[illegible] GRADUATE ON FRIDAY NIGHT

[illegible] to understand just how it is going to be here next year.

The junior class was called together on last Wednesday for a meeting and received an interesting speech from Mr. H. O. Smith, the principal of the school.

Classes have been very lax in the last week for the students have not been very full o' pep, as the hot weather has them.

Crew Street Sixth Graders Are Given Graduation Certificates

On Tuesday, June 2, the last child came in with certificate for perfect teeth. The news spread, and there was a general rejoicing. Wednesday following, the whole school had their hard-earned and well-deserved holiday.

Winnie George, from the high sixth grade, won a prize of $15 for the Parent-Teacher association and $15 for herself in the safety poster contest offered by the safety council. Both the class and school are proud of this and congratulate Winnie.

Thursday, June 4, was open house day for Crew, also it was "graduation day" for the high sixth, who go to junior high 100 per cent strong. Following is a program of the exercises:

Class march, in singing "Georgia Land;" welcome address, by Helen Heiser; song, "Gondolier," by class; class motto, by Forest Chapman; "Opportunity," by Mary Alice Fullilove; "Cradle Song," by class; declamation, "Carry On," by Joseph Cohen; violin solo, by Harold Ungar; song, by class, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton;" "What Makes a Nation?" by Jennie Kaufman; piano duet, by Geralyn and Madelyn Barnes; class poem, written and read by Fannie Werber; "Keep a-Goin'," by Sylvia Kahanow; song, by class; farewell address, by Winnie George; delivery of diplomas, by Mr. Slate; song, "America."

After the exercises a luncheon was served to the class and guests by the Parent-Teacher association.

Joe Brown High Entertains Track and Baseball Teams

On Wednesday, May 27, the entire student body assembled for the first time in four days, the semifinal exams having taken place on Monday and Tuesday. A few students returned with anxious looks clouding their faces, for they were wondering whether they had passed their exams. A great number returned ready to work with more zest after their two holidays.

On Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6, the members of the Parent-Teacher association entertained the faculty and senior class at a lawn party at the Wren's Nest. A delightful program had been arranged, consisting of several readings, a solo dance and a number of selections by the Tech High School orchestra. This was greatly appreciated, for it is the only time the senior class has had any kind of social affair together.

On Friday night the girls' and boys' track and basket ball teams were entertained at a banquet at which the letters were awarded to the members of the teams. Several speeches were made by the captains of the teams. This was voted one of the best of the banquets given to [illegible]

Bass High Students Capture Contest in Mechanical Drawing

Joe R. Bracewell, Jr., of 53 Brooks avenue, 14-year-old student at Bass Junior High school, was the winner of the city-wide mechanical drawing contest held for junior high school students, it was announced Friday by those in charge of the contest. The first prize is a handsome mechanical drawing outfit donated by the Atlanta Blue Print company.

The prize winning drawings consisted of 12 plates representing several different types of drawings, including straight-line and curved drawings, which were highly praised by the judges.

Young Bracewell is a member of the senior class at Bass Junior high and is a graduate of the Edgewood grammar school, where he won high honors. In 1923 at the latter school he won the gold medal presented for efficiency, and was valedictorian of his class.
