it a decorated recess. In the south transept is a tablet to the sons of Bishop Abraham (1075), found in masonry of the Lady chapel during restoration in 1892; and also a brass to the Rev. William Richardson, 56 years vicar of St. David's, and 22 years canon and treasurer of the cathedral, d. 1 May, 1576. The cathedral was once rich in heraldic glass, of which some fragments still remain in the two westernmost windows of the north aisle of the nave; the modern stained glass comprises only the four lancets above the Eastern mosaic triplet in the presbytery, already mentioned. In 1909 a silver gilt cross and two candlesticks for the high altar were presented by Percy Arden esq. All the cathedral services are conducted in English, and the parochial services in Welsh. The register dates from the year 1664. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £225, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1903 by the Rev. David James Jones B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and vicar choral of the cathedral.

The Transitional Decorated cloister of the Abbey, now destroyed, was on the north side, and had north, west and eastern alleys, the latter uniting it to the Western wall of the north transept; the school and library were built over the west alley, and on the north side was the College of St. Mary, endowed by Bishop Houghton in 1377, and by John de Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, for a master, seven fellows and two choristers; the walls of the Early Perpendicular chapel of four bays, 69 by 45 feet, erected over a long crypt, with a slender south-west tower, 70 feet high, remain, and there are also remains of the sacristy, containing a piscina, and of the domestic buildings, which stood on the north side of the chapel.

Of the College of Vicars Choral, formerly standing on the sloping ground north of St. Mary's College, scarcely a fragment exists. The houses now occupied by the members of the Cathedral Chapter and extending along the right bank of the river up the valley, are, generally speaking, modern. Visitors are shown over the cathedral and adjacent buildings on payment of a small fee, which is devoted to the restoration fund. The Deanery, situated above the Close, to the south-east, is built on the site of an ancient dwelling-house, from the ruins of which it has been at several periods reconstructed. The Canonry is placed in the northern extremity of the Close, on a site appropriated to the Chancellor in the 13th century, and was built about the year 1846, by the Rev. Edmund Melvill, who died chancellor of the diocese, as well as of the church, in the year 1857: opposite to the chancellor's residence are the remains of the Archdeacon of Cardigan's house. Immediately southwards is the Treasurer's house, and opposite to it is the house formerly appropriated to the Archdeacon of Brecon, but now vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners; adjoining is the house belonging to the Archdeacon of St. David's. The Bishop's palace is at Abergwili, near Carmarthen.

On the western or right bank of the Alan and south-west of the cathedral, are the magnificent ruins of the episcopal palace built by Bishop Gower, c. 1342, and unroofed by Bishop Barlow in 1536, in order, it is said, to provide marriage portions for his daughters; it forms three sides of a quadrangle, 120 feet square, with a massive gateway on the south side; the Bishop's Hall, 67 by 25 feet, and an oblong groined kitchen occupy the east side; the Great Hall, 96 by 33 feet, and the chapel, which lies due south-south-east, form the north side, and the west side is occupied by the domestic buildings; but the monotony of the quadrangular plan is admirably relieved by the skillful manner in which the general elevation is broken up by numerous projections, producing altogether a most varied and picturesque effect; the structure is essentially a palace and not a castle, its most striking feature being the rich and unique parapet, the greater part of which remains perfect, and the whole palace is built on a series of vaults, which, under the Great Hall, where they are most perfect, form a range of apartments, entered from without by pointed doorways; the Great Hall is entered at the east end by a lofty and highly enriched porch, through an arch of rare and singular form, over which are niches, inclosing mutilated statues: the hall itself is roofless, but has at the east end a fine circular tracery window; the chapel, which projects from its western extremity, has a porch on the north side, and at the north-west angle a bell turret with broach spire; it also retains a large piscina; on the north is the gateway, with the porter's lodge, and at the north-east angle is a small projecting building, supposed to have been a lesser chapel. The whole ecclesiastical establishment, including the houses of the canons and other offices, was surrounded by a fortified wall, of which only a small portion, to the south-west of the cathedral, is now standing; there were also originally four gates facing the cardinal points, but of these, only one, the Tower Gate, an imposing structure, 60 feet high, on the south-eastern hill of the Close, remains; the gateway is flanked by a Transitional Decorated octagonal tower on the north, and by a semi-circular tower on the south, which served as a record office and Consistory Court; the octagonal tower, now only a shell, retains on the inside the bases of piers, and in the centre is a large circular mass of stone; the gateway has a portcullis groove on the exterior front, and two round-headed doorways of unequal size within the archway; within the limits of the Close the small river Alan flows past the west front of the Cathedral and separates it from the magnificent ruins of the palace; it is crossed by two bridges, both of which are ancient and possess features of interest.

Previous to the Reformation a number of detached chapels existed in different parts of the parish, especially near the sea coast; and several of these, though in a ruinous condition, are still extant, the most perfect being that of St. Justinian, at Capel or Porth Stinan, near Carn Rhossan, on the cliffs opposite Ramsey Island; this building, which lies W.N.W. to E.S.E. has an interior length of 48 feet 9 inches, and a width of 19 feet 8 inches; on the outside the length is 54 feet, and the breadth at the east and 24½ feet; the interior has three recessed segmental arches on each side; there is a western doorway, traces of others, and of splayed windows; and at the west end are remains of a stair, and the building might well be restored: during the year 1905 several stone coffins were found by workmen while excavating on a piece of land near this chapel. On the south side of the city and near the coast are the remains of the chapel of St. Non, the mother of St. David; it stands nearly due north and south, but is now a complete ruin, and the interior is filled with debris; it measures externally 37 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 8 inches; stone coffins and a brass of the 15th century have been found here, and built into one side is a coffin-shaped slab incised with a cross within a circle; the chapel belongs to the Dean and Chapter of St. David's; near the chapel, but in an adjoining enclosed field, is a vaulted well with a niche for votive offerings; the sites of other chapels can still be determined, two of which were on Ramsey Island, and there are several other wells or springs of traditional importance. The Chapel of Ease of St. James the Great, at CARNHEDRYN, now annexed to the vicarage of Llanhowell, is a plain building, erected in 1879-80, at a cost of £1,505; and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret containing one bell: there are sittings for 160 persons. The Baptist chapel, in New street, erected in 1842, affords 350 sittings; the Calvinistic Methodist chapel, in Goat street, rebuilt in 1875, seats 500; the Congregational chapel, in Nun street, has 600 sittings, and there is a mission room of this sect at Rhodri, with 90 sittings, and another at Treleddyfawr, with 60 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel, in Goat street, was built in 1809, and seats 250. A considerable number of interesting farm houses are scattered over the parish and neighbourhood. The Close, 1,200 yards in circumference, is extra-parochial, and was formerly inclosed by the embattled wall previously mentioned.

Bishop Morgan founded a Free Grammar school here in 1507, and also bestowed upon it a liberal endowment, which, by the Act for the Suppression of Chantries, was lost at the Reformation; it was intended by him for the education of six choristers; a small payment is now made to the National School, where the choristers at present receive their education free. About 1793 the school buildings then in use were converted into a chapter room and dining room for the annual audit of the chapter on St. James' day (July 25th), and the school transferred to the Old Chapter room.

The Town Hall, in New street, is a barn-like structure, seating about 200 persons; it has a platform at one end; in the same street is a Free Reading room.

In the centre of the city, at the junction of the principal streets, stands the High Cross, an ancient and elegant structure, 28 feet in height, the six steps of which were restored by Bishop Thirlwall in 1873; at this spot the market was formerly held, and here funerals were wont to stop.

There is a branch of Lloyds Bank Limited in Cross square, and a sub-branch of Barclays Bank Limited in Cross square, and also one of the London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited.

The hotels, all small houses, are the "City," "Grove," and "Prospect," but good private apartments can be had for long or short terms, and during the summer many visitors stay in the town.

The market, formerly held on Monday and Thursday, has long been obsolete. The fair days are the first Tuesdays in March, June, August, October (hiring), and December, but the fairs are apparently dying out.

The Coast Guard "look out" is at Brynrygarn, a short distance south-west of the city, and is connected by cable to the Smalls Lighthouse, 20 miles off the coast, and has a flagstaff for signalling to passing ships of war.

The Coast Guard station, in New street, is connected by telephone with the Smalls Lighthouse.

The Life Boat Station is in a creek at Rhossan; the boat house was enlarged, and a watch room built, in 1886, at the cost of Miss A. M. Bedford, of Pershore, Worcestershire. A boat house for a motor life boat was erected in 1910. On Carn Rhossan, a great rounded rocky eminence, is a flagstaff within an enclosure, and a coned flag for signalling.

Charities.—St. David's is one of four parishes, participating in a bequest made in 1698 by Dr. Jones, for the relief of the poor and for apprenticing; the annual sum now received by this parish averages £260, being three-sixths of the interest derived from this charity, which is distributed in sums of from 10s. to £2 10s. at Easter-tide by the vicars choral, assisted by 4 representatives chosen by the parish; the original bequest consisted of land, but the principal is now invested in Consols.

The general aspect of the country round St. David's is that of a wide plain, with a slightly undulating surface, sloping gradually from east to west, relieved only by a few blasted and withered trees, the turf or stone fences, which alone divide the fields, and various masses of trap rock protruding at intervals above the general level; two of these to the south-west, bare and precipitous, are called "Carn Rhossan" and "Clegrg Poia"; but the most remarkable are the magnificent peaks of

"Carn Llidi," 592 feet above the sea level, and "Penbery," which is said to be slightly higher; these form the terminating points of a mountainous range, stretching in a direction east-north-east of St. David's Head, along the northern shore of the promontory, and about four miles north of the city; near Penbery is Dogrow pool, a small tarn or lake, affording good wild-fowl shooting, and north-east of it Aberceiddy Bay, where there are extensive slate quarries, and at the foot of the hill rises sheer from the sea the noble precipice of Trwyn-dduallt. From Carn Llidi, which is most easily climbed on its western side, an extensive view is obtained of the whole promontory of Dewisland, bounded on the north-east by the Pencaer Hills and Strumble Head, with the Prescelli range stretching westward; on the south-east by the Plumstone mountains and on the west and south by Whitesand and St. Bride's bays, and the adjacent archipelago; at the base of Carn Llidi lies a dismounted rocking stone, and on the summit is a cromlech, the upper stone of which is 11 feet 9 inches in length and 9 feet 9 inches wide. St. David's Head is a bluff peninsular headland, about 2 miles north-west of the city and 100 feet in height, with a glorious prospect seaward, and is defended by an ancient fortification, consisting of a dyke and stone rampart called "Clawdd-y-Milwyt" (the Warrior's dyke), which extends from cliff to cliff, a distance of about 200 feet, the breadth varying from 75 to 100 feet. The ancient name of "Octopitarum" or "Octopetratum," given to this headland, was derived from the group of small islands lying off its extremity; these are eight in number, and seven of them, called "the Bishop and his Clerks," form a series of dangerous insulated rocks, on one of which the "Ninorod" steamship was wrecked 28 February, 1860, when 40 lives were lost; on the South Bishop, 144 feet above the sea-level, is a lighthouse, with a light revolving every 20 seconds. Ramsey Island, to the south, is separated from the mainland by a strait one mile in breadth; it is about two miles long by one broad, bounded on all sides by cliffs, and is terminated at either end by a precipitous hill, the higher of which rises 444 feet above the sea; at the south end of the sound is a dangerous reef, known as "the Bitches," and in the middle of it a perilous rock, called "the Horse," which is covered at high water. Margery Island lies off the southern extremity of Ramsey, and on the eastern side are two islets, known as "the Kite's Island" and "the Precentor's Island." The rocky cliffs of these islands generally are the resort of multitudes of migratory sea-birds. The famous "Meini Hirion," or "Long Stone," has disappeared, but near the farmhouse of Treenny is an ancient monolith, 7 feet long and 11 feet in circumference. On the "Burrows," near the farm of Croeswidge, is the cap-stone of a cromlech, about 9 feet by 6; a mile north-east of the village of Trevine, on the farm of Longhouse, is a magnificent cromlech, with a cap-stone over 16 feet long and of enormous thickness.

The Smalls is a collection of dangerous rocks, 20 miles south-west of Ramsey Island, on one of which is a lighthouse, with a fixed light, and connected by submarine cable with the coastguard station; the South Bishop's rock lighthouse has an occulting light. About one mile west of the cathedral is a tumulus of singular form, 64 feet long, 35 wide and 4 high, surrounded by a swamp, in the valley about Clegrg, between the farms of Hargloed and Trepwit. At Porth-y-Rhaw, a splendid valley about half-way between St. David's and Solva, opening to the sea by lofty cliffs, there is a steep peninsula, scarped on its inland side into four terraces, each with a shallow ditch; in the valley are fulling and carding mills, driven by the pent-up water of a stream running through it. At Caerfai, a small bay on the south shore, much frequented for bathing purposes, and within easy distance of St. David's, are quarries of purple stone, from which the richly decorated doorway of the great hall in the palace was constructed. Near this place are the ruins of the chapel dedicated to St. Nonita or Non, the mother of St. David, situated on the spot where, according to tradition, the saint was born; the promontory between this and the adjoining inlet of Caerbwdy is also fortified, the defences being continued on the land side for 324 feet due east, and at one point is a streeg outwork, 194 feet in length; the entire depth is about 160 feet. In the inlet of Caerbwdy is the quarry which supplied the stone of which the greater part of the cathedral was built and which was used for its restoration; it is similar to that of Caerfai, but harder and much more durable. On the right bank of the Alan river, within a quarter of a mile of St. David's and close to the Bishop's mill of Dewiston, is a remarkable camp, with a high rampart and fosse, having a total circumference of 607 feet, and a diameter of 118 feet; on the north-east is an extensive outwork, forming an imperfect parallelogram. Castell Heinif, another fortified peninsula, is on Ramsey Sound, about a quarter of a mile south of Porth Stinan. Castell Coch, Porthtrewen, is a similar entrenchment, despoiled by slate quarries. On the farm of Pwllcaerog, 4 miles north-east, is a strong encampment by the seaside. An ancient dyke, called "Ploŷ-y-Myneich" (the Monk's dyke), extends from a point on St. Bride's Bay, between Caerbwly and Porth-y-Rhaw for about a mile and a half north of St. David's, and is then continued in a scarcely traceable and irregular course north-westward to Penbery hill. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor and the principal landowners, though there are many small landowners. The soil, subsoil and geological formations generally, vary at short intervals; there are some breadths of fertile land; others are a sterile mixture of stones and clay. The chief crops are barley, oats and turnips. The area of St. David's parish is 11,212 acres of land, 34 of water and 235 of loreshore; assessable value, £5,874; the population in 1911 was 1,644. The area of the parish of the Cathedral Close of St. David's is 18 acres; assessable value, £115; the population in 1911 was 23, and the population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 1,309.

The Cathedral Close of St. David is reputed to be extra-parochial for ecclesiastical purposes.

The Small Rocks and South Bishop Rocks are extra-parochial for civil purposes, and reputed to be for ecclesiastical purposes.

ST. DOGMAELS is a parish on the south bank of the mouth of the Teifi, 1 mile west from Cardigan station on the Whitland and Cardigan section of the Great Western railway, in the county of Pembroke, hundred of Kemea, Kemea petty sessional division, Cardigan union and county court district, rural deanery of Kemea, arch-deaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's; a part of the parish is in the borough of Cardigan; there is a ferry to the north side of the river Teifi, connecting this place with Cardigan. The parish is of considerable antiquity and has been the scene of many stirring events; in 987 the Danes, who had effected a landing on the coast, plundered the village and destroyed the church; in the reign of William Rufus a decisive battle was fought here between Rhys ab Tewdor, Prince of South Wales, and the combined forces of Llewelyn and Einon, sons of Cadivor ab Collwyn, and Einon ab Collwyn, their uncle, which resulted in the defeat and repulse of the latter. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. ch. 73), the ancient civil parish of St. Dogmaels, in the counties of Cardigan and Pembroke, has been divided into two, that portion in the former county and Cardigan municipal borough called St. Dogmaels Municipal, and in the latter county St. Dogmaels Rural. The church of St. Thomas (anciently St. Dogvael), erected A.D. 424 and several times rebuilt, is an edifice of native stone, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel and nave, and has one bell, hung at the west end: the font is of very ancient date: there are three stained east windows, erected in 1855, and a memorial window to Richard David Jenkins: in the chancel are three tablets to former vicars: the church was repaired in 1855, and again about 1890, and affords 540 sittings. The register is incomplete, with some scraps written in Latin, and the unbroken record only dates from 1818. The living is a vicarage, with Llantood and Monington annexed, joint net yearly value £268, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. Davids, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Jenkin Griffith Hughes B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is also a Calvinistic Methodist chapel, two Congregational and three Baptist chapels. The inhabitants are engaged in agriculture and salmon fishing. There is also a woollen factory. Close to the church are the remains of a monastery of the Benedictine order, begun by Robert Fitz-Martin de Tours in 1126, and dedicated to St. Mary: the remains, Early English in style, consist of part of the choir, transept and refectory; the monastery with its revenue was transferred, after its dissolution, to John Bradshaw, who lies buried under the chancel, and his tombstone, now broken, bears this inscription,

"Hic jacet Johannes Bradshaw, Armiger, qui obiit ultimo Maii A.D. 1588." At the surrender of this house, there were 8 monks and revenues valued at £88. An old Roman monument, which for years served as a foot-bridge across the rivulet that intersects the village, now stands in the grounds of the monastery, where there is also a stone with an Ogham inscription. The principal landowner is the Rt. Hon. Sir Lawrence Hugh Jenkins P.C., K.C.I.E. The soil is chiefly loam and clay; subsoil, rock. The chief crops are barley, oats and wheat, with a large proportion of grazing land. The area of St. Dogmaels Municipal parish is 2,443 acres; rateable value, £3,804; the population in 1911 was 837, including 52 officers and inmates in Cardigan Poor Law Institution. The area of St. Dogmaels Rural parish is 3,844 acres; rateable value, £4,158; the population in 1911 was 1,236, and in the ecclesiastical parish 2,291.

Assistant Overseer & Clerk to the Parish Council, David Richards, Penrhynmawr.
Sexton, David George Davies.
Post, M. O. & T. Office.—William Lloyd, sub-postmaster. Letters are received through Cardigan Wall Letter Boxes.—Bridgend; Cippin; Water street & Penywhelp

ST. DONATS is a parish bordering on the Bristol Channel, and near Nash Point, and is 2 miles west of Llantwit-Major station on the Barry and Bridgend section of the Barry railway, 6 miles south-west from Cowbridge station on the Llantrisant and Abertawe branch of the Taff Vale railway, and 9 south from Bridgend, in the Pontypridd division of the county of Glamorgan, Ogmores hundred, Bridgend and Cowbridge union and county court district, Newcastle and Ogmores petty sessional division, rural deanery of Groneth Lower (western division), archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of Saint Donat, or Donatus, standing in a sequestered glen, is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel with chapel, nave, one aisle, transept, porch, and a tower containing 6 bells, presented by Godfrey H. J. Williams esq. J.P. in 1913: there are stained windows in both chancel and nave: in the church are many curious monuments, the most remarkable being those to the Stradling (originally "Esterling") family, baronets, who came into England about 1090, and were for seven centuries the owners of the ancient castle here; these monuments include a cenotaph memorial to Thomas Stradling esq. of 8 Sept. 1480, in the Dominican monastery at Cardiff, on the dissolution of which, his remains were transferred here by his grandson, Sir Thomas Stradling kt. and interred in the chancel 4 June, 1537, and subsequently were again removed in 1573 by Sir Edward Stradling kt. into the chancel chapel, built by him, and dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin; this Sir Edward Stradling, an eminent antiquary and collector of MSS. and the author of a Welsh grammar, ob. 15 May, 1609, and was buried in the same chapel, where there are also some curious paintings on panel of the 16th century, commemorating different members of the same family: the church was repaired in 1878 and affords 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1570. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £156, including 37 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Godfrey Herbert J. Williams esq. and held since 1917 by the Rev. William Foster Jones B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. St. Donat's Castle, a fine building and one of the most perfect of the Welsh castles now existing, is said to have been erected by Sir William de Esterling, one of the 12 knights who accompanied Robert FitzHamon, titular earl of Gloucester, into S. Wales, on his expedition against Prince Rhys; the fabric is chiefly Early Norman: the name "Esterling" was first modified into "Stradling" by Sir Robert Stradling, great-grandson of the original grantee, and his descendant, Sir John Stradling, kt. a learned person, and the author of "Beati Pacifici," was created a baronet 21 May, 1611, but the title became extinct on the death of Sir Thomas Stradling, 6th bart. at Montpelier 27 April, 1738, when, after a prolonged suit in Chancery, the estate of St. Donat's Castle became the property of the Tyrwhitt-Drake family, of Shardeoles, Amersham, Bucks, from whom it was purchased by the late John Whitlock Stradling-Carne esq. (d. 1899) and then by the late Morgan S. Williams esq. by whom it was thoroughly restored: it is now the property and residence of Godfrey Herbert J. Williams esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The area is 928 acres of land and 68 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,422; and the population in 1911 was 109.

ST. EDRENS is a parish in the county of Pembroke, 3½ miles south-by-west from Letterston, on the main line of the Great Western railway, about 8 miles south-west from Fishguard, and ¼ north-west from Haverfordwest, in Dewisland hundred and petty sessional division, Haverfordwest union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Dewisland, and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Edrens, Edryns, or Tederens, erected in 1847, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave, and a western tower containing one bell: two cross slabs are preserved in the chancel, bearing the inscriptions A.Ω. and I.H.S. and a Chi Rho stone bearing the letters Χ.Ρ.Σ., also a small cylindrical fragment of stone. In the churchyard there is another cross slab of Celtic origin. The register of baptisms dates from 1785, and burials from 1788; the register of marriages from 1790 to 1810 is missing. The living is a vicarage, annexed to the rectory of St. Lawrence, joint net yearly income £234, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Joshua Jones L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at St. Lawrence. There is a Baptist chapel at Blaenllyn, erected in 1842, with sittings for 250 persons. In a field north-east of the church are the remains of a cromlech. Trehale is the residence of Mrs. Thomas, who is the principal landowner. The soil is light loam; subsoil, rock and slate. The crops are barley and oats, with some land in pasture. The area comprises 952 acres; assessable value, £376; the population in 1911 was 78.

ST. FAGANS is a parish and village on the river Ely near Llandaff, with a station on the Severn Tunnel and Landore Junction section of the Great Western railway, 163 miles from London, and 4 north-west from Cardiff, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Dinas Powis hundred, Cardiff union and county court district, Llandaff petty sessional division, and in the rural deanery, archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Fagan is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower, containing 6 bells; there are sedilia in the chancel; the stained east window is a memorial to the Hon. Robert Windsor-Clive, formerly M.P. for South Shropshire, d. 4th Aug. 1859; in the nave is another to the Hon. William W. Windsor-Clive, accidentally killed on the railway at Tuxford, 24th Sept. 1857, and in the north aisle are two others, one to the Baroness Windsor, d. 9th Nov. 1869; and one erected by Lord Windsor and the Hon. Misses

Clive to Lady Mary Windsor-Clive, d. 16th June, 1873; there are also eight other stained windows; in the north aisle is a brass tablet to John Rosser, of Upper Stockland, dated 1710; the church was restored in 1860 by the late Baroness Windsor at a cost of £2,000, and affords 213 sittings. The register dates from the year 1689. The living is a rectory, with Chapel Llaniltner annexed, net income £400, with 74 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Earl of Plymouth, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Thomas Bird M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. The Calvinistic Methodist chapel here, erected in 1837, was rebuilt in 1900 at a cost of £450. The charities are of the annual value of £8 for poor widows and the education of poor children. A great battle was fought here 8 May, 1648, between the Royal forces, under Maj.-Gen. Langherne, and the Parliamentary troops, led by Col. Horton, in which the latter were victorious. Charles I. visited this place in 1643 during his stay at Ruperra Castle. St. Fagans Castle, an old mansion in a park, is the residence of the Earl of Plymouth G.B.E., P.C., C.B. and Lord Lieut. who is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots. The area is 2,775 acres; rateable value, £13,381; and the population in 1911 was 549 in the civil and 757 in the ecclesiastical parish.

SILIAN is a parish in the county of Cardigan, 2 miles north-by-west from Lampeter station, 2 south-by-west from Derry Ormond station and three-quarters of a mile from Silian Halt, on the Lampeter and Aberayron branch, all on the Great Western railway; the parish is 12 miles east-by-south from Aberayron, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Moyddin, county court district and union of Lampeter, and rural deanery of Lampeter, archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Sulien, erected in 1819 on the site of an older church, is a plain building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and a tower with short spire, containing one bell: the church was restored in 1873, and affords 140 sittings. The registraters of baptisms and marriages date from the year 1788; burials from 1873. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Llanwenen, joint net income £300, including 40 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1918 by the Rev. James Hopkins Davies L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Here is a Baptist chapel. The sum of 10s. yearly accruing from the rent of a farm is distributed amongst such poor persons in this parish as are not in receipt of parish relief, and do not keep a cow. Close to the south-east angle of the church stands an ancient ogham stone, with a now undecipherable inscription. In the church wall is a stone dated 1200. Glan-deny's is the residence of Mrs. Jones. The executors of the late William Jones are the principal landowners. The soil is light and stony. Chief crops, oats, barley and wheat; one half of the land is under pasture. The area is 2,179 acres; rateable value, £1,256; the population in 1911 was 208.

SKER, formerly extra-parochial, is a parish on the Downs and close to the Bristol Channel, 1½ miles west from Porthcawl terminal station of a branch on the Great Western railway, and about 8 west from Bridgend, in the Aberavon division of the county of Glamorgan, hundred of Newcastle, petty sessional division of Newcastle and Ogmere, Bridgend and Cowbridge union and county court district. Sker House is a fine old building, probably at one time a place of importance, and renowned as the scene of a legend called "The Maid of Sker," which has formed the subject of a tale by the well-known novelist Mr. R. D. Blackmore, published in 1872. The Rest, Porthcawl, in this parish, is a convalescent home for the working classes, supported by general subscriptions; it has an endowment fund of over £8,000, and is available for 170 men and boys; the main block was completed in 1893, and a children's wing was added in July, 1900, for 10 boys and 10 girls; the building now holds 170 convalescents, who are received in rotation by subscribers' votes: the rooms, lofty and spacious, include a large dining hall, library, an assembly hall, billiard room and skittle alley. The Rest stands on an elevated plain 60 feet above the level of the sea, and within 200 yards of the beach, facing the Bristol Channel, and at low water the sands here extend for nearly a mile and are remarkable for their level character and solidity; there are ample facilities for safe bathing, and the air here is considered bracing and invigorating: the management of The Rest is under the supervision of Miss M. H. Ruffie R.R.C. as matron: the term of each patient's stay is limited to three weeks, but if vacancies occur the visit may be extended on payment of the weekly fees. The Royal Porthcawl Golf Club have links here of 18 holes, close to the sea. Capt. Andrew Fletcher is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats, and there are extensive rabbit warrens. The area is 370 acres of land and 126 of foreshore; rateable value, £181; the population in 1911 was 54, inclusive of 38 inmates and 9 officials in the South Wales Convalescent Home (The Rest).

This parish is reputed to be extra-parochial for ecclesiastical purposes.

fordwest, and in the rural deanery of Dungleddy and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Mary, formerly attached to the commandery of St. John of Jerusalem at Slebech, is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, and a western belfry with two bells: a sanctus bell hangs above the chancel arch: the font is Norman: the east window and four windows in the chancel and one on the south side of the nave are stained, and there are two hagioscopes: the church was repaired in 1850, and again in 1897, and has 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1783. In the porch is an ogham stone, and from it the antiquarians conclude there was a church there in the 3rd century. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £190, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Walter Henry Alfred Walters M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, who is also rector and resides at Trefgarne. There are Baptist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. In the parish is a small flannel manufactory. Mrs. Higgon, who is lady of the manor, John Lewis, William George and Thomas Picton Llewellyn esqrs. and Messrs. Walter and Thomas Davies are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and shaly, with rab. Chief crops, oats and barley. The area is 2,803 acres; assessable value, £1,519; the population in 1911 was 332.

SPLOTLANDS, see Cardiff.

STACKPOLE ELIDOR, or Cheriton, is a parish on the shore of the Bristol Channel, in the county of Pembrokeshire, 4 miles south from Pembrok station on the Pembrokeshire and Tenby branch of the Great Western railway, in Castlemartin hundred and petty sessional division, Pembrokeshire, Pembrokeshire Dock county court district, and in the rural deanery of Castlemartin and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The church of St. Elidor and St. James is an ancient cruciform edifice of stone, chiefly in the Early English style, with some portions of very Early Norman or possibly pre-Norman date, and consists of chancel, with south or Lort chapel, transepts, nave, south porch and a plain tower on the south side, containing 3 bells: in the north wall of the chancel, under a Decorated arch is a singularly perfect recumbent effigy of a knight in mail armour, and on the opposite side a recumbent female effigy: in the chancel chapel are two other effigies, the character of which is somewhat doubtful, and also a fine cenotaph, with recumbent effigy in peer's robes, to John Frederick, 1st Earl Cawdor, of Castlemartin, d. 7 Nov. 1860: here also is a monument to the Hon. Ronald George Elidor Campbell, Captain and Adjutant 1st batt. Coldstream Guards, killed on the Slobani mountain, during the Zulw war, 28 March, 1879: the stained east window is a memorial to the late Countess Cawdor, d. 21 April, 1831; and there are two others to members of the same family. The church was restored in 1855, under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott Kt., R.A. and at the expense of the first Earl Cawdor, and was further renovated in 1894: there are 200 sittings. The lych gate is a memorial to John Frederick, 2nd Earl Cawdor, d. 29 March, 1898. The registers date generally from 1624, but there are some entries as early as 1640. The living is a rectory and vicarage, annexed to the rectory of St. Petros, joint net income £220, with 45 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, and held since 1913 by the Rev. Edward Thomas Roderick M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. There are four almshouses, erected by the 2nd Earl Cawdor as a memorial to his mother, Elizabeth Countess Cawdor, who died 16 Feb. 1866. Stackpole Court, the seat of Countess Cawdor, is in the parish of St. Petros (which see), but a great part of the extensive park is in this parish. The trustees of Earl Cawdor, who is a minor, are lords of the manor and the principal landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, red sandstone and limestone. The chief crops are oats, barley, roots and some portion is under pasturage. The area comprises 2,965 acres of land and 28 of water; rateable value, £2,309; the population in the civil parish in 1911 was 231 and in the ecclesiastical parish 335.

STEYNTON is a very extensive parish, in the county of Pembrokeshire, 1 mile north from Milford Haven, on the main road from Milford to Haverfordwest, in the hundred and petty sessional division of Roose, union and county court district of Haverfordwest, rural deanery of Roose and archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. The parish church of St. Cewydd or St. Peter, at Steynton, remained in a very dilapidated state until 1883, when, with the exception of the tower, it was almost wholly rebuilt at a cost of £1,825, and was re-opened 19 July,

1883; it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: in the chancel is a memorial window to Dr. Byers, of this parish: there is also a stained glass window, given by the Rev. E. Humphrey Jones, vicar 1885-95, in memory of his wife: during the restoration of the church the foundation of a smaller church was discovered, probably of a very early period, and within these foundations, at about five feet from the surface, were found two large monoliths, which have been removed into the church: the eagle lectern was the gift of Lieut.-Commander W. E. Kelway R.N.R. in memory of his parents. The church plate includes a chalice, dated 1624, and bearing the names of Marcus Allen and John Bolton, then churchwardens: there are 500 sittings. In the churchyard is an ancient tombstone, discovered about 1830, three feet below the surface, and supposed from the carvings upon it, to date from the 4th century. The register dates from the year 1637. The living is a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Johnston, joint net yearly value £265, with 10 acres of glebe here and 18 acres at Johnston, and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1913 by the Rev. Augustine Rhun Price M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. There is a Congregational chapel at Tier's Cross, erected in 1815, with sittings for 200 persons. Attached to Steynton is a charity of £30 yearly, for the support of a free school for 50 poor children. St. Botolphs is the residence of Maj. A. V. W. Stokes J.P. The soil is loam; subsoil, red sandstone. The land is chiefly in pasture, with some barley, oats and roots. The area is 6,294 acres; assessable value, £4,897; the population in 1911 was 1,338.

SULLY is a parish including Barry Island and part of Barry Dock, stretching along the shore of the Bristol Channel with a station on the Taff Vale railway, on a branch line from Cardiff to Cadoxton via Penarth, 13 miles south-east from Cadoxton, 3 1/2 south-west from Penarth, 7 south-west from Cardiff and 171 from London, in the Llandaff and Barry division of the county of Glamorgan, Dinas Powis hundred and petty sessional division, Cardiff union and county court district, rural deanery of Penarth, and archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff. Sully Island lies to the south of the parish, on the Bristol Channel, and exhibits remains of a camp. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a machicolated western tower containing 5 bells: the lower stage of the tower forms a porch, with entrance on south side: the chancel retains a piscina and there is an elaborately carved modern font: the church affords 100 sittings, all of which are free. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1750; marriages, 1754. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £208, with 27 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Viscount Wimborne P.C. and held since 1898 by the Rev. John Williams L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There are remains of an ancient castle near the church. Viscount Wimborne P.C. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is red marl; subsoil, limestone. The crops are wheat, but the land is principally in pasture. The area is 1,012 acres of land and 217 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,456; the population in the civil in 1911 was 314, and in the ecclesiastical parish 3,075.

SWANSEA.

WITH ST. THOMAS, MORRISTON, CLASE, LANDORE, BRYNHFRYD, CWMBWRLA, CWMRHVDYCEIRW MANSLETON, PENTRE ESTYLL, PONTLASSIE, TIRDEUNAU, YNYSFORGAN, TREBOETH, PLAS MARL, PORT TENNANT, SKETTY, DUNVANT, FOREST FACH, KILLAY, WAUNARLWYDD, BRYNAU, COCKETT, LLANSAMLET AND OYSTERMOUTH,

SWANSEA (i.e. Sweyn's-œa) is a seaport, parliamentary, municipal and county borough, market and union town, head of a petty sessional division and county court district, the county town of Glamorganshire, Swansea hundred, rural deanery of East Gower, archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's, and the assizes for the county of Glamorgan are held here alternately with Cardiff, 20½ miles by road from London, 216 miles from London by Great Western railway via Gloucester, and 20½ from London by Great Western railway via Severn tunnel; distance from Bristol 83½ miles, 45½ west from Cardiff, Cardigan 73, Carmarthen 32½, Haverfordwest 62½, Milford 71½, Neath 73, Pembroke 73, Pembroke Dock 72½, Pontypridd 38, Gloucester 102½, Falmouth 227½, Exeter 158, Glasgow 342, Hull 266, Liverpool 156, Newport 57½, Penzance 291, Plymouth 211, and Portsmouth 170. The London and North Western and Midland railways have stations here. On 9 May, 1881, a line was opened by the Great Western from Swansea to Morriston, 2 miles, called the Morriston branch, with stations at Landore Low Level, Plas Marl and Morriston. The London and North Western approaches the town via Pontardulais and Mumbles road and there is a line to Oystermouth and the Mumbles. The Midland reaches the town from Brecon through the Swansea valley. The Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway (incorporated by Act 45 and 46 Vict. cap. 201) provides access via Briton Ferry, Aberavon and the Avon Valley, to the Rhondda Valley, and in conjunction with the Taff Vale railway and Pontypridd, Caerphilly and Newport railway, to Cardiff and Newport respectively. The last section of this railway, viz. the line between Aberavon, Neath and Swansea, was opened for passenger traffic 14 March, 1895. At Cymmer, a connection is formed with the Llynvi and Ogmore branch of the Great Western railway, and at Treherbert the line joins the Taff Vale system.

The Swansea Canal runs through Landore, Morriston, Ynyspenlwh and Ynysymedw, into Breconshire, to a place called Hen Noyadd, an extent of 16 miles and an elevation of 372 feet; there are 36 locks, 1 four-arch and 6 one-arch aqueducts on the line of canal; there is also a canal from Port Tennant to Neath. The Port Tennant Canal extends from the Prince of Wales dock to Aberdylais, where it joins the Neath canal.

The original name of the town was Caer Wyr (i.e. the fortress of Gowerland), but the usual Welsh name is Abertawe, from "Aber," a confluence of waters, and the river Tawe or Tawy, on the west side of which the town is built: it is pleasantly situated on the margin of a beautiful bay, on an angle between two lofty hills on the right bank of the river. The town being protected by these hills from the north-east and north-west winds, and freely receiving the genial winds of the south, is healthy and agreeable. The port of Swansea is very favourably situated, the harbour being accessible to any vessel that may arrive in the bay, when the wind is blowing too strong for pilots to get off.

Swansea Bay is by nature very beautiful, with fine wooded hills rising behind it north and west, and receives the small river Tawe, upon which the town is built: at the Mumbles, on the west of the bay, is a lighthouse, and here also are oyster beds which have considerably improved in recent years. A few miles east, at Briton Ferry, is the outlet of the Neath river, the valley of which, by its coal and iron mines, supports a large industrial population.

The town was frequently taken and retaken during the Parliamentary wars of the 17th century, and in 1648 Oliver Cromwell remained here some time.

The town is well paved, the streets being wider and more convenient than is the case in the majority of Welsh towns; it is well lighted with gas by a company, incorporated in 1830, and reincorporated in 1861 and 1888.

Swansea is provided with a plentiful supply of pure water, collected from moorland catchment areas of high altitude, situate at Cray in the county of Brecknock, and upon the Lliw and Blaenant Ddu streams near Velindre in the county of Glamorgan. The works consist of impounding reservoirs with a total capacity of over 1,500 million gallons, from which water is conveyed to Swansea, where it is delivered by the trunk mains into a number of service reservoirs of over 10 million gallons total capacity, well spaced over the borough and situate at suitable altitudes for ensuring an adequate supply of water to every portion of the area supplied.

As a result of the recent borough extension under Local Government Board Provisional Confirmation Order No. 6, August, 1918, Swansea is the fifth largest county borough in the country in area, having an acreage of 24,993 acres and a population of 165,000; it is the port for the only anthracite coalfield in the United Kingdom; it is in the western division of the South Wales coal basin, and is the chief port of shipment in this division.

The Corporation own their own electricity undertaking, erected in the Strand in 1900, and there is an extensive system of tramways.

It has two Parliamentary divisions, divided into Swansea East and Swansea West.

Swansea is called a borough by prescription, in consequence of the supposed loss of the original charter granted by King John, which however still exists among the public records; it is now governed by a corporation consisting of a mayor, 15 aldermen, and 44 councillors; the borough is divided into 18 wards, respectively named:—Alexandra, Brynmelyn, Castle Clase, Cockett, Ffynone, Kilvey, Landore, Llansamlet, Morriston, Oystermouth and Brynau, Penderry, Sketty, St. Helens, St. Johns, St. Thomas, Victoria and Waunarlwydd, and the corporation act as Port Sanitary Authority. By order of Local Government Board, March 1, 1900, the respective parishes forming the borough were amalgamated and constituted the civil parish of Swansea. The borough has a commission of the peace.

In 1890 the Bishop of St. David's appointed as a bishop suffragan the Rev. John Lloyd D.D. rural dean of Brecon 3rd port and rector of Cantreff with Nantddo, who, under 108 Act, takes his title from the town of Swansea. The present bishop is the Rt. Rev. and Ven. Edward Latham Bevan M.A., D.D.

Since 1893 the town has afforded the title of baron to the Vivian family of Singleton.

The parish church of St. Mary, the nave of which was rebuilt in 1740, after its collapse in the previous year, has again been rebuilt, and now consists of chancel, nave, aisles, western porch and a lofty embattled tower on the south-east, 85 feet in height, and containing a clock and 3 bells: the work was begun in 1895, and the new church, consecrated in 1895, is an edifice in the Early English style: the clock was presented in 1899 by the late Mr. E. Leigh Morgan, and the bells include a large tenor bell, presented at a cost of one hundred guineas, by Sir J. T. Dillwyn Llewelyn bart.: the total cost of rebuilding was nearly £28,000: the ancient monuments have been preserved, and include brasses to Sir Hugh Jones, ob. 1441; the Herbert chapel (formerly the chapel of St. Ann) has also been rebuilt, and contains an ancient and interesting altar-tomb with effigies to Sir Matthew Cradock and the Lady Catherine (Gordon), his wife, daughter of George, 2nd Earl of Hontly and widow of the famous Perkin Warbeck, whom she married under the auspices of James IV. of Scotland in 1496: in the same chapel is an altar-tomb of black and white marble to Philip Hoby esq. of Neath Abbey. The church now affords 1,500 sittings. The registers date from the year 1631. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £500, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1919 by the Rev. Harrington Clare Lees M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge.

St. Barnabas Church Hall, Hawthorne avenue, Sketty road, in connection with St. Mary's church, was opened in 1914, and will seat 350 persons.

St. James' church, in the Walters road, a chapel of ease to St. Mary's, is a modern building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts and south porch: two memorial windows were erected in 1801 to the late John Crow Richardson esq. of Pantygwydir, d. 1884, and to Miss David. The register dates from the year 1867. The Rev. Robert Carnegie Knox M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford, has been curate in charge since 1918.

St. Jude's, in Terrace road, a conventional district formed April 1st, 1918, from the parish of St. Mary, affords 550 sittings. The Rev. Watkin Davies L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, is curate in charge.

St. Nicholas, in Gloucester place, also a chapel of ease to St. Mary's, is a building of stone, consisting of nave with apse, and is used as a place of worship for seamen; it will seat 300; the Rev. Joseph Arthur Bishop R.N. chaplain; Mr. James G. Rees, licensed lay reader.

Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 10 February, 1874: the church, in Oystermouth road, is an edifice of stone, in the Early Gothic style, erected in 1872, at a cost of £2,500, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, lady chapel, east and west porches, vestries, and a turret containing 2 bells: the church was enlarged in 1883 at a cost of £586, and again enlarged and restored in 1913 at a cost of £3,000: the stained east window, erected in 1879, is a memorial to the late J. W. Clarke esq. founder of the church: that at the west end was erected in 1897, to the Rev. Eli Clarke, vicar 1874-96: the organ, built in 1875, at a cost of £400, was the gift of F. E. Williams esq. The register dates from the year 1872: there are 810 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200 with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Swansea, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Canon John Hugh Watkins Jones M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford, chaplain of H.M. prison, and surrogate, and canon of St. David's.

St. Faith's, in St. Helen's road, erected in 1891, at a cost of £1,800, including site, and enlarged in 1902, at a cost of £625, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, with 380 sittings, served by clergy of Christ Church.

Christ Church School Room, Rodney street, is licensed for public worship.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 26 Oct. 1843. The church, at the top of Belle Vue street, is a modern building of Welsh sandstone, in the Perpendicular style, and comprises chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, and a tower at the south-west angle, with spire and containing one bell: a memorial stained glass window to the late Augustus J. Schenk, churchwarden (1878-94), has recently been erected: the church was restored in the years 1880, 1884 and 1889, at a total cost of £3,970, and affords 850 sittings, all of which are free. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1915 by the Rev. Edmund Daniel Henry, of St. David's College, Lampeter.

St. Catherine's Mission Church, in connection with Holy Trinity, erected in 1883, at a cost of £970, has 300 sittings.

St. Gabriel's is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1889. The church, in Bryn road, erected in 1889, at a cost of £6,237, is an edifice of stone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, south porch and a turret containing one bell: the handsome flight of steps leading to the south porch was the gift of Col. and Capt. Morgan, who also presented the site on which the church is erected: there are 560 sittings. The register dates from the year 1889. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £200, in the gift of the vicar of Swansea, and held since 1911 by the Rev. Maurice Henry Llewelyn Williams M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford.

St. Augustine's, in Park terrace, Brynmill, built in 1905, as a chapel of ease to St. Gabriel's, at a cost of £2,500, is an edifice of red brick with stone dressings, and will seat 400 persons.

St. Matthew's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1886. The church, High street, rebuilt in 1824, and completely restored in 1886, at a cost of £3,306, affords 530 sittings: the services are in Welsh. The register dates from 1887. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £252, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1913 by the Rev. Thomas Charles Evans.

St. George's church, Swan street, licensed for Divine service, will seat 300. The services are conducted by the Rev. Thomas Charles Evans, vicar of St. Matthew's.

St. Mark's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1888 from the parish of Swansea. The church, in Lion street and Park terrace, erected in 1887, at a cost of £2,298, is a plain edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a turret containing one bell: a new organ was provided in 1896 at a cost of £350: there are 514 sittings. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1918 by the Rev. William James Edwards Jones B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

St. Martin's Mission Church, in Byron crescent, built in 1912 at a cost of £650, will seat 300. The services are conducted by the clergy of St. Mark's.

St. Thomas's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1888 from that of Swansea. The church, in Lewis street, is an edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, west porch, and a tower on the north side with spire and containing a clock and one bell, besides 11 tubular bells: the nave of five bays was built in 1887, at a cost of £4,792; and the chancel in 1890 as a memorial to Pascoe St. Leger Grenfell, d. 1882, at a cost of £5,038, and a three light stained glass window to the late Miss Grenfell, of Maesteg house, was erected in 1894: there are 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £300, and residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1888 by the Rev. William Evans, of St. Aidans, and surrogate.

St. John the Baptist, St. John-juxta-Swansea, HAFOD, erected in 1870-80, at a cost of £6,500, in place of the former church in High street, now called "St. Matthew's," is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel and nave, and has one bell: there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1813. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £284, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1918 by the Rev. Nathaniel Lewis James M.A. of Keble College, Oxford.

St. Michael's, MANSELTON, a chapel of ease to St. John-juxta-Swansea, erected in 1905, at a cost of £6,000, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, crypt and south aisle: there are 700 sittings. The Rev. William John Thomas M.A., LL.B. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, has been curate in charge since 1916.

KILVEY is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 4 May, 1881, from Swansea and Llansamlet. The church of All Saints, formerly a chapel of ease to Llansamlet, is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, west and south porches and a turret containing one bell: there are five stained windows: the church was restored in 1883, at a cost of £960, and affords 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £180, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and held since 1914 by the Rev. David Canon Rees LL.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

At PENTRECHWYTH is a mission church in connection with All Saints' church.

The town of Swansea is within the Catholic diocese of Newport.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. David, in St. David's place, Rutland street, erected in 1847 and enlarged in 1864, when the nave was lengthened about 30 feet, is a building of stone, in the Early English style: it consists of chancel, nave and aisles: in 1804 the church was thoroughly renovated, and again in 1907, a lady chapel added, and the interior re-arranged: in 1916 a stained window was inserted in the sanctuary, the altar re-decorated and electric light installed, in memory of the late Canon Gwydir, who lost his life whilst acting as naval chaplain in the wreck of the hospital ship "Rohilla" off Whitby in 1914: there are now sittings for 650 persons. At DANYGRAIG is a chapel of ease. St. Joseph's Catholic church, at Brynmelin, erected in 1888, is served by Benedictine fathers. The old church, built about 1870, is now used as a parish hall: there is a convent of Ursuline sisters, who teach in the girls' and infants' schools. At FFYNONE is the Ursuline Convent of St. Winefride, conducted by the Nuns as an English and French boarding school for young ladies. The Presbyterian church, in St. Helen's road, erected in 1865, from designs by Mr. John Dickson, is a building of Welsh sandstone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Decorated style: there are sittings for 1,200. The Unitarian church, High street, is a building of stone, in the Tudor style, erected in 1699, consisting of nave and aisles, and has sittings for 300. The Jewish Synagogue, Goat street, a stone building, erected in 1864, will seat 300. St. Paul's Congregational chapel, in St. Helen's road, erected in 1905, at a total cost of £4,000, is a building of local stone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, and affords 600 sittings. The Society of Friends have a meeting house in High street, erected in 1899, and there are numerous other places of worship, for which see page 850.

The cemetery, at Dan-y-graig, was formed in 1857, and has cost, including the erection of two mortuary chapels, £15,031; it contains 16 acres, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 60 members; there is also one of 18 acres at Cwmgelly, formed in 1895, including the mortuary chapel, cost £5,700, and one at Morrision, formed in 1913, consisting of 22 acres and a mortuary chapel, which cost £7,000.

The Guildhall, in Somerset place, erected in 1846, from the designs of Thomas Taylor esq. of London, is a building of stone in the Classic style, with porticoes of the Corinthian order, and a balustraded parapet and window balconies: a vestibule, about 60 feet in length and 20 feet in breadth, forms the approach to the two law courts and the council chamber: in the exterior court is a bronze statue to the late John Henry Vivian esq. a former parliamentary representative of the borough (1833-52) and also two cannon, presented to the corporation by the government as trophies of the Crimean war.

The municipal insignia include four maces, a mayor's chain, and borough seals. The older maces are of silver, 16½ inches long, and form a pair, the shafts are plain, with a central band, and the heads semi-globular, and surrounded with a cresting of fleurs-de-lis: the grips bear the date 1615, in which year the more ancient maces were exchanged in part payment for these: the later maces, dating from 1754, and also of silver, are 2 feet 10 inches long, with baluster shafts, and heads surmounted by arched crowns rising from circlets, and bearing the town arms, those of the Duke of Beaufort, and figures of Neptune and Britannia: the mayor's chain is of gold, and was presented in 1875 by Frank Ash Yeo esq.: the pendant badge reproduces the early borough seal, which is circular, and 2½ inches in diameter: it exhibits an embattled gateway, with portcullis, flanked by two round towers, on each of which is a banner with the arms of Braose: in chief is a shield charged with an osprey, holding a fish in its beak: round the margin is a legend in black letter: the date of the seal is about 1400, and there are two later seals.

The central police building, in Alexandra road, erected in 1915, is of red brick faced with freestone, and consists of a police court, offices for the chief constable, deputy chief constable, clerks and detectives, also store rooms, and, on the ground floor, charge and detention rooms, inspector's office and 20 cells. The chief fire station adjoins.

The Incorporated Swansea Exchange (Royal Jubilee Metal Exchange), was founded in 1887: the present building, in Fisher street, erected in 1897 and added to in 1913-14, at a cost of over £10,000, is a structure of red brick, with Bath stone facings, and comprises suites of offices, occupied by various firms, with the Exchange in the rear; there are nearly 550 members, including the leading metal interests and tinsplate manufacturers in Wales, and many of the tinsplate and metal merchants of the country generally.

Deckers' Hall, High street, erected in 1913, at a cost of £28,000, consists of a large hall, used as a cinema, to seat 1,200 persons, three meeting rooms, to seat 400 and 250 persons each respectively, smaller rooms to accommodate 30 to 50 persons, and the offices of the Union.

His Majesty's Prison, in Oystermouth road, was erected in 1856-8.

The Royal Theatre, in Wind street, originally used as a circus, is now a picture theatre; it will seat 3,000.

The Grand Theatre, Singleton street, was erected in 1897, on the site of the Prince of Wales's Hall, at a cost exceeding £20,000; the stage has a width of 68 feet and a depth of 30 feet, and the theatre will hold about 2,500 persons.

The Empire Music Hall, in Oxford street, erected in 1901, at a cost of about £30,000, is of red brick with Bath stone dressings, and will hold 2,000 persons.

The Royal Institution of South Wales, founded in 1835, and incorporated in 1883, occupies a handsome edifice of the Ionic order, near the L. and N. W. Railway terminus, containing on the ground floor excellent libraries and a reading room, a lecture theatre, seating 300 persons, and an art gallery, added in 1902: the spacious rooms on the floor above contain a museum for objects illustrating the sciences of geology, mineralogy, zoology, comparative anatomy, entomology, and botany, local and general history and antiquities, manufactures and mechanical art. Here are preserved autograph letters of Henry VII. and Henry VIII. and the "Original Contract of Alliance between Edward, the first Prince of Wales, son of Edward I. of England, and Madame Isabel, daughter of Philip IV. of France, dated at Paris, 28th May, 1303." The libraries of the institution contain upwards of 30,000 volumes, including many rare works relating to Wales and the Welsh. Free lectures are given in the theatre on Monday and Friday evenings in the winter, and it is also used for the lectures delivered in connection with the Cambridge University extension movement: members are entitled to the use of books from the institution library and from Messrs. W. H. Smith and Son's circulating library. An interesting and valuable series of engravings and water-colour pictures of the ancient mansions, public buildings, public men and works, and scenery in Swansea and the neighbourhood, collected by the late Grant Francis esq. F.S.A. of Caer Bailey, Swansea, and presented to the institute by his son, John Richardson Francis esq. J.P. is now on view in the art gallery. The Swansea Scientific Society, established in 1877, the Swansea Art Society, and the Swansea Field Naturalists Society held their meetings and exhibitions here by permission of the council.

The Public Library, Art Gallery and Schools of Art and Crafts, in the Alexandra road, were erected in 1886-7, from the designs of Mr. Henry Holtom, of Dawsbury, at a cost of about £20,000, and formally opened in June, 1887, by the late Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone M.P. The building is Italian in style and four stories in height, the front being relieved by a central tower 100 feet high and projecting bays at either end and finished with pavilion roofs. The extreme length is 160 feet, and depth to back of circular reading room 91 feet. The ground floor is devoted solely to the purposes of a public library. The news room is 61 by 22 feet: there is a ladies' room, and adjoining are the librarian's and committee rooms. At the rear is the reference library and reading room, which is circular in shape and 56 feet in diameter. On either side of the circular room are a lending library and a gallery for exhibiting a collection of views and portraits of local celebrities. The several rooms provide storage for about 75,000 volumes. The second floor, occupied by the science and art departments, is provided with casts, models and apparatus for teaching those subjects. The third floor is arranged as an art and picture gallery. The reference library contains about 42,000 volumes, including a large collection of books in the Welsh language, amongst which are the first published Welsh grammar, the Book of Common Prayer and New Testament, printed in 1567; Bishop Morgan's translation of the Bible, 1588, and the corrected or new version by Bishop Paery, 1620, besides 30 other editions of the Bible in Welsh dating from 1677 to 1867, forming a collection almost unique. The library and art gallery are indebted to Mr. J. Deffett Francis, a native of Swansea, for a collection of 7,500 volumes, and over 2,500 rare engravings, drawings, water colours, wood-cuts, lithographs and etchings during the years 1876-91. There are branch libraries and reading-rooms at Morrision, Treboeth, Dunvant, St. Thomas, Wannariwydd and Forest Fach. William John Salter and D. Rhys, joint librarians.

The Welsh Congregational chapel, erected in 1860, has 500 sittings; the English Baptist chapel, erected in 1875, and since renovated, has 250 sittings; and the Welsh Baptist chapel, built in 1859, and rebuilt in 1872, will seat 650.

LLANSAMLET, formerly a parish in the Western division of the county of Glamorgan, is now, by Local Government Board Provisional Confirmation Order, No. 6, dated 8th August, 1918, included in the county borough of Swansea. Llansamlet Higher is a village 4 miles north from Swansea and 4 west from Neath, with a station on the Pontypool Road and Swansea section of the Great Western railway, and the Midland railway has stations at Morrision and Glais. The river Tawe flows through the village into the sea at Swansea and the Crymlyn brook separates this parish from Cadoxton-juxta-Neath. Owing to the fumes from the copper and tinsplate works here, and the presence of various collieries, the aspect of this place and its locality is desolate in the extreme, hardly a sign of vegetation appearing far round. The church of St. Samlet, erected in 1880 at a cost of £5,000, on a site north of that occupied by the old church, is a building of dark local stone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower containing a clock and one bell, erected in 1915 at a cost of about £3,000. The living is a vicarage, net income £440, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of St. David's, and at present (1919) vacant). There are chapels for the Welsh Calvinistic Methodists, Congregationalists and Baptists. The charities are of £11 13s. 4d. yearly value. This amount is distributed to the poor. There are tinsplate works, spelter works and collieries in this parish. Gwerllwynwith House is the residence of William Griffiths esq. The principal landowners are the Earl of Jersey, the Duke of Beaufort, who is lord of the manor, the Hon. Alexander Frederick Gregory J.P. and J. F. Callan esq. The soil is clay; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 8,772.

LLANSAMLET LOWER has a station called "Upper Bank" on the Midland railway, 2 miles from Swansea and 6½ miles from Neath; it is in the Swansea petty sessions division. In 1894 the township was divided into two, called Llansamlet Lower and Llansamlet Lower Urban. By an Order of the Local Government Board, dated March 1, 1900, the Urban township was amalgamated with the newly-formed civil parish of Swansea, and by further Order, dated 28th March, 1905, the Rural township was amalgamated with Llansamlet Higher into the parish of Llansamlet, and is now within the county borough of Swansea. The Elementary schoolroom at Pentrechwyth is licensed for divine service, and is under the charge of the vicar of All Saints, Kilvey. There are Welsh Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels. The Duke of Beaufort is lord of the manor and the Earl of Jersey the principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, coal strata.

Bonymaen, Cwm and Pentrechwyth are hamlets in this district. The church of St. Margaret, Bonymaen, is a chapel of ease to St. Samlet, erected 1912-13, at a cost of about £800, and has 280 sittings.

BIRCHGROVE, a small village in this parish, is about 1 mile east. The church of St. John, a chapel of ease to St. Samlet, erected in 1890-1 at a cost of £1,700, is a stone building with Bath stone dressings in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch and western tower containing one bell. There are Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational and Welsh Apostolic chapels.

Llonlas, 1 mile south-east; Trallwn, 1 mile south; and Bethel, half a mile south, are small villages and hamlets.

GLAIS is a village with a station on the Swansea and Hereford branch of the Midland railway, one mile east from Clydach, in the civil parish of Llansamlet. The church of St. Paul, a chapel of ease to Llansamlet, erected in 1881, at a cost of £900, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western bell cote containing 1 bell; there are sittings for 200 persons. Here are also Baptist and Congregational chapels.

OYSTERMOUTH, formerly a parish, consisting of the seaside village of Oystermouth (or The Mumbles) together with the hamlets of Norton and Newton, by Local Government Board Provisional Confirmation Order No. 6, dated August 8th, 1918, is now, with Brynau, incorporated in the county borough of Swansea, under the title of Oystermouth and Brynau, and has a station at Black Pill on the London and North Western railway; the village itself is reached from Swansea by the steam tramway of the Swansea and Mumbles Railway Company; it is 4 miles south-west of Swansea; the naturally beautiful bay and the magnificent views which the exposed promontory commands cause it to be much frequented by visitors during the summer months: the pretty bays of Caswell and Langland each possess a good reach of sands, which induces many to use these bays for bathing, though the latter is rather dangerous during rough weather to strangers, owing to the existence of under currents. Oystermouth was the capital of the province of Gower long before Swansea became an important town. The church of All Saints is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, north porch and a low embattled western tower, containing 3 bells, which belonged to St. Iago's before the burning of that church; in the south aisle are some fragments of Roman tessellated pavement found near the spot in 1860; there are eleven stained windows, one of which is a memorial to four members of the lifeboat crew who were drowned whilst on duty in 1883: the square font bears the date 1251: the chancel retains a piscina: there are sittings for 750. The register dates from the year 1719. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £34, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. D. S. Jones M.A. of Newton, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Harold Stepany Williams L.Th. of Durham University.

St. Peter's chapel of ease, built in 1902-3 at a cost of £7,000, is an edifice of stone in the Decorated style: the chancel is a memorial to Miss Frances Ridley Havergal: there are 600 sittings.

The Catholic church of Our Lady Star of the Sea, was opened in July, 1919, and is served by the priests of St. David's.

There is a Baptist chapel at Castleton, erected in 1910 at a cost of £2,350, to seat 350 persons.

A cemetery occupying about 10 acres was inclosed under Colt's hill in 1882; it has a mortuary chapel and the grounds, which are prettily situated, are well laid out.

At Mumbles Head is a lighthouse, erected in 1794 and maintained by the Swansea Harbour Trust, and close to the lighthouse is Lloyd's Signal and Telegraph Station.

There is also a coastguard station, in charge of a divisional officer and 6 men and a ship's telegraph station.

A pier, erected by the Mumbles Railway Co. at a cost of £12,000, was opened in 1898.

The roadstead here is commodious, with shelter for small coasting vessels behind the promontory and the two little rocky islands, which are accessible by wading from the mainland at low tide. Outside the headland, over a shoal, reef, or sandbank, called "The Mixon," the sea at flood runs very high and with great violence in rough weather, making it a dangerous place for shipping.

Near here is a lifeboat station of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, which is supported by voluntary contributions.

Langland Bay is to the west of the Mumbles; the sands at this point are fine, clean and hard, and afford good sea bathing.

Oystermouth Castle, opposite the Mumbles, and the property of the Duke of Beaufort, is nobly situated on an eminence overlooking the bay, and sheltered by the rugged limestone cliff: the general plan of the fortress, which is quite distinguishable, was polygonal, and it had lofty ramparts, but no bastions or flanking towers, except at the chief entrance, on the south-west side, which still has a wide portcullis gate defended by advanced towers. The great hall and the chapel, with their traceried Gothic windows, are in a tolerably perfect condition. It was probably more a feudal mansion, or military governor's residence, than a fort destined to experience the actual shock and brunt of warfare: the earlier fortress dated from the 12th century, but the existing remains belong to the reigns of Edward I. and II.

The principal landowners are the Duke of Beaufort, who is lord of the manor, and Lady Lyons. There are several smaller landowners.

Parish Clerk, William George Harris, Cemetery.

BRYNAU, formerly a civil parish, formed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," out of the rural part of Oystermouth ancient civil parish, and including Blackpill, is now, under Local Government Board Provisional Confirmation Order, No. 6, August, 1918, incorporated in the county borough of Swansea, under the title of Oystermouth and Brynau. A fine Roman bridge spans the stream in Blackpill, at which place is a station on the London and North Western railway. Clyne Park is the seat of Miss Dulcie C. Vivian.

COPLEY is a small adjoining hamlet on the main road to Bishopston.

PENDERRY, on the Swansea and Llandilo road, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles east from Gorseinon station on the London and North Western railway, by Local Government Board Provisional Confirmation Order, No. 6, dated August 8th, 1918, is now partly within the county borough of Swansea and partly in the parish of Llangyfelach, and by an Order of the Local Government Board (No. 6) Act, dated 8th August, 1918, the parish was divided between Llangyfelach and the county borough of Swansea. There are Congregational, Baptist and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. Penllergaer is the seat of Sir John Talbot Dillwyn-Llewelyn bart. D.L., J.P. who is the principal landowner. The Duke of Beaufort is lord of the manor. The soil is loam and gravel; subsoil, clay and peat. The chief crops are corn, oats, barley and wheat.

Sexton, Harry Hallett.

Letters are received through Swansea, Morriston, Gorseinon, Ponderdulais & Landore. Gorseinon, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office.

THE PORT OF SWANSEA.

Swansea is the most westerly port in the Bristol Channel, and being advantageously situated near the open sea, it has risen very rapidly in maritime importance; the harbour, docks and railways surrounding them are controlled by the Swansea Harbour Trust, of whom five trustees are "ex-officio," representing landed interests. Twelve proprietary trustees, possessed of a certain qualification within four miles of the harbour, are chosen by the payers of tonnage rates on shipping and rates on goods, and are elected for periods of six years in batches of four every two years, the remaining nine trustees being elected by the Corporation of Swansea annually, out of their own body. There is no record to show when the harbour was first governed by trustees, but the first Harbour Act, passed in the reign of George III. 1791, makes reference to the "Old Swansea Harbour Trustees," as a then existing body. The port is of old date and must have been of very considerable importance, for, in the year 1768, the number of vessels cleared from the port was 694 and the tonnage 30,631; and from a book in the possession of H.M. Customs, dated 1709, the limits of the port of Swansea extended from Oxwich, in the peninsula of Gower, on the west, to Chepstow in the east, Chepstow, Newport and Cardiff being then suburbs under Swansea. Under the "Customs Act, 1846" (9 & 10 Vict. c. 102) the port was limited (16 Nov. 1847) to extend from Nash Point (the limit of Cardiff port) to Worms Head, and thence to Whitford Point (limit of Llanelly). Fishing boats and implements are distinguished by the letters "S.A." The first work of any importance undertaken by the statutory trustees in 1791 was the erection of a beacon on the Mumbles Head, at the entrance to Swansea bay; the trustees have long since replaced this by a patent dioptric lens of the third order 114 feet above the sea, having a range of fifteen miles' latitude, $51^{\circ} 34' N$, longitude $3^{\circ} 57' 20'' W$.: ten years later the trustee called in the celebrated nautical engineer, Captain Huddart F.R.S. and under his directions they built the old eastern and western piers, standing to this day; the new cut, for which an Act was obtained in the year 1836, was next made and soon after the part of the river running through the town was formed into a floating dock; in the year 1847, an Act was obtained for constructing and maintaining docks and works at the south side of the town of Swansea by the Swansea Dock Company; these works, however, were never completed by the original company, but were taken over by the Swansea Harbour Trust, under the powers of an Act of Parliament in 1857; in 1854 the various Harbour Trust Acts were amended, and the trustees, who had increased from 24 to 50, were reduced to 26.

The Docks.—The Town Float, or North Dock, as it is now called, was opened on the 1st of January, 1852, and the Swansea Docks, known as the South Docks, were opened Sept. 1859, by Miss Talbot, of Penrice Castle; the first sod of these docks was cut by the late Duke of Beaufort K.G. then Marquess of Worcester; and here hydraulic power was first applied in the working of the dock gates, swing bridges, cranes and hoists: in recent years large sums of money have been expended in the improvement of the harbour in every direction; the western pier forms a fine promenade; the eastern pier, extended in 1905, is now 1,590 feet in length; the deep water area of the docks is now 61 acres, which includes the Prince of Wales' Dock, possessing one of the longest and deepest locks in the Bristol Channel, having a depth of 32 feet of water upon the sills on ordinary spring tides, and 24 feet 9 inches on ordinary neap tides. This dock was opened in 1881 by His late Majesty King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, then Prince and Princess of Wales.

A new dock, called King's Dock, was opened Nov. 23rd, 1909, by Sir Griffith Thomas. The first sod was cut by His late Majesty King Edward VII. in July, 1904. The whole of the works, with the exception of the passage connecting the dock with the Prince of Wales' dock, is below high water mark of ordinary spring tides. This dock more than doubles the previous accommodation of the port, the entrance lock being 875 feet long by 90 feet wide, with 40 feet of water over the outer sill at spring tides and 32½ feet at neap tides, so that ships of the largest size, now or likely to be built, are able to enter at any tide in the year, and the ordinary sized tramp steamer is able to enter and leave at practically any state of the tide throughout the year. The depth of 12 feet over the outer sill at low water of ordinary spring tides is greater than that of any other port in the Bristol Channel under similar conditions of tide, with the exception of Barry. In order to exclude the tidal waters from the site of the works, a rubble embankment about $\frac{1}{2}$ miles long has been constructed, and to protect the entrance the present west pier has been extended 800 feet and a new east pier built. The central portion of the dock is used for general trade. The eastern end is reserved for a coaling arm. The Great Western Railway Co. have taken 1,000 feet of frontage on the north side of the coaling arm, and other railway companies are also negotiating for frontages on the southern side of the coaling arm. The length of quays is 32,200 feet, and the warehouses contain a floor area of 731,326 square feet. The joint engineers for the dock were Mr. P. W. Meik M.Inst.C.E. 16 Victoria street, Westminster, and Mr. A. O. Schenk M.Inst.C.E. the Harbour Trustees' engineer.

The whole of the docks are supplied with the latest improvements in hydraulic machinery, and are furnished with appliances for discharging and loading every description of cargoes with celerity; they are also supplied throughout with electric light.

The quays are upwards of six miles in length, and from these ships can obtain fresh water direct from the Corporation water works, 17 miles distant; around the deep-water docks are twenty-seven hydraulic coal tips, capable of shipping ten tons of coal per minute upon occasion; seventy-four hydraulic, electric and steam cranes are also provided, and the telephone connects certain fixed points about the docks with the harbour office; in connection with the whole dock estate there are no less than twelve pairs of sea gates and seven opening bridges, all worked by hydraulic power; a telephone was established in 1883 between Cardiff and Swansea, and thence direct to the lighthouse of the Harbour Trustees at the Mumbles Head, where a telegraph ship signal station was established in 1870, in direct communication with the Liverpool and Glasgow Exchanges and Lloyd's rooms in London, being connected with the Post office system of telegraphs, and is now worked by the Harbour Trust. Vessels calling for orders can communicate with their owners without lowering a boat. Registered telegraphic address—"Swansea Bay Signal Station."

The docks are surrounded by more than 50 miles of railway, the property of the Harbour Trust, and connecting the docks with the London and North Western, Great Western, Midland, Rhondda and Swansea Bay railways.

The London and North Western, Midland and Great Western railways have direct and independent access to the port and town, as well as the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway, which furnishes a short through route to the Rhondda Valley.

The Swansea Harbour Trustees are the properly constituted conservators of the river and its tributaries, and the pilotage authority of the pilotage district of Swansea.

Trade of the Port.—The trade of Swansea is both varied and extensive, embracing coal (steam, bituminous and anthracite) patent fuel, copper, silver, lead, tin, nickel and other ores, iron, steel, timber, pitwood, grain, raw material for chemical treatment, and oils.

The chief manufactures are connected with metals, such as copper, silver, tinplate, iron, steel and spelter. The production of tinplates within twelve miles of the port is estimated to be three-fourths of the whole manufacture of Great Britain. The bulk of this quantity is shipped at Swansea direct for America, Russia, France, Portugal, Spain, Italy, China, Japan, &c. In 1912 the total quantity of all metals exported was 396,578 tons, valued at £5,541,015.

There are also extensive chemical works, flour mills, shipbuilding yards, both for wood and iron, and eight graving docks, the largest being 430 feet in length.

An important and growing foreign trade is done in tinplates, copper, spelter, and chemicals.

Hitherto, although Swansea itself is actually the only port within that coal field, nearly the whole of the Rhondda coal had been taken down the Taff Vale and Barry railways to Cardiff and Barry, thus forming one of the main sources of the large receipts of those companies, but, since the completion of the Rhondda and Swansea Bay railway, opened for traffic in the autumn of 1894, the position of the town as a coal port has been greatly improved, it being now, by a direct and independent line, the nearest port to the celebrated coalfield, and what is known as "Cardiff coal" can now be shipped under the most favourable conditions; the line also passes through the "Avon Valley," a virgin coalfield, already attracting the attention of shippers. This valley lies between the Rhondda district and Swansea, and is therefore many miles nearer to Swansea than to Cardiff or Barry. The coal unworked, but available in the Swansea district, is estimated at 19,278,000,000 tons.

To meet the requirements of the grain trade, the import of which showed increase, compared with 1893, of 21 per cent, the Trustees constructed a capacious warehouse at the Prince of Wales Dock, in addition to those previously provided.

Consuls and Vice-Consuls of the principal states are resident.

SCHOOLS.

Swansea & West Wales Technical College, Mount Pleasant, was established in 1896; the main buildings, erected in 1909, comprise laboratories, workshops & equipment for mathematics, physics, chemistry, metallurgy & all branches of engineering; day courses of a university & advanced technological type & evening classes are held; the college is attended annually by upwards of 1,000 students. The governing body is a special technical college committee appointed by the Local Education Authority & includes representatives of all the leading local industries

The Swansea Intermediate & Technical School for Boys (Grammar School), constituted in 1895, under the provisions of the "Welsh Intermediate Education Act, 1889" (52 & 53 Vict. c. 40), has taken the place of the old Grammar school at Mount Pleasant, founded by the Right Rev. Hugh Gore D.D. Bishop of Waterford & Lismore A.D. 1682; the new buildings, erected in 1852, stand on a height above the town & command a view of the whole of Swansea Bay, & comprise a large school room, class rooms, library, a gymnasium, chemical & physical laboratories & a workshop: the school is now under the control of the Swansea Corporation as the Local Education Authority; J. Trevor Owen M.A. Cantab. head master. The girls' school occupies the old High School for Girls, in Walters road; Miss E. K. Mullins Math. Tripos, head mistress

Swansea Training College for Women Teachers was established by the British & Foreign School Society in January, 1872, & originally occupied premises in Nelson terrace. The Swansea Corporation afterwards took over the institution, & erected on the Town hill at a cost of nearly £40,000, a college for 120 resident & 80 day students. The new premises were formally opened on October 2nd, 1913. Nearly 1,600 teachers had been trained in the old college & 100 leave the new college every year. Principal, since January, 1892, David Salmon
