MONMOUTHSHIRE

MONMOUTHSHIRE is an English county, bordering on South Wales, and is bounded to the north and north-east by Herefordshire, the river Monnow forming a portion of the boundary, on the east by the Wye, dividing it from Herefordshire and Gloucestershire, on the south by the estuary of the Severn, and on the west by the Rumney, dividing it from Brecknockshire and Glamorganshire; in shape it approaches a rectangle, having an average breadth from east to west of about 30 miles, and length from north to south of about 26 miles. The administrative county comprises 349,552 statute acres, and had a population in 1861 of 174,633; in 1871, 195,448; in 1881, 211,276; in 1891, 248,054; and in 1901 of 298,078, of whom 153,384 were males and 144,692 females. The number of houses were—inhabited, 55,744; uninhabited, 3,285, including 1,416 in general occupation for business or other purposes; and building, 527. The area of the ancient or geographical county is 341,688 acres; the population in 1901 was 292,317.

The population of the administrative county and county borough of Newport in 1911 was 395,719, viz. 1—males, 207,429, and females, 188,290.

It was part of the island occupied by the Romans, and formed part of the division called Britannia Secunda; several remains prove that the Second Legion occupied this part, and the Roman remains are so frequent as to lead to the belief that the beauty of the scenery and richness of the soil had induced many of the Romans to erect villas here. After the departure of the Romans it was the scene of frequent encounters between the Saxons and Ancient Britons; the Saxons never appear to have entirely conquered the country, then known by the name of Gwent; the numerous earthworks still existing show the contests which took place. After the Norman conquest, numerous Norman barons, to whom grants of land had been made, governed the country under the name of Lords of the Marches, and they here erected many castles to command the passes into the Welsh country; the ruins of many of these castles still exist; among the principal are Abergavenny, Caerleon, Caldicot, Chepstow, Dinham, Grosmont, Monmouth, and Usk.

Monmouthshire was joined to England as an English county in 1535 by Henry VIII. but it was considered a Welsh county for the administration of justice until the reign of Charles II. when it was first included in the Oxford circuit. The legal authority of the Lords Marchers was only put an end to by act of 1st William and Mary, 1689: it is still, to a great extent, a Welsh county: the Welsh names of places are retained, and the lower orders still cling to Welsh customs and speak the language to an extent that renders it necessary in many churches to perform services alternately in Welsh and English: and in the Dissenting chapels Welsh is still more frequently used, to which may be attributed the great hold dissent has obtained here and in South Wales. The surface of the country is greatly varied; in the north and west hills rise to a considerable height: the Sugar Loaf is 1,954 feet; Blorengre, 1,720, and Skyridd Vawr, 1,601. These hills are intersected by valleys of great beauty, through which flow mountain streams, tributaries of the Usk or Wye. Towards the south, on either side of the mouth of the river Usk, are two large tracts of marsh land, called Caldicot Level and Wentlog Level, which are artificially drained and protected from the irruption of the Bristol Channel by sea-walls.

The principal river is the Severn, which forms the southern boundary, and into the estuary of which the other rivers—the Wye and the Usk—with their tributaries, empty themselves. The Monnow flows in from Herefordshire, and forms the north-eastern boundary, until it reaches Monmouth, where it joins the Wye, which then becomes the eastern boundary, and flows by Tintern and Chepstow to the Severn. The Usk rises in Brecknockshire and enters the county near Abergavenny, and flows, after a long and winding course, past Caerleon and Newport to the sea. The Ebbw rises in the north-west, and falls into the Usk below Newport. The Rumney is the western boundary and falls into the Bristol Channel.

The Trothy, Honddu, Soar, Monnton brook, Rumy, Sirhowy, Avon, Llwyd and Sychan, are other streams.

In the Western portion of the county is the Monmouthshire canal, which starts from Newport, where there are commodious docks, and continues northward to Pontypool; north of Newport, near Malpas, the Crumlin Canal joins the Monmouthshire Canal. The Brecknockshire Canal from Brecon enters the county near Abergavenny, and continues south till it joins the Monmouthshire Canal below Pontypool, thus giving it connection with Newport.

The county is well supplied with railways, the western half more so than the eastern: these railways are worked in connection with the Great Western and London and North Western railways, thus giving access to all parts of the British Isles. The principal line, Great Western, passes through the county from north to south, connecting Newport, Abergavenny and Hereford: on this road is the Pontypool Road Junction, from which starts the single line of railway to Usk and Monmouth, thence are branches to Chepstow, Ross in Herefordshire, and to Coleford, in Gloucestershire; and also the West Midland Railway (Newport section), worked by the Great Western, through Pontypool, and across the celebrated Crumlin Viaduct to Merthyr Tydfil and Swansea. In the west of the county the Great Western Railway have one line, called the Eastern Valleys Railway, from Newport through Pontypool to Blaenavon, and another called the Western Valleys from Newport, through the valley of the Ebbw, via Risca and Abercarn, crossing the West Midland at Crumlin, thence to Aberbeeg, where it branches into two lines, one to Ebbw Vale and the other to Abertillery and Blaina, and Nantyglo, joining the Abergavenny line (London and North Western Railway) at Brynmawr.

In the extreme south of the county is the South Wales line of the Great Western from Gloucester through Chepstow, Portskewett Junction and Newport to Cardiff, and along the southern coast of Wales.

The Great Western Railway Company have constructed a tunnel in the bed of the Severn, from Portskewett in Monmouthshire to New Passage in Gloucestershire, at a cost of £1,500,000, to connect their lines and give more direct communication with the metropolis.

The Great Western Railway Co. have a service of motor cars from Newport to Merthyr, via Risca and Treharris.

The London and North Western Railway have a line from Abergavenny, westward to Merthyr Tydfil through Tredegar, having a branch from Beaufort to Ebbw Vale.

The Abersychan branch of the London and North Western Railway leaves the Eastern Valleys at Talywain or Abersychan and runs through Blaenavon to Brynuawr.

The Sirhowy Railway runs northward from Risca, on the Western Valleys Railway, crossing the West Midland to Tredegar, thence joining the London and North Western (Abergavenny) line at Nant-y-bwlch. The Rhymney branch of the Brecon and Merthyr Railway runs from Rhymney through the valley of the Rhymney river, on the extreme western border of the county to Newport: another line of this railway runs parallel on the opposite bank of the river Rhymney, in Glamorganshire.

The Pontypridd, Caerphilly and Newport railway places Newport in direct connection with Swansea and the coal district of the Rhondda Valley.

The principal industry of the county is connected with its mineral riches. The mines of coal and ironstone are of immense magnitude. Every branch of the iron and steel manufacture is carried on—such as manufacture of iron and steel rails, and there are railway plant and wagon works, nail works, anchor and chain cable works and steam engine and boiler works. Other branches of industry are in tin plate works and chemical works. Fire clay and brick clay is also produced. Bricks and tiles are largely made. Limestone and sandstone are raised in large quantities. Some flannel is made in the county.

The county contains 142 civil parishes, and is in the province of Canterbury and diocese of Llandaff, forming the archdeaconry of Monmouth, which is sub-divided into the rural deaneries of Abergavenny, Bedwelly, Blaenau Gwent, Caerleon, Chepstow, Monmouth, Netherwent, Newport, Raglan and Usk.

The county forms part of the Oxford circuit, has one Court of Quarter Session, and is divided into eleven petty sessional divisions, viz.: Abergavenny, Bedwelly (sittings at Abercarn, Abertillery, Blaia, Blackwood, Ebbw Vale, Tredegar and New Tredegar), Caerleon (sittings at Caerleon and Cwmbran), Chepstow, Monmouth, Newport, Pontypool (sittings at Pontypool, Blaenavon and Llanhilleth), Raglan, Skenfrith (sittings at Graig), Trelleck and Usk. NOTE:—Unless otherwise stated, sittings are held at the place giving name to the Division.

The municipal boroughs are: Abergavenny, population in 1911, 8,511; Monmouth, 5,269; Newport (county borough), 83,691. Other towns are Abersychan, 24,656; Abertillery, 25,763; Blaenau, 12,010; Caerleon, 2,046; Chepstow, 2,953; Ebbw Vale, 26,261; Pontypool, 6,452; Rhymney, 11,138; Risca, 14,149; Tredegar, 27,784, and Usk 1,495.

MONMOUTH COUNTY COUNCIL

Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vic. c. 41.

Under the above Act, Monmouthshire, after the 1st April, 1889, for the purposes of the Act (except the County Borough of Newport) is a separate and distinct administrative county (sec. 45-1b) governed by a county Council, consisting of 19 Aldermen and 57 councillors.

The chairman is, by virtue of his office, a justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police for the county is under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions and the County Council, to be appointed as therein mentioned (sec. 9).

The coroners for the county are elected by the County Council, and the clerk of the peace appointed by such joint committee, and may be removed by them (sec. 83-2).

The clerk of the peace for the county is also the clerk of the County Council (sec. 83-1).

The administrative business of the county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the justices) is now transacted by the County Council.

Meetings of the Council held at the County Hall, Newport.

Chairman—Alderman William Thomas J.P. Gold Tops, Aberbeeg, Newport.

Vice-Chairman—Alderman John Woodward J.P. Trinity Row, Pontywaun, Newport.

GEOLOGY OF MONMOUTHSHIRE.

(Revised to 1919.)

NATURAL HISTORY AND SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES.—Monmouthshire Antiquarian Society: Journal.

MUSEUMS.—Caerleon, Museum of the Monmouthshire Antiquarian Society; Monmouth [small collections in the Rolls Hall]; Newport, Corporation Museum and Art Gallery, Dock Street.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Coloured Maps, on the scale of one inch to a mile (Old Series)—Sheets: 35, Forest of Dean (southern part); 36, Pontypool, Cardiff; Quarter Sheets: 42, S.E. Abergavenny; 42, N.E. Hay, Talgarth; 43, S.W. Forest of Dean to Monmouth.

New Series.—Sheets: 232, Abergavenny, Bryn Mawr, Tredegar, Rhymney, Abertillery, and Aber-sychan; 249, Newport, Risca, Gelligaer, Pontypool, and Caerphilly; 263, Wentloog Level, Rumney, and St. Mellons.

The east of Monmouthshire, which is included in Sheets 233 (Monmouth town) and 250 (Chepstow), has not as yet been geologically re-surveyed.

Coloured Maps, on the scale of six inches to a mile—11 S.W., Tredegar; 11 S.E., Aberstruth; 12 N.W., Pwll-du; 12 S.W., Blaenavon; 17 N.E., Blaenau-Gwent; 17 S.E., Aberbeeg; 18 N.W., Varteg; 18 S.W., Abersychan; 18 S.E., Pontypool; 22 N.E., Crumlin; 22 S.E., Newbridge; 23 N.W., Cwm-y-Glyn; 23 N.E., Griffithstown; 23 S.W., Cwm-brân; 27 N.E., Crosskeys; 28 N.W., Cwm-Carn; 28 S.W., Pont-y-mister.

The New Series maps and most of the six-inch maps are published in two editions. The first edition is coloured to show the Solid Geology of the area; that is, all the Drift or Glacial Deposits (boulder-clay, gravel and sand) are omitted, and the outcrop of each stratum of solid rock is represented as if it formed the actual surface of the country. In the second or Drift Edition, all the glacial deposits, &c., are shown, the strata which lie beneath them being then omitted.

Survey Index Map.—Scale 4 miles to one inch—Sheet 11 (price 2s. 6d.) includes the whole of Monmouthshire, and is very useful.

These Maps are further illustrated by the Horizontal Sections, Nos. 5, 12, and 107; and by the Vertical Sections, Nos. 8, 9, 10, 12, 80, and 87.

Monmouthshire was first mapped by Sir H. De la Beche and D. H. Williams for the Geological Survey between 1837 and 1845. Special Reports on Mineral Resources—vol. vi. Refractory Materials, Dolomite, &c. 1918 (price 7s. 6d.) The publications of the Geological Survey, both maps and memoirs, can be obtained from Messrs. Stanford, 12 Long Acre, London W.C.2. These maps having become out-of-date, a re-survey of the part of the county included in the Welsh coal-field was made. The results of this work are given in the new one-inch maps, sheets 232 and 249 (sheet 263 contains only a small part of the county near Cardiff) and in these two maps, with their accompanying memoirs on the Newport district and on the Abergavenny district, we have the latest results of the work of some of the best professional geologists of the day concerning the strata of Central and Western Monmouthshire. The east of the county has still to be re-surveyed.

Introduction to the Study of Geology.—As it is impossible to enter here into an explanation of the technical terms used in geology, or to explain in detail the relations of the strata of Monmouthshire to those of the other counties of Wales and of England, we must on these points refer the student and the general reader to some work such as Harrison's Text-Book of Geology, fifth edition, published by Blackie & Son, 1903, price 3s. 6d.

THE strata which form this county belong mainly to two great geological formations—the Old Red Sandstone and the Carboniferous—and though the structure of the district is in consequence simple and easily understood, it still includes points of great geological interest.

Looking first at the broad physical features, we note (1) extensive tracts of low flat marsh land, on the south along the Severn; (2) much of the centre and east of the county is fertile (especially in the Usk valley), with rich red soil and many flat-topped hills, increasing in height northwards; (3) on the west we have a mountainous mining district, the eastern portion of the great South Wales coal-field.

Nearly all the rocks which form Monmouthshire are of aqueous origin—that is, they consist of sandstones, clays and limestones, which were originally formed on the floor of the sea or in lakes, and have since been hardened and elevated. The present irregular outline of hill and vale is due to the action of the weather—of rain and rivers, and frost and ice, which have acted on the strata, wearing them away unequally according to their relative hardness and positions.

We will now describe the various layers or beds of rock in order, commencing with those which form, so far as can be seen, the foundation of the whole county, and which must therefore be of the earliest formation and greatest age.

SILURIAN FORMATION.—In the centre of Monmouthshire, the Old Red Sandstone is bent into an anticline, or arch, of which the axis runs north and south. This arch has been worn away in the course of ages, and as a result, Silurian strata crop out, forming an oval area eight miles in length from Ffyllonau on the north to Llandeglydd on the south, and four miles in width from Usk on the east to Ysgubor on the west. The river Usk divides this Silurian region into two parts, that on the south-west of the stream being the larger. The greatest height of this district is just over 600 feet above sea-level. Although the features are not so well marked, this inlier of old rocks bears much resemblance to the similar outcrop at Woolhope in Herefordshire. The lowest beds exposed are the Wenlock Shales, of which 850 feet are seen, here containing numerous beds of sandstone and occurring in the centre of the area at the Tucking Mill, Cilfigan Park, Prescoed, Cefu Mawr, Monkwood and Kemys Commander.

The Wenlock Limestone is developed to a thickness of 35 to 40 feet and encircles the dome of Wenlock Shales; it may be examined at Trostreay, Radyr, Glascoed and Tynewydd.

Then come the Ludlow Beds (1,300 feet), consisting in the lower part of argillaceous shales and mudstones, which become sandy in their upper division. The Ludlow Beds sweep round from Bettws Newydd by Usk, Llangibby Castle, to Llandeglydd, and thence northwards to Glascoed Common, Pentwynn and the Chain Bridge.

This Silurian district is hilly, but the hills formed of the harder beds of limestone and sandstone run generally north and south, and do not present the amphitheatre-like shape which we see at Woolhope. On the east side the beds dip to the east, and on the west side to the west, the general structure being that of an anticline running north and south, of which the top has been worn away. One point of special geological interest about these Silurian rocks of Monmouthshire is that they link together to some extent the eastern and western Silurian areas, the lower sandy beds reminding us of the Grits of Denbighshire, while the thick and often nodular limestones indicate similar conditions to those which prevailed at Wenlock Edge, Dudley, &c.

To the south of the main exposure, near Usk, there are three small outcrops of Silurian rocks at Llanfrecchfa, and a larger outcrop near Rhydney; the latter area extends into Glamorgan, and has been fully described by Prof. Sollas. The Wenlock and Ludlow beds here exhibit a total thickness of 954 feet of shales, sandstones and mudstones, including only 4 feet of limestone. They form an east and west anticline, and are well exposed on the banks of the Rhydney below Cae Castell, and in a quarry where they are worked for road-metal. Fossils are numerous, including corals, shells, trilobites, &c.; there is a thin bone-bed just at the junction with the Old Red Sandstone above. The Usk inlier has been mapped in detail by Mr. C. J. Gardiner, whose results are fully described in his paper (1916), referred to in the List of Literature quoted at the commencement of this article.

THE OLD RED SANDSTONE.—Rocks of this age form more than one-half of the surface of the county. The great extent of these beds in Hereford and Brecknock is well known, and they stretch into Monmouthshire in an unbroken mass on the north and north-west from the Black Mountains and Pontrilas, reaching southwards past Monmouth and Abergavenny, encircling the Silurian inlier of Usk, and extending to the south-west past Newport to St. Mellons and beyond. This great mass of red rock attains in the north of the county a thickness of from 5,000 to 6,000 feet, but thins southwards to about 4,000 feet between Newport and Risca. The change from the grey Silurian shales below to the red sandstones above is rapid and striking, and this change of colour corresponds to the change in the conditions under which the rocks were deposited. At the close of the Silurian period the sea gradually retired; when the Old Red Sandstone was deposited the atmosphere of a warm climate produced oxidizing and desiccating effects which account for the red colour of the rocks. With this change of colour there is, too, a great change in the fossils; these are not nearly so numerous in the Old Red as in the Silurian series; they belong, too, to creatures which probably inhabited great lakes and rivers.

In Monmouthshire the beds of Old Red Sandstone undulate in the centre and north of the county, but near the Wye they dip steadily eastwards and pass underneath the Forest of Dean Coal-field, while on the west side of the county they similarly dip westwards, disappearing beneath the South Wales Coal-field.

The following divisions have been recognised:—

Upper or Conglomerate Series	}	Red, yellow, and variegated sandstones and quartzose conglomerates about 200 feet thick, containing scales and plates of the fossil fishes Holoptichius and Pterichthys .
Middle or Brownstone Series	}	Marly sandstones and flagstones, red shales and thin corstone; with remains of Cephalaspis (a fossil fish). Thickness, 1,200 feet at the Bloreng, but only 600 feet near Newport.
Lower Marls or Corstone Series	}	Pale coloured sandstones, red and variegated marly beds with corstones in lower part. Thickness, 2,800 feet west of Newport; but more in the north of the county. Fossils: Pterygotus (an extinct arthropod), Pteraspis , Cephalaspis (fishes).

There is no apparent break or unconformability: from bottom to top stratum succeeds stratum regularly. At the base of the "Old Red" series is a grey or reddish-grey quartz-grit, speckled with decomposed felspar, which is seen at several points round Usk (as half-a-mile south of Llanthewy Court) to rest conformably upon Silurian (Ludlow) mudstones. The "corstones" are irregular bands of red or yellow nodular or concretionary limestone; they form a rich soil, and were formerly much quarried for burning into lime and for mending roads. Tintern Abbey is built of Old Red Sandstone obtained from the Barbadoes Quarry hard by; those portions of Chepstow Castle which were built of a similar stone in the 12th century are now much decomposed. The principal hills formed of Old Red are the Sugar Loaf, 1,955 feet above sea-level; Skyrriid Fawr, 1,596 feet (both in the north-west of the county, the "brown stones" form their summits); Beacon Hill, which overlooks the Wye, 1,000 feet; Kymin Hill, near Monmouth, is capped by quartz conglomerates.

The Buckstone.—In Meend Wood, about two miles east of the town of Monmouth, there is a remarkable mass of Old Red Conglomerate, which has long been known as the "Buckstone." It is 22 feet long by 13 feet high; but at its base only three feet in diameter—thus resting upon a point, as it were. Formerly it was a "rocking-stone," but it was thoughtlessly overthrown in 1835; and although it has been replaced on its old site by H.M. Commissioners of Woods and Forests, it will never rock again. For full description and figure, see the volumes of the Archæologia Cambrensis for 1846, and for 1835. It must be understood that this remarkable stone is in no sense a boulder; but is simply a mass of rock which, by reason of its superior hardness, has withstood the action of the weather better than the softer strata which formerly surrounded it, and which have been washed away.

CARBONIFEROUS FORMATION.—The Carboniferous strata lie mainly in the west of Monmouthshire, the beds on that side of the county being those which form the eastern extremity of the great South Wales Coal-field.

Carboniferous Limestone Series.—This series includes thick beds of grey, brown or blue crystalline limestone, with a development of shales—the Lower Limestone Shales—at the base. In parts the position of the shales is marked by a narrow vale, this being due to the fact that the shales are softer than the neighbouring limestone and have been worn away by erosion (run, &c.) much quicker. Some beds in the limestone itself are crowded with the remains of crinoids (sea-lilies), others take the form of oolites, and some are dolomites. During recent years great attention has been paid to the sub-divisions of the Carboniferous series, and the system of classification now used is based upon the fossils found in each bed. Thus, at the base the Lower Limestone Shales correspond to beds containing a characteristic fossil coral, called Cleptopora; hence they are called "K" beds. Then, at the bottom of the succeeding Main Limestone is another coral zone, the Zaphrentis or "Z" beds, usually crinoidal limestones and dolomites. Then, in upward succession follow the zones of Caninia (C), Seminula (S) and Dibunophyllum (D). Each of these zones is characterized by an assemblage of fossils and is named after a dominant species. The advantage of this system of classification is that it is more detailed, and admits of exact comparison of various parts of the series in different areas. Thus we can easily compare the "Z" beds here with those, say, of Somerset.

The Carboniferous series occurs in this county in two distinct areas, which were obviously connected at some remote period.

1. The Wye, between Tintern and Chepstow, has cut a deep and winding way through this rock, which extends thence westwards to Itton, Lanvair, Penhow, Magor and Portskewett. The beds, which are here about 1,000 feet in thickness, dip to the south, passing under the Bristol Channel. The scenery along the Wye at Windcliff, Piercefield Park and Chepstow is magnificent. Along the Severn, south of Chepstow, the Triassic Red Marls rest unconformably upon the Carboniferous Limestone, so that on this side of Monmouthshire the upper carboniferous strata do not come to the surface; but borings have shown that coal-measures underlie the Severn at English Stones, &c., east of Portskewett.

2. In the west the Mountain Limestone forms a narrow fringe, or rim, round the coal-field by Machen, Risca, Trevechin, and curves round the northern slopes of the Blorengre; it has a steep westerly dip of from 20 to 60 degrees. This rock contains many caverns, which are often lined with beautiful crystals of calcite and quartz; sometimes they also contain valuable deposits of iron-ore (haematite). Lead-ore also occurs, but is not now mined. There are large quarries in which the limestone is worked to supply the great quantities annually used to mix with iron-ore for smelting; the limestone acts as a flux, considerably less heat being required to melt the ore when it is thus employed. The total thickness of the limestone, with its accompanying shales, is in this area from 350 feet on the east to 700 feet on the west.

The Millstone Grit.—This is a hard, coarse sandstone, at the base of which a grit is sometimes developed. Where the grit is not present there are usually beds of conglomerate. The sandstone at the top of the Millstone Grit is known as the Farewell Rock, a term used by miners because there is no chance of getting workable seams of coal when that bed is reached. We can trace the Millstone Grit, as it rests on the Carboniferous Limestone, just described, from Risca, by Pontypool to Capel-newydd. Then it caps the Blorengre, 1,834 feet in height, a grand bastion-like eminence, which forms the north-east corner of the South Wales Coal-field. Its total thickness in this area is about 462 feet. Like the limestone beneath, this grit forms a poor and barren soil, chiefly used to pasture sheep. Its surface is flat, forming a table-land with a slight southerly slope, on which rise rivers, whose course takes them to the Bristol Channel.

THE COAL-MEASURES.—These include beds of shale and sandstone, here about 2,100 feet in thickness, between which are several important seams of coal; the lower beds are also rich in ironstone. Three divisions in the series have been recognised, although there is a continuous succession all through. It will be remembered that the Coal-measures in this county form the eastern margin of the South Wales coalfield, and the three-fold division comes about because, after the deposition of the Lower Coal-measures, a "Pennant phase" started. This resulted in the laying down of sandy and gritty rocks, commencing first in the western part of the area and progressing gradually to the east. Consequently these Pennant grits occupy a higher position in the measures in Monmouthshire than they do in the west.

Commencing at the base of the series, then, we find:—

1. Lower Coal-measures, 850 feet thick near Pontypool, with the Elled coal, the Ras-las coal, and (near the base) the Old coal; ironstone bands with fossils, some of marine species.

2. The Pennant Grit.—Thick sandstones, with the Tilley sea in the base.

3. Upper Coal-measures, with the Mynyddislwyn seam at the base.

Sir W. T. Lewis, in the Report of the Coal Commission, gives the following estimate of the quantity of coal existing in different parts of the Monmouthshire coalfield:—(1) On the North Crop (Tredegar, Ebbw Vale, &c.), 21 seams, containing 47 feet of coal; (2) on the South Crop (Caerphilly to Pontypool), 15 seams, containing 47 feet of coal; (3) on the East Crop (Pontypool to Blaenavon), 11 seams, containing 38 feet of coal.

The minerals raised in 1881 were: Coal, 5,412,840 tons, and fireclay, 57,680 tons; in 1903 these figures had increased to—Coal, 10,671,432 tons, and fireclay, 72,751 tons and in 1916 to 14,822,659 tons of coal.

It is the Lower Coal-measures which in this district are chiefly worked; the Pennant Grit above them is comparatively unproductive; of the Upper Coal-measures, only the well-known Mynyddislwyn house-coal seam extends thus far east. Six or seven well-marked faults run across the coal-region from north-west to south-east, ending off on the south against a cross-fault, which extends from Trevechin to Newbrieg.

The coal of Monmouthshire is chiefly bituminous; it is composed, as in other districts, of compressed vegetable matter. Although in the coal itself the individual plants cannot be distinguished, owing to the manner in which they have been squeezed and pressed together by the immense weight of the rocks above them, yet in the beds of shale we often find impressions of single plants, as ferns, reeds (Calamites), and gigantic plants allied to our club-mosses (Lepidodendron and Sigillaria).

The surface features of this coal district are remarkable; the rivers run from north to south, and have cut deep-parallel valleys, which are separated from one another by terraced hills rising to heights of from 1,500 to 1,800 feet, and capped by the Pennant Grit. The valleys of the Ebbw, Sirhowy and Rumney all converge towards the port of Newport, and each of these valleys is traversed by a railway which brings down the mineral treasures of the district, spoiling the quiet beauty and isolation of the land, but very useful for commercial purposes. Many of the coal-seams crop out on the hill-sides and are worked by adits, or galleries, which sometimes extend into the hills for miles. On the northern outcrop, near Tredegar, Ebbw Vale, Nantyglo, Beaufort, &c., coal has been largely obtained by "patch-working" i.e. quarrying at the outcrop, in the open air.

THE UPPER TRIAS.—Only a small area of rocks of this age occur, in the south-east corner of the county, between Chepstow, Portskewett, and Undy.

The Dolomitic Conglomerate occurs in six or seven patches at Undy, Lanfihangel, Mownton and Claypit Farm south of Chepstow. It is composed of lumps of Carboniferous Limestone, cemented together by carbonates of lime and magnesia; it was, in fact, formed as a beach at the foot of the limestone cliffs.

The Keuper Red Marls are about 400 feet in thickness. they form a narrow strip extending from Mathern to Portskewett, Caldicot and Undy; they also occur between Llanmartin and Christchurch. No fossils are found in them.

RHETIC FORMATION.—Rocks of this age occur only in the neighbourhood of Newport. They are now exposed at the following places:—Goldcliff, Bishton, Llanmartin, Llanwern, Milton, Bishopool and Liswerry. The base of the series is clearly marked off from the underlying Teagreen Marls (of Keuper age); a thin line of conglomerate under the Rhetic Black Shales usually marks the division. Grey marls, black shales and thin, light-coloured limestones, altogether about 50 feet in thickness, form the lower part of Goldcliff on the coast, and may also be traced east, north and west of the Lias at Bishopston and Llanwern. The shales contain much iron-pyrites, conspicuous by its bright metallic lustre: hence the name Goldcliff. The beds are now largely concealed by masonry.

THE LOWER LIAS.—The blue limestones and shaly clays of this age form the capping of Goldcliff; inland they occur at Langston, Bishopston, Milton, and thence westwards to the Usk, on the other side of which there is a small patch at Maes Glas. Several limestone quarries have been opened in these beds at Liswerry and elsewhere.

SURFACE DEPOSITS.—Thick beds of gravel occur in the valleys, and cover the low ground formed by the softer beds of the Old Red Sandstone. These gravels are for the most part derived from the melting of glaciers, and are especially thick and wide-spread in the valley of the Usk. Patches of true glacial boulder-clay also occur, especially in the deep and narrow valleys which cross the coal-field, and as far south as St. Mellons. The mountain-limestone and the millstone-grit hills have the rounded appearance known as roches moutonnées; and here and there show grooves and striations, especially when an unweathered surface of the rock is bare of the removal of soil, &c. Boulders of Old Red Sandstone, of limestone, and of sandstone are found scattered over the surface of the western half of the county; while the boulders in the north-east and east are mostly of the Old Red Sandstone. All these surface-appearances can only be explained by supposing the existence in Central Wales during the last Glacial Period, or Great Ice Age, of an enormous mass of ice, which radiated outwards from the mountains of Brecknockshire, and pushed down the valleys until it reached the lower tracts bordering the sea. But the hills of the coal-field were themselves also thickly covered with ice; and this local ice was often strong enough to resist the invading northern glaciers, until at last the two masses coalesced, and their united ice-tongues travelled slowly southwards down the deep valleys.

The rivers have formed deposits of mud and gravel along their courses, but more especially at their mouths, where they enter the Bristol Channel. Here the sediment brought down has been deposited until a tract of low level land has been formed, which extends for 24 miles from Portskewett to Cardiff, and is from one to three miles in width. This region is known as the Caldicot and Wentloog Levels; it is but little above the level of the sea, and is protected by an embankment or sea wall.

Economic Geology.—The coal-fields have now been completely surveyed by the officers of the Geological Survey and the published maps and memoirs have already been referred to. During the year 1916 the amount of coal raised in Monmouthshire was 14,822,659 tons, valued at the mines at £14,056,710. Compared with the previous year this showed an increase of over half a million tons. Later statistics are too much affected by the industrial changes caused by the war to be regarded as normal. In 1916, also, iron-ore was mined in the county to the quantity of 7,574 tons, valued at £2,918. Of pig-iron a quantity of 374,062 tons was produced. Limestone quarries capable of yielding over 100,000 tons a year are working in the Lower Lias. Sandstone from the Pennant beds of the Coal-measures is used largely for building purposes. It is fine grained stone, blue-grey in colour and felspathic. The two notable varieties are the Abercarne stone, quarried at Mynyddyslwyn, and the Tintern Abbey stone, dark purple-brown in colour, quarried at Tintern.

In many parts of the county the Carboniferous Limestone has beds of dolomite, either original deposits of the mineral or replacement by magnesian carbonate. The dolomite rock is used as a basic refractory slag. It is quarried at Machen, 5 miles west of Newport, and at Craig Quarry, 5 miles north-west of Risca. Full details are given in the Geological Survey Special Report on Mineral Resources, quoted at the beginning of this article.

PREHISTORIC MAN.—Few discoveries have been made in this county of relics belonging to tribes to whom iron was unknown. In a barrow, or burial place, on Penhow, Mr. Morgan found part of a whetstone, with a bronze dagger and numerous flint flakes.

ABERCARN is a large village, formed into a civil parish under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," from Mynyddyslwyn, and was with Cwm-carn formed into an ecclesiastical district in 1913. The village has a station on the Western Valleys line of the Great Western railway, 10 miles north-west from Newport. It is in the Abertillery division of the county. Hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division of Bedwelly, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Bedwelly, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The parish is governed by an Urban District Council of 18 members, formed December, 1894, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. ch. 73). The district comprises part of Crumlin, Newbridge, Abercarn, Cwm-carn and Cross Penmain, and is divided into six wards. Water is supplied from a reservoir and local springs, and gas from works belonging to the Urban Council, who also control the water works. A scheme for the supply of water by the Abertillery and District Water Board to the Abertillery, Abercarn, Risca and Mynyddyslwyn areas was sanctioned by the Local Government Board, and the work is now (1919) proceeding in the Gwynnefawr Valley of Breconshire. St. Luke's iron church, erected in 1890, and attached to the church of St. Tewdwr, Mynyddyslwyn, has 520 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £180, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1919 by the Rev. James Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Adjoining the church are a Sunday school and guild room. There are also English Baptist, Primitive Methodist, Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels, Salvation Army barracks and a Central hall. The cemetery, comprising 11 acres, with a chapel, and house for the caretaker, was opened in 1900, and is under the control of the Urban District Council. Here are collieries, iron works and tinplate manufactories. The area of the civil parish and Urban district is 9,506 acres of land and 69 of water; rateable value, £79,588; the population in 1901 was 12,607 and in 1911, 16,445.

The population of the wards in 1911 was:—Central, 3,687; East, 1,905; North, 3,777; South, 3,330; Torlais, 2,035; West, 1,713.

ABERGAVENTY

ABERGAVENTY is a municipal borough and market town, head respectively of a petty sessional division, a poor law union and a county court district, 167 miles from London, 20 south-east from Brecon, 46 north-west from Bristol, 6 south-east from Crickhowell, 23 south-west from Hereford, 19 north-east from Merthyr-Tydfil, 16 north-west from Monmouth, about 19 north from Newport, 104 north from Pontypool, 13½ east from Tredegar; and is in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. There are three railway stations: the London and North Western in the Brecon road, the Great Western to the south of the town, and the Abergavenny Junction, Great Western and North Western railways to the north. An ancient stone bridge of seven arches crosses the Usk just outside the town, and near it is a fine iron bridge, over which the London and North Western railway crosses. The town is on the high road from London to Brecon, at the extremity of a pass where the lofty mountains abruptly terminate, and lays claim to high antiquity; it was the "Gobannium" of Antonine, a Roman station, and so called from the river Gobannus, now the Gavenny, from which (with the prefix "Aher," denoting its situation at or near the confluence of that river with the Usk), it derives its name: the town is almost encircled by hills and mountains, one of which, the Sugar Loaf, rises to an elevation of 1,054 feet; the Derry, the Graig, the Rholbin and the Llanwerarth Breast forming its base. A long range of hills running from Pontypool terminates here in the magnificent Blorenge, 1,833 feet high: the Great Skirrid, or Holy Mountain, on the other side of the town, is 1,601 feet high; here once stood a chapel dedicated to St. Michael: the Little Skirrid is 750 feet high. Previous to the revolution of 1688 this was a corporate town, its government being vested in a bailiff and twenty-seven burgesses; but the attachment of the inhabitants to the Orange dynasty being somewhat equivocal, William III. deprived them of their charter. The town was subsequently governed by a body of Improvement Commissioners, elected pursuant to an Act of Parliament obtained in 1854, and this arrangement continued until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the late Urban District Council.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by Local Government Board Order No. 31,909, the ancient civil parish was divided into two parishes, Urban and Rural, the former comprising the area of the Urban district.

In 1899 a charter of Incorporation was granted, constituting the town a municipal borough, which is divided into four wards and governed by a Corporation consisting of a Mayor, four Aldermen and twelve Councillors.

The town is paved, lighted with gas and abundantly supplied with the purest water on the constant supply system, the water being conveyed through pipes from a spring at the base of the Sugar Loaf mountain, the pressure being sufficient to drive the water to the highest house in the town; the works, gas and water, are the property of the town. Abergavenny ancient parish has been formed into two, the municipal area being known as Abergavenny and the remainder as Abergavenny Rural.

The church of St. Mary, in Monk street, was formerly the church of the ancient Benedictine mitred priory of St. Mary, founded by Hamelyn Baludun in the 11th century and by W. de Broose in the time of King John; it is a cruciform building of stone, 172 feet in length, mainly in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of a presbytery of three bays, 67 feet long, with arches opening into lateral chapels in its western bays, nave, transepts, of which the chapels form eastern extensions, and an embattled central tower with turret, containing 8 bells: like other Benedictine minsters in Wales, the church was divided between the convent and the parish, the choir being formed just eastward of the crossing and containing twenty-four stalls of carved oak, twelve on each side, which still remain; these have a coved canopy and in several instances open lattice work at the back, and each range terminates eastwards in a separate stall with a lofty spired canopy; the Perpendicular nave, 45 feet wide, is of three bays, with a north aisle; and the transept is 67 feet in length. The church contains a most interesting series of monuments, consisting chiefly of altar tombs, ten in number, bearing recumbent effigies, dating from the 13th to the 16th century. (1) The earliest of these is the effigy of a very young man, clad in a hauberk and hood of chain mail and a long surcoat, his head reposing on cushions and his feet on a lion; the hands are placed together, and the whole figure, together with the slab on which it lies, is carved out of one solid balk of timber; this effigy is now placed on a trestle table made for the purpose in the Herbert chapel, and is believed to represent George de Cantelupe, who died 25 April, 1273, act. 20. (2 and 3) The next in order are two monuments of about the middle of the 14th cent.: the first of these is an effigy of stone lying on a plain altar tomb within a panelled and traceried recess under one of the south windows of this chapel, and represents a knight in bascinet with hood and camail, a long surcoat, and legs encased in plate armour; the identity of this figure is quite doubtful, but it perhaps represents Sir William Hastings, ob. 1349; the other monument is an altar tomb of the Decorated period on the opposite side of the chapel, at the back of the stalls, the sides of which are relieved with crocketed and canopied panelling, once containing statuettes, of which only one headless example now remains; the recumbent stone effigy is clad much as the preceding, and it seems tolerably certain that it represents Lawrence de Hastings, ob. 13 Aug. 1348, and buried here. (4) In the centre of the Herbert chapel stands an altar tomb of rough masonry cased on two sides and at the east end with slabs of sculptured alabaster, dating from the end of the 15th cent. and probably once forming part of the screen above the high altar; the side slabs consist of shallow canopied niches containing figures; that at the foot represents the "Annunciation," with a censuring angel on either side; on the tomb lie the recumbent effigies of Sir William ap Thomas, ob. 1446, and Gladys, his wife, daughter of Sir David Gam, ob. 1454; the male effigy is in plate armour, and wears a collar of SS.; at the head of the figures are large canopies of unequal size, brought from elsewhere, and probably also portions of the great altar screen. (5) Parallel with the foregoing, and below the arch opening from the Herbert chapel to the choir, is another large altar tomb of alabaster, surrounded on nearly the whole of the two sides with elegant canopied niches, surmounted by an embattled cresting, and containing fifteen figures, twelve of which bear shields, the remaining three representing the Virgin and Child, St. Catherine and St. Margaret, and most likely once at the foot of the tomb, both ends being now blank; on the upper slab are the recumbent effigies of a knight and lady, much mutilated; the former is in plate armour, with a collar of alternate snos and roses, and the head resting on a helm with his crest, a sheaf of arrows; the lady is attired in a long robe and mantle and wears a rich necklace; at the heads of the figures are mutilated alabaster canopies, not, apparently, belonging to this monument: these effigies represent Sir Richard Herbert of Coldbrook, and son of Sir William ap Thomas, before mentioned; he fought valiantly on the Yorkist side at the battle of Edgecote or Banbury, 26 July, 1469, where he was taken prisoner, and executed on the following day; Margaret, his wife, was the daughter of Thomas ap Gryffydd. (6) In the south wall of the Herbert chapel, within a recess under a flattened ogee crocketed arch, is an altar tomb of alabaster, the front of which is adorned with nine double canopied niches, eight of which contain seated figures, and the central one a sculptured kneeling angel from some other structure; on the top of the tomb lies the recumbent effigy, bareheaded, of a man in plate armour, his head resting on a helm and his feet on a lion, and on the chamfered margin of the tomb is an inscription in black letter, only a portion of which, viz. the words:—"regni regis Henrici Octavi 2º cujus ata propifictor Jes. Amen," are original: the figure, however, correctly represents Richard Herbert, Esquire, a natural son of Sir William Herbert, 1st Earl of Pembroke, ob. Sept. 1510; on the arch above are the arms of Herbert, debrused with a baton arg., and impaling Cradock. At the back of the recess is a collection of figures carved in alabaster on three separate slabs; that in the centre depicts the "Coronation of the Virgin," and on either side are kneeling figures of three men in armour and a female, and beneath each figure a shield bearing the arms of Herbert and Cradock alternately; under the whole runs an embattled molding. (7) On the north side of the choir, under the arch between it and the Lewis chapel, are two small altar tombs placed end to end and projecting eastwards from the western pier. The one next the pier has been roughly built up, and bears a female effigy of freestone, only about 4 ft. 6 in. long, clad in a close-fitting robe, the head, now incomplete, resting on two cushions and the feet on some animal: the figure, which is of much earlier date than the present church, is conjectured to represent Eva, daughter of William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, and wife of William de Brosse, lord of Abergavenny; she died in 1246; the tomb, forming a continuation of the preceding, is of hard gritstone, and appears to have been made up from different sources; the north side displays three square panels with quatre-foils enclosing plain shields; on the opposite side are five square panels also containing plain shields, and above, on the margin of a slab, a moulding of roses: the recumbent effigy is also one of a female, 4 ft. 3 in. in length, with the head on a cushion and the feet on a dog; the figure is clad in wimple and veil and an ample mantle, and the upraised hands hold what was probably a heart: nearly the whole of the body below the hands is covered by a long shield, charged in relief with three fleurs-de-lis, arranged 2 and 1: these were the arms of de Cantelupe, and the figure is held to represent Eva de Cantelupe, widow of William de Cantelupe, and baroness of Abergavenny in her own right; she died in 1257, and was the mother of George de Cantelupe, whose wooden effigy has already been described. (8) In the north-east angle of the Herbert chapel, against the walls, is a rude altar tomb on which lie the much injured recumbent effigies of Andrew Powell, a judge on the Brecon Circuit, 1615^{or}35, and Margaret (Herbert), his wife, ob. c. 1641: the male effigy is attired in slashed doublet and breeches and a long gown, and wears a ruff; on the wall above the monument is an inscription on brass. (9) At the east end of the Lewis chapel, against the north wall, stands the quite unique monument of David Lewis D.C.L. a native of Abergavenny, Principal of New Inn Hall and Jesus College, Oxford, and a Commissioner of the High Court of Admiralty, ob. 27 April, 1584. The front of the tomb is divided into three panels by broad pilasters supporting flattened arches: the centre is filled by a large anchor and the words: "IOHN GILDON MADE THIS TOW.ME": within the left arch are three clasped books, and above them a skull, and round the whole a wreath or Eilet, bearing the legend, "EN GLORIA MVNDI": in the other arch is a figure of the Sergeant-at-Arme of the Court of Admiralty, bearing his official silver oar: at the head of the tomb are the arms of Wallis, the judge having been the son of the Rev. Lewis Wallis; the upper slab of the tomb is large and massive, and has a super slab, on which lies the effigy of the judge, in his official habit, and wearing a ruff and a flat round cap: the head rests on a book, and round the neck are three chains one below the other. (10) In the Herbert chapel, and against the back of the stall work, is a lofty and elaborate monument of Renaissance character, within which, under an arched recess, are figures of a man and woman kneeling face to face at a desk, and there is an inscription in Latin to William Baker esq. steward to Lord Abergavenny, and Johanna (Vaughan), his wife, sister of Dr. David Lewis, he died 30 Oct. 1600. There are other memorials in the church to Henry Maurice, ob. 30 July, 1682, and to Lewis James, ob. 15 May, 1663; and affixed to the east end of the stalls on the north side are inscribed brasses to Walter Lewis, 1619, and John Morgan, gent. 1587, and a small shield with a female bust, crowned, within a bordure. On the floor below is a brass inscription to John Stephens, 1662; and there are other brasses to William Jones, and Elizabeth, his wife, 1756; Richard Baker and his father, 1551-98; and to Margaret, wife of John Roberts, 1637, with rudely incised figures of a female and of an infant lying on a tasselled cushion. The brass effigy of a priest is now concealed by the boarded steps to the altar pall, and one of Wm. Herbert of Coldbrook is supposed to be under the floor of the Herbert chapel. At the east end of the Herbert chapel, beneath the window, is a sort of raised platform, faced with stone panelling, consisting of eight canopied niches, containing small figures. On this structure now reposes an enormous semi-recumbent figure of Jesse, boldly carved in oak, and 10 feet in length; the head, supported by the right hand, rests on a pillow held up by an angel, and from the body issues the stem of a tree which is grasped by the left hand. This remarkable figure, which in 1645 lay at the east end of the Lewis chapel, was removed in 1828 to the west end of the Herbert chapel, and transferred to its present position in 1856; it is assumed to have once formed part of a reredos. Lying loose on the floor, near this figure is a large and massive but mutilated canopy, perhaps also once forming part of the high altar screen; in 1882 the nave and north aisle, or Lewis chapel, were restored at a cost of £5,778, and in 1896 the chancel, for some years closed, was reopened and the chapels and transepts renovated, the vestry constructed in 1828 within the south transept being entirely removed: the cost of these alterations amounted to about £600: there are 710 sittings. The register, which includes those of Hardwick and Llywŷdd, dates from 1653. The living is a vicarage, net income £320, with residence, in the gift of the Byndman trustees, and held since 1919 by the Rev. Morgan Evans Davies M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford.

Christ Church, CANTREFF, a chapel of ease to St. Mary's, is an iron building with spire, erected in 1879-80, at a cost of about £950, and will seat 340 persons.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1805; the church, in Baker street, erected and endowed by Miss Herbert in 1840, is an edifice of stone in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south aisles, south porch and a turret containing one bell: the stone slab of the present altar was originally that of the ancient parish church of St. John the Baptist, Abergavenny, and was discovered walled up in a chimney breast of the old "Cow inn," Neville street, by Tidy Gardner esq. and Fred, Gardner esq. and presented by them to Holy Trinity church: the consecration marks are roughly cut: the Early English piscina now in the sanctuary was found in the wall of the north transept of old St. John's church and presented by the Worshipful Master and Brethren of the St. John's Lodge of Freemasons to this church: in the church is a painting of St. Francis by Carlo Dolce: the church was restored in 1885, at a cost of £1,250, and enlarged in 1897 and again in 1909 by the addition of a north aisle and vestry, from designs by the late Mr. E. A. Johnson, architect, at a cost of £1,250, and now affords 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1885. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £305, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and is at present (1919) vacant.

St. Helen's Mission church for this parish, situated in the Caepenydre district, is an iron building erected in 1805, and capable of seating 120 persons, and is served by the Rev. John Stanley Davies, of St. David's College, Lampeter.

The Catholic church, dedicated to Our Lady and St. Michael, in Pen-y-pound, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, erected in 1860, and consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, and has several stained windows: the reredos, erected in 1883, was the gift of the late John Baker-Gabb esq. of Abergavenny, and of Rome; the subject is St. Michael and All Angels; it contains six large panels and canopy and is altogether an elaborate and costly work of art: there are sittings for upwards of 400 persons: Rev. Placid Smith O.S.B. priest.

The Convent of St. Michael's, belonging to the Sisters of the Holy Ghost, is in Pen-y-pound.

Bethany Baptist chapel in Market street, erected in 1828, will seat 380 persons, and that in Frogmore street, built in 1878, 700; attached is a lecture hall, built in 1857, and seating 450 persons; the Primitive Methodist in Victoria street, erected in 1850, has 200 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel in Castle street, 350; and the Presbyterian chapel in Pen-y-pound, erected in 1906-8, 550; the Plymouth Brethren have a meeting room in Princes street, seating 200, and the Christadelphians one in Lion street, seating 150, and there is a Congregational chapel in Castle street, founded in 1690, with 500 sittings.

A cemetery of three acres, with two mortuary chapels, was formed in 1855, at a cost of £2,000, and is under the control of a joint committee, who meet at the Town Hall every quarter. A new cemetery for the parish of Abergavenny Urban and Abergavenny Rural, comprising about 13 acres, and situated in the parish of Llanfoist, was opened in 1894.

The Town Hall, Cross street, is a building in the Early English style, with a lofty tower containing a clock with four dials, presented by the late Crawshaw Bailey esq.; the assembly room will seat 800 persons: at the back of and adjoining the Hall is a covered market, fitted for the sale of meat, fish, fruit, vegetables, butter and eggs: this market is well attended by buyers from the hill districts. The market day is Tuesday: a fruit and vegetable market is held on Friday. The fairs are the third Tuesday in January, third Tuesday in March, 14th May, third Tuesday in June, last Tuesday in July, 25th September and third Tuesday in November. There is also an annual bull show and sale, held on the second Tuesday in March; an annual ewe and ram sale, held either on the Monday or Thursday before the 14th Sept. but if the 14th of September fall on a Monday or Tuesday it is held on that date; and a Christmas fat stock show on the Tuesday week preceding Christmas day. The Cattle Market, covering an area of 2½ acres, is in Lion street.

The Mental Hospital for the county, standing on an eminence on the old Monmouth road, is an extensive building of stone, erected in 1851, at a cost of £37,083, and enlarged at different times at a further cost of £21,000, and again in 1882-3, at an additional cost of £50,000, these additions including a chapel of stone, erected at a cost of £3,500, which stands apart in the grounds, and consists of chancel, nave, transepts, north porch and a central turret containing one bell: there is one stained window, presented by the architects, Messrs. Giles and Gough, of London, and a fine organ, presented by the late superintendent, Dr. McCullough: in 1891-2 the hospital was again enlarged; further enlargement was made in 1909, at a cost of £15,000, so as to make the hospital available for 1,170 inmates: the total amount expended on buildings, lands, furniture and outfit has been about £184,000. The County Constabulary station is in the Grofield, and here the petty sessions and the County Court are held. The Abergavenny Club House has about 100 members.

The Nevill Rooms, in Nevill street, are let for public meetings, entertainments &c. and will hold 200 persons.

The Masonic Hall, in St. John's street, occupies the site of the old Grammar school and the ancient parish church of St. John, the embattled tower of which still remains.

The Free Libraries Act was adopted here in 1900. The Free Library, in Baker street, opened in 1906 by the late Marquess of Abergavenny K.G. in the presence of the Lord Mayor of London, Alderman Sir Walter Vaughan Morgan bart. is a building of dressed stone, with Bath stone facings, erected at a cost of £2,000, given by the late A. Carnegie esq. of Skibo Castle, Scotland, and contains a large reading room and a library of nearly 6,000 volumes.

Here are breweries, engine works and motor car works. The Post Office is in Frogmore street. There are five banks, a branch of the National Provincial and Union Bank of England Limited, and two branches of Lloyds Bank Limited, Barclays Bank Ltd. and the London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited.

The Victoria Cottage Hospital and Dispensary, in Hereford road, opened in October, 1902, as a memorial to Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, has seven beds and two cots, and is supported by voluntary contributions.

The Almshouses, on either side of Holy Trinity church, were built and endowed by the late Miss Herbert, of Little Hill House, for the occupation of eight poor persons, each of whom has a weekly allowance of five shillings.

Abergavenny is a place of considerable trade and holds a position of importance in the county. A variety of Roman coins and remains of baths have been discovered in the town, and within half a mile of it are the remains of a Roman camp, near which was a chapel of ease, now converted into a farm-house. Shortly after the Norman conquest, a castle was erected here by Hameline Baludon, whom Camden calls "the first Lord of Abergavenny," and who was a son of Dru de Balun, one of the Norman adventurers who came over with William the Conqueror. Subsequently this fortress became a leading stronghold, during the resistance made by the Welsh to the lords marchers, in their desperate struggles for the recovery of their independence. The castle at length came into the possession of the Nevilles, in which family the honour is still vested. George Neville, the fifteenth baron, was, in the year 1784, created Viscount Neville and Earl of Abergavenny, and the late earl (d. 1915) was raised to the marquessate in 1876, with the subsidiary title of Earl of Lewes, now assigned by courtesy to the eldest son. Abergavenny is the only barony among the numerous honours conferred by the Crown on the chieftains who, subsequent to the Norman invasion, assisted in the subjugation of Wales. The remains of the castle occupy a wooded eminence to the south-west of the town, and consist principally of two towers, one round and the other pentagonal and now covered with ivy: there are also traces of the moat: on the site of the keep is now a dwelling-house, used as a refreshment house for visitors: the precincts of the castle have been laid out with walks, flower beds and tennis courts and provided with seats, and are now maintained as pleasure grounds under the management of the Corporation, and a small fee is charged for admittance. The kennels of the Monmouthshire Hunt are at Coldbrook Park, the seat of Sir Arthur James Herbert G.C.V.O., D.L., J.P. who is master; the pack, comprising 34 couples, hunts on Monday and Thursday; Abergavenny, Raglan and Monmouth are convenient places for hunting visitors.

Coldbrook Park is the residence of Sir Arthur James Herbert G.C.V.O., D.L., J.P.; The Hill, of the Hon. Miss Lewis; Nant Oer, of Ferdinand Pakington John Hanbury esq. D.L., J.P.; The Pentre, of Major-Gen. Arthur Solly-Flood C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O. and Llywndu Court, of Frederick Mills esq. D.L., J.P.

The Marquess of Abergavenny, who is lord of the manor, R. Baker-Gabb esq. and Sir Arthur James Herbert G.C.V.O., D.L., J.P. of Coldbrook Park, are the principal landowners.

The area of Abergavenny parish and borough is 820 acres; rateable value, £38,317; the population in 1901 was 7,795 and 1911, 8,511, which includes 8 officers and 172 inmates in the workhouse.

SCHOOLS.

Grammar, founded by Henry VIII. in 1543 & now a Secondary school under the Board of Education, was endowed by that king with part of the possessions of the suppressed priory; he also granted the old parish church of St. John for the use of the school, & it continued to be so used until the erection of the new school buildings in Pen-y-pound: these are of stone in the Tudor Domestic style & were built in 1897-8 at a cost, including site, of over £6,000; the endow-

ABERSYCHAN was constituted a civil parish under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73); it now contains Garndiffaith, Pontnewnydd, Talywain and the hamlets of Cefnycrib, Cwm Avon, Cwmffrwoer, Cwmantddu, Freehold land, Goly-nos, Pentrepiod, Snatchwood, Tranch and Varteg; the village of Abersychan is at the confluence of the Sychan with the Tarisen or Afon Lwyd; in 1844 it was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from the civil parish of Tre-veithin; it is 163 miles from London, 2 north-west from Pontypool, and has two railway stations, Abersychan on the Eastern Valleys branch of the Great Western railway and Talywain on the London and North Western branch of their line from Brynmawr to Pontypool; it is in the Monmouth division of the county, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Pontypool, rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 & 22 Vict. c. 98), adopted June 3, 1864, included the whole of the parish except Pontypool, but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," the parish is now governed by an Urban District Council, consisting of eighteen members. The Abersychan Gas Company, formed in 1870, supplies gas from works near Abersychan railway station; water is obtained from works at Cwm Avon, the property of the Pontypool Gas and Water Co. The civil parish contains portions of three ecclesiastical parishes, viz. Abersychan, St. Luke's and Treveithin. The church of St. Thomas, locally in the hamlet of Talywain, is a building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and vestry, west porch and a western belfry containing one bell, and was redecorated in 1905 at a cost of £550; there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1832. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with 1½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the vicar of Treveithin, and held since 1911 by the Rev. David Taliesin Robert James B.A. of St. David's, Lampeter. There is a Catholic chapel, built in 1863, and dedicated to St. Francis of Assisi, and Welsh and English Baptist and Congregational chapels; a United Methodist and Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The Working Men's Institute, opened in February, 1905, comprises baths, and reading, recreation and billiard rooms. There is a police station here for the county constabulary, erected in 1885. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley and some land in pasturage. The area of the civil parish and urban district is 10,124 acres; rateable value, £89,057. The population in 1901 was 17,768 and 1911, 24,656. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 11,601.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: Central, 7,195; North, 5,736; Pontnewnydd North, 6,260 and Pontnewnydd South, 5,465.

ABERTILLERY is a town and civil parish formed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," from the civil parish of Abersystruth, with a station on the Great Western railway, 176 miles from London, 18 miles north from Newport, 2 south from Blaiza and 9 south-east from Tredegar, and is in the Abertillery division of the county, hundred of Abergavenny, petty sessional division and union of Bedwelly, Tredegar county court district, and in the rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1876. The town was governed by a Local Board from 1875 until the "Local Government Act, 1894," authorised the present Urban District Council.

By Local Government Board Order, No. 29,493, which came into operation March 10, 1893, the Urban District of Abertillery was extended to include the civil parish of Llanhilleth. By Local Government Board Order, No. 29,986, which came into operation September 29, 1893, part of the Urban District of Ebbw Vale was transferred to the Urban District of Abertillery, and part of the latter to the former.

Abertillery is lighted with gas from the Council's works on the Aberbeeg road, and with electricity from the Council's generating station at Aberbeeg; water is supplied from works at Cwmillery, the property of the Urban District Council. A refuse destructor was erected between Abertillery and Six Bells in 1913 at a cost of £5,000. The church of St. Michael, erected in 1854, rebuilt in 1898 and enlarged in 1906, at a cost of £7,000, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, side chapel and vestries, and affords 850 sittings. The register dates from the year 1854. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £300, in the gift of the rector of Abersystruth, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Hiram Smyth Rees L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The Catholic chapel, built in 1877, is dedicated to St. Mary. There are also Baptist, Congregational, Calvinistic Methodist, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan

CWMTILLERY is a hamlet in the ecclesiastical parish of Abertillery, lying in a dingle, about a mile and a half north from Abertillery. The church of St. Paul, a chapel of ease to Abertillery, erected in 1890 at a cost of £1,250, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry, north porch and a western turret containing one bell; there are 305 sittings. Attached is a burial ground of one acre, under the control of the vicar of Abertillery. There are Primitive Methodist, Wesleyan, Baptist and United Methodist chapels, and a Reading Room. At the head of the valley are the Urban District Council water-works. A new service reservoir and balancing tank has been constructed here for the supply of water in the Urban District, and to reduce the pressure of water to be conveyed to the Abercarn area; the tank is connected with the main at Blaenavon by the driving of a tunnel through the Coity mountain; the whole forms part of a joint scheme of the Abertillery, Abercorn, Risca and Mynyddialwyn Councils for the supply of water to their district areas. The population of this hamlet is employed in the contiguous collieries.

BASSALEG is a parish on the Ebbw Vawr river, 162 miles from London, 2½ west from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, and in the rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The Monmouthshire canal runs through the parish and the Great Western and Brecon and Merthyr railways form a junction here. There are four railway stations in the parish; two at Bassaleg and Rhiwderin and Rogerstone stations. The church of St. Basil, standing on an eminence, is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: in 1879 the church was re-seated and restored at a cost of £1,349, and again in 1904 at a cost of £3,000, and now affords 450 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1768; marriages, 1754. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £285, with residence and 1½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1808 by the Rev. David Bowen B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, surrogate. There are Baptist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels at Bassaleg, Baptist, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels at Rogerstone and a Congregational chapel at Rhiwderin. The charities, amounting to about £21 10s. yearly, are distributed in bread, money and kind. On an eminence about a mile from the village, is a circular entrenchment, supposed to have been a Saxon camp, about a mile from which is another earthwork, called Pen-y-park, Newydd. Tredegar Park is the seat of Lord Tredegar, lord of the manor and principal landowner; the mansion contains some fine apartments, several of which, and notably the Brown Room, display much highly-skilled and beautiful woodwork. The soil is clay and sand; subsoil, limestone and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley, and a little pasturage. The area of the ecclesiastical parish is 6,855 acres of land, 90 of water and 42 of foreshore; population in 1911, 4,867.

DUFFRYN is a hamlet 3 mile south. The area is 1,950 acres of land and inland water, 9 of foreshore and 42 of tidal water; rateable value, £6,733; population in 1911, 284.

By Local Government Board Order No. 53,094, April 1st, 1909, part of Duffryn was added to Newport county borough for civil purposes.

GRAIG is a hamlet three-quarters of a mile west. The area is 2,624 acres; rateable value, £4,887; population in 1911, 1,150.

ROGERSTONE is a hamlet, including the village of Tydn, 1½ miles north-west, with a station on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway. The church of St. John, a chapel of ease to St. Basil, Bassaleg, erected in 1888, at a cost of £2,370, is an edifice of blue stone with Bath stone dressings in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are 310 sittings. The Catholic chapel of SS. Basil and Gwladys is a Gothic structure of stone, opened in Oct. 1892, and has about 150 sittings. A public library, the gift of the late A. Carnegie esq. of Skibo Castle, Scotland, was erected in 1905, at a cost of £1,400. St. Mellons Rural District Small-Pox Hospital at CEFN was erected in 1902 at a cost of £492 and will hold eight patients. Here are the remains of an ancient castle. The area is 2,257 acres of land and 42 of water; rateable value, £68,527; population in 1911, 3,433.

BEAUFORT (Welsh, Cendl) is a small town on the road from Cardiff to Liverpool, with a station on the London and North Western railway, 26 miles south-east from Brecon, 2½ north from Cardiff, 9½ south-west from Crickhowell, 2½ north-west from Newport (Mon.) and 248 from London (by rail). Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by Order of the County Council, Beaufort was created a civil parish from the Monmouthshire portion of Llangattock civil parish in Ebbw Vale Urban District, and is governed by that Council. It is in the hundred and union of Crickhowell, petty sessional division of Bedwelly, county court district of Tredegar, Ebbw Vale division of the county, rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1843 from the civil parishes of Llangattock and Llangynidr in Breconshire and Aberystroth and Bedwelly in Monmouthshire. The church of St. David's, erected in 1891, at a cost of £1,243, is a building of red Gilewern sandstone, with Ebbw Vale buff brick dressings, and consists of chancel, nave, and a turret containing one bell; there is a memorial window to the late Rev. J. W. Morgan, and a pulpit erected in memory of the late Dr. Bevan: the font and ewer were presented by Lord and Lady Glanusk, and the lectern by Miss Bevan: there is a very prettily designed reposes at the east end erected by Mr. Edward Morris to the memory of his wife; it is triptych in design and similar to the one in Llandaff Cathedral; there are 300 sittings. The church of St. John, erected in 1842 by Messrs. Crawshaw, Bailey and Co. at a cost of £15,566, is a plain oblong edifice of sandstone, consisting of nave, north porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: there are 250 sittings, but it is now used only occasionally. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £276, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff and the Crown alternately, and held since 1889 by the Rev. David Jones Llewelyn, of St. Aidan's, who resides at Bassa. The churchyard of St. David's was inclosed by railings at a cost of £107. A new Parish Hall was erected in 1905. The burial ground, which occupies 2 acres, was presented by the 8th Duke of Beaufort K.G. (d. 1899). The Ebbw Vale Coal, Iron and Steel Works are partly in this parish and partly in the parish of Aberystroth. Beaufort House, formerly a Church house, was converted into a Fever Hospital in 1902. The area is 747 acres; rateable value, £8,297; the population in 1911 was 3,291 in the civil and 5,211 in the ecclesiastical parish.

BEDWAS is a parish and village, on the river Rumney and the Glamorganshire border, 163 miles from London, 11 miles west-by-north from Newport, and 2 miles north from Caerphilly, in the Bedwelly division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division of Bedwelly, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. There are two railway stations on the Brecon and Merthyr railway, one at Bedwas village, and the other at Maes-y-cwmmwr; both are in the parish, but are 4½ miles apart. Bedwas and Machen are governed by an Urban District Council, formed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by Order in Council, dated 30th September, 1912. The church of Saint Barrowg is an ancient building of stone, in the Decorated Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave, south porch, and a western tower containing 6 bells: the church has 270 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £614, including 104 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Connop Lewis Price M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. There are chapels for Baptists (English and Welsh), Congregationalists and Wesleyans at Bedwas. The parish abounds with coal, and there are several collieries in operation, and some chemical works. Fairs are held on the 3rd of April and the 6th of October. Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, Capt. John Glynne Richards Homfray, John Thomas Davies esq. and the rector are the principal landowners. The soil is light loam; subsoil, gravel and loam. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. There is much mountain land and some pasture. The area is 4,166 acres of land and 29 of water; rateable value, £24,880; population in 1911 was 3,231 in the civil parish and 2,634 in the ecclesiastical, of which 619 were in Glamorganshire.

BEDWELTY is a parish and head of a petty sessional division and union, 155 miles from London, 16 north-west from Newport, 15 north-west from Pontypool, and 8 south from Tredegar, in the Bedwelly division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, Tredegar county court district, rural deanery of Bedwelly, arch-deaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. There are stations here called Bedwelly Pits, Argoed, Holly Bush, Markham Village and Blackwood, all on the Sirhowy branch of the London and North Western railway, and also at Aberbargoed and Pengam on the Brecon and Merthyr railway. By Local Government Board Order, No. 26,933, which came into operation May 29, 1891, the rural part of the civil parish was constituted an Urban District and governed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), by a Council. By Local Government Board Order, No. 29,553, which came into operation September 29, 1893, part of the Urban District of Bedwelly was transferred to the Urban District of Ebbw Vale, and part of the latter to the former. The parish is supplied with water from the works of the Tredegar Urban District Council. The church of St. Sannan is an ancient stone building, in the Early English style, standing on the top of a hill, midway between Argoed and Bargoed railway stations, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: an organ was presented in 1900 by Evan Thomas esq. of Builth, in memory of his wife, Rachel Thomas (Ella): the church was restored in 1858 and again in 1902, and has 300 sittings. An acre of ground, the gift of the 4th and last Viscount Tredegar (d. 1913), was added to the churchyard in 1910. The register dates from the year 1624. The living is a rectory, with Blackwood annexed, net yearly value £294, with residence and 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1006 by the Rev. Robert William Roberts, of St. Aidan's, and rural dean of Bedwelly. The parish contains many iron works and collieries: Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, Mrs. Brewer, Edmund W. T. Llewellyn Brewer-Williams esq. the Ebbw Vale Co. Limited, the trustees of the late Lady Llanover, the trustees of the late Colonel John Yerbury Moggridge B.E. and Edward Lewis esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 7,112 acres of land and 43 of water; rateable value in 1919, £198,611; the population in 1911 was 22,547 in the civil and 11,308 in the ecclesiastical parish.

 The population of the Urban District Wards in 1911 was:—Aberbargoed, 5,051; Argoed, 2,051; Blackwood, 4,221; Cwmsyflog, 3,485; New Tredegar, 4,727; Pengam, 3,012.
 The following villages and places are within the parish of Bedwelly:—Aberbargoed, Argoed, Blackwood, Cwmsyflog, Holly Bush, Maunmoel, Pengam, Rock and New Tredegar. New Tredegar, with Cwmsyflog, will be found under a separate heading.
 Sexton and Parish Clerk, Rees Rowlands.

ABERBARGOED is a large and rapidly growing village, with a station on the Brecon and Merthyr railway, 15½ miles from London, opposite to Bargoed, in Glamorgan. It is lighted with gas by the Rhydney and Aber Valleys Gas and Water Co. Limited. The great increase in population is due to the sinking of three new pits and the establishment of chemical works by the Powell-Duffryn Steam Coal Co. Limited. St. Peter's church here is connected with St. Sannan's Church, Bedwelly, and affords 315 sittings; there are also Calvinistic Methodist, Wesleyan, Welsh Congregational, and English and Welsh Baptist chapels. The Workmen's Hospital, built in 1909, at a cost, including equipment, of £6,000, for the benefit of the workpeople engaged in the Rhydney Valley by the Powell-Duffryn Steam Coal Co. Limited, is available for 24 patients, and is supported by workmen's contributions. The Workmen's Institute, a branch of the Bargoed and District Workmen's Institutes and Libraries, built in 1907, contains a lecture hall, seating 150 persons, a billiard room containing five tables, and a library of 2,000 volumes. A Police station was erected here in 1909, at a cost of £1,900; E. Blackmore, acting sergeant in charge.

Town Sub-Post, M. O. T. & Telephone Call Office.—John S. Perkins, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive through Cardiff & delivered from Bargoed

Public Elementary School, built in 1904, for 550 children, & enlarged in 1908 for a mixed & infants' school, is now formed into the senior girls' & infants' department, with cookery class, & open-air class for tuberculous children attached; the school will hold 380 senior girls & 320 infants; Miss Jenny Griffiths, senior girls' mistress; Miss G. R. Rees, infants' mist
 A new school was built in 1911, at a cost of £7,000, for 400 senior boys; James Powell, master
 Railway Station, James Watts, station master

ARGOED is a village in the parish of Bedwelly, with a station on the Sirhowy line of the London and North Western railway, 15½ miles from London and 6 south from Tredegar. Here are Welsh and English Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels and a Church Mission hall. In the neighbourhood are several collieries.

The Markham Village was founded near Argoed by the Markham Steam Coal Co.; a site of about 40 acres being purchased midway between Argoed and Holly Bush for the erection of 400 houses, and the work of building was commenced in 1913. The cost of the scheme was about £100,000.

BLACKWOOD is a large village, about half a mile long, in a beautiful valley, through which flows the river Sirhowy, and has a station on the Newport and Sirhowy branch of the London and North Western railway, 8 miles south from Tredegar and 7½ south-west from Pontypool; it is lighted with gas from works the property of the Bedwelly Urban District Council. St. Margaret's, formerly a chapel of ease to Bedwelly, erected in 1876, was formed into a conventual district in 1911; it is a small building of stone with Bath stone dressings in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and western turret containing one bell; it has 280 sittings. The Rev. Luther Evans L.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter, is the curate in charge. St. Margaret's Church Hall was erected in 1912, at a cost of £2,250. The services are conducted by a Church Army missionary. A Presbyterian Church of Wales was built here in 1910, at a cost of £500; it has 150 sittings. The large public hall, holding 600 people, is used for public meetings and entertainments. Here is an iron foundry and two collieries.

BLACKWOOD, see Bedwellty.

BLAENAVON is a town and parish situated among the hills and on the river Avon Llwyd, or Torvaen, and has a station on the Great Western railway (Eastern Valleys branch), which commences at Newport and terminates here; the London and North Western railway has also a station, called the high level station, on the line from Abersychan to Brynmawr, about a quarter of a mile from the town, on the mountain side. It is 167 miles from London by rail, 6 north from Pontypool, 6 south-west from Abergavenny, 5½ west from Llanover and 14 north from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, Pontypool hundred and petty sessional division, union of Abergavenny, within the county court district of Abergavenny and Pontypool, and in the rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), was adopted March 27, 1860, and under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), the parish is divided into three wards, viz. Eastern, Western and Central, and governed by an Urban District Council of 18 members. The town is lighted with gas from works the property of the Blaenavon Gas Co. Limited; water is now supplied by the Urban District Council and obtained from three reservoirs, two at Llanover road and one at Cae Cradoch. The Cemetery, on the Varteg road, is owned by the District Council. The civil parish was formed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by Local Government Board Order, No. 31,805, from parts of Aberystwith, Llanfoist, Llanover, Llanwenarth Ultra and Trevelthyn with Pontypool, the area being the same as that of the Urban District. The ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1860 from the civil parishes of Llanover, Llanfoist, Llanwenarth and Trevelthyn. The church of St. Peter, built and endowed by Samuel Hopkins and Thomas Hill esqrs. the proprietors, at that time, of the Blaenavon Iron and Coal Works, was opened in 1804 and consecrated in June, 1805, and is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and a western tower, with small spire, containing 6 bells: the church was reseated in 1850 and thoroughly repaired, and again reseated in 1883, at a cost of about £1,000, partly borne by the Blaenavon Co. Limited, the patrons of the living: there are 750 sittings, 500 being free: the churchyard was enlarged in 1882, at the expense of the Company, by whom the land was enclosed and presented, and a further extension was made in 1891, the land being given by the Company. The register dates from the year 1805. The living is a vicarage, with Capel Newydd annexed, net yearly value £350, with residence, in the gift of the Blaenavon Company Limited, and held since 1914 by the Rev. John Griffith Mathias B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and surrogate. The Catholic Church, built in 1868, is dedicated to the Sacred Heart and St. Felix; there are also several dissenting chapels. The Town Hall is a building of stone, erected in 1860 at a cost of upwards of £1,000, and will seat 600 people; the trustees of the late J. G. Williams are the proprietors. The Police Court, in Church road, was opened 1894, and here the petty sessions are held. The Blaenavon Workmen's Institute in High street, opened January 7, 1895, and erected in 1893-4, at a cost of about £9,000, consists, on the ground floor, of library, reading, entertainment and committee rooms, and an assembly room above, holding 1,500 persons; there is also an attached house for the caretaker. The Blaenavon Company Limited have very extensive iron and steel works and collieries, with by-product coke ovens, recovering sulphate of ammonia, tar, creosote oil, naphthalene, toluol and benzol; three blast furnaces, seven Siemens steel furnaces and rolling mills, for rails, tyres, tinplate bars and billets, and employ about 4,500 persons. Here is a brewery. The market day is on Saturday, and fairs are held on 16th of April and 17th of September. A hospital for the treatment of accident cases was erected in 1883, and is entirely managed and supported by a local committee of the workmen and agents of the Blaenavon Company. Blaenavon House, in the park, is now used by the directors of the Blaenavon Company Limited. The principal landowners are the Blaenavon Company; John Capel Hanbury esq. the devisees of the late

Francis James and James Edwards esq. have also small properties here. The soil is clay; subsoil, coal and mining strata, resting on mountain limestone. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 4,612 acres; rateable value, £37,161; the population in 1912 was 12,010 in the civil and 11,946 in the ecclesiastical parish.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: Central, 3,978; East, 4,234; West, 3,798.

BLAINA and ABERYSTRUTH.

ABERYSTRUTH is a parish, 9 miles west from Abergavenny, 5 1/2 east from Tredegar, in the Abertillery division of the county, hundred of Abergavenny, petty sessional division and union of Bedwelly, Tredegar county court district, rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. This extensive parish has no village of its own name, but the following places are contained in it, viz.:—Nant-y-glo and Garnfach (which will be found under a separate heading) and Blaina.

BLAINA is a large village with a station on the Monmouthshire section of the Great Western railway, 160 1/2 miles from London, 4 north from Aberbeeg, and 5 1/2 east from Tredegar, and is governed by the Nant-y-glo and Blaina Urban District Council, established under the "Local Government Act, 1894." The church of St. Peter, the parish church of Aberystroth, standing in Blaina, is a cruciform structure of stone, rebuilt in 1857, in the Norman style, and consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an eastern tower with spire, containing 8 bells, given by Messrs. Lancaster and Co. Limited: there are 600 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1736; marriages, 1737. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £210, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Abergavenny and held since 1917 by the Rev. Thomas Parry Pryce B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The mission room of All Saints is attached to the parish church, and has 200 sittings. Charities, amounting annually to about £2, are given to the poor at Christmas. There are several dissenting chapels and a Salvation Army hall, and a new hall in connection with the Hope Forward movement was opened in May, 1909, at a cost of £5,000. A cemetery of 5 acres was formed in 1886 and is under the control of the Nant-y-glo and Blaina Urban District Council. Here are the Blaina works and furnaces, and in the vicinity are many collieries, giving employment to a great number of hands. There is a theatre seating 1,000 persons. The Marquess of Abergavenny is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are the Nant-y-glo and Blaina Iron Works Co. Limited, the Ebbw Vale Co. Limited and Messrs. Webb Brothers. The soil of the parish is all mountain land, scarcely any cultivated, but there are a few farms amongst the hills; nearly the whole country is taken up by iron works, mines and collieries. The area of Aberystroth civil parish is 3,862 acres; rateable value, £82,605; the population in 1911 was 15,395, of which 11,304 are attached to the mother church.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," Abertillery civil parish and part of Ebbw Vale civil parish were formed from Aberystroth civil parish.

The area of Nant-y-glo and Blaina Urban District is 3,862 acres; rateable value in 1912, £71,438; the population in 1911 was 15,395.

The population of the Urban District wards in 1911 was:—Central, 4,876; North, 5,291; South, 5,228.

BRIERY HILL, see Ebbw Vale.

BRYNGWYN is a parish, on the high road from Monmouth to Abergavenny, 2½ miles north-west from Raglan station, on the Monmouth and Pontypool Road section of the Great Western railway, 9½ west-south-west from Monmouth, and 6¼ from Usk, in the Monmouth division of the county, Raglan hundred and petty sessional division, union of Abergavenny, county court district of Usk and in the rural deanery of Raglan, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The parish church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone, originally in the Early English style of the 13th century, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells, of which the tenor has the legend: "Ave Maria, gratie plena"; the second, "Deo detur gloria, Fear God; Honour the King, 1632"; the third bell is inscribed, "Thomas Harry, churchwarden": there are 100 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1643; marriages, 1755. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £161, with 40 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Abergavenny, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Joseph Jones, of the London College of Divinity. The charities amount to £21 yearly, which is distributed in bread and money. A British camp, called "The Camp Hill," is in this parish, and there is an out-post connected with it at Wern-y-Cwr. The Marquess of Abergavenny is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Major-Gen. Lord Treowen C.B., C.M.G. (Lord Lieut.) and William Reginald Joseph Fitzherbert Herbert esq. D.L., J.P. The soil is gravel, and clay in parts; sub-soil, clay. The chief crops are corn, hay and some roots. The area is 1,481 acres; rateable value, £1,899; population in 1911, 246.

CAERLEON and LLANGATTOCK-JUXTA-CAERLEON.

CAERLEON is a town and parish on the road from Newport to Usk, and has a station on the Pontypool, Caerleon and Newport junction branch of the Great Western railway; it is 160 miles from London, 3 north-east from Newport and 8 from Usk; it is in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of the hundred of Usk, petty sessional division of Caerleon, union and county court district of Newport, and stands on the banks of the Usk, which is here spanned by a stone bridge of three arches, erected some years since in place of an ancient structure of wood a little higher up, and defended at each end by a round tower, now in ruins. Geoffrey from Monmouth states that Caerleon, originally named Caerwyck, was built by Beli-Mawr in the 3rd or 4th century before Christ; but of its history before the Roman invasion nothing certain is known. The modern name of Caerleon was probably derived from its occupation by the Romans, when it was for many years the station of the Second Legion: as "Castra Legionis" it was the capital of the Roman province of Britannia Secunda, and therefore a place of considerable importance. It is generally believed to have been the seat of an archbishop from very early times, and Saint Fagan is said to have been the first archbishop in the year 177. When Augustine demanded homage to the Bishop of Rome from the Welsh Church, his demand was protested against, and successfully resisted, by Dubritius and his seven suffragan bishops; he was followed by St. David, who removed the episcopal seat to Menavia. Tradition says that Julius and Aaron were martyred here during the Dioclesian persecution. Adolphus, or Cârfrawd, is thought by some to have represented the see of Caerleon in the Council of Arles A.D. 314. Giraldus asserts that there were three fine churches at Caerleon, one dedicated to Julius, another to Aaron, and the third distinguished as the Metropolitan church of Wales. The town was formerly incorporated, and the chief officer had the title of mayor; and a curious letter from the mayor and burgesses of Caerleon to the mayor of Monmouth is preserved among the Cotton MSS. in the British Museum. The town adopted the "Local Government Act of 1858,"

June 7, 1872, and was governed by a Local Board, until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council; it is lighted with gas by the Newport Gas Co. and supplied with water from the Newport Corporation Water Works.

The Monmouthshire Training College occupies a site overlooking Caerleon.

By Local Government Board Order No. 34,567, dated October 1, 1896, the rural part of the former township was added to the Urban District and constituted a civil parish. By Local Government Board Order No. 34,933, dated October 1, 1896, part of Christchurch civil parish was added to Caerleon.

Fairs are held here on May 1st and September 21st. The Newport (Mon.) Hurdle and Steeplechases are held here in the early autumn. A Museum, erected by public subscription in 1851, near the church, contains many local antiquities, chiefly Roman, of which an illustrated catalogue was published in 1862: the collection includes three fine specimens of tessellated pavement, of which the third, discovered in the parish churchyard a few years ago, has a beautifully formed labyrinthine pattern, said to be unique in Great Britain. The Reading Room and Billiard Room was built by subscription in 1875, at a cost of £400. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 571 acres of land, 16 of tidal water and 15 of foreshore; rateable value, £10,808; the population in 1911 was 2,046, including 599 inmates and 61 officials in Newport Borough Mental Hospital.

LLANGATTOCK-JUXTA-CAERLEON is a parish in the rural deanery of Caerleon, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff; the church of St. Cadoc is a building in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower containing a clock and 8 bells; a Norman arch of very early date was discovered at the base of the tower during the restoration in 1867; the upper portion of the tower is Early English; the greater part of the windows are decorated and the eastern portion of the chancel Late Perpendicular: there are 13 stained windows in the church, 10 of which are memorials to Charles Williams esq. the founder of the Caerleon charities. The church was restored and mainly rebuilt in 1867, at an outlay of £3,000, and during the period 1874-90 received various improvements, at a cost of £1,159; there are 690 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1695; marriages, 1715; the earlier copies were destroyed, it is supposed, during the Rebellion. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £254, with 52 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since 1906 by the Rev. Frederick William Garforth Whitfield M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. In 1863 the old vicarage was pulled down and the site added to the churchyard, and a new vicarage built to the west of and adjoining the churchyard. The Newport (Mon.) County Borough Mental Hospital, situated in the parish, occupies part of a site of 122 acres, and was erected in 1903-5, at an approximate cost of £160,000, from designs by Mr. A. J. Wood, architect, of London; the building is available for 400 patients, besides a staff of 60 persons. There are remains here of a Roman amphitheatre, as well as of the town wall, together with a large artificial mound, dating probably from Roman times. Lord Tredegar is lord of the manor. The principal landowner is Sir Humphrey Mackworth bart. J.P. The soil is red loam; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,253 acres of land, 14 of inland water, 15 of tidal water and 21 of foreshore; rateable value, £5,078; the population in 1911 was 264 in the civil and 2,310 in the ecclesiastical parish, which comprises Llangatock and part of Caerleon civil parishes.

CAERWENT is a parish situated in the supposed exhausted basin of a pre-historic estuary on the Nodern and traversed by the high road from Newport to Chepstow, surrounded by hills in the form of a horse shoe, and is 3 miles north-west from Portskewett station on the Severn Tunnel junction and Chepstow section of the Great Western railway, and 5½ west-south-west from Chepstew, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldwell, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstew, and in the rural deanery of Netherwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. Caerwent, now an ordinary village, with nothing to distinguish it beyond the remains of the ancient walls, was originally the site of the Roman station Vents Silurum, where the second legion fixed itself on the north-west side of the Severn, with the view of penetrating further into the country of South Wales; it is extraordinarily rich in Roman remains, and everywhere throughout the village and on the grounds of the Great House farm, within the walls (considerable parts of which still stand), Roman remains have been met with.

 The excavation of the Roman city has now been proceeding for some years past in a systematic manner, under the superintendence of A. T. Martin esq. M.A.
 F.S.A. and A. E. Hudd esq. F.S.A. The work was begun in Aug. 1899, when trial excavations were made in the south-west corner of the city, and the remains of several houses uncovered, including one with a central courtyard. In Sept. of that year a committee was formed, with Lord, afterwards Viscount, Tredegar, as president, for the prosecution of the undertaking, and up to the end of 1900 other dwellings were excavated and numerous objects of interest met with, comprising capitals and shafts of columns, querns, pot covers, engraved gems, and bone, iron and bronze articles;
 slight human remains, and considerable remains of animals, with oyster and other shells, were also dug up: on some houses the wall paintings were still visible, but it was evident that the whole site had been subjected to fire. In 1902 more houses, remarkable for the peculiarity of their ground plan, were disclosed; these contained hypocausts, furnaces, and some fine tessellated pavements, now in the Corporation Museum at Newport. In 1903 operations were transferred to the north side of the city, and resumed on a site belonging to Lord Tredegar, resulting in the digging out of the north gate, with its interior and exterior piers, some houses with hypocausts and a fine mosaic pavement, and flanged tiles were met with: a little to the east of the centre of the north side an amphitheatre was uncovered, but the remains were scanty, consisting mainly of a wall, two feet thick, enclosing an elliptical area 145 by 121 feet. The excavations in 1904 were continued in the south-west portion of the town, and resulted in the uncovering of four houses, in one of which was found the inscribed base of a small statue dedicated to Mars, chronologically dated, and corresponding to August 23rd, 152 A.D. and in others considerable remains of tessellated pavements, fragments of columns and pottery. In 1905 the south gate and more of the site to the south-west were explored, and disclosed various architectural fragments, statuettes, pottery and animal remains; and in one house painted plaster and rudely scratched inscriptions were met with: a well, opened in 1903, was dug out to a depth of over 25 feet, and found to contain a human skull, fragments of a wooden bucket and several shoes. Nearly in the centre of the village of Caerwent is a triangular plot, called the "Village Green," which by leave of the Parish Council was also explored; here again portions of houses remained, and also a yard or court paved with flat stones, on the east side of which was a rectangular platform, 13 feet square, and at the back of this was an inscribed stone standing vertically on a base, its original height appearing to have been 4 feet, but the upper part was much worn and defaced, so that the beginning of the inscription, which is of 12 lines, and wholly in capitals, is illegible, and the total height only 3 feet 4 inches: the stone is panelled on three sides, and the inscription, though incomplete, showed that it was set up by the community of the Civitas Silurum, through their authorities, to an official who had been commanding officer of the Second Legion and subsequently governor of the provinces of Gallia Narbonensis and Gallia Lugudunensis, date according to Professor Haverhill, Oxford, about 220 A.D. Some of the Roman pavements and other remains have been removed to the museum at Caerleon, and a room, as it originally existed, has been reconstructed there, as nearly as the materials would admit. There is also a temporary museum here, at Caerwent, where some of the remains are exhibited. The whole of the walls of the Roman city may be distinctly traced, and on the south side they are in a remarkably perfect condition. An encampment or fortification at Sudbrook is supposed by some to have been constructed by the Romans, or, at all events, to have been utilized by them as a protection for the landing of soldiers, whilst other authorities maintain that the camp at Sudbrook is altogether subsequent to the Roman period: it is certain that the whole of the Caldicot level and the country around it has been the scene of important historical events in early periods, and much of the evidence is patent to an ordinary intelligent observer. The Roman city formed a parallelogram, 505 yards in length on the north and south sides, and 395 on the east and west, and the villas and baths covered an area of upwards of 50 acres. It is said that Caerwent was once a seaport, and that rings were to be seen in the walls on the south side of the ancient city to which the ships were fastened. That ships could ever have come up to the walls is very doubtful, but it is not improbable that there may once have been a navigable creek running up from the channel along the valley where the Neddin flows, and it is said that the village of Crick derived its name from this circumstance. In the time of Agricola (A.D. 78), Caerwent seems to have been at the height of its fame, and was famous for its temples, baths and theatres. Roger says that there was at this place the first academy, or university, in Britain, and that it was noted as the seat of learning and refinement. The neighbouring town of Chepstow probably came into repute as Caer-Gwent (the ancient city of Gwent) declined in importance. During the building of some cottages 100 yards west of the church, the floor of a Roman villa and some rich mosaic work were discovered by R. Milverston Duke esq. architect. A Roman pavement was also found during the restoration of the chancel in 1893 on the south side and apparently running underneath the chancel. The church of St. Stephen and St. Tathan is an ancient edifice of stone, dating from the 13th century, and consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: the chancel is Early English and has a very peculiar triple arcade on the south side, twice built up: the nave is Perpendicular, to which period the fine porch also belongs: in the church is a fine old pulpit of carved oak with the date 1632 and the arms of Lord Tredegar and of the late Sir Charles Williams, of Llangibby, whose family owned this manor for many years: the chancel was restored in 1893, the nave in 1905, and the ruined south aisle in 1912; the cost in each case was upwards of £700: the church plate, which is silver, bears the date 1571: in the church are the reputed remains of St. Tathan, who was head of the local school or monastery about 560-590: the church also contains a Roman cinerary urn, in a glass-covered niche, of 3rd or 4th century date; a pewter chalice and buckle, found in the tomb of a former vicar, date about 1200; a Roman sundial; consecration marks; a bishop's stone, and an ancient font, rescued from a local farmyard: there are 250 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1568. There is a list of vicars from 1270. The living is a discharged vicarage, annexed in 1885 to Llanvair Discoed, joint net yearly value £340, with 45 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since 1909 by the Rev. William Coleman Williams M.A. Cantuar. There is a chapel for Baptists. Near the ancient east gateway a block of 12 almshouses, for old and infirm women, was erected and endowed under the will of the late Col. Burton in 1911 and 1912. The trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis esq. of Moynes Court, Chepstow (d. 1909), who are lords of the manor, Mrs. John Cropper, St. John Gore Micklethwait esq. Major W. F. Bell, C. O. Liddell esq. and the trustees of John Lysaght esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 2,002 acres; rateable value, £2,640; population in 1911, 382 in the civil parish and 540 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes Dinham and Llanvair Discoed.

CALDICOT is a parish, on the shores of the Bristol Channel, and watered by the Neddin brook, 1½ miles north-west from Portekewett and 1¼ miles north-east from Severn Tunnel station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, and 6 miles south-west from Chepstow, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of the hundred of Caldicot, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow and in the rural deanery of Netherwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of limestone, with freestone dressings, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, but with some traces of earlier work, and consists of chancel,

nave, north aisle and an embattled tower, placed between the nave and chancel, containing a clock and 8 bells, one of which is of pre-Reformation date: the porch has a staircase leading to what may have been a parvise: in addition to a figure of the Blessed Virgin Mary, somewhat defaced, there is inside the porch and over the entrance a carved figure of the Virgin and Child, the gift of the Rev. Montague Henry Noel M.A. of Cardiff, who has also presented a new organ: at the side of the porch door is a rudely-cut consecration cross, and in the wall is a very curious half-length recumbent figure: there are also two old incised slabs in the nave: the stained east window, presented by the late Mr. Kemp, is a memorial to the Rev. E. Turberville Williams M.A. vicar here 1841-85; the restoration of the church was completed in August, 1858; an additional clergy vestry was erected in 1911; there are 320 sittings; there is a good modern lych-gate at the entrance to the churchyard. The register of burials dates from the year 1716; marriages, 1719. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with 39½ acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of Keeble College, Oxford, and held since 1916 by the Rev. Theodore Mansel Rhys Young-hughes B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a small church room in the village, used for parochial purposes. The mission church of St. Bartholomew, at Highmoor Hill, built in 1876, has a belfry with 2 bells, and will seat 100. The iron church of St. Michael and All Angels, of the Tinsplate works, was erected in 1894, and has one bell. At Dewstow, about a mile from the village, there is said to have been an ancient chapel, dedicated to St. David, but no remains now exist. There are chapels for Wesleyan Methodists and United Methodists. The County Rifle Range is in this parish. The Herbert and Kemeys charities, producing £55 yearly, are distributed in money to the second poor.

Caldicot Castle is a magnificent stronghold, formerly belonging to the De Bohuns, Earls of Hereford and hereditary High Constables of England: the general design is oblong, having a round keep on its own moated mound at the north-west corner, and horseshoe towers at the south-west and south-east angles, and a grand gatehouse in the centre of the south face; the keep, probably the oldest part of the building, is considered to have been erected by Milo Fitz Walter, who was high constable both to the Empress Maud and King Stephen, and died in 1144: the south front of the castle apparently dates from about the time of Edward II. and presents a grand and venerable appearance, but the great gatehouse in the centre of it and the postern tower opposite are of the time of Richard II.; the latter bears the name "Thomas," as founder, on its gate jamb, probably referring to Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Gloucester, son of Edward III. who was arrested by King Richard II. in person, and afterwards murdered by his order in 1397, and who married Alianor, co-heiress (with the wife of King Henry IV.) of the last De Bohun, Earl of Hereford, Essex and Northampton, whose name is sculptured on the foundation stone of an adjoining building: the whole was surrounded by a moat: the castle is said to have been rendered untenable as a military fortress in the time of

Edward IV. and is described in 1613 as having long been in ruins: the keep tower (somewhat similar in design to Hawarden) and the great gatehouse are considered to be the finest examples of military masonry remaining; the ribs of the vaulting of the portal and grand staircase are supported by sculptured heads, believed to be portraits but now much defaced, while the machicolations of the west turret and some of the lintels are carried on heads, the features of which are as sharp as when first erected, and it is believed that canopied sculptures enriched all the window heads, and that everything of the sort within reach was purposely mutilated on the attainder of Edward Stafford, last Duke of Buckingham, in 1521: William De Bohun, first Earl of Northampton, son of Humphrey De Bohun, 8th Earl of Hereford, by Elizabeth, daughter of King Edward I. was born here; Henry V. must have been here, and Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, is said to have been staying here with his young wife, Margaret Beaufort, between his marriage and the birth of Henry VII. and from hence Henry Stafford, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, marched against King Richard III. in 1483, failing in consequence of the unprecedented flood in the Severn: in 1521 the property was vested in King Henry VIII. who made it parcel of the Duchy of Lancaster, by whom it was sold in 1857 to C. E. Lewis esq. of St. Pierre, who in 1884 sold it to J. R. Cobb esq. F.S.A. who partially restored it; his grandson, G. Wheatly Cobb esq. J.P. is the present owner and resides there: Mr. Cobb allows inspection to persons interested in architectural antiquities on personal application. George Wheatly Cobb esq. is lord of the manor, and Henry Oakley esq. of Dewstow, is principal landowner. The soil is light and sandy; subsoil, clay, gravelly and limestone. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 1,983 acres of land and inland water and 1,307 of foreshore; rateable value, £12,449; the population in 1911 was 1,513.

CHAPEL HILL and TINTERN ABBEY.

CHAPEL HILL is a parish and village on the banks of the river Wye and on the high road from Chepstow to Monmouth, about one mile south-west from Tintern station on the Wye Valley branch of the Great Western railway, 5½ north from Chepstow, 10½ from Monmouth and 14½ from London, in the Monmouth division of the county, upper division of Raglan hundred, petty seasonal division, union and county court district of Chepstow, and in the rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. There are boats sailing to Chepstow, the distance by water being 9 miles. The church of St. Mary, attractively situated on the hillside above the abbey, is a building of stone, partly Early English, with later portions in a debased Gothic style: it was almost entirely rebuilt in 1866, and consists of chancel and nave under one roof and a western tower, with saddle-back roof, containing one bell: the church affords about 100 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1605; marriages, 1779. The living is a vicarage, united in 1503 by Order in Council to the rectory of Tintern Parva, joint net annual value £200, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1903 by the Rev. Alfred William Washington Palmer, who resides at Tintern Parva. The ancient chapel of St. Ann stands on the opposite side of the main road, south of the abbey, a part of it having been incorporated with the residence called "St. Ann's." In the village is a Wesleyan chapel and one for United Methodists. There is also a Parish Room, which can be hired for entertainments &c. The former tinsplate manufactory here is said to have been originally founded as wire works by Swedish and German colonists during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Charities:—(1) Thomas Hackett, of Penterry, by indenture dated Dec. 10th, 1634, reciting that Philip Hackett, late of the City of London, gentleman (eldest son of the said Thomas Hackett), then deceased, had left by will £15 to the poor of the parishes of Chapel Hill and Tintern Parva, and that Thomas Hackett had himself given £5 to the poor; he accordingly conveyed to William Catchmay and others twelve acres of land called Monck Redding, in the parish of Mownton, in lieu of the said sums of £15 and £5, the rents and profits of the land to be for the use of the said poor. (2) Francis Bradford, by will, dated June 18th, 1656, left an annual sum of £6, payable out of a certain farm at Llangattock-juxta-Usk, for putting out one poor boy apprentice yearly, the preference to be given to his own kindred. (3) Samuel Pritchard, by will, dated Dec. 27th, 1810, bequeathed £1,000 £2.15 per cent. annuities, the proceeds to be distributed amongst the poor annually on St. Stephen's day. (4) The poor widows of Chapel Hill have also the rent of a field at Penterry, called "Poor's Leic."

For parochial purposes the parish is named Chapel Hill, but probably it is more widely known as Tintern Abbey, from the fact that the ruined abbey of that name stands within its boundary. The Benedictine Abbey of Tintern, situated in the bosom of lofty wooded hills, on a bend of the river Wye, was founded May 9th, 1131, by Walter de Clare, and colonized from L'Aumone, but the church appears to have been the work of Roger Bigod, 4th Earl of Norfolk, who began it in 1269; in 1287 it was so far complete as to allow of Divine service being held, but mass was not held in the choir till 5 Oct. 1288. The extreme beauty of its position and its inherent picturesque-ness have made it justly celebrated, but it is equally worthy of admiration for its architectural character, which belongs to a Transitional style between the Early English and Decorated periods, and which for excellence of composition and delicacy of execution is rivalled by few similar structures in the kingdom. The church, with the exception of the northern arcade of the nave, remains nearly complete; the choir proper consists of four bays, with large aisles, but has no triforium: the ritual choir extended westward as far as the easternmost bay of the nave, the roof loft being placed so as to include it, and the high altar being under the tower: the nave is of six bays, with triforium and clerestory: the total length, from east to west, is 228 feet: the arches of the central tower are 70 feet high and 30 feet wide, and of these, the eastern arch was taken down and reset in 1907-8, and the work above rebuilt: the fine east window, 64 by 27 feet, now retains only its centre shaft and part of the stonework in the head, but the design of its exquisite geometrical tracery was skilfully recovered by the late Mr. Edmund Sharpe: the transept is 150 feet in total length and its north wing retains the dormitory stairs, the cloister being on that side: in the south wing is the visitors' door: each wing had two eastern chapels; both nave and choir were divided from their aisles by high stone screens, extending between the piers, but with openings for passage behind the high altar, and west of the rood screen; the great west window, 42 feet in height, still retains the whole of its tracery in an almost perfect condition, and the space below it is filled by the western doorway, with its flanking traceried arches; the extreme gracefulness of this design seems unsurpassable, and it has been felicitously reproduced in the Mediaeval Court of the Crystal Palace: on the east side of the cloister, 111 by 99 feet, are the sacristies, the chapter house, 56 by 28 feet, with three alleys, a narrow library, the slype to the infirmary, the common house, 88 by 27 feet, divided into two alleys by a central arcade, and over it the dorter (dormitory), the day stairs to which remain; adjoining, on the north side, is a kind of hall, entered by a large arcbway, and supposed to be the entrance from the river; above are chambers and next comes the frater, or refectory, 82 by 29 feet, and its wall pulpit and offices, kitchen and external lavatory: to the north-west, built over an undercroft, are the buildings assigned to the conversi, or lay brethren. At the time of the suppression of the abbey there were 13 monks only, though in its prosperity there were probably 70 or 80; it was surrendered 1 Sept. 1537 by Richard Wych, then abbot, and the revenues at the Dissolution are stated to have been £256 11s. 6d. yearly, which would probably represent at the present time an income little short of £4,000. After the Dissolution the site of the monastery was granted to the Earl of Worcester, with whose descendants, the Dukas of Beaufort, it remained until the year 1900, when it was purchased, together with several thousand acres adjoining, by the Government, and the abbey and grounds are now vested in the Commissioners of Woods and Forests for the benefit of the public. The report of Sir E. S. Howard K.C.B. dated June 29, 1907, besides recounting the repair of the eastern arch of the tower, states that the north-west side of the north transept arch was shored up and part of the south wall of the south aisle and some steps by the north entrance repaired. The removal of three old cottages north-west of the abbey has disclosed some interesting remains, and the foundations have been discovered of other portions of the monastic buildings. The soil is sand and light loam. The chief crops are barley, oats, potatoes and apples. The area is 1,303 acres of land and 4 of water, 40 of foreshore and 27 of tidal water; rateable value, £1,338; the population in 1911 was 336 in the civil parish and 661 in the ecclesiastical parish, which comprises part of Chapel Hill and Tintern Parva.

CHEPSTOW

CHEPSTOW is a market town, head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district and a parish with a station on the South Wales branch of the Great Western railway, 14½ miles from London, 16 south-by-east from Monmouth, 17 east from Newport, 28 south-west from Gloucester and 3½ by rail from Bristol, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The town is built on the side of a hill, rising with a rather steep slope from the right or west bank of the river Wye, near its confluence with the Severn. The tides here are peculiar and sometimes rise as high as 50 feet, the average is 38 feet, but a rise of 70 feet is on record.

The Wye, which separates the counties of Monmouth and Gloucester, is spanned at the north end of the town by an elegant cast-iron bridge of five arches, erected by Messrs. Hazledine, Bastrick and Co. of Bridgnorth, at a cost of £18,000, upon the site of an ancient structure of wood and stone, and was opened 24 July, 1816; lower down the river on the east side of the town is the ungraceful, but at the same time highly ingenious, railway bridge designed by Mr. I. K. Brunel, and opened 19 July, 1852, at a cost of £65,420; it is 600 feet in length, with a main span of 300 feet at a height of 50 feet above the mark of the highest known tides, and three other spans of 100 feet each; the extremely skilful construction of this bridge has made it an object of much interest to engineers, and it has been visited and inspected by scientific men from all parts of the world. Not long before the abolition of the Marches, in 1536, Charles, first Earl of Worcester, in his capacity as Lord Marcher, granted a new charter of incorporation to the bailiffs and burgesses of his town of Chepstow, which is then described as having "fallen into great ruin, indigence and decay." The charter was dated December 2nd, 1524, and seems to have been acted upon down to the time of Charles II. when its final extinction was due to some dispute between the Duke of Beaufort and the burgesses, owing to which no bailiffs were appointed and the Corporation ceased to exist. The principal officers were the steward of the lord, two bailiffs chosen by the burgesses and two sergeants-at-mace. The town, or "port" walls as they are commonly called, are still fairly perfect, except where broken through by the South Wales railway, and extend for about half-a-mile from the banks of the Wye at the southern extremity of the town, along the back of the George hotel, terminating opposite to the western entrance to the castle, and inclosing an area of upwards of ninety acres. The walls were defended at irregular intervals by ten round towers, all of which remain, and the entrance to the town on the south-west was through a large gate-house, still standing, at the top of the principal street, next the George hotel, and given to the bailiffs by the charter of 1524 to be used as the town gaol. The town, formerly incorporated, was under the control of a Local Board from 1864, but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) is now governed by an Urban District Council, and is paved, lighted with gas by a company formed in 1857, and with electric light by a company formed in 1905, and supplied with water from works at Chepstow park and St. Arvans grange, the property of the company; the reservoirs have a combined capacity of 2,900,000 gallons. The town was drained and partially repaved, and a cattle market constructed in 1893-4 at a total cost of about £3,000. It is not now a port under the Customs, but is attached to Lydney, which is a creek in the port of Gloucester. The police control is entrusted to the county constabulary, who have offices and a police station here.

The church of St. Mary, which was that of the Benedictine Priory founded here in the 12th century, is an ancient edifice of stone originally Norman but partially destroyed: it consists of chancel, very wide transepts, clerestoried nave of four bays, and an embattled western tower, erected in 1705-6, rising from within the church, and in part built on the ancient west front; it contains 8 bells and a clock with chimes: of the central tower, which fell down in 1701, there remains only the base of one of the massive piers once probably supporting it. In 1841 the whole fabric, in order to provide an increased number of sittings, was extensively altered and rebuilt under the direction of Mr. Edward Blore, architect, but these alterations were unhappily of such a nature as to destroy almost entirely the original character of the building; a shallow chancel was erected and the transepts enlarged by destroying the eastern bay of the nave and incorporating it in new transepts; the aisles were also pulled down, and the arcades, consisting of plain round arches on massive square piers, built up; the north porch was removed, and its Norman arch placed under the tower, the western gallery was extended, and other galleries were erected in the new transepts: in 1890 a restoration of the church was begun, under the superintendence of Messrs. Seddon and Carter, the diocesan architects, with a view of repairing the injuries done in 1841; the flooring of the nave, which had been raised to a considerable height, was brought down to its proper level, the western gallery removed and the nave generally repaired; lofty double arches in the Early English style were thrown across the transepts, and the centre shaft of those on the north side rests on the base of an ancient pier of clustered columns supposed to have been intended to carry one of the arches of a central tower; more recently, a chancel in the Early English style has been erected, with other work, at a cost of upwards of £8,000. The stained east window was erected in 1896 by Baron de Ferrières as a memorial to his father; in the nave are two memorial windows to Anne Morris, d. 5 Oct. 1868, and one other stained window: on the north side of the nave is a canopied tomb, with open arched cornice surmounted by pinnacles and shields of arms within scroll-work, and below it, on a high tomb, recumbent effigies, painted and gilt, of Henry (Somerset), 2nd Earl of Worcester, d. 26 Nov. 1549, and Elizabeth (Browne), his wife: on the south side of the chancel is a lofty recessed and canopied Jacobean tomb, painted and gilt, to Thomas Shipman and Margaret (Maddock) wife to Richard Clayton esq. her 2nd husband, dated 1620: there are two male effigies kneeling at a desk, and a female effigy recumbent in front, and on the front of the lower part of the tomb are kneeling figures of two boys and ten girls; this tomb was restored c. 1900 by the Duke of Beaufort; there are also in the church various modern tablets; under the tower is a floorstone with arms and an anagrammatic inscription to Henry Marten, the regicide, M.P. (Berks) in 1610, and one of the signatories to the warrant for the execution of Charles I. he died at Chepstow Castle in Sept. 1680: the arcaded stone pulpit was given by the Strigull Lodge of Freemasons, No. 2,186, 4 Nov. 1891; the font is octagonal with quatrefoiled sides, and slender detached buttress supports; the old Norman font is preserved in a bay of the aisle; the five bays of the nave consist of the recessed arches of the built-up arcade, a triforium with small double openings on the south, and smaller single openings on the north side, and a clerestory, containing a single round-headed 4played window in each bay; the ceiling was originally groined, but is now of oak, flat and richly decorated; two stages of the Late Norman west front remain, the lower has a deeply recessed entrance of five orders, the arch being elaborately ornamented with zigzag moulding and other carved work, and between it and the flanking buttresses are two small blind arches, similarly treated; the stage above it is lighted by a triplet of the same date; the two stages of the tower, which rise above this, have Italian details: the church affords 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1596, and contains a number of entries relating to the siege of the castle during the civil wars. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £220, with 66 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of Simeon's trustees, and held since 1909 by the Rev. Percy Dewe M.A. of University College, Oxford.

Besides the Priory church there were formerly several ancient chapels. That of St. Ewen, in Bridge street, is still standing, but has been modernized and converted into dwelling houses, but there remains one gable, which seems to indicate its former use. Lower down in Bridge street was the chapel of St. Anne, no traces of which now remain; and on the opposite side of the bridge stood the chantry chapel of St. David. In Beaufort square is a chamber with an ancient groined stone roof in three bays, now the post office, which is said to have been the crypt of another chapel; there was also a chapel, dedicated to St. Thomas, in Welsh street.

The Catholic church in Welsh street, dedicated to St. Mary, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, erected in 1796 and seats about 200 persons. The Baptist chapel, Lower Church street, erected in 1816 and enlarged in 1869, is a plain stone building, and has 300 sittings. The United Methodist chapel, Moor street, was erected in 1877, and has 150 sittings. The Congregational chapel, Welsh street, is a building of stone, erected in 1824, and enlarged in 1867, and will seat 360 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, Albion square, also in the Gothic style, was erected in 1855 at a cost of £1,260; it seats 250 persons. The Catholic Apostolic church, Hawkers Hill street, erected in 1832, is an edifice of stone in a Classic style, and has about 150 sittings.

The Cemetery, at Hardwick, formed in 1856 at a cost of about £2,300, has two mortuary chapels and is under the control of the Urban District Council.

The public buildings comprise the Bank buildings, erected by the late John Best Snead esq. banker.

The local Farmers' Club holds its meetings at the Beaufort Arms hotel; a ploughing match in connection therewith takes place annually, with a considerable sum is awarded in prizes. The Freemasons' Hall is in Moor street. The Chepstow Constitutional Club, Bank buildings, was established in 1884, and consists of a reading, billiard and amusement rooms. Steeplechases are held annually on a course adjacent to the town, the office being at the Beaufort Arms hotel. The Fire Brigade, established 1889, consists of a captain and nine men; the engine station is in Lower Nelson street. The Chepstow Landing Stages Co. Limited was formed in 1889 for facilitating the landing of passengers brought by water to the town.

The trade of the town consists chiefly in grain, timber, bark, coal and building stone. The ship-building and engineering establishment carried on by Messrs. E. Finch and Co. (1916) Limited gives employment to a large number of hands: there are several wharves and a boat-building yard.

There are branches here of Lloyds Bank, the London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited and Barclays Bank Ltd.

The market day is Saturday, and there is a market held on alternate Tuesdays, when farming stock is offered for sale. The fairs are held on the market day nearest March 1st and the market day nearest the Friday in Whitsun week. The principal fairs are the wool and pleasure fair on June 22nd and those on the Tuesday nearest to August 1st (for horses) and the Friday before October 29th.

The Chepstow fishery, celebrated for the salmon caught in the rivers Wye and Severn, is Crown property and strictly preserved.

The Church Boys' House, close to the Parish church, a building of galvanized iron, was erected in 1894; the total cost inclusive of fittings was about £472, of which £250 was the gift of Mrs. Bromedge, of Bournemouth. The house contains a gymnasium, reading room, smoke room, games room, workshop, and library of upwards of 200 volumes. The principal room will seat about 400 persons. In addition to the main building there is a good sized house containing two large rooms, and a bathroom with several baths and hot and cold water; adjoining is a large field for games.

There are two almshouses, one of which in Upper Church street is for ten persons, five men and five women, and is supported from estates in Northamptonshire, bequeathed by Sir Walter Montague, of Pencoyd Castle, in 1614, and now owned by the Duke of Buccleuch, who pays £33 yearly to this charity; the other in Bridge street, erected and endowed by funds bequeathed by Thomas Powis, of Enfield, in the county of Middlesex, vintner (a native of this place), in 1716, is for twelve persons, six men and six women; and other charities producing about £200 are distributed yearly.

In the Domesday Book Chestow Castle is designated "Striguil," and afterwards known as the Castle of "Striguil"; the ruins, which occupy the summit of a rugged limestone cliff, overhanging the Wye, on the north side of the town, form in plan an elongated parallelogram, diminishing in breadth towards the upper end and containing four courts or wards; the fortress is entered at its northern angle, next the river, by a great gateway, flanked by two drum towers, and opening to the lower ward, at the south-east angle of which is a massive structure, formerly called Bigod's tower, but now better known as Marten's tower, having been occupied for 20 years by Henry Marten, the regicide, who was imprisoned here after the Restoration, and here died in 1680; on the opposite side of the lower ward are the principal domestic buildings, in one part of which is a large vaulted chamber almost overhanging the river and having a curious arrangement for raising stores from the boats beneath; a strong wall pierced by a towered gateway divides the lower from the middle ward, between which and the upper ward is the grand old Norman keep, on the north side of which is a broad and rather steep flagged way connecting these two wards; beyond the upper ward is a sunken way and drawbridge leading to the fourth court, and beyond this is the barbican and upper gate-house, defended by flanking square towers, fosse and drawbridge, and by a large drum tower on the south-west; the oldest portion is the keep, most of which is Norman, though there are some Early English additions and a good deal of decorated work in the upper part; the middle and upper wards are probably of the same date as the keep, but have been so much altered that little, if any, of the original work remains: the lower ward was probably added towards the close of the 12th century, whilst the barbican is a little later: a portion of the buildings in the lower ward of the castle is still occupied as a dwelling house by the custodian, and the slopes of the moat, pleasantly shaded by trees, are traversed by paths and furnished with seats, and form an agreeable public resort. Domesday Book records that this castle was built by William Fitz Osborn, Earl of Hereford; it was subsequently possessed by the noble family of De Clare, from whom it passed, by marriage, to the Marshalls, and from them in like manner to the Bigods—Edward I. granted the castle to his younger son, Thomas de Brotherton, and from him it descended through the noble families of Manny, Hastings and Mowbray: in 1458, William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, exchanged lands with Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, and thus acquired the castle and lordship of Chestow, which passed into the possession of Sir Charles Somerset (ancestor of the Duke of Beaufort, the present owner) by marriage with the heiress of Herbert: during the civil wars Chestow Castle was garrisoned for the king, who came here in 1645, on his way from Raglan, but in Oct. of that year, being vigorously attacked by the Parliamentary forces, it was surrendered by Sir Robert Fitz-Maurice on Oct. 11, and after having again changed hands, it was finally taken by the Roundheads a second time in May, 1648: during the Commonwealth Chestow Castle was settled by the Parliament on Oliver Cromwell, in reward for his services, but after the Restoration it was restored to its rightful owners; in 1656 Jeremy Taylor was confined here under a charge of complicity in a royalist plot: when the castle was finally dismantled is unknown, but a garrison was maintained here as late as 1695.

The Benedictine Priory of Striguil, or Chestow, was founded about the time of Henry I. by one of the Norman lords of Chestow and attached to the Abbey of Cormeilles, in Normandy: at the Dissolution the annual revenues of this monastery amounted to £32 3s. 4d.: the church is now the only remaining portion of the monastic buildings.

Hardwick Court, the residence of Ernest Harland esq. M.A., F.S.A., J.P. is very beautifully situated upon a wooded eminence on the banks of the Wye, and was formerly the residence of Dr. Copleston, Bishop of Landaff, 1828-49. Beyond the mansion, at a place called "The Bulwarks," are the remains of an extensive British camp, subsequently converted into a Roman camp, and occupying an area of about three acres. Thornwell, situated near the confluence of the Wye and Severn, and now a farm-house, was formerly the residence of the Morgan family.

William Edward Carne Currie esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manors of Chestow, Porthcassog and Mounton and principal landowner.

The scenery around Chestow is very beautiful and the Wye for some miles above winds between lofty perpendicular cliffs of carboniferous limestone, thickly wooded. In the neighbourhood are Piercefield Park, the famous Wyndeliff, and the Moss Cottage, the ruins of Tintern Abbey and Caldwell Castle, Caerwent, an old Roman station, St. Briavel's Castle, Raglan Castle, Monmouth, Symond's Yat, the ruined church of Llancant, and many other objects of interest. The population of the Urban District and parish in 1911 was 2,953, including 12 officers and 136 inmates of the Poor Law Institution; the area is 1,085 acres of land, 85 of tidal water and 101 of foreshore; rateable value, £16,984. Parish Clerk, William H. James, 11 St. Mary street.

CHRISTCHURCH is a parish, on the road from Newport to Chepstow, 3 miles north-east from Newport and 1½ south-east from Caerleon station on the branch of the Great Western railway, 15 west from Chepstow and 22 south from Monmouth, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, Newport union and county court district, rural deanery of Caerleon, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. Seven-eighths of the parish was incorporated with the borough of Newport in 1889. The church of Holy Trinity is a building of local stone in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and a tower containing 2 bells, dated 1661: the tower and porch are both of Norman date: the stone staircase to the roof loft remains, and outside the east wall the bases of three lancet windows: the present east window, a Perpendicular insertion, was filled with stained glass by Mr. C. E. Kemp during 1890, as a memorial to the Rev. F. H. Archer, vicar 1876-89: the west window is also stained, and in the chancel is a memorial window to the Rev. W. Pope, a former vicar; and here likewise there is a flat monument to which healing properties used to be attributed, and Donovan ("Tour of South Wales," 1804) gives a picture of a man lying upon it in the year 1803; on one night in the year only was the stone reputed to have these healing powers; authorities are divided as to the night in question, but it is said to have been the Wednesday night after Trinity Sunday: in the church is a slab with incised effigies to John Colner, a civilian, 1376, and Isabella, his wife, and an inscription in Latin: the church was restored during the period 1879-83, and affords 500 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1698; marriages, 1703; burials, 1701. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £320, with 90 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Provost and Fellows of Eton College (who take the great tithes, amounting to £150), and held since 1908 by the Rev. Ernest Anderson Thorne M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. A cemetery of 6 acres was formed in 1882 at

CHRISTCHURCH.

COEDKERNEW is a parish, on the road from Milford to London, 2 miles north-by-east from Marshfield station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, 4½ south-south-west from Newport, and 8 from Cardiff, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of All Saints is a modern building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western belfry containing one bell: there are 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1733. The living is a vicarage, annexed to the rectory of St. Bride Wentloog, joint net yearly value £240, with residence, and 6½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Morgan Evans-Davies B.A. Lampeter. There is a mission room and Sunday school here. That portion of the road from Newport to Cardiff which passes through this parish commands a very extensive view of the Wentloog Level, the Bristol Channel and the coast of Somersetsshire. Lord Tredegar is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are corn and hay. The area is 769 acres; rateable value, £959; the population in 1911 was 179.

CRUMLIN is a village in two parishes, viz. Llanhilleth and Mynyddylwyn respectively, in the rural deaneries of Blaenau Gwent and Bedwellty, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff, and in the Abertillery division of the county, Pontypool petty sessional division and county court district, with two railway stations, one called the High Level, on the Pontypool and Swansea branch, and the other the Low Level, on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway; it is 16½ miles from London, 5 west from Pontypool, 10 north-east from Caerphilly and 12 miles north from Newport. This village occupies one of the most picturesque spots in the county and is surrounded by natural features of unsurpassed loveliness: the name is said to be derived from Cromlech, a designation given to Druidical monuments. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), that part of Crumlin which is in Llanhilleth is governed by the Urban District Council of Abertillery and the other part in the parish of Mynyddylwyn forms the North Ward of the Urban District Council of Abercarn. The village stands in what is termed the South Wales Coal Basin, and in the neighbouring quarries are often found fine fossils of calamites and leopliodendrons; and, in the shale, fossil ferns and other cryptogamic plants. That part of the village which is in the Abercarn Urban District is lighted with gas by the Abercarn Gas Co. as well as from other works which are private property. That part of Crumlin which is in Llanhilleth is lighted by electricity from the Abertillery Urban District electric station at Aberbeeg. Close to the village stands the stupendous Crumlin Viaduct, a remarkable monument of ingenuity and skill, erected about 1857, and which has attracted many thousands of visitors from all parts of the world: it stretches across a mountain gorge upwards of 230 feet deep, connecting two mountain tops together by means of a structure of singular grace and elegance: the length of iron work is 1,500 feet, and including the abutments of masonry 1,658 feet: the height is 200 feet, or from the top of the handrail to the underside of the foundation, 203 feet: 2,500 tons of iron were used in its construction; the cost being £62,000, and its building occupied between three and four years. The Western Valleys branch of the Great Western railway runs from Newport through the valley traversed by the river Ebbw, to the great iron works of Blaiau, Nant-y-glo and Ebbw Vale, all lying about 7 or 8 miles north from Crumlin: the other railway, in which the Crumlin Viaduct forms a connecting link between Swansea, Aberdare and Pontypool Road, to Chester, Liverpool and the north, is also worked by the Great Western Railway Company. The Mission Church here, formerly the National school, was dedicated to St. Mary in 1904, and it has 260 sittings. There are also Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist and Primitive Methodist chapels. A Rescue Training Station, for the instruction of miners to engage in rescue work in the mines, was built here in 1910, at a cost of £3,350, by the Monmouthshire Collieries Rescue Association. The building, which is of red brick, comprises an observation room, experimental gallery, stores, power house, motor garage, lavatories, baths and dressing rooms. Here is a small brass and iron foundry and a brewery. A school of mines has been established to provide instruction of an advanced and practical character for the purpose of training all grades of colliery officers; the school is provided with the most modern laboratories and equipments.

HERBERTSTOWN, or Hafodyrynys, is a hamlet 1½ miles north-east, and has a Congregational chapel, erected in 1895, with 250 sittings.

CWMBRAN is a large, scattered and growing village in the parish of Llanvihangel-Llantarnam, and contains the two railway stations of Pontnewydd on the main line, and Cwmbrian on the Eastern Valleys section of the Great Western railway; the latter station is 15½ miles from London, 4 south from Pontypool and 4½ north from Newport; the village is in the Pontypool division of the county, hundred of Usk, petty sessional division of Caerleon, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaf. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," Cwmbrian forms part of the Llantarnam Urban District and is governed by that Council. The Brecon and Monmouthshire canal, on which are four locks, passes through the village; the streets are lighted with gas by a company formed in 1877. St. Gabriel's, a mission church in connection with the parish church of Llanvihangel-Llantarnam, is an iron structure, erected in 1880 at a cost of £500, with a stone chancel, built in 1908 at a cost of about £3,000; the church now has sittings for about 550 persons. Rev. Robert Denys Gwyther Chinn L.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter, has been curate in charge since 1919. The Catholic chapel, erected in 1867, is dedicated to Our Lady of the Angels, and will seat 250 persons, and there are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels and meeting places for the Plymouth Brethren and the Salvation Army; there also is a public reading room. A Police court and Police station were erected in 1898 at Ventnor road, at a cost of £1,300, and here the petty sessions are held. There is a fire brigade, consisting of a captain and 11 men. Messrs. Guest, Keen & Nettlefolds Limited include in their works a large blast furnace, 20 puddling furnaces, 10 balling furnaces, coke ovens, rolling mills and a very large colliery, giving constant employment to about 2,200 men; Messrs. J. C. Hill and Co. Limited employ about 200 men in the manufacture of wire nails and steel wire and in galvanizing. Richard Parfitt esq. is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Messrs. Guest, Keen & Nettlefolds Limited, Sir Clifford John Cory bart. M.P. and Richard Parfitt esq. The soil is clay; subsoil, sandstone. The chief crops are roots, with some pasture. The area and population are returned with Llanvihangel-Llantarnam.

CWMCARN, see Mynyddyslwyn

CWMCARVAN is a parish and village, on an affluent of the small river Trothy, on a branch road from Monmouth to Abergavenny, 2 miles south from Dingestow station on the Monmouth, Usk and Pontypool section of the Great Western railway, and 4½ miles south-south-west from Monmouth. in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Raglan, Trelech petty sessional division, Raglan and Trelech highway district of the Monmouth District Council, union and county court district of Monmouth, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower with a square turret at the north-east angle, and containing 6 bells: the church was restored in 1877 at a cost of £700, and reroads 130 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1660; births, 1728; burials, 1662. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the rectory of Mitchel-Troy, joint net yearly value £206, with 80 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late Edward Arnott esq (d. 1906), and held since 1911 by the Rev. Edwin Arnott B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Mitchel-Troy. There are fine views over a great extent of country from Cwmcarn Hill. Craig-y-dorth, an eminence in this parish, is famous as having been the scene of a memorable battle fought there between Owen Glendower and King Henry IV. in the year 1404, when the troops of the latter were defeated and driven to the Welsh Gate on the Monnow at Monmouth. Caerllan is the residence of Capt. Henry Edward Walters R.N., J.P. Mrs. Tweedy is lady of the manor. Samuel Courthope Bosanquet esq. Capt.

H. E. Walters R.N. Henry Avray Tipping esq. and Capt. William Parkyn Jeffcock are principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 3,003 acres; rateable value, £1,717; population in 1911, 224.

CWMTILLERY, see Abertillery.

CWMYNYSCOY, see Panteg.

CWMYOY is a parish in a valley, with lofty hills on either side, watered by the river Honddu, along the western bank of which is the high road to Abergavenny, 3 miles south-east from Llanvihangel station, and 3 west from Pandy station, both on the Newport, Abergavenny and Hereford section of the Great Western railway, and 7 north from Abergavenny, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff: the parish is nearly 8 miles long and 1 mile broad. The church of St. Martin is an ancient building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, dating from 1672: the church was completely restored during the years 1885-8, at a cost of £1,000: the church has 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1708. The living is a vicarage, with Llanthony annexed, joint net yearly value £220, in the gift of Arnold Henry Savage Landor esq. and held since 1915 by the Rev. Thomas Williams B.A. of London University. There is a Baptist chapel. Llanthony Priory, a very extensive monastic ruin, stands in the vale of Ewias, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles north and 11 miles from Abergavenny, at the base of the Hatterall Hills and near the Black Mountains; it was founded by Hugh de Lacy and Ernisius, chaplain to Queen Maud, for canons regular of the Order of St. Augustine, and Ernisius became the first prior: the church, begun in 1103, was finished in 1108, and dedicated to SS. Mary, John the Baptist, and Florence: the remains include two western towers, of Early English date, portions of a nave of eight bays, with aisles, 172 by 48 feet high and 50 wide; the south and west sides of the central tower, once 100 feet high; detached portions of the transept, 100 by 31 feet, and a choir and presbytery, 72 by 28 feet, with slight remains of lateral chapels: the whole length being 252 feet; the north arcade of the nave is perfect, and the south transept nearly so; the cloister court, south of the nave, is fairly complete, and has on the east side a vaulted stype, and next it the north and south walls of the chapter house, which had a semi-hexagonal apse: on the west side of the cloister are buildings in part erected on the ancient cellarium, a vaulted structure of seven bays, with a passage between it and the church; on the south side a portion of the wall of the frater (refectory) is yet extant; of the monuments once existing in the church, only fragments now exist, the most considerable being a coffin-slab of the 13th century, bearing in low relief a cross and floriated ornament; part of another slab displays the feet of an effigy, with foliage, and on another are the arms of a cross between a chalice and a clasped book, and a small portion of a marginal inscription in black-letter. About 150 yards west of the cellarium stands the great gatehouse of the monastery, probably of early 14th century date, which consists of two vaulted bays, divided by large and small arches, now destroyed; the south entrance is now blocked, but above the arch is a graduated triplet, the two outer openings of which are cusped: the boundary wall may be traced further west, and there were fish ponds on the south: in 1136 the abbey became a cell to the New Abbey of Llanthony in Gloucestershire, to which the original fraternity then migrated, but the priory was subsequently rebuilt, and is supposed by some to have become a separate foundation. At the Dissolution there were five canons, and yearly revenues worth £99. The church of St. David, a portion of the ruins of the ancient abbey, is annexed to the living of Cwmyoy: it is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave, with a western turret containing one bell: it was thoroughly restored in 1896, at a cost of about £800, and affords 100 sittings. In the hamlet of Bwlch Trewyn stands Trewyn, a noble mansion, built in 1695, and now the seat of P. B. Barneby esq. J.P. P. B. Barneby esq. and Arnold Henry Savage Landor esq. are lords of the manor and principal landowners. The soil is light loam; subsoil, stone. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is: Cwmyoy Upper, 4,721 acres of land and 20 of water; rateable value, £1,031; Cwmyoy Lower, 3,481 acres of land and 26 of water; rateable value, £3,148; the population in 1911 was: Cwmyoy Lower, 210; and Cwmyoy Upper, 137.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 484, which comprises Lower and Upper Cwmyoy, Bwlch Trewyn and Fwthog.

BWLCH TREWYN is a hamlet, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-east, in this parish. The area is 632 acres of land and 4 of water; rateable value, £665; the population in 1911 was 79.

PWTHOG is a hamlet of the parish of Cwmyoy, formerly in Herefordshire, but was transferred to Monmouthshire 29th Sept. 1893, under Order of Local Government Board, dated 18th May, 1893, 3 miles from Llanvihangel station on the Hereford, Abergavenny and Newport section of the Great Western railway. Here is a Baptist chapel. The principal landowners are the trustees of Richard Baker-Gabb esq. and the trustees of E. T. Husbands esq. The soil is sand and gravel; subsoil, chiefly rock. The chief crops are barley, oats, potatoes and swedes. The area is 2,089 acres of land and 12 of water; rateable value, £564; population in 1911, 63.

DINGESTOW is a parish on the road from Monmouth to Abergavenny, the river Trothy forming its eastern boundary, with a station on the Monmouth, Usk and Pontypool line of the Great Western railway, 4 miles west-south-west from Monmouth, and 148 from London, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Baglan, Baglan and Trellech highway district of the Monmouth District Council, union and county court district of Monmouth, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church, anciently dedicated to St. Dingat and later to St. Mary, is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the east window is filled with stained glass: the church was thoroughly restored, reset and new roofed in 1887-8, at a cost of £750; there are 150 sittings. In the churchyard is an ancient cross. The register dates from the year 1755. The living is a vicarage, net income £120, with 23 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since Bosanquet Samuel Courthope D.L., J.P.

DINHAM, see Llanvair-Discoed.

DIXTON (or Dixon Newton) is a parish on the river Wye, on the road from Ross to Monmouth, and extending to the Gloucestershire border, 7 mile north-east from Monmouth railway station, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Skenfrith, Monmouth and Skenfrith highway district, petty sessional division, union and county court district and partly in the parliamentary borough of Monmouth, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south porches, and a western tower with low broach spire, containing 4 bells, the tenor being of pre-Reformation date, and inscribed "Sancta Margareta ora pro nobis:" there are memorial brasses and mural tablets to the Griffin and Tyler families, and memorial windows to Mary Anne, wife of John Endell Powell, d. 1860, and to the Rev. James Lister Dighton, 38 years vicar here, d. 1871; there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, with 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Witherston Richards B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The church of St. James, at Wyesham, a chapel of ease to the parish church, erected in 1875, at a cost of £1,500, is a stone building in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, and a north-western tower with a stone spire and containing one bell: the stained east window was a gift to the church: the west window is a memorial to the late Henry Gosling esq. In a field on the right hand side of the road leading to Monmouth is a tumulus, which some years ago was opened and found to contain Roman pottery. The Kymin Hill, about 1½ miles due east from Monmouth, rises to a height of 700 feet above the river Wye, and affords a fine and extensive prospect. On the top is a monument or temple, erected in August, 1800, to commemorate the victories achieved by English admirals in the 18th century, and dedicated to her Grace the Duchess of Beaufort, daughter of Admiral Boscawen; it was restored by the 8th Duke of Beaufort in 1882: a circular pavilion, restored in 1889, has also been erected for the use of visitors; the view from the summit of this remarkable hill extends to a circumference of nearly three hundred miles, including parts of ten counties, namely, Salop, Montgomery, Radnor, Brecon, Hereford, Worcester, Gloucester, Somerset, Glamorgan and Monmouth. A little distance to the south-east is a rocking stone, known as the "Buckstone"; it was mischievously displaced in 1885 by some trippers, but was replaced in the following year at an expenditure of £500. Newton Court is the seat of the Rev. Charles W. Griffin M.A. Wyastone Leys is the property and residence of Walter Levett esq. The trustees of the late Edward Arnott esq. J.P. (d. 1906) are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are the Crown, Rev. Charles W. Griffin M.A. Walter Levett esq. and the trustees of the late E. Arnott esq. The soil is light loam; subsoil, red sandstone. The area is 2,046 acres of land and 47 of water; rateable value, £1,573; population in 1911, 136.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 623, which includes part of Llanrothal, in Herefordshire.

May Hill is a hamlet 1 mile south of the church. Redbrook is a hamlet 3 miles south. Wyesham is a hamlet half-a-mile south of May Hill.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,745, part of Dixton civil parish was, in 1894, added to Monmouth civil parish.

Parish Clerk, George Williams.

EBBW VALE is a parish constituted by Order of the Monmouth County Council, confirmed by an Order of the Local Government Board, dated Nov. 19, 1894, and previously formed into an ecclesiastical parish in the year 1870 from the civil parishes of Aberystroth and Bedwelly, comprising the following places:—Ebbw Vale, Briery Hill, Newtown, Pontygof and Victoria; these closely adjoin each other, and are all in the vale of the Ebbw Fawr river, in the Northern part of the county, bordering on the county of Brecon, 179 miles from London, 2 east from Tredegar, 20 north-west from Newport, 10½ south-west from Abergavenny, in the Ebbw Vale division of the county, hundred of Wentlog, petty sessional division and union of Bedwelly, Tredegar county court district, and in the rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The town has grown rapidly during the period 1895-1913, upwards of 1,500 new houses having been built, many of these being the property of local workmen, and acquired by the operations of some 16 building clubs, promoted and fostered by the Ebbw Vale Co. The Ebbw Vale and Victoria stations in this parish are on the Great Western railway, and a third station at Ebbw Vale belongs to the London and North Western Railway Co. who have a branch from here joining the Abergavenny line near Beaufort station. Ebbw Vale adopted the "Local Government Act, 1856" (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), and was governed by a Local Board from June 19, 1874, until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council; the boundaries of the district were extended by 40 and 41 Vict. cap. cxxvii. 141 and 42 Vict. cap. clxiv. and 43 and 44 Vict. cap. lviii. In 1893 the Urban District was further enlarged by the addition to the South Ward of certain areas formerly included in the Urban Districts of Abertillery and Bedwelly, and it now comprises the parish of Ebbw Vale, in Monmouthshire, and parishes of Bassau and Beaufort in Breconshire: it is lighted with gas by the Beaufort Gas Co. Limited, and the Ebbw Vale Steel, Iron and Coal Co. Limited, and electricity by the Urban District Council, and is supplied with water from works in Llangnider parish. Christ Church is a building of red sandstone, with Pennant stone dressings, in the Early English style, erected in 1861, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, western porch and tower at the south-west angle with a steeple, added in 1881, and containing one bell: beneath the church is a spacious crypt: there are 750 sittings, all being free. The baptismal register dates from the year 1858 and the marriage register from 1870. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £275, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1910 by the Rev. John Evans B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The ecclesiastical parish of St. John, which comprises the districts of Newtown and Willow Town, at the north end of Ebbw Vale, was formed into a conventional district in 1902, under the "New Parishes Act," from the parishes of Ebbw Vale and Beaufort, and became a parish for ecclesiastical purposes in 1909. The church of St. John, erected in 1908, at a cost of £4,223, is an edifice of brick and red sandstone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave and north porch: there are 500 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £280, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1913 by the Rev. Charles Feetham M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The area is 988 acres, and the estimated population in 1912 was 7,891. The old iron church of St. John, built in 1891, is now used as a Parish Hall, and has 350 sittings. The Catholic church, dedicated to All Saints, was built in 1865, and All Saints' Catholic church, an iron structure, with 250 sittings, was erected in 1905, at a cost of £600; there are also Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The cemetery, at the north end of the town, has an area of 20 acres, and is under the control of the Urban District Council. The Parish Hall, built in 1909 (in connection with Christ Church), at a cost of £1,400, will hold 500 people, and comprises a stage with ante-rooms, and a kitchen &c. in the basement. The Ebbw Vale Workmen's Medical Society has established dispensaries at Ebbw Vale (Central), Beaufort, Victoria and Cwm, with branches at Sirhowy and Brynmawr; erected the Ebbw Vale Hospital in 1901, at a cost of £2,500, and enlarged it in 1909, at a further cost of £3,000, with provision for 21 beds. The Ebbw Vale Workmen's Hall was built in 1907, at a cost of £5,300. The Literary and Scientific Institution, built in 1833, comprises a lecture room, library, containing about 10,000 volumes, reading room and science and art class rooms; a new lecture hall was added in 1903. Barclays Bank Limited, London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited, National Provincial and Union Bank of England Limited and Lloyds Bank Limited have branches here. The extensive works and collieries of the Ebbw Vale Steel, Iron & Coal Co. Limited, occupy a site of six miles in length at the head of the Ebbw Valley. The produce, of best steam and other coals, is exported to all parts of the world, and is used for locomotive purposes on English railways. The output of pig iron, recently largely increased by the erection of a blast furnace plant of the most modern description, now amounts to 300,000 tons annually, and the rolling mills turn out 250,000 tons per annum of finished steel in the form of rails, tin bars, wagon springs and other manufacture. The company also owns an extensive and modern brick-making plant and gas works, and contract with the local authority for the supply of electricity to the town; an entirely modern steel corrugated sheet mill plant has been added, with an output of 300 tons a week. Additional collieries are being sunk. The area of the civil parish is 5,283 acres of land and 63 of water; rateable value in 1919, £161,898; the population in 1911 was 26,261 in the civil and 15,678 in the ecclesiastical parishes.

The area of the Urban District is 6,870 acres; rateable value, 1913, £109,000; the population in 1911 was 30,541. The population of the wards in 1911 was—North, 4,116; North Central, 7,752; South, 9,813; South Central, 8,696.

Verger of Christ Church, Ebbw Vale, Fred Hancock.

BRIERY HILL joins Ebbw Vale on the south-west side of the town. Here are English and Welsh Baptist and Congregational chapels.

Newtown is on the east side of the town, and has Baptist and Welsh Wesleyan chapels.

PONTYGOF adjoins the north-east end of the town, and has a station, called "Ebbw Vale," on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway. Here are Baptist, Congregational and Calvinistic chapels.

Victoria joins Ebbw Vale on the south side of the town, and has a station on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway. St. Mary's Church Hall was built in 1909, at a cost of £500, and has 400 sittings. Here are Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. Waunllwyd and Victoria Workmen's Institute, erected in 1911, at a cost of £3,500, comprises reading room, games room and billiard rooms, class rooms for technical instruction and a hall to seat 200 persons.

Waunllwyd is 1 mile south.

Tallistown adjoins Cwm.

CWM, a hamlet in the parish of Aberystwith, in the valley of the Ebbw, between two lofty hills, with a station on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway, 17 miles north from Newport, 3 south from Ebbw Vale and 5 south-east from Tredegar. Cwm is in the Urban District of Ebbw Vale. In January, 1900, Cwm and Victoria were transferred from the ecclesiastical parish of Ebbw Vale and formed into a separate parish. The parish church of St. Paul is a small building of stone, erected in 1882, and consists of nave and a belfry containing one bell: the church was enlarged in 1911, at a cost of £2,000, when a new chancel, organ chamber and north aisle was built: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1900. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Daniel James Sproule B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The church of St. Mary, Victoria, is a chapel of ease to St. Paul's, and has 300 sittings. The Parish Hall was built in 1906, at a cost of £1,300, to seat 500 persons. There are chapels here of all denominations. The Cwm Literary Institute, built in 1910, at a cost of £3,000, contains a library of 1,000 volumes, reading, games and billiard rooms, and has a large meeting hall to seat 500.

St. David, erected in 1894, is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an eastern turret containing two bells: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1897.
The living is a vicarage, with residence, net yearly value £265, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1919 by the Rev. David Llewellyn James B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There are two Mission churches, one at Gellihaf and one at Maes-y-cwmber.
Here are also English and Welsh Congregational, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The St. David's Parish Hall, erected in 1902 to commemorate the coronation of His late Majesty King Edward VII. at a cost of £1,200, will seat 600 persons. The Pengam and Fleur-de-Lis Workmen's Library and Institute, built in 1911, at a cost of £1,800, has a library of 500 volumes, and contains reading, recreation, billiard and committee rooms. Several collieries in the neighbourhood give employment to most of the inhabitants. The population in 1901 was 2,495, of which 246 were in Glamorganshire, and in 1911, 7,326, which includes part of Gelligaer in Glamorganshire.

GOYTREY is a parish on the river Usk, which bounds it on the south-east, with a station called Nantyderry on the Abergavenny and Hereford branch of the Great Western railway, $\frac{5}{8}$ north-east from Pontypool, 4 north-west from Usk, and 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ by rail from London, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Abergavenny, petty sessional division and union of Pontypool, county court district of Usk, and in the rural deanery of Baglan, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff; the Brecon and Monmouth Canal and

38 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1900 by the Rev. John Price, of St. Bees, who is also vicar of and resides at Whitson. Here is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1835, and rebuilt and enlarged in 1900: it will now seat 200 persons. On Goldcliff hill, and about a mile from the church, are the remains of the Benedictine priory of SS. Mary and Mary Magdalene, founded in 1113 by Robert Chandos; it was first a cell of Bec, and afterwards of Tewkesbury; the Welsh drove out the monks between 1442 and 1446; the revenues were estimated at £114 yearly. The principal landowners are the Provost and Fellows of Eton College, who are the lords of the manor, Messrs. Power, lords of Porton, and Sir William James Thomas, Messrs. Alfred Jones, J. R. Webb and the trustees of the late G. C. Williams esq. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The land is wholly in pasture. The area is 2,192 acres of land; rateable value, £4,317; population in 1911, 266. the road from Pontypool to Monmouth and Abergavenny pass through the parish. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt in 1845 and 1846 at a cost of about £1,400, from designs by Thomas Wyatt esq. of London, is an edifice of local stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western belfry containing 2 bells; there is an ancient font, reputed to be of Saxon origin, and restored in 1856, and in the vestry an ancient oak chest; the organ was presented by the Misses Evans, of Nantyderry, in 1886; within the communion rails are buried the members of the ancient family of Jenkins, of Goytre Hall: in 1903 the east window was filled with stained glass, as a memorial to the Rev. Thomas Evans, a former rector, and there is another, placed in 1904, to Henry Charles and Rebecca Byrde: an oak screen was placed under the chancel arch in 1907 in memory of the late Richard Augustus Byrde, and in 1908 an oak reredos was erected in the chancel in memory of Mr. F. W. G. and Mrs. Chalklen: there are 290 sittings. The churchyard contains several fine yew trees, two of which are upwards of 30 feet in circumference. The register dates from the year 1605. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £195, with 1½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Marquess of Abergavenny, and held since 1919 by the Rev. Henry Charles Penoyre Belcher M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The Rectory house was erected in 1893 on land purchased from John Capel Hanbury esq. There are Baptist and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. Goytre Hall, now occupied by Capt. Lionel Digby Whitehead, was erected in 1446 for Thomas Herbert, son of the Earl of Pembroke, who lived at Baglan Castle and was once the residence of a family of Jenkins, now extinct in the male line, but lineally descended from Gwaethford, a chieftain who in ancient times owned a considerable territory here; the Jenkins property now belongs to Mrs. Charles Williams. John Capel Hanbury esq. is the principal landowner. The soil is gravel and sand; subsoil, loam. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The area is 3,332 acres of land and 16 of water; rateable value, £5,608 land, £4,086 buildings; population in 1911, 706. Sexton, Jenkin Rosser.

GRIFFITHSTOWN is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in May, 1898, from Llanfrechfa Upper and Panteg, and includes Sebastopol, but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," became a separate civil parish, and is governed by the Urban District Council of Panteg, and has a station on the Eastern Valleys branch of the Great Western railway from Newport to Blaenavon, one mile from Pontypool, and 159½ from London. It is in the Pontypool division of the county, Usk hundred. Pontypool union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Usk, and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The Brecon and Monmouthshire Canal runs through the parish. Part of the civil parish of Panteg was transferred to the ecclesiastical parish in 1915. The church of St. Hilda, built in 1887, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and south porch: the west window was erected by Mr. and Mrs. Butler in 1912 in commemoration of their golden wedding: there is a memorial window to the Rev. E. J. Dunn, first vicar of this parish: a fine carved oak screen was dedicated on Whit-Sunday, 1905, as a memorial to the Rev. James Edwin Dunn, vicar 1898-1904, and his wife, and a carved oak reredos given by Mr. and Mrs. I. Butler was dedicated in 1907: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1888. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £220, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1904 by the Rev. Herbert Owen Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a parish room, built in 1895 and enlarged in 1912. The Baptist chapel, erected in 1875, was renovated, and a lecture hall and class rooms built, at a cost of £1,600, and seats 400 persons; the Congregational chapel, built in 1885, has 350 sittings; there are also chapels for the Wesleyans and Plymouth Brethren, and a Congregational chapel at Sebastopol, built in 1893. The Mechanics' Institute was erected in 1874 at a cost of about £750, for the use of the workpeople of the Great Western Railway Company: a limited number of the public are also permitted to make use of the institution, which is in part supported by an annual grant from the company; attached to the institute is a small library of 1,000 volumes, and there is also a recreation ground. Panteg Fire Brigade station was erected in 1898, at a cost of £200, by the Panteg Urban District Council; the brigade consists of a captain, lieutenant, 1 engineer and 13 firemen. The County Police Station, Broad street, was erected in 1892. The Poor Law Institution of the Pontypool union, which stands in Griffithstown, is a building of stone, erected in 1837, and enlarged in 1900; and there are also cottage homes, erected in 1881, and giving shelter to about 325 inmates. The area of the civil parish is 274 acres of land and 4 of water; rateable value, £14,800; the population in 1911 was 4,067 in the civil and 5,824 in the ecclesiastical parish, including 11 officials and 233 inmates in Pontypool Poor Law Institution.

GROS MONT is a parish and village, on the river Monnow, which bounds the parish on the north-east, and separates it from the county of Hereford, and stands on the north-eastern confines of the county, near the main road from Abergavenny to Hereford, and a short distance from the northern base of the Graig Mountain; it is 3 miles south-east from Pontilas station, on the Newport and Hereford section of the Great Western railway, 11 north-east from Abergavenny, 11 miles from Monmouth by road and 14 south from Hereford, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Skenfrith, union of Dore, county court district of Hereford, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The town and adjoining farms are abundantly supplied with pure water conveyed through pipes from The Graig Hill, 2 miles distant, laid down in 1907-8 by Garnet Edwin Bevan esq. proprietor of the water works. The church of St. Nicholas is a cruciform building of stone, in the Transitional and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, spacious nave, aisles, transepts with aisles, side chapel, north porch and a central octagonal tower with spire containing 6 bells: in 1800 the spire was restored at a cost of £100, chiefly defrayed by Lord Llangattock; it was partly built during the 13th century by Eleanor of Provence, Queen of Henry III. under the direction of a French architect, and partakes largely of the style of that country and period; the chancel, as an example of the Early English style, has scarcely a parallel in any of the rural parishes; there is a Norman font; the church was restored during the period 1870-75, at a cost of £1,988; in 1886 the nave was thoroughly restored at the sole cost of the 1st Baron Llangattock, who also erected a handsome screen of oak and glass; only the transepts and chancel are used for divine service; in the church is a mutilated effigy of Henry (Plantagenet), Earl of Lancaster, Derby, Lincoln and Leicester, and Duke of Lancaster K.G. ob. 24 March, 1361, who was born at the castle of Grosmont; the figure is of heroic size, clad in armour and bearing a kite-shaped shield: there is a stained window to the Rolls family; there are 206 sittings. The register dates from the year 1590. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Gloucester, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Gomer Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Here are places of worship for Primitive Methodists and the Plymouth Brethren; the Catholic church at Dan-y-Graig, erected in 1860, and dedicated to the Immaculate Conception. This place was formerly incorporated and governed by a mayor, and had a market; the old Market Hall, erected in 1832, formerly the property of the Duke of Beaufort, was conveyed by deed of gift to the Parish Council in commemoration of the coronation of King Edward VII. and is used for public meetings. There is an excellent library in connection with the church, and endowments and charities for school and other purposes. Some remains of an ancient entrenchment may be seen at Campston. The castle of Grosmont, which stands on a knoll above the river Monnow, is also said to have been called "Rosslyn," a corruption of the Celtic name "Roslwyn," i.e. "rose-bush;" an interesting tradition speaks of the fortress as the "Castle of the Red Rose," and suggests that the Lancastrian party assumed this badge, or symbol, not only from the name of the castle, but from the profusion of red roses growing spontaneously in every brake on this beautiful spot; the remains include two round towers and an exquisite chimney in the north wall, dating from about 1300. The fortress, long in a neglected state, was restored in 1894 at the sole expense of the 8th Duke of Beaufort K.G. A very handsome gate of wood, with ornamental ironwork, has been fixed at the entrance. The ruins, now belonging to the trustees of the late Col. E. Lucas-Scudamore, are under the control of Mr. W. H. S. Whitney J.P. as Hon. Warden, from whom the keys can always be obtained. In early times Grosmont was much subjected to sudden surprises and incursions from the Welsh Henry III. and his queen are said to have occasionally resided at their castle at Grosmont, which afterwards became a favourite residence of the Earls and Dukes of Lancaster, and still, with the surrounding neighbourhood, forms a part of the Duchy. Dan-y-Graig, the residence of Francis Joseph Allister Radcliffe esq. in this parish, has some fine old oak carvings, and a beautiful cabinet once belonging to the Lady Jane Grey. Part-y-Seal is the residence of Henry Partridge esq. J.P. The trustees of the late Col. Edward Lucas-Scudamore D.L., J.P. are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late Col. Edwd. Lucas-Scudamore, A. L. Lawley esq. the trustees of the late James Straker J.P. Capt. A. W. W. Pope, Gwyllim C. James esq. Capt. Godfrey Radcliffe and William Henry Smith Whitney esq. J.P. The soil is red clay and loam; subsoil, marl, but most of the land is devoted to pasturage. The area is 6,761 acres of land and 38 of water; rateable value, £5,141; the population in 1911 was 561 in the civil parish and 566 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes a very small part of Llantilio Crossenny.

ITTON with HOWICK

ITTON is a parish on the road from Chepstow to Derwent Green, 3 miles west-by-north from Chepstow station on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Deniol is a building of stone partly in the Early English style, and was thoroughly restored in 1860, chiefly at the cost of Mrs. Curra, of Itton court; it consists of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: the east and other windows of the chancel are stained: the whole fabric has been altered and much modernized: there are 200 sittings: in the churchyard remain the base and part of the shaft of a cross. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1773; marriages, 1775. The living is a perpetual curacy, net income £145, with 6½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of W. E. C. Curra esq. D.L., J.P. and held since 1910 by the Rev. Lewis Ernest Richardson M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is also vicar of Mounth. Here is a small water saw mill. Itton, anciently called Hodytton, was held in the 13th century, under the lords of Chepstow, by the De Beule-

Jesus College, Oxford, who is also vicar of Llangiew. Lord Raglan G.B.E., C.B. is lord of the manor. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The chief crop is wheat. The area is 545 acres; rateable value, £609; population in 1911, 56.

villes, and eventually became possessed by the Herberts, from whom it passed to a branch of the Morgan family, and from them to the Gwynns. The Itton Court estate, purchased by the Carres about 1600, now belongs to W. E. C. Curra esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor. Itton Court was originally an outlying fortalice of Chepstow Castle; the tower, which probably dates from the latter part of the 14th century, is the only part now remaining of the ancient fortified mansion, which about 1860 underwent considerable improvements and alterations, including the removal of the principal entrance from the east to the south side and the embattlement of the latter; the entrance has since been removed to the west side: it is now the residence of William Edward Curra esq. D.L., J.P. and master of a pack of foxhounds. The kennels are near the Court; the park, consisting of 28 couples, hunts on Mondays and Thursdays. Chepstow is a convenient place for hunting visitors. In the record of a speech-court holden under the Forester's Oak in Wentwood, in the year 1668, it is said, "Sir William de Bendeville bought to have houseboote and layboote at his house at Hodytton from the Conquest." W. E. Curra esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and sole landowner.

The soil is light; subsoil, limestone. The area is 1,110 acres; rateable value, £1,082; the population in 1911 was 150.

LLANFOIST is a village on the river Usk, which bounds the parish on the north, 1½ miles south-west from Abergavenny station, on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, Abergavenny rural deanery, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The Brecon and Abergavenny canal and the road from Abergavenny to Merthyr Tydfil both pass through the parish. The church of Saint Faith is an ancient building of small dimensions, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western bell gable with 2 bells: there are memorial windows to Crawshay Bailey esq. the great ironmaster of Nant-y-glo, who is buried here, and one placed by Lt.-Col. W. H. Wheeler to his brothers: the chancel was restored in 1877 by Crawshay Bailey esq. son of the above, and since deceased: there are 80 sittings: in the churchyard are two ancient yew trees, and an ancient stone cross: a lych-gate was erected at the entrance to the churchyard in 1902. The register dates from the year 1736. The living is a rectory, net yearly value, £230, with residence and 45 acres and to whom there is a monumental slab in the church. On Glan Usk farm is an ancient barn formerly part of a mansion, and still containing some fine specimens of stucco work. The steps, semi-circular in shape, are formed of solid timbers; portions of the altar steps and a window are still remaining. A part of the Bloreage Mountain is within this parish. Lord Wharton, who is lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late Hon. Mrs. Herbert are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, chiefly stone. The crops are wheat, oats, barley, with the land mainly in pasture. The area is 2,527 acres; rateable value, £1,999; population in 1911, 201.

LLANFRECHFA UPPER, or Holy Trinity, Pontnewydd, is a parish, and includes the villages of Pontnewydd, Upper Cwmbrian and Pontrhydyrun, and is in the Pontypool division of the county, Usk hundred, Pontypool petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Usk, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. Pontnewydd is $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles north from Newport and 3 south from Pontypool and $15\frac{1}{2}$ from London. The Eastern Valleys branch of the Great Western railway from Newport to Bleaonavon and Brynmawr has two stations in this parish, viz. Upper Pontnewydd, half a mile from the village, and Pontrhydyrun. The Brecon and Monmouthshire canal runs through the parish. The "Local Government Act of 1858" (21 & 22 Vict. c. 98) was adopted by the district, Nov. 1870, and it was then governed by a local board; but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), it is now controlled by an Urban District Council of 12 members. Water works were erected in 1886 at Llanfrechfa Upper for the supply of water to this parish, Cwmbrian, Llantarnam and Pontrhydyrun. Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed June 25, 1885; the church locally at Pontnewydd, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, erected in 1860, and consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a tower containing one bell: in 1890 the church was considerably enlarged by the addition of a handsome north aisle containing five bays, at a cost of £680: there are memorial windows to two children of the late R. Edmunds esq. J.P. and to Betsy Bumford (d. Nov. 13th, 1878); a new organ, costing £250, was added in 1886, and a carved oak pulpit with memorial brass was presented in 1890, by friends of the late R. Edmunds esq.: a memorial tablet has been erected to the Rev. William Bury Sanderson, vicar 1833-1900, by the officers and men of the 1st Monmouth (Volunteer) Battalion of Royal Artillery, and an oak screen to Mrs. Pilliner of Llantarnam Grange: the church affords 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1860. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £190, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1903 by the Rev. William Donald Istance Mackintosh, of St. Bees College. There are Baptist, Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. Messrs Guest, Keen and Nettlefolds Limited are the principal landowners. The soil is marl; subsoil, clay; the chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, potatoes and grass. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 1,779 acres of land and 8 of water; rateable value, £16,723; the population in 1911 was 4,468.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," part of Llanfrechfa Lower parish was taken to form the new civil parish of Grifithstown.

Here are two tinplate works.

UPPER CWMBRAN is $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles west from Pontnewydd. In the village is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Here are the large colliery and fire brick works of Messrs. Guest, Keen and Nettlefolds Limited.

PONTRHYDYRUN is a hamlet, 1 mile north from Pontnewydd.

LLANGATTOCK-VIBON-AVEL is a parish and village on the old road from Abergevenny to Monmouth, 5 miles north-west from Monmouth, the nearest railway station, and 13 from Abergevenny, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Skenfrith, union and county court district of Monmouth, Monmouth and Skenfrith highway district of the Monmouth Rural District Council, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Landaff. A feeder of the river Trothy flows through the parish. The church of St. Cadoc, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1875, at a cost of £2,500, by the 1st Baron Llangattock, in memory of his father, is a building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle and western tower containing 6 bells, three of which are dated 1707, the remainder having been recast during the past century: the east window is in memory of John E. W. Rolls esq. and the west window is to his widow; the window in the south wall was erected in 1915 to the memory of the 1st Baron Llangattock (d. 1912); there are five other stained windows: the chancel retains sedilia and a credence formed in the sill of the south and north windows respectively: the reredos of alabaster and marble was given by Mary Octavia Rolls in 1875, in memory of her father, and there is also an alabaster screen: there are several brass and stone tablets dating from the early part of the 17th century, to the Evans family, formerly seated at Llangattock Manor, and two tablets of the last century to the Rolls family: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1663. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Llanfawr and the vicarage of St. Maughans annexed, joint net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. Lady Shelley-Rolls, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Charles Edgar Delacour de Labilliere M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford.

At LLANFAENOR, 2 miles north-west, is an ancient chapel of ease, restored in 1856, and consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one small bell: the east window is stained, and was presented by the late Mrs. Rolls: the flooring is of ornamental wood work: there are 50 sittings. Near The Hendre there is a Parish Hall and Reading Room, erected in 1904 by the 1st Baron Llangattock. Charities producing about £23 are distributed yearly. Near the post office, at Newcastle, is the stump of the once famous tree known as "The Glendower Oak," which had a girth of 27 feet: in the immediate vicinity is Croft Hir spring, commonly called "The Wishing Wells," where formerly seven different kinds of water were supposed to exist. The Hendre, a handsome mansion of brick and stone, in the Norman and Tudor styles, is the seat of the Hon. Lady Shelley-Rolls and Capt. Sir John C. E. Shelley-Rolls bart. One of the

LLANHILLETH, or Llanhiddel, is a parish with a station 1 mile south from the church on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway, 173 miles from London and 5 miles west from Pontypool, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Abergavenny, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Pontypool, and in the rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff, and is within the area of the Abertillery urban district. The Monmouthshire canal commences in the parish; the river Ebbw forms the western boundary of the parish. Aberbeeg, Six Bells and Crumlin are villages of Llanhilleth; the latter will be found under a separate head. By an Order in Council dated Dec. 15, 1911, Christ Church was substituted for that of St. Iltyd as the parish church. The old parish church of St. Iltyd, standing on rising ground, is an ancient building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch and a tower containing 2 bells: in the church are various monuments, and an ancient font: the church was restored and decorated in 1891, when the old windows were reglazed, at a cost of £600 and again in 1912: there are 84 sittings: in the churchyard are several old yew trees. The register dates from the year 1733. Christ Church, the new parish church, erected in 1910 at a cost of over £6,000, is a building of stone in the late 14th century style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south transepts, aisles, organ chamber and vestries: there are 500 sittings. The church of St. Mark, standing in the centre of the village and erected in 1893, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave and a bell-cote containing 2 bells: there are 350 sittings. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £690, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Abergavenny, and held since 1805 by the Rev. Daniel Felix, of St. Bees. There are Welsh and English Baptist, Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a Calvinistic chapel of iron at Six Bells. The Institute for working men, erected in 1904 at a cost of £7,000, includes reading and billiard rooms, a gymnasium and swimming baths, and also a large concert hall seating about 1,000 persons. The petty sessions are held in this building. Near the church is a large mound, and there are also some remains of a castle. There is a colliery of some extent. The lady and lords of the manor are as follows:—Miss Julia Guise, Sir Nicholas William George Throckmorton bart.; Philip Witham esq., Henry White esq. Rev. Gorges Fettiplace John Gwynne Evans-Gwynne M.A. rector of Retendon, Battles Bridge, Essex, and Francis Tothill esq. The principal landowners are T. P. Price esq., Percy Phillips esq., William Edwin Williams esq., Edmond Jones Williams esq., Mrs. Bellin, T. Phillips esq., and Messrs. Partridge, Jones and Ward. The soil is gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,998 acres of land and 11 of water; rateable value, £41,631; the population in 1911 was 9,562 in the civil parish and 9,570 in the ecclesiastical parish.

LLANLLOWELL is a parish on the old road from Usk to Newport, and on the river Olwy near its junction with the Usk, 1½ miles south-east from Usk station on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, upper division of Usk hundred, petty sessional division and county court district of Usk, union of Pontypool, and in the rural deanery of Usk, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Llywellyn is a very ancient structure, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells: the porch is interesting, and there is a good Norman font: the church affords 70 sittings. The register dates from the year 1664. The living is a rectory, net income £100, with glebe. The principal seat is Glen Court. Major Albert Addams-Williams J.P. of Lansor, near Caerleon, is lord of the manor. The soil is stiff loam; subsoil, clay and marl. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 782 acres of land and 18 of water; rateable value, £800; the population in 1911 was 59.

LLANMARTIN, with LLANDEVAUD, form a parish for civil purposes, but ecclesiastically are distinct, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Caerleon, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. Llanmartin is 2½ miles north-west from Magor station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway and 6½ east from Newport. The church of St. Martin, rebuilt in the year 1858, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: in a recess in the north wall of the chancel is an altar-tomb of the time of Henry VII. believed to have been erected to the first Sir Thomas Morgan, of Penycod Castle, 1495: on the front of the tomb are 14 kneeling figures of children, disposed on either side of a shield upheld by an angel, seven males on one side and seven females on the other. Two other tombs to Sir William Morgan, 1542, and Florence (Bridges), his wife, with recumbent effigies, and one to Sir Walter Mountague, 1614, and Anne (Morgan), his wife, also with recumbent effigies, have been destroyed; the brass with inscription is lost: there are 110 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1778; marriages, 1755. The living is a rectory, with that of Wilrick annexed, joint net yearly value £170, with 30 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of C. Curzon-Herrick esq. and held since 1910 by the Rev. William Dovey B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a hall built on glebe land adjoining the churchyard and a Presbyterian chapel. Penycod Castle, in this parish, is generally considered as the most ancient of the six castles of Wentwood Forest: this picturesque ruin consists chiefly of a circular arched gateway and two small pentagonal turrets, a round embattled tower and some dilapidated walls: the architecture of these fragments may be considered coeval with the first establishment of the Normans in Gwent; in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, Sir Thomas Morgan K.G. lord of Llantarnam and Caerleon, resided here: the remains of the keep have for many years been used as a farmhouse. Viscountess Rhondda is lady of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, red sandstone. The chief crops are grain and turnips and some pasture land. The area is 1,123 acres; rateable value, £1,285; the population in the civil parish in 1911 was 164 and in the ecclesiastical 154.

Parish Clerk, Edward Lewis.

LLANDEVAUD is a hamlet, 1½ miles north, on the road from Newport to Chepstow. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt on the site of an older structure in 1843, is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are 105 sittings. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £440, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1807 by the Rev. James Swinnerton. For civil parochial purposes this place is united with Llanmartin.

LLANOVER is a parish, on the high road from Abergavenny to Pontypool, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles south from Abergavenny station, and about 4 miles north-east from Nantyderry station, both on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Raglan, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The parish is bounded on the northeast by the river Usk, and the Brecon and Monmouthshire canal runs through it from south to north; the western part of the parish is very mountainous. The church of St. Bartholomew is an ancient structure of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, porch and a tower containing 5 bells, rehung in 1907 at the expense of the late Hon. Mrs. Augusta Herbert: the tower was also restored at a cost of about £250, and in 1908 the chancel was restored at the cost of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: in the churchyard is a very handsome monument to the memory of the late Lord Llanover, who died 27 April, 1867, and also an ancient stone cross: the church will seat 200 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1661; marriages, 1754. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence and 25 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since

LLANTHEWY-VACH, or Llanddewi-fach, is a parish, 4 miles south-east from Pontypool Road and 4 north from Caerleon station, on the Pontypool, Caerleon and Newport Junction section of the Great Western railway, 5 miles south-east from Pontypool, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Usk, petty sessional division of Caerleon, union and county court district of Pontypool, rural deanery of Usk (western division), archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. A small stream called the Soar divides it on the east from the parishes of Llanguibby and Llandegvetb. The present church of St. David, erected in 1857 on the site of the ancient church, is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells; there are 80 sittings, all free; there are several fine yew trees in the churchyard, the largest of which measures 39 feet round and is perfectly hollow. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1741; marriages and burials, 1750. The living is a rectory, annexed in 1888 to Llandegvetb, joint net income £220, including 111 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff and Albert Addams-Williams esq. alternately, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Thomas William Moore B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter; the rectorial tithes, for long years appropriated or alienated from the benefice, were in 1870 restored by a former Bishop of Llandaff, the appropriator. The parish includes the manor of Bishton, of which the bishop is lord, and the manor of Edloggan, of which John Capel Hanbury esq. is lord. The principal landowner is John Capel Hanbury esq. The soil is clay; subsoil, marly. The geological formations, the old red sandstone and the silurian, meet in this parish; interesting fossils of the latter are found. Quartzose sandstone, fit for building, is quarried in one spot. The flora of the parish is rich and diversified. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,355 acres; rateable value, £1,290; the population in 1911 was 146.

LLANTILIO-CROSSENNY is a parish and village on the river Trothy, 6 miles north from Raglan station on the Monmouth, Usk and Pontypool section of the Great Western railway, and 5 south-east from Abergavenny junction on the Great Western and London and North Western lines, and 8 west-north-west from Monmouth, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Skenfrith, union and county court district of Monmouth, Monmouth and Skenfrith highway district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Teilo is an ancient cruciform building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, west porch and a tower, probably of the later 12th century, with lofty spire, and containing 6 bells, dated 1709; the present nave is Perpendicular and the chancel Decorated; the latter retains an Early Decorated piscina; the east window in the Killough chapel has been filled by Mrs. Margor Clifford with stained glass, in memory of her husband and son, and there is another memorial window erected by Lady Dunboyne to her mother, Mrs. Morgan Clifford, on either side of the east window is a corbel head or bracket, for the support of lights or statues; the one on the south side is intended as a portrait of Edw. II.; there are monuments to the Lewis, Herbert, Powell and Jackson families; the church affords 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1720; marriages and burials, 1719. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Llanfair Cilgoed, net yearly value £247, with 3 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since 1913 by the Rev. Charles Bews L.T.H. of Durham University. The chapel of ease at LLANFAIR CILGOED, erected about 1850, in place of a very ancient chapel, of which the ruins remain, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave, with a turret containing one bell, and has a yearly endowment of £4 8s. 1d.; the communion plate is dated 1045. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel here, and attached to Glen Trothy, the residence of Roger Benedict Vaughan esq. is a small Catholic chapel, dedicated to the Sacred Heart and open to neighbours. The Court house for the Skenfrith Petty Sessional Division is situated in the parish on the Ross road. Charities producing £30 are distributed yearly. The fine ruins of White Castle, a Norman fortress, supposed to have been built by Hubert de Burgh during the usurpation of Stephen, stand on a lofty hill; it was once possessed by Brian FitzCount, Earl of Hereford, who followed the Norman Conqueror to England, and was dismantled, as it appears, together with the castles of Skenfrith and Grosmont, by order of King Edward IV. in the wars of the Roses; this castle was, with those of Skenfrith and Grosmont, the property of John of Gaunt, and was afterwards attached to the Duchy of Lancaster until its sale to the Beaufort family; it is now the property of Sir Henry Mather-Jackson bart. C.B.E. Llantilio Court is the seat of Sir Henry Mather-Jackson bart. C.B.E., D.L., J.P. Hen-Gwrt (Old Court), which stood some 200 yards from the church, was formerly one of the seats of Sir David Gam, who was slain after the battle of Agincourt (25 Oct. 1415), and knighted while dying; the Dukes of Beaufort until recently owned the manor. The only remains of the mansion now existing are a few stones on an island one acre in extent, and so formed by a moat. At the time of the Civil War this property formed the deer park belonging to Raglan Castle, and is said to have once been over 400 acres in extent. Sir Henry Mather-Jackson bart. C.B.E., D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, Col. Joseph A. Bradney C.B., T.D., M.A., F.S.A., D.L., J.P. Roger Benedict Vaughan esq. and Arthur Ernest Lawley esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly loam; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and a few roots. The area is 6,143 acres of land and 19 of water; rateable value, £5,506; the population in 1911 was 538 in the civil and 533 in the ecclesiastical parish.

LLANTILIO-PERTHOLEY is a parish on the road from Abergavenny to Hereford, and on the river Gavenny, 2 miles north from Abergavenny station, on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The parish is nearly surrounded by lofty mountains. The church of St. Teilo is an ancient building of stone, in the Gothic style of the 13th century, consisting of chancel, nave, three chapels, south porch and an embattled tower with pinnacles containing 4 bells; the church was restored in 1800-r, at a cost of £860, and presented with gifts to the value of £90; it now affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1591. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £220, with residence and 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since 1904 by the Rev. Henry James Bates B.A. of Bressenose College, Oxford. The chapel of ease at BETTWS, a place in this parish, 2½ miles north-west, is a stone building, with 50 sittings. Charities:—Mr. Crawshaw Bailey's charity, being the interest upon £500, is paid yearly to the vicar and churchwardens towards the repair and maintenance of the church; under the will of William Morgan, of Caerleon, dated 12th June, 1690, the interest on £200 is to be distributed as the trustees think fit; Mary Powell, of Brecon, by will dated 28th January, 1703, left an annuity of £2 a year out of her lands in Llantilio Pertholey, to be yearly distributed amongst the poor of the parish on St. Thomas' Day; Jane Cook, by will dated 10th August, 1713, left £60, to be employed in placing out the children of the poor of Llantilio Pertholey to be apprenticed, and for such other charitable purposes for the same poor people and their children as her executors should think meet; Evan James, dated 10th January, 1730, left a rent-charge of £1 a year to be distributed amongst four or five of the poorest persons of the same parish; and John Owen left the interest on £200 for the poor on Christmas Day.

Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western saddleback tower, containing one bell: the fine carved oak chancel screen was presented by the Rev. W. J. C. Lindsay: in the porch wall is part of a stone coffin lid curiously carved, and an antique stoup, both discovered during the restoration: the chalice and paten are dated 1573, and bear a rare provincial hall mark: the church was restored in 1908 at a cost of £1,000, defrayed by the last Viscount Trede-gar, and affords 109 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1754. The living is a rectory, net income £228, with 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Lord Tredegar, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Montague William John Bruce M.A. of Oriol College, Oxford. Here are Congregational, Baptist and United Methodist chapels. The church room was built and presented in 1909 by the last Viscount Tredegar. Extensive water works to augment the supply of water to Newport have been constructed here and include a reservoir estimated to hold about three million gallons, connected by means of an underground aqueduct with another at Newchurch holding about four million gallons. The work was carried out by the corporation of the County Borough of Newport, at a cost of about £300,000, and was completed in 1905. There have been various bequests to the poor, amounting in all to £10 yearly. On the land of Church Farm, the property of Mr. Samuel Baker, the site of the foundations of a castle, situated about 250 yards north of the church, can be distinctly traced. In an orchard belonging to Talgarth farm, at the top of a conical hill, are some traces of an ancient encampment, probably British. Lord Tredegar and the Duke of Beaufort, who are the lords of the manor, Mrs. Wey, Mr. Jenkins and Viscountess Rhonda are the principal landowners. The soil is a clayey loam; subsoil, clay and stony brash. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 2,093 acres; rateable value, £4,084; the population in 1911 was 256.

LLANVAIR-DISCOED and DINHAM is a parish 6½ miles west-by-south from Chepstow railway station and 4½ north-east from Magor station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Netherwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The village of Llanvair-Discoed is on the road from Caerwent to Usk, at the foot of a lofty eminence, known as "Mynydd Llwyd," or Grey Hill, from the top of which a magnificent prospect is obtained: on this hill are some vestiges of an ancient stone circle. The Neddin brook flows through the parish. The church of St. Mary, a building of stone in the Early English style, appears to have been rebuilt, according to an inscription formerly over the south door, in 1746, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: the church was thoroughly restored and enlarged in 1883, the chancel at the expense of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: there are 110 sittings: in 1885 the late Col. Kemeys-Tynte gave land for the extension of the churchyard and built a fence wall round it. The register dates from the year 1680. The living has been annexed to Caerwent since 1885, joint net yearly value £340, with 5 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff, and held since 1909 by the Rev. William Coleman Williams M.A., Cantuar. who resides at Caerwent. On an eminence close by the church are the ruins of the ancient castle, which appears to have been erected in the earlier part of the 13th century by the noble family of Fitz-Pain, possibly on the site of an older building: the castle was subsequently held by the De Monthermers, and passed from them by marriage to the Montagues, and afterwards descended to the noble families of Neville and Pole: having reverted to the Crown in the time of James I the castle was granted in 1610 to Thomas Woodward, who conveyed it to Rhys Kemeys, ancestor of the present owner, Lord Wharton; two large round towers, some part of the keep and a small portion of the curtain walls remain. The Court House (now a farmhouse, occupied by Mr. Thomas Pritchard) is an old building, having an inscription in Welsh above the doorway, signifying, "Although it is narrow, it is pleasant to be here." Lord Wharton is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, clover and roots. The area is 7,359 acres; rateable value, £7,239; the population in 1911 was 131.

DINHAM, a hamlet 2 miles east and formerly a distinct parish, is one of the few places in Gwent mentioned by name in the Domesday survey. There was a castle here as early as 1128, some vestiges of which are to be found in a thick copse on a steep bank just above a picturesquely wooded dingle, through which one of the old roads leading to Wentwood formerly passed: little more than the foundations of some of the walls remain: the castle was probably erected by some of the family of Le Walleys or Walsh, by whom Dinham was held for many years. In the time of Queen Elizabeth, Dinham was purchased by William Blethyn, Bishop of Llandaff (1575-91), whose descendants resided here in a mansion standing on the site now occupied by Great Dinham farm: the estate having subsequently passed through several hands came into the possession of the Bayly family, but it now belongs to the Monmouthshire County Council, and is allotted for small holdings. The County Council now own the entire parish with the exception of a small portion belonging to trustees of the late Edward J. Lowe esq. of Shire Newton Hall (d. 1900). Jaruths, a famous British bard, resided at Dinham, and refers to it in one of his songs as the burial place of Caradoc, the great British chieftain, better known as Caractacus, who for nine years kept the Roman legions in check, but was finally defeated at Caer-Caradoc, and sent a prisoner to Rome: he is said to have been permitted to return to his native land, and, according to tradition, his remains rest near to where the Dinham Castle afterwards stood. There was formerly a church at Dinham, some traces of which may be seen at the gable end of one of the farm buildings belonging to Great Dinham farm: the font, long used as a pump-trough in the farm yard, and the lid of a stone coffin, locally known as "The Bishop's Stone," and built into the garden wall, have both been removed to Caerwent church: the church has been long abandoned and the parish is now united for ecclesiastical purposes to that of Llanvair-Discoed. At Whitewalls Brake, between Dinham and Caerwent, a tessellated pavement has been found. The area of Dinham is 636 acres: rateable value, £670; the population in 1911 was 27.

petty sessional division of Pontypool hundred, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Raglan, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff: the river Usk forms the eastern and northern boundaries of the parish. The church of St. Mary is a small building of stone in the Gothic style of the 15th

Cent. consisting of chancel, with a fine screen, nave, south porch and a small turret containing 2 bells: the church is decorated with beautiful sgraffito work, illustrating the "Song of the Three Children," designed and executed in 1888 by Mr. Heywood Sumner, at a cost of £500, as a memorial to Mrs. Lindsay, wife of the Rev. William J. C. Lindsay M.A. rector 1872-1912: the church was thoroughly restored in 1876 at a cost of £3,000; and in 1894 a stained east window was placed in memory of William Hunter and Georgiana Little by their children: there is also a memorial window to the Gardner and Fearn families: there are 180 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1735; marriages, 1758: in the churchyard is a 13th century cross, which has been restored. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £270, with residence and 84 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Tredegar, and held since 1912 by the Rev. Henry James Fish. The Rectory hall, a parish room, is used for all parochial meetings and entertainments, as well as an institute for men, and contains billiard and bagatelle tables and a library. Pant-y-goitre is the seat of Trevor Davies Berrington esq. Lord Tredegar and the Marquess of Abergavenny are lords of the manor. The trustees of the late A. D. Berrington esq. Mrs. A. T. Berrington and Mr. John Paton are chief landowners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, clayey. The crops are wheat and barley, but the land is mainly devoted to pasturage. The area is 1,776 acres of land and 32 of water; rateable value, £2,927; the population in 1911 was 236.

LLANVAPLEY is a village and parish, traversed by the Myocah brook, the river Trothy flowing on the east; it is on the old road from Abergavenny to Monmouth, 4½ miles east from Abergavenny station on the Great Western railway and 10 west from Monmouth, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Mapley, or Mabley, is a building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 2 bells: the font is early Norman, and there is a double piscine and an aumbry and holy water stoup: the chancel, rood turret, south porch and tower were restored in 1904-6 at a cost of £200 and the nave in 1910-11 at a further cost of £200, when a new vestry was added at a cost of £100: the church was reseatd in 1361, and affords 140 sittings. The register dates from the year 1699. The living is a rectory, net income £200, including 52 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Abergavenny, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Edward Mansel Townshend M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. On the north border of the parish there is a Congregational chapel. The Marquess of Abergavenny is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are the rector, the trustees of the Crawshay Bailey Estate, William Reginald J. F. Herbert esq. D.L. and George Davies esq. The soil is clay; subsoil, loamy. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots, but the land is mainly devoted to pasturage. The area is 845 acres; rateable value, £1,356; population in 1911, 94.

LLANVIHANGEL-LLANTARNAM is a parish through the road leading from Newport to Pontypool and the river Usk, with a station called Llantarnam on the Newport, Abergavenny and Hereford section of the Great Western railway, 4 miles north from Newport and 15½ from London, in the Pontypool division of the county, hundred of Usk, petty sessional division of Caerleon, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff: the Monmouthshire canal intersects the parish. The parish was governed by a Local Board, created by Local Government Board Order, from 1885 until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established the present Urban District Council. The church of St. Michael, restored in 1869, is an ancient building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel with side chapel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: in the chancel are some handsome marble monuments: the mortuary chapel of the Dowling family, adjoining the chancel, is separated from it by two ancient freestone arches of peculiar construction: the church was entirely new roofed in 1899; there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1727. The churchyard is closed to burials, except in family graves. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1917 by the Rev. John Donne B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. At LLANTARNAM is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1862, with 300 sittings, and a Congregational chapel. A cemetery, six acres in extent, was formed in 1862 at a cost of £3,100: there is a mortuary chapel. It is under the control of the Urban District Council. The charities, producing £21, are distributed yearly in money. This place was formerly the site of an abbey, founded c. 1170 by Halvel ap Iorwerth, and dedicated to SS. Mary and Demna; at the Dissolution there were six nuns, and revenues estimated at £71 yearly: the gateway still remains. Llantarnam Abbey, the residence of Sir Clifford John Cory bart. M.P., D.L., J.P. is a building of stone in the Tudor style. Richard Parfitt esq. who is lord of the manor of Magna Porta, Sir Clifford John Cory bart. M.P. and the trustees of the late A. C. Piffiner esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are oats and barley; there is much pasture land, heavily timbered. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 4,003 acres of land, 34 of water and 2 of foreshore; rateable value, £29,056; the population in 1911 was 7,058. A part of the district of Cwmbiran is within this parish, and will be found under a separate heading.

LLANWENARTH ULTRA is a parish formed in 1865 from the civil parish of Llanwenarth Citra, on the river Usk, with a station at Govilon (in the parish) on the Abergavenny and Merthyr branch of the London and North Western railway, and contains the ecclesiastical district of Christ Church, 2½ miles north-west from Abergavenny, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. Christ Church, in the village of Govilon, is a building of stone in the Early English style, erected in 1848, and consecrated in 1860; it consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, vestry and an incomplete western tower containing one bell: in 1099 two memorial windows were erected by Mrs. Church to her husband, Lt.-Col. H. B. Church, formerly of Glanbaiden House, in this parish: a new organ was provided in March, 1906: there are 226 sittings. The register dates from the year 1860. The living is a rectory, net income £270, including 1½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Llanwenarth Citra, and held since 1902 by the Rev. Thomas Percy Clarke M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, rural dean of Abergavenny. There is a Baptist chapel, founded in 1652. Llanwenarth House is the seat of Mrs. Humphrey. The land is divided among several owners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, stone. The land is chiefly in pastures. The area is 2,279 acres of land and 22 of water; rateable value, £4,022; the population in 1911 was 963.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,865, the part of Llanwenarth Ultra in Blaenavon Urban District was in 1894 taken to form the new civil parish of Blaenavon.

There is a ferry here across the river Usk to Llanwenarth Citra.

MARSHFIELD, otherwise St. Mary's Field, is a parish on the Cardiff and Newport road, with a station (in the parish of Peterstone), $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-east from the village on the Great Western (South Wales) railway, $\frac{6}{8}$ miles south-east from Cardiff, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the Bristol Channel, 150 miles from London and $\frac{3}{4}$ south-west from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Wentlog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The parish is intersected by the rivers Usk, the Ebbw and the Rumney. The Usk is navigable as far as the ancient city of Caerleon. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone in Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, transept, south porch and a lofty tower with spire containing 6 bells; in 1883 the chancel floor was relaid, and a reredos erected by Capt. Ferdinand Walker, and in 1909 it was entirely renovated at a cost of £4,000; the south porch is entered through a fine Norman arch; there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1656. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £305, including 35 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Bristol, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Hubert George Stanley, who is also vicar of Peterstone-

Wentlog. The Baptist chapel at CASTLETON was erected in 1853 at a cost of £2,000, and will seat 600 persons. The Wesleyan chapel is of stone in the Decorated style, and was erected in 1854 at a cost of about £2,000, with sittings for about 200 persons. There is also a Calvinistic Methodist Chapel, seating about 150 persons. Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, Lord Wharton and J. H. Stubbs esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, roots and pasture. The area is 1,273 acres; rateable value, £3,050; the population in 1911 was 592.

MATHERN is a parish, bounded on the south by the Bristol Channel and the road from Chepstow to Newport: the Meurig, or the Mounon brook, runs through the parish and falls into the Channel at St. Pierre Pill: it is $\frac{2}{4}$ miles south-south-west from Chepstow station on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. Mathern is said to have derived its name from "Mertlhyr Tewdric"—the martyrdom of St. Tewdric, King of Glamorgan, who died here in the 6th century from the effects of a wound received in battle against the Saxons, and who was afterwards esteemed a saint and martyr; his remains having been interred at this place a church was erected on the spot and dedicated in his honour, and in the chancel is a monument recording these facts. The church of St. Tewdric or Theodoric is a building of stone partly of the Early English period, with extensive additions in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a very fine and lofty embattled tower with angle turret and pinnacles, built in the last quarter of the 15th century by John Marshall, bishop of Llandaff, and containing 6 bells, all cast by Evans of Chepstow in 1765: on the north wall of the chancel is a tablet, put up about the beginning of the 17th century by Bishop Godwin in memory of St. Tewdric, whose stone coffin was found beneath this spot by the bishop whilst repairing the church: during the restoration in 1881-4 a stone coffin was uncovered here and carefully re-interred with the bones it contained in the same place; according to Godwin, four of the Bishops of Llandaff were buried at Mathern during the period 1516-91, but no monument to any of them remains: there is an old slab in the chancel with an incised cross; in the south aisle is a curious brass with kneeling effigies to Philip Williams, d. 20th May, 1562, and Alice, his wife, d. 31st May,

1567. Over the south door of the nave is a large mural monument to Colonel Thomas Hughes, of Moynes Court, governor of Chepstow during the Civil War, d. 22 Aug. 1662, and in the chancel are several floorstones to the Hughes family, and numerous other memorials: the pulpit, and the altar table and its ornaments were given by the Rev. Robert Vaughan Hughes M.A. of Wyelands, at a total cost of £150; the font, presented by the same family, cost £40, and the lych gate was also given by the Rev. R. Vaughan Hughes: there are several stained windows, one of which is a memorial to Mary Anne Mainwaring, wife of the Rev. R. V. Hughes, d. 14 Jan. 1855; and some fragments of old stained glass; the organ was given by C. F. Abdy Williams esq. and his sisters; the church was restored in 1881-4, and again in 1890, at a total cost of about £3,500: there are 270 sittings. The register dates from the year 1565. The living is a vicarage, net income £300, with about 19 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Llan'au, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Watkin Davies B.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter, and rural dean of Chepstow. The Wesleyans have a place of worship at Pwllmeyric. Moynes Court was built A.D. 1609 near the site of a former mansion, and probably out of the old materials, by Francis Godwin, bishop of Llandaff 1601-17; the arms of the see of Llandaff and those of Bishop Godwin are carved over the principal entrance: in 1624 it was the property of Colonel Hughes, the parliamentary governor of Chepstow Castle: the fine gateway still remaining is supposed to have been the approach to the original mansion, the site of which and the moat by which it was surrounded may still be distinctly traced in the orchard close by: Moynes Court is now (1919) unoccupied. Near the church is the ancient Episcopal Palace, occupied by the Bishops of Llandaff down to the time of Bishop Beaw, who died in 1706; it is quadrangular in plan; and dates from the early part of the 15th century: the chapel, now used for domestic purposes, retains portions of a fine east window: on removing an old wall in 1851 some human bones, a glass bottle, a key and spurs were found in a recess: it is the property of Henry Avray Tipping esq. but is now (1919) unoccupied. Wyelands, the seat of Gerald Mainwaring Vaughan-Hughes esq. J.P. is a handsome modern mansion, well situated in finely-wooded grounds, and commanding a wide and beautiful panoramic view of the Channel and the surrounding hills. The trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis esq. who are lords of the manor, and Gerald Mainwaring Vaughan-Hughes esq. J.P. are chief landowners. The soil is of various qualities; subsoil, gravel and clay on limestone, resting on limestone intermixed with sandstone. The chief crops are about one half grass, the rest corn. The area is 3,457 acres of land, 16 of water, 337 of tidal water and 162 of foreshore; rateable value, Matherm and St. Pierre, £5,803; the population in 1911 was 622 in the civil and 545 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes part of St. Pierre.

Pwllmeyric is a large hamlet, half a mile north, on the Chepstow and Newport road.

RUNSTON, 1½ miles west, and St. Pierre are combined with this parish for civil purposes, but St. Pierre is for ecclesiastical purposes combined with Porthskewett. Parish Clerk, John Maynard Closs.

MICHAELSTON-Y-VEDW, or Llanvihangel-y-vedw, is a parish partly in Glamorganshire and partly in this county, on the river Rumney, which is not navigable; the Monmouthshire side of the parish stands upon rising ground and is bounded on the west by the river Rumney, which separates the two counties; the village is 2 miles north-west from Marshfield station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, and 5¼ west-south-west from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, transept and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the chancel is in the Gothic style of the 15th century, but the nave and tower are of later date; the transept is the ancient burying-place of the Kemys family: the old font is sculptured with the figure of a serpent coiled round the stem of a tree: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £315, with 18 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Lord Wharton, and held since 1912 by the Rev. Astley Septimus Richards L.Th. of Hatfield Hill, Durham. There is a Baptist chapel in the parish, erected in 1861, with 300 sittings. Lord Tredegar is lord of the manor of Michaelston and the Marquess of Bute is lord of the manor of Llanvedw. The principal landowners are Lord Tredegar and Lord Wharton. The soil is sandy loam; subsoil, stony clay. The crops are the usual cereals. The area of Michaelston-y-Vedw is 1,093 acres; rateable value, £1,285; the population in 1911 was 194 in the civil and 438 in the ecclesiastical parish.

Llanvedw, Glamorganshire, a hamlet in this civil parish, will be found in the South Wales Directory.

MITCHEL-TROY is a village and parish bounded on the north by the river Trothy and on the east by the Wye, and on the road from Monmouth to Abergavenny, 2½ miles south-west from Monmouth, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Raglan, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Monmouth, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The Great Western line from Monmouth to Pontypool runs through the parish. The church (dedication uncertain), built in 1208 and restored in 1876 at a cost of £1,670, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: in 1909-10 the tower was rebuilt and the bells rehung; during the same period the church was restored and the nave re-floored; there are seven stained windows, four memorial brasses and a marble font; there are 200 sittings. In the churchyard is a stone cross of the 13th century, and at the entrance is an old rood arch and lych gate, and here also are the village stocks, still in a good state of preservation. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1593; burials, 1590. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Cwmcervan annexed, joint net annual value £206, with 99 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Edward Arnott esq. and held since 1912 by the Rev. Edwin Arnott B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, built in 1843. Troy House, about a mile from Monmouth, was formerly one of the seats of the Duke of Beaufort A.D.C. and, like the village, derives its name from its situation on the little river Trothy, near the mouth of which it is situate; the mansion, formerly the seat of the Herberts, possesses no architectural beauty, but has some fine apartments, and is now a girls' reformatory convent, named the Convent of Notre Dame de Charité du Refuge, belonging to one of the French Roman Catholic Orders; the family pictures, formerly hung here, have all been removed to Badminton; in the reign of Charles I. this mansion was in the possession of Sir Charles Somerset, brother of Henry fifth Earl and first Marquess of Worcester, who so bravely defended Raglan Castle for the king. Mrs. Tweedy is lady of the manor. The land is divided amongst various owners. The soil is clay; subsoil, marl. The crops are beans and roots and there is a large area of pasture. The area is 2,734 acres of land and 15 of water; rateable value, £1,975; the population in 1911 was 316 in the civil and 540 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes Cwmcervan.

MONKSWOOD is a parish on the western bank of the Usk River and on the road from Usk to Pontypool, 2½ miles north-west-by-west from Usk station on the Monmouth and Pontypool Road section of the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division and county court district of Usk, union of Pontypool, rural deanery of Usk, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church is a small building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave and a western belfry containing 2 bells; the church was entirely rebuilt in 1883-4, at a cost of £1,038, in the Early English style, from plans furnished by Mr. E. Lingen-Barker, of Hereford, the chief contributors to the outlay being Miss E. A. Stokes, of Cheltenham, and the Duke of Beaufort; there are 140 sittings. The register dates from the year 1783. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £68, including glebe (£63) without residence, in the gift of Cambridge University, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Percy Louis Charles Nash B.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham University, who is also vicar of and resides at Usk. Major Albert Addams-Williams J.P. is lord of the manor, and Mrs. C. H. Bailey the principal landowner. The soil is silurian; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are grain and roots; there is a great deal of wood. The area is 1,109 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £1,120 10s.; the population in 1911 was 116. This parish is reputed to be extra-parochial for ecclesiastical purposes.

MONMOUTH

MONMOUTH, the county town of Monmouthshire, is a municipal borough, a market town and the head of a petty sessional division, poor law union, and county court district, 128 miles from London by road and 145 by railway, 31 from Gloucester, 16 from Abergavenny, 19 from Hereford, 10 south-west from Ross, 16 north from Chepstow, 55 from Bristol, 25 north-east from Newport, 35 north-east from Cardiff and 80 from Swansea; it is in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Skenfidh, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff.

The municipal boundaries include the parish of Monmouth and a part of the adjoining parish of Dinton Newton.

Monmouth is a borough by prescription, but received a charter from Henry VI. and others from Edw. VI. Jas. I. Chas. I. and Chas. II. the earliest existing charter being that of Edw. VI. dated 1549; but under the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 & 6 Wm. IV. c. 76) the Corporation was remodelled, and now consists of a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors, under the style of "the mayor, aldermen and burgesses of the borough of Monmouth."

The town is seated in a beautiful valley nearly encircled by hills and at the confluence of the rivers Wye, Monnow and Trothy, which nearly surround it; over the Wye is a stone bridge of five arches, bearing the date 1617; an ancient stone bridge, of three arches, on which stands an ancient gateway of two storeys with a projecting garb-roof, and sloping roof, crosses the Monnow, and a third the Trothy. The town consists chiefly of one long street, of good width, rising rapidly towards the east, and expanding at the top into an open space called "Agin-court square," from which several other thoroughfares branch out.

A single line railway runs from Pontypool Road station to Ross. There is also a branch from Troy to Chepstow, each of which is worked by the Great Western Railway Co.

The town is paved and is lighted by electricity under a Provisional Order granted by the Board of Trade, and which received the Royal assent 3rd July, 1894. The works, situated at the Old Forge on the Monnow, are the property of the Corporation; the motive power is furnished by turbines, worked by the stream, steam being only used as an auxiliary. The town is well supplied with water from the reservoir on Moy hill. In 1890 a further water supply was brought in by gravitation from springs rising in the Buckholt, about 3 miles distant, which enables the company to give a constant supply to the town; the water is considered remarkably good, rising as it does in the old red sandstone rock. In 1905 a new system of sewage disposal was adopted, by which the sewage is pumped into three large septic tanks, where the solids are liquefied and after passing through filter beds the effluent is run off into the river in a purified state; the works are capable of dealing with 495,000 gallons in 24 hours, thoroughly filtered.

Monmouth is a place of great antiquity, and has been identified by some antiquaries with the Roman station "Blestium," mentioned in the 13th Iter of Antoninus; it has been immortalized by Shakespeare in "Henry IV." The town was formerly walled round and moated, and had four gates, and of one of these (Dixon or the East gate) there are still remains; the others were named "Monk's Gate," "Wys Gate" & "West Gate"; the walls enclosed an area of about 20 acres; and a portion existed in the reign of Henry VIII. The place was formerly celebrated for the manufacture of head-gear, and this trade is thought to have principally thrived in Over Monnow (anciently called "Cappers' Town"). Cromwell was entertained here in 1646. Roman coins have been found in various parts of the town, notably on the site of the Grammar School.

The church of St. Mary, originally Norman, was rebuilt in the Early English period, but in 1737 the church was almost entirely pulled down, and rebuilt in a debased Classic style, rather to the south of its former site; in 1822-3, the church was again remodelled under the direction of the late G. E. Street esq. R.A. at a cost of £7,000, and is now a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south chapel, organ chamber, south-western porch and a western tower with spire, 200 feet high, containing a clock and 8 bells, rebung in 1893, and a fire bell, recast in memory of Mr. John Rees, late captain of the fire brigade; portions of the nave respond discovered during the restoration and now seen against the west wall belonged to the Norman fabric; some fine specimens of 14th and 15th century tiles, a rare "cresset" stone and a piscina are preserved in the baptistery; the altar painting, representing the Adoration of the Magi, is by Watney Wilson; the chancel has a piscina and three canopied sedilia; the font of stone and marble, the carved oak pulpit, a magnificent white embroidered altar-cloth, and the eagle lectern, were all gifts; the east window, of five tall lancets, is stained; a stained window in the lower stage of the tower, now converted into a baptistery, was presented by Charles H. Crompton-Roberts esq. of Drybridge, Monmouth, and new ironwork has been presented by Miss Powell, of Monmouth; there is also a memorial window in the south aisle, erected in 1889 by friends of the late John Endell Powles esq. besides others; the church is now seated throughout with open benches, affording 800 sittings. In the churchyard is a curious gravestone, carved before his death by John Renie, who died 31 May, 1832, aged 33 years; it is a flat stone divided into squares, and is 15 squares long and 19 broad: the centre square contains the letter "H," from which in any direction letters form the sentence, "Here lies John Renie." The register dates from the year 1598. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £144, with house, in the gift of Wilfred Hoare esq. and held since 1912 by the Rev. Alfred Edwin Monsban M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, chaplain to Monmouth Union, and surrogate.

OVERMONNOW is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1832. The church of St. Thomas is an ancient building of red stone in the Norman style, dating from 1180, and consisting of chancel, nave, west porch and a western turret containing one bell, and has a clock in the western gable; the chancel arch is a fine example of enriched Late Norman work, the deeply recessed outer doorway of the porch in the same style, and also much ornamented, is a modern addition; the Norman archway on the north side is much worn; the windows in the chancel are exceedingly small and deeply splayed; a very ancient font stands in the baptistery; the west end is encumbered with a heavy gallery and others receding from it along the sides. In 1900 a new organ was erected at a cost of £300; the church was restored in 1880 at a cost of £300, and in 1887-8 new vestries were added at a cost of £525; there are 300 sittings. The register dates only from the year 1845. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Monmouth, and held since 1915 by the Rev. James Percy Lax Amos L.Th. of Durham University.

St. John's chapel of ease, BUCKHOLT, built in 1890, is a plain edifice, consisting of nave and north porch, and has 60 sittings. St. Mary's Catholic church, in St. Mary's street, opened in 1793 and enlarged in 1871, is a plain building of stone in the Gothic style, with a turret containing one small bell; in the chapel is a fine oil painting of the "Presentation in the Temple," after Raphael, executed by T. G. Gainsford, at the expense of the Rev. Thomas Burgess, priest here for 15 years, and afterwards Bishop of Clifton, and here are also preserved a processional cross of the 12th century, and an oak altar and small chalice formerly used by Father John Kemble, a priest from 1625 to 1678, who suffered martyrdom for his faith at Widemarsh, near Hereford, on Aug. 22nd, 1678, at the age of eighty; the altar bears an inscription recording the fact: there are 200 sittings. The Baptist chapel, in Monk street, erected in 1907, is a building of stone with 400 sittings. The Congregational chapel, Glendower street, erected in 1846, is also of stone, and affords 400 sittings. The Primitive Methodist chapel, Monnow street, erected in 1803, is a plain edifice of brick, seating 200. The Wesleyan chapel, St. James street, erected in 1837, is a building of stone in the Italian style, with 400 sittings.

The Cemetery, an extension of the churchyard, opened in 1852, has an area of six acres, all of which are laid out; the land was given by the Duke of Beaufort, who in 1902 gave a further two acres of land for its enlargement; in the cemetery is a mortuary chapel.

The churchyard, excepting the vaults of the Powell and Shallard families, is now closed to interments.

Near the Monnow bridge and in Over Monnow stands a restored cross; there are three steps and a square base, from which rises a paneled octagonal shaft, supporting a canopied and crocketed head with figures of the Virgin and other saints in niches.

The Shire Hall, in Agincourt square, is an edifice of stone in the Ionic style, with an open arcaded basement and an upper storey, lighted by numerous tall round-headed windows, alternating with Ionic pilasters; the principal front has a pediment, in which is a clock, and above it rises a bell turret; in an arched recess below is a full-sized statue in armour of King Henry V. who was born in Monmouth Castle, 9 Aug. 1387, and was afterwards known as "Henry of Monmouth"; in one of the arches of the basement stands a Russian gun. The petty sessions and the assize for the county are all held at the Shire Hall. In front of the hall is a statue of the late Hon. C. S. Rolls, who lost his life while flying at Bourne-mouth in 1910.

The Rolls Hall, in Whitecross street, erected in 1857, at the sole cost of John Allan Rolls esq. afterwards 1st Baron Llangatock, of The Hendre, and presented to the town in 1888, is an edifice of local red sandstone with dressings of Forest of Dean stone, from designs by Mr. F. A. Powell F.R.I.B.A. of London and Monmouth, and comprises a spacious hall with a gallery and a stage, and possesses a fine organ, also the gift of the late Lord Llangatock, and numerous valuable paintings presented by him and others.

There is a small Museum here, containing interesting local curios.

The Market House, Post Office and Athenæum, in Priory street, erected in 1840, at a cost (including slaughter houses) of £9,000, form a building of stone, in the Doric and Ionic styles, consisting of a pedimented central block with clock turret and low wings on either side; the west wing is used as a post office, and the east wing comprises the Athenæum and borough engineer's office. The market day is on Friday, the great market for cattle being held fortnightly on Mondays. The Cattle Market, situated at the bottom of Monnow street, was opened in 1876. The fairs are second Monday in February, first market Monday in May and September and 22nd November.

The old town gaff is now used as a warehouse. The river Wye affords good salmon fishing, while trout can be obtained in the rivers Monnow and Trothy.

The manufactures of Monmouth are now few and unimportant, but there are corn mills, saw mills, a tannery and a brewery. One newspaper, "The Nonmouthshire Beacon," is published every Thursday. The principal hotels in the town are the Beaufort Arms, King's Head, Angel, and White Swan. Charles I. is traditionally supposed to have frequently halted at the King's Head in his many journeys to and from Raglan Castle, and the then landlord fixed in the bar a medallion portrait of the king, which still remains. Lloyds Bank Limited (the Old Bank and the Capital and Counties branches) and the National Provincial and Union Bank of England Limited have branches here.

The Monmouth and County Club in Agincourt square was opened in 1876, and contains reading, luncheon, billiard and ladies' rooms; there are 60 members.

The Athenæum and Reading Rooms are in Priory street.

Roger Kembla, the father of Mrs. Siddons, and John and Charles Kemble played in this town in 1774.

The Working Men's Institute, Monk street, built and endowed in 1868 by Mrs. Matilda Jones, of Ancre hill, is an edifice of red sandstone, with Bath and Forest stone dressings, in the Italian Gothic style, from designs by Mr. B. Lawrence, architect, of Newport, and comprises on the ground floor a spacious entrance, vestibule and hall, reading, news and games rooms, library and committee room; the principal storey includes a lecture hall with a raised platform and a smaller hall; the gabled front, 54 feet high, surmounted by a banneret of hammered iron, bears the arms of the foundress.

The Monmouth Hospital and Dispensary in St. James's square was opened in 1868, and had nine beds. In 1900 a large plot of ground, situated on the Hereford road, was acquired through the kindness of the Duke of Beaufort, and a new hospital and dispensary, erected at a cost of £7,260, and opened for the reception of patients November 6th, 1903; the hospital affords 15 beds, and there is one private ward; the number of out-patients treated in the hospital annually is about 500, and of in-patients 120; the building is commodious, has good grounds attached and is beautifully situated.

The Monmouth Borough Fever Hospital, the gift of the late Lord Llangatock, was opened in 1898, and will hold 10 patients.

There are Almshouses, founded and endowed by William Jones esq. for ten poor old men and ten poor old women, each having a separate house and 8 shillings per week, besides coal and a cloak; other charities producing about £30 are distributed yearly.

Monmouth Castle, the birthplace of Henry V. and once a formidable fortress, is now represented only by a few insignificant ruins on Castle hill; it was built during the reign of William the Conqueror, but was apparently destroyed about two centuries later; during the Civil War it was many times taken and retaken, and is now the property of the War Office.

The Kymyn Hill belonging to the National Trust is a conical elevation, 700 feet high, on the Gloucestershire side of the river Wye; and the prospect from the summit embraces a view of ten counties. The scenery in the neighbourhood is very delightful; the windings of the rivers Wye and Monnow may be traced for many miles, and the mountains and hills in the distance present a highly attractive landscape. On the summit of the hill is a Naval Temple, or pavilion, erected to the memory of Lord Nelson.

Croft-y-Bwla is the residence of Col. James Harford Walwyn J.P.

The trustees of the late Edward Arnott esq. J.P. (d. 1906), who are lords of the manor, J. Conway Lloyd esq. Hon. Lady Shelley-Rolls and Lieut.-Col. C. M. Crompton-Roberts D.L. are the principal landowners.

The area of the municipal borough and civil parish is 4,805 acres of land and 103 of water; assessable value, £24,408; the population in 1911 was 5,269, including 10 officers and 137 inmates in the Poor Law Institution. The population of St. Mary ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 3,610, and of St. Thomas Over Monnow, 1,232.

SCHOOLS.

The Grammar School, near the Wye Bridge, a building in the Tudor style, was founded in 1615 by William Jones, a native of Newland, near Monmouth, & a wealthy merchant & member of the Haberdashers' Company, London; he endowed it with £9,000, which was invested in the purchase of 323 acres of land at Hatcham, New Cross & Barnes, near London; the school has now an income from the foundation of about £4,200 yearly: attached is a chapel, built in 1265, at a cost of £2,350, and there are houses for the head and second masters, enlarged in 1895, a spacious playground, cricket field of over 7 acres & five courts. The river Wye affords good bathing & boating. A science wing, comprising lecture room, chemical & physical laboratories, & a large art room, was erected in 1908 at a cost of about £3,800, from designs by Messrs. Stock, architects. New class rooms were added in 1912. A new boarding house was built in 1914 at a cost of about £9,500. A new scheme for the administration of the school was issued in June, 1868, but was superseded in Feb. 1891, by another scheme framed by the Charity Commissioners, under which the Grammar school is a First Grade Public School. Attached to the school are ten foundation scholarships of £20 yearly & free tuition, tenable in the school by either day boys or boarders; twenty Monmouth scholarships of £10 & free tuition, tenable in the school only by sons of parents residing in the borough; some thirty scholarships for Gloucestershire, Herefordshire & Monmouthshire boys. Four exhibitions of from £50 to £60 yearly are offered every year to boys who at the time of leaving have been for not less than three years pupils in the school; these may be held for three, & in certain cases, four years, at any University or place of higher professional education in the United Kingdom; there are about 200 boys & two boarding houses; there is a cadet corps of 120 boys; a junior boarding house, for 20 boys from 8 to 12, was opened in 1919. The school is controlled by a governing body of 21 persons; Sir Henry Mather Jackson bart. C.B.E., M.A. chairman; J. T. Vizard, 9 Agincourt street, clerk to the governors; Lionel James M.A. late classical scholar of Christ Church, Oxford, head master; Johnson Lomax Entwistle M.A. (second master & master of the New House), A. S. Littlewood M.A. (senior classical master), J. E. Briggs M.A. (science), Rhys H. Williams B.A. (history), N. C. Elstob M.A., R. Camous B. & Lettres (modern languages), Rev. William Owen Jones (senior master of the modern side), Marcus Holmes (drawing), C. H. Pearson M.A., F. P. Wood M.A., W. R. Irving B.A., P. H. Heap M.A. & J. P. R. Daniel M.A. assistant masters; Junior school, Miss K. E. Rafter; Miss Wiseman A.R.C.M. (music); R. H. Williams B.A. organist & choir master; Capt. W. R. Irving, cadet corps; Rev. C. W. Griffin M.A. lecturer

The High School for Girls, which occupies an elevated site near the Old Hereford road, was erected in 1900, at a cost of £20,000, for 100 day scholars & 40 boarders & there are now 200 pupils. The buildings comprise a large hall 60 by 30 feet, class rooms, 10 music cells & an art studio, & have recently been enlarged, & there are two other hostels. The school is managed by the Governors of the Grammar School, including three lady governors, & has an annual endowment of over £1,500 out of the Grammar School foundation. Attached to the School are many Scholarships giving free tuition & others of higher value. There are also three exhibitions of £40 yearly, tenable for three years at any place of higher education approved by the Governors, & awarded to girls who have been in the school for not less than three years. One of these exhibitions is competed for every year. Miss E. Carless, head mistress

Monmouth (William Jones') Endowed Elementary School between the new & old Dixon roads, was erected at a cost of £3,500 & opened Sept. 1905. It serves as an "Intermediate School" between the public Elementary Schools & the Grammar School & Girls' School, & is available for 50 boys & as many girls, all as day scholars. The school has an annual endowment of £250 out of the same foundation as the Grammar School & Girls' School, & is controlled by four foundation managers elected from the Governors of the Grammar School & two others, representing the Monmouth County Council & the Monmouth Town Council respectively. Scholarships, each entitling the holder to exemption from tuition fees & to a yearly sum of £5, are maintained in the school at the rate of not more than one for every ten children in the school, & are awarded to boys & girls who have for not less than two years been scholars in some public elementary school in the school district of Monmouth. A cookery room was added in 1909 at a cost of nearly £1,000. Charles J. Powell B.A. head master

Overymoon (infants), erected in 1897, for 173 children; Miss Eliza Alice Jones, mistress

The two above-named schools are controlled by twelve managers; Alderman W. Hughes, chairman; Fredk. Collins Williams, Whitecross street, clerk; Joseph Brown, Hereford road, attendance officer

Priory street (boys), the buildings comprise the remains of the Benedictine priory of the 11th century, with modern additions: the room above the western portion of the boys' school-room is commonly known as "Geoffrey's Study," & Geoffrey of Monmouth, who was archdeacon of Monmouth & bishop of St. Asaph in 1151, is supposed to have occupied it: the style of architecture is however three centuries later; the Late Perpendicular oriel window of this room has an embattled parapet, with mullions; a portion of the building was in 1912 restored by public subscription at a cost of £150. The school was enlarged in 1884 & repaired at a cost of £1,000 in 1896, & will hold 250 children; Arthur Reade, master

Goldwire lane (girls), built in 1864, for 100 children; enlarged in 1875, 1880 & 1889, the three latter enlargements being entirely at the cost of C. H. Crompton-Roberts esq. of Drybridge; it will now hold 206 children; Miss Laura E. Nicholas, mistress

The two above-named schools are controlled by eighteen managers; Frederick C. Williams, Whitecross street, correspondent; Joseph Brown, Hereford road, attendance officer

MONMOUTH is a parish, 2½ miles west from Chepstow station on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, and in the rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff: it is very picturesquely situated about half a mile from the great road from Chepstow to Newport, in a narrow valley, with steep cliffs and hills on either side; a trout stream runs through the valley called the "Meurig," but now better known as Monmouth Brook. The old name of this place was Monecton—the monks' town, probably so called from the monks of Chepstow, who for some centuries held the tithes and provided a priest for the church. The church (dedication unknown, but said to be of very ancient foundation) was restored in 1881, and is a very small building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and vestry with an open bell-cot on the western gable, containing one bell: the east window is stained;
 the entire fabric has been so completely modernized

MYNYDDISLWYN is a very large parish, 2 miles from Abercarn station on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway, 8 west from Pontypool and 15 north-west-by-west from Newport, in the Bedwelly division of the county, hundred of Wentlog, petty sessional division of Bedwelly, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Bedwelly, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The civil parish that no features of interest remain: there are 80 sittings. The register dates from the year 1790. The living is a perpetual curacy, net income £543, in the gift of W. E. C. Currie esq. and held since 1919 by the Rev. Lewis Ernest Richardson M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is rector of and resides at Itton. William Edward Carne Currie esq. and the trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis (d. 1909) are the principal landowners. The parish presents some pleasing views, especially through the picturesquely wooded valley, which is about a mile in length, with very high rocks

 on either side, crowned with finely-grown yew trees.
 The soil is loamy, resting on limestone. The chief crops are cereals. The area is 405 acres; rateable value, £542; the population in 1911 was 59.

is divided into the hamlets of Clawr-plyf, Penmaen and Mynyddmaen and includes the villages of Cwm Carn, Penmaen, Gellygroes, Newbridge, Pontllanfraith, Ynysddu, Cwm-felin-fach and Fleur-de-Lis. There are four railway stations in this parish; the London and North Western Railway Company has three, one at Pont Lawrence, one at Ynysddu and a third, which with that belonging to the Great Western Railway Company, forms

the Tredegar junction. The parish is governed by an Urban District Council of 14 members, formed 29th September, 1903, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. ch. 73), and the district is now divided into four wards, viz.: Penmain, Pontllanfraith, Ynysddu and Fleur-de-Lis. The church of St. Tewdwr is a spacious building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: in the church is a memorial to the Rev. John Griffiths J.P. vicar here 1860-99: the church was rebuilt A.D. 1820, and has 550 sittings. The register dates from the year 1664. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1915 by the Rev. Benjamin Jones-Evans M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, who is also surrogate and resides at Pontllanfraith. There is also a Welsh and English Congregational chapel. Here are extensive coal mines and iron works and stone quarries: the stone is of good quality, suitable for docks or other heavy masonry purposes. Near the church, on an eminence, is a tumulus. The trustees of the late Lady Llanover, who are lords of the manor, Lord Tredegar, Maj.-Gen. Lord Treowen C.B., C.M.G., D.L. and the trustees of the Rev. M. W. Moggridge are the principal landowners. The soil is gravel; subsoil, stone. The country is very hilly and mountainous, the scenery very grand; the valley and the lower grounds are watered by the rivers Ebbw and Sirhowy. The land is nearly all laid down as pasture. The area is 5,118 acres of land and 34 of water; rateable value £54,924; the population in 1911 was 9,980 in the civil and 18,253 in the ecclesiastical parish, which comprises parts of Mynyddislwyn, Abercarn and Risca civil parishes.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,806, that part of Mynyddislwyn civil parish in Risca Urban District was, in 1894, added to Risca civil parish.

NANT-Y-GLO is a village in the civil parish of Aberystroth, with a station on the Brynmawr and Western Valleys extension of the Great Western railway, opened from Nant-y-glo to Brynmawr in July, 1905; the village is 18½ miles from London, 2 north from Blaina and 5 east from Tredegar, and in 1844 was formed into an ecclesiastical parish; it is in the Bedwelty division of the county, petty sessional division and union of Bedwelty, Tredegar county court district, and in the rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff; it is lighted with gas from works at Blaina, the property of the Brynmawr and Blaina Gas Co., and supplied with water by the Urban District Council, from a reservoir situated above Beanfort. Nant-y-glo and Blaina were governed by a Local Board from 1885 until the "Local Government Act, 1894," established an Urban District Council, the offices of which are at Blaina. The church of the Holy Trinity is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, western porch and a western bell turret containing one bell: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1844. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £278, with residence, in the gift of the Crown and Bishop of Llandaff alternately, and held since 1914 by the Rev. Robert Lewis, of St. David's College, Lampeter. Here are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. The Reading Room and Library was opened in 1907, and has about 600 volumes. The Nant-y-glo and Blaina Isolation Hospital, formerly known as Tyr-ewin House, was purchased by the Urban District Council at a cost of £342, and will hold eight patients. The collieries of the neighbourhood give employment to the population of this place. The area of the ecclesiastical parish is 690 acres; the population in 1911 was 4,749. The area of the Urban District of Nant-y-glo and Blaina (which comprises the parish of Aberystroth) is 3,862 acres; rateable value, £50,347; the population in 1911 was 15,305. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 4,794.

GARNFACH is a village in the civil parish of Aberystroth, between Nant-y-glo and Blaina, 1½ miles south from Brynmawr station on the London and North-Western railway and near to Nant-y-glo station on the Great Western railway; it is included in the Nant-y-glo and Blaina Urban District, and by resolution of the late Local Board is included in the village of Nant-y-glo for parochial as it is also for postal purposes. RAILWAY STATION.

Great Western (Nant-y-glo), Albert Jones, station master

NASH is a parish at the mouth of the Usk river and on the coast of the Bristol Channel, 5 miles south-east from Newport station, on the Great Western railway. A branch line of the same system has been laid down from Newport to the mouth of the Usk and is now open for traffic. The parish lies in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, Newport petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Caerleon, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a tower with fine spire, containing 5 bells; the tower was restored in 1898; there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1733. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £80, with 1½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1918 by the Rev. Robert Frederick Rees Thomas B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at St. Ives, Chepstow road, Christchurch. There is a Baptist chapel at Pye Corner. Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, Etmn College, and E. W. T. L. Brewer-Williams esq. M.A., F.Z.S. are chief landowners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, rock. The land is chiefly in grass. The area is 2,554 acres; rateable value, £4,862; the population in 1911 was 291.

NEWCHURCH EAST and WEST together form a parish anciently known as "Eglwys-newydd-ar-y-Cefn" and now include the chapelry of Devauden, in the Monmouth division of the county, upper division of the hundred of Caldicot, petty sessional division and union of Chepstow, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. East Newchurch is in the county court district of Chepstow and West Newchurch in that of Usk. The parish, which is intersected by the road from Chepstow to Usk, is 6½ miles north-west from the Chepstow and 7½ south-east from Usk stations, on the Great Western railway. The church, occupying a bleak elevation on the northern side of the parish, is a building of stone, repaired in 1865; it is in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing one bell: the decorated east window is stained; the church has been thoroughly modernized, but presents in features of interest: there are 120 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1710; marriages, 1755. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £311, with 11 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of W. E. C. Currie esq. of Itton Court, and held since 1915 by the Rev. Daniel Mathias B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The chapel of ease in DEVAUDEN is a plain building with a belfry containing one bell, and has an endowment of £32 yearly, which is in the gift of and is at present held by the vicar of Newchurch: it has 120 sittings. There are chapels for Wesleyan Methodists at Pen-y-cae-nawr, at the Glyn, at Devauden, and for Welsh Methodists at Gaerlywydd, Devauden, anciently Ddefawdon, two miles north-east from the parish church, is said to have been the place where the Britons were overwhelmed and utterly defeated by the combined forces of the Saxon monarchs, Ethelbald of Mercia and Canthred of Wessex, in 743. Various Roman coins of Antoninus and others were found at Devauden green in 1840. There is a fine cromlech at Gaerlywydd. In this parish there is a very extensive British camp, known as Gaer-fawr—the great fortification—occupying a position of great natural strength upon the spur of a hill; this camp has an outer and inner vallum of stones and earth and extends over nearly twenty acres. Chepstow Park, a wood of about 3,000 acres, is near here, and contains a reservoir for the Chepstow waterworks.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,605, that portion of Nash civil parish in Newport county borough was, in 1894, added to Newport civil parish.

Parish Clerk, Cornelius Cox.

Post Office.—Frederick John German, sub-postmaster. Letters through Newport; no delivery on sundays. Liswerry is the nearest money order office & Newport the nearest for telegrams, 4 miles distant

Public Elementary School (mixed), built in 1877, for 42 children; Miss Florence Evans, mistress

A considerable portion of the extensive wooded district, all that now remains of the ancient forest of Wentwood, is in Newchurch West, and here are the ruins of the Castle of Troggy, or Cas Troggy, so called from the rivulet of that name, which has its source near the castle. The ascription of the name of Strigul by Camden and some other writers to this castle has doubtless arisen from a corruption of the name of Cas Troggy or Stroggy, and has given rise to much confusion between this place and the real Strigul or Chepstow. Troggy Castle is said to have been built in the reign of Edward I. by Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk. W. E. C. Currie esq. of Itton Court, who is lord of the manor and impropriator, and Lt.-Col. C. M. Crompton-Roberts are the principal landowners. The soil is loam and sand; subsoil, gravel and sandstone grit. The chief crops are grain and roots. The area is, Newchurch East, 3,399 acres of land and 3 of water; rateable value, £1,620; and the population in 1911 was 333; Newchurch West, 2,098 acres; rateable value, £1,343; the population in 1911 was 116; the population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 449.

Post Office, Devauden Green.—Miss Elizabeth Thomas, sub-postmistress. Letters through Chepstow. St. Arvans is the nearest money order & telegraph office, 3 miles distant

Wall Letter Boxes.—Newchurch West & Glyn

Public Elementary Schools.

NEWPORT is a seaport and market town, the head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district, and a parliamentary, municipal and county borough, comprising the old borough and parts of the parishes of St. Woollos, Christchurch, and Nash and Maindee, with a station on the Great Western (South Wales) line, 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles from London by rail and 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ by road, 23 south-west from Monmouth, 12 north-east from Cardiff, 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ south-west from Chepstow, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ east from Swansea, 44 $\frac{1}{2}$ south-west from Gloucester, 40 south-west from Hereford, hundred of Wentloog, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff: it is seated on the river Usk, 4 miles from its junction with the river Severn. A stone bridge of five arches, erected in the year 1800, by David Edwards and his two sons, and widened and improved in 1882-3 and 1886, crosses the river Usk in a line with the High street and near the ruins of the old castle.

The rapid growth of the town, more especially on the eastern side and below the bridge, created a need for the better means of cross-river communication, but on account of the steepness of the banks, the great rise and fall of the tides and the passage of vessels to the various docks, the difficulty of devising a suitable means of communication was great, but it was overcome by the erection in 1905 of a "Transporter Bridge," on the plan of those in use at Bilbao and Rouen, and situated about a mile and a half from the old bridge. It consists of a horizontal railway track supported by a bridge spanning the channel or river to be crossed, at such a height as will allow the tallest masted ships using the channel to pass underneath without striking their upper masts; a car or travelling frame runs on this railway, and is arranged so as to move freely in a longitudinal direction and to allow of being arrested or reversed at will; a platform or carrier of suitable dimensions suspended from the travelling frame is hung at the level of the banks of the river or channel to be crossed. The frame and car are propelled by steel wire ropes wound on a drum worked by electric motors, erected at one end of the bridge platform; the rate of speed is 10 feet per second, and the bridge is designed for a proof load of 66 tons in addition to its own weight. M. Arnodin, of Château Neut-sur-Loire, and Mr. Robert H. Haynes, late borough engineer, superintended the construction, and the cost amounted to over £70,000.

The Great Western railway station, High street, is the centre of several important trunk lines, viz.: to South Wales and Ireland (via Milford), to the North and Midlands (via Hereford), to London via Gloucester, to London via Severn tunnel, and Badminton to Bristol and West of England; there are also local branches in Eastern and Western Valleys; the Brecon and Merthyr, the London and North Western railway, Sirhowy lines, and the Pontypridd and Caerphilly; an average of 180 trains pass through daily. The Alexandra, Newport and South Wales Docks and Railway Co. unites the port of Newport with the celebrated coal district of the Rhondda valley.

Newport was anciently called Novus Burgus, or New Town, to distinguish it from the ancient Caerleon; it was also called Castell Newydd, or Newcastle, because Robert, Earl of Gloucester, a natural son of Henry I. erected a castle here to defend his possessions; from him it descended through many noble families till it became the property of Edward, Duke of Buckingham, on whose execution the castle and the lordship were both seized by King Henry VIII. Several towers and some of the walls of the castle are still remaining on the edge of the river.

In 1859 Newport was the scene of a formidable Chartist riot, which took place on the morning of Monday, the 4th of November in that year, under the leadership of Mr. John Frost (an ex-magistrate), his son, Master Frost, one Jones, of Pontypool, Zephaniah Williams and J. Llewellyn; 10,000 miners from the collieries and mines in the neighbourhood, armed with pikes, guns, swords and clubs, met in front of the Westgate hotel, where the magistrates, with a few soldiers of the 45th regiment of foot and several constables were assembled; the rioters, having attacked the house, fired on the magistrates and wounded the mayor, Mr. (afterwards Sir Thomas) Phillips; the troops at length returned the fire and shot twenty of the miners dead, dispersing the rest, and Mr. Frost and others being captured were tried and convicted and sentenced to death; the sentence was, however, subsequently commuted to penal servitude, and a pardon was granted in 1856.

Under the "Representation of the People Act, 1918,"

Newport was constituted a parliamentary borough returning one member to Parliament.

In November, 1891, the borough was constituted a county borough under section 54 of the "Local Government Act, 1888" (51 and 52 Vict. c. 41).

The first charter of incorporation, granted in the reign of Richard II. was confirmed by Henry VII., a new charter was obtained from James I., and by this the borough continued to be governed until the passing of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 and 6 Wm. IV. c. 76), by which the Corporation was remodelled.

Under the provisions of the "Newport (Mon.) Corporation Act, 1889," Maindee and the hamlets of Liswery and Somerton Common, formerly in Christchurch parish, were incorporated with Newport and the borough divided into four wards, but in Nov. 1902, it was re-divided into ten wards, and is now governed by a Corporation consisting of a mayor, deputy mayor, ten aldermen and thirty councillors.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,905, Maindee part of Christchurch parish), and the parts of Nash and St. Woollos civil parish in Newport municipal borough were, in 1894, added to Newport civil parish.

By the Alexandra (Newport and South Wales) Docks and Railway Act, 1904, and the Newport (Monmouthshire) Improvement Act, 1876, Newport County borough was on Nov. 1st, 1907, extended to include part of Duffryn civil parish, and by Local Government Board Order 53,094, which came into operation April 1st, 1909, it was added to the civil parish.

The borough has a commission of the peace.

The water undertaking was acquired by the Corporation in June, 1888, at a cost of £278,000, and the town, together with Caerleon and Rogerstone, are supplied by gravitation from a reservoir called "Ynis-y-bro," very beautifully situated in a district about 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the town and known by the name of "Little Switzerland"; it covers 15 acres 3 roods, and is 37 feet deep in the deepest part, and contains eighty million gallons; a settling reservoir, containing thirty-six million gallons, was constructed above this in 1883; the area of the water is 9 acres 2 roods, and its greatest depth, 21 feet 11 inches. The large reservoir called "Pant-yr-eos," situated 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles distant, in the parish of Henllys, covers 15 acres; it is 84 feet deep in the deepest part, and contains 145 million gallons; the principal supply is derived from springs, the water yielded by which is very pure; fishing is allowed in the reservoir on the purchase of yearly tickets, price 21s.

The Wentwood reservoir, commenced in 1894 and completed in 1904, consists of a storage reservoir at Llanvaches with a capacity of 400,000,000 gallons, two intakes, one on the Castrogry brook, Newchurch, and the other on the Nantpridd brook in Wentwood, and connected with Llanvaches reservoir by a brick culvert or tunnel, two and a quarter miles in length. The depth of water in the reservoir when full is 90 feet, and the outlet tunnel is at the height of 360 feet above O.D. The four reservoirs when full contain 665,000,000 gallons of water, and the daily supply of water is estimated at 2,000,000 gallons. There are 112 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles of mains, including the Wentwood pipe line. About 12,800 stop taps have been fixed, and there are 928 hydrants.

The town is lighted with gas by the Newport Gas Company, incorporated in 1843.

The Port of Newport, as defined by Treasury Warrant, under "The Customs Act, 1846," extends from Redwick Pill (limits of Chepstow) to Rumney river (limit of Cardiff), and to the middle of the Severn river. Fishing boats and implements belonging to the port to be distinguished by the letters N.T.

The Alexandra (Newport and South Wales) Docks and Railway Company own the whole of the wet docks in Newport. These include the Alexandra North Dock, 20 acres, and the Alexandra South Dock and Extension, area 95 acres (the latter being the largest single dock in the Kingdom), and the Town Dock 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres in extent. The length of the North lock is 350 feet by 65 feet wide, while the South lock is 503 $\frac{1}{2}$ feet long by 72 feet wide, the depth of water on the cilla at H.W.O.S.T. is 35 feet. The Town Dock lock is 220 feet long by 61 feet wide, with a depth of water on the outer cill at H.W.O.S.T. of 31 feet.

The Docks are equipped with 22 coal hoists with lifts up to 60 feet above quay level. There is very extensive quayside equipped with upwards of 60 hydraulic cranes, and several large warehouses, for dealing with the general import and export trade. There is also a good timber float.

The Docks are served by railway lines and sidings aggregating 100 miles in length.

The New Entrance Lock to the South Dock Extension is 1,000 feet long and 100 feet wide, divided into two compartments, the Inner 600 feet long and the Outer 400 feet long. The sill has been placed to feet lower than those of the North and South Alexandra locks, and as the invert is flat the full value of the sill will be available when the channel seawards of the lock has been dredged to a commensurate depth.

The old parish church of St. Woollos, Stow hill, until about 1836 the only church for the inhabitants of Newport, is an ancient building of stone, originally Norman, but largely added to in the 15th century, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 8 bells: in the church is a cross-legged effigy of William de Berkrolles, c. 1226, and an effigy of stone under a canopy, temp. Eliz. of Sir Walter Herbert, of St. Julian's; there are also effigies in alabaster, much mutilated, of Sir John Morgan kt. of Tredegar, 1491, and his wife; the former wears a collar of SS with a pendent cross: on a round bracket on the middle storey of the tower is a headless and armless figure in armour, temp. Hen. VII. said to represent Jasper Tudor, Duke of Bedford: the church was extensively repaired in the year 1855, and in 1884 brass communion rails and a fine eagle lectern were provided: there are 700 sittings, 200 being free; contiguous to the west end of the church, and between it and the tower, is a building of considerable size and ancient date, occupying the site of the original British church. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1702; marriages 1754: this venerable old fabric was restored in 1914 at a cost of £8,000. The living is a vicarage, net income £250, and 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1908 by the Rev. David Henry Griffiths M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Newport.

The church of St. Luke, in Bridge street, a chapel of ease to the mother church and rebuilt in 1904, is a building of stone consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and west porch; there are 800 sittings.

St. Paul's is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1839; the church, in Commercial street, is a modern structure of dressed stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, baptistery, porch and a tower with spire containing a clock: the lofty chancel is separated from the nave by a magnificent arch, supported by clustered pillars, and is lighted by three stained lancet memorial windows: the cost of erection and fitting was upwards of £7,000: there are 1,000 sittings, of which about 400 are free. The register dates from the year 1837. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £330 with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1904 by the Rev. Alfred Augustus Mathews B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

The Vicarage Hall in the grounds of the Vicarage, built in 1879, is capable of holding about 200 persons, and is used for parish meetings and bible classes.

PILGWENLY is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1864; the church of Holy Trinity, Potter street, is a building of stone in the Early English style, built in 1852, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing 2 bells: there are 648 sittings, of which 306 are free. The register dates from the year 1864. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £275, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1903 by the Rev. Henry Morgan B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter.

St. Stephen's is a conventional district formed from the parish of Holy Trinity. The church, erected in 1884 at a cost of £3,350, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, baptistery and a western turret containing one bell: the Rev. Evan H. R. Hughes has been curate in charge since 1916: there are 450 sittings.

St. Mark's is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1875. The church, erected in 1874 at a cost of £5,500, is a building of stone in the Early English Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north, south and west porches, and a tower 122 feet high, with richly crocketed pinnacles: the west, or tower porch, containing the stairs to the organ gallery, is separated from the nave by an elegant traceried screen: there are sittings for 800 persons, of which 450 are free. The register dates from the year 1875. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1917 by the Rev. Isaiah Roberts M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge.

St. John the Evangelist, Maindee, is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1860 out of the the parish of Christchurch; the church in Kensington place is a building of red sandstone and Boston freestone, in the 19th century Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave, north and south aisle, south and west porches and west lobby and tower: the north aisle was added and the tower completed in 1911: there are five stained glass windows, four of which are memorial windows: there are 840 sittings, 524 of which are free. The register dates from the year 1861. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £350, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1897 by the Rev. David Ernest Llewellyn-Jones, who is a surrogate.

St. John the Baptist's is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1898: the church in Risca road, erected in 1900, at a cost of £8,000, is a building of stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and a side chapel attached to the south aisle; a new oak pulpit was erected in 1909, and an oak chancel screen in memory of His late Majesty King Edward VII. was placed in the church in 1911: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1900. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1898 by the Rev. James Francis Summers M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin.

All Saints' is an ecclesiastical parish formed Feb. 2, 1899; the church, Bynoglas road, erected in 1898 at a cost of £16,000, is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of two chancels, nave, three aisles, and a tower containing 8 bells: there are 740 sittings. The church was founded, partly endowed and the vicarage house built by the late E. H. Watts esq. of London. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £280, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1918 by the Rev. William Williams M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge.

The ecclesiastical parish of St. Matthew was formed out of that of Maindee in 1911: the church in Barnard road will seat 600 persons. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1911 by the Rev. John Richard Hosbons.

St. Andrew's Mission church, LISWERRY, a chapel of ease to St. John the Evangelist, Maindee, erected in 1889, at a cost of £850, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, and western bell turret containing one bell: there are 250 sittings.

All Saints' Mission church, Shaftesbury street, erected in 1883, at a cost of £600, is a building of stone, with 250 free sittings.

St. Julian's church, Durham road, erected in 1891, at a cost of £350, is an iron building, seating 300: it serves the district of St. Julian's, so named from Old St. Julian's hall, once the residence of the famous Lord Herbert of Cherbury. Rev. John Albert Cottrell, of Durham University, is curate in charge.

St. Mary's Mission church, Corporation road, erected in 1897, at the cost of £750, is a building of galvanized iron, and consists of nave, aisles and turret containing one bell, and seats 550 persons.

St. James' church, Deck street, will seat 600 persons. St. Mary's Catholic church, Stow hill, erected in 1840, at a cost of £5,000, is a building of stone in the Early English style, and has a large square tower with pinnacles, containing 8 bells and chimes: there are 600 sittings.

The Catholic church of St. Michael the Archangel, Clarence street, Pill, erected in 1888 at a cost of £4,000, is also of stone, and has about 600 sittings.

The Catholic church of St. Patrick, Corporation road, was built in 1909.

The Jewish Synagogue in Francis street has 150 sittings.

There are numerous other places of worship. Newport (St. Woollos) General Cemetery, on the Basaleg road, opened in 1854, has an area of 42 acres, inclosed with a stone wall: there are three chapels for the Church of England, Catholics and Nonconformists respectively, and a mortuary. The old cemetery, on Stow hill, behind St. Woollos church, is entirely disused. The Christchurch cemetery, on Christchurch road, has an area of 7 acres, and contains one chapel. The cemeteries are under the control of the Corporation.

The Town Hall, Commercial street, rebuilt in 1885, is an edifice of Grinshill and Pennant stone, with Grinshill stone dressings, in the Italian style, from designs by Messrs. T. M. Lockwood, of Chester, and E. A. Lansdowne, of Newport; it has one frontage to Commercial street, another to Dock street and a third to Austin Friars: the town clerk's and town surveyor's offices, together with an elegant clock tower, are on the Commercial street front of the building, as also the members' reading room and a committee room: in the central portion is the police court with an assembly room over it: on the Dock street side is the police station, with the chief constable's office and twelve cells and an attendant's dwelling and offices for the cemetery clerk and the inspector of weights and measures: the magistrates' clerk's rooms, committee rooms, mayor's parlour and council chamber occupy the upper portion of the Dock street frontage, and the offices of the borough treasurer and the sanitary department complete the frontage in Austin Friars; some adjoining property has been acquired and is used as offices for other municipal purposes.

The police arrangements for the borough of Newport are controlled by a chief constable, whose office is at the Town Hall, entrance in Dock street, where is also the Police station, and there are branch stations at Pill-gwenly, Maindee and Liswerry.

The County Hall, in Pentonville, built in 1902, and since enlarged at a total cost of £21,000, is a stone building, comprising offices for the chairman, clerk, county surveyor, county medical officer, and also education offices. Adjoining is a police station, containing cells and quarters for an inspector and 2 constables; at the back is the court house, where petty sessions are held every Saturday, at 11 a.m.

The Custom House, in Dock street, is a building of stone opened in 1858. The Board of Trade and Mercantile Marine offices occupy a site near the shipping end of Dock street, and were erected in 1882; the entrance for captains and to the cash and inquiry offices is in Dock street, and for seamen in East Market street: the total cost of building and furniture was about £2,500: the buildings were occupied and the shipping business transferred there in August, 1882. The Seamen's Home, in Temple street, is a stone building, erected in 1886 by the late Sir George Elliot bart. M.P. for Monmouth district, 1886-92; adjoining is the Seamen's institute and modern church for the seafaring population, with a residence for the caretaker. There is also a branch Institute, in Ruperra street, opened Jan. 18th, 1887, comprising reading rooms, and rooms for billiards, bagatelle and other games.

The Newport Fire Brigade, established in May, 1884, has its headquarters in Dock street, near the Town Hall. The station was rebuilt in 1915: the equipment includes two motor pumps, one first aid machine and one motor ambulance and hose tender, fire escapes, ladders &c.; a fire escape and hose reels &c. are also kept at Maindee; there is a reading room at the back for the use of the members.

The Market Hall, a modern structure of stone and iron, in Market street, with a back entrance in Griffin street, was erected in 1865, at a cost of £8,000, and was almost entirely rebuilt by the Corporation of Newport in 1889, at a cost of £43,000, subsequent to their having purchased the right of levying tolls from the Duke of Beaufort: the ground floor comprises 139 lock-up stalls, and a gallery for the sale of butter, poultry &c. runs round three sides of the interior: the front, in Dock street, consists of shops.

The Technical Institute, Clarence place, erected from designs by Mr. C. F. Ward, borough architect, cost, with equipment, about £50,000: it contains the schools of art, science, technology and commerce and also serves as a pupil teacher centre for girls.

The Lyceum, in Bridge street, a building of Bath-stone in the Classic style, first erected in 1865, was rebuilt in 1897, at a cost of £30,000: the building, which has a pediment supported by 6 lofty columns, is 150 feet long, 60 feet wide, 70 feet high, and will contain about 2,000 people: it is licensed as a theatre.

The Empire Theatre, Charles street, is an edifice of red brick, rebuilt in 1899: it will hold 1,800 persons: Messrs' Empires Limited, proprietors.

The Temperance Hall (Phillips' Memorial), in Dock street, is a plain structure of brick, consisting of a large hall let for concerts, lectures, meetings &c. and holding 1,200 persons; on the ground floor are the county court offices.

The Post Office, in High street, near the Great Western Railway station, is of red brick with stone dressings, and was opened in 1906.

The Free Library, Dock street, was established in the year 1870 under the "Free Libraries Act" the present building being erected in 1882: the reading room is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; the central and branch libraries now (1910) contain about 33,319 volumes: the issue of books for 1918-19 amounted to 73,090 volumes. Branch reading rooms have been established in Temple street, Chepstow road, Maindee, Corporation road and Lyne road. Maindee and Corporation road are also branch libraries. The reading room in the Town Hall, Commercial street, is open to members only, who subscribe annually to cover cost of newspapers.

The Museum and Art Gallery, built in 1895, enlarged in 1912, is in the same building as the public library and now occupies the whole of the first floor and an annexe on the ground floor. The collections consist of permanent collections of oil and water colour paintings, prints and lithographs of Old Newport and the county, local antiquities, local Roman antiquities from the site of the old Roman city of Venta Ailurum (Caerwent, Mon.), Egyptian antiquities, mineralogical, geological, ethnographical and natural history collections, loan exhibits of objects of art from the Victoria and Albert Museum, London: special exhibits consist of the Tredegar collection of local Roman antiquities, local Chartist relics and documents. Occasional exhibitions of pictures &c. are held. Curator, William Alexander Gunn.

The Corn Exchange, in High street, was built by public subscription in 1878, at a cost of £5,000, as a memorial to the late Viscount Tredegar: the market is held every Wednesday from 2.30 to 4 p.m. and an exchange for coal, iron and metal is also held on Wednesdays from 12 noon to 1.30 p.m.

The premises of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Commercial street, were extended in 1909, at a cost of nearly £5,000, under the direction of Mr. C. E. Compton, architect.

There are branches of the following banks—Barclays Bank Limited, the National Provincial and Union Bank of England Limited, Lloyds Bank Limited, the London Joint City and Midland Bank Limited and the National Bank Limited.

The Cattle Market, in Tredegar street, Commercial road, and John street, Dock street, built in 1844, occupies an area of five acres: there are lairs for 1,000 cattle and horses, 2,000 sheep and pigs, stabling for 20 horses, covered stalls for 220 cattle: the market day is every Wednesday: cattle fairs take place on the second Wednesday in April, the Wednesday in Whitsun week, the second Wednesday in August and the first Wednesday in November. A wool fair is held 23rd June, and a two days' cattle and poultry show in October. The provision market is held daily in the market house, in Dock street, and is well supplied with meat, poultry, butter, eggs, vegetables and other articles. A cheese market is held in the market house every Wednesday, and is well attended.

The Corporation Baths, in Stow hill, opened on the 19th June, 1890, and erected at a cost of £11,000, comprise two swimming baths, each 75 feet long by 25 feet wide, graduating in depth from 3 feet 6 inches at the upper end to 7 feet at the deepest part, and 16 ladies' and gentlemen's private slipper baths; mercurial and Russian vapour baths and a large variety of other baths can also be taken, as well as Turkish baths. During the winter months the two swimming baths are used as an assembly room and gymnasium respectively; the assembly room seats comfortably over 600, and classes are organised for gymnastics under professional tuition.

The principal hotels are the "Westgate," in Commercial street; the "Queen's," in Bridge street and the "Talbot" in Commercial street; there are also two good temperance hotels, viz. the "Shafesbury," in High street and "Morrish's," in Mill street, opposite the station.

The newspapers published in Newport are the "South Wales Daily Argus" and "Weekly Argus," which have large issues; the "Monmouthshire Evening Post," the "Monmouthshire Weekly Post" and the "Football Post" also have large issues. The "Western Mail" and the "Weekly Mail," "South Wales News," "Echo" and "South Wales Weekly News" and "Evening Express" have branch offices here.

There are numerous foundries, steam engine and boiler works, anchor, chain, chain cable, and nail factories, and ship building establishments, as well as dry docks for the repair of shipping; railway plant and railway wagons, chemical manures and agricultural implements are manufactured here. There are also glass works at Crindau, pottery works at Pillgwenly and Crindau, flour mills, breweries and maltings; bricks are made in the neighbourhood.

The Royal Gwent Hospital (Newport and Monmouthshire Hospital), originally situated on Stow hill, was established as a dispensary in 1830, and an infirmary in 1867. The new building, erected in 1900, on a site on the Cardiff road, the gift of the late Viscount Tredegar, contained 110 beds; the cost of the building and the furniture was about £40,000. In 1913 Lord Tredegar presented the hospital with the Friars House as a convalescent home, and the fields around the hospital, an area of about 14 acres: the Friars as a convalescent home will accommodate 30 patients. In 1916 a new wing at a cost of £12,000 provided an additional ward of 20 beds, two additional operating theatres and an improved casualty department with a waiting hall, and a new electrical department. The yearly average number of in-patients is 1,900 and out-patients 10,000.

The Newport County Borough (Allt-yr-yn) Hospital, Barrack hill, was built in 1895, at the cost of £14,000, including site; a new ward was added in 1903; it contains 104 beds and is used for infectious diseases.

The Almshouses, on Stow hill, were erected and endowed by Roger Williams esq. A.D. 1700, for nine females and were rebuilt in 1845 and again in 1903 on a new site.

Burton Homes Almshouses, opened in 1909, were built and endowed pursuant to the trusts of the joint estates of Col. H. Burton V.D. and his sister, Sarah Eliza.

The area of Newport county borough and civil parish is 5,020 acres of land, inland and tidal water and foreshore; rateable value at Lady day, 1910, £487,618; the population in 1911 was 83,691.

The population of the municipal wards in 1911 was:— Alexandra, 10,314; Caerau, 8,736; Central, 7,800;

Crendan, 8,548; Liswerry, 9,247; Maidee, 7,129; St. Julian, 9,360; St. Woollos, 7,266; Tredegar, 7,159; Victoria, 8,132.

The population of the ecclesiastical districts of Newport in 1911 was:—St. Woollos, 9,641 (including 50 officials and 588 inmates in the Poor Law Institution and 508 military and 75 other inmates in the barracks); St. Paul, 9,330; Holy Trinity, 15,896; St. Mark's, 5,409; St. John the Evangelist, Maidee, 24,605; All Saints', 7,674; St. John the Baptist, 2,154; St. Matthew, 8,697.

MAINDEE, on the east side of the river Usk, was incorporated with the borough in 1889.

ST. WOOLLOS WITHOUT.—Upon the extension of the Borough of Newport in 1873 and 1889, the greater part of this parish, together with the parish church, was incorporated with that borough. The rural portion, however, was formed into a separate parish, and in May, 1905, formed a Parish Council of seven members. The area is 1,076 acres of land, 16 of inland water, 65 of tidal water and 169 of foreshore; rateable value, £11,919; population in 1911, 281.

For names of residents see Newport Parish Council, H. N. King, clerk, County chambers, 65 High street, Newport

OLDCASTLE is a parish on the rivers Honddu and Monnow, at the northern extremity of Monmouthshire and westward of the road from Hereford to Abergavenny, one mile and a half north-west from Pandy station on the Newport, Abergavenny and Hereford branch of the Great Western railway, 7 miles north from Abergavenny and 17 south-west from Hereford, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Abergavenny, rural deanery of Abergavenny, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. A portion of the Black Mountains is within the parish and the Hatterall Hills are in the neighbourhood. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone in the Gothic style, rebuilt in 1864 on the site of the ancient church, and consists of chancel, nave, north porch and a turret containing 2 bells: there are two sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1784; marriages, 1783; the older registers have been destroyed. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £61, in the gift of Philip Bartholomew Barneby esq. and held since 1917 by the Rev. Sidney John Richards, who is also vicar of Waterstone, Herefordshire, and resides at Pandy. There are some Roman remains here and supposed entrenchments near the church. There is a tradition that here was the residence of Sir John Oldcastle, Lord Cobham, a zealous adherent of Wycliffe, after his escape from the Tower in the time of Henry the Fifth: he was attainted of heresy and burnt in St. Giles' Fields, 25th December, 1417. P. B. Barneby esq. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is loamy; subsoil, loam. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and three-fourths pasture land. The area is 928 acres of land and 6 of water; rateable value, £745; the population in 1911 was 37. Letters arrive through Abergavenny. The nearest money order office is at Pandy & telegraph at Llanvihangel Crucorney, about 4 miles distant.

PANTEG is a parish on the river Afon Llwyd, having a station on the Eastern Valleys branch of the Great Western railway from Newport to Blaenavon and Brynmawr, about a mile west from the church. Pontypool Road station also on the Great Western railway, being about 1 mile north-west: it is 159½ miles from London, 6 west from Usk, 3 south-east from Pontypool, in the Pontypool division of the county, hundred of Usk, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Pontypool, rural deanery of Usk, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The Brecon and Monmouthshire canal runs through the parish from north to south and passes over the river by an aqueduct. The parish of Panteg adopted the "Local Government Act, 1858," July 15, 1863, and in 1886 by Local Government Board orders, the area of the district was extended by the addition of Griffithstown, and further extended by Local Government Board Order No. 27,644, on Dec. 19, 1891 by the inclusion of Llanvihangel-Pontymoile.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) the district is now divided into 6 wards and governed by an Urban District Council of 12 members. Here is a small reservoir, supplying this parish and Griffithstown with spring water. Part of the ecclesiastical parish was transferred in 1915 to St. Hilda, Griffithstown. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the church was rebuilt in 1876 at a cost of £1,980; the only part of the original church now remaining is the tower, which dates from about 1450: there are 250 sittings. The churchyard was enlarged in 1891. The register dates from the year 1598. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £400, including 23 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of John Capel Hanbury esq. and held since 1896 by the Rev. Alfred William Addams-Williams M.A. of Oriol College, Oxford. There is a Congregational chapel at Upper New Inn, and Wesleyan chapels at Upper Race and New Inn. The offices of the Panteg Urban District Council at Pontymoile were erected in 1899 at a cost of £1,180. A large mission hall and institute was erected in 1890 at Pontymoile, at a cost of £2,000, raised by voluntary subscription, chiefly for the benefit of the girls and workpeople connected with the works in the neighbourhood; it consists of mission room, seating 1,000 persons, girls' recreation room and men's luncheon and reading rooms: there is also a home for rescue and preventive work for girls. At Cwmyscoy is a reading and recreation room. Here are coal mines and quarries of limestone and stone for building. Messrs. Baldwins Limited have also large works here for the manufacture of steel and galvanized iron, and there are foundries and engineering works. The coal and fire-brick works of the Blaen-dare Company Limited are at the Race, in this parish. John Capel Hanbury esq. who is lord of the manor, Charles J. Phillips esq. and the trustees of the late Mrs. Llewelin are the principal landowners. The district covers a section of the outcrop of the South Wales coalfield, and extends on its agricultural side well over the red marl, including the river terraces and gravels of the river Afon Llwyd. The chief crops are oats and barley, and pasture land. The area of the parish is 3,530 acres of land and 31 of water; rateable value, £26,884; the population in 1911 was 5,036 in the civil and 4,156 in the ecclesiastical parish. The area of the Urban District, which also includes the parishes of Griffithstown and Llanvihangel-Pontymoile, is 5,578 acres; rateable value, £47,544; the population in 1911 was 10,098.

The population of the wards in 1901 was:—Griffithstown, 4,067; Llanvihangel-Pontymoile North, 261; Llanvihangel-Pontymoile South, 734; Panteg East, 405; Panteg South, 1,838; Panteg West, 2,793.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 4,156, which comprises parts of Panteg and Llanvihangel-Pontymoile civil parishes.

Cwmyscoy, 1½ miles west; Penyrheol, 2 miles south-west; New Inn, ½ mile west; Pontymoile, 1½ miles west; The Race (Lower), 3 miles west, and (Upper), 3½ miles west, are all hamlets in the parish of Panteg.

PARC GRACE DIEU is a parish $\frac{5}{8}$ miles west from Monmouth, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Skenfrith, petty sessional division of Baglan, union and county court district of Monmouth: the Cistercian Abbey of Parc Grace Dieu, which stood near the river Trothy, was founded by John de Monmouth in the year 1236, and is mentioned by Leland as "standing in a wood;" on its dissolution there were only two monks and the entire revenue was only £19; its few remains form part of a barn belonging to the farm to which it gives its name and which constitutes the entire parish. A cottage was erected on the Parc Grace Dieu estate in 1870, near the Abbey bridge over the river Trothy, and is known by the name of Abbey cottage. The Hon. Lady Shelley-Rolls is sole landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and beans. The area is 388 acres; rateable value, £270; the population in 1911 was 15.

PENALLT is a parish on the old Chepstow road and on the west bank of the river Wye, 3 miles south-east-by-south from Monmouth railway station, 4½ miles by road to the centre of the parish, Monmouth division of the county, Raglan hundred, petty sessional division of Trellech, union and county court district of Monmouth, Raglan and Trellech highway district, eastern division of Usk, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The parish church (dedication unknown) is an ancient building of stone, standing on the side of a hill looking down upon the river Wye, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and western tower, containing 4 bells, one of which is dated 1660: the church was restored in 1885, and contains many mural tablets and floor stones, and a hagioscope: there are 180 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1779; marriages, 1765. The living is a vicarage separated from Trellech in 1887, net yearly value £145, with 28 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1913 by the Rev. John Le Geyt Du Heaume B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. In 1888 a vicarage house was erected at a cost of £1,200 by the late Richard Potter esq. St. Mary's, a chapel of ease to the parish church, and erected in the year 1860, is a small building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and a western turret containing one small bell. The Baptist chapel was erected in 1838, and the Primitive Methodist chapel in 1864. On the road leading to the church, and some quarter of a mile distant therefrom, is a large and ancient chestnut tree, at the foot of which is a stone seat or bench, and it was formerly the custom when a funeral passed this way for the corpse to be rested on this seat while the mourners and others stood around singing a psalm: the practice of resting the corpse there is still observed. The Argoed is the residence of Kyrle Mitford Chatfield esq. M.A. Mrs. Tweedy, of Monmouth, is lady of the manor. The Commissioners of Woods and Forests and Arthur Burgham esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is sandy, with some clay; subsoil, old red sandstone. The crops are barley, oats, potatoes and turnips, and much pasture. Cider is made from apples grown in the district. The area is 2,375 acres; rateable value, £1,932; the population in 1911 was 414. PENHOW is a parish about 3 miles from the Bristol Channel, on the road from Chepstow to Newport, 3 miles north from Magor station on the Severn Tunnel junction and Newport section of the Great Western railway, and 8 north-east from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Netherth, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. John the Baptist, standing close to Penhow Castle, is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, and was restored in the year 1851: it consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a tower containing 5 bells: the bells are dated 1744, and were rehung by the patroness in 1806: there is a large and ancient font: the tower was rebuilt and the exterior of the church restored in 1913: there are 120 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1725, marriages, 1754. The living is a rectory, net income £130, including about 30 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Viscountess Rhondah, and held since 1915 by the Rev. Frederick William Moxhay. A parish room, to seat 90 persons, was erected in 1913. The principal landowners are Mrs. Perry-Herrick, who is lady of the manor, the Duke of Beaufort, All Souls College, Oxford, and W. H. P. Jenkins esq. The soil is tolerably good, but in some places shallow; subsoil, stony and sandy. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,843 acres; rateable value, £1,597; the population in 1911 was 244.

PETERSTONE is a parish, on the Bristol Channel, 2½ miles south from Marshfield station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, which is in this parish, and 6½ south-south-west from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Wentlog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, arch-deaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone with Bath stone dressings, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with pinnacles and spire, containing 6 bells, four of which are dated 1266: the original church was rebuilt in the 12th century by Mabilee, daughter of tunulus of considerable height, with two moats around it. In the year 1251, 35th King Henry III. "John de Monmouth was appointed by patent as keeper of the Castle of Penrose, in Wales"; and in the year following another patent pardoned "William de Cantalupe, Lord of Abergavenny, for having demolished the Castle of Penrose, belonging to John de Monmouth." The Marquess of Abergavenny is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Major-Gen. Lord Treowen C.B., C.M.G. (lord lieutenant) and Col. Joseph Alfred Bradney C.B. The soil is clay; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 2,650 acres; rateable value, £2,428; the population in 1911 was 228.

The well-known ruins of Tintern Abbey are within a mile, and the Wyndcliff, from which a magnificent prospect is obtained, is within ten minutes' walk; the beautiful grounds and walks of Piercefield are distant one mile and a quarter. The principal landowners are Henry Clay esq. D.L. who is lord of the manor, and William Edward Curra esq. The soil is a sandy loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 480 acres; rateable value, £251; the population in 1911 was 20.

Parish Clerk, Mrs. Hannah Owen.

the Rev. Thomas Davies L.D. of St. David's College, Lampeter. £2, the produce of a charity bequeathed by the late Mr. William Jones, of Tygyrog, Llanishen, is distributed yearly. Samuel Courthope Bosanquet esq. D.L. is the principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, strong clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and beans. The area is 796 acres; rateable value, £513; the population in 1911 was 63.

Post Office.—Mrs. Elizabeth Dowle, sub-postmistress. Letters through Monmouth; no Sunday delivery. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Raglan, about 3 miles distant. Telegrams can be dispatched only from Dingestow station, which is open on week days only

Public Elementary School (mixed), built in 1888, for 50 children; Miss Kate Davis, mistress

Sir Robert Fitzaymon, a Norman knight who lived at Cardiff Castle; the tower is a fine example of Perpendicular work; the church was restored during the years 1890-91 at a cost of over £2,000, in memory of the Hon. Lady Walker, wife of Sir George Walker, of Castleton, under the direction of Messrs. Bodley and Garner, architects, London, and one of the bells was also recast at a cost of £12: the tower and porch were restored and the church re-seated in 1908, and there are now 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1707, and under the date March 1, 1870, contains an entry of the burial of Joseph Jones, farmer, at the age of 104. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £80, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Bristol, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Hubert George Stanley, who is also vicar of and resides at Marshfield: the rectorial tithes, £142 yearly, with 100 or more acres of glebe land, are held by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. Here is a Baptist chapel. Near the parish church are the traces of a dock and a market house with store houses &c. showing that an extensive trade must have once been carried on here, but the ancient town was destroyed by marine floods which broke through the badly kept embankments. Lord Tredegar and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are the lords of the manor, Lord Wharton and Henry Radcliffe esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are corn and beans and some land in pasture. The area is 2,086 acres of land and 1,267 of foreshore; rateable value, £8,395; the population in 1911 was 125.

PONTNEWNYDD is a large village, on the Avon Lwyd river, and in 1845 was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from the civil parish of Trevethin; it has a station on the Eastern Valleys branch of the Great Western railway, 1 mile north-west from Pontypool and 162 from London, in the Pontypool division of the county, Pontypool union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. Pontnewnydd, under the "Local Government Act, 1894," has been added to the parish and Urban District of Abersychan. The church of St. Luke, erected on the site of an older building, removed in 1873, was consecrated in August, 1879, and is an edifice of stone in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north-east porch, organ chamber and an incomplete tower containing one bell: the stained east window was presented by Mrs. Masters, at a cost of £200, in memory of George Masters, d. July 2nd, 1821; there are others given by the Davies family, including a memorial window to Mr. T. Davies, many years honorary organist, and one to Edward Jones esq. D.L., J.P. of Snatchwood Park; one to Percy Howard Jones; a west window given by Edwin Davies esq. of Freeholdland, and one to the late Richard William Grant: the pulpit of alabaster was provided by the parishioners, at a cost of £100: the reredos, of Penarth and Derbyshire stone, with columns of Irish marble, was erected in 1894, and in 1899 the walls of the church were decorated at a cost of about £100: there is also a font of alabaster and marble, erected in memory of the late Rev. D. O. Davies, vicar here 1875-1901: the church was re-seated in 1894, and now affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1845. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £260, with residence and 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of Trevethin, and is at present (1919) vacant. All Saints' Church, in Hanbury road, will seat 200 persons. There are Calvinistic Methodist, Wesleyan, Baptist, Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. An ornamental cast iron fountain was erected in 1899, by public subscription, at the junction of Hanbury road and St. Luke's road. The Pontnewnydd Sheet and Galvanizing Co. Limited have extensive works here for the manufacture of steel sheets and galvanizing. In the dingles of Cwmnantddu and Cwmffrwoer are coal mines, worked on a somewhat extensive scale. The population in 1911 was 6,827.

PONTYPOOL

PONTYPOOL (a name corrupted from Pont-ap-Howell) is a town, and under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," was constituted a civil parish, from the ancient parish of Trevelthin; it is 140 miles from London by road and 161 by rail, 18 south-west from Monmouth, 8 north from Newport, 9½ south from Abergavenny and 15 from Caerphilly, in the Pontypool division of the county, Abergavenny hundred, and is the head of a petty sessional division, poor law union and also of a county court district, rural deanery of Blaenau Gwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff: it is seated on the acclivities of a hill rising from the river Avon Lwyd, or Torvaen, over which is a stone bridge of three arches, and is on the edge of the great basin of coal and ironstone which stretches westward into Pembrokehire

The Great Western Railway Company have two stations here, in Crane street and Clarence street respectively. The Crane Street station is in the centre of the town, on the line from Newport to Blaenavon, with a branch to Brynmawr and Merthyr, and is in connection with the London and North Western system. The Clarence Street station, a little to the south of the town, is on the line from here to the Vale of Neath and Swansea. Pontypool Road station is about 1½ miles south of the town, in the parish of Panteg, and near this an entirely new station was built in 1909, containing the offices for this division of the company. The station at Crane street was enlarged in 1894, at a total cost, including new sidings &c. of upwards of £10,000; considerable alterations have also been made at Clarence Street station.

The town was governed by a Local Board from July 17, 1863, until the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73) established the present Urban District Council of eighteen members.

The town is paved and lighted and supplied with both gas and water by the Pontypool Gas and Water Company, established in 1850, incorporated in 1871; there are four reservoirs, having a total capacity of about 15 million gallons, including one at Cwm-Avon, holding about 10 million gallons, and pumping plant was also erected at Cwm-Avon in 1894 for supplying the higher portion of the district: there are eight springs, two at Cwm-Avon, two at Cwmyravon, one at Nantymailor, one at Abersychan and two at the Folly, supplying Griffithstown, Abersychan, Talywain, Garndiffaith, Varteg, Griffithstown, Sebastopol and New Inn. The Gas Works supply Pontypool, Griffithstown, Sebastopol and New Inn.

The Pontypool and District Electric Lighting Power Co. Limited, formed in 1893, has works in Park road.

The police duties are discharged by the Monmouthshire constabulary, and the superintendent has an office at the Police Station adjoining the Town Hall.

The ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1915 from Panteg and Trevechin.

The church of St. James is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, north, south and centre aisles, south-west and west porches and a western belfry containing one bell: it was restored in 1877, at a cost of about £2,500, and has 700 sittings, 100 being free. The living is a vicarage, net income £500, derived from the endowment and pew rents, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1906 by the Rev. Goronwy Gower, of Jesus College, Oxford. St. John's Mission Hall, at Tranch, is now used as a Sunday school. St. Cadoc's Mission Church, on the Osborne road, will seat 100. St. John the Divine Mission Church, at Wainfelin, is a building of stone, and will seat 550 persons; all are served by the clergy of Trevechin. St. Matthew's Mission Church, Victoria road, an iron building seating 500 persons, is served by the clergy of the parish church. St. Alban's Catholic church, George street, erected in 1838, was restored and enlarged and a gallery added in 1881-2 at a cost of £600: it will seat 500 persons: attached is a presbytery. The Presbyterian church, Osborne road, erected in 1905, is a building of stone. Trosnant Baptist chapel, Lower Bridge street, erected in 1776, was rebuilt in 1820, and renovated in 1885, and has 680 sittings. The Congregational chapel, Hanbury road, erected in 1903-4 at a cost of £7,000, is a fine building of stone, in the Early Decorated Gothic style, with 700 sittings; attached is a Sunday school with 400 sittings. The Primitive Methodist chapel, Park terrace, a stone building in the Gothic style, was erected in 1877, at a cost of £2,200. The United Methodist chapel is in Nicholas street. The Wesleyan chapel, High street, was erected in 1860, in the Gothic style, at a cost of £2,300, and contains 700 sittings. The Baptist chapel, Crane street, erected in 1836, is a building of freestone, in a modern Classic style, and contains sittings for about 600 people. The Pen-y-garn Baptist tabernacle, Crane street, erected in 1835, is a fine building of stone, and will seat about 800 persons; the interior was considerably altered and improved in 1884, at a cost of over £1,200; it is now used for burial services only.

The Town Hall, in the Hanbury road, opened 5 Jan. 1856, is a building of stone, in the Italian style, erected at the sole cost of the late Capel Hanbury Leigh esq. of Pontypool Park, and contains an assembly room, used for concerts and meetings. The Market House, in Market street, erected in 1846, rebuilt in 1893-4 at a total cost, including site &c. of £27,000, is a structure in the Tudor style, opened Dec. 1st, 1894. The market days are Wednesdays and Saturdays, and fairs are held on April 2nd and 22nd, July 5th and October 10th, for pleasure, horses, cattle, sheep and cheese. The Cattle Market, in Park road, constructed in 1899, at a cost of £2,800, has an area of 3½ acres, and pens for 250 cattle, 3,500 sheep and 200 pigs; the land was given by J. C. Hanbury esq.

St. James' Hall, a building of stone, standing on a site near to St. James' church, was built in 1910 at a cost of £2,500. The ground floor contains a recreation room, kitchen and lavatories, and on the second floor is a hall, seat 500 persons.

The Hanbury Assembly Room and Arcade, in the Osborne road, were opened April, 1893, at a cost of £6,000; the former will seat 850 persons, and contains a platform or stage, cloak rooms &c.

The Constitutional Club, Osborne road, built in 1894, at a cost of £1,600, contains an assembly room holding 250 persons, and reading, billiard and committee rooms &c.

The Catholic Club, in Catholic lane, was built in 1904 for the Catholic Men's Association.

The Carnegie Free Library, erected in 1909 at a cost of £1,889, from designs by Messrs. Spiers and Bevan, architects, of Cardiff, contains a reading room, reference and lending libraries, ladies' reading room, committee-room and a small lecture hall.

The Fire Brigade, instituted in March, 1881, consists of a captain, lieutenant, and 14 firemen.

There are numerous forges and iron mills within a short distance of the town, for the manufacture of the heaviest iron work and for the making of tin plates. The chief articles of trade are coal and iron of every quality and description, with which the neighbouring hills abound; ample facility of conveyance is afforded both by the numerous railways and by the Monmouthshire canal to the docks at Newport.

The New Recreation Ground, Conway road, opened in 1893, is available for sports of all kinds, and includes an excellent cycling track.

The area of the parish and Urban District is 231 acres; rateable value, £27,221; the population in 1911 was 6,452. The population for the whole town district in December, 1911, was 12,458.

PORTSKEWETT and SUDBROOK form a parish, on the river Severn, which here is about 4 miles across, 5 miles south-west-by-south from Chepstow and 146 from London, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Netherwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The South Wales section of the Great Western railway has a station here. The name of this place is said to be a corruption of Porth-ys-coed—the port by the wood—and here, in ancient times, is said to have been the chief port of Gwent. Here Harold built for himself a palace, at which he entertained King Edward the Confessor, who had been keeping his court at Gloucester, in 1065; but in that same year the palace was sacked and burned by Caradoc ap Griffith, who surprised Harold's followers whilst hunting in the forest of Wentwood, on St. Bartholomew's day, and having put them to the sword, came on to Portskewett and destroyed the palace, the site of which may yet be discerned in a field near the west end of the church. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a small western tower containing one bell: it presents several interesting features, the most remarkable of which is a small doorway in the north wall, with a rudely carved tympanum of Early Norman date: the church was reseated in 1369, and has 130 sittings: in the churchyard are the remains of a fine cross. The register dates from the year 1593. The living is a rectory, with that of St. Pierre annexed, joint net yearly income £420, with 49 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis esq. and held since 1880 by the Rev. William Henry Williams M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, and rural dean of Netherwent.

In this parish is the western end of the tunnel under the Severn, constructed by the Great Western Railway Company, to connect their main lines with their branches in South Wales and to shorten the route from London to this place by thirteen miles: this undertaking was first promoted in 1864, but Parliamentary powers were not secured until 1872, when the preliminary borings were commenced, and the geological features of the pierced strata were noted by the late Dr. Yeats, of Chepstow, and valuable information obtained relative to the Somerset and South Wales coalfields and their connection: in 1879 the actual construction of the tunnel was begun: the Severn is at this part 2½ miles broad, and 2 additional miles of tunnel were required to bring the lines to the level: the total length is 4 miles 634 yards: the extreme interior width is 26 feet and height 24½ feet, or 20 feet from the rails to the roof: the main portion of the cutting runs through the Pennant sandstone or grit: the walls of the tunnel were covered with brick-work 3 feet in thickness as they were formed, and RAGLAN is a parish and head of a petty sessional division: it is on the road from Monmouth to Abergavenny, with a station half a mile east from the village on the Monmouth and Pontypool Road branch of the Great Western railway, 138 miles from London, 8 south-west-by-west from Monmouth and 6 miles north from Usk, on the Monmouth, Usk and Pontypool railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Raglan, union of Monmouth, county court district of Usk, rural deanery of Raglan, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Cadoc is a building of stone in the Early Perpendicular style, and was thoroughly restored in 1868 at an outlay of £2,600, raised by subscription; it consists of chancel with north chapel, nave, north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower, with crocketed pinnacles, containing 2 bells and a clock, given by Miss A. M. Bosanquet: the east and west windows are stained, and there are two other stained windows: the south porch is large and has a mutilated stonop: in the Beau-

work, with one important exception (when it was completely flooded for twelve months) was continued without serious hindrances under the direction of Sir John Hawkshaw and Mr. Charles Richardson: the works were all completed in 1886 and the tunnel opened for goods traffic on the 1st Sept. and for local passenger traffic on Dec. 1st in that year at a total cost of about £2,250,000: the quantity of water now pumped from the tunnel averages 25 million gallons a day, of which 13 millions are from the Sudbrook springs; there are 14 pumps, with buckets averaging 3 feet in diameter, lifting per minute 2,431 gallons, from a depth of 230 feet; but at the maximum speed of 10 strokes per minute, raising 4,420 gallons: the maximum quantity pumped per day is 32 million gallons, or 143,000 tons: the tunnel is ventilated by a fan measuring 40 feet in circumference by 12 feet wide. Portskewett is the nearest station to the tunnel works. The Walker Memorial Home (formerly the Sudbrook Orphanage), for the orphans of labouring men employed on public works, is in this parish. The trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis esq. (d. 1909) are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil is a good loam; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 1,707 acres of land, 423 of tidal water and 543 of foreshore; rateable value, £17,275; the population in 1911 was 958 in the civil parish, including 38 in the Chepstow Poor Law Institution Small Homes, and 1,035 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes part of Mathern and St. Pierre.

SUDBROOK, or Southbrook, now united to the parish of Portskewett, was once a distinct parish. The ruins of the small parish church of Holy Trinity stand upon the brink of a small cliff overhanging the Bristol Channel, and in the foss of a large camp. It was originally Norman, but was enlarged and altered in the 14th century: Mr. Blethin Smith, captain of a merchant ship, was buried in the chancel in 1757. Here is a Mission hall, erected by the contractor for the Severn tunnel; it contains a good organ and will seat about 1,000 persons. There is also a reading room. In this place is a ship building yard.

fort chapel are monuments to William (Somerset), third Earl of Worcester K.G. d. 21 Feb. 1589, and other members of the family, many of whom are interred in a vault beneath the chapel, and, amongst others, Edward (Somerset), second Marquess of Worcester, the accredited inventor of the steam engine, d. 3 April, 1667: there are 228 sittings. In the churchyard is an ancient cross, which has been restored and furnished with a new shaft. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1711; marriages, 1754. The living is a discharged vicarage, net income about £225, with 28 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1903 by the Rev. Robert Shelly Plant Lic.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter, rural dean and surrogate. The Baptist chapel here was erected in 1818. £200 is distributed yearly in bread and £6 in small sums. Fairs are held here on March 31st and on the Monday previous to the Hereford October fair. Raglan Castle, standing on a gently rising eminence a short distance from the village, and occupying a tract of land about one-third of a mile in circumference, is a venerable structure of freestone, erected at different periods, its earliest style not being anterior to the reign of King Henry V. although a castle is said to have been founded here as early as the 12th century by a member of the family of Clare, lords of Usk, and the existing keep, supposed to be of the 12th century, was faced with stone, it is said, in the time of Henry VII. so as to correspond with additions then made: the castle was sold by James, Lord Berkeley (eldest son of Sir James Berkeley and his lady, Elizabeth, the only daughter and heiress of Sir John Bluet), to his step-father, Sir William-ap-Thomas, who, by his second marriage, was the father of William Herbert, whom King Edward IV. created the first Earl of Pembroke of that name, and lord of Chepstow-Raglan and Gower, in or about the year 1469: it is most probable that the present castle, which occupies the site of the previous one, was founded by this first earl or by his son William, the second Earl of Pembroke, who having resigned that Earldom was created Earl of Huntingdon in the year 1499: it is now the property of the Duke of Beaufort, whose family became possessors of it on the marriage of Sir Charles Somerset with Elizabeth, only daughter of William, Earl of Huntingdon, and heiress of Sir Walter (or William) Herbert: it was for some time the residence of the Earls of Worcester, who made various additions to it; the interior exhibits features of the architectural style of the reigns of Henry VII. and Queen Elizabeth, the most modern portions dating from the reign of King Charles I.; Henry, the fifth Earl and first Marquess of Worcester, several times entertained this monarch during the Civil War in a most princely manner. After the battle of Naseby Charles sought shelter and remained here from July, 1645, to the middle of September in the same year: the castle was garrisoned in defence of the royal cause, but surrendered on the 19th of August, 1646, to Sir Thomas Fairfax, after sustaining a prolonged siege; it was subsequently dismantled, and is now a beautiful and picturesque ruin, much visited by tourists and others: the present Duke of Beaufort takes great interest in the maintenance of the fabric, which is in the care of Henry Turbervill Raglan Somerset esq.: His late Majesty King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, then Prince and Princess of Wales visited the castle October 19, 1881. Lord Raglan G.B.E., C.B. is lord of the manor, and the Commissioners of Woods and Forests are the principal landowners. The soil is partly sandy, intermixed with a loamy clay: subsoil, limestone rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and green crops. The area is 4,097 acres: rateable value, £5,284; the population in 1911 was 610.

RASSA is a civil parish for all administrative purposes, except parliamentary, in Monmouthshire, situated between Beaufort and Dukestown, with a station on the London and North Western Railway (Trevil). The Trevil Railway Company's line for the conveyance of limestone and minerals from the Trevil quarries in Dukestown to Ebbw Vale, runs through this parish. Under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894, by County Council Order, Rassa was created a civil parish from the Monmouthshire portion of Llanyzidred civil parish in Ebbw Vale Urban District, and is controlled by that Council. It is a petty sessional parish for all administrative purposes in Brecknockshire, hundred and union of Crickhowell, Bedwelty petty sessional division, and Tredegar county court district. The Ebbw Vale Urban District Council have constructed large water works here, a feature of which is a tunnel $\frac{1}{2}$ miles long into the limestone for the purpose of tapping springs; the cost of construction was £130,000. It is ecclesiastically in the parish of Beaufort. The parish church of Beaufort, parish hall, cemetery and rectory are in this parish. The inhabitants are principally miners. The principal landowner is the Duke of Beaufort. The area is 277 acres; rateable value, £5,146; population in 1911 was 989. Here is a Church of England Navy Mission room, and reading and recreation room; there is also a Congregational chapel and mission room.

RHIWDERIN, see Bassaleg.

RHYMNEY is a civil parish formed in 1896 from Bedwelly; it is in the north-western part of the county, lying in the valley of the Rumney river, which divides it from Glamorganshire, and is 186 miles from London, 3 west from Tredegar and 20 north-west from Pontypool; in the Ebbw Vale division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division and union of Bedwelly, county court district of Tredegar, rural deanery of Bedwelly, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The place is lighted with gas by the Rhymney and Aber Valleys Gas and Water Co. Limited. The only production is coal, the raising of which gives employment to the whole of the working population. Rhymney has a station on the Brecon and Merthyr line of railway, which puts it in direct communication with the docks at Newport, and a station on the Rhymney line uniting it to Cardiff. Rhymney was governed by a Local Board from June 19, 1874, until the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) established an Urban District Council, the district comprising the civil parishes of Rhymney and Llechryd, the latter formed from Llangyndir, in Breconshire; it was extended by 41 and 42 Vict. cap. six. The ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1843. The church of St. David is a building of stone in the Classic style, erected in 1842, and consists of chancel and nave and a tower at east end containing 6 bells: there are 750 sittings. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of the directors of the Rhymney Iron Company, and held since 1918 by the Rev. John Richard D. Williams B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter. The church hall, in High street, was erected in 1911 to seat 500 persons. There are two mission churches, dedicated to St. Matthew and St. Mark. There are 3 Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, Baptist, Welsh and English Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. The cemetery at Carno Bridge, opened in 1886, for Rhymney, and in the parish of Gellygaer, Glamorganshire, is 7 acres in extent, and has one mortuary chapel; it is under the control of the Urban District Council. The Victoria Public Hall, Victoria road, is a building of stone, seating 900, and is used for theatrical entertainments and public meetings. The Workmen's Institute, Library and Reading Room, built in 1905, at a cost of £3,000, has a library of about 5,000 volumes. The Rhymney Urban District Isolation Hospital is at present an ordinary house, rented at £10 a year. The Rhymney Iron Company Limited possesses extensive freehold and leasehold estates, and work coal at Rhymney and in the Rhymney and Deri valleys, in the parishes of Bedwelly and Gellygaer, in the counties of Monmouth and Glamorgan, and export it to all parts of the world: the shipping offices are at Cardiff and Newport. The area of the ecclesiastical parish is 1,150 acres; the population in 1911 was 9,014. The area of the civil parish is 1,908 acres; rateable value (including Llechryd) in 1919, £45,094; the population in 1911 was 11,138.

The population of the Urban District Wards in 1911 was 1—Abertysswg, 2,121; Lower, 2,651; Middle, 3,449; Upper, 3,525.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 9,014.

The area of the Urban District is:—Rhymney, 1,908 acres, and Llechryd, 730 acres; total, 2,638 acres; the population in 1911 was, Rhymney, 11,138 & Llechryd, 311; total, 11,449.

ABERTYSSWG is a rapidly growing village in this parish, and 1 mile south, but is ecclesiastically annexed to New Tredegar. St. Paul's church, a chapel of ease to St. Dingat's, New Tredegar, was erected in 1902, at a cost of £650, and is a small building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of nave only, with a turret containing one bell; the church was enlarged in 1913 and has 250 sittings. The Workmen's Hall, The Green, was erected in 1909, at a cost of £3,000. The Workmen's Hospital was erected in 1913. The population in 1911 was 2,124.

LLECHRYD is a civil parish in Rhymney Urban District, formed in 1894, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," from Llangyndir, in Brecknockshire; it is in Crickhowell union. The area is 726 acres of land and 4 of water; the population in 1911 was 311.

RISCA is a parish and village in the valley between the lofty Twyn Barlwyn (Maen) and the Machen mountains, on the Monmouthshire canal, which runs through the parish, and on the Western Valleys section of the Great Western railway, which here forms a junction with the Sirhowy line. There are stations at Risca village and Cross Keys, both in the parish, which is 16½ miles from London and 6½ north-west-by-west from Newport, in the Bedwelly division of the county, hundred of Wentlog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, and in the rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The parish was governed by a Local Board from 1878 until the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), established the present Urban District Council of 18 members. The district, which is divided into Central, North and South Wards, was formed in 1878 out of Risca and parts of Upper and Lower Machen and Mynyddislwyn, and by a Local Government Provisional Order No. 12,157, confirmed by Act 44 & 45 Vict. cap. parts of Mynyddislwyn were added in 1881. The village is lighted with gas and supplied with water by the Risca Urban District Council. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt in 1358 on the ancient foundation, is an edifice of stone, in the Florid Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a tower at the south-east angle with spire, containing one bell; there are 400 sittings, 150 being free; in the churchyard is a cross. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1756; marriages, 1754; burials, 1779. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £357, with residence and 48 acres of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of Bassaleg, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Basil Williams M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, and surrogate, who resides at Risca Vicarage, Rogerstone. A cemetery of 4 acres was formed in 1889, and was the gift of the 4th and last Viscount Tredegar, as was also another acre, and is under the control of the Urban District Council, with the exception of one-fourth part, which has been consecrated and contains a mortuary chapel and caretaker's residence. The Public Hall, erected in 1884, is an edifice in the Italian style, and includes the hall proper, which is 68 ft. by 48 ft. and seats 800 persons, and a suite of rooms for Missive purposes. Here are collieries, a large tinplate manufactory, the works of the Monmouthshire Steel and Tinplate Co. Limited, the extensive iron and steel foundry of Messrs. Henry White and Co. Limited, fire brick works and lime kilns. Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, and Major-Gen. Lord Treowen C.B., C.M.G. are the chief landowners. The soil is gravel; subsoil, clay, coal and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and pasture. The area of the parish and Urban District is 4,205 acres; rateable value, £68,527; the population in 1911 was 14,149.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: Central, 3,715; North, 4,150; South, 4,284.

The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 10,576.

Sixton, John Winstone, Risca.

By Local Government Board Order, No. 31,306, those parts of Lower Machen, Upper Machen and Mynyddislwyn civil parish in Risca Urban District were, in 1904, added to Risca civil parish.

PONTYMISTER is half a mile south-east. St. Margaret's church, built in 1911, and alongside of which a schoolroom was erected in 1913, is a stone building in the Gothic style of architecture, consisting of chancel, nave and aisle. There is seating accommodation for 340, all of which is free and unappropriated. The site of both church and schoolroom was the gift of the last Viscount Tredegar, who also contributed £500 towards the erection of the church. The massive oak altar and the communion plate were a gift by Mrs. Christopher Jenkins. This is the only church in the diocese which is entirely supported by the free-will offerings of the congregation. The total cost of the church was £1,900. The Rev. Jacob Towns, of the London University, is curate in charge. There is a Catholic chapel with school, erected in 1868, and dedicated to St. Anthony of Padua and St. Clare; the chapel will seat 150 persons.

Pontywain is 1½ miles north, and Cross Keys, 1 mile north-west. At Cross Keys is a Congregational chapel and a Baptist chapel. St. Catherine's church (under the superintendence of the vicar and a Church Army captain), is the gift of Mrs. E. Watts in memory of her late husband. There is seating accommodation for 350.

ROCKFIELD, bounded on the north-east by the river Monnow and on the old road from Monmouth to Abergavenny, is a parish and village called in olden times Corn-y-Cenbeddon, 2½ miles north-west from Monmouth railway station, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Skenfrith, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Monmouth, Monmouth and Skenfrith highway district of the Monmouth Rural District Council, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Cenbeddon, rebuilt with the exception of the tower, in 1862, is an edifice in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and a tower with a peculiar timber upper storey, and containing 3 bells: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. C. A. Halson, a former vicar, and the west window to Beatrice Elizabeth, wife of Major William Frederick Noel R.E. d. 1880: in the chancel are memorial windows to the late Sir John Dorney Harding D.C.L. and Anna Elizabeth Harding: there is also a brass to Charles Henry Crompton-Roberts esq. d. 1891: on the south wall is a marble tablet to the 1st Baron Llangattock, a former patron of the living: there are 108 sittings. The register dates from the year 1696. The living is a vicarage, net income £200, with residence, in the gift of Hon. Lady Shelley-Rolls,

ROGGIETT is a parish on the shore of the Bristol Channel, with a station (Severn Tunnel Junction) on the Great Western railway, $7\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Chepstow, and 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ from London, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Netherwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone presenting several features of interest, consisting of an unusually large chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower with a peculiar octagonal pinnacle at one corner, and containing one bell: a considerable portion of the fabric belongs to the Decorated period, but there are traces of Early English work: the font is curious, and there are remains of the stairs to the ancient road left: the church was restored and enlarged in 1904, and affords 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1750. The living is a rectory, with the rectories of Ifton and Llanvihangel annexed, joint net yearly income £520, with 114 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Tredegar, and held since 1019 by the Rev. ST ARVANS is a parish on the high road from Chepstow to Monmouth and Raglan, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west-by-north from Chepstow station on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Caldicot, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Arvan is an ancient building of stone, erected at various periods, and consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a tower containing one bell, dated 1751: the priest's door on the south side of the chancel is an interesting example of Early Norman work, and there is a window on the same side dating from a century later: a portion of the shaft of an ancient Saxon stone cross was found in taking down the walls of the nave; and in a cavity in the walls, in another part of the church, a number of silver coins were discovered: the church was almost completely restored in 1883-4, under the direction of Mr. Pritchard, architect, at a cost of about £2,000, of which £500 was contributed by Mrs. Clara, of Piercefield, and the church was reopened 26 Feb. 1884: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1686, when all previous registers were burnt. The living is now a vicarage, with Pentery annexed in 1888, joint net yearly income £240 and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1887 by the Rev. John

M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, who resides at Ifton. Lord Tredegar is lord of the manor and principal landowner. A fair for cattle, sheep and pigs is held here fortnightly on Monday. The soil is sandy loam: pasture and moor land is clay, but very good, and some peat; subsoil, various—limestone on the upper part. The chief crops are corn, but there is much pasture land and considerable woods. The area is 1,017 acres of land and 2,334 of foreshore; rateable value, £5,038: the population in 1911 was 138 in the civil parish and 305 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes Ifton and Llanvihangel, near Roggiett.

Tilley. The vicarage house was built in 1889 by public subscription and Queen Anne's bounty. There is a Congregational chapel, with 130 sittings. Piercefield Park, the seat of Henry Clay esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. is about 400 acres in extent, and is bounded on the east and north sides by beautifully wooded and precipitous cliffs, rising at the angle to a height of several hundred feet and commanding a fine view of the valley of the Wye; the mansion is a plain but substantial building of stone, erected towards the close of the last century, by George Smith esq. then owner of the estate, upon the site of a former house, which had for many generations been the seat of the Walters family, by whom the estate had been sold in 1747: the park is open on Tuesdays during the season, and visitors are permitted to pass through it to the high road above; at various points on the way exquisite views are afforded of the Wye and the beautifully wooded cliffs rising on either side of the valley. Oak Grove is the seat of Henry Hastings Clay esq. D.L., J.P. William Edward Carne Currie esq. D.L. who is lord of the manor, Henry Clay esq. and W. Smedley esq. of Abington, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam and sand; subsoil, marl and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,258 acres of land, 2 of water, 34 of tidal water and 36 of foreshore; rateable value,

ST. BRIDE NETHERWENT is a parish, in a valley running from Llanvaches to Magor, 2 miles north from Magor station on the Severn Tunnel Junction and Newport line of the Great Western railway, 7 east-south-east from Caerleon and 3 west-by-south from Chepstow, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division of Newport, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Netherwent, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Bride or Bridget is a building of stone in the Early English style, restored in 1842, and consists of chancel, nave, north porch and a saddle-back western tower containing 2 bells: close to the entrance gate of the churchyard is a stone cross, the base only of which is ancient, but restored as a memorial of the Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, June 20th, 1887: the church has sittings for 104 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1771; marriages, 1754. The registers of Llandevely are included in those of St. Bride. The living is a rectory, with Llandevely annexed, net income £156, with 48 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Viscountess Rhondda, and held since 1892 by the Rev. William Moss Ogle. There is a Roman camp on the hill opposite the church, and also a barrow, opened by the Caerleon Antiquarian Society in 1866 and the relics found sent to the Caerleon Museum. Viscountess Rhondda is lady of the manor and the chief landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, gravel and limestone. The chief crops are grain and roots. The area is 804 acres; rateable value, £236; population in 1911, 133 in the civil and 188 in the ecclesiastical parish.

LLANDEVENNY, a hamlet 2 miles west, lies between Magor and Wilcrick, in Newport union. The area is 237 acres; rateable value, £2,355; population in 1911, 55.

ST. BRIDE WENTLOOG is a parish on the Wentloog Level on the Bristol Channel, 2½ miles north-east from Marshfield station on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway and 4½ south from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Wentloog, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Newport, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. A high sea wall has been erected on the coast, to prevent the tide overflowing the district. The church of St. Bride Wentloog is an ancient building of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and an unusually fine Perpendicular embattled western tower containing 6 bells, four of which are dated 1734 and bear inscriptions: on the south wall of the church, within the porch, is the following inscription carved in freestone:—"The Great Flyd, 20 Janvarie, 10 in the morning, 1606": the lowest part of the inscription, which marks the height to which the waters arrived, is about five feet from the ground: a second inundation in 1708 covered the Level from Magor to Cardiff: the church was restored and re-seated in 1000, and now affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1733. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Coedkern w annexed, joint net yearly value £244, with 6½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Morgan Evans-Davies B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Coedkernew. Here is an English Congregational chapel, with 120 sittings, and a Welsh and English Baptist chapel, built in 1843, seating 150. The Usk Lighthouse is built on the shore of the Bristol Channel south of this parish. The principal landowners are Lord Tredegar, who is lord of the manor, Lord Wharton and P. R. Phillips esq. The soil is clayey; subsoil, the same. The land is chiefly meadow. The area is 1,899 acres of land, 2 of tidal water and 1,841 of foreshore; rateable value, £7,264: the population in 1911 was 195.

ST. PIERRE and RUNSTON for civil purposes were amalgamated with Mathern, by Local Government Order No. 17,581, dated March 25, 1886; St. Pierre is in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Netherwert, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. St. Pierre is situated between the Bristol Channel and the road from Newport to Chepstow, 1½ miles north-east from Portskewett station on the Severn Tunnel Junction and Chepstow branch of the Great Western railway, and 3 south-west-by-south from Chepstow. The church of St. Peter is a small stone edifice of considerable antiquity, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a western bell turret containing one bell: in the chancel are two ancient slabs, recovered in 1764 from the churchyard, and bearing an inscription in Norman French to Urian de St. Pierre, who was lord of this place and died in 1230; there are also two incised slabs to members of the Lewis family, dating from the 16th century, and some more modern monuments: the church was restored in 1874, at a cost of £1,000, and affords 50 sittings. The registers seem formerly to have been kept with those of Portskewett, which date from 1593. The living is a rectory annexed to that of Portskewett, joint net yearly income £420, in the gift of the trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis esq. (d. 1909), and held since 1880 by the Rev. William Henry Williams M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, and rural dean of Netherwert, who resides at Portskewett. St. Pierre, for ecclesiastical purposes, is consolidated SHIRE NEWTON is a parish, seated on a hill, 535 feet above the sea, and is 4½ miles north from the Severn Tunnel junction and 4½ west from Chepstow railway stations on the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Chepstow, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The old Welsh name of this parish (which appears to have been but seldom used) was Tre-newydd-gelli-fach. This was anciently a detached portion of the lordship of Caldicot, and the eastern part of the parish is still included in the manor of Caldicot-cum-Newton. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is an ancient building of stone, founded by Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, about the middle of the 13th century, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle (added in 1853), and a massive tower, placed at the intersection of the nave and chancel, and containing 5 bells, all cast by William Evans, of Chepstow, in 1756: the tower is a good example of the peculiar fortified church towers of this district, and from the elevated situation of the church is a conspicuous object for many miles round: a new organ was presented in 1908 by C. O. Liddell esq. J.P. and new oak choir stalls and a reading desk have also been provided: there is one modern stained window: the church affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1730. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £360, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester, and is at present (1912) vacant. There is a Baptist chapel at GAERLUWYDD; Wesleyan and United Methodist chapels at EARLSWOOD and one for Wesleyans in the village. The Society of Friends opened a burying-ground here in 1700, and the present Wesleyan chapel was built by them. A hall, erected in 1874 and the property of C. O. Liddell esq. J.P. is used as a village institute. The common land is inclosed and cultivated. There is a cromlech just outside the parish on the road to Usk, and upon a steep eminence in Llanmelli Wood, upwards of a mile from the village, and partly in this parish and partly in that of Caer-

with Portskewett and Runston with Mathern. St. Pierre Park is the seat and residence of Major Cyril Stacey J.P.; the fine old mansion is of various periods, the Tudor style predominating, and commands extensive views of the Severn and Gloucestershire; the deer park, of about 200 acres, has some grand old timber and a lake of about 11 acres in extent. The soil is gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area of Mathern and St. Pierre is 3,457 acres of land, 16 of water, 337 of tidal water and 162 of foreshore; rateable value, Mathern and St. Pierre, £5,803; population in 1911, 622.

RUNSTON is a hamlet adjoining to the north-west, and was once a distinct and separate parish. All that is left of the village consists of a few irregular heaps of fallen masonry and the roofless walls of a small Norman church, which appears to have been in use up to the early part of the 18th century, and occupies a remarkably picturesque though solitary position. At Crick, at the junction of the roads from Chepstow and Portskewett to Newport, are remains of a very fine old mansion, formerly the seat of the More family, but which has long been unoccupied. Charles I. visited this house on several occasions. Close by, among the farm buildings, stands the old chapel of St. Newyn, in use up to the 17th century, but now desecrated and turned into a barn.

went, is a large British encampment strongly defended by an inner and outer vallum, and having out-works on the north-eastern side towards the edge of the wood. Shire Newton Hall, the residence of Charles Oswald Liddell esq. J.P. is a large and beautiful residence, some 500 feet above sea level, commanding most extensive views, embracing the whole of the Bristol Channel, from the estuary of the Severn to beyond Porlock Bay, backed by the Cotswold, Mendip, Quantock and Exmoor Hills. Just behind the hall there was formerly an ancient mansion, belonging to the Blethyn family, and said to have been once occupied by Bishop Blethyn, who died here in 1590. The manor of Caldicot-cum-Newton, embracing a considerable part of this parish, belongs to the Duchy of Lancaster, under which it is held by the trustees of the late Thomas Freke Lewis esq. of Moynes Court (d. 1909); there is another manor here, belonging to Lord Tredegar, and the rector is lord of the manor of the Rectory of Nova Villa, otherwise Shire Newton. The principal landowners are C. O. Liddell esq. J.P. and William Edward Carne Currie esq. D.L. The soil is clayey loam; subsoil, mountain limestone with some red sandstone. The crops are chiefly grain and turnips. The area is 3,507 acres of land and 2 of water; rateable value, £3,506; the population in 1911 was 734.

SKENFRITH, or Skenfreth, is a parish and village on the river Monnow, over which there is a stone bridge of 3 arches, on the road from Roas to Abergavenny; it is 8 miles north-north-west from Monmouth, the nearest railway station, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Skenfrith, union and county court district of Monmouth, Monmouth and Skenfrith highway district of the Monmouth District Council, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Bridget is a building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a tower containing 6 bells: there is one stained window: in the north aisle is an altar tomb to John Morgan and Ann his wife dated 1557: a pre-Reformation cope is preserved here: the church was thoroughly repaired under the direction of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1662, with an earlier fragment, but is imperfect. The living is a vicarage, net income £180, with 2½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Robert Newton Jackson esq. and held since 1889 by the Rev. Christopher Leonard Gardé M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1883, and the Baptist chapel in 1885. The Catholic chapel, formerly at COEDANGRED, has been pulled down, but the cemetery remains. A Public Reading Room was established in 1888. From Graig Hill, about 1,600 feet in height, ten counties may be seen. Skenfrith Castle, built anterior to the Norman invasion, stood on the west side of the Monnow river: but of this fortress nothing now remains except a part of the keep and outer wall, although Leland describes it as being nearly perfect in his time (1566-52); it is probably one of the oldest of the border castles, and

TINTERN-PARVA, or Little Tintern, is a parish on the river Wye, on the new road (Bigsway Trust) from Chepstow to Monmouth, with a station on the Wye Valley branch of the Great Western railway: it is 6 miles north from Chepstow and 1½ from London, in the Monmouth division of the county, Baglan hundred, Chepstow petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Michael and All with Grosmont Castle and White Castle, was given by King John to William de Braose, for three steeds and ten greyhounds; the tower was massive and the walls of great thickness and strength; it was probably in the first instance of British origin, and intended for the defence of the river, or to render more secure the passes of the adjacent mountains: the castle was twice visited by King Henry III. during the years 1220 and 1222. Blackbrooke is the property and residence of Robert Newton Jackson esq. J.P. who is lord of that manor. The principal landowners are Arthur Ernest Lawley esq. R. N. Jackson esq. J.P. and Herbert Edward Marlon esq. There are quarries of good paving stone. The soil is stiff and light loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and barley and oats, with some beans and roots. The area is 4,885 acres; rateable value, £3,476; the population in 1911 was 442 in the civil and 422 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 14,632, dated March 25, 1883, a detached part of Rockfield was added to the civil parish.

Angels, which stands close to the river Wye, is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English Geometric style, consisting of chancel, nave, a fine Early English south porch, with groined roof, and a bell-cote at the west end containing one bell: the stained east window of three lights was erected by Dr. Andland as a memorial to his wife and children; the font is small but ancient and elegant in style: there is a modern stone pulpit: the church was restored and partly rebuilt in 1846 and the chancel was improved and a vestry built in 1874: there are 120 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1694; marriages, 1695; burials, 1756. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Chapel Hill annexed, joint net income £200, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1903 by the Rev. Alfred William Washington Palmer. This parish shares in certain charities, bequeathed to the parish of Chapel Hill; there is also a charity of £58 9s. 9d. left by Robert Cornwallis Price, invested in India 3 per cent. and the interest given by the rector and churchwardens to the poor. Tintern abbey is not in this parish, but is situated in that of Chapel Hill (which see). There is a Roman camp on the farm of Madget, in Woolstone parish, across the Wye, and an ancient kiln, supposed to be Roman work, at Coed Ithol, by the side of the road to Llandogo. In the village street stands the base of an ancient stone cross, and there are still some remains of a large stone mansion of the Tudor period, believed to be the ancient Manor House, which, tradition says, was battered down by Cromwell, and a cannon ball has been found in the ruins. The mansion was, however, occupied by the Fielding family nearly a century later.

The extensive woods, which form one of the chief features of this part of the county, are cut every 12 or 14 years, and the timber sent to the collieries in South Wales; the smaller wood is prepared for hoops or charcoal. Nightingales abound in the woods above the village; lilies of the valley and allied plants are also to be found, as well as several of the rarer ferns, such as the oak fern and beech polypodium and some of the club-mosses. Mrs. Tweedy is lady of the manor. The principal landowners are the Crown, Mrs. Browning, Mrs. John Fryer and the Rev. C. A. W. Cruttwell M.A. The soil is sandy, shallow and poor; the parish lies on the junction of the old red sandstone and mountain limestone. The land is chiefly in pasture and coppice wood. The area is 795 acres of land, 16 of tidal water and 3 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,344; the population in 1911 was 325.

TREDEGAR

TREDEGAR is a town and civil parish formed in 1894 from Bedwelly, with stations at Tredegar and Sirhowy, both close to the town, on the Sirhowy branch of the London and North Western railway, 181 miles from London, 124 west from Abergavenny, 7 north-east from Merthyr Tydfil, 163 north-west from Pontypool, 22 north-west from Newport and 36 west from Monmouth: it is the head of a county court district, in the Ebbw Vale division of the county, Bedwelly petty sessional division and union, hundred of Wentloog, rural deanery of Bedwelly, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff; that part of the town on the west side of the Sirhowy river is on the property of Lord Tredegar, but George Town is built on land owned by the Tredegar Iron Company: in 1835 the town was formed into an ecclesiastical parish from the civil parish of Bedwelly: the "Local Government Act, 1858," was adopted by the town June 19, 1874, the district comprising Tredegar and Dunkestown parishes, and was extended by 41 and 42 Vict. c. clxiv, and the town was governed by a Local Board until the "Local Government Act, 1894" established the present Urban District Council.

Tredegar is comparatively a modern town and arose entirely through the establishment of large iron works by the Tredegar Company at the commencement of the 19th century. The town is lighted with gas and is well supplied with water by gravitation from a large reservoir holding 15,500,000 gallons on the side of the hill above the Poor Law Institution, and a spring situated above Nant-y-twh capable of supplying a minimum quantity of 200,000 gallons per day; there is also a reservoir, with a capacity of 50,000,000 gallons, for river compensating purposes; both gas and water works, purchased by the late Local Board at a cost of £53,000, are now the property of the Urban Council. The principal streets diverge from an open space in the middle of the town, called "The Circle," in the centre of which stands a lofty cast-iron column, supporting an illuminated clock. The houses are mostly small and occupied by those engaged in the iron works and collieries of the district.

The church of St. George is a rectangular building of stone in the Norman style, and consists of chancel, nave, north porch and a western tower, containing one bell and clock; there are 1,000 sittings, 600 being free. The register dates from about the year 1836. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £311, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Thomas Theophilus, of St. David's College, Lampeter. The Rev. David Jones M.A. is curate in charge.

The ecclesiastical parish of St. James was formed from that of Tredegar, by order of His Majesty King Edward VII. in Council, dated March 28, 1904, and includes the districts of George Town and Troedrhwiwgwair, to the east of the Sirhowy stream.

The church, erected in 1890, at a cost of £3,000, on a site presented by the Tredegar Iron and Coal Co. Limited, and consecrated 6th Nov. 1890, is a building of stone in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, organ chamber, vestry, western porch and turret with 2 bells: there are 500 sittings. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1915 by the Rev. John Evans B.A. of the University of Wales.

The iron church of St. Luke, DUKESTOWN, erected in 1895, and formerly in the parish of Llangynidr and diocese of St. David's, was transferred to the parish of St. George, Tredegar, in 1900, by order of His Majesty in Council: there are 250 sittings.

The Mission church of SIRHOWY, in connection with St. George's, was built in 1907 and will seat 150.

There is also a Mission room at TROEDRHWIHWGWAIR attached to the church of St. James, and several Dissenting chapels.

The Cemetery at Cefn-Golan Mountain, enlarged in 1902-3 to 12 acres, has three mortuary chapels, and is under the control of the Urban Council.

The Town Hall, which stands in The Circle, and was erected in 1893, is a handsome building of stone. It contains the county court and bankruptcy offices, and a large room which is let for entertainments and public meetings.

The Temperance Hall, in Morgan street, also contains several spacious rooms, well adapted for public meetings and entertainments.

The market day is Saturday: the market house adjoins The Circle.

There are three banks—Barclays Bank Ltd. Lloyd's Bank Limited and the Metropolitan Bank (of England and Wales) Limited.

There is a Literary Institute with a library of 8,000 volumes at the Temperance hall, supported by weekly public subscriptions and managed by a committee formed from the members of the Institute.

The Tredegar Park Cottage Hospital, in Park row, was built in 1904 at a cost of £4,500, and is supported by workmen's contributions, the Tredegar Iron and Coal Co. Limited and public subscriptions.

The Urban District Isolation Hospital, formerly a dwelling house, was reconstructed into a hospital, and will hold 12 patients.

Bedwelly Park, a beautifully wooded enclosure of 25 acres, situated in the town, was presented to the inhabitants of the Urban District by the last Viscount Tredegar, and opened April 18th, 1907. Bedwelly

House is now used as offices for the officials of the Urban District Council.

The area of the Urban District is 8,148 acres, viz.:—Tredegar, 4,360 acres; Duketown, 3,788 acres; the population in 1901 was 18,497 and in 1911—Tredegar, 23,601; Duketown, 2,417.

The population of the wards in 1911 was: Central, 4,387; Georgetown, 7,531; Sirhowy, 5,939; West, 5,744.

The area of the civil parish is 4,277 acres of land and 83 of water; rateable value, £104,476; the population in 1911 was 21,184, including 30 officials and 404 inmates

NEW TREDEGAR is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1900 from the ecclesiastical parish of Tredegar, and is in the civil parish and Urban District of Bedwelly, on the river Rumney and opposite the village of Tir-Phil in the county of Glamorgan, with stations on the Rhymney and Brecon and Merthyr railways, 16 1/2 miles from London, 3 south from Rhymney, and 4 1/2 south-west from Tredegar; it is in the Ebbw Vale division of the county, hundred of Wentlog, petty sessional division and union of Bedwelly, county court district of Trede-gar, rural deanery of Bedwelly, archdeaconry of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff. The parish is supplied with gas and water by the Bedwelly Urban District Council, both works being in the opposite village of Tir-Phil. The church of St. Dinat, New Tredegar, erected in 1894 at a cost of about £3,000, is a building of stone in the Early English style and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, and a turret with one bell: the site was presented by the 4th and last Viscount Tredegar: there are 700 sittings. The register dates from the year 1900. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, in the gift of the Bishop of Laudaff, and held since 1910 by the Rev. Henry James L.Div. of St. David's College, Lampeter. Here are several chapels. There is a parish hall, erected at a cost of £1,500, to seat 600 persons. The Workmen's Institute and Library, erected in 1878 at a cost of about £1,500, was enlarged in 1910 at a cost of £500, and contains a lecture hall, library and reading room. The Workmen's Hall, erected in 1906 at a cost of £3,000 and used for meetings and variety entertainments, will seat 1,500 persons. Here are numerous collieries, which give employment to the inhabitants. For the ecclesiastical district of Abertyswg and St. Paul's church, see Rhymney: rateable value and civil population included in Bedwelly; ecclesiastical population in 1911, 10,335.

TREDUNNOCK is a parish to the east of the Newport and Usk high road, half way between Caerleon and Usk, and on the west bank of the river Usk, which is here crossed by a bridge of three arches, known as "New Bridge"; it is 4½ miles south from Usk station and 4½ miles north-east from Caerleon station, both on the Hereford section of the Great Western railway, and 7½ north-east from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, Usk hundred, petty sessional division of Caerleon, union of Newport, county court district of Usk, rural deanery of Usk, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 6 bells; the lower portion was originally a Roman watch tower, and the present tower has been built upon it; the arch under which the Roman soldiers entered still remains; on the north wall is a memorial to Julius Julianus, a soldier of the second legion; a new vestry has been added, given by the late Josiah Richards; a lych gate was erected in 1919 as a memorial of the Great War; there are 90 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1695; marriages and burials, 1711. The living is a rectory, net income £130, with 47 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of John Capel Hanbury esq. and held since 1916 by the Rev. David Dudley, of Durham University. John Capel Hanbury esq. D.L. who is lord of the manor, and W. E. Jones esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, stony. The land is about equally divided between corn and some pasture land. The area is 1,356 acres of land, 31 of tidal water and 6 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,807; the population in 1911 was 137.

TRELLECK is a parish and village and head of petty sessional division; it is on the old road from Monmouth to Chepstow, $\frac{5}{8}$ miles south from Monmouth, 10 north from Chepstow and $\frac{3}{8}$ north-west from Tintern station on the Wye Valley line of the Great Western railway, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Raglan, union and county court district of Monmouth, Raglan and Trelleck highway district of the Monmouth District Council, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Nicholas is a handsome edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with lofty spire containing 3 bells: the brass lectern and bible were given by Mr. Alfred Franklin, of Trelleck, and the stained east window as a memorial to Charles Henry Crompton-Roberts esq. of Drybridge (d. 1891), by his widow: all the chancel windows are stained: there are two windows in memory of the late Rev. Henry Arden Lewis M.A. (vicar 1887-94) and two in memory of Lt.-Col. Ramsey and his wife: the chancel has been largely rebuilt, and the church new roofed and reseated; the old oak panelling from the reading-desk, bearing the date 1639, was inserted in the new desk: the panelled oak pulpit, dated 1640, remains; the massive oak inner door of the porch bears the initials I.H.S. and the date 1595: in the chancel is a piscina, and there is another trefoil-headed piscina in the south aisle; the west window is a Decorated insertion: in 1894 the church was thoroughly restored at a cost of £3,000: new choir stalls and an altar table have been given by the family of the late Lieut.-Col. Ramsey: the church has 400 sittings: in the church is a curious sun-dial, erected in 1689, it bearing the inscription: "Hic fuit Victor Hovaldus," with other inscriptions and some curious decorations: in the churchyard is an ancient cross on five steps, and near it a somewhat singular tomb consisting of a massive chamfered slab, supported at the ends by heavy blocks of stone carved on the exterior with crosses within circles. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1763; marriages, 1773. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £220 and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff, and held since 1804 by the Rev. Thomas Davies M.A. of Durham University. A Mission church and parish room have been built at Catbrook at a cost of £400. There are two Wesleyan and two United Methodist chapels. Charities amounting to £24 yearly are distributed in money. Trelleck was anciently a place of great importance, and is supposed to have been the site of a large town: it is situated on the summit of a hill, and derives its name of Trelleck, "the town of stones," from three stone monoliths which stand in a small field: tradition states that they were erected by Harold in commemoration of a victory over the Britons: they are respectively eight, ten and fifteen feet high, but now incline to the east and west. The whole of this district was formerly a dense forest, and it is probable that these stones are relics of Druidism, and that the spot whereon they was included within the precincts of a consecrated grove. In the vicinity of these stones is a celebrated chalybeate spring called "The Virtuous Well." In the village at the back of the Court farm house is a tumulus, 450 feet in diameter, supposed to be of Roman origin, encircled by a moat, and it was subsequently the site of some fortified building. The scenery is romantic. Mrs. Tweedy is lady of the manor. The Crown, Lt.-Col. Charles Montague Crompton-Roberts D.L. William Robert Price esq. and Henry Avray Tipping esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is sandy loam; subsoil, sandstone and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area of Trelleck is 4,909 acres of land and 2 of water; rateable value, £2,383; the population in 1911 was 649 in the civil parish and 753 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes Trelleck Town.

USK

USK is a parish, market town and ancient borough, and the head of a petty sessional division, with a station on the Great Western railway, 157 miles north-west from London, 11 north-east from Newport, 13 south-west from Monmouth and 7 north-east from Pontypool, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Usk, union of Pontypool, rural deanery of Usk, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The town is seated on the banks of the river Usk, over which is a stone bridge of four arches, and is a place of remote antiquity, conjectured by some antiquaries to have been the "Burrium" of the Romans; the name Usk is derived from the Gaelic "Uisge," which signifies water: here are the remains of an ancient castle, standing on an eminence overlooking the town: this place was of great importance during the wars between the Welsh and the Anglo-Normans, and at a later period in the time of the celebrated Owen Glendower: in the civil commotions between Charles I. and the Parliamentarians the castle was repeatedly assaulted, and, together with the town, partly demolished: the present remains of the castle are of considerable extent, and partially covered with ivy, and now the property of Major Albert Addams-Williams, F.S.A., LL.M., J.P.

The town was incorporated by charters granted by Edmund de Mortimer, Earl of March and Ulster, Edward II. Edward IV. and succeeding monarchs.

The corporation consisted of a portreeve, recorder, two bailiffs, burgesses and four constables, but was abolished by the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1883" (46 and 47 Vict. c. 18).

The town adopted the Local Government Act, 1858 (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), December 3, 1872, and was governed by a Local Board, until the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), established the present Urban District Council. The town is paved, and lighted with gas by a company, formed in 1851, and supplied with water from works at Pandy, the property of the Usk Water Works Co.

The church of St. Mary, formerly the church of a house of Benedictine nuns, founded here before 1174, by Sir A. de Clare, is an ancient building of stone with portions of Norman, Late Decorated and Perpendicular work, and was originally cruciform and apsidal, but the two arms of the cross or transepts, as well as the apse, have been destroyed; it now consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, two porches and a very large and handsome central embattled tower, with turret, and containing 6 bells; the nave, north aisle and tower formed part of the ancient conventual church, and the gateway of the abbey also remains: in the church are several brasses, with inscriptions, including one placed in 1890, in memory of Col. Roden, who was murdered in Corsica: and a monument, erected in 1822, to Mr. Roger Edwards, who, in 1621, founded the Free Grammar School here: there is a good choir screen and three memorial windows: the tower was repaired in 1870 and again in 1913; in 1875 the church was new-roofed: there are 460 sittings, 328 being free; in the churchyard are many monuments, including several to the old family of Nicholl, of Ham, designed by the late Sir Digby Wyatt R.A. to whom there is also a memorial, erected by his brother. The registers, including those of Gwehelog and Glascoed, date from 1742. The living is a rectory, net income £200, with 1 acre of glebe and residence, in the gift of Major Albert Addams-Williams F.S.A., LL.M., J.P. and held since 1802 by the Rev. Percy Louis Charles Nash B.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham University, who is also vicar of Monkswood. On the south-east of the church stands the Priory, the property and residence of Robert Rickards esq. F.S.A. J.P.; the house was restored some years since, and the existing remains, which date from the Norman period, were preserved as far as practicable.

The Catholic church, Porth-y-carna street, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier, and erected in 1847, is in the Gothic style from designs by the late Mr. Hansom, and has 120 sittings: at the back of the church is a small burial ground: the Rev. Alfred Cuthbert Knight is the priest.

The Baptist chapel, Old Market street, was erected in 1840, and will seat 325. The Congregational chapel, Twyn square, was founded in 1745; the present building erected in 1862, at a cost of £1,200, is a stone building in the Gothic style with a turret for one bell, and has sittings for 400 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, Maryport street, erected in 1817, has sittings for 150 persons.

The Court House, adjoining the prison, in which the Quarter Sessions are now held and county business transacted, is a large and handsome edifice of stone, completed and opened 16 Oct. 1877, at a cost exceeding £15,000.

The Town Hall contains the offices of the Urban District Council, and is also used for public meetings and entertainments.

His Majesty's prison, in Maryport street, is a large building of stone, arranged to hold 153 prisoners on the separate system.

Busses run from Usk to Newport, also to Pontypool.

There are two banks, a branch of Barclays Bank Ltd. and Lloyds Bank Limited. The market is held on Friday and a cattle market the first and third Monday in every month. Fairs are held on the 20th April, wool fairs on Trinity Monday and on the 29th October, and Christmas fair on the 16th December. Wood turning and chair making are carried on. There is a Liberal Club with about 80 members. At Llangview, about 3 miles from Usk, are almshouses, founded by Roger Edwards, for 12 poor persons, each of whom receives £16 yearly; attached to the building is a chapel, with a chaplain appointed by the trustees: the chaplaincy has been held since 1897 by the Rev. William Watkins Jones, vicar of Llantrissant: a surgeon also is provided and paid by the trust, the present medical attendant being Ernest L. M. Hackett esq.: the almshouses were rebuilt on their old site in 1826. Lord Baglan is lord of the manor. The soil is silurian, and the subsoil, sand and gravel. The area of Usk township, Urban District and parliamentary borough is 655 acres; rateable value, £6,807; the population in 1911 was 1,465, which includes 90 in H.M. Prison, and 1,980 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes Glascoed and Gwehelog.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,718, part of the civil parish of Gwehelog was, in 1894, added to the civil parish and Urban District of Usk.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1911 was 298.

Sexton, William Frederick Taylor.

GLASCOED is a hamlet, in the parish of Usk, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles west from the town of Usk; the chapel of ease here is a small building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave, with 90 sittings, and a burial ground attached: divine service is conducted in the chapel once on Sundays, by the vicar of Usk or his curate. Here is also a Baptist chapel. The area is 1,749 acres; rateable value, £1,539; the population in 1911 was 211.

WENTLOOG ST. BRIDE, see St. Bride Wentloog.

WHITSON is a parish, on the shore of the Bristol Channel, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south from Llanwrn station, on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, and 7 south-east-by-east from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Caerleon, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff: a sea-wall has been erected on the coast. The church (name unknown) is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 2 bells: the font is ancient: a memorial east window was erected in 1884 by the family of the Rev. John Beynon, a former vicar: there are 100 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1744; marriages, 1729; burials, 1728. The living is a vicarage, net income £210, including 45 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Eton College and the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff alternately, and held since 1900 by the Rev. John Price, of St. Bees, who is also vicar of Goldcliff. A great quantity of land formerly waste, which extends through the parish, on both sides of the roads, has been inclosed at the cost of the landowners. On the west, the parish is bounded by Monkcliff pill (Welsh "pwll," a pool or inlet), formerly made by the monks of Goldcliff Priory, and the bed of which is above the surface of the level: through this pill the water that comes down from the hills above is conveyed to the sea to prevent its overflowing the level. The principal landowners are the Rev. O. R. Vassall-Phillips, who is lord of the manor, Viscountess Rhondda and Rees Keene esq. The soil is good loam; subsoil, clay. The land is nearly all pasture. The area is 1,086 acres; rateable value, £2,103; the population in 1911 was 90.

WILCRICK is a parish, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles on the road from Newport to Chepstow, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west from Magor station, on the South Wales section of the Great Western railway, and $7\frac{1}{2}$ east from Newport, in the Monmouth division of the county, lower division of Caldicot hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Newport, rural deanery of Caerleon, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church (name unknown) is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a small western turret containing one bell: it was almost entirely rebuilt in 1860, and has 50 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1786; marriages, 1755; burials, 1781. The living is a rectory, annexed to that of Llanmartin, net yearly value £170.

with 30 acres of glebe, in the gift of C. Curzon-Herrick esq. and held since 1910 by the Rev. William Dovey B.A. of St. David's College, Lampeter, who resides at Llanmartin. Viscountess Rhondda is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is partly clay and partly sand; subsoil, sandstone and limestone. The chief crops are grass, grain and turnips. The area is 437 acres; rateable value, £1,154; the population in 1911 was 29.

Parish Clerk, James Hodges.

WOLVES NEWTON is a parish on the old Chepstow road, $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles east-by-south from Usk station, on the Monmouth and Newport section of the Great Western railway, and 7 north-west from Chepstow, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Raglan, petty sessional division of Trellech, union of Chepstow, county court district of Usk, Raglan and Trellech highway district, rural deanery of Chepstow, archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Thomas-a-Becket is an ancient structure of stone, partly in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a saddleback western tower, containing 3 bells: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from 1680, but one book is much mutilated. The living is a rectory, with Kilgwrrwg annexed in 1884, joint net yearly value £280, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Llandaff and the Archdeacon of Llandaff.

alternately, and held since 1913 by the Rev. John Jones, of London University. There is a Congregational chapel at New Ion Hill. The farmhouse known as Court-y-Guer occupies the site of an ancient camp or stronghold and a large portion of the moat is still remaining. William Edward Carne Currie esq. of Itton Court and William Walker Hood esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is a clayey loam; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 2,656 acres; rateable value, £1,548; the population in 1911 was 135 in the civil parish and 222 in the ecclesiastical parish, which includes Kilgwrrwg.

Letter Box at Cobbler's Plain. Letters arrive from Chepstow. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Llanishen, about 3 miles distant.

The children of this parish attend the school at Devauden

WONASTOW is a parish on the old road from Raglan, and bounded on the south and west by the river Trothy, 2 miles west-south-west from Monmouth railway station, in the Monmouth division of the county, hundred of Skenfrith, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Monmouth, Monmouth and Skenfrith highway district of the Monmouth Rural District Council, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Monmouth and diocese of Llandaff. The church of St. Winwaloe is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 2 bells: the church was restored about 1860, at the sole expense of the patron, and has sittings for 150 persons. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1674; marriages, 1675. The living is a rectory, net income £67, with 8 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Col. Sir Thomas Edward Milborne-Swinerton-Pilkington bart. and held since 1912 by the Rev. George Matthew Lovibond M.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1850. Wonastow Court, supposed to have been built in the reign of King Henry VI. was at one time the residence of a branch of the Herbert family; the old chapel belonging to the mansion has been converted into domestic offices; it is now the property of Col.

Sir T. E. Milborne-Swinerton-Pilkington bart. of Chevet Hall, Wakefield, and the residence of Adela Lady Seale. Treowen Castle, now occupied by Mr. Benjamin Davies, farmer, has many interesting and ancient features, the most notable of which are the winding staircase and the oak fittings. The trustees of the late Edward Arnott esq. of The Garth, Monmouth (d. 1906), are lords of the manor. Col. Sir T. E. Milborne-Swinerton-Pilkington bart. of Chevet Park, Wakefield, and Major-Gen. Lord Treowen C.B., C.M.G. (Lord Lieut.), of Llanarth Court, are the principal landowners. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are beans, wheat, oats and barley and some land in pasture. The area is 1,606 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £1,296; the population in 1911 was 120.

Letters through Monmouth, which is the nearest money order & telegraph office. The nearest Letter Box is at Jingle Street, which is cleared week days only

School, formerly the old parsonage, but about 30 years ago converted to its present use, & enlarged in 1895, at the cost of the late Sir Lionel M. Pilkington bart. for about 40 children; the school is now (1919) closed
