This book, our dearest possession,
we respectfully dedicate to our friend,
Earl William Oglebay, a true and loyal West Virginian.

EARL WILLIAM OGLEBAY

Earl William Oglebay

EARL WILLIAM OGLEBAY, although a West Virginian by residence is an Ohioan by birth. His birth place was Bridgeport, Ohio, and he is the son of Crispin and Caroline Scott Oglebay. Mr. Crispin Oglebay, with his family moved to Wheeling, W. Va. at the close of the Civil war and became actively engaged in the iron, steel, and wholesale grocery business, with incidental interest in banking. He remained in Wheeling until his death in 1876. The maternal ancestry of Mr. Oglebay is of some special interest to people acquainted with the early history of Morgantown, in that his maternal grandfather, Moses Rhodes and grandmother, Nancy Martin were married at Morgantown in 1802. Moses Rhodes was descended from English Quakers who moved into what is now Hardy county, West Virginia, many years before the Revolutionary war; but, being Quakers, they have no war record. Moses Rhodes moved to Bridgeport, Ohio, in 1800, to which place he took his bride with her own slaves. Nancy Martin was the daughter of Jesse Martin and Hannah Scott Martin. Her grandfather, Charles Martin, commanded a fort in Revolutionary times near the present city of Morgantown, built as a defense for the whites against the Indians. Charles Martin was a Virginian coming into this section from Albemarle county about 1770. At his house in 1784 was organized the first Methodist Episcopal church in Virginia. He was sheriff of Monongalia county at the time of his death in 1790, a public position which, at that time signified the very high standing of its incumbent. David Scott, maternal grandfather of Nancy Martin, served as a Captain in Dunmore's war and rendered other public service in his time. In 1785 he was appointed one of the board of trustees to lay out the city of Morgantown.

Mr. Oglebay was given his elementary education at the school of H. Wilson Harding at Wheeling, and the Kenwood school, at New Brighton, Pa. His college education was received at Bethany, West Va., that historic, classical school of the Pan Handle "on the banks of the old Buffalo". He was married in 1881 to Miss Sally Paul Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Allen Howell, of Wheeling. Mr. Oglebay's earlier business career was as a member of the firm of C. Oglebay & Sons, wholesale grocers at Wheeling. He later became interested in the iron and steel business. For twenty five years he has been a member of the firm of Oglebay Norton and Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, engaged in the mining and sale of Lake Superior iron ore. He has been eminently successful as a business man and has amassed a handsome fortune. He is President of the National Bank of West Virginia at Wheeling, Director of the Wheeling Steel and Iron Company, and was a director of the Bellaire Steel Company, Wheeling, until it was sold to the United States Steel Corporation. Of peculiar interest to West Virginians is his country home near Wheeling, known as Waddington. Here he has about one thousand acres of the hill land of West Virginia which he has wonderfully improved and which he is using to demonstrate the possibilities of agriculture in West Virginia. On his farm he has a splendid summer home in which he and his estimable wife find great delight in dispensing a charming, elegant but delightfully simple hospitality.

Mr. Oglebay has shown his interest in agriculture not only in his own successful farming, but he has most generously furnished the means with which to build at Bethany College, his Alma Mater, a building for agriculture and domestic science, and he has besides purchased the old Alexander Campbell farm, equipped it with a splendid barn and other needed buildings, and turned it over to the college for use in agricultural instruction.

In 1910, Governor Glasscock appointed Mr. Oglebay a member of the State Board of Regents. He has been a most valuable member of the Board, bringing into it his splendid business ability and his contagious enthusiasm for agricultural education.

Mr. Oglebay is the friend of all things that are good and true, and the class of 1914 is proud to dedicate to him this number of the Monticola.

A decorative border with a repeating floral and leaf pattern surrounds the central text area.

To all who have at heart the desire for a better and greater West Virginia, greetings.

DR. THOMAS EDWARD HODGES

Dr. Thomas Edward Hodges, "our President", is one of West Virginia's dearly loved and honored men. To express the deep admiration which the student body has for him would require more space than we have here. With the welfare of every student at heart he is ever striving to do the right and to make our University a better and greater one.

DEAN TROTTER

Dean Frank Butler Trotter is one of the men in the faculty who, besides being a real scholar, makes Latin an interesting and enjoyable subject. All of his students admire his ability and unite in his praise. Best of all, his old students love and admire him more and more as they realize what his classes have meant to them.

DEAN HOGG

West Virginia has at the head of her College of Law a man who has few equals and no superiors in preparing students for practice. His character and disposition have endeared him not only to the members of the law school but to the whole student body. Knowing the law thoroughly, not only in theory but in practice, Dean Hogg is making ours one of the best law schools in the country.

DEAN JONES

Dean Clement Ross Jones is a man who has risen from the ranks of the student to his present high position. He has, so to speak, grown up with the College of Engineering and his personal accomplishment is characterized in the efficiency and high standing which the College of Engineering holds. Through his work West Virginia students are now recognized and in demand by the Westinghouse and other large engineering companies.

DEAN SANDERSON

Dean E. Dwight Sanderson, of the College of Agriculture, is a man of wonderful executive ability, and it is due to him that West Virginia University has advanced so rapidly as an Agricultural College. He is honored both by students and all interested in agriculture. Dean Sanderson also deserves recognition as the author of several books on entomology and agricultural subjects.

ARLEIGH LEE DARBY

It is with the idea of the right type of faculty man that the students think of Professor Darby. He is a man who gets the most out of his students and has the most satisfactory relations with them, and who besides thoroughly knowing his subject, is not overcome by the consciousness of the fact. He is always interested in student activities and while training the minds of his students at the same time wins their hearts.

The History of Thirteen

THE Class of '13 needs no introduction to the public, for the rumor of its greatness has spread abroad throughout the land. In ages to come parents will tell their children of its mighty and valiant deeds. But lest some of its noble work be credited elsewhere, as often results in the course of tradition, we shall here formally record an account of its achievements, as has been the custom of former classes. On a warm September day, nineteen hundred and nine, we assembled before the Registrar's Office in Science Hall and went through the bewildering task of registration. The University authorities recognized at once that a new force had entered the school, and immediately began to plan an additional wing to Woodburn Hall, so that we could be properly cared for.

Soon we began to hear it whispered about that there was a certain faction in the school known as Sophomores, who were very jealous of the attention being paid to us. They seemed to think that the reputation which they had gained in one little insignificant year was at stake. Their envy took the form of a challenge which was immediately accepted. Then one dark night General Wayne drew up his forces on the Circle and awaited the coming of the enemy. The conflict was short and the victory was easily ours. A few days after this an image of '12 was burned on the football field and nothing more was ever heard of the Sophomores.

The next year we thought we could afford to be content with the laurels previously won and at the same time save our energies for the great duties of Junior Year.

Never before did so many memorable things happen in one year. Who will ever forget the week of festivities occasioned by the inauguration of "Tommy" Hodges, when all Greeks returned to do honor to their Alma Mater! What more fitting climax could there have been than the defeat of our old rivals, W. & J.! And that other week when the Juniors are the hosts of the Seniors. Do you remember that May day at Oak Park—rowing, climbing, dancing and then a royal feast? On Friday night didn't the old Armory vibrate with real joy while the lads and lassies kept time to Kettering's until the night was far spent.

Now we are grave and reverend Seniors. Although we are interested chiefly in matters of the mind, yet you will find that we take part in the various student activities. In recognition of work well done the faculty has seen fit to confer upon a few of our members the highest honors within its power. And so it is with assurance of success that we go forth to assume the responsibilities of life.

HISTORIAN.

The Co-ed

JUNIORS

Junior History

WRITING history is an altogether different thing from making it, yet since we are making it every day, a record of such a class is needed. Way back in 1910 there came together a great crowd of people, now students. We were called Freshmen. We soon organized and elected our officers and the college people began to see what an active "bunch" we were. On the day of registration old students were aware that powerful spirits were at hand. The coming of great events is often heralded, so the deeds of the Class of '14 were heralded in 1910; for even the Sophs were anxious to care for us. They troubled themselves to post bulletins advertising for board for us and dared to suppose that we could live on milk. They soon found that we were able to care for ourselves, for woe to the poor Sophs in the class rush! They hardly survived with breath enough to tell the tale. This was our first great victory. Then in May on the day of the W. & J. game when the Sophs did their very best to mount their colors on the top of the pole on the baseball diamond, we placed our colors higher still. The Sophomore class was burned in effigy, not a one daring to prevent the disgrace. On the eve of the Soph boat ride, we did all we could to make things lively for our friends, for we were generally among the present at such events.

The spirit of our leaders brought us together again in our Sophomore year. Our president with a stern hand held us in check and guided our actions. The Freshmen were wise enough not even to want a class rush. We have always been a class that prepared our affairs well, and thought wisely before we acted. Such was the case with our Soph boat-ride. We were well prepared, yet deemed it wise not to go. That the Freshmen of 1911 ever became Sophs was due to our never-failing care. They came to fear even the numerals '14, that always held so prominent a place on the observatory.

In reading the list of Juniors we find a great class. When comes such another! Our class is small yet our record is phenomenal. From our first year we have been well represented in Varsity football, baseball, track team and gym team. Many important events have occurred since our Freshmen days. Our ideas are broader and we are outward bound, ready to do or die (our readers may determine which). And now the Monticola! This is our work. It tells our history even as you will find it here.

Morgantown, W. Va.

He thinks that he can play a drum
In truth, he can make noise;
But volume puts him on the bum,
He only quakes annoys.

ESTELLA ALICE FITCH

Huntington, W. Va.

Fanciful, fickle,
Ingenious, queer,
True, tender, lovable,
Cunning and dear,
Hale, hearty, humble, is Stella.

HAROLD BURL MARR

Mannington, W. Va.

There is a young fellow named Marr
Who at editing sure is a star;
He compiled this book
And the work that it took
Shows that he is away above par.

SAMUEL ALLEN KELLEY

Morgantown, W. Va.

Sam Kelley talks and talks and talks
About the weather, rain or sunny;
He talks and talks and talks and talks
And sticks us for our money
(I paid you, Sam).

CLIFFORD RAYMOND SNIDER

Spencer, W. Va.

Clifford is a very good student
Who studys French both night and day.

He always finds time to do his work,
And a little tennis to play.

LOUISE HUTCHESON KUMLER

Carmichaels, Pa.

Miss Kumler, who is named Loulse,
But better known as Wink;
With her a funny joke will please,
And she'll laugh 'till she is pink.

HOWARD CONDIT BROWN

Charleston, W. Va.

"Mordical" Brown came to this town
Some forty years ago;
A Junlor is he in B. S. C. E.
And he pitches on the 'Varsity, you know.

BROWN McDONALD

Sycamore, W. Va.

McDonald, you see, at a glance
Is our noble president.
And now since he has learned to dance.
He's e'er on pleasure bent.

CHARLES CLAYTON CASTO

Spencer, W. Va.

Captain Casto runs the bases
Catches flies and clouts the pill,
Writes to Gypsie three times daily
Learns to make a Doctor's bill.

LUCIE WOOD SHEETS

Wellsburg, W. Va.

Lucy Sheets is very sweet,
And pretty as a lilly;
How she does like those trips to Cheat
On rainy days, with Willie.

MELVILLE PETER BOYLES

Philippi, W. Va.

He puts the shot and throws the hammer
And leads with the discus too;
In football he's a wonder
For the punts he always under;
And with ten more just like him
We would surely have a hummer.

TRUMAN MORRIS MARTIN

Newell, W. Va.

Martin is a bashful lad,
But what of that I say;
For when in football togs he's clad,
You "orter" see him play.

MAURICE ROY DODD

Hedgesville, W. Va.

Here's a young man from Hedgesville
A student is he through and through.
He's interested in track and love and tennis,
Yet finds time to study too.

MARGARET FISHER

Sutton, W. Va.

Margaret F'sher, though very athletic,
Says tennis she really can't stand,
And to see her a-playing is very pa-
thetic,
But her running, they say, beats the band.

CHARLES WILSON TETER

Philippi, W. Va.

Chase Teter gives no one the blues,
He can crack them by dozens and twos,
He is awfully funny
And gets all the money
Of Juniors,—he sticks them for dues.

JOSEPH BARNETT Jr.

Clarksburg, W. Va.

Barnett has dreams and he believes
That students often have ideas:
But we would like to ask Barnett
"If you, a thought have had, as yet?"

HENRY DORSEY

Pearl, W. Va.

Here's the farmer Henry Dorsey,
Best thing out among the Ags;
Explains the art of cultivation,
Discovers cures for insect plagues.

CHRISTIAN SANDER Jr
Wheeling, W. Va.

Christian Sander is his name,
But he's better known as "Skeet";
As an engineer he will win fame,
For he is so very petit.

EARL G. LAWRENCE KALTENBACH
Wheeling, W. Va.

His name is E. G. L. Kaltenbach,
A civil engineer is he,
Hydraulics, he says is very dry,
He don't like the subject, you see.

EDMUND DANIELS MCGARRY

Shenandoah Jct. W. Va.

Some student is McGarry,
Greek is Pi (pie) for him;
And every little fairy,
As he rattles off verbatim
French and German, Yiddish, Latin,
Sighs a simple sigh for him.

ALBERT FELTON

Parsons, W. Va.

Here is a cousin to you all,
From England far away;
It's likely he'll ne'er go home at all,
If SHE here desires to stay.

BESS McVEY LITER
Point Pleasant, W. Va.

Bess Liter is a pretty girl,
Who loves society,
But when she is not in the whirl,
She studies hard, you'll see.

HARRY OLIVER HUMES
Mannington, W. Va.

Harry O. Humes,
An electrical scholar,
Surely does fume
When he soils his collar.

LAWRENCE LEE JEMISON

Middlebourne, W. Va.

A civil engineer
Working on a caisson,
You ask his name?
Lawrence L. Jemison.

FRED MANNING SMITH

Morgantown, W. Va.

Hail the Rhodes scholar,
A Latin shark, you bet,
For most of the nineties and ninety-
fives,
He always managed to get.

MAX WRIGHT

Ceredo, W. Va.

This happy fellow looks bright
He will argue all day and all night.
On the least provocation
For your emulation
He will make you believe Max Wright.

RICHARD ROEDER FELLER

Martinsburg, W. Va.

If you ask me who this picture
Looks like, loudly I would tell you,
I would echo 'mongst the heavens,
Bellow like a mighty thunder
Then I'd whisper like a lion
"Don't it look like Richard Feller?"

ARCHIE BOYD CARFER

Parkersburg, W. Va.

Now here's Boyd Carfer who makes things hum,
With notions new and clever;
In football he did twist his thumb,
But he'll go on forever.

STEPHEN PAUL HOSKINS

Weston, W. Va.

S. Paul Hoskins, nicknamed "Cy"
Who leads the rooters' cheers,
For he is such a noisy guy
When he starts—hold your ears!

JOSEPH EMORY WILKINSON

Hamlin, W. Va.

If there's any one lucky, it's Joe,
Who said to a friend, "Don't you know
My heart's all awhirl,
'Cause I do love that girl
Though to dances with others she'll go."

IRVIN ODA ASH

Middlebourne, W. Va.

Behold! Here's Mr. I. O. Ash,
Works hard? Oh, very, very!
Yet sometimes he becomes quite rash
When they're in the library.

STANLEY BRUCE WILSON

Moundsville, W. Va.

The above is a likeness of Buck
Who frequently runs amuck,
He never goes broke
Nor misses a joke
And always depends on his luck.

HARRY HORTEN GREENE

Bridgeport, W. Va.

A shrewd young man is Harry Green.
You've heard this tale before;
His name is Ben,—he keeps unseen
A fourth rate clothing store.

ARCH LOREN KELLER

Middlebourne, W. Va.

Arch is quiet and modest,
And never has much to say
But it always counts for most,
When Arch explains the way.

JOHN ROSS ADAMS

Morgantown, W. Va.

With long steps and lively gait
Goes Adams—first name Jack,
He slings the ball right o'er the plate
And prays that it won't come back.

ROBERT LYNN HOGG

Morgantown, W. Va.

So tall and stately is Robert Hogg,
In French he leads the class;
His car is always on the job,
But still I think he'll pass.

JOHN PAUL BOGGESS

Clarksburg, W. Va.

Pete Boggess looks like Sunny Jim.
Tho' very small in stature,
The honor often falls to him
As "batter" or as "catcher."

CHARLES ERIC BISHOP

Morgantown, W. Va.

E. Bishop, poetical swain,
At the station stood out in the rain,
When the engine passed by Eric sadly did cry
"I wish I could shoot that old train."

JETT LAMBERT SMITH

Morgantown, W. Va.

A third baseman he has come to be,
On our noble 'Varsity;
Another star who covers the bag,
And classifies among the A's.

ARTHUR LESLIE FRYE

Morgantown, W. Va.

There is a man named Leslie Frye
Who surely is a wonder
When with the band he passes by
His organ sounds like thunder.

EDWIN EARL HUPP

Parkersburg, W. Va.

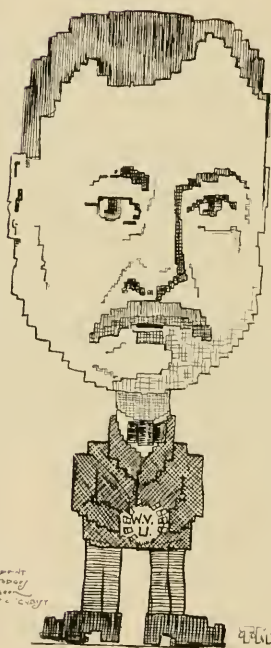

He is tall and slim and slender
The funniest among the Aps.
Who is generally known as "Sammy"
With his very long hair.

ROBERT MANN STRICKLER Jr.
Morgantown, W. Va.

Robert Strickler, the next on the list
Gives his letters a peculiar twist
He's a very bright boy
And causes much joy
When he speaks of a tho-thwickle-thwist.

SENIOR LAW

JUNIOR LAW

Sophomore History

EARLY in the Fall of 1911, we were first made aware of our rating as Freshmen by the posters placed over the Campus by the jealous Sophomores. This feeling of hostility was punctuated by skirmishes several times during the year, but there was no blood shed and there were none hurt except the feelings of the Sophs who had to recognize our superiority in every way. We were early organized by the president of the Junior class and elected Harry Hodges as our president. He proved to be a true class warrior and although the Sophs were so mean as to accidentally crack him on the nose, he was none the less valiant. The fact that our class came into being with the inauguration of the new President of the University, was added glory. We still insist that we have "some class", and since we came with "Tommy" we are going to stick with him to the finish.

The present school year of 1912-13 opened with a series of attempts on our part to keep the Observatory properly adorned with letters and figures. This was not difficult as the Freshmen seldom collected in a bunch or became bold. Aided by John Dille and "Stew" Race we showed our kind feelings toward the Freshies by giving them a series of motor rides to Cheat or in that direction and letting them get back the best they could. Later, in co-operation with the Seniors, we induced them to wear the regulation cap with the green button.

Early in the year our posters brought the new class to a realization that it was "an assemblage of infinitesimal beings" and instructed '16 as to it's conduct toward the upper class-men. We pass over the class rush hastily—we lost!

Under the new organization Max Barber was chosen president; Roy Miller, vice-president; Margaret Morris, secretary and Polly Royce, treasurer.

We had the satisfaction and honor of furnishing the majority of men on the football squad and have no small representation in baseball and other school activities. That we are modestly proud of our class, then, is only natural. Now at the end of the year we look back over the past and regret that it is gone, and are now planning for our busy Junior year.

HISTORIAN.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Freshman Class History

Should you ask me, whence these Freshmen,
Whence these green and awkward Freshmen;
Some with voice and face of childhood,
Some with a more lofty bearing;
But in all a spirit showing,
To go forth the world to conquer,
With the motto, "Do or Die".

I should answer, I should tell you,
"From the hills of West Virginia;
From the country and the city,
From the land of rich and plenty,
Come they to these College halls."

In the very first class meeting,
'Mid the shouts and cries of Sophomores,
Who were waiting at the door:—
They did organize and form there,
A class unsurpassed in numbers,
By the classes gone before.
First as President chose they wisely,
Knapp, the big, and broad and powerful;
'Gainst the wily Sophs to lead them.
And their liege and king to be,
Then as secretary they elected,
From the fair and charming maidens,
To keep record of their deeds;
Ethel Hoft, they chose, the small one,
But the bright one and the best one,
To be crowned the queen of honor,
Of the class of ten and six.
And as courtiers grand and noble,
Chose they others of their men;
Who in grace and able prowess,

Vied with Arthur's knights of old.

Ye who love the song of victory,
Love to hear the victors sing it,
With their pride and joy in strength,
Listen to this class rush story,
To this song of Freshman glory,
As they sing it o'er and o'er

On the Circle of the campus,
'Neath the Harvest Moon of Autumn!
Met the warriors one another,
Met the Freshmen and the Sophomores
And they stood there on the greensward,
Wildly glaring at each other;
In their faces stern defiance,
In their eyes the thirst for honor,
Honor for their class and classmates
Who were all about assembled.

And they fought, and each side bravely
Tried the other to out-rival.
But at last the Sophs grown feeble,
Could not bear the awful plunging,
And the pushing, and the pulling,
Of the Freshmen, of the mighty,
They retreated, baffled, beaten,
By the boys now flushed with victory
By the class of ten and six

Now they bid farewell till later,
Till they older grow and wiser;
Till as Sophomores or as Juniors,
Or as Seniors can salute you.
Then they'll come, and then you'll hear them
Tell you of their further conquests;
Of their trials and their hardships
And the victories they have won

—DAISY ARNETT.

The Phil Hellenic Club

WHEN we consider that the Phil Hellenic Club has only recently celebrated its first anniversary, we naturally think that its history must, of necessity, be brief. Yet as "we live in deeds, not years", so the club has lived, and, in view of this fact, its history might well occupy several pages instead of but one. On March 1, 1912, the Phil Hellenic Club was organized with a membership of five. The purpose of the organization was to further the interest in Greek. The club met monthly at the home of Dr. Bishop where interesting programs were rendered, and business dispatched in an orderly systematic way. At these meetings, too, Mrs. Bishop was always a most charming hostess. No doubt it was partly due to her influence that the membership so soon increased to fifteen. At the last of the term, club pins, formed by the inter-linking of the two letters "Mu and Alpha" were ordered, and plans were made to continue the work the following year.

When the club met in September, 1912, there was a noticeable change in its membership, a greater number of new Greek students were present to work even more enthusiastically than their predecessors had worked.

Early in the year it was decided to celebrate the first anniversary by presenting to the University a piece of Greek art for the class room. The club has no dues nor were assessments made, but voluntary contributions were received. With the aid of Professor Leonard, the club was able to secure the bust of the goddess, Hera Ludovisi, a beautiful piece of art.

On the evening of April 23, the club, now thirty in number, including seven honorary members, met in the class room to join with seventy of their friends in celebration of the first anniversary of the club. The history of the club was read, after which the presentation of the bust was appropriately made by Dr. Bishop. At the conclusion of Dr. Bishop's address, the draperies of gold and ivory, which veiled the statue were drawn aside by two young women of the club, and there, resting upon an ionic column was revealed the bust of the beautiful Goddess, Hera Ludovisi. In behalf of the University, Dr. Hodges made a response of acceptance in which he not only expressed gratitude for the gift, but also commended the spirit in which it was given. Under the leadership of Miss Horne, a string quartette furnished music which added much to the enjoyment of the evening. At the close of the program, refreshments were served, and favors, in club colors, were distributed.

While this celebration was greatly enjoyed, and was the climax of the years work, it is but the beginning of the activity of the club. With such a leader as Dr. Bishop, we cannot but be enthusiastic in our work, and from him we receive an inspiration for greater things. Under his direction, Greek has become one of the most pleasant and profitable studies in the University, and because of him the Phil Hellenic Club will be an important factor in the future life of our school.

T

THE season began with a catastrophe. The unprecedented defeat by West Virginia Wesleyan added a stimulus which was noticeable in the five subsequent victories. Following this winning streak came the decisive defeat at V. P. I. and our easy victory over Waynesburg. The season closed at Fairmont on Thanksgiving day when West Virginia was defeated by Dennison. Although handicapped by a late start, statistics show that in the majority of games West Virginia easily outplayed her opponents. In the nine games played, a total of 131 points was scored by the Old Gold and Blue while her rivals secured but 106. The three defeats by Wesleyan, V. P. I. and Dennison are outweighed by the six victories over Westminster, Geneva, Ohio, Allegheny, Marietta, and Waynesburg. West Virginia failed to cross the line in but one game,—the V. P. I. defeat—while in four games no scores were made until the regulars had been replaced by the scrubs. Luck constantly broke against us, but should the element of chance be left out altogether, the showing of West Virginia compares favorably with any of her opponents.

Wesleyan was coming to defeat West Virginia. So often had this news been sent ahead, that supporters of the Old Gold and Blue smiled and predicted a 20 to 0 score. But one consideration had been overlooked. Wesleyan had been training for several weeks while West Virginia had been on the field scarcely a week. Also, West Virginia was unable to break up forward passes which, in the long run, caused her defeat. No glory should be detracted from Wesleyan, yet the score of 19 to 14 shows that the crippled West Virginians were in the game. Neale, for Wesleyan, Pepper, Bachman, and Wilkinson, for West Virginia, starred.

The Wesleyan game showed clearly the need of strenuous practice. For the next week Coach Edmunds so trained his men in offensive and defensive style of play that by the Westminister game the squad was in good working order. The score of 7 to 0 does not justify the showing of West Virginia against Westminister. Geneva College came next. Both teams were strong on offensive play but weak on the defense. Ohio University was a tough proposition. A drizzling rain caused the old style of play to be revived and punts, line plunges, and end runs contributed the larger gains to each eleven. Our fourth successive victory which avenged the defeat of last year was over Allegheny College. Pepper, West Virginia's giant tackle, won the game with a safety after each team had scored a touchdown. The defeat of Marietta at Parkersburg completed the string of victories. Davis, Bachman, Boyles and Pepper piled up the score for West Virginia.

After we had played V. P. I. to a standstill for the first half, they came back stronger than ever and pushed West Virginia off the field. Our revenge came the following week when we piled up a score of 48 to 3 against Waynesburg. West Virginia ceased scoring after the first quarter and gave the scrubs a chance. It was not a good practice game.

The season closed at Fairmont Thanksgiving day when several thousand rooters witnessed the defeat of West Virginia by Dennison. A crippled team probably increased Dennison's score. Our only touchdown came late in the game when Carden completed a forward pass and crossed the line.

One cannot condemn West Virginia on account of the Wesleyan and V. P. I. games. To be just, the entire season must be considered and to take into full consideration the work of the team during the fall of 1912, it is impossible to arrive at any conclusion other than that the season was a successful one. Harrison, Carden, Musgrove, Martin, Pepper, Boyles, Davis, and Seckman held the line for West Virginia while Race, Wilkinson, Adams, Stewart, Lively and Bachman, formed the backfield. The offensive work of Harrison, Carden, Bachman, Race and Stewart featured while Boyles, Pepper, Davis and Bachmann formed the strong defensive nucleus of the team.

The season of 1912 closed with a bright outlook for next year. Two of last year's squad, Bachman and Lively, will be missing from the 1913 team but there is no doubt that Captain Boyles will command as large and as husky a squad in 1913 as that which so successfully finished the past season under the leadership of Captain Bachmann.

Baseball Review

THE season of 1912 opened with Hayes, Dille, and Hanford added to the hard-hitting squad of the year previous. Behind the bat Hayes and Boggess shared equal honors while on the firing line Stratton, Adams, Blair, and Hanford worked in turns. Bachmann, the big guardian of first base, fielded his position in major league style and was an important factor in contributing to the large scores made throughout the season. Riddle and Kellar fought it out for the keystone sack. Both were off color at times but often made their errors good by timely hits. Dille allowed few to pass third. His hitting and base running featured in many games. At short "Bill" Lively knocked down hits and covered all the territory between Dille and Riddle in a manner not far from sensational. With Bachmann, Riddle, Dille and Lively in the infield, it was extremely difficult for an opposing batsman to drive a grounder through for a hit.

Casto, McMinn, Kellar, and Phillips formed the outfield. In left, Casto played the entire season without an error and was closely followed by McMinn in center who allowed only a couple of fly balls to get lost in the sun. In right Kellar worked to a good advantage but the territory was new to him and this fact probably accounts for a few misplays.

Coach Hickman and his friend, Jake, are in a great measure responsible for the success that West Virginia has experienced during the early season of 1913. Hickman has become a great favorite with the fans besides building up a fast fielding and hard hitting aggregation which has been hard to beat. Jake is the bear mascot whom Hickman, Barron and Bachmann purchased in Virginia during the Eastern trip.

Yet nothing should be detracted from the work of the men whom Hickman has so admirably coached. Thomas and Harrison were added to the receiving line of the year previous,—Boggess and Hayes. Except for Adams, the pitching staff was entirely new. "Corn-Pone" Hagan and "Lefty" Barron formed the backbone of the staff and were ably supported by Sullivan, Brown, Sinsel, and Adams. Bachmann continued to cover the initial sack and clout the ball in his usual manner. The weak spot at second was filled by Joe Wilkinson. Dille played a great game at third until a broken ankle put him out of the game for the remainder of the season. Smith came in from center and finished the year at third. Lively played even better ball than he did in 1912. Casto in left, fell off a little in hitting but made up for this in fielding and base running. Trail and Leatherwood fought it out for center with honors about even. "Bobby" Thomas, in right, was of great help to the team especially in the hitting department.

The team of 1913 was, in every department of the game, superior to that of 1912. As Bachmann alone will be lost to the team of next year, it is highly probable that the nine of 1914 will make records for West Virginia on the diamond.

Hereafter

When our college days are over,
When tomorrow kills today,
What will be the recollections
That will never pass away?
It won't be our Greek and Latin,
Mathematics, bot., or chem.,
That will bring the fondest memories
Of the old school once again.

It won't be the stern professor
Killing joy and mocking fun;
But our memories will be turning
To the foolish things we've done.
To the pranks we've played in college
To the funny things we've said.
You and I will oft remember
When the town was "painted red."

And the friends we've left behind us,
Chums and sweethearts of the past,
Quickly vanish in the future
And are memories at last.
When our college days are over,
When tomorrow kills today,
These will be the recollections
That will never pass away.

The Engagement Ring

JOHN WALTON was telling Rose goodbye for the twenty eighth time that morning when Rose said, "Oh John, I almost forgot something! I want you to leave my diamond ring at the jewelers to have the prongs tested—our engagement ring I mean. Wait just a minute, dearie."

"All right, my girl, but hurry up or I'll be late," answered John as Rose went into his study. She slipped the ring into one of John's stamped envelopes, saying to herself as she sealed it, "I'll write 'Oscamp, Jeweler', on here so that he can't forget."

Out in the hall again Rose tucked the envelope away in one of John's inside pockets. "Now be sure to bring it back this evening if it doesn't need to be strengthened", she said, "for my wedding ring looks so lonesome without its companion."

They walked together to the edge of the porch. Rose broke a rosebud from the cluster at the girdle of her pink morning gown, stuck it through his buttonhole, saying, "That's to remind you of me."

"Indeed it will", said John, "for you are like the rose, my girl, pink, sweet, and refreshing. Now, I am going sure enough. Goodbye!"

John hastened down the street making up for the last few happy minutes spent with his bride. He barely had time to swing himself onto his regular car as it rumbled around the corner, two squares from their suburban home. He got off the car, still thinking of Rose, and was walking toward the court house when he almost ran into his old friend, Preston Chase.

"Why hello there Chase! What on earth brings you to our city?" said John as they pumped hands.

"Oh, business. How are you old man? I was going to look you up today. And so you are married! Oh you Benedict! And how goes married life, old fellow?"

"Oh fine! I say Chase you ought to be married. Its—"

"Excuse me!"

"But really Rose is the dearest girl in the world."

"I have no doubt. They all are, you know, at first."

"You must take dinner with us this evening, Chase, I want you to meet my wife, and, by George, you're bound to agree that she is the dearest girl in the world."

"Oh, you think you will get me into the notion of marrying by showing me an example of happy married life. Want me to get a license today so that you can honor me by putting 'John T. Walton, Deputy Sheriff' on it, do you? Say, how much do you get for talking marriage to prospective bachelors? Talk on, I'm willing to be coaxed when the right girl shows up. I'm at the Gibson House. I shall be delighted to meet the 'dearest girl in the world.'"

"Well, I must be traveling, or the sheriff will give me my walking papers for strolling in at noon instead of nine o'clock. So long, till fifty-three!"

Thus they parted and John made another mad dash toward the court house. "Dear me, what was it Rose told me to do?" he asked himself. "Match some ribbon? A yard of lace? A book?" Just then a man ahead of him stopped to strike a match on the mail box at the corner. "Oh yes, that's it, the letter!" And he slipped the envelop containing the diamond ring into the box. "I'll tell you" he said to himself, "I have precious little use for a man that can't remember to do anything that his wife wants him to do. But all men's wives are not like Rose, bless her heart, she's the dearest girl in the world."

At last he reached his office, twenty minutes late. He telephoned to Rose and told her that he was going to bring home a friend to dinner. Nothing was said then about the ring. In fact, Preston Chase had gone home late that night, after having spent the evening with the young people, before Rose thought about her diamond.

"I didn't have a chance to ask you about the little errand at the jewelers, John," she said. "Did the ring need strengthening?"

"What ring?" asked John slightly puzzled.

"Why John, my engagement ring of course. You took it to the jeweler didn't you?"

"No, I forgot about it." John became suddenly absorbed in the evening paper.

"Well, never mind, dear, here, put it on my finger and I'll wear it a while longer before you get it fixed. I don't believe it is worn so thin after all." Rose sat upon the arm of John's chair and held out a pink tipped finger for the ring.

"I haven't it with me," said he, reading vigorously.

"Why John you did not leave it at your office?"

"Yes! NO!" John threw aside the paper and got up. "What in the duce did you put the thing in an envelop for? That was a foolish thing to do! Why didn't you give me the ring so that I could see what I was doing?"

"Why what on earth John! Are you ill?"

"Ill the dickens! You ought to have known that I'd mail it."

"Mail it!"

"Yes, mail it."

John strode out of the room leaving Rose staring after him. In his study he telephoned to the postoffice, but the clerks knew nothing about the ring and told him that he would have to see the postmaster. Coming back he found Rose crying. She said, "I think you are mighty careless to do that way. It's awful to lose one's engagement ring. Now we shall quarrel and fuss all the time. You used to do everything that I asked and now you don't remember anything. I guess you don't love me any more."

John had never seen Rose crying, and as for scolding, he did not know that she possessed that capacity. He simply did not know how to meet the situation. He declared that he loved her more than ever if that were possible and promised her another diamond ring as big as her fist if she would forgive him and be patient until he could find the lost one. But she refused to be comforted and said, "Another diamond will not do a bit of good and I shall never be happy until I get my engagement ring back."

The next morning John went to the postoffice and called for the postmaster general. Together they went to the sorters, the stampers, and the carriers and inquired for the envelope, but in vain.

Entirely dejected the courteous, young deputy sheriff entered his office and sat down at his desk.

"Anything wrong? Feeling bad?" asked the sheriff, noticing John's unaccustomed silence.

"No, I guess not, just a little headache."

"By the way, John, Oscamp, the jeweler, called you up just before you came in. He wants you to come around as quickly as you can. Perhaps you had better go now. Maybe the walk will do you good."

John went wonderingly out of the office and down the street. At the jewelry store he was greeted by Mr. Oscamp, who said as he slapped John's shoulder, "Why good morning John! Diamonds must be plentiful and cheap where you come from. Thank you for the beauty you sent me—it came by mail. It is really rather careless to send them in stamped, business envelopes, but I got it and again I thank you. Here is a little package for you."

John stared in amazement and took the envelope containing something solid in one corner. He took out the ring—Rose's ring. "But," he exclaimed, "how did you happen to get it?"

"Oh that's easy! See there's my name and profession. But you? Does Mrs. Johnnie know about this? You had better be careful, man, a woman would almost prefer to lose her hand than her engagement ring. How did it happen?"

"Well, Rose wanted me to have you test the prongs and put it in the envelope and put it in my pocket. I got my dates mixed and mailed it and here it is. I agree with you that women are strong on the engagement ring question. Rose was resolved to be unhappy all the rest of her life unless the ring came back."

At his office again, John went, wreathed in smiles, to the telephone, "Hello, 546-R, and hurry!" he said. "Hello Rose! I have found it and have it right here in my pocket. You never could guess. At Oscamps. You know you had his name written on the outside of the envelope. Well, it went through the mail and Oscamp got it this morning. My address was in the corner and the rest was easy. Now we shall never quarrel again since we have the ring back, shall we, dear? Here come two people who look as if they want to get a marriage license, so I'll have to get busy. Goodbye." Then as he hung up the receiver, "God bless 'em and keep them from losing their engagement ring, don't you say so, sheriff?"

A Misplaced Laugh

WHEN Lydia Tate decided to become a speaker on woman's rights, only one thing troubled her. This thing was her inability to make people laugh. Try as she would, the best that her most humorous story could do was to bring a slightly amused look to the faces of her audience. So, when Miss Tate was invited to deliver a lecture before the Political Equality Club of Earlyville, she decided to enlist the services of Uncle Williamson. Now when Uncle Williamson laughed, he never laughed alone. People could not resist his mellow peals; they gave up entirely and laughed until the tears ran down their cheeks. Miss Tate's plan was to place Uncle Williamson in a front seat and glance sharply at him when she came to a place in her lecture that she considered humorous. He was to commence to laugh and that, in Miss Tate's opinion would be enough. As it happened it was considerably too much.

As Miss Tate rose to deliver her lecture, she felt perfectly self-composed. She had taken her thoughts from Miss Parkhurst, and as for her metaphors with which her thoughts were embellished, she said afterwards that she had heard them all before and only placed them in different surroundings. It was the surroundings that caused the trouble.

The first part of the speech may be passed over without comment. Uncle Williamson at last fell asleep at his post and all Miss Tate's glances could not arouse him. A little disturbed by his lack of attention Miss Tate raised her voice.

"Sisters," she said, "I have brought you a great message, a message of freedom. Lie no longer in slumber. Arise! Wake! Shake off your chains. Women are slaves, household drudges. How long, suffering sisters, shall it be thus? Man is a lazy, good-for-nothing, proud, arrogant, insolent, imprudent imbecile, the enemy of advancement, the foe of progress. The Bible itself says, 'All men are liars'. Ah!" continued she, gesturing dramatically, "methinks I see the morning star of equality reddening in the East. It lights the earth from Greenland's icy mountains to Ceylon's spicy isle. O sisters, arise like the star. Take the reins of government in one hand and with the other on the rudder of the Ship of State, march down the road of progress on your own wings, until you reach the harbor of equal rights."

With the burst of oratory, Miss Tate unfortunately allowed her glance to rest on Uncle Williamson. Her loud tones had aroused him, and thinking it was time for his part of the performance, he began to laugh merrily, loudly, joyously. The audience, which had been scarcely able to restrain its merriment as it pictured the amazing journey it had just been urged to take, joined him unrestrainedly. The club members tried for a moment to preserve their gravity, but in vain. All efforts of Miss Tate to resume her speech were futile.

Miss Tate was persuaded with some difficulty not to take the veil and compromised on settlement work in which her oratory was more appreciated, while Uncle Williamson soon became known as the most solemn man in Earlyville.

Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. Reception

On Saturday night, September the twentieth, nineteen hundred and twelve, the Young Women's and Young Men's Christian Association united in giving a reception to the students in the University. In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Hodges, Dean and Mrs. Sanderson, Miss Susan Maxwell Moore, Miss Rachel Colwell, Professor Wells, Professor and Mrs. Waggoner, Mr. Carl G. Bachmann, Miss Louise Kumler, Miss Anna Sturgiss and Mr. J. A. MacRae. Practically the whole student body was present.

Chi Omega Matinee Dance

The annual matinee dance of Theta Chapter of the Chi Omega Sorority was given at Court Hall on the afternoon of October fifth, celebrating the Fall Eleusinia of the Fraternity. About one hundred guests were received by Miss Edith Coombs, Mrs. Stanley Rhey Cox, Mrs. John Grumbein, Miss June Houston, Miss Estella Fitch and Miss Bess Liter. Cardinal and straw were the predominating colors used in the decorating and one of the special dances was the "Chi Omega Special" danced to the Fraternity's "Loyalty Song". Refreshing ices were served during the intermission. The patronesses were Mrs. John Harrington Cox, Mrs. James Morton Callahan, Mrs. C. R. Houston, Mrs. Theodore Warrick and Mrs. D. B. Purinton.

College Women's Banquet

On Saturday night, November the second, the young women of the University gave, in the Armory, the first annual College Women's Banquet. It was attended by practically all the women in the University, the wives of faculty members and many friends in and out of town. A delightful five course dinner, prepared by the students of the Domestic Science department, was served to the two hundred present. Between the courses the high spirit and loyal friendship of both students and guests gave utterance to clever toasts and responses. The Cadet Band gladly furnished music for the occasion.

Theta Nu Epsilon Dance

One of the most delightful dances of the year was the annual dance given at Court Hall by Theta Theta Chapter of the Theta Nu Epsilon Fraternity. The hall was attractively decorated in green and black, the colors of the Fraternity. In one corner of the hall and amid green and black drapery was a skeleton with a green and a red eye. He was quietly smoking a cigarette, and before him on the table were some books. This, it is said, is the only T. N. E. that ever killed himself studying. Wright's Saxophone Trio of Columbus furnished the music. During the intermission a dainty three course lunch was served at the Hotel Madeira. The committee in charge were S. B. Wilson, L. W. Ryan and Glen F. Williams. Mrs. C. Edmund Neil, Mrs. Harry Zevely, Mrs. Stanley Rhey Cox, Mrs. Gilbert Miller and Mrs. John N. Simpson were patronesses.

Fraternity Receptions

Four of the fraternities, Sigma Chi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Delta Tau Delta and Phi Kappa Psi gave delightful informal receptions on the afternoon of February the third. The houses were thronged with guests from two until five, and there was a pleasant mingling of the people of the town, University and the many visitors who were in Morgantown for the Military Ball. Members of the fraternities exchanged visits and many of the guests "took in" the entire series. There were between four and five hundred people entertained at the different houses during the afternoon.

Military Ball

The annual Military Ball, which was held in the Armory, Monday evening, February the third, was one of the most brilliant in the history of the University. Nearly three hundred guests among whom were prominent social leaders of many of West Virginia's principal cities, enjoyed the hospitality of the Cadet Corps from eight-thirty until an early hour next morning.

Lieutenant Archer was assisted in receiving by the committee in charge and their ladies, members of the Cadet Corps and by the patronesses of the Ball: Mesdames F. B. Trotter, S. M. Whiteside, G. B. Miller, J. B. Grumbein, R. R. Chrisman, J. B. Krak, C. E. Hogg, H. J. Zevely, C. E. Neil, E. W. McNeill and C. W. Waggoner.

After the reception, the dance opened with an unusually beautiful grand march led by Captain James Allen and Miss Mildred Dunning. The programme consisted of twenty-seven regular dances four extras and three "moonlight specials." The music was furnished by Kettering's Orchestra of Greensburg. At midnight an elaborate supper was served.

The decorations were very unusual and particularly beautiful. Streamers of old gold and blue were draped most effectively on each side of the center of the Armory. The side walls were decorated with pennants and green foliage through which hundreds of electric lights shone. Directly behind a large American flag, just opposite the gallery, was a crescent moon which afforded a pleasing effect for the moon-lights.

The Committee on Arrangements were Captains Neal Heflin, James Allen, Louis Burrell, Charles Robinson and John York, Lieutenant Jose Kirk, Sergeant Major Glenn Williams, Drum Major Elvin Hamilton, and Sergeant Arthur Frye.

o o o o o

Phi Kappa Sigma Dance

The Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity entertained their many friends at Court Hall on the afternoon of February fourth, with a very pretty dance. The guests were received by Mrs. R. R. Chrisman, Mrs. S. M. Whiteside, Mrs. Sam Chadwick and Miss Mary Hogg. The billiard tables and bowling alleys were reserved for the guests who did not care to dance. Punch was served during the afternoon.

o o o o o

Kappa Kappa Gamma Dance

One of the most brilliant events of the season was the Valentine dance given Friday evening by the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. From eight-thirty until nine o'clock about one hundred and fifty guests, including a number of out of town Kappas and friends were received by the active chapter and alumnae, after which the dancing began.

The hall was decorated with hearts and cupids. Kettering's Orchestra from Greensburg furnished the music. At the close of the dance the guests were invited to Communtzis' where a dainty lunch was served.

The patronesses were Mrs. C. Edmund Neil, Miss Susan Maxwell Moore, Mrs. Madison Stathers, Mrs. O. P. Chitwood, Mrs. Noel P. Weaver, Mrs. Haven Babb, Mrs. E. F. Church and Mrs. James Moreland.

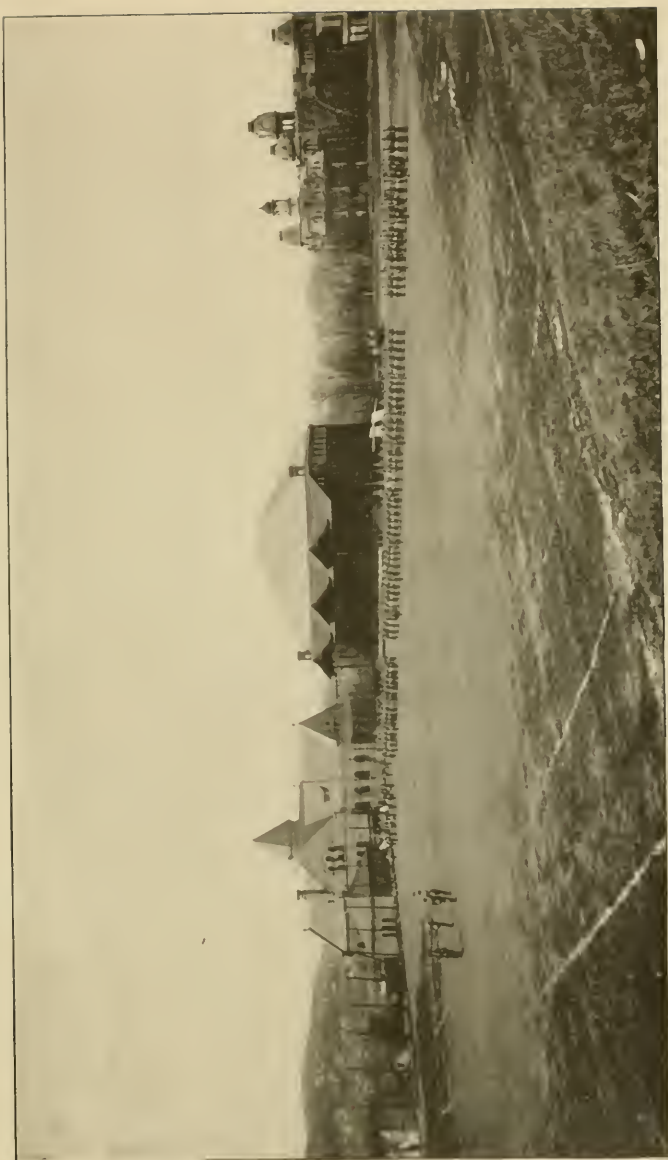

Caddell

VERY member of the cadet corps, I am sure, could be arrested for expressing his honest opinion of Caddell. Besides being a place where the corps goes every spring to test their marksmanship and to get a taste, and I might add, a sufficiency of camp life, Caddell is the hottest place this side of the river Styx. Perhaps the unfortunate cadets could get accustomed to the heat were it not for the fact that the fickle atmosphere of Caddell insists upon reaching zero during the wee small hours of every night. Nor is the weather the only exceptionable feature of camp life there. The meals are fierce. It is beans for breakfast, beans for dinner, beans for supper time. Once in a long while some fortunate one would find a piece of pork in his beans; no less envied was he than the man who might find a bean in his soup for which discovery there was a standing reward. It was criminal to work us on the woodpile, on the firing line, in the pit, and compel odd jobs by the score only to reward us with "Thank you sir, here's a bean."

But if we forget the weather and the beans, Caddell is Heaven. At ten o'clock after we had counted up our winnings or losings, how nice it was to crawl into bed, clothes and all, knowing that there was nothing to do until five the next morning, or shuddering lest someone might insist upon singing until the king would haul out his pajama-uniformed cohorts for a five mile run. Oh, it was H— all right, all right.

Now that our cadet days are over and you couldn't get us past Oak Park on the M. & K. to win a bet, we call it a grand experience. It's fun to think of how John L. collected the guns from the sentinels, of the penny ante games, of how we perspired, cussed the government from street cleaners up, perspired some more, "rolled four" and then gave up hope of ever again reaching civilization. But the best of all is to know that never again will we hear the mockery of the bugle call "You son-of-a-gun, you'll live on beans, you're in the army now."

Susan's Band

These wonderfully thrilling stories
Of what happened at Woman's Hall,
Were told to me as a secret
By a mouse which lived in the wall.

He saw girls of every kind and manner,
The hasty and the prudent,
The flirt and the society belle,
But he rarely found a student.

There's the Kappa Kappa Gamma,
Chi Omega, Alpha Xi,
And some don't hang with any frat,
But they're all one family.

In the dark brown eyes of Bess Liter
Love-light is wont to glow,
Last year it shone for Jack alone,
And now this year, for Joe.

Little Grace Harm, the lawyer
Lays down law so one would think,
Her legal terms and technicals
Would drive Blackstone to drink.

When Eva Savage hears "sc'vads right,"
She turns and says "How do you do,"
And why the soldiers stopped and grinned
Cap Bernstein vows he never knew.

O this talking, talking, talking
Will it never never cease,
Please, "Wink" Kumler, won't you give us
Just at least one minutes' peace.

Flora Furbee's always silent,
In fact, to speak, she is quite loath,
But Ida Smith most easily
Can talk enough for both.

With tragic tones and gestures,
Her audience the looking-glass,
"Slim" Morris tries to let you know
She's of the dramatic class.

Myra Neflin is most attractive,
Of hearts she holds a score,
And if, perchance, you'd meet her
She'd have just one beau more.

Behold the walking encyclopedia
Of all varieties of knowledge
By her mastery of Greek and Ethics
Vaun McMinn astounds the college.

And next to appear is Polly Royce
Pleasant and full of mirth,
But she really thinks that Cleveland
Is the only place on earth.

When Bessie Bell, the student,
Started to leave town one day,
Eric swore he'd like to shoot the train
That carried her away.

While on the organ Lucy Sheets
Plays hymns from morn 'till night,
Julia Sine, to our dismay,
Sings each with accents light.

Small Marie Smart personifies
The goddess of the dance,
And if you waltz or even two-step
To be her friend you'll have a chance.

O horrors, can this be murder
Or a party at a frat.
No, these shrieks come not from either,
Mary Marshall sees a cat.

Mousie paused; I turned to beg him
Yet more tales to me unfold,
Alas, he, too, had seen that cat,
Had fled and left the rest untold.

JOKES

"Have more than thou showest,
Speak less than thou knowest
Lend less than thou owest,
Learn more than thou trowest,
Set less than thou throwest."

Prof. Trotter in making speech to Greek Club—"I drove twenty miles into the country today to buy a horse, had I known that there would be so many Greek students here tonight I would not have had to have gone so far."

A student having his hair cut, was asked by the garrulous operator, "how he would have it done?" "In silence, if possible," replied the student.

"Well", said a Moot Court disputant, "don't you think that I bested my opponent?" "Oh yes", replied a listener, "you did—and if ever I should happen to fight with the Philistines, I'll borrow your jaw-bone."

Davis: "I wish I were as good in my profession as Dr. Reese is in his."

Coombs, after a moments pause: "Davis you would have to be a mighty fine butcher."

The difference between a blunder and a mistake is, when a man puts down a bad umbrella and takes a good one he makes a mistake; but when he puts down a good one and takes up a bad one he makes a blunder.

"I can't say that I admire your "style of acting" said a boarding-lady to one of the members of the Dramatic Club, when he changed his boarding house without settling up.

Quotation from "Buck" Wilson's "Memory Book": "Pan-Hellenic dance March 31. Made a big hit."

Sammy Brown: "Mr. Fry where is asbestos found?"

Fry: "It isn't found it grows on trees."

Miss Harm: "Prof. Trotter did I understand you to say——?"

Prof. Trotter: "I do not know what you understood me to say."

Miss Harm: "Did I hear you say that a child under seven could not be hung?"

Prof. Trotter: "NO Mam, you heard me say that a child under seven could not be hanged."

The Zoology department in its research recently found a "Carpenter cat" in one of the Fraternity houses. See editor of this page.

Bess Liter entering Drug Store: "Have you any talcum powder?"

Clerk: "Yes. Do you want 'Mennen's'?"

Bess: "NO, women's."

Clerk: "Do you want it scented?"

Bess: "NO, I'll take it with me."

The best of all worlds is that we live in,

To lend, to spend, to invite, to get in,

But to borrow or beg, or to get a man's own,

'Tis the very worst world that was ever known.

Prof. Armstrong, after reprimanding class for ignorance of Biblical stories: "Mr. Race, what do you know about John the Baptist's head?"

"Stew," scratching his head: "Just a moment professor, I know it."

Prof. A.: "Yes you knew he had a head, didn't you?"

* * * * *

Sammy Brown after explaining a geological term to Prep. Williams for the third time: "Mr. Williams, if I were a betting man I would wager that in a month from now you won't remember a thing I have just told you."

Prep. writing in his note-book: "I will if I don't forget my note-book."

* * * * *

Said a student to a barber one day

To make a display of his wit,

"My man did you e'er shave a monkey I pray?

For you seem for naught else to be fit,"

"I hever did yet," said the boy, "I confess,

Shave a monkey, indeed, no not I;

It is out of my line; but sir ne'ertheless,

If you please to sit down I will try."

Prep. Williams after four hours of History cramming: "Say York did you know that there was only one horse in Virginia in 1624?"

Trotter to Posten: "Say Posty couldn't you lend me five?"

Posty: "Get away from here I am working this side of the street."

When a young man complains that a girl has no heart, it is a pretty certain sign that she at least has his.

"A"—— spent a week end in Pittsburgh and a strange rumor has reached the ears of his friends. It was reported that "A" fell in a watering trough in one of the public squares; to an officer, who noticing his predicament had grabbed him by the collar: "He, blub, that's all right Cap, I can swim, rescue the women and children."

Someone said that "Paddy" would make an excellent lawyer and being asked why so replied: "Because he has an uncommon amount of jaw."

"I wish to consult you upon a little project I have formed," said H. H. to his friend: "I have an idea in my head——"

"Have you," interposed the friend with a look of surprise, "then you shall have my opinion at once; keep it there! it may be some time before you have another."

A Law student being asked the difference between law and equity courts, replied: "at common law you are done for at once; at equity, you are not so easily disposed of. One is prussic acid, and the other is laudanum."

MacNemar asking a friend for a good hair restorer, the following was recommended: "Use brandy externally until the hair grows, and then take it internally to clinch the roots."

The lawyer's house, if I have rightly read,
Is built upon the fool or madman's head.

Fry being asked what wine he liked best, replied, "the wine of other people."

Joe Wilkinson being asked what progress he had made in the study of medicine, replied: "I hope I shall soon be qualified as a physician, for I think I am now able to cure a child."

"Patty" Ryan one day found McDonald regarding himself before a mirror, "McDonald" said Patty, "you must be the happiest man in the world." "Why Patty?" "Because," replied Patty, "you are in love with yourself and haven't a rival upon earth."

An American writer says of the present generation that, "the young men are going one way and the young women the opposite way." That's right, they will meet all the sooner.

Don't give your mind to lying. A lie may do very well for the time being, but, like a bad dime, it's found out at last.

"Cheese" Bachmann is having a novel fire extinguisher patented. See "Cheese."

A friend calling and finding Muckles Edmiston in bed said: "Ah! Muckles you'll shorten your days by the life you are leading." "Very true," replied Muckles, "but you must admit that I lengthen my nights."

A brow austere, a circumspective eye,
A frequent shrug of the "os humeri,"
A nod significant, a stately gait,
A blustering manner, and a ton of weight,
A smile sarcastic, an expressive stare,—
Adopt all these, as time and place will bear;
Then rest assured, that those of little sense
Will deem you, sure, a man of consequence.

A Law student speaking of suicide, said: "The only way to stop it is to make it a capital offense, punishable with death."

"I know I am a regular bear in my manners," said Stewart to Miss ———. "No, indeed you are not Billiken; you have never hugged me yet. You are more sheep than bear."

Alec Miller with a couple of girls at Communtzis and the drinks having been consumed, drew a nickle from his pocket and throwing it upon the table, exclaimed: "There's mine, girls."

Girls: "Oh, Alec, let us pay for it."

Alec: "No, I have the money and I might as well spend it."

Gen. Elliott to Jno. Y. York during a slight skirmish at Paint Creek: "Lieutenant, I see the strikers are retreating."

York, edging up to the Gen.: "General, I believe I missed that first treat."

Prof. in French conversation: "Mr. E. C. Parlez-vous l'anglaise."

E. C. not hearing his question: "No Monsieur."

Prof.: "Why arn't you an American?"

E. C.: "No, I'm a water spaniel."

"Buck" Wilson's favorite legend: "When I was on the Wheeling Register staff—— III ???"

"Tom" bought a gallon of gin to take back to school, and by way of lable, wrote his name upon a card, which happened to be the seven of clubs, and tied it to the handle. A friend coming along and observing the jug, quietly remarked: "That's an awful careless way to leave that liquor!" "Why?" said Tom. "Because somebody might come along with the EIGHT of clubs and take it."

Prof.: "Mr. S.——. I wish you would pay a little attention, sir."

"Well, sir, so I am, paying as little as I can," was the smiling reply.

Frank Nihoff, lying down on the bed said: "Oh how I do wish this was called work, and well paid."

Sammy Brown: "Mr. Williams how many classes do you have a day?"

Prep.: "Three."

Sammy: "You should have more, three hours sleep is not enough."

We advise you, girls, when dashing young fellows make love to you, never to believe that they really love you until they conclusively prove it by committing suicide on your account.

"I am going to write a theme upon Popular Ignorance," said J—to a Prof.

"I know of no one more competent," was the smiling reply.

J—: "You are trying to make a fool of me."

Prof.: "No, I never interfere with nature."

Some clever fellow has invented a new kind of ink, called the "love letter ink." It is a sure preventative against all cases of "breach of promise" as the ink fades away and leaves the sheet blank, in about four weeks after being written upon.

The toilet of a woman is an altar erected by self-love to vanity.

Little Willie: "Oh mother, there's a man at the door with a wooden leg."

Mother: "Tell him we don't want any."

Eight-year-old Johnny on the 1st of April: "Oh mamma, papa is up stairs hugging some strange woman."

To the mother as she hastens up stairs: "April fool, it's only the maid."

Prof. Armstrong, calling the roll: "Mr. John! Mr. John! No response."

"Does anybody here know anything about Mr. John?"

"Nib" Donnelly, just waking up: "He's not here, professor."

Prof. Armstrong, sarcastically: "Very much obliged for the information."

Anxious Freshman: "Will Barron pitch today's game?"

"No, his fingers are blistered."

Freshie: "From pitching?"

"No, from cutting clippings out of the papers about himself."

McNemar, just after his marriage: "Do you know, I have gotten ten letters of congratulations since our marriage."

"Has your wife gotten any?"

McNemar: "No."

New student to veteran professor: "Say Professor, how long has Lem John been in school?"

Veteran Professor: "I don't know, you'll have to ask some of the older members of the faculty."

Don't always judge a student by his Sunday conversation.

Senior: "I am going to write a book on 'Dam-fools I have known'."

Unthoughtful Prep.: "Here's hoping that you're successful with your autobiography."

Stien: "I would like to know how I stand in your affections."

Maggie Morris: "Be seated."

Inquiring friend: "How did your son get along with his examinations?"

Faher: "He was conditioned in the College Yell."

Old Co-ed: "There goes Lem Johns with a dog."

New Co-ed: "Which is Lem?"

Old Co-ed: "The one with the hat on."

Mal Ross to ———: "Say, where can a good transit-man go to find a job?"

"A good transit-man don't have to go find a job."

Telegram from Lexington:

"Cheese Bachmann has a fifty pound bear. Cheese and bear both doing well." (Signed.)

Dr. Bishop: "On my last birthday my class in Greek at Williams-Mary gave me a handsome ———. My birthday is next week."

Marie Smart: "If the lights went out at Woman's Hall where would Furbee?"

Ida Smith: "In the dark, of course, Marie—don't get Smart."

Marie: "If it were dark, wouldn't Bess Liter?"

To those members of the Board who have worked to make this book what it is, the editor wishes to express his deepest thanks. While some have done more than others, all have done well.

He thanks those who have added to the book with their artistic ability, Pearl L. Reiner, Fred Koeltz, Ruby Dusenbery, Tom Moore and Winona Friend. He also appreciates Mr. Yates' permission to use his poem, and is very grateful to Mr. Piers for his photographs. He also thanks Professor Madison Stathers and Simon Smith for their assistance as censors.

H. B. MARR.

I wish to express my thanks to all who have in any way contributed to the success of the 1914 Monticola. Mr. L. E. Friend, The Electric City Engraving Co. and the Acme Press have given most satisfactory attention to this book. The Business Men who have helped with their advertisements are friends of the students and should be patronized by the student body.

ROBERT M. STRICKLER,
Business Manager,
1914 Monticola.

Standard of Merit

No. 87201--Fashionable Shoe Store versus Our Esteemed Competitors

We desire that our case go to the jury (the intelligent Morgantown Public), without further comment than the fact that the achievement of establishing this great business to a point of absolute supremacy in the retail shoe annals of this State could not have been accomplished without giving the public the height of quality in footwear at the lowest price.
