The declaration of G'iam Shaw of lawful age made and taken on the fourteenth day of July 1813 at the house of Henry Timberlake in the town of Paris, sheweth, that during the last illness of the late John Pilcher of the Town of Paris and between the fourth of this instant and the thirteenth being the day on which the said John Pilcher died, he the said late John Pilcher did seem to be his wish and desire with him the said decedent on the subject of his estate, and did finally express his wish and desire with respect to the disposal of his property, in case he should die, of the illness he then laboured under to be to this intent and effect - To wit, That a negro woman should be purchased immediately or as soon after his decease as could be, out of the joint funds then engaged with and in the hands of Boon Ingles, his partner in trade, and given to his the said John, mother to be held by her during her natural life, and at her decease that the said woman should then be given to Merri's Pilcher son of the late Moses Pilcher and brother to the said decedent John Pilcher. The said Testator further expressed himself thus, - that his then partner Boon Ingles might if he thought proper, keep his the said Testator's property in his hands for a reasonable time - such as might be considered sufficient to enable the said Ingles to pay for the said property without distressing himself, for that he wished the Ingles might carry on his business without him being distressed, after which the amount then due to the said Testator should be equally divided among his brothers and sister. The said Testator finally decreed in general terms that his cloathing should be given to his brother Benjamin after his death.

"Signed" I am: Thos
Also the declaration of Joshua C Livingston taken at the same time and place sheweth - That during the said last illness of the late John Pilcher, the said decedent desired as his last will - That as soon after his decease as could be, that all his debts should be discharged - that a negro woman should be purchased out of his funds in the hands of his partner Boon Ingles and given to his the said Testator's mother to be held by her during her natural life and at her decease to pass and be given to his Nephew Merri's Pilcher son to his late brother also the said ^{decedent} said how Inghel should have liberty or might keep all his the said Testators property in his hands for four years from next Christmas, asking the decedent at the same time whether he thought that time would be long enough to enable him Inghel to make the payments & engaged, and pay off the amount of his the said Testators funds in his the said Inghel's hands without distressing him - He paying it in equal payments each year after his the said Testators decease.

"Signed" Joshua C. Livingston.

Also the declaration of Valentine the Leg^{al} of lawful age at same time and place & sheweth, That in a conversation which passed between the late John Pitcher of the Town of Paris deceased, and Brod Inghel, the then partner in trade of the said Decedent, during the last illness of the said John Pitcher, in the presence of the subscribers, the said Valentine - He the said late John Pitcher observed that in case of his death at that time, he wished and it was his desire that the said Inghel should keep the property of the said Testator in his hands for a convenient time that he might be enabled to pay it to his heirs without distressing him, on which Mr Inghel sheweth that he thought five years would be no more than enough to enable him to make the payments at that time engaged between them and so it is agreed that Mr Pitcher asked him, if he thought that time would be enough, and Mr Inghel saying that it would be, he Pitcher said he was satisfied.

The said Decedent also testeth that a negro woman should be immediately purchased and given to his the said Decedent's mother, and that if he Inghel, could not purchased the above. He might part with one of the negro men then held by them jointly and give the woman. The said Decedent also desired that when a payment of any part of his the said Decedent's Estate, was to be paid to his heirs, that he wished his Brother Shadrach, who he believed wanted it most, might be paid first. He further desired that a mourning dress of the best kind and quality might be purchased at his cost and given to Mrs Ingels wife of his partner the aforesaid Boon.
