codicil to the last will and Testament of Hannah Washington - It being a doubt whether I have a legal right to dispose of the legacy left my late ever dear husband by his deceased uncle General George Washington, and as, should I not have such a legal right my Daughters would become equal sharers with my sons and thereby give them an unequal proportion of my estate - I do by this my codicil declare my will and intention to be that if I have not the legal right to dispose of the legacy as I have directed in my will and my daughters should under the law be sharers in said legacy I do hereby revoke and annul the bequest to them of Two Thousand pound each, nevertheless leaving it in their option when they shall arrive at the age of Twenty one, to relinquish to their brothers their claim to said legacy of General Washington and to receive the one bequeathed them in the body of my aforesaid Will and untill they shall arrive at the age to make the election that they each of them receive the annual Interest of Two Thousand pounds Witness my hand and seal
