The destruction by floods in Louisiana alone, amounts to $50,000,000.

A Bourbon county farmer the other day testified his admiration for Bro. Barnes by naming a new horse foal for him. Among the rural Bourbonnais this is esteemed the highest honor that can be paid a citizen.—[Breckinridge News.]

Capt. Tom Henry, the Hero of the Whisky Bottle, has shipwrecked his logs on the Licking. It is understood that Jacob will get the logs and Tom will take "the licking." Don't cry about it, Cap! A little cold water will do you good.—[Danville Tribune.]

Barnes says he believes that there will be horses in heaven, all thorough-breds, without a plug among them, and plenty of music, drinking and dancing. This is too indefinite to suit the Cynthians people. Nothing less than the Cynthiana Fair and Megibben's distillery will satisfy them.—Winchester Sun.

The sentiment among the democracy of this county, so far as we have heard an expression of opinion, is universal that Capt. Henry shall be supplanted by Frank Woolford—a sentiment that we applaud and approve most heartily.—[Breckenridge News.]

SINCE the refusal of the Senate to confirm the appointments of the three Railroad Commissioners, McChesney, Boyd and Thompson, he has selected from nearly two hundred applicants, D. Howard Smith, of Henry county, Judge Wm. Beckner, of Clark; and U. S. Senator Willis B. Machen, of Logan county. While we of Bourbon deeply regret that the appointment of our candidate was not officially sustained, it is some little consolation to know that he will not be altogether alone in his disappointment.

AROUND THE CIRCLE.

Near Midway, Lewis Howard shot Tut Anderson in the head inflicting a painful wound. They were only playing.

Governor John C. Underwood will shortly remove to Covington to superintend his proposed paper in Cincinnati.

The maiden name of Jesse James' mother was Zerelda Cole, and she was born near Stamping Ground, Scott county.

At Glasgow, C. F. Bushong, a young merchant, committed suicide by blowing his brains out. He was under indictment by the grand jury on the charge of setting fire to his own store.

Among the delinquent tax-payers reported by the Sheriff of Woodford county, we find the names of Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, John Tyler, George Washington, James K. Polk and Artemus Ward.

The gold mine discovered on the farm of Boone Rogers, near Bellevue Boone county, is thought to be quite valuable, as there are prospects for considerable gold being found.

Mrs. Ben. E. Willis, of Winchester, has just finished a quilt composed of 7,473 pieces, and Mrs. Barton W. House, of Scott county, has just finished one containing 7,626 pieces.

Among the effects of Jesse James was found a watch belonging to Mr. R. H. Rountree, of Lebanon, Ky., who was one of the victims of the stage robbery near Mammoth Cave, in September, 1880.

Henry Clay is sexton of the Christian church in this place, Andrew Jackson is farming on Quicks Run, Jule Verne is living on Kinney, and Thomas Moore is blacking boots in Vanceburg.—[Vanceburg Courier.]

At Bloomfield, Nelson county, Joseph Holt, a school teacher, was killed by Babe Hunter. Holt boarded at Hunter's house. Hunter was whipping his wife, when Holt interfered. Afterward Hunter waylaid him and shot him dead in his tracks. The murderer fled, but was captured.

Millersburg Items.

Geo. McKee is very ill, with general debility.

John Hamilton has lost eleven large cotswool sheep, by dogs.

In speaking of the fruit prospects, Joe Batson offers $2,000 for a living buckeye.

There have been nine deaths at the residence of late Wm. Collier within the last seven years.

Wm. King, a college student here, from Carmel, Fleming county, killed sixty-four black-birds at one shot, and only had half a load of shot in the gun at that. The man who can beat that shot will have to vary slightly from the truth.

Many town dogs have turned their sand-scratchers daisyward, and climbed the golden conway, in consequence of cold poison being spread upon succulent steak sliced from behind the ears of the little black bull that came bellowing down the mountain.

Oh, no more amid the shepherd Shall his bark exulting swell; Frisk Hunter, Joe Gorham, and Bets Trotter, farewell!

John A. Miller, Sr., John Layson and Royce Allen, have been selected by the friends of the dead in the old grave yard, to receive all subscriptions. Persons from a distance can remit to either of the three. They want about $100 to repair the wall around it and make it secure from the ravages of the town cows.

Eld. C. H. Corrington, colored, who was recently pastor of one of the Covington Christian Churches, and a young man whose intellectual capacities were rarely excelled by any of his race who had been given the same educational advantages, died at the home of his brother Lewis, here Saturday, of consumption. Owing to the non-arrival of Eld. Preston Taylor, of Mt. Sterling, who had been summoned by telegraph, Elder W. G. Sweeney, of the 1st Christian Church preached his funeral. His remains were followed to the Paris cemetery, by a large cortege, headed by the Paris Brass Band and Paris and Millersburg lodges of United Brothers of Friendship.

Peters confession that "Thou art Christ, the son of the living God," was the subject from which Elder W. G. Sweeney spoke Sunday morning to a very appreciative audience. The minister's sermon was a masterly condensation of the history of protestantism, from its establishment by Christ, to the present day—its separation from the church of Rome, by Martin Luther, and it's being handed down to John Calvin, John Wesley and Alexander Campbell. The sermon was interlarded by some happy little originalities that gave cold and dignified history much animation, which made the News reporter feel glad that he was there. As the grand gospel pillars of Luther, Calvin, Wesley and Campbell were stationed along the religious railway like the piers of a grand circular bridge, we could not help but look upon Barnes as the sixth grand pier standing by Christ, where the grand circle is completed, and the gospel train is ushered into the grand, golden round house from whence it started. We give this as a mere figure—not a dogma.

The Trader, Turfman, Farmer and Sportsman.

The Messrs. Dwyer, who own Hindoo and Runnymede, contemplate taking some horses to England this fall, to try conclusions with the British favorites.

Jerry Conner, of Harrison county, has lost by pink-eye, a yearling colt by Ravenwood, for which he had refused $300. It took the first premium at the Harrison, Bourbon and Fayette fairs last fall.

Alex. McClintock, of Millersburg, sold to C. C. Booth, of Miami, Mo., a fine five-year-old mare by his celebrated Goldsmith, for $500, and made him a present of a thoroughbred shepherd pup worth $50. See card of McClintock's Goldsmith in this paper.

Reports from farmers all around say that a great deal of wheat is damaged. All that is lying down is ruined, while much that is standing up is injured slightly. The fruit is pretty much all killed; only an apple here and there can be found alive.

At the sale of W. H. Wilson's trotting stock at Cynthiana last Friday, fifty-five colts were sold; by consent of the bidders the aged stock were withdrawn from the market at public sale. Prices were considered low, the average being $235. Several sold from $500 to $700.

Winfield Harris, a native of Catlettsburg, who is an elder in the Mormon Church at Ogden, Utah, has been in the Big Sandy region some time as a missionary of his church, and has sent a number of converts and recruits to Utah.

THE HILL OF LIFE.

This ancient hill that is dear to all, To memory back sweet hours recall; Many years have fled and passed away, Each sunrise brings a brighter day; The flowers sweet on hillside bloom, Recalling vanished years from gloom.

The amber tints and radiant hues, Near our pathway gently strewn, Virtues of a people, earnest, noble, grand, On life's sombre meandering strand; Each action true is a living trust, Each hour recalls some one to dust.

Centuries have succeeded each other and gone, The frosts of time mankind have none, We are nearing the shores of dismal streams,

To lands immortal and glorious dreams, "Time lost to us is forever lost;" On tempestuous waves we are ever tossed.

The eventide o'er the hill of life, We plod our way with weary strife; Each singing bird with songs to cheer, Our weary hearts that seem so drear. We recall our friends as passing on, We sigh for the morrow's brighter dawn:

The midnight shades the ravens' cry, We watch the moments as they swiftly fly, Eternal pleasures, joyous throng, We love the melody of nature's song, 'Tis sweet to watch o'er meadow and lee, Each warbling bird with notes so free.

We all shall rest beneath the green hill-side, While ages revolve we shall abide; There till "time shall be no more," Our hopes are entered on another shore; O'er scenes of childhood we after roam, We think of the lovely vine-clad home.

Tribute of Respect.

At a called meeting of Halleck Lodge, No. 107, I. O. O. F., Millersburg, Kentucky, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED: That we pay him the just tribute of a faithful member by draping our lodge in mourning, and wearing the usual badge, and tendering our sympathy to the family and friends of the deceased.

RESOLVED: That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes of record, as well as be published in the BOURBON NEWS, and copies of same be presented to the bereaved family of the deceased.

From appearances, the "boys" can all come in with safety about Thursday.

Mr. Barnes says that Cynthiana is the worst flint-rock place he ever struck.

As the train moved toward Lexington Saturday morning, Mr. Barnes waved his hand to his many friends who had assembled at the depot to greet him, and said "Good-bye, Praise the Lord!"

Miss Annie Hinton, daughter of W. H. Hinton, of this city, will wed the Rev. Jud Taylor, pastor of the Baptist Church at Lexington, at the Baptist church of this city, this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Eld. Taylor Sharrard, recently of this city, has been appointed manager of a Western line of telegraphy, and is stationed at Gunnison, Colorado. He will at once take steps to organize a church there.

"I didn't come here, and I'm not going away; my wife ain't dead, and I've got no mother," is what a drunken sorrel-topped fellow from Fleming county, said from the platform of a car at our depot, the other day.

Prof. N. F. Smith, of Cynthiana, in behalf of science, has been kept out of the army of the Lord for many years, by the first eight chapters of Genesis. When he heard Mr. Barnes tackle the first two chapters, he tumbled to the racket, and made his first confession.

"It makes one feel like stealing away to lean up against the pillar of despair and die from a consciousness of the total depravity of man," saith the Carlisle Mercury, after viewing the liquor-swilled carcass of a dear patriot on the street the other day.

Before the court now in session, there are fifty cases on the criminal docket; among them the Moreland case, which is set for to-day. The grand jury are Jno. B. Kennedy, foreman; A. Turney, N. W. Wright, Lefe Ardrey, Wm. Renick, Robt. Cunningham, J. W. Ferguson, J. D. Allison, D. M. Dodge, J. Jacoby, J. W. Skillman, J. W. Bedford, S. W. Collins.

We are in receipt of the El Paso Times, from D. D. Conway, in Yeleta, Texas. It contains a nice little biographical sketch of Dave and his cousin, Dr. Warren Stitt, formerly of Kentucky, and other business men of Yeleta. The paper does lots of big bragging on El Paso county, and among other products, sites the reader to onions weighing from eight to fourteen pounds, which are sold in the cities of their State, at eight cents per pound. A beet weighing seventy-two pounds, and a pear weighing twenty-two ounces, were also mentioned.

Rev. Mr. Gosling lives in Augusta, T. N. Goose, in Louisville, Sam Drake in Oldham county and Jacob Henn in Whitley county.

Millinery Goods.

I would respectfully announce to the public, that I am now in receipt of a very select stock of SPRING MILLINERY Goods, and am prepared to supply the wants of the most fastidious in anything pertaining to that line of business. My shop being in my residence on High street, will enable me to deduct a large per cent. from prices, saved from pay, and extravagant rents on a more public thoroughfare.

I would be pleased to have all the ladies call.

Respectfully
 Mrs. L. V. FORTZ,

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

FARM AND HOME.

Farm Havings.

A NEW use for sorghum seed has been discovered. Glucose can be made from it as well as from corn, and it is estimated that 1,250 pounds can be made from the seed grown on one acre. It is thought that the discovery will, by the added profits arising from the sale of glucose, make the culture of sorghum for sugar a profitable business.

A WRITER in the Rural World gives what he believes to be the proper manner of sowing sorgho for forage. He says: "First, the sorgho seed, about one and one-half bushels to the acre. Cut with a side-delivery reaper. Let the gavel lay about twelve hours, then turn to cure on the other side, after they can be bound and shocked, and, after standing in shock about ten days to two weeks, stack for winter use." The above method, so far as curing is concerned, will recommend itself to farmers who have in view the building of silos for preserving fodder. Of course, when cut and cured, it will be necessary to remove the product at once to the pits.

PROFIT IN ONIONS.—More money can be realized from a given amount of land in onions, taken one season with another, than from any other crop that can be raised. A large amount of hand labor is required, however, to produce the crop, which must be put in very early. The labor of old persons and children can be utilized to good advantage in raising onions, as most of the work required is light. The best land for onions is black muck containing a good deal of loam. The manure should be the most thoroughly rotted part from the farm-yard. Too much manure cannot be used. It should be well mixed with the soil, say by spreading, turning under and cross-harrowing. This should be done in the fall to secure the best results. In the spring the ground should be cultivated and harrowed till it is as fine as it can be made. Then the onion seed should be drilled in rows fourteen inches apart. It will take four or five pounds of seed to the acre. As good varieties as any are yellow Danvers, red Wethersfield and silverskin. The latter are not good keepers but sell well. As soon as the young onions appear they should be hoed or cultivated. The great secret in growing onions is to keep them free from weeds. Therefore, hoe or cultivate frequently, though no weeds may at that moment be above the surface. When the onions are ripe they should be pulled and left on the ground till the tops are dry; then they are gathered up and bagged for market.—Chicago Times.

FARM LAWNS.—Many farmers who keep their fields in the very best and most attractive shape, spending a great deal of time in order to take advantage of practical and scientific suggestions which are constantly being advanced, are apt to neglect the lawn which enhances so much the beauty of the immediate surroundings of the farm-house. It may be claimed that the average farmer is too busy to pay proper attention to the lawn, but as it is a thing of beauty, and adds so much to the comfort and beauty of the place, farmers certainly ought to devote a portion of their time to its care. It is customary in many localities to devote considerable room to the cultivation of shrubbery and the smaller varieties of fruits and trees, and in many instances the entire front yard is devoted to this purpose. A vegetable or fruit garden is of course a necessity, but it should be located in such a way as to allow considerable space for a lawn. Nothing adds more to the appearance of a farm-house than a broad plat of luxuriant green grass, upon which care and taste are displayed. It is at once a pleasing sight, and can be made a profitable investment.—Chicago Tribune.

A PARALLEL.—The thrift of a farmer, and his degree of success in his chosen profession, says the Chicago Tribune, can be easily determined by the care which he bestows upon his farming tools. A man who uses the open field for a storehouse; who leaves his plow sticking in the last furrow of his fall plowing; who allows his reaper to remain out of doors throughout the winter; who can never find anything in the way of tools, unless the entire farm is searched; whose harness is never properly repaired; about whose premises there is a general air of decay, ought not to expect success, and certainly his expectations will be realized. The man who takes a contrary view of things, who appreciates the importance of having a good storage shed where the farm-tools can be stored and sheltered from the weather, and who passes the oft-recurring rainy days in repairing the very appurtenances that make success possible, is the man who will reap the greatest reward. The cost of providing shelter for farming-tools during the season when they are not in use is merely nominal, and the saving in time in money more than compensates for the expense. It is simply a question of dollars and cents to the average farmer, and it would seem evident where there is a lack of care in this respect that it is entirely unreasonable to count upon any marked degree of success. Machinery costs money, and its proper preservation ought to be considered of paramount importance.

WHERE TO KEEP POULTRY.—A great deal of annoyance, says the Chicago Times, is caused by fowls that are kept about the house. Their droppings keep the lawn and walks about the house continually dirty. This is especially true of ducks and geese. Web-footed fowls devour almost everything they see, and, though clean themselves, they render everything about them dirty. Other kinds of fowls scratch up seeds that are planted, and make it difficult to keep grounds in good order. They ruin flower-beds, and make bad work in every portion of the vegetable garden. They pry open the pods of peas, and devour tomatoes as soon as they become ripe. In fact there are few garden vegetables they do not injure. They have an epicure's love for fine strawberries, raspberries and other small fruits. They will eat grapes on the vine, and will sometimes fly into tree-tops and devour fruit on the branches. Unless fowls kept near the house are restrained during the season when they derive the most benefit from running at large, they will render the production of fruit and vegetables extremely difficult. To surround a large lot with a fence that fowls will not fly over is attended with considerable expense. To keep fowls in close quarters is to injure their condition and prevent their laying many eggs. There are many advantages in keeping fowls at a considerable distance from the house. Cleanliness is insured, and a tight inclosure rendered unnecessary. It is as cheap to erect buildings for the shelter of poultry in one part of the premises as another. The trouble of carrying food for some distance is compensated by the trouble saved in other matters. Those who have tried keeping fowls at a distance from the house speak highly of the arrangement.

Domestic Economy.

CIDER CAKE.—One cup butter, two cups sugar, one cup cider, three cups flour, four eggs, two cups raisins and currants mixed, one teaspoonful yeast powder.

SOUR MILK PANCAKES.—One quart of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water, a little salt, one egg, add flour and mix to the consistency of thick cream. These are very nice.

LEMON JUMBLES.—One egg, one teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon butter, three teaspoonfuls milk, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, two small lemons (juice of two and grated rind of one); mix rather stiff; roll and cut out with a cake cutter.

LETTUCE SALAD.—Cut up a head of lettuce very fine, then make a dressing of one cup of vinegar, half teaspoonful mustard, one of sugar, add a little salt and pepper if liked. Place slices of hard-boiled eggs over the top.

COMMON CAKE.—(Nice for children.) Bake ginger cake in tins as for jelly cake. Spread golden sirup between the layers. Frosting made from the yolk of one egg gives it a nice finish. The yolk of an egg is just as nice for frosting as the white.

RICE DROPS.—Boil rice to a mush; when cold beat three eggs well and stir in; add teaspoonful of yeast powders, sprinkle of salt; drop a teaspoonful at a time in boiling lard; when brown take out and sprinkle sugar over them; serve hot. Very nice for breakfast.

BAKED SPONGE PUDDING.—Three eggs, their weight each in butter, sugar and flour, beat the eggs very light; add the butter beaten to a cream, then sugar and flour. This will make four large cupfuls; fill them half full; bake in a moderate oven ten minutes and serve with same.

MAXONNAISE FOWL.—Cut a fowl in pieces, separating each joint; put into a stewpan with a wine-glassful of olive oil and fry till brown. Dredge in a teaspoonful of flour; add a teaspoon of boiling water, cover closely, simmer half an hour, season with pepper, salt and minced onion, then a table-spoonful of mushroom catchup. Take out the meat arrange on toast; boil gravy up once, pour over fowl and toast; serve hot.

CREAM OF RICE SOUP.—Take two quarts of chicken stock (the water in which fowls have been boiled will answer), one teacup of rice, a quart of cream or milk, an onion, a stalk of celery, and salt and pepper to taste. Wash the rice carefully, and add the onion and celery to the chicken stock. Cook slowly two hours, rub through a sieve, and add seasoning. The milk or cream, which has been allowed to come just to a boil in a separate saucepan, should be added the last thing. If milk is used, add a table-spoonful of butter.

SPONGE CAKE.—One cup of sugar, yolk of three eggs; sugar and eggs beaten together; one-quarter cup boiling water, one cup unsifted flour, one teaspoonful baking powder. The above baked in layers with the following filling makes delicious orange cake: To the whites of three eggs allow one and a quarter pounds of powdered sugar; beat stiff as for icing; take out enough to cover the top and set aside; add to the rest the juice and half the rind of one orange; when the cake is nearly cold spread filling between the layers; beat into the icing reserved for the top a little lemon juice and, if needed, a little more sugar. It should be stiffer than that spread between the layers.

WASHINGTON'S ETIQUETTE.

President Washington never went to Congress on public business except in a state coach, drawn by six cream-colored horses. The coach was an object which would excite the admiration of the throng even now in the streets of London. It was built in the shape of a hemisphere, and its panels were adorned with cupids, surrounded with flowers worthy of Florida, and of fruit not to be equaled out of California. The coachman and postillions were arrayed in gorgeous liveries of white and scarlet. The Philadelphia Gazette, a Government organ, regularly gave a supply of court news for the edification of the citizens. From that the people were allowed to learn as much as it was deemed proper for them to know about the President's movements, and a fair amount of space was also devoted to Mrs. Washington—who was not referred to as Mrs. Washington, but as "the amiable consort of our beloved President." When the President made his appearance at a ball or public reception, a dais was erected for him, upon which he might stand apart from the vulgar throng, and the guests or visitors bowed to him in solemn silence. "Republican simplicity" has only come in later times. In our day the hack-driver who takes a visitor to a public reception at the White House is quite free to get off his box, walk in side by side with his fare and shake hands with the President with as much familiarity as anybody else. Very few persons presumed to shake hands with Gen. Washington. One of his friends, Gouverneur Morris, rashly undertook, for a foolish wager, to go up to him and slap him on the shoulder, saying, "My dear General, I am happy to see you look so well." The moment fixed upon arrived, and Mr. Morris, already half repenting of his wager, went up to the President, placed his hand upon his shoulder, and uttered the prescribed words. "Washington," as an eyewitness described the scene, "withdrew his hand, stepped suddenly back, fixed his eye on Morris for several minutes with an angry frown, until the latter retreated abashed, and sought refuge in the crowd." No one else ever tried a similar experiment. It is recorded of Washington that he wished the official title of the President to be "High Mightiness," and at one time it was proposed to engrave his portrait upon the national coinage. No royal levees were more punctiliously arranged than those of the first President.—Quarterly Review.

MILK DIET IN BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Since we know not at present any drug that possesses therapeutic value to any marked extent in this terrible and fatal disease, and since it is daily making sad havoc among human beings, and principally among that class who, by reason of their valuable public labors, are particularly necessary to the welfare of the world; therefore, it becomes a medical question of paramount interest that we should discover some potent method of combating this very prevalent disease. Some years since Carel first called attention to the treatment of Bright's disease by the use of a milk diet, and since then Duncan, as well as many other prominent physicians, have written on this subject. We have ourselves seen some remarkable results follow this treatment, while Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, of our city, is now quite an enthusiast on this subject. This method of treating a formidable disease has received sufficient distinguished indorsement to recommend it seriously to our notice. We would, therefore, ask all physicians who read this article to try this method of treatment, and to furnish us with their experience, which we will publish. The milk is used thoroughly skimmed and entirely freed from butter. To procure the best results, it has been advised that the patient shall restrict himself absolutely to milk, and continue the treatment for a long time. If it disagrees with the stomach (as it will in some cases), Dr. Mitchell advises that the patient be put to bed, and the treatment commenced with table-spoonful doses, to which lime water is added, until the stomach tolerates the milk, when from eight to ten pints daily should be taken, and absolutely nothing else. The sanction of such a distinguished physician as Dr. Mitchell forces us to seriously consider the merits of this treatment, and we trust to receive the experience of all readers of this journal who may have cases of Bright's disease to treat.—Medical and Surgical Reporter.

MUSIC AND MILLINERY.

"Good morning, Fogg," said Brown, briskly. "How do you like the opera last night?" "Oh, so-so," answered Fogg, moodily; "nothing striking about it excepting the drum-sticks." "Come, come," returned Brown, "be serious. Didn't you think that bravura passage with pizzicato and appoggiatura embellishments was lovely?" "Guess I didn't see it," answered Fogg, as before; "there was only feathers and flowers and things on the one in front of me." "What are you talking about, mar?" explained Brown. "That girl's hat, of course, wasn't it?" "Good morning," said Brown, as he turned the corner.

NEW FINDS AT POMPEII.

I visited Pompeii next day, and went straight to the diggings. The only wonder is that anything is ever dug up at all; the process is ridiculously slow, even for Italy. The directors sit all day on the rubbish heaps smoking, and dozens of children file up and down with their baskets of earth, while a few idle peasants shovel up a few lazy spadefuls at a time. Still, the first I saw was the side of a dining-room, uncovered only a few days. On one side was a bright picture of a cock and hens in a great state of excitement over a large basket of grain and cherries, all upset—Land-seer could not have done it better. The fondness of the Pompeians for birds, beasts and fishes is very apparent, and they always seemed to be dining. The wealth of cooking apparatus in the museum is astonishing. You have saucepans perforated with countless holes, in most elaborate patterns—every conceivable kind of boiler and caldron; casts for jellies representing the prostrate hare and the sucking pig; ladles, spoons, skewers, dishes for roasting six eggs or a dozen eggs at once, toasting-forks, grid irons and fancy machines for pastry and delicate confectionery, what in Elizabeth's day were called "concoits." In Pompeii itself the oil-pots and wine amphorae let into slabs, and of mosaic work of colored marble, are among the quaintest features of the ruined shops. I saw in another new part a fine dining-room, found three months ago, with some of the loveliest animal painting imaginable. The first section of the walls all around represented the boldest scenes under the sea—a conger struggling with an octopus, a shark pursuing its prey, a shoal of fish flying through the water, all glittering and fresh. The middle section dealt with birds and wild fowl boating, flying, quarreling, diving; and the upper and largest section gave fierce hunting scenes—a horse pursued by a lion, an ox in desert scenery sprung upon by a tiger; and all these were set in scenery of great force, variety and character—woods, rocks, rivers and green hills.

The corridors and ante-rooms of this house are equally rich, the walls copiously vignettized with figures—dwarfs on stilts, street scenes, animals. In one room there is a perfectly white suit of marble steps in situ, belonging to a fountain.

DAVEY CROCKETT.

David Crockett, the American backwoodsman, was born at Limestone, on the Nolachucky river, in Tennessee, Aug. 17, 1786. His father, of Irish birth, after various other vocations opened a tavern on the road from Abingdon to Knoxville, where David passed his youth, from 7 to 12 years of age. He was sent to a country school, but on the fourth day quarreled with the schoolmaster, and, after playing truant for a time, fled from home to avoid a flogging, threatened both by his father and master. For five years he roamed about with drovers and carriers, till in his 18th year he returned home, attended school for two months, learning his letters for the first time, and soon after married and went to live in the wildest portion of the State, distinguishing himself as a hunter. In 1813 he served in the Creek war, under Gen. Jackson, and after the peace settled at Shoal creek in a desolate region in Tennessee. A community of reckless characters having flocked together, it was found necessary to establish a temporary Government, and he was appointed one of the magistrates. He soon after became a candidate for the Legislature, and made a successful electioneering tour by shooting at matches and telling amusing stories. He was twice re-elected to the Legislature, but devoted himself especially to bear hunting, till in 1827 he was elected by the party of Jackson a Representative in Congress. At Washington he obtained notoriety by the eccentricity of his manners and language. In 1829 he was again chosen to Congress, but soon after changed from a partisan to an opponent of Jackson's administration; and in 1831 he required his most strenuous exertions to secure his re-election. Finding the influence of Jackson irresistible in Tennessee, Crockett subsequently sought a new career in Texas, then in revolt against Mexico, and, after a series of military exploits, met his death while defending Fort Alamo, in San Antonio de Bexar. After a hard siege, the survivors, six in number, including Crockett, surrendered, but by order of Santa Anna they were put to death, March 6, 1836.

FATHER AND SON.

According to the New York Herald a young and popular artist of that city went home and found that he was the happy father of a fourteen-pound baby. After looking fondly at the youngster for a few moments, he said, in a dazed sort of way, "You fat rascal, if you go to thinking that you are born into a wealthy family you'll get left." That's all he probably ever will get.

THE Coroner's jury heard the evidence, examined the body and then returned a verdict of death from exhaustion. The unfortunate man had been trying to start a new paper in Brooklyn.

THE CROW AS A SANITARIAN.

One of the best things Mayor Chase ever did during his several terms of office in this city was to use his personal influence and official power to stop the wanton murder of the crows who swarm into Omaha every spring and fall to feed on animal garbage that accumulates in our streets and alleys, and on the broad bottom lands upon which this kind of disease-breeding matter is carried by water or otherwise. Col. Chase did this on both sanitary and humane grounds, and the act was alike creditable to his head and heart. As a sanitarian the crow is a very efficient servant of the public health, and it is pleasing to notice the growing cordiality of his welcome to the city, where in former years he was treated as, we regret to say, he is generally treated everywhere in our country, with such destructive cruelty by the ignorant knights of the shot-gun.

The people of England and Scotland do not murder the rook. They foster and feed him. And even heathen Japan understands the character and usefulness of this black and beautiful bird. The Popular Science Monthly says of the liberty the crow enjoys in that country, as follows:

"In Japan, owing to the gentle behavior of the people, the crow has full liberty to go where he likes. As a consequence, the densely populated cities swarm with the noisy fellows. They repay the kindness shown them by acting as scavengers. Every bit of organic matter, which in decay might pollute the air, is seized up by the crows and devoured; and thus it is that, by this and other means, the death-rate in these large cities, under the hot sun of latitude 35 deg., is lower than of Salem, Mass., for example, in latitude 52 deg., with its reeking bodies of filthy water."

As we get our best lessons in the treatment of the horse from the Arab, so we find the best example for the treatment of one of the most beautiful, intelligent and useful of birds from the heathen of Japan.—Omaha Herald.

AMATEUR ECONOMY.

"My dear fellow," said Lavender, "it's all very nice to talk about economizing and keeping a rigid account of expenses and that sort of thing, but I've tried it. Two weeks ago I stopped in on my way home Saturday night, and I bought just the gayest little Russia leather, cream-laid account book you ever saw, and a silver pencil to match it. I said to my wife after supper: 'My dear, it seems to me it costs a lot of money to keep house.'"

"She sighed and said: 'I know it does, Lavvy, but I'm sure I can't help it. I'm just as economical as I can be. I don't spend half as much for candy as you do for cigars.'"

"I never take any notice of personalities, so I sailed right ahead. 'I believe, my dear, that if we were to keep a strict account of everything we spend we could tell just where to cut down. I've bought you a little account book, and every Monday morning I'll give you some money and you can set it down on one side, and then during the week you can set down on the other side everything you spend, and then on Saturday night we can go over it and see just where the money goes and how we can boil things down a little.'"

"Well, sir, she was just delighted—thought it was a first-rate plan, and the pocket account book was lovely—regular David Copperfield and Dora business. Well, sir, the next Saturday night we got through supper and she brought out that account book as proud as possible, and handed it over for inspection. On one side was 'Received from Lavvy $50.' That's all right! Then I looked on the other page, and what do you think was there? 'Spent it all!' Then I laughed, and of course she cried, and we gave up the account-book racket on the spot by mutual consent. Yes, sir, I've been there, and I know what domestic economy means, I tell you. Let's have a cigar."

A TABLE FOR A CENT.

A Lamb one day entered a saloon to quench his thirst with a glass of Lager, and while quaffing the Beverage he noticed a Wolf playing Seven-up at a table in one corner of the Room.

"Why do you throw Snow-Balls at me?" demanded the Lamb, as he sat down his glass.

"I beg to remind you that this is Midsummer," humbly replied the Wolf, "and I could not throw Snow-Balls even if I desired."

"That may all be," continued the Lamb, "but you lied about me to the Hares."

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Lamb, but no man can remember when the Wolves and the Hares were on speaking terms."

"And that may be true, also," shouted the enraged Lamb, "but you have been cheating at Cards!"

"I will leave that to the Jackal, who has just won my last Nickel."

"Then if you have no Cash you have no business in here!" howled the Aggressor, and he fell upon the poor Wolf and lambled him until he could hardly crawl.

Moral: Domestic economy is buying twelve-shilling shoes for your wife and twenty-cent cigars for yourself.

PLEASANTRIES.

SOMEbody has figured out that Vanderbilt's income would allow him to, in one day, visit 8,000 circuses, eat 10,000 pints of peanuts, and drink 5,000 glasses of lemonade.

THE late Thomas Hood, driving in the country one day, observed a notice beside a fence, "Beware the Dog." There not being any signs of a dog, Hood wrote on the board, "War be the Dog?"

BROWS says he hates inquisitive people, and the worst kind of inquisitiveness, he thinks, is that exhibited by the man who stops him in the street and wants to know when he is going to pay that little bill.

"WHAT is a junction, nurse?" asked a 7-year-old fairy at a railway platform. "A junction, my dear," answered the nurse, with the air of a very superior person, indeed, "why, it's a place where two roads separate."

A SYRACUSE man made a bet of $50 that he could find six women in that city who would marry him, and he won it. Now he's ready to give the $50 to anybody who will show him the way to get out of six engagements.

"WHAT a beautiful sight!" exclaimed Mrs. Jones, rapturously, as she looked out over the beautiful scenery from a Pennsylvania railroad car. "Yes," replied Jones, without raising his eyes from his paper, "anthracite."

A FINELY-DRESSED lady slipped and fell, and the gentleman who assisted her to her feet inquired: "Did you break any bones, madam?" "No, I guess not," she replied; "but I'm just as mad as if I had broken a dozen of 'em!"

SAID one fellow to another, "If I was as flat-footed as you are, I would not be afraid of slipping on the sidewalk." "Yes," was the response, "some people are flat on one end and some on another." The first chap looked thoughtful and went down the street.

OLD Mr. and Mrs. Smiler were looking at the comet from their chamber window. "No, Mollie, no; that cannot be the comet of 1843, the appendage is so much larger." "But, my dear Horace, the comet was younger then." They retired in silence.

"THERE'S too much horse-racing at your agricultural fairs," remarked Parson Jones to the Secretary of the county society. "I should like to know, sir, what horse-racing has to do with agriculture?" "Well, parson," replied the Secretary, with a pleasant smile, "nothing, perhaps; or, at least, no more than church lotteries have to do with the spreading of the gospel." Parson Jones saw the point, and changed the conversation immediately.

HENRY lies a man whose crown was won by blowing in an empty gun. No sooner in the gun he blew than up the golden stairs he flew. And met the girl, on heaven's green, Who lit the fire with kerensons. He also saw astride a stool, The man who tampered with a mule. He also saw—'twas mighty queer—The man who whistled "Pinafore." And further on the minor cove Who thaved his powder in the stove.

HOW LARGE HATS WERE INTRODUCED.

A long-eared hat. Went to buy a hat. Said the hatter, 'I've none that will do, Unless you wish the shoens I shorten your ears. Which might be unpleasant to you.' The long-eared hat. Was so mad at that. He flew over lands and seas, Till in Paris (renowned For its fashions) he found A hat that he wore with great ease.

BEN VORLICH'S ECHO.

An Austin man, of a literary turn of mind, is very fond of his dog that barks day and night. A neighbor asked what the dog's name was.

"Echo," was the reply.

"What kind of a name is that?" "It was the name of Ben Vorlich's dog."

"Who the mischief is Ben Vorlich?" The owner of the dog smiled in derision, and replied:

"You never could have read Walter Scott's 'Lady of the Lake.' In the chase Ben Vorlich was one of the principal hunters. Echo is the name of his dog. Don't you remember where it says:

"No rest Ben Vorlich's Echo knew. This dog never takes a rest either, so I call him Echo."

The neighbor did not say anything, but that night he softly called Echo to the fence, gave him a piece of sausage, and now Echo is as silent as Ben Vorlich, and even more so.—Texas Siftings.

CRADDOCK'S 2-times-a-week sheet resembles a well-worn tramp in a too-tailed shirt with no collar on. Many of its oldest and best friends are passing it by unrecognized. Gov. BLACKBURN has declared his intention of stumping the State in favor of honest assessments and less taxes. Now the Governor is talking business. If he will only succeed in setting on foot a scheme for something more equal and just in the taxation business he'll warm over lots of chilled love lying dormant in the hearts of thousands of former friends.

WITH Christianity acquiesced down to fifty per cent. below proof three thousand souls have rallied to the glory band in Kentucky during the last three months. Now if they will weaken it down to a solution that will admit a few more of the necessary adjuncts of draw poker and horse-racing, the whole human family can be fenced in with the walls of charity at a trifling cost.

We are frequently asked why we don't run more advertising matter in the News. Our answer is, a young horse making glory strides for the kingdom, doesn't want to be overloaded with cheap advertisements. We almost daily tear cheap advertising propositions in halves, and throw them away without reading. BLANTON DUNCAN has opened his mouth on the Egyptian war question, and predicts the scriptural fulfillment regarding the great pouring out of the seventh vial of wrath and drying up the great river Euphrates, and stinking the living out of the land with the dead. He says that all the powers of Europe and Asia, including one hundred millions of men will become engaged, and that but the sixth part, will be left to tell the tale of blood, thunder and corruption, and that all of it will be brought about by hoisting the Prophet's old green flag. We'll wager old Blant a month's subscription to the News against his Confederate commission as colonel, that the war will be over in less than three months, with less than 2,000 killed, and that the great river of Euphrates will not be dried up in ten millions of years from now.

The car load of Merino sheep, advertised in recent issues of the News, have arrived in good condition, and many of our breeders have already been to the stables of Clark & Edwards, where they are kept, to see them, and there seems to be quite a universal feeling that they are just the sheep to cross with our long wools of Ky., in order to produce the wools that the market demands—which now brings from 46 to 48 cts. per pound in Philadelphia, and would easily be worth 40 cents per pound here at home.

The following letter from a well known firm of Wool Commission Merchants of the above named city, dated July 3rd, 1882, explains itself; and we print it entire that the breeders of sheep may see what the men have to say, to whom they expect to sell:

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, MAY 10TH, 1880.
 B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambroton colt which I prized very highly; he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other, which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to send for it; they ordered three bottles, I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, and used according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it. Very Respectfully,
 L. T. FOSTER.

This book, during the short time since its original publication, has been recognized as one of the most reliable authorities on anything pertaining to the horse's condition or treatment. The best evidence of its popularity is the immense sale which it has met with, over 650,000 have been published and sold in all parts of the northern States. Hundreds of testimonials to the efficacy of the treatment advised can be shown, and in many cases a reference to this book and prompt following of its advice has saved the lives of valuable animals. It is plain and simple in its terms, and can be understood by anybody. A distinguished veterinary surgeon, who possesses a library comprising the most costly books on the horse, recently said that he would part with almost any of them rather than with this treatise, which comprises so much.

EDGAR A. POE'S DEATH.

Statement of the Hospital Physician Who Attended Him in His Last Illness.

Dr. John J. Moran, of Falls Church, Fairfax county, Va., who was resident physician at Washington University Hospital (now the Church Home and Infirmary), on North Broadway, from March, 1849, to October, 1855, visited the institution for the first time since the dissolution of his official connection therewith. Dr. Moran pointed out the room occupied by Edgar Allan Poe, and related the circumstances of his death, which occurred Oct. 7, 1849. The doctor states that on the 6th of October, about 9 a. m., Mr. Poe was brought to the hospital in a hack driven by an Irishman, who stated that he had found his passenger on Light street wharf. In reply to an inquiry whether the gentleman was intoxicated, the hackman stated that there was no smell of liquor about him, and that he had lifted him into the carriage like a child. Dr. Moran did not recognize his patient until the hackman presented a card bearing Poe's name. Mr. Poe was unconscious and very pale. He was placed in the third-story room of the turret, at the southwest corner of the building, about seven-by-ten feet in size. A nurse was stationed at the door, with instructions to call Dr. Moran when the patient awoke, which occurred in twenty minutes. The doctor, being much interested in his patient, went immediately to his side. A glance sufficed to show that Mr. Poe was extremely ill, and he was so informed. In reply to a question he said he did not know how long he had been sick, and could give no account of himself. He was much surprised when informed that he was in a hospital. He stated that he had stopped at a hotel on Pratt street, where a trunk containing his papers and manuscripts had been left. The trunk was sent for, but the owner made no further reference to it.

Dr. Moran proceeded to make a diagnosis of the case. The patient was very weak, but there was no tremor of the limbs, no agitation of the body, no smell of liquor on the breath or person, nor any symptom of intoxication. Owing to the weak condition of the patient, Dr. Moran decided to administer a stimulant, and so informed him. Mr. Poe said: "If I thought its potency would transport me to the elysian bowers of the undiscovered spirit world, I would not touch it."

Dr. Moran then proposed an anodyne, when Mr. Poe rejoined: "Twin sister to the doomed and crazed in perdition." Mr. Poe continued to converse most dependently, but was relieved by short intervals of sleep. As his body grew weaker his mind retained its force, and his conscious moments were marked by vivid flashes of his characteristic genius. Near the end Mr. Poe became as gentle as a child.

He died an hour past midnight, sixteen hours after his arrival at the hospital. The cause of death was exhaustion of the nervous fluid, caused by exposure, hunger and other things acting upon a sensitive organization. The remains were laid in state in the large reception room in the rotunda of the college, where they were viewed by many persons. Fully fifty ladies received locks of the dead poet's hair, that fell in jet-black ringlets about his brow. The funeral took place on the afternoon of Oct. 8, 1849, the remains being interred in the burying ground of Westminster Presbyterian Church, where the monument has since been erected.

CLAY PIPES.

The red-clay pipe is made in this city at the rate of about 2,000,000 a year, worth 5 or 10 cents apiece, or $10,000 or $20,000. The clay comes from Martha's Vineyard, Governor's island, N. Y., and Lake Michigan. Three hundred tons are used in a year. The three kinds of clays are mixed or ground together. A workman with a pile of clay behind him makes from it single rolls of clay, each large enough to make a pipe. The next worker places the clay in a pipe mold, runs a wire into the stem part, puts under a lever and makes the bowl. Fifteen hundred a day are molded by one man. The molds may be of various designs to form the decorated bowl. The latest is the "Land League," representing evicton on one side and prison life on the other. In pipes, as in other things, novelties must be given the smoking public, and as those interested in Land Leagues are fair smokers this pipe will be bought for use and for patriotism.

After the molding process the pipes are laid away to dry or drain until the water is well out of them. They are then put in fire-clay receivers, 190 in each, and placed in the furnace or kiln to be burned. The oven holds 70,000 pipes. They are then heated to a white heat. The red-clay pipe has a wooden stem and a silver band. The stems are made from maple by machinery designed for the purpose. They are made black by the process of enameling. The band is made from a circular piece of brass; that is to say, a circular piece of brass without break or seam is turned into a cylinder about an inch in length. Some of the pipes are stained, while others are left in the color of clay to be stained or colored by the smoker.—Providence Journal.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK.

The Yellowstone National Park extends sixty-five miles north and south and fifty-five miles east and west, comprising 3,575 square miles, and is all 6,000 feet or more above the sea-level. Yellowstone lake, twenty miles by fifteen, has an altitude of 7,788 feet. The mountain ranges which hem in the valleys on every side rise to the height of 10,000 to 12,000 feet, and are always covered with snow. This great park, says Mr. Strahorn, contains the most striking of mountains, gorges, falls, rivers and lakes in the whole Yellowstone region. The springs on Gardiner's river cover an area of about one square mile, and three or four square miles thereabout are occupied by the remains of springs which have ceased to flow. The natural basins into which these springs flow are from four to six feet in diameter and from one to four feet in depth. The principal ones are located upon terraces midway up the sides of the mountain. The banks of the Yellowstone river abound with ravines and canons, which are carved out of the heart of the mountains through the hardest rocks. The most remarkable of these is the canon of Tower creek and Column mountain. The latter, which extends along the eastern bank of the river for upward of two miles, is said to resemble the Giant's Causeway. The canon of Tower creek is about ten miles in length and is so deep and gloomy that it is called "The Devil's Den." Where Tower creek ends the Grand canon begins. It is twenty miles in length, impassable throughout, and inaccessible at the water's edge except at a few points. Its rugged edges are from 200 to 500 yards apart, and its depth is so profound that no sound ever reaches the ear from the bottom. The Grand canon contains a great multitude of hot springs of sulphur, sulphate of copper, alum, etc. In the number and magnitude of its hot springs and geysers, the Yellowstone Park surpasses all the rest of the world. There are probably fifty geysers that throw a column of water to the height of from 50 to 200 feet, and it is stated that there are not fewer than 5,000 springs; there are two kinds, those depositing lime and those depositing silica. The temperature of the calcareous springs is from 160 to 170 deg., while that of the others rises to 200 or more. The principal collections are the upper and lower geyser basins of the Madison river and the calcareous springs on Gardiner's river. The great falls are marvelous to which adventurous travelers have gone only to return and report that they are parts of the wonders of this new American wonderland.

A LECTURER'S EXPERIENCE.

Archibald Forbes, the war correspondent, relates some odd experiences of his while lecturing in Great Britain and this country. Audiences in Great Britain, he says, are very demonstrative, applauding all through and in places where it makes one wonder what there is to be demonstrative about; but American audiences are much more self-restrained and critical. Canadian audiences are super-loyal. While describing in a lecture the illness of the Prince of Wales and the Queen, strolling up and down in front of the house, a tall, gaunt figure arose and, pointing at him a long finger, said: "Stop." Then, facing the audience, he exclaimed: "Ladies and gentlemen! This loyal audience will now sing 'God save the Queen,'" which they did and Forbes went on with his lecture. At its close, and while the motion of a vote of thanks was, as usual, being put to the audience, the same figure moved an amendment which was that "the lecturer be requested to repeat that portion of the lecture referring to our gracious sovereign." And repeat it he did. Several years ago Forbes interviewed a sailor who had subsisted on the bodies of some of his comrades who had with himself been cast away at sea by the burning of their ship. At Dundee some time after a man met him after his lecture, and, asking the lecturer if he remembered him, which Forbes was forced to deny, he said in a hollow, gloomy voice: "Mon, I'm the cannibal." One of Forbes' Chairmen, having got mixed about the lecture list, introduced him as "Charles Bradlaugh, the celebrated English free-thinker and orator." He added that the audience might not agree with all the lecturer might utter, but he thought he could promise him from a New England audience a patient and attentive hearing. Forbes advises lecturers starting out with a comic lecture, of whose success they are not sure, to secure a sleepy-headed Chairman. Once in one of his most pathetic passages, when men should have wept and women fainted, the audience began to guffaw. He turned to the Chairman for protection, when, behold, that worthy was sound asleep and snoring loudly. Forbes woke him up mid the shrieks of the audience and continued all through his lecture to enliven and relieve them by poking the sleepy man up, who fell off again almost immediately when left alone.

PET SQUIRRELS AND THEIR WAYS.

Some time ago a Bennington man set up a private zoological establishment in an unoccupied upper room of his house. He had a bouncing big gray squirrel, a tiny dog weighing two and a half pounds, some half-grown cats, a screech owl and several robins. He turned them loose in the room and they lived peaceably together for some months. One day the man went up to the room to feed his pets. He found the robins in fragments, a wing here and a leg there. The owl was dead and his feathers were strewn over the floor; the dog was shivering in one corner of the room, and the cats had crawled under a low bench. The squirrel was complete master of the premises. More recently the same gentleman had a pair of gray squirrels, which he had kept in a cage. To give them more liberty he took them to an upper room, opened the cage and left them alone. In a few hours he went up again and found that they had destroyed the sash of the four windows of the room by chipping off the "parting strips" clear down to the glass, some of the splinters being six inches long. Another Bennington man was chopping wood on Mount Anthony. He cut down a dead stump, which crumbled when it struck the ground, and exposed six flying-squirrels that were stunned by the shock. In half a minute he had them in his dinner pail. He sold a pair of them to a neighbor, who put them in a bird cage. The next morning they were gone; they had squeezed through the wires in some way. He bought another pair and put them in a stronger cage, and he was as successful as Peter, the pumpkin-eater, with his wife, for "there he kept them very well." Several weeks later his wife took from her wardrobe a valuable silk dress, and was shocked to find it ruined. It was in shreds, and a good deal of the fabric gone. A search resulted in finding a splendid nest of silk under a bureau. It was occupied by the pets that had escaped.—Troy Press.

HE WOULDN'T HAVE IT.

A boy owned a stalwart gander, and he thought it would be a good joke to tie a fish-line to the leg of the gander, with a hook properly baited, and watch the result. So he fixed the gander with a line on one leg about ten feet long, at the end of which was a pickered hook and a frog for bait. The gander was driven into the mill-pond, where he swam around for half an hour, turning flip-flops and diving for food. Suddenly the gander felt a pull at his leg, and he looked as surprised as the "Lone Fisherman" when he caught a whale. The gander seemed to think there was something the matter with him, and he looked down at his feet under the water to see into it. The pickered began to yank, and the gander made up his mind that he was not well and wanted to go home. He started for the shore, but the pickered on the hook wanted to go the other way, and it was nip and tuck for a time. The gander, to those on shore who were watching, seemed frightened, and at times would act as though saying his prayers and asking for mercy, and then he would get mad and try and fly ashore, when the pickered would pull him back. They say it was a fine study to watch the expression of the features of the gander. He seemed to realize that a change was about to come over him, and while he hoped for the best, he seemed to be prepared for the worst. After half an hour of the hardest work he had ever done the gander came ashore and dragged a six-pound pickered up the bank, and the boys took off the pickered and put on another frog, and tried to induce the gander to go and take another swim, but he wouldn't have it. They couldn't drive him in. He looked at them as he ran through between their legs as though saying, "Boys, this may be fun for you, but you have crushed a noble nature. Not any more pickered in mine, if you please," and he flew off toward the barn, squawking as though his heart would break. Since then the gander has never gone into the water.

THE FOX AND THE WOLF.

A Fox who was making a Journey across the country to see his Grandmother once more before she Died discovered a Wolf burying something beside the Highway. He slipped into a fence-corner and waited until the Wolf had passed on, and then crept forward and unearthed the Object, which proved to be a dead chicken.

"Ah, ha!" chuckled Reynard, "this comes from Keeping one's Eyes open as one travels. The Hare would not have seen the Wolf at all, and the Opossum would not have had the Patience to wait for him to move on. It's a Big Joke on the Wolf, and here goes for a square meal."

The Fox devoured his dinner with much smacking of lips, but had scarcely finished when terrible pains began to rack his frame and he fell down in the greatest torment and was soon breathing his last. When the Wolf returned and saw the dead body of Reynard and the feathers of the Chicken scattered around, he scratched his ear and wrote in his diary:

BRAIN-WORK AND BLOOD-SUPPLY.

But, even if it is true that the larger and healthier physique affords more blood for brain use, says Nina Moravia in the Popular Science Monthly, it does not follow that the larger the supply the greater the amount of brain-work possible. The argument assumes that the brain has no limit to its activity except in the quantity of blood that can be prepared for it. But it needs no scientific education to know that there are other influences which limit the thinker's activity, and that these limitations are somewhere in the mysterious recesses of the brain, or in the forces of which the brain is the organ. The physical health of the brain-worker may be perfect, his digestion unimpaired, his power to assimilate food the same, and yet he may not be able to concentrate his thoughts or carry on a complicated train of reasoning.

The defect is not in his body—that is as healthy as ever; nor is it in any part of the processes of blood-making—these go on as before. The trouble lies in the brain itself, whose capacity for work is measured by some hidden standard of its own, and which gives warning when a cessation of brain-work is imperative. The body is a furnace whose power of assuming fuel is greater than the capability of its boiler—the brain—to generate power. To keep the latter in good working condition something more is necessary than building and feeding the fires. A supplementary but important consideration is, whether the steam beyond a certain point will not be productive of unpleasant consequences in the form of an explosion.

HEALTH

At this season the health needs careful attention. The blood being weakened and the system run down, dangerous disease is liable to secure a hold that cannot be easily removed. What at first appears to be but slight indisposition, often develops into troubles that may be incurable.

At this season the liver becomes inactive, the complexion sallow, pimples appear on the skin, dyspepsia and indigestion affect the digestive organs, &c.

What is needed is a complete, reliable and strengthening tonic. Such a medicine is

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which, by its great strengthening powers, diffuses new life in the blood, revitalizes the whole system, giving tone to the stomach, muscles and nerves, effectually relieving all weakness and tendency to lassitude.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is a true tonic which has been thoroughly tried, is made by a reliable firm, and has the hearty endorsement of the medical profession. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, and malaria, and relieve all wasting diseases, such as consumption and kidney affections. Now Lexington is brought disgracefully to the front.

The old soldiers, like autumn leaves are fast being wafted to the great whence.

In ten more days Guiteau will deliver an address filled with lots of good advice to the American citizens, and the sheriff will close the argument with a rope.

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of the lower court, and the murderers Neal and Craft, will hang as soon as Governor Blackburn fixes the day.

MANY farmers in Kentucky wouldn't object now to owning a hundred acres of hogs. They could then afford to go forth to battle with the army worms.

We have it from very good authority, that the Jacobs party tried to buy an endorsement of the colored men in convention at Lexington last week, but it was no go.

Oh, Lord, give us this our weekly hanging and stop the d—n army worms, for Jesus sake, Amen," seems to be the prayer of the faithful over the grand old State now.

An alleged "History of Bourbon, Scott, Harrison and Nicholas Counties," is the title of a new invention of the Devil, and cast into those counties for the purpose of undoing the heavenly work of Bro. Barnes. And the satanic device appears to be only too successful. It seems to have set all the converts to hard swearing, and even the preachers endorse their profanity with unctious "Amen's." That unconverted sinner, Bruce Champ, of the BOURBON NEWS, fairly revels in the misery of the victims of the plutonic plague.—[Breckinridge News.

Where She Started.

We have always been ignorant of exact date and by whom the seeds of secession were first sown, until we opened the history of Bourbon at page 813, in F. L. McChesney's biography. Here is what it says: "He (McChesney) had been educated to believe in the rights of secession, and always aimed to follow his principles wherever they might lead. As far back 1852, when no one dreamed of a dissolution of the union in the Chamberlain Society of Centre College, he made his first speech in debate, in favor of the rights of secession, and, when the proposition was submitted to a vote of the members of the society, his side won the question." Now this does settle that vexed question indeed. Just think of it! Our own townsman being the cause of secession, the bloody fratricidal war! Oh, that he had been shot, or hung in infancy! Yes, 'twould been better had he been burned at the stake, than to have ushered 300,000 souls into eternity, and maimed half a million more, to say nothing about the ten thousand tobacco hogsheads of tears, the innumerable widows and orphans and bursted up love scrapes that inevitably followed the dire calamity! The ghoul's from the graves of dark and bloody battle fields will now henceforth sing in the sad and mournful Katy-did and whip-poor-will requiem, the name of McChesney.

Millersburg Items.

Army worm re-unions are held on every corner by day and night.

Prof. Alex. Redd and wife have gone to Harrison county to spend vacation.

In a match game of base ball here Friday, Carlisle beat Millersburg in a score of 17 to 13.

The exercises of both colleges are said to have been more interesting than usual, this year.

A big rain raised the water on a flat in Charlie Leer's wheat, and drowned all his crop of army worms.

W. H. H. Johnson was fined $15 in police court Friday, for selling cigars on Sunday. He will appeal to a higher court.

The past commencement week was the soberest, quietest, and most interesting that has been had on like occasions for ten years.

At the match game of base ball here Friday, a girl got struck on the back of the head with a ball, and the bawl came out of her mouth.

Both hotels did a booming business the gala week—more so than any previous year. The visitors to private houses, however, were fewer in number.

Ike Johnson's case for shooting John Clark with intent of scaring the life out of him, was called Friday, and Clark not being able to appear as a witness, the case was put off until July 1st.

It is now thought that the cow which walked into Smedley's store, went in there to give him a horn, but "Smed" thought it was a bully good opportunity to take advantage of the temperance movement, steered his way out quickly on his calves.

Frank Champ has been fighting the army worms for eleven days, and has about eight miles of intrenchments. Charlie Clarke and several others also intrenched and fired off countless volleys of profanity in seven different languages.

An old account of Horace Triggs, against Wm. Johnson, Sr., dated 1827, has been handed us. It is credited by 29 lbs of beef, at 12 cents per pound, and 3 bushels of wheat, at 50 cents per bushel. Also, a letter from J. C. Johnson, dated Greenville, Miss., Nov. 27th, 1813, was shown us.

Henry Hunter has been offered 52 acres of land in Pennsylvania, valued at $1,000, for the right of that State on his patent pump. He has written accepting the offer, providing the agent will sell it for $20 per acre, after which he can deduct the $100 commission asked for making the exchange.

Wm Nourse and a corps of painters from Cynthiana, has just completed their artistic touches on J. G. Smedley's handsome residence. It is said by many critics who have been away from home, to be the handsomest job of painting in the town. Triggs and Brown were the carpenters, and reflected much credit upon themselves for their execution of the wood work.

Friday evening closed the commencement exercises of the week, of the Female College. There were seventeen graduates. The hall was as usual, crowded to overflowing, and the exercises were of increased interest. The elocutionary exercises of Friday morning, were particularly interesting. There were seven competitors for the medal. Miss Allie Wilson, of Texas, bore away the proud honors.

The following are the graduates of Millersburg Female College this year: From Texas—Misses Emma Duncan, B. Yelverton, Zuma Waters, Fannie Jones, Allie Wilson, Sallie Neal, Alla Wynn, and the Misses Johnson. From Kentucky—Misses Ella Harber, Dixie Bohon, Annie Russell, Lucie Sparks, Tillie Littlejohn and Sallie McIntyre. From West Virginia—Miss Eva Garrett. From Louisiana—Miss Camilla F. Lachs. Thirteen gold medals were in various departments of study.

The wire links us to the Licks. We can now "tell-a-funny" thing or two to the pleasure seekers.

Methodist Conference meets here in September. Our women are preparing for it, by setting all hens not otherwise engaged.

Geore Powers of this place, has laid out and chartered a town in Bath county, opposite Sherburne, which he calls Hargis.

The Christian Church has been "utterly uttered," and is now so re-fitted that Oscar would go Wilde with delight were he to see it.

The City election passed into history Saturday—Judge Lon Mann is now Mayor. "Sancho, 'dod-rat-it' bring out my four-in-hand!"

A gemmen of color voted in two wards on Saturday. He will be sent up after Mr. Barnes' meeting is over. Isn't willing to go before.

Vennor likens our summer to the ham in a restaurant sandwich. Correct—but the ham's strong and filled with skippers, i, e, army worms.

The army worm is still on the "march-to the C"—rn and wheat. There are short-lived and the rapidity with which they are transformed will "beat-l."

Henry Green is to have a train of yellow coaches. How very appropriate. Travelers who are usually "blue," in "yellow" coaches, makes "Green" come in right.

During the recent storms several persons in this locality have been thunderstruck at the way their gardens have been leveled and their truck patches washed out.

Some idiots ought to start a Guiteau Monumental Association and place the lunatic from Powell at the head of it—there's a power in his name that would raise money rapidly.

The temperance question got mixed up in the City election Saturday. Some of our temperance men wind up at temperance meetings but run down or break a main-spring before election day.

Since Webster & Fisher lost their grip on the Mercury, they have plenty of loose cash on which they are paying interest and which they would like to loan out on a cut-throat mortgage or invest in a county right for a patent reversible-double-back-acting farm gate, or "suthin' o' the like."

Jim Mitchell, colored, who outraged Mrs. Thomas near Mt. Sterling last week, was taken from the jail and hung by a mob.

The last issue of the Yeoman contained eighty-four items about Brother Barnes. This will furnish "notes" for the Kentuckian all summer.

Mr. A. J. Ewing, of Owingsville, is "laying up treasures in heaven." He has been selling corn to the poor of Bath county at sixty cents per bushel, when the market price was $1.25.

The Yeoman says the greatest work of Brother Barnes' life was in the prison on Sunday last. "Out of forty female convicts there were forty confessions, and all of them were in tears; out of 500 male convicts the were nearly four hundred confessions, and many were in tears."

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

COL. L. T. FOSTER.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, MAY 10TH, 1880.
 B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly; he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other, which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to send for it; they ordered three bottles, I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, and used according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it. Very Respectfully,
 L. T. FOSTER.

Send for Illustrated Circular which gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy ever met with such success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man. Price $1. per bottle or six bottles for $5. Ayer's Hair Vigor,

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brassy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce Dan. Bowden, of the Headquarters precinct, a candidate for Assessor of Nicholas County—subject to the action of the Democracy in Primary Election.

You may kiss me and caress me, but I will say no; I will say no! —[CONKLING.]

ONCE again the green grass woes the buffalo over the border and Sitting Bull grows restless in the white man's hall.

WHEN H. W. BEECHER had a fit in his lecture before his Chicago audience, it was a wonder that his pockets didn't get rifled.

THE crowning of the Czar of Russia, is announced to take place in May, provided somebody doesn't remove the place to put the crown on.

HON. JOSEPH C. CANNON, of Illinois, expressed his opinion a few days ago, that, of all the States in Union, Kentucky has the ablest representatives in Congress.

Gov. BLACKBURN has respited the sentence of NEAL and CRAFT, until a full investigation of their cases may be had. He is satisfied that ELLIS, the unlimited liar, is guilty.

THE New York Times is trying to raise a howl about "Rebel Brigadier rule" in Kentucky. The Times ought not to hook on to every thing it sees published in the Louisville Commercial.

If there is a Union Democrat in Bourbon county who will support the McHENRY movement, he has not yet been heard from. If one doesn't speak up in a few days, we'll offer a special premium for the sight of one.

Gov. BLACKBURN recognizes the fact that gambling will be practiced anyhow, and is in favor of licensing the houses and throwing them open for inspection—thereby shutting up out many dark and dangerous dens.

MANY of the counties throughout the State, have passed an effective dog law. If the prominent stock men of Bourbon want to be protected, it is time that they were petitioning our Representative to put a bill through for them.

THE bloody animosities of man, and the indiscriminate bowels punching with the bayonet, is that "highest court known to civilized people," according to that JACOBITE platform erected of uncertain timber, at Louisville, last week.

ATTEMPTS of violence against the Queen of England are punishable with bruised backs three times, three years imprisonment, or banishment for seven years. Al together a crank. McLEAN will probably be speedily punished for his recent attack.

THE President, it seems, will have a hard time in finding a man that will accept the vacant Supreme Judgeship. CONKLING and EDMONDS have both declined it. Let him turn his eyes on old Kentucky once, and he'll find a dozen men who wouldn't turn their backs on the offer.

A NEGRO jumped from the bridge at Frankfort Saturday and was killed. As he took the fatal leap he shouted in a very tragic manner: "Down with the tyrants." It is uncertain as yet whether he simply wished to express his indignation at the Legislature and then die, or whether he felt that he himself was a tyrant who should be downed. —[Louisville Post.]

THE Legislature has been in session over three months, with five dollars a day each for the members, including free rides, free whisky and an abundance of fame, and nothing outside of a little local legislation has been enacted. Our constitution ought to be so amended as to give the magistrates of each county full control over local legislation. Then the legislature could get through with all the important heavy work in thirty days. How long will it take Kentucky to awaken to the fact that they are fifty years behind other States?

Several ticket holders and dreamers of numbers that would win, are patiently waiting for Mr. Whippis to arrange his accounts and remit a pro rata. Perhaps after all, this was a bold financial enterprise of the champion shootist.

An incipient, though mysterious fire occurred at Thomas Thorn's a few days since. A flour barrel and some clothing that were in a closet were badly burned. How the flame originated or how quenched no one knows. It must have originated from instantaneous sponification.

Three fish were caught in Bellmont, Hickman county, one day last week, which weighed, respectively, 105, 110 and 114 pounds. A gentleman took a skiff and rowed into the parlor of a hotel, at the same place, and caught a fish that weighed seventy-five pounds. —[Clinton Democrat.]

Muhlenberg county has a calf with a small round head like a country editor, and has but one eye, which is located in the center of the forehead. It's ears are underneath the neck, but the body is well formed.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY BOURBON NEWS has floated out on the sea of rural journalism at Paris. It is a sprightly little sheet and deserves a good patronage. The editor proposes to become a willing ax-man in tall timber and earn a reward by the sweat of his pencil. —[Louisville Commercial.]

MISS JULIA A. HUNT, in "Florine" last evening held her large and appreciative audience spell-bound during the entire performance. She was very ably supported, and her costumes were rich and elegant. With the possible exception of Maysville, the telegraph office at this place pays better than any other on the road and yet the Western Union company is too niggardly to pay an operator, leaving this for a quarter paid ticket agent. It's a pity people are compelled to patronize them.

In-as-much as this is my first effort at journalistic literature, your subscribers in this vicinity must overlook my inaccuracies. It may take a week or two to discover what pleases them. Ayer's Hair Vigor,

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brash, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

THE GREAT EVANGELIST.
We view the Rev. Geo. O. Barnes as an intellectual man; a man of unequalled zeal and fidelity to the cause he has espoused, and one who is filled with Christ like simplicity and love. We repeat, a more earnest and devoted man any one topic or theme suggests his scholarly and superior to that of any other. A little superior to the ordinary theorist. He is terse, and in his arguments, which are generally the plain, unvarnished deductions from the Gospel, backed if needs be, by the highest authority in the dead languages. His teachings in the main, harmonize with those of the Christian world—save the powers of healing bodily ills. That part of his doctrine will have to be accepted by the calm, deliberate and reasoning portion of the world, as the whim of a hallucinarian. The Christian world, backed by the small following of infidelism, stands ready to offer its cool millions of followers as well as dollars, just for one little miracle. Until that is performed satisfactorily, his scheme of salvation will be viewed with great doubt, for, as he claims, the work cannot be left half finished, by his just and unbiased God.

A few unthinking men have tartly denominated him as a "crank," which is illiberal and unjust. No doubt but John Calvin, John Wesley, Barton Stone, Alexander Campbell and other advanced thinkers and reasoners of their day, were so denominated. Who can tell but in the course of ten or fifteen years hence what this strange new doctrine may lead to? Has not the champion of the new cause already numbered more than 30,000 followers in the small field of the State of Kentucky alone in less than six years? There are at present thousands of men adrift at sea without helm or rudder, who are too liberal for the theological traces, and too sensible to tumble into the whirlpool of infidelity, that are ripe and ready to grasp at any cheap milk and water solution of salvation that will enlist them on the guerilla warfare plan, that furlough it's soldiers at will, and let them fight where they please, or not fight at all.

We are forced to conclude, therefore, that the BARNES movement is no small thing to be jeered and sneered at, and sooner or later, even with the load of that fallacious doctrine of Faith Cure, whether stimulated by magnetic or will power, or hocus-pocus processes, will soon be numbered as one of the sects of the nineteenth century.

SOCIETY SCINTILLATIONS.
Love is a great deal like the small pox. It is hard to determine at first whether it is the genuine or the varioloid. Never throw up the sponge; but let him alone, and he will throw up himself, when he overloads his beer tank. Our good deeds rarely cause much gossip among our fellow citizens, but our evil ones immediately into notoriety. The science of life may be thus epitomized—To know the price of time, the value of things, and the worth of people. He who is always inquiring what people will say, will never give them an opportunity of saying anything great about him. That Frenchman in the Mammoth Cave is doing an underground piece of work toward his competitors, in the mushroom. The only way by which capital can increase is by saving. If you spend as much as you get, you will never be richer than you are. There is no time in a man's life when he is so great as when he cheerfully bows to the necessity of his position, and makes the best of it. The happiness of the human race in this world does not consist in our being devoid of passions, but in our learning to command them. One principal point of good breeding is to suit our behavior to the three severest degrees of man—our superiors, our equals, and those below us. A very tony cutter from a Lexington tailor's shop, was in town Sunday, wearing a pants so tight that it required an act from the Legislature to put him in them. We are free to assert that Mr. Barnes is no inspired man, although with much candor we confess that the music made by Miss Marie and himself, borders much on our imaginations of the inspired. It is truly divinely sweet and pathetically sad, and is possessed of a weird fascination that is calculated to melt a heart of stone. It is worth coming miles to hear.

WALLACE GRUELLE frankly asserts that he has a full share of vanity, but promises not to die of grief in case he doesn't get to go to Congress.

VENNOR, Tice and all the small fry prophets are suffused with shame. The plebian goose-bone forecast the weather this spring more accurately than any of them.

A gas generator for a soda fount went through the roof of a house in Maysville, and the big-eyed negro who was monkeying with it will not be rallied before the circus and watermelon time.

A colored baby was found securely wrapped and asleep, in the yard of one of the families at Shakerstown. The owner was discovered after a short search, and was forced to take it back and care of it.

A Daviess county man was driven from his residence by high water, and took refuge on a hill-top, where, building an ordinary pen, he occupied it for a dwelling. While there his wife gave birth to a boy baby, which was named "Moses."

SKOBELEFF may have been off his base when he made that warlike speech to the Servain students, but he was evidently perpendicular and in good shape when he declared that the French people would "fight like devils" against Germany, if once let loose.

BARNES, the Evangelist, is speaking daily to crowded houses and holds his audience spell-bound. We regret such prejudice as we have arrayed against him here, to wit: "My Friends, guard well yourselves to-day, (Sunday,) and your children, and I want to see you all in your respective pews to-night." O such charity! Such Christians would rather see the community go to hell than to Heaven through any other channel than their own church. We would most cordially recommend them to this passage of Scripture, "If you love those only that love you, what credit do you deserve? Devils do the same thing." Weigh this passage, good Christians, before you give utterance to biased notions again.

A LARGE CAVE has recently been discovered near Leithfield, Grayson county, Kentucky, which is said to be the largest cave on earth, and being filled with Egyptian relics, such as mummies, Masonic emblems, &c., it is claimed that this marvel of wonder will furnish a key by which can be unlocked the mystery of the pre-historic race, and prove their identity with the ancient Egyptian race, who undoubtedly crossed over, peopled this continent, built temples, and flourished in a high degree of civilization, and were finally wiped out of existence by the inhabitants of India and China, whose population of millions have degenerated into the savage race known as the American Indians. It is claimed that the Egyptians sought refuge in this and many other caves, and died in the last ditch, bravely defending civilization.

AROUND THE CIRCLE.
Richmond wants a $40,000 hotel. A white mole has been caught in Grayson county. Cloverport will start a spoke factory—so spoke Gruelle. The present Legislature costs the State nearly $1,000 a day. Only one case of small-pox reported in Covington, last week.

CARLISLE DEPARTMENT.
J. D. Burnaw, of Bell, Miller & Co., has just recovered from mumps and malarial fever. Our city is ripe for a Barnes outpouring of the spirit, and the general salvation of pine knots. Rev. H. M. Scudder will start to Pine Bluffs, Ark., next Monday to assist the Rev. J. A. Dickson, formerly pastor of the Millersburg Presbyterian church, in a protracted meeting. Smith & Veach, the enterprising clothiers, have been presented by the Khedive of Egypt, one of his 2,000-year-old obelisks. The young men being possessed with an undue amount of enterprise, have up-ended it and painted in Oscar Wilde colors, a glowing, glaring sign, and placed upon its pinnacle, the star of Bethlehem. The first impression of a stranger is, that a jumbo-reed steamboat is anchored, and begging for freight, but on closer examination, the illusion is expelled.

THEOLOGICAL.
Eld. Riney, of Maysville, preached on "Law and Lawyers," Sunday. At Midway Rev. Henry Williams, colored evangelist, settled the hash for his brother John by dealing him several apostolic blows over the head. The dispute was about some property. Dr. Guerrant has been compelled to leave his evangelistic work at Harrodsburg, on account of sickness in his family. One hundred and nine have made confessions at his meeting. If man or woman either, wishes to realize the full power of personal beauty, it must be by cherishing noble hopes and purposes, by having something to do and something to live for.

Hashualities.
J. W. Jacob, of Covington, was here Saturday looking into the whiskey interests. Frank Bedford, Jr., of this county, will wed Miss Sallie Goodlee, of Lexington, tomorrow. Four protracted meetings now in progress. Methodist, Baptist, Christian (each colored) and the Barnes meeting. Praise the Lord. At the Christian Church Sunday, the audience was larger than usual, and at night one joined the church, and one took membership. The body of a much-decomposed infant, bearing marks of violence, was found in a box, in the garden of Mrs. Kitty Brown, of this city, on Sunday. At the children's service of Mr. Barnes' meeting at the Court House, Sunday afternoon, fifty-two children ranging from six to twelve years of age, joined. Prof. George W. Parsons, of Milford, Bracken county, came up Friday to visit his parents. He leaves this week to take charge of another school there. Charlie Leer and wife, Dick Marsh, Charlie Turner, Bob Goggins, and a small boy, joined the Barnes movement last night, making in all sixty-four confessions. JAMES T. TALBOT, president of the Millersburg, Indian Creek & Cyuthiana turnpike, desires the stock-holders to meet at the Colville school house, the 2nd of April, to elect officers. Mrs. Carrie Croxton, widow of the late General Croxton, died near this city, on yesterday, of pneumonia. The funeral services will take place at her late residence, at 2 o'clock to-day. Services at the grave by J. M. Thomas. There has been found on Snell Shawhan's farm, a black suit of clothes, almost new, marked C. Tobin, made by F. H. Blaise. There was a watch and chain, pen-knife and a nickel in the pockets. Mr. Shawhan thinks the party was crazy who stripped out of them. COL. CRADDOCK, the veteran old sinner from the "Halls of Montezuma," was the first to confess the Savior under the Barnes plan of salvation, and he was quickly followed by Roe Leer, on Saturday afternoon. Everybody thought Craddock was joking when he announced in his paper that morning that he would join.

SOMETHING new in Cards is the sending of them as a remembrance the joyful time of Easter-tide. The cards are in appropriate designs and are in appearance something similar to the Christmas and New Year Cards being trimmed in exquisite silk fringe made expressly for Prang & Co., publishers of the Cards. They can be bought at Charley McCarthy's.

Millersburg Department.
[All items of news worthy of publication, will be cheerfully received by Harlan Vimont, or Harmon Stitt who are our authorized prowlers for this department.—Ed.]
The report that Uncle Dave Judy would send Will to Louisville to run the Willard Hotel is untrue. Blue grass farms are below par in this vicinity. Merchants desire No-land and tobacco men want Barnes. W. McCray has opened up an auction store in the room lately occupied by Jack Hitt, for a furniture emporium. It is said that the marriage of a Millersburg lady to a Bourbon county gentleman, will, ere long, surprise the society circles. Jeff. M. Vimont, is assisting J. E. Miller in his selection of graded cattle. Those two men couple lots of brains and money. Miss Ida Collier can please a multitude of young folks by throwing open her elegant parlors and halls for a cordial dance. The stone fence at the old "grave yard" being down in several places, town cows wander at will over the resting of our forefathers. Such is the end of life. H. H. Hunt says this is positively his last engagement. He starts for Denver on the 25th next month, to accept a more lucrative position. Success to you Hunt. A young lady claims that Tode Roby and Rube Boulden are color blind, because they think their items are read when everyone knows they are not. Gay and festive young men are now casting their eyes about for a showy horse and side-bar buggy in order that they may take part in the Sunday races next June. James C. Miller, Jr., and John Hamilton stand aloof from tobacco growers. They claim that the plant will ruin the soil and above all will net no more, on the long run, than other crops. Joseph Nesbitt, has removed from Paris to his farm near this place, and John will embark in the tombstone business. Not being able to make both ends "meat" they closed their butcher's shop. Cynthia and Paris were both well represented in Millersburg Sunday. The young men from both cities looked very well indeed, and, no doubt, succeeded in creating favorable impressions. The two saddle colored females who parade the streets at night, are indecent in both their behavior and appearances. They seem to be within the pail of the law; although within the pail of crime. Miss Effie Wadell left for Mayslick Saturday where she will engage in school teaching; or scholar teaching, as the case may be. In this manner does Millersburg exert an influence on the rising generation. The K. C. may complain of having to borrow the old rolling stock of other roads with which to make up the trains but the impression in this vicinity is that the K. C. selected the oldest of the rolling stock she borrowed to place on the M. & L. branch. Tom Vimont, being so delighted with the West, has written for Henry to come out to Colorado and engage in business with him. Like the sensible fellow that he is, Henry has decided to go; rightly considering the "great undeveloped" the proper place for young men. The protracted services at the Methodist church are still in progress, and an increasing interest manifested. Rev. Noland is very popular with those not member of the church. He thinks there are many kind-hearted, intelligent, though erratic, men outside of the church and deals with reason, not abuse, appeals to ones manhood instead of attempting to awaken latent fear. Prof. Bristow is a splendid singer but that old fashioned, soul stirring, congregational singing, is better adapted to protracted meetings is a truth so extremely trite none will deny. Professor's singing is imbued with more of the spirit of a seductive waltz than heartfelt praise to a Deity. At times a song is as good as a prayer; but it should be sung slowly, impressively and with the understanding!

Ayer's

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only precursors of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration. It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrops" and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinine, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. Ayer's Ague Cure thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack. For Liver Complaints, Ayer's Ague Cure, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition. We warrant it when taken according to directions. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Our ideas of the true Gospel have always been that it's wholly a gospel of love.

We would like to have just about half of Mr. Barnes' insanity. We would then make the News a Semi-Daily.

The old infidels from different portions of the county, are finding much consolation in the BARNES revival.

If BILL JONES' case had to come before an army court-martial, it would behoove him to cut out for tall timber.

The tow-boat Aetna turned her boilers loose near Point Pleasant, on the Kanawha river Wednesday, and sent several souls into eternity.

ALL the sermons of MR. BARNES are like the rays from a locomotive headlight—all centering to the source of the life and light of love from whence they sprang.

THE Legislature has exempted the Green-Harris jury from jury service for ten years. They should also be exempted from work in the harvest fields, and all manner of rail-mauling.

THE Cincinnati Saturday Night thinks that in the settlement of the Sprague divorce case, as Mrs. Sprague takes the girls and Mr. Sprague the boy, Coakling should have the shot gun.

Those who have said that MR. BARNES was crazy, should remember what Paul said when he was similarly accused—"I am not mad, most noble Festus, but speak forth words of wisdom."

From the late letters published, it now appears that GARFIELD wasn't such a model of frankness and honor after all. The letters too, appear to be pretty firmly substantiated as being original.

MRS. YOUNG of Bowling Green, Kentucky, has given birth to two sets of twins inside of twelve months. DITTEE, of the State Journal, says "that's too too entirely two two, and she's a Young woman, too."

SERGEANT MASON acted very wrong in shooting at GUTEAU, but it seems that a dismissal from the service and eight years' imprisonment is too hard a sentence. After a short term in prison, the President ought to pardon him.

An anti-have-more-than-one-wife bill has been passed by Congress, by a vote of 199 yeas to 42 nays, for the benefit of Utah. Those who have more than one, will soon have an opportunity of selling off a few to those who have none. It is remarkably strange that 42 votes cast against the bill were Democrats.

MR. BARNES is one of the most talented expounders of the Gospel that it has been our good fortune to hear, but when he bucks up against science, in laying all bodily ills or the turbulent character of the winds to the devil, he strikes a stumbling block that shatters that portion of his theory to atoms. In the beginning of time, nature established certain laws to govern bodily health, the movements of planets, the weather, &c., &c. Science has proven successfully for ages, that he who violates a health law of nature, will certainly have to pay the fixed penalty for that law. Science has also given remedies for repairing the damages of those who violate those laws.

Millersburg Department.

[All items of news worthy of publication will be cheerfully received by Harlan Vincent, or Harmon Stitt who are our authorized purveyors for this department.—Ed.]

The green grass grows all around.

Some portions of Pleasant street need repairing.

Miss Ida Collier is in Maysville and Miss Rena Piper in Carlisle.

Thus far this month there have been 658 arrivals at the two hotels.

The meeting of Amity Lodge F. A. M., last Monday evening was well attended.

Col. Thomas Oliver is assisting Harry Conway to expedite business. The Col. adds dignity to the place.

Billie Victor says that the report he is soon to be married, is a campaign lie.

Harrison Johnson bought the Ingles & Warren shop adjoining his premises, for $300.

Dr. G. D. Judy has bought the old Conway drug store building from Dr. Hurst, for $800, cash, and will open out new drug store in a few days.

Several coons while away the Lord's day playing cards on the "green sward, beneath the calm sky and by still water. Especially the "still water."

J. G. Smedley and J. G. Allen are both in New York buying goods. Two more thorough business men will not visit the Metropolis.

Allie Yelton is the name the of youthful telegraph operator at this place. Allie is no "ham" (speaking after manner of operators) and is very gentlemanly.

It is quite probable that a new force of men will manipulate things at the big distillery. Charlie Gorham and one or two others, are the remaining oaks.

Call it "Praise the Lord" if you want to, but that wasn't what some Millersburg people felt like doing Tuesday night, when the tardy K. C. was four hours behind time.

The religion they are dealing out down here will make a person an accomplished contortionist. For proof of this ask any one who heard the noise on the street Tuesday night.

S. C. Carpenter has returned from the South. He says high water is playing sad havoc down there, and many traders are buying stock in the South, intending to ship it up here.

Ed. S. Hedges has returned from Cincinnati where he has been to lay in a supply of clothing for the Spring and Summer trade. Ed. 'tis rumored, also, that you visited Hannibal while absent—guilty or not guilty?

A Nicholas county man spake a parable saying: "F i had a old plug, and wanted tobacco, I'd give her mane a twist. F that didn't make her sweat, I'd pipe out to her and make her sweat. Give me a leaf to try yer plug."

John Hensley, a brakeman making his first trip down the road this morning on the freight, fell from the train and broke one leg near the ankle, dislocated one arm, and severely injuring his head by striking it against a stone fence. He is supposed to be fatally injured, and is in an insensible condition. A letter found on his person was from his sister, of Missouri.

Too much can not be said in praise of Rev. William Noland. He is a gentleman by birth, a scholar by credentials a Christian in theory and practice. The sensible, consequently gentlemanly, manner in which he presents his views, is really refreshing. He knows the old fear plan is absolute, and abuse renders the sinners stubborn—that reason is what everyone wants. Every one will regret his departure.

Laura Bradley, a grass-widow, of the color of a briarwood pipe, was sitting in her domicile a few days ago, thinking of her ex-husband. While thus dreaming the contents of a pistol were discharged through the orifice in her edifice, the ball taking effect in the back of a chair in which Laura was sitting. Laura raised the natives with her yells and said it was her ex-husband, her own ex-dear Jack, who fired that would be fatal bullet. Verily Jack is the gentleman who frightened Laura.

G. W. Bryan has sent for an expert in the scene painting business and will soon have new scenery at his hall.

Dear Mr. Bristow: Every one admits that you are a good singer; but they won't like you a bit if you get up a corner on singing. Sing low; sing slow; sing some old familiar hymn. Keep your head and hands and eyes still. Other members of the choir understand music. Don't monopolize; don't drown out. It's all right to sing "I wish my Savior was yours" but sinners will accept him more readily if he is endorsed by the multitude. Besides when one man sings "I wish my Savior was yours" people are apt to think that the man has hold of something he wants to get rid of. How do you suppose Mr. Wesley would appear pumping away on a reed organ and singing the Doxology to the tune of "Baby Mine" or the "Blue Danube," while a congregation of dying sinners were sitting back looking at him.

CARLISLE DEPARTMENT.

Dan Morris, of this county is the happy father of another daughter.

Lelian, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Potts, died Tuesday night. She had been sick only a short time, having taken sick Monday.

Mr. J. O. Atchison, who has been the proprietor of the St. Cloud Hotel here, but now of the Reese House Mt. Sterling, is here crowding up his business.

A snuff colored individual attempted to monopolize the depot and passenger train platform, when his head came in contact with something hard and he sat down. Capt. Jno. Martin didn't hurt his fist.

"Whoa Emma," "Sweet bye and bye," and other "aesthetic" melodies were ground off by an organ grinder on his aesthetic organ on our streets last Wednesday, and in our despair we were forced to cry—

"Oh! for a good breech loader, Loaded full of shot, To kill that terrible grinder And make the d—n thing stop."

Oscar Johnson started home court day and just as he got in front of the court house, a horse that was standing near, playfully thrust his hind foot through one of the front wheels of his wagon, and proceeded to demolish it on the improved plan, which made Oscar look "Wilde." (The price of this pun is fifty "sense.")

"ARMY."

The Maysville Republican says "the Republican party of Kentucky is cursed with dissensions growing out of the distribution of the spoils."

A Fleming county man sells coal at 16 cents per bushel cash, or $2.50 on time; the purchaser to give a sociable note with iron-bound double-upper security.

Coleman Wallace, of Irvine, was shot through the stomach by a negro named George Glover. It will take an abundance of faith and medical science to save him.

Miss Willie Bowman, daughter of Col. C. E. Bowman, of Frankfort, took a large dose of morphine thro' mistake for quinine, last Saturday evening, and has since been in a critical condition.

Bruce Champ has a host of friends up here who wish him most ardently big success in his new venture of a semi-weekly. His first issue reads splendidly, and shows it has a man of brains, will and energy behind it.—[Squire Mitchell in Kentuckian.]

Wm. Byron, a farmer near Mayslick, did not read the newspapers enough to learn not to blow a gas light out, but tried the beautiful experiment on at Maysville, and was just discovered in time to be rescued from the glories of the great sweet future.

JOHN SULLIVAN, who recently whipped Paddy Ryan and thereby became the champion of America in the prize ring, offers to fight any man in America for $10,000.—[Exchange.]

We'll bet that Mr. Barnes can knock the devil out of him in three rounds.

The Bourbon News has been moved from Millersburg, and has made its appearance in Paris as a semi-weekly. Mr. Champ seems to be possessed of the necessary amount of pluck and energy to make it a success in the form, and will do so if the people will come to his help as they should. Our best wishes are extended.—[Blue Grass Clipper.]

WE STOP THE PRESS TO SAY:

The devil's on the run.

Ben Paton says "He's a daisy."

CALL at this office and buy a good rifle cheap.

Tom Costello, the pretty milliner drummer, is in town.

Frank Armstrong will make the grand rush about Sunday.

Dr. Charlie Fithian will put in his best licks ushering Sunday.

Col. Stoner and Col. Clay have been caucusing against the devil.

The devil has been getting some solid shots here, and the best thing he can do would be to vamoose.

Miss Julia Dennis, of Richmond, Ky. is the guest of her sister at the Bourbon Female College.

The brakeman who got hurt by falling from the freight train at Millersburg, died last night at 11 o'clock.

The devil wears a clam-hammer coat, white choke-rag, and asks people: "Have you been BORN AGAIN?"

Virgil M. Ogden died of consumption, in Marietta, Ga., on Wednesday, and his remains will arrive here to-day for interment.

The News does not want any credit customers. The Cincinnati Enquirer is cash in advance, and so are all other good papers.

The reason that Zacheus climbed that sycamore tree, was that he couldn't see Jesus for the "press." Is it possible that Craddock was there?

This Barnes meeting has wrought a very softening influence on several flocks here, and it will take all summer for their shepherds to harden their hearts to the theological standard again.

Murphy, a horse-trainer at Lexington, was on a crazy drunk, flourished a pistol around, fired one shot which barely missed Conductor Mc Michael, of the Big Sandy Road, and finally struck him in the corner of the eye with the pistol point, and severely wounded him, at the Phoenix hotel in Lexington, yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effective remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are especially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

TOMBSTONE, Arizona, has 500 gamblers among its population. Wouldn't that be daisy of a place for prosecuting attorney Bristol?

Among the great men who have died within the last twelve months are Garfield, Longfellow, Darwin, Emerson, Vanderbilt, Jesse James and Colorado Jim.

The excitement over the sudden decease of the lion, J. James, of Missouri, has apparently subsided. But it is understood that Governor Crittenden does not go out after dark.

If Congress should adjourn with outcheapening the price of whisky, the happy moonshiner will continue to be the evied man of the common people in Eastern Kentucky.

GEN. JOE SHELBY says Jesse James was a delegate to the Chicago convention from Mississippi, under the name of Johnson, and Governor Crittenden is inclined to credit the story.

TEXAS farmers send forth the alarm that the caterpillars have attacked their wheat. What is the matter with the gay festive grasshopper that he can't work all that territory himself?

BILL NYE, editor of the Laramie Boomerang, sells his paper at $2. for one year, or $2.00 for 1,000 years. Special terms to post-masters and postal clerks: $150 for 200 years, and a lock of hair and size of coffin worn by each subscriber required.

Some thieves at Harrisburg, Penn., not only stole the all provisions in a house the other night, but carried off half a ton of coal without arousing the family. Those thieves are supposed to be from Paris, Ky., where a car load of coal was carried off in sacks in one night.

CAPT. STOKES, a Tennessee fisherman, became so engrossed in his sport that he did not fight off the pests called buffalo gnats, and their bites were so numerous and poisonous that he died from the effect. We suggest that a few of those gnats be imported and distributed along all the fishing streams in Bourbon.

A TERRIBLE cyclone passed over Mason and Lewis counties last week. Several houses in the suburbs of Maysville were wrecked, and several tobacco barns and tenement houses were destroyed. In the county it took up in the air and killed a fine stallion and jack for Amos Means, and uprooted full-grown trees and tore down barns, doing immense damage.

EX-STATE Senator Cunningham, of Paris, Bourbon county, Ky., is talked of for Judge of the Superior Court of this district. He is an excellent lawyer, of a judicial turn of mind, and an eminently just man; beset with no idiosyncrasies or prejudices to warp his decisions, if elected to the Judgeship of the Superior Court. His qualifications are second to no candidate for the position. Bourbon has always stood by Fayette; other things being equal, Fayette should stand by Bourbon.—[Lexington Transcript.]

ELDER J. W. McGarvey writes like a man with only one kidney and no liver. He has garnered a lot of distorted facts, malicious lies, and ignorant misrepresentations from a strange and peculiar people and unscrupulous reporters, and has sifted the conglomerated mass through an old worn out sectarian sieve, and has given foal to a mongrel pup—a dogma dog with one eye and one nostril, that can't see or scent a gospel fact except in Mr. Campbell's little covey which he has huddled and kept a point on all his life. He slings mud at Mr. Barnes and his thousands of admiring friends and followers in a very unkind and unjust way. He did not visit Paris, Cynthia or Georgetown and investigate like all true and logical men should before foaling a jamboreed conglomeration of opinions, but issued a dogma as before stated, and toppled over Mr. Barnes' mode of salvation by attempting to refute the statement of "Accept Jesus as your Savior as best you can." His deduction is, of course, "accept him as best you cannot." This is but a sample of his arguments, but it will suffice to show the character of his little edict. He also berates the evangelist because he does not establish church edifices and ring associations for the purpose of supporting thousands of young chuckleheads in luxuriance, for the express purpose of injecting Puritanism, superstitions and dogmas terrorizing with fear and cowardice, in lieu of thoughts abundant with love, respect and reason.

We will here dismiss the theme, and in closing will say that Mr. McGarvey has many friends and followers here in and out of the fold, that are shocked at his hasty and unkind conclusion, which was deduced from such an unfair and biased standpoint. We hope that he will go and hear Mr. Barnes through an entire series of sermons, and deal with him as a large-hearted, bold investigator should, whether it suits his early theological training or not.

A SERMON on sectarianism was preached last Sunday in town. The orator persecuted all others but his own—good fellow that—acts upon the Chinese principle "persecute all others and plunder your own." What a comment upon Christianity.

Carlisle Items.

Mrs. John Gray died Saturday, after a lingering illness.

Andy Fanning got struck on the head with a club, by James Delaney, and agonized in spasms for several days.

A dispatch from Carlisle to the Enquirer has the following: A sawmill located on the farm of Benjamin Gore, sen., one mile east of here, blew up with terrific violence just before noon to-day, killing Daniel Delaney, the engineer, outright, and bruising up several others, but not seriously. The mill was the property of James Collier, of Millersburg, Ky., and is a complete wreck. Too much steam was the cause of the explosion. The engineer tied rocks to the escape valve to get more steam. Delaney was blown just 270 feet from where he was standing when the accident occurred. He was well and favorably known through the county, and leaves a wife and six children at his home near the Lower Blue Lick Springs. Fragments of the wreck were found near a quarter of a mile from the scene of the disaster, and the main part of the boiler, weighing about two thousand lbs., passed through the air about five feet from the ground, going directly over the head of Benjamin Gore, sen., who was leaning over, boring in a log, a fragment knocking the auger violently out of his hand, and stunning him, and struck the side of a hill, plowing up the ground for some twenty yards, landing fully five hundred feet from the mill. Another piece, passing over the heads of two of Mr. Gore's sons threw them violently into a branch some 20 feet away, bruising them to some extent.

Mr. John G. Blair, a well-known farmer and politician of this county, was sitting on a log within thirty feet of the boiler when it blew up, and was not hurt in any way, save a little bruise on his hand. A four-horse team used to haul logs was standing near, and ran off, demolishing the wagon and injuring themselves considerably. Over a hundred persons from town visited the wreck in the course of two hours after it occurred. This is the second boiler explosion, attended with loss of life, in this vicinity within three years.

They are supposed to be the same party who called at Hutchinson about twelve o'clock p. m. and called for oysters and cartridges but would come in. After leaving Hutchinson they went toward the Maysville pike firing several shots around the house of A. F. Corbin, and Anthony Thomas, cold, and proceeded to the house of Bev. W. Dorsey and threw rocks and fired several shots into the house, and also mashed the windows of the house occupied by John Powell, cold.

THE BAZOO

Published at Sedalia, MO., By J. West Goodwin.

It is to-day the only Journal in the United States called "BAZOO," named by its founder, from the Cherokee Indian language, and signifies "Much Wind." This paper owns a Telegraph franchise, which fills its columns daily with the cream of the news from coast to coast, and from the North Pole to the Everglades of Florida. Bits of Sensation, the best of Short Sermons, and full details of weddings, deaths and Crime, finds a special artist always near, to give the world through the medium of the most skilled and cheery reporters that can be employed for love or money, or both, the news just as it is, without color or exaggeration.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brassy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Two dollars in advance, pays for a years' subscription to this paper, but it does not entitle a subscriber to a year's free advertising, or even a single line. If we advertise for one man free, we will we will for all. If we make one pay for bragging on his show window, we will make all pay. Therefore, we are constrained to remark to all, that our terms for local advertising is 12 1/2 cents per line, invariably cash, and only a limited amount of it will be received at that; and not for one dollar per line shall any other than the body type of the reading matter be used.

"OPENING DAY."

Saturday was grand "Opening day" with our milliners and notion dealers; and, the fact having been announced in the local columns of all the county papers, the consequence was, there was a grand rush of ladies in from all parts of the county, as well as a few from some of the neighboring counties. According to the request of Mrs. Charles Foote, one of our most fashionable milliners and mantau makers, the News called at her place of business; and, having a weakness for the beautiful, spent an entire hour in lavishing his admiration on the beautiful goods in that fascinating line which lie felt he was not an entire stranger, but more like an adult who had returned to the home of his boyhood.

MISS KENNEY, of Cincinnati, a trimmer, who received her training in one of the largest and most tasteful establishments in that city, took pleasure in showing her guests the many trimmed specimens on hand—hats and bonnets trimmed in Paris, France, as well as those trimmed in Paris, Kentucky, with her own tiny hands. The first beauty was a white gimp poke, trimmed in terocota lace, with a terocota wreath, lined with quincean-then to match the rich and rare lace. The second specimen was a black-beaded gimp, rim of brown and old gold brocade velvet, trimmed in rich sunflower ribbon, fastened on the left with lilies of the valley. This was imported from France, and cost $25 in first hands. The next was a honey-combed crown bonnet, home-trimmed with blue Spanish lace, two pale blue ostrich tips, pale blue satin, pink Marshal Neil rose and bud, blue watered brocade ribbon strings. The next was a white jet crowned bonnet, trimmed in white Spanish lace and pansies, with pearl ornaments. The next was a white French chip hat, lined with cardinal velvet and Flemish point lace, with three double-knotted bows of white gros-grain ribbon on top of the crown, and marri-gold flowers; pearl ornaments, and white gros-grain strings.

There were several dozens of elegantly trimmed hats and bonnets, many of which far excelled in beauty and richness hundreds of the boss "pattern" or "show" hats we noticed in the bon-ton show windows on 4th and 5th streets of Cincinnati last Friday. In the mantau department was a dress not gotten up for show, but just finished for a customer (Mrs. John W. Liver, of Clintonville), mounted on a dummy. It was of black watered brocade silk, trimmed around the skirt with the Bernhardt and double-box plait and thread lace. The general style, paniering and looping were simply gorgeous, magnificent and graceful, even though it bedecked the inanimate dummy.

THE MISSES MITCHELL were next visited, at their old established stand on Broadway. Their millinery parlor was illuminated with over one hundred trimmed hats and bonnets, their show windows and mirrors bedecked with wreaths of running vines, sunflowers, water lilies, the beautiful magnolias and all tropical and domestic flowers closely imitating nature by the hand of art. Their immense display of trimmed goods was just too utterly bewildering with beauty for an uncouth reporter to attempt to describe. We simply ask those who have not been there to go and see what they have left, and are daily receiving. These ladies have been in business for six years, and fully understand their business, as the tasty public of the bluegrass region are well aware.

MISS SOPHIA HUTCHISON'S establishment was next visited. Her room was literally alive with a moving mass of ladies from all parts of the country. She had about 125 trimmed hats and bonnets of all descriptions on display. To attempt a description of them would be an endless task, and to describe a few would do a great injustice to three dozen others just as handsome; therefore we desist, and call attention to the fact that, notwithstanding their sales of many fine ones, they still have a few left, and are daily trimming others just as handsome. Miss Sophia respectfully invites attention to her special opening for Misses and children, on Saturday next.

MISS MOLLIE TULLY'S establishment was next visited. This very modest and tasteful trimmer had also an extraordinary fine display of goods, ranging from the cheapest child's hat or baby cap, to the finest Parisian French clip and foreign trimmed goods. Her stock is selected with great care and taste and is adapted to all classes of society. Miss Mollie having been reared in the city, and having for several years trimmed for the proud, fastidious and aristocratic public in Cincinnati, deems it no eulogy to say that she can please the most fastidious in the bluegrass region.

Miss Tully also carries a large stock of elegant laces, and rare fancy notions, patterns, etc. Her elegant room is located on the corner of Main and Broadway.

The wives of all eminent free and independent Sir Knights, should judge the future by the past, and lay in a good stock of lemons, ice, buttermilk, cold victuals and about a quart of old pop-skull, for their dear husbands will have a constant yearning for all those life-saving elements on their return from the Conclave.

The Bank of England.

The constitution and government of the Bank of England are not fully understood, even by many otherwise well-informed residents in the city of London itself. It differs from most corporations in the fact that it has no permanent Governor or chairman, and furthermore, that the remuneration paid to the Directors for their services is individually small. The governing body consists of twenty-six directors, that is to say, one Governor, one deputy Governor, and twenty-four Directors. This body does not change except by death or resignation, etc., but the Governor, and his deputy, who act as chairman of the Board or Court of Directors, change every two years, the deputy becoming Governor and all the Directors being deputy and Governor in rotation. The salary of the Governor, as well as that of the deputy Governor, is now £1,000 per annum, while that of the other twenty-four Directors is £500 each. According to Francis, whose history of the Bank of England is practically out of print, the management of the Bank is vested in the whole Court of Directors, which meets weekly, when a statement is read of the position of the bank as regards its securities, bullion and liabilities. The Directors have equal power, and should a majority disapprove of the arrangements they may reconstruct them. Eight Directors go out and eight come in annually, elected by the Court of Proprietors. The list of candidates recommended by the Court of Directors is transmitted to the Proprietors, and the eight so recommended uniformly come in. When any person is proposed as a new Director, inquiry is always instituted concerning his private character. Those who survive this fiery ordeal, and are approved of by the Court of Directors, never fail to be elected. The qualifications for a Director are the possession of bank stock to the amount of £2,000; for the deputy Governor £3,000; and for the Governor £4,000. The Directors are responsible for the management of the affairs of the bank, and penalties are attached to their office individually and collectively on certain occasions. By the charter, however, they are not answerable to the Government for the monetary department, and the security which the public has for a good administration of affairs depends upon the discretion of the Directors subject to the charter.—London Review.

Animals in Norway.

A correspondent makes the following remark on a very pleasant feature of the Norwegian character, viz. kindness to domestic animals. In that country, he says, these animals are treated as the friends rather than the slaves of man. As a result, vicious horses are unknown; foals follow their dams at work in the fields or on the road as soon as they have sufficient strength, and thus gently accustom themselves to harness. I heard of a foal trying to force its head into a collar in imitation of its mother. Horses are trained to obey the voice rather than the hand, bearing-reins are not used, and the whip, if carried at all, is hardly ever made use of. Great care is taken not to overload carts, especially in the case of young horses, and consequently a broken knee is rarely seen, and the animals continue fat and capable of work till the advanced age of twenty-five or thirty. So tame are the Norwegian horses and cows that they will allow casual passers-by to caress them while they are lying down. Even domestic cats will approach a boy with confidence, knowing that no chasing or worrying awaits them. One very hot summer's day I met a woman holding up an umbrella to carefully screen what I supposed was a little child at her side from the scorching rays of a midday sun, while her own head was covered only by a handkerchief. In driving by I tried to gain a glimpse of her charge, and found, to my great surprise, that the object of her care was a fat black pig. The question of humane methods of slaughtering animals has lately been prominently brought forward in England. In this the Norwegians show us a good example; they never use the knife without first stunning the animal. In the above remarks I am alluding to the country districts of Norway; in the towns the national characteristics become modified, although even under these conditions kindness to animals is still remarkable. To those whose hearts are sickened by the sights of cruelty daily witnessed in our streets, it must be a consolation to learn that a country exists where these things are unknown, where men are instinctively considerate to the animals dependent on them, and where no legislation is required to enforce the claims of the dumb creation.—London Times.

Cruises of Oceanica.

Some years ago the New Bedford whalers who visited the South Pacific—and doubtless one or two of them are still living—found an island nearly midway between what was then known as New Holland and New Zealand. In climate, in flora and in fauna it differed from both, and presented many of the paradoxes not uncommon at the antipodes. Hearing that the government of New South Wales had decided that it was the best possible position for observing the next transit of Venus, your correspondent visited the place last month. Nearly an hour before the government officials put in an appearance our vessel was boarded by a whaleboat's crew, steered over the reef by an ancient mariner, whose dialect was so familiar that I at once asked him what part of the States he hailed from. "New Bedford, sir," was the response. "How long have you been here?" was my next query, and the reply was, "Wa'll, nigh on forty years, I guess." During a stay of ten days, on what is the nearest approach to a press man's idea of the land of the lotus eaters, I learned more of the man who, for well nigh half a century has not heard from his friends at home. Nathan Chase Thompson is a native of Somerset, Mass., and virtually does all the work of this island. Henry Wilson, a native of Newberg, N. Y., was put ashore there from a whaler twelve years ago to die, but still lives and is hale. P. Johnson (colored) a native of Pennsylvania, is also located there, as was also a Bostonian named Leonard, whose relatives may not yet know that he was killed two years since in a brawl by the father of a housekeeper of his who was left on the island by the whaler Alabama, of New Bedford. There was not more than half a dozen adults on the island outside the families of those I have mentioned, and those look upon Thompson as a sort of Santa Claus.

The whole place is only six miles in length by about one and a half wide, and of this fully two miles is taken up by Mount Gower, which rises sheer from the sea on the southern side to an altitude of 2,850 feet, and Mount Lightbird to a height of 2,500 feet. For about four miles north of the latter the soil and foliage are something approaching the miraculous, the former consisting of decomposed vegetable matter, intermingled with guano partially denuded of its strength by tropical rains; palms and ferns, such as no portion of Australia can boast of, and banana trees only equalled in India, together with eighteen other species of shrubs and trees which have been classified by visiting scientists. Thompson has a garden in which he is now cultivating coffee plants covering three acres of ground, and the whole of this is surrounded by a single banana tree. The wonders of this strange land have recently been so impressed upon the government of New South Wales that orders have been issued interdicting the destruction or removal of plants, trees, or seeds, and the tenure of residents limited to yearly leases at pleasure of the executive of this colony.—*Sydney (N. How Mrs. Jones Bought a Carpet-Sweeper.

The other day when Bridget the valiant was engaged, Mrs. Jones answered the door-bell herself, and found a glib, silver-tongued agent had taken possession of her steps and was checking something in his memorandum book when she answered his fluent ring.

"Is your mamma in, Miss?" he asked, with a pensive smile.

Mrs. Jones was rather taken aback. She was so accustomed on such occasions to the stereotyped question, "Is the lady of the house at home?" that she hardly knew what to say.

"I see she is not," continued the stranger, with a look of keen disappointment overclouding his face. "I had wished to see her in regard to a cosmetic I sell. You, with your fresh, youthful complexion, would hardly need it."

"You can't sell anything here," said Mrs. Jones, recovering herself; "we never buy from agents."

"No? Well, I'm sorry, for consumption has marked me for its own," said the man, with a melancholy cough. "Are you nearly out of Bibles? I'm trying to do a little good in the world before I leave it by selling the best and cheapest revision of the sacred—"

"No! I don't want any Bibles," snapped Mrs. J., "and I'll be obliged to you if you'll take your things off the steps so I can close the door."

"Certainly, certainly, Miss—youth and beauty, and yet there is a sad, dreamy look that tells of biliousness; now these liver pills—"

"Will you go!" exclaimed Mrs. Jones as she tried to get the door closed. "Oh, if I only had the broom!"

"Broom! broom!" cried the stranger with a dramatic gesture, "who says broom? not this young and lovely being in the heart of a great city! Brooms, my dear young lady, belong to the dark ages! You never, never should wield so common an implement! Let me sell you carpet-sweepers—an invention that will remove the dust of ages without fatigue or discomfort to yourself—a patent-hinged, self-guiding, nickel-plated, premium-medal carpet sweeper. Lovely creature, don't disfigure those graceful hands with a broom, when for a few paltry dollars you can buy a carpet-sweeper!"

"I couldn't help it, Jephtha," explained Mrs. Jones, when her husband fell over the new carpet sweeper and landed in the basement among the ruins. "I didn't want it any more than a cat wants two tails, but you ought to have heard the creature talk! I believe I'd have bought a camelopard if he'd had one for sale and asked me to; he just talked me into it."

But she never told Jones what he said.—Detroit Post and Tribune.

A Curious Fir-Tree.

Switzerland has its old chestnut-trees on the banks of Lake Leman, and the ancient linden of Fribourg, the history of which is said to go back to the time of the conflicts with Charles the Bold. M. Louis Pire, President of the Royal Botanical Society of Belgium, has found a fir-tree in the forest of Alliaz, Canton of Vaud, which he believes to be still older than the linden of Fribourg, and considers entitled to be regarded as the oldest and most remarkable tree in the canton, if not in the whole confederation. It is growing near the baths of Alliaz, at a height of about thirteen hundred feet above the sea, and forty-five hundred feet above the sea, surrounded by a forest of firs, which it overtops by more than thirty feet. The trunk of this tree is ten metres, or a little more than thirty feet, in circumference at the base. At about a yard from the ground it puts out, on the south side, seven offshoots, which have grown into trunks as strong and vigorous as those of the other trees in the forest. Bent and gnarled at the bottom, these side-trunks soon straighten themselves up and rise perpendicularly and parallel to the main stem. This feature is not, perhaps, wholly unparalleled, but another most curious fact is that the two largest of the side-trunks are connected with the principal stem by sub-quadrangular braces resembling girders. These beams have probably been formed by an anastomosing of branches, which, common enough among angiosperms, is extremely rare among conifers; but it has been impossible to ascertain the manner in which the ingrowing of one branch into another has been effected. The adaptation by which a limb, originally destined to grow free and bear foliage, has been converted into a living stick of timber, is a strange one, and affords a new illustration of the power of nature to fit itself to circumstances. The space between the rough flooring formed by the growing together of the offshoots, at their point of departure, and the girders, is large enough to admit of building a comfortable hermit's hut within it.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Detroit astronomer is said to have recently "witnessed a grand explosion of gas on the western limb of the sun." This information is important in that it shows that electric lights have not been adopted up there.—Detroit Free Press.

A Corner in Rubber.

There is dismay and rage among the rubber manufacturers. Speculators hold absolute control of the entire production of South America, and fix the prices of the raw material to suit themselves. In 1879 the raw India rubber, or caoutchouc, was worth but 72 cents per pound. At that point the speculators seized upon it, and as a test of their temporary strength, put the price up to $1 per pound. Under that pressure a quantity was dragged into the market through channels over which they had not yet obtained control, and the price dropped to 80 cents in the spring of 1880. It has never since, however, got so low, for the speculators developed strength enough to cover the entire ground, and have made prices what they pleased. Just now they are higher than ever before. On Thursday they went up from $1.17 per pound to $1.23. Yesterday buyers were refused prices by holders on the pretext that there is no stock in the market, and that figures cannot be named until the arrival of the next steamer. This, however, is affirmed to be untrue, as it is said some 1,200 cases came in by the last steamer from Para, and are now being held until such time as the necessities of the manufacturers will compel them to submit to another heavy advance. It is feared the price will go up to $1.50 before there is any drop. In this extremity the manufacturers have been spurred on to an attempt at concerted action to protect themselves. The great trouble, they say, is that the men now controlling the supply of rubber practically own the Indians and small traders of the interior of Brazil, in the Amazon Valley, whence the material comes, having got a firm hold upon them by advances and systems of keeping them in debt, such as the Hudson Bay Company used to employ in dealing with the Canadians. To meet this condition of affairs, the manufacturers expect to be compelled to form a colony in Brazil, establishing trading posts of their own, and so opening up a rivalry in dealing directly with the Indians.

The consideration in this business that most directly interests the public is that the higher the price of crude rubber the greater will be the adulterations to which it is subjected for manufacture into clothing, hose, springs, and all the other forms of general use. This adulteration is practised by grinding up old rubber, vulcanized rubber, already reworked, and adulterated rubber of all sorts, old shoes, old rollers etc., and mixing it with a small percentage of the pure, fresh material. This admixture it is that causes the modern rubber shoes to pull to pieces so easily, clothing to crack, hose to burst, springs to crumble, and in all other sorts of rubber the development of so much fragility and unreliability as it never used to possess.—N. Y. Sun.

Remarkable Sand Dune.

In the eastern part of Churchill County, near Sand Springs Station, on the road from Wadsworth to Grantsville, and about sixty-five miles from the former place, is a sand dune, which is remarkable alike for its peculiar formation and moving propensities. As far around as the eye can reach is a vast wilderness of greasewood and stunted sagebrush, with here and there abrupt mountain ridges, or a sharp rocky peak, evidently placed there long before the mythical persons left their mysterious footprints in the mud, now hardened for the annoyance of the State prison inmates, and for no other apparent purpose than to deceive the unaccustomed traveler as regards their distance from any place he happens to be located. The dune, or sand-mountain ridge, which is about four miles in length, and covers probably a mile of greasewood, was, perhaps, formed from the heavy winds which prevail in that section, blowing across these deserts through a natural opening in a small range of mountains and depositing the small particles of sand that were picked up in a heap where the wind's course is disturbed and an eddy formed.

In the whole dune, which is from 100 to 400 feet in height, and contains millions of tons of sand, it is impossible to find a particle much larger than a pin-head. It is so fine that if an ordinary barley sack be filled and placed in a moving wagon the jolting of the vehicle would empty the sack, and yet it has no form of dust in it and is as clean as any sea-beach sand. The mountain is so solid as to give it a musical sound when trod upon, and oftentimes a bird lighting on it, or a large lizard running across the bottom, will start a large quantity of the sand to sliding, which makes a noise resembling the vibration of telegraph wires with a hard wind blowing, but so much louder that it is often heard at a distance of six or seven miles, and is deafening to a person standing within a short distance of the sliding sand.

A peculiar feature of the dune is that it is not stationary, but rolls slowly eastward, the wind gathering it up on the west end and carrying it along the ridge until it is again deposited at the eastern end. Mr. Monroe, the well-known surveyor, having heard of the rambling habits of this mammoth sand-heap, quite a number of years ago took careful bearings on it while sectionizing Government lands in that vicinity. Several years later he revisited the place and found that the dune had moved something over a mile.—Renovator (Nev.) Gazette.

Cabbages.

Nearly 5,000 heads of cabbages can be grown on an acre of ground, if the plants are set a yard each way. The size of the heads and weight in tons depends on the manure and the method of cultivation, but as high a yield as thirty tons to the acre is not uncommon in New England. They are easily kept during winter, either by burying the heads in the ground or by storing them in trenches with the roots down and heads up, covering with straw and boards. The latter method is better where they are to be fed every day. The cutting away of the heads leaves the stalks standing, which sprout in the spring, to furnish excellent greens for the table at a time when such are scarce. The disposition to market cabbages is generally too strong to permit of feeding them to stock; but if a careful comparison is made between their market value and the benefit derived from them in feeding, no objection will be made to using them for such a purpose.—Exchange.

Caillavah's Wand.

While the adherents of Henri V. have been occupied in banqueting and listening to masses, a strange scene has been taking place in the vaults of the Abbey Church of St. Denis, where the bones of his ancestors sleep their last sleep. Popular tradition has declared that at the breaking out of the Revolution the monks of St. Denis secreted a vast amount of treasure—the abbey being one of the richest in Europe—in the vaults of the ancient church, where then lay buried all the Kings and Queens of France, from Dagobert, famous for wearing his breeches wrong side out, to Louis XV., celebrated for his numerous mistresses. The Parisian mob sacked the abbey, turned the bones of the poor old Kings and Queens out into the common ditch in order to melt their leaden coffins up into bullets, and the treasures were confiscated and sent to the melting pots at the mint. Still there are many who are convinced that the monks had time to conceal the greater part of their treasures before the confiscating agents made their appearance, and it is this treasure that the Minister of Fine Arts has been trying to find, and to find with what is commonly called a divining-rod. The story is a curious one in these days of enlightenment, skepticism, and free thinking. A Mme. Caillavah, having come into the possession of a divining-rod which had been bequeathed to her by her inventor or discoverer, a young man whom she had befriended, and who in spite of his invention had died, has for some five years past been petitioning the various Ministers who have succeeded each other in the French Cabinet to permit her to search for the untold treasures supposed to be buried in the vaults of the Abbey of St. Denis. Thanks to the support of Mr. Le Royer, the late Keeper of the Seals, and of Mr. Jules Ferry, late Minister of Public Instruction, the Minister of Fine Arts directed the architect of St. Denis to investigate the matter.

The tests to which the architect subjected Mme. Caillavah and her divining-rod having proved satisfactory, a contract was entered into between her and the agents of the public domain, by which Madame was to be allowed to make certain excavations in the vaults of the church, under the direction of her divining-rod and the superintendence of the architect. If any treasures were found she was to be entitled to one-third of their value up to the sum of 500,000 francs. The expense attending these explorations were to be borne by Caillavah, who succeeded in finding friends to advance her the 2,000 francs needed for the purpose. Last week, armed with her divining-rod, and accompanied by the architect, an agent of the public domain, and several workmen, she began her work. On entering the vaults the magic wand at once pointed to a large flagstone on the right of the royal crypt. The stone was removed by the workmen, and they dug through the underlying cement and earth to the depth of five feet without finding anything. One by one all the flagstones were turned up and the earth dug into until the wall that separates the royal crypt from the other vaults was reached. Then the rod, suddenly changing its direction, pointing straight toward the crypt where lie, in coffins on iron biers, the bodies of Louis XVI., Marie Antoinette, Louis XVIII., the Duke de Berry, and other members of the royal family who have died since the Revolution. At this point the architect refused to allow the work to proceed any further, declaring it might endanger the safety of the building. Everything was restored to its original condition, and now Mme. Caillavah is trying to get the authorities to permit her to resume her work. Since this matter has become public, Mme. Caillavah has had numerous visitors who wish to purchase her magic wand or the secret of its manufacture. One speculator offers her an annuity of 25,000 francs. All these offers she has so far refused, although she professes to be willing to dispose of her secret providing she is offered its value, which, as the wand is, she declares, equally efficacious for the discovery of gold and silver mines as for the discovery of buried treasures, she estimates at a high figure.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Times.

A South Carolina Woman's Memento.

Albert Wallace, who is more commonly known in this country by the name of "Prince Albert," was killed on Friday by a fall from a wagon. Wallace was a noted character of Mecklenburg County, and was connected with some of the influential families of the county. Prior to the war he was a man of wealth, owning a great number of slaves and a large amount of real estate. Unfortunately for himself, he fell into the paths of intemperance and let his fortune slip from his hands. He was married many years ago to a Mrs. Cross, a daughter of Col. S. Bird, of Edgefield, S. C., and a relative of Gen. M. C. Butler. His wife, who survives him, came from one of the most influential families of South Carolina, and the mention of her name will recall two very exciting incidents that occurred in the past history of that State. The first was a duel between Tom Bird, her brother, and Gen. Louis T. Wigfall, a tutor for her husband, in which Bird was killed at the first fire. This duel occurred in Edgefield at the court-house door. The second incident was a duel between Preston S. Brooks and General Wigfall, in which both principals were badly wounded. A short time after this second duel she was married to a Mr. Cross, and after his death she was married to Mr. Wallace. She has now in her possession the pair of duelling pistols used by General Wigfall in his duels. Mrs. Wallace, though about fifty-five years old, still retains much of her former beauty.—Charlotte (S. C.) Observer.

A young man of Washington County, Oregon, named Harnes is quite a hero. While hauling timbers for a bridge that is being built between Glencoe and Greenville, recently, a skid broke, letting the heavy timber fall on his leg, and both bones were broken. Harnes reached the lines while he was yet fastened under the log, tied a chain around the timber, hitched a team to it, and it was drawn off him. He then crawled around and hitched the team to the wagon, climbed on it, and then drove home.—Chicago Times.

A View of the Comet.

The comet is a wonderful show and it takes a power of faith to believe what the astronomers say about it. My folks wanted to see it, and so I got 'em all up in time yesterday morning, and they wrapped up in shawls and blankets and I took little Jessie in my arms and we paraded out beyond the grove, where there was a clear sight, and perused it to our satisfaction. The little chaps amused us with their questions, for they haven't much idea of infinite distance, and we grown folks got bewildered in trying to take it all in. One hundred and twenty millions of miles away is a right good piece, and when a body is traveling 2,000,000 miles in a day it must make a powerful buzz in the firmament, and it is a wonder we don't hear it like we hear these coal-burning locomotives, away off in the dead of night. That comet has some big business on hand, and I would like to know what it is. I see that one learned man says they furnish fuel to the sun, and this one was badly needed right now, for the fires were getting low, and one can see the dark spots where the coal was burnt to cinder, and if more caloric didn't come soon from somewhere our people wouldn't have to go up into the arctic regions to freeze to death. It is a grand idea to think of some mighty Vulcan standing away up in the regions of space chucking up the old sun's fires by throwing comets at him, but still I would like to know where the old fireman gets his comets and where he keeps 'em hid out from mortal eyes. I could ask as many questions, I reckon, as the children asked me, and know as little about it afterwards. Jessie wanted to know if a hundred million of miles was as far as across the ocean, and how many times further it was than from here to Atlanta. She wanted to know how much faster it traveled than the cars, and said it would make a mighty pretty broom for a giant to sweep the sky with. Carl undertook to enlighten her, and told her that Atlanta was just nowhere to the comet—that the comet was further off than the sky, or the moon, or a rainbow, or a thousand pine trees put on top of one another, and it was going faster than that flying horse that papa told us about. The wise men say it went within 400,000 miles of the sun, and is now getting away from it at the rate of 2,000,000 a day. That's business. That's furnishing fuel in a hurry, and getting away for more with proper alacrity, but it is a wonder to me it didn't get its tail scorched. I wish that all you city folks could see the comet, for it is a show that doesn't come along more than once or twice in a lifetime, and it never advertises its coming in the newspapers. City folks don't know exactly how to go about getting up at four o'clock in the morning and if they did they would find somebody's house or their shade trees in the way, and would have to walk out a mile or so to get a fair view of it. I suppose they could get to see it by sitting up all night and getting on top of the house, but they won't do that for a free show. If old Vulcan had his curtain up and a doorkeeper was to charge five dollars a sight he would make money and more folks would turn out than now for nothing. The comet is a wonderful thing to think of; one man says that the whole universe is going to pieces, for it all depends on fire, and the fires are fading for want of fuel and the sun is growing dim and world after world will drop into it until they have all dropped, and after that the sun will flicker out like a dying candle and we would all be in the dark if we hadn't been burnt up before, and so it becomes us to be prepared for the worst, for this catastrophe will shortly happen about four hundred quintillion years from this, and no three days of grace or waiver of protest. Jesso! This shows that a man should always be fortified for comets. Keep matches on the mantel-piece, and your boots where you can find 'em, for no man knoweth when old Vulcan will wrap a comet's tail around our earth and sling us into the sun for fuel.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

Oiling Wagon Wheels and Other Wood Work.

Mr. Allen E. Smith reports to the Farmer's Review an experience in oiling wagon wheels and other woodwork. He says: "I have a wagon of which, six years ago, the fellos shrunk so the tires became loose. I gave it a good coat of hot oil, and every year since it has had a coat of oil or paint, sometimes both. The tires are tight yet, and they have not been set for eight or nine years. Many farmers think that as soon as their wagon fellos begin to shrink, they must go at once to a blacksmith shop and get the tires set. Instead of doing that which is often a damage to the wheels, causing them to 'dish,' if they will get some linseed oil and heat it boiling hot, and give the fellos all they can take, it will fill them up to their usual size and tighten the tires. After the oil a coat of paint is a good thing to keep them from shrinking, and also to keep out the water. If you do not wish to go to the trouble of mixing paint, you can heat the oil and tie a rag to a stick and swab them over as long as they will take oil. A brush is more convenient to use, but a swab will answer if you do not wish to buy a brush. It is quite a saving of time and money to look after the woodwork of farm machinery. Alternate wetting and drying injures and causes the best wood soon to decay and lose its strength unless kept well painted. It pays to keep a little oil on hand, to oil fork handles, rakes, neckyokes, whiffletrees and any of the small tools on the farm that are more or less exposed."

A Philadelphian tells the Press of that city a characteristic story of Daniel Webster. The statesman's father was a great lover of military musters. One day, when he was going, he gave Daniel and his brother Ephraim a quarter apiece, to spend as they pleased. At night he called the two boys to him, and asked them what they had done with their money. Daniel was very ready to tell: he had bought cakes, cider, etc., and had a good time. But Ephraim refused to tell how he had disposed of his wealth. His father insisted, and at last he reluctantly confessed that he had lent it to Daniel.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Potato omelette is a palatable breakfast dish. Wash the potatoes thoroughly, mix with four eggs, pepper, butter and salt, and add a small quantity of lemon juice. Fry light brown and serve hot.—St. Louis Globe.

The editor of the Rural New-Yorker says he has an ear 15½ inches long! No wonder he wants somebody else to own up to having an ear 16 inches long. But come to think, it's an ear of corn he refers to.—N. Y. Examiner.

Force-Meat Balls: Mince boiled veal or chicken very fine, add nearly the same quantity of salt pork scraped very fine, and about as much bread; season with sweet herbs, cloves, allspice, pepper, mace and nutmeg; mix it well with eggs and make into balls, fry in butter.—Chicago Tribune.

A bin for keeping potatoes may be made of narrow strips, with a space between them, and having legs to raise it above the cellar bottom. It may be made of any desired length, and cross-boards may be put in to separate varieties, if preferred. An arrangement of this kind will prevent injury from dampness, and provide thorough ventilation.—N. Y. Examiner.

For sage pudding use one quart of sweet milk, four eggs, four tablespoonsful of sage, and one cup of sugar. Cover the sage with water and let it remain over night; then beat eggs, sugar and sage together; add the milk and grated nutmeg to suit the taste; bake or steam as preferred. If frosting is desired, beat the white of an egg and sugar together and spread over the top and set it in the oven for a few minutes.—Chicago Herald.

There are many farmers who have extra good butter cows and do not know it. They have poor pastures in summer and no shelter and indifferent feed in winter. In the house they have no convenience for making butter; the milk is set where there are no arrangements for keeping it cool in summer, and in the living room, exposed to the odors of the kitchen in winter; and neither the quantity nor the quality are any index of what a cow can do.—New England Farmer.

Apples need to be kept as cool as possible without freezing; they will endure a little frost much better than too warm a temperature; twenty-eight to thirty-four degrees is best; when it rises above forty degrees they don't keep well, and a temperature of fifty degrees will speedily spoil them. Hence to keep russet apples till late in May, they should be kept in a tight cellar and aired only at night when the temperature is near or below the freezing point. I have seen them kept in this way in excellent order till the middle of June.—New England Farmer.

To make tapioca cream with apples, soak six tablespoonsful of tapioca in cold water over night. In the morning pour over it a quart of boiling milk, and when cool add the well-beaten yolks of five eggs, sugar to taste and a little flavoring extract, and beat well. Pare, core, and cut into halves or quarters some tart apples and fill the bottom of a pudding-dish with them and pour the custard over them. Bake in a quick oven and when done spread over the top the whites of the eggs, beaten to stiff froth, and add a little sugar. Place in the oven again for a few minutes; serve with cream.—Detroit Post.

Treatment of Young Bulls.

The accident at the Rural Farm, in which the bravery and heroism of a woman no doubt saved her husband's life from the ferocity of a Jersey bull, brings again into prominence the desirability of dishorning cattle. This operation, which is practically painless, or at the most, not more painful than the lancing of the gums of a teething child, an operation which is performed without any hesitation for the good of the infant, is the most effective means of averting all danger of that kind. The young horns, when first becoming conspicuously prominent under the skin, can be removed with the greatest ease. The skin over the horn is not the horn but the covering which, by its future growth, forms afterward the outer and insensible casing of the horn; that, in fact, which is called the horn. The true horns lie under this, and can easily be removed when in embryo by raising a flap of the skin and cutting it out. It is done in a moment, a little plaster of tar over the cut protects the slight wound, which soon heals. Bulls are always worth watching. I have been laughed at more than once for getting out of the way of a young bull—a strange animal—when cutting up "didos" in the yard, and putting the fence in front of me. No stockman need be foolishly in this respect. But I have never feared one of my own bulls because I have them trained—to know the taste of a raw-hide across the nose. This will tame any bull, and if a bull should never go from his owner's yard he need never be ringed, if he has been taught the touch of the raw-hide, and his owner never goes to him without it in his hand. The most foolish thing that can be done is to teach a bull to play, even when a calf; the bull's training should be begun when a month old, and it should be brought into subjection then and taught to fear its owner, and kept in that fear always. Jersey bulls are not naturally vicious; they are made vicious because they are petted and spoiled and made playthings of by their owners. Unfortunately, the owner of a calf for which he has paid $1,000 thinks it sacrilege to put a rawhide on the brute, but the animal has no such foolish notions.—Cor. Rural New Yorker.

Tightener for Barbed Fences.

In constructing fences of barbed wire, or any kind of barbed fencing, a cheap, simple and effective stretcher is one of the most important implements. There are many patented devices, costing all the way from seventy-five cents to $3, but I have never seen any which so completely meets every requirement as a simple piece of chain, say a small trace chain two and a half feet or more long, with a hook on either end, or a hook on one end and a ring on the other. I have tried the chain myself, and although I have used several of the patented stretchers, have never seen anything equal to it. It might not hold the barbed wires, but with the buckthorn fencing it works perfectly.—Country Gentleman.

On Sunday, Sept. 17th, the comet was within 300,000 miles of the sun; since which time it has been moving away from it at the rate of 400 miles per second. It is now over eighty millions of miles from it, and hasn't lapped its tongue out yet or stopped to catch its breath.

One of those female things down at Warsaw, wants a divorce from her husband, on account of "conjugal infelicity, mutual incompatibility and impossibility of soul affinity." She ought to be granted a divorce and then mauled in the face with gut sausage until she could come down from that plane of estheticism.

Squire Jim Stone, receiver of the "Black Maria" Railroad, was luxuriating around our city a couple of days last week, having a "way up time on the proceeds of the road. As a "receiver," we view the "squire as a regular mastodonian superannuated fraud, and one who'll wind up the business of the road in a hurry (and the creditors too.)

Shorter and shorter grow the days, briefer the season of warmth and nearer approaches the chill of winter. The beautiful month of October, with its crimson leaf, its harvest of the hazel, its falling acorn, again is with us, and society is awaking from the lethargy born of the summer, and in new robes, gorgeous as the costumes of an Indian princess, seeks once more the haunts of pleasure.

A little "scan-mag" is about to develop its self in this neighborhood—keep your ears open, that you may hear it, and eyes open that you may read it in the Bourbon News, when it comes.

Two of the McClintock boys promised to mail the News a list of presents of the silver wedding, but no list came. We understand that there were 120 donated—most of which were very elegant and costly. There were eighty silver dollars, besides the large array of silverware.

THE BOURBON NEWS.

SEMI-WEEKLY.

PARIS, BOURBON COUNTY, KENTUCKY: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1882.

NO. 62.

VOL. I.

There's another "tiger" loose in Lexington.

Bourbon has a mastodon, a comet, the small-pox and a live newspaper.

Gus Jones, a painter by trade, suicided at Lexington, by the morphine route.

Ed Poynter, of Maysville, was one of the lost on the burned steamer, R. E. Lee.

Billy Shaw has tumbled flour again. The figures are $3 and $3.20 now to the retail trade.

Capt. T. E. Moore, of Shawhan, shipped sixteen brood mares and horses to Montana, last week, by Dick Rule.

It was currently reported yesterday that John Hughes died with the small-pox near Flat Rock Wednesday night.

It will pay any one to get up at 4 o'clock and see the beautiful comet. It is very brilliant, and has a stubbed tail just like Barnes' bull dog.

As there have been two mastodon skeletons found on the K. C. extension, it would be appropriate to call it the Big Bone of Extension Route.

The New Orleans Minstrels, one of the finest troupes in the Union are billed for our Opera House, Thursday Oct. 12th. No extra charge for securing seats in advance, at Brooks' drug store.

Emmet G. Logan has resigned the management of the Courier Journal, and will take charge of the Cincinnati Evening News—Gov. Jno. C. Underwood's new paper. Dan O'Sullivan succeeds Logan on the C. J.

Will Thomas, of North Middleton precinct, has a sample of his tobacco of this year's crop at Tom Brent's warehouse, which is said by good judges to be the finest ever seen in Kentucky. He has been offered $35 per hundred for his crop, of ten acres.

The New Orleans Minstrels who performed at Durely Hall on Monday evening, had one of the best bands which have ever visited our city. Several of the members are fine soloists on their respective instruments.—[Bloomington Daily Bulletin, March 12, 1882.]

DAVE CONWAY, a popular mixerologist of that which enthralls and inspires, who for several years was clerk of the Johnson House, Millersburg, has engaged his services to T. O. Bashford, of this city, and would be pleased to have all of his old friends call.

The passenger earnings of the K. C. road for the month of September this year, will be nearly $15,000 in excess of those of September of last year. The freight receipts, notwithstanding the washouts along the line and its connections, will hold their own for September in comparison with September of last year.

A CYCLOPE of good luck has struck Squire Jim Stone between the eyes, inasmuch as he has been commissioned by Judge Turney to open up a matrimonial factory out at Flat Rock. His first pair of wandering pilgrims will toe the trouble line before him to-morrow, in the persons of J. N. Pernel of Mason, and Miss Gillespie, of Morgan county.

MEN lie to us Court-day after Court-day and promise money when they know as well as they live they are lying. One man has given us a watermelon, yet no ladies have given us any flowers. But God is good, and careful for our wants; we found nine cockroaches in our inkstand this morning, and the devil upset the paste pot on our desk. We are happy, religious and calm.

TWO TRAMPS—a printer and a tinner, from Pensacola, Florida, where the yellow fever is raging to a terrible extent, called in the News office Tuesday. If it turns out that they have left us a sample case of yellow fever, we are as certain as fate to mail a little of it to several hundred delinquent subscribers if they do not dance squarely to the music and pay up before it breaks out on us. We already have a seal-brown taste in our mouth and a pumpkin-colored imagination in our delirious head too vivid to talk about.

A CANNON went off in the pants pocket of constable Jim Taylor, Tuesday night in Henry Paton's auction room, and came near scaring Aribi Pasha Forsyth and Bill Ficklen to death. The shot struck Ficklen in the left lobe of the coat-tail and took a South-east direction and fractured the monkey wrench and gas meter in the Southern cavity of his hip-pocket and furnished sweet music to Forsyth on its onward course to our new depot. Through persuasion of two supernumerary auctioneers imported specially for the occasion, order was at finally restored, lines formed anew, and the auction proceeded after a long delay given to heart-thumpings.

That Mastodon Skeleton.

In company with Capt. Hugh Henry, we visited the scene of the great mastodon skeleton, on Jos. Mitchell's farm. The cut from which it was excavated, is on top of a hill and runs through a strata of blue soapstone rock and stiff clay, above which is a strata of tough yellow clay and black soil. Indications go to show the place to have been a "blue wallow," so oft frequented by animals of old, and that this huge animal got stuck in the mud some ten or fifteen thousand years ago and died in a standing position, and that its gigantic frame became trampled and scattered by other animals. We stepped the distance where traces of the skeleton are now to be seen, and made the distance sixty-six feet. Slightly above the remains of the skeleton, and yet several feet below the surface, a portion of a saddle-tree composed of wrought iron and immense wrought nails, and a peculiar wood (as light as a feather) were found, as also were a piece of a huge trace chain and an iron wedge—indicating that in all probability some gigantic pre-historic race was riding the animal when it struck this hole of tough mud where it stuck.

Over fifty years ago, the skeleton of a monster mastodon was dug up from the mouth of a cave in the rear yard of the property where Prof. Sanders' school is now located. Another was unearthed by the K. C. extension hands near Winchester about two months ago; while others have been found at the Blue Licks, and Big Bone Licks, Boone county, and one in Bracken county, and various places where there are sulphur wells in the State—showing that the mastodon was a common animal in the prehistoric days.

The Wiggins-Alexander Nuptials.

The marriage of O. J. Wiggins, to Miss Laura Alexander, took place yesterday, at the First Presbyterian Church, in a very quiet and unostentatious manner. The ceremony, by the Rev. McMillan, was beautifully impressive, yet of great length. The church was tastefully decorated in floral display. Sweet strains of music fell softly on the air of the solemn occasion—Prof. Gutzeit presiding at the organ, with cornet accompaniment by Prof. Schwartz.

The bride was dressed in a very unique costume—an electric blue street suit of rare beauty and elegance, the handwork of the Misses Jaynes, of this city.

The bridal presents were numerous, and chiefly of a character for general utility by the newly married, and will at once be called into requisition on the return of the couple from their tour East—they having decided to set up to house-keeping in Covington. Among the presents received by the bride, was an elegant seal skin sacque, from her half brother, John R. Swiney. The groom, too, was the recipient of an elegant set of furniture, from his mother. We forbear mentioning many others, through request.

The bride is the daughter of Charlton Alexander, cashier of the Northern Bank of Paris, and is one of Bourbon's wealthiest citizens. The groom is of the firm of Harden & Wiggins, the principal insurance agents of Covington, and enjoys as handsome an income as perhaps as any young man in Covington. He was at one time the Covington reporter for the Cincinnati Enquirer, during which time he was elected City Collector of Covington—a much-to-be-envied office which he resigned in order to succeed Mr. Dulany, the junior member of the firm of Hardin & Dulany. Mr. Wiggins is a thorough going business young man, and his popularity in his own city is almost unbounded.

The happy pair left on the 3 o'clock train for Niagara, Buffalo, and New York, and will be gone about two weeks.

Mrs. BLANCHE BREEDEN having bought the stock of millinery goods from the Misses Mitchell, has secured the services of a tony trimmer from the East, and will have an opening at the old stand of the Misses Mitchell, in a few days. She is at present located in a room in the Henderson block. Miss Sophia Hutchison, formerly in charge of a store of Mrs. Norris, is also assisting Mrs. Breeden, and would be pleased to have of her old customers give her a call.

MISS MOLLIE TULLY, now the oldest and most experienced milliner in business in this city, has just returned from Indianapolis where she bought largely from the Griffith Bros. (the largest dealers in the West,) besides having bought largely in the East. She also brought home from Indianapolis one of the finest trimmers in the city, for her assistant, and will give a public opening on Saturday, Oct. 21st, at which all the ladies from Bourbon and surrounding counties are cordially invited. Her stock never was richer and more elegant than at present.

SOCIETY SCINTILLATIONS.

THE SILVER WEDDING.

The silver wedding last night at Alex. McClintock's, was by far the grandest mammoth social event that has perhaps ever taken place in the bluegrass region. There were all of five hundred persons present, from all the surrounding counties, including a small representation from two or three other States. The dining hall erected for the occasion, was 48 x 70 feet, and had a seating capacity for 500. Nothing short of a consolidation of three press conventions would approximate the banquet.

At the original wedding, Prof. Shackelford officiated, in lieu of Eld. Rogers, on account of a death in his family. On this occasion Eld. Rogers officiated in lieu of Prof. Shackelford, through the same cause.

There were a hundred or more costly presents contributed by families and groups of from six to twelve and even twenty persons—thus lessening the number of presents, and making the few richer, more elegant and beautiful.

The menu included all the rich and rare delicacies of the season, both local and tropical. Each guest was seated in a chair, and given the privilege of holding it the entire evening, during which time Seidenstickers superb band discoursed the sweetest music.

After the guests were all seated at the table, the original attendants of the bride and groom of '57 preceded the family, followed by the head, to a stage, where Eld. John I. Rogers in a very appropriate address, reviewed the happy and eventful past of the bride and groom, and solemnized the occasion by a re-obligatory ceremony.

Our forms being made up on our return this morning, precludes us the pleasure of publishing the full list of presents until Tuesdays issue.

PIKE county comes to the front with a candidate for lieutenant governor in the person of Colonel Harry Weddington.

It is a sad commentary on the human family, that railroads have to put men on duty as special guards at our fairs, to keep a thoughtless herd of humanity from under the trains. Such was the case, however, with the K. C. company at Cynthiana fair.

In the quarry of the State Prison at Carson, Nevada, tracks made by human feet twenty inches long have been discovered in the solid rock, evidently made hundreds of years since. What could an Ohio woman have been doing out there so long ago? [Louisville Argus.

BARNES will cast out devils in Cincinnati, this week. This is a good point for devils. He will come in contact with a large and varied stock of them, including many old "he" and "she" ones of long-standing, that ought to have been cast out long ago. In fact, the young devils ought to have had a showing long ago.

THE editor of the Flemingsburg Times received a C. O. D package last week that had been on the road nine months. It weighed ten pounds, and the charges were ten dollars—just a dollar a pound for freight, and shipped within the county. It is a healthy chap, and "kicks" just like it's father. When it arrives at its majority twenty-one years from now, it is to be hoped that the wild and tempestuous waves of the Fleming county politics, will have long since subsided into a calm sea.

THE Flemingsburg Times uses this language:

"There is just one vital point in the whole matter so far as Judge Hargis is concerned. Did he or did he not have the poll books in his possession? We did not see Mr. Hargis take the poll books from the polling table, but we did see him come out of the crowd with them in his hand, and walk to the court house steps with them."

In a conversation with Judge Hargis in our office Saturday, he said "that he at no time had the poll books in his possession, and that the editor of the Times had knowingly and willfully stated an unqualified falsehood about him in the above quotation."

That Little Wood-Chopping.

THE congressional candidates—Blackburn and Owens, held their wood-chopping here yesterday afternoon, as per appointment. Owens took the bat first, and was greeted by a feint school-boy applause in the gallery, which was indicative of his strength in the county—or, in other words, in that ratio that 1 stands to 8.

Since the days of Mr. Owens' schoolboy orations at the Millersburg college, we have seen but little of him, or in fact, heard but little of him except through the columns of the Louisville Commercial—that Tom Henry, Judge Hargis and Democratic party vilifying sheet, which might very appropriately be dubbed Owens' Guide to Congress, or Tom Henry's Guide to Hell. Through it's columns, the stranger would no doubt have been led to believe that Kentucky never had but two orators—Clay and Owens. In fact, we had almost been led to believe that Owens had outgrown his school-boy gush, and grown into a round, mellow-toned orator and statesman. But alas! we were deceived. We were again reminded of that sad thought that reverts back and flits through the minds of so many young aspirants, that it takes years of toil, study, and practice—not only at a mark, but to come in literal contact with enemy in debate, to attain that culture to denominate one an orator or statesman whose ability will entitle him to a liberal respect in measuring lances with Joe Blackburn, or any other peer of his now on the boards in American politics. We felt proud, though, that our district was the home of a young man so full of promise—one, who, after many days, would no doubt stand a good chance of superceding Mr. Blackburn, when the people felt that it would be good and safe to place him off the superannuated list.

The speeches of both were listened to with an interest abounding with enthusiasm, by a court-house filled to it's utmost capacity of yeomanry, sprinkled here and there with ladies in the gallery.

Their speeches were void of those intense personalities which characterized the opening of the campaign, and Mr. Blackburn toyed with his adversary with that tender-heartedness of a pugilist practicing with a pupil, or a lioness toying with her cub.

After the farcical sparring match ended, the great crowd dispersed to the streets and pondered at the slowness of the district for Joseph just one more little whirl, after which many promised to consider William's claim in the maturer days of '84.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
CITY OF PARIS, KY.,
August 20th, 1882.
The Common Council being assembled in a called session, the committee on resolutions on the death of Charles V. Higgins reported the following paper, which was, on motion adopted:

"All the ingenious combinations of human philosophy, all the brilliant achievements of genius and skill, all the dazzling glories that cluster around the brows of the successful and honored fall to shield manhood from the unrelenting hand of the grim tyrant, Death, and as the decree went forth from almighty God himself that "in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" so it has been down to this present time; and not only is the death penalty inflicted for eating forbidden fruit, but also for the continued violation of any of nature's laws; and while we bow in awe and submission to the Divine will, yet it is with regret that we chronicle the death of Charles V. Higgins, late a member of our Council, for he was a man who was easily moved to pity, none had an ear which more readily caught the cry of distress, or whose heart trobbled with warmer emotions for another's woe, and whose hand relaxed it's grip upon the almighty dollar to alleviate the sufferings of his fellow creatures.

Resolved, That the Common Council attend in a body his funeral as a last token of respect to his memory.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, MAY 10TH, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly; he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other, which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to send for it; they ordered three bottles, I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, and used according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colts limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it. Very Respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—The particular case on which I used your Kendall's Spavin Cure was a malignant ankle spavin of sixteen months standing. I had tried many things but in vain. Your spavin cure put the foot to the ground again, and for the first time since hurt in a natural position. For a family liniment it excels anything we ever used.

BY B. J. KENDALL, M. D.

65 ENGRAVINGS 65

This book, during the short time since its original publication, has been recognized as one of the most reliable authorities on anything pertaining to the horse's condition or treatment. The best evidence of its popularity is the immense sale which it has met with, over 650,000 have been published and sold in all parts of the northern states. Hundreds of testimonials to the efficacy of the treatment advised can be shown, and in many cases a reference to this book and prompt following of its advises has saved the lives of valuable animals. It is plain and simple in its terms, and can be understood by anybody. A distinguished veterinary surgeon, who possesses a library comprising the most costly books on the horse, recently said that he would part with almost any of them rather than with this treatise, which comprises so much.

STREET-CARS could have done a smashing business this week.

Will Gregory, of Riddles Mills precinct, has gone to Missouri, to buy land.

The Louisville Exposition opened Tuesday, and run until Oct. 21.

Our city showed some little signs of life yesterday—the first since Court-day.

The vehicles going through town yesterday made things look a little like olden times.

Our billiard and liquor saloons appear to be the most prosperous business houses in town.

WILL JOHNSON, the job printer, will buy him a new press and attach steam power, in a few days.

The "Great Western" will publish the premium list to-day, but the News publishes the news.

It's a fearful walk to the new depot, but the great crowd of hangers-on still keep up the good-bye nuisance.

The special premium by the Burnett House, for the best ladies' saddle horse, will be contested for at 2 o'clock to-day.

A. NEWHOFF has returned from New York, and his goods are rolling in every day. His house is now full enough for two houses.

HENRY SPEARS, cash'r of the Agricultural Bank, has been elected County Treasurer, to fill the vacancy caused by C. V. Higgins, dec'd.

JOHN R. SWINEY says that now they are going to move the post-office to Shinn's square, and the Court-house to the Christian Church yard.

"DIVORCED" as rendered by the Huntley combination, was a rare treat Tuesday evening. It is indeed a captivating play, and one filled with humor, pathos and tears.

AMMI DORSEY has charge of Bashford's restaurant up stairs, and will serve the public at all hours. He will "turn the animals loose" at 10 o'clock every evening.

NEAL HARVEY, the tailor, who was here three years ago, has returned from a United States tramp through Texas and twenty other States, and has squatted on the boards with old "Tip."

East Lynn was well received last night, by a crowded hall. To-night, "Woman's Devotion," a piece of frontier life in '49 will be given. It is one the most popular pieces now on the boards in the East.

The Bourbon House is running a free bus for its guests. It is one of the Hocker line, of Lexington. Mr. Hocker, we understand, desires to buy out the Thurston House bus and put on a permanent line.

Buy your dinner from the Presbyterian ladies at the fair grounds, and your supper from the Christian Church ladies in town, and go to see that splendid Huntley Dramatic Combination at the hall, and be exquisitely happy.

HUNDREDS of friends of Joseph Jones, Circuit Clerk, deeply sympathize with him in the loss of his wife, who died Tuesday morning after a long and painful illness with consumption. Dr. Rutherford conducted the funeral ceremonies at the Presbyterian Church Wednesday, at 4 o'clock.

Gov. Blackburn has appointed Breckinridge & Shelby and Hunt & Darnall to go to Washington in behalf of the State of Kentucky, when the case of John Bush comes up on a writ of error before the Supreme Court of the United States. The case will come up in October.—[Lexington Transcript.]

We acknowledge a remembrance from J. D. Kehoe, Secretary of the Maysville Fair Association. This fair commences on the 19th, and continues five days. It is one of the few attractive fairs in the State, offers a large list of premiums, and will be represented by some of the rarest attractions in the Union, in the line of horse flesh. Their trots are not excelled by any in the State.

A late letter from Eld Taylor Sharrard, formerly of this city, but now in the Rocky Mountains, states that snow was 10 inches deep and still falling at that writing. Miss Mattie Hutchcraft and brother, who recently returned home from there, were with an excursion party in the mountains, and the Miss Mattie ventured higher on the peaks than anyone of the party. Her clothes were frozen when she made the descent.

Fair Notes.

Yesterday was a "Josie" day. Wolfe & Trost furnish the music. Horses are thin in flesh at our fair. No sewing machine contest this year. No betting on the bay or any other animal.

Miles McKee did n't wear his badge, but came up.

None are cleverer than the officers of our Association.

Widower John Morgan took the premium on bread.

Mrs. Joe Hedges took the premium on a landscape in oil.

Even yesterday, a fellow could find room to sit down.

Mrs. Crutcher, of Frankfort, took the blue on the afghan.

Jno. T. Hinton took the premium on best steel engraving.

Mrs. H. H. Long took the premium on crayon portrait display.

The ladies' riding ring will be one the attractive features to-day.

Miss Kirby white took the premium on display of oil painting.

Mrs. W. A. Cunningham took eleven premiums on fancy work.

The fruit and canned goods department not crowded but goods rare.

In amateur painting, Miss Josie Stephens took a premium in oil painting.

Where did those special police come from? They don't live in the county!

Harvey Thorn and J. J. Hughes, were there with all their hearts—their horses.

Woodson Morgan took premiums on oil paintings on both portrait and animal.

Mrs. Dr. H. C. Kehoe, of Cynthiana, took the blue on the worsted patchwork quilt.

There was no betting on Tuesday or Wednesday, because there was no one there to bet.

The Kensington fire screen which took the blue, is the work of Mrs. Sam Clay, of Lexington.

Mrs. J. M. Case, of Hutchinson, took the premium on a handsome blue moire-antique silk quilt.

A bright silk quilt, made by a child nine years old—Nena Young, of Lexington, took a premium.

Miss Lou Bowman, of Lexington, is the proud possessor of the honors worn by that handsome antique pottery.

Russell Mann's baby took the premium over twelve other boys, and Jeff Kiser's took it in the girl ring yesterday.

With but little variation, the same parties are taking the premiums this year—particularly in the cattle shows.

Strangers frothed and foamed at the failure of our fair Wednesday, and mortified us home folks fearfully.

Sam Pryor didn't get as many blues on the Berkshires as he wanted. Too many Poland-China men on the committee.

The lemonade and cream candy men will be too badly left to know themselves, and so will Nippert and all the vendors.

The attendance yesterday reached near 8,000 and was as fine a crowd as generally assembles at any one point in the State.

Farmers will recognize a thing of beauty in a stalk of mullen and thistle in bloom, and beautifully portrayed in water colors.

Those who attended the Bourbon House hop Wednesday night, say that it was larger attended than the first night generally is.

For a dime, you can get a Punch, hear Judy, feel a snake, and see a pretty Circassian girl's stuffed pedal extremities, at the fair grounds.

Miss Emma Carson cut and made her silk dress, and got the special premium of Ingels & Co., and also the one offered by the association.

President J. W. Ferguson, of the association, is in for a trotting track, and if the other officers will follow, he will lead in the right direction.

Geo. Thomas, of the Maysville Republican, W. H. Polk, Louisville Commercial, and Mr. Fleming, Lexington News, were taking in the fair yesterday.

LIFE is too short and space too valuable to publish such dry reading as the list of premiums awarded. It follows the list of last year with that variation of an assessor's book.

The prettiest picture in the hall, by large odds, is a portrait and landscape in water colors, of a little Miss sitting on the brooklet bank with her feet in the water. It is the work of W. T. Huntleigh, of Lexington.

The floral display exceeded in beauty and profuseness that of any previous year. James Hinton and Mrs. Holliday furnished most of the display. Mr. Hinton took the display and several other premiums, while Mrs. Holliday took several class premiums.

Death of John Willie Clay.

Last night about 8 o'clock, John Willie Clay, aged about 33, son of Henry Clay, near Stony Point, started in a buggy over to Mount Airy, across Houston, to convey a young lady to the theater.

Shortly after, he was found in front of Mr. Dow's and Judge Tarney's residences, standing on his feet and holding his horse, and one of his buggy wheels broken. He was injured internally, and died in great agony soon after being conveyed to his uncle's residence in this city—not being able to give any of the particulars of the accident. He had been a sufferer from spinal disease, and his injuries threw him into convulsions. It is generally conceded that some one ran into his buggy, and he was thrown out on the pike. No wounds were found on his body.

SOCIETY SCINTILLATIONS.

Col. A. J. Morey, of the Cynthiana News, attended our fair yesterday.

Mrs. Garfield is under Dr. Boynton's care. She is suffering from malaria.

Mrs. Willis Hedges has rented of Mrs. Ireland, her boarding house on Pleasant Street.

It would be more convenient to kiss her down town than to follow her to the depot.

Jesse James' horses are now with a circus. He ought to have them in heaven with him.

Gen. Buford danced the racquet and other kick-high and fight-low dances last night.

A million of gold dollars weigh 3,685 pounds, and a million silver dollars 71,614 pounds.

A man loves when his judgment approves; a woman's judgment approves when she loves.

If all days could be Thursdays, what a world of fools would be put on the big dog all the time.

Bob Parrish and Miss Nannie Boaze, of Flat Rock, married yesterday at the Thurston House.

Berard sent Craddock a written challenge Monday, but Craddock didn't have time to answer it.

"Cap" Sharrard, of Louisville, took in the fair during the week and greeted his many old friends.

One good thing about our fair—the officers do not lay so much stress on their badges and red tape.

The idle should not be classed among the living; they are a sort of dead men that can't be buried.

Solomon said "There's nothing new under the sun." Solomon's a liar. Our new depot is under the sun.

Misses Lulu Long, of Midway, and Lizzie Taylor, of Millersburg, are the guests of Miss Eliza Hedges, this week.

A young lady in the knob neighborhood, of Simpson county, has hair seventy inches long, for which she has refused $80.

Miss Florence Kennedy, of the Huntley Dramatic Company, is an exquisitely handsome and accomplished lady, and a tip-top actress.

Misses Shackelford, of Richmond, and Shelby and Lilly, of Lexington, and Lackey, of Lancaster, are the guests of Mrs. Chas. Stephens.

Some Washington ladies have formed a secret society with a view of exposing politicians who place abandoned women in the departments.

Bob Ford is in Cincinnati. If he will only come over to Lancaster, Ky., some fellow will be glad to "get married" to him for a few minutes, just for the novelty of the thing.

CRADDOCK has been reveling in clover of seven and eight leaves, but that's nothing. Harry James' little son Charlie, showed the News one the other day with fifteen leaves.

"Heaven lies about us in our infancy," says the poet. The inference is that as soon as we get big enough to talk we can be relied on to lie about ourselves. If we do not, our enemies will lie about us.—[Texas Siftings.]

A miss of twelve at a Long Branch hotel is a perfect little heart-smasher. She appears in a many as six costumes in a single day, including a bathing dress which would be shocking if she were a year or two older.

Mrs. Capt. T. A. Johnson, of Atoka, Tenn., is the guest of BOURBON NEWS.

The Misses Giltner, of Eminence, and Page, of Mo., are the guests of Mrs. Geo. Ingels.

The Misses Chiles and Parker, of Cincinnati, are the guests of Mrs. George Collier.

A. J. Bradford, democratic non-assessable post-master of Bradford, Bracken county, is attending our fair.

Do not wear your troubles and misfortunes on the outside like an overcoat, but keep them hidden within, like a ragged-back vest.

Miss Ellen Meighan, of Lexington, took the premium or worsted embroidery on canvass. Her subject was Christ bearing the cross, and contained 221,588 stitches.

Bananna pie is now included among the alleged delicacies of the season. Don't you monkey with it. The dratted bananas are just as slippery in the stomach as they are under the heel.

Cesar was a bald-headed man, while history supports the theory that all philosophers, soldiers and statesmen were scant haired, while the insane asylums abound with long and coarse-haired individuals.

In describing a bathing costume the other day, Clara Belle said that the skirt was too short to sit on. If there isn't a dress reform at the seaside pretty soon, ladies' skirts will soon be so brief that after a while their suspenders will show.

Miss Lida Aviritt, well-known here as one of the most accomplished music pupils in the Cincinnati College of Music, assisted by Mac Lovenhart, will give a concert at Odd Fellows' Hall, on Tuesday evening next. We bespeak for Miss Lida, the kindest consideration of an appreciative public.

Gen'l Winfield Scott Hancock wrote to Joe Davis, regretting that he could not attend the series of hops given by the Bourbon Club, during the fair week. The letter was written by his private secretary, and signed by the General, whose signature could not be deciphered or counterfeited by the oldest expert.

The Bourbon House hop last night was one of the grandest ever given in this city. It was immensely attended, and the ladies' dresses were rich and rare. Miss Mollie Knight wore a cream satin brocade in golden fern leaves on front breast; Miss Ida Hildreth, cream satin with hand-painted sunflowers; Miss Carrie Hildreth, cream satin and crimson; Miss Katie McClelland, pink satin and striped moire. Most of the toilets would approximate the samples given.

Rev. George W. Sweeney is in town visiting his brother J. S. Chicago is his home, and is in the field holding meetings and lecturing. He spent the past winter in New Orleans, Memphis, Little Rock and other Southern cities lecturing and preaching. He prefers this sort of work to the settled pastorate as he has been in very poor health for a year past, but traveling and general recreation have done much for him and he is beginning to feel much improved. Rev. S. will be in the city and at Millersburg, his old home, for a week or two. His many friends will be glad to hear him preach again before leaving us.

Maj. T. P. Johnson, of Fayette, sold his celebrated horse, King Phillip, Saturday to an Eastern party, for $5,000.

Floral Hall exhibit is very good, but the hall is not crowded by side displays by the merchants as it used to be, which makes it look scant.

I. L. Yearsley, of the Millersburg precinct, wants to rent from 30 to 50 acres of tobacco land, and 25 acres for corn. He refers to anyone in his precinct.
