

the years 1893 and 1894, was born in Boston 13 June 1859, the son of Calvin, M.D., and Sophia Toppan (Crocker) Stevens, and died in Boston 29 April 1916.

He was educated at the Dwight Grammar School, the Boston Latin School, and Harvard University, receiving from Harvard the degree of A.B. in 1880, M.D. in 1883, and A.M. in 1884.

In 1883 he began the practice of medicine in Boston; but in 1886 he withdrew from active practice, and thereafter gave much of his time to the service of charitable and benevolent organizations and to his extensive business interests. In 1888 and 1889 he was a member of the Boston City Council, and in 1891 he sat as a Republican in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. After his marriage he removed to St. Albans, Vt., where he had a large farm. He resided in St. Albans for several years, was a member of the Board of Aldermen of that city, and from 1900 to 1903 was superintendent of the St. Albans Hospital, devoting himself to the task of building up this institution and putting it on a satisfactory basis. For two years after 1903 he travelled extensively with his family in Europe and in Egypt.

He was a member of many medical societies, and was a Mason and a Knight Templar. Among the numerous organizations to which he belonged were the Appalachian Mountain Club, the Boston Art Club, the Union Club, the Twentieth Century Club, and the Harvard Club of Boston.

He married at St. Albans, 11 December 1895, Emily Huntington Lewis, daughter of Silas Huntington and Harriet (Safford) Lewis of St. Albans, who, with two sons, Stanford Huntington and Philip Greeley, survives him. His eldest son died in infancy.

JAMES LONGLEY of Boston, a life member since 1912, was born in Boston 13 January 1840, the son of James and Sally (Eustis) Longley, and died in Boston 9 May 1916. His father, a native of Boylston, Mass., was proprietor of a coffeehouse that stood for many years on the site now occupied by the Exchange Club in Boston. His grandfather, James, was also a native of Boylston.

He attended the Chauncey Hall School, then went into a shoe store, and in early life became a partner in the Robinson & Longley Shoe Company on Hanover Street, Boston. His unusual sound judgment led to his election to positions of great responsibility. He was president of the Everett Mills, the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, the York Manufacturing Company, and the Hamilton Manufacturing Company, senior member of the Board of Trustees of the Franklin Savings Bank, a director and vice-president of the Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Company, and a director of the Union Trust Company of Chicago, Ill., and the Boston Storage Warehouse Company.

Mr. Longley was deeply interested in schools where young men and boys learn trades, as well as in many charities about Boston. He was vice-president of the Home for Aged Men, treasurer of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library at Cohasset, Mass., a member of the Boston Art Club, the Algonquin Club, and the Bostonian Society, and a life member of the Boston Young Men's Christian Union. He was a Unitarian, and attended Dr. Edward Everett Hale's church.

He married Julia Robinson, who survives him, daughter of his former partner in the boot and shoe business.

ELIHU CHAUNCEY, A.M., of New York City, a life member since 1885, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 17 August 1840, the son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth Sewall (Salisbury) Chauncey, and died in New York City 16 May 1916. He traced his lineage from President Charles¹ Chauncey of Harvard College through Nathaniel,² Nathaniel,³ Elihu,⁴ Charles,⁵ and Nathaniel,⁶ his father, and he was a brother of Charles Chauncey of Philadelphia, a memoir of whom may be found above, on page li.

From 1850 to 1856 he was educated in Philadelphia and at private schools in New Canaan, Conn., and Newton, Mass., and then, entering Harvard College, he was graduated in the Class of 1861, receiving the degree of A.M. in course in 1864. During the year following his graduation he attended lectures on chemistry, physics, etc., at the Polytechnic College, Philadelphia. From October 1862 until December 1863 he was in the office of Richard Jones, shipper of coal, Philadelphia. In January 1864 he was elected secretary and treasurer of the Pottsville Mining and Manufacturing Company. He also held the position of director in the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad Company and in the Baltimore Steam Packet Company.

In 1879 he removed to New York City, where he became actively interested in various religious and philanthropic organizations. He served as treasurer of the House of Mercy, as secretary and financial agent for the Fund for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Deceased Clergymen, and of Aged, Infirm and Disabled Clergymen, and as a vestryman of Trinity Church. For twenty-five years (up to his resignation in 1913) he was treasurer of the General Theological Seminary in New York. He was also a member of the Board of Managers of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society, and from June 1886 until his death was a trustee of the New York Protestant Episcopal Public School.

He married in New York City, 14 November 1871, Mary Jane Potter, daughter of Right Rev. Horatio Potter, D.D., Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York, who with one daughter, Nathalie Elisabeth, the wife of Seth Low Pierrepont, survives him.

ARTHUR PRESBREY FOWLER of Brookline, Mass., a resident member since 1909, was born in Boston 12 April 1862, the son of Edmund and Hannah (Allen) Fowler, and died in Boston 26 May 1916.

He was educated in the public schools of Boston and at the Roxbury Latin School, and nearly his whole life was spent in Boston. For many years he was in the wholesale leather business, and won the confidence of all with whom he was brought into contact. "His tastes were refined and simple, and in the pursuit of his favorite recreation and study, the genealogy of the various branches of his family, he spent for many years the leisure hours from a busy life in patient, painstaking research, which displayed rare qualities of persistence and accuracy, and great skill and ability in this particular line. The result of his work was the accumulation of a large amount of valuable information on his subject, reliable and well arranged, and much of it new."

He married, in 1903, Elmira A. Palmeter, who survives him.

CHARLES BAILEY GOOKIN of Boston, elected to resident membership in 1879 and made a life member in 1908, was born in Boston 26 September 1847, the son of Samuel H. and Martha (Ball) Gookin, and died at Tisbury, Mass., 16 June 1916. He was a descendant of Maj.-Gen. Daniel Gookin, who after spending several years in Virginia came to Massachusetts in 1644 and settled in Cambridge.

He attended the Chauncy Hall School in Boston and the United States Naval Academy, but left the Academy before completing the course there. He then prepared for Harvard College, but instead of going to college he entered the dry goods commission house of Frothingham & Company, and later associated himself with the firm of Joy, Langdon & Company, in which he was a partner for many years. In 1909 ill health compelled him to retire from active work, after he had spent nearly forty years in the dry goods commission business.

He made his home in Boston, and had a summer residence at West Chop, in the town of Tisbury, on the island of Martha's Vineyard. He was a member of the Algonquin Club of Boston and of the Country Club.

He married, 29 December 1874, Marie T. Blodgett, daughter of Charles F. and Caroline T. Blodgett of Providence, R. I., who survives him, together with two children: Marie, and Dorothy Quincy, now Mrs. Effingham Lawrence of New York City.

FRANK HERBERT DAMON of Scituate, Mass., a resident member since 1912, was born at South Scituate, Mass., 10 June 1854, the son of Charles Henry and Rosilla North (Bennett) Damon, and died at Stoneham, Mass., 19 June 1916. He traced his descent from John¹ Damon, an early settler at Scituate, through Zachary,² Zachary,³ Zachary,⁴ Galen,⁵ Galen,⁶ and Charles Henry,⁷ his father.

He was educated in public and private schools in Scituate, and came to Boston at the age of thirteen. For forty-four years he served the same financial interests, acting as treasurer and trustee, and for many years he was assistant treasurer of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Until 1915 he resided in Melrose, Mass., spending his summers in Scituate, but he intended to reside permanently in Scituate and built a house there.

He was a charter member of the Amphion Club of Melrose, and a member of various Masonic organizations and of the Society of Colonial Wars.

He married, 7 September 1880, Jessie Fremont Jones, daughter of Charles C. and Hannah Lincoln Jones, who survives him, with two children: Arthur Herbert Damon, A.B. (Harvard, 1904), LL.B. (Harvard, 1907), a lawyer of Boston, and Gladys Louise Damon.

ADDISON LYMAN DAY, B.S., of St. Louis, Mo., a resident member since 1910, was born at Springfield, Mass., 29 April 1849, the son of Addison and Margaret (Smith) Day, and died in St. Louis 25 June 1916. He was a descendant of Robert¹ Day of Hartford, Conn., through John,² John,³ Abraham,⁴ Ezra,⁵ Plin,⁶ and Addison,⁷ his father.

He was educated in Springfield, Mass., Davenport, Iowa, and at the Jefferson County Institute, Watertown, N. Y., and was prepared for college at the Lowville Academy, Lowville, N. Y. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1870, receiving the degree of B.S.

After graduation he followed for two years the vocation of civil engineer, and then entered the railway business, becoming superintendent's clerk on the St. Louis & Iron Mountain Railroad and, later, assistant superintendent of the Utica & Black River Railroad. He then engaged in business in Utica, N. Y., and afterwards was connected with the Union Pacific Railroad and was stationed at Atchison, Kans. Then he became associated with the Hoyt Metal Company of St. Louis, and, with the exception of about three years, continued with this company for more than thirty years, holding various positions of responsibility.

He was connected first with the Congregational and later with the Presbyterian Church, and was a member of various Masonic bodies.

He married first, 12 March 1872, Carrie Emma Dewey of Hanover, N. H., daughter of Gardner Watson and Marcia Ann (Clark) Dewey; and secondly, 14 September 1886, Mrs. Maude Emma (Gardner) Cunningham of New York City. Of his three children by his first wife, two died young. He had no children by his second wife.

MRS. MARGUERITE LEVERING (WOODS) AYER of Winchester, Mass., a resident member since 1914, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 12 May 1881, the daughter of Charles Rowell and Sophie Levering (Mattis) Woods, and died at Winchester 28 June 1916.

She was educated at Arthur Gilman's school in Cambridge from 1888 to 1893, at Sister Elisabeth's school in Florence, Italy, in 1893, at the Walnut Hill School, Natick, Mass., 1894-1897, and at the Gilman School in Cambridge, 1898-1901. She also studied music in Florence and under Mr. Warren Andrew Locke in Cambridge.

Mrs. Ayer was prominent in the social and church life of Winchester, being a member of and a worker in the Church of the Epiphany (Protestant Episcopal). She was also prominent in the musical circles of the town and was a member of the McDowell Club of Boston.

She was married, 8 June 1904, to William Pitt Frye Ayer, son of Wells and Lizzie (DeWitt) Ayer, who, with one child, Robert Wells Ayer, survives her.

EMORY MCCLINTOCK, A.M., Ph.D., LL.D., of Bayhead, N. J., a life member since 1905, was born at Carlisle, Pa., 19 September 1840, the son of Rev. John, D.D., LL.D., and Caroline Augusta (Wakeman) McClintock, and died at Bayhead 10 July 1916. He traced his descent from Alexander McClintock of Trinta House, co. Donegal, Ireland, born probably in co. Argyll, Scotland, who married Catherine
