

Some few days before the death of Everington Brown, who suffered with his last illness at his own house when speaking his situation, he requested us to bear in mind that if he died he wished Eliza Morrison to inherit all his property of every description that he had no relations in this County and that the said Eliza had lived with him a long time and had tended himself and wife in their sickness with the care affection of a child And that he considered her best interest in whatever he left
