THE TEMPERANCE OF THE TEMPERANCE C. C. C.

Come, members of our temperance band,
Let us unite our hearts and hands,
The great destroyer of our race
Again does meet us face to face.

Intemperance is a dread army
Now is waiting for the fray;
That it may break our fond hopes down
And cause the world to weep and mourn.

He casts his eyes upon the youth,
The Beelzebubian song is sung,
Old Pluto from his lofty throne
Comes, bringing with him heavy chains.

Still houses, dram shops as it calmos
Are putting on nice darkened plumes,
And holding out inviting hands
Tell us to come on—join their bands.

They hold before us worldly joy,
And tell us nothing will annoy
Our earthly pleasures here below
As on the road of life we go.

They do not hold before our eyes
The widows tears, the orphans cries,
That hides their ghostly phantasies
With scenes of joyous revelries.

The maniac's scenes, the drunkard's yell
Of these they never, never tell,
Anytime fail, the gallows fed
With victims of the countries dread.

Or fond hopes crushed of mothers hearts
Which this vile serpent tears apart
Oh! no they never tell of this
But hide it all with worldly bliss.

So were you a man, this grim gladiator
A death as sure as adders stings
A death with far more dread and fright
Than Cleopatra's aspen bite.

And this we know as truly well,
Words are inadequate to tell,
Of half the evils that do flow
From this vile curse on earth below.

So let us put on armors bright,
And stand up firmly in the fight
And let us from this very hour
Attempt to crush the monsters power.

And let us the Gospel to call
Gods aid, in this ungodly task
And let us never idle be,
We members of I. O. G. T.

BY THE LOUD, BOOMING

A Story of Dogs With Just a Shade of Cowardice.

At Oldwood I saw a race between a convict and the hounds. It came about in this way: Mr. Williams claimed, and his was backed by Captain James, that any convict could be hunted out of a hundred and over, off to circle through the woods, passing through a dozen squads of convicts; that no hound so far could put his hounds on that convict's track, and they would thread him through the squads of convicts, never be shaken from his individual track, and finally bring him up. I remarked that I could understand how the hounds might carry the convict's track through a crowd of outsiders from some peculiar scent of the camp, but not how they could separate one convict from another.

"There may be a hundred convicts," he said, "clothed precisely alike, and wearing precisely the same shoes. They may feed together on precisely the same food, and sleep in bunks that touch each other under precisely the same cover. And yet each one of them has a scent that marks him just as distinctly to my hounds from his fellows as his appearance marks under your deliberate study."

"And do you expect me to believe that the dogs can catch this scent from the flying touch of his thick shoes on the hard ground?"

"Undoubtedly. And further. He may stop in a squad and change shoes with a convict, and the dogs will still follow him. On the hardest ground, his scent will be plain to them, though his shoe soles are half an inch thick. When he runs through the woods where his clothes touch the bushes, they will trail him, heads up, in full cry, fifty yards, running parallel, but away from where he ran."

"Do you mean that you can take fifty convicts, all clad in convict suits, let them run through the bushes, then send the convict the dogs are trailing, through the same bushes, and the scent of his body, left on the flying twigs or his clothes, will lead the hounds through the same?"

"Yes; fifty yards away, they will run in parallel at full speed. To prove this, I will start a convict. I will let others follow him through the woods. I will let him make a semicircle in the woods with fifty yards radius. When the hounds come to this, instead of following the curve they will scent the opposite side of the circle, fifty yards away, cut across to it, take the track up there and follow it."

A gaunt convict, long of leg and flank, was selected for the run. He was told to put off quickly, circle in the woods, take a swift run over fields, roads, and through every squad of convicts he could find in his way. This he did. The hounds were then loafing about the stockade yard as listless a lot of dogs as ever were seen. "Fetch 'em," snapped Mr. Williams, "to let the convict ride a horse for a mile or two after he has run awhile. I have had dogs to trail a convict on horseback, four miles and then take the track where he jumped from the horse." By this time the flying convict was a small speck on the broad fields, and in a moment more had melted into the horizon and was gone, as if indeed he had found that liberty for which his soul panted, and had gone as the strong winged birds go, either they vanish in the blue ether.

In an hour we mounted our horses. The hounds were still loafing about in the stockade, all but demly Mr. Williams, repairing himself to his saddle, blew three quick, eager blasts on the cow's horn that hung at his side. As if by magic, the hound awaked, and charged at his saddle—eager, baying, frantic. "Nigger!" he said semi-obviously. Then the wind they were off, nose to the ground, tails up, circling like beagles. Larger the circle grew, till a hounds silent as specters, eyes and nose eating the earth, for its secrets. "They will pass over the tracks of convict squads, but will open on the first single track they find. If it is the wrong track, we will simply sit still. They will run it a hundred yards or so, and noting our silence will throw it off and search again. When they get the right track, we will bellow, and start after the hound that has it. The others will at once join him and the race is opened."

At last a red hound, careering like mad across the field, halts suddenly, tumbles over himself, faces about, noses the ground eagerly, lifts his head, "A-o-o-o-w-!" and is off like an arrow from a bowstring. "That's the track," shouts Williams, and after the howling hound we go. The other dogs join in pell mell at first, then each bound true to the track, in full cry and at rattling gate. Away off to the left Captain James calls attention to a moving speck against the sky. "That is the convict circling back to camp," he said. On the dogs went, keen as the wind, inexorably as fate, following the track of the convict as true as his own shadow. Across the tracks of hundreds of others, along high roads, over fields, through herds of cattle, by other convicts that smiled grimly as they passed, the hounds went, holding the track of the flying convict where it had been laid as lightly as thistle on the firm earth, but where it left its tell-tale scent all the same. Nothing could shake them off—nothing check their fury ones rush. Over other tracks made by convicts wearing shoes from the same last and same box they went without hindrance, led by some intangible miracle of the air, straight on a single path.

"Now well on three wind his scent fifty yards away," said Williams, as we neared a patch of forest. Close to this was a squad of convicts. These we had sent through the woods an hour before. We had made "reunion," walking singly, touch every bush and tree. Then the convict we were trailing was run through, making a half circle, with at least fifty yards radius. The hounds entered the forest at a hustling pace, a small red dog leading. Suddenly the leader faltered for an instant, with nose in air, then burst with fierce cry to the left, ran obliquely for fifty yards with head up, when he took up again the track of the convict, and lowered his head to the ground. He had simply made a short cut across the semicircle, having caught scent of the convict on the bushes more than a hundred feet away. I am aware that this is incredible to those who have never seen it. I cannot explain what it is that the dying man piled and shed as a hundred others fed on the same food, chained daily to the same chain, and sleeping in the same bunks at nights, imparts scent to a yielding twig touched by his clothes so that it attracts a hound fifty yards away. But it certainly does just that thing.

The last test was now coming. We were nearing a squad of convicts at work in a cotton field. We had sent the fugitive convict through this squad. We had then made them walk in a double circle around him. They then crossed and recrossed a tracks, many of them wearing exactly such shoes as he wore. One hour later the hounds struck this point. There was not an instant's pause. There was no confusion, no let up in the pace. Through the labyrinth of tracks the hounds went, as swallows through the air, hurrying inexorably on the one track they had chosen.

The end was now near. The convict having run his race was seen leaning against a tree, and watching the hounds plunging toward him. "Won't he climb the tree?" I asked. "No, the hounds are trained to simply bay the convicts when they come up with them. Otherwise the convicts would kill them." By this time the hounds had sighted him. They halted about twenty yards away from the tree against which he stood and bayed him furiously. Pretty music they made, and not deeper than I have heard often and again under a possum tree. Mr. Williams called them off, and the convict came forward. "Dem puppies is doin' mighty well, Cap'n," he said, grinning as he lazily swung by, on his way to the stockade.

These dogs are not blood hounds. I doubt if there is a blood hound in Georgia—though two are reported near Cartersville, descended from a pair owned by Colonel Jeff Johnson in the days of slavery. The Oldwood dogs are foxhounds of the Bedford breed, trained for several generations to hunt men. They are never tempted by other game. They are neither fierce or powerful, and are relied on solely to trail the convict and lead his pursuers to his lair.—[Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Mr. J. M. Norris, an old resident of Reno, Gel says, that he had been badly troubled with Kidney Complaint for a great many years and with Rheumatism for three years; at times could scarcely walk and had tried many remedies without benefit, until he began taking Electric Bitters and anointing his hands and feet with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. This treatment effected him great relief and he strongly recommends Electric Bitters to all who suffer with Kidney Complaints, or need a Blood Purifier. Sold by Thos. J. Pearson's.

Local Option in New Jersey.

The friends of Temperance in New Jersey are making a vigorous effort to unite their forces and influence to secure the enactment of a local option law for that State. The Committee of Eleven, which was recently appointed by a convention of temperance workers from various parts of New Jersey, at their late meeting in Plainfield adopted the draft of the proposed law, and have unanimously resolved to petition the next Legislature to enact it. The "Committee of Conference," representing five of the largest denominations, and composed of such men as Rev. Dr. Pool, Rev. A. E. Ballard, Rev. Solomon Parsons, Rev. Dr. Whitney, Gen. Clinton B. Fisk and others, have already expressed their hearty approval of the law. It is hoped that the friends of the cause throughout the State will unite in securing its passage so that every community where there is a majority who wish it may be free from the evils of the traffic. Copies of the law may be obtained by addressing Rev. W. E. Honeyman, Secretary, Plainfield, N. J. Temperance Associations, Reform Clubs, Church Associations, Clergymen, etc., are requested to secure copies of the law and to send notice of their endorsement to Mr. Honeyman.

A Good Remedy.

Hostetter McClung sent Dr. Perkins Scoonover a few days ago on Austin avenue.

"I am much obliged to you, doctor, for that tonic you gave me," said Hostetter, calling the learned physician warmly by the hand.

"So it helped you, did it?"

"Helped me? Well, I should say it did. I never had anything brace me up as that tonic did."

"How many bottles did you take?"

"I didn't take any myself. Gave me potash, such stuff down my throat. Then I went to commit suicide like go at it in a different way."

"But I thought you said you experienced beneficial effects from it."

"So I did. I gave the stuff to my rich uncle, who had just made his will in my favor, and now he is no more. One bottle of your tonic knocked him cold."—[Merchant Traveler.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....January 15, 1886.

The Industrial South and the Virginian have combined, making a large 12 page magazine. It will be published in Richmond, Va. It is a practicable journal devoted to the mining and manufacturing interest of the State, and will be of untold benefit in fostering Northern Capital to invest in our State.

After some discussion in the resolution directing our representatives in Congress to do all in their power to secure the repeal of the Internal Revenue tax, passed both houses. It was with strenuous opposition from the Republican leaders in the legislature. It seems that the Democrats are determined to redeem every plank in the platform.

We return thanks to our Congressman Connally F. Trigg for two copies of the Congressional Record, in which we notice that both he and John Randolph Tucker have introduced bills looking to the repeal of the Internal Revenue taxes on fruit brandies and tobacco. Mr. Trigg has also introduced a bill authorizing the Sec'y of the Treas. to ex[illegible] property purchased at Abingdon as a site for public building [illegible] suitable property.

The Colleges and Universities.

Of what avail are the investigations and researches of our learned professors if they are never published to the world? Are the people compensated for the enormous taxes they have to pay in order that our legislators may make munificent endowments to pay learned professors by the few students that attend our State Colleges and Universities? Why does these puppets professors give us the hard taxed people the fruits of they labors and experiments.

To illustrate what we mean, let us take an example close to home: Connected with the College at Blacksburg is a farm upon which Agricultural experiments are made and the student learns the theory of farming, but suppose over one is ever published in regard to the result of any experiment made on that farm? Why shouldn't the old and experienced farmer get the benefit of these experiments. He could make a better application of the result than his smaller brain can ever could. Why can't the results of the analysis of the Prof. of chemistry, or, agriculture, made known? They could do our farmers incalculable good by exposing worthless brands of fertilizers that are attempted to be imposed upon them. But this is not all, more than a year ago a chair in astronomy and a magnificent observatory was founded by McCormick at the University of Va. and yet not a line has been published in reg. to any observation made by that magnificent telescope.

Prof. John Staige Davis one of the finest anatomists in the world and a most polished lecturer died recently without having ever published a single one of those invaluable contributions to the medical science. The Professor of chemistry in the same institution is one of the finest chemists in the United States, yet where have you ever seen an article or an analysis from his polished pen?

The Professor of materia medica in the same institution is a walking vocabulary of medicine, yet he has never made any contribution to the science in the way of literature. We could name over numerous others in these and other institutions but this is sufficient to illustrate our southern lack of push to take advantage of our means of improvement. We are keeping as it were, our light under a bushel. We would like to see the evil remedied in some way. It would be an immense source of revenue to the professors if they would publish the result of their labors, but if they are not able to do so, surely it not be more beneficial if the legislature would provide some way of getting this valuable information before their constituents that as he monkeys go around about the free back school question? We would like to see this question discussed.

Board of Visitors A. & M. College.

In the appointment of the Board of Visitors for the Va. Agtl. & Mech. College at Blacksburg the alumni of the college should be recognized, and at least two appointed as members of the Board. These gentlemen have been at the college, and consequently understand better than others the needs of the college. They know its claims, they appreciate the difficulties, and as it has been carried on, and they are eyewitnesses to the gross misappropriment that has will sigh would it. All these things being true we believe that some of the most prominent of the old students would make efficient members of the Board. Four members have recently been appointed, but if the college is reorganized, and it certainly should be, we suppose there will be as many more to appoint.

So as one of the students and in the name of the alumni, we ask that they be recognized.—[Abingdon Standard.

Mr. Kelley.

Mr. A. M. Kelley, of Richmond, was to-day admitted to practice in the courts of this State on motion of Ex-Judge C. P. Daily. Mr. Kelley has a brother who is in business in this city. It is not stated whether Mr. Kelley intends to take up his residence in this State or not.—[Lynchburg Virginian.

The report sent out from Washington, that he would be made consul general to Paris, for which he was a candidate before his appointment, to Italy and Austria. Mr. Kelley's first act as a member of the New York bar was to second the motion of Algernon S. Sullivan for the admission to practice of T. M. Curtis Gaskett, a colored lawyer of North Carolina. His application to practice bare was, signed by Chief Justice J. W. S. Simpson of the Supreme Court of South Carolina. He was admitted.—[N. Y. Post Letter.

A Strange Queen and a Virginia Belle in Common.

The Belfast, Belfast, Maine of Friday, December 11, 1885, says:

"The Ballycarry Banner displayed an American crazy quilt made of pieces of silk, velvet and plush of all colors, shapes and sizes, most quaintly and elaborately embroidered, and covered with embedded rosebuds, and having the four corners adorned with the stars and stripes, and other American devices, and one particularly noticeable being a representation of an old fashioned country darkey with the legend attached, 'Old Virginia never tire.' This beautiful piece of needlework is from the cunning fingers of Richmond, Va., ladies belonging to the congregation of Rev. Robert Kerr, who recently paid a visit to friends in Green Island. The craft of guilt brought the Landsome sum of $100."

Warning to Bachelors.

An esteemed London contemporary has just published statistics showing that of a given 100,000 bachelors between twenty and twenty-five, there are annually about 1,900 deaths, whereas out of a 100,000 married men of similar age the annual deaths are only about 600. Again, between the ages of thirty and thirty five 1,000 bachelors die and only 900 married men in the 100,000. So, if self-preservation is the first law of nature, the bachelors had better proceed to make hay while the sun shines.

Now, these facts are pretty severe on the bachelors who have left so many old maids on the cold by a gross neglect of duty. But the Philadelphia Times thinks that there is, in these statistics, a beautiful, if undeserved, compliment to the angel ministries of married women. It is to be feared that thousands of married men go along through their lives only half knowing or admiting that their wives are keeping them out of untimely graves at the rate of 900 to 1,000. And with them, figures go on as this dawning of a new year there is no telling how many bachelors and married men now [illegible] by the fair of [illegible]

—A Shakespearian Club is about to be organized in town. When this is accomplished in Pearisburg the Immortals. William's " beats will bear (of) it and boat, though it has lain for a century dead."

—We would suggest to some of our delinquent subscribers that Court day would be a good time to settle their accounts. We intend to make an overhauling of our subscription book soon and those who wont pay will be droped from our list.

—New River is gorged with ice from Eggleston's Springs to the Big Falls above Bear Spring. It is a grand but fearful sight. When this breaks up it is feared that great damage will be done to the fish in that section of the river.

—We welcome to our exchange list the Central Courier, a weekly sheet just started in Glenville, Gilmer Co. by R. H. Barnes, late of the Parkersburg Gazette. We trust him much prosperity and welcome him into the Journalistic brotherhood.

—Our business men and farmers are making a mistake by not trying to secure the Allegheny Institute for this town. Let each one come up and subscribe liberally. He will reap four fold the amount in the benefits arising from the enterprise.

—It will cost you but one cent to write J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg, Va. for Pianos and Organs, and will probably save your $25 to $50 in the purchase of an instrument. He gives prices best goods for less money than you can get either North or South. Try him.

—After to-day the name of Black's and White's will be changed to Blackstone; Clarchwood to Bell Spring; Bear Spring to Berline; and Adair's to Larish, These changes will no doubt cause confusion for sometime to come and in our humble opinion the change of Adair's to Larish is a retrograde movement.

—We have received of R. W. Hartnett & Bros., Printers Machinists, Philadelphia, Pa., the Nineteenth Century Almanac, containing calendar from 1800 to 1900 and the principal events that have occurred each year. It is a very valuable book of reference.

—Judge David E. Johnston of Princeton, W. Va., paid a flying trip to Richmond, Va., this week. His son accompanying him. He informs us that he will edit a book entitled "Reminiscences of the War," being more particularly a history of his company, a large number of whom are citizens of Giles. It will be soon published by Mr. Kitts of the Princeton Journal. We wish this worthy impulsive its success.

—We call attention to the advertisements of Thompson, Dodge & Co. and J. D. Hobbie of Lynchburg, Va., which appear for the first time in this weeks issue. They are both good reliable firms and can be confided upon for the best goods in their respective lines.

—We have our table the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of Va. It makes a fine showing and reports the order in good healthy working condition. This order has had much to do with creating that growing temperance sentiment that is now assuming such vast proportion in our State. It is the duty of every temperance loving person to give his support and influence to this concerted movement against whiskey fiegs.

—Thos. J. Pearson has the largest and most complete line of Dry Goods, Drugs, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Notions and Fancy Goods ever seen outside of the cities. Call and see for yourselves and be convinced of this fact.

—The second term of the session in the Academy will begin Jan. 21, 1886, and continue five months. Persons expecting to patronize the school the last term, are urged to send in their pupils at the beginning.

Miss Kelso will still continue in charge of the music class and in connection with the school.

During the term just closing, the average attendance of students has been larger than ever before. We are thankful for the very liberal patronage of the past, and invite a continuance of the same.

Respectfully,
L. D. SHUMATE.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Obituary to the Memory of Civis.

Died December 26, 1885, from the effect of an overdose of Jamica Ginger, taken as an antidote in a case of chronic procrastination.

Oh, more the golden pen is wield,
No more are the sparkling ink to sling,
No more are this benighted field
The gems of literature to sing.

Oh! who'd have thought a month ago,
He's see the world surprised
By the death of poor Civis, and so
Jamica gingerised.

He's gone where all ink slingers go
Although their quill be bold,
Where the rain don't fall and the wind don't blow,
And it's not so blasted cold.

Oh! well Civis we'll cease these rhymes
And mournfully sing a good-bye,
The best of friends must part sometimes,
And why not you and I.

—Christmas is over and quiet is more restored. Most of our young men seem to be a little the worse for wear.

—Rev. Spence Jones, pastor of the church, and one at the lower school house. The Knownothing school at the upper school house didn't have anything of the kind.

The Xmas tree at the lower school house "went off" Monday night after Xmas, so did the firecrackers and skyrockets. The occasion was a grand success. Rev. W. E. Miller gave us one of his cheerful, witty stories for the children; he is a friend, and his name to Ang was received with a fine hat by the members of the Sunday school.

We extend our sincere sympathies to one of our Mt. S. S. Superintendents. He has had to do all the praying and all the "coaxing" for the whiskey party, and has not received the proper consideration therefor at his own school, so he undertook to appoint himself master of ceremonies, both sacred and profane in other quarters, but certain of the defendants enlisted a Somurrer as follows: whereas the aforesaid —— complainant has however, notwithstanding certain political disabilities contrary to the laws and constitution of the Republic of Spitsen Bun appointed himself, unanimously, Dictator of the aforesaid Rep. We do solemnly protest against the "dictator" part, but while the "taters" we do not seriously object.

A certain school fourth was in this neighborhood during the holidays, and some of our young men seem to be considerably mashed.

"The sweet to court, but oh! how bitter!
To court night, and then and there!"

But we this not to publish about the negative part of the affair.

Mr. Editor, we make by wishing you a happy New Year.

Respectfully,

Pocahontas Scenes.

DEAR EDITOR:—As it has been along time since we have written anything for your paper, we have concluded to give you the news.

Christmas is over once more, we were all brave during holidays, especially when all on a frolic in the bar rooms and this is the reason why we have been playing opossum. Of course during holidays work was slack, but in one evening one hundred Cook Ovens, sixty-five miles of Railroad and several Tunnels were built. But alas-in the bar room we have been waiting to give chance to our new Postmaster to go out and cut a new concern. Formerly one man was doing all the business of the office with only one boy to look after, those days are past and gone. His commission has not yet arrived, and now new Postmaster is in charge, reminds us of a deputies who was appointed by the late sheriff to collect all the back dog taxes, and if they had succeeded as well as they thought they would, some of the male population would have to go every day the whole year, and all in an old hat and let everybody who wished to drop a quarter in the old hat as they swap news with their neighbors. This is like our late Christmas, everything is changed.

The dedication of the Baptist Church took place last Sunday, and it is a nice and comfortable building. Rev. M. A. Wilson, our popular minister, has right to be proud of the new church it was a grand day for the Baptists. They turned out in full force, notwithstanding the incle[ment] of the weather, and after the meeting was over and the balance mud, and for several years we have not witnessed so much water, and if this is not sufficient for the success of the Baptist Church they will be obliged to do their business on a day scale. We also glad to see one of my neighbors, Esq. Charles J. Mathews, one of the most esteemed citizens of Giles County.

Our high and disgusting court has been in session since. Christmas and New Years cases come before him and he is obliged to buy supplies to serve his attachments and the knowledge he has gained since he was elevated into the chair is wonderful, he can now discrimed the difference between plaintiff and defendant. His grand father before him before or after he died not know which he says has the most nasty cases of Flariofurore and he is going to use them on the people if they are not doing better, but everybody knows that he is the hardest man himself, and he now rides the [illegible] praying, hugging, singing, dancing, shooting and killing was going on till at the early date, and the result was three white men, five negroes and two Hungarians shot. Two of which are dead and can not expected to live.

The temperance folks are also here and a lodge is organized with more ladies than gentleman. Some of the sisters are good looking; and some are not, but we hope if they dont buck up the lodge which is very common in Virginia, especially in the Temperance organization, they will get married for the fit is right on them now.

Several marriages took place and the prospect for many more still rake place if the parties are willing. Long courting is the style here and I am sorry to say that a good many of our fellos are left. Thos we know by experience that our girls are courting too much and if they keep on in courting they will of course improve and finally graduate. Lately we heard a girl tell how to kiss and no doubt she has well studied the theory and the practice.

I do not know if you know but we know that our near settlement has witnessed already a strike. Generally both parties are the loosers but here it was not the case. It is an open secret that one day Bluestone will be the main line of R. R., and all the improvements put there will be safe investments and the lessors of the mines generally called operators have taken every advantage that they possibly could and have pettitioned for our Legislators to pass mining laws like those in other States and then and not before the operators will be compelled to employ regular miners and then mining will be a safe employment.

I will say in conclusion that the last time I visited your beautiful town I was met at the Depot by the Proprietor of the Zuk House, a worthy and distinguished gentleman of high attainments and accomplished goalogenity. He escorted me to his most elegant and nobly furnished hotel, and there I certainly enjoyed one of the best meals I ever partook of.

PEARL'S BAR BOY.

—Vick's Floral Guide for 1886, the pleasant and welcome harbinger of spring, comes to this year a real gem, and a very instructive hand botanical manual, but over thirty pages of reading matter, among which are articles on Roses, House Plants, Cheap Greenhouse, Onion Culture, Mushrooms, Manures, Young Gardeners, and very interesting reading, followed by about 150 pages, containing illustrations, descriptions and prices of seasonable everything for flower and garden, in the line of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs, Potatoes, &c. It is a mystery how this firm can afford such publish, and really give away, this beautiful work of nearly 200 pages of finest paper with hundreds of illustrations and two fine Colored Plates, all combined in an elegant cover. Any one desiring goods in this line cannot do better than send 50 cents for the Floral Guide, to James Vick, Seedsman, Rochester, N. Y. Deduct the 15 cents from first order sent for seeds.

—Thos. J. Pearson has on sale plain and fancy dress goods, and notions of every description for the million. His line of Albums, Scrap, Photo. and Autog. and Photograph Frames, in silk plush and leather are unsurpassed. An examination will convince you of this fact.

[WRITTEN FOR THE VIRGINIAN.]

THE MISSION OF THE [illegible].

Come, brothers of our temperance band,
Let us unite our hearts and hands.
The great destroyer of our race
Again does meet us face to face.

Intemperance in a dread array
Now is uniting for the fray;
That it may break our fond hopes down
And cause the spoiler's sway to reign.

He casts his eyes upon the youth,
The Beelzebubian grog is near,
Old Plate from his behind domicile
Comes, bringing with him lottery chalet.

Still houses, dram shops as "saloons
Are posted on nice declined pleasant plumes,
And holding out inviting hands
Tell us to come on... join their bands.

They hold before us worldly joy,
And tell us nothing will annoy
Our earthly pleasures here below
As on the road of life we go.

They do not hold before our eyes
The widows tears, the orphans cries,
But hides their ghostly phantasies
With scenes of joy less realities.

The maniac's screams, the drunkard's yell
Of these they never, never tell,
Asylums full, the gallows fed
With victims of the countries dread.

Of fond hopes crushed of mothers hearts
Which this vile serpent tears apart
Oh! no they never tell of this
Bent hide it all with worldly bliss.

Beware you g man, shun glass beverage
A death as sure as adders stings
A death with far more dread and fright
Than Cleopatra's aspen bite.

And this we know as truly well,
Words are inadequate to tell,
Of half the evils that do flow
From this vile curse on earth below.

So let us put on armors bright,
And stand up firmly in the fight
And let us from this very hour
Attempt to crush the monsters power.

And let us ne'er forget to ask
Gods help, in this tangible task
And union never idle be,
We members of I. O. G. T.

TEMPERANCE.

Miscellaneous.

A Hero of Battle Run and Shiloh in Georgia Counties.

An Old-time Fox Hunt.

"As Oldroyd I see a race between a convict and the hounds. It came about in this way: Mr. Williams claimed, and he was backed by Captain James, that any convict could be blotted out of a hundred and turn off to circle through the woods, passing through a dozen squads of convicts that an hour or so he could put his hounds on that convict's track, and they would thread him through the squads of convicts, never be shaken from his individual track, and finally bring him up. I remarked that I could understand how the hounds might carry the convict's track through a crowd of outsiders from some peculiar scent of the camp, but not how they could separate one convict from another.

"There may be a hundred convicts," he said, "clothed precisely alike, and wearing precisely the same shoes. They may feed together on precisely the same food, and sleep in bunks that touch each other under precisely the same cover. And yet each one of them has a scent that marks him just as distinctly to my hounds from his fellows as his appearance marks under your deliberate study."

"And do you expect me to believe that the dogs can catch the scent from the flying touch of his thick shoes on the hard ground?"

"Undoubtedly. And further. He may stop in a squad and change shoes with a convict, and the dogs will still follow him. On the hardest ground, his scent will be plain to them, though his shoe soles are half an inch thick. When he runs through the woods where his clothes touch the bushes, they will trail him, heads up, in full cry, fifty yards, running parallel, but away from where he ran."

"Do you mean that you can take fifty convicts, all clad in convict suits, let them run through the bushes, then send the convict the dogs are trailing, through the same bushes, and the scent of his body, left on the yielding twigs or his clothes through them, will lead the hounds through the same?"

"Yes; fifty yards away, they will run in parallel at full speed. To prove this, I will start a convict. I will let others follow him through the woods. I will let him make a semicircle in the woods with fifty yards radius. When the hounds come to this, instead of following the curve they will scent the opposite side of the circle, fifty yards away, cut across to it, take the track up there and follow it."

A gaunt convict, long of leg and flank, was selected for the run. He was told to put off quickly, circle in the woods, take a swift run over fields, roads, and through every squad of convicts he could find in his way. This he did. The hounds were then loading about the quarter yard as [illegible] lot of dogs as ever were seen. "Fresh, tempted," said Mr. Williams, "to let the convict ride a horse for a mile or two after he has run awhile. I have had dogs to trail a convict on horseback, four miles and then take the track where he jumped from the horse."

By this time the flying convict was a small speck on the broad fields, and in a moment more had melted into the horizon and was gone, as if indeed he had found that liberty for which his soul panted, and had gone as the strong winged birds go, where they vanish in the blue ether.

In an hour we mounted our horses. The hounds were still loading about in the sunshine. So denly Mr. Williams, tearing himself in his saddle, blew three quick, short blasts on the cow's horn that hung at his side. As if by magic, the hound awaked, and charged at his saddle—eager, baying, frantic. "Nigger!" he said sententiously. Like the wind they were off, nose to the ground, tails up, circling like beagles. Larger the circles grew, the hounds silent as spectres, eyes and nose eating the earth for its secret. "They will pass over the tracks of convict squads, but will open on the first single track they find. If it is the wrong track, we will simply sit still. They will run it a hundred yards or so, and noting our silence will throw it off and search again. When they get the right track, we will halloo, and start after the hound that has it. The others will at once join him and the race is opened."

At last a red hound, careering like mad across the field, halts suddenly, tumbles over himself, faces about, noses the ground eagerly, lifts his head, "A-o-o-o-w!" and is off like an arrow from a bowstring. "That's the track," shouts Williams, and after the bowling hound we go. The other dogs join in pell mell at first, then each hound true to the track, in full cry and at rattling gate. Away off to the left Captain James calls attention to a moving speck against the sky. "That is the convict circling back to camp," he said. On the dogs went, keen as the wind, inexorable as fate, following the track of the convict as true as his own shadow. Across the tracks of hundreds of others, along high roads, over fields, through herds of cattle, by other convicts that smiled grimly as they passed, the hounds went, holding the track of the flying convict where it had been laid as lightly as thistle on the firm earth, but where it left its tell-tale scent all the same. Nothing could shake them off—nothing check their furious rush. Over other tracks made by convicts wearing shoes from the same last and same box they went without hindrance, led by cause intangible miracle of the air, straight as a single cord.

"Now we [illegible] wind his scent fifty yards away," said Williams, as we neared a patch of forest. Close to this was a squad of convicts. These we had sent through the woods an hour before. We had made "transition," walking singly, touch every bush and tree. Then the convict we were trailing was run through, making a half circle, with at least fifty yards radius. The hounds entered the forest at a hustling pace, a small red dog leading. Suddenly the leader faltered for an instant, with nose in air, then burst with fierce cry to the left, ran obliquely for fully fifty yards with head up, when he took up again the track of the convict, and lowered his head to the ground. He had simply made a short cut across the semicircle, having caught scent of the convict on the bushes more than a hundred feet away. I am aware that this is incredible to those who have never seen it. I cannot explain what it is that the flying man, clad and shod as a hundred others, fed on the same food, chained daily to the same chain, and sleeping in the same bunks at nights, imparts scent to a yielding twig touched by his clothes so that it attracts a hound fifty yards away. But it certainly does just that thing.

The last test was now coming. We were moving a squad of convicts at work in a cotton field. We had sent the fugitive convict through this squad. We had then made them walk in a double circle around him. They then crossed and recrossed a tracks, many of them wearing exactly such shoes as he wore. One hour later the hounds struck this point. There was not an instant's pause. There was no doubling, no let up in the pace. Through the labyrinth of tracks the hounds went, as swallows through the air, hurrying inexorably on the one trail they had chosen.

The end was now near. The convict having run his race was seen leaning against a tree, and watching the hounds plunging toward him. "Won't he climb the tree?" I asked. "No, the hounds are trained to simply bay the convicts when they come up with them. Otherwise the convicts would kill them." By this time the hounds had sighted him. They halted about twenty yards away from the tree against which he stood and bayed him furiously. Pretty music they made, and not deeper than I have heard often and again under a possum tree. Mr. Williams called them off, and the convict came forward. "Dem puppies is doin' mighty well, Cap'n," he said, grinning as he leanly swung by, on his way to the stockade.

These dogs are not blood hounds. I doubt if there is a blood hound in Georgia—though two are reported near Cartersville, descended from a pair owned by Colonel Jeff Johnson in the days of slavery. The Oldtown dogs are foxhounds of the Bedbone breed, trained for several generations to hunt men. They are never tempted by other game. They are neither fierce or powerful, and are relied on solely to treat the convict and lead his pursuers to his lair.—[Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Mr. J. M. Borris, an old resident of Rome, Ga., says, that he had been badly troubled with Kidney Complaint for a great many years and with Eczema for three years; at times could scarcely walk and had tried many remedies without benefit, until he began taking Electric Bitters and anointing his hands and feet with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. This treatment flowed him great relief and he strongly recommends Electric Bitters to all who suffer with Kidney Complaints, or need a Blood Purifier. Sold by Thos. J. Pearson's.

Local Option in New Jersey.

The friends of Temperance in New Jersey are making a vigorous effort to unite their forces and influence to secure the enactment of a local option law for that State. The Committee of Eleven, which was recently appointed by a convention of temperance workers from various parts of New Jersey, at their late meeting in Plainfield adopted the draft of the proposed law, and have unanimously resolved to petition the next Legislature to enact it. The Church "Commission of Conference," representing five of the largest denominations, and composed of such men as Rev. Dr. Pool, Rev. A. E. Ballard, Rev. Solomon Parsons, Rev. Dr. Whitney, Gen. Clinton B. Fisk and others, have already expressed their hearty approval of the law. It is hoped that the friends of the cause throughout the State will unite in securing its passage so that every community where there is a majority who wish it may be free from the evils of the traffic. Copies of the law may be obtained by addressing Rev. W. E. Honeyman, Secretary, Plainfield, N. J. Temperance Associations, Reform Clubs, Church Associations, Clergymen, etc., are requested to secure copies of the law and to send notice of their endorsements to Mr. Honeyman.

A Good Remedy.

Forester McClenic sent Dr. Perkins Sconover a few days ago on Austin avenue.

"I am much obliged to you, doctor, for that tonic you gave me," said Hostetter, taking the learned physician warmly by the hand.

"So it helped you, did it?"

"Helped me! Why, I should say it did. I never had anything brace me up as that tonic did."

"How many bottles did you take?"

"I didn't take any myself. Cash me passed such stuff down my throat. When I want to commit suicide I'll go at it in a different way."

"But I thought you said you experienced beneficial effects from it."

"So I did. I gave the stuff to my rich uncle, who had just made his will in my favor, and now he is no more. One bottle of your tonic knocked him cold."—[Merchant Traveler.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....January 13, 1888.

The Industrial South and the Virginian have combined, making a large 12 page magazine. It will be published in Richmond, Va. It is a practicable journal devoted to the mining and manufacturing interest of the State, and will be of untold value in inducing Northern Capital to invest in our State.

After some discussion in the committee directing our representatives in Congress to do all in their power to secure the repeal of the Internal Revenue tax, passed both houses, by a vote with strenuous opposition from the Republican leaders in the legislature. It seems that the Democrats are determined to redeem every plank in the platform.

We return thanks to our Congressman Connally F. Trigg for two copies of the Congressional Record, in which we notice that both he and Hon. Randolph Tucker have introduced bills looking to the repeal of the Internal Revenue taxes on fruit brandies and tobacco. Mr. Trigg has also introduced a bill authorizing the Sec'y of the Treas. to exchange property purchased at Abingdon for a site for public building and suitable property.

BOARD OF VISITORS AND GUIVERNORS.

Board of the [illegible]

In the appointment of Visitors for the Va. Agri. & Mech. College at Blacksburg, the alumni of the college should be recognized, and at least two appointed as members of the Board. These gentlemen have been at the college, and consequently understand better than others the needs of the college. They know its history, they appreciate the difficulties which have met it has been carried against they have been eyewitnesses to the great encouragement that has well nigh wrecked it. All these things being true we believe that some of the most prominent of the old students would make efficient members of the Board. Four members have recently been appointed, but if the college is reorganized, and it certainly should be, we suppose there will be as many more to appoint.

So as one of the students and in the name of the alumni, we ask that they be recognized.—[Abingdon Standard.

Mr. Kelley.

Mr. A. M. Kelley, of Richmond, was to-day admitted to practice in the courts of this State on motion of Ex-Judge C. P. Daily. Mr. Kelley has a brother who is in business in this city. It is not stated whether Mr. Kelley intends to take up his residence in this State or not.—Knoxville Tribune.

The report sent out from Washington, the general impression has been that he would be made consul general to Paris, for which he was a candidate before his appointment, to Italy and Austria. Mr. Kelley's first act as a member of the New York bar was to second the motion of Algernon S. Sullivan for the admission to practice of T. McCants Stewart, a colored lawyer of South Carolina. His application to practice here was signed by Chief Justice J. W. S. Simpson of the Supreme Court of South Carolina. He was admitted.—[N. Y. Tribune Letter.

The Belfast, Ireland, Report of Friday, December 21, 1888, says:

"The Ballycarry Bazaar displayed an American crazy quilt made of pieces of silk, velvet and plush of all colors, shapes and sizes, most quaintly and elaborately embroidered, and covered with embossed rosebuds, and having the four corners adorned with the stars and stripes and other American devices, and one particularly noticeable being a representation of an old fashioned cabin, darkey with the legend attached, 'Old Virginia never tire.' This beautiful piece of needlework art is from the cunning fingers of Richmond, Va., ladies belonging to the congregation of Rev. Robert Kerr, who recently visited his friends in Grays Island. The crazy quilt brought the handsome sum of $100."

Wedding to Bachelors.

An eminent London contemporary has just published statistics showing that of a given 100,000 bachelors between twenty and twenty-five, there are annually about 1,900 deaths, whereas out of a 100,000 married men of similar age the annual deaths are only about 600. Again, between the ages of thirty and thirty-five 1,500 bachelors die and only 900 married men to the 100,000. So, if self-preservation is the first law of nature, the bachelors had better proceed to make hay while the sun shines.

Now, these facts are pretty severe on the bachelors who have left so many wife and [illegible] by a gross neglect of duty. But the Philadelphia Times thinks that there is, in these statistics, a beautiful, if undeserved, compliment to the angel ministries of married women. It is to be feared that thousands of married men go along through their lives only half knowing or admitting that their wives are keeping them out of untimely graves at the rate of 900 to 1,500. And with them forewarned go up in this dawning of a new year hopes in the melting love many bachelors and married men may yet find in proposing by the first of August.

THE VIRGINIAN.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

STAUNTON, VA., Jan. 4, '86.

EDITOR OF VIRGINIAN:—We have missed your valuable paper for one week and this time has stopped so long as to form the fact it has been published longer a benefit as a paper.

I am most pleased with your political position in regard to the distribution of the minor offices and the relation in which Giles stands to the Democracy. I always stood by the Democracy and always will, and I do not believe that she has ever been overcome, such as Bland attended on to her, and such find orators among her people as Slocum of New York, Craig of Augusta and Cousin William too picked around, besides a host of little "you know whats," to mingle with the people by night as well as day. I say to take all these things in view Giles so far has not been treated right, but let us like true soldiers still keep fought battle after battle under many colors, and I believe all will triumph, but speak out and be firm. If we have troubles in our ranks let us settle them in the ranks. Let us ever look forward to do the best for the most good to the most people, and well done our duty will have been done.

Now, If the provisions of the School Law are carried out as they should be and particularly as expressed in Section 6, Article 3rd of the constitution, all who are not able to purchase books will be furnished with them, there is no need of Mr. Williams' bill. I am truly glad of the appointment of Dr. Buchanan to the important position of State Superintendent of Schools, and believe he is able to run this department much to the credit over his predecessor, and I believe in order for the system of to be of more advantage to the masses of the people, to come out and speak the wishes to be appointed as Trustees of Schools, men who are not diseased or crippled either in body, mind or politically, men who are industrious, intelligent and above all interested in the education of all the children of well as their own. I do not know who the County Superintendent will be, but hope for the best and believe in any event there will be an improvement. The man should be one fully qualified and who will do his duty, should be free from disjunctive connection influences, if such to the case we will be able to work up to the provisions already made by law, and those who have children a little further advanced than she cannot teacher can teach will not be forced to pay from two hundred dollars for each per month. There are numbers now who do this for the fact the system is not worked up to its utmost point, and I am down here by some means which is not the case to fully say other there. We must have the graded schools in order to reap the full benefits of the system as provided and the provisions of the law. In short some little advancement has been made by a poor man's child, he is told by the teachers that he cant study such high studies with him without pay. Put down cash, and the amount charged according to the number of months say 50 cts. per book, and in the most cases each scholars have to furnish at least one of the Arabic books and the poor boy finds from five to seven dollars a month, this amount of money is obtained by compulsion and the parents have to pay 50 years of age and to that number so is the amount of money obtained. Now, what becomes of the amount which 50 or 60 children who are not going to the Free School for the reason the teacher does not teach what they wish to learn? I do not look on these things right and not accord with the school officers well, then see to it that next day, and does not will take to furnish the books, and the comparative number of those who need such a bill with the provision that the law already makes, It is more fully. Let us work to get good efficient men in this work to do the business, and then bring the system up to its highest elevated standard by having competent teachers to teach the primary schools, and then a higher grade of schools, one or two in each District, so that the students can get at what he cannot now under our present practice.

I fear this is now too long to be agreeable, I would like to say something on another subject which you seem to take and I believe are right in taking much interest in its temperance. Yes strike where you are for the people who profess to be christians and come out with tones almost as loud as thunder against dancing are not aiding the temperance cause, you can handle them. Let things go on as they are now the cause of intemperance will fail, and drunkenness and all other vices will prosper, from the fact that the christians are not decided enough in taking their stand in the ranks, and fighting the arch fiend of darkness and degradation.

Let us hear from some of our friends on these questions, with a view to band ourselves together as colabors with him who doeth all things well, as well as having set the example of working in his vineyard constantly, earnestly and faithfully, He having assured us of the reward, that awaits the faithful.

Respectfully, &c.,
ANDERSON.

The Emperor William.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of Emperor William to the throne as King of Prussia fell on Saturday, January 2. At the request of the Emperor the celebration of the event was deferred until the succeeding day, when thanks giving services were held in the churches throughout the Empire. Germany may well rejoice over the prolongation of the life of her wise and good ruler. William has been the real King of Prussia since 1858 when he became Regent for his brother Frederick William IV., who had become an imbecile. On June 8th, 1861, his brother died, and on October 18 of the same year, at Konigsberg, William placed the crown of Prussia upon his own head, and gave emphatic declaration of his belief in the "right divine" of kings. One of his first acts after coming to the throne was to appoint Count Bismarck, of Schoenhausen, Prime Minister of the realm. The two have stood together, William and Bismarck, since that day in every movement for the aggrandizement of Prussia and the unification of Germany. It was on January 18, fifteen years ago, that the King of Prussia was proclaimed Emperor of Germany, in the Hall of Mirrors in the palace of the French Kings at Versailles. Twenty-five years a King, and fifteen years an Emperor, William I, approaches his eighty-fifth birthday, yet vigorous in mind and body, beloved by his people, and honored by the world.

THE GREAT FAMILY PAPER
—OF THE—
NEW WEEKLY DISPATCH.
ONLY $1 PER YEAR.
Eight Pages of Solid Reading Matter.
THE BEST PAPER IN THE SOUTH.
THE RICHMOND WEEKLY DISPATCH
Is now published in eight-page form. It will contain, besides its former size, additional short stories, columns of solid reading matter. The price remains the same—one dollar per annum.
It is our intention to make the Weekly Dispatch more than ever a first-class family and farmers' paper. It will contain each week complete market reports, the latest news, foreign and domestic, State and city. Together with interesting miscellany, embracing special features in the farmers' department, household matters, ladies' column, an interesting story, and the like. In a word, it is our aim to make it a welcome visitor to the fireside. The paper will be improved in matter and typographical appearance just as in time. Above all, the Dispatch proposes to defend in the future the fair name of Virginia and champion the outraged right for her people as it has always done in the past.

"Trust no reason why our party should not commend itself to the discerning by the same group of qualifications" says the Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean (Dem.).

The New Haven Register (Dem.) thinks that "nominations to office should be discussed with the same freedom as the silver question. Every act of Congress concerning the public. There is no occasion for secrecy between the people, who should rule, and their public servants."

If Congress," say the New Haven Palladium (Rep.), "can enact 79 1-3 cents' worth of silver into a dollar's worth, why can't it enact 35 cents' worth of wheat into a dollar's worth? Are the wheat growers of the boundless West at less importance than the silver-mine owners of Nevada and Colorado?

"General Harrison has declared himself a bimetallist," says the Indianapolis Freeman. "We wouldn't care if he were a Mormon if he will only vote to stop the compulsory coinage of the silver dollar. We may be permitted to say, also, that we regard Mormonism quite as correct morally as bimetallism is economically."

John Tyler, in his first message to the people of the United State, on succeeding President Harrison, said: "I will remove no incumbent from office who has faithfully and honestly acquitted himself of the duties of his office, except in such cases where such officer has been guilty of anactive partisanship, or by secret means—the less manly and therefore the more objectionable—has given his official influence to the purposes of party, thereby bringing the patronage of the Government in conflict with the freedom of election."

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, whose editor was once so warm an advocate of the silver dollar, says: "They have stopped the coinage of silver in France. They feel that silver is good for them, but they have stopped the coinage. It is the fact that the coinage has been restricted and stopped that helps the silver. We should help it in the same way. While there is no outcry against silver in France, there is no clamorous faction seeking to drive out gold and degrade the standard of money. The French have outgrown the school of demagogues. The one thing needful in our finances just now is to stop the forced coinage of silver. The next thing will be to teach the people the proper estimation of that precious metal, which is an indispensable part of the money of the world."

Luxury in Washington.

To night a well known diamond merchant of Cincinnati arrived here. His mission was to deliver a diamond necklace to a certain high Government official for his wife. This necklace was ordered months ago, and the markets of the world have been ransacked to produce the brilliants. There are forty stones in the necklace, the centre stone being valued at $3,500, and every stone is of the same color, the priceless blue shade, and they are arranged in perfectly graded size from the centre each way to the buckle. Not a stone has a flaw. It is held that in perfection of individual stones, exactness of shade and size, there is no necklace in the world to equal it, though many may far exceed it in money value. It is understood that $40,000 was the first value of the stones.

A Terrible Murderer Lynched.

(Special Telegram to the Dispatch)

Rockville, January 28.—A special to the News from Rockdale says: On Wednesday night Samuel Ford, a farmer, while returning to his home was waylaid by a negro named Sydney Brown and beaten over the head with an iron bar until his assailant supposed he was dead. Brown then robbed his victim and dragged his body upon the International and Great Northern railroad track, so that none but the dead could be found. By passing train Ford recovered consciousness, however, and dragged himself home, a distance of two miles. One of his eyes was knocked from its socket and his skull was fractured. Officers started in pursuit of Brown and captured him with Ford's property in his possession. After being lodged in jail he confessed his crime, and gave as a reason for committing it that Ford had made love to his wife. Last night it was reported that Ford was dead, and an infuriated mob attacked the jail, got possession of the negro, and, after [illegible] miles from town, hanged him to a hickory tree.

SONG OF THE BROOK.

I come from haunts of coot and hern.
I make a sudden sally,
And sparkle out among the fern,
To bicker down a valley.

By thirty hills I hurry down,
Or slip between the ridges,
By twenty thorps, a little town,
And half a hundred bridges.

To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.

I chatter over stony ways,
In little sharps and trebles,
I bubble into eddying bays,
I babble on the pebbles.

With many a curve my banks I fret
By many a field and fallow
And many a fairy foreland set
With willow-weed and mallow.

I chatter, chatter as I flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.

I wind about, and in and out,
With here a blossom sailing,
And here and there a lusty trout,
And here and there a grayling.

And here and there a foamy flake
Upon me as I travel,
With many a silvery waterbreak
Above the golden gravel.

And draw them all along, and flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.

I steal by lawns and grassy plots,
I slide by hazel covers;
I move the sweet forget-me-nots
That grow for happy lovers.

I slip, I slide, I gloom, I glance,
Among my skimming swallows;
I make the netted sunbeam dance
Against my sandy shallows.

I murmur under moon and stars
In brambly wildernesses;
I linger by my shingly bars;
I loiter round my cresses;

And out again I curve and flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.

FITZ'S FIGHT.

An Incident in the Early Life of the Governor.

[From the Richmond State.]

"The only trouble about Fitz Lee," said Captain E. M. Hayes, the famous Indian fighter and old friend of Governor Lee, to a State reporter who was seated in the reading room of the Exchange Hotel attentively listening to Captain Hayes relate some of the early adventures and forth the escapes of General Fitzhugh Lee when the gallant Virginian won his first military honors upon the battle grounds of the far West, "is that he is too modest.

"Do you think so?" asked Hon. Edward Echols, who occupied a chair near by.

"I know it is so," said Captain Hayes. "Fitz Lee for that is what we called him when we were fighting Indians in the West, is one of the bravest men that I ever saw in my life, and I have seen many brave ones. Coming down on the train yesterday I told Congressman O'Ferrell about Fitz's hand to hand fight with an Indian and how bravely Fitz acted and even Mr. O'Ferrell, who knows Lee so well, said he never heard of that before. Fitz is too modest to tell of his own exploits, and his most intimate friends hardly know anything about his early military life."

"What about the hand-to-hand fight with the Indian?" interrupted the reporter. "I'll tell you," Captain Hayes replied, as a smile played over his face, and his countenance lit up with recollections of earlier days. "When he and I were together in North western Texas fighting in the Indian wars this hand to hand fight took place. We were rounding about in the forest together one day when we spied a big buck Indian. As soon as he saw us he gave and galloped away through the woods on his pony. Fitz and I in Virginia,' he explained, 'I learned follow'd his trail and we kept close a little trick in wrestling that the behind him. Sometimes we would hove called the back-heel, and the get within twenty-five yards of him thought struck me when the fellow and then he would dash off and leave me down that if I tried the us in the rear. We pressed him Virginia back-heel on him I would hard, and finally he was forced, on get him. I tried it, and I got him.' account of the thickness of the woods, to leave his pony and take to the brush. He jumped his pony down an eight foot embankment into a stream, and for a while we lost his trail. Fitz went down on one side of the stream and I went down on the other. I couldn't find the trail, but presently I looked over to the other side and saw Fitz pick up an Indian blanket, and throw it over his shoulder walking along as big as life. I turned him to lookout, for a blanket meant that the Indian was near. He walked about 20 leave as a lion, and it turned out that the Indian was concealed in behind a ledge of rocks almost under Fitz's nose. Fitz didn't see him though, and stood there awhile looking up the stream. I was about twenty yards away to Fitz at once I heard a creaking that caused my blood to run cold and to make me jump about two feet in the air. It was the Indian, and his war whoop startled Fitz as much as it did me. The Indian sprang from behind the rocks and grappled Fitz as quick as lightning. He was a big fellow much larger than Fitz, and was six feet tall. Before Fitz knew it the Indian had him down, and a scuffle followed. The Indian had his long lance and a bow, flag, and to his back. Fitz had a pistol and a carbine. In the scuffle the carbine was dropped, and the Indian's lance also fell from its owner's back before he could use it.

A HOT SCUFFLE.

"It was a hot scuffle. The Indian was too strong for Fitz, and finally threw him to the ground. In falling Fitz lost his pistol, and the weapon went sailing beyond the reach of either Fitz or the Indian.

"The scuffle continued. The Indian had Fitz down, but he could not do anything with him because Fitz was working so hard to turn him. They rolled about upon the ground and I could hear Fitz say some plain English, but the Indian didn't heed it, and continued in the effort to get the better of his opponent.

"All this occurred while I was on the opposite side of the creek, and in less time than it takes me to tell it, I was trying to cross the stream while Fitz was fighting for his life, but before I got over I saw that Fitz had turned the Indian and was on top choking him. Fitz had his left hand upon the Indian's throat and the Indian with both hands trying to break the strong hold that Fitz had upon him. In rolling over the ground strongly to say the two men went back to where the scuffle began, and when Fitz got on top his eyes fell upon his pistols, and the Indian evidently didn't know what Fitz was after. He succeeded in getting hold of the weapon without the Indian's knowing it, and holding the pistol close to the ground he fired. The bullet went, crashing through the Indian's chest, passing out of the opposite side. The Indian then made another desperate attempt to turn Fitz and get possession of the pistol.

A BATTLE UNTO DEATH.

"Each man fought with superhuman strength, and each man knew that it was a battle unto death. Just as I reached Fitz he fired again, and this time the ball struck the Indian's heart and killed him. Fitz then got up, and I said to him: 'That was a close call, Fitz.' He replied: 'Yes; I thought I was gone.'

"Afterwards I asked Fitz how in the world he managed to turn the heavy Indian. Fitz in his form per collar way, replied: 'I tell you what I saved me. Jack' name he calls me.) It was a Virginia back-heel. When I was at school down

Brown and the New Minister.

"Have you called on the Browns yet?" she asked, as the new minister was about to take leave after making a call.

"I am just going the third house I believe?"

"Yes—third house, very nice people. You'd like em."

When the minister sang his hymn was a the noisy in answering it. Meanwhile the scrub-doors pers mitted pieces of bone from the interior. Brown who seemed to be up stairs, called over the bannisters:

"Say, you, silence in thunder in that old hen I spoke of!"

"Who are you talking to?" demanded voices from below.

"To you of course. If you were any sort of a man you'd put things where they ought to be."

"Solomon dear, what's the matter any alarm on me. If I don't know more about housekeeping than all the Browns on earth I'll commit suicide."

"You do, eh! Who filled the paper Smiths have to keep clean in?"

"Solomon, you are a mere wretch."

"Much obliged, but it's living with you that's done it."

At this juncture the minister was ushered in, and Mrs. Brown rose and rearranged the parlor, astounded both hands and gayly exclaimed:

"Ah, I'm so glad I Solomon and I both wanted to see you so much Solomon—Solly, dear, hurry up and come down—our new preacher is here!"

And Solomon came down, pearled a grin on his face and greeted the good man with:

"Well, well, but this is good of you! Wifey and I were just wishing you'd call. We want to see if some effort can't be made to increase the interest in the Thursday evening prayer meetings!"

THE VIRGINIAN

FRIDAY...February 5, 1886.

PROHIBITION HASH.

The following synopsis of a speech made by Hon. Abe Fulkerson in the house last week shows how much sincerity there is in his sentiments. The proceedings of the whole legislature was more like the foolishness of school boys than the actions of wise and prudent legislators.

"Mr. A. Fulkerson favored taking a calm view of this matter. He said local option was in the hands of fanatics, and of the "Old Bob" and "Sam Joness" of the country. He thought the tendency of the scheme was to drive the people from the bar rooms to the still house, and the law wouldn't be worth a cent.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Fulkerson, commenting on what others had said, stated: "It may be that I am the only Prohibitionist here, but it is probably equally true that there isn't a member here who doesn't think local option a humbug. 'A voice: "I don't."] I am bound to say that in the last election the Democrats succeeded not on account of its platform, [illegible] It shows that it has hold on to the "free book plank" in the Democratic platform and hopes that this will land him safely on the other side of Jordan.

A change of circumstances by antagonistic legislation made it necessary for a new enunciation of principles to meet the new state of things fully explains the change in the Democratic platform in regard to the debt question, but that was only one plank and they did not find loose in regard to the rest of the platform like Republican suggest, they have done. Our friends reasoning is just a fraction too broad we think.

Mahone's opinion in regard to free books is as of little interest to us as it is likely to be of consequence to the people of Virginia. So you can let that slip if you please.

Loving's substitute for the Local Option bill reported from the Finance Committee has passed the house by a vote of 45 to 24. Nearly all the Dem crats voting for it.

It requires one fifth of the qualified voters to petition instead of one tenth and also exempts cities of 5000 inhabitants and over from the operation of the law, gives other corporations the right to petition for election and if against license then it cannot be sold within one mile of its corporate limits. It makes the election embrace the question of license of wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors or any mixture of them. It was thought by its friends that unless the exemption of the cities was made it could not pass the Senate as a majority of the Senate were elected prior to the platform pledge in regard to it. This defect it is hoped can be remedied by future legislation. Some officious good-for-nothing parasites received quite a set back by the Local Option alliance in regard to some memorials in reference to the exemption of the cities.

The Ministry of Lord Salisbury has been defeated and Gladstone has been called to form a new ministry —Parnell laughed at the idea of his forming a ministry—he would meet other people.

The dramatic troupe is still in existence. Some one will have to fly the kite of genius and draw it down to business.

Communication.

Why did you lag the liquor question in your reply to Republican on free books in last week's VIRGINIAN? Did you want to dodge the pledge of the Democratic party by bringing in Whiskey drinking and pluttering children going to school in a bar room? Can there not be a local option free book bill as well as a local option liquor bill?

We want no local option free book bill, leaving it to the Supervisors of the different counties, but give us a general free book law for the whole State.

Give us "them free books" Democrats; give us "them good times" Democrats; repeal the "infernal revenue" Democrats; give us the Blair bill, which will give to Giles county $34,000 for educational purposes. You promised all these good things. The Republican U. S. Senate has passed the Blair bill, now let the Democratic House do its duty and Grover Cleveland do his duty and we will get them free books certain without an increase of taxation.

You seem anxious for Republican to stick to his party platform pledge. Would it do any good for a defeated party to stick to its platform. If so why did you not stick to your platform on the Debt from 1879 to 1883.

By the way old friend what will you give to know what Bob Mahone thinks about free books. If you will publish this I will tell you what he thinks next week.

We give place to the above communication from Republican, not that we intend to permit our columns to be [illegible] Democrat, but as it is the intention to our [illegible] series of last [illegible] he was opposed to the reason [illegible] Free book [illegible] he insists on [illegible] other. Local option [illegible] Scott county they have had prohibition for forty years, and I have seen more drunkenness at one of the courts than in Washington county for a year. As to the local option plank in our platform, some fool put it into the Republican platform and some fellow copied it into ours. (Laughter.

"I have been with prohibitionists a long time, and I know something about them. Wherever they get in that they can oust into power by this thing they will quit drinking and go in for local option, and they may carry the State one year, but after that the thing will all go to pieces."

Mr. Fulkerson was merciless in his ridicule of local option and predicted that it would become a hobby for politicians to ride into power, and would utterly fail of its object. He declared that it was unconstitutional, and if adopted generally would seriously injure the finances of the State."

Mr. Fulkerson says:

1st, He was a prohibitionist.

2nd, That he was opposed to local option, because it destroyed the revenue. Done it! It gives the people the right to say so but if local option is detrimental to the revenue what would Prohibition do for it.

3rd, Mr. Fulkerson thinks that the legislature ought not to pass the Local option bill because the Democratic party was not elected on its platform. This may be Mr. Fulkerson's way of disregarding the electioneering promises but it is not the sentiments of good honest Democrats and we are sorry that the time has come that a so called Democrat has so little regard for political honor or honesty that he can give utterance to such sentiments with a bold face and go unrebuked in a Democratic Legislature.

In the conclusion of Mr. Fulkerson's remarks he unconsciously brings to light the reason of his opposition. It is because "they may carry the State one year, but after that they will go all to pieces" and so is not the "hobby" for him "to ride into power upon." We have no use for this sort of a man.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb 1, '86.

TO THE EDITOR OF VIRGINIAN:

The colored people of the District are complaining that although they are invested with all the rights of citizenship under the law, still they are discriminated against by the business men of Washington. They state that they are denied on account of color privileges enjoyed by white people in places of amusement, in restaurants, hotels, lunch rooms, on steamboats, &c., &c. They have consequently petitioned Congress for relief, and Senator Ingalls has introduced a bill amending the license laws so as to forbid and prohibit such discrimination. Frod. Douglass was one of the petitioners.

The pressure brought upon Commissioner Montgomery for pardons in the Patent Office has become so great that he was compelled this week to discuss fifteen applicants to make room for applicants. This is the largest discussed week at one time in any of the offices. The Commissioner resisted the pressure as long as was possible, but at last had to succumb to it. The positions were all outside of the classified Service by the Civil Service rules.

Many interesting and profound speeches are looked for in the debate which will ensue in a few in the Senate on the refusal of the President to give the reasons for making removals and appointments. The Senators of both parties are preparing for the debate, and it is expected that there will be more speeches delivered on this subject than on any question that has arisen for years, certainly since Andrew Johnson's term. The Republican Senators are determined to stand by their party friends in office, and the President is equally determined not to be deprived by the Senate of the exercise of his prerogative of making appointments. The question really is what is meant by the provision of law that the "President shall appoint by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." The speeches when compiled will constitute an exhaustive exposition of that great constitutional question, and it is thought that there will be many demands for copies by libraries and individuals from all parts of the country.

The House and Senate has passed a resolution providing for the removal from the foot of the Capitol grounds of the statuary groups recognized only in name by all visitors to the Capitol as the "Peace Monument." In its stead will be placed a statue of Columbus, and in view of the latter, towards the other end of the grounds and opposite the entrance to the Botanical Gardens, will be placed a statue of Lafayette.

The troubles of the Signal Service Bureau are multiplying. Senator Comptroller Maynard has just made a report upon the accounts and expenditures of the Service, in which he observes that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been illegally expended, and no sufficient vouchers presented therefor. Representative Robertson, of Kentucky, has offered in the House a resolution directing an inquiry into these representations, and a report of such measure as will prevent future violations of the law.

The Committee on Claims in the House continues freezing a bill to refer to the Court of Claims for proof and settlement a large class of claims which can now only be settled by Congress. No well devised plan has yet been settled on, but different propositions are being informally considered, and after all of them have been carefully considered a plan will be formulated and submitted to the House for adoption. For the reason comparatively few claims referred to the Committee this session have been considered. If all claims of a private character against the Government can thus be referred to the Court of Claims for adjudication the calendar of the House will be greatly reduced, and then measures of a public nature can receive more attention of the hands of Congress and great public good will result.

The Board on Fortifications have recommended to the President that Congress be asked to appropriate $1,282,500 for improving the [illegible] defenses of the National [illegible] Portsmouth, [illegible] with the same object in view, that floating batteries be provided for Hampton Roads, also eighteen torpedo boats, turret fortifications, and other batteries. Hampton Roads, it will be remembered, is where the famous contest between the Merrimac and Monitor took place, at the beginning of the late war, just opposite Fortress Monroe, near Norfolk, Va. The safety of the Capitol against approach by water depends upon efficient defenses at Hampton Roads, and hence the Board has made its recommendations. The estimated cost of providing these defenses is $8,815,500.

The President's first evening public reception was held Friday night. Nearly every stranger in the city was present, besides society people in general. A large number of the wives of Senators and members graced the spacious parlors. The floral decorations were most elaborate, and the elegant and costly toilets of the many beautiful women present made a scene of splendor never excelled. Besides the public reception the President has arranged for three other receptions during the season. The others are what are known as "card receptions," to which only these having cards will be admitted. The first will be to the Diplomatic Corps; the next to the Army and Navy, and the last to the Senate and House of Representatives. Refreshments are furnished at all these receptions, and no money is spared in ministering to the wants and epicurean tastes of the guests.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY....February 6, 1880.

A Troop of Wild Horses.

I had camped near the forks of the Platte, and was aroused just at daylight by footsteps around me. After listening for a moment, I felt sure that they were the footsteps of horses. They seemed to be circling around me—not in a canter nor at a trot, but at a moderate walk. It was evident that each animal, my horse in a thorough manner, for I never saw him so excited. He tugged and pulled at his lariat, stood upon his hind legs, neighed and bellowed, pawed and pranced, and it was his actions that gave me a clue to the identity of my visitors.

They were wild horses!

Had they been Indian ponies, my trained horse would have remained as dumb and silent as a post. Indeed, Indians would not have approached me in that manner.

I remained very quiet, hoping the horses would ramble in sight until daylight should give me a good view of them. I had to wait for a full hour; but when the light grew strong the spectacle was one to make a man's blood tingle. The circle had been enlarged until it was half a mile across, and my little camp was the center. Every horse and steer were in sight of them, stood with his head toward the center, and soldiers could not have taken positions on the skirmish line in a more precise order.

I pitied my own animal. He stood with his lariat drawn taut and trembled in every limb, and as we were with equal as if I had galloped him through a race. I believed how he must long to break away and join the wild rovers, and forever end his drudgery.

I dared not rise to my feet for fear of alarming the drove, but, nevertheless, I had a clear view of each horse. Most of them were magnificent animals. Manes down on their shoulders and tails on the grass. They were of various colors, and they ranged in age from the yearling colt to the veterans twenty years old. The bays predominated, but every color was represented.

We had been observing each other about ten minutes, when a jet-black stallion, who was the leader of the herd, gave a snort, threw up his heels into the air, and broke off at a gallop, followed by the drove in single file. They ran in a true circle, and they made the circuit five times before stopping. Then, at another signal from the leader, the circle broke and the horses wheeled into a long single line, or "company front."

Troop horses could not have done better. I thought at first that the line meant to charge me, but a signal it made a left wheel and galloped straight off on the plain for a mile. Then it broke, assumed the shape of a triangle, and returned. When the leader was within pistol shot he wheeled about and the horses formed in a square, and the fun gradually died out.

Almost irresistible desire to lead the leader with a bullet. But I refrained for my rifle with which some the re I'd be little short other perfect [illegible]

"A GREAT INDUSTRY!"

It's Effect upon those Engaged in It.

(From the Montgomery Messenger.)

The friends of the liquor business speak of it as "a great industry," and join to the large number of men furnished employment and the enormous capital invested as proofs of its utility.

I should think men engaged in producing and selling an article bearing such an enormous profit, would be enriched by it, but to my certain knowledge, some are not blessed with even financial prosperity. It is a business yielding some loss as well as profit—to this loss I ask attention;

First. I mention the loss of self respect, which, a person having an acute sense of moral integrity, would feel upon entering such a business, as proprietor or employee.

Second. Many the Hannas, are hanged upon the gallows they have prepared for others—fell in to drunkards graves, themselves. Most men think themselves proof against temptation, and in this delusion lies the snare that has intrapped thousands to their ruin. But suppose some do escape, their children are quite likely to fall, and what father would employment that shall lead his sons and even his daughters to the lives of drunkenness and shame, and that is certainly often the result of such a business. What else could be expected? The children are in sympathy with the business of the father.

Third. The society it brings in, the wicked and foolish. The companion of fools shall be destroyed."

In the fourth place it is a gain. It places a stumbling block in the way of others and often leads them, bereft them of reason, and lands them in the grave, and in hell.

It sometimes yields more, but consider: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world, and loose his own soul."

The liquor traffic furnishes a pretext to charge enormous profit on the commodity sold. How many have grown rich, and escaped the loss mentioned above! Think carefully, of them, and their families; and say if there is not more loss than gain in business. If they have not already sustained the losses, perhaps there is plenty of time yet, in which to reap that part of the reward.

The voter who permits, without a dissenting voice, this harmful traffic, in free country, where the people should rule, is participeps criminis, in that he receives a reward (a license fee) for evil, and may expect to share the loss as well as the profit from this "great industry."

Respectfully,
D. D. LESTER.

Mitigating Circumstances.

Jim McSnifter, of Calaveras Creek, was found guilty of horse stealing, in the District Court at San Antonio.

"Do you know of any mitigating circumstances in your case?" asked Judge Noonan blandly.

"Why, yer, Judge, youth is always a mitigatin' circumstance, ain't it?"

"Yes, but you are no spring chicken. You are at least fifty years old, and in sin and wickedness you are at least a thousand years old."

"I know that Judge. I'm not a-talkin' about my youth as a mitigatin' circumstance. I was the youth of the hose. It was your old."

"Any one who has a horse in Medina County, will try to find the party who took it."

Hints to Young Men.

That clothes don't make the man. That if they once get into debt they may never get out of it.

That parting the hair in the middle brings on softening of the brain.

That to deal honorably with all men they begin with their washerwomen.

That they need something more substantial than cigars, kid gloves and a cane to start housekeeping with.

That they can't reckon on their father's fortune to bring them through life. Fortunes are slippery things—better have something besides to fall back on.

That a girl who decks herself in the latest things out and parades the street while her mother is doing the washing, isn't worth wasting much love on.

That a fellow who deliberately proposes matrimony to a girl when he can't support himself, is either a first class fraud or a fool—unless he marries for money and becomes her hired man.

The Crow and the Ram.

An old Crow was watching a flock of sheep grazing in a valley, when a large Ram suddenly flew among them and carried off a young Lamb.

"It seems to me that I ought to be able to do that," remarked the Crow; "I'll try it at any rate."

With these words the Crow flew down, lit on the back of a large Ram, and after violent exertions succeeded in flying away with him to the top of a neighboring mountain four miles high. After being deposited, the Ram remarked in a tone of playful sarcasm:

"Well, having gotten me up here, what do you propose to do with me you black pirate? If you don't get down this mountain in a hurry, I'll butt you into mincemeat." The poor Crow, accepting the situation, flattered a revolution down the mountain side, and dropped in the valley on a belated Rabbit and ate him.

It is Only Detect.

"I'm an artist," explained a young man, with an easel and palette under his arm, to a well to do farmer at the front gate. "I was admiring the architecture of your new house."

"Yes," replied the farmer, "it's about the finest building in these parts. It cost enough to be Kin ye paint stranger?"

"Oh, yes."

"D'ye see that chimly on the southwest corner?"

"Yes, it's a false chimney, is it not?"

"Yes," assented the farmer impatiently, "that's what everybody says. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do, stranger. If ye'll paint some smoke comin' out o' that chimbly, I'll pay ye well for the job."—[New York Times.

Saved His Life.

Mr. D. I. Wilkinson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with Phthisic, also Diabetes; the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured and gained in flesh eighteen pounds. Says he positively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Thos. J. Pearson.

"My dear fellow," says an Indiana Sheriff to the prisoner, "the sanitary condition of this jail. Several of the prisoners are down with the measles, but I assure you that it is not my fault."

"Oh, no excuses," replies the prisoner. "It was my intention to break out as soon as possible any way."

For twenty five cents you can buy a small package of the celebrated Buck's Horse Powder.

Ground Hog day opened bright and we suppose, if he is an early riser, he saw his shadow? So six week more of winter.

"Free Books" and "Local Option" are the general topics of the day. We want "Free Books" under certain conditions. That is if it does not increase taxation, nor shorten our already too short school term. We think the school term should be lengthened before "Free Books." This would certainly be the better investment for all classes of the people even if our school fund is supplemented in any way. We are for "Local Option" all the time. But prefer the State to vote upon the question of abolishing the liquor traffic as we elect our Governor. The majority of the votes cast, wins.

John Hoge passed through town last week with a nice drove of horses for the Eastern market. We wish him "good luck."

Messrs. Price & Dunklee are feeding some twenty odd horses and mules, which they will market about the middle of the month. They have some fine draft and saddle animals. The horse trade is all the go now, "My Kingdom for a horse."

Mrs Napoleon Ripley of New Castle, is visiting her mother Mrs. D. B. Price of this place.

Madam Rumor has promised us a wedding soon. We hope very soon, for its quiet since the holidays.

MR. EDITOR:—As Dick and Dumpy both are dead and as there has been no news from our little village for some time perhaps the people think we are all dead, I wish to inform them through the columns of your paper that such is not the case as the case matter has been decided to and I believe sure; but on the contrary everything is lively with us.

A few days ago the shrieks of mad were heard resounding from all quarters, but from present appearances they will be free from this post soon, for I hear the whistling of the winter's wind as it moves on over valleys and hills and no one knows "whence it cometh nor whither it goeth."

There has been a great deal of sickness in our community, but are glad to say at present all are getting along well. Hope they may be able to be out soon.

Did you ever notice how soon the darts of Cupid begin to make wounds in the hearts of lads and misses? No doubt you have been all along the road and sailed all the way down the beautiful river with its rippled waters and as you beheld your image reflected from the water you proceed your self wandering as it were in dream land and if your conceptive imaginations held her whom you loved so well, but indeed we have some remarkable things with us. Lads of 14 and misses of 12 years have come to the front and taken possession of the grand old vessel of courtship, but there is one case especially of a lad and lassie who are progressing well indeed. A few days ago while speaking to a friend he said, "Every time I look at her she gets prettier and prettier."

There will be a public debate at Thessalia, by the members of the Thessalia Literary Society on Friday night, February the 12th, to which all are cordially invited. The exercises will consist of recitations, declamations, debate, etc. Come one, come all.

The second session of Thessalia High School will commence February 15th. The session which is now in progress has been very prosperous and largely attended. Prof. Hankla, the principal, is a fine christian gentleman, well educated, etc., and all desiring to procure an education would do well to attend, terms moderate, board reasonable and society excellent.

But I must not forget to say that there seemed to be a scarcity of rabbits about Xmas times, but I must close more anon, DIXIE.

EDITOR VIRGINIAN:—Your paper is a welcome visitor and we hope that it will become more and more popular.

We do not know what has become of "Peck's Bad Boy," he now and then make his appearance but never by himself and like usual he is "out of pocket" to day and that is the reason why we have to take his place for the present,—he never was a great authority for veracity and not much of a "reformer." We would not be very much surprised that he has been thrown over board.

Our town council has tried hard to keep the "fire water" out of the corporation, but we are sorry to say that they have not been successful. We have come to the conclusion that the U. S. and State authority are blind on the subject and that the one eye man is king. We have now about 20 travelling bar rooms and the council in their wisdom come to the conclusion that if you are "in the right man in the right place," etc., they grant you a license for beer only, but if your petition is refused you can sell beer and liquor, Sunday and any other day. This looks to me like taxing the coat, the cabbage, the fox and the geese across the river. For our part we think the best way to get shut of that complex problem is to give a liquor license to a drug store managed by a good pushed and willing to have some experience on the sale, and then let every good citizen help the authorities and employ a good detective if necessary, and the way we will get shut of that lot of white and black blockades.

We have a novel place in our town on St. Clair Street, there has been a Union league formed to three colored gentlemen and three white worthies, two of the later named gentlemen coming directly from Mercer Co., W. Va., they died the wrath to come, being indicted for violation of the peace statutes for grave offenses. This association is in a very conspicuous place, called the "Ten Pin Alley," there they rip and romp, drink and feast together in perfect love and unity, creating all sorts of revelry, black guarding, rowing balls, selling a mixture of cocaine, pine top, polk root and loach eye to the perfect delight and amusement of the moral element of our town, like so many howling dogs and hideous demons do they keep our industrious people awake until the chickens crow for day.

It looks to us like the P. O. department is determined to send us plenty deputies, every few days we have a new one, lately we were blessed with a cross eye one but he got his red ticket the first day and has not been seen inside since.

You will be surprised to know that we have a brass band and every lady is putting cotton in their ears. They have give us one serenade and we are glad to inform you that it will be some time before they will impose another one on us. The base drum is the only instrument that they can blow. Our boys did have plenty base before but they have now more than they know what to do with.

Preaching to night at Springvale and to morrow at the Chapel by the Rev. R. A. Kelly.

The sick people of this section are gradually improving. We are free from the measles, whooping cough and itch. Well, we are not so sure about the latter.

No preparations yet, as regards a corn crop. We suppose that the present wheat crop will make its appearance in a short time. That is, if the ground hog is dead. Would it not be jolly if he had been frozen, during the recent cold snap. Is there any climate (cold) that he could not endure?

School teaching, wood hauling, rabbit hunting and eating, seems to be the order of the day. We prefer the latter.

Mr. C. P. Kerr made a flying trip to "yan side," and we had begun to think that he had kept on flying, as the ice and snow was almost impassible on last Sunday. When all of a sudden, we espired him returning at about the rate of one and a half miles per hour, and looking a little worse for wear. Perhaps "Buddy," or "Tip" could enlighten us some. Ah! well, the ways of the pedagogue are many and full of trouble.

LOVE'S LAMENT.

Oh! could my darling only know
The pleasure and delight
A single line from her gives me,
Oh, 'tis beyond flatte.
She would not wait so very long
Nor it, so cruel be,
Not wait for months to roll around
To drop a line to me.

Oh! could my darling only know,
How very great the pain
It is to write long letters sweet
And there to write in vain.
She would not send such stories of woe
Across my poor lover heart,
But then would seize hold of her pen
And joy to me impart.

Oh! could my darling only know
The pain it gives me,
And then it from heart with joy
A glimpse of her to see.
Bright beams eyes as true, so calm,
But I don't mean so fair
That not mentions that angels watch
And guard her from all snares.

Oh! could my darling only know
How change of mind speak,
She would not let two weeks roll on apart
Nor make my fate so bleak.
But she would rather strive to do
Those things which she please me best
She would not torture me so as
But give it peace and rest.

Would I could send on Mercury's wings
A message to my love
That in her absence things go on
And call not a view above.
Would I could stand upon some knob
Not very far away
And see it any sign of love
On her sweet brow display.

LOCAL OPTION IN GEORGIA.
By Atticus G Haygood, D D.
[From the Independent.]

For half a century there has been in the State of Georgia a living and vitalizing temperance sentiment—Most of the old time temperance societies were in their turn in vigorous organization. A few years before the War, the friends of temperance made the mistake of running a worthy and gifted man for governor on the issue of prohibition. He received something more than seven thousand votes; a small proportion of the friends of temperance voting for him. The party organizations were too strong; men were more Whigs and Democrats than they were temperance reformers. Besides, thousands of the best temperance men were convinced that it would be very unwise to entangle the movement in politics. At that time, too, most temperance people questioned the wisdom of prohibitory legislation.

After the reconstruction period temperance men began what is now known as the "local option" movement. The subject was discussed through the church and temperance press. The various representative church meetings began to discuss the general subject and to pass strong resolutions. It was preached about and agitated in all ways that were believed to promise success in creating public sentiment.

Local option came to be the accepted method of securing prohibition, for two reasons, both potent—the first stronger with some the second with others. First, many accepted local option, because they despaired of carrying the State for prohibition. They sought such legislation as enabled them to carry prohibition in counties where opinion was most advanced in favor of it. For instance in —— County, at the election for members of the General Assembly a candidate would be voted for who had promised to introduce a bill to submit the question to a vote in his county. Sometimes the legislature was asked by petition, through county representatives, to pass a local law for the county. In case the petitions showed that they represented a majority of voters. Most people thought that the better way was to ask for an act allowing the people to settle the matter by a direct vote. In the second place, local option was preferred by many, on the ground that in a county where prohibition sentiment was not strong enough to carry the question on a direct vote on that issue, prohibition could not then be enforced. And this I believe to be the true ground. There is abundant evidence to show the public difficulty, if not impracticability, of having a "wet town," a Negro man enforcing a general law on this subject in counties very strongly against it.

For years the legislature has been besieged at every session to pass a general local option law. It was a day. He had been sent down early long, hard fight, the liquor men in the night, to return late in the fighting obstinately and ably every night, with liquor for the Sheriff movement in this direction. A Costly Daughter.

On a certain day, on a Pennsylvania Railroad, the daughter of a wealthy timber merchant was traveling in the same car with an old citizen of her native town and a gentleman from the West. The latter had been talking to the young lady on her own account, and when night drew on, he gave up his seat to her and placed himself beside the Pennsylvanian. The latter began conversation by pointing to a high mountain, past which they were whirling, and said: "You see that mountain? Six or eight years ago it was covered with a fine forest and worth $10,000 and upward. Now, without a tree, covered with stumps, the land is scarcely worth a continental. The net produce of that mountain lies over in that seat," and he pointed to the resemblent belle. "It has absorbed all of that lumber which her father owned to educate the girl, pay for her clothes and jewelry, bring her out in society, and maintain here there. Some young men, if given the choice between the mountain yonder, as it now stands, and the net produce on that, would take the net produce but as for me, give me the stumps." The above, we clip from one of our exchanges and give it to our readers with the hope that it may suggestions of the fathers and daughters thinking. We think the old gentleman was quite right in preferring the stumps; and indeed many of our more sensible young men are coming to the conclusion that these costly, artificial ladies are entirely too expensive for men of ordinary means.

Notwithstanding the interruptions to traffic by the severity of the weather and the strike in the Bluestone mines the shipments of 1886 were over 80 per cent more than they were for the same period in 1885.

The Pocahontas and the Bluestone mines are all now at work, the labor troubles at the latter having been adjusted. The former never was affected to any greater than the railway can supply, with its present equipment, but new cars have been contracted for and arrangements made for an increased output.—[Industrial South.

Liberal Damages.

A man who had been arrested, charged with misdemeanor, brought suit for malicious imprisonment. When the case was brought up for trial, the judge asked:

"Upon what, sir, do you base this suit? I understand that you did commit misdemeanor."

"Yes, judge, I don't deny that."

"Then how could the imprisonment have been malicious?"

"Well, you see, that was a circus in town the day I was arrested. I wanted to go to the show but the officer cheated me out of it. Just as the elephant and the spotted lion came along, the officer shoved me into jail. Why didn't he wait until the show was over before he arrested me?"

"Your point is a very strong one," said the judge. "The inherent right of an American citizen is to see the circus. The jury will please assess liberal damages."—[Ark. Traveler.

OUR LEGISLATIVE RECORD.

Some Interesting Statistics—1443 Private Acts Passed in 9 Sessions of the Legislature—A Reform Suggested.

After a careful review of our acts from 1874 to 1884, w. give the following information to our readers. The column "Corp" embraces all granting of charters amendments thereto, acts of incorporation, etc. The column "Churches" embraces all acts enabling churches, benevolent societies and other institutions to convey property, borrow money, etc. The column "Relief" embraces the release of fines, relief of treasurers and their sureties, the granting of personal privileges, the removal of political disabilities, etc.

Now what we desire to say is why can't all this business be relegated to the chancery side of our circuit and corporation courts? Divorces need to be granted by the legislature, they are now granted in chancery. Changes of names used to be made by act of the legislature, they are now changed by petition in the circuit court. Charters used to be exclusively granted by the legislature, now a considerable number are granted by the circuit court. Now is there any sense in requiring church trustees to get an act of the legislature in order for them to borrow money or convey property? They are all creatures of equity. Why not give them the power by bill on the chancery side of the circuit court to have this done. Then all the facts can be set up and the circuit judge can determine what is best far better than the legislature. Then again why can't the facts in regard to treasures and their sureties be more satisfactorily set up in a court of equity than in the legislature! Then parties that are likely to be effected by it can have a chance to defend it.

Parties praying for relief from fines can be opposed by the Attorney for the Commonwealth and the matter adjudicated by the court.

The powers of the circuit court could be very conveniently enlarged in regard to charters, their amendments, etc., also what is the reason a chancellor would not be a fit person to grant or establish corporations. Railroad companies could obtain their charters from the circuit court of the city of Richmond. Would the circuit and corporation judges be more liable to bribery than the legislators by the railroad companies!

The above table shows 1443 private acts in 9 sessions—an average of 160 per session. The printing of these alone would cost not less than $10.00 per act. That bill item would be $1,600 a session or $14,400 for the 9 sessions for the printing alone. What then does the time consumed by the legislature amount to! Is not this a needed reform! Would not this reform alone go a long ways toward making up the deficit in the revenue that will be caused by the Logs. Option bill! We hope some of our city contemporaries will take this matter into consideration. Let us hear from the Dispatch, or Lynchburg News or Advance.

All delinquent taxes on lands prior to 1876 are barred by act of legislature. Most of those lands are owned by non-residents. About three-fourths of the trusts reported delinquent are erroneous there being no such lands in the county. They are merely the accumulated arrears and errors of our land assessors from the immemorial past some plan should be adopted to prevent this.

It is reported that Secretary Bayard intends to resign soon.

Mrs. John S. Barbour died on the 6th from the effects of a fall down a stair case.

A fearful riot occurred in London this week from discontents and un employed laborers.

The judicial circuit bill makes a corner on Giles again. This is a death blow to all circuit judge aspirants in this county.

On our out side this week we give two French articles one on the Orange and another on the result of the elections in New York and Virginia last Fall. Our French scholars can get down their lexicons and go to work. We will present a copy of the Housekeeper for one year to the person giving us a correct translation for next week's issue. These articles were clipped from a La. paper.

We learn from the Nashville Union that a wealthy and retired merchant, Oscar F. Noel has laid the "Corner Stone" of a fabulous fortune with a couple of Arizona brass brick, for which he paid the enormus sum of $6,500. There is said to be something peculiarly lucky about Arizona brass and the shrewd business man of Nashville is singularly fortunate in being the possessor of, perhaps, the only Arizona brick South of Mason and Dixon's line. It is said that the city of Nashville has offered Mr. Noel a tremendous sum for one as a corner stone for a dime museum.

Death of General Hancock.

There is no man in the United States whose death would create more widespread and sincere regret than that of General Winfield S. Hancock. In all portions of the country—North, South, East, and West—there will be genuine sorrow. For General Hancock belonged to the whole country and his admirers are everywhere. He was not narrow minded, sectional or bigoted; but his broad patriotism took in the entire land. While he fought against the South in the civil conflict, yet no section admired him more truly than the South. There was nothing fanatical, nothing vindictive about him, and he realized in his person, in the highest sense, the model American soldier and citizen. His splendid soldiership was for him the title of "the superb Hancock." And in peace he was just as splendid. His letters in behalf of the supremacy of civil government over the military deserve to take their place with the ablest and soundest American papers. Had he been elected President it would have been fortunate for the country, and especially for Virginia, for then there would have been no corrupt bargain with a corrupt boss. In the bright annals of American names few will shine brighter than that of Winfield S. Hancock. Peace to his ashes.

Alden's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature.

This work is the outcome of many years of planning and preparation. It will an almost indispensable work of reference for every library, large or small, a trustworthy guide to what is most worth knowing of the literature of all ages and all nations. Occupying a dozen or more volumes, and yet issued at a price so low as to be within the reach of all, a familiarity with its contents will constitute a liberal education to a degree that can be claimed for few other works in existence. Dr. Lossing, the eminent historian and author, says of it: "I am strongly impressed with the great intrinsic value of the work as a popular educator in a high department of learning. The plan is admirable. Combining as it does a personal knowledge of an author with specimens of his or her best literary productions, gives it an incalculable power for good among the people." The work is being published in parts of 160 pages each, paper covers, at the price of 15 cents, also in very handsome cloth-bound volumes, gilt tops, 480 pages for 60 cents. The parts can be exchanged for bound volumes, at any time. Four parts are now ready, also the first bound volumes; volume two will be issued in a few days. The publisher's 132-page illustrated catalogue of standard books may be had for 4 cents, or condensed 16-page catalogue, free. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York; 393 Pearl St.

Judicial Circuits.

The bill to rearrange the judicial circuits of the State came up on its engrossment. The manner in which this rearrangement had been made by the Judiciary Committee evoked considerable discussion.

Messrs. Rhea, Williams, and others advocated the bill, and Messrs. Stubbs and Blackburn strongly opposed it, thinking it an injustice to include Accomack and Northampton counties, which have constituted a separate circuit for a number of years in the Eighth circuit. They were willing that the circuits embracing the mountainous counties of the State should be made smaller, that new circuits be established, and, if necessary or desirable, that the entire State might be redistricted; but they were not willing that this independent circuit of two counties should be included in another circuit.

The bill as reported from the committee was ordered to its engrossment. The bill reads:

Whereas the public interests require a rearrangement of the judicial circuits of this State; therefore

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia, That the State shall be divided into seventeen judicial circuits, as follows:

I. The counties of Norfolk, Princess Anne, Nansemond, Isle of Wight, Southampton, Surry, and the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth shall constitute the First circuit.

II. Counties of Brunswick, Chesterfield, Dinwiddie, Greensville, Nottoway, Petersburg, Prince George, and Sussex shall constitute the Second circuit.

III. Counties of Amelia, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Powhatan, and Prince Edward shall constitute the Third circuit.

IV. Town of Danville, counties of Franklin, Halifax, Henry, Patrick, and Pittsylvania shall constitute the Fourth circuit.

V. Counties of Amherst, Appomattox, Bedford, Campbell, Nelson, and city of Lynchburg shall constitute the Fifth circuit.

VI. Counties of Albemarle, Culpeper, Goochland, Fluvanna, Madison, Orange, and Greene shall constitute the Sixth circuit.

VII. The county of Henrico, and city of Richmond shall constitute the Seventh circuit.

VIII. That the counties of Accomack, Northampton, York, Elizabeth City, Warwick, James City, New Kent, Charles City, and the city of Williamsburg shall constitute the Eighth circuit.

IX. Counties of Essex, King William, King and Queen, Northumberland, Lancaster, and Gloucester shall constitute the Ninth circuit.

X. Counties of Caroline, Fredericksburg, Hanover, King George, Louisa, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, and Westmoreland shall constitute the Tenth circuit.

XI. Counties of Alexandria, Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William, Rappahannock, and city of Alexandria shall constitute the Eleventh circuit.

XII. Counties of Clarke, Warren, Frederick, Shenandoah, and Page shall constitute the Twelfth circuit.

XIII. That the counties of Augusta, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Bath, Highland, and Alleghany shall constitute the Thirteenth circuit.

XIV. That the counties of Botetourt, Roanoke, Craig, Montgomery, and Floyd, and city of Roanoke shall constitute the Fourteenth circuit.

XV. That the counties of Wythe, Pulaski, Giles, Carroll, Bland, and Tazewell shall constitute the Fifteenth circuit.

XVI. That the counties of Washington, Smyth, Grayson, and Russell shall constitute the Sixteenth circuit.

XVII. That the counties of Scott, Lee, Wise, Dickenson, and Buchanan shall constitute the Seventeenth circuit.

2. This act shall be in force on and after January 1, 1887.

The bill doesn't change the number of judges (17), only rearranges circuits.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8, '86.

TO THE EDITOR OF VIRGINIAN:

Last week Washington was buried in one of the heaviest snow storms that has prevailed here for ten years. It was a regular northwest blizzard with a north pole temperature. The storm began at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning and the snow fell continuously from that time till noon of Thursday. Travel was stopped for a time. The government always is put to considerable expense in clearing the pavements in front of its buildings from snow. Previous to this storm it had paid out $500 for that kind of work, and it is officially stated that the balance of $1,000 for that purpose was not sufficient to clear away the last snow, and that Congress will have to be called on to make a deficiency appropriation. Assistant Secretary Smith, of the Treasury, was equal to the emergency and ordered out about forty clerks to shovel snow from in front of the Treasury building. The young men detailed for this duty were highly offended but obeyed orders. So many young men wearing such fine clothes and sporting gold chains and seal rings were never before found grouped together handling the shovel. These young men are borne upon the rolls as laborers, but in fact are clerks and perform strictly clerical duties. The Assistant Secretary, however, issued his orders that all able bodied laborers on the roll should be assigned to this duty, and the young men had to obey. The probability is that they will never again be called on to perform the same duties. The moral of all of it is that no man should sail under false colors.

...BURG, VA.,...February 12, 1886.

Homes in the South.

One of the chief objects in directing those who might wish to go South in search of livelihood and independence is the lack of specific information as to where the immigrant will find himself placed after he shall have reached his destination.

The railroad companies and other great corporations seeking to populate tracts in the West and Northwest are at pains to inform the world with reference to the minutest details of the propositions they have to make. As far away as Germany, or Italy, or Spain, one can obtain a perfectly accurate idea of the climate, soil, products and the conditions, social and industrial, of the region in question. One can ascertain exactly what is offered in the way of inducement. He is shown the full character and extent of the emergencies against which he has to provide. He can make an intelligent and trustworthy calculation as to his prospects. In all these respects the southern people have been remiss. They have made no effort to acquaint the world with their climate, resources, opportunities and attractions. Relying upon the superior climatic and physical conditions so familiar to themselves, and taking it for granted that an environment so gracious and so beneficent must be patent to mankind, they have waited with calm and patient confidence for that influx of capital and labor that they know so well can find its plenteous and rich reward among them.

We propose to do something in the direction of supplying the demand for explicit information in this matter. There are three classes of people at the North to whom the Southern States offer peculiar advantages, and to three we shall address ourselves. Artisans and skilled mechanics are of course, safe storywhere in the United States. There is no part of our vigorous and growing country in which a good carpenter, blacksmith, mason or other craftsman cannot make himself a home and set up his lares and penates upon enduring pedestals. They need no special guidance. Wherever people are gathered together, and progress and increase are the order of the day, there the artisan may find the fairest harvest in proportion to his industry.

Of the two remaining classes we shall hereafter speak at length. Common laborers, who depend upon their daily wages for subsistence, and who discriminate between localities merely on the score of their respective physical attractions, may safely go South. They will find there all the work they need, and, furthermore, a set of conditions peculiarly inviting. It will be their own fault if they do not soon acquire homes of their own and lay the foundation of security and independence for their families. Factory labor faces in the South as it does elsewhere. It enjoys the advantage of greater comfort, and is subject to no repulsion through want. [illegible] wishes to rise, that [illegible] burden of servitude [illegible] higher levels of [illegible] of labor [illegible] without Question.

Question, What amount of Intoxicants are sold yearly in the United States?

Answer. Nine hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

Q. How much is expended on public schools in the U. S. yearly?

A. Ninety-six millions of dollars.

Q. How many liquor shops in the United States?

A. Two hundred and fifty thousand.

Q. How many loose their lives yearly in the U. S. by liquor?

A. One to every saloon, 250 thousand a year.

Q. How much revenue does the Government get from liquor?

A. Ninety six millions ever year.

Q. What is this revenue for?

A. To pay the war debt, made by shedding the blood of our people.

Q. How many people killed during the years of war?

A.

Q. How many people have been slain to raise this revenue in 20 years?

A. Five million.

Q. Is this blood-tax money needed longer to pay off the debt?

A. No there is plenty without it.

Q. How much capital is invested in this horrid traffic?

A. One hundred and thirty two million.

Q. On whom does all this respon sibility for loss of life rest?

A. Upon the two political parties.

Q. Which of the two is most to be blamed?

A. The Republican—they adopted the liquor license tax system.

Q. What portion of the profes sors of religion own property in the liquor traffic.

A. Eight per cent of the church.

Q. What per cent of the Ministers of the chur hes are against the traffic?

A. The Methodist Church has 90 per cent, the Baptist Church 80 per cent, the Presbyterian is next. It is fast increasing in sentiment, but in proportion as they can get out from the bondage and butter of the traffic.

Q. What about a third, Prohibition party?

A. We are yet in our infancy, but a big infant at that. In 1888 there will be a harder contest for Prohibition, than in 1856 upon the slavery question

Q. I heard you say, the church would have ceased long ago, if it had not been for Temperence laborers!

A. Yes I did, and history proves that the church would have been observed in the liquor drink and traffic, had it not been for the check by christian men and women of our land. Since 1842 the work against the drink traffic has been as much outside the church as in it.

The Bell of Justice.

It is a beautiful story that in one of the old cities of Italy the king caused a bell to be hung in a tower in one of the public squares, and called it the "bell of justice," and commanded that any one who had been wronged should go and ring the bell, and so call the magistrate of the city, an ask and receive justice. And, when, in the course of time, the lower end of the bell rope rotted away, a wild vine was tied to it to lengthen it; and one day an old and starving horse that had been abandoned by its owner and turned out to die, wandered into the tower, and trying to eat the vine rang the bell. And the magistrate of the city, coming to see who had rung the bell, found this old and starving horse; and he caused the owner of the horse, in whose service he had toiled and won worn out, to be summoned before him, and decreed that as his horse had rung the bell of justice, should have justice, and that the remainder of the old horse's days should provide with proper food and drinks and

Les différents especes et varietes de la famille du citros sont les fruits connus sous les noms d'orange, citron, limon, pamplemousse, citade que, etc. Dans chaque cas, le fruit est pulpeux et a des graines aniies et une pulpre spongieuse. L'orange est remarquable pour sa fecondite. On voit parfois des arbres qui produisent 20,000 oranges.

Sait-on au juste d'ou vient l'orange? Selon Gitbouis dans sa Decadence et Chute de l'Empire Romain, l'orange et le limon avaient ete classes avec d'autres fruits, parmi les pommes, et Pline a dit que le citronnier etait cultive en Italie de soc temps. Virgile et autres ont menti-nne le citron comme particulier a la Perse. Il est toutefois certain que l'orange etait inconnue des anciens quelques siecles avant l'ere chretienne. Elle est originaire de la Chine, avec laquelle les Grecs et les Romains n'avaient presque pas de communication. Ce fruit n'est venu en Europe qu'au seizieme siecle et cest en 1595 que le premier oranger a paru en Augleterre. Oertains recits attribuent son importation aux Portugais; d'autres pretendent que les Maures qui envahirent l'Espagne au moyen age y ont apporte l'orange d'Arabie et ont plante un grand nombre d'orangers a Seville; que c'est de la que sa culture s'est repandue en Sicile, a Rome et dans le midi de la France. On croit que le limon etait cultive en Italie mille ans avant que l'orange y fut connue. Il n'est pas douteux que les deux fruits viennent de l'Asie. Selon une legende, la pomme avec laquelle le serpent tenta Eve etait tout bonnement une orange, dont la belle couleur et le parfum seduisirent facilement notre arriere grand mere. Les pommes d'or du jardin des Hesperides ont du etre aussi des oranges et l'arbre qui les produisait etait parent de l'Arbre de vie del'Eden.

Dans l'Ile de Malte croit l'orange sanguine, ainsi nommee a cause de la couleur de sang de sa pulpe qui est deliciensemen. aromatique. La petite orange, ou orange de l'Afrique du Nord, avec une pulpe savoureuse et une ecorce odorante, et de tres petite taille, mais l'orange de St. Michel, tres douce et dont l'ecorce est tres mince, est la plus petite, et l'orange Navet du Brezil est la plus grosse espece.

L'orange atteint un tres complet developpement en Floride, ou il y a environ 170,000 arbres en culture. En Louisiane, au Texas et dans le sud de la Californie, ainsi que dans d'autres Etats meridionaux, l'orangier est cultive avec succes et profit. Dans les paroisses de la Basse Louisiane, on cenait mieux avec l'oranger sur la rive occidentale du Mississipi, ou, protege par le fleuve, il est moins sujet a geler. Cependant pendant, ces hivers rigoureux il souffre beaucoup et en 1880 les orangeries ont ete presqu'entierement detruites par la gisee.

Ajoutons, pour terminer, que les orangeries du Bonnet Carre, si reputees pour l'excellence de leurs produits, donnent cette annee une abondance de fruits dores. Les desastres de l'hiver de 1880 ont ete repares par le temps, et les arbres sont aussi vigoureux que jamais.

A Giles County Boy Wins a Maryland Bride.

Mr. Luther W. Charlton, son of O. W. Charlton, Esq., formerly of this county was married on January 19th at Brookeville, Montgomery County, Md., to Miss Kate Baker of that place, Rev. Dr. Maynard of the Methodist Protestant Church officiating. An elegant wedding supper was served at the residence of the groom's parents, and was participated in by a large number of the friends of the contracting parties. The wedding presents were both numerous and elegant.

Mr. Charlton has resided in Md. only about two years, but his many social qualities have made for him hosts of friends in his new home where he is already deservedly popular, that he should in so brief a period have captured one of the acknowledged belles of Montgomery county, speaks well for the gallantry of our Giles county beaus, and we tender our hearty congratulations upon the happy event in the language of the immortal Rip Van Winkle "Here's to your good health and your family's, may they lif long and prosper."

Ma Editor:—If you will give me space in your columns I will give you the news of our town and vicinity.

Snow scarce and mud plentiful, and ground hog is a truthful boy.

All is quite in our village. Our sick is all better, with the exception of Mr Gordon's son Robert who is very low with pheumonia.

Mr. I. E. Johnston from "yan side" moved back this week to his brick house near Providence. Isaac is a good fellow. We welcome him back in our midst.

Mr. O. F. Emmons will move soon to Mr. Samuel Mussey's property near Providence. Mr. Turner will vacate the Dills property a short time for New River Bridge, where he expects to spend the remainder of his days.

Mr. W. C. Fortner of our town for four days and nights has been hanging Old Joe Clark. We thought it very strange for a man of his profession, but since we have learned there is a brand new girl at his house.

We would like to know who chewed up those items of last week, was it you Jerry or the Newport man.

The greatest wonder of the day is who wears the Maysville Items. I can inform you it is Narrows Items.

As there has not appeared in your valuable journal anything from this end for some time, I will try and give you a little news. You would have been well posted but owing to the sad death of our Reporter, who killed himself eating Ice Cream and Oysters, and now and then taking a little Egg Nog. He died very easy, only calling for a bit little bit of Egg Egg Nog to assist his wandering spirit home, where all good Reporters go.

There has been a good deal of excitement over the removal of our Post Office and cutting down that Sugar Tree. Oh, that Sugar Tree is aint on the line and then some times it is on the line.

Just as the tree falls,
Just so it lies,
Plenty of balm and gilead up dah.

It is a curiosity to see some of our young men how badly they are mashed with a young lady in our town. Well, we can't blame them much she is pretty and attractive. Some of them have resorted to Radways R. R., to drown their troubles, but they don't know how dangerous it is for it makes them so hot they can't set down. So when they go to see that lady they have to stand up in the corner and put their finger in the left corner of their mouths and say, Oh, my, that R. R. is awful, please ma'am bring me a little water to cool my scorching tongue.

There was a gentleman came here to our Depot during holidays by the name of A S Stout, he set about here for several days, had nothing to say, but yet was full of spirit, after a stay of about six days he became very weak, he eat nothing but frequently took cold water which of course according to nature soon became very weak. We thought sometimes he might be a brother of Dick Stout's. I will describe him so if he is Dick's brother I can tell him of his whereabouts, he is two feet high, one and one-half feet cross shoulders, complexion is dapple yellow, open countenance and sits very flat on the floor with his clothes slightly humped and is perfectly bald headed, wears a little scaling wax on one of his hind. Any one staying in his company a few minutes will begin to converse freely.

We have an anti-mustache Lodge in our ville and it has five members to begin with, there is our polite Depot Agent with his lip as slick as a peeled onion, and Houston S. his lip looks like an otter slide of a moon shiny night, and Charles S. his lip reminds us of an apron to a threshing machine, and Peter F. his lip looks oh my, and Budd what does he look like, a church bell without a clapper. The first four are town dudes and they did go up on that hill, but since there lips got bald they have to stand aside for W. H S. Well, as to Budd he has a gal.

The Temperance Movement.

Pursuant to announcement, Grand Worthy Chief Templar and State Lecturer, Captain W. C. Dutton, of Portsmouth, delivered a temperance lecture at the First Baptist Church last night to a full house. Mr. Dutton is a young man of ability and almost fluent and graceful speaker. After the audience was dismissed, seventy-two new members were taken into the order. The lodge, at this writing, numbers about 200 active members and was instituted less than two months ago. Captain Dutton will speak again to night at Holcombe Hall. Should a larger building be secured to day the fact will be made known. Captain Dutton will go from this city to Southwest Virginia, and will make a canvass for that section of the State.—[Lynchburg News.

A GEORGIA VOLUNTEER.

For up the lonely mountain side
My wandering footsteps led,
The moss lay thick beneath my feet,
The pine sighed overhead;
The trace of a dismantled fort
Lay in the forest nave,
And in the shadow of my path
I saw a soldier's grave.

The bramble wreathed with the weed
Upon the hero mound;
The simple headboard, rudely writ,
Had rotted to the ground,
I raised it, with reverent hand,
From dust its words to clear
But Time had blotted all but these
"A Georgia Volunteer."

I heard the Shenandoah roll
Along its tide below,
I saw the Alleghanies rise
Toward the realm of snow.

I know [illegible] been on

But trust in Jesus' blood,

As honored soldier's dust?

Rot, Shenandoah, proudly roll
Among thy rocky glen,
Above your lies the gray at one
Of [illegible] Jackson's men.
Beneath the cedar and the pine
In solitude austere,
Unknown, unshared, forgotten lies
A Georgia volunteer.

[Atlant. Constitution.

Platform of the Knights of Labor.

Adopted at Philadelphia, Sept. 30, 1884.

The alarming development and aggressiveness of great capitalists and corporations, unless checked, will inevitably lead to the pauperization and hopeless degradation of the toiling masses.

It is imperative, if we desire to enjoy the full blessings of life, that a check be placed upon unjust accumulation and the power for evil of aggregated wealth.

This much desired object can be accomplished only by the united efforts of those who obey the divine command, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread."

Therefore we have formed the Order of Knights of Labor, for the purpose of organizing and directing the power of the industrial masses, not as a political party, for it is more; in it are crystallized sentiments and measures for the benefit of the whole people, but it should be borne in mind, when exercising the right of suffrage, that most of the objects herein set forth can only be accomplished by legislation, and that it is our duty to assist in nominating and supporting with our votes only such candidates as will pledge their support to those measures, regardless of party. But no one shall, however, be compelled to vote with the majority, and calling upon all who believe in securing "the greatest good to the greatest number," to join and assist us, we declare to the world that our aims are:

I. To make industrial and moral worth, not wealth, the true standard of individual and national greatness.

II. To secure to the workers the full enjoyment of the wealth they create, sufficient leisure in which to develop their intellectual, moral and social faculties; all of the benefits, recreation and pleasures of association; in a word, to enable them to share in the gains and honors of advancing civilization.

In order to secure these results, we demand at the hands of the State:

III. The establishment of Bureaus of Labor Statistics, that we may arrive at a correct knowledge of the educational, moral and financial condition of the laboring masses.

IV. That the public lands, the heritage of the people, be reserved for actual settlers; not another acre for railroads or speculators, and that all lands now held for speculative purposes be taxed to their full value.

V. The abrogation of all laws that do not bear equally upon capital and labor, and the removal of unjust technicalities, delays and discriminations in the administration of justice.

VI. The adoption of measures providing for the health and safety of those engaged in mining, manufacturing and building industries, and for indemnification to those engaged therein for injuries received through lack of necessary safe guards.

VII. The recognition, by incorporation, of trades-unions, orders, and such other associations as may be organized by the working masses to improve their condition and protect their rights.

VIII. The enactment of laws to compel corporations to pay their employes weekly, in lawful money, for the labor of the preceding week, and giving mechanics and laborers a first lien upon the product of their labor to the extent of their full wages.

IX. The abolition of the contract system on national, State and municipal works.

X. The enactment of laws providing for arbitration between employers and employed, and to enforce the decision of the arbitrators.

XI. The prohibition by law of the employment of children under [illegible] years of age in workshops, mines and factories.

XII. To prohibit the hiring out of convict labor.

XIII. That a graduated income tax be levied.

And we demand at the hands of Congress:

XIV. The establishment of a national monetary system, in which a circulating medium in necessary quantity shall issue direct to the people, without the intervention of banks; that all the national issue shall be full legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private; and that the Government shall not guarantee or recognize any private banks, or create any banking corporations.

XV. That interest bearing bonds, bills of credit or notes shall never be issued by the Government, but that, when need arises, the emergency shall be met by the issue of legal tender, non-interest bearing money.

XVI. That the importation of foreign labor under contract be prohibited.

XVII. That, in connection with the Post Office, the Government shall organize financial exchanges, safe deposits and facilities for deposit of the savings of the people in small sums.

XVIII. That the Government shall obtain possession, by purchase, under the right of eminent domain, of all telegraphs, telephones and railroads, and that hereafter no charter or license be issued to any corporation for the construction or operation of any means of transporting intelligence, passengers or freight.

And while making the foregoing demands upon the State and National Government, we will endeavor to associate our own labors—

XIX. To establish co-operative institutions such as will supersede the wage system, by the introduction of a co-operative industrial system.

XX. To secure for both sexes equal pay for equal work.

XXI. To shorten the hours of labor by a general refusal to work for more than eight hours.

XXII. To persuade employers to agree to arbitrate all differences which may arise between them and their employes, in order that the bonds of sympathy between them may be strengthened and that strikes may be rendered unnecessary.

MARRIAGE AS A BARGAIN.

General Idleness the Road to Perdition—Sympathy of Occupation as a Means of Securing Happiness.

Many people went to hear Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage on Sunday who were unable to obtain seats, and a number could not even gain entrance to the Tabernacle. The popular preacher continued his discourses on "The Marriage Ring." He chose his text from Amos—"Can two walk together except they be agreed?" "No, Amos, they cannot," said Mr. Talmage, "for they will be either tripping each other up or knocking each other down. Under such circumstances the marriage relation would be a constant war whoop.

"Men never rise higher than his garret or descends lower than his cellar. The rocking chair is higher than the throne. George Washington commanded the United States army, but Martha Washington sounded the gong. As individuals we are only fragments. God makes us in pairs and puts us together in the house. Our respective defects and virtues are the cog wheels of the social system. Birds are gathered in flocks, buffaloes in herds, the human race in the family circle.

"The trouble is we are not satisfied with where God puts us. Married people should consider their temperaments. If the husband is dull impulse the wife should be all comsweetness. Eden is gone. The bars are down. There is only one fragment left, and that is the marriage institution. This institution has been defamed in our time, and influences are abroad to turn the nation into a Turkish harem or a great Salt Lake City. Also for this new dispensation of George Sand. The whole desire seems to make marriage a matter of commercial enterprise. The young people who are bargained off look to it as a novelty that will be pleasing. Eighty thousand divorces in Paris preceded the greatest revolution the world ever knew. I have noticed the young people who start in God end in heaven."

"Prayers can't do everything. There are men who pray like angels, and who rule with a tyrannical hand at home. There must be give and take. A man who does not know how to apologize is not a man. The woman who does not know how to apologize is not a woman. If the wife is fretful, let the husband be careful where he throws his slippers. Make your chief pleasures at home. If man from choice, and not necessity, spends most of his evenings away from home he is not the head of the family—he is but the cashier. If a woman puts her children in the lap of servants, although she clothes them in finery that may confound a French milliner, they are orphans.

"Cultivate sympathy of occupation. The wife ought to be the advising partner. Your losses are hers and your gains are her gains. Blessed is the woman who in times of trouble does not say: 'I told you so.' There are thousands of martyrs in the kitchen. The husband should make proper allowances for the labor of the wife. There should be four eyes to see and four shoulders to lift the burden. It's a sad thing when a painter's wife doesn't like pictures. It is a sad thing when a musician's wife does not like music. It is a sadder thing when a wife thinks her husband has not a genteel business. From earth to destruction there are long trains running all the time. The freight trains move very slowly, and are heavily laden. The accommodation trains let men off at every station. But genteel idleness is the express train of ocean steamers, the stoker, death the conductor, and perdition the depot. There are two classes which will be destroyed, they who [illegible] to do nothing, and they who [illegible] to do everything."

Education in the Shops.

A glance over the industrial horizon shows that there is hardly a handicraft, certainly none that relates to the science of mechanics, in which technical knowledge does not command more than mere experience. The higher-class workmen are those who are able to apply intelligence to the performance of their duties, and the automatons of every trade are sinking into the wake of industrial pursuits. But that these empiric portions are cautious enough to defend their weakness by the establishment of unions, the educated laborers would very speedily supersede them in all the departments of mechanics, and in a very few years. Eventually they will do so anyway, though schools like that to be opened at Bristol are springing up in every direction, the effect of which is to elevate labor and give dignity to society. These schools of waste the grind while training the hand, and the graduates from the workshops must prove an irresistible force in the future, and the workman must become a thinker as well as a machine, or be swept away by the new order. This system of education intends to make young men self reliant, creates for them an independence and enables them to stand upon an assured footing. With the examples now before them, parents can procure the advantage of giving their sons and daughters practical training for a particular pursuit, rather than permit them to fall victims to the drudgery of clerkships and chance employments. The new idea that labor is as respectable as professional life, if controlled by education, means the settlement of the vexatious questions that have troubled political economists for years. The industrial schools of this country have been successful to a gratifying degree, and it is by no means a slight compliment that England has recognized the wisdom of following the example of the United States. Industrial schools are an American institution and the American workman is rapidly becoming the accepted type of honorable dignified labor, while there is scarcely a doubt but that with free blessing of a thorough technical training, he will hold the position while the Republic lasts. Educated labor is the bulwark of the State.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Curley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head. Everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; these done he had taken the bottle of Discovery and six bottles of the Discovery, and was entirely cured. Trial bottles of this Discovery at the store of [illegible] could buy, with beautiful music, gay dancers and the queen of the home seated upon a throne decked with flowers. But when the guests had departed, and when the music was silenced, to the question of "Where is happiness?" the answer came from the closed piano, "It is not here;" from the velvet carpet, "It is not here," and from the gilded walls, "It is not here." It was greased from the queen herself, "It is not here." But the same evening the young man, who married on $1,000 a year, went to his little home. Love greeted him at the door. Love sat down with him at the table. Love talked over the trials of the day. Love smoothed his brow and ministered unto his wants. "Happiness was there," said Mr. Talmage."

LOCAL OPTION.

Why is the legislature so afraid to pass a local option bill? It does not decide anything. It merely confers a right of the people to express themselves. If this measure is defeated the Democratic party will bear the blame. They will have enough to carry without adding this straw to the cammel's back. If the present legislature persists in its present course all the wisdom and prudence of a Cleveland administration cant save our State this Fall. So far as we have been able to converse with the Democrats of this county they are earnest in their disapproval of the course the legislature has taken on this great question. We appeal to the legislature in the name of the Democratic party, in the name of Union, peace and harmony to give us a good local option law. We are glad and proud to see the noble and honest stand our representatives, Daist and Williams have taken on this great question. They have truly represented their constituents and can rest with the assurance of duty well performed.

OUR NEW COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

Mr. D. F. Hale, a talented and rising young man, has received the appointment of County Superintendent. He will discharge his duties with ability, honesty and efficiency. Frank is an old V. A. & M. C. boy who stood at the top of his classes and was noted for his 10 making on Poetics and has since had several years experience as a teaching school, both of which eminently qualify him for the position he now occupies.

Mr. Hale should consider himself indeed honored considering the number and distinction of his competitors.

Judge James H. Fulton, our new Circuit Judge, was nominated on last Tuesday, for this, the 13th Circuit; Judge Henry E. Blair for the 14th; H. S. K. Morrison 17th; Wm. Mc Laughlin 15th; C. W. Hill the 1st; B. A. Hancock 2nd; F. D. Irving 3rd; S. G. Whittle 4th; W. S. Barton 10th; James Keith 7th; R. H. Turner 13th.

All our exchanges with unanimous acclaim call for local option. The South West Examiner makes the rule universal by being the exception. It wants Fulkerson's Prohibition.

The discussion of the Blair Bill is going on in the U. S. Senate at present. A full report of the speeches are in the Congressional Record, for a copy of which we return thanks to Congressman Trigg.

Ex-Gov. Horatio Seymour died on the night of the 12th at Utica, N. Y. He was twice Governor of his native State, and once nominated for the Presidency of the United States.

We are glad to see the stand our Senator, Hon. Sam. W. Williams is taking on the local option bill. He is doing all in his power to push it through.

Congressman Trigg has made a coup d'etat in his bringing to a successful issue Virginia's claim against the U. S.

THE COUPON DECISION.

Attorney General Ayers' Construction of the Effect of the Decision.

[Special to the Advance.]

Richmond Va., Feb. 17.—Attorney General Ayers' construction of the effect of the decisions of the Supreme Court in the debt cases was to-day submitted to the Legislative Joint Debt Committee. The practical effect of Mr. Ayers' construction of those decisions is this: When an unverified coupon is tendered to a collector for taxes, he must determine its genuineness for himself, should he accept it, and upon investigation it turns out to be fraudulent, that there has been no legal tender, and the course for liquidation of the [illegible] upon which [illegible] upon was tendered. Electing the Judges in Classes.

There is another subject upon which we have received a number of letters since the last issue of the Journal—viz, the proposed constitutional amendments providing for the election of all the judges of the State in classes. Some of these letters were from lawyers who would be recognized everywhere as among the leaders of the Virginia bar, and they speak in unqualified approval of the proposed scheme, and urge its passage by the Legislature. We make the following extract from one of them, which will serve as a sample: "Your timely and earnest article favoring the provision for electing the judges in classes seems to be bearing fruit, as I see that the Senate committee has reported favorably," &c. Since our former article was written the bill has been reported favorably by the Senate Judiciary Committee, and we may say that the chances for its passage by both houses are now much more favorable. We repeat what we have before said, that the bill ought to be passed. It would be a most grievous error to fail in this. It is entirely unnecessary to reiterate the many and obvious advantages of the scheme, and to repeat that they are so weighty and conclusive that, so far as we are informed, not a single objection has been made, to it; certain it is that no argument can be made against the principle upon which it proceeds. In one particular, however, we would like to see the bill amended. It provides that judges elected to fill vacancies shall be elected for a full term. This seems to us to be a departure from the principle which will almost certainly lead in time to confusion, and might even defeat one of the prime objects of the scheme—viz., to prevent any changes in party politics from interfering to any considerable degree with the judiciary. If, on the other hand, elections to fill vacancies are only for the unexpired terms, it will always be known beforehand that at fixed periods a given number of terms will fall in, and that each legislature will elect a given number of judges. It seems hardly probable, however, that this objection (if such it be) could have escaped the framers of the bill, or the Senate committee, and there may be some controlling reason for the other view.—(Virginia Law Journal for February.

Iron—a monthly journal published in the interest of the metal working trades in Philadelphia, has in its February issue the following in reference to the industrial advance of the South:

It is self evident that the industrial advance of the South during the last few years has been marvellous, and there is every indication that it is a thoroughly healthy and permanent growth. It is no sudden matter, but rather only the beginning of the wonderful advancement the South is about to make to adding to its own and the nation's wealth. A surplus of a full hundred millions this year will fit it for more than doubling that surplus next year, and the next decade will witness the South closely pressing the North in every channel available for industry. The South will largely multiply its demand for iron and coal within the next few years, and furnish the iron and coal from its own mines and furnaces; and the day is close at hand when its cotton will be all spun and mainly woven by its water power and its labor. And whenever furnaces and cotton mills dot the South wherever needed, every form of diversified industry will follow. It is fairly probable that the next decade will present more prosperous industry in the South than in the North. There are many natural causes to contribute to that result, and the Southern people are now, for the first time, prepared to utilize their great advantages. This growth does not mean paralysis or decay in Northern industry, but that what the South can do better for itself than the North can do for it will be done by its own enterprise; and the progressive people of the North will readily adapt themselves to the new order of things. The new wealth of the South will be largely distributed throughout both and [illegible] It will [illegible]

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15, '86.

TO THE EDITOR OF VIRGINIAN:

A very pretty tribute to the worth of the man, and one showing the high estimation in which he was held by those differing from him politically, was the resolution introduced in the Senate on Thursday by Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, directing the Library Committee to consider and report at an early day the expediency of erecting at the seat of government a statue or monument to the memory of the late illustrious soldier, Winfield Scott Hancock. The resolution was accompanied by a feeling speech from the Senator and adopted without a dissenting voice.

In the House Mr. Blanchard, of La., offered a series of resolutions which were adopted and a copy ordered sent to the widow, after which the House adjourned as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, before which Mr. Bingham asked leave in the House, to introduce a bill granting a pension of $2,000 per annum to Mrs. Hancock, but objection was made. All flags on public and private buildings are at half mast.

An Editor's Tribulations.

We borrowed a mule and buggy last week and started out to air up our delinquents. We rode 25 miles the first day had our new hat smashed by coming in contact with an overhanging limb, wore out a buggy whip that cost 60 cents, and collected $1.50 in cash and a braid and a half of corn. The second day we rode 22 miles, missed our dinner, dunned seventeen of our subscribers, and didn't collect a cent. The third day we arose at 4 o'clock A M., missed our hat, lost twenty minutes trying to wake up John Alexander as we passed his house, rode 24 miles and collected $4.50. The fourth day we traversed the whole county, lost a goose one of our friends had given us for a Christmas dinner, and collected $2.50. We then came home, turned the mule out to die and went to bed. If anybody wants to buy a good printing office, with ample assets and small liabilities, and large fame, &c., we are prepared to offer a bargain. We have been tendered the position of night clerk in a brick hotel in Arkansas, and would be glad to accept it if we can work off our present enterprise on some unsuspecting citizen. In writing for information don't forget to inclose a stamp that is, if a reply is expected.—[Dunnigan Gazette.

THE GOVERNMENT LOSES $200,000.

Nearly the Whole Fleet of Mississippi Improvement Vessels Lost.

[By Telegraph to the Advance.]

St. Louis, Feb 17.—Of the sixty eight boats which composed the government fleet which broke away from its moorings at Cordill's Island Sunday night only sixteen have been saved among them the most valuable of the steamers, which is seriously damaged. Six of the others are known to be sunk. The rest, with the large steamer, the General Humphreys, and a steam launch are lost and probably either sunk or considerably injured by collision with each other or with the huge cakes of ice, of which the river is full. The whole fleet had cost the government about a quarter of a million dollars, and the loss will very nearly reach $200,000, unless some of the boats are recovered further down the river.

N. who inherit land held for seven and eight centuries under a family title, there are scarcely a score in America who can trace hereditary possession more than a century.

What the makers of the Constitution did not foresee was the Corporation—that impalpable proprietor which never dies, and which is independent of such puny aids as entail and primogeniture. The corporation was not dreamed of in the days of Franklin's odd age and Fulton's youth. It grew out of the vast revolution of methods and appliances which their tentative dabbling in electrical steam-motor mystering evoked. For the past dozen years there has been an uneasy feeling in American politics that the corporation question would ultimately—indeed might at any time—become a burning and central issue. It has been the skeleton in the closet, the one thing at which the American politicians have not dared to look, and from which they have feared unknown disasters and complications. The death of William H. Vanderbilt, with the spectacle of his gigantic fortune and power passing guardedly to another Vanderbilt not distinguishable from him in aims or methods, may very likely serve to precipitate this question in the United States. In no other country would the thing be regarded as otherwise than natural and proper. But the theory upon which all the social and political future of the American Republic was based, is the prevention of family aggrandisement. The Vanderbilts are the most prominent of the millionaire dynasties which, through railroad, telegraph, and mining monopolies, have found a way to evade the spirit of that theory.

Civil Service

The weightiest argument that can be urged in favor of the established of a strictly merit partisan civil service from highest to lowest, is based on the fact that the constitution requires appointments confirmed by the Senate, though its whole tenor looks to the creation of a Senate that shall not always be in political sympathy with the President. Only a third of the Senators are elected the same year with the President, and they are elected in a mode so different that every Senator chosen the same year might be politically opposed to the President. It is plain that the constitution intended that this separate body, often of different political opinions, should be satisfied with all appointments as well as the President. If custom has drifted so far away from that conception of the appointing power, the sooner we get back to it the sooner will the Government be restored to the principles and practices of its inceptors, and the public service put upon that basis of efficacy and responsibility in action which can be reached in no other way.—[Philadelphia Print.

A Conductors Courtesy.

"I don't let this girl travel over this road on that half fare ticket," said the new conductor to the widow Flapjack.

"Why not? what is the matter with my little girl?"

"She is no child. She is more than half grown."

"Well, if that don't beat everything then I'll give it up. Here poor little Mamie has been traveling over this road on a child's ticket for the last ten years and now all at once you say she is no child. That's a new way to worry the life out of a traveling public."

She paid full fare, and then the diminutive girl in the corner pulled off, so to speak, like a marine below decks.—[N. Y. Star.

A WIFE SPEAKS OUT.

Where the Average Husband is Said to be at Fault.

A married lady writes: "It seems to be a common failing of the gentle men after they have been married a little while to discard all the little courtesies which they had been wont to show their wives before marriage. The 'please' and 'thank you' are long dun. When I go to a place of amusement and see a lady and gentleman together I can tell in almost every instance whether they are man and wife. If the lady drops her programme or handkerchief and has to stoop and pick it up herself, I say she is that man's wife. On the contrary, if the gentleman is kind and polite to her, careful about draughts, etc., I say they are not married. We hear a great deal of talk about the trials and cares of a man in business. They have to battle with the world, it is true, and liable for our support; but women are the housekeepers, and the little cares and trials which come up every hour in housekeeping are just as hard for them to bear as a man's office or shop duties are to him. To keep a house well is to play business. I would like to see a woman wrestle with the servant girl question and preserve her 'ideality.' This will cause the roses to fade in her cheek quicker than anything I know of.

"Now, I believe in marriage. I believe that there are a great many good and noble men in the world, and that there will be much more so in time to come. There are men who rise at night to administer soothing syrup to the baby, and who struggle with the kitchen fire in the morning. On the other hand, there are idle, silly, selfish, exacting, extravagant wives, women who whine when their husbands bring them an orange instead of an apple, and vice versa, and yet it does seem to me as if these kind of women receive more adulation from the men than the kind, cheery, helpful wives we so often see. I claim that women are not any more to blame, and not as much to blame, for the disenchantment of married life than their husbands are. Women are by nature more unselfish, more sensitive, truer, and kinder than men are. Their duties are more varied and more wearing. They endure greater suffering, have more strain upon their nervous system, and bear up under adversities which a man often shoots himself in the head to get rid of. They need more sympathy and tenderness than a man does, and, I am sorry to say, they don't always receive it."

What Can Be Done.

By trying again and keeping up courage many things seemingly impossible may be attained. Hundreds of hopeless cases of Kidney and Liver Complaint have been cured by Electric Bitters, after everything else had been tried in vain. So, don't think there is no cure for you, but try Electric Bitters. There is no medicine made so pure, and so perfect a Blood Purifier. Electric Bitters at once invigorate. Diabetes and all Disease of the Kidneys and Liver disappear before it. Strong and Lively, and overcome all Urinary Difficulties.

How to Select Flour.

In selecting flour, first look to the color. If it is white with a yellow ish straw color tint, buy it. If it is white with bluish cast or with black specks in it, refuse it. Next examine the adhesiveness. Wet and knead a little of it between your fingers, if it works soft and sticky, it is poor. Then, throw a little lump of dried flour against a smooth surface, if it falls like powder it is bad. Lastly, squeeze some of the flour tightly in your hand, if it retains the shape given by the pressure, it is a good sign.

What torture the sufferer from dyspepsia endures no tongue can tell. Dr Bull's Baltimore Pills promptly relieve the pain and cure the disease.

You can give your baby Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup without the least injurious effect. It costs 25 cts.

[illegible] TO INTRODUCE

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.—February 26, 1886

OUR YEAR'S WORK.

A cycle of time has rolled away since we took charge of the VIRGINIAN. Many have been the mutations of time and much has been consigned to the eternity of the past. Bright hopes gild the hill tops of a vast future and the pleasant verdure of fond anticipations allure us on into the great unknown and yet unvisited.

With one year's experience as a County Editor we take up again the stylus with renewed vigor and energy. The circulation of the VIRGINIAN has been steadily increasing and its advertising patronage has been considerably enlarged, and we justly claim that it is one of the best county papers in the State. It is the only county paper that devotes one entire page to local items and general county correspondents, and in consequence of this feature the claim for it pre-eminence as a county paper. This is greatly due to the hearty and enthusiastic support of our many young friends for which we are most heartily thankful. During the past year we have given and earnestly advocated the cause of temperance and are happy to see that three temperance societies have been organized, and are receiving our earnest support.

[illegible] in hopes that [illegible] by our county [illegible] short local items [illegible] have offered and [illegible] farmers of our county [illegible] solicit [illegible] to publish the [illegible] experiments or any [illegible] in their business, so that [illegible] may possess circulation. And [illegible] them that may redound [illegible] our own benefit and to the prosperity of the county.

During the ensuing year we propose to introduce several new features in the VIRGINIAN, such as original sketches of prominent men. Occasionally a sermon from Talmage or Boocher and sometimes outs of a humorous character, but in order to do this we must have the financial, as well as, the enthusiastic support of our many readers. We have made semi-weekly arrangements with prominent weeklies such as the Courier-Journal and the New York Star, and will furnish to our readers the VIRGINIAN and a weekly at a [illegible] price almost as low as either [illegible]

In closing greatly to increase our subscription list in this county and for that purpose send out a supplement with this issue containing very liberal terms to those who desire to aid county industry and enterprise. The success of the VIRGINIAN adds honor to the honor of your county and you will get fully repaid for all you invest in its support. Our success depends upon the young men of the county. We know that they are with us and if they will help us we will greatly improve the VIRGINIAN.

Maj. Daniel comes out in a long article on the debt question, advising the appointment of three officers at a salary of $600 each and yet Gov. Lee says that in order to pay the coupons an additional tax of 14c on the $100 will have to be put on. Would the State of Va. be able to pay this additional 14c

[illegible] we can ascertain, Capt. [illegible] is the universal [illegible] and Commissioner in [illegible] let the [illegible] He is a per[illegible] and [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] passed [illegible] the [illegible]

We publish on our first page Gov. Lee's first message which was sent into the legislature on account of the recent coupon decisions. It contains but one point and that we think impracticable. He takes two columns and a half to say what Grover Cleveland would have said in about as many lines. He wants a commission appointed to confer with the bondholders and get them to accept the Readjuster settlement. We don't suppose the legislature will adopt the suggestion as they have done enough foolish things this winter.

A bill for the relief of Gen. Fitz John Porter passed the House of Representative on last Saturday by a vote of 171 to 113. Only 16 Republicans voted for it. Our readers will remember that Gen. Porter was cashiered and disbarred forever from holding any office of trust on profit under the United States for alledged disobedience of orders and misbehavior in the face of the enemy at the second battle of Manassas on the 29th day of August 1862. It seems that the obedience of Gen P pole order to Porter to fall on Jackson and get in his rear would have necessitated Porter, with 10,000 men, cutting through Long Street with 25,000 men and he tries could have been accomplished. The passage of this bill is no one of long delayed justice and should have had the support of all parties.

In June 1883 this railway began to ship coal from the Pocahontas mines of the Flat top field and before it had extended its New River branch. Since then the shipments of coal have been:

In 1883	58,992 tons
" 1884	195,587 "
" 1885	580,047 "

Total of 3 years 834,626 "

Comparing these figures among themselves I find that the traffic of 1884 was about three and one-third times that of 1883; that quarter 1885 was about three times that of 1884; and that the traffic of 1885, the third year from its beginning, was about ten times that of 1883, the first year.

The above are noteworthy results. But far more remarkable is a paper when comparing our are modern "roads" once as Holy Writ suggests—with the growth of the soft coal traffic of the two railways that now carry to market, annually, several million tons of bituminous coal.

The Baltimore & Ohio Road began to convey Cumberland coal to mkt in 1842; in 1877, after a [illegible] for thirty six years its traffic in this well known anthracite used steam coal, it as reported 518,450 tons of this coal to market—only about one fourth more than did the Norfolk & Western in the third year of its coal operations.

The Pennsylvania Railroad began the shipment of bituminous coal from the classified region in 1852; after twelve years operation, or in 1873, a traffic was 592,961 tons—almost exactly the quantity carried by the Norfolk & Western in the third year of its operations.

If the Norfolk & Western, a Virginia railway, has succeeded in three years to the position that it took one of those great coal railways 12 years and the other 36 years to reach, a thoughtful looker on may well ask the question "Whereunto will this thing grow?" And he will find a wider range for reasonable conjecture if he will recall the fact that this railway has as yet in its operations merely reached the eastern border of the largest coal field in America and when its lines will cross at right angles for 30 miles in its westward course, and that adjacent to and beyond that field, that is coking and steam coals, it will extend for and over for as many miles more of the best of coal fields for further shipments. When it all these things [illegible] great coal [illegible] to [illegible] form [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The following prophecy concerning the destruction of the world was made by Nostradamus, the celebrated French astrologer, who died in 1566: "Quand George Dieu crucifieras, Que Marc le rousseters, et que Saint Jean le pottera; La fin du monde arrivera." Which means that the world will come to an end when the feast of St. George falls on Good Friday, the feast of St. Mark on Easter, and Corpus Christi day on St. John's day. Such is the case this year.—[Central Presbyterian.

—The horses shipped by Mr. Samuel Johnston this week were in most excellent trim. We suppose this was partly owing to his having been kept at J. D. Foote's Livery Stable for more than a week. We would recommend the experiment to other shippers.

—The wife of Wm. Nickerson died of Typhoid fever last Wednesday. The attention of the county authorities should be called to the condition of this family, even if they do not deserve censure for their seeming neglect so far.

—Mr. J. D Hobbie's Warerooms in Lynchburg are now filled with the largest and best assortment of Pianos and Organs ever seen in this part of the State, having about 40 in stock. He and subscribe can please any who have in view the purchase of an instrument. Give him a call.

—Zack Hartwell shot another colored man at Pocahontas this week and is now lodged in the Tazewell jail. Zack Hartwell is from this county and has better home where a very good character. The difficulty is said to have grown out of some family difficulty. The man who was shot is not expected to live.

—The public exercises at the Lyceum last night under the accomplished management of Miss Kent were a decided success. Among those deserving special mention were the dialogue on Science between Misses Kirk Easley and Sallie Gibson—was splendidly rendered. The debate was good, Mr. Berry Mason being the hero showing more of the elements of trued debater than any of the class. The song, "Gypsy Maid" by Miss Lula Johnston and Miss Kent was superb and indicated careful training. The play was rendered in a masterly manner and showed decided dramatic talent. Upon the whole the Lyceum is to be congratulated

MR. EDITOR: If you will give me space I will give you the news of our Ville and vicinity.

We notice the farmers are making preparations for plowing. Mr G. H. Dills has already commenced plowing. He is the banner farmer of our vicinity.

Rev. Keith is holding a protracted meeting at Pleasant Hill with good results. Our Ville is well represented there.

Well, what has become of our church contractors. We haven't seen an obituary, but we suppose Hum is working on his old kitchen and John is still sleigh riding. Look out boys Harmon will be around soon.

Miss Bettie Dills' school closes to-day. The scholars all like her very much. Their hearts will swell at the parting hour.

We notice in last week's issue that Maysville Items came out under a new name, Sunbeam and Sunbeam he is. He compared me to a small star shining in the W[illegible] the great Sunbeam of the [illegible]. Sunbeam seems to be pretty good on poetry, we will try our hand:

Sunbeam has a very large mouth, he dresses like a tramp,
He sent them items to the town but failed to send a stamp,
Oh! if I had them items back I'd keep them right here,
For oh that Isaac man will give me such a slur. ISAAC.

MR. EDITOR: As Yankee died on Jan. 24th, from the effects of an overdose of sleigh ride, I will try and put you a few items, hoping to interest a part, at least of your many readers.

Mr Frank L Harris of Marion, arrived here last Tuesday. We have been told that he is going to attend Prof. Copenhaver's school the rest of the session. Frank is a nice young man.

Some of our young men attended the Public Debate at Thessalia They pronounce it a success.

Mr. J. of High Land is sick; he says that the items sent back to him. We hope to see him out soon.

Wix is travelling at Wabash dangerous! Because he cut this stick for you yesterday evening."

The reigning belle of Wabash has started a new fashion, which we hope all the young ladies will soon follow.

Why is "Wire back" like a lamb? Because "the waits impatiently about till Mary doth appear."

We are sorry to say that Mr C's old grey horse is dead. Will not Mr J. suggest something for him to ride when he goes courting?

Some of our young men have been attending the protracted meeting at Pleasant Hill this week.

Mr. "Willie" has been asked by a girl to keep his eyes open. Does it matter unless it is his girl?

"Old Baron" has been blowing furiously for the past day or two.

MR. EDITOR: We are all so near frozen down here that it is almost impossible to get far enough from the fire to hear the news for every one you see are blowing their be numb fingers and slapping their hands and so (Brother Miller says) asks you if you have any, any, well you know what, to warm up a fellow and give him a start to talk. I don't think I need anything but a good warm fire and the bright merry faces and voices of my loved ones at home for when I have them with me to give me words of love and smiles of approval, it is indeed (happiness) I want more we for the outside talk of others while we have them we love with us. But I am straying entirely from what I intended to write, and that is an apology to Mr. A. B. Coburn for signing his initials to last Friday's issue (I mean the piece from the Narrows that was published in your paper) for I will assure him it was unintentional I did not know it until to-day. I would not have written again so soon but to try to make amends for so doing, therefore I hope he will pardon me, but if he don't why it is all right.

I have no news to tell that will amount to much, but our friend Pat Lee seems to be at a loss what to do with himself. You know he is so very, very small he is almost bound to get somewhere to be seen, poor fellow, I hope some one will roll him up in a piece of red flannel and lay him before the fire to keep him out of mischief.

Well, it is too cold to write more at this time, I hope to give you something more from the Narrows soon.

An Adventure.

Perhaps it will be of interest to relate an incident, my initiation pledge, that befell me during my first week at Roanoke College. As the boys would have it, I was a green country lad just from the back woods of Virginia. I at once assumed the familiar name "frat" which was a token that I was recognized as a student. It was on the first Monday night after my arrival that some of the boys proposed to take an apple hunt the following night, and asked me if I would be company them. I, thinking it would be a good chance to show my courage, accepted. (About two hours afterward I wished that I had never heard tell of Roanoke College) Well, about good dark I was told to prepare for the journey. I went over to College where I found some six or eight boys armed with large sacks, with which they would, if successful, convey home the fruit. The spies or forerunners had gone out some time previous. I was not aware of this or I would have retented for they carried deadly weapons. We started and got along nicely until the "mat," for I was such, fell down and stuck a wire bob in his head. After the pain had somewhat subsided we continued our journey taking rather a northern course where it was said we would find the orchard. After we had proceeded about half a mile I was told to keep a sharp look-out as the man of the house sometimes watched his fruit, (there was not an orchard in six hundred yards of the spot) and if I heard any one shout I must make for College. Upon receiving this information I gradually fell behind for I was always afraid of fire arms. We had proceeded but a few steps when directly in front I saw fire fly and bang, bang went the guns, I whirled and started. The boys then began to hallow, like some of them were shot. This increased my speed, I run very fast, some say faster than the mighty locomotive, or the swift-winged bird as it flies from the gathering storm This however is a false report.

After I got out of range of the bullets I congratulated myself upon my safety. As I went pulling by College some one asked me if I knew anything about that shooting. I answered that I did not as I was in another part at that time. I at last reached my room and had been there but a few minutes when one of the party came running in and told me to come quickly to College, that one of their number was shot, and thought he would die. I found one poor fellow lying in his bed and groaning as if each breath was the last. I hoped he would live and returned to my room, I soon went to bed and fell into a restless slumber to awaken to a glorious revelation.

TALMAGE ON DRESSY WIVES.

His Theory of Why Bank Presidents Fly to Canada—Influence of the Tinge—Men Who Wear Tight Boots.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage sipped lightly from a goblet containing what resembled pale ale yesterday morning before he began his sixth sermon upon "The Marriage Ring." But it was not ale of which he drank. It was Brooklyn water. Dr. Talmage told his audience what a great curse devotion to dress was, and how many, many men were ruined by the extravagant notions of their wives.

"That we should be beautifully apparelled is proved many times in nature. Christ were a beard. Paul admired the arrangement of a woman's hair. There will be fashion in heaven as certainly as here, but it will be a different fashion, and the dress of all will be pure white. The fact is the goddess of fashion has made a throne at which people are expected to bow down and worship. Her servers are not confined to any one sex. I have noticed as many masculine victims as feminine. Men are as much devoted to fashion as women. It may take the form of the club, or cigars, or wines. One hundred million dollars worth of tobacco is smoked and chewed by the men of America. That is their fashion. Their devotion is not confined to matters of attire. Such appendages as the women wear would retard business. What would you say to sashes several yards long in the stock market? But even in dress many men are victims of fashion. Some wear boots that are so tight they cannot walk in the paths of righteousness. They buy clothes and never pay for them. Some wear trousers that resemble a checker board.

"Much of the womanly attire of every age is the cause of eternal and eternal damnation of many men. In some direction there seems to be a strife to see how far toward indecency women may go before tumbling over the brink. The tide of masculine transgression will not be stemmed until women clothe themselves properly. It is high time for the good woman to enter a protest for the dignity of her sex. The evil is terrific.

"If charge much of this evil to the American stage. I do not go to the theater, so I have to take the opinions of others. But such actors and managers as Messrs. Gilbert, Palmer and Bandman say that the dress of the stage is manifestly improper and is doing more to injure its influence than any other one thing. The dress of the actor is pictured upon the fences and the billboards. If these pictures are true they show the damnable dress of the play actor. If they are not true they are a fraud. They are set up to attract people to an exhibition of nudity. If the representation is not made then the thing is one of false pretense. [illegible] and the drawing room [illegible] with the theater [illegible] ness wife. They are [illegible] The parlor may be [illegible] but it is rapidly [illegible] as they pass the [illegible] table that half [illegible] shipbuilding [illegible] and the [illegible] or leaden [illegible] good [illegible] the [illegible]

Silver handles will adorn their caskets. And after it is all over it will be found that even the undertaker was cheated. Don't send for me to preach such a sermon, for I will blaze out the truth and say that he was strangled to death by his wife's ribbons.

"I have been told that costumes worth $1,000 each are to be seen on Broadway and Fulton street. Eight thousand women in these two cities of New York and Brooklyn spend $2,000 yearly on personal adornment. What are men to do to provide such raiment? There is only one thing to do—steal. That is the only respectable thing they can do. [Laughter.] Ten thousand business houses have been wrecked on the wardrobe. Oh, for some new Shakespeare to write the tragedy of Human Clothes! It would be something like this: Act I. Beautiful home; enter wife; happiness. Act II. Enter dissatisfaction; enter jealousy. Act III. Enter increased expenses; enter French millinery. Act IV. The top of society; enter the disciples of fashion and wealth. Act V. Winding up all; enter the sheriff; enter humiliation; enter the wrath of God. Ring down the silken curtain on the stage; the farce is ended."

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Mr. J. M. Norris, an old resident of Knox, Va., says, that he had been sadly troubled with Kidney Complaint for a great many years and with Eczema for three years; at times could scarcely walk and had tried many remedies without benefit, until he began taking Electric Bitters and anointing his limbs and feet with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. This treatment afforded him great relief and he strongly recommends Electric Bitters to all who suffer with Kidney Complaints, or need a Blood Purifier. Sold by Thos. J. Pearce's.

Fifth Cures of Other Days.

There is the story of the French criminal who died because he believed that he was being bled to death, when in reality his arms were only pricked, and a sound of trickling water made to imitate the noise of the blood flowing forth. In the same war it is recorded how Mr. Loutherburg cured large numbers of patients by attacking the imagination.

Among those who visited him was a man who had been troubled with great pains and swellings, particularly about his loins, so that he could not walk across the room. On entering, Mr. Loutherburg looked steadfastly at him, and said: "I know your complaint, look at me." They continued looking at each other for some minutes; then Mr. Loutherburg asked if he did not feel some warmth at his loins, where upon the man replied that he did. "Then you will feel in a few minutes much greater warmth."

After a short pause the man said: "I feel as if a person were pouring boiling water upon me."

Still looking in his face, Mr. Loutherburg said: "How did you come here, sir?" "In a coach." "Then go and discharge your coach and walk back to town." The coach was discharged and the patient walked back to town, and the next day he walked five hours about town without fatigue.

The Pretty Baby.

"Isn't he a pretty baby, John? See, just look at him," and the mother holds up the tiny creature to papa, who kisses and fondles him lovingly.

"Yes, Kate, he is a pretty baby, but Tom was a pretty baby, too, you remember."

"Yes, Tom was a pretty baby—everybody said so," and she glances across the room at a sunny faced 4 year old, "but Willie is not like Tom. Willie's hair is light and his eyes," looking wistfully into the baby's face, "are dark, and so deep, that when I look in them I am almost afraid, they have such a far away light they seem to see something we cannot."

"Oh, nonsense! don't think that. He'll grow up to be a fine fellow, but, Kate, I wouldn't think so much about him, he's a dear, good, little fellow, but I wouldn't worship him, it isn't right."

"As if I could help it," the mother says, reproachfully, pressing the slight form closer and looking into the dark eyes yearningly.

A month passes away, and one day they stand beside a small, white casket, within which the pretty baby is sleeping. Ah, the mother's eyes were sharp, and when friends said, "what beautiful bright eyes he has," she saw the far away look and knew it as the light that never saw no land or sea.

"Oh John, John!" she moaned "I know he wasn't long for this world. I could see it in his eyes Oh, my pretty baby!"

"Yes, dear, you were right," says papa, and there is a quiver in the firm voice; "if it had pleased God to have left him with us we would have cared for him the best we could, but we must give him up, for it is His will, and He knows what is best for us."

"Yes, I know it," and she stoops and cuts a tiny wisp of hair from the baby's head. "Oh, John, you said I worshiped him. I did, oh, I did, and, God forgive me, I can't be sorry for it now, he was such a dear, pretty baby."

Years pass on. Other babies are born. They are all pretty babies, every one who sees them says that, but none are like the baby with the far away look. As they grow up they love to gather around mother's chair, and she never tires telling of the dark eyed baby who went to live with God. And, when with childish curiosity they open the Bible to look at the pictures, and find between the leaves a tiny wisp of hair tied with a white satin ribbon, they touch it reverently and whisper beneath their breath: "The pretty baby."

Years still pass on. The children grow to be sturdy men and women, and as the mother watches them she sometimes thinks, "If he had lived he would have been such a beautiful man," and then she smiles and is glad that in Heaven there is no time, and no matter how the others may change he is still the pretty baby.

One day they gather around her bed, and looking in each other's face mournfully whisper:

"She is dying."

She stretches her thin hand toward the table on which the old Bible rests, and they say:

"The baby's hair."

They place it in her hand. She kisses it tenderly and a bright light comes into the dim old eyes, and they say:

"What does she see?"

She smiles and whisper: "The pretty baby."

They place the wisp of hair on her breast and fold the wrinkled hands upon it, and tenderly lay her by the side of the pretty baby.—[Detroit Free Press.

CATARRH.
CATARRH is the Government of Consumption, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Weakness, Scrofula, and Kidney Disease. It is a disease of disgusting filth that breeds in foul secretions of the mucous membrane, and is caused by the presence of living parasites in the blood. Its symptoms are dullness, headache, discharges falling from the head, sometimes profuse, watery and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious and purulent; the eyes are weak, ringing noises in the ears, deafness, offensive breath, impaired taste, smell and hearing, a cough, expectoration of offensive matter, and general debility. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. No disease is more common, more deceptive, or more dangerous in its results. It is estimated that one person in every three has Catarrh in some form. Fully one-half of the cases of Consumption originate in Catarrh. Thousands of cases of Deafness, Blindness, Throat and Lung Diseases, Epilepsy, Insanity, and Sudden Death are caused by Catarrh. Its cure is a matter of the highest importance.

LOCAL OPTION THROUGH

BOTH HOUSES.

The Shape in Which It Will Go to the Governor for His Approval—The Bill in Full, &c., &c.

[From Thursday's Dispatch, 25th.]

The local-option bill originated in the House of Delegates, and having passed that body was sent to the Senate. The Senate adopted a substitute for the House bill and sent that back to the House. Yesterday at 11:45 this Senate substitute came up in the House.

Mr. A. Fulkerson moved to pass by, because there only remained a few days of the session, which he thought should be devoted to more important legislation.

Mr. Pollard said if any disposition was to be made of this matter it ought to be made now. Only the salient points of the bill were now before them for consideration, and there was no use in spending several days more over the bill unless the House proposes to go into a lengthy discussion with the gentleman from Washington (Mr. A. Fulkerson) at the head.

Mr. Downing offered a resolution limiting speeches on the bill to five minutes. Agreed to.

The Clerk commenced to read the bill.

Mr. Martin (Republican) moved to amend the fifth section by striking out the word "and said majority includes a majority of the number of votes cast at the next preceding general election." Agreed to.

Mr. Pollard moved to strike out the same words in the fourth section to make it conform to the rest of the bill. Agreed to.

Mr. Pollard moved to strike out the words "or wines" in the 8th section. Rejected—ayes, 28; noes, 48.

Mr. Stuart moved to add at the end of the 8th section the words—

"Provided that nothing in this act shall apply to towns and cities of five thousand inhabitants or over."

Rejected, and the House refused to reconsider.

The bill was then ordered to its engrossment and third reading by the following vote:

AYES—Messrs. Acker, Addington, Arnold, Bandy, Black, Bohannan, Bonar, Buchanan, Carter, Childress, Connett, Crimmond, Dant, Dickenson, Downing, Dupuy, Eastwood, Echols, Faulcon, Fentress, Figgat, Franklin, Gills, Grant, Holladay, Huffman, Hurt, Hylton, C. F. Jordan, W. B. Jordan, William I. Jordan, Lawson, Leftwitch, Lightner, Lockett, Loving, McCandlish, Mc Clintic, Martin, Masek, Moss, Miller, Munford, Nance, Oglesby, Payne, Pollard, Porter, Powell, Rice, Roberts, Row, Ruggles, Schoolfield, Sebrell, Shields, Smith, Southworth, Stribling, Talaferro, Tavenner, Terry, Thorne, Tiller, Turner, Waddill, Webb, Westcott, and Wilkins—69.

NOES—Messrs. Burks, Cardwell, Chalmers, Corbett, Dabney, Dunlop, Hay, Howe, Johnson, Mathews, Patton, Peters, Reed, Ryan, Saunders, Stokes, Wise, and Mr. Speaker—16.

The next question was on the passage of the bill.

The bill passed—ayes, 69; noes, 16.

The bill now goes to the Senate for its concurrence in the amendments agreed to by the House.

The effect of the amendments adopted by the House is simply to allow a majority of the voters voting at the special election ordered to decide for or against local option.

[Here follows the text of the above proceedings in the Senate, by a clerical error (Mr. Reed) being credited with introducing the bill, on motion of Mr. Stokes, was taken up.]

Mr. Lewellen hoped the bill would not be considered at that time.

Mr. Rives called the pending question. It was ordered, and the first amendment agreed to by the following vote:

AYES—Messrs. Blackstone, Bliss, Ellyson, Gaines, Gillespie, Hodges, Jones, Krenell, Norton, Reed, Rives, Stubbs, Trout, Warwick, and Williams—15.

NOES—Messrs. Coltrane, Grim, Heston, Koiner, Lowenstein, McDonald, Staples, and Twyman—8.

The other amendments being merely consequential, the Clerk was ordered to enter them as agreed to.

THE BILL AS IT STANDS.

The bill goes to the Governor in the form following:

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia, That it shall be the duty of the judges of each county and corporation court in the Commonwealth of Virginia whenever such a number of the duly qualified voters of each magisterial district of a county, or whenever such a number of the duly qualified voters of any magisterial district in any county, or whenever such a number of the duly qualified voters of a corporation (having over five thousand inhabitants and a corporation court) as constitute one fourth of the number of voters voting at the preceding regular November election in such county, magisterial district, or corporation shall petition, either in term time or in vacation to order a special election in his county so petitioning, or in any magisterial district of his county so petitioning, or in his corporation so petitioning, on the question of liquor license or no liquor license. Such county or corporation judge, as the case may be, shall within ten days after the receipt of said petition issue his writ of election, in which shall be fixed the day of holding such election, directed to the sheriff of his county or city, or sergeant of his corporation, as the case may be, whose duty it shall be to forthwith post at each voting precinct in said county, if the election is to be held in the whole county or at the voting precincts in any magisterial district, when the election is ordered to be held only in such magisterial district, or at the voting precincts in said corporation, notice of said election; and shall also give notice to the officers charged with the duty of conducting other elections in said county, magisterial district, or corporation, as the case may be: Provided that no election shall be held under this act within less than thirty days from the posting of such notices as aforesaid. Said special election shall be held and conducted as special elections for other purposes are held and conducted: Provided that after any such election has been held in any county, magisterial district, or corporation, there shall not be another election under this act held in said county, magisterial district, or corporation within the space of two years.

2. The ballots to be used in said elections shall be respectively as follows: "For licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors," and "Against licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors. The manner of receiving and canvassing the ballots at said elections on said question and making returns and abstracts thereof shall conform in all respects to the requirements of the general election law of the State except that the certificate of the judges shall be as follows:

We hereby certify that at the election held on the — day of ——, — votes were cast for license for sale of intoxicating liquors and — votes were cast against license for sale of intoxicating liquors.

R. B., } Clerks. G. F., } Judges.
G. D., } J. K., }

And the proper official statements of general election returns shall contain these returns in the manner as other election returns, and when the election is held for the whole county they shall certify the number of votes cast for and against license respectively in said county, and shall also certify the number of votes cast at said election in each magisterial district of said county for and against license respectively; and when said election is held for a magisterial district only, said canvassers shall certify the number of votes cast at such election for and against license respectively; and when the election is held for a corporation having over five thousand inhabitants and a corporation court, said canvassers shall certify the number of votes cast at such election for and against license respectively; a copy of such certificate in either case to be laid before the county or corporation court, as the case may be, at its next term.

4. Where the election is held in the whole county, if it appear from the abstracts and returns of such election that a majority of the votes cast in the election under this bill have been cast against license, then no license shall be granted to any person therein for the sale of such liquors; or if it appear from the abstracts and returns of such election that a majority of votes as aforesaid have not been cast against the sale of intoxicating liquors in said county, but that a majority of votes have been cast in any magisterial district in said county against license for the sale of intoxicating liquors therein, then no license shall be granted to any person in such magisterial district for the sale of such liquors. But if such district vote in favor of license, then it shall be lawful to sell with license obtained under existing laws; and any person who shall sell any intoxicating liquors within the limits of any magisterial district voting against license shall incur all the penalties and be punished as prescribed by the general law for selling wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors, or any mixture of them without a license therefor.

5. Where the election is held only in a magisterial district in any county, or in a corporation having over 5000 inhabitants and a corporation court, if it appear from the abstracts and returns of any such election that a majority of votes have been cast against license for the sale of intoxicating liquors in any such magisterial district or corporation, as the case may be, then no license shall be granted to any person for the sale of such liquors in any such magisterial district or corporation; and any person who shall sell any intoxicating liquors within the limits of any such magisterial district or corporation shall incur all the penalties and be punished as provided by the general law for selling wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors, or any mixture of them without a license therefor.

6. If any magisterial district in any county in the State has heretofore by vote in pursuance of any law prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors therein; or if any magisterial district in any county shall (before the county as a whole) avail itself of the provisions of this act, and by vote prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors therein, then in either case no election shall be held under this act by any county which wherein any such magisterial district is located, but each remaining magisterial district in such county may petition and vote separately as provided for in this act.

7. If any incorporated town under 5,000 inhabitants, composing a separate district or voting precinct, shall desire to take advantage of the provisions of this act a petition of such a number of the duly qualified voters of a corporation as constitute one fourth of the number of the voters voting at the preceding regular November election shall be presented to the judge of the county court, in term time or in vacation, having jurisdiction of the said corporation, and the said judge shall order a special election in conformity with this act; and if a majority of the votes cast be against license, as in this as shall be granted within the corporate limits thereof: Provided that no election provided for in this bill has been held within the district of which said town is a part within two years.

8. This act shall be construed to prohibit distillers of alcoholic liquors or manufacturers of wines or malt liquors from selling any such liquors or wines in any county, magisterial district, or corporation voting as aforesaid against the sale of intoxicating liquors therein.

9. That the election under the provisions of this act shall be held within thirty days of any county, corporation, State, or national election.

10. This act shall be in force from its passage.

The bill was put through under the operation of the previous question—which was demanded and sustained—and Mr. Ryan and others could not offer amendments that they wished.

TALMAGE ADVISES WIVES.

He Shows How Fashionable Women Frequently Fail in Their Home Duties.

The big Brooklyn Tabernacle was crowded again on Sunday by people who had come to hear Rev. T. De Witt Talmage preach in the series on "The Marriage Ring." A few Sundays ago," he said, "I told the husbands what they should do to make the home life happy. As I told husbands what they should be, so I told wives what some of them ought to be. I spoke a good deal in their sense, but on the whole they took it pretty well.

"There are a few things to the wife, that I would say to you. First, I charge you appreciate that your husband is in a very Solferino or Indian fever morning until night. Then if he comes home preoccupied, forgive him. Suppose, during the day, he has had a protested note or some one has called him names, you might as well tell the storm of the Atlantic to keep off the shore as to try to make him pleased with his day's work. After all men toil, not for themselves, but for their family ties. The high pressure of life is not in the different pursuits of business, but in the home pressure. Don't nag your husbands. The most disgusting thing on earth is a woman scold, or one who keeps her hair done up in curl papers until she goes out or goes one calls. Make your self as attractive. Keep the home cosmetic. Tell them to no one. Veil the imperfections. When a woman can say, O, Lord, I have kept the secret, orders will be given that no man shall be led to the best room in the heavenly palace, and given the softest cushions, and the angel ushers will take care of her."

"Thank God for this. They are the homes of many noble people. I charge you to read the newspapers and keep posted on the affairs of the day. Beware of the life of the dime-a-way, frivolous, society woman. Her heaven is the opera box. She eats arsenic to improve her complexion. She is a woman of rum and opium and bleached hair. In her the line between decency and indecency is like the imaginary line of the equator. What the world wants to-day is the old fashioned mother. In society to-day there is a wrong twist. In many families children instead of being blessings are a nuisance—hence the ante natal murders and the infanticides.

"The loudest, widest shriek in the day of judgment will come from those society murderesses. These crimes are the overshadowing ones of this century. God help the infernal sinners. Men labor under the delusion that they are at the family helm. To every boat on life's sea there are two oars—prayer and a holy example. Use them now. In them is your salvation. The clasp is the emblem of eternity, and that is the shape of the marriage ring."

SUNDAY.... March 6, 1887

A LAST POINT IN THE LOCAL OPTION BILL.

The old law remains the same Persons to not forfeit the moral distinction of the county to refuse license after the party has brought himself within the requirements of the statute.

The question is "License" or "no License." Should it be decided in favor of "no License" parties who have obtained license before the vote was taken will have a right to sell until the end of that license year. The license year commences the last of May.

A petition of one fourth of the number of voters voting at the preceding regular November election must be presented to the County Judge before he can order an election. There must be one-fourth from each Magisterial district. In Ohio the vote at the last November election in each Magisterial district is given here, also the number of petitioners required from each district:

No. Vote Cast.	No. To Petition.
Pearisburg Dist. 470	118
Walker's Creek " 488	122
Newport " 398	99
Pembroke " 395	99
1753	438

The Sheriff must post notice at a voting precinct 30 days before election.

The petitions must be ready to be filed by March 6th.

Refer to section 1 of the law.

The election cannot be held within 40 days of any other election. The election day is the 4th Thursday in May.

If the vote is taken to be a whole, if against license, if for it, in several districts. That is, local option will prevail over the whole county if the vote is taken as a whole and the vote is in favor of no license, but if for license then such Magisterial district stands on its own votes. It will thus be seen at a glance that the vote should be taken in the County as a whole. The expenses are paid as all other election expenses are paid.

A majority of the votes cast at that election decide the question.

It is a moral not a political question. All parties can and ought to unite to vote down license.

Let us have local option in the whole county. Let us then be up and doing.

Edmunds and his crew caught a Tartar when they snatched up Grover Cleveland for a foil. Cleveland's message is a master constitutional document and shows that he knows exactly what he was talking about.

TEMPERANCE AND THE CIVIL BALLOT.

MR. EDITOR: The last issue of your most excellent paper to hand. And we are exceedingly glad to see the great interest manifested on your part in the question of temperance. It is the most agitated, the most important, and perhaps the most national question of the day. The question that involves more money more crime, more misery, more widows, more sin, more women, more children, more homes, and more human souls, than any other question, of this or any other land.

Intoxicating drink is justly branded the curse of all curses, the arch fiend of all nations, and the foe of all race. It is that which meets Satan's most sanguine hopes. It is Satan's most potent emissary. What he can do done, is the all absorbing question of millions of people. Shall this sad state of things continue? Shall the hideous demon rollon with remorseless impunity dragging this nation chained to his chariot wheels, with nothing to impede his progress? Virginia, of world renowned fame is about to bury her honor in the cesspool of the devil's truth by ratification and christianity do thing to arrest the wild storm of drunken [illegible] The so-called "Local Option" law, the Virginia [illegible] some days ago seems to [illegible] idea that the arm of temperance reformation is considerably paralized. But, from the repelling indignation called forth by the passage of aforesaid bill, we conclude that better things are in store, and hail the great zeal manifested by the people as the dawning of a better day for Virginia. The success of other States, has got out a beacon light along the line that foreshadows what Virginia may do, if she will. There never was a time when the people of this State, and of this nation, were so deeply stirred, and so wide awake on the subject of temperance as now. The time to draw the brakes has come. Something must be done.

Where shall we begin? Shall we begin at the tallest tax? We believe that to be the proper place to begin because the ballot box in a great measure controls our system of government. Public officials are simply the agents of people who place them in power; hence, if we elect bad agents, we must expect bad govern ment as the result, for government is never to be executed purer, or better than those who make it. If these governing power is honest, sober, and trust-worthy, so will the government be.

The right to vote is a great privilege, but it involves great responsibilities. The privilege of voting carries with it a share of the responsibility for the kind of government we have, and if the votes, by his ballot, knowingly sanctions evil because of his party principles, he is morally guilty before God. And yet, many professed christians seem very much exercised at this point, notwithstanding its grave responsibilities. This is a day of practical economy, when men should not only preach, talk, and pray temperance, but vote as well. Those voting for a saloon granting privilege do so knowingly. If it is right for the rum than to sell liquor by a legally [illegible] per paper it is and ever has been an equal ability to sell it under equity. For the error, high license is a [illegible] American, anti-common sense and the monopoly idea abominable. Neither do we want a Local Option law excluding cities of 20000 inhabitants. If it is wrong in the country it is equally wrong in cities of 20000 or more. It is not a question of population.

What we want is absolute prohibition of the manufacture, importation and sale of all liquors as a beverage. We want prohibition by the will of the people expressed in due form of law, with deserved penalties. And if the sale of liquor as a medicine, must be tolerated, put it on a basis with other poisons, where it properly belongs. It is a well-nigh universal opinion of the most [illegible] poison of the most poisonous character. Solomon says of it that the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

The Good Templars are doing good work in this part of the country, and throughout the State. They seem wide awake and in earnest. A more noble work never called forth the energies of true men and women than that, of the Good Templars. The I. O. G. T., has some brave, daring men in the field of battle. And we are gratified to see the great interest that, Mr. J. R. Miller, S. D. G. L., is creating in your own county. Success to his efforts in every place. The writer is a member of Lodge, No. 187, organized last April, and of which he is L. D. & W. C. We are moving on very nicely in the midst of strong opposition. Opposition against which a savage warfare, is not so much from those who favor the liquor traffic, but from professed christians who array themselves against secret societies of every nature. But the spell of their righteous indignation is somewhat broken and they seem to think it not so outrageously bad after all. Right is mighty.

Our latest is a young recollect service in the field of temperance. The Order of Good Templars opens a broad field of labor to the ladies, and affords them many opportunities of doing good. Therefore let us take every step this side of error and shoulder it safe.

The homicide, drunken street cries, the low and revolting oaths broken hearted mothers, their sons ruined condition of our asylums, penitentiaries, and the wretched poorhouse of the drunkard's home, all combine to ask the question, what can, what should be done to arrest the evil? Answer, the man, what child would not vote, who might and must, under the infamous curse of intoxicating drink, the thousand fathoms deep beneath the curses of the universe.

Yours in faith, hope and charity.

H. A. BROWN,

Pocahontas, Va., Coal and Coke in 1885.

There already published that total 1885 output of the coal mines and coke ovens of the Southwest Virginia Improvement Company at Pocahontas, Tazewell county, Va., but omitted further preceding, in one table, the returns of the production of coal and coke of this company during each month of 1885, as furnished me by E. J. Collins, its secretary and treasurer, as followers in net tons:

Month of 1885.	Coal mined.	Coke made.
January,	39,760	6,127
February,	38,295	4,747
March,	38,686	3,757
April,	41,419	184
May,	36,275	497
June,	37,401	3,648
July,	41,144	5,308
August,	41,918	4,029
September,	39,726	6,181
October,	38,339	6,313
November,	47,461	5,546
December,	56,305	3,364
Totals,	511,371	50,635

The figures show an average monthly production during the year, of 42,531 tons of coal and 4,220 tons of coke—a remarkable showing for the third year of operations.

In reference to the coke making of this company it should be stated that at present it only aims to supply fuel for the furnace of the Cooper Steel and Iron Company at Roanoke, Va. It as well as the other Flat-Top coal company will doubtless soon provide coking plants for making a larger quantity of the superior coke that can be made from the high grade coking coals of the Flat-Top region to supply not only the wants of the Southwest Virginia blast-furnaces but also of the furnaces of Tennessee, Alabama and other states to the southwest which have no first class coking coals.—Industrial South.

Richmond Experience.

Hiram Chesterton, Furniture Dealer of Columbus, Ga., tells his experience: "For three years have tried every remedy on the market for Stomach and Kidney troubles, but got no relief, until I used Electric Bitters. Took five bottles and am now cured, and think Electric Bitters the Best Blood Purifier in the world." Major A. B Reed, of West Liberty, Ky., used Electric Bitters for an old standing Kidney affection and says: "Nothing has ever done me so much good as Electric Bitters."

Were you ever in a village grave yard? Well, all you have to do to get there is to die. Then you wait about two days until your friends can find a place back of Mrs. Ryan's dwelling, scrape away the Ryan's corn on your face, but they step out of the hole (it was only a neglected grave—yours will be the same soon-they) proceed to the hole in the rock and set your coffin down on the edge.

And now while the devotional exercises are going on (as you cant hear them) I will show you the surrounding about six feet above your eternal resting place. You are near the center of a so-called enclosure, most of the fence that used to be here has been burnt long ago. The place is covered with rank grass, brave weeds and wild rose-briers, with fragments of lime stone rocks lying here and there around over the upper portion of it.

Here and there you see a fresh pile of dirt where it looks like hogs have been rooting—it is only the newly made bed of a companion who has just lately preceded you. That noise you hear is only the gingle of the bell of a cow that is quietly grazing up there in the Northwest corner. Why, when I was up here last Saturday there were three in here. Those patches of briars down there used to be enclosed graves, but the palliage are all rotted down and you can get through them anywhere by following the pig and cow paths. Perhaps the strangest thing about this place is that victims like you have been coming here ever since 1820 and now you can only find the names of nine persons, resting here. This is a fact, for I counted them when I was up here last Saturday, and I have them down here on a piece of paper, but you wont recognize any of them if I would show them to you. I will, however, give you the name of the man that first came here, as I hope you will be the last one. His name is Wm W—— who died in 1820. There is one respectable grave here, that is down there in the Northeast corn, she was a young married women 22 years of age, and that nice stone and neat paling was put there by her husband.

But now here they come to put you down in that hole so I must say "good bye." The next time you went to die, never come to Pearisburg, but go to some place where the people have a decent place to bury their dead. You will rest secure in that hole of rock for sometime to come from the depredations of the pigs and you will scarcely feel the weight of the cow when she walks over your head. Yes, I see some day be dug up when it is seen forgotten where you were put, and then you can leave this village grave yard where rest our fathers, our mothers, our sisters, our brothers. And when you go out of here if you should meet any one bringing his horses to pasture he will not be inquisitive as to your race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Reader, I have given you a description of the Pearisburg grave yard.

Mr. EDITOR: As "Mary" said Mr. J. of this neighborhood is sick, I will try and write you a few items, if you can give me space in your valuable paper.

The Wabash Yankee died of an overdose of sleigh ride, and I fear that "Mary" will fall a victim "to that stick" that was cut the other evening.

I can inform "Mary" that Mr. C. travels by water now. He goes "down on the Creek."

Buster goes "up the Creek." We think it is time he was taking the ring back.

Mr. M. and G. talk of going "down the Creek," if we don't have too much falling weather. They have our best wishes.

Mrs. Minnie Bedrick is visiting her brother Whitley Hicks at Poplar Hill.

The protracted meeting at Pleasant Hill closed last Friday night. Several conversions and accessions to the church.

Mr. W. P. Meadows' school closes next Friday. He will have a spelling match Friday night. He has invited the Band to play for him.

One of the Band boys is true to his girl. He would rather pay the Band a fine than break an engagement.

Mr. J. W went to see his girl last Sunday. Success to you Joe.

Mr. J. D Eaton has just finished paling his yard and garden, which adds greatly to the appearance of his place.

Irish Settlement Items.

There has been much sickness and several deaths very recently in this section.

Mr. Turner of Green Valley died very suddenly last week. Mr. Giles Burton's son and Mr. Perry Johnston's little child are no more.

The people of this section are busily engaged in their various avocation. The farmers have been plowing. The mechanics have plenty to do; and the teachers are wielding the rod.

Mr. Jesse Mooney's school, which has been successfully taught, will close on March the 5th.

Mr. C. P. Kerr's school is still in successful operation at Springvale. We suppose that he will get out in time to see the turtle sunning himself; and Jim Weis going to market with fish.

There seems to be no scarcity of feed here, and we understand that Mr. Updyke of Bland county, will bring a lot of cattle in a few days to be fed in this section.

Mr. George C Stafford of Poplar Hill, is now living at Springvale. We are glad to have him among us again.

Mr. Samuel Wingo and lady of Springville Tazewell, have been visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity. Glad to hear from you Sam.

Messrs. Gilbert, Monroe, Lesley and Loyd Stafford are still in attendance at Wabash High School. Success to you boys.

One of the boys who once went to Staffordsville in a sleigh, is still hooling it, (every Sunday) and we don't wonder.

I believe there are several other young "mashers." Staffordsville wards inclined.

Mr. David Wagoner of Bland and Miss Relda Hollcroak of Tazewell, and Mrs. Clark Wagoner of Arkansas, are visiting relatives in the "Settlement."

If Mr. Spektator is still in Newport, we should like to hear how he came out at the spelling; also that ground hog. Respectfully,

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the cough and induced sleep. His children were similarly afflicted and a single dose had the same happy effect. But Kings New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner.

A Remarkable History.

Guizot is the Macaulay of the History of France. His narrative is full of action like a quick stream, his characters rise before us as in the flesh; they are men and women, not historical figures. It is as charming as any romance. It is a work to read and re-read. The new edition just published is worthy of the work. Though reduced in price from $25.00 to $6.00 the 427 illustrations are all there, superb in quality; the type is large; the binding is thoroughly excellent and tasteful. Every word of the publisher's description in the advertisement elsewhere is worth reading—the work ought to be owned in every home. We have made an arrangment with the publisher by which we are able to offer this work, Guizot's History of France, 8 vols., large 12mo., 427 fine illustrations, as described in the publisher's advertisement elsewhere, regular price $6.00, in combination with FARMSTEAD VIRGINIAN on the following remarkably attractive terms, namely:

For $6 25, we will send one copy of this paper one year, and deliver a set of Guizot's History of France, as described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $1 25.

For $11 50, we will send two copies of this paper one year and deliver two sets of the work described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $6 50.

For $16 00, we will send three copies of this paper one year, and deliver three copies of the work described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $9 50.

Our arrangements with the publisher enable us to make these exceedingly liberal offers for 30 days only—the time expires March 27, 1886. A prompt call at our office to examine the work is worth your while—that will cost nothing; a few hours' or a few moments' talk with your neighbors will enable you to secure it on easy terms.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....March 9., 1888.

The Massey Bill.

In the Senate yesterday Mr. Wingfield introduced the following bill for its author, Hon. John E. Massey, and it was referred to the special debt committee: "An act to facilitate the settlement of the public debt of the State under the act approved Feb. 14, 1882, and section 19 of Article X, of the constitution. Short follows a lengthy preamble giving the history of this debt; the apportionment of the one third to West Virginia; the reasons that impelled the General Assembly to pass the Riddleberger act; and the equities of the case, &c.]

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia, That the Governor shall appoint three citizens of Virginia, who shall compose a board of commissioners for the purpose of carring out the provisions of this act.

2. That it shall be the duty of the said commissioners, and they are hereby authorized and empowered so to do, to confer with the bondholders in such manner and at such times and places as to them may seem best; and by such conference to acquaint the said bondholders with the material and financial condition of Virginia, and explain to them the facts which make the settlement under the act of Feb. 14, 1882, just and equitable, and its acceptance by them a necessity for the protection of their interests.

And said commissioners are further directed, and are hereby invested with full power and authority, to take such steps as may be necessary in the name and on behalf of the State of Virginia, to adjust with West Virginia, the just proportions of the public debt as it existed prior to the first day of January, 1861, to be borne by the said State of West Virginia: and to do all things which may be necessary to be done to procure such adjustment and settlement as to them may seem just and equitable.

3. That no action shall be taken by said commissioners under this act to adjust with West Virginia the portion of the debt to be borne by her until the holders of the "West Virginia certificates" shall have agreed that this Commonwealth shall stand ipso facto released from all and every obligation on account of said certificates and of the unfunded one-third of the bonds for which said certificates were or may be given whenever such adjustment and settlement shall have been effected between the two States. And inasmuch as it will be impossible, owing to the loss and destruction of certificates and other casualties for the holders of the full amount of said certificates which have been heretofore issued, to unite in the release herein before provided for, therefore it is the true meaning and interest of this act that the said commissioners shall exercise the powers and duties in this behalf conferred by this act as soon as an amount equal to two thirds in interest exclusive of those held by the literary fund and sinking fund, which are controlled by the State of Virginia shall have executed said releases, or such less amount as in the judgment of said commissioners sufficient to indicate that the con- of this act will be substan- satisfied with.

no action shall be taken until the holders of or some one for deposited with the Accounts their ity, to be ap- payable to quity of nuity wis d

Love Story.

Love is a disease. Like the chimps, it is something that everybody is going to catch sooner or later. It is like the measles, the older you are when you get it the harder it goes with you and the longer it takes to get over it. There is no preventative. Vaccination or inoculation will not keep it off. Carbolic acid is powerless, onions tied up in the breath and worn in the evening have been known to cure mild cases.

Love is commonly described as a disease of the heart. This is true to a great extent, but not altogether correct. The diagnosis of love is simple. There is generally a great deal of palpitation of the heart, and symptoms of softening of the brain; the countenance at times. At other times there is a soft, subdued look about the eyes; there is always more or less involuntary convulsion of the facial muscles and the poor victims goes around with every appearance of having the Saint Vitus dance. There is a general derangement of the nervous system; the sufferer is feverish and chilly by spells and there is always a certain amount of delirium; the appetite craves something sour. The constitution is terribly shattered and there is a strange feeling of goneness about the whole system.

I have often wondered how Brigham Young stood as may attacks as he did. I have laid awake many a night speculating on the number of pickles consumed daily in Utah.

Love attacks both sexes at all ages, but manifests severity reversely in each. Young girls and old men get it the worst. The older, the more pronounced the disease, and scientists claim this on the ground that they always take to widows or old maids. If there is anything in this world calculated to make hoary-headed wisdom totter on her throne, it is love.

According to statistics, love causes ninety-nine hundred and ninety-nine per cent. of the misery in this world.

People suffering with this disease always write poetry. The other one per cent. is caused directly or indirectly by gentle spring or beautiful snow. People in love are liable to do almost anything. I have known some to marry for love, others marry for money. History states that men and women eighty years old have married for love. They were old enough to know better. When persons catch love and disappointment at the same time their systems are irreparably thrown out of order.

People that never caught this disease always march through life in single file and are noted principally for their cranky coneeeeeit.

Love is marvelous in its ways. I have known love to cause a dude to spend his entire fortune for two plates of ice cream; to stop a man swearing until after he was married; to cause a man to soak his head in hair oil; to cause a man to put on a clean shirt and collar and go to church and act like a Christian.

Cupid is said to represent love. Here's a picture of a small boy in a summer suit of clothes, and has a bow and arrows. He keeps his arrows in a quiver. He also nearly always keeps his victims in a quiver. This last is a joke. I always try and work a joke in somehow. Cupid is also said to carry a bottle of laudanum and to have a seven shooter in his hip pocket.

Marriage is the only sure cure for love.

"Have you found religion yet my friend?" the Rev. Sam Jones inquired of one of hearers.

"No," was the reply.

"What is your occupation may I ask?"

"I'm a detective."

"Then I observed the great revivalist, "that accounts for it."

Guizot's France

DELIBERATED HISTORY OF FRANCE from the Earliest Times to 1848. By M. Guizot, Prime Minister of France, dictated from his notes, by his daughter, Mme. Guizot De Witt.

Complete in 8 vols., large 12mo., bound elegantly in fine cloth, gilt tops. A new edition just issued, reduced in price to $6.00, including postage. This is much the best edition published of this magnificent work, which is known as the best popular history of France. The one of the important edition, with substantially the same illustrations is $36.00, while this is certainly the best in form, and the most desirable for the library. "THE MATCHLESS BRILLIANCY of Guizot's style, the graphic descriptions of men and events, his painstaking minuteness of detail, the lucidity and ease of his style and the admirable philosophic reflections, all combine to render it worthy of the description it bears as the most popular history of France. It is as fascinating as a novel, and as life-like as a theatrical representation of the events and personages it describes. How the set can be sold for that price remains, after much reflection, a mystery, for the work is not shain work, it is well done; altogether it is a marvel of cheapness."—Daily Register, N.Y.

This Wash Board is made of the BEST QUALITY OF GLASS, and is GUARANTEED NOT TO WARP, SWELL, SHRINK, CRACK, OR BREAK, and will outwear any two boards of the ordinary kind. It is the most durable, the most convenient, the most desirable Wash Board ever made. It is so constructed that the water will not lodge on the board, but will run off freely, thereby keeping the board dry and clean. The rubber strips on the ends of the board prevent the clothes from coming in contact with the tub, thereby preventing the wearing of the clothes through contact with the tub. The rubber strips also prevent the board from slipping down in the tub. The rubber strips are fastened to the board in such a manner that they cannot be removed by the user. We have had these boards in use in our own families for the past two years, and we know whereof we speak when we say that they are the best Wash Board in the world. A Brave Woman.

[From the Wytheville Enterprise.]

The wife of our friend, Hon. Sam'l W. Williams, was informed of his sudden and severe illness at Marion by a telegrame message from this place, which reached her, at her home at Bland C. H., some 20 miles from here, just before sundown. She hastily made the necessary preparations for the care and comfort of her little children during her absence, ordered the servant to saddle her horse and rode to her father's place, some mile or two away. Here she summoned her younger brother to her aid and providing themselves with a battery, matches, and wrappings they started out to ride across the narrow and dangerous pathways over the mountains to this point. The night was so dark that you could not see your hand before you, and a fearful rain storm was raging; but nothing daunted, the brave and true woman faced its fury and, trusting to her skill as an equestrienne, gave the rein to her steed and rode rapidly over the rocks and across the chasms and debris of the mountain paths, reaching Wytheville early at last, and in time to catch the first train westward. In an hour more she was at the bedside of her husband—nursing and caring for him as only a tender and loving woman could do. She was soon rewarded for all her exposure and danger by a rapid improvement in his condition and yesterday morning she returned, with the sick one in her charge, to this place, and after placing him in the safe care of Mr. and Mrs. Hancock, she drove back home again across the mountain, to greet the babes she had left there. The poet was right when he penned the sentiment

"The bravest are the tenderest,
The loving are the daring."

IAEZ, KY., April .

MR. EDITOR:—As I look b over the past of my life and rem ber how pleasantly my boyhood d was spent in your county for I re Virginian although I live in K tucky and shall ever feel proud the good, grand and noble old Sta of Virginia my birth place and r early home. I feel that old Engli maxim w. a true one which said "a man always owes allegiance to l country," when I remember t time that I have played in the sa along the river that flows near yo town making marks soon t be wa ed out by the rising river or. I ll rains, how I fished and caught "h cats" and "chubs" and "hors heads" from its bottom. How went Saturdays when there w school to the cave some two from town and how we scared in the cave who had "never been before." Oh! I have had re "fun" in the grand old count Giles and the sweet town of Pe burg, and when I see the names my old friends (well loved and highly honored names to me) some of whom are relatives, some teachers, some school mates and all friends I can but shed a tear to their memory, and when I see the names of your illustrious citizens I can but feel proud that I was born in the State which has given rise to so many wise and illustrious men and who has fought the battles of two wars for liberty. Oh! Mother State I will ever love thee truest and next to thee I will love the next dearest place on earth to me our scarce less renowned and great Kentucky. For Virginia I would die second. God bless the people of Giles, there are many of them I would die for and may heaven smile on the town of Pearisburg and may she grow until she becomes a metropolis.

We have a pleasant little town here near 500 inhabitants situated on Rock Castle River a tributary of Big Sandy. We are 8 miles from the Chatoroi Railroad and in the midst of the Oilfield. The Railroad is first being built into Virginia and then we will be in 8 miles of a great trunk line. We have good schools and churches, and a fine steam mill, and good roads. This town is the county seat of Martin county which has only one town beside this, Warfield with a population of about 150. If you publish this perhaps in the near future I may write again.

Respectfully,
R. F. FARLEY.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Wood, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began using Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. Balcom, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Thompkinsville, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

CATARRH.

CATARRH is the first stage of Consumption. Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Weakness, Kidney Disease, Scrofula, Rheumatic Death, and many other diseases originate in Catarrh. It is loathsome discharges from the Head or back portion of the nose, by hawking, raising of mucous and matter, and the offensive breath, the consequence of which is Consumption, the forerunner of Death. Consumption is the last stage of Catarrh.

SNUFFING in the ears, deafness, weak, tired feelings, emitting of offensive matter from the nose, sore throat, coughing to clear the throat, dizziness, mental depression, loss of memory, pimples on face, sticking pains in different parts of the body, are all symptoms of Catarrh, of only a part of them in some cases. Thousands of cases of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat and Lung Diseases, Asthma, Hay Fever, Neuralgia, Headache, Deafness, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disease, Nervousness, Debility, Female Weakness, Piles, Rheumatism, Scrofula, Blood Poisons, Skin Diseases, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Ulcers, Sores, Mercurial Diseases, Blood Taints, Scrofulous Humors, Consumption, Etc., Etc., have been cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Its mild, soothing, healing, cleansing, purifying and invigorating properties are wonderful. Its cures are perfect and permanent. Its proprietors have thousands of letters from those who have been cured, and from physicians who use it in their practice. Its sales are enormous, and it has the largest sale of any catarrh remedy in the world. Sold by druggists everywhere. Price, 50 cents.

quantity of their food, but in the quality, never.

"No one can say that I do not give my family the best of flour, the finest sugar, the very best quality of meat."

This is the boast of the coal laborer earning seven dollars a week. The family of the lawyer, or book-keeper, with an income of $2,000 a year, will often content themselves with a cheaper grade of flour, a cheaper sugar, and cheaper meat; but such economy is now pretty far from the reach of the poorer workman to grasp. He wants "the very best," and spends his last cent to get it. Very often flour was selling in the market at twenty-five cents per pound, but the coal laborer's family were using butter costing twenty-nine cents. The clothing for the entire family of nine cost $100 per year, dear as meat for meat was nearly half as much again, $136. The mother did all the cooking for the family after seven o'clock, upon her return from the mill. The principal meal was in the evening, that at noon being a mere luncheon. A few of the large New England mills provide dining halls for their operatives. At twelve o'clock an army of men file into these halls, each one carrying a bucket with luncheon, generally of beans, pork, bread and butter, and pie. The pies of weather they eat rapidly, and in fifteen minutes the greater number are through, and out on the grounds in the sun. The remainder of the dinner hour in walking, chatting, and breathing the fresh air. In five minutes to one the whistles blow, and the operatives scamper back to the mill-yard, hurry up the steep flights of stairs, and by one o'clock are at their looms and spindles. Of the seven hours girls whom I interviewed at Olneyville,
Rhode Island, there was one earning $5
a week, two earned $6, two earned $9, six earned $4.50 a week. Of these eleven girls all but one lived at home, and paid their mothers $3 or $3.50 board, but the majority gave in all wages, and the family expenditures were made in common. The one girl who did not live at home was from Fall River. She earned $6 a week, five of which she spent on herself, saving the remaining dollar to send to her parents in the old country. The mills where these girls worked employ nineteen hundred operatives, of whom ten hundred and twenty are women. A large number of these unfortunates live in a perpetual night. They are at work before it is fairly day, and during the twelve hours that they remain in the mills it is night to them.
The great halls crowded with machinery are dark and gloomy. In these parts of the mills work is done by aid of electric lights from dawn till dusk. Spending nine-tenths of their waking hours in this close, heated atmosphere, it is difficult to see where the comfort of the average factory hand is superior to the condition of the penitentiary convict, who, at least, is supplied with wholesome fare and reasonably comfortable quarters. The convict is deprived of liberty, but so is the factory operative. No one can leave a mill during the day unless for sickness or some other imperative reason.

In the large American cities, as New York, Philadelphia, Boston, etc., the wages appear to be slightly higher than in the small towns, though not sufficiently so to compensate for the greatly increased cost of living. In New York it is simply impossible for the average working-man to live in anything like comfort. Rents are high, provisions are high, everything is high. Few workmen get off with less than ten dollars a month rent, and it may safely be said that any habitation in New York City would be at that figure of the most miserable and squalid condition.—Harper's.

The Dog and the Earthquake.

A private letter from Naples to a London correspondent contains the following: "If you like dogs you will be pleased with the answer. At Cerisuo a poor fellow who lived by hawking milk was buried under the ruins of his cottage a little way out of the town. As he usually set off on his rounds before 4 A. M., every one believed that he was safe, but he too, had celebrated the end of the carnival by taking a little wine, and had slept late. His large dog, who used to drag the milk cart up the mountain roads, missed his master, and began to scratch away the rubbish until he had his master's head bare, which was covered with wounds. Then he ran down to the banks of the Bosphorus, it is said, the tulip, represents incontinency as well as ardor; and those which grow wild in the fields of Byzantium, with "petals fiery red and centers black as though burnt," say in the captive beauty that she has kindled a heart with undying fervor.—New York Press.

A Tramp's Way.

"Yes," said one to another of the guild, "I always do my begging on a Sunday; they're rough to last me to the end of the week."

"Why do you do that?"

"Because people never ask you to do work on Sunday in exchange for the food they give you."—Boston Courier.

Rheumatism.

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I got four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Woon, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before that I found no relief, but much worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. Balcom, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Prudhomme, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge

CATARRH.

CATARRH is the first stage of Consumption, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Diseases, Impure Blood, Scrofula, and Kindred Troubles.

Nearly one-half of the deaths in this climate are caused by Catarrh. Discharge from the front or back portion of the nose, or hawking and spitting to get rid of mucus in the throat, are sure signs of Catarrh. Ulceration of the nasal membrane, and consequent destruction of bone in the throat and nose, had some of the worst cases. Sometimes the disease is hereditary, and sometimes it is caused by colds, influenza, measles, scarlet fever, mercurial poisoning, etc. Whatever the cause, the symptoms are the same, viz.: Offensive breath, deafness, ringing noises, dizziness, pain over the eyes, sometimes inflammation, and frequently a terrible cough. Many sufferers, supposing they have Consumption, are constantly clearing their throats, and trying to relieve the tickling sensation in the throat. Catarrh is produced by specific GERMS or PARASITES lodging in the mucous membrane. Among the most common of these germs are the Rhizomata, Leptothrix, Micrococcus, Bacteria, Vibriones, Spirilla, Filaria, and Torulæ. Which is also very common, producing Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Diseases, Impure Blood, Scrofula, and Kindred Troubles. CATARRH is a local disease, and no internal medicine can reach it. Snuffs, powders, and inhalers are worse than useless. They irritate the mucous membrane, and thus aggravate the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is the only remedy that will cure Catarrh in all its stages. It is local treatment, combined with constitutional remedies, that has made Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy the most successful cure for Catarrh ever known. It destroys the germs or parasites, purifies the blood, and builds up the general health. Sold by druggists everywhere. Price, 50 cents. Pamphlet, "Nasal Catarrh: What is It?" and how to cure it, sent free. Address

Prof. Paine's Celery Compound Pills are the only remedy that will cure Catarrh in all its stages. Things That Never Did and Never Will Cure Catarrh.

Oxygen gas, all gases, inhalants, powders and snuffs, nasal douche with salt and other irritants, carbolic acid, peroxide of hydrogen, Hydrozone, Ozonized Oil, Compound Oxygen, Swamp-Root, Warner's Safe Cure, the professional curiosities of ten thousand testimonials, and other specifics. There is probably no other disease to which mankind is subject that has baffled the skill of the profession to the extent that the cure of Catarrh has, and the reason is obvious. Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane, and the various remedies that have been recommended for its cure have all been local in their character, and have failed because they did not reach the seat of the disease, which is the blood. Many physicians, practicing an allopathic treatment of Catarrh, have advised the use of Mercury and Potash. Such treatment will inevitably result in Mercurial or Potash rheumatism, and in the end leave the patient a confirmed wreck. Others have recommended the use of Cubebs, Copaiba, and Balsam of Tolu. These are powerful remedies for the kidneys, but they have no effect upon Catarrh. Others have prescribed Iodide of Potash, which will relieve Catarrh, but will surely produce Rheumatism. Others have recommended Sarsaparilla

To the School Trustees of County.

As stated in the VIRGINIAN week, there will be an examin of teachers for the County of two days of the last week Peabody Normal at Pear Let the Trustees of the sever tricts urge upon their teacher want schools this winter the a tance of attending the session r mittuta and of being present examination of teachers, get a cate and be ready for employ I shall hold no more public exa tions if I can avoid it. As for vate examinations they are dis ful to everybody, both teacher people.

It is my desire, the Trustees curing, to start the schools t three weeks earlier this year mual; for the simple reason mall children can attend whil weather is mild and dry, and ally children whose parents a oor to purchase shoes and clothing, may attend; but wait till the weather becom remely cold they are depri the benefits of the school alto ds two, a few large pupil mited at home to gather the and the same ones are wanted arly spring to work in the ground and plow. So, why d he many for the benefit of the the last part of the session valuable as the first. I hope board when it meets, will d his matter freely I do not you can find this plan objectio If you wait till every pat earlier gets ready you will not start at all. But be sure t order to employ all your tea at a certain meeting and con with them to commence their sc on the same Monday. I do think the teacher will think t hardship as he has already mad his mind to teach and by talki earlier in the season lets him earlier in the spring, when, wishes to make a crop, he ready for it. Considering person concerned I believe we gain more by this plan tha shall lose.

FRIDAY.....March 19, 1886

A Remarkable History.

Guizot is the Macaulay of the History of France. His narrative is full of emotion like a quick stream, his characters rise before us as in the flesh; they are men and women, not historically figures. It is as charming as any romance. It is a work to read and re-read. The new edition just published is worthy of the work Though reduced in price from $36.00 to $6.00 the 427 illustrations are all there, superb in quality; the type is large; the binding is thoroughly excellent and tasteful. Every word of the publisher's description in the advertisement elsewhere is worth reading—the work ought to be own ed in every home. We have made an arrangment with the publisher by which we are able to offer this work. Guizot's History of France, 8 vols., large 12mo, 427 fine illustrations, as described in the publisher's advertisement elsewhere, regular price $6.00, in combination with PRESBURG VIRGINIAN on the following remarkably attractive terms, namely:

For $6.25, we will send one copy of this paper one year, and deliver a set of GUIZOT'S History of France, as described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $1.75.

For $11.50, we will send two copies of this paper one year and deliver two sets of the work described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $1.00.

For $16.00, we will send three copies of this paper one year, and deliver three copies of the work described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $2.50.

Our arrangements with the publisher enable us to make these exceedingly liberal offers for 30 days only—the time expires March 27, 1886. A prompt call at our office to examine the work is worth your while—that will cost nothing; a few hours' or a few moments' talk with your neighbor will enable you to secure it on easy terms.

LOCAL OPTION ORGANIZATION FOR GILES CO.

Mr. J. W. Williams was called to the chair, W. W. French was elected Secretary. The object of the meeting was then explained as called for the organization of a Local Option party in Giles county, regardless of political affiliation and to effect a county organization. Col. B. Peck was then nominated and elected County Chairman and W. M. Mathews as Secretary, and on motion Col. J. B. Peck, Capt. Joseph H. Hoge and W. S. Mathews were appointed as an executive committee for the County, whose duty it would be to appoint a committee at each precinct to be known as a precinct committee. The Executive Committee made the following appointments:

Newport—H. J. McCroskey, Jeremiah Porterfield, Pink Martin, J. B Porterfield and I. E. Porterfield.

Spruce Run—T. W. Leftwich, Jas. Goodwin, Wm. Martin, Jr., Sylvester Snodgrass and John Cook.

Pembroke—Wm. Anderson, Walter Snidow, J. T. S. Hoge, John Williams and I. E. Williams.

Stony Creek—Wm. Ramsey, Wm Moor, Jr., Thos. Farley, M. C. Bolton and J. W. T. Henderson.

Burton's—Guy P. Conley, and C. W. Hale.

Narrows—A. R. Coburn, Dr. Hare, Wm. P. Saumate, E. W. Hobbs and M. H. Charlton.

Pearisburg—G. W. Easley, Wm Easley, Jackson, A. Fry, G. W. Tinkle and A. C. Pack.

Staffordsville—T. S. Taylor, J. M. Henderson, D. H. Jones, J. F. Stafford and J. H. Wilburn.

White Gate—Rev. J. W. Mitchel, Rev. J. H. Roberts, W. S. Surface, H. B. Shelton and J. B. Henderson.

Poplar Hill—Dr. L. W. Vermillion, Chas. Hicks, Jno. A. Hughes, Wm. P. Eaton and Bittle King.

The day recommended for the election was 13th May, but the Executive Committee after consulting the Court agreed on 27th of April, in order that it might not come within 30 days of a general election.

Col. J. Hampton Hoge, Chairman

Order for Montgomery Court and being called to excellent speech, showing conclusively that should Local Option carry it would instead of increasing our taxes considerably diminish them. Col. Hoge is one of the most promising young lawyers in the Southwest and his pointed speech elicited very favorable comment. He has promised the executive committee to do some temperance work in the county.

On motion the Temperance Advocate and PEARISBURG VIRGINIAN were requested to publish these proceedings.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

An Address to the Voters of Montgomery.

There are times in the affairs of men when party ties should be obliterated and political issues laid aside. That time has come in our Commonwealth, and a prayer has been heard issuing from the whole people to the Legislature of Virginia, asking that body to permit them to decide whether liquor shall or shall not be sold in any magisterial district in our county. It is not necessary for us to dwell upon or enumerate many evils and distressing effects of this traffic. Homes devastated, wives made widows and children thrown homeless and fatherless upon the world; sons and husbands have ended a wretched existence in prison walls, or expiated some crime upon the gallows resulting from use of ardent spirits. It has paralyzed the brightest intellects and brought to ruin our best and noblest men. It has crept like a loathsome serpent into the halls of legislative bodies and around the judicial throne Those who have witnessed its many evils and who are anxious to suppress it, have organized a Local Option party for Montgomery County to carry out the bill just passed by the General Assembly, and this organization is not intended to disrupt or in any way effect political parties; but without regard to race, color or party issue, this earnest appeal is made sincerely hoping to rescue the young men from the snare. It is a common evil—one that excepts neither individuals or parties, but ultimately means ruin to all. We believe that unless arrested it will undermine the very principles of a free and independent government, and ours is a government of the people, and when reason is dethroned by liquor men are made brutes, and thus they seek to rule and thus they rule.

We know that many will contend if local option prevails, the State will be deprived of a revenue necessary to carry on the government, and such loss will necessitate an increase of taxation. We have examined the record of Montgomery Clerk's office and refer all doubting Thomases to said records for proof of the following statment, and when they have read and pondered let them ask, does license pay? Number of criminal cases on the docket from January 1st, 1886, 47; cases known to have been directly caused by intoxication, 37; estimated cost to the Commonwealth of the thirty-seven cases, $1,160; total liquor license tax in Montgomery county for license year ending April 30th, 1886, $700. How will the balance stand in twelve months? By a report to the Legislature it appears that the criminal expenses of Montgomery county for the year 1884, (not including the Hall case) were 38 per cent. of the total State revenue from Montgomery county. The total State revenue from the county was about $13,000, therefore, the criminal expenses amounted to $4,940. The total revenues that year from liquor was about $1,000. If only one-half the expenses resulted from liquor, the Commonwealth's net loss was $1,450.

After license was refused in Christiansburg the drunken rows stopped; the Mayor was without occupation and at his own request his salary was reduced one-half.

Now, at last, after patient efforts and untiring vigilance on the part of the temperence people of this State, the question of whiskey or no whiskey is to be decided by a fair ballot fight. The movement, started dim and small by a few persons in each section who saw the direful effects produced by the liquor demon, has grown and developed, until now it is strong enough to wrestle with its opponent, and unquestionably it will come out of the fray victorious. To those who are teetotalists we earnestly adjure ourselves, begging them to desist no stone unturned whereby the evil may be overcome. Put your shoulders manfully and fearlessly to the wheel, and cease not to turn it till the coming fight is past and won. Now is the time to obtain that which you have so long and so hopefully fought for—Local Option. Continue so to fight for yet a little while and your effort will be nobly rewarded.

Those indifferent upon this question we also beg of them to help us. While, perhaps, there is no danger to be apprehended for themselves, still all have some father, brother or friend who is afflicted with the degrading and murderous voice of intemperance, and for this father, brother or friend, if not for yourselves, we ask you to be with us at the polls on the day of election, and assist to place temptation beyond the reach of temptation. It is far more sinful for the indifferent ones, who care not whether whiskey goes or stays, to remain idly neutral in the matter, than for those who love the terrible liquor to vote to retain it in our midst. It is no self abnegation for this class to vote with us, and the Christian spirit of love for our fellow man should move them in the right direction.

Lastly, we desire to address a few words to those under the dread power and influence of alcohol. We extend the kindly hand of brotherly love to them, and if they will but permit us, we will raise them from out the slough of depraved humility, so that they may once again take a noble and manly part in that state of life to which it has pleased a divine and beneficent Maker to call them.—Earnestly and sincerely do beseech them to break loose from the bonds of this iniquitous voice, and assume the duties of manly morality.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

A Literary Curiosity.

The Glasse of Time, in the First and second Age. Divinely Handled by Thomas Peyton, of Lincolns Inne, Gent. Seen and Allowed. London: Printed by Bernard Alsop for Law ronce Chapman, and are to be sold at his Shop over against Staple Inne, 1630. Now reprinted in a neat volume, Long Primer type, bound in fine cloth, gilt top, beveled boards. Price 50 cents.

The quaint poem, of the title page of which the above is a transcript, appeal nearly half a centuary earlier than Paradise Lost, and it is in intrinsically probable that it would have fallen under the eye of Milton; in any case there are striking points of resemblance between the two poems, and many supposed Milton's immortal work to have been inspired by the former. Only two copies of the work are known to be in existence previous to the issue of the present edition, one being in the British Museum, the other in the Bodleian Library, Oxford. The copy in the British Museum was purchased at a noted sale of old books in 1819, by Baron Bolland, who notes upon a blank leaf that it cost him 21l. 17s. 6d., ($110.00). Some years ago a gentleman of Virginia, Mr. J. L. Peyton, sprung from the old English family of that name, made an accurate transcript of the copy in the British museum, preserving even the quaint spelling, punctuations, capitalizing, italicizing of the original This present edition is printed without alteration. Apart from its presumed connection, with Paradise Lost, the poem has very considerable merits of its own, and is in every way a literary curiosity. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

The farmers of our section are almost done plowing their ground.

Mr. Jas. E Stafford of the Hyde Park is able to get about again. He has been confined for some time.

In Memoriam.

Died, February 22, 1886, in the eleventh year of his age, Phil E. Barton, son of Giles R. and Virginia M. Barton.

His mother died nearly a year ago. His little sister Minnie died early in December last. The husband and father so sorely bereaved needs more than earthly comfort. May God who comforts those that mourn comfort him!

MANHOOD

Restored. A gentleman having innocently contracted the habit of self-abuse in his youth, and in consequence suffered all the horrors of Seminal Inexpacity, Lost Manhood, Physical Decay, General Prostration, etc., will, out of sympathy for his fellow sufferers, mail free on receipt of two cent P. O. Stamp, the recipe by which he was finally cured.

Address in confidence,

Pembroke Items.

MR. EDITOR: As it has come to Stilus and time, I will jot you a few lines to let your many readers know that Pembroke is still alive.

Mr. J. W. Williams' store door was broken open a few nights ago, and some unknown thief entered and turned up things generally. Breaking into his money drawer and got a few nickles and scattering things over the floor and on the counter. By some means the thief made his escape, who he was I know not. All such rogues should be guarded against.

Mr. Robert S. Williams of Sinking Creek, has rented one of his dwelling houses to Mr. Bland Payne on such condition as to thought best, one room to eat in, one to sit in and one to sleep in and its enclosure to be kept clean, smooth and to prevent the falling of dead timber. The corn crib is to be cut into three equal installments, one for corn, one for arrangements and one to shade in. The stable is to be equally divided, the former reserves the left for his colt to grate in, the pigs are to be kept out of the corn and the geese out of the pond. We wish Mr. Williams success.

Pembroke Court was in session the 6th and cleared the docket. The streets were crowded with spectators. We want a special police to protect our Constable as you know he is a good sole.

Mr. Editor what has become of the boy the calf run over. If he is alive I want him to spell Cow with 14 letters and if he cannot Stilus can.

What has become of Sunbeam and Body, as Pembroke would like to hear from them.

Our good mail contractor from Ripplemead to Newport has been making time to a minute, although he rides a mule. Well, George is a good man and we wish him success.

Squ. C. H. Collins is visiting friends and relatives on Sinking Creek. The Squire seems to be in good health and as jolly as ever.

Now Mr. Editor, I will stop for this time as I do not want to impose upon your good feeling. Any one asking you who I am tell them my name is March 8, '86. STILUS.

Narrows Items.

MR. EDITOR: If you will allow me space in your valuable paper, I will reply to Mr Bell Clapper, who claims to have vindicated the Narrows, in your issue of the 19th of February, and I infer from the last items of this place that he considers himself a new pathogrous who has lately dropped into our midst, whose stivlated robes cintilate with the Bucnish Spangles of physical science, and the outcastion of whose luminally genius has thrown into hopeless tenebrosity, the achievements of helm holts is tindal, as the incandescent radiance of the electric light pales the ineffectual glow of the tallow dip. I ask why need Mr. Bell Clapper take such great pains to make an apology to A. B. Coburn for using his initials, if he did it unknowingly, there was no offence given, it was simply done to make the impression that he wrote it him self, in fact he went so far as to tell a young lady that he (Mr. Bell Clapper) wrote it and asked how she liked it. But if he cannot find more appropriate language to make apology I would advise him to get a pathagrous like himself or Mr. M. C. H. to blow brains in his ear with a rye straw. Dear readers perhaps some of you do not understand the nature of things in our vallage, as well as I do, or I have been here sometime. The very persons who claim they are vindicating the Narrows so strong, are the ones who are conspiring to destroy the reputation and corrupt the morals of our community. They will clothe themselves in the garments of hypocrisy and claim that they are trying to re-establish our community and yet they are the ones who are seeking corruption, they will form conspiracies and concoct plans in the dark hours of night and even state falsehoods to injure the reputation and spotless character of some of our fair sex. Woe unto the liar and hypocrite, it will be more tolerable in the day of Judgement for Sodam and Gomorrah than one of these. Mr. Bell Clapper claims through your columns, that any true gentlemen would be glad to defend a lady. (I heartily endorse this sentiment) But why does he not practice what he preaches. God forbid that such hypocrisy and deception should be further tolerated in our community. Be on your guard, look out for the devil's foot for it will be sure to make its appearance. Mr. B. C. in his last items inquired if he could get some Bug Juice to give him a start to talk, I can answer that now, I suppose he can get it since that hole was bored through the depot floor into Mr. Williams brandy. It will give him a start to talk and also an exit from the county if he is not careful. But if you get a drink of it now you will have to flee to the chestnut ridge, as I understand it was on the fly yesterday.

We organized our Temperance Lodge last Saturday night, which we are glad to inform the public was quite a success, owing to the assistance of some of our good Pearlsburg brothern, which we are truly greatful to them for, and I do trust that our Lodge will do much toward re establishing our community. May we all come together from time to time as brothers and sisters upon one great and common cause and work together to reclaim our community. Let us lay aside all dissipulation and prejudice, and do our duty and God will bless and prosper our people. Let us try to elevate our town and country instead of trying to debase it. Let us try to elevate it to its old original standard. Ten years ago this was a religious and moral community. May God speed the time when hypocrites and tatlers may be eradicated from our midst, and that moral and God serving people may take their places, and that our town town and vicinity may become famous again for its moral and religious principles.

No more at present.

[FOR THE VIRGINIAN.]

An Appeal for Parents.

"God bless you my boy," said a fond mother as she pressed her wayward son, who was determined to try his fortunes upon the stormy seas of earth, to her sobbing breast. "Take this, a copy of the New Testament, upon whose fly leaf I have written your name together with my own." With a parting embrace he is gone. He stops at the turn of the road to look perhaps for the last time upon the scenes of his happy child-hod. His weeping mother stands in the door-way ready to welcome him back. He is almost persuaded to retrace his steps, but his heart is hardened. He takes passage as cabin-boy on a vessel bound for foreign parts. When out at sea a storm arises. The wind whistles mournfully through the shrouds and sails, the waves roll like vast mountains threatening to engulf the noble ship beneath their foaming waters, the grand old ocean is disturbed to her lowest depth, the nimble footed lightnings leap through the molten-ed air and stand out on the tips of the spair like jets of flame, and the deep toned wire of the thunder rolls along the blackened sky. He barely escapes a watery grave, is shipwrecked upon a desert island, wanders over its arid plains under the rays of a tropical sun, and endures all the tortures that hunder can bring forth. After ten years of fruitless wanderings in different lands he determines to seek again the home of his widowed mother. He stands once more in the bend of the road which he had left many days ago. No loving mother now in the door to welcome home her prodigal son. His knock is answered by an old and faithful servant. When he asks concerning his mother, she, a tear trickles down her aged cheek, points him to the family burying ground. Thither he goes to mourn and weep his loss. Fellow classmates, most of us have kind parents who watch with interest our welfare, but the time will come, too soon, when they will sleep in their narrow beds and the evening breeds will gently sway the flowers that bloom about their graves. Let us so live as to cause them happiness in their declining years, and insure, when the summoning angel snaps the tiny thread that holds us to this earth, a happy meeting where sorrow and parting ne'er come.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....March 10, 1886.

The Blair Bill.

It is taking time by the forelock to be writing campaign articles in Virginia just now. Yet this is what the Valley Virginian, now the leading Mahonite or Republican paper in this State, is doing. It arraigns the Democratic party as for a crime because more Republicans than Democrats voted for the Blair bill upon the question of its passage in the United States Senate, although the Republicans have a majority of eight in that body. We have heretofore proved by incontestable evidence that almost every representative man amongst the Democrats in the Senate voted for the bill. We might say that no Democrat of national reputation voted against the bill, but that all such Democrats voted for it. The Democrats who voted for it are Governor Vance and General Ransom of North Carolina, Governor Colquitt of Georgia Berry of Arkansas, Governor Blackburn of Kentucky, Governor Call of Florida, Eutis and Gibson of Louisiana, George, once Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Mississippi, Jackson of Tennessee, Jones of Arkansas, Kenna of West Virginia, Pryne of Ohio, Pugh of Alabama, Voorhees of Indiana, and Walthall of Mississippi.

General Wade Hampton and Governor Joe Brown would have voted for the bill if they had not been paired. So would Mr Camden, of West Virginia, who was paired with Mr. Aldrich, a Republican.

The bill passed the Senate by a vote of 35 ayes to 19 noes. Mr. Blaine's two Senators from Maine, Hale and Fry, both voted against the bill.

Who can be made to believe that the Democrats as a party are opposed to the Blair bill in the face of the facts we have stated? The people are too shrewd to be deceived in to that belief.

Nevertheless, the Democratic congressmen from Virginia may learn a lesson from the attempt of a Republican paper to make capital against the Democratic party on this question. Mr. Tucker is the only Democratic congressman from this State who is known to be opposed to the Blair bill, and as he represents the district in which the Valley Virginian is published, it is fair to assume that that fact had something to do with the production of the article upon which we are commenting, especially as one of the editors of that paper was Mr. Tucker's competitor for a seat in Congress in 1884. However, the Democrats of that district are not all likely to nominate to fill the place which Mr. Tucker has declined to fill longer a candidate opposed to the Blair bill, the last Democratic State Convention having endorsed that measure of justice to the South. A word to the wise is sufficient. If the Democratic congressmen from Virginia desire to provide for their reelection next fall, they cannot serve their ambition more effectually in any other way than by securing the passage of the Blair bill by the present House of Representatives.—[Richmond Dispatch.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it."

Guizot's France

CELEBRATED HISTORY OF FRANCE from the Earliest Times to 1848. By M. Guizot, Prime Minister of France, continued from his notes, by his daughter, MME. GUIZOT DE WITT. Complete in 8 vols., large 12mo., bound elegantly in fine cloth, gilt tops. A new edition just issued, reduced in price to $6.00, including postage. This is much the best edition published of this magnificent work, which is known as the best popular history of France. Because of the importation of the imported edition, with substantially the same illustrations is $36.00, while this is certainly the best in form, and the most desirable for the library. "THE MATCHLESS BRILLIANCY of Guizot's style, his graphic descriptions of men and events, his painstaking minuteness of detail, the healthy and tone of his style and the admirable philosophic reflections, all combine to render it worthy of the description it bears as the most popular history of France. It is as fascinating as a novel, and as life-like as a theatrical representation of the events and personages it describes. How the set can be sold for that price remains, after much reflection, a mystery, for the work is not sham work, it is well done; altogether it is a marvel of cheapness. Mr. Alden has done much for the cause of good literature, but nothing better than this."—Daily Times, Buffalo, N.Y. "What VICTOR HUGO is in fiction, Cousin in philosophy, Guizot is in history. Among Frenchmen he had but few peers."—Christian Leader, Boston, Mass. "IT IS FAR THE best history of France that has been written. It is a wonder of cheapness."—Christian Advocate, Richmond, Va. "SUCH A HISTORY, by such a writer, and at such a price, should gain readers by the thousand."—Churchman, Richmond, Va. "IN STYLE of cover, firmness of binding, quality of letter-press, affluence of illustration, and lowness of price, this edition of one of the noblest historical works in existence, is one of the most remarkable publications now offered to the public."—Morning Star, Dover, N. H.

Poetry.

Be Patient With the Living.

Sweet friend, when thou and I art gone
Beyond earth's weary labor,
When small shall be our need of grace
From comrade or from neighbor,
Passed all the strife, the toil, the care,
And done with all the sighing—
What tender truth shall we have gained,
Alas! by simply dying?

Then lips too chary of their praise
Will tell our merits over,
And eyes too swift our faults to see
Shall no defect discover;
Then hands that would not lift a stone
Where stones were thick to cumber
Our steep hill path, will scatter flowers
Above our pillowed slumber.

Sweet friend, perchance both thou and I,
Ere love is past forgiving,
Should take the earnest lesson home—
Be patient with the living!
Today's repressed rebuke may save
One offending heart to-morrow;
Then patience, e'en when keenest edge
May whet a nameless sorrow.

'Tis easy to be gentle when Death's silence shames our clamor,
And easy to discern the best
Through memory's mystic glamor;
But wise it were for thee and me,
Love is past forgiving,
To take the tender lesson home—
Be patient with the living!

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

The Leader in a Mock Religious Service Dies a Hazing Master.

A strange and mysterious occurrence has caused much excitement in Millersburg, Pa. On Thursday morning there was a jovial crowd in a hotel at that place, and while they were imbibing Samuel Motter entered. Motter was well known throughout the county as a patent medicine peddler, and was about fifty five years of age. His wife died in the alms house some time ago, and since then he has been living near Millersburg. Shortly after Motter entered a discussion on religious subjects arose. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was talked about. Motter became very earnest in his talk, and finally dared the men to indulge in an imitation of the Lord's Supper. They agreed to have it with beer and bread, and according ly a glass was filled with that beverage. They then knelt in mock humility, and with the beer in one hand and the bread in the other, Motter went along distributing a bite and a sup to each. Suddenly, when he was about half through, a strange noise was hear, and, looking up, the men saw a sight that made their blood run cold and froze the marrow in their bones." As near as the scared men could describe it, they declare it was an immense, ill formed and foul beast with great cloven feet, painted horns and eyes that flashed fire. With wild yells the met rushed into the open air and scattered in every direction. Finally all of them reached their homes except Motter, who was away for a long time, and at last he arrived, a maniac. He was put to bed and physicians summoned, but they could do nothing for him. He raved, howled and prayed, declaring that he had seen the Evil One, and that he was lost. His fear was terrible, but nothing could be done to relieve him, and he died in the insane agony. The death bed scene is said to have been full of horrors that can hardly be described.

The Minister's Cow.

An exchange tells this droll story of a clergyman's experiment and how it ended.

Some years ago there lived in Central New York a very worthy and respectable divine known as Father Goss. He had a hired man named Isaac, who always obeyed orders without question.

Father Goss bought a cow one day which proved refractory when milked, refusing to surrender the lacteal fluid although Isaac used all the persuasive arts of which he was master. He finally reported her delinquencies to his master.

"Well, Isaac," says he, "go to the barn and get those pieces of new rope."

Isaac obeyed; the cow was driven into the stable, tied with a piece of the rope, when the Rev. came out, armed with a knife.

"Now," he exclaimed to Isaac, "I will get on the cow's back and you tie my feet beneath her, then you go on with your milking, and with my weight on her back she must give down her milk."

Isaac obeyed. The feet were tied, the pail got and the milking commenced.

But Bossy objected, and plunged wildly about. The stable was low, and the Rev's. head was fearfully thumped. "Oh, Isaac, Isaac!" bowled he, "cut the rope."

Isaac seized the knife and cut—not the rope which tied his master's feet, but the one the one that tied the cow. The stable door being open, also the yard gate.

Away darted the frantic cow, the terrified man on her back helplessly roaring, "Stop her!"

While madly careering down the road he met a parishioner, who excitedly called: "Why, Mr. Goss, where are you going?"

"Only God and this cow know!" groaned he; "I don't!"

The animal was finally caught and the man released, much frightened but unhurt.

Strictly Business.

At the reception given to Lawrence Barrett by the Penn club an American who just returned from Europe, after a long residence there said: "Marriage abroad is a business. Just before I left Marseilles a great trouble grew out of the circumstances that an American naval officer then there did not know or forget that fact. A beautiful French girl was singing at a musical party at a nobleman's house. The naval officer, who was present, was so smitten with her that he burst into tears at the song before all the company. He afterward called on the girls mother and was accepted as a suitor before he knew it. When the first feeling had worn off he saw the situation he had gotten himself into with mamma, and went to Nice to get out of it. The mother, however, followed him there, and insisted on his carrying out the promise that she contended he had made. He declared that he had never offered himself as a candidate for the girl's hand. The mother all the same, threatened him with a suit. Before there had been any question of intention, however she had, like the prudent mamma she was, written to Washington inquiring as to the officer's financial condition. She now received a reply informing her that he had nothing beyone his good looks and his pay. She dropped him with out more ado.

The Town Cow Discussed.

One of the most annoying things that the country people have to contend with is the ordinary town cow. When the farmer leaves home he puts in the bottom of his sleigh or sled a bountiful armful of hay. This answers the two fold purpose of a seat and to keep the feet of himself and the good wife warm. He arrives at town, unloads his wife in front of some store, and proceeds to hitch his team at some point about the public square. No sooner is his back turned than a dozen starved cows immediately surround his sled, and before he can say "Jack Robinson, with his own mouth 'open,' every straw in his sled has gone through the gastric orifices or the aforesaid cows. We noticed our particularly careful fellow the other day. After hitching his team he took his hay and carried it into the court house yard. He was going to have the dead wood on that bunch of hay, and departed for a saloon with a grin on his face. We watched the proceeding with considerable interest. He was not out of sight until three or four long horns opened the gate and proceeded to the pile and chewed it up. Clubbing these lean kine does no good. In fact, they rather enjoy the fun. You can take an ordinary stick of cord wood and bounce it from off their carcasses fifty feet high and they will turn around and smile at you. They don't even grunt when you have hit them hard enough to stave in their ribs. Such punishment seems only to act as a tonic; it whets their appetites and makes them enjoy the repast which the farmer has hauled to them from his home many miles distant. And after it is all over, just notice the peculiar look they give the man who came to town sitting on a pile of hay, as he departs for home sitting on the bare boards! The town cow is a nuisance, but at the same time a necessity in all rural villages. A "home without a mother" would not be a more lonesome spectacle than a rural village without its herd of lean, long horned, stump-tailed cows. —[West Union (Ohio) People's Defender.

English Luxury.

Speaking of English luxury, Adam Badeau says in the New York Sun: "In a great house thirty or forty indoor servants is a common number, and often there are as many more in the stables, and still as many others in the gardens, or the glass, as the conservatories are called. One nobleman that I know was master of the hounds and kept seventy horses, and for every two horses a man. At an entertainment in the country—a sort of pageant or play—I heard some say that a hundred of the servants came into the great hall and stood behind the guests; the remainder were on duty elsewhere. Several times, in large establishments, I asked permission to visit the offices; and the kitchens and still rooms and scelleries, the larders and laundries, the gun rooms and plate rooms and brushing rooms, the housekeeper's rooms, the pantries and the servants' hall made a labyrinth of labor difficult to explore. In making the rounds I was taken to the nurseries and the school rooms, for tutors and governesses are only a higher sort of servant in England. They live and eat apart from the gentry, and often get less wages than valets and ladies' maids. I saw, too, the bedrooms and the linen rooms and the rooms where the maids were making up clothes, all rising when their mistress entered. I visited the stables and the carpenter shop, even the butchery and the brewery—for many of the large proprietors kill their own meat and brew their own beer. Each servant is allowed beer money, as well as wages, or also supplied with so many glasses, or sometimes literally horns of beer."

Applying Lime to Land.

Lime acts both mechanically and chemically when applied to land. It makes heavy clay soils mellow, and corrects the acidity of low, wet soils; but the principal benefit to be derived from the application of this material is in the decomposition of vegetable matter in the soil. Lime in itself is of little value as a fertilizer, and no amount will make a poor soil fertile. On low, bottom lands the lime should be applied broadcast and in a caustic state; but on uplands that which has been exposed after burning until it is air slaked—as it is termed—will answer equally as well, if not better, than when slaked by water. If applied to clover or wheat it should be sown broadcast at the rate of ten bushels per acre, and evenly distributed over the surface early in the spring. When applied to clay soils or low bottom lands twenty to fifty bushels per acre may be used with safety. If the soil is not naturally well supplied with vegetable matter, the lime may be compounded with peat from the swamps, old soda, or even leaves and weeds; but it should never be mixed with fresh stable manure because its chemical action on manures containing ammonia is injurious. If you have any doubts on this point, mix a little guano, or lime, with a shovelful of hen manure, and see how quickly the ammonical gasses will be volved and dissipated.—[N. Y. Sun.

Japan's First Parliament.

The constitutional changes in Japan may appear somewhat obscure to the ordinary reader conversed in the mysteries of far Eastern politics, but they may be described in a few words. In 1889 the first parliament of Japan is to be elected, and in order to prepare for the representative government it has been necessary to sweep away the supreme council of state which has hitherto practically ruled the country under the mikado himself. The heads of departments will now form a cabinet, each member of which is directly and personally responsible to the sovereign. The German system is taken as the model to be followed as closely as possible, although it may be hoped that the Japanese premier may get on better with his parliament than Prince Bismarck does with the Reichstag.—[Pall Mall Gazette.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....March 26, 1886.

A Remarkable History.

Guizot is the Macaulay of the History of France. His narrative is full of emotion like a quick stream, his characters rise before us as in the flesh; they are men and women, not historical figures. It is as charming as any romance. It is a work to read and re-read. The new edition just published is worthy of the work. Though reduced in price from $36.00 to $6.00 the 427 illustrations are all there, superb in quality; the type is large; the binding is thoroughly excellent and tasteful. Every word of the publisher's description in the advertisement elsewhere is worth reading—the work ought to be owned in every home. We have made an arrangment with the publisher by which we are able to offer this work, Guizot's History of France, 8 vols., large 12mo., 427 fine illustrations, as described in the publisher's advertisement elsewhere, regular price $6.00, in combination with Panniculus Virginian on the following remarkably attractive terms, namely:

For $6.25, we will send one copy of this paper one year, and deliver a set of Guizot's History of France, as described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $1.25.

For $11.50, we will send two copies of this paper one year, and deliver two sets of the work described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $3.50.

For $16.00, we will send three copies of this paper one year, and deliver three copies of the work described, at our office without further charge,—a saving to you of $6.50.

Our arrangements with the publisher enable us to make these exceedingly liberal offers for 30 days only—the time expires March 27, 1886. A prompt call at our office to examine the work is worth your while—that will cost nothing; a few hours' or a few moments' talk with your neighbors will enable you to secure it on easy terms.

THE MAN WHO VOTES FOR LICENSE.

Votes to have a bar-room in his neighborhood, that his sons may become drunkards, thieves and murderers. He votes to take the last farthing from the pauper, the last rag from the body of a freezing mother, the last crumb from the starving child. He votes for the introduction into the household of misery, misfortune, despair, poverty, ruin and destruction. He votes to blot out of existence the joys and pleasures of the family fireside and hearth stone. He votes to make father's fiends, wives widows, children orphans and all the painful family of death. He votes away his own birth right of manhood for a drink of whiskey. Then fellow citizens, both you who have felt its baneful effects and you whose house holds its direful evils has never entered, what is a few paltry dimes in consideration for the dreadful calamities it entails! Go then and cast your ballot the way true manhood dictates.

THE REAL ENEMIES OF LOCAL OPTION.

Are men who do not drink and are in no danger themselves, but who are so selfish, so morbid in their humanity that they would see their neighbor die a drunkard, his family reduced to poverty before they would do the simple and small act of casting a free ballot to remove temptation beyond the reach of temptation. They are those men who are indifferent to the evils of intemperance and are so miserably miserly that they would rather see their contry ruined, their kindemen and country-mer die in disgrace and their own souls seething in the fires of hell before they would pay one dime more taxation. And yet it is by no means an axiom that the one follows the other, that Local Option means an increase of taxation. It can be proven by statistics that four-fifths of all the crime committed can be traced directly to the use of intoxicants. If then you can stop four-fifths of our criminal [illegible] will it not more than compensate for the revenue derived from the sale of liquors?

We offer no apology for our position on the Local Option question. It is purely a moral question and our position is on the side of morality. We propose to make it hot for the license men from now until after the election and if they desire to kick they can do so. Our motto will be open and above board and our opponents will receive their blows strait from the shoulder. We are morally opposed to the traffic in intoxicants and propose to do all in our power to suppress it. We hope that every voter will be candid enough to express his true sentiments and not talk one way and vote another. Such a course, is dishonorable and degrades his manhood and degrades the constitutional right of universal suffrage. If you are going to vote for license have the manhood to come out and say so, don't lie about it, and if you are going to vote against license not only come out and say so but work against it.

As some of the friends of Local Option seem to think that the day of election is within 20 days of the fourth Thursday in May, we will quote the right rule in the construction of statutes which is as follows:

"Where a statute requires a notice to be given or any other act to be done a certain time before any notice or proceeding, there must be that time exclusive of the day for such motion or proceeding, but the day on which such notice is given or such act is done may be counted as part of the time." Code of Va. 1873, page 194.

The election is on the 27th day of April, the general election is on the 27th day of May. Now counting the 27th of April the thirty days will expire on the 26th day of May. This is the law and we think there can be little doubt that the election will be fully within the requirements of the statute.

A Unique Cyclopedia

An extremely valuable Cyclopedia, and of very great popular interest, is Allen's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature, Volume III. of which is just published. Novel in plan, unnovel in form, as once beautiful and unprecedent, and at a price low even compared with Mr. Alden's always low prices, this volume gives in its nearly 500 pages biographical sketches of one hundred and eleven prominent authors, with characteristic selections from their writing. The following authors, among others, appear in this volume: Audubon, St Augustine, D'Auvergne, Bacon, Balzac, Bancroft, Banim, Barbauld, Beaumont, Beecher (several of the name), Bentham, Bion, Bjornson, Black, (William), Blackstone, Blessington (Countess of), and Boccaccio, thus representing nearly all ages and all nations even in this volume—American, English, French, German, Italian, Greek, Latin, Swedish, Portugese, Scotch, Dutch, Irish, Norwegian and Danish authors—from the period 280 B. C. to A. D. 1886. The literary and mechanical workmanship are both of a high order. The work is really one that ought to find a place in every home library; it offers a fund of entertainment and instruction that will prove well-nigh inexhaustible. The price, only 60 cents a volume, makes its possession possible even to nearly every school-boy. The work is published also in Parts of 160 pages each (exchangeable at any time for bound volumes), which are sent post paid for 15 cents each. Every reader of this notice ought to get at least a specimen Part for examination. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York; ——, Agents in this city.

NORTH STAR WASH BOARD

This Wash Board is made of Zinc, with HEAVY COPPER RIM, which prevents it from wearing out in the middle, as is the case with all other Zinc Boards. The Rim also prevents the soap suds from running off the Board, thereby keeping the hands of the washer dry. The Board is handled with as much ease as a Glass Board, and will last as long. Every housekeeper should have one. Ask your grocer for it. If he cannot supply you, send 25 cts. in stamps for sample. A liberal discount to the trade. Agents wanted. Address

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....March 20, 1885

The Tree of Diabetes.

The ale of drunkenness
expels reason, drowns memory,
distempers the body,
defaces beauty,
diminishes strength,
corrupts the blood,
inflames the liver,
weakens the brain,
turns men into walking hogsties, causes internal, external, and incurable wounds,
is a wreck to the senses,
a devil to the soul,
a thief to the purse,
a beggar's companion,
a wife's woe,
and children's sorrow—makes man become a beast and a self murderer, who drinks to others good health,
and robs himself of his own!
Nor is this all; it exposes to the Divine
DISPLEASURE HERE!
AND BEGETTETH TO EVERLASTING MISERY!!!
The root of all is
DRUNKENNESS!!!

The Drunkard's Will.

"I——, beginning to be enfeebled in body, and fearing I may soon be palsied in mind, and having entered upon that course of intemperance from which I have not resolution to flee, do make and publish this my last will and testament.

"Having been made in the image of my creator, capable of rational enjoyment, of imparting happiness to others, and of promoting the glory of God, I know my accountability, yet such is my loathsome sensual gratification and my utter indisposition to resist temptation, that I give myself entirely to intemperance and its associate vices, and make the following bequests: My property I give to be dissipated, knowing it will soon fall into the hands of those who furnish me with ardent spirits. My reputation, already tottering on a sandy foundation, I give to destruction. To my beloved wife, who has cheered me thus far through life, I give shame, poverty, sorrow and a broken heart. To each of my children I bequeath my example, and the inheritance of the shame of their father's character. Finally, I give my body to disease, misery and early dissolution, and my soul, that can never die, to the disposal of that God whose commands I have broken, and who has warned me by his word, that no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of Heaven."

Drunkard, this is your will!

Born After Its Mother's Burial.

Rev. John Linsey, now preaching in Richmond county, N. C., was born four months after his mother had been dead and buried. His mother, to all appearances, died and was buried in Stewartsville, cemetery. The night following her interment, persons, for the purpose of securing the jewelry buried with the lady, unearthed the remains, when conceiving signs of life, and she was enabled to return to her home. Arriving at the residence, she rapped at the door and was answered by her husband, who was overjoyed to meet a wife he believed dead. Mrs. Lindsey died as dead. Four months later Rev. Mr. Lindsey's mother survived her confinement in the grave, and is now living.

A Brutal Prize Fight.

Fayetteville, W. Va., March 5.—One of the most brutal prize fights that ever took place in this State was fought two days ago in a barn near here, and known only through the death of one of the contestants last night. Frank McGonigle and James Shendy fought forty three bloody rounds for a purse of $50. The real animus of the fight, however, was an old and bitter grudge growing out of a quarrel about Ellen McNamara, a beautiful girl who has toyed with the affections of both. McGonigle and Shendy were both miners. There were but ten men present beside the seconds, who were John Howley and Peter Jones, local sports. McGonigle throughout the forty three rounds had the best of the fight. In the first round Shendy retired to his corner with a broken nose, at the same time spitting out a piece of the finger of McGonigle's left hand. The men eyed each other like devils, and in the fourth round were covered with blood from head to foot. One of the men who was present says it was a most horrible exhibition of brutality. The fight was cut away from Shendy's eyes and hung in a mass on his cheeks, which his second finally cut off. McGonigle's right ear was torn almost completely off by Shendy's teeth, and his jaw broken. Neither man would give in, although at the thirty-fifth round the seconds urged them to stop. The forty third and last round found Shendy in his corner lying face downward, and motionless, while McGonigle, who had kicked him there, hurriedly picked up his clothing and staggered out past the seconds the rest of the spectators having left terror stricken.—The seconds carried Shendy to his home to die. Neither of them has been since Shendy's death, and the whereabouts of McGonigle is at no unknown.

Wonderful Cures.

W. D. Hoyt & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists of Rome, Ga., say: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Buckleu's Arnica Salve for two years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by those medicines in this city. Such cases of confirmed Consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always.

A cycle of time has rolled away since Grover Cleveland was inducted into the office of President and gathered up the reins of the government and began to manipulate the vessels of a free and prosperous nation. It has been one year last Thursday (4th) since we stood in the large campus at the Capital of the United States, and heard him sworn in as Chief Magistrate of the people of this nation. Many have been the meditations of time, and much has been consigned to the eternity of the past. Bright hopes gild the hill tops of a vast future, and the pleasant verdure of fond anticipations lure us on, but what a year will bring forth we know not.

During the present administration there has nothing of special interest occurred, except the deaths of a few prominent men and the management of the "nuts" and "ins." There are a few things that have not happened" The negroes have not been put back in bondage; the country is not torn to pieces, and no one has received 40 acres of land and a mule.—[Valley Herald.

CELEBRATED HISTORY OF FRANCE from the Earliest Times to 1848. By M. Guizot, Prime Minister of France, and himself from his home, by his daughter, MME. GUIZOT DE WITT.

Complete in 8 vols., large 12mo., bound elegantly in fine cloth, gilt tops. A new edition just issued, reduced in price to $6.00, including postage. This is much the best edition published of this magnificent work, which is known as the best popular history of France. The cost of the imported edition, with substantially the same fine illustrations at $36.00, as this is certainly the best in form, and the most desirable for the library. To be wet or to be dry; that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the men to suffer,
The evils of trunks and satchels from Patrick and Floyd,
Or take out warrants against a sea of moonshiners,
And by leaching end them: To kill and cripple,
'Tis a consumption devoutly to be wished.

—We publish on our fourth page the tree of Dissipation and the Drunkards will, from an Almanac of 1836 kindly lent us by Rev. Jacob Douthat. There are many interesting facts in this Almanac worth noting. It was during Andrew Jacksons administration and the late Ruben F. Watts was our representative in the house of Delegates.

—When you buy a Piano or an Organ don't try to get the cheapest, if you do you will certainly get the most worthless. J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg, Va., handles instruments made only by well known reliable manufacturers guaranteed five years, hence you run no risk. Write him for prices.

—Two horses were stolen from Mr. Isaac Day on Wolf Creek last Friday night. Mr. P. B. Day started in pursuit on Saturday morning and over took them in Wyoming County Sunday morning, shot and wounded one of the thieves but both made good their escape. Mr. Day captured the horses and a pair of saddle pockets full of provisions from the thieves. Both thieves were white men.

—They say there was a joint discussion of the liquor question here on last Wednesday night. That the meeting was presided over without dignity and that the arguments were more forcible than polite. The question was decided in favor of license by a vote of 7 to 1. It is charged that the liquor men used an undue influence in obtaining this over whelming majority. A little Floyd tangle foot kept up an interest in the meeting to a very late hour.

Irish Settlement Items.

MR. EDITOR: As the Settlement is very quiet, I will write a few lines for the good old VIRGINIAN.

The Rev. R. A. Kelley will preach at Springvale Saturday Aprile the 3rd at 7. O'clock P. M. and Rev. Oliver Goodin on the Sunday following at 11 A. M.

The farmers of this section are busily engaged inplowing for corn and oats.

Mr. Jas. W. Wilks has moved from Mr. D. A. Earley's premises to Mr. Jno. R Stafford's and Mr. Robt Robertson has moved in the house which Mr. Wilks lived in.

Courting seems to be the topic of the day but some of the girls seem to like to change partners twice in a single trip to church and back or it seemed to be the case the other Sunday night. One of the boys got right under God's over the change.

Some of our young gentlemen and ladies joined the I. O. G. T. at Staffordsville, we wish them success.

Let us be true to one another,
For the world which seems to lie before us,
Like a land of dreams so beautiful and so new.

From your ugly old friend,
March 24, '86. NIMROTTE.

Maysville Items.

MR. EDITOR: As I have not seen anything in your paper from our "Ville" for sometime, I will give you the news if you will allow me the space.

The farmers of our community are nearly done plowing with the exception of a few.

The sick of our Ville are improving. John H. Dills is better, also his daughter, G., who was threaten with Typhoid fever.

Mr M is having a breastwork thrown up. Guess he is fixing for another rock battle.

Two young men of the "Ville" left for the Northern States a few days ago.

Rev. T. F. Glenn preached at Mr. Dills' school house last Sunday at 11 a. m.

Mrs. Lizzie Eaton will close her school soon.

Mr. J. O. S. has three dogs named after the three Hebrew Children, Shadarack, Mesback and Abednego. March 22, '86. CALVIS.

Newport Items.

Rev. W. E. Miller has returned from Conference. He is changed from this Circuit to Loveloton, W. Va. Rev. Miller has labored on this charge for three years as faithfully and conscientiously as any man we ever had. We wish him well in his new field.

Rev. John Miller is our "new preacher." He comes well recommended. We trust he will be greeted with all charity.

Rev. Crickenberger has made his home in our town, since his school closed at Pembroke. We are glad to add him to our "port." He is intelligent and courteous.

Several of our citizens are employed at Mt. Lake. Gen'l. Haupt expects to make great improvements this summer. We trust he will make Mt. Lake, the most attractive of all mountain resorts on the Alleghanies.

Mr. John T. Lucas has just returned from a successful trip East with horses.

Dr. Payne has swapped "Nellie Grey" for "Barbara Bine." He says "Barbara" is sister-in law to "Maud S." We congratulate Dr. on his fine steed.

Mess. Price & Dunklee are attending Christiansburg Court.

Chas. K Payne of Blacksburg, was home on a visit a few days the week.

Clover seed in demand at fair prices. Our merchants have handled over a hundred and fifty bushels.

"Local Option" is creating some excitement on our people. There will be a number of votes cast here by not allowing Distillers time to get off their stocks.

Truly, F.

Burton Gleanings.

MR. EDITOR:—As others seem backward about furnishing items for your valuable paper, from our place, we will make the attempt; will not write much, lest this might find its way to the waste basket.

Our community has been troubled for some time with the whooping cough. School was closed on account of it, but we understand it will open again soon. There is teacher, Miss Jennie Snidow of Kimballton, has been at home since the school closed.

Mr Geo. F. Williams, proprietor of the Buckeye Flat Hotel, wishes to inform the public that he is furnishing meals at twenty five cents each, Preachers, twenty cents. All trains met with his elegant turnout—Tucker Kit and the log-sled.

Messrs. Kirk and Minick have thoroughly repaired their saw mill, and are furnishing lumber which cannot be excelled in quality or price. They have loaded several cars, for the N. W. R. R. Co.

Every one is making preparations for the Spring work. Judging from the amount of ground already plowed our farmers intend putting out an unusually large corn crop.

Mr Broce of Spruce Run, has been quite busy for some time, loading lumber on cars, for the R. R. Co's use.

One of Mr. G. B. Hetherington's children fell upon a pair of scissors some days ago; they entered one of his eyes and it was at first thought he would lose it. Dr. C. E. Stafford was called and under his skillful treatment, it has improved rapidly.

Nothing more at present, except that your paper is one of our most welcome visitors.

Pocahontas Items.

EDITOR VIRGINIAN:—The excitement here at present is license or no license, and from the present indications we are satisfied that the "wet men" will have to hunt "fresh pastures" of course, like any other questions there is two sides to it. The strongest argument against the sale of intoxicating liquor is that real estate here will go down in value. I am a little inclind to think so my self but that has nothing to do with the question, real estate has been over rated here terribly and that is all I care to say about the subject.

We like to know what has become of the Corporation, the echo say "it is all gone to mud," certainly we have more mud than anything else. Our streets need macadamizing but like usual, the Corporation is out of money. I think like the balance of the large cities, Pocahontas, must get out a emprant of one or two millions of dollars and give for security a mortgage on her public building, that is that beautiful Calihoose' it is one of the curiosities of the place, it is something new in the shape of a dry good box with plenty nails. Last week a prisoner was put in against his consent and left the same night for parts unknown. When the prisoners are willing to stay it is no trouble to keep them in.

Like as usual our Court has been in session and has give some very curious excisions. Last week a yahoo caused an explosion during Court. Immediately every body left the room, except his Honor, he told the boys after that he knew what it was by the sound and was used to it at home, but was obliged to fine that yahoo one dollar for contempt of the Court.

The blockades have been doing a good business of late. The officers are, I think, all blind on the subject and from the present indications they will not join the temperance ranks. In May we will have a Corporation election and the new officers will "turn a new leaf," and Pocahontas will no more be a Paradise for the blockades. It is disgusting to see the quantity of "fire water" sold here openly.

I suppose you know that the miners here have refused to join the federation, but from the present indications I think they will join before long and then they will demand ten cents more on the ton of coal and if the Company refuse they will strike. Work is plenty at present for the reason that all the other mines in this district are closed. It is said here by well informed persons that 15,000 men have quit work at once. If the operators and the miners come to an agreement it will do away with the strikes forever. A board of arbitrators composed of miners and operators will settle all questions in litigation.

The grand jury has sent plenty invitations to the boys, look out for hot time. It is rumored to day that our new County Judge will send the Sheriff after the absents qui viora verra.

"Mine Rumor" say that our friend Tom Payne will leave us in a few days, he was a great favorite with the young ladies, been clerking in a candy shop.

Our brass band is making some progress every night you can here tra, tra trrrra. It is funny to see our boys puffing, blowing and scaring all the dogs out of town. If they keep on they will make a good China pauper that is every one playing on a different key.

Every kind of provisions is selling well here and good prices are payed for it. If you want cash for it here is the place

POCA.

I CURE FITS!

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. DR. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

A BIG OFFER To introduce them, we will GIVE AWAY 1,000 Self-Operating Machines. If you want one send us your name, P. O. and express office at once. The National Co., 31 Dey St., N. Y.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a valuable treatise on this disease, to any sufferer who will give me their Express and Post Office address. PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Dr. R. H. Hoge will speak at Big Stony Creek (Hoot Owl) Church on Friday night, April 9th.

G. T. Porterfield and J. Hampton Hoge will speak at Sugar Grove Church on Friday night, April 16th.

J. Hampton Hoge will speak at Pembroke, Saturday night, April 17th.

J. Hampton Hoge will speak in Pearisburg on Court day, April 20th.

These speakers will thoroughly discuss the liquor question. Come out to hear them!

TO THE VOTERS OF PEARISBURG DISTRICT.

Let your minds revert to the time when liquor was sold here. Call to mind the oaths and vulgarity you heard on the streets, the drunken rows that disturbed our quiet, and reflect whether our present peace and quiet is not more desirable.

Then both Mayor, Council and Squire could not keep order; now the Mayor and Council are things of the past and the police business of the Justice is almost nothing. Then, a lady on any public day could not walk our streets without running the risk of being insulted by some drunken wretch and hearing oaths and vulgarity. Now, a drunken man on our streets is looked upon as a curiosity and a foreigner and they are scarcely seen even on public days. Let us then down with the barrooms and distilleries in our District.

THE INDISCRIMINATE SALE OF INTOXICANTS.

There can be but little objection to the proper use and sale of liquor with proper restrictions thrown around it. But those restrictions should be as severe and strict as those that restrain the sale of the most deadly poison. Any other sale or use should be prohibited. A barroom, set up for the express purpose of selling to all who call for it and in unlimited quantities and which is bought and drank for its brutal and degrading effects is nothing less than a disgrace to our civilization. We condemn the Roman custom of delight in the fearful death of the gladiators, because of the brutal passions to which it appealed. Bull fighting, Bear baiting and Cock fighting is prohibited for the same reason. Yet, the chief feature of our civilization is the enormous revenue of $564,000,000 annually, derived from the sale of intoxicants, which not only robs man of his reason and appeals to the basest passions and appetites, but makes a brute of him—ruins him for life and eternity.

It is the indiscriminate sale that we fight, because it is the greatest blight of our civilization, in that it appeals and feeds upon the passions and appetite in a most degrading manner. Can our civilization receive highest plain and perfection with such a load to carry?

The sale of intoxicants amounts to near a million more than the actual cost of bread stuffs for the whole United States. This is a fearful state of affairs. Will not the government, the church, our civilization and all that we hold most near and dear be swallowed up in this maelstrom of destruction? Then come out and vote it down on the 27th of April, 1886.

On last Friday the Board of Supervisors made an appropriation for the purpose of organizing a chain gang to work out the accumulated "road" worthless criminals. Now is the right direction to put snakes that are selling whiskey on the sly are caught up and fined from $100 to $500, and are made to work it out on the public road, you will see a decided falling off of this illicit traffic and we will have Local option, then, to your hearts content. There is, perhaps, now in the clerk's office a $1000 Dollars of uncollected fines against parties utterly worthless. By the time this is expended on the public road at 50c a day our citizens will be able to go to mill on good roads and attend divine services in decent vehicles without fear of a break down or a turn over. Now let us see that this is carried out.

The reports from all over the county are encouraging to Local Option. The only uneasiness expressed is the fear that the voters will not come out and vote. Let every man, who professes christianity, who believes in public order, who desires morality and decency to prevail in his district and community, see to it that he comes out to the polls on the 27th and brings his neighbor with him. If you don't remember your community will be inflicted with a bar-room for two years.

Secretary Manning is not expected to live. He is very low.

Political Pointers.

THIRD DISTRICT.

Hon. C. P. Shyder, is a candidate for renomination, and will make a desperate fight to get back into Congress for another term.

Hon. D. E. Johnson, a prominent Democratic leader in Mercer county, will be before the next Congressional Convention in this district. He hopes to wear "Little Phil's" slippers.

There is that sterling Democrat and polished gentleman, the Hon. John W. Harris, of Greenbrier county, who is also an ardent seeker after a Congressional nomination.

Hon. John D. Alderson, of Nicholas county is also a candidate, and has many earnest friends and supporters who will do their best to secure his triumph in the convention.

There are a number of other prominent Democrats in the district who would not refuse the nomination. Some of them will, in all probability, allow their names to be presented to the convention.

On the Republican side we hear the name of Judge J. M. McWhorter mentioned in that connection. The Judge is a resident of Greenbrier county, and would poll a larger vote in that part of the District than any other man the party could nominate.

Hon. James H. Brown, of Kanawha, who was Congressman Snyder's opponent two years ago, is also talked of as the "coming Moses," but whether or not he would consent to enter the field again we are not advised. He made a gallant fight before and only lost the "persimmon" by a small margin.—[Charleston Capitol.

A New Departure in the Literary Magazine.

The April issue of THE LIBRARY MAGAZINE, containing its usual variety of current literature of the highest order, announces that with its next issue radical changes will take place. It will thereafter be published weekly instead of monthly. Without increase in price it will give an increased amount of valuable literature, and great gain in freshness and timeliness will be possible. The form of the page will be made somewhat smaller so that the numbers and the bound volumes, particularly, will be more convenient. A fact that is probably without precedent in the history of periodical literature is stated by the publisher viz: that it is necessary frequently to reprint large editions of the back volumes, running as far back as 1879. This is certainly a very extraordinary certificate of the high character of the Magazine. A most important addition to the attractions of the Magazine in its new form will be a literary review and news department, which will supply information concerning all that is new and of interest in the world of literature, freed from the vast amount of trivial matter and mere publishers' notice which commonly make up a large portion of the contents of literature journals; —in a word, this department is meant to be conducted distinctly in the interest of the READERS of books, instead of in the interest of the PUBLISHERS of books—which will certainly be a new departure in literary journalism. A special free copy of the Magazine in its new form will be sent free to any applicant. JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 393 Pearl St., New York City. P. O. Box 1227.

A New Music Book!

We have to-day received from the publishers, Messrs. WALTER D. Moses & Co., Richmond, V., a copy of their latest collection of popular and standard songs entitled "Vocal Gems," although this book contains 68 songs—worth at retail $30.40, it is sold for only 40 cents, and mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of 50 cents in money or stamps. We may predict a large sale for this "Vocal Gems" as everyone can afford to order a copy at this modest price. Messrs. WALTER D. MOSES & Co. have the largest stock of Pianos, Organs and Music in the State, and it will pay our readers to write for catalogues if they wish to purchase anything in their line.

The Senate did little the past week other than to discuss the Edmunds resolutions, which were passed late in the night of Friday. All three resolutions were passed by an almost strictly party vote. The first one was on adopting the report of the Judiciary Committee; the other condemning the course of Attorney General in refusing to give information called for by the Senate; the third declaring that the Senate would not confirm an appointment where papers called for should be refused. Riddleberger, Van Wyck and Mitchell, of Oregon, Republicans, voted against the last, and Riddleberger declined to vote on the others. Although the night session was a late one the galleries were packed until the Senate adjourned, and excitement on the floor and in the galleries was intense.

NARROWS, VA., March 24, '86.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE VIRGINIAN:

Dear Sir :—If you will permit me through the columns of your paper, I will communicate to its many readers a short piece on intemperance.

In the first place let us remember that intemperance is a most fatal and destructive vice. The temptations and delusions of this adversary of all peace, the treacherous acts by which it flatters us from the paths of rectitude, and the song by which it lures us into its embrace, surpass all powers of description. The fascinating charm by which it binds the faculties, captivates the heart, and perverts the understanding, is a matter of the profoundest astonishment. Intemperance not only destroys the health, but inflicts ruin upon the independent and helpless; for it invades the family circle, and spreads woe and sorrow all around; it cuts down youth in all its vigor, manhood in its strength, and age in its weakness; it breaks the father's heart, bereaves the doting mother, destroys natural affection, lassos conjugal love, blots out fond establishment, blights parental hope, and brings down mourning age in sorrow to the grave. It makes wive's widows, children orphans, father's fiends, and all at last beggars. It covers the land with idleness and poverty, disease and crime, it fosters quarrels and cherishes riots, it condemns law and spurns order, it crowds the penitentiaries, and furnishes the victims for the scaffold, it is the life blood of the gambler, the food of the ourang outangfiend, the prop of the high wayman. It countenances the liar, respects the thief, and esteems the blasphemer, it brings shame, not honor—terror, not safety—despair, not hope—misery, not happiness, and then like a fiend, it calmly surveys its desolation, and insatiate with its havoc, its felicity, kills peace, ruins morals, blights confidence, slay reputation, and wipes out national honor. then curses the world, and laughs at the ruin it has inflicted upon the human race.

Fiend gents reader I G... burial places, and ask who rests beneath its surface; the remains of a drunkard perhaps! One who possessed a heart overflowing with human kindness, the days of whose boyhood were hallowed by high and noble aspirations, the hours of whose early manhood were unclouded by care, and unstained by crime. He saw the smile of joy sparkling in the social glass, he noted not the demon of destruction lirking at the bottom of the goblet, with eager hand he raised the poisoned glass to his lips and he was ruined. It is liquor that mars the whole consistency and blights the noblest energies of the soul. Liquor! Oh!! how many earthly Edens hast thou made desolate! How many starved and naked orphans hast thou cast upon the cold charities of an unfriendly world! How many graves hast thou filled with confiding and broken hearted wives. What sad wrecks hast thou made of brilliant talents and splendid genius. Would to God that there was one universal temperance society and all mankind were members of it, the cause of Christ would be advanced and thousands of bare-footed orphans and broken hearted wives would sing praises to heaven for the ... of temperance cause."

was magnificent, also an essay on love by Miss Lillie H. Priddy which was sublime. We will say here before closing that we extend a cordial invitation to all good citizens to come and join us, and aid us in trying to eradicate this evil (intemperance) from our midst.

Some of our friends almost thought that Jumbo had killed himself in the last issue, but you can inform them that he is still on the wing.

Temperance.

MR. EDITOR: There is no question before this Commonwealth to day, so difficult and momentus as this liquor question. There is nothing so vital to our religious morals, and financial interests as the suppression of this traffic in intoxicating drinks. With our boasted motto Sic Semper Tyrannis, we have been lying under the iron heel of this demon oligarchy. Intemperance, but the people have been reised long enough by this terrible monarch, and rising indignant they will assert their rights and their voice will be heard from the mountain slopes and vine clad hills of the Southwest to the Atlantic Coast, rolling like terrific thunder and sweeping an Alpine avalanche, it will carry every barroom and distillery before it, and sink them so deep beneath the black billows of Lethe that they will only be remembered as things of the past. Under the sway of this demon, intemperance our fair land has been over shadowed by death, and swept as by the besom of destruction. But alas! along the eastern horizon the day of salvation begins to glimmer. It will not be long before the full orbed sun of temperance will burst forth and ride in unsurpassed magesty through not only our beloved State, but through the length and breadth of our national heavens.

This Stygian stream of alcoholism has ploughed its way from Virginia to California, and from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, spreading devastation and death as it goes, along its banks lie withered hopes and lost expectations dead, orphans weep and widows wail, the murderer stalks and fond prostitute a strata. It sends up a mist and spray, and scatters a gloom that... all away, ... devastating and ruinous as the atrocities of hell.

If we could enumerate the horrors, sum up the crimes, reckon the murders, show the widows and orphans, and the millions, those who have gone down through the gates of Delirium Tremens into the realms of Erebus to see the evils of intemperance and their total summation, would be enough to shake the devils stand aghast and chill the heart of hell. The church has stood back and looked at the ravages of this beast, and has not raised her arm to stay it, because she was afraid of being called political, but now we have this question redeemed from political entanglements, and out of the grasp of unprincipled demagogues.

It is not Funderism, Readjusterism, Republicanism or Democracy we cry now, but temperance! temperance! temperance! Then let every man that is in favor of morality and christianity cast his vote on the 27th day of April against license. The greatest objection urged against Local Option is an increase of taxation, the statistics from Montgomery county seem to contradict this, and no doubt every County in the State would give a like showing. But if it does increase taxation it will decrease drunkenness, theft, murder and every species of crime. Will we, like christians come up and vote against this infernal traffic, or like Judas sell out for silver. Surely we will not sacrifice our religious and moral principles on the altar mammon. I ask this question because if every church member will do his duty in this coming election, Giles county will go over whelming against license. Let every man in and out of the church who is opposed to liquor go to work and never stop until we can ... the triumphant foot on the ... of alcohol and cry Sic Semper Tyrannis.

CLUVERIUS'S DEFENCE.

The Letter Lillian Wrote to Mrs. Dickenson and the Torn Note.

(From the Richmond State.)

Fifteen additional pages of the argument of counsel for Cluverius, the convicted murder of Fannie Lillian Madison came from the printers today. It is in reply to the printed argument of the prosecuting attorny. The argument upon the res gestae in connection with the letter which Miss Madison wrote to Mrs. Dickenson is concluded.

Says counsel for Cluverius:

"There is no more reason why this letter should be introduced as proof in this case than a newspaper or a book which she read that day. That she came to Richmond is known by her death there, and Mrs. Dickenson's statement that she left Bath county, and that her presence in Richmond was in response to this letter, has nothing to do with the case before the jury, and is clearly irrelevant.

THE TORN NOTE.

The argument in the sixth bill of exceptions, which relates to the torn note, is copious, and will be continued in the forthcoming printed sheets. Arguing upon this question, Cluverius's counsel say:

"The testimony on this question of identity will be found on pages 92, 93, and pages 278 283 of the printed record, the court recalling the witnesses of its own accord, and reexamining them in the presence of the jury, and then also in the presence of the jury passing upon the question of fact of the identity of the note, saying, 'I think now that it is admissible, having been identified as the note delivered to the messenger boy, and returned by the boy to Dodsen. The court thus, without warrant of law, assumed the functions and place of the jury in announcing a controverted fact before the jury as absolutely established. We insisted in the petition, insisted, and yet Wren was not put upon the stand to supply this gap in the history of the note, and subjected to cross examination upon this point. This is important, because we are unable to find that Dodson testified specifically that the endorsement on the note exhibited in court was exactly the same endorsement he made out to be T. J. Clemens' on the note collected by him from the scrapbasket; he endeavors to identify it by other marks.

"We respectfully insist that the identity of the note was not sufficiently established to justify its introduction."

All of the argument will be printed before the case comes up in the Supreme Court next Monday.

Remarkable Time.

"I'm not a sprint runner," said Charley, "but I made fifty yards once in remarkably quick time. I was just that far from the front door to the gate, and my girl's father held the dog and allowed me ten seconds to clear the distance."

"I grasp the situation," replied Gus, "that fifty yards in ten seconds is not fast time."

"No, but when I reached the gate I had eight seconds to spare."—New York Sun.

—We place on our subscription list this week the following subscribers: A. J. Williams, J. W. Rounker and A. S. Williams.

—For whom does it speak the worse? The merchant who keeps his sugar barrel locked, or the man that found it out?

—We call attention to the live stock advertisement of J. W. McClaugherty & Bros. This is a county enterprise and should be encouraged.

—Married, March 25, 1886, at the residence of the bride's father by the Rev. R. A. Kelly, Mr. Joseph Eston to Miss Etta Muncey. All of Giles Co., Va.

—Mr. A. L. Fry has been appointed Agent for Kent, Yates & Callaghan Woolen Mills. Look out for his advertisement which will appear soon.

—Messrs. C. M. Franklin, Joe Williams, Chas. Stone and P. W. Reynolds, travelling salesmen, were here this week distressing our merchants.

—B. E. Tallant has a good assortment of fishing tackle, bass rods, hooks, reels and lines, and trot lines and hooks, etc. Give him a call.

—The first game of base ball was played here on yesterday. The young men are determined to organize a club at this place. There is no reason why they should not.

—The checkiest man yet. The man who wants to borrow your gun and the ammunition to shoot it. The next thing will be to ask you to go along and carry the game for him.

—Mr. Hugh M. Woods, the popular Mail Agent on the N. & W. R. R., called in to see us this week, and paid up his subscription to the VIRGINIAN. We wish there were some more Hughes in the country.

—The recent rains cut off all communication with the rest of the world during the past week. Slides innumerable and 10 feet of high water in the river make us a lonely and forsaken people.

—Mr. C. W. Bingham, in repairing the street set off a blast in the street near Mr. J. M. Peter's house that damaged Prof. Shumate's dwelling considerable by tearing off a corner.

—Mr. Wm Patterson's child who was so badly injured by a dose of croton oil given it by mistake a few weeks ago is not expected to live, having a complication of laryngetis with its other troubles.

—The Remington Clipper Carbon Plow. Lightest draft and hardest metal. Metal one half steel. "For sale by Thos. J. Pearson.

—The miners at Pocahontas have not yet struck not to strike, but still strike, yet have not struck. So it seems that there is either a strike, or not a strike, any way you take it. Do you give it up? So do we. Pocahontas is a queer place any way.

—P. W. Poff, the Artist friendly Photographer, who makes photos by the instantaneous process will be at Pearisburg but a short time. If you want any good pictures made we would advise you to call and see him at once.

—The labor troubles are rending our country from circumference to center. They will seriously effect the whole prosperity of our nation unless they are soon settled. Surely there can be found someway by which brethren can live together in peace and unity without all this racket about it.

—Mr. W. D. Pearson came near meeting with a serious loss on last Monday evening. While at supper, the stove pipe set fire to the sealing in the upper part of the building, and but for the timely warning of Mr. Dick Magann it would; perhaps, have resulted in the loss of his store and dwelling.

—Four second hand Pianos, two of which are almost new, viz: Two Knabes, one Hardman and one Ernest Gabler, all of which have been thoroughly over hauled and tuned, for sale at a sacrifice at J. D Hobbie's, Lynchburg. They must be sold at once to make room for large invoice of Instruments to arrive in few days.

—We got a new Devil and some new stools for our office this week. The new Devil attempted to sit down on one of the new stools when the rounds slipped out and he set down on the floor so hard he said he jarred the plugs out of the box and cracked the type in his plank. A stool in the Artist gallery spilt Miss Jane Cumbee not long since. We think it would be a bonanza for the Pearisburg carpenter who would learn to manufacture this most useful article of furniture.

—Thos. J. Pearson has the largest and most complete line of Dry Goods, Drugs, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Notions and Fancy Goods ever seen outside of the cities. Call and see for yourselves and be convinced of this fact.

—Mr. A. L. Fry, requests us to announce that he will act as Agent for Messrs. Kent, Yates & Callaghan's Woolen Mills, Wythe Co., Va. A full line of samples of goods on hand. Parties wishing to exchange

WOOL FOR GOODS

Yesterday.

Emperors and princes, priests and kings, poets and prophets, philosophers and theologians, statesmen and scholar, soldiers and sailors, idiots & lunatics, all alike bowed to the mighty potency of its charm. All met upon the level of mankind, and upon should upon the plain of humanity presenting an unbroken phalanx to the eye of the great common master to whom this day is especially dedicated.

Not from the file of that great phalanx, not from the command of that great army, could be found a missing one, commodant and colonel, captain and corporal, color sargeant and file closer, orderly and adjutant, major and drummer, professor and private were all in their places. All were on dress parade, not a soul out of the great war of humanity was exempt. Because all men are, by nature, fools, and yesterday was was "all fools day."

Hoge's Store Items.

MR. EDITOR: As you are publishing one of the best papers in South-western Virginia, I thought I would jot you a few lines, as this is a flourishing spot.

The farmers are making ready for a large crop. The Captain has the most of his land turned up as the March wind has already turned up the most of his fencing which makes two turnips the same year.

Our esteem friend Dr. R. H. Hoge has moved to his own dwelling house near the Chapel, and is as happy as a coon. Well, the Doctor is a good jolly fellow.

Mr. Jacob F. Williams, Principal and Mr. G. H. Williams, Assistant, closed their Public Free School the 23rd inst., which was one of the best schools taught in this county. The number enrolled was 72 and about 60 were present at the close. Some of the finest speeches were made by the scholars, and the concert reading was read of by 16 young ladies, which was one of the grandest and most complete that ever was listened to. Their were 10 prizes offered and won. The Indian School Boy by the Rev. G. T. Gray, was a grand thing. The two Mr. Williams deserves great credit for the manner in which they conducted their school. When the scholars passed by the Professors to shake hands with them their was more crying than laughing you bet on that.

Now, Mr. Editor, I hope you will publish this in your valuable paper as this is my first. I will assign my name

March 29, '86. GOOD LUCK.

Pocahontas Items.

MR. EDITOR: I am an earnest reader of your valuable paper and ask the space for a few lines. I am aware of the fact that you have several correspondents at this place, viz: Peck's Bad Boy, Eagle's Eye, and Pogo, and I would not willingly im pose a tax on you, or the many readers of the dear old VIRGINIAN. But as I am of the opinion that some of our writers exaggerate, or do injustice to some of our peaceful citizens is the reason why I ask the space that I may give unto them what I think to be "their just dues."

We have a new mining town here, composed of nearly every nationality. Among which, are some pretty rough customers, and again some of the most accomplished ladies and gentlemen. Consequently I think it very wrong in this "Eagle's Eye" to impose his criticisms on innocent, and peaceful citizens through the press. For instance his comments on the Young Editor, Brass Band, Judge of Courts, P. M., Saw Mill Boss, and so on. The former of which, I am sure (and must say) did very wrong in taking on too much of his red brush. Yet still he was not the first or last to commit this crime in Pocahontas, and when out of his bitters, he is all that it takes to so compliah a gentleman, and where was this writer)Eagle's Eye) standing when he drew such a beautiful, and exact likeness of this man drinking his beer? I am sure that he could not have been afar off, as he represented the man in every detail and step that he took. This Alleeing, or Eagle's Eye draws a beautiful picture, in fact he is a model drawer, and I think with about forty years more practice he would make a good Photographer for the place from whence he came. "Yahoo of corrie" there perhaps he would find his widowed wife needing his hands at the plow and spade.

And as for our Justice of Courts he fills and performs the duties of his office as best he can, and I do not hesitate to say for him, that he stands second to none of his predecessors in trying to give justice to all.

And for the members of the Brass Band, I must say, that they are all regarded as gentlemen by the citizens of our town, and deserve much credit for their progress. They are yet without a teacher, and play a few pieces splendidly, and the manner in which they conduct their practice meetings. They meet in a school house in a remote corner of town where the noise will disturb no one. I am informed that they have their janitor paid to date for cleaning room after them. Their by laws forbid them playing or blowing their horns on the streets, and I believe that they have been fully carried out, as no one has heard that tra, tra, trrrra, on the streets, except those dogs and this Eagle's Eye.

In another issue he crops himself out as Poca. I am sure that the latter name (Pokey,) is the most appropriate one for this Rectifyer or Photographer, who is trying to purify and cleanse the people by drawing portraits of drunken men, and those who are trying to blow their instruments in the brass band.

Then who is this Pokey? Is he a temperance? No, he cannot be. He never tells you anything about our Good Templar organization in this place, and the good that they are doing for our town and community. He did not tell you of the Memorial Services, held on the 14th of March in memory of the victims of the Pocahontas Mine explosion, conducted by Rev. B. Dennis of the Episcopal Church, who took his text from Ninetieth Psalms, twelfth verse, (so teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom), and preached a most feeling sermon, that was patiently listened to by a crowded church.

He did not tell you that the Methodist brethren have begun to erect their church at this place.

Therefore, I must say that this Eagle Eye Pokey, or model man, is neither temperance, nor religiously inclined. His experience appears to be chiefly of matters that pertain to the streets and saloon. What can we term him then? A saloon keeper? No; he talks against their business and interests. Is he a merchant? No; he does not praise them. An officer? No; he runs their honors down. What then? or who can this wise, spotless, purified, Rectified, Photografied man be?

Dear readers, this is a man from Tug. Perhaps I am going too fast, for in every town, village, or neighborhood, there is a certain class of people (not citizens) that are always finding fault with their neighbors, speaking evil, and even slanderously of the fairer sex. They get mad because they are not elected to offices which they do not merit. They can see the mote in their brother's eye, but not the beam in their own, and persistance this Rectified, Photo grafied, Watchman is a representative of this class. If so, I am the one in fault, as this allowance, or privilege is given them without any notice, by all good, and quiet citizens.

Therefore, Mr. Eagle Eye, Pokey, if you are a representative of the above class, I most humbly beg your pardon, for criticising Gospel subjects, and if you do not belong to this element, I beseech you, come to the front, be a man among citizens and when you write for the dear old VIRGINIAN again just chronicle the events, omit the characters of those who are trying to live good and true citizens.

I will now close, hoping Dear Editor that I am not imposing on you too much, when I ask the space for this communication in your valuable paper, and if this be inserted in my next I will not be so lengthy, and will practice what I preach. Should any one ask you my name, you may tell them it is

CATARRH.
CATARRH is the Symptom of Consumption, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Weakness, and many other diseases. Over one million people are annually afflicted by it, including one-fourth of the population of the United States. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is the only known remedy for this disease. It is the only remedy that has been tested by time. It is the only remedy that has been tested by the people. It is the only remedy that has been tested by the world. These speakers will thoroughly discuss the liquor question. Come out to hear them!

LICENSE A PRIVILEGE NOT A RIGHT.

License is a mere privilege, a permission to do some act and is revocable at any time by the granting power. It does not give a vested right and is strictly limited to the time for which it was granted. A mere license to go on one's land to do certain acts does not give the person an interest or right in the land but may be cancelled at any time. Then how can the granting of license for one year give these parties a vested right to demand them for the next year or where does the refusal to grant them a new infringe on the personal liberty of any one. The so-called personal liberty association is a humbug.

PERSONAL LIBERTY.

The whiskey men say that Local Option infringes upon their personal liberty. What is personal liberty? A text writer of approval authority gives this definition: "Personal liberty consists in the power of locomotion, of changing situation, or of moving ones person to whatsoever place one's own inclination may direct, without imprisonment or restraint, unless by due course of law." How does Local Option infringe upon this right? It does not even prohibit him going into a bar room but it aids him in getting home by keeping him sober. It would be much more appropriate to claim an infringment upon the right of free dom of conscience.

LICENSE A PERSONAL LIBERTY.

A personal liberty to do what? To take the property of your neighbor in consideration of making him a brute.

To demoralize neighborhoods. To ruin communities. To blight manhood, erase youth and create premature age and disease. To take the bread of orphans, the love of wives, the honor of husbands and the sustenance of widows.

Is not this truly a liberty—the most momentous liberty ever granted by a government to an individual—a creation by act of law of a patent of tyrany? Yes, indeed it is a liberty—a personal liberty—but one personal to the Devil and a liberty that arch fiends glory to revel in. Friends, fellow citizen, can you vote with this personal liberty party? Yet this is what voting for license means.

The Board of Visitors of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College located at Blacksburg held a meeting in Richmond last week and passed a resolution declaring all the offices of that institution vacant. This includes president, professors and all officers connected with the college. The Board then proceeded to elect a president of the college and for that responsible position, selected Gen'l D. H. Lomax, of Warrenton. General Lomax is a West Pointer and is no doubt an excellent man for the place.—[New Castle Index.

LOCAL OPTION CLUB.

The Pembroke Local Option Club was called to order by Dr. R. H. Hoge.

Capt. J. H. Hoge was elected Chairman and J. A. Brewer, Secretary. The following proceedings were had and entered of record as follows, to-wit:

A Committee of five was appointed to select canvassers from each precinct, who suggested:

Jas. Dillon, Ernstus Cook and Jas. Carr of New River.

Arthur McDonald, Thos. Farley and Jas. Snidow of Hatfield.

J. W. Williams, Sr., Luther Snidow, Harve Phlegar, S. E. Lybrook, Jacob, John Flem, and Jno. B. Williams, Jas. Knode, Geo. L. Collins and Lewis Wilburn of Pembroke.

Which action of the Committee was endorsed by the Club.

The Chair appointed I. E. & J. M. Williams, G. H. Mays, C. P. Tinsley, Albert Snidow, and Wm Hilton to solicit more voters to join the Club, now numbering more than thirty.

Mr. Geo. H. Mays is requested to address the friends of the cause at Sugar Grove Church on the night of the 16th inst., and at Pembroke night of 17th. Also, Mr. Charles Dillon to make an address on Spruce Run at a convenient time and place during this month, and the Secretary directed to notify them of the action.

The friends of Temperance and of good government generally, the wives of husbands, mothers of sons, and sisters of brothers who are in danger are earnestly requested to aid us in this fight against our common enemy.

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings be sent to the PEARISBURG VIRGINIAN for publication, after which the club adjourned to meet at Pembroke 17th April at 4 p. m., where J. Hampton Hoge and others will address the people.

J. H. HOGE, Chairman.
ALF. BREWER, Secretary.

LOCAL OPTION ORGANIZATION IN PULASKI COUNTY.

A mass meeting was held last Monday at Newbern to organize a Local Option party for that county. Rev. Geo. Stewart was called to the chair. In taking his seat, he said that a bright day was dawning for Virginia—that the question was so intimately connected with morals and christianity that he would not take his seat until the meeting was opened with prayer. He then called upon the Rev. Dr. Bullard who made an earnest and touching appeal to the Supreme Ruler for aid and assistance in the great work they had undertaken. The chair appointed Mr. R. D. Gardner as Secretary and associated with him all the members of the press present.

Mr. J. R. Miller, in a few brief words explained the object of the meeting. The following gentlemen were appointed as Vice Presidents at their respective precincts:

SNOWVILLE.

On motion the Vice Presidents were authorized and requested to appoint from five to ten persons at their respective precincts to help them in this work.

On motion of J. R. Miller the following gentlemen were appointed as a County Executive Committee. S. H. Stone, Chas. Teany, H. D. Howard, Jno. G. Cecil, John Lyons, Wm H. Smith, Wm B. Cecil, J. Hoge Tyler, J. H. Chumbly and David Millirons.

On motion of Dr. Bullard all the ministers of the gospel of all denominations in the county were requested to preach at least one Temperance sermon at each one of their appointments before the 26th day of April, 1886.

Rev. J. E. Moore was elected permanent County Chairman.

J. E. Moore, J. C. Wysor and Rev. Dr. Bullard were requested to stump the county for Local Option.

The County Ex. Com. any three of whom could act, were requested to meet at once and provide means for raising a campaign fund.

Mr. Thos. Whitehead, Jr., of Temperance Advocate was present and made some very pointed remarks.

Giles was then heard from.

We were both surprised and gratified at the interest and determination evinced by the Local Option friends in our neighboring county. Old Giles will have to spur herself to carry off the banner this time.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The Committees in Congress are moving slowly and cautiously with the appropriaton bills. Nearly four months of the present session have passed with but three of the appropriation bills disposed of by the House—the Indian, the Pension and the Agricultural bills.

The interesting subject of debate in the house the past week has been the bill providing for submitting labor strikes to arbitration. Mr. O'Neil of Missouri, the chairman of the committee had charge of the bill. He introduced the subject with a few remarks, reserving the remainder of his time and yielding to other members. Weaver of Iowa, spoke strongly in behalf of the bill. Reid of Maine, believe that the laboring men could and would regulate their difficulties without the intervention of Congress. Hammond of Georgia, thought that the question was too serious and important to be hurried through without mature consideration. Daniel of Virginia, thought the bill so erude in form that its provisions would fail of the object in view. Reagan of Texas, was in hearty sympathy with the persons intended to be benefitted by the bill but believed its provision to be unconstitutional. M. Bowman and Mr. Kelly of Pennsylvania, favored the bill and will vote for it, but the latter believes that it will not give the relief desired. The disposition seems to be to load the bill down with a mendments so that if it passes at all it will be very different from the bill reported by the committee. The above were the principal speakers, and the bill will be further considered another day.

In the Senate Logan's Army bill was the most discussed subject. The speeches on it have been many and heated. Some Senators strongly intimated that Logan's Presidential aspirations induced him to introduce the bill.

But the trouble appears to be not envy between the Presidential candidates as some have been so unkind to insinuate, but antagonism to Logan because of his active canvas for the confirmation of Dement, which was successfull, notwithstanding the action of the Committee on Public Lands—adverse to the confirmation. Teller and Logan especially were extremely personal and severe in their strictures upon each other.

The Spring Months

Are undoubtedly the best in which to purify the blood and strengthen the system, because at this time the body is most susceptible to the beneficial effects of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla. The feeling of debility, langour, and lassitude, caused by the changing season, is entirely overcome, and scrofula and all humors are expelled from the blood by the powerful reviving and purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Do not delay—Take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It is made by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists. 100 Doses One Dollar.

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Mr. J. M. Norris, an old resident of Rome, Ga., says, that he had been badly troubled with Kidney Complaint for great many years and with Eczema for three years; at times could scarcely walk and had tried many remedies without benefit, until he began taking Electric Bitters and anointing his hands and feet with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. This treatment afforded him great relief and he strongly recommends Electric Bitters to all who suffer with Kidney Compaints, or need a Blood purifier. Sold by Thos. J. Pearson.

Pearisburg is becoming as esthetic as Boston, which is justly attributable to the efforts of Professor Hollman, the great piano tuner.

One Price.—J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg, who deals extensively in Pianos and Organs has introduced into his business the one price to all system, which insures to all fair dealing, and the very lowest prices obtainable. When a merchent don't fall in price he must make his low enough to compete with everybody.

—Laton Meadows died a pauper on last Sunday morning and was buried Monday. Laton Meadows was a peculiar make up and as much as he has been ridiculed his powers as a debator were of a no mean order. Could he have had the training and culture that are the lot of many he no doubt would have made his mark. In his death as a pauper he is not alone, for many an illustrious son of fortune has passed to the immortal with as little of this world's good.

—All those subscribers who owe us for subscription from 12th May, 1884, will be charged at the rate of two dollars per year unless they settle in full before the 12th May, 1886.

Maybrook Items.

Mr. Editor: As Buddy seems to have quit these parts I thought it would not be out of place for me to give you a few items from our brook and vicinity.

Sinking Creek has been on a rampage and torn up things generally. It washed away a hundred yards or two of Mr. J. J. May's mill race and injured his dam. It will, probably, cost him two or three hundred dollars to put his mill in good running order again, but he thinks he will have it running in ten or fifteen days. We are anxious to see the mill started at an early day, as it is a great loss to our community, and one of the best mills in the county.

Most every one living on the Creek was damaged some.

I think the widow Lucas' boys will repair their fences soon, as the Creek left ten times as many rails in the drifts as it took away, and Bill and John have just bought a fine yoke of oxen for that purpose.

I, hardly know how to estimate Mr. Beller's damages, but don't suppose he would care if Mr. Atkins would come down and get his lot torn and give his wheat a chance to grow.

Mr. Isaac Williams lost about a thousand rails.

Some complaint of having lost potatoes, some onions, and one old lady said her parsnips were washed away. I am sorry those parsnips, those good parsnips are gone.

One of our worthy young men, Mr. Warren Williams, is surveying near Pocahontas.

A number of our young folks attended Mess. Peters & Dowdy's exhibition Thursday night, which proved to be quite a success. Bob was along, of course, you know Bob, the same fellow who rented the house to Mr. Payne. Well, Bob thinks he will come back again, so we have some pretty girls over here.

One more important item Mr. Editor, and I will have closed. Mr. John Hamblin is pap!!!

Newport Items.

Rev. Thomas Gray of Blacksburg, preached for Rev. Crickenberger last Sunday. His sermon was a good one.

Rev. W. E. Miller starts for his new field of work next Monday at Levelton, Pocahontas Co., W. Va. Our new preacher has not arrived as yet.

Mr. W. Echols, junior member of the firm of Dunklee & Echols, and Miss Ella Martin of Clover Hollow, were married on the 24th inst. Miss Ella is pretty and accomplished, and Mr. Echols is known as "our model young man" and well he deserves it. We wish them many, many happy years together.

Mr. John G. Price, who has been employed in the freight office of the C. & O. R. R., at Hinton, W. Va., is home on a recruiting trip. He looks thin and we trust to see him improve rapidly.

Mr. Thomas Price of V. A. M. C., was home on a visit last week.

Mr. Peck Miller has been confined to his room for several days with a bad cold. We trust to see him out soon.

The recent rains have made our roads very muddy and swollen our streams out of their banks.

Our merchants are receiving their spring goods.

"Local Option" is not met with the enthusiasm here it excites at other points of the State. Nevertheless, a number of our best men are for it and we trust to poll a respectable vote in behalf of this noble measure. An able discussion on the subject at this place would result in good to the cause. We would like to hear you, Mr. Editor. Come over and give us a speech or two.

Truly, F.

Most Excellent.

J. J. Atkins, Chief of Police, Knoxville, Tenn., writes: "My family and I are beneficiaries of your most excellent medicine, Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; having found it to be all that you claim for it, desire to testify to its virtue. My friends to whom I have recommended it, praise it at every opportunity."

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup and every affection of Throat, Chest and Lungs.

Mayville Items.

Mr. Editor: There has been rain, floods and back waters in the Ville.

The Southwest corner of the Ville is improving. Dr. Dennis has erected a gate in front of his dwelling house, so we can enter the kingdom of ——, without climbing over a ten rail fence.

Oh! depth of mercy can it be,
That gate was left ajar for me.

Uncle Bill (W. C. Fortner) has finished shucking his corn after long continuation.

Mr. A. J. Thompson has been looking kinder sad for the past week. Guess the wet weather has something to do with it.

Mr. Mays has some oats that he wants to sow. He says he is afraid they will spoil before the ground gets dry enough to sow.

Willie's mother returned home from a neighboring house and Willie was gone. It being dark, she searched a light and went in search for Willie. She first went to the stable but found him not. She again calling Willie, Willie heard the calling but answered not. Willie said to his girl, Willie is all right.

Look out for a large Local Option crowd from this section on the 27th day of April, 1886.

Intemperance.

Mr. Editor: As it has been sometime since I noticed anything of importance in your valuable paper from our mountain town, I thought I would write a few lines for publication.

Local Option seems to be the topic of the day. I am glad to inform your many readers that many of our people are being aroused from their lethergy and are looking on intemperance from a new stand point. They are looking upon him (intemperance) as a vice that is destroying thousands of our race. The young man who goes to the social ball and there for the first time in life, the wine glass is presented by some friend. Did you know that in the glass you are handing around deamons are laughing in every sparkling bead, and dancing in every drop. Let me implore you in the name of God not to hand it farther. Young man, you who are to drink the cursed contents, did you know that it is the chalice of death that you are about to drink. Let me ask you in the name of your care worn father, your loving mother, darling sisters, and for your sake and your happiness in this life and that which is to come, dash it down! dash it down!!

We heartily endorse the position of our friend and neighbor from Bane. Could we but look on the fearful monster intemperance and see him as he is we could write a more fearful discription of his evils.

Friends of the temperance cause let me ask you as a friend to come out on the 27th day of April and cast your votes against liquor license and let us have peace and quietude and may we love and honor God.

Mr. Editor perhaps many of your readers think that Dumpy is dead. Mr. Dixie seemed to think so at least. I do not know what has be come of him (Dixie) but suppose he is leading a quiet life. You may inform your many readers that I am not dead as yet. More anon, Thessalia, April 5, '86. Dumpy.

How Prohibition Works to Other Places.

Published by request of Col. J. B. Peck, County Chairman of Local Option party of Giles County.

MILLVILLE, N. J., March 22, 1886.

To J. H. Kerrstris, Buchanan, Va.

Dear Sir:—George E. Dunlop, the Mayor of this city, has handed me a letter from you dated "March 16th, and suggests me to give you the information you ask for, concerning the results of local option in this city. You say that the whiskey champions (in your county) claim that it—prohibition—will decrease the revenue, and thereby increase the taxes; that it will especially hurt the poor, and that it will not prohibit the use of liquor. My testimony is, that it has the opposite effect here in all of these particulars claimed by your whiskey men. No class of our people have been benefited more than our workingmen, by our no license system; this can be demonstrated to the satisfaction of any unbiased person who will take the trouble to investigate the growth of our city during the fifteen years that all liquor selling has been prohibited, compared with fifteen years previously under liquor license. Before and up to the time of prohibition very few of our laboring men owned their own dwellings at the present time about two thirds (⅔) of the dwelling houses of this city are owned by the working people. Most of the heads of families who labor with their hands for a livelihood own the houses they live in, and these houses are no mere shanties, but commodious comfortable cottages, costing from one to five thousand dollars each. These dwellings have been erected from the savings of the laboring poor, which formerly went to the whiskey and beer saloons. This city contains a population of 8,000, and we have six building associations, giving out nearly 100,000, annually to build houses for the improvement of our city. The money which supports the associations is the surplus earnings of the poor; and which if we had license would, the most of it, go into the tills of rumsellers. Now as it concerns me to tell you or any other intelligent person that the greatest evil of our city is lessened or that our taxes have increased by prohibition. Prohibition has more than doubled our taxable property, and of course (other things being equally lessened our taxes one half, less the price paid for licenses, and giving us credit for city improvement, such as water works, public building, &c. I venture to say our tax rate has been reduced one-half by prohibition. Another point of experience which is of great value, in controversy is the fact, that during the hard times from 1873 to 1879, when in the surrounding, license cities there was great destitution, poverty and a large amount of suffering thereby, in this city we had but a very few destitute poor, none required poor relief except as is usual at all times in cases of great misfortune. No license city can compare with us in this respect. I might continue to show the benefit we as a city, have derived financially from prohibition. Such as the economy in the government, in the police force alone enough is saved to make up for loss in the license fees, to say nothing of the former cost of poor relief made necessary by strong drink. But this letter is already exceeding the limits I had intended. I will say, that prohibition has so increased business prosperity that business men in Mill[illegible] locate of a return [illegible]. But will a[illegible] effect to [illegible] We have [illegible] became [illegible] use in [illegible] one [illegible] no [illegible]

After fifteen years experience of prohibition we have no officer of our city who is not in favor of prohibition. The city council, composed of twelve members, has ten who are practically and radically temperance men, and no man would stand the slightest chance for election to any office in our municipal government who was not avowedly in favor of prohibition in this city.

I am Yours Respectfully,

WM. M. MANNS.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

NEWNAN, GA., Mar. 22, '86.

Dear Sir:—In answer to your letter of the 19th instant, addressed to the Mayor of Newnan, I will state, That I am Mayor, and have been since 1883, the prohibition law having been adopted for this county (Coweta) by popular vote in July of that year. I had formerly opposed it, fearing it would not produce the good effects hoped for. The law took effect in January, 1884. Since then crime of every grade has decreased, and for the 15 years preceding its adoption a great many homicides had occurred, nearly every one ensued in fire instance or provoked by liquor. For the 3 years it has been in operation (the law) there has not been a case of homicide in the County, and crimes of every grade have decreased to one fourth its previous record. Our jail roll has also fallen down to one-seventh of what it had been previous to the adoption of the prohibitory law. The people have prospered also, in that they have gotten out of debt to a large extent, and have improved their homes, schools, and churches. This place itself has greatly improved, adding to its churches (buildings renewed) by voluntary subscriptions (all now paid), $35,000 00, and the business and private property has been proportionately improved, and business has been to the merchants greatly more satisfactory and reliable; and the taxes have not been increased by its adoption. Property is higher and find purchasers when put on the market, at full prices. Drunkenness and drinking has decreased nine-tenths of former quantity.

A cotton exhibited here 23rd Nov. last, and a crowd exceeding 5000 persons were gathered, and mostly of the crowd gathered on such occasions there were a great many drunken men and not under influence of drink. On that day but two men were found drunk, and the police looked well for such cases; and it was a matter of wonder with friends and opponents of prohibition.

Another point of experience which is of great value, in controversy is the fact, that during the hard times from 1873 to 1879, when in the surrounding, license cities there was great destitution, poverty and a large amount of suffering thereby, in this city we had but a very few destitute poor, none required poor relief except as is usual at all times in cases of great misfortune. No license city can compare with us in this respect. I might continue to show the benefit we as a city, have derived financially from prohibition. Such as the economy in the government, in the police force alone enough is saved to make up for loss in the license fees, to say nothing of the former cost of poor relief made necessary by strong drink. But this letter is already exceeding the limits I had intended. I will say, that prohibition has so increased business prosperity that business men in Mill[illegible] locate of a return [illegible]. But will a[illegible] effect to [illegible] We have [illegible] became [illegible] use in [illegible] one [illegible] no [illegible]

Your Obedient Servant,

W. B. BERRY,

Mayor of City of Newnan

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive efficacy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. C. Sanderson, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and money to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." Mrs. C. J. M. Buchan, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all ailments caused by impure blood or a low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. Lovejoy, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not have been so ill without it." Mary L. Fuller, Salem, Mass.

LOCAL OPTION BILL.

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia. That it shall be the duty of the judge of each county and corporation court in the Commonwealth of Virginia whenever such a number of the duly qualified voters of each magisterial district of a county, or whenever such a number of the duly qualified voters of any magisterial district in any county, or whenever such a number of the duly qualified voters of a corporation (having over five thousand inhabitants and a corporation court) as constitute one fourth of the number of voters voting at the preceding regular November election in such county, magisterial district, or corporation shall petition, either in term time or in vacation, to order a special election in his county so petitioning, or in any magisterial district of his county so petitioning, or in his corporation so petitioning, on the question of liquor license or no liquor license. Such county or corporation judge, as the case may be, shall within ten days after the receipt of said petition issue his writ of election, in which shall be fixed the day of holding such election, directed to the sheriff of his county or city, or sergeant of his corporation, as the case may be, whose duty it shall be to forthwith post at each voting precinct in said county, if the election is to be held in the entire county or at the voting precincts in any magisterial district, when the election is ordered to be held only in such magisterial district, or at the voting precincts in said corporation, notice of said election; and shall also give notice to the officers charged with the duty of conducting other elections in said county, magisterial district, or corporation, as the case may be: Provided that no election shall be held under this act within less than thirty days from the posting of such notices as aforesaid. Said special election shall be held and conducted as special elections for other purposes are held and conducted: Provided that after any such election has been held in any county, magisterial district, or corporation, there shall not be another election under this act held in said county, magisterial district, or corporation within the space of two years.

2. The ballots to be used in said elections shall be respectively as follows: "For licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors," and "Against licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors. The manner of receiving and canvassing the ballots at said elections on said question and making returns and abstracts thereof shall conform in all respects to the requirements of the general election law of the State except that the certificate of the judge shall be as follows:

We hereby certify that at the election held on the — day of ——, — votes were cast for license for sale of intoxicating liquors and — votes were cast against license for sale of intoxicating liquors.

B. B., } E. F., }
C. D., } Clerks. G. H., } Judges.
J. K., }

And the proper official canvasser of general election returns shall canvass those returns in like manner as other election returns, and when the election is held for the whole county they shall certify the number of votes cast for and against license respectively in said county, and shall also certify the number of votes cast at said election in each magisterial district of said county for and against license respectively; and when said election is held for a magisterial district only, said canvassers shall certify the number of votes cast at such election for and against license respectively; and when the election is held for a corporation having over five thousand inhabitants and a corporation court, said canvassers shall certify the number of votes cast at such election for and against license respectively; a copy of such certificate in either case to be laid before the county or corporation court, as the case may be, at its next term.

4. Where the election is held in the whole county, if it appear from the abstracts and returns of such election that a majority of the votes cast in the election under this bill have been cast against license, then no license shall be granted to any person therein for the sale of such liquors; or if it appear from the abstracts and returns of such election that a majority of votes as aforesaid have not been cast against the sale of intoxicating liquors in said county, but that a majority of votes have been cast in any magisterial district in said county against license for the sale of intoxicating liquors therein, then no license shall be granted to any person in such magisterial district for the sale of such liquors. But if such district vote in favor of license, then it shall be lawful to sell with licenses obtained under existing laws; and any person who shall sell any intoxicating liquors within the limits of any magisterial district voting against license shall incur all the penalties and be punished as prescribed by the general law for selling wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors, or any mixture of them without a license therefor.

5. Where the election is held only in a magisterial district in any county, or in a corporation having over 5000 inhabitants and a corporation court, if it appear from the abstracts and returns of any such election that a majority of votes have been cast against license for the sale of intoxicating liquors in any such magisterial district or corporation, as the case may be, then no license shall be granted to any person for the sale of such liquors in any such magisterial district or corporation; and any person who shall sell any intoxicating liquors within the limits of any such magisterial district or corporation shall incur all the penalties and be punished as provided by the general law for selling wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors, or any mixture of them without a license therefor.

6. If any magisterial district in any county in the State has heretofore by vote in pursuance of any law prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors therein; or if any magisterial district in any county shall first (before the county as a whole) avail itself of the provisions of this act, and by vote prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors therein, then in either case no election shall be held under this act by any county as a whole wherein any such magisterial district is located, but each remaining magisterial district in such county may petition and vote separately as provided for in this act.

7. If any incorporated town under 5,000 inhabitants, composing a separate district or voting precinct, shall desire to take advantage of the provisions of this act a petition of such a number of the duly qualified voters of a corporation as constitute one-fourth of the number of the voters voting at the preceding regular November election shall be presented to the judge of the county court, in term time or in vacation, having jurisdiction over the said corporation, and the said judge shall order a special election in conformity with the act; and if a majority of the votes cast be against license, no license shall be granted within the corporate limits thereof: Provided that no election provided for in this bill has been held within the district of which said town is a part within two years.

8. This act shall be construed to prohibit distillers of alcoholic liquors or manufacturers of wines or malt liquors from selling any such liquors or wines in any county, magisterial district, or corporation voting as aforesaid against the sale of intoxicating liquors therein.

9. That no election under the provisions of this act shall be held within thirty days of any county, corporation, State, or national election.

10. This act shall be in force from its passage.

The bill was put through under the operation of the previous question—which was demanded and sustained—and Mr. Ryan and others could not offer amendments that they wished.

Mr. Mahone's Expensive Revenge.

One striking fact in connection with the investigation of the charges in relation to Solicitor General Goode now going on before a sub committee of the Senate Committee of the Judiciary, is the case with which Mr Mahone is leading the committee and virtually conducting its proceedings. The witnessed which have thus far been examined, brought at Mr Mahone's suggestion, are the same witnesses who were before the House Investigation Committee in 1874, and the testimony which had been taken is the same testimony which led that committee to bring in their verdict acquitting Mr Goode of any participation in frauds with which he was charged. Already, therefore, the Government has been put by Mr Mahone to no unnecessary expense in witness' fees, estimated at nearly $300 for the extraction of evidence which might have just as well been obtained from the records of the House of Representatives. The committee held another meeting yesterday and finished examining the last of the witnesses' for the prosecution without finding anything of a damaging nature to Mr Goode. The committee adjourned until Saturday, when witnesses, which have been summoned by Mr Goode to rebut the testimony of some of the prosecuting witnesses, will be examined.—[Washington Post.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by Thos. J. Pearson.

Two Women Fight a Duel.

A remarkable duel was fought on the field of Warterloo the last week contestants being Mme Valsayre, native of France, and Miss Shelby, an American.

The duel was the result of a dispute on the relative merits of French and American female doctors. After a stormy altercation Mme Valsayre threw her glove in Miss Shelby's face and a duel was forth-with arranged. The weapons were swords Miss Shelby was slightly wounded on the arm. The four seconds were American. These expressed themselves satisfied that the duel had been conducted fairly and that honor had been vindicted and insult avenged.

The Surrender of Geronimo.

It is understood that the War Department has received official confirmation of the reported surrender of Geronimo and his band, but, for some unexplained reason, neither the Secretary, the Lieutenant General nor the Adjutant General will admit that such is the case. It is also said that the disposition of the captured renegades was considered at the Cabinet meeting yesterday, and that action was postponed until the views of Secretary Lamar and other members of the Cabinet, who were unable to be present at the meeting, in regard to the matter shall have been made known to the President.

A Fatal Defect.

"One of the queerest I ever heard of" said the story-teller in the smoking car, "is down in our town. There's a man there who has a peculiar defect. I know him well. He's a draughtsman, and as accomplished man. He can draw anything he is asked to draw, with a solitary exception lost him his situation, his wife, friends, and his reputation, and now it is killing him. Isn't it strange!"

"Very. But what is that he can't draw."

Three Reasons.

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the Spring:

1st. Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d. Because the blood is sluggish, impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d. Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than at any other time. Take it now.

Keeping Poor.

A man who had become rich, said that he never bought anything he was not obliged to have, but our people reverse the rule, and buy most everything they are not obliged to have. This is the way we do in our house, and most everybody else that I know of. We have got rich folks' ways with a poor man's purse, and so we live on a strain. It is a curious circumstance in this life, that the folks who would be most liberal and charitable with their money haven't got any surplus to give away. Their very habits of free living and generosity keep them from accumulating money.

How to Treat a Horse.

The following card of instructions are keep in Lord Hampton's stables:

Up-hill—Don't whip me.
Down-hill—Don't shove me.
On the level—Don't save me.
In the stall—Don't forget me.
Hay and corn—Don't stint me.
Clear water—Give me plenty.
With sponge and brush—Don't forget me.
A clean and dry bed—Give me.
When sick and cold—Don't let me freeze.
With bridle and bit—Don't pull me.
When mad—Don't whip me.

The enervation and lassitude of spring time are but indications of the sluggish action of the blood, overloaded with carbonates accumulated by the use of heating food in winter. This condition may be remedied by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier known.

A Safeguard.
The fatal rapidity with which Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—
"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."
The same opinion is expressed by the Medical Journal, L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—
"I have ever found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but in more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

ELECTION, APRIL 27, 1886.

A LAST APPEAL.

On next Tuesday will be decided a question fraught with momentous consequences to the material and moral prosperity of our county. Never before in the history of our country has the noble and unselfish citizen been given such an opportunity to stand up for right and humanity. If the indiscriminial sale of liquors is licensed, every man that votes for it become a silent but effect partner in the traffic. It is the height of selfishness to stay at home and not come out to vote, but it is worse still to try to shift the burden from your own shoulders to that of the County Judge and you may rest assured that any party who can bring himself, within a liberal construction of the statute will be granted license no matter what the opposition may be. The County Court will have no discretion in the matter whatever. So it is useless to expect relief from that source, nor is it right to expect it.

The importance of this issue demands that you drop axe, hammer, plow and everything long enough to cast your ballot and your influence against the abominable traffic. The citizens of Pearisburg, where the stuff will be sold, appeal to their friends in the country to vote against license as an act of friendship to them. Will they do it?

WHISKEY NOT A TAX PRODUCING COMMODITY.

The license is a tax for the privilege granted which includes 15 per centum of the rental value of the room where it is sold. Now who pays this tax? It is a well known axiom of Political Economy that the consumer pays the tax. Then if this tax comes off the consumer it is paid by that class of citizens of all the community that is least able to pay, whilst the bloated vendor goes scott free. But more, is it right for the State to make these poor unfortunate consumers pay this enormous $315,865 revenue derived from this indirect tax? Is this sound statesmanship? must the government be sustained by preying upon the unfortunate habits of its citizens? More than that it is unequal and unjust, because the great consumers of liquor are the laboring men who work hard for their poor pay and yet are made to pay this enormous tax to support the government, whilst the property holders pay but little of this tax.

The whole matter in a nut shell is this, it takes the tax off of property by making the laborer pay it for the privilege of indulging in a bad habit. Yet if the same capital that is used in buying liquor was put into some wealth producing commodity the tax on the property thus produced would keep the tax from being increased on the property now taxed. In other words the tax on the property produced by a judicious change of capital would more than make up the deficit caused by a repeal of the tax on liquors. Let those who are considering the revenue phase of this question look at this view of the matter.

We think from this view that Local Option would not only get rid of an unwise tax but would be promoting sound state policy.

Snyder, while personally popular, is looked upon both at home and in Washington as rather a mild case of statesmanship. The revenue reform element in some of the pack counties is reported to be united on Judge Johnston, who is a strong man and a good politician.—[New York Star.

Hon. S. W. Williams will be a probable candidate for Congressional honors this fall.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

It having been announced that Mr. J. Hampton Boge would speak here on Court day quite a crowd had assembled, when it was made known that he was called to Lynchburg and could not be here. At this opportune time the gallant young Senator from Blaisd, Hon. S. W. Williams arrived and, although, suffering severely from a sore throat, kindly consented to make the necessary speech. He said that the question had nothing to do with either politics or religion but was one simply of Political economy—one to be considered as it effects the body politic. It was not political because both parties were pledged to it in their platforms. He then gave a succinct history of the bill in the legislature, discussing its constitutionality incidentally. He said temptation could be removed if morals could not be enforced. He then discussed at length the bearing of the question upon the revenue and showed conclusively that taxes would not be increased by local option because the criminial expenses would be reduced and the taxable property increased. He showed that liquor was a non-productable commodity and the money spent for it was worse than wasted. He said that there would be at least 5 bar rooms in the county that these would spend at least $1000 Dollars each for whiskey—that nearly the whole of that $5,000 would be sent out of the State for liquor. He then asked the question if it would not be better to build up a home industry with a capital of $5,000 than send that amount out of the State. He asked what had the liquor men ever done for the State, which was the better prepared for business a drunken or sober man. He showed that by a special appropriation made last winter, that whether local option was adopted or not, the school fund could in no wise be affected that even if the special appropriation had not been made, the school fund could only be effected by ½ of the 300,000 dollars revenue derived from the license because our State tax is only 40 cts. on the one hundred dollars and only 10 cts. the ½ of this, was applied to the schools thus the $100,000 is a reserve fund to secure the deficit in the $75,000 should the whole State go for local option thus showing conclusively that the school fund was in no danger. In closing he said that this responsibility rested solely with the voters that if they wished to stay away and let the matter go by default should their sons become drunkards and their county become less prosperous their's would be the blame.

The Rev. R. A. Kelley was then called for and made a splendid effort. Mr. Kelley is a young man of fine appearance and graceful bearing with a good voice. After paying Senator Williams a fitting tribute he proceeded to discuss the moral side of the question. He first discussed its relation to society and secondly its influence on the church. He showed that it was the greatest evil against which society had to contend and tried to impress upon every voter his moral responsibility for this disintegrating influence upon society. As Mr. Kelley warmed to his subject he became so impetuous and eloquent that we had to stop taking notes and listen. When he come to treat of its relation to the church he was particularly severe on those church members who drank wniskey as a beverage. He said he would as soon have a two legged devil in his church and the minister who drank could not preach to him worth a cent. He said that if all the church members in Giles county would vote for local option it would carry by an overwhelming majority. He was confident of victory and that the good people of Giles would express themselves in thunder tones on the 27th of April against whiskey, that they would never forfeit their well deserved reputation for morality in a crisis like this. He was frequently applauded.

The Wabash Brass Band was present and discoursed lively music to the enthusiastic temperance sentiment aroused by the speeches. After Mr. Kelley closed three cheers were given for the Band and the meeting closed. The friends of the measure were well pleased with the success of the day.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

A good portion of the time of the Senate this week has been taken up with Executive Sessions. This is caused by the large number of nominations sent in and no action made thereon during the pendency of the question as to the right of the Senate to call for papers. These executive sessions are a great protection to the Senators from annoyance by "callers". As a rule, when a Member or Senator is to be seen, either to enter his services in the worthy cause of obtaining an office or to importune him about some bill referred to him by his Committee for report the call is made on him at the Capitol after the body is convened at noon each day except Saturday which is a holiday. The number of such callers is so great that there is always a crowd around each door to the chamber and four or five men are kept busy at each door taking cards into the Members.

Senators are more independent of their constituents than are Members of the House, and so the Senate has adopted a rule which is strictly enforced that no card shall be taken to a Senator between the hours of 12 and 2. The result is that the Senators have two hours in which to introduce bills or make reports and discuss subjects without interruption and without fear of giving offense to any one by declining to leave the chamber in answer to a call. But they have more complete protection during executive sessions which are always held after 2 o'clock. Not only can no card be taken in at such times but the galleries and corridors are cleared of all persons, and two policemen placed at each palatial marble staircase to prevent any person getting on the gallery floor where the Senators' voices can be heard very distinctly during any animated debate. On the first floor two door-keepers are placed at each door and additional watchmen placed at the windows between the door ways so that no newspaper man or other eavesdropper can steal any of the secrets. All these safeguards are taken to prevent the people of this republic from learning of the reasons advanced by the Senators for the rejection of some X roads postmaster, while the Senators insist on the Executive giving his reasons for removal and appointment of these postmasters. Consistency, thou art a jewel!

Public opinions is demanding that these star chamber meetings shall be abolished. Many Senators have already heeded the warning and this week some potent speeches have been made in the Senate in advocacy of the resolution to have open sessions and no secret sessions.

A movement is also on foot to have open on Sundays all the government buildings that are maintained for the pleasure and instruction of the people at large—such as the Botanical Gardens, National Museum Smithsonian Institute, and others. It is rumored about the Capitol that when the appropriation bill is reached an amendment will be tacked onto it providing that the Congressional Library shall be kept open on Sunday for the benefit of those who cannot find an opportunity during the week to avail themselves of the rich store of knowledge to be obtained there. It is quite certain that when the new library building is finished and occupied it will be open at night as well as on Sundays.

People here are in grave doubt whether there is any truth in the rumor that the President is to be married in June. Diligent inquiry of officials at the White House failed to throw any light on the subject. If they know anything they are "mum" on the subject. It will be remembered that a similar rumor was circulated about President Arthur during the last year his term, that he would marry Miss Frelinghuysen and nothing came of it.

The Editorial Room.

Rev. Dr. Talmage preached a sermon last Sunday on the newspaper. Among other things he said: "One of the great trials of the newspaper profession is the fact that they are compelled to see more of the shams of the world than any other profession. Though every newspaper office day by day, go the weaknesses of the world, the vanities that want to be puffed, the revenges that want to be wreaked, all the mistakes that want to be corrected, all the dull speakers who want to be thought eloquent, all the meanness that wants to get its warns noticed gratis in the editorial columns in order to save the tax of the advertising columns, all the men who want to be set right who never were right, all the crack brained philosophers, with stories as long as their hair, and as gloomy as their finger nails, in mourning because bereft of soap; all the itinerant bores who come to stay five minutes and stop an hour. From the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shams of the world are seen day by day, and the temption is to believe neither in God, man nor woman. It is no suprise to me that in the profession there are some skeptical men. I only wonder they believe anything. Unless an editor or rep-rter has in his pre-ent or his early home a model of earnest character, or he throws himself upon the upholding grace of God, he must make temporal and eternal ship wreck.

From the Narrows of Good Templars.

It is certainly with great pleasure that I drop a few lines to the general public regarding our Lodge of Good Templars at this place. Never has there been anything instituted or called in our midst that has wield such an influence with our young people as the grand Order of Good Templars. It makes our hearts glow with high anticipations of feeling to know that we have such a grand and good cause going on in our land as Temperance. This is a cause commendable to all nations and more especially this of our. We certainly should feel it is our duty to work in this grand cause. I cant think for a moment that there can be a true hearted man to his county and true to his fellow men, but what can say fight on Good Templars you are doing a good work, God forbid that any of the order may feel depressed in this trying hour, but that we may push forward and that the fruits of our labor may be as bread cast upon the waters may be seen many days hence.

I often look back and think of our little village when invested with the liquor plague supported two barroom, and think of it now when it is entirely banish from us. Look at the difference when whiskey was sold how we had clothing, drunkness degredation, idleness and disputes in various forms. Now, all is well, everything is quiet, calm, sociable and sober. Nothing now prevails in our city to mar the happiness of its inhabitants.

If you never experience this change, now voters and honest thinking men you will have a chance on the 27th to blot this every growing evil from our country, let me beg you to try it, you may not feel any effects from this traffic at present but stop and reflect, have you not a father, brother and other relations addicted to this hellish fluid, if you have not help us and at some future day you will be proud and say thank God I done all in my power to put down this awful evil.

Bro. Mathews our Lodge is growing very interesting. We No. about 40. We now have at every meeting a debate on some question, essays, declamations, &c.

Temperance.

MR. EDITOR:—Contemplating the subject in the light of a probable increase of taxes by its adoption, it is an unfounded proposition, one that has been refuted by experience where practice, or in force, but if it were so, how shameful, and selfish the proposition, that we must run our government upon revenue derived from the unfortunate class of society, oftenest the poor, and frequently from the necessities of helpless women and children. That is the logical effect of the matter. You take from the helpless inebriate, and his family in this shape and defray the expenses of government.

Shame to the people that would pile the burdens of taxation upon the unfortunate of her citizens, those least able to bear it, manhood and uncelfishness cries out against such a principle. Surely the land and property of the country are sufficient to carry the burdens of government, and once abolish the drain upon the country (of money and time), created by the excessive use and abuse of ardent spirits and the taxable property will be so increased as to meet all demands as to taxes, without any increase. Indeed a decrease of taxation would ultimately result. We are sorry to hear from certain section of the county in which no liquor exists, that the people are in different in this matter, that having no bars, they do not consider it a matter of personal interest, and for this reason will not go to the election, what selfishness and lack of benevolence! If you are strong, help the weak. If you have not whisky in your midst, help by your votes to rid other communities of its baneful influence, that are less fortunate than yourself, and don't be too certain that if you purchase should poll a majority for license that you wont have a bar-room in your community before sixty days. Whisky men, brandy makers are looking out for places to dispose of their brandy, they must sell it and it pays better to sell it "by the small" and is it not a reasonable proposition? Yes a certain portion of the people in any community, or voting precinct vote a majority for license that the judge will regard it as conclusive evidence in favor of the applicant who may want to sell at that point

"Let the majority rule" is maxim of our government, and how could a people vote one way on election day, and contend for an opposite proposition before the court. The whisky dealer will be looking out on election day for the place so friendly to their occupation. Already the remark has been applied by one of them to a point said to be a strong hold for license (that has never yet tasted of its effects), "that it would be a good place for the business," and unless they want to realize a practical effect of their votes, they had better beware on election day, how they utter their voices at the ballot box, and there are other points in the county that may reap the same fruits.

"For as ye sow, ye shall also reap." Rise above such sordid and selfish sentiments and what you would not have yourself, don't impose by your votes upon your neighbor. Show your true colors in this election, if you are opposed to the traffic vote against it, work against it, and voting for it never again raise your voice in its condemnation, or the man who sells it for you will be equally guilty with him in the sight of God and man too. He could not sell without your vote to allow him. You put him in the business by your votes, and to borrow a very expressive sentiment "you are a partner in the business, without a share of the profits. If you vote for it, you take approval of it, and for every evil effect there is upon the property, happiness, body and soul you are equally responsible. Surely no christian man would assume such an awful responsibility in the face of such plain and unmistakable bible teachings to the contrary.

Let us then act unselfishly in this matter, and for the highest good of our people and country, and we will reap a harvest of good here and hereafter.

The momentous question trembles in the balance and well nigh evenly divided. Your votes are needed. Leave plow and ax, and go to the polls on Tuesday, April 27th, to throw your influence on the side of sobriety, peace and prosperity.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly safe to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you are afflicted with the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. P. Wood, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before last I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. F. Barker, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Pinchbeck, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

ALIVE IN HER COFFIN.

Miss Martha Devine Apparently Dies, but Returns to Life and Health Before Burial.

Martha Devine, a maiden lady, who resides with her nephew, Theodore M. Cook has suddenly become a curiosity and startled the whole neighborhood. For several years Miss Devine has been an invalid. On Friday night her relatives were called to her bedside to bid her farewell, as she was evidently dying.

Shortly after 10 o'clock she closed her eyes and ceased to breathe. A looking-glass was held over her mouth, but no indications of respiration appeared upon it. She was accordingly prepared for burial.

Undertaker Mitchell noticed that, although the dead woman's form was rigid, with the exception of her extremities, her body remained warm. Without notifying the friends he placed her in a coffin without putting her on ice. For twenty hours she lay in the box and was viewed by several neighbors and mourned by her friends. Her relatives even opened and read her will, thinking that she might make some request regarding her funeral.

Shortly after 6 o'clock last evening, while the family were at supper, Mr. Cook heard a noise in the parlor where his aunt's remains were lying. He was horror stricken to find her sitting up with her head and shoulders gently out of the glass covering over the coffin. She had been in a trance. After getting out of the box she walked and appeared perfectly well. She relates many curious things that she saw while in the trance.—[New York Sun.

Explosion Of Natural Gas.

By an explosion of natural gas at Murrayville, Westmoreland county last week seven persons were injured, three of them fatally. The explosion was followed by a fire, which destroyed seven dwelling houses. The names of those fatally injured are Mrs. Harry Taylor, Wm Taylor, Mrs. Taylor's father inlaw, and Nellie Hacken, a young girl about 14 years of age. Of the others injured three or four will die. The Taylors. They were also seriously burned, but the physicians say they will recover. The explosion was caused by a leak from a main. The Charliers Gas Company was making connections from the McWilliams well a "roarer," just struck to their main line. The heavy pressure caused a break in the pipe and the gas escaping in large volumes soon filled the air and the houses in the vicinity. Before the break could be repaired the gas caught fire from a grate in the house of Mrs Taylor, and almost instantly there was a terrific explosion. Flames shot up in all directions. Mrs. Taylor, her three children, father-in-law, and Miss Hankeu were seated on the porch in front of the house. They were enveloped in the flames and terribly burned.

Taxes and Local Option—Letter from Gov. Colquitt, of Georgia.

The following letter from Senator Colquitt in answer to the question whether the effect of local option, which has prevailed in portions of Georgia for many years and now exists over almost the entire State, has increased the taxes there.

UNITED STATES SENATE, WASHINGTON, March 30.

To Mr. W. W. Smith, Ashland, Va.:

Dear Sir.—A very few words will do for an answer to your letter of inquiry as to the effect on taxation and property values in Georgia of the result of prohibition. The allegation that those have been affected injuriously is simply a device of the enemy. There has not been the fraction of a mill added to our tax in Georgia by reason of prohibition, nor, taking values in Atlanta as an index, has there been any falling off in real estate prices. In my State, as everywhere else, business is halting and dejected; but will say as alot for whiskey and whiskey civilization and prosperity say that the $2,000,000 of working men now out of employment in the United States are thus placed because of the stoppage or reduction of their whiskey ration? I think it is high time for men to take up their slate pencils and figure out what a boom in dollars and cents is worth to say people that has to be endured by the degradation and ruin of a large proportion of the population who contribute the "blood-money" that enters into the bank balances. In the estimation of sours of our latter day economists the redemption of immortal souls for brutish enslavement. A strong drink is entirely too dear, if it is secured by a sinking in trade quotations or an inconvenient hindrances to the downward plunge to perdition, temporal and eternal, by closing the corner dog gery. This is the stupid logic of sin, defiant, hardened, and desperately selfish. We must give up public spirit and political economy as the standard by and see our Christian civilization thwarted and disgraced.

Yours truly,
A. H. COLQUITT.

Alleged Theft in Vassar College.

A rumor is current here that recently several rooms in Vassar College had been entered by unknown persons, and many valuable articles stolen from the young lady students. At first it was thought that some of the employees of the college were the guilty parties. Watch was placed up on them, but without result. Then the officers of the college thought it wise to employ a New York detective, and one was promptly dused. He had not long prosecuted his inquiries when he discovered that the thefts were committed by one of the brightest and most intelligent of the sophomores. There was no arrest made, but the pupil was expelled and sent home.—[New York Sun.

CATARRH.
CATARRH is the forerunner of Consumption, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Diseases, Nervous Debility and Pulmonary Affections.
Catarrh may manifest itself by a running or clearing from the front or back portion of the nose, by hawking, raising of mucus and tenacious matter, by dryness of the throat, by a sense of fullness in the head, by the formation of scabs in the nose, by a ringing in the ears, by a dull pain in the head, by a sense of heat in the face, by a sense of dizziness, by a sense of weakness in the back, by a sense of weakness in the kidneys, by a sense of weakness in the bladder, by a sense of weakness in the bowels, by a sense of weakness in the stomach, by a sense of weakness in the heart, by a sense of weakness in the lungs, by a sense of weakness in the throat, by a sense of weakness in the mouth, by a sense of weakness in the eyes, by a sense of weakness in the ears, by a sense of weakness in the brain, by a sense of weakness in the nerves, by a sense of weakness in the muscles, by a sense of weakness in the bones, by a sense of weakness in the joints, by a sense of weakness in the feet, by a sense of weakness in the hands, by a sense of weakness in the arms, by a sense of weakness in the legs, by a sense of weakness in the body, by a sense of weakness in the mind, by a sense of weakness in the soul, by a sense of weakness in the spirit, by a sense of weakness in the life, by a sense of weakness in the death.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY.....April 30, 1886.

Richmond went "wet" by 5,681. Lynchburg by 1183. Pulaski and Montgomery have gone "dry" by handsome majorities, and Bland "wet."

OUR VICTORY.

"The clouds that have so long darkened our skies have been scattered by the golden beams of truth and temperance," and our doubts and fears removed by the golden reality of a glorious victory. Every lover of temperance and morality feels his heart swell with pride and joy as he looks forward to a cycle of peace and prosperity. We feel a pardonable fervor and glow of patriotism when we recall how nobly old Giles has come to the front and how her good citizens have shown that "there is yet a God in Israel" whom they love and serve.

If one could not feel the glow of triumph, the elation of victory, or the plaudits of a good conscience small would be the incentive to action. We must not forget that our work has only begun and if we desire to secure the fruits of our victory our vigilance must be eternal. We must see to it that the tenders of "walking bar rooms" and the proprietors of "trunk saloons" be shown the curtesy of the "chain gang."

Let every man do his duty and we will see if Prohibition dont prohibit.

This Must be a Mistake.

The Pearisburg Virginian says:

"Giles county has only three occupants, all of whom are horse thieves. Giles is a bad place for horse thieves to come, even if it is a border county."

We had always thought Giles not only a very populous county, but that some of the best citizens of our State resided there—in fact we have visited up in portions of the county, in years gone by, and found it to be the case. But the editor of the Virginian ought to know. Does he class himself and his printer in as two of the three? They certainly must feel lonesome, and have plenty of breathing room up there.—[Advance.

The omission of the little word "jail" has caused all this trouble to the editor of the Advance. No, we do not class ourselves as horse thieves, but we feel like we had stolen the brains of a mule for making the omission and would be pleased if the editor of the Advance would come up and keep us company for not being able to supply it.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Monday will be a great holiday here for the young and for the old folks as well. The custom peculiar to Washington of "rolling eggs" will have full sway, and no doubt the White House Grounds will be as in times past besieged by a large crowd. Every year for the past 20 years the grounds have been a favorite resort for "Young America" on Easter Monday, and until lately the Capitol terrace also furnished amusement for thousands. But Congress has prohibited children from using the terraces for their sport, and restricted them to the White House grounds. President Cleveland, fortunately for the young folks, takes a great interest in the children, and last Easter held quite a reception in the East Room, the little ones crowding in by hundreds when it became known that the President would receive them.

Out of respect to the holy day the Senate adjourned over Good Friday, but the House refused to adopt a resolution to adjourn. The Senate, in anticipation of the adjournment, disposed of a large amount of business, [illegible] saloon bills, which [illegible] heard its calendar [illegible] nines. This [illegible] have been [illegible] streets a early part of [illegible] the Senate [illegible] one [illegible] a purpose [illegible]

The military captured Washington on the post week and held high carnival. The famous New York Seventh had 800 men in line, and they together with the many friends who accompanied them on their march on Washington made the halls of the Government buildings buzz with the merry voices of peace soldiers and their lady friends employed in the offices. The scene was in striking contrast with the exciting warlike scenes of '61, when the same regiment first visited the city in response to the President's call for 75,000 men. The soldiery bearing, fine marching, and gentlemanly deportment of the gallant Seventh won the admiration and praise of our citizens and the hearts of our beautiful girls, and the soldier boys left for home in high glee and with unbounded praise of the reception given them.

One of the most interesting places to visit in Washington is the Secret Service Bureau in the Treasury Department. In this rooms may be seen the photographs of nearly all the noted "gangs" who find it profitable to spend their time in counterfeiting the currency of their country. The groups of pictures hung around the walls contain every imaginable type of countenance, from the most repulsive looking individual to the hand some young man and most beautiful of the fair sex. Here are expose for the benefit of the public the pictures of girls, young mothers with babes in their arms, old women, young and old men, and even the innocent but industrious Chinese, who have sought to defraud the Government by counterfeiting the national currency. The tools, dies, moneyhoods, etc., which have been captured from the counterfeiters, are kept in a large iron safe at night and displayed in cases to the gaze during the day. In this museum the Government will soon have a varied collection, constituting a second Patent Office for exhibiting of American genius. Inquiry of Chief Brooks reveals the fact that counterfeiters are most numerous through the North and West, and instead of prosecution crushing them out, it only seems to serve to give them renewed life and increased vigor. National bank notes are much more counterfeited than U. S. notes and certificates. The most dangerous counterfeits are those struck from a steel die, and are principally imitations of the gold coins. Moulds of various kinds are extensively used in counterfeiting gold, silver and other coins, but these counterfeits are much inferior to those made from dies. The principal metals used are platinum, silver, copper, brass, antimony, zinc, type metal, and their numerous compounds. The standard silver dollars are extensively counterfeited, and are composed of antimony and lead heavily silverplated. The 5-cent nickel coin is a very dangerous counterfeit. It is struck from a die, and is made of the same metal as is used by the mint. The cent, made of copper, nickel and bronze is counterfeited to a small extent, principally to fill cabinets of numismatics, particularly the old dates. Such information as the above is given by the obliging attendant in charge of these valuables, and instead of tiring in telling to the many visitors the history of each counterfeit and the ingeniously contrived tools on exhibition, he seems to become enthused on the subject and to call to mind some "blood-thrilling" event omitted by inadvertence in narrating the story to some person who has left the room just before you entered. If you want to spend two or three days in listening to thrilling stories, don't fail to visit the museum of the Secret Service Bureau when you are in Washington. H.

Canon Farrar's New Book.

A few weeks ago, when CANON FARRAR was in this country, tens of thousands of people paid as much as one dollar each to hear a single lecture delivered by him, and were well pleased with what they got for their money. Several of the most important of those lectures and addresses with other papers are now published by JOHN B. ALDEN, of New York, and can now be had in a very handsome cloth-bound volume, for the price of 40 cents. Some of the lectures are also published separately in his Pocket Library, in which [illegible] on Dante sells for 3 [illegible] presence, 2 cents; on [illegible] 2 cents; Thoughts on America, 3 cents. The millions of intelligent people who admire CANON FARRAR and who were not able to hear him lecture, will be delighted to find his brilliant, scholarly and eloquent thoughts placed in this handsome form within their reach. The publisher's illustrated catalogue, 132 pages, is sent to any address on receipt of 4 cents; or condensed catalogue free. JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, 393 Pearl St., New York.

—The Remington Clipper Carbon Plow. Lightest draft and hardest metal. Metal one half steel. For sale by Thos. J. Pearson.

—Bunker's Hill has been treated to some more organic music. It is a hand organ this time in the shape of a new boy at Mr J. K. Mullins. He is to be congratulated.

—Mrs. Lou Hight has quite a flourishing class in artificial flower-work. She is teaching them at the Arlington. The work is highly spoken of by those who have examined it.

—Does music adopt itself to the feelings of the soul? The bell that peals out joy at the marriage of some is at the same moment tolling the funeral dirge to the hopes of others.

—Mrs T. B. Clendon arrived here from Nashville last Wednesday evening. There is some talk of Mr and Mrs. Charlton making their future home here. We hope they will so decide.

—All those subscribers who owe us for subscription from 12th May, 1884, will be charged at the rate of two dollars per year unless they set the in full before the 12th May, 1886.

—The colored citizens of Pearisburg took a noble stand on the Dry ticket here last Tuesday. They were about 3 to 1 Dry, and deserve the highest encomiums for their faithful work.

—Would a few of the citizens of Pearisburg be much off, indeed if we would suggest the perusal of the 3rd chapter of the Epistle of James to them? It might also be read with profit at certain "rookeries."

—The illustration we received last week entitled "Obdraise" was, perhaps, more expressive than proper, but it shows marks of a genius of a high order and is of a peculiarly thrilling and fascinating nature.

—P. W. Poff, the fat friendly Photographer, who makes photos to the metastimonous prowess will be at Pearisburg out a short time. If you want any good pictures made we would advise you to call and see him at once.

—We return thanks for invitation to attend a public concert given by the Harmonium Literary Society of the Southwest Institute at Glade Spring on May the 7th. The Society will give a "Pink tea" in the dining hall of the Institute after the concert.

—C. J. B. Peck returned this week from Lewisburg, where he has been attending the Thompson-Fowler case. Capt J. B. J. Hudson is still absent and will not return until the case is decided, which will probably be the latter part of this week.

—If you wish to purchase a Piano, Organ, Guitar, Violin, Banjo and in fact anything in the musical line dont forget to write J. D. Hobbs, Lynchburg for prices and terms before purchasing. He carries a large stock at bottom prices and will take pleasure in giving any desired information.

Alden's Library Magazine.

This popular Magazine, which began its existence with the month of May, was transformed from an octavo monthly into a handy, small quarto weekly, has taken other steps in the line of progress. No. 4 of the weekly issue appears in new and larger type, and also with the addition of a handsome cover. In its new appearance it becomes one of the most attractive magazines in the field, while it is beyond rivalry in economy of cost, $1.50 per year. From the amount and quality of the matter it presents it is commonly considered even, superior to the great four-dollar monthlies. You can get a specimen copy free upon application to the publisher, John B. Alden, 393 Pearl St, New York.

EDITOR OF VIRGINIAN: As I have not seen anything in your valuable paper from this place I deem it my duty to let your many readers know that as this is the North corner of Giles it must be recommended as one of the foremost places in Giles. It cannot be excelled for its beauty, with the range of these long string of Mountains running East and West parallel with each other, and the beautiful Lake, the water as clear as crystal, the boats sailing over it to and fro, and the beautiful Bald Knob on its West side from whose top, man can look as far as eyes can see in every direction and yet there is no end to stop at. But, Mr. Editor if you and the many readers of your paper, were ever caught here or visit this place, take my advice and stop at the hotel where you will be met by General Haupt and throw yourself around some of his good eatables as the General is one that keeps it, you will never meet up with any kinder hearted man than General Haupt.

We have a Sunday School here taught by Mrs. Haupt and well cared for. Mrs. Haupt is a perfect lady and deserves great credit for the way and manner she has trained the children's mind and the gifts to the poor. I would be pleased to see our county filled up with such people as the General and his lady.

We have one of the best Steam Saw mill in Virginia, and I will put Mr. J. M. Martin against any man to run one as he is always at his post ready to put on steam and willing to blow off. Mr. Martin is a great machinist and ready to lend a helping hand.

We have great improvements going on here in the way of building and repairing roads, making ready for the summer guest.

Mr. Editor, I would be pleased to see you at the Lake and when you come you will find me on the Hog Skin Branch, a tributary of the Lake.

Now, Mr. Editor, I hope you will insert this in the columns of the VIRGINIAN, if so, you will hear from the Lake again as this is my first.

If any one asks you who I am tell them that I am the boy that lives on HOG SKIN BRANCH.

Of course this was a little unexpected; but "Pat," with his usual courtesy replied, Madam it seems to me that you want common sense. No sir, I repudiate with disdain all common scents. Please furnish me with the most delicious scent you have in your establishment. Faith then Madam, you want a box of axle grease. We ask the Wabash Reporter if we have been properly informed.

Obituary.

Alfria Green Leffer, eldest son of Chas. W. and Mary Ann Leffer born October 17, 1865, died at Oakvale, April 3, 1886, in the 21st year of his age.

The subject of our sketch met his death in a singular way. He was at the time Watchman on the N. & W. R. R, finding a slide on his beat he stopped the train. While assisting the train hands (which was not a part of his duty) to remove an obstruction, a small tree which was the catch by the slide fell striking him on the head crushing in his skull. We learn that on being warned of danger he had only time to raise his head. He was struck about 8:30 o'clock a. m., on 4th inst. The best medical aid was of no avail and thus in the infancy of elegant physique and manhood was cut down. This young man who was the object of affection and pride of devoted parents, especially his mother who was so devoted as to be inseparable from him. The remains were taken to the family burial ground on the 5th inst. and interred by the side of the loved ones that have gone before.

FRIDAY..... May 7, 1886.

COUPON AGITATION.

As quite a number of our neighboring counties have passed resolutions not to pay any taxes in coupons, we would suggest that the people of Giles pass similar resolution at the May term of our County Court. The Democrats did not make this settlement but they have endorsed it and pledged themselves to do all in their power to carry it out. It is for each citizen to consider whether this is a part of his party platform and a principle in his party's creed. It seems that both political parties have adopted the same thing and that if these resolutions are passed they should be passed irrespective of party politics. It is certainly to be hoped that this debt question will never again enter into politics and if the theory of this settlement is erroneous that another and a correct one may be arrived at without this disastrous public agitation. Let our people, one and all, meet here next Court and discuss the matter calmy and thoughtfully and do what they think best in the premises.

The circulars of the London Bond Holders, are being sent out offering coupons for sale of any denomination from $1.80 to $30.00. If our tax-payers desire to take advantage of these coupons to pay their taxes they can do so, but should they be used to any great extent they will impoverish the State Treasury and thereby necessitate an increase of taxation. So they will really be no advantage to any one but the coupon holders, as the tax payer will be taking money out of one pocket and putting it into another and more, by using the coupons he will be keeping alive the debt agitation and necessitate additional legislation and an additional expenses to the State by necessitating an extra session of the legislature.

Why should every Congressman of the 9th district have to reside in the western end of it? Is there not as good material in this part of the district as there is in the west? Let our neighbors of the west and mediate over this just a little semi occasionally and may be a little of this fo saken feeling of the east end can be appeased.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington is in the height of its beauty just now. With its 70 miles of asphalt pavements kept clean as a waxed floor by their nightly sweepings, and bordered with carefully trimmed and nurtured trees now in full leaf with all the freshness of spring time, it presents attractions to be found at no other time and in no other place. The people of our common country are beginning to realize the fact that the spring time is the season to make a pilgrimage to Washington, and hence it is that we are having conventions here every spring, more than at any other season of the year. The Methodist had hardly adjourned their conference before we had the pleasure of meeting our Congregational brethren from New Jersey. These good brethren have been with us since last Monday, and left for home on Friday. Their convention was largely attended by the delegates from here and from a distance and "The Church and the Labor Problem" formed the subject of one day's discussion. The sentiment of the convention was that the church should emphasize from the pulpit the Christian law of brotherly love and arbitration as the equitable means for the solution of the great problem now causing such commotion throughout the whole country.

The American Historical Associa- also holding daily sessions. Eminent literary and learned men our country compose its ship, and they are here in bers. The meeting was of an eloquent and vigor- by the venerable histori- ge Bancroft. Among were the early pro- and the tariff of 1828," by Dr. Fanseig, of Harvard University; "Confederate and Federal Strategy in the Pope campaign before Washington in 1862," by Col. William Allen, of Baltimore; "The value of Topographical Knowledge in Battles and Campaigns," by Maj. Hotchkiss, of Virginia; and the "Origin of States rights," by Dr. Welling, President of Columbia University of this city.

The American Surgical Association is also in session at the Medical Museum. Many interesting and highly instructive papers have been read and discussed, and the surgeons have gotten many new ideas from one another, the value of which they will endeavor to test by experimenting upon their patients for the next year so that at the next convention they will be able to report how many they have cured and how many more they have killed by their experiments.

The competition in plans for the statue of Lafayette to be erected under direction of Congress, is getting interesting and intensely lively. A number of models have already been received at the State Department, and are on exhibition there. One has just been received from France, designed by Mons. A. Falguiere, of Paris. Another and last model is expected shortly from France, and then the selection will be made by the commission appointed for the purpose.

Congress has been working industriously this week. The House Committee has agreed to report a resolution fixing 11 o'clock as the hour of meeting instead of 12 o'clock. The necessity for such a rule has become so urgent that there will be no opposition to it. Many of the appropriation bills have yet to come up for discussion, and the Tariff Bill is also to be acted on. The latter will hardly be reached before the latter part of May, and a long discussion is bound to follow its report. Among the most important bills not yet reported from the committee are the sundry civil, the legislative, the general deficiency, and the fortifications. The naval bill over which a heated debate is expected will be reported by the Naval Affairs Committee the latter part of next week.

It looks now as if Congress would not be able to adjourn before August. But the members don't like hot weather, and therefore it is probable that they will inaugurate night sessions earlier than usual, with a view of getting through with much of the business before "dog days" come. Of course when so much business is crowded into such a short period it is but superficially considered and hence it is that so much loose legislation is done in the last days of every session. Members and lobbyists who have "doubtful" claims or pet schemes to work through hold them back till the last with the hope of getting them passed without the close scrutiny that prevails in the first part of the session.

It has recently been charged that some ex-members of Congress avail themselves of their privilage to enter the floor of the House, to influence legislation. The House has ordered an investigation and it is found that passes have been issued to more than 87 ex members to enter the floor. Some of these ex-members are engaged in law practice here, many of them having "big" cases before Congress and the departments. It must not be assumed however that all these members abuse the privilege granted them, as such is not the case. Most of them go on the floor merely to converse with their "old chums," but as appears from the charges and resolutions made some endeavor to wrongfully influence legislation.

The criminal docket of the County Court of Fauquier is free from all cases.

Judge John M. White of the 10th Congressional district, has resigned as a member of the Democratic executive committee.

The dry weather has started numerous fires in the Dismal Swamp, and considerable valuable timber and cord wood has been destroyed, 900 cords being lost by one party.

Miss Mary B., eldest daughter of the late Washington Lewis, of Clark county, died in Hoboken, N. J., at the residence of her brother in law, E. A. Stevens, Esq., on Sunday, April the 25th, of typhoid fever.

The spring term of the Loudoun Circuit Court went by default, owing to the continued indisposition of Judge Keith. In a private letter the Judge says he is getting better, but is still incapable of much effort of any sort.

The local option election held in the town of Charlottesville and one country precinct—resulted in a victory for the license or "wet" party by a majority of 774 votes. There were 1,610 votes polled. The professors of the University of Virginia voted solid for local option.

Ann Powell, the negress on trial in the County Court of Norfolk for murdering her husband, cutting up the body into fragments and then setting the remains on fire, was convicted of murder in the second dgree Thursday, and sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years. Six of the jurors were negroes.

At the April term of the Circuit Court of Fauquier county, 100 judgments were entered, mostly on past due notes for fertilizers, the failure to comply with promises on the part of the farmers being due to the entire failure of the wheat crop last year. Most of these judgments will be paid after the next harvest, and some are already being settled, the main object of obtaining judgment being to prevent the claims being barred by the statute of limination.

While Thomas Edmunds, a peddlar, was passing along a county road in Nottway county the other day he was assailed by two negro men who demanded his money. Edmunds told them that he had no money, when one of his assailants shot him dead with a pistol. It is reported that the men have been arrested and committed to jail for trial.

A meeting was held in Richmond last week, at which resolutions were adopted expressing opposition to the use of coupons in payment of taxes. One of the resolutions declares a purpose to refuse to patronize any business house out side of the State that attempts to do business by agents without license. A letter was read from Gov. Lee in which he says: "It would have given me pleasure to have been face to face with an audience assembled for such a purpose had not other engagements prevented.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, barks, herbs, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." Mrs. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses One Dollar

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all affections caused by impure blood or low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PERRY, Salem, Mass.

Marriage Bells.

On the 16th of March by Rev. D. P. T. Crickenberger, Miss Mary Stiff and Mr. Luther Snidow, both of Giles county, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock.

The attendants were Miss Alice Snidow and Mr. Wm Lybrook, Miss Raxie Stiff and Mr. Albert Snidow, Miss Racey Lowe and Mr. Author Snidow.

After the celebration of the nuptials, which took place at the house of the bride's mother, the gallant bride groom conducted his fair young bride to their future home, where a host of friends greeted the happy couple and welcome them to the elegant feast that waited them.

May their happiness unmolested by sorrow, flow as constant and beautiful as the clear winding stream on the beautiful banks of which their future lives will be spent.

The above announcement was prepared for an earlier issue of your paper, but the mail being interrupted by the high waters, it was unfortunately ever looked until the present issue.

Narrows Items.

Mr. W. J. Hanson, our polite Depot Agent at this place, was married on the eve of 22nd April to the beautiful Miss Nellie Omeal, eldest daughter of Mrs. Fannie V. Givens. The marriage took place at the residence of the bride's mother at the Grey Sulphur Springs in the presence of a large concourse of friends of both parties. They came over to the Narrows the same day and stopped at the Charlton House where a bountiful repasted awaited them, and they certainly paid it all due respects. We congratulate Mr. Hanson on his good selection for a wife.

Our village is alive with drummers and lumber men, and all seems to be doing a good business. Money matters are good with us better than for three years. Old Narrows is on a boom since Local Option carried.

We installed our officers of our Lodge of Good Templars on the night of the 1st inst., and had two applications for membership. Our Lodge is doing well and growing old. Rye has to take a back seat with us.

All parties wanting Bass would do well to give uncle Joe Hare a call as he says he can catch all he wants by pouring butter milk out on the bank of the river and as they come out to get it he shoots them. He killed 8 the other day at one shot and he says that was a bad day for bass.

Jane Cumbee was in town the other day and says she loves brother B. O. M. of Pearisburg. She says she has the grip now, I hope she wont loose it. Jane might make your Lodge a good reporter. Give her a job as it is right to work new members in.

Mrs. Shannon, Shumate & Topsail are doing fine work on their seed farm. They have planted out about one thousand watermellon hills and other seeds in proportion. The writer interviewed Mr., Shannon last week. He told him he would endeavor to furnish this State with his seeds next spring that he expected to start out Mr. Topsail at an early day to work up the trade. His outfit is already made up and consists of a broken down jersey, a blind horse and a gripsack with one side torn out, but the look and general appearance of their drummer will bring them a large trade. Success to this new firm.

Wabash Items.

MR. EDITOR: The farmers of this community have been very busy planting corn this week. The most of them are putting out a large crop.

"Local Option" has been on a boom here for some time and has at last boomed over in a glorious victory.

I was mistaken when I said that Mr. Schell had caught a trout twenty seven and a half inches long. I have been informed that it was only seven.

Mr. James Linkons of Bane, was in our town on Monday.

Mr. D. E. Dulaney is preparing to build him a handsome dwelling house this summer.

Our up street blacksmiths are very much incensed on the Labor question, and especially so because they can buy bacon two cents on the pound cheaper in Lynchburg than they can in our own town. We approchend a strike.

One of our most ingenious Mechanics, Mr. Frank Anderson, has opened a Cabinet shop and Furniture room at the old stand of Walker Bros. Frank is a splendid workman and is fitting up his shop with the best of Machinery. So if you give him a call you may expect work done in good style.

Mr. C. G. J. is very economical. He wrote to a young lady at White Gate, asking her when there would be preaching at the Baptist Church, and in order that he might save a postage stamp he sent the letter by the mail boy, and the next morning paid him five cents for taking it. Have you received an answer yet Charles?

The young people of this neighborhood are talking about getting up a Croquet party in a few weeks. We hope that they will have a pleasant time.

Mr. W. H. Dulaney of Monroe County, W. Va., has moved to Wabash, and is preparing to add to the business part of our town a Harness and Saddle shop. We bespeak for him a liberal patronage, as he is a first class workman, and can suit you in both price and quality of work.

Mr. B. E. has commenced shaving. He uses his mother's butcher knife. He is expected to make his appearance before long glowing in an (ink) black moustache.

Mr. Murray is building him a new shoe shop.

Mr. Thurman is now occupying his new residence one block West of W. P. Eaton's.

If Nimporte will boil his items in Concentrated Lye, and extract the true meaning from about one dozen of the words used in the paragraph concerning "Pat," we will give him the desired information.

Mr. L. L. the most prominent wool grower in our section, is almost daily "drummed" by agents from the different Woolen Mills of our State, trying to engage his present wool crop. He has had several bands engaged in clipping for him during the past week. His flock is unusually large this season, numbering about twenty seven including one black sheep and several lambs.

Old Uncle "Jack Lincoln," a war veteran of this neighborhood, deserves a little space among our items. Uncle Jack has been for a long time well known in this community, and is now standing with one foot in the grave, and the other in the grass, awaiting the coming of a winged cohort to waft him away to a sunnier clime, where no storms ever beat. The valiant deeds of most heroes shine most brilliantly after their death, but not so with Uncle Jack. As his biography is not likely to be written, his fame is now at its culmination. An account of his exploits in the late war, and his benefactions to mankind since, is reserved to be given in his obituary which will appear subsequently in the items.

Shot at Pocahontas.

At Pocahontas, on last Sunday evening Jack Aarrigan and another man were wrestling. A man named Turner interfered and Louis Baldwin, son of Robert Baldwin, of Tazewell C. H., attempted to stop him. High words ensued which ended in Baldwin striking Turner—Turner returned the blow and Baldwin seized a piece of plank; Turner ran but presently came back and renewed the row. Baldwin again picked up the plank, and thereupon Turner drew a 38 calibre British Bulldog pistol and fired twice. Both shots took effect in Baldwins thigh and while the wounds are not necessarily fatal, still they are dang-rous. Turner was promptly arrested and lodged in jail.—[Wytheville Enterpri e.

Grey Sulphur Springs Items.

EDITOR VIRGINIAN: As this corner of the county has not been represented in the columns of your valuable paper, we thought that we would send in a few items, for we know that a great many of the readers of the VIRGINIAN would like occasionally to hear from us. Therefore if you please insert this we will be thankful at the same time promising you to use all the brevity that we possibly can.

The farmers of this section seem to be in fine spirits over the flattering prospects of a large harvest of wheat and oats. Gardens have a very promising appearance. Nearly all the vegetables are up, and growing finely. Nearly all have planted more or less corn, and some in this section are preparing to put out a considerable crop of tobacco. The plants of the latter are up and growing finely.

Mess. Clark & Dunn have a steam saw mill in operation on the lands of Messrs. George & Kendly Shuma'e, and from the noise they make one would suppose that they are doing a good business.

The many friends of Capt. J. J. Old will be glad to learn that he has virtually recovered from a very severe attack of Chronic Rheumatism.

Our Public School taught by Prof. W. S. Hobbs, closed on the 29th ult. Though he began the school in very feeble health, he improved all the time in health and upon the whole it was a success.

Mr. Shepherd, ferryman at Hobbs Ferry, lost two good boats during the high waters a few weeks passed. He had them both fastened together for convenience. The chain that fastened them to the bank broke and they left in spite of his efforts to save them, and the last that he heard from them they were seen passing the Mouth of Indian Creek.

We received a dispatch on our "Grapevine Telegraph" that Mr. Clifton Spangler and Miss Kate Clark (parties of Peterstown) were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on the 29th ult. at 7 o'clock p. m.

Joseph Spangler and Jack Clark went to Mercer a few days ago to plant Telephone posts between Ingleside and Princeton. They will soon complete their part of the work.

One item more, and we will close. Our community was nearly solid for Local Option. Yet very few on account of the pressure of business attended the election. One of our good neighbors went fishing on that day, met with dull luck which he attributed to the stir that they were making on the bank of the river at the Narrows for Local Option, threw his pole into the river, went up and voted for License.

Truly Yours,

IN MEMORIAM.

Another Angel Gone to Heaven.

Wm. Floyd Williams, infant son of W. E. and V. B. Williams, departed this life Feb. 14, 1886. Aged one year and twenty-eight days.

How sad it is to think that death should visit the happy family circle, and take one of its brightest jewels. But the sickle of death must reap. The slender cords of life were loosened, and its spirit went back to the God who gave it. Little Willie's life was brief; but it was all for the best, for God doeth all things well. He will never have to encounter the cares and toils of a troublesome world. His little spirit has gone from this tollsome sphere to a clime where there's no death, no sorrow, no pain. Parents comfort your hearts with the thought, that your child has only gone before, to strew flowers to mark the way that you may follow his footsteps. When little Willie was placed in his quiet little bed beneath the sod, the deep floods of bitter grief which roll and surge over the bereft soul, with an almost irresistible force, and the dark waves of regret seemed to wrap the future in a darkened gloom, which could never be dispelled. Remember, that Willie is in a land where the dark clouds will never rise to crush out the cherished hopes of a delightful future.

We should remember that life is like a shadow, cast out upon the boundless ends of two eternities, which float for a while and then sink into obscure nothingness.

Parents, friends and relatives may Divine Providence lead all of you to meet Willie in that land where dark clouds never rise, and the sun never goeth down.

'Tis finished! the conflict is past,
The battle-worn hero's at rest;
His missions accomplished at last,
And now he's entombed with the dead.

The months of affliction are o'er,
The days and nights of distress,
We see him in anguish no more,
He's gained his happy release.

No sickness, or sorrow, or pain,
Shall ever disquiet him now;
For death to his spirit was gain,
Since Christ was the life when below.

His soul has now taken its flight
To mansions of glory above,
To tuneful harps with angels of light,
And dwell in the kingdom of love.

Artemus Ward's Last Joke.

When Horace Greeley was running for President he attended a picnic of New York Typographical Union, No. 6, at Jones Wood. Robert McKennie was then President of the Union. He fairly worshiped Horace, and received him with an unbounded ovation. During a conversation, a dispute arose as to American humorists. Mark Twain had just published his "Innocents Abroad," and McKennie asked Greeley whether he didn't consider Mark to be the greatest of American humorists. "No, I don't," Horace responded, "for I don't think much of any man who spoils 600 pages in trying to be funny. If I was asked who was the greatest of American humorists, I should say it was Artemus Ward." "Yes," Robert responded, "and the greatest joke he ever perpetrated was when he died. He made a will, leaving $30,000 for a fund to found an asylum for superannuated printers, and you are one of his executors. It was his biggest joke; for, after the printers, in gratitude, had raised $6,000 for a monument to his memory, it was discovered that Artemus had died without a cent." Horace whined, "It is a lie." But subsequent developments proved it to be true. The printers raised the $6,000 on a novel plan. From one end of the union to the other compositors set up [illegible] ems of type, and forwarded the money to an officer of the National Typographical Union. Nobody has yet learned in print [illegible] that became of the six thousand dollars. The Journalist will enlighten them. During a session of the International Typographical Union in Montreal, a year or two afterward, it was blown into a faro bank by the man who acted as treasurer. A standing for Artemus Ward's last joke.—[New York Journalist.

What the Local Paper Does.

Every year every local paper gives from 500 to 5,000 free lines for the sole benefit of the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The local editor in proportion to his means does more for his town than any other ten men, and in all fairness, man with man, he ought to be supported not because you may happen to like him, or admire his writing, but because a local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be brilliant or crowded with more thoughts but financially it is one of a benefit to a community the preacher or teacher. THE MAIDEN'S SUITORS.

SUITOR NO. 1.

Sweet maiden with the face so fair,
And eyes that like the diamonds shine,
Bright maiden with the queenly air,
Once more I ask, will thou be mine?
Oh, give consent and be my wife,
Some pity kindly show to me;
I love thee better than my life,
And cheerfully would die for thee.

THE MAIDEN.

Oh, do not tease me now, I pray:
Talk love to me some other day.

SUITOR NO. 2.

The reason why I've called to-day
Is this—er—well, upon my life,
I scarcely know just what to say—
And—er—well, will you be my wife?
You'll never know life's cares or ills,
In silks and jewels you shall shine,
I'll get my millinery bills,
And—well, in brief, will you be mine?

THE MAIDEN.

This is so sudden! But—oh, la!
I think you'd better speak to pa.

Miscellaneous.

DOLLY'S LOVER.

The Message of the Daisies.

"What an industrious little thing you are, Dolly. I think if they had to depend on me for three quarts of berries they would do without."

So saying, pretty Ida Minturn leaned her head on her white hand and watched her cousin languidly.

"Tired already?" said Dolly, lifting her sweet arch face from bending over the strawberries. "I do believe everything tires you but going to parties and"—

"Flirting, I suppose. Well, you are not far wrong, and oh, I have a new and splendid subject to try my powers upon. Have you seen pa's new overseer? He's rather distant, but I can make his dark eyes look expressive."

Dolly's face is rosy as her berries as she springs up, nearly upsetting her store of fruit.

"I did not intend to finish my sentence in any such way. Ida, I am ashamed of you. I am sure Mr. Holmes would not stoop to such a thing as a flirtation. I detest the word."

"Ha, ha! If you could only see how dramatic you look, Dolly, with that gory, outstretched hand! But here's Mr. Holmes. I'll tell him how you defended him."

"Oh, Ida, please don't," and Dolly's cheeks are like damask roses as the gentleman in question raises his hat and passes on.

The golden summer flirts by, and it is soon evident to all eyes but Mrs. Minturn's that the gentle girl who has made her home at the farm for three years has captivated the handsome young overseer.

"I think he's perfectly splendid," Ida says when Dolly tells of her engagement with many blushes, "but mamma will never consent, and I really think you are very foolish, Dolly, to throw yourself away on a poor man. With your beauty you might look for a coronet—that's what I'm waiting for."

"Ed rather have Harry love than a coronet!" said Dolly.

"What is that?" said Mrs. Minturn, coming on the girls unexpectedly. "Dolly, I am shocked!"

The blushing girl confesses all, and it is coldly received.

"Engaged to that nobody with nothing!" cries her aunt. "I never thought of such a thing. Your uncle will not hear of it, you will see! He is your guardian, and you cannot marry without his consent till you are of age. That will be in four years, and by that time, it is to be hoped, you will have more sense."

All Dolly's prayers and tears are of no avail. Mrs. Minturn is firm. She is going to take the two girls to London and give them the opportunity of making brilliant matches.

"Four years!" cries Harry Holmes. "Oh, Dolly, will your love ever stand such a test?"

"Do not be afraid, Harry!" cries Dolly. "Neither time nor place nor surroundings can alter my heart, and when our time of probation is over and I am my own mistress you have only to come and claim me as your own."

There is a cluster of daisies nestling in her belt.

Stooping, Harry takes them from their fastening.

"I will keep them, Dolly, in remembrance of your words. And now I will show you a letter that I have received from an uncle of whose existence I was ignorant. See, it comes from Ireland. I have decided to go at once.

Dolly said:

"My Dear Nephew: I have just learned that my sister left a son. This news seems strange to you, but I will explain. Your mother and I were orphans, and she gave her heart to one whom I disliked for just cause. I refused to sanction the marriage or be present at the ceremony. Margaret had the family temper. When she left she said: 'Stephen, you will never again hear aught of me or mine. I shall never forgive you. Never till my dying day shall your name pass my lips.' That was the last time I ever saw her.

"I have no doubt she kept her vow. But I am an old man and in sad need. You are young and strong and to you I turn. I implore you as the last of the family, the only one on whom I have any claim, to come to my aid.

"Yours truly,

"Stephen Hartley."

"I am glad you are going, Harry. Poor old man, left all alone in the world. It's a sad lot."

"I know you would feel so, you unselfish darling," said Harry, with a lover's adoration, looking into Dolly's heavenly eyes.

"What! dreaming yet?" cried Ida one evening as, robed in a white lace dress trimmed with blush roses, she opened the door of Dolly's room. "It's time to be going, and here you are mooning over that everlasting photograph. Haven't you forgotten that nonsense yet?"

Dolly dropped the picture with a sigh. Three years have passed with out a word from the beloved one, who still holds his place in all her dreams and hopes.

"Just think, my coronet is coming at last!" cried Ida, in excitement. "I'm dressed for conquests this evening. Ronnie Andrews says her cousin from Ireland is to be at the ball, and a regular nabob is coming with him, who is heir to a title. Now, I feel in my bones, as nurse used to say, that my hour is come."

At that moment the servant brings Dolly a letter.

Her fingers tremble and her cheeks flush as she opens the envelope.

She reads:

"Darling Dolly: If you are of the same mind as when we parted, send me a cluster of daisies. I have worn the ones I took from you then ever since over the heart that beats for you and you only. Now, as ever, Harry."

The address was inclosed, and Dolly did not wait many minutes before answering. She went to the ball in a quaint dress of white brocade, with only daisies tucked in her silver belt.

"There is Ronnie Andrews with her cousin, and, for Heaven's sake! how much the nobleman looks like Harry Holmes. Good gracious! he is bowing. Well, this is a riddle. Ronnie, see here, where is the coronet you promised me?"

Ida is absorbed with Ronnie's explanation, while Harry seeks Dolly's side.

The conservatory is near, and he draws her hand through his arm as she looks at him in a dazed way.

In the cool, perfumed place he draws her to his heart.

"Do you not know me, Dolly?"

"Yes," she whispered; "it is my love come back to me."

He laughs a happy laugh.

"And are you still ready to marry a poor man—to leave your lovely home for the drudgery of a poor man's wife?"

"I am content with my lot," said Dolly, softly.

A look of almost adoring affection fills the young man's earnest eyes as they rest upon the sweet, downcast face.

"I have a surprise for you, my pet," he said. "I found my uncle was rich and titled, the sole representative of a powerful family. He had written as he did to try me. He was in need only of affection, he said. I am his heir. Darling, can you love a rich man?"

"It is all the same. I love you, cried Dolly, with a happy laugh.

Ida thought it was hardly fair that her cousin should get the coronet after had been reeking for herself so long. To her daughter's chagrin, she decided on love in a cottage and married a bank clerk.

The Devil and Tom Walker.

You, may ask, who was Tom Walker? He was a Boston man, who was meaner than the devil, as was proved in this wise: According to Washington Irving, our American Walter Scott, Tom Walker was a Boston miser who formed a partnership with the devil to discover Captain Kidd's treasure and open a broker's office in Boston on condition that they should divide the profits for a long term of years, at the end of which time Tom was to deliver himself up, heart, body and soul, to the devil as part of the contract. Tom had a wonderful run of business and made immense sums of filthy lucre, but some time before the contract expired he was driving such a hard bargain with a poor, helpless debtor that the devil himself got enraged that any one should be meaner than he was, and in his wrathful indignation he mounted a big black horse during a dark, howling storm dashed up to the broker's office, and snatching Tom by the hair of head, bore him off to hell. When a man is phenomenally successful and adroit in any business that requires subtlety and skill, we say "he beats the devil and Tom Walker."

The Law Requiring Railroads to Fence their Tracks.

Judge McLaughlin decided, a few days ago, the case of Timothy Quinlan ex B. & O. Railroad, by giving judgment for the plaintiff against the railroad for $193, with interest from Aug. 28, 1885, and costs. The proof in this case was that the rail road company had failed to build the fence through the land of the plaintiff as required by the act of March, 1884, and that his stock got upon the track and were killed, and this was all the negligence proven. This was the first case that has arisen under this law in Judge McLaughlin's circuit, and the result of his decision is that when a railroad company fails to fence its track running through improved land, and the owners or tenants stock gets upon the track and is killed, the railroad company will be compelled to pay for such stock.—[Harrisonburg Valley Spirit.

The taint of scrofula in the blood. With many it is hereditary; but it may also be acquired from want of air or lack of exercise, from improper food, or any cause which brings about weakness of the body and impurity of the blood. The disease is characterized by running sores, abscesses, swellings, enlarged joints, sore eyes, etc. No medicine has been so successful in curing scrofula, as Hood's Sarsaparilla. The most terrible running sores gradually disappear under the purifying and strengthening influences of this great medicine. If you are a sufferer from scrofula and desire more evidence as to the wonderful success of Hood's Sarsaparilla, send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for a book containing many remarkable cures.

Distinction Without Difference.

A small boy having highly respectable parents brought home a bag of marbles and on being asked how he came by them replied that he had played "for keeps." He was lectured on the sin of gambling and forced to return his ill gotten gains. A night or two later a progressive euchre party was in order, and prizes bought for the occasion stirred the family pride to a considerable degree. The small boy duly admired them, and then went to bed previous to the guests' arrival. In the morning the prizes were nowhere to be seen, and on inquiry as to their disposition he was told that the people who won them had carried them away. Then he naturally asked: "Luds that playing for keeps?"

WORTHY of Confidence.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla is a medicine that, during nearly 40 years, in all parts of the world, has proved its efficacy as the best blood alterative known to medical science.

SARSAPARILLA (extracted from the root of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla) is the base, and its powers are enhanced by the extracts of Yellow Dock and Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other potent ingredients. IS your blood vitiated by derangements of the digestive and assimilatory functions? is it tainted by Scrofula? or does it contain the poison of Mercury or Contagious Disease?

THE leading physicians of the United States, who know the composition of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, say that nothing else so good for the purification of the blood is within the range of pharmacy.

ONLY by the use of this remedy is it possible for a person who has corrupted blood to attain sound health and prevent transmission of the destructive taint to posterity.

THOROUGHLY effective renovation of the system must include not only the removal of corruption from the blood, but its enrichment and the strengthening of the vital organs.

RELIABLE witnesses, all over the world, testify that this work is better accomplished by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA than by any other remedy.

BLOOD that is corrupted through disease or ague is made pure, and blood weakened through diminution of the red corpuscles is made strong, by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

PURIFYING the blood and building time in series of cases, not benefits will be derived from the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA more speedily than from anything else.

MEDICINE for which the effects are manifest in the body claimed, is abundant in the market, under many names, but the only preparation that has stood the test of time, and proved worthy of the world's confidence, is

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY,..... May 14, 1886.

PEARISBURG AS A SUMMER RESORT.

Pearisburg is situated in one of the most delightful and picturesque sections of Southwest Virginia. Its mountain scenery is magnificent, and its pure bracing atmosphere is as invigorating and as appetizing as any of the most celebrated resorts of the New England States. It is about 3,000 feet above the sea level, within one mile of a depot and within a day's drive of Mountain Lake, New River White of this county and Salt Sulphur and Red Sulphur of West Va. New River and numerous mountains streams its tributaries near at hand and the forests full of game make it a very Elysium for the sportsman.

Its advantages are admirably suited for business men who have but a few short weeks to rest and bring their families to the invigorating air of the mountains. Board could be furnished them cheap and their expenses would be much less than at most any other resort in this section.

Why dont some of our enterprising men prepare to entertain those visitors. It could be done with but little capital and little out lay. This is a rare chance for some enterprising man to make a bonanza. There are several buildings here that can be bought at reasonable figures that are admirably suited for accomodating this class of custom. We invite capitalists to come and see for themselves.

A LAST OPPORTUNITY.

The location for the Alleghany Institute has been fixed at Roanoke City. The Roarer Park Hotel and grounds have been secured and the Institute will be open this fall with a full corps of competent professors. This business boom could have been secured for this place but for the lack of energy and enterprise of our citizens. We can get a similar school here yet if we but push it to an issue. We undoubtedly have the position and can get a school here when we raise the requisite subscription. Pearisburg is so cut off by nature that we can never expect to have any business here except by local enterprise. On two sides it is cut off by New River, on one by a huge and impassable mountain and on the fourth by a toll gate. So we must help ourselves or we will live and die to see our town remain the same old sleepy Virginia town. There are at least out of 300 inhabitants some six or seven men here that have some enterprise, now let them take hold of this matter.

THE JEFF DAVIS BOOM.

We are not in sympathy with this booming of Mr. Davis. It has a political complection that if brought to a successful issue will be ruinous to our party. There will be a solid ified North against a divided South. Mr. Davis is still a firm believer in the Southern cause and an extremest in some of his views. This booming by the South of a man who was at the head of the confederacy gives color to the charges of our Northern cotemporaries that we are not loyal to the Union, and the imprudent and bitter speeches that have escaped the lips of some prominent men in the moments of enthusiasm will arouse more feeling of mistrust and jealousity between the two sections than years of, patience and prudence can counteract.

The Hon. John W. Daniel made a big speech in Congress a few days ago on the silver question. It is said to be a master peice on the subject and treats of the financial question in a masterly manner.

Dr. James F. Harrison, who has been chairman of the faculty of the University of Virginia since 1873, is dead, and Prof. Chas. S. Venable, his immediate predecessor in office, has been chosen by the Visitors to fill the vacancy. Professor Thornton has been elected assistant chairman.—[Atlanta Constitution.

Bedford on Coupons.

The people of gallant old Bedford do not mince their words in dealing with the coupon question, but speak to the point with pluck and force. Following are resolutions adopted by them in mass meeting:

1. That we pay our taxes due the State in money.

2. That we regard all attempts and methods resorted to by Virginians to pay their taxes in coupons as unpatriotic and unjust, and unfair to those of their fellow citizens who pay in money, by which the rich man pays his taxes at one half the rate at which the poor man pays his.

3. That we will remember in our business transactions those persons who come from abroad for purposes of gain, having no local interests, who persistently engage in a practice embarrassing to our State, unjust and annoying to its officials, and in every respect injurious to our home merchants and people."

Thomas J. Cluverius.

Whatever else may be said of young Mr. Cluverius, the betrayer and slayer of Fannie Lillian Madison, it must be admitted that he exhibits all the outward marks of "a perfect gentleman."

Suave and serene, this almost beardless youth, during his trial and his long imprisonment has maintained not a bold front, but an aspect both childlike and bland.

When he was notified the other day the there was no hope, that the decision of the Supreme Court was against him, he heard the news without a tremor, and raising his clear, frank eyes, calmly said: "I am surprised." Then after a pause, he added: "I had hoped for better results." He was told hereafter he would be placed in solitary confinement, with a smile and bow, he said to the officer: "I have tried not to give trouble to any one one in this jail, and I will continue not to do so.

Undismayed by the terrors of the gallows, this boy, for he is little more, displays an unflinching courage worthy of a better cause.—[Atlanta Constitution.

Change of Gauge.

The Norfolk and Western Rail road Company will, we learn, change the gauge of the road, on the 1st of June, from five feet to the standard gauge of four feet, nine inches.

It is contemplated to perfect this change in one day, by employing a large number of hands, and suspending all traffic for that day. It is also said that the present schedule will then be changed.

It is further said that this road will, about that time, run double daily trains between this city and Norfolk, which we hope will be done.—[Advance.

A resolution has been introduced in Congress looking to a proper observances of Decoration Day, the 30th of May. The Grand Army Posts too are moveing, and the historic trees of Arlington—the former home of Lee, and now the great National Cemetery—are shooting forth their tender leaves of spring to clothe the silent city of the dead in immortal green. Other cemeteries in the vicinity of Washington are visited on the 30th of May by patriotic and grateful citizens, but the District turns out en masse to shower emblems of love on the graves of the unknown dead at Arlington. No distinction is now made between the the graves of the Confederate and Union braves The same hands strew the May flowers upon both, and all animosity is buried in the graves. A daily registor is kept at this cemetery of all visitors, and a comparison shows that nearly as many strangers visit it as go to Mount Vernon. II.

There has been a mark change for the better in the conduct of newspapers in the last five year. This change extends not only to the daily but also to the weekly press. The day seems to have gone by when long editorial homilies or verbose local comments are demanded. The public now crave all the news in in a condensed and consise form. Editorial opinions which formerly consumed a column must be boied down to ten or twety lines. State, National, and all other news must be briefed into the fewest possible words. The same rule applies to local intelligence in the countrypress. Those papers which fail to recognize this popular demand will shortly learn their mistake.—Ex.

There are a number of things which tend to keep a town from growing, among which might be mentioned a lack of pulic enterprise on the part of the citizens. The location, of course, tends to keep a town down, but push and energy overcome all ob tacks. If land owners charges too much for their ground, that keeps a place down. If he people prefer to patronize other places and refuse to patronize home industry, that also tends to keep a town down. If the people refuse to aid an enterpris because they are not directly instereated in it that will do the town no good. Many towns are kept in check by the lack of a disposition to encourage new enterprises. What is wanted is for the people to work together, to be united, as it were, for the public good. Patronize each other as much as possible, and only when necessity compels you to do so should you go away from home to make your purchases Patronize your own town, and it rapidly becomes a thrifty—and prosperous place.—[Fayette Democrat.

Congressman Gibson (in the House) in reply to a speech from an Ohioman, expresses himself on the labor troubles as as follows: "I regret that the gentleman from Ohio should undertaker to bring politics into a discussion of of this question. The gentleman had charged the majority of the House with not bringing forward a proposition which would have any practical results on the country is suffering from is the result of the powers given by corrupt Congress to great corporations under the twelfy years of Republican administration. It was the watered stock and the unjust charters granted by Congress against which labor was rebelling, Gentleman on the other side ought not to assail this House because it could not bring about a remedy in a day, but ought to confess the crimes and sins of their twenty years of legislation." —[Fayette Democrat.

Mrs. Folsom, mother of the President's prospective bride, who has been ill with Roman fever, has suffered a relapse, and it is said that Miss Folsom will not arrive in this country in consequence before the early part of June. Meanwhile it is cabled that the bridal preparations are steadily going on and that the wedding gown has been fitted and is almost finished. The engagement is no longer denied.—[Fayette Democrat.

There are now in living a few miles from Fayetteville a man and his wife who during the first fourteen years of their married life were the of thirteen children. When we consider that no twins or triplets were born to them, this fact is rather remarkable. All of the children are now grown, and nearly all of them are now residing in this neighborhood.—[Fayette Democrat.

Among spring preparations, do not neglect that which is most important of all your own body. ALABAMA'S BIG DAY.

Speech of Hon. Jeff Davis in Full.

Last Wednesday was a big day in Montgomery, Alabama. The occasion was laying of the corner stone of a Confederate monument, attended by impressive ceremonies. The oration was General John B. Gordon, and we have read his speech with great interest. It pays a glowing tribute to Ex-President Davis, the Confederate soldiers and their cause, but is warm in its expressions of fidelity to the Union. Hon. Jefferson Davis was present and received a great ovation. He was loudly called for, and delivered the following speech:

My friends.—It would be in vain if I should attempt to express to you the deep gratification which I feel at this demonstration; but I hope that it is not personal, and therefore I feel more deeply grateful, because it is a sentiment far dearer to me than myself. You have passed through the terrible ordeal of war which Alabama did not seek. When she felt her wrongs too grievous for further toleration she sought a peaceable solution. That being denied her, the thunders of war came ringing over the land. Then her people rose in their majesty; gray haired sires and beardless boys eagerly rushed to the front. It was that war which Christianity alone approved a holy war for defence. Well do I remember seeing your gentle boys, so small to use a farmer's phrase, they might have been called seed-corn moving on with eager step and fearless brow to the carnival of death; and I have also looked upon them when their knapsacks and muskets seemed heavier than the boys, and my eyes, partaking of a mother's weakness, filled with tears. Those days have passed. Many of them have found nameless graves, but they are not dead. They live in memory, and their spirits stand out a grand reserve of that column which is marching on with unfaltering steps toward the goal of constitutional liberty. [Applause.] It were in vain if I should attempt, as I have already said, to express my gratitude to you. I am standing now nearly on the spot where I stood when I took the oath of office in 1861. Your demonstration now exceeds that which welcomed me then. This shows that the spirit of southern liberty is dead. [Long and continued applause.] Then you were full of anxious hopes. You had every prospect of achieving all you desired; now you are wrapped in the mantle of regret, and yet that regret only manifests more profoundly and does not obliterate the expression of your sentiments. I felt last night as I approached the Exchang Hotel from the gallery of which your porches orator, William L. Yancy—intr. duced me to the citizens of Mont gomery and commended me in lan guage which only his eloquence could use, and which far exceeded my merits. I felt I say again, that I was at home—for my home—coming to a land where liberty dies not and sentiments will live forever. [Applause.] I have been promised, my friends, that I should not be called upon to make a speech, and therefore I will only extend to you my heartfelt thanks. God bless you one and all—old men and boys—and the ladies above all others, who never faltered in our direst need. [Loud and long-continued applause.]

When he retired the shouts were so long and loud that Mr. Davis had to go to the front again. He bowed his acknowledgments and thanks.

Redemption of the "American Desert."

Mr. Nimmo said last year in his official report upon the cattle industry: It appears to be a well-established fact that in the States of Kansas and Nebraska the limits of the area sufficiently watered by natural rainfall for agriculture purposes has during the last twenty years moved westward from 100 to 200 miles." Wichita is near the ninety-eighth meridian, and Dodge City, for many years a center of the cattle trade, is almost exactly upon the 100th meridian. A settler in Nebraska, living near the 98th meridian, declares that land in the central part of that State which now yields heavy crops was regarded as desert twelve years ago. It was then difficult to raise hay even on small patches of ground in the valleys; but now, in the same region, the farmers easily cut two tons from an acre. Hills that were then almost covered with barren sande, showing scarcely a blade of grass, now supports thous and of cattle. As late as 1878, it is said, no water above ground could be found between Beaver and Cedar Creeks, just west of the 98th meridian. Now, it is reported, that region and a stretch of country for 100 miles to the northwest are dotted with shallow ponds, varying from an acre to five acres in extent around which excellent grazing is found. A few years ago settlers on the ninety-eighth meridian in Nebraska supposed that they had reached the western limit of corn culture; but since those days corn has been shipped from a region 100 miles westward. These changes have been caused by an increase of rainfall, and this increase appears to have been caused by the cultivation of the soil. The concurrent testimony of settlers, not only in Kansas and Nebraska, but also in more elevated regiom in the far Northwest, seems to prove this.—[New York Times.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty six pounds.

The Thompson-Fowler Case.

Lewisburg, W. Va., May 1.—In the case of the State against Thompson for shooting Fowler the jury after being out 24 hours could not agree and was discharged. They stood eight for acquittal and four for manslaughter. This failure to agree on the part of the four creates some indignation, as the opinion is expressed that Thompson was fully justified in what he did. The case was argued for the defense by Col. J. W. Davis, Capt. R. F. Dennis, Jno. A. Preston and Senator Kenna, and occupied the time of the court for almost two weeks. The State was represented by John A. Arbuckle, assisted by the Court, and the friends of Fowler were represented by ex-Attorney General F. S. Blair, of Virginia. A new trial was formed for the November term of the Court.—[Wheeling Register.

At Reading, Penn., a boy, aged seven, has a mania for fire, and seeks to burn up everything he can lay his hands on. He formerly lived with his parents in Philadelphia, where he cremated his brother, of eighteen months, and who is published for it threatened to kill the rest of the family. He was then sent to his grandmother in Reading where he has roasted several cats, burned up shoes and other wearing apparel, and has made attempts to set fire to buildings.

There were all the evidences of a coming storm; but when he drew from his pocket a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup then came a calm, for the boy had the cromp and would now get well.

Little Willie screams and stamps with a barn upon his arm. To little Willie joy is sent, by using Salvation Oil, the great liniment.

I don't believe in special providence. When a mule kicks a man and knocks him anywhere from eight to sixty feet off I don't believe it the lord; I say to myself "That man got a little too near the mule."

Many ladies admire gray hair—on some other person. But few care to try its effect on their own shanks. Not need fifty, since Ayer's Hair Vigor prevents the hair from turning gray, and restores gray hair to its original color. It cleanses the scalp, prevents the formation of dandruff, and wonderfully stimulates the growth of the hair.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the worst and severest forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my body and limbs, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by several physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Hemley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And how after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all healed, leaving only a few scars to show where are still existing remains of my former misery. I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. At 39 yr student of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, hoping that they may be the means of leading some one suffering as I did to try Hood's Sarsaparilla." CHARLES A. LOCAL ITEMS.

—Col. B. E. Tallant is progressing rapidly with his new shop.

—Malta Double plows for sale by Thos. J. Pearson.

—Capt. J. R. Donlap of I. Whitehill & Co., Baltimore, was here this week.

—Miss V. E. Charlton has already moved into her neat and tastefully arranged new store.

—Mr. H. T. Jones and Mr. M. St. Clair, were in town this week on legal business.

—The Postmasters of this county are getting very careless about distributing our mail. This must be amended.

—Miss Cherrie Talley, one of Big Stony Creek's most charming belles paid our town a flying visit this morning.

—The advanced sheets of Judge D. E. Johnston's "memoirs of the war" are out. They are exceedingly interesting.

—Mr. P. F. St. Clair and wife, accompanied by Mrs. T. J. Pearson passed through town on yesterday en route to Mountain Lake.

—Judge Easley, wife and youngest daughter left for Princeton, W. Va., on yesterday. They will be the guests of Capt. Jno. Douglass.

—Your system is now more susceptible to the benefits of a reliable medicine than at any other season. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Miss Fannie H. Ellis one of the charming young ladies of the Narrows spent several days in town this week. "Madam Rumor says she is to be married soon.

—Miss Sallie Burk, who has been visiting Miss S. S. Wharton on Dunsenbrun Street, left for home in Virginia yesterday evening.—[Nashville American.

—County Court here next Tuesday. If those subscribers who owe us from the 12th of May, 1884, will pay up then they will only be charged at the rate of $1.50 per year.

—Mr. Chas. M. Franklin of J. H. Franklin & Sons, Lynchburg, paid us a pleasant call on yesterday. Charlie is a kind and genial young man and we are always glad to see him.

—New store, new goods and low prices. You can find anything in the Millinary fancy goods and notion line by calling on Miss V. E. Charlton at her new store, next door to old stand.

—Mr. Josiah H. Strader one of Giles most substantial citizens and an uncompromising Democrat made us a pleasant visit this week, and paid us for the VIRGINIAN for one year in advance.

—In last week's issue we made a mistake in the marriage of our friend Mr. R. O. Scott. It should have been Miss Hollen Whaling instead of Miss Mary Whaling, as we had it as the lady he married.

—Mr. John W. Charlton has bought him a fine wagon for the Combination Bed Springs business. He is meeting with encouraging success in his business and has made arrangements for enlarging his capacity.

—A crank of a sign painter tramp decorated the windows of our merchants with beautifully colored paint one day this week. He ought to hire an interpreter to follow him and read to the town gossip what he has put on the windows. Too much guessing may injure his trade.

—Zack Hartwell who was charged with murder was tried at the last term of the Tazewell County Court and fined $100.00, owing to palliating circumstances attending the killing. Zack is to be congratulated in getting off so easily, although, we must say that we would have but a very poor opinion of any man who would not defend the honor of his family.

—The revival that has been carried on here in the Methodist church for the past week presents a strange anomaly. The Methodist ministers have been preaching to Presbyterian and Baptist congregations whilst the Methodist members, with the fewest exceptions, have been taking no part in the work. We do not know their reasons but surely they must be weighty ones to keep christians from joining heart and hand in a great and glorious work like this.

—The Remington Clipper Carbon Plow. Lightest draft and hardest metal. Metal one half steel. For sale by Thos. J. Pearson.

—Be ye watchful for the day in which ye thinketh not I taketh my departure; and he that hath not his picture taken loseth a good chance. Time sin a humming, the world am a humming, so come along folks it you are coming. I guarantee to make you as good Photos as you can get in the cities. P. W. PUFF.

—Mr. H. L. Watson was in town this week. We were sorry to learn from him that Prof. Crowther, who was elected to make the next address before the Alumni Association of the V. A. & M. College, would be unable to make the address. It now falls to Mr. Bolen, a promising young lawyer of Culpeper county. We may expect something good from Mr. Bolen.

—It will pay you to post yourself always before spending your money. To do this write to J. D. Hobbin, Lynchburg, for lowest factory prices on Pianos, Organs, Violins, Guitars, Banjos, Harps, &c., or for any other information you may want concerning Instruments. He is always anxious to tell you about musical goods.

—The Rev. R. A. Kelley has made quite a favorable impression upon our people by his forcible and incisive sermons. His sermons on the development of the Christian life were peculiarly interesting. His comments on the incident of the Ten Talants were very striking and those touching the good Samaritan were just splendid. He called the religion of the Priest and Levite "round about" religion. He said they preached on one side and walked around on the other. He said the good Samaritan had "Heart" religion. "Hand" religion and "money" religion. He said that there were just lots of Christians whose hearts were so small that you could put three into a pint cup and have room left for five more. We would like to give more of his remarks but we have not the space, and those who have not heard him have missed a treat indeed.

Pearisburg Enterpaise.

The telegraph line is nearing its completion. In a few days we will be able to sit in our office and have a nice little chat with Queen Victoria or old Bismark, and hear what causes Greece to stew. In a few days the stock market of Pearisburg will be known as soon to the Bulls and Bears of Wall Street, as it will be to our next door neighbor. In the near future a small wire will bind us to all the world. Before another moon shall wane we shall know when it is 12 o'clock in Washington. Ere a score of suns shall set Pearisburg shall be connected by a strong cord with all the business world. We say Hurrah for Pearisburg! and again we say Hurrah for Pearisburg!!

EDITOR VIRGINIAN; SIR:—You are hereby instructed not to send any more copies of your paper to the addresses of Wm Rector and Julius Gunnoe. We have paid Peck and if he has not paid you we are not responsible and therefore do not propose to pay you or any one else again, and after considering the matter have come to the conclusion that we can do as well without your paper as you can do without our correspondence in which we are to be the judges, and finding that you do not understand the rules and law that governs Editors and that is when the manuscript is demanded Editors are bound to furnish and this is notice for you to discontinue our paper.

RECTOR & GARRISON.

Letter from Hillsboro, W. Va.

MR. EDITOR:—I have just read in your paper of the victory in Giles county for Temperance. I congratulate you sir, with the many others, and the good women that success has crowned your efforts to arrest the Tiger in his wide range. How has the mighty fallen! I read your editorial and the report of the election with no little emotion, and gratitude. Now, that the ground thaw won, may be held, it will be necessary that vigilant eyes be open the enemy as he creeps about in secret places. Let him that stayed on the fence, now come down and join our dry circle. May King Alcohol never rule in your county again. No, never! The demon has no quarters in this town (Hillsboro). Wishing your enterprise success.

I remain respectfully yours,
May 6, '86. M. E. MILLER.

Thessalia Items.

MR. EDITOR: As it has been some time since I wrote anything for your columns or even saw anything in your paper from our part of the country, I thought, it would not be out of place to drop you a few items from our lively little ville.

The farmers are busily engaged planting corn. From early morn till dewy eve the rough voice of the ploughman mingling with the sharp ringing of the hoes as they strike the rocks afford music unrivalled by any other instrument. In some respects it is very sweet and thrilling.

I am informed by a reliable party that our friend Mr. A. G. F. will probably finish planting corn about the 1st of July as he is putting out a very large crop, about six acres.

Wheat looks well and everything now indicates that the corn cracker will be laid aside after while for the more agreeable biscuit.

But the crowing event of the season with us was a fishing "exertion." On the morning of the 4th a party of four, composed of one preacher, one knowledge seeker, one relic seeker and one fisherman left their quiet homes for the land of Nobuisness to gaze upon the picturesque scenery afforded by that country and to hook trout. They took their dinner so that they would not suffer on their journey. Just as the sun was disappearing behind the Western hills, they were seen returning, all were crest fallen, but the relic seeker who bore upon his shoulder a remarkable and queer looking affair which he informed us he had found on his trip, but on privately examining some of the other members we learned that it was a bear trap and that it had found the gentleman first, and had it not been for help no doubt instead of adding that valuable to his pile of relics he would now be confined on the dreary wastes of Dismal where the Lion roareth and the Whangdoodle mourneth her first born." The fisherman told us that he could not get to the Creek for the water which was quite an unusual occurrence, while the knowledge seeker and preacher was scarcely been heard of since their "exertion."

But enough at present.

MR. EDITOR: There is an encouraging prospect for a large wheat crop in this section. It makes our farmers grin.

Miss Ellie M. Stewart was visiting relatives here Tuesday (4th.)

Somebody had better keep their eyes scotched open. Messrs. M. and G. of Highland, has found the way down the creek."

Mr. G. W. D. has a peculiar way of addressing the young ladies. He calls them "doves."

A. J. Whitaker, the Republican Radical Mahonnite, has been trying to die for sometime passed recovered during the recent rain wenf over to the kitchen which is in one half of a mile (more or less) from the house to eat his dinner. As he approached the kitchen he saw the chimney lying in the path, he took back track & went to the house. We do not know whether he has eat any dinner yet or not.

C. W. Stafford, Constable of Walker's Creek district, come here on official business a few days ago. We suppose he met with good luck for he left town singing, "we shall meet on Canaan's happy shore."

Messrs. Maya and Woods are putting out a large crop of corn this spring. They are going to supply the old Dominion with corn next fall if we have plenty of rain this summer and not too much sunshine.

A county enterprising reliable firm Dennis & Patterson can always be relied upon. They will finish planting corn towards the last of August.

Mr. J. O. S. went dog hunting not long ago, found five of his sheep lame and took his wagon went and got the sixth one. We do not know whether he killed any dogs or not, if he did we do not miss any of them.

Prof. Tyler S., the singing master passed through town on the second. Tyler can't you come over and sing that good old song for us, "Tis the good old ship of Zion."

G. W. G. wishes us to inform the public that he is keeping hotel on No. 1 Street, and he is prepared to accommodate commercial travelers. Also, summer boarders and permanent table boarders. He keeps a second class table at all times. Give him a trial and I am sure your will give him another.

Your friend, CALVIN.

Letter from Nebraska.

PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.,
May 5, 1886.

EDITOR VIRGINIAN: If you will give me a little space in your excellent paper I shall be pleased to give your readers a few facts concerning Neb. Plattsmouth being the County seat of Cass county, is situated on the right bank of the Missouri River, 21 miles South of Omaha, 28 miles North of Nebraska City and 55 miles East of Lincoln, the Capitol of the State. Plattsmouth has a population of eight thousand. Her people are an industrious people, wide awake to money making. Among our industries are the B. and M. Machine shops employing from 5 to 6 hundred men. We also have an Iron foundry, Canning factory and Gas factory. Our streets are lighted up with Gas. We also have 4 large Clothing Houses, 5 Dry Goods Stores, 6 Grocery Stores and quite a number of Confectionaries and Notion Stores. We have 4 large Hotels, besides a number of private boarding houses. We have 6 Churches, 3 Banks, and one Opera House and 4 Halls, all large and commodious. We have elegant water and plenty of it. We have plenty wood fuel and other purposes. Plattsmouth is surrounded by a splendid farming country. It cannot be excelled in the production of corn and is noted for fine large apples.

A laboring man can get better wages here than he can in Virginia. I love to speak of Virginia for she is my native State, and when I see that "Giles" has added another leaf to her Laurels, another Scroll on the Spiral of fame." I say "Hurrah for old Giles."

And when I see, as I often do, in your paper, the good work of the I. O. G. T's., I feel like shouting aloud and press forward the good work which you have begun.

We have an I. O. G. T. Lodge here. We also have a W. C. T. U. and a Y. M. C. A. started.

When I see the many advantages which we have here, of which you are deprived in the South. I am almost ready to believe what Horace Greeley said when he said "young man go West and grow up with the country."

One more word in behalf of the VIRGINIAN, and I'm through. There is no paper that comes to my desk more eagerly perused than the VIRGINIAN, and I would say to all who have never taken the PEARISBURG VIRGINIAN, subscribe for it now.

Respectfully yours,
T. E. REYNOLDS.

In Memoriam.

"Little Bessie Shannon infant daughter of C. W. and Maggie Shannon departed this life on the morning of 15th of April. Age 6 mos. and 10 days.

Little Bessie was a great little sufferer from the first hour of her affliction until God on the morning of the 15th sent his ministering angels from heaven to relieve her of her suffering and waft her little spirit home to God who gave it. It is true the parents might think this hard to loose this little gem, but their loss is little Bessie's gain. Let them ever think of the consolation that God has given them "Suffer little children to come unto me forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of heaven." This bright Sabbath morning little Bessie is basking in the bright sunshine of heaven and whispers safely:

Dear father I ask you to come,
In heaven I love to stay;
Be faithful and you'll get home,
At that bright and glorious day.

Dear mother I am at rest,
Oh! come up here and stay;
I am now with the blest,
And will be at that great day.

Dear little brother and sister,
I left you behind you know;
Be good little brother and sister,
And meet me on heaven's bright shore.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY..... May 21, 1886.

Most of the counties in the State have passed resolutions boycotting the coupons. All England and the United States cant make the people of Virginia accept anything else but the Riddleberger settlement much less the London bondholders backed by the United States Supreme Court.

A Distinguished Visitor.

The Lynchburg Virginian says:

"Judge Kelly, the old and distinguished Pennsylvania Congressman known as "Pig iron Kelly will visit Lynchburg next Friday, and while here will be the guest of Mr. W. S. Patterson. The Judge comes to inspect the iron industries of this section, and with Mr. Patterson, will visit Southwest Virginia."

To which we add that there is no man, North of Mason's and Dixon's Line, that is more honored and respected in all this section of Virginia than this old veteran Protetionist. He will recieve a cordial welcome and heartily greeting from all classes and parties.—[Wytheville Enterpriso.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

General Rosecrans is having a hard time before the Senate Committee on Finance in the matter of his confirmation. The opposition to his confirmation is very strong, but it is possible that he may pull through. On Wednesday, Ben Butler made an argument against the confirmation. The register, how ever, has warm friends espousing his cause, and he has filed a written statement in which he does not deny being connected with certain California land transactions, but says that what he did was under advice of his lawyers, and that he has since been sustained by the courts.

The bill to restore a large amount of jewelry, silver ware and other valuables captured by the army during the war, to their rightful owners, has passed both Houses of Congress. Most of the valuables captured by the army, and not plundered by the soldiers, were sent to Washington by the commanding officers, and have been stored ever since 1865 in the vaults of the Treasury, where they have remained undisturbed until a short time ago. Treasurer Jordan wishes to be relieved of their responsibility, hence the action of Congress. It is probable that bills will be gradually introduced looking to the restoration of other captured property.

The talk of the day in Washington is the marvelous success of the new periodical entitled, Pooles Opinion. It is a weekly publication printed here, and containing in epitomized form, the current thought or public opinion of the week, on all live questions of the day as gleaned from the leading dailies and magazines of this and foreign countries. Both sides of every question is impartially stated as found in papers of all political faiths, and due credit given to the paper from which the extract is made. Members of Congress and all prominent public men are found eagerly scanning its pages to get the drift of public opinion on vital nation questons being discussed at the same time in all parts of our country. The scheme is a novel one, and all newspaper men here are wild over it. It is too good a thing to miss, and is the only journal of the kind in th is country. It is noted in this letter to keep your readers posted in what is transpiring in the newspaper field at the Nation's Capital. H.

HORRIBLE TRIGEDY:

A Scene of Bloodshed in Martinsville, Va.

Martinsville, Va., May 17.—A horrible tragedy occurred here at 7 o'clock this evening, in a fight between J. K., W. E., and Benjamin Terry, three prominet young business men and brothers, on one side, and P. D. Spencer and several others on the other. Many shots were fired. J. K. Terry was certainly killed, and the two brothers are thought to be mortally wounded.

T. F. Brown, a business partner of Spencer, and Spencer himself was seriously wounded. R. L. Gregory, clerk of the Lee Hotel, B. L. Jones, a saloon keeper and Hugh Dyer, sergeant of the town, are also badly shot.

On Saturday last W. L. Terry printed an anonymous card, ridiculing a tax bill the town Council had passed. Col. P. D. Spencer was a member of that body and took exceptions to the article. During Saturday night a dodger was printed and posted all over town. It seriously and unmanly reflected on Mr. Terry, thought by him to be an insult to his dead father. He telegraphed to Aiken Summit this morning for his brothers. They arrived here at noon. Nothing was said, and the town did not know that a meeting would take place. It did this evening, in a crowded street, with the results detailed, above. A gloom is spread over the entire community and intense excitement prevails, though there will be no further trouble.—[Lynchburg Virginian.

Sam Jonesisms.

Some of the most telling shots fired by the evangelists have been in the form of aphorisms. Short and pithy, they expressed just what the preacher intended, and so clearly that no one could fail to understand their meaning. Among those used during the week were the following:

You pack your preachers in an icehouse and shove them all the year because they don't sweat.

Many of us are too decent to be religious.

My prayer is for a copy of the heart of God.

I never call names, but every fellow knows his number when I talk.

Please recognize me down here. When I am in glory, with a palm in my hand, if you don't want to recognize me you needn't do it.

I pray God to give me a heaven to go to heaven in.

I'll put up with less in heaven if I can get more down here.

Every true man is an eternal millionaire.

The greatest gift of God is a game preacher.

I had rather be a man in the truest sense of the word than the best angel in heaven.

The church is the last place in which to be solemn provided you have lived right.

If I have lived right, I'll wear a smile as broad as Heaven; but if I've been swindling and doing wrong, I'll have one as broad as a graveyard.

Christ was full of sympathy for the unfortunate sinners, but he saw the amen corners bringes.

I want to be a good man and a good husband, but God keep me from being a nice preacher.

If I am a revivalist, I've grown to be one just as the fingernails have grown on my fingers.

God never made two men alike but one was of no account.

I'd rather be a man than a digni fied battle than runtaway speculate on the spoils of the war.

I'd rather be an agent for a tar kiln than for a wife.

A cross is God's will one way and your's another.

Some men want God to quit lying and freaking for them. That's your job.

Some men give the devil the daily hood of this world, but I believe if I trust in God He will bring it to pass.

Some people think they can't do sins unless they are everlastingly on the beg.

I pray for my daily bread, but I have to hunt for my corn pone with the sweat running down the hoe handle.

I'd rather go to hell than go no where Dignity is nothing but the starch of a shroud.

Some of these meleesh soldiers sing, "surely the captain may go on me," but a corporal's guard from the devil would run off a whole regiment of them.

Every society woman who claims to be a Christian has got to quit one of society some time in her life, or go to hell.

I'd rather a daughter of mine to go a side bite than a society bite.

Society is a heartless old wretch, sapping the spiritual life from thousands of people.

When a man is bragging that his father is a colonel you may put it down that his father hasbanned of him.

Many a man will lie down in hell and say: My tongue damned me.

You may baptize a man all over, but his tongue will come out dry as good e

Some of us would get up a mess in heaven by talking about our neighbors.

I am not singing the sweet Bye and Bye, but the sweet Now and Now.

Hell is an intensified, and sin is hell in all its aspects.

The devil has no better servant than a preacher who is laying feather beds from fallen Christians to light on.

I know in one church where twenty were praying for the holy prize in progressive euchre. Such Christians as that would not be in heaven six months before they would be gambling each other's crowns.

I am a Methodist till I find something with more get up and git about it.

I never became saddled in Georgia till we put lefs on all the barrels and demijohns in Atlanta and moved them away from our boys.

Some preach that there is no hell, but old follow, you won't be in session minutes before you will wake up and say: "My God, what a mistake I have made."—[Baltimore American.

A Wonderful Natural Bridge or Tunnel.

The great natural bridge or tunnel in Scott county, Virginia, on the line of the Southern Atlantic and Ohio Railroad, fifty miles from its junction with the Norfolk & Western at Bristol, Tenn., is the most wonderful on many east of Niagara. It is 953 feet long, varying from 75 to 120 feet in width and of equal height. It comprises a natural bridge with an arch of stone over 400 feet thick; a river of wonderful beauty and grandeur, and a tunnel through which flow the waters of Stock creek, a respectable river in size. The approach to this remarkable tunnel is especially grand. For several hundred yards the waters have cut out a canon, with overhanging walls over 400 feet high. Moss, lichens and downfall reclaiming to its rocky sides, while forest trees the branches of which overhang form an emerald fring, through which the blue sky with its fleecy clouds are seen, framing a picture once seen, is never to be forgotten. The roof of this wonderful cave or tunnel is formed of rude, massive gothic arches resting upon gigantic irregular pillars standing upon either side. The South Atlantic and Ohio Railroad passes through the natural way. The scenery all along the line is beautiful and grand beyond description! Towering mountains with deep gorges cut through them 3,000 the mountain streams whose crystal and sparkling waters bounding in speckle trout, charm the ear with the soft music from a thousand silvery cascades. Vast forests covering the hills and mountains to the very summite: fertile valleys and pastures covered with rich velvet turf seem no where but in the home of the famed blue grass. As the line of the South Atlantic and Ohio railroad winds and turns on its way through this most beautiful portion appalachia new views are continually presented to the eye of the tourist, which, while commending the attention, never tires the mind or becomes monotonous because of the rapidity of the changes which are brought to view. It is a kaleidoscope and a panorama.

The South Atlantic and Ohio Railroad, now in course of construction west from Bristol, Tennessee, will connect with the Norfolk and Western railroad, opening a resource of the hitherto almost inaccessible, but one of the richest sections of South west Virginia.

An Errand of Charity.

"Uncle Stead" is what they called a shrewd, old gentleman who used to live in Winthrop, a little way out of the village on the side of the pond, near Renfield. One of his fellow citizens was a man named Lovejoy. Uncle Stead met Lovejoy in the village one day, and he said to him: "Lovejoy, there's a woman lives out on the edge of the town that needs some provisions. I'm willing to supply her, but I've sold my horse and have no means of getting the stuff to her. Now, I'll buy her a barrel of flour and a ham and some other supplies if you'll carry them out to her with your team." Lovejoy said certainly, he'd be very glad to do it. Accordingly, Uncle Stead bought a barrel of flour, a ham, a bucket of sugar, etc., and telling Lovejoy where the woman lived, sent him off on the errand of charity with the good things in his pung.

Lovejoy easily found the house where the woman lived. He unloaded the goods, pulling like a grampus as he rolled the barrel of flour in, and said to the woman: "Mr. Steadman sent you the provisions. He's a mighty kind hearted [illegible] and you all these things."

Coupon Speculators.

We learn from the Fredericksburg Star that at the special term of the Corporation Court of that city which was held last Thursday for the purpose of granting licenses to merchants and others, all the merchants paid their license taxes in money except Magrath and Chesley and Hiles Brothers, and that only the following brave dealers tendered coupons—namely, P. McCracken & Brothers, C. B. Lucas, J. W. Gelbert, Chas. F. Haidge, A. A. Colbert & Brother, L. F. Stoffregen, Edward Braun, Ulman Brothers, M. McCracken, and John M. Griffin. The Star says:

"No lawyer in Fredericksburg was willing to represent these who tendered coupons, and Mr. Terrence McCracken was selected by the coupon-heads to go to Richmond and secure counsel, which he did."

The Court refused to grant a license to those tendering coupons, and upon application of counsel for the petitioners the following order was entered in each case:

"Nevertheless the Court being of opinion that it has no right to grant the applicant the bar-room license for the reason that he has not complied with the law by producing the Treasurer's receipt for his license having paid as prescribed, * * * and that for that reason alone doth refuse to grant him said license."

Notwithstanding the refusal of the Court to grant the license, all the parties who tendered coupons are going on with their business. Of course they will all be indicted at the next grand jury term of the Corporation Court for doing business without a license.

If those who have tendered coupons in this place in payment of the license tax had intimated before the election that they would do so, the "olves" would have carried the election in their favor. Every man who has tendered coupons voted the "straight" ticket. Not a single man that voted the "dirty" ticket has tendered coupons.—[Dispatch.

A Big Dog.

The minds of many people are mollified for struggles in matrimonies. When it comes to fruition, Mose, for example, was at sea with no hope of ever getting ashore.

"What are you going to do with dat dog, Mose?"

"Sarve an' I want to sell him, sar."

"How much do you ask for him?"

"Well, boss' as it's you, sar, I'll sell you dat dog cheap, and a better dog nigger walked in shoe leather. You can have him for two dollars, sar."

"What breed is he?"

"Well, sar, he's—he's—he's half terrier and half Newfoundland, an'—an' half mastiff, sar."

"Ah! Well, this is the first time I ever knew of a dog having three fathers."

"Arrah, an' that's a big dog, so he is. He'd make a dozen babies of the little folly you'd bring beyant ye there."

Most Excellent.

J. J. Atkins, Chief of Police, Kinsville, Texas, writes: "My family is and I owe its existence to one of most excellent medicines, Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; having found it to be all that you recommend it, I feel it my duty to certify to its virtue. My friends to whom I have recommended it, praise it at every opportunity."

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup and every affection of Throat, Chest and Lungs.

No single moment in my life so much to me as the one in which I first made use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with Rheumatism, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Wood, Bloomington, Ill.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Wood, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before this I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. Ramsdell, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism, and Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Passmore, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

CATARRH is the forerunner of Consumption, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Disorders, Nervous Debility and Pulmonary Affections. FRIDAY..... May 28, 1886.

Gov. Lee and Staff were warmly received in Cincinnati last week.

The Grand Lodge of the World of the Independent Order of Good Templars met in Richmond this week. Representatives from Canada and others British dependencies and all the States of the Union will be in attendance.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. D. T. Campbell for complicity in the Ward-White shooting affair was called in the county court on Monday. After some trouble a jury was empanneled on Tuesday morning. The ground gone over is about the same as in the trial of Dr. White. At the time of going to press the evidence is not all in. Judge Richmond is presiding.—[Abingdon Virginian.

The tardiness of Congress in passing the Urgency Deficiency Bill, is fully realized by the Federal Court proceedings at Abingdon this week. There being no funds on hand to run the Court, Judge Paul telegraphed Attorney-General Garland to know if he could proceed with the Court, and issue "scripts" to the witnesses and jurors. Gen. Garland replied that there was no funds available for that purpose, and Court was adjourned.

This is not only to be regretted, but deserves condemnation, as there must have been five hundred people forced to attend Court, without pay, and will now have to attend a special term of Court to be held the 6th day of July. Many of the men were poor and were compelled to sell their "attendence" at a heavy discount.

The Bristol Reporter says the Emory & Henry College commencement, which is to come off on the 6th, 7th, 8th, and 9th, of June, promises to be of unusual interest. Rev. S. H. John Randolph Tucker, of Lexington, Va., the literary address; and Mr. Hanmor, of Lynchburg, the address before the Y. M. C. A. The address by Mr. Tucker will be delivered on the 9th, prox. WASHINGTON LETTER.

The Court of Claims is soon to pass upon an important question. It involves the right of an army officer to hold a civil office under the Government, and it rises in the case of General Badeau, the warm friend of General Grant. Badeau, while, on the retired list was appointed by President Grant, U. S. Counsel at London, and when relieved from the office, he took his place again on the retired list, and has been drawing the pay of a retired general until recently, when Second Auditor Ferriss questioned qis right and refused him his pay. The Auditor holds that when he accepted the office of Consul, he thereby resigned his place in the army. General Badeau will be represented before the court by his comrade, General Dan. Sickles, the sturdy old warrior. General Sickles is also personally interested because he was at one time Minister to Spain, and since his recall has been drawing his pay of a retired army officer. The case is exciting great interest among army and navy people.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to erect in this city, as the Navy Yard, a naval gun factory for making the heavies guns adapted to modern warfare, and the manufacture of gun carriages and ordnance equipments for the naval service. It is proposed to make contracts with responsible manufacturers for the rough bored, rough-turned and tempered steel to be used.

Some time ago the House mapped out a special order of business for certain days, with the view of expediting its work, but it is found that the time devoted to one bill and another encroaches so much on the time set apart for considering other matters that the whole plan is disorganized. The effort now seems to be to cut down the amount asked for in every bill so as to leave enough to go all round. Many of the members growling loud at the heavy expenditures authorized so far, and are in no mood to vote for any one measure calling for much money. It is feared that many meritorious measures will go by default or be so crippled by the pruning knife that their object cannot be carried out.

The cry is for longer sessions, so that the increasing business of our growing country can be disposed of. If the present sessions were only long enough a quarter of a century ago to properly consider and dispose of public business, it stands to reason that they are entirely too brief for this age. At any rate that is the way it strikes the average mind of men of common sense, having business before Congress.

During the present session the Senators have each been enjoying the services of a private secretary, paid $6.00 a day by our liberal Treasurer, but the Members of the House are opposed to such extravagance, unless they too can indulge in it. That being impossible because of the heavy drain on the back, the committee on Appropriations in the House has stricken the item for pay of Senatorial Secretaries from the bill. The Senators will therefore probably have to pay out of their own pockets for their awkwardness, or dispense with those adjuncts.

A good piece of news to the manufacturers of the country is the increase of the force in the Patent Office by the number of thirty men in the Examining Corps. The work of the office in many divisions has been as much as nine, and in some, twelve months behind. This has proved serious injury to manufacturers who have been obliged to withhold from the trade improvements which it was not safe for them to introduce until the protection of a patent was obtained. Commissioner Montgomery has worked hard for this increase of force, and will receive from inventors and manufacturers unstinted praise for his efforts in their behalf. His vigorous administration of the Patent Office is giving general satisfaction, and shows the wisdom of the selection made for that important Bureau of the Government.

The erection of the Catholic University here to cost several millions of dollars is an assured fact at large. The necessary money has been raised and the plans for a magnificent buding in the Romanisque style of architect are under consideration. The new institution is not to be a college but a university, model after those of Cambridge and Oxford, and in this way it will not interfere with any of the existing colleges. Many reasons are given out by the Catholic for selecting Washington as the site of the university. Father Chapello, a leading spirit of the enterprise, believes that Washington is to be what Boston has claimed for herself for a good many years— the Athens of America. H.

VIRGINIA'S RESOURCES.

Speech of Prof. Boyd at a Boston Dinner Party.

[From the Boston Herald, May 16th.]

Prof. C. R. Boyd, State Geologist of Virginia, lately appointed to the head of the Forestry Congress of that commonwealth by Gov. Lee, was banqueted by a number of Boston gentlemen at Young's Hotel last evening. Those were the guests present: Mr. F. R. Olmsted, Mr. Edward A. Adams, Mr. George Frost, Mr. George H. Phelps, Mr. N. Wilbur Jordan, Mr. Frank G. Webster, Mr. Eugene B. Abbot, Mr. George F. Seavey, Mr. H. Bissell, engineer of the Boston and Maine railroad, Dr. G. H. M. Rowe, Hon. Charles T. Gallagher, Mr. George S. Forbush, Mr. S. Lawrence French, Dr. George M. Garland, and Mr. John B. Sargent, Mrs. C. L. James presided. Most of the gentlemen present are interested in a financial way in southwestern Virginia, and the professor, being intimately acquainted with that territory, was invited to address the assemblage on this topic. After a toast to Gov. Lee and Virginia had been drunk, Mr. Boyd said:

There is a general concurrence in the assertion that the region immediately on the line of the South Atlantic & Ohio railway and the contiguous territory constitute an extensive body of mineral, timber and agricultural lands, richer in natural resources than any other area of like extent in America. A portion of this region has been inspected by Prof. R. H. Richards and T. M. Brown of the Boston Institute of Technology, and others of like scientific and standing both in this country and in Europe, who will doubtless agree that eastern Kentucky and east Tennessee, together with the neighboring part of North Carolina, comprise within this comparatively limited area coal, iron ores, minerals, mineral waters, coals, timber and productive soils, and a region which is at the same time thoroughly well watered by rivers and countless streams, and having such elevation above sea level as to render its health conditions an entirely reliable factor in the problem of its steady and profitable development. To all these desirable features it adds a beauty and attractiveness so rare as to invite thousands of tourists and pleasure seekers annually. In the Cleveland district of England, and possibly at Birmingham, Ala., ores and coal deposits may exist as conveniently situated with reference to each other as they are at Big Stone gap; but it is doubtful if they will bear the comparison, when the ultimate cost of the production of iron from the ores is taken into consideration. The probability is that in the vicinity of Big Stone gap coal will be as in other parts of that region steel will be made that can undersell English steel in British seaports. Natural gas has been observed exuding from the ground in various places, and the diamond drill will eventually reveal the reservoirs in which it is now stored. The marble deposits of Scott county are about 30 miles out on the line from Bristol, in the great belt of limestones of No. 3 formation of the age and general characteristics of the standard Tennessee marble—in deposits varying between 50 and over 150 feet thick by a length of more than 2½ miles. This marble is of superior quality and beauty, and, when polished, handsomer than the Tennessee marble, and its texture is quite as uniform and reliable. The south and southeast of Bristol, in Sullivan county, Tenn., and Washington county, Va., are largely areas of lands covered with a dense black pebble, along the [illegible] of which is a belt of [illegible] the counties north [illegible] walnut, ash, hickory, [illegible] chestnut oak, [illegible] and chestnuts [illegible] of timber, [illegible] areas of [illegible] beech, [illegible] birch, sprout [illegible] maple, [illegible] cherry, common [illegible] locust, [illegible] and others, who have [illegible] Bloomsbury, bear [illegible] professor in his [illegible] resources.

Philosophy of the Forehead.

Slow persons, with dull intellect, have very projecting foreheads.

Foreheads not entirely projecting, but having knotty protuberances, give vigor of mind and harsh, oppressive activity and perseverance.

Persons possessing poetic, ardent and sensitive natures not unfrequently have a blue vein forming the letter "Y" in an open, smoot and low forehead.

High, narrow, wholly upwrinkled foreheads, over which the skin is tightly drawn, shows weakness of will power and a lack of imagination or susceptibility.

Perpendicular foreheads, rather high and well rounded at the temples, rarely fail to go with understaning, powers of concentration, and love of study.

Perpendicular wrinkles between the eyebrows, when of equal length signify anger, but if the wrinkles are of unequal lengths, they show deep thought and concentration.

A low, arched forehead, which is full at the temples, is indicative of quickness and sensitiveness, and when combined with great fullness over the eyes gives an impressionable, edealistic nature.

A very retreating forehead which is low and shallow usually accompanies want of intellect. If slightly retreating, or what appears to be retreating from the fullest of the forms over the eyes, it signifies imagination, susceptibility, wit and humor.

Things Worth Knowing

Ventilation is absolutely necessary and essential to health. Unless a poultry house be well and properly ventilated fowls cannot be kept healthy for any length of time.

Crushed bones are worth more to feed fowls than grain. Cut and crush with the axe all meat bones every day.

Ground bone and potash applied to grapevines not only increased the quantity, but improves the quality of the fruit, adding largely to the amount of sugar it contains. For immediate effect in the spring use the dissolved bones.

In biting off a needleful of thread it is often noticed that the silk tastes sweet. This should warn the sewer to use her scissors, and not her teeth, as the sweet taste comes from the sugar of lead in dying and weighing the silk.

If you want eggs from your fowls you don't feed them too strongly. They take on fat readily, and when fat they do not lay. Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes need liberal feeding when they are laying.

Interesting Experiences.

Hiram Cameron, Furniture Dealer of Columbus, Ga., tells the experience, thus: "For three years have tried every remedy on the market for Stomach and Kidney Disorder, but got no relief, until I used Electric Bitters. Took five bottles and am now cured, and think Electric Bitters for the Best Blood Purifier in the world." Major A. B. Reed, of West Liberty, Ky., used Electric Bitters for an old standing Kidney affection and says: "Nothing has ever done me so much good as Electric Bitters."

Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Thos. J. Pearson's.

Legislative Pay.

In Hungary each member of the Imperial legislative body receives for every day of session about $2.40, besides $400 annually for lodging; in Austria about $5 per day during the session. France pays her senators an d députés about $2,950 per annum; Holland about $850 per annum and traveling expenses. Belgium, $84 a month during the session; Norway, about $3.30 a day and traveling expenses; Portugal $2.50 per diem. Members of the Canadian Parliament receive, for every session lasting over a month, $1,000 and 10 cents mileage; Brazil gives her senators $1,000 for the session, and to her representatives $1,200 and traveling expenses; Mexico allows the members of both houses $2,000 per annum: the Argentine Republic even goes as high as $3,500, and in the United States, both senators and members of the house of representatives receive $5,000 annually, with mileage at 20 cents per mile.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has such concentrated, curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and surest blood purifier known.

Pearls of Thought.

Silence does not always mark wisdom.

Sooner or later a man's thoughts will come into fruitage in deeds.

Too much overchanges nature, and turns more to disease than nourishment.

Thou may'st as well expect to grow stronger by always eating as wiser by always reading.

Ten thousand of the greatest faults in our neighbors are of less consequence to us than one of the smallest in ourselves.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation; they do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.

The adversaries of a good cause are like men who strike at the coals of a large fire; they scatter the coals and propagate the fire.

Character is proof against the scoffings of ridicule, and the consciousness of doing right takes the sting out of the most envenomed jest.

When we are in the company of sensible men we ought to be doubly cautious of talking too much, lest we lose two good things, their good opinion and our own improvement, for what we have to say we know, but what they have to say we know not.

Photography by Lightning's Flash.

Mr. Elbert S. Barker, of Philadelphia, has succeeded in taking two very fine photographic negatives of outside objects by utilizing the light furnished by a flash of lightning. The views were taken at 7 p. m., the night being very dark, the wind strong, and the rain heavy. The camera was placed in an open window, with the slide drawn. The lightning flash came in less than a minute, when the slide was returned. The plate holder was then reversed, the instantly placed for a second exposure. The plate used was one of the highly sensative gelatine films. Mr. Barker developed the plates the same evening. Form their behavior he estimated the actinic effect of the light was equal to that obtained from an exposure of about 1-300 part of a second in bright sunlight. The popular impression as to the duration of the lightning flash is that it is practically instantaneous. But the very significant fact observed by Mr. Barker in his photographs is that the foliage taken shows unmistakable evidence of having perceptibly moved during the period of exposure, demonstrates that the lightning flash is by no means instantaneous.—[Chicago Times.

A Queen Who Paddles Her Own Canoe.

The Queen of Italy is soon to rejoice in the possession of an American canoe, a genuine Indian birch bark construction, which Baron Fava, the Italian minister, has secured for her. The canoe is twenty feet long, and the Baron has procured all the paddles and accompaniments for it, and is, now having bead work cushions and mats of fragrant grasses made for it. He will send it on to Rome, and in due time it will float in some lake of the palace gardens and ferry Queen Margherita over the waters.—[Globe Democrat.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequaled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are —The picnic at White Gate on next Tuesday will take place near the residence of Mr. Samuel Bane's. There will be four boats for the use of the pleasure seekers and also hammocks in abundance.

—A caravan of Turks created considerable excitement here on last Friday. They had three horses, three bears and eleven children. Quite a number of narrow escapes from runny ways that were caused by the bears occurred.

—As this is the time for the average small boy to stumble on "poison vine" while nesting, &c., they will, no doubt be glad to know that a handful of quick lime, dissolved in water is a sure antidote. After standing half hour, paint the poisoned parts with it. Three or four applications will cure the worst cases.

—A. L. Fry, agent for Kents Woolen Mills is doing a good business. He still has a nice line of samples to send to those who may want to exchange wool for goods. He will sell goods at factory prices and pay 40 cents for washed, and 26 cents for unwashed wool; and pay all freight charges. Our wool growers will do well to examine his samples before disposing of their wool.

He has many friends and relatives in this county that will gladly welcome him back to the place of his nativity.

—Our Baptist brethren have decided to have a "Children's Day," for the benefit of the Sunday School and Bible Board, of that denomination. A committee have the programme and time under consideration, of which we will advise our readers when all arrangements are completed. •Their "Children's Day" last year was a success, and we predict this one will prove even more so.

His wife has been quite low with fever, but her many friends will be pleased to hear of her complete recovery.

—Mr. W. F. Hogsett of Monroe Co., W. Va., met with quite a serious accident on last Wednesday. He was driving a very spirited horse in a sulky between Wenonah and the Narrows and hearing the train, stopped, took his horse out and led him into a field. On his again hitching up his horse it became frightened at something and commenced kicking, which resulted in the destruction of the sulky and Mr. Hogsett getting his leg broken in two places below the knee. Drs. Killey and Stafford were called and rendered the necessary medical aid. Mr. Hogsett is doing quite well and good hopes are entertained that his leg will be saved.

—J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg, is one of the leading dealers in Pianos and Organs in the State and certainly represents the leading Instruments in this country. His prices are the lowest that can be obtained any where, and terms the most liberal. Write Mr. Hobbie before making your purchase.

Explanation.

In a postal published a few issues ago entitled the "Latest from Poca hontas," the Peck referred to was Jno. H. Peck of Pocahontas instead of our townsman Col. J. B. Peck as some have thought. No reflection was intended upon either of the gentlemen, as we are not afraid that we will not get any money that may have been paid to Mr. Peck.

The entire line—75 miles—will be changed in one day, which will require 500 hands—about 25 to the section. The hands will receive, for the day $1.50 and board, and will work regardless of the weather. It is pretty generally believed that the work will be completed before sun down.

The running of all trains will be suspended on Saturday, but will resume their regular schedules on Monday.

The Gauge will be changed on the main line from Bristol to Lynchburg on Tuesday; and from Lynchburg to Norfolk, on Wednesday. No trains will run on those days.

Mr. Floyd E. Croy returned from Christiansburg, Wednesday 26th inst.

Mr. Duncan has had his residence at No. 3 Hughes Avenue repaired.

W. R. R. was out fishing the other day when a stranger approach ed him and said: "You are fishing with persistence." "Oh, no, sir, only just angle worm" replied Red pleasantly. "I mean you have a good deal of perseverance," explained the other. "No, thim's suckers." The boy was not a little discontented at the strangers ignorance.

The pleasant face of our old friend, Mr. W. B. Wright, was seen on our streets to-day.

Did you ever see a wolf? "Oh, yes; when I was in the Mexican War, one night there was one come in my tent. I tried to get at him with my bowie knife, but he escaped. I then picked up my musket and fired at him and then fell down and feigned sleep. The Sargeant never did find out who did that shootin'."

"Long Green" wants to go to see somebody up the creek.

C. G. J. was talking with a friend the other day about riding horseback, when some one remarked; "If you had a Bicycle you could ride and see your girl and back." "Ride to the devil!" said Chas. with a contemptuous look: "Do you think I mean to drive a donkey-cart, and be me own horse?"

Mr. W. N. SorEsco of White Gate, passed through town on last Wednesday.

B. E. is getting along very well with Cæsar. He hardly ever looks at the notes in Maxy's book.

The farmers of this neighborhood have about finished plowing their corn the first time.

Look out Doctors! Your service will be needed, from the fact that there was a large dish of greens placed on the table at Capt. Eaton's the other day. No one touched that dish but Mr. L. L. As he sat and ate he would say grac (ions).. When dinner was over the dish was empted.

As Mr. Lloyd Stafford was riding along the road below the mill last Saturday, he met two bears. His horse became frightened and fell over the bank of the road and was suddenly killed. Mr. Stafford barely escaped with his life.

In last week's issue of this paper we noticed what was not unexpected to us—"Cæsar's" defense against Catiline. And we were perfectly delighted. Brother "Amicus" was wrong in supposing that we "may want to fight."

Why poop fool, peep brother,
Why should we not laugh at each other!

We especially enjoyed his poetry, and were forcibly impressed with the fact that "poets are born not made." We were almost astonished at the brilliant immagination of one so young. And how happy he is in the selection of his rhymes! What more pleasing words could he have chosen than "nice" and "rice:" If we have accomplished no other good by our contributions to this paper, we boast that we have extorted from obscurity, a writer whose name is destined to go thundering down to posterity.

We would cast some reflections of the life and character of this wonderful personage, but for the fact that luminous bodies shine most brilliantly by direct radiation.

With this issue we cease to be the Reporter of Wabash. We undertook this office for our own pleasure and profit, and we have had a little of both. We have endeavored to give the news of the community in an interesting way. If we have sold any good jokes on any one, we hope they have been appreciated; If we have offended any one we beg pardon; If we have "said anything injurious to the character of any one, let him sue us for slander. We are individually and particularly responsible for everything that has appeared in this paper under the nom de plume of

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY,..... June 4, 1886.

It is high time that the Democrats were organizing for this Fall's campaign. They will have their hands full to cope with their Republican cotemporaries. The action of Congress on the Blair Bill will very likely decide the fate of this district. Cleveland's Civil Service too will have to be counteracted and with nearly all the offices within the gift of the President filled by Republicans. We will have to fight them with dissatisfied Democrats, we have about come to the conclusion that Civil Service is a humbug and is contrary to the very spirit of Democracy which believes in a frequent return to the people those who are in power. It savors too much of English aristocracy.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The two long mooted question have been at last settled. I mean the question of the President's marriage and his purchase of a tract of land near the Capitol for a summer home. By the time this letter reaches you our Chief Magistrate will have embarked upon the matrimonial sea. The wedding was officially announced, late on Friday night to take place on June 2d, the ceremony to be performed in the Blue Room of the White House, and the President's pastor, Rev. Dr. Sunderland of the first Presbyterian Church, to officiate. Only twenty five persons outside of the immediate families are to be invited. After the ceremony a collation will be served in the State dining-room. There will be no bridle tour, as the President and his bride will remain at the White House till after Congress adjourns. A short trip may then be taken, and on their return they will occupy the home just purchased by the President. This new home is a fact and no fiction. The deed was placed on record, and is a finality. The property was purchased in the name of the present Marshal of the District, who used to be real estate agent here, and in whose judgment the President has great confidence. The Marshal afterwards deed it to Grover Cleveland for $21,000 in round figures. The property contains 28 acres, and on it is a two-story stone double house. Work will be begun at once to place the house in suitable condition for occupancy by the President. This is the first instance since the infant days of the Republic that our Chief Magistrate has occupied a house owned by himself and furnished at his own expense. It is surmised by some that it is the President's intention to make this his permanent home after he lays down the gavel of authority at the White House. Whether he does or not he can at any time dispose of the property at large advance on what he paid for it. Many prominent men are buying suburban property. General Logen was the first one to buy, and within one month after he bought he was offered $10,000 more than he paid for the property. Others followed, among the latest being Secretary Whitney, whose place is adjacent to that just purchased by the President. Since the President's purchase a small tract one mile north of it has been bought by a real estate agent for $15,000. The real purchaser is not yet known, but it is supposed to be a man prominent in public affairs.

All this property lies close to what is known as Rock Creek, noted for its wild and romantic scenery and as the stream on which Fulton worked the first steamboat in 1807. The valley of this stream forms a natural and beautiful park, and the Commissioners of the District have for a long time been considering plans for improving it. Congress will doubtless further the enterprise in time in the near future. When it is done the President's purchase will be the most valuable in the district.

Cotton are lively at the Logiala this week. Oleomargarine and oily tongues of the without friction, which is brought on by conflict of views, and of that kind there has been much. It is the only important question discussed in the house this session that has not been tainted with party prejudice. The opponents of the bill did much filibustering the several days that it was under consideration, but whenever a vote was taken on a proposed amendment it was apparent that the supporters of the bill had the best of the controversy, and that the bill would finally be carried by a handsome majority.

The shipping bill and the fishery question were also discussed slightly, but both will come up for further discussion soon. The labor arbitration bill and the railroad land forfeiture bill took up much of the time of the Senate. The amendment to the Chinese restriction act also came in for consideration. Senator Sherman took strong ground against the immigration of Chinese to this country. He is keen and far seeing and is trimming for the support of the Pacific Slope in the next Presidential nomination Convention Usually the President of the Senate is withdrawn from all debates, and so does not come prominently before the people in Congressional proceedings. But Senator Sherman is an exception. He is determined not to be shelved in that way, and so, while enjoying the high honor of being President of the Senate, frequently steps down on to the floor and engages in the discussion of all important questions.

By order of the President all the Executive Departments are closed to-day, and the whole city is at the cemeteries, paying homage to the brave dead. On motion of Representative Morrison the House adjourned over from Saturday until Tuesday, and like action was taken in the Senate.

The Cabinet meeting on Thursday was a prolonged one, and the fisheries question was the principal question discussed. The course to be pursued has not yet been divulged ft.

Lynchburg News, May 31: To day is the anniversary of the memorable fire of several years ago, and the five firemen sacrificed their lives battling with the flames. In memory of their heroism their graves have been decked with beautiful flowers by loving hearts.

Louisa News and Farmer. May 28: Mr. E. S. Mansfield, who has charge of twenty-five convicts, now employed on the Richmond road running through Louisa, says that after he has the road properly worked and drained into fields along the road, the land owners in many places go and securely stop up the drains. He speaks of having some indicted. If land owners are injured they should apply to the Court for damages.

Correspondent of the Bedford Democrat: "I was told by a gentleman from Lowesville, Nelson county, a few days ago, that there were three Mormon preachers in that section by the name of Kimball, Harper and Woods, who were creating quite a commotion by preaching their vile doctrine of polygamy. One of the citizens of the neighborhood who was riding along a mountain slope was mistaken for one of Mormon preachers by a friend and knocked from his horse with a stone."

Leesburg Washingtonian May 28th: Cluverius is reported by the Richmond correspondent to be in a depressed mood, yet indulging the hope that the Court of Appeals will give his case another hearing. Whatever may have been the doubt entertained as to his guilt before the decision of the Court of Appeals the very able and exhaustive opinion of Judge Fauntleroy, who delivered the opinion of the court, will remove all doubt in the minds of those who will read that admirable decision. He presents the evidence and the facts so clearly and strong that it will be impossible to believe otherwise than that he committed the awful deed for which he hrs been convicted. The way of the transgressor is hard, as he will learn when the penalty of the law is executed in his case.

Significant Utterances.

The warning our southern and State contemporaries are uttering for the benefit of the southern members of Congress who are opposed to the Blair bill are daily becoming more pointed. The Fredricksburg News says:

"This dallying of the Democrats with this very important matter will, like the boomerang, rebound at the injury of those who throw it."

The News then declares that southern congressmen, as a rule, are not backward in voting money for the benefit of the North, and adds:

"But let a bill be offered which will send a little of that money floating down South, and up jump our sticklers for the Constitution to oppose it on constitutional grounds."

And again:

"This may all be right, but we think that when the time for election comes around again those who have voted and worked against this bill will find that the 'dear people' whom they are so willing and anxious to serve differ very materially with them on the subject. We will not be at all surprised if, when the votes are counted, they will find themselves left out in the cold and some one else returned to Congress who will feel less squeamishness about the Constitution, but will have more regard for the wants of their constituents."

The Charleston News and Courier says:

"Turn in and twist it (the Blair bill) any way that you please, it is a good thing, if our expectation and belief is that this country shall continue to be a republic; for a republic can only live in safty when it is the incarnation of knowledge and will of the people. Intelligence is life. Ignorance is death. From this death the advocates of the Blair bill seeks to save us.

"But to come back: Give the bill a chance! Southern members especially, who are in this respect on the gridiron, should not attempt to dodge. The fortunes of the Democratic party, in many a southern district, depend on the vote that shall be cast on this question."

Can southern Democratic members of Congress afford to ignore such utterances as the above?—[Richmond Dispatch.

This Wash Board is made of RED WOOD and has a SELF-ADJUSTING RIM, which keeps it from warping in any climate, consequently does better washing than any board in the market. The frame is made of hard wood, and held together by nickel plated corners, making it strong and durable. The rim can be adjusted to the exact thickness of the board, thereby preventing the soap-suds from running over the edges and into the tub, as is the case with other boards. The rim also serves as a protection to the board when not in use, as the edges are not exposed to the air, and consequently do not warp. The ribs are so arranged that the water runs off freely, thereby preventing the board from becoming soft and spongy. In short, this is the most perfect wash board made, and is guaranteed to be the best in the world. We find no many dealers that object to our board on account of its LITTLE RIM, saying "it will not last." We claim this to be a fine recommendation for it, as it prevents the water from running over the edges, thereby making it last much longer. We claim this merely to advise customers to INSIST upon having the

This Wash Board is made of GOOD SOLID SMOOTH CORRUGATED ZINC, and consequently doing better washing than any wood board. Our wool growers will do well to examine his samples before disposing of their wool.

—Rev. Jno. W. Roberts and Miss Nannie C. Woods were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. James H. Woods, on last Thursday morning. Mr. Roberts goes to Roanoke to take charge of a pastorate at that place. The Virginian extends its hearty congratulations to the happy pair.

—J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg, is one of the leading Piano and Organ men in this State and we might say of the South. He represents a line of Instruments which stand at the head of all in this country and his prices are the lowest obtained any where. In fact he say that he defies competition from any source.

—Married, on the 20th inst., at the bride's home in Roanoke county, Mr. Joseph A. Peck, of Craig county, to Miss Bettie J. Thomas, of Roanoke. Joe is evidently in luck and we repeat here the congratulations which we have already had the pleasure of tendering to him privately.—[New Castle Record.

The Virginian offers its congratulation to Capt. Joe. A. Peck. May he live long and prosper. Joe has many warm and admiring friends here that will be glad to hear of his new found happiness.

A Trip to Angels Rest.

On last Saturday morning a party of fifteen or twenty young people left the quiet and sleepy town of Pearisburg and wended their way toward the dizzy heights of Angels Rest. The ascent for about one mile is very pleasant, but gradually becomes steeper until it finally approaches the perpendicular. A large basket of lunch is always a condition precedent and this along with the young lady the young gentlemen has elevate 1700 feet above the level of Main Street. Some of the young men of the party struck a bargain with the small boy to carry their lunch basket and thus relieve them of a portion of their burden. They were joined at Mr. Charlton's by Mrs. T. B. Charlton who chaperoned the party. They arrived at the summit about the bewitching hour of 12 m. and took an ample view of Pearisburg and surrounding country. After each one had been decorated on the marvelous beauties of Southwest Va. scenery and had been rewarded by looks of approval as eloquent as his words of description they mutually agreed to look for lunch in the neighborhood of the clear flowing fountain. When they arrived on the lunching grounds what a sad have we met their famished eyes! The small boy "had been there" and bountifully helped himself to a free lunch. But owing to the wise providence of the young ladies in providing so bountifully for the occasion there was not much inconvenience resulting from the untimely check of the urchin.

After luncheon was over the "Colonel" formed a picket line of his party that reached from Angels Rest view to Newbern rock and then commenced the "tug of war." The eloquence of honeyed and sweetened words was met by the battery of beautiful eyes and the damascus blade of wit clashed with the scimitar of repartee. Occasionally in a hand to hand contest could be seen the fatal shock given a fallen heart. Tons did cupid wage war fare until the sun sunk in a sea of glory toward the west. They returned about 7 p. m., looking limp and languid. They all report a good time and we wish them many happy returns of the same.

The Library Magazine.

One hardly appreciates the vast amount of valuable and entertaining matter which is contained in The Library Magazine, if he sees it in weekly form only; when its several issues are brought together in monthly parts it presents a array of valuable and timely articles that is fairly astonishing. The part for June contains a score of important papers selected from best current literature, British and American, besides which there are the department of "Books and their Authors" and "Literary Notes and comments," which contain well nigh two hundred notices and notes. It is doubtful if any other magazine, in Europe or America, furnishes so much valuable and intesting reading even at five times its cost, which is only $1.50 a year. John B. Alden, Publisher, 393 Pearl St., New York.

White Gate Picnic.

The festive occasion of the season occurred at White Gate on last Tuesday, June 1st. Love, music and pleasure held high carnival, and poetry, science and art liberally contributed to make the day memorable. Nature smiled and a delightful and bountiful lunch was by no means forgotten. It was held in a beautiful and picturesque grove on the banks of Walker's Creek near the residence of Mr. Samuel Bane. Boat rowing, hammock swinging and croquet playing were indulged in to the hearts content. The Wabash Brass Band was present and their music was much enjoyed and highly praised by every one. Miss Mary F. Stone of Liberty, Miss Kate Morehead of Pulaski and Misses Hattie and Lillian Wilson of Pearisburg, were among the visiting belles. Nearly a hundred person were present and we venture assert that not so much beauty could be found in the same number in the State of Virginia. Old Giles has her share of fair women as well as brave men, and White Gate may well boast of her beauty, and judging from the lunch spread by the young ladies they are adepts in the culinary department as well as cosmetics.

No mishap occurred to mar the pleasure of the day and it is long to be remembered as a picnic without a rain. In the evening the pleasure seekers returned to the residence of Mr. Samuel Bane where they were cordially welcomed and were treated to delightful music and songs by the young ladies of the house assisted by Miss Emily Allen. The young people are greatly indebted to the indefagible energy of the Rev. J. W Mitchell for the organization and success of the picnic. A party visited Mustard's Cave" next morning, but as we have not heard from them we hope to give our readers the benefit of their exploits in our next issue.

Plow Screw Items.

Editor Virginian: Being a reader of your very interesting and valuable paper, and seeing that nearly all parts of the county are represented by some one through its columns, I thought a few items from the "Screw" might be acceptable to some, if not all, of your many readers.

Crops of all kinds in this section are looking well and the farmers are happy at the prospect of an abundant and goodly harvest.

Mr. G. T. Porterfield has again resumed work on his new dwelling, and when completed it will be by far the best house in this vicinity.

The public school here taught by Miss Nettie M. Siddow will close next week. Miss Nettie is a good teacher and has won for herself many friends and the praise of all.

We have a very large and prosperous Sunday School at Boyd's Chapel, which is an honor, and we hope will be a spiritual blessing to all its members, and especially the children.

A portion of the youth and beauty of this vicinity concluded they would avail themselves of the pleasure and happiness of a trip to the grand, beautiful and far famed places, Cascade of Stony Creek, Mountain Lake, and Bald Knob. So on the beautiful and pleasant morning of May the 29th, those who were to make up the party met at "Sam Jone's" from where, when all were ready, they started on their happy journey. After a ride of two hours and a half, over rocks, rail bridges, and stumps, and through the dense and majestic pines of the "Carter place," we found ourselves on the little valley round about "Booth's saw mill." Here we stopped, dismounted our horses and proceeded on foot in the direction of the Cascade. There we partook of a bountiful repast and after resting a short time, we returned to our horses, and then directed our way to Mountain Lake. There we spent an hour or so very pleasantly, and again wended our way to Bald Knob. There we spent a short time looking at old Giles and surrounding counties. After writing our names and securing something by which to remember such a pleasant day we started homeward, there to dream of the 29th of May, 1886.

If anybody asks you who I am tell them I am A Coward.

In Memoriam.

Little Virgie Dells, infant daughter of Mr. John R. and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Kelley, was born April 19, 1884, and died April 1, 1886.

Little Virgie was a sweet bright little girl always playful and full of life until stricken down. Her sickness lasted only about ten days and then God in his infinite merey relieved her by taking her to himself in heaven. Little Virgie's life was brief, but it was all for the best for God doeth all things well. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved parents, but we know their loss is her eternal gain. Father and mother your child is not in the cold damp grave, but is resting in the arms of him who said "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of heaven." She is now clothed in immortality, standing at the beautiful gate waiting and watching for you. Make your determination to meet her there. May we all meet little Virgie in that land where sickness, sorrow, pain and death are felt and feared no more.

FRIDAY..... June 4, 1886

The Very Wise Sometimes Very Stupid.

Sir Isaac Newton constructed a house for his cats. For the convenience of the cat he cut a large hole for entrance, for the equal convenience of the kitten he cut a smaller one, and it was not until his attention was called to it that he he realized the fact, which one would suppose might be self evident to the feeblest understanding, that the large hole would have serve for both. The author of the "Principal," one of the grandest works of human intellect, failed to preceive that a kitten could go through a hole made for a cat. Richard Brinsley Sheridan hired a suburban villa, and two days later recieved a visit from a friend, who was told to climb the fence in order to enter the house. "But why not open the gate?" the friend inquired. "Because I can't untie the string." Why don't you cut it then?" Sheridan looked at him in amazement, drew his knife, cut the rope, walked through the gate, and, turning around, kicked the gate off the hinges. "If you love me, kick me in the same fashion," he remarked to his friend. The most brilliant wit of his time, the dramatist who could unravel the most intricate complications in stage situations, had climbed a fence for two days for lack of the stroke of a pen-knife. A few years ago one of our famous men was found dead under circumstances which gave rise to suspicion of suicide. One of his acquaintances remarked: "He was certainly crazy. One evening I called upon him and found him trying to write a letter. I could hardly see my way across the room. He complained that his eyesight must be failing, as it was hard for him to follow the lines upon the paper. To suprise I turned up the gas. His look of astonishment as he looked at the light, at me, at the letter, and at the light again, was something impossible to discribe. Of course he was crazy. If he hadn't been he would have turned up the gas him self." So easily do we reach our conclusions; so easily do we take things for granted. Yet Sir Isaac Newton was never supposed to be out of his mind," and Sheridan was never suspected of being a lunatic. The gas jet simply served to throw more light on the stupidity of a sensible man, instead of proving by its feeble glimmer the corresponding foolishness of his fellow. Nothing is more constantly and completely surprising than these apparent lapses of intelligence in persons whose intellect is acknowledged to be superior to the average. From a fool we expect foolishness, and seldom have we reason to complain of disappointment. From the wise we expect wisdom, though sometimes we fail to find it. It is said that it is only the fool who sees no wisdom from experience, but the foolishness of sensible people is generally of a kind which experience can in no way modify. It is occasional, variable, unclassified, of a peculiar quality, admits no argument from precedent, gives no basis for calculation. Probably by contrast and incongruity its effect is heightened, and it seems more senseless than ordinary dullness because it is inevitably compared with the usual mental brilliancy. We learn from the entertaining "Letters of Gustave Flaubert" that he had prepared a dictionary of the stupid sayings of great men, and the volume is a unique and amusing one. It was the illustrious Napoleon III. who made the profound observation: "The wealth of a country depends on its general prosperity." The famous Darwin wrote, as if giving us evidence to a most valuable philosophical statement: "As soon as a Frenchman crosses the frontier he is himself on foreign soil." Emerson says: "Men who have done great works and taken citizens' lives sometimes have in connection with affairs of the journal. side, in couple, stair or or- ly and the use of As dinner Author, they care coat!- pot!

70,000 Public Documents.

It is safe to say that the United States Government since its organization has published over 7,000 distinct works. This, it must be remembered, is exclusive of the bills introduced into Congress, which would make the total high in the hundreds of thousands. During the first quarter of a century of our national existence documents amounted to 2,000; for the next quarter, 6,500; for the third quarter, 20,000; for the fourth quarte, 22,000; and the annual output now is over 4,000 titles. At present less than 5,000 copies are rarely printed; while of the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture 30,000 copies are annual distributed. In the book estimate for the next fiscal year, sent to Congress, $1,380,231 68 is asked for wages alone. There are on the pay roll 400 compositors, besides a large force of superintendents, foremen, etc. Fifty proof readers are steadily employed and 45 pressmen, 115 press feeders and 34 ruling machine feeders. The estimate call 100,000 reams of printing paper, or 48,000,000 sheets, each sheet making eight or sixteen pages.

The documents are of all sizes, and relate to every imaginable topic. Some are great, thick quartos, like the census volumes of "The Medical History of the War;" and at the other extreme are thousands of pamphlet reports on small matters. The largest single publication ever undertaken by the government is "The Tenth Census," which, if completed, would fill about twenty-five large quarto volumes. Only half of these have been issued or ever will be; but, even as it is, "The Centennial Census" is probably the most voluminous public document, not excepting as one serial the various annual reports. The finest and costliest group of publications relate to the government surveys. Many of these reports are superbly gotten up, copiously illustrated and accompanied by maps of the highest and mechanical excellence.—[American Bookseller.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by Thos. Pearson.

Byron Swimming the Hellespont

It was in May, 1810, that Lord Byron, in emulation of Leander, swam across the Hellespont. The distance, however, being two miles from the European to the Adriatic side, when he reached the latter, from exhaustion, he was compelled to seek repose in the hut of a Turkish fisherman, where he remained carefully attended by the wife for five days. Upon his departure, his lordship, whose rank and fame were unknown to the Turkish peasants, received a gift of a loaf, some cheese, a skin of wine and the blessings of Allah. In return Byron sent the fisherman a few fishing-nets, a fowling piece and several yards of silk for his wife. The Turk, overwhelmed with gratitude, resolved to cross the Hellespont to thank his unknown guest, but in the passage his boat was upset, and the poor fellow met with a watery grave.

Three Reasons

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:—

1st. Because the system is now in its greatest needs. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d. Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d. Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than at any other time. Take it now.

'Hello, Ned! You've been getting married, have you?'

'Guess I have, Tom.'

'Good move, I suppose? Father in law well off?'

'I hope so.'

'Hope so! Why, don't you know?'

'Nothing definite. You see, he died about two weeks ago, and we haven't any information from him yet as to whether he's well off or not.'

Why Bobby Went to Bed.

'Pa, said Bobby, who had been allowed to sit up a while after dinner, with the distinct understanding that he was to ask no foolish questions, 'can God do everything?'

'Yes.'

'Can he make a two foot rule with his left hand?'

'The same question—that and all the rest of it.'

'Pa, would it be right for me to tell a lie?'

'I cannot answer so seven days without an oath.'

'Yes.'

'Well, in how many days could he get it he said about?'

The old man rose up in his wrath and the next thing Bobby knew he was in bed.

BOOKS FOR THE MILLION

Complete Novels and Other Works, by Famous Authors, Almost Given Away!

The Rand McNally business policy is to sell complete books, many of them handsomely illustrated, not a set or a part of a set, and to sell them at prices so low that every one can afford to buy. Their success in carrying out this policy is shown by the fact that they are the largest publishers of books in the world, and by the wonderful sales of patrons. In order to introduce their publications into new localities they will for a short time make the following unprecedented offer:

1. The Widow Bedott Papers. This is the book which made Mrs. Whitcher famous. It is full of humor, and is said to be equal to Josh Billings, Artemus Ward or Petroleum V. Nasby. 2. Fanny Fern for Home Adornment, as exemplified in the Writings of Fanny Fern. Contains her best stories, sketches, wise sayings, and is a handsome book, with portrait, etc., for parlor table. 3. Ralph Rinaldo's Romance. By Dr. J. H. Robinson. A thrilling story of love and adventure. 4. Mrs. Partington's Knitting Work for the Young. By B. P. Shillaber. Contains the best stories of Mrs. Partington, and is a handsome book, with portrait. 5. The Life of Josh Billings, Hiz Wit and Wisdom. By Henry W. Shaw. With Comic Illustrations. 6. QUESTIONINGS.

Daisies in the summer meadow,
Fern-leaves in the woodland shadow,—
Why they grow and why they blow,
Know'st thou why?
Nay, not I!

Dreams of happy days and places,
Visions of fond hearts and faces,—
Why they come and why they roam,
Know'st thou why?
Nay, not I!

Wouldst thou stop the flowers from blooming?
Wouldst thou stop thy heart from roaming
Where the beams of love-it dreams
Charm the eye?
Nay, not I!

Miscellaneous.

THE WAY TO A FORTUNE.

All the world is interested in the story of the way in which millionaires have become rich, and no receipe could be so universally popular as one which should give directions for the acquirement of wealth.

"Why, sir, I knew him when he hadn't a cent to his name!" At every mark like that I always prick up my ears; and I think the story which is invariably behind a remark like that must be interesting to everyone. This, at least, is what I said to my millionaire friend when he told me that the history of his first start on fortune's road was not worth telling.

"At all events," he said, "you would not be willing to make such a start as I did!"

I am the reverse of rich myself, and I told him any start would do if the result were as desirable as in his case.

"Well," he whispered, "I began with a killing!

"Murder!" I cried in horror, stepping back from him with a feeling of intense repugnance, as there flashed rapidly through my mind the bloody tales I had heard of the lawless times in the early days of Frisco, when knives and pistols were in more use than table forks.

"I will tell you how it happened," said my friend.

"It was during the gold fever that I sailed from New York for San Francisco, and I left with just money enough for the trip, thinking, if I could only reach California, I might soon make a fortune. We had a fair voyage on the Atlantic; but from Panama the vessels were a mere tub and much overcrowded. There were many women and children. I had a berth in the ladies' cabin, and sold it for a hundred dollars, and slept on the upper deck.

"Well, I had not been in San Francisco a month when I found myself without a cent, and was in a pretty bad fix. Food was dear in those days. It cost something to live. Flour was selling at thirty dollars a barrel, and I have seen apples bring a dollar each. It was a poor time to be short of money.

"I was standing on the street one day feeling pretty well down in the mouth, when an old Italian organ grinder came along, and, propping his instrument on a stick, began to grind out a tune. It was not the miserable business in those days that it is now. The organ grinders made money in California at that time, hand over fist. They used to go up to the mines and bring back a fortune.

"As soon as this fellow commenced to play, I perceived that something was wrong with his organ. The old Italian would turn the handle, and for a short time the air would sound all right. Then of a sudden the most frightful discords would be heard.

"The old man's face was comical to see. He would stop, examine the instrument, turn it around, shake it, then with a scared expression on his face as if he thought it was haunted, begin again with the same frightful discords.

"I stepped up to him, prompted by curiosity.

"'What's the matter?' I asked, 'music very bad?'

"'No buano,' said the old man, with a look of great distress.

"'No buano,' I repeated, examining it. The thought flashed across me that here might be a chance to make some money.

"'I fix organs,' I said. 'You know I make lots of organs.' I pointed from the instrument to myself. Though his English was very poor, he seemed to understand nearly all I said."

"Were you not afraid to undertake the job?" I asked.

"Well, no. I am pretty handy, and I thought if I could have time I should be able to figure it out. Of course it was a reckless undertaking, but a hungry man is apt to be reckless.

"I explained that it would cost much money, but he said enough for me to make out that he wished to go to the mines directly, and would pay whatever I asked. The old man was quite a character in his way. He told me that he often made from twenty to fifty dollars a day, and that if his instrument could not be repaired, it would be a great loss, as it could not possibly be replaced.

"He appeared to have a real love for the organ which he had brought from the old country, and was very much astonished and distressed at the behavior of his favorite, which he said had always made good music until two days past. I told him to bring the instrument along after me to the room where I was staying, and that as it would take at least three days to repair, it must be left with me for that length of time.

"He covered it carefully with a green cloth and seemed loath to leave. I suppose it was the first time he had lost sight of it since its purchase.

"As soon as his back was turned I began an examination. I had not the slightest idea what to do, but my great need of money urged me to make the attempt. It had a glass case in front with a number of little figures that hopped and jumped in a very stiff and jerky manner.

"I slowly turned the handle and wound out the air of 'Jeanette and Jenet.' It sounded all right. I tried the 'Last Rose of Summer.' It played part way through. Then there was a terrible clashing of wires.

"'A string must be loose,' I thought, 'and had fallen across the others. I can fix that.'

"In the middle of that night I was roused suddenly by hearing a clashing of strings. I jumped up thinking some one was stealing the hand-organ. But no. There it was.

"'Strange!' I said to myself. 'Could anyone have entered?' I came to the conclusion that my mind was so worked up on the subject that I had been dreaming. Still I lay awake for some time, waiting and listening. But all remained quiet. The next morning I started at my work."

"Were you not afraid if you took it to pieces, you could not put it back?" I asked.

"I decided I would go with care, and number each piece as I took it out. I carefully lifted off the case of figures, and as I was about to set them down, I heard the same strange sounds without human hand near. I gently lifted off the top, so as not to disturb the ghost or spirit; and what do you think happened?"

"What!" I demanded, excitedly.

"A mouse jumped out and I killed it."

"You fraud!" I cried.

"Yes," he went on, "that was the cause of all the trouble. When the handle was turned the mouse, being in extremely narrow quarters, was disturbed and crawled about on the strings. I replaced the top and case and left it till called for. When the old man came I told him it was as good as new.

"He tried it and found all went smoothly. I charged greatly on the care and trouble I had taken; and when I asked the sum of fifty dollars for killing a mouse, he paid it without a murmur, and gave me ten more to boot."

"And that sixty dollars is what you consider the beginning of your fortune?"

"Yes; it gave me a great lift. The next day I strolled into an auction room, where a sale of lots was going on; I bought three lots at two hundred each, giving a small payment. Next day I sold two of them at three hundred each. The third I sold later at a large advance, and kept on in that way, dealing in real estate with large profits."

"Did you ever hear from your Italian organ grinder again?"

"Yes; he sent several others to me. But I told them I was out of that line of business now."—[Olive Storm.

Pearls of Thought.

To have what we want is riches, but to be able to do without is power.

Curses are like processions; they return to place from which they came.

A face that cannot smile is like a bad that blossoms and dies upon the stalk.

Good manners is the art of making those people easy with whom we converse.

Life is a quarry, out of which we are to mould and chisel and complete a character.

Whether happiness may come or not, one should try and prepare one's self to do without it.

Laughter is day, and sobriety is night; and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both and is more bewitching than either.

Nearly everybody has it in him to be better than he is. Improvement is chiefly the regulation of the propensities and passions.

Every man who enjoys a blessing should be prompted to think of those who are without it, and try to help them. Each benefit is a responsibility.

A man without discretion may be compared to a vessel without a helm; which, however rich its cargo, is in continual danger of being wrecked.

The memory is perpetually looking back when we have nothing present to entertain us; it is like those repositories in animals that are filled with stores of food, on which they may ruminate when their present pasture fails.

Saved His Life.

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with Phthisic, also Diabetes; the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured and had gained in flesh eighteen pounds. Says he positively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Thos. J. Peason.

The Boston Herald asks: "What is education?" Education, dear friend, is an accomplishment that enables a man to lay down three jacks and a pair of queens, leaving the fool to his right the happy privilege of calling four kings.

A whisker dye must be convenient to use, easy to apply, impossible to rub off, elegant in appearance, and cheap in price. Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers unites in itself all these merits. Try it.

A small boy recently made so much noise around the place that his mother bought him a drum to keep him quiet.

The Bridal Dress of The President's Bride.

Miss Folsom had her bridal and other dresses made in Paris. The Paris Morning News of a recent date gave a minute discription of the bridal—travelling—morning—walking—afternoon visiting, and other dresses of Miss Folsom. Of the bridal dress it says:—

"The wedding gown is a poem in its pure simplicity, of thick ivory satin of the kind that stands alone. The round, plain jupe is draped from side to side with a very soft silk Indian muslin, attached on the left side, and nearly joining the traine decour. The muslin is ourle, bordered, with a very narrow band of orange flowers and leaves that outline the draping. The traine decour is attached on to the plain bodice, just below the waist behind, and measures four meters in length. It is slightly rounded and falls in full orange plaits on the ground, no trimming upon it whatever. The bodice is extremely neat. Two scarves of the soft, filmy muslin start from the shoulder seams, cross the bosom, and are bordered with a narrow band of orange flowers, to correspond with the skirt. The scarves at length hide away beneath a broad ceinture, or lappet of satin that crosses the bodice from left to right, and fastens on the hip. The effect is simple and exquisite. The sleeves are made to reach just below the elbow, and have three crossway bands of India muslin, forming plisse. Attached at the elbow point, on the inner side of the arm, are tiny blossoms, buds, and two or three leaves of orange." The veil is of plain white silk tulle of enormous length, to be dressed high on the head with an upstanding piquet of myrtle and orange blossom, the six meters of tulle lightly covering the entire train."

Three Effects.

The thousands of remarkable cures which have been accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla are due simply to three effects which this great medicine has upon those who take it:

First, It purifies the blood.
Second, It strengthens the system.
Third, It gives healthy action to the digestive organs.

With these three effects no disease can long retain its hold. It is forced to leave the system, giving place to health and strength, through the potent influence of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists. Try it.

"Wife Does the Milking."

"A little story" brings to mind with renewed force the old proverb, "truth is stranger than fiction." We were talking of what disposition to make of a kicking cow, when our hired man said:

"I guess I can find a customer for her. There's an Irishman up in R——who bought a cow of one of our neighbors. He told the Irishman that he must tell him one thing about the cow before he closed the bargin—that the cow would sometimes kick."

"The tender "God ordained protector" of our sex replied:

"That makes no difference; my wife does the milking."

I have often heard such things told, and have sometimes thought they must have been made up "to point a moral or adorn a tale." But this is a fact; for I questioned the man about it, and he said he knew it was true.—Woman's Journal.

KING'S EVIL
Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its other symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Ulcers, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Scaly Skin, Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Debility, etc. If allowed to remain, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.
SCROFULA
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It has effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury, at the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. Thegreat
Regenerative Medicine
Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great, power, carefully and scientifically combounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an Absolute Cure
For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY..... June 11, 1886.

John Kelley, the Tammany Chief died and was buried last week. John's was eventful and checquered career.

Prince Oscar of Sweden, is to marry Princess Louise eldest daughter of Prince of Wales. Louise is 20. Oscar 23.

The House has passed the Oleomargarine Bill, but as the weather is getting rather warm it is feared it will get stuck in the Senate, unless they discuss it in secret session.

Adaline Patti and Ernesto Nicolini were married in Swansea, South Wales on yesterday. This is the second time the knot has been tied and they are now happy forever more.

Secretary Manning has tendered his resignation, but has been asked by the President not insist on an action upon it until October next. Hon. W. L. Scott of Pa. will very likely be his successor. He is a Virginian manufactured into a yankee.

Mr. P. C. Grigsby, a prominent readjuster died in Lynchburg on last Tuesday. He was a school mate of ours and we were sorry to hear of his untimely end. He was an honorable high toned gentleman, impulsive and warm hearted, and a very pleasant speaker. Many a "quiz" have we had together. Peace to his ashes.

The Convention to nominate a Democratic candidate for Congress for the Sixth District has been called to meet in Lynchburg on the 25th of August. Col. J. Hampton Hoge will be a probable candidate before the convention. We wish him all success and do not think that the Democracy could find an abler champion or a more worthy successor to Maj. John W. Daniel in the 6th District.

The South the Future Seat of the Greatest Manufacturing Industries the World Has Ever Known.

The South, the future lumber producing section of the United States, with its millions of acres of unbroken forest, ripe for the woodman's axe, with its coal and iron land that contain inexhaustible quantities—the South is destined to become the greatest manufacturing section this world has ever known; and it is quite reasonble that the firm that first enters the field is the one that will pick the ripening fruit. No section of our common country offers inducements that can compare with the South for manufacturing enterprise. It is developing a home market for the output of such institutions and especially for for wood-working machinery. All the manufacturers of wood working machinery of the North are now struggling to secure the Southern trade.

Land is cheap, taxes low, labor plenty and can be had for small wages; labor trouble are yet unknown; coal for fuel can almost be had for the asking; wood for the construction of machinery can be had in any quantities as prices ranging from $5 to $20 per thousand les than in the North. Living is less expensive, the climate is everthing that man could desire; the country is rapidly developing; society will compare favorably with any portion of the world; schools are numerous in the cities and towns; the morals of the people are equal to those of New England. In short, the advantages are many; the disadvantages few. It does us good to reproduce that above. And it is true, every line of it. It comes from a Texas paper, the furniture city. That editor has caught the pulse of the Southern people. He realize more truly the worth of our own people the resources of Southern country. He discovered resources there [illegible] numbers of marvelous [illegible] an enterprise and capacity to work as long. When [illegible] the people to settle [illegible] work.

Prof. Woodrow to be Dismissed from Columbia Seminary.

The discussion of Saturday, May 29th, was resumed. The following resolution was proposed, and after an animated discussion, was adopted:

Resolved, That whereas the General Assembly is convinced that Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., one of the Professors of the Columbia Theological Seminary, holds views repugnant to the word of God and to our Confession of Faith, as appears both by his address published in the Southern Presbyterian Review for July, 1884, and in other publications and by his statements made upon the floor of this Assembly; therefore, this General Assembly does hereby, in accordance with its action taken yesterday in regard to the oversight of the theological seminaries, earnestly recommend to the Synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and South Georgia and Florida, which direct and control the said Seminary, to dismiss the said Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., as Professor in the said Seminary, and to appoint another in his place, and speedily to take such other steps as in their judgment will be best adapted to restore the Seminary to the confidence os the Church.

The vote upon this paper was taken by yeas and nays, and stood yeas, 65; nays, 25. But twelve of those who voted nay put on record an explanation of their votes, showing that they agree with the majority that the best interests of the Church require his removal, but voted against the resolution because they regarded the action unnecessary after the overwhelming judgment on Evolution, or because they doubted the power of the Assembly to take it, or for other reasons.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The one subject on the lips of every man woman and child Wednesday and Thursday was the Presidential wedding. At the hour for performing the ceremony, the city was deafened with the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles from all quarters. Both the bride and groom were prompt to the minute. The ceremony was quickly but impressively preformed in the presence of the few invited guests. All the Cabinet officers and their wives were present, except Attorney General Garland, who studiously avoids appearing any where when the occasion calls for wearing a swallow tail coat. During the ceremony all persons present stood near by to the bridal couple, except Secretary Manning for whom an easy chair was provided. After the ceremony, the brial party repaired to the State dining room and partook of the collation served. The floral decorations exquisite, the dressing elegant, and the collation royal. During the evening there was a fine pyrotechnic display at Fort Moyer, whicht lighed up the Virginia shore in honor of the event, and salute was fired just south of the White House grounds. At a few minutes before nine the President and his bride left the White House from the south portico where the crowd could not approach, and were quickly driven through the most quiet streets to the special cars switched onto a siding of the B. & O. to convey them to Deer Park. The arrangement for the departure were so complete and kept such a close secret that the President and his bride were far on their journey before any person outside knew that they had left the House. The crowd around the Mansion was dense from five o'clock until ten at night. The Mansion was brilliantly illuminated until midnight, but the heavy drapery to the windows and the ingenious arrangement of the hot house plants excluded all view of the interior form the outside and yet permitted the bright rays from within to shed their brilliancy on the beautiful lawns on all sides of the Mansion. As early as eight o'clock the next morning 1,000 people had congregated at the House with the hope of getting inside to view the decorations and carry away memento, but strict orders were given to admit no one. By 12 o'clock all vestage of the beauty of the previous evening had been removed, and the East Room looked as if nothing unusual had occured within its stately walls a few hours before. A number of special officers were on duty, however, to provent memento gatherers from cutting pieces from the costly ace curtains.

Newspaper men without exception were refused premission to witness the ceremony, or to even view the two rooms with their elaborate arrangements, either before or after the ceremony. The only newsgatherer admitted was a female correspondent, who gave points to the "boys" immediately after the ceremony, and for which she recieved money enough to pay for a trip to Europe this summer and have a nice little sum left after all expenses are paid.

The President before leaving gave orders that all the cut flowers used should be distributed to the hospitals in the city on Thursday. His gift to the bride was a diamond necklace composed of a single string of brilliants.

As an act of clemency on his wedding day he granted an uncondition al pardon to Bigelow, the defaulting teller of one of the banks here, who had served three years in the Albany penitentiary. Since Bigelow's confinement his wife has died, and his little children have been wholly dependent upon their grandparents for support. The President made up his mind some time ago to pardon Bigelow, but concluded to defer it until his wedding day.

The following is the of the license and return made by the officiating clergyman the clerk of our court, under act of Congress:

"To my minister of the gopel authorized to celebrate marriages in the District of Columbia, greeting: You are hereby licensed to solemnize the rites of marriage between Grover Cleveland, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Frances Folsom, of Buffal, N. Y., if you find no lawful impediment there to; and having done so, you are commanded to appear in the clerk's office of the Supreme Court of said District and certify the same. Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 2d day of June, 1886. R. J. Meigs, Clerk."

"I, Byron Sunderland, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, in Washington, D. C., hereby certify that by authority of a license of the same tenor as the foregoing, I solemnized the marriage of the parties aforesaid, on the 2d day of June, 1886, at the Executive Mansion, in the District of Columbia.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less. Hood's Sarsaparilla will have done for others, and for me, what in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective remedy indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one." CHARLES A. BROWN, Bridgeburg, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

FRIDAY..... June 17, 1870.

Turkish Public Amusement.

The public amusement of the Turks consist of meydan oyoonoo, kara-goz, and the meddah. Meydan oyoonoo is a sort of low burlesque, acted by men only and without a stage, the changing of costumes being effected behind a temporary screen. The kara g'oz is like Turkish "punch and July," rendered in shadows, a white sheet being stretch ed across one of the angels of the room diagonally, forming the base of a tringle, behind which the performer takes his stand, and by the force of a strong light casts the "shadows of coming events" on the sheet. And the meddah is the famous story teller of the East. The absence of works of fiction, and the general ignorance of the people, who do not even know how to read, make the narratives of the meddahs quite acceptable to the public, who flock to hear them for pastime, for the love of the marvellous is too powerful in the warm and imagina tive nature of the people of that country ellase to remain without some development. Hence their popularity. Then, again these meddahs are not destitute of dramatic power, entraneing their attentive audiences by the magnetism of highly wrought fiction, exaggerated discription, and effective mimicry. Indeed some of them have acquired a renown for their specialty. Kiz Ahmed, or Lady Ahmed, is so named on account of his successful ability in "taking off" the ladies, and Pidjemin is noted for the pathetic." The exercise certain coup de theatre of their own, and are by the excited fancies of the people invested with a genii like power, as they condense into a passing hour the scenes of an eventful life, or detail the enchantments of fairydom. In fact, these meddahs occupy the Orential lecture field, and on festive occasions provide a most welcome part of the entertainment. Their sales, fiencrally vulgar, to suits public taste, are often not devoid of some good moral, and their comical itias hold up some popular vice to public derision.—[Harper's Bazar.

The Eighth Wedding of the White House.

If Grover Cleveland should be married in the White Hous his wedding will be the ninth that has ta ken place there, and he will be the [illegible] married in the White House. John Tyler had the wedding reception of his second marriage in the White House, and Frost dent Hayes and his wife celebrated their silver wedding there. The first marriage in the White House took place in 1811, when a Miss Todd, a relative of President Madison's wife, married John J. Jackson, a Virginia Congressman. The next was that of Monroe's daughter, to Mr. Gouverneur, of New York, about nine years later, and in 1826 the son of President Adams married his cousin, Miss Johnston, there. During the administration of Jackson one of the diplomats, a man named Pageot, who afterwards represented the French govern ment in this country, was married in the White House to the daughter of Andrew Jackson's close friend, Major Lewis, of Nashville, and Jackson's niece was married during this administration to a Mr. Polk, of Tennessee. During Tyler's administration his daughter was married to a Virginian named Waller, and during Grant's term his daughter Nellie was united with Sartoris, an English gentleman. Another marriage during the days of Grant's presidency was that of General Rosecil Hastings and Miss Emily Platt.

An Incident of Antietam.

The most savagely contested part of the struggle at Antietam was in and around the sunken lane of Roulets farm where Jackson's Corps for hours held the ground, from which Hooker and Mansfield had been successfully repulsed early in the morning. In their yellowish, butternut suits the Confederates were scarcely distinguishable from the road ted on the ditch where they lay, or from the ripe stalks of the cornfield behind, through which their re enforcing brigades were constantly descending. Not more than fifty yards off, lying or kneeling in the pasture fields, without any shelter, the Union men—Kimball's, Gald well's and the Irish brigades—poured so deadly a fire into that lane that after the battle six hundred Confeder ate dead were found there. Repeated efforts were made by the Union troops to charge. Perhaps the first was in conformity to a Gen eral's orders; the others certainly were not. The Confederate fire was so terrible that everyone however, realized the need either of driving the Confederates from the lane and the rising ground behind, or else of retiring, to avoid annihilation. Such expressions as, "We must charge," "Let's try bayonets, boys," were constantly repeated along the line, and bayonets would be fixed without any order whatever, so far as known, from General or field officers. But, on making the effort to charge, and finding the enemy's fire irresistible, the Union line, with heads bent, as if against a rain-storm, would back up to its former position, and, kneeling or lying down again, resume its fire. Finally a clamor of desperation broke out. There were no troops in sight behind, no promise of reserve or support, and the situation was galling. The whole brigade was splitting with the detonations of battle, and the rest of the army was probably fighting for its own life. The men on their knees fixed bayonet again for the tenth time, perhaps, and with a murderous howl of rage, the three brigades rushed forward and in a minute were in the lane and the bayonets were ascending through the cornfield towards the peach orchard where Jackson himself is said to have been during all these hours. This charge, which broke Jackson's right for a time, and required all his genius to prevent proving a supreme disaster to his army, would not have been made when it was made if the initiative had depended on a commander's orders.—[Chicago Ledger.

Doubling Trouble.

As an evidence that troubles never come singly the following is offered; Donald McKenzie, an employe in a quarry at Limestone, Ont., was injured by a large stone, which, loosened by a thaw, fell from an elevation and struck him on the back of the head, cutting it badly. He fell forward with great force upon some sharp stones, by which an ugly gash was cut in his forehead. When thus prostrated the large stone rolled on his left leg, breaking it below the knee. The poor fellow also had one of the fingers of his left hand badly crushed, besides being badly injured about the chest.

He Hadn't.

'That's—that's paple sugar, I suppose?' she queried, as she pointed to a stack of cakes in the grocer's window.

'Yes'm.'

'Made this year?'

'Oh, yes.'

Right from the trees?'

'Certainly.'

'What sort of trees?'

'Maple, of course.'

'Um. Maple trees may be fashionable this season, but I never run to extremes. Haven't you any sugar made from beech or elm, or any of the other old stand bys?'

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Barlonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it. Free Trial Bottles at Thos. J. Pearse,n's Drug Store.

An Aggravating Woman.

Professor (to his wife)—"My dear, I wish you would speak more carefully. You say that Henry Jones came to this town from St. Louis.

Wife—"Yes"

Prof.—"well, now, wouldn't it be, better to say he came from St. Louis to this town ?"

Wife—"I don't see any difference in the two expressions."

Prof.—"But there is a difference, a rhetorical difference. You don't hear me make such awkward expressions.—By the way, I have a letter from your father in my pocket."

Wife—"But my father is not in your pocket. You mean that you have in your pocket, a letter from my father."

Prof.—"There you go with your little quibbles. You take a delight in harassing me. You are always catching up a thread and representing it as a rope."

Wife—"Representing it to be a rope, you mean."

Prof.—"For goodness sake, hush —Never saw such a quarrelsome woman in my life."

Exhausted and Experienced.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass., who have a thorough knowledge of pharmacy, and many years practical experience in the business. It is prepared with the greatest skill and care, under the direction of the men who originated it. Hence Hood's Sarsaparilla may be depended upon as a thoroughly pure, honest, and reliable medicine.

'Darling, I rise to a question of privilage,' said George, as she left his seat and approached Miranda's chair.

'Not to night, George,' and she shrank back from him.

'Ah, Miranda, do not say those cruel words. Give me but one kiss.'

'Reflect, George—oh, reflect, would save you from an awful experience.'

'Darling, I cannot accept your noble sacrifice. Why not to night?'

'If I yielded, it would drive you from my side forever. No, George, no,' and the gold in her front teeth glistened, as she whispered with intense dramatic effect, 'I see onions to-night at the curfew hour.'

The sure effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla are thorough and permanent. If there is a lurking taint of scrofula about you, Ayer's Sarsaparilla will dislodge it, and expel it from your system.

School teacher: "Now, Master Thompson, tell me the denominations into which the money of the United States is coined." Master Thompson: "Don't know." Teacher: "Don't you know how the money your father brings home every Saturday is divided?" Master Thompson: "Tain't divided. Ma takes it all."—[Tit-Bits.

"I have no appetite," complains many a sufferer. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives an appetite, and enables the stomach to perform its duty.

"Skower's me," as the roast of beef said to the butcher.

—The Baritone voice of Mr. C. M. Franklin was heard on our streets last night.

—Mr. Giles W. Thomas and Dr. Elliett of Blacksburg, Va., were in town this week.

—Our farmers are much elated over the excellent grass season. A large hay harvest and fat cattle is fully anticipated.

—Circuit Court has been in session the entire week and but little business transacted. Nobody seems to be ready to go to trial.

—Mr. Wm J. Woods has been appointed and received his commission as Postmaster at this place vice M. B. Emmons moved away.

—Mr. J. E. Moore of Pulaski City and Col. C. A. Ronald of Blacksburg, put in a late appearance at our Circuit Court this week.

—We are glad to learn the Hon. S. W. Williams who has been very low with Scarlet fever at his home at Bland C. H., is much improved.

—If you want your Sewing Machine repaired and put in first-class order you can have it done at Mr. T. T. PULEGAR'S Shop, Pearisburg, Va.

—Little Harvey Johnston, son of late Dr. Il. G. Johnston, fell from a cherry tree on last Tuesday and sprained his arm quite severely, but he is out and about again at this writing.

—A stranger unaware that a commencement is approaching might be persuaded that walls have "tongues" as well as "ears" in this vicinity. Declamations are all the "echo" now.

—Mr. Thomas Priddy desires to call attention of the public to the fact that he has opened a Wagon Maker's shop in this place. Work guarantee and done at rock bottom prices.

—The final exercises of the Pearisburg Academy will take place on next Wednesday and Thursday nights. Judging from the preparations that are being made a grand time is anticipated.

—Dr. F. J. Welch brought to his home at Wenonah on last Friday his new boat, Bet Lu built by Mr. A. Hight of the Curve. It is a beauty of symetry and grace, and rides over the waves like a di-dapper.

—The strawberry festival given by the ladies of the Baptist S. S. on last Tuesday night, was a grand success. Everybody seemed duly delighted and all the young people were thoroughly decorated.

—Don't forget, nor give me out, I am at Pearisburg and will be until I go away, and if I should go away before that time I will let you know through the VIRGINIAN.

P. W. POFF.

—On yesterday we received a Nan Kapoo Parot from the Emperor of Japan, and this morning before we arose from our couch it was carried off by a cheeky drummer, and we could but say "Twas ever thus from childhoods hour."

—Miss Lilly Lively left for her home in Monroe Co., W. Va., on last Saturday. Her sprightly and vivacious manner made her many friends among our young people and left a few sore hearts among our young beaux.

—Col. J. Hampton Hoge, A. A. Pledger and T. E. Sullivan of the Christiansburg bar, Mr. Wirt French of Princeton, Mr. Lile of Lynchburg, and Mr. Martin Williams of Bland, were in attendance upon our Circuit Court this week.

—The Knabe stands at the head of all the Pianos made in this country, everybody acknowledges that, and J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg who is the wholesale agent, also stands at the head of all the Piano and Organ dealers in the South. He buys direct from manufacturers at first cost, and is thus enabled to give the lowest prices, and most liberal terms to purchasers.

—Col. B. E. Tallant has built a decent bridge across the town branch in front of his shop and he and Dr. Killey have to improved the side walk in front of their properties that it is a pleasure to walk in that direction. Won't some more enterprising property owners make like improvements.

—The exercises of the Wabash High School, which took place last Friday night, were a decide success. A very large crowd was present to witness the interesting exercises which were interspersed with delightful music by the band. They were a credit both to teacher and pupil and showed the interest manifested in that neighborhood in the higher branches of education. It is to be hoped that Prof. Copenhaver will get the school for the next year and succeed in carrying into successful fruition what he has so well begun.

—On hand at New River Depot, Star Brand Fertilizers for tobacco at Lynchburg prices. Address, May 21, '86. R. M. CHUMBLEY.

—Music is surely in the air! It comes into our sanctum at every crack and crevice, at every hour imaginable, and in all the forms to be thought of from the strains of the high classic to the vulgar squeak of the organnette. To be interrupted in the middle of a pet local by some sweetly solemn sad pathetic strain floating in at our window and taking our heart captive, we feel like dismounting from our tripod and taking a regular "old cornfield cuss" and quit the business until the Academy Commencement is over. Let the young ladies have it out. Our time comes next. It is really believed that the "last chord" could be found here.

—The Southwestern Improvement Co., having given $3,000 and the citizens of Pocahontas have subscribed $500 more to a fund for draining that town and the Improvement Company will also spend $8,000 additional in a park and other improvements. It is expected that 100 more houses will be built there during the summer and two new churches are now being built one Episcopal and the other an M. E. Church South.—[Roanoke Leader.

—Last Saturday a writ of habeas corpus was sued out for one Burdette, a supposed horse thief from Tennessee. The case was heard by Judge Hutton, who denied the motion, because he was in the hands of a magistrate, he having been rent to the jail in Abingdon, by the mayor of Goodson, who had tried the case, for safe keeping to await the requisition of the Governor of Tennessee. Burdette at last concluded to go with the officer without waiting for the course of law, and on Monday morning last he left Abingdon in charge of an official for Greene county, Tennessee, where he is wanted on the charge above stated. It is supposed that Burdette stole a horse from our countyman, Mr. John E. Moore, a few weeks since.—[Abingdon Standard.

Newport Items.

Rev. John Miller was in his pulpit Sunday at this place, 11 o'clock a. m. He has made good impressions at all his appointments and we trust him a good work. His wife arrived here last week from a visit to her home in Maryland She is a very fine looking lady and has an exceedingly pleasant face.

The Newport Mite Society met at Mrs. S. A. Butler's, Friday night 4th. The Society is growing in numbers and in interest. The last meeting was very interesting, indeed, and we predict a happier one for the next.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Peck arrived in town last Saturday. Mrs. Peck spends her summers here. They have a host of friends to welcome them to their old home.

The tall, handsome figure of Napoleon Ripley was seen at Mrs. Price's last week, where but a few years since he won his bride over a number of competitors.

Mr. W. D. Payne returned from Nashville last week, where he has been attending College, bringing his "sheep skin" with him. Mr. Maphis of Shenandoah county, one of his class mates, is visiting him. With a great deal of pleasure, we welcome Dall and his friend to our port.

"There is music in the air." 'Tis the charming of merry marriage bells!

Mouth East River Items.

MR. EDITOR: Please allow us space in the good old VIRGINIAN, to note down a few items from the Mouth East River. We love to see something from this corner in your valuable paper.

Bro. James Johnston will preach at this place the second Saturday night in this month. Hope there will be a good turn out. Brother Johnston is a good preacher and deserves good order.

Mr. L. A. Dunn at the Hale House will give you plenty to eat if you stop with him. You will be blessed with first-class accommodation. A rack full of hay, corn in the crib and no lock on the door. If you stop with him once you will stop twice.

Mr. C. P. Hudson, our agent at Glen Lyn says he is here to accommodate the public, and do business for the N. & W. R. R. Co., as ought to be done. We believe Charley will and is doing business to the interest of his employers. We hope he will still improve until he has reached the summit, then he can ride the extries and take his good rest. Stick to it Charley.

Messrs. Smith & Killey are going to do some tall sawing for the Roanoke Works. Mr. P. B. Meadows their fireman has his engine in good fix, well greased and says he can give the sawyer J. C. Nelson all the hot water he wants to cut 200000 feet of lumber, if it is cloudy and cool weather.

Mr. B. O. Morgan, Sheriff of Giles county, visited us on two or three occasions. His business wasent known by all sang diggers and coon hunters is looking for him back be tween this and next Court. It would be well enough if we could get Mr. Morgan to locate down here in this corner.

Mr. M. E. McCorkle is shipping some fine poplar logs out of these hills and hollows. We would be glad to see him prosper in the business. Me is a hard working man and earns all he gets.

I will close for this time, thanking you Mr. Editor for the space you have given me in this valuable paper, Hoping that they may be much more news and of more interest next time. Success to the VIRGINIAN, is the wishes of one of its readers.

Maysville Items.

MR. EDITOR: As your paper is read with much interest in this section, I will jot you a few items, hoping to interest the many readers of your valuable paper, or a portion of them at least.

Rev. J. A. Darr was visiting his sister Mrs. Wm C. Fortner the first of last week.

Mr. William Stewart who has been very ill for the past week or two is mending slowly.

Look out for the tatler she is coming.

The old man Billy Thompson has been plowing so long that you can hear him hollowing at any time or place, 'haw, haw, wohaw, Sara."

Miss Nena Douthat of Pocahontas, is visiting friends in this section. May her stay be a long and pleasant one.

Providence Church is about completed. It will be dedicated in July by the Rev. J. T. Frazier.

Mr. Dills' cherry orchard is loaded with cherries. There you can hear the prattle of children from morning till night. Be careful children and don't fall out of the trees.

Our friend and neighbor Mr. W. C. Fortner has commence plowing his corn. He reports a bad stand of corn, but a splendid stand of sprouts. Mr. Fortner is a jolly old fellow, but he takes the ups and downs of this world easy. Brother Fortner tells us that the way a man lives on this earth is the way he will live in the better world. He further more tells us that he wants to live as easy as possible in this world so he will live the same in the world where sprouts never grow.

Why don't some of our people stir up life enough to have a picnic or drum up a party and, conduct them to the cave. There may be a very good reason why they do not have a picnic, but there is no reason why we should not enjoy a trip to the cave. There is a cave near here that would interest all to be in it. There has been many thrilling and interesting tales told about this cave. If they succeed in making a trip to this cave and return you shall hear from them.

Now, I will close as I know your many readers would like to hear from different places and writers.

If anybody ask you who I am tell them I am the boy that rides a mule.

LOCAL ITEMS.

—Mr. Sam. Johnson shipped another car of fine horses to Philadelphia this week.

—Alexander Sutton of the Princeton Journal is spending a few days among his old friends.

—Messrs. Caddell and Harmon shipped a car load nice lambs to the New York market to-day.

—Malta Double plows for sale by Thos. J. Pearson.

—"SHUMATE" is the name of the new siding just below Wenonah. Under the new Schedule, it is a regular stopping place for passenger and freight trains.

—We are pleased to see that Mr. W. J. Woods has completed and moved into his new storehouse, just across the street from his old stand. On the first of July he will move the Post-office there also.

—Before disposing of your wool, dont fail to interview A. L. Fry, agent for Kents Woolen Mills. He will give 40 cents for washed wool, sell goods at factory prices, and pay all freights.

—Mr. James Keffer, a poor but honest and good man, died of consumption near Ripplemead, last Tuesday. He was about 45 years old, and leaves a large and dependent family.

—D. Morris, jeweler, has just received another lot of Watches, Jewelry, &c. Call and see him at the Grand Central Hotel.

—Miss Nannie Bell, daughter of I. C. Fowler, Esq., of Abingdon and Mr. Stewart F. Lindsey of Rockingham county, were married last Wednesday. Rev. J. J. Lloyd officiating.

—The Wytheville Semi-Weekly Enterprise has been enlarged to a 28 column paper. This does not look like hard times in Wythe. Success to you, and we trust you will soon be a "daily."

—I mean what I say and say what I mean, I will be here until some time in July. Yours for four week. P. W. POFF.

—"Aunt" Malvina Callaway, a very old colored woman died last Saturday. She was more than 80 years old, and before the war, belonged to John Anderson. No better or more truely servant ever lived.

—We are glad to welcome home again, W. R. Powell, one of our Giles boys. "Punk" is quite a favorite here, and was once a good boy, but since he has become a Nashvillian, there is no telling what he is now.

—J. W. Grant, traveling salesman for Robinson Tate & Co., Lynchburg, died in Peterstown last Wednesday, of inflamation of the stomach. Walter was a good energetic, business man, and the main stay of his mother's family.

—If we were to undertake to make a list of "personals" this week, we would have little room for anything else, for it seems to us that everybody's uncles, cousins and aunts were here this week. Please excuse us.

—The commissioners, appointed by the late County Court, to view and report the condition of the Road from here to Narrows, went over the road last Saturday and reported the road "not in tolable order," and hoisted the Toll Gate.

—Mr. Thomas Priddy desires to call attention of the public to the fact that he has opened a Wagon Maker's shop in this place. Work guarantees and done at rock bottom prices.

SAD AND FATAL ACCIDENT.—Last Monday while Mr. C. N. Snidow, and others, were working with a pile of logs near his saw mill, he was knocked down, and a large oak log rolled over him crushing him to death. He lived but a few minutes, and spoke but few words. Mr. Snidow was a good citizen, about 40 years of age, and leaves a wife and seven children.

—A great reduction in organs at J. D. Hobbie's, Lynchburg. Five Mason & Hamlins, one Burdett, two Wilcox & White and five Shoulngers, at a sacrifice, must be sold at once to make room for other makes for which he has taken the State agency. Will give Stool and Book with each organ.

—On hand at New River Depot, Star Brand Fertilizers for tobacco at Lynchburg prices. Address, May 21, '86. H. M. CRUMBLEY.

—It is with sadness that we announce the death of Mrs. Susan Chapman, wife of the late Manilius Chapman. She died about noon on the 15th instant, in the city of Lynchburg, having attained the age of seventy-three. She was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Nowlin. Her remains accompanied by Dr. A. A. Chapman and Mr. S. W. Nowlin, reached the family residence on the 16th instant. After religious services were held, her body was laid away by loving friends in the family burial ground.

—By the new Schedule which went into effect last Sunday on the New River road, we now have daily passenger trains instead of "daily except Sunday." The passenger trains run the same hours Sundays as other days which is:

Going West 12:33.
Going East 1:00.

There is very little, if any, change in the local freight trains.

—Mr. W. I. Boone, late of the Bland South-West, has transferred his interest in that paper to Mr. R. E. Repass, who together with Mr. W. C. Hedrick, will continue the paper in the interest of the Republican party as heretofore.—[Bristol News.

Wabash Items.

As Cæsar became more than a match for Mexy, B. E. had a very good reason for not looking at his notes for he had none to look at. This may be the reason he is getting along so well.

The farmers of this section have finished working their corn the second time. They report corn to be doing well. Some expect employment in the harvest field in a few days. Wheat is very good and an average crop expected.

The McElrath Bros. have been in this vicinity for some time practicing dentistry. They can do anything in that line of business, and guarantee satisfaction.

Mr. John H. Durham of Staffordsville, gave the Wabash Band a supper on last Saturday. The boys seemed to appreciate it very much, and gave him some excellent music for the refreshments received, and we have reasons to believe they received them. This should encourage the band. Why can't some one else follow the good example.

Sonp's girl thought it very strange that he would not go to the grave yard with her last Sunday evening. Soap, what was your hurry.

Bro. B. A. Kelley gave us a very interesting sermon at Wabash Academy last Saturday night. Good attendance and good attention.

Mr. John Simpkins is building him a new house at this place, and we are expecting further improvements.

Mr. F. E. Croy of this place is gone to parts known. We are expecting his return every day. Pat will stay with us.

We are more than sorry that the interesting Reporter (Maxy) of Wabash has ceased writing his good jokes and interesting items.

Why joking friend and laughing brother, Why can't you begin out an other.

Mr. Maxy seems to feel very proud and boasts of the good he has accomplished in his contributions to the VIRGINIAN, but I think it very doubtful whether I can write anything that would make me feel like boasting. If I cannot give the news of this vicinity, I can do like Maxy, breigh it out.

AMICUS.

Pearisburg Academy.

The commencement exercises of the Pearisburg Academy were held Wednesday and Thursday nights in the Baptist Church. The building was packed to its fullest capacity.

The exercises, after music and prayer, were opened by a Salutatory, by Bernard Mason, after which Report of Examination was read by the Principal.

Then came the contest in Declamation between three boys. The prize was awarded to W. J. Fry.

The contest in Recitation between twelve young ladies was the principal event of the first evening, and it was hard to decide as to which of three young ladies would receive the prize. The Judges, however, through Mr. Crickenberger, awarded the gold medal to Miss Lula M. Johnston.

The exercises were interspersed with music, and the Farce, 'Shoemaker's Troubles," and Play, "Cure for Obstinacy," were highly enjoyably and elicited great applause.

The second night's programme was opened with a contest in Recitation, between thirteen little girls, all of whom acquitted themselves well. All seemed to think the contest was narrowed down as between two, and the judges, taking into consideration, age and experience, awarded the prize to Miss Edie M. Pearson. Miss Sadie Easley's recital of "Face Against the Pane," was perfectly beautiful.

The charade, "Peter-boro," and play, "Dick Doyle Zeb" were well done," and enlivened the occasion by many hearty bursts of laughter.

The contest in Declamation, between twelve young gentlemen, was the event of the occasion, and so hotly was the ground contested, that the three judges failed to agree, and two other judges were selected to sit with them. After a long consultation the gold medal was awarded Mr. John W. Williams.

The following prizes were awarded by Professor Shumate:

Scholarship, to Miss Alice Mahood.
Orthography (Speller) Miss Lillie Fry.
Orthography (Dictionary) Miss Alice Mahood.
Penmanship, Miss Annie Brotherton.

We are sorry that want of time and space will not allow a more extended notice of the programme but our Shumate and his assistants deserve great praise for the manner in which they have conducted the school, and we do not think the patrons of the school can do better than retain them another year.

Newport Items.

The funeral of James H. Martin was preached by Rev. Crickenberger, Sunday at the M. E. Church South. The large crowd present was a beautiful tribute to the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends.

The wet weather has thrown farmers very much behind with their work, but it has made grass grow to console them. There is some uneasiness about "wheat rust," but 'tis hoped all will be well.

Our social circle is enlarging quite rapidly. Miss Ida Payne returned from "Montgomery Female College" (Christiansburg) last week, accompanied by one of her school-mates, Miss Ida Churchill of New Orleans, La. Also, Miss Laura Payne, from "Wesleyan Female Institute" (Staunton), also accompanied by one of her school mates, Miss Kate Scanland of Belleone, La. The Southern young ladies are accomplished and pretty.

Mr. Floyd R. Price, who has been Rail roading in North Carolina for a year or more, returned last week to his home for a short visit. He promises to bring "Mrs. Price" with him next trip. We trust she will not back out this time.

Mr. R. H. Farrier is expected home from "Roanoke College" this week. Henry was always a good student and we are not surprised to see him honored at College.

Miss Nannie Keister is home from attending College at Wytheville. She is looking quite well as are all our girls. If any of the VIRGINIAN's readers are looking for a better half, he would do well to give Newport a call. Newport never had so many pretty girls as now. We say, hurrah for Newport. Boys, come and see for yourselves.

Truly, F.

White Gate Items.

MR. EDITOR: It gives us much pleasure to inform the readers of the VIRGINIAN, that we are still able to furnish a few items, and we hope to interest a portion, at least, of your many readers.

Mr. W. N. Surface and Miss Lute Bane left here on last Monday to visit Mrs. Hambrick of Montgomery County. We wish them a pleasant trip.

C. G. Johnston of Sugar Run, is hereby warned that he had better stop his wild and heartless career. And further, that he shall appear before a Sing Sing Court for having talked to death (?) a young lady at the picnic.

Mr. W. L. M., has named his foot "Bunty" for short—which shortens it some fifteen inches.

Mr. H. B. S. was asked by some one, "What two good things of this world would you above all others prefer if you had your choice?" "I'll be switched if I know for certain; but you may take my skin if ice cream and pound cake aren't bully."

Why is it that there is not a High School in this community? This is the best location for a school of this kind in the County, and some energetic man could build up a good school here.

Mr. Robt. L. King of Poplar Hill, was at the Baptist Church last Sunday.

We understand that there has been several robberies committed in this section during the past few weeks.

Mr. A. J. S., a very modest young man, was at the picnic. When he was asked what part of the chicken he preferred, very modestly said: "I'll take a piece of the bosom if you please."

We understand that a Drummer was passing up the road the other day and he heard the bell of the first Methodist Church of Howard Town, and thought that there was a store up there. So he drove up on Church Street and asked one of the inhabitants of the place how many blocks it was to the store.

Jokingly yours, M.

To the Colored Teachers of Pulaski Public Schools of Giles Co.

The Summer session of the Virginia Normal and Collegiate Institute, Petersburg, Va., will commence on the 1st day of July and continue till 25 h day of August.

The design of the law evidently is to make this the great Summer Normal School of the State for the training of colored teachers. Said teachers are required by law to attend said Summer course at least one session in every three years, unless prevented by sickness, attending Normal Institutes elsewhere, does not excuse from attending this.

Revocation of license follows failure to attend one session or any part thereof for three consecutive years. In bringing this matter before you it is proper to state that this is the third year since the enactment of the law and this will be the third session in order and according to the purpose and terms of the law, every colored teacher of a colored public school, who has not attended either of the sessions already held must attend this session or be debarred from teaching. You will get a thorough eight weeks drill for $16 cost of your board and lodging.

D. F. HALE,
Co. School Supt. Elect.

We clip the following items from the Princeton Journal:

The High School building was bid in at the sale made Monday last by E. F. Kahle, Isaiah Bee and J. S. Carr, for the Church, at $1900.00. It is saved for the Church beyond a doubt, but the purchasers will expect a few hundred dollars help yet.

The Presbyterian Church was let to contract on the 8th inst., to Geo. S. Johnston, contractor and builder. The church to be ready for use by the 1st of November. The church will cost about $3000.00.

Just as we go to press we learn that Alonzo Gooch, Esq., died of typhoid fever at his home near this place this morning after an illness of a very few days. We are very much pained to chronicle the death of such an enterprising and worthy citizen. Mr. Gooch had attended strictly to business and by his industry and energy had become very prosperous, and now he is cut down in the prime of his manhood. We tender our sympathy to his aged mother and his brothers and sisters.

We have heard from a very reliable source that Rufus Finley, who eloped from this county a couple of years ago with Rufus Helvin's wife, and went to Kentucky, committed a murder there and was hung for it a few months ago.

To the Teachers of Giles.

The Normal Institutes for the benefit of white teachers of public and private schools will be held at Staunton beginning July 13th and Salem beginning July 13th and continuing four weeks. These Institutes will be open with free tuition, not only to those who are actively engaged in teaching, but to those who are preparing themselves to teach.

The whole course of instruction will be in a special line of suggesting, illustrating, exemplifying the best methods of teaching, with lectures on school management &c.

The object of the instructor will be to make every lecture tell upon the future usefulness of all teachers assembled.

The Normal idea is the leading idea. Trained teachers are in demand and those who fail to advance must give place to others.

The people are demanding better work; and it is to be hoped that our Giles Teachers will be fully aroused to the importance of availing themselves of this opportunity of preparing themselves to meet this demand.

Board can be had in hotels boarding houses and in private families at from $10 to $15 per month. Reduced rates over the R. R. have been secured for those desiring to attend the Institutes. I will be glad to hear from any one in regard to this matter.

Of the Peabody Scholarships in the Nashville Normal College, there are six vacancies to be filled. Persons desiring to compete for these Scholarships should file their applications with the Supt. of Public Instruction at once. These applications must be written by the applicants themselves, and must give name, age, schools attended, address, and must declare an intention to make teaching a profession, and be endorsed by the County Supt. as to the mental and moral fitness of the applicant both for the work of student and teacher.

The Blair Bill.

The Mountain Index (Republican), published in Tazewell county, asks: "Can it be possible that Congress will adjourn without passing the Blair bill or something better?" and adds:

"While a failure to pass this bill during this session of Congress will largely increase the Republican vote in this State, yet we would rather see the bill become a law, and every district go Democratic on the strength of it, than for the bill to fall now. What use have the people for parties that ignore the greatest interest of the people? The chief corner stone of our Government is the intelligence of the masses. When that corner-stone is crumbling, and the people demanding steps to be taken to arrest that decay, how can any party or man go before the people and ask for their votes to retain them in power when they have proven untrue to their pledges in the past? Down with them, and let other men and other principles prevail."

Is there not a note of warning in this for the Democrats in Congress who have opposed the Blair bill or been parties to the manœuvring by which it has been kept from getting a fair hearing? Do not the Democratic constitutional sticklers see that in addition to doing great injustice to those of their party who are active supporters of the bill they are playing into the hands of the Republican party? As we stated the other day, the passage of the bill by a Republican Senate was a sharp party trick. Will the Democratic hair-splitters in the House be foolish enough to let the Republican party reap an advantage from that trick? Will they allow the responsibility for the defeat of a measure of such vital importance to the masses to rest where a Republican Senate has sought to place it? These are the questions that confront them, and which cannot be evaded. Already the Republican papers are attempting to make capital out of the situation.—[Richmond Dispatch.

The Law of Humanity.

On a wintry day a generous, open and kindly faced farmer stopped his team before an indolent looking lout, and calling him out, asked, pointing to two very poor cows, as they stood doubled up with cold, "Have you any objection, friend, to my giving your cows a bundle of fodder from my wagon?" The dacon was offended, and re plied, "Sir, I am responsible for everything on this place; but if it will do you any good to attend to my business you can feed them every day." The kind-hearted man heeded not the attempt at snubbing, but gave each cow a bundle and went on to town. On his return, seeing them again, he gave each a handful that was still left, and it being nearly dark the poor cows followed his wagon unobserved, and on seeing this at home he gave them a good square meal. This led to trouble, for the cows would run away and go to this Barn of their new friend. So the deacon sued the farmer before a good Dutch squire, and the case being tried, the grave justice gave this opinion: "Shentlemens unt napors, in min obnion dish is a case of shonstifiable abscondion; case fur, if I vas in koo I vould pe sure to stay py te parn vere der is goot feot unt plenty of it. De deacon must shtill own de koo, put de farmer haf de proceeds; dat ish all." We not lawyers, but this sounds like good law. At least, if we were of the jestic, and allowed a voice, we ould certainly vote for this judge next election.

THE CLUVERIUS CASE.

Did the Supreme Court Comply With the Constitution?

The following is from the Fredericksburg Free Lance:

The Cluverius case was heard before the full bench of five judges. The decision reached was concurred in by four, Judge Hinton dissenting entirely. Two only of the judges united in the reasons controlling their judgment of affirmance. Judge Fauntleroy wrote an able and elaborate opinion giving his reasons. Judge Lewis concurred in these reasons. But neither Judges Lacy nor Richardson agreed in the reasons of Judge Fauntleroy, but promised to write out and file their reasons.

This, it is respectfully submitted, does not comply with section 4 of the 6th article of the Constitution of Virginia.

The Constitution prescribes as follows:

"When a judgment or decree is reversed or affirmed by the Supreme Court of Appeals the reasons therefore shall be stated in writing and preserved with the records of the case."

Here the Constitution is mandatory that the reasons for affirming or reversing a judgment or decree shall be stated in writing and preserved with the records of the case. And this shall be done how? Why, as the Constitution prescribes. When? At the time that the judgment is affirmed or reversed. We do not mean to say that all four of them must agree in the same reasons; but they, or at least three judges. One of five (when five sit) must give some reason, in writing, for affirming a judgment, and this must be done. When? At the time that the judgment is affirmed or reversed. It will not do to file reasons afterwards nunc protunc, simply because not even an appellate court can change or alter the State organic act.

As we understand it, only two judges out of five gave reasons in writing during the term at which Cluverius's sentence was affirmed. The only course, it seems to us, that is open is to reopen the case, and for at least three of the four judges when they affirm again to file reasons in writing, when? at the time that they affirm the judgment in Cluverius's case.

On Curing Hay.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

At the meeting of the Tuckahoe Club, at Mr. Chaffin's, the other day, during the discussion of the curing of hay, it was stated that clover, and other grasses, when not too heavy, might be put in the barn the same day it was cut as soon as it wilted provided salt was used on it (one gallon to the two horse load) as it was spread in the mow. After discussing it a while the impression was left on the minds of some that you could house your hay the same day it was cut, salt or no salt. I think that is an error that is calculated to do much harm among the inexperienced. Salt put in with green hay absorbs the moisture. This melts the salt and cools the hay, stopping excessive fermentation. The hay then cures nice and soft, retaining all of its leaves and its aroma. Groundalum salt is best.

The Pillar of Love.

In certain district in Russia there is to be seen, in a solitary place, a pillar with this inscription: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." That pillar tells a touching tale, which many have heard. It was a wild region, infested with wolves, and as a little party traveled along, it soon became plain that these were on their track. The pistols were fired; one horse after another was left to the ravenous wolves, till, as they came nearer and nothing remained to be tried, the faithful servant, inspite of the expostulations of his master, threw himself in the midst of them and by his own death saved his master. That pillar marks the spot where Lis bones were found; that inscription records the noble instance of attachment.

A whisker dye must be convenient to use, easy to apply, impossible to rub off, elegant in appearance, and cheap in price. Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers unites in itself all these merits. Try it.

Proper Temperature for Brain Workers.

Without thought, it would seem natural that the temperature in which we live in the house should approach more nearly to that of the external atmosphere; but with a little consideration demonstrates the necessity of a very much hotter climate within doors, and the habitual custom of northern nations to maintain this state of caloric. While out-of doore every effort is made to develop, and then to preserve a comfortable warmth of the body. This requires an incalculable amount of nerve force, which, added to the physical expenditure, curtails an exhaustive loss of vitality not easily repaired. When in the house this state of things is reversed, or should be. Weary with the struggle outside to keep from freezing, or chilling, the house heat must be so great and genial that the wanderer may relax utterly, may sit, stand, or lounge, with no fear or question as to his personal comfort. The heat must be great enough to warrant a reduction of outside garments.

This is especially essential to brain workers, who cannot be hampered with extra clothing. The latter, in their cramped, statue like positions at the desk must have, in addition, foot muffs or extra large fleece-lined overshoes to keep them in temper and ideas that cold feet may rob them of. The heat should be equalized throughout the house and its halls, that the strain to be comfortable may not be a repetition of that outside. The winter months are especially the ones for excessive and continued toil, both for the brain and muscles, and in order not to deplete the flagging forces too much, great care should be exercised to guard against the house being made a second workshop by the paucity of artificial heat in stove or furnace.—Dr. Odelia Blinn in Inter Ocean.

Prospect for a Rate War.

Chicago June 10.—For a year past the lines operating to interior points in son hern Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania have endeavored to maintain passenger rates through the government of an association known as the Central Passenger committee. It has only been a partial success, because several of the principal roads refused to become members and persistently cut the rates below the tariff named. At a meeting in Chicago yesterday, at which about thirty roads were represented, it was decided that unless the Chicago and Atlantic, Lake Erie and Western, Indiana, Bloomington and Western and the Nickel Plate roads joined the association by July 9, the organization should be disbanded and a general war instituted against the offending outside lines. It was decided out, this will demoralize rates to Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Columbus and all of the junction roads in the middle states territory.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The President's return to the city was as quiet as the arrival of any other citizen of the Republic. It doubtless would have been otherwise had it not been generally supposed that the same preparations had been made to elude the anxious crowd as when the bridal party left to spend their honeymoon in the Alleghenies. But the morning after the return a large number of callers were at the White House, some on public business, some to pay respects socially. The bride so far has kept very exclusive, seeing no one except wives of the Cabinet officers. She has been busy, however, acknowledging presents and letters of congratulation from personal friends. On Thursday afternoon she and the President drove out to his country home, and there met the architect who had with him the plans for the alterations to be made in the mansion. Mrs. Cleveland soon settled the difficulties that had seemed unsurmountable to the President, and so he was for the first time made to feel the advantages of having helpmate in life. It was Mrs. Cleveland's first visit to the home, and she expressed herself as perfectly charmed with it.

The reception at the Mansion for Tuesday evening is predicted to be a most brilliant affair. The Cabinet, the judiciary, the Diplomatic Corps, Congress, and certain Bureau officers, and the ladies of their families, will all be brought together the same evening, and become personally acquainted with the new mitress of the White House. On the Friday evening following, a public reception will be held, lasting from 9 to 11. After that there will be no more receptions, and it is announced that until after the Friday reception no callers will be received by Mrs. Cleveland.

The two exciting events at the Capitol the past week were the argument made by Judge Fullerton, of New York, before the committee on war claims to pay the war debts of the Confederate States, and the attack on the War Secretary Stanton by Wheeler, of Alabama, and the defense of the Secretary by Kelley, of Pennsylvania. The two subjects revived war memories and scenes, and for a time it looked as if a second war would be fought, but this time inside of the marble walls of the building on the hill. Both the committee room and House galleries were crowded, but the Capitol police managed to preserve peace and no blood was shed, although a lot of bad blood was stirred up.

Congress is completely swamped, and it is not seen how it is going to work its way from beneath the mass of business waiting action. All efforts of the Speaker to have the chairmen of the several committees to harmonize their differences and agree on a plan of action to dispose of the most important bills of public interest have failed. The clamor for action and pressure brought to bear on the chairmen of the committees for precedence is so strong that the chairmen are now pleased, and so do nothing. One committee alone—the committee on claims—has had 4,000 bills referred to it for consideration. Its members are all worked down, and as a matter of personal protection to them it is said that the chairman has refused to call another meeting of the committee this session. As a consequence the bills before it, not already acted on, will remain in statu quo till next session. This will give the members a rest.

The Senate is loading down the oleomargarine bill with all sorts of irrelevant subjects, such as tacking Morrison's tariff bill on to it by Senator Beck, and including wool and worsted goods in the tariff list by Dawes, and the like—with the hope of talking the bill to death when it is called up for debate and action. The Senators are also canvassing as to what bills shall be given consideration in the remaining days of the session. One of the bills agreed on is the Mexican pension bill. This bill has already passed the House, and will probably become a law the session.

When the U. S. Fish Commission was established a few years ago, there were not many people who he lieved it would ever be anything more than an ornamental appendage to the Government. Its work is, however, beginning to show results fully justifying the claims that were made for its usefulness. The greatest actual results thus far attained have been with carp. This is due to the very rapid growth of this species and the fact that it thrives in all waters of this country. It is estimated that the annual yield will soon reach the value of $1,000, 000. The Commission has also been surprisingly successful with other popular fish, such as the shad, trout, salmon, &c., and the waters in various parts of the country have been replenished with their native finny tribes. Prof. Baird, Chief of the Commission, has just received from the Department of Fisculture of the lower Seine, France a gold medal for valuable fish ova sent to the Department.

TEN COLOR LINE.

Vincennes in a Quandry About a Question of Law.

Vincennes, Ind., June 12.—Superintendent Taylor, of the Vincennes high school, issues the following card: "There will be no high school commencement this year. This be ordered for the reason that every one of the eight white pupils of the senior class is unwilling to proceed with the duties of commencement night. The colored member alone who is willing to go forward, and who stands above the average of her class, shall have the right and the aid of justice. It is, of course, impossible to hold a formal commencement with only one pupil."

There has been considerable discussion over this question here, and it seems that the drawing of the color line has brought about a most unavoidable state of affairs. Professor Taylor, however, antic pated the trouble by referring the school trustees to the law on the case before the matter became public, and the trustees, recognizing that they were under a $10,000 bond, agreed to the admission of the colored girl to the graduating class. The white pupils have since withdrawn, and in consequence there will be no commencement.

A King Commits Suicide.

Munich, June 14.—Louis, the deposed King of Bavaria, committed suicide by drowning yesterday. He had gone out for a promenade in the park of Berg Castle, accompanied by Dr. Gudden, his physician. The King suddenly threw himself into Starnburg lake and was drowned. His physician jumped into the water to rescue him and was also drowned.

The medical commission which examined the late King Ludwig, report that he had ordered the members of ministerial deputation headed by Count Holstein, who called upon him to procure his consent to a regency, to be flogged until they bled, and then to have their eyes extracted. Before his death the belief was spreading among the among the common people of Bavaria that the King's deposition was illegal. The people did not believe he was insane, and precautions had been taken to prevent populace from rising to restore the King.

The correspondent of Montgomery Messenger says:

"N. Conrad, Esq., arrived on Friday from Baltimore, on a visit to his son, President T. N. Conrad. He was enjoying apparently improved health. On Sunday about noon he complained of a pain in his chest, a physician was summoned, who had scarcely reached the house before Mr. Conrad was found to be dead. He has had heart disease, but never was seriously affected by it, and his death therefore from this disease was a great shock to his numerous friends in this community. The body was taken to Baltimore for interment. Mr. N. Conrad was for a number of years a merchant here, and by his upright and honest dealing, won and held the esteem of the citizens. He was an active member of the Methodist Church."

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in neutralizing the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of this disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is decidedly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before that I lived on mild, but poor worm. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the Doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and was entirely cured." A. V. A. BOYER, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

Why are the Executive Committee so tardy about fixing the time and place for holding the 7th Congressional District Convention. It should be held in August so as to give time to organize a campaign. The announcement of the time and place for holding the convention should be made immediately so that the County Conventions to appoint delegates could be held on some Court day. Our County Convention should be held at the July Court which occurs on the 20th of July. We are going to have a tough fight of it this Fall, and it is time we were at work. Let all Loyal Democrats brace themselves for the battle. It is coming and with terrific force. There is decidedly too much indifference manifested in our ranks to make the fight easy. WASHINGTON LETTER.

Hot weather has settled on Washington at last, and everybody is anxious to get away to new resorts members of Congress included. Everything is life and bustle at the Capitol. The members are early at their desks and late to leave. They are early because the first hour of every morning is devoted to private bills, and if constituents are to be pacified these bills must be attended to. Nearly the whole time from now till adjournment will be taken up in the consideration of appropriation bills. On Thursday there were more members to be found in there places than on any day before in the session. Word was passed around that a vote would be had on the tariff bill, and every member was urged to be early at the polls and not to leave his place until he had cast his little ballot. There was more "button-holing" done, and more little groups to be seen on the floor than at any other time for years. The day was hot and oppressive, but the members stuck to their desks like Spartans. Is some excitement prevailed during the taking of the vote, and the response to every name called was listened to with breathless eagerness to catch the aye or nay. When the result of 140 ayes to 153 nays was officially announced, the Morrison men gracefully submitted to the defeat with the statement that on Tuesday another effort would be made to have the bill considered. The opponents gave notice that they would be on hand.

The vote is generally accepted as a finality, and as fixing the day of adjournment about the middle of July. Hard work and hasty legislation will now be indulged in to the close of the session. After the battle Sam. Randall and his muckraw could be seen most of the time in the corridors talking with groups of constituents and admirers, and receiving congratulations. He felt that such a good day's work had been done that he was entitled to a holiday.

The next bill in order was the Naval appropriation. During its consideration not twenty members were at their desks, although some fifty or more were lounging on the Turkish sofas and listening to good stories in the cloak rooms. The members had discussed the merits of the bill outside of the chamber, and decided on the way they would vote when the time should come. They therefore did not propose to remain in the sweat box listening to speeches prepared for constituents, when they could step out into the halls, the committee rooms, or on to the portices, and keep cool in the strong draughts sweeping through every part of the building except the House Chamber.

Outside of Congress the event of the week was the President's two receptions—Tuesday and Friday evenings. On Tuesday the fashion and elite of the was present. Mrs. Cleveland wore train skirt of her bridal dress with a low bodice of ivory satin edged with folds of tulle and filled with lace, while about her lovely neck was the diamond necklace, the wedding gift of the President. She received with a great deal of ease and grace, and had a cordial and apt response to all the words of congratulation extended, and made a pleasing impression upon all the guests. She was assisted by Mrs. Endicott, Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Vilas. The Brazilian Princes was present, and was accorded a special reception during the evening, after which he mingled with the other guests. In his honor the Marine Band rendered the Brazilian national hymn.

At the reception Friday evening more than 3,000 people were present. The rooms were as beautifully decorated as at the first reception, and Mrs. Cleveland no less charming and happy in her manner of receiving. The President looked supremely happy and had none of that manner of seeming to be bored that was sometime noticeable before his marriage, and he had a pleasant word for all who congratulated him on his new life. Ever since the receptions Mrs. Cleveland has been the subject discussed in every household, and the compliments and praise bestowed upon her are universal.

A series of receptions to the President and his bride has been inaugurated by the ladies of the Cabinet officers' families. The first was on Thursday evening dy Mrs. Endicott, wife of the Secretary of War. Mrs. Vilas and Mrs. Whitney will follow in due time. Mrs. Manning and the Secretary are still at the Hot Springs in Virginia, and the reception by them will be deferred till fall. When it comes the turn of Secretary Lamar and Atty Gen'l Garland it is supposed that a stag party will be given. That will wind up the round of pleasure till next winter. H.

Policeman Shot by a Moonshiner.

We are informed by Mr. Ro. Allison that Mr. Kerr who is employed by the C. & R. R. as a special policeman was shot and it is supposed fatally, while attempting to arrest a noted moonshiner by the name of Tom Parrish. The diffient ty occurred on Thursday evening in the lower end of this County at what is known as the "old Pierce place." As Mr. Kerr was unacquainted with his assailant, the name of the would be assasin is not positively known as yet, but circumstances all point to Parrish, who had been in the neighborhood for several days selling blockade liquor, Mr. Kerr was alive at last accounts, but the wound is said to be a severe one and may prove fatal at any time. A posse is in pursuit of Parrish.—[Wytheville Enterprise.

FRIDAY..... June 23, 1882.

Bright Outlook for Democracy.

At the time of the last election for Governor in this State a good many honest men were sincerely concerned lest the administration of Mr. Cleveland should be discredited and weakened. The Mugwump journals at that time were dishonoring themselves and trying to dishonor the President by urging him to desert his own party and indirectly assist the opposition, which had just insulted him in its platform and made an ardent Blaine man its candidate. On the other hand, a number of papers professing some slack allegiance to the Democratic party were doing everything in their power to defeat Governor Hill by pretending that his election would be a rebuke to the President. Things did not look deserful, it must be confessed, yet the people's common sense guided them to a right conclusion, and after the noise died away every body saw that a Democratic administration at Washington had been strengthened and indorsed by a Democratic victory in New York.

But the croakers did not cease to prophesy evil, and they declared that this year, anyway, the adherence of the President to his own and his party's pledges would bring about Democratic defeat. We have had some elections this year already, and the result does not support this theory. Jersey City and Hoboken, just across the river, elected Democratic mayors. The Democrats carried Albany by a handsome old-time majority, and nowhere in this State has there been any sign of this predicted reaction. The same is true of the Connecticut town elections. At a municipal election in Wilmington, Del., the other day, the Democrats swept the city by the largest majority they ever had there. Yet that city is the home of the Secretary of State, who is known to share the President's views concerning civil service appointments. In the South there is no sign of wavering.

In Oregon last Tuesday there was an important State election. The State has been decidedly Republican for years. The Democrats have always made a gallant but usually hopeless struggle. Had they been disappointed and dispirited on account of the conduct of the administration, they would have made but little effort this year. They would not have even been in a condition to take advantage of the local dissensions in the Republican party there. But the event shows that the Democrats were active, united and alert. They have elected their candidate for Governor by nearly 2,000 majority, and have chosen several other State officers by smaller majorities. Even up in Maine the Democrats are active and hopeful, and they declare that Mr. Blaine will find he needs all of Mr. Bodwell's money to enabled him to hold his own State.

Thus from the extreme East to the furthest West we see Democrats confident and aggressive. This does not look as though the party was destined to defeat, even though disappointed politicians do growl, and angry newspapers echo their growls. The truth is that the people are very well pleased with Mr. Cleveland and his administration. The Democrats are encouraged to go on voting the Democratic ticket, while the Republicans, relieved of their apprehensions as to the effect of Democratic rule, have grown indifferent and careless about voting the Republican ticket. Though the voice of the dis granted is still heard in the land, the outlook for the Democratic party is bright and hopeful.—[Star.

People do not generally realize how many Washingtons there are in the United States. The "Official Postal Guide" shows one each in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia—twenty-eight out of the thirty-eight states and two territories; and this is exclusive of the Washington Bars, Washington Centre, Washington Harbors, and so on, sprinkled around equally promiscuously.

THE FRENCH PRINCES.

Premier de Freycinet Advocates the Expulsion of the Pretenders.

Paris, June 11.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. de Freycinet vindicated the action of the Government in introducing the bill for the expulsion of the princes. The presence of pretenders, he said, was the perpetual menace of a change of the form of government and tended to throw discredit upon the existing Government. All regimes had acted similarly as regards the expulsion of their enemies, and the republic was in nowise exempt from the same necessity. The Prime Minister blamed the Count of Paris for having invited the members of the diplomatic corps to a reception given by the Count Prier to the departure of his daughter, the Princess Amelia, for Lisbon.

He said that several diplomats had assured him privately that the invitation has caused them much embarrassment. In conclusion, the Premier said it was necessary to prove to the world that there was only one Government in France, and that limited expulsions were necessary in order to accomplish that end. He did not wish to banish all the members of former reigning families, but only the chief pretenders. [Applause from the Left and Centre.]

The Chamber resolved by a vote of 310 to 233 to consider the committee clauses enacting the immediate expulsion of all the princes. Fifty members of the Left voted with the minority.

The Chamber subsequently rejected the first clause of the committee's bill enacting general expulsion. The vote was 314 to 220.

After further debate the Chamber by a vote of 315 to 232 adopted an amendment making the expulsion of the chief pretenders compulsory, the expulsion of other members of former reigning families to be optional with the Government. After a vigorous protest from Ornano (Bonapartist) clauses 2 and 3 were adopted. They empower the Government to expel by decree princes not affected by clause 1; provide penalties of two to five years' imprisonment if they return to France, and disfranchise the princes remaining in French territory. Finally the whole bill was passed without division. The Chamber then adjourned until Tuesday.

Trying to Keep Up Appearances.

The effort which some people make to keep up a genteel appearance would be laughable, if it were not so pitiable. It is pitiable because it deceives no one, and only renders those who indulge in it the subjects of uncomplimentary and wide spread social gossip. In the so-called fashionable quarters of the town there are numerous families paying high rents who do not actually partake of sufficient nourishing food to keep them in a good state of bodily preservation. They have finely furnished rooms, but their stomachs are not furnished with food very plentifully, and they may be said to keep Lent the whole year round. If they resided in less pretentious portions of the town they might have equally comfortable quarters and plenty to eat, and save something from their yearly incomes besides; but they foolishly prefer to live in the same neighborhood with our so-called aristocracy, and spend nearly all their money for house rent and dress. Those are the people who buy an eighth of a pound of butter and two eggs at one time, and other equally small amounts of grocerie and provisions.—[Boston Budget "Saunterer."

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty six pounds.

An Experiment in Language Learning.

A few years ago a society of eminent Frenchmen discussed the question: "What language would a child naturally speak if never taught?" Twenty different results were predicted.

To test the matter two infants were procured and isolated with a deaf and dumb woman, who lived alone in the Alps, surrounded with her sheep and chickens.

After six years the children and the nurse were brought from the servants, who were on tiptoe of expectation as to the result. When, lo! not a word could either of the children utter, but most perfectly could they imitate the crowing of the cock, the cackling of a hen, and the bleating of sheep.—[Western Plowman.

is now published in eight pages form. It is just double its former size, and contains about sixty-four columns of solid reading matter. The subscription price remains the same—one dollar per annum.

It is our intention to make the Weekly Dispatch more than ever a first-class home and farmers' paper. It will contain each week complete market reports, the latest news, foreign and domestic, State and city, together with interesting miscellany, embracing special features in the farmers' department, household matters, ladies' fashions, an interesting story, and the like. In a word, it is our aim "never to let well enough alone." The paper will be improved in matter and typographical appearance just as in size. Above all, the Dispatch promises to defend in the future the fair name of Japan and champion the cause of right, for her people as it has always done in the past.

—County School Board meets today. The Board of Supervisors meets on the 29th and 30th.

—Col. J. Hampton Hoge of Christiansburg, is in attendance upon our County Court this week.

—Mr. H. E. Thomas of Banhart & Ellis, Baltimore, Md., paid our town a flying visit this week.

—Miss J. Nellie Hogy, one of Bangs' charming young belles is visiting relatives in this place.

—Misses Florence and Minnie Perkins of Alleghany Co., Va., are visiting at Squire B. O. Morgan's.

—Misses Maggie Peck, Nita McNutt and Maggie Barbario of Princeton, are visiting at Col. James B. Peck's.

—They say that Pat the popular clerk in the store at Wabash gets very mad sometimes, so mad that he could ——.

—Cards are out for the marriage of Rev. Benj. Dennis of Pocahontas, to Miss Lizzie Terry of Tazewell Co., Va., on June the 30, 1886.

—It is reported that a traveling trunk saloon paid our town a visit this week. Such men are public nuisances and should be stayed.

—The warm weather often has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

—Miss Fannie, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of our townsmen Col. C. C. Woolwine returned from Villa Maria at Abingdon on yesterday.

—I mean what I say and my what I mean, I will be here until some time in July. Yours for four week. P. W. Pepp.

—Mr. Zack Jennings of C. W. Scott & Co., Lynchburg, Va., was in town this week. Zack is a jolly fellow and we are always glad to see him.

—Thos. J. Pearson has a few more Champion Mowers and Thomas Rakes (the best on earth) that he will sell at low prices, to close out stock.

—We were, indeed, glad to meet Miss Cynthia Shumate who has been attending, and was awarded the Gold Medal for Scholarship at the Southwest Virginia Institute, at Glade Spring.

—Mr. D. Morris has just received a fine assortment of watches, brass lots, rings, charms &c. Call and examine his stock and you are sure to be pleased with both the article and the price.

—Miss Annie Berkley, one of Roanoke's most charming belles, niece of Capt. J. H. H. Figgat is visiting at Dr. Johnston's. She expects to remain several weeks. The VIRGINIAN wishes her a merry sojourn in the mountain village.

—We call attention to the new advertisement of D. L. Whitaker & Co. They have just received a new line of goods and will accommodate you with the prices. Give them a call. They deserve your patronage.

—Strict search should be made for the committee who decided the prizes at the late exercises. One made his escape that night and the other two were seen taking the train at Wenonah next day. Not one of them has been heard of since.

—Quite an animated discussion occurred at Staffordsville last week as to what wearing apparels a man could be properly weighed in. The ladies gained the day by the question being decided in the negative.

—Miss Mary Symns of Summers Co., W. Va., is visiting at Mr. B. O. Morgan's. Miss Mary attended one session of the Pearisburg Academy and made many warm and admiring friends that are glad to meet her again.

—Miss Allene, youngest daughter of Capt. James D. Johnston returned from her school in Staunton on last Saturday. Miss Johnston is highly cultured and entertaining, and will add quite an impetus to Pearisburg society.

—The incomparable Miss Lulu Richards of Baltimore, has returned to Pearisburg to attend the wedding of her friend Miss R. P. Johnston. Miss Richards is perhaps the most universally popular young lady that has ever visited Pearisburg.

—Miss Lena Collins, daughter of our townsman Mr. John Collins, died of Consumption on last Sunday. She had been sick for several months and had suffered greatly. It is sad to be stricken down in youth when life looks like worth living. The bereaved family have the sincere sympathy and condolence of the entire community.

CHAMPION HARVESTERS AT WORK.—The two Champion Folding Bar Reapers sold by Thos. J. Pearson, agent, to Mess. Wm P. Woods & Jas. E. Woolwine, and Mr. H. T. Daugherty arrived Wednesday. The first was put to work in Dr. Johnston's field adjoining town and is doing the work of about ten cradles in fine style, the other was put to work at Adair's switch. This is an advance in the right direction.

—The Yorkshire pigs bred and exhibited by Messrs J. W. McClaugherty & Bro., here on Court day were beauties. He has some 8 or 10 left that he will sell at $8.00 a piece until before the July Court. If you desire to obtain a specimen of this valuable breed of hogs, order at once.

—The Thessalia High School commencement will take place on the evening of July 1st at 8 o'clock, and on the following day July 2nd. In the evening of the 2nd the Thessalia Literary Society will have a debate. All are cordially invited to attend and requested to be on the ground by 7:30 p. m., so as not to delay the exercises.

—We attended "Hollins" commencement last week and saw the sweet "girl" graduates take their "sheps." Miss Olive Dibrel who visited our town last Xmas took the Literary degree having diplomas in five different departments. Miss Lizzie D. Mathews of this County graduated in Mathematics. The music was superb. Hollins is getting up quite a reputation for music.

—Our esteemed friend stood the trying ordeal of last Wednesday with a stoical indifference until the belles commenced chiming, the funeral dirges of his hopes when he had to repeat to himself:

"Be still and beat and stop sighing,
Behind the clouds the sun's still shining."

This, and the sympathy of his many friends is all that remained him.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg has accepted the wholesale State agency for the celebrated Knabe, Kranich & Bach and Emerson Pianos. The Estey and Smith American Organs, which he will sell at the lowest factory prices, a retail, where he has no agent. But he wants good reliable active agents every where.

—It is always sad to chronicle the death of the young, but it becomes our duty to chronicle the death of a young lady under peculiarly sad circumstances. Mrs. Nellie Henson who had not yet reached her nineteenth year and was a bride of only two months standing, passed the pearly portals into the dim land of a dreamless slumber on the 13th of June, 1886. She was a Miss Nellie Oneal from near Peterstown, W. Va., where she was universally beloved and had many warm and admiring friends, and yet so young she had made a profession of religion some three years ago and her death and died in full faith and confidence in her savior. She was buried on the 14th by the Lodge of Good Templars at the Narrows of which she was a member. The VIRGINIAN extends its heartfelt sympathies and condolence to the bereaved husband and family. A sad and silent tear is dropped over the grave of the young and the fair.

—The record of merit for promoting personal aesthetics is due to J. C. Ayer & Co., whose incomparable Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier of the hair. Harmless, effective, agreeable, it has taken rank among the indispensable articles of the toilet. To scanty locks it gives luxuriance; and withered hair it clothes with the hue of youth.

NOTED SOCIAL EVENT.

A Prominent Physician of Pearisburg Leads to the Alter One of Pearisburg's Fairest and Most Cultured Daughters.

Dr. John Izard, Nephew of Hon. John Goode, Marries Miss Roberta Pearis, Eldest Daughter of Capt. James D. Johnston.

One of the most noted social events that has happened in the history of our town was the marriage of Dr. Izard and Miss Johnston at the residence of the bride's parents on last Wednesday, At 9:30 a. m the guests were ensembled in the West room which was brilliantly lighted and tastefully decorated. Wagners Wedding March from "Lohengrin" was beautifully rendered by Dr. Cowan of New River. The six groomsmen marched in by twos, taking their position facing one another, three on the right and three on the left of the altar. They were followed by the bridesmaids in the same order, each lady taking her position in front of her respective groomsman. The bride and groom were preceded by little Vivian and Mamie Johnston. The ceremony which was very beautiful was performed in an impressive and solemn manner by Rev. T. F. Glenn, minister of the M. E. Church of this place.

After the ceremony the bride and groom entered the East room where they received congratulations.

Congratulations over the bridal party and guests repaired to the Breakfast room and partook of a most excellent repast, which did ample justice to the well deserved reputation of the hostess.

The bride and groom started for the home of the groom's parents immediately after breakfast and were accompanied to Wenonah by the bridal party. As they passed through the streets all the church bells were chiming, showers of old shoes and white rice greeted them from all sides, and smiling faces and fleet wishes bespoke hearty congratulations from all classes.

COSTUMES.

The bride wore a heavy White Satin, trimmed with Duchesse Lace, —Court Train, Veil of Tulle, covering entire dress, with small orange blossoms.

Misses Allene and Jennie Johnston wore pink silk; Miss Louise Pearis in corn colored silk and pearls, and Miss Lulu Richards in corn colored silk and diamonds; Misses Lula M. Johnston and J. Nellie Hoge in pale blue Virginia crape.

The groomsmen in fall dress suits were: Rev. Benj Dennis of Tazewell; Mr. D. P. Payne and Dr. George Latham of Lynchburg; Dr. Wm A. Johnston of Pearisburg; Mr. Wm Weishampf of Red Sulphur, and Mr. Shirey of Pocahontas.

PRESENTS.

Capt. James D. Johnston, a cheque for Five Hundred Dollars. Mrs. James D. Johnston, one dozen solid silver table spoons and one dozen forks. Mr. and Mrs. Izard, an ancient bracelet of blue enameled Etruscan gold, a breast pin of Etruscan gold with a painting of a scene in Switzerland upon it, and a ring consisting of three bands, one covered with small diamonds set in silver and two covered with pearls set in old gold. The three last named mentioned presents have been the loans of the last connection for the past two hundred years. Dr. Allen Fowler, of Salt Lake City, a silver olive dish. Mrs. A. L., Mr. C. Why are the Executive Committee so tardy about fixing the time and place for holding the 9th Congressional District Convention. It should be held in August so as to give time to organize a campaign. The announcement of the time and place for holding the convention should be made immediately so that the County Conventions to appoint delegates could be held on some Court day. Our County Convention should be held at the July Court which occurs on the 20th of July. We are going to have a tough fight if it is the Fall, and it is time we were at work. Let all Loyal Democrats brace themselves for the battle. It is coming and with terrific force. There is decidedly too much indifference manifested in our ranks to make the fight easy. Democrats awake!

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Hot weather has settled on Washington at last, and everybody is anxious to get away to new resorts members of Congress included. Everything is life and bustle at the Capitol. The members are early at their desks and late to leave. They are easily because the first hour of every morning is devoted to private bills, and if constituents are to be pacified these bills must be attended to. Nearly the whole time from now till adjournment will be taken up in the consideration of appropriation bills. On Thursday there were more members to be found in there places than on any day before in the session. Word was passed around that a vote would be had on the tariff bill, and every member was urged to be early at the polls and not to leave his place until he had cast his little ballot. There was more "button-holing" done, and more little groups to be seen on the floor than at any other time for years. The day was hot and oppressive, but the members stuck to their desks like Spartans. Intense excitement prevailed during the taking of the vote, and the response to every name called was listened to with breathless eagerness to catch the aye or nay. When the result of 140 ayes to 153 nays was officially announced, the Morrison men gracefully subnuitted to the defeat with the statement that on Tuesday another effort would be made to have the bill considered. The opponents gave notice that they would be on hand.

The vote is generally accepted as a finality, and as fixing the day of adjournment about the middle of July. Hard work and hasty legislation will now be indulged in to the close of the session. After the battle Sam Randall and his mackinaw could be seen most of the time in the corridors talking with groups of constituents and admirers, and receiving congratulations. He felt that such a good day's work had been done that he was entitled to a holiday.

The next bill in order was the Naval appropriation. During its consideration not twenty members were at their desks, although some fifty or more were lounging on the Turkish sofas and listening to good stories in the cloak rooms. The members had discussed the merits of the bill outside of the chamber, and decided on the way they would vote when the time should come. They therefore did not propose to remain in the sweat box listening to speeches prepared for constituents, when they could step out into the halls, the committee rooms, or on to the portices, and keep cool in the strong draughts sweeping through every part of the building except the House Chamber.

Outside of Congress the event of the week was the President's two receptions—Tuesday and Friday evenings. On Tuesday the fashion and elite of the was present. Mrs. Cleveland wore train skirt of her bridal dress with a low bodice of ivory satin edged with folds of null and filled with lace, while about her lovely neck was the diamond necklace, the wedding gift of the President. She received with a great deal of ease and grace, and had a cordial and apt response to all the words of congratulation extended, and made a pleasing impression upon all the guests. She was assisted by Mrs. Endicott, Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Vilas. The Brazilian Prince was present, and was accorded a special reception during the evening, after which he mingled with the other guests. In his honor the Marine Band rendered the Brazilian national hymn.

At the reception Friday evening more than 3,000 people were present. The rooms were as beautifully decorated as at the first reception, and Mrs. Cleveland no less charming and happy in her manner of receiving. The President looked supremely happy and had none of that manner of seeming to be bored that was sometime noticeable before his marriage, and he had a pleasant word for all who congratulated him on his new life. Ever since the receptions Mrs. Cleveland has been the subject discussed in every household, and the compliments and praise bestowed upon her are universal.

A series of receptions to the President and his bride has been inaugurated by the ladies of the Cabinet officers' families. The first was on Thursday evening by Mrs. Endicott, wife of the Secretary of War. Mrs. Vilas and Mrs. Whitney will follow in due time. Mrs. Manning and the Secretary are still at the Hot Springs in Virginia, and the reception by them will be deferred till fall. When it comes the turn of Secretary Lamar and Att'y Gen'l Garland it is supposed that a stag party will be given. That will wind up the round of pleasure till next winter. H.

Policeman Shot by a Moonshiner.

We are informed by Mr. Ro. Allison that Mr. Kerr who is employed by the C. C. & R. R. as a special policeman was shot and it is supposed fatally, while attempting to arrest a noted moonshiner by the name of Tom Parrish. The difficulty occurred on Thursday evening in the lower end of this County at what is known as the "old Pierce place." As Mr. Kerr was unacquainted with his assailant, the name of the would be assassin is not positively known as yet, but circumstantial will point to Parrish, who had been in the neighborhood for several days selling blockade liquor, Mr. Kerr was alive at last accounts, but the wound is said to be a severe one and may prove fatal at any time. A posse is in pursuit of Parrish.—[Wythville Enterprise.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and reputed medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unattained. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY..... June 25, 1886.

Bright Outlook for Democracy.

At the time of the last election for Governor in this State a good many honest men were sincerely concerned lest the administration of Mr. Cleveland should be discredited and weakened. The Mugwump journals at that time were dishonoring themselves and trying to dishonor the President by urging him to desert his own party and indirectly assist the opposition, which had just insulted him in its platform and made an ardent Blaine man its candidate. On the other hand, a number of papers professing some slack allegiance to the Democratic party were doing everything in their power to defeat Governor Hill by pretending that his election would be a rebuke to the President. Things did not look cheerful, it must be confessed, yet the people's common sense guided them to a right conclusion, and after the noise died away everybody saw that a Democratic administration at Washington had been strengthened and indorsed by a Democratic victory in New York.

But the croakers did not cease to prophesy evil, and they declared that this year, anyway, the adherence of the President to his own and his party's pledges would bring about Democratic defeat. We have had some elections this year already, and the result does not support this theory. Jersey City and Hoboken, just across the river, elected Democratic mayors. The Democrats carried Albany by a handsome old-time majority, and nowhere in this State has there been any sign of the predicted reaction. The same is true of the Connecticut town elections. At a municipal election in Wilmington, Del., the other day, the Democrats swept the city by the largest majority they ever had there. Yet that city is the home of the Secretary of State, who is known to share the President's views concerning civil service appointments. In the South there is no sign of wavering.

In Oregon last Tuesday there was an important State election. The State has been decidedly Republican for years. The Democrats have always made a gallant but usually hopeless struggle. Had they been disappointed and dispirited on account of the conduct of the administration, they would have made but little effort this year. They would not have even begun a coalition to take advantage of the local dissensions in the Republican party there.

But the event shows that the Democrats were active, united and alert. They have elected their candidate for Governor by nearly 2,000 majority, and have chosen several other State officers by smaller majorities. Keep up in Maine the Democrats are active and hopeful, and they declare that Mr. Blaine will find he made all of Mr. Bodwell's money to enabled him to hold his own State.

Thus from the extreme East to the furthest West we see Democrats confident and aggressive. This does not look as though the party was destined to defeat, even though disappointed politicians do growl, and angry newspapers echo their growls. The truth is that the people are very well pleased with Mr. Cleveland and his administration. The Democrats are encouraged to go on voting the Democratic ticket, while the Republicans, relieved of their apprehensions as to the effect of Democratic rule, have grown indifferent and careless about voting the Republican ticket. Though the voice of the disgruntled is still heard in the land, the outlook for the Democratic party is bright and hopeful.—[Star.

People do not generally realize how many Washingtons there are in the United States. The "Official Postal Guide" shows one each in Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, and twenty-eight out of the forty-two States and two territories, exclusive of the District of Columbia, Washington Centre, Washington Harbors, and so on around equally prominent.

THE FRENCH PRINCES.

Premier de Freycinet Advocates the Expulsion of the Pretenders.

Paris, June 11.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. de Freycinet vindicated the action of the Government in introducing the bill for the expulsion of the princes. The presence of pretenders, he said, was the perpetual menace of a change of the form of government and tended to throw discredit upon the existing Government. All regimes had acted similarly as regards the expulsion of their enemies, and the republic was in nowise exempt from the same necessity. The Prime Minister blamed the Count of Paris for having invited the members of the diplomatic corps to a reception given by the Count Prier to the departure of his daughter, the Princess Amelia, for Lisbon.

He said that several diplomats had assured him privately that the invitation has caused them much embarrassment. In conclusion, the Premier said it was necessary to prove to the world that there was only one Government in France, and that limited expulsions were necessary in order to accomplish that end. He did not wish to banish all the members of former reigning families, but only the chief pretenders. [Applause from the Left and Centre.]

The Chamber resolved by a vote of 310 to 233 to consider the committee clauses enacting the immediate expulsion of all the princes. Fifty members of the Left voted with the minority.

The Chamber subsequently rejected the first clause of the committee's bill enacting general expulsion. The vote was 314 to 220.

After further debate the Chamber by a vote of 313 to 233 adopted an amendment making the expulsion of the chief pretenders compulsory, the expulsion of other members of former reigning families to be optional with the Government. After a vigorous protest from Ornano (Bonapartist) clauses 2 and 3 were adopted. They empower the Government to expel by decree princes not affected by clause 1; provide penalties of two to five years' imprisonment if they return to France, and disfranchise the princes remaining in French territory. Finally the whole bill was passed without division. The Chamber then adjourned until Tuesday.

Trying to Keep Up Appearances.

The effort which some people make to keep up a genteel appearance would be laughable if it were not so pitiable. It is pitiable because it deceives no one, and only renders those who indulge in it the subjects of uncomplimentary and wide spread social gossip. In the so-called fashionable quarters of the town there are numerous families paying high rents who do not actually partake of sufficient nourishing food to keep them in a good state of bodily preservation. They have finely furnished rooms, but their stomachs are not furnished with food very plentifully, and they may be said to keep Lent the whole year round. If they resided in less pretentious portions of the town they might have equally comfortable quarters and plenty to eat, and save something from their yearly incomes besides; but they foolishly prefer to live in the same neighborhood with our so called aristocracy, and spend nearly all their money for house rent and dress. These are the people who buy an eighth of a pound of butter and two eggs at one time, and other equally small amounts of groceries and provisions.—[Boston Budget "Sauntere."

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Thos. J. Pearson's.

Gentleness is a sort of mild atmosphere, and it enters into a child's soul like the sunbeam into the rose bud, slowly but surely expanding it into beauty and vigor.

Personal.

Gladstone is said to be looking very worn and ill.

King George, of Greece, is arranging to make a tour abroad.

John Bright's oratory is still the delight of London assemblages.

Senator Logan and wife will go to the Pacific Coast this summer.

Miss Rose Cleveland has a novel in press entitled, "The Long Row."

Lucy Larcom, whose poetry is widely copied, once worked in a cotton mill.

The Rev. Dr. Sunderland's fee at the President's wedding was a crisp $100 bill.

Ex-President Arthur received a package of President Cleveland's wedding cake.

The richest man in Alabama is H. F. de Bordelebine. He lives at Birmingham, and is worth about $5,000,000.

Governor Abbett, of New Jersey, has just taken out a patent for a new device to regulate and enrich illuminating gas.

The great monument to Victor Emanuel at Turin, costing $200,000, has been erected by King Humbert entirely at his own expense.

General Sherman will attend the Grand Army meeting in San Francisco in August, and on his return will take up his residence in New York.

Seven hundred babies have been named after Cleveland since he became President, and their photographs fill three drawers in a White House cabinet.

Pasteur's theory has received a severe strain in the death from hydrophobia of a Roumanian farmer who had been treated by the doctor under the most favorable circumstances. The man was bitten by a rabid dog, and fourteen days thereafter was in Pasteur's hands. Nevertheless, hydrophobia carried him off.

Senator Leland Stanford is a man of portly frame, with a large, well shaped head, covered with chestnut hair, slightly gray. His beard and moustache are almost white. He has a straight nose and pointed bushy eyebrows, which overhang cavernous gray orbs. He dresses in black, and displays an expansive area of linen.

An Experiment in Language Learning.

A few years ago a society of eminent Frenchmen discussed the question: "What language would a child naturally speak if never taught?" Twenty different results were predicted.

To test the matter two infants were procured and isolated with a deaf and dumb woman, who lived alone in the Alps, surrounded with her sheep and chickens.

After six years the [illegible] and the nurse were brought before the servants, who were on tip-toe of expectation as to the result. When, lo! not a word could either of the children utter, but most perfectly could they imitate the crowing of the cock, the rackling of a hen, and the bleating of sheep.—[Western Plowman.

THE GREAT FAMILY PAPER

—IS THE—

NEW WEEKLY DISPATCH.

ONLY $1 PER YEAR.

Eight Pages of Solid Reading Matter!

THE BEST PAPER IN THE SOUTH.

THE RICHMOND WEEKLY DISPATCH

is now published in eight page form. It is just double its former size, and contains about sixty-four columns of solid reading matter. The subscription price remains the same—one dollar per annum.

It is our intention to make the Weekly Dispatch more than ever a first-class home and farmers' paper. It will contain each week complete market reports, the latest news, foreign and domestic, State and city, together with interesting miscellany, including special features in the farmers' department, household matters, ladies' fashions, an interesting story, and the like. In a word, it is our aim "never to let well enough alone." The paper will be improved in matter and typographical appearance just as in size. Above all, the Dispatch promises to defend in the future the rare name of Virginia and champion the cause of right for her people as it has always done in the past.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY,..... July 7, 1886.

CALL FOR A DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION NINTH DISTRICT.

At a meeting of the Congressional Committee of the Democratic party for the 9th Congressional District of Virginia, held this day in Wytheville; it was decided that the convention to nominate a candidate to represent said district in the National House of Representatives (50th Congress) be held in the town of Wytheville on Wednesday the 4th day of August, 1886, at 12 o'clock M.

The Democratic County Chairmen of the 9th District are requested to issue calls for meetings in their respective counties, to select delegates and alternates to represent them in said convention.

The basis of representation will be the vote cast for Governor in November last, and one delegate and one alternate will be chosen for every one hundred votes, or fraction [illegible] that were cast for Fitzhugh Lee in November, 1885, as follows:

Bland, 6 delegates and 6 alternates.
Buchanan, 5 delegates and 5 alternates.
Craig, 6 delegates and 6 alternates.
Dickinson, 5 delegates and 5 alternates.
Giles, 11 delegates and 11 alternates.
Pulaski, 10 delegates and 10 alternates.
Roanoke, 14 delegates and 14 alternates.
Scott, 15 delegates and 15 alternates.
Smythe, 14 delegates and 14 alternates.
Tazewell, 11 delegates and 11 alternates.
Washington, 26 delegates and 26 alternates.
Wise, 7 delegates and 7 alternates.
Wythe, 16 delegates and 16 alternates.

By Order of the Committee.

A. M. BOWMAN,
Chairman.

MASS MEETING.

A mass meeting of the people is hereby called to meet at the Court House, on the first day of the July termof the County Court, for the purpose of selecting Delegates to represent Giles County, in the District Convention which meets, at Wytheville, on Wednesday the 4th day of August next, to nominate a candidate to represent this District in 50th Congress of the United States.

Under the basis of representation this County is entitled to eleven Delegates and eleven Alternates. We hope it will be the pleasure of the meeting to select such representative men as will attend the Convention and labor for the good of the party only.

All voters who intend acting in good faith with the Democratic party and working in the interest of an honest government are cordially invited to participate in this meeting.

THOS. J. PEARSON,
Co. Chairman.

W. W. FRENCH, Sec'y.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Executive Committee have at last waked up and fixed the place and time for the Congressional Convention and our County Chairman has immediately issued a call for a mass meeting for the July term of our County Court. He makes a special point in his invitation to parties who desire to participate in the nominating that all who expect to act with the Democratic party in the fall irrespective of past party affiliation, are cordially invited to participate in the meeting. Let us have a full representative meeting and a fine expression of the party sentiment of the County in the appointment of delegates. Let us thoroughly organize at the beginning and conduct the campaign on business principles. It is only in this way [illegible] to get out our full strength, [illegible] those who are [illegible] indifference, and State craft to represent us in the Convention. The success of the party in this district will greatly depend upon the selection of the convention. As political parties progress and where they are of as long standing as the two National parties in the United States, the success of party depends more upon the man. The mugwump is becoming more numerous every year. The History of our State politics for the past few years has been such as to create a class of independent voters. The result of the debt agitation produced quite a number, the Local Option question last winter and the election there under this spring has had the effect to loosen the ties of party and caused a large class of mugwumps. It therefore behooves us to be very careful in our choice of a candidate for this district. Let us commence that caution by selecting good men as delegates and men that will represent us in feeling and sentiment.

PROBABLE CANDIDATES FOR THE SIXTH.

Quite a number of prominent men have been mentioned in connection with the Congressional nomination. Connally F. Trigg our present representative has been frequently mentioned, Hon. Jno. A. Buchanan and Col. Abe Fulkerson of Washington, A. L. Pridemore and Judge J. B. Richmond of Wise and Scott, Gen. J. A. Walker and D. A. Pierce of Wythe, Hon. S. W. Williams of Bland, Judge James W. Marshal of Craig, and Maj. R. R. Henry of Tazewell.

The Republicans spoken of so far are Bailey of Washington, Bowen of Tazewell and Wm. A. French of this County.

Should Bowen be the Republican choice it would almost of necessity nominate Henry of Tazewell. Should French be the Republican choice it might give one of our own county men, Johnston or Bailey a boom. We will heartily support any of the Democrats above mentioned or any other that the Convention may bring out. Let us have harmony.

The Eighth District.

A convention of the Democratic party is called to meet in Alexandria on Thursday, August 5, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress in the Eighth district.

Mahone's Mandate.

At the meeting of the "State committee, Republican party of Virginia," held at the Capitol in Washington, last Saturday, it was ordered that Congressional Conventions be held in the First, the Second, the Fourth, the Ninth, and the Tenth Congressional districts. For the First Congressional district, at Tappahannock, Tuesday, August 31; for the Second Congressional district, at Norfolk, Wednesday, September 1; for the Fourth Congressional district, at Petersburg, Wednesday, September 1; for the Ninth Congressional district, at Marion, Wednesday, September 1; for the Tenth Congressional district, at Staunton, Wednesday, September 1.

In respect to the Third and Fifth Congressional districts, all matters relating to the action of the party are relegated to the care of the Congressional committee for such districts, and State Executive Committee.

In respect to the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth districts, no conventions and no nominations are advised.

Jeffersonian democracy is a grand principle, and one for which all the newspapers "irrespective of party," seem to be clamoring. But, to tell the truth, what the south needs now-a-days is not so much the enforcement of "Jeffersonianism," but the application of a principle which will put an end to bulldozing, and which will insure the material prosperes of our section. This is the issue in a nutshell. We live in the present. The time for strict constitutional constructionists has passed. The shadow is nothing. We want the substance legitimately and honestly.—[Petersburg Index and Appeal.

Congressman Gibson of Maryland, made his first speech in the House on Saturday. He assailed the civil-service law as undemocratic, and was applauded on both sides of the chamber.

President Cleveland paid in full for the train which took him on his bridal tour and back, and refused to be dead-headed. Imagine a Republican statesman declining the tender of such courtesies.—General Grant for instance. What a surprised set of officials there must have been in the Baltimore and Ohio office to see a President paying his way like a common mortal.

The Tennessee Democratic Judicial Convention, which met at Nashville, Tuesday, nominated Captain Wm. C. Fowlkes, of Mamphis as one of the five candidates for the Supreme Bench of the State. Captain Fowlkes is a native of Lynchburg, Va., a graduate of the Law School of the University of Virginia, and served as an officer in the Army of Northern Virginia.

—In no other medicinal preparation have the results of the most intelligent study and scientific inquiry been so steadily and progressively utilized as in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, barks, herbs, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. C. BREWSTER, Suffolk.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." Mrs. C. J. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PEELE, Salem, Mass.

Three Rich Girls.

The French Senate has passed the amendment [illegible] vote of 141 to 107, so the princes must go.

The members of the house of Bonaparte affected immediately or prospectively by the rule of the French Parliament are Prince Napoleon and his wife, Princess Clotilde, of Savoy, and their children—Prince Victor, Prince Louis and Princess Marie; Princess Mathilde, (Princess de San Donato); Prince Roland Bonaparte, son of the late Prince Pierre Bonaparte.

Of the House of France (Orleans-Bourbon): Prince Philippe (Comte de Paris) and wife, Princess Isabelle de Montpensier, and children, Princess Amelie, (Crown Princess of Portugal), Prince Philippe (Duke d'Orleans), Princess Helene, Princess Isabelle, Princess Louise, Prince Ferdinand, Prince Robert (Duc de Chartres), and his wife, Princess Francoise de Joinville, and children; Prince Henri, Princess Marguerite, Prince Jean, Prince Louis (Duc de Nemours) and his wife, Princess Victorine de Saxe-Coboure et Gothe and children. Prince Ferdinand Philippe, (Duke d'Alencon), his wife, Princess Sophie of Bavaria, and children; Princess Louise, Prince Emanuel, Princess Marguerite, (Princess Czartoryski), Princess Blanche, Prince Francois, (Prince de Joinville), his wife, Princess Francoise of Brazil, and children, Princess Francoise, (Duchess de Chartres), Prince Pierre, (Duc de Penthievre), Prince Henri, (Duc d'Aumale).

Collateral branches of the House: Count Camille de Paris will again take up his residence at Twickenham, England.

The Last Massacre.

It now seems certain that the massacre at Chaudhar will be corrected at Richmond very soon. The Governor has taken the matter in hand energetically, and will carry it through. It seems deeply that the matter will be an expensive one. We hope that old "Traveller" the favorite horse, will be reproduced, and that his noble rider, the peerless Lee will be raised on him as the soldiers now living remember him. We never saw old "Traveller" reared or cared that he was on any occasion, though we have seen him carrying his master in the midst of battle. Let the things have not gone, and repose which he always had in life, and above all let us see our great General in front not his horse, just as we always did. "Traveller" was a fine horse and carried himself well, but it was always the rider and not the horse that men saw when General Lee was on him.

Some day we hope to see a soldier in statue of "Old Jack" on his "little sorrel." It ought not be harder from Lee. We cannot see reasons in our hearts, and we will stand together in History as incomparably the greatest American soldiers.—[Montgomery Messenger.

An Excessive Beauty.

She was the daughter of a Senator and her sweetheart had been to see her every night for some time. Her father became somewhat alarmed, and this morning he hailed the fair lady.

"Well, papa," she said coolly, "you sent for me! What is it?"

"My daughter," replied the self-possessed Mr. Stark, "I have been to see you every night for a week, time and—"

"Yes, Papa."

"And no one has been last night?"

"Yes, Papa."

"Well, daughter, I want to know [illegible] between you during [illegible] my visits become [illegible] and wishing [illegible] the girl with [illegible] Yes, but dear [illegible] I have not [illegible] as an excessive [illegible] could not [illegible] secret of such a [illegible] and a word in [illegible] Ah, [illegible] particularly in [illegible] carelessly thrown off [illegible]

Squire Brady's Courtship.

Squire Brady was in the prime of life, but the old Bob, a thin, long, crooked line out of it. In the capacious breast pocket of the Squire's great coat reposed a pint flask, well filled, that he only proposed using on his way back from seeing the widow Brown. Now just before he started Bob slipped the flask out and put in its place a small alarm clock, carefully wound up and set for 11 P. M. The Squire had set the fire out and was well on with his overcoat, holding the widow's hand at the door and putting in his sweetest licks for the last. "Yes, your first husband, my dear, was one of my best friends, and we'll visit this and my lost Hanna's graves, won't we, love?" "Ah, yes! for where was there a sweeter woman than your poor Hannah?" asked the widow. "A good woman; she was good enough, but there's a thing one just as sweet," said the Squire, and he was drawing her to him for a kiss, when whizz wiz wizzer wizzer-hizzer fizz, whir-r-r-ring bang! the clock went off inside of him. "Oh, Lawd!" screamed the widow, he's shooting to pieces! It's Hannah's old pecany a playin' inside of him!" "She said she'd haunt me! She allers told me so!" cried the Squire, rushing in a stoop for the door, with both hands pressed to his breast and the clock still striking ting ting. He rode like Old Nick was after him, and never knew the racket till he felt for his tickler and pulled out the little clock that Bob had set action. The widow believes to this day that old man Brady is a walking volcano.

Astonishing Growth of a Southern Town.

Birmingham, Ala., has been phenomenal equal to that of any Western town. It has now a population of 21,247, against 4,500 as shown by the census of 1880, and has a property assessed at $14,000,000, against an assessment of $3,000,000 six years ago. Within the next two years eleven railroads will centre there, and a new Hotel, to be the largest south of St. Louis, is to be completed by the first of next May. Fourteen miles of street railway are finished, and seven unfinished. These figures give some idea of the growth of the wonderful town, but it must be remembered that the hills surrounding this city, and even the ground on which it is built, contain the coal and iron which furnish freight for the railroads which reach out in various directions.

Iron furnaces have been the making of Birmingham, and at many places in Virginia are localities just as favorable. The ore, the coal, the limestone abound in profusion, and we are nearer to market than Alabama. Virginia ought to be the great iron making State of the South, and her production is increasing. James River Valley should hum with furnaces, and Lynchburg should be a small Pittsburg.

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Hope Southern Blast Furnaces.

The Chattanooga Times states that a company has been formed in Nashville with Dr. Wm. Morrow and Ex-Governor Marks at its head, to erect two blast furnaces in Sequatchie Valley about thirty miles from Chattanooga. A contract has been made with the Nashville and Chattanooga Road to build a track to the site of the new plant. The furnaces are to cost over $200,000.

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice of praise—which comes from those who have used Wood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are most entirely on what the people say Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for them. Read the abundant evidence of its curative powers, and give it a fair and honest trial.

Using Her Father for Breach of Promise.

A curious suit for breach of promise will be tried at the next term of the Burlington county, N. J., Supreme court. Miss Ella Wilcox, a young woman well known in society of Mount Holly, became engaged to be married to John Cook, of the same place. Mr. Cook went through all the regular formalities, and ask ed and obtained Mr. Wilcox's consent to marry his daughter. The wedding was to have taken place on May 18. Three days before the wedding day, for some unknown reason Mr. Wilcox changed his mind about the desirability of Mr. Cook as a son-in law, and said the ceremony would not take place. When Miss Wilcox told Mr. Cook of this change in feeling on the part of her father, the prospective bridegroom got angry and left the house, saying he was disgusted and was going away, never to return. Miss Wilcox thought the matter all over and the more she thought the more angry she became at her father. Last week she hunted up a lawyer, and with his assistance she began a suit for $10,000 damages for breach of promise against her father, alleging that he was the sole cause of her lover's estrangement, and that she needed about that amount to patch up her broken heart and hunt up another fellow. It is believed that is the first suit for breach of promise ever begun in which the girl's own father is the defendant.

Just Excellent.

T. J. Atkins, Chief of the Valley, Knoxville, Tenn., writes: "My family and I are beneficiaries of your most excellent medicine, Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; having found it to be all that you claim for it, desire to testify to its virtues. My friends to whom I have recommended it praise it in every instance." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup and every affection of Throat, Chest and Lungs.

How to Preserve the Eyesight.

Avoid all sudden changes between light and darkness.

Never begin to read, write or sew for several minutes after coming from darkness to a bright light.

Never read by twilight or moonlight, or on dark, cloudy days.

When reading it is best to let the light fall from above obliquely over the left shoulder.

Do not use the eyesight by light so scant that it requires an effort to discriminate.

The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes, that moment stop using them.

If the eyelids are glued together on waking up do not forcibly open them, but apply saliva with the finger. It is the speediest dilutant in the world; then wash your eyes and face in warm water.

Newport Items.

The meeting conducted by Revs. Miller and Steward closed last Tuesday night with thirteen conversions.

Rev. Steward is expected to take charge of the Baptist Church at this place as pastor after Nov. 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thrasher are expected at Mrs. D. B. Price's this week. This will be Mr. Thrasher's first visit to this place since his marriage to one of our belles a couple of years ago. Mr. Thrasher is a successful Ball Roader in North Carolina.

Price's Mills are undergoing repairs. The old "over shot" is being replaced by a Turbine. A good improvement, indeed. This is one of the best mill seats in the county. The water-power is very fine.

Mr. Green of Hillsville, was in town this week for a few hours.

The unusual demand for top buggies last week created suspicions of a wedding in our community, which were proven to have been well founded. Mr. E. Mason Price, one of our most promising young men, was married on the 16th inst. to Miss M. M. Keesler, one of Craig's most popular belles, at the residence of the bride's father in Craig County. Rev. Mr. Crunk officiating. The attendants were as follows:

Miss Ollie Carper and Mr. F. B. Price, Miss Fanny Price and Mr. Mason Miller, Miss M. Caldwell and Mr. J. W. Martin, Miss L. Goolsby and Mr. Floyd Givent, Miss Annie Martin and Mr. D. H. Keister, Miss Laura Miller and Mr. Frank Payne.

A reception was given at the groom's father's the evening of the 17th. The morning of the 18th found the buggies in line for Mt. Lake. It was altogether a delightful affair, a profusion of good things to eat, where over the party went. It has been the affair of the season. We heartily extend congratulations to both, to the groom for having won so fair and so good a lady, and to the bride for having scept so clever, so sober and so noble a fellow as we knew Mason to be. Many years of happiness together.

Mrs. S. A. Butler is making following improvements on her property. We heartily commend the improvement spirit to all.

The last meeting of the Mite Society at Mr. E. F. Payne's was quite a pleasant one. We are glad to see the Society growing in interest.

The Newport Base Ball Club has accepted a challenge to play the Pembroke Club a match game on the latter's grounds July 10th. We predict a pleasant time to observers and a warm time to players, in a double sense.

Hurrah for Congress! Can't Giles find a candidate? Or is it against the constitution for her to do so, Mr. Editor!

Truly, F.

—Malta Double plows for sale by Thos. J. Pearson.

Reckless Extravagance.

Among the many scats presented before the Board of Supervisors on yesterday was one for 'one chicken scalp 50 cts." which was duly inspected and allowed by said Board. The amount is trivial but the principle is dangerous. When County officials make such allowances they encourage a reckless extravagance among the citizens that will be dis astrous to the body politic. Should each citizen be paid a premium of 50 cts. for each chicken he kills it is feared that some shrewd speculator will buy up all the chickens on the market at a considerably reduced rate, say from 15 to 25 cents a piece, present their scalps to the aforesaid Board and thus bankrupt our noble old county. But should this not happen there is danger that each citizen will kill all their stock of chickens and thus end the breed in the county. It also encourages theft. It is believed that the villain who stole Mrs. Painter's 75 young chickens was anticipating this action of the Board. It may be that after all the principle is not such a dangerous one as perhaps the said Board were only making an allowance for the fried chicken they had for dinner. Perhaps they will make allowances for sheep-ears, pig tails, cow horns and possum hides at their next meeting as all these may be had for dinner at any of our hotels.

P. S.—Since writing the above we have been informed that the word "shawk" should have been inserted between "chicken" and "scalp," but we are not going to take back what we said. A Board that would make such an oversight should be watched.

Wabash Items.

Mr. Editor: It may be agreeable with you to have a few items from this place, if not, just cast them aside.

The farmers are getting along, but slowly with their harvest, owing to the inclemency of the weather.

No special improvements lately.

We believe D. L. W. & Co., are doing a good business at this place. A weighty firm and lively clerks.

There was a young gentleman crossing a big ridge en route to Pleasant Hill and was halted by the following:

"Hold on lost sheep of Isreal," but thinking that he was neither lost nor a sheep, at once resumed his journey and was soon out of sight and hearing.

The gent that is thought to be nearly dead to get back, seems to be Bane-ward inclined. Success to you Aquila.

Knowing that the old folks are death and destruction on compliments, let me warn you boys to be careful how you send in your respects to the "gals."

Hoping to hear from Staffordsville and the surrounding country, by "somebody that is somebody." I will close, lest I take up too much of your valuable space.

Ordinary.

Mrs. Sarah A. Lindsay, daughter of Edward and Lucilla Stafford was born in Giles Co., Va., June 9, 1846, died May 22, 1866, age 20 years, 11 months and 20 days. She joined the M. E. Church South at the age of 12 years. She was married to James A. Lindsay, May 22, 1866, with whom she lived just twenty years. She had four children, three are living, one having preceded her to the kingdom triumphant. As a wife, she was kind and attentive, and as a mother, affectionate.

Sister Lindsay expressed a will ingness to die, and said she was ready. She died rejoicing in the hope of immortality and life beyond the grave, and that beautiful May Sabbath morning, when the flowers were fresh and the grass was green, we laid her to rest in the Wesley's Chapel grave-yard, by the side of her daughter to await the resurrection. A large concourse of people attended her funeral and burial, showing that she was held in high esteem by the community.

The husband and three remaining children have our heart felt condolence in this sad bereavement, we can but commend them to the grace of God and the consolation of that blessed gospel in which, that wife and mother toasted, and through which she was saved.

While the friends of the deceased mourn they mourn not as those who have no hope but they rest in the assurance that after the trials and troubles of this sublunary and transitory life are over in realms elysian and amid scenes of beauty where the flowers are perenial and the joys everlasting, in the General Assembly and in the church of the first born, they will meet her.

Harmony Meeting.

A mass meeting of the people is hereby called to meet at the Court House, on the first day of the July term of the County Court, for the purpose of selecting Delegates to represent Giles County, in the District Convention, which Fincastle, at Wytheville, on Wednesday the 4th day of August next, to nominate a candidate to represent this District in 50th Congress of the United States.

Under the basis of representation this County is entitled to eleven Delegates and eleven Alternates. We hope it will be the pleasure of the meeting to select such representative men as will attend the Convention and labor for the good of the party only.

All voters who intend acting in good faith with the Democratic party and working in the interest of an honest government are cordially invited to participate in this meeting.

THOS. J. PEARSON,
Co. Chairman.

W. W. FRENCH, Sec'y.

Gen. A. L. Pridemore for Congress.

The Virginia Herald nominate Gen. A. L. Pridemore for Congress, claiming the nomination for the extreme Southwest. Gen. Pridemore is a good man, but we have some of the same kind in this end of the district. We have good men in Bland, Craig, Giles and Pulaski, and neither of these counties have ever had a representative in Congress. The last three Democratic Congressmen from the 9th, Pridemore, Richmond and Trigg, have all been West end men, would it not be fair to give us a showing? But we will support the man of the Convention. This is not the time in our affairs to raise sectional pride. All we ask of the Convention is to give us a good man, no matter what county he be from.

John M. French, indicted jointly with Pole and Dave French and Jim Duncan for the murder of the negro Geo. Goodson at Vaughn's mill in 1879 has been detected at Cattlesburg, Ky. and is expected here next week.—[Pulaski People.

Col. Hugh S. Thompson ex Gov. of South Carolina has been appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury at a salary of $10,000.00 a year. Hon. Wm. Smith resigned to accept the position of Attorney for a Rail Road Company.

Judge David Davis, one of the most eminent jurists and prominent statesmen of this generation, died at Bloomington, Ill., at 6 o'clock on Saturday morning last, aged 71 years.

Col. Robert E. Withers, Grand Master of the Knights Templar for the United States, now Consul at Hong Kong, has asked the Government for a leave of absence to attend the Triennial Grand Encampment to be held at St. Louis in September next.

From the beginning of Washington's first term down to the end of Mr. Arthur's Administration the veto power was used, in all, on 109 occasions. Mr. Cleveland has already vetoed seventy-three bills, and still they are coming. In six months he has signed more veto messages than went to the Capitol during the whole period of eighty years from the foundation of the Government to the inauguration of General Grant. He has vetoed more bills than Buchanan, Lincoln, Johnson, Hayes, Garfield, and Arthur put together. Mr. Cleveland is the boss, and he will be known in history.

Nothing Congress can raise. He has vetoed no bill except to be a law; and so sticks to that principle, honest government and the people are the gainers, while lobbyists fly as the wind before a hurricane.

A List of the Books Adopted by the State Board for Use in the Public Schools.

As an item of interest to many persons who are not informed on the subject, we give below a list of the text books adopted for use in the public schools by the State Board of Education. The publishers make their own contracts with booksellers for supplying books, and the sched ule of prices here given show a reduction of about 10 per cent. to the pupil from the regular retail price. It may be regarded, farther, that Webster's dictionaries were first agreed upon, but the publishers declining to accept the conditions prescribed, Worcester's were substituted:

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Hinsley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, I am entirely free from every sign of scrofula, and the abscesses have all healed. My general health is excellent, and I am fully blessed in speaking of Sarsaparilla and Scrofula cures. "I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know this in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an invaluable blessing to me." CHARLES A. HOOPER, Rome, Oneida Co., N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Hinsley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who says the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Made only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

LAUCK'S LUNG REMEDY!

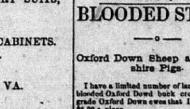

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Sore Throat and all Bronchial Affections, Whooping Cough and Croup, also Catarrh.

This remedy has been known to the proprietor for several years past, and has been administered in many aggravated cases with marvellous success. As a remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, sore throat and all bronchial affections, it has no superior. It has been tested in innumerable cases of long standing and never failed. It would seem a waste of time and space to enumerate individual cases in which it has proven a success. The proprietor will, however, cheerfully furnish a list of such, if desired. A remarkable fact with this remedy is that no one who ever tried it failed to recommend it to others.—You have but to try it on its merits. You will never be without it. Consumptives will find a certain relief in the remedy once. It Acts like a Charm on Children with Whooping Cough, Croup and Kindred coughs. It contains no opium, is safe even the very best materials, and no money is spared in its preparation. It invigorates and builds up the system. It acts as a tonic. The effects are permanent and lasting. The proprietor has tested the remedy in so many cases with wonderful success, and is so thoroughly convinced of its efficacy, and so assured by many personal applications made to him for it, that he has concluded to place it upon the market and let the public have the benefit of it. Directions for taking will be found upon the bottles. Purchasers are requested to examine bottles and see that name and trade mark are stamped on them. None genuine unless so stamped. Price per bottle 25 cts. and $1.00. On receipt of $2.50 I will send to any part of the country, free of expense, 4 bottles of this remedy. Every family should be without this remedy. Nothing equals it for Whooping Cough and Croup. Manufactory 614 E. 15th St., N. W., one door north of F St., Washington, D. C.

Newport Items.

Mr. Editor: The gloomy weather has given "long faces" to many of the people in this community and for four these words lengthen their faces we resolve to make them short.

Mr. Thomas Price has returned from the V. A. M. C., and brought with him his schoolmate, Mr. Chas. Peck of Lynchburg. Thomas also entertains Mr. Peck's sister and two other young ladies, all of whom we have seen and know them to be accomplished and attractive. Congratulations, Tom, for adding such charms to our community.

We frequently dodge around the corner, hide under the counter or go home and climb up in the loft when we hear "a drummer is in town," but when they bring with them their sisters we always say "Come one, come all from over the land."

It does me good to shake your hand,
And we'll not hide in garret high,
Nor stand to see you passing by,
But every step shall be towards thee,
Shouting, shouting welcome Fannie.

Miss Fannie Spessard lends her presence to aid the enjoyment of her many friends. (We hope to cheer up our old "bach.")

At Mr. Keister's are representatives from Blacksburg's and Wytheville's society of young ladies who are doing their part to make the young men of this town doff their ideas of "single blessedness" and take to themselves the ides that "union is strength."

In hinting of the debt of gratitude Newport is due to neighboring towns, as well as distant ones, for sending their educated and entertaining daughters here to arouse the flaging interest in society which had almost grown as cold and unlifelike as the sombre shades that lasily over our village in the midnights of December, it is but fitting to add that from away down in the swamps of Louisiana where the frogs croak all day and dance at night to the music of mosquitos there comes to us one whose presence like "sunshine round us falls." Were we inclined to be sentimental or poetical nothing would keep us from giving a description of the pretti st eyes that ever looked out from the shadow of female trousse, and the purest complexion that ever was tanned by Southern sun. Be proud Louisiana of your daughter, and all honor to Virginia for educating her.

We would be glad to see the people of Pearisburg as well as of Newport and vicinity at Pembroke next Saturday the 10th, to witness a game of base ball between the Newport and Pembroke nines.

Very Respectfully,
July 6, '86. A. Payne.

Death of Gordon L. Jordan.

We clip the following from the Hinton Independent:

Gordon L. Jordan, who was born on Clover Bottoms in Giles County, Virginia (now Mercer County, W. Va.) July the 18, 1812, and died June the 18, 1886, being 73 years and eleven months old. The spot upon which he was born is of historical fame. It was on Clover Bottoms that Tabby Clay who was a near relative of the subject of this memoir, was killed by an Indian. On account of her great personal beauty the Indian determined to take her a prisoner, but the heroine bravely resisted the savage nor did she yield until the savage had stabbed her nineteen times when her life blood freely flowed and her spirit took its flight to realms unknown to mortal man. Her ashes still sleep near the spot where she was slain. Gordan L. Jordan was the oldest child of Hugh and Sarah Jordan who were among the pioneers of our county, where they first settled on Clover Bottoms there were but few settlers and the wild beasts common to our country were very numerous. Mrs. Jordan who had to be often left alone with her infant boy had all the hard-ships of pioneer life to endure. On one occasion the wolves came in great numbers around her lonely cabin. The fiery glare of their eyes could be seen in the yard. She fought them away awhile with chunks of fire, but to make herself and her infant secure from those ravenous beasts she had to set on the joists of her cabin with little Gordon in her arms all night. G. J. Jordan married Miss Elizabeth Toney and then moved to what is now Pipestem, Summers County, W. Va., where they have lived ever since. They raised ten children, half of whom have gone on before and have been waiting and watching on the far off shore for their father. For many years Mr. Jordan was a constant member of the M. E. Church South and his house was a home for many a weary minister of the Gospel.

Fish Law as Compiled by J. C. Wyser.

1st, It is unlawful prior to October 1, 1887, to fish in New River or its tributaries, with any seine, net, or trap of any kind, or with any other implement except hook and line; provided, however, that it is lawful to use minnow seines and nets for catching bait. This law does not apply to mill ponds and private fish ponds, though they may constitute a part of a stream. A proper construction of this act forbids gigging.

This law applies to the whole state and removes that provision in the act of December 1, 1884, so obnoxious to the citizens of Pulaski county because it forbade them to fish in New River, or its tributaries, with any seine, net, or trap of any kind, while it allowed the citizens of Montgomery and other counties to do so.

2nd, It is unlawful to catch or disturb black bass by any means whatever between the 1st day of April and 1st day of May of each year.

3rd, It is unlawful to disturb, molest or injure the nest or spawn of any fish at any time.

4th, Upon complaint of any person before a justice of a violation of any of the aforesaid provisions of law, the justice shall issue a warrant for the arrest of the person against whom complaint is made, and if he find such person guilty he shall impose a fine upon him of not less than $10 nor more than $50, one half of which shall go to the person making complaint, and the other half to the commonwealth.

5th, It is unlawful to kill or destroy fish in any of the waters of the commonwealth by putting into said waters dynamite, or any explosive, or poisonous substance.

The punishment for this offence is a fine of not less than $20 nor more than $50, and confinement in jail not exceeding 60 days. If any one knows of a violation of this last mentioned law, he would do the fish cause great service by reporting it to the grand jury on the 1st Monday in July next. Killing fish by explosives is a reckless destruction of fish which all good citizens are interested in suppressing.

As above is the law as it is written, and that portion of it specially applicable to New [illegible] tributaries, [illegible] was enacted. The only law [illegible] River and tributaries need is a law forbidding the use of traps. Such a law as this should be passed to prevent one man living on a stream from monopolizing the whole stream to the great disadvantage of his fellow citizens living above or below him, and also to protect the fish from the wholesale slaughter which follows when a man is allowed to erect a fish dam entirely across a stream. But there is no practical sense in forbidding the use of gigs, seines, and nets in New River and tributaries. Any crowd may go a fishing in New River with gigs, seines, and nets, and we all know that they are not at all likely to capture more fish than they can readily consume, which they ought to have a right to do.

It is nonsense to forbid gigging except when fish are spawning. It is also nonsense to forbid seining and netting in New River except during the spawning season, (if then) for the character of the river itself forbids catching fish therein with seines and nets on a large scale. The present fish law as a whole is better than any we have hitherto had, but that is not saying much for it. It is to be hoped that we will sometime have a good fish law.

The lady of the White House will [illegible] to say that she has borne [illegible] public reception with charming ease, has won much [illegible] has scored an unqualified success. Washington

An Eloping Couple's Mishaps.

Near the Red Sulphur Springs on Friday a young lady and gentleman eloped from the lady's parents for the purpose of getting married. The flying pair were in a buggy and made good time until Indian Creek was reached. The creek was very high but an attempt was made to ford it. When midway of the stream the vehicle was washed over and the occupants thrown in the water. They lodged against a broken tree in the middle of the creek. The young man caught the young lady in the rushing waters, were carrying her down and held her. Fortunately just at the root of this tree there was sufficient foothold for the young man to stand, so that the water only came up under his arm pits, but on either side of him it was too deep and the current too strong for him to venture to reach the shore. He held the young lady in his arms for two hours before they were discovered. The position was made more unpleasant by the hot sun pouring its rays upon them. Fortunately when the buggy was overturned an umbrella was thrown in reach of the young man, and he managed to open it and hold it over the lady. Novel as was the catastrophe, the rescue was even more novel. A young man, although the river was great, swam a strong horse to the place and the imperilled lady and gentleman hung on to the animal's tail and were brought back safely.

Interesting Experience.

Hiram Cameron, Furniture Dealer of Columbus, tells this experience, thus: "For three years I have tried every remedy on the market for Stomach and Kidney Disorders, but got no relief, until I used Electric Bitters. Took five bottles and am now cured, and think Electric Bitters the Best Blood Purifier, in the world." Major A. H. Reed, of West Liberty, Ky., says: Electric Bitters for an old standing Kidney affection and says: "Nothing has ever done me so much good as Electric Bitters."

Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Thos. J. Pearson's.

A special telegram from Carlisle, Pa., in giving an account of the commencement exercises at Dickinson College, says:

"Miss Zadie Longsdorf, a young lady of Carlisle, was the next speaker. As soon as she stepped upon the platform she was hissed by students who had ranged themselves in the back part of the hall for that purpose. Firecrackers and torpedoes were exploded and other noise was made, but the speaker knew what prejudice she would have to face, and had her address so thoroughly committed that she could keep right on in spite of the efforts of the cowardly boys to disconcert her."

It would appear that no matter how well-poised northern students may be concerning the rights of the late war, they are not always up to the matter of decency. Such a scene as the above described could not have occurred at a college in the unenlightened South.—[Richmond Dispatch.

It is understood that ex Gov. Wm. E. Cameron has been offered the attorneyship of a wealthy New York Syndicate, and the offer will be, if it has not already been accepted. The position, it is reported, will pay Landsomely. Two representatives of the syndicate paid a visit to the ex governor in this city during the past week. The exact nature of the offer has not been made public. The syndicate, it is said, represents a large amount in Virginia bonds.—[Index Appeal.

Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this develops in scrofulous sores, ulcers, or eruptions, or takes the form of rheumatism, or organic disease, the suffering that ensues is terrible beyond description. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.

Two girls, daughters of William Miller, aged 12 and 10 respectively, were burned to death, seven miles southwest of Sherman, Texas. The building caught fire from carelessness in throwing away a match after lighting a lamp.

Senator Edmunds is known in Washington as St. Jerome, and Senator Dawes as grandmother Dawes.

An Accomplished Scholar.

"So your son has graduated from college, Mrs. Badger?" observed a visitor.

"Yes," returned that lady, [illegible]

"I suppose he is very well educated?"

"He is, indeed," she replied, with pride.

"Does he speak Latin and Greek and those languages?"

"I should say he did. Greek particularly well. Why, it was only yesterday I asked him how he liked his studies, and he said they were all Greek to him. Great Heavens!"—[New York Graphic.

The Hot Weather

Of mid summer has a weakening effect, both upon body and mind. You feel absolutely incapable of doing any arduous work, and even light duties are performed languidly and unwillingly. This low state of the system renders even greater infirmity, and gives opportunity for serious disease to gain a foot-hold. In this condition the system is quick to respond to the reviving, quickening, and strengthening effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, regulates the digestive organs, and infuses fresh life and vigor into every portion of the body. People who have taken it write us, saying: "It puts new life right into me." "It makes me young again." Reader, if you suffer from summer weakness, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. 100 Doses $1.

The Bee.

Here is a Bee. He is a lively little Bird. He likes to swarm. This is why the great poet Burns said that Bees of a feather flock together. The Bee is most always healthy. The only Disease he has is the Hives. He is a Builder. He builds cells and calls them Honey and then sells them. He bites with his Tail and his Teeth are poor. The Bee is an honest Bird. He never gets on a Spree. When a small Boy first learns his Letters he can see a B, and goes for it.—[Chicago Tribune.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, ecle, Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., has been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly afflicted and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner.

To most children the mere suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. Why not, then, when physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills? They combine every essential and valuable principle of a cathartic medicine, and being sugar-coated are easily taken.

Robert Hill and wife of Chillisquaque, Pa., aged 64 and 60 years respectively, were instantly killed by the owner per train, while on their way to church.

MASS MEETING.

A mass meeting of the people is hereby called to meet at the Court House, on the first day of the July term of the County Court, for the purpose of selecting Delegates to represent Giles County, in the District Convention which meets, at Wytherille, on Wednesday the 4th day of August next, to nominate a candidate to represent the District in 50th Congress of the United States.

Under the basis of representation this County is entitled to eleven Delegates and eleven Alternates. We hope it will be the pleasure of the meeting to select such representative men as will attend the Convention and labor for the good of the party only.

All voters who intend acting in good faith with the Democratic party and working in the interest of an honest government are cordially invited to participate in this meeting.

THOS. J. PEARSON,
Co. Chairman.
W. W. FRENCH, Sec'y.

CONVENTION.

Let good men and true be chosen to represent us in the Convention at Wytherille on the 4th of August. There is great danger that section will be arrayed against section and discord will be engendered. Let us choose men who will act with prudence and who will not be influenced by any lower motive than the good of the party. Let all good citizens attend this Convention and work from the start with the right party.

OUR COUNTY ROADS.

The enormous tax paid by our people for the purpose of keeping up our County roads could be decreased at least one half if they were properly located. Their grade is generally as good as could be gotten in a county as rough as ours, but they are nearly all located right in the hollow or ravine where the water must necessarily flow and consequently a new road must be made after every hard rain. A change of their location the distance of four or five feet on one side or the other would generally get them out of the way of the drains and prevent them from being torn to pieces by every freshet. This error in the original location of our roads has been made quite manifest by the many rains this season. The County Court has a right to order a commission to go on any of the county roads and report any changes that would be advantageous. The Surveyor and Supervisor of the district should go along with the viewers and point out the changes necessary, as they are better acquainted with needs of the roads than any viewers that might be appointed. This change would decrease our road tax at least one half.

There is scarcely a Surveyor who did not spend more than the appropriation made by the Board of the Supervisors for the last year and yet at the present most of our roads are practically impassible for vehicles. A little money judiciously spent in making these necessary changes would be a great saving to the county in the future. This matter was discussed somewhat at the last meeting of the Board, but we do not know what action, if any, was taken upon it. It is an important one and should be agitated.

The representatives from Virginia and Mr. Goode's friends are pressing for his renomination. The rejection of Mr. Goode is nothing less than a malicious slander upon a brave, just and honorable man. Such a manifest in the U. S. Senate disgrace to our country. Mr. will not be the looser by this dastardly conduct on the Mahone. His people will let Mahone's malignity Graham has made himself successfully riding the Niagara. He on keeper.

The Pulaski People has moved to Pulaski City and now assumes metropolitan airs.—[Carisburg Virginian.

No, no; my dear William. We have simply discarded the unwholesome; and to many, detestable, practice of refering to those whose names happen to appear in the PEOPLE as the "charming Miss so and so" and "our genial friend so and so"; and the equally useless habit of saving correspondents to address us as "Dear Mr. Editor"; "Dear PEOPLE" and so on, for the more practical way of placing such matter as we deem to be of interest to our readers in brief, concise, plain terms.

We tried publishing the PEOPLE something over a year, once, for fun and fame; now we are running it for a livelihood. That's all.—[Pulaski People.

Many thanks for your kind suggestions, but dear Bob, sweet Robert, charming and lovely Mr. Robert, brilliant and accomplished Mr. Gardner, we know you will pardon us for just this last indulgence in this unwholesome and detestible practice, for you are so part and pretty, dear Robert, we couldn't help it.

But my dear friend Robert, if you do not expect to be more successful in getting money than you were in gaining fame we would advise you to turn the People office into a Skating rink, put your Devil on wheels and see who can get home first.

Ex-Atty. Gen. Geo. B. Corkhill who secured the conviction of Guiteau died last week. He had held several Federal office and was a man of high character and a thoroughly equipped lawyer.

Mahone expects to run for Governor in 1889. Has his impudence no limit?

The tariff should be reformed and the Virginia delegation did right in voting to consider Mr. Morrison's bill. At the same time that does not by any means commit them to a complete endorsation of Mr. Morrison's free-trade ideas.

As for the Record, we greatly pre for Samuel J. Randall, protectionist, who advocates the obliteration of the internal revenue system, to William Morrison, Free Trader, who wants the infernal tax continued, oppressing and grinding the people of the South.—[Halifax Advocate.

We take it that the votes of the Virginia Democrats in the House of Representatives were in favor of considering the Morrison bill, not in favor of the bill itself. Mr. Wise has already made an explanation to that effect.—[Richmond Dispatch.

Yesterday the United States Senate again disgraced itself by truckling to William Mahone and rejecting the nomination of Hon. John Goode to be Solicitor-General. Mr. Goode has the satisfaction of knowing that the war that has been made on him by Mahone and his tools in the Senate has only served to endear him to all true men in Virginia. The result of yesterday's work is a temporary triumph of a Satyr over Hyperion. That is all. That is the way the people will look upon it.—[Richmond Dispatch.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hoofs Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, affording invaluable relief by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hoofs Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer from pains and aches of rheumatism, give the potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hoofs Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hoofs Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. More than I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hoofs Sarsaparilla, and in six more used than all the other medicines I ever had." E. T. BALDWIN, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hoofs Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Parsmoore, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

To Parents.

Our attention has been called to the fact that most of the boys of our town, are in the habit of jumping on and off passing trains at the Depot; and that two during this week came very near being crushed. Parents would do well to enquire into the whereabouts and habits of "the boys" when not at home, and thus, perhaps, save the expense and sorrow of a first class funeral.

(Well, mebby you are—but I doubt it.)

When a pair of red lips are upturned to your own

With no one to gaudy about it

Do you pray for endurance to let them alone?

Well, mebby you do—but I doubt it.

When a sly little hand you're permitted to seize

With a velvety softness about it

Do you think you can drop it with never a squeeze?

Well, mebby you can—but I doubt it.

When a tapering waist is in reach of your arm

With a wonderful plumpness about it

Do you argue the point 'twixt the good and the harm?

Well, mebby you do—but I doubt it.

That Terrible Brain

Which scrofula has upon the system must be arrested, and the blood must be purified, or serious consequences will ensue. For purifying and vitalizing effects, Hood's Sarsaparilla has been found superior to any other preparation. It expels every trace of impurity from the blood, and bestows new life and vigor upon every function of the body, enabling it to entirely overcome disease.

Newport Items.

The Festival given by the Mite Society, Tuesday night was quite a pleasant and successful affair. The young Ladies were looking particularly pretty and the young bloods seemed well fleshed with dimes two very essential features in a Festival success. A handsome bouquet was to be given to the prettiest lady present. The lady was to be selected by ballot; five cents a vote, with the privilege of voting as many times as you pleased. Miss Lucy Quhn of Central having received the greatest number of votes was declared "elected." In handsome style and befitting words, Rev. Crickenberger delivered the bouquet to Miss Quhn amid applause. The ever obliging "F. and M. Brass Band" kindly attended and treated the crowd to delicious music. The proceeds are to be invested in furniture for the M. E. C. Parsonage.

Our visitors are stilling increasing in numbers. Newport never was so gay. Among our late arrivals, we are happy to note Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Darnell of Bramwell, W. Va., at Mrs. D. B. Price's. Tom is a good business fellow and we are not surprised to hear of his success. Mrs. John R. Martin and Son of Lynchburg and Miss Quhn of Central, are at Mr. John Martin's. Dr. Yeon of Salem is visiting Rev. Crickenberger and preached a very able sermon for us Sunday night.

Mr. John T. Lucas is having his residence painted. How much a little paint would help the looks of our town. It is a paying investment too.

Mess. Dunkloe & Price are getting a nice lot of saddle horses on hands.

If the match game of Base Ball, played at Pembroke, between the Pembroke's our nine, the score stood seven to thirty one in favor of our nine. Hurrah for Newport!

We are in favor of you, Mr. Editor calling a meeting of the county bloods to meet at Eggleston's Springs forth with and immediately, or a little sooner to organize for the Summer campaign. Try to miss the following dates if possible, the 16th, 23th, &c., &c.

Let us congratulate the Virginian upon being one of the best county papers in the State. May its prosperity still increase.

Why can't Giles come to the front with a Congressman? Johnston or Easley would make us a good one. We are for Giles' men.

July 16, '86. Pearisburg, Va.

In Memorium.

Departed from this world to a better one, little Annie, daughter of M. C. and Rhoda McCorkle—aged 2 months and 8 days. She took the whooping cough and lived about 8 days. How sad it is to think that death will come into the family circle and take one of its brightest jewels. She will never have to encounter the cares and toils of this troublesome world. Her body was taken to the grave yard, there her funeral was preached by Rev. J. H. Johnston.

When little Annie was placed in her quiet bed beneath the sod, the deep floods of bitter grief which roll and surge over the bereft soul with an almost irresistible force and the dark waves of regret seemed to wrap the future in a darkest gloom, which could never be dispelled. Parents comfort your hearts with the thought that little Annie has only gone before to strew flowers to mark the way that you may follow her foot steps, and meet each other again in that world where dark clouds never rise and the sun never goeth down.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Alleghany Institute,

ROBER PARK, - - ROANOKE, VA

Having accepted the office of Superintendent of this new enterprise, I shall proceed at once to arrange its courses of study, and to select and secure the appointment of all necessary Professors and Teachers. The course of study, rules and regulations, terms of tuition, etc., will be published in due time. The School will be a preparatory one, designed to prepare boys for entrance into the Colleges of the South, and will be conducted on the most approved principles of the best Preparatory Schools. Rober Park, embracing six acres, covered with original forest trees, has long been a noted place for health, retirement and enjoyment. The hotel is now filled with boarders—all opposed to its sale for school purposes. All that energy, faithful supervision, earnest attention to the wants and comforts of pupils can do, I pledge to them and parents now with their interests at heart. My highest aim, along with thorough instruction, will be to impress a high type of manhood and Christian character.

I may indicate here that the courses of study will be Classical, Scientific and Commercial.

OPIUM A WHISKEY HABITS cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. E. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

ROBUST HEALTH

Is not always enjoyed by those who seem to possess it. The taint of corruption in the blood may be secretly undermining the constitution. In time, the poison will unquestionably show its effects, and with all the more virulence from the length it has been allowed to permeate the system. Each pimple, ulcer, boil, tubercle, carbuncle, sore, eruption, pustule, or humor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglected and sickly counsel by these diseases.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to eradicate the taint of hereditary disease, or the poisonous contamination of the blood. It is the only alterative that can be absolutely depended upon to cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial diseases, from the worst forms of Constitutional Disease, down to Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores, and Scaldhead, and Scarlet Fever, and sudden rush of blood to the head, Headache, Dizziness and debility caused by these diseases.

Myriads of Cures

Achieved by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in the days of early years, and in the more recent past, all of which attest, in an unbiased manner, the merits of this great medicine, are on record in the archives of this city, and wherever found, from the sunny city of the Gulf to the cold "Frozen Zone" of South Africa, this remedy is known and appreciated by the people by whom it was employed. Druggists, who have ever sold it, speak of it in terms of unqualified commendation, based upon its thorough knowledge, of remarkable cures which have been effected by the treatment and from investigating. People will read it.

Trust Nothing Else

than Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Numerous weak imitations are offered to the public under the name of "Sarsaparilla," and "Blood Purifier," with the pretense that they contain the active principle of Ayer's. Such a combination with disease is morally criminal, and should be punished by the full extent of the law. Don't allow the miserable dealer to impose upon you because he can realize greater profit on the worthless stuff he may offer you. Insist upon having Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and you will be sure to get the best blood purifier that can be obtained.

THE CONVENTION.

The County Chairman, Thos. J. Pearson, called the meeting to order and explained its object. Dr. John W. Easley was called to the chair. M. L. Comann and W. S. Mathews were elected Secretaries.

On motion of James D. Johnston, each Magisterial District was to elect two delegates and the Convention to elect three delegates at large. The citizens of the different districts retired and brought in the following nominations which were duly elected.

Pearisburg District — Delegates, M. H. Charlton and W. S. Mathews. Alternates, J. D. Foote and D. F. Hale.

Walker's Creek District.—Delegates, P. F. St. Clair and D. S. Hankla. Alternates, Dr. C. E. Stafford and Chas. Wiley.

Pembroke District.—Delegates, J. T. S. Hoge and James W. Williams. Alternates, Leroy Williams and Arthur Snidow.

Newport District.—Delegates, J. W. Martin and F. M. Payne. Alternates, T. G. Hardwick and F. E. Dunkley.

The Convention elected Z. T. Weaver, C. J. Peck and Dr. P. H. Killey as delegates at large, and S. E. Lybrooke, G. L. Bane and J. W. McClaughearty as alternates at large.

On motion of Z. T. Weaver, seconded by numerous parties, the delegates were instructed to cast their votes in Convention for Capt. James D. Johnston.

Capt. Johnston was vociferously called for. He came forward and thanked the convention for the honor and made a ringing speech of about an hour. We wish we had the space to give his speech in full as he treated the question of the day in a masterly manner. Senator Williams was called for and made a short and pithy speech.

The proceedings were ordered to be printed in the Lynchburg Advance and the PEARISBURG VIRGINIAN. The meeting closed amid the greatest good will and harmony.

The Democracy of old Giles is not yet dead by a long sight. If Johnston gets the nomination we'll bet on Giles giving 600 majority this fall.

There are about 1700 offices in the Pension department and only about 100 are held by democrats owing to the Civil Service abomination. These pension Republicans are "to the manor born" it seems.

We have received from Mr. Alex. McDonald, Sec'y. the hand some premium list of the Centennial Fair of Lynchburg, Va. It is gotten up in handsome style and the premiums offered are unsufficent.

We learn that the Republicans of this county will hold a Mass meeting at August Court to appoint delegates to their Congressional Convention which meets at Marion, September 1st.

If the Hon. John Goode is not renominated the Hon. J. Randolph Tucker, it is thought, will succeed him.

MR. M. L. COMANN, traveling agent of the Lynchburg ADVANCE, whilst soliciting subscriptions for his paper last Monday, was taken in tow by Commissioner of the Revenue R. K. Thompson, Esq., and told that a law of the last Legislature required of him a license of $10. This was a new thing for Mr. C. and he suspended operations for the day, with considerable disgust. The law is a blundering piece of legislation, and should be repealed.—Pocahontas Herald.

This is certainly a curious state of things, and it needs an explanation from our Senators and Representatives in the last Legislature. How could such a law have been enacted? Can's all merchants and newspaper men solicit patronage on the street without being taxed or fined for it? If not, why not? We should be glad to hear from our friend Capt. Peck of Botetourt, and other friends of the Legislature, upon this matter. There is something somewhere on that Taxing Newspaper Solicitors.

In a letter to the Lynchburg Advance, J. H. H. Figgat, Esq., of Botetourt, quotes the new law as to newspaper agents—as follows:

"Any person other than a licensed merchant who shall receive subscriptions for, or shall in any manner furnish newspapers, books, maps, prints, pamphlets, or periodicals shall be deemed to be a book agent."

Mr. Figgat comments as follows:

"Of course this does not apply to the owners or proprietors of news papers, periodicals, etc., but to soliciting agents."

It was not intended to apply to any persons except those who in some manner ("any manner") "furnish" newspapers—that is, news agents. No traveling solicitor comes under this law, we suppose; nor any other person who does not himself furnish (or deliver) papers.

MANHOOD

A Clear Skin

is only a part of beauty; but it is a part. Every lady may have it; at least, what looks like it. Magnolia Balm both freshens and beautifies.

Allegheny Institute,

ROSER PARK, - - ROANOKE, VA.

Having accepted the office of Superintendent of this new enterprise, I shall proceed at once to arrange its courses of study, and to select and secure the appointment of all necessary teachers and officers. The courses of study, rules and regulations, names of officers and teachers, terms, &c., will be published soon in pamphlet form, and notice given of its first session's opening in October.

I find that the Trustees have provided ample accommodations and most beautiful premises. Roser Park, embracing six acres, covered with original forest trees, has long been a noted place for health, pleasure and enjoyment. The hotel is now filled with boarders—all opposed to its sale for school purposes. All that energy, faithful supervision, earnest attention to the wants and comforts of pupils can do, I pledge to thine who favor me with their patronage. My first and highest aim, along with thorough instruction, will be to impress a high type of manhood and Christian character.

I may indicate here that the courses of study will be Classical, Scientific and Commercial. —OREN L. STEARNES.

My present address is Roanoke, Va.

LAUCK'S
LUNG REMEDY

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Sore Throat and all Bronchial Affections, Whooping Cough and Croup, also Catarrh.

This remedy has been known to the proprietor for several years past, and has been administered in many aggravated cases with marvellous success. As a remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, sore throat and all bronchial affections, it has no superior. It has been tested in innumerable cases of long standing and has never failed. It would seem a waste of time and space to enumerate individual cases in which it has proven a success. The proprietor will, however, cheerfully furnish a list of such, if desired. A remarkable fact with this remedy is that no one who ever tried it failed to recommend it to others—then have but to try it on its merits. You will never be without it. Consumptives will find speedy relief if not permanent cure. It Acts like a Charm on Children with Whooping Cough, Croup and kindred coughs. It contains no opiates. Is made from the very best materials, and no money is spared in its preparation. It invigorates and builds up the system. It acts as a tonic. The effects are permanent and lasting. The proprietor has tested the remedy in many cases with wonderful success, and is so thoroughly convinced of its efficacy, and so determined to have it introduced into use in every family, that he has concluded to place it upon the market and let the public have the benefit of it. Directions for taking will be found upon all bottles. Purchasers are requested to examine bottles and see that name and trade Mark are stamped on them. Each bottle has a seal stamped. Price per bottle 25 cts. and $1.25. On receipt of $2.00 I will send to any part of the country, free of expense, 4 bottles of this remedy. LUNG REMEDY!

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Sore Throat and all Bronchial Affections, Whooping Cough and Croup, also Catarrh.

This remedy has been known to the proprietor for several years past, and has been administered in many aggravated cases with marvellous success. As a remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, sore throat and all bronchial affections, it has no superior. It has been tested in innumerable cases of long standing and has never failed. It would seem a waste of time and space to enumerate individual cases in which it has proved a success. The proprietor will, however, cheerfully furnish a list of such, if desired. A remarkable fact with this remedy is that no one who ever tried it failed to recommend it to others. You have but to try it on its merits. You will never be without it. Consumptives will find speedy relief if not permanent cure. It Acts like a Charm on Children with Whooping Cough, Croup and kindred coughs. It contains no opiates. Is made from the very best materials, and no money is spared in its preparation. It invigorates and builds up the system. It acts as a tonic. The effects are permanent and lasting. The proprietor has tested the remedy in so many cases with wonderful success, and is so thoroughly convinced of its efficacy, and on account of the many personal applications made to him for it, that he has concluded to place it upon the market and let the public have the benefit of it. Directions for taking will be found upon all bottles. Purchasers are requested to examine bottles and see that name and trade mark are stamped on them. None genuine unless so stamped. Nashville Ahead.

A good practical joke was played on one of our boys the other day by a Nashville dude. He gets a young cat bird and sells it to a courting young man in town for a young mocking bird. He buys him a cage puts his young mocking bird in it and sends it to his dulcina. That night it dies from a stroke on the head received in capturing it. The original price paid was to have been $2.00, but owing to the misfortune he was only charged $1.50, which was promptly paid. This young man wants it understood that he does not wish to make any more purchases of mocking birds. We are sorry Punk has learned such bad tricks in Nashville. He expects to get on a Nashville "tear" on the proceeds of his cat birds.

FOR THE VIRGINIAN.

Agreeable Surprise.

A few days ago, on my return home from a short absence, I found awaiting me a gratifying tributs of respect and affectionate regard, in the shape of a handsome, substantial and comfortable rocking chair made of finest California wood and cushioned with Russian Morocco, presented by several of my former pupils of White Gate High School, for which I hereby return to the donors my hearty thanks and best wishes for their present peace and future welfare. I trust that while they seek for one bodily rest, they may all have an assured hope of that rest which remains for the people of God.

Mite Society.

In the gathering twilight of yestur's eve the writer found himself lefre the residence of Mr. Charles Payne, in which the Newport Mite Society was to be held. It was a beautiful evening. The last tints of departing day were fast fading away in the west, causing the lingering clouds just above the horizon to shine as of gold. The evening star shown with unusual brightness. The full-orbed moon had just risen from behind the eastern hill-tops and threw a flood of mellow light o'er the verdant landscape. The gentle evening zephyr, heavily laden with the scent of new-mown hay, seemed to ring for joy through the tree-tops. One could not help but admire these lovely scenes of nature, nevertheless above all these, those flitting forms seen through the open door and windows shown with dazzling brilliancy. Could they be earthly? Yes, "earths good angels." Soon after entering the parlor the Society was called to order by the Vice-President. After the business before the house was transacted, the names of those on the programme for recitations and readings were called, but none responded. Much however was added to the occasion by the good music on the part of friends visiting near town. The Society has been quite successful in the past, and hopes for many golden harvests in the future.

Pembroke is a growing and flourishing spot.

Our postmaster, H. W. Saidow, has about completed his new building for his office, which Mr. Saidow is strict in business and will fill his post to a dot.

Mr. A. J. Cummings is running the shop at the old stand of Worley & Jones. Any one wanting work done would do well to give him a call as he is one of the finest smiths in Va. He can drive six nails at one time all warranted to take effect and hold well. His terms are easy and easy come at.

Dr. R. H. Hoge has moved into his new building near Hoge's Chapel, where he can be found at any time when not asleep or called away. The Doctor is looking well and as jolly as ever.

The Pembroke Court sat on the 3rd and disposed of things generally. They cleared up the docket streets and put every thing to flight.

In the match game of Base Ball played at Pembroke the young bloods of Pembroke, scared seven to thirty-one in favor of the Newport bloods. I was a witness to this game and saw the ball take Capt. J. H. Hoge on the end of his nose which caused the Captain to retreat to the rear.

As our Pembroke Coronett Band has not been represented from this place and the most of them readers of the VIRGINIAN, it will be well to give them a showing. This Band was present at the match game of Base Ball given at Pembroke on the 10th inst., and gave them some of the sweetest and most charming music that ever was played there. They struck out on Brown Eyed Cora and on to victory, which was kept up for ten hours. Our base drummer Jas. E. Bishop keeping the exact time and jumping six feet in the air would make one think that he did not agree with his drum head or sheep skin from the way he beat it. Any one wanting to hear good music let him call on the Pembroke Coronett Band.

One word more, Mr. A. T. Collins is pap.

Another Flower Gathered.

Eddie Olin Eaton, died of Scarlet Fever, October 16, 1885, at Thomas ils, Va. But few are called to pass through such a bitter ordeal of bereavement, as was the mother of this one, whose husband, R. G. Eaton, was called away about one year before. No purer, sweeter child was ever given to bless and brighten a home. He was harmless almost to a fault. No untruth ever sullied the lips that seemed made for kisses and sweet words. He was suitable and gentle in his disposition, and beloved by all who knew him. He bore his sufferings with as much resignation and fortitude as a well tried soldier. Why this and affliction was sent we know not, but we shall know here after. In that promise we rest, and feel that dear little Eddie has not lived in vain, for heaven seems nearer and dearer since our treasure is there. We have given him back to God who gave him to us, and with sad hearts try to say, Thy will be done.

I saw the young bride in her beauty and pride,
Bedecked in her snowy array,
And the bright flush of joy mantled high on her cheek,
And the future looked blooming and gay.
And with woman's devotion she laid her fond heart
At the shrine of idolatrous love
And she anchored her hopes to this perishing earth,
By the chain which her tenderness wove.
But I saw those heart strings bleeding and torn,
And the golden chain severed in two;
She changed her white robes for sables of grief
And left her bloom for the paleness of woe.
I saw the young mother in tenderness bend
O'er the couch of her slumbering boy,
And she kissed the soft lips as they murmured for her name
While the dreamer lay smiling in joy.
O! sweet as the rosebud circled with dew
When its fragrance is cast on the air
So fresh and so bright to that mother he seemed
As he lay in his innocence there.
But I saw when she gazed on the same lovely form
Pale and sickly and silent and cold,
While his spirit to that world of bliss was borne
And the tale of her sorrow was told.
And I saw them again bending o'er the grave
Where their hearts dearest hope had been laid
And the star had gone down in the darkness of night
And the joy from her bosom had fled.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY, ... July 23, 1886.

Paying the Public Debt.

By a vote of more than three to one the House of Representatives passed on Wednesday Mr. Morrison's resolution providing that of the surplus in the Treasury all exceeding one hundred thousand dollars should be used in redeeming or paying the public debt. The New York Tribune fact-denounced the resolution as one calculated to damage the financial condition of the country; but its denunciations did not induce all of the Republican members to oppose the resolution. Of the 207 affirmative votes a goodly number were Republicans, the negative vote being only 67. The majority for the resolution was 140, or more than three times as large as the Democratic majority in the House. The South and the West are not willing to be governed by the gold bugs of Wall street.

To release ten millions of dollars a month from the Treasury is to pay ten millions a month to men who will have that sum to invest each month in other securities, or else in mining or manufacturing establishments, or in railroads or houses or lands. Money will not lie idle. It will seek investment. Use for it will be found by somebody. The low prices of all commodities indicate that there is none too much money in circulation.

Mr. Morrison's resolution, it is feared by such men as Mr. Hewitt, will have a tendency to cause the disappearance of gold from the channels of business, and the substitution of silver by running gold coins up to a premium over silver coins. Now is as good a time as any other to test this theory, seeing that Congress will be in session again within five months.

Let it not be forgotten how in 1884 the Democratic speakers all over the country denounced the Republican party for keeping in the Treasury so much idle money.

He longs to take the people into his confidence, and to pour into the Congressional Record all the scandalous tales he can think of concerning his colleagues who happen to be the objects of his dislike. Mr. Riddleberger ought not to be in the Senate, and no people now more keenly appreciate this fact than the Republicans ... who helped put him and ... where they are. It is due to the machinations of a Republican administration and to the efforts of Republican politicians that Riddleberger is able to violate the rules of the Senate, and to reveal the secrets of an executive session. If Mr. Hoar and Mr. Edmunds hear it stated on the floor of the Senate that their votes are controlled by their ownership of Bell Telephone stock, we cannot feel sorry for them. They invited in the perpetrator of the outrage. They assisted in turning over Virginia to the horde of negroes and Readjusters, the outpouring of whose secondency is Riddleberger. General News.

President Cleveland this afternoon vetoed the bill appropriating $1,501,000 for a public building at Dayton, Ohio.

Washington, July 9.—The President sent to the Senate this afternoon the nomination of Geo. W. Bishop of Maryland to be assistant treasurer of the United States at Baltimore, Md.

Senator Mitchell, of Oregan, says that Portland is one of the wealthiest cities in the United States. It has at least twelve millionaires, and a large number of men worth over half a million. There are forty or fifty men in the town who are worth from $100,000 to $500,000, and the town abounds in insufficient houses and in fine interiors.

St. Patrick's New York Roman Catholic Cathedral, on Fifth avenue, is at last to be completed according to Architect James Renwick's original design. Work was begun on the steeples Monday. It will take four months and an outlay of $300,000 to finish them.

Father—"No, sir, it shan't be said of me that I wanted my girls to get spliced so bad that I had to go out and lasso'en, and bring the young men in." One of the girls—"No, father! Nobly said! Give me the lasso!"

During a thunderstorm at New Richmond, Wis., two thunderbolts went through a pillow of a young woman, one on each side of her head. Her hair was singed, her head and shoulders burned, and both eyeballs so blistered that she will be totally blind.

New York, July 9.—Miguel Chacon was hanged at 7:40 this morning for the murder of his mistress, Mrs. Maria Williams, in July of last year. She gave him up to return to her husband, and he shot her through the heart. He was only twenty-two. All the parties are colored.

Washington, July 10.—On motion of Mr. Trigg, of Virginia, a bill was passed in the house to-day, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to exchange for more suitable property, certain property purchased at Abingdon, Va., as a site for a public building.

Whitewright, Texas, July 10.—A puma, which has been infesting the neighborhood of Pilot Grove for several weeks, yesterday tore to pieces and devoured the one-year old child of a farmer living on Barn's tract. Nothing was left of the child but fleshless bones. This puma has been seen several times this summer in the north of Texas.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 9.—Professor P. C. Hardy was nearly lynched yesterday near Kokomo by a crowd of angry citizens for an assault upon a little girl. He was captured in a field and the mob was preparing to punish him when the sheriff and a posse rescued him and took him to Sharpsville jail. It is feared that his victim will die from the effects of the terrible injuries. Hardy was a musician and organ dealer at Kokomo.

Saved His Life.

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with Fithlsio, also Diabetes; the pains were at most unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured and had gained in flesh eighteen pounds. Says he positively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottlh by Thos. J. Pearson.

Louisville, Ky., July 9.—At noon to day Governor Knott ordered the State militia to go to Morehead to arrest the participants in Rowan county feuds. Seventy five soldiers from Louisville and Lexington will leave at 7 o'clock to night under command of Major McKee of Lexington for the seat of war. The troops will remain in Rowan during the trial of the offenders to protect the court and keep the peace.

Not a particle of calomel or any other deleterious substance enters into the composition of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. On the contrary they prove of special service to those who have used calomel and other mineral poisons as medicines, and feel their injurious effects. In such cases Ayer's Pills are invaluable.

When to Work.

Most people allow that early rising is advantageous, but there are, to be feared, comparatively few brain workers who adopt the habit. They allege, and with some reason, that they can work best at night, because the surroundings are quiet and there is freedom from disturbance. When they state, however, that they themselves feel better fitted for work they are, as a general rule, misinterpreting their own sensations; they feel quiet because they are tired; one part seems fit to work because the other is to weary to protest. A recourse to tea, coffee or alcohol helps the mind for a time, but the effect of these stimuli upon the wearied organism is only to increase the penalty that must sooner or later be paid in the form of deplesened and other evidences of nervous disturbance. Morning is the time to work.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free Trial Bottles at Thos. J. Pearson's Drug Store.

Would Make Any Woman Ugly.

It has become "the thing" to "do a little gambling" at Monte Carlo, and when once any practice has become "the thing," our countrymen, and still more our countrywomen, can not resist it. But how ugly the people are, the women more especially! "How is it?" I asked one day. "Surely it is plain enough," some one answered; "gambling would make any woman ugly." And he was right.—[National Review.

A verdict of 14,000 for damages sustained by a passenger has been returned against the South Boston Street Railroad Company. Assuming eight miles per capita as the profit earned, the company will have to carry 1,750,000 passengers in order to pay this bill. This is about two months' business of the road.

The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and tortures of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. The relief which is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It dispels the causes of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

New York, July 9.—The business failures as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., during the past week, are 150 for the United States and 20 for Canada, or a total of 170, which is rather above the average of the last few weeks. The failure this week are pretty evenly distributed throughout the country.

A lady writes: "I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family for many years, and could not keep house without it. For the relief of the pains consequent upon female weaknesses and irregularities in older it without an equal."

A banker, respectable as rich, giving counsel concerning men and things to a young man just entering business, said: "For me, young man, men are classified in two categories, knaves and fools, and no more." "But—yourself—then?" "I I have a foot in each category."

An inhabitant of London consumes in a year thirty-two times as much fish as an inhabitant of Berlin; and Paris, with her 2,200,000 inhabitants, consumes more fish than the whole of Germany with a population of 47,000,000.—[Inter-Ocean.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

GIVE HIM A SHOW.

On last Tuesday the mass meeting in Christiansburg elected delegates and instructed them for Col. J. Hampton Hoge. Why not give the young hard working Democracy a show and that district nominate young Hoge? He has all the elements of strength, personal popularity, energy and ability enough to make as brilliant canvass, and ambition to sustain his reputation.

PROSPECT FOR HOME RULE.

The apparently decisive results of the recent English elections against Home Rule for Ireland are not so decisive after all. While the opponents of Gladstone and Parnell in the next Parliament will considerably outnumber their adherents, neither of the other English parties will have a majority in the new Parliament. The Gladstone Ministry has resigned, but neither the Unionist or Conservative party can organize a Ministry of itself. A deal between the two is possible, and a Salisbury-Hartington, or a Hartington-Salisbury, Ministry is spoken of; but the peculiar constitution of these two factions, differing essentially as they do on every other public question, makes a lasting coalition practically impossible, and a Ministry composed of a fraction of each could not exist. In the new Parliament Gladstone and Parnell will hold the balance of power, and what obstructions they will be enabled to interpose to the progress of all legislation of every sort, indicates that the anti-Home Rule factions may have anything but a halcyon proceeding as they go along.

Of the ultimate success of Home Rule for Ireland there can be no doubt; the verdict of the recent elections does not defeat, but only postpones the inevitable triumph of indefeasible rights of her people and their cause. There is no rational plea against it. England will be eventually "coerced" to grant Ireland justice. Home Rule for Ireland means no more than do the local governments of Australia and the Canadas—the former, established as a penal colony, has its own home rule; the latter have their home rule and Federal Parliament. Every State and Territory of our national Union has home rule in a similar, only wider, sense. Gladstone's repulse at the recent elections was possible only through the ignorance of the English masses, furied up as they were by unconscionable demagogues such as only the English nation can boast of. Another election may turn things round completely.

What the future may have in store, that may precipitate the crisis otherwise than in the course of ordinary events, none can foretell. The menacing attitude of Russia towards England and Turkey, convincing demonstrations of which have lately been given by Russia in her conduct on the Afghan frontier, promises war with that power, in which event Ireland's opportunity would be readily seized. Henry Grattan and the volunteers, nearly a century ago, established home rule for Ireland, during war between England and France. The friends of Ireland should not despair.

Why can't the press of the South sent have an association. It would be for their mutual protection. Advertizers and especially advertizing agents impose on them simply because there is no fixed rate of advertising. We think that it is high time that we should have an organization for our own benefit. We will be gouged as long as we don't.

Besides the advantages in a financial point of view great advantages would result from the social intercourse of the editor." We would become better acquainted and some good rare social "tears" could be had. We are heartily in for it. Let us hear from some of our brethren.

The oleomargarine bill has passed both Houses of Congress and is now in the hands of the President.

A NEW EXTRADITION TREATY.

The new treaty between the United States and England, of which there has been no little amount of rumor in the past several days as to its provisions in relation to dynamiters and other criminals, is now made public. It is the work of Minister Phelps and Lord Rosebury, and is a most judiciously framed instrument, to which there can be urged no reasonable objection.

The first extradition treaty between the United States and England was made in 1794. It covered only the offenses of murder and forgery, but in 1842 its terms were enlarged so as to include assault with intent to kill, arson and robbery. No later treaty on the subject had been made between the two countries, and the crimes of embezzlement, burglary, etc., up to the present time have not been extraditable. The new treaty extends the provisions of previous treaties to the crimes of manslaughter, burglary, embezzlement or larceny, involving an amount of $50, and "malicious injuries to property whereby the life of any person shall be endangered, if such injuries constitute a crime according to the laws of both countries." Another article provides that no fugitive criminal shall be surrendered if the crime of which he is charged, be one of a political character.

The portion of the treaty that will most gratify the English is the article providing for the arrest and extradition of the dynamite plotters and Anarchists of all shades, who come to America to propagate their infernal schemes, while to Americans the most important feature is that relating to the extradition of the embezzling bank cashiers and others occupying important positions of trust who have in late years too frequently skipped across the Candian border in defiance of the laws of the United States, and easily evaded justice.

The treaty has been received universally with high favor in this country, and it will in all probability be promptly ratified by our government.

An Abingdon correspondent of the Advance says "that it is now generally conceded here that Trigg will get the nomination." No such concession is made in this end of the District. He is practically counted out of the race. If Washington must have it (and it seems the must) why John A. Buchanan is the "coming man." If the East and gets her due, why then we hail "Henry" as the chief who in triumph advances. He will get 66 on first ballot.

Dickens circumlocution office has a fit representation of to-day in the Civil Service Reform Commission. "How not to do it," is the object of this organization. Lord Deciums (Alias Senator Edmunds) is its patron.

A Tragedy in West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., July 12.—Information has just reached here that Geo. W. Beasley killed his wife by cutting her throat last Friday. Her body was found on the public highway and Beasley cannot be found. Excitement runs high, and should the accused man be found he will be hung to the nearest tree. He was acquitted for killing Henderson Moore a few months ago.

The Senate in appropriating on Saturday $50,000 to help defray the expenses of the dedication of Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty stipulated that none of the money should be spent in liquors. At this a New York newspaper sneers badly. To its "untutored mind" it is a grave offence for Congress to appropriate money to improve any of the rivers and harbors of the country, save those of New York, of course, but it is perfectly proper that Congress should open streams of champagne on which a few jinuketing politicians can float away to temporary bliss. It would not be surprising to see such an enlightened and progressive journal suggesting the abolition of our national motto and the substitution for it of the sentiment, Thousands for wines but not a cent for water.—[State.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. "For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. C. BRUNNERN, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." Mrs. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

FOR SALE.—A first class saddle and driving mare, perfectly sound, blood bay, with black points, five years old and guaranteed to work anywhere. Apply to P. F. Sr. CLAIR, Bane, Va. july 2-1mo.

—Col. John G. Crockett, of Summers county, has a violin 216 years old, of the James Steinor make, which he prizes very highly. He has refused $150 for it, it being an old heirloom. Three violins are prized very much by musicians for their exquisite workmanship and softness of tone.—[Summerville Chronicle.

—A very pleasant party was at Mr. M. L. Sibold's on last Wednesday night in honor of Miss Grace Hendbright who has been teaching in Mr. Sibold's family the past session. The time was passed pleasantly by a programme of songs and recitations by the teacher and pupils which were very good indeed. The party were much amused by a cake walking contest. The young people were formed into couples and were to promenade up and down the long pourch until the judges selected for the purpose could decide who was the most graceful walker. The cake was awarded to Miss Garden, a beautiful and graceful brunette of Norfolk, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wilson, of Staytide. It was then agreed that a quarter of the cake was to be given to the most graceful judge. Then came the tug of war: Messrs. Hiram T. Jones, John F. Walker and J. R. Payne were the contestants. The contest was so close that they had to be requested to reverse the order of things and walk backwards. This feat was gracefully and elegantly accomplished by Mr. Hiram T. Jones and the cake was unanimously awarded to him. There is lots of fun in a cake walk.

—During the storm last Saturday night, two little girls, aged respectively eight and ten years, daughters of Mr. James E. Dooley, who resides about one mile from Bedford Springs, were struck by lightning and instantly killed. The bolt is supposed to have come down the chimney. The girls, Alice and Annie, were in bed in an upper room, and after the storm had subsided were found lying side by side, in the embrace of death.—[Salem Register.

—The wonderful success in sales of the celebrated Knabe, Kranich & Bach, and Emerson Pianos, Estey, Smith American and other Organs handled by J. D. Hobbie, 901 Main Street, Lynchburg must be gratifying to this house of their immense popularity. Persons wishing to buy an instrument, would do well to write him for prices and terms.

A load of hay was being driven into the big barn of Schuyler Parish, of Naples, N. Y., the other day, when an iron bolt of the rack pressed so hard on a wheel that the tire struck fire and the hay was ignited. The driver had the presence of mind to back the load out of the barn and jumped down. The frightened team ran through the village with the blazing load, setting fire to a bridge on the way. When they were stopped all of the hay had been burned but the running wheels.

Are the people of this place going to let another year pass without even trying to get a High School? A school of this kind, at this place would afford advantages not to be obtained elsewhere. By a little work a good school can be established here. Then to the work!

Rev. Mr. Shelley preached in the Baptist Church last Sunday. A large crowd was present.

Mr. Jas. F. Surface of Pearisburg, attended the "Children's Day" here. Frank is an old White Gate boy, and we are always glad to see him.

Senator Logan has introduced a bill to enable the different States to complete the muster rolls and milli-tary records of volunteer soldiers who served in the war of the rebellion. It directs the Adjutant General of the Army, when requested by the Adjutant General of any State, to furnish to such State copies of the military rolls and of all military records which may be on file in his office, relating to the volunteer soldiers of such State who served in the war of the rebellion, provided the State shall pay the cost of making such copies. It also directs the Adjutant General to give to any State, at its cost and expense, leave to make copies for the purpose of completing its military statistics of the muster rolls and military records as in his office relating to volunteers of such State who served in the war of the rebellion.

During Logan's speech on the Payne case Wednesday the Senate galleries were crowded, notwithstanding the high temperature of the chamber, and many members of the lower House were to be seen on the Senate chamber floor. Logan is looked upon as the prospective Presidential candidate of the Republicans, and hence so many members were anxious to hear his speech. By hearing instead of reading it they would be in better trim to make use of it in the campaign, and no such advantage should be lost. Furthermore it was understood that he would be pretty severe in his criticism of some prominent Republicans, and whenever there is any spicy talk on hand the members enjoy the fun. The speech has made a good impression, and Logan stands higher now in the estimate of many than he did before the speech.

The Actor Irving and His Children.

One night I walked home with Irving and sat up for hours talking. We entered into an argument and in the midst of the discussion I ad mitted that as Charles I, his farewell to his children was so realistic it afflicted me to tears. "So, it does me," he replied, and then in the cold, gray morning light he told me the story of his early struggles and despair, and how, when light had come, his wife, unable to agree with him, had gone he knew not where with all his little ones, who were hers under English law. "When on the stage," he said "I say good-by to the children and kiss them; it is not Charles but Henry Irving you see before you, who, amid the applause, the glitter and the glare, is thinking of his own lost babies."

By recent papers I see that Irving and his wife have become reconciled, and the "babies" who have now grown to be strapping young fellows have just made a successful debut on the stage.

Wonderful Cures.

W. D. Hoyt & Co., Wholesale and Retail Druggists of Rome, Ga., say: We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Bucklen's Arnica Salve for two years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced Consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always.

Sold by Thos. J. Pearson's.

Pearls.

If a life will bear examination in every hour, it is pure indeed.

If any one says ill of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

He who strives after a long and pleasant form of life, must seek to obtain continued equanimity.

A celebrated writer says: "We never see a tear in the eye but we are reminded of a warm heart."

Whatever else we neglect, let us keep up the habit of communion with God. Prayer is key of the position.

If a man empties his purse into his head, no man can take it away from him. An investment in knowledge always pays the best interest.

Let every man take care how he speaks and writes of honest people, and not set down at a venture the first thing that comes uppermost.

Tired Languid Dull

Exactly expresses the condition of thousands of people at this season. The depressive effects of warm weather, and the weak condition of the body, can only be corrected by the use of a reliable tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Why suffer longer when a remedy is so close at hand? Take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will give you untold wealth in health, strength, and energy.

Rose Leslie, whose immense size made her famous as a circus attraction, has died in Lowell, Mass., aged 25 years. She weighed 615 pounds, and measured 4 feet 9 inches in height.

As well expect life without air, as health without pure blood. Cleanse the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Wash grained woods with cold tea, wipe dry and rub with linseed oil.

It is Better

Not to let your sail be bigger than your boat.

To let your recreation be manful, not sinful.

To bend the neck promptly than to bruise the forehead.

To think before you speak than to speak before you think.

To hold on to your good name; for it is of more value than gold.

To put your foot down where you mean to stand, and keep it there.

To look well to your feet when they are likely to lead you into the paths of sin.

To labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire, called conscience.

To stick to your opinion, if you have one, and allow others the same liberty of sticking to theirs.

The Boycott at Home.

"Now that you've got your ten per cent. increase," John, you must be more liberal with your allowance for household expenses. I want a new tenkettle, and the wash-boiler needs—"

"Can't afford it, Mollie; I'm only making living wages now, and you must wait until I can declare a dividend."

"Then you refuse to arbitrate?"

"There's nothing to arbitrate. I can't—"

"Very well! I shall order a strike at once. The kitchen fire shall be drawn this noon, and if you dare to bring another woman into the house to cook a kettle of mush, I'll smash the cook stove all to smithereens. Come, children, we must begin to boycott your father immediately!"—[Boston Record.

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Thos. J. Pearson can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free.

What We Found.

A few days ago an Atlanta gentleman bought half a pound of what he supposed was fine roasted coffee. Mr. Reinmann picked from that half pound the following articles: Twenty eight small rocks, two sticks, one piece of iron ore, about 50 black objects unknown in this locality, but said to be "chicory," and one piece of glass. Man's stomach is having a tough time defending itself against man's dishonesty.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give pefect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box.

For sale by Thos. J. Pearson's.

A Good Little Boy.

"Yes," said Mrs. Hendricks to the minister, who was dining with the family. "Bobby says his prayers every night, like a good little boy."

"Ah, indeed," replied the minister very much pleased, "and do you pray for papa and mamma, Bobby?"

"Oh, yes, for both of 'em, although I've often heard ma tell pa that he is past praying for."

"Facts are stubborn things," and sufferers from chills and fever generally find their complaint a very stubborn fact, until they commence the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. That medicine eradicates the noxious poison from the system, and invariably cures even the worst cases.

A man in Campbell county, Ga., had 36 boys old enough to fight in the late war and and 23 of them were killed. He had been married 9 times.

It is easy enough to be agreeable in society. All you have to do is to listen while the other man talks. If the other man is a woman, you've got to listen anyway.

Scrofula diseases manifest themselves in the worst possible. Hood's Sarsaparilla cleanses the blood, and removes every taint of scrofula.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress, Ninth District,
MAJ. R. R. HENRY,
Of Tazewell.

MAJ. HENRY THE MAN!

THE CONVENTION IN SESSION ONLY A FEW HOURS!

He is Nominated on the First Ballot!

A short Sketch of the Nominee.—Our Next Congressman.

The call, issued about one month ago by the District Committee of the Democratic party of this—the Ninth district—for a convention at this place to nominate a candidate for the 50th Congress, was responded to yesterday, 12:15 p. m., at Sexton's Hall, by about one hundred and twenty delegates, representing in all fourteen counties, which compose this Congressional district. The convention was called to order by Mr. A. M. Bowman, Chairman of the District Committee.

Colonel A. J. May, of Tazewell county, was nominated as temporary chairman. He was unanimously elected. Colonel May in a few, well selected, pointed remarks accepted the position to which he was elected. The Democratic Editors present were requested to act as secretaries. The chair appointed Messrs. W. E. Fulton, Frank St. Clair, Musgrove Shackleford and Wm. Terry, Jr., as Sergeants at Arms.

The convention then took a recess of five minutes to allow the counties to select representatives on the committee on credentials and permanent organization.

When the convention re-organized the committees were announced. Every county in the district being represented. Wythe was represented on the committee on credentials by Capt. W. O. Moore, on permanent organization by Mr. J. A. Sanders.

On motion the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock p. m., to give the committees time to report.

At the appointed hour, 2 o'clock p. m., the convention convened. The committee on permanent organization, Judge Graham, of Tazewell county, chairman, recommended State Senator S. W. Williams, of Bland county, as permanent chairman, and Mr. W. W. Wysor, of Pulaski county, as secretary, and the Democratic press to act as assistants; Messrs. Fulton, Terry, St. Clair and Shackleford as Sergeant at Arms; and the rules of the House of Delegates to govern the proceedings of the convention. The report of the committee was adopted without a dissenting voice.

The Committee on Credentials, Mr. Finch, of Washington county, chairman, made the following report, giving the number of delegates each county was entitled to and the number present:

Bland 6 delegates, present 6; Buchanan 5 delegates, present 3; Craig 6 delegates, present 1; Dickenson 5 delegates, present 1; Giles 11 delegates, present 6; Lee 15 delegates, present 4; Pulaski 10 delegates, present 9; Russell 14 delegates, present 14; Smyth 14 delegates, present 14; Scott 15 delegates, present 4; Tazewell 11 delegates, present 4; Wise 7 delegates, present 4; Wythe 16 delegates, present 16; Washington 24 delegates, present 24.

The report of the committee was adopted. The chair then appointed a committee of three to escort Senator Williams to the chair. He was greeted with applause. Senator Williams on taking the chair thanked the convention, in a neat speech of about five minutes, for the honor conferred on him. Then on motion of Col. May, of Tazewell county, a recess of five minutes was taken to enable the counties to agree upon representatives of the Congressional committee. On re-assembling the Committee on Resolutions was announced as follows:

On the committee on resolutions Mr. James H. McGavock. The report was agreed to. A motion to adjourn for one hour until four o'clock, was defeated. With the consent of the convention the Committee on Resolutions retired for the purpose of making a report. During its absence another recess of ten minutes was taken.

After the expiration of the ten minutes, the convention convened again.

Maj. Magill, of Pulaski county, moved that the delegates present of the respective counties be entitled to cast the whole vote of the counties. Carried. On motion of Mr. Bowman, of Smyth county, a com. of five was appointed to draft suitable resolutions respecting the death of ex-President Samuel J. Tilden, of United States. The chair appointed Messrs. Bowman, Smith; Longly, Washington; Thomas, Wythe; May, Tazewell; Painter, Pulaski, as the com. The com. retired and reported the following resolutions, which were passed:—

WHEREAS, This Convention has heard with deep and sincere regret of the death of that distinguished citizen and patriot, Sam'l. J. Tilden. Therefore be it resolved that in his death the Nation has lost one of its first citizens, and most eminent Statesman, and the Democratic party, one of its wisest counsellors and ablest leaders.

Resolved, That we emulate his illustrious example in his strict adherance to the great principles of constitutional liberty as expounded by the fathers of Democracy.

On motion of Col. May, of Tazewell, nominating speeches were declared in order. On motion of a Washington county delegate the speeches were limited to ten minutes. Nominating speeches being in order, Mr. Longley, of Washington county, placed in nomination Hon. C. F. Trigg. Mr. Ruth, of Russell county, nominated Maj. R. R. Henry, of Tazewell county.

As there were no other nominations, the first ballot was called for, which resulted in the nomination of Maj. Henry.

The ballot:

	Trigg.	Henry.
Bland,		6
Buchanan,	5
Craig,	6
Dickenson,	5
Giles,		11
Lee,		15
Pulaski,	6	4
Russell,	2	12
Scott,		15
Smyth,	3	11
Tazewell,		11
Washington,	26
Wise,	3½	3½
Wythe,	7	9
Total,	63½	97½

On motion of Mr. Bowman, of Smyth, a friend of Mr. Trigg, the nomination of Maj. Henry was made unanimous. A committee of three was then appointed by the chair to inform Maj. Henry of his nomination. Maj. Henry being escorted to the stage, he accepted the nomination in a ringing speech; pledging to do all in his power to carry the banner of Democracy to victory. In answer to calls, Gen. Fridomore addressed the Convention. After which, the Convention adjourned.

The following are the resolutions reported by the Committee on Resolutions. The resolutions were adopted:

1st. Whilst we recognize the necessity for such a revision of the tariff as may be necessary to correct its inequalities, yet we are opposed to any reductions in the rates of duty upon foreign imports that will injuriously effect our own industries or tend to a reduction in the price of labor, and especially are we opposed to putting raw materials on the free list.

2nd. We are earnestly in favor of repealing the entire system of Internal Revenue laws.

3rd. We recognize it to be both the right and the duty of the General Government to aid in educating its citizens, and we are both in favor of the Blair bill or some similar be neficent measure.

4th. Resolved, That we are in favor of the continued coinage of silver.

5th. Resolved, That after the demands of the Government have been met, that any surplus money that may be left in the treasury of the United State, be applied to the reduction of the national public debt, thereby stopping the interest.

6th. Resolved, That the nominee of this convention is expected to advocate the principles announced in

7th. Resolved, That no person shall be the nominee of this convention unless he shall have received a majority of the votes cast.

—[Wytheville Dispatch.

A BRIEF SKETCH OF THE NOMINEE.

Major R. R. Henry, the nominee of the Congressional Convention, who developed such phenomina strength in the convention, was born in Petersburg, Virginia. He is now in his forty first year, in the prime of vigor and manhood. He became a confederate soldier in his seventeenth year, fought through the war in the army around Richmond, being at least once severely wounded. He came to the county of Wise in the Southwest about the year 1871, where he practice law up to about 1875, serving the county there as Commonwealth's Attorney. He then removed to Tazewell where he has since practice his profession. Now as a member of the firm of Henry & Graham.

It should not be forgotten that after the place of Hancock elector had been refused by two gentlemen of this district he took the place and is said to have added great strength to the ticket in the Southwest. He has always, so far as his profession would permit given his personal aid in all the canvasses. He has become an eminent forensic advocate in this section, being called in this capacity far and near. He is a man of splendid and manly physique, about 6 ft. 1 in. high, of commanding bearing, and called the handsomest man in the district.

Still said of the great Irish leader Daniel O'Connell that he was of that manly form and imposing physique that the masses loved to follow, the same can be said of Henry.

He is an educated gentleman of polished manner, the result of a charitable and kind heart. No man living has a greater sympathy with the people and their wants and needs than Henry. He is a democrat of the young type. A leader that the young democracy will follow with enthusiasm and that the grand old veterans will respect.

DEATH OF EX-PRESIDENT SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

While the Convention was in session a telegram was received announcing his death at his home, Greystone near New York City at 8:45. His death was unexpected. It was caused by failure of the heart following an attack of diarrhœa and nausea. His country has lost a noble citizen and the Democratic party a wise and able counselor. May his ashes rest in peace!

Capt. James Bumgardner, of Staunton, has been nominated by the Democrats of the Tenth Congressional district, as Hon. John Randolph Tucker's successor.

Mr. Ruth's speech before the Convention nominating Maj. Henry was highly complimented. He is a young man of decided tact and ability.

Steve Brodie has successfully jumped the Brooklin bridge, a distance of 120 feet.

That is altogether a matter of taste. People who never enjoyed an evening of real civilized society of course had best keep away from the former. If you want to take your little party to a heaven where there will be no people who ever danced you have to get one made to order.—[Virginia Herald.

Washington Letter.

Politics, as well as the weather, are boiling in Washington just now. The Home Rule Democracy is up in arms against the confirmation of the colored man Matthews, as Recorder of Deeds for the District, and it has the sympathy of all the blue blood democracy of the whole country. The fight has been a protracted one, and has become national in interest. The Senate District Committee at first stood four to four with one member absent, against confirmation. Under the long established custom of the Senate, the nomination should, under the circumstances, have been reported adversely, but the power behind the throne had the report withheld with the hope of something turning up to change the adverse report. The District democrats determined not to be outwitted in that way, then secured an investigation into the charges that the nominee was a renegade republican, a fiery partisan and a ward politician from Albany, and after a most searching investigation the whole committee, with the exception of two democrats, agreed on an adverse report. Still from some cause deemed wise not to make public, the nomination was held up in committee, but the end is nearly reached, as the day of adjournment approaches, and as usual, in a heated contest, as the end draws nigh the excitement increases. The old guard democrats are now wrathy, and charge treason in the camp. It seems that the Columbia Democratic club, of which the new marshal for the District was, and still is a member, without a dissenting voice, and in the interest of Home Rule, adopted the motto "District men for District offices." The marshal got his prize, but it seems that he has "experienced religan," and it is now charged that he has on several occasions been closeted with the colored importation from Albany, and is over-stepping the bounds of official propriety by doing his "level best" to influence Senatorial votes for confirmation of the nominee when a vote is reached. The Home Rulers say that the colored race should be recognized from among the residents of the District, but if the appointees are to be imported from the States, they would much prefer seeing Fred. Douglass, who is a recognized representative colored man of intelligence, integrity and capacity, remain in the office of Recorder, than to have him supplanted by a ward politician of the same race imported from Albany. The fight has assumed such national proportions that both members and senators can be found discussing with considerable animation, the merits of the contest, and unless this hot spell "lets up" pretty soon, you may look for some breezy paragraphs from the Nation's Capital, rising out of this memorable "affair of State."

Congress is about to die without having finished the work it was called into session for. It is thought by many that if the order of things was changed so as to bring the short sessions immediately preceding the year that nominations are made for the next Congress, the long sessions would be devoted to purely legislative matters, free from political campaign harangues, as they would be stale before they could be used.

The members have worked hard the past eight months to dispose of the public business, but so many bills of importance consumed so much time that they could not get to them, and a larger number than usual of private bills will have to go over to the next session. Assuming that not a single bill should be introduced next session, there will be more bills on the calendar, carried over from this session, than can possibly be disposed of in the three months of the short session.

A large number of the bills that will die with this Congress, will be introduced into the next, as claimants who once have a bill introduced for their relief, hold on with "death like tenacity," and will never give up as long as life lasts. Numerous instances might be cited to sustain the statement, but one prominent name will answer: McGarrahan still lives and pushes his claim to the quick silver mines of California with all the vigor of old. His name will go down to posterity as the great Congressional claimant. He looks as young to day as he did the first year he appeared before the Courts and Congress, and is better known than any other man that walks the halls of Congress. He has become so well known to all the members and Senators who have seen the longest service, that they speak of him as Billy McGarrahan, and address him familiarly as "Billy." If any claimant desires information as to the many obstacles his claim is apt to meet within its travels through Congress, no more competent person to advise on the subject can be consulted that Billy McGarrahan, the quicksilver mines claimant.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1878 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, constantly exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable in nature. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last three months, the scrofulous symptoms have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less. To my poor wife Hood's Sarsaparilla has been equally beneficial. I have used for others, both with the most astonishing results. In all cases where I have advised it, it has given entire satisfaction. I am a citizen of any position. I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who desires it." CHARLES A. JOHNSTON, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

A Beautiful Phenomenon.

On last Tuesday evening the writer witnessed a strange as well as beautiful phenomenon which perhaps is worth his feeble attempt to describe. The day had been a sultry one. Since early morn dark clouds seemingly freighted with moisture, hung round the mountain tops, yet no rain. The air seemed charged with electricity. The almost ceaseless roll of thunder sounded from cloud to cloud and was oftimes heard in the open sky. Evening came. The sun sank to rest behind a rolling cloud. The shades of night deepened. In a short while the clouds had all dispersed except a few far off on the mountain horizon, whose lofty peaks were tinged by the lightnings glare as it played hide and seek amid their dark ravines. A soft light which moved toward the west as it grew brighter and brighter was noticed on the virge of the northeastern horizon. Beautiful streaks presenting all the colors of the rain bow shot upward, one to meet the Polar Star. It was truly a grand scene. The dark outline of the mountains, the flame of the lightning, the sombre appearance of the southern sky and the waves of strange light that illumined the northern heavens; all combined was enough to produce a feeling of superstition and awe. After a few minutes display of her wondrous beauties the mysterious ship of light anfurled her lofty sails, launched out upon the aerial ocean and soon sank behind the distant waves.

Newport, July 30, '86. H.

The Head-Light Transferred to the Pusher.

Our Pokey-hunt-as friend of the Head-Light, pursuant to notice published in his paper, arrived in Wytheville promptly on the 5th, and was found frantically hunting up his delegation to organize them in order to secure Henry's nomination. You may imagine his surprise when he was told Houry had been nominated on the day previous, and that the Convention had made an order by which the Head-Light was to be transferred to the Pusher. If the Head-Light is as successful in dealing with Republican Hells as it was in cleaning out the Augean Stables you may bet on the Pusher coming in on the homestretch.

Narrows Items.

This particular portion of the Lord's Creation not having been represented for some time. Will scribble you a few lines.

Miss Fannie Ellis, one of the Narrows' belles, has returned from a visit to Blacksburg and Jim is delighted.

Mr. W. J. Henson, our Depot Agent, for some time past has been missing some toilet articles from his private room in the depot and was unable to account for the loss. While over hauling the depot yesterday he happened to notice a fresh rat hole in an old egg crate opening it he found four pair socks, couple hankerchief, pair gloves, a necktie and a soft hat. The thief escaped and is still at large, but our friend is waiting for him with a dose of rough on rats.

The Good Templars Lodge at this place has done a grand work and Narrows of to-day is not the Narrows of old, but is filled with peaceful law-abiding citizens who work for the cause of temperance and morality.

Prof. L. D. Shumate of Pearisburg, attended the Good Templars meeting Saturday night. We were glad to see him.

Mr. W. J. Henson was elected Worthy Chief of the G. Ts. last Saturday with Mr. H. W. Hale as Worthy Secretary. We wish the present management much success.

Bro. Bill Albert has quit smoking and advises all young men to quit as it gets them in trouble sometimes.

This will do for the first time.

Wise Words.

Obstacles are but the rounds that form the ladder of success.

In order to deserve a true friend you must first learn to be one.

Were we as eloquent as angels, we should please some more by listening than by talking.

There is a good deal of religion that is like a morning cloud—as soon as the sun gets hot it disappears.

The more able a man is, if he makes ill use of his abilities, the more dangerous he is to a community.

It is the easiest business in the world to do a thing. The learning how is where the difficulty exists.

Contentment is a good thing until it reaches the point where it sits in the shade and lets the weeds grow.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation; they do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.

Those men who destroy a healthful constitution of body by intemperance, do as manifestly kill themselves, as those who hang, or poison, or drown themselves.

Genteel, poverty is a pitiable thing, but it is less pitiable than genteel slovenliness. The shabby individual is a more respectable figure in life than the slatternly one. It is no crime to be out of fashion, but it is an offence against decency to be stylish and dirty.

A Prayer for a Professor.

Young ministers of the Scotch kirk are obliged to preach a certain number of trial sermons, and very queer discourses these often turned out. Dr. Boyd, of St. Andrew's, relates a story of how a probationer, when he "offered" the preliminary prayer took the opportunity of supplicating the Almighty on behalf of the professor who had instructed him, and was among the congregation when his solemn pupil "prayed sair" him.

Lord [said he], have mercy on our professor, for he is weak and ignorant. Strengthen his feeble hands, confirm his tottering knees, and grant that he may go out and in before us like the he-goat before Thy flock.—[London Truth.

Missed.

A teacher in one of the Indian schools relates the following incident of an Indian boy's quick thought: He had asked the meaning of the word miss. To miss, I told him, is the same as to fail. You shoot at a bird or a mark, and do not hit it; you miss. You go to a tailor's for a coat, and your coat fits badly; it is a mis fit. You hope to enter the middle class next year, but you cannot pass the examination, and so you miss the promotion. His face was a puzzled air and he shook his head.

"Then," said I "there is another meaning of miss." We call a married woman madam, but an unmarried woman miss."

His face brightened. He smiled and nodded.

"Ah, I see!" he said, "she has missed her man."

What Can He Done.

By trying again and keeping up courage many things seemingly impossible may be attained. Hundreds of hopeless cases of Kidney and Liver Complaint have been cured by Electric Bitters, after everything else had been tried in vain. So, don't think there is no cure for you, but try Electric Bitters. There is no medicine so safe, so pure, and so perfect a Blood Purifier. Electric Bitters will cure Dyspepsia, Diabetes and all Diseases of the Kidneys. Invaluable in affections of Stomach and Liver, and overcomes all Urinary Difficulties.

Large Bottles only 50 cts. at Thos. J. Pearson's.

On His Feet Again.

"The doctor said he'd put me on my feet again in two weeks."

"Well, didn't he do it?"

"He did; indeed. I had to sell my horse and buggy to foot his bill."

"And you've been footing it ever since."

"Precisely."

The curative power of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is too well known to require the specious aid of any exaggerated or fictitious certificate. Witnesses of its marvelous cures are to day living in every city and hamlet of the land. Write for names if you want home evidence.

Humorous.

A sound sleeper—One who snores.

To find the newest books, one go to a circulating library. The newest books are always out there.

If these professional glass eaters are not more careful they will soon have panes to spend.

Those who use our goods are very much attached to them," is what a porous plaster company advises.

A 25-cent hat is rather common kind of head covering, but will go a long way if overtaken by a stiff breeze.

Is there anything more excruciating than the music of a Japanese tom tom orchestra?" asked a writer. Did you ever hear the music of an American tom tom cat?

"Papa," said a little five-year old, pointing to a turkey buzzard strutting around in a neighbor's yard, "ain't that red-nosed chicken got an awful big bustle?"

"Why does marriage make men thoughtful?" asked a young lady of an old bachelor. "Well, I suppose it is because they are continually wondering what's going to happen next.

Johnny was telling his mamma how he was going to dress and show off when he was a man. His mamma asked, "Johnny, what do you expect to for a living when you get to be a man?" "Well, I'll get married and ladge with my wife's pa."

Ruled Out.

A witness was called in a Dakota court.

"What is your business?" asked the attorney.

"Stage driver."

"Stage driver—or—well—don't believe we want you," said the judge. "How long have you been at the business?"

"I've drove in the west for 'bout thirty years, off 'n on."

"No, this court don't want you. A man who has driven a stage thirty years can't tell the truth if he tries."

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Tex., by the remarkable recovery of Mr. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty six pounds. Trial Bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at Thos. J. Pearson's.

From Frying Pan to Fire.

Professor—"How could any one write such flat verses?"

Popular Author—"I don't agree with you, sir; and I ought to say that the words are mine."

Professor—"Oh, I beg your pardon! I mean that they are so horribly bungled by the woman reading them. Who is she?"

Popular Author—"She is my wife, sir."—[Boston Beacon.

100 Doses One Dollar.

Is inseparably connected with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and is true of no other medicine. It is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy, while thousands testify to its superior blood purifying & strengthening qualities. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Hence, for economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The Name Appropriate.

"What a queer name for a bon bon!" exclaimed Mrs. ——, as she was reading the fashion notes in last sights paper.

"What is it?" asked her husband.

"The 'Giraffe.' It has just been introduced in Paris."

"I expect the altitude of the price makes the name very appropriate," explained Snagg.—[Pittsburgh Chronicle.

THE VIRGINIAN.

FRIDAY, ... August 13, 1880.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress, Ninth District,
MAJ. R. R. HENRY,
OF TAZEWELL.

TARIFF RESOLUTION.

In the U. S. there is a combination of the large steel factories through which influence there is a heavy tariff put on steel rail and other manufactured articles, high enough to excluded foreign competition and the raw material, that is, the ore, is put on the free list and no tariff is paid on it at all. By this means this large syndicate can get, and does get, its ore from Europe cheaper than it can be mined here, and thus chokes off the mining enterprises of this district.

It was to meet this State of things that the Wytheville Tariff Resolution was passed. It is because ore is on the free list and because the Iron industry of the Ninth is the mining of this ore that the convention passed this resolution. It is not in conflict with the national platform tariff plank though that is for a tariff for revenue only—simply for this revenue tariff be put on raw material. It is simply descending more into detail and making a practical application of the national tariff plank.

Tennessee has gone Democratic by a large majority. The whole Democratic ticket elected.

Gov. Lee proposes to name his youngest daughter Virginia, in honor of her native State. This young lady is about 3 weeks old, and is the first child born in the executive mansion of this State since the close of the war.

The nomination of the convention is a splendid one. With such a man as Henry as our Standard bearer victory is an assured fact. Let our Democrats go to work and organize for the fall campaign. The effective work is done before public opinion becomes fixed. To work Democrats! to work!!

The Democrats of Kansas have nominated a Mr. Moonlight, an ex collont citizen, for governor. As Kansas is a prohibition State we have no doubt of the popularity of Moonshine. He will carry like Vermont porcelaine eggs. Any way the Kansas democrats will get in on the homestretch if they have to get there by Moonlight.

Some of our friends are agitating the temperance question. It has nothing to do with the canvass. It was put out of politics by the passage of the local option bill. You might with equal propriety ask to what church your candidate belongs. Whether he is a freemason or not, or his opinion as to whether the moon is made of green cheese, or Oleomargarine. Suffice it to say that Maj. Henry stands on the State platform. You all know how that is.

The State says "The Democrats of the Ninth district are earnest and tireless in waging war against Virginia's enemies, and under Henry's gallant leadership they must and will win."

You have got that down about right. We will win.

Every candidate nominated for congress relies upon the newspapers in this district to give him an unflagging and vigorous support, how many congressman ever attempted to add to the patronage of their district papers after they secure their election ?—[Danville Register.

That is a pertinent inquiry and substantial facts. Members of congress never do much for newspapers after they are elected, but always expect the newspapers to fight their battles regardless of cost, and are offended if they fail to do so.—[Advance.

Come over here, gentleman.—[Duluth People.

That racket wont work over here this election. This cart wont run without grease.—[Mt. Watchman.

Memoirs of Gen. Robt. E. Lee.

Messrs. J. M. Stoddart & Co., publishers, of Washington and New York, announce the appearance of a new work which must attract great attention from all persons who are interested in the events pertaining to the history of the great war.

"The Memoirs of Robert E. Lee" have been in preparation a long time, but not until this fall have they taken such definite shape as to be ready for announcement. The book is a complete and full history of the military career and campaigns of Gen. Lee, written by Gen. Armistead L. Long, a graduate of West Point, who was for four years in intimate association with Gen. Lee, a member of his staff, and for some time his confidential military secretary. Gen Long took very full notes during all the operations and campaigns, from which he has written a clear, authentic, accurate military history. The work has received the full consent and approval of the surviving members of Gen. Lee's family, Gen. Custis Lee, in a personal letter, testifying to the fitness of Gen. Long for the work, and the other members of Gen. Lee's family have conveyed important information, private letters, etc., which add greatly to its value. A part of the book will be devoted to the personal, domestic and social history of Gen. Lee, and will include a large and highly-valuable store of information never before published. This portion of the book will be chiefly the work of Gen. Marcus J. Wright, a distinguished officer of the Confederate service, and now the agent of the Government for the collection of Confederate records. Gen. Wright's wide acquaintance with the civil and military history of the Confederacy will be of great service. Many most interesting sketches, anecdotes and incidents have been placed in the possession of the authors by intimate personal friends, distinguished officers, public men, who were associated with Gen. Lee during almost every year of his life. There will be appended a copious index, also an accurate copy of the most important military reports of Gen. Lee on his great campaigns, together with a very complete statement of the forces comprising the Confederate armies at the most important epochs.

The illustrations will comprise portraits never before published, a reproduction of the recumbent statue erected over the tomb of Gen. Lee at Lexington, and the necessary diagrams, maps, etc., describing battles and movements of troops. At the suggestion of the authors, the publishers have decided to make a donation for the benefit of the Confederate Soldiers' Home at Richmond. In this they follow the lead of Gen. Grant, whose sincere interest in the welfare of this institution was shown in contributing to it his cordial, hearty sympathy and substantial pecuniary donation. The home has been assisted to the extent of thousands of dollars by the Grand Army of the Republic of the North, and it was an eminently proper thing that those two Confederate officers should themselves testify their interest and sympathy by contributing a share of the proceeds of the sales of the book. This idea has been received with favor by the gentlemen in charge of the institution, and Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Governor of Virginia, has formally accepted and approved the suggestion. The plan of the book has been submitted for the inspection of a great number of leading Southern gentlemen, all of whom have cordially indorsed and testified under their signatures to the value of the work at the present time. The Governors of a number of Southern States have given their approval and have recommended it to the people of their respective States. The book will be published in one volume, about seven hundred pages, printed and bound in the best style, and will be ready for delivery in the early fall. Messrs. Stoddard & Co. have also made arrangements for its publication in England, Germany and France. Such a work as this at the present time, "written by men who have full authority and experience to speak, will have great weight in deciding many disputed questions which are subjects of controversy, and will be an invaluable addition to the literature of the great struggle, concerning the events of which every American citizen, both North and South, is and should be thoroughly interested.

Just at the present time there are many points concerning the Civil War which are under discussion by eminent men both North and South. Each party insists on telling his story from his own point of view. The controversy over the battle of Gettysburg, especially the position taken by cne of the corps of the Federal army, is an instance in point where the testimony of Gen. Long, who himself was an eye-witness and carried the order from the commander of the Confederate forces directing the movements of the troops, will be of great weight and service in arriving at the truth of the whole question. The book is sold by subscription only.—[Wash. Post.

LETTER FROM SOUTHWEST VIRGINIA.

How the Nomination of Major Henry is Received.

From the Advance Traveling Correspondent.

GLADE SPRING, WASHINGTON Co., VA., August 6, 1880.—While sojourning here for a short time, and sumptuously faring at the famous "Thompson House," I have heard many expressions from gentlemen from this and adjoining counties, as to the nomination of Major R. R. Henry for Congress from this district.

From Tazewell, the Major's own county, the news comes that, while much surprised at his nomination, it is hailed with great satisfaction and unanimity, and the opinion is, that he is the strongest man in the district, and that he will reduce the republican majority several hundred. The party in that county will work as they never worked before for his election.

Good news comes from Russell and the knowing ones say that an increased democratic majority will be given. His popularity in Russell is great and his friends have already commenced work.

Smyth county is jubilant over the nomination. In this county things are mixed considerably. However, Henry seems to be on gaining ground. Mr. A. M. Bowman, chairman of the District Committee, will call a meeting of the committee at this place at an early day at which Major Henry will be present, and thorough organization will be recommended throughout the district. Most of the other counties are reported as heartily endorsing the nomination, and it is believed that Maj. Henry will be triumphantly elected.

Resolutions of the Convention Democratic Platform.

Resolved, Whilst we recognize the necessity for such revision of the tariff as may be necessary to correct its inequalities, yet we are opposed to any reduction in the rates of duty upon foreign imports that will injuriously affect our own industries or tend to a reduction in the price of labor; and especially are we opposed to putting raw materials on the free list.

Resolved, We are earnestly in favor of repealing the entire system of internal revenue laws.

Resolved, We recognize it to be both the right and the duty of the general government to aid in educating its citizens, and we are therefore in favor of the Blair bill, or some similar beneficent measure.

Resolved, We are in favor of continued coinage of silver.

Resolved, That after the demands of the Government have been met, that surplus money that may be left in the Treasury of the United States, be applied to the reduction of the national public debt thereby stopping the interest.

Resolved, That the nominee of this convention be expected to advocate the principles announced in these resolutions.

Resolved, That no person shall be the nominee of this convention unless he shall have received a majority of all the votes cast.

The Voice of the People.

The people, as a whole, seldom make mistakes, and the unanimous voice of praise which comes from those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, fully justifies the claims of the proprietors of this great medicine. Indeed, these very claims are based entirely on what the people say Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for them. Read the abundant evidence of its curative powers, and give it a fair, honest trial.

For Sale.

I will sell privately 55 acres of land and lying in Giles county, on the top and southside of Spruce Run Mountain, Patent issued to Wm H. Peck and Wm J. Wall in 1843. For terms &c., address

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Woon, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before last I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALDUN, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROONFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by Democratic Record.

...ago in the House of ...ives, Mr. Baker, of New ...roduced a resolution injuri... ...ting upon the democratic ...ajority of that body, but he was promptly taken up in debate both by Mr. Randall and Reagan, and to a test vote Baker's resolution was referred to him as an insult to the House in the course of which Mr. Randall came to the defense of the present House in the following masterly manner:

"Mr. Randall said that he did not believe any one would suppose that he would shrink from any legitimate political warfare. But the gentleman from New York had taken advantage of the rules and presented a proposition which was neither respectful nor decent, and from the responsibility of which the mover of it might be sought to escape by asking to withdraw it.

Mr. Baker—That was not done on my own account. It was a concession to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Randall—I need no concession. We all are shoot to return to the people who sent us here, and the record of this House will be weighed and measured by them; and the election will show whether the party in control of this House is not well entitled to the respect and approval of the American people. We have returned to the public domain millions of acres of the public lands taken by insatiate corporations. We have entered upon the building of a new navy. We have passed every act that we have been asked to pass having for its purpose the bettering of the condition of the laboring people. We have not, in a single ... passed any bill in favor of ... We have given the ... to pass ... only ... against ... which ... they have ... and ... fraud ... and ... the propositions than any appropriation bills passed by any Congress since the war. We have done so ... we ought to, and I believe ... receive the confidence of the American people. When we came ... there were thousands and thousands ... people idle in the United ... people in my ... work ... wants ... to ... [applause] and that despite the large degree, from the confidence which the House and a democratic Executive have given to the American people. [Applause.]"

Hon. John H. Reagan, of Texas, also ably defended the democratic party on the same occasion, and we will conclude with a brief synopsis of his remarks. In replying to some of Baker's criticisms, he said: ... [illegible] ... to be witty by ... and he dealt with a few facts that the gentleman from Maine could not answer. Very briefly, but pointedly, Mr. Reagan showed that the House had passed a land-grant forfeiture bill, a resolution proposing to pay out the surplus in the treasury, an inter-State commerce bill, and a bill to prevent the absorption of the public lands by railroads, all of these the gentleman from Maine had opposed. "When the number of bills passed at this session comes to be considered," he said, in conclusion, "it will be found that this democratic House, which the gentleman upbraids, has performed more labor and passed more bills than any House of Representatives since the foundation of the government."

The remark was loudly applauded on the democratic side.

Quite Excellent.

Congressional Wealth.

A Washington letter to a western newspaper furnishes the following estimate of the relative wealth of the United States Senators now sitting at Washington, and the figures certainly show that there has been an enormous growth in their estates since they have been in office, and far exceeding anything ever heard of or dreamed by Senators in other and better days of the Republic. This enumeration does not include the late Senator Miller, who at his death was reputed to have an income of $5,000 per day. Here are the estimates:

Stanford, of California railroads, mines and real estate,	$ 75,000,000
Fair, of Nevada, gold mines,	50,000,000
Sawyer, of Wisconsin, sawmills and lumber,	4,000,000
Brown, of Georgia, real estate, mines and railroads,	4,000,000
Bowen, of Colorado, mines,	1,000,000
Sherman, of Ohio, real estate and bank stock,	1,000,000
Hale, of Maine, real estate and stocks,	1,000,000
Beckof Kentucky, woolen lands, etc.,	1,000,000
Hearst, of California, mines,	2,000,000
Van Wyck of Nebraska, western lands and various real estate,	1,000,000
Mahone, of Virginia, railroads, mines, etc.,	1,000,000
Payne, of Ohio, Cleveland city property and stocks,	5,000,000
Cameron, of Pennsylvania, railroads banks and real estate,	5,000,000
Miller, of New York, wood pulp,	3,000,000
Jones, of Nevada, Alaska mines,	3,000,000
Vest, of Missouri, Kansas City coal estate,	250,000
Allison, of Iowa, real estate, etc.,	300,000
Ransom, of Minnesota,	500,000
Gorman, of Maryland, Virginia lands and mines,	300,000
Hawley, of Connecticut, newspaper and real estate,	200,000
Dixon, of Rhode Island, cotton factories,	$50,000
Pinnch, of Nebraska, western lands and railroads,	500,000
Teller, of Colorado, mines and lands,	1,000,000
Logan, of Illinois, real estate, etc.,	75,000
Ingalls, of Kansas,	100,000
McPherson, of New Jersey, stock farms,	$50,000

Making, a total for twenty five men of $162,695,000

Some of these figures may be over stated. We think the estimate of Senator Mahone is by of that class, though his estate is no doubt a handsome one. But the aggregate is nearly correct, and shows that so many rich men have never before been collected together in one legislative body, and that when we include the men of the House, whose wealth is computed at $40,000,000, we must confess that there is more money than brains in Congress, and that the amount is too great to give us good legislation for the people.

The Lynchburg Advance sets forth as follows the equities of Virginia's case against the bondholders:

First, it must be remembered that when Virginia made that promise to her creditors to pay 6 per cent. she was far more able to pay it than she has been since the war, and that the Federal Government has since deprived her of more than one half her original resources; and the additional fact must be remembered that the original creditors are all dead, and that the present holders of the bonds are coupons of Virginia never paid for them more than an average of 25 per cent. in the dollar, so that, under the Riddleberger bill, they will receive in principal more than double what they paid and interest more than 6 per cent.

"What right, then, have the present bondholders to complain of the proposed Riddleberger adjustment which will cost the State only one-third what it pays Shylock on the old basis and her people, and take the last drop of blood and pound of flesh?"

For its soothing and grateful influence on the scalp, and for its great moral and preventive of dandruff, Ayer's Hair Vigor has no equal. It restores faded or gray hair to its original dark color, stimulates the growth of the hair, and gives it a beautiful, soft, glossy, and silken appearance.

Why These Hard Times.

The following good and sufficient reasons for the country's business depression are given by the Chicago Journal:

1. Good crops in England and Western Europe, with the growing and cheap wheat supply from India, have reduced the English demand for American grain. With no export demand the price of wheat has fallen to a point at which it cannot be profitably produced.

2. The absurd discriminantz of Germany and France against American meat has had a similar effect on the price of provisions. The cattle, hogs and sheep industries, and the production of grain for fattening beef, pork and mutton have all suffered in consequences.

3. The low price of American staple agricultural products has paralyzed the shipping industry, and made railroad constructions unprofitable. Many laboring men and artisans have lost their occupation as the result of this condition of affairs.

4. The low price of Agricultural products has greatly diminished the capacity of the agricultural population as purchasers of goods and merchandise. Dull trade and discouragement in manufactures have proceeded from this cause.

5. Strikes and lockouts have weakened enterprise and acted as a restraint and hindrence on all plans for the investment of capital. A man who has determined to erect a factory that would give employment to 500 to 1000 men, will abandon his determination on learding that as soon as he gets under way his employees will strike for shorter hours or higher wages.

6. All these causes have created financial congestion at the moneyed centers and a scarcity of money among the people in the country at large. Never before was there so much money in the country as there is at the present time. But it does not circulate. The country is like a robust person, full blood which fails, however, to move healthily in its accustomed channels through all parts of its arterial system.

An Old Citizen Speaks.

Mr. J. M. Norris, an old resident of Rome, Ga., says, that he had been badly troubled with Kidney Complaint for a great many years and with Eczema for three years; at times could scarcely walk and had tried many remedies without benefit, until he began taking Electric Bitters and anointing his hands and feet with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. This treatment afforded him great relief and he strongly recommends Electric Bitters to all who suffer with Kidney Complaint, or need a Blood Purifier. Sold by Thos. J. Pearson.

Sensible.

This is ... Silently the vacation months ... by, and the time for rest and recreation ... to those who suffer the depressing effects of summer debility, the disagreeable symptoms of scrofula. The tortures of bilious disorders, dyspepsia or sick headache, there is more pain than pleasure in leaving home. To such we say, give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. It will purify your blood, tone up and strengthen your body, expel every trace of scrofula, correct biliousness, and positively cure dyspepsia or sick headache. Take it before you go, and you will enjoy your vacation a thousand fold.

A Hit.

"Mamma," said a little fellow, who had come out second best in a little scuffle with a big playmate, "Mamma, Jim Slow lit me."

"Well, why didn't you hit him back, my son?" inquired his mother.

"'Cause," he replied, "I was afraid he'd hit me again."—[O. News.

In Memoriam.

J. W. S. Peters was born Dec. 6, 1853, was married to Sallie V. Wilburn, Oct. 5, 1880, and departed this life July 9, 1886. The subject of this sketch was a young man, stricken down in the prime of life. He leaves a wife and three small children, who mourn their irretrievable loss; but they sorrow not as those who have no hope.

He joined the M. E. Church South the 27th of June, 1886, and made a profession of religion but a few days before his fatal illness. As a man, even before his conversion, he was honest and hard-working, always it seems looking forward to the wants of those dependent on him, as a neighbor he was kind and obliging, as a husband he was loving and gentle and as a father he was careful and painstaking. Yes he is gone. The black horses and his rider with his two edged sword enters all our homes and tears from us our near and dear ones. Here it has taken the husband from the young and loving wife and left her here in this forlorn to battle against the woes and ills of an unfriendly world. It took the father from the dear children, no more will they climb upon his knee and call him papa, no more will they run to meet him at eventide as he returns from his days labor and have him clasp their hands in his or bear them upon his shoulders to the house where mamma, too, weary with the days toil gladly awaits his coming. But to them we would say mourn not your loss for what seems loss to you is his ever lasting gain. No more will Sherman be wearied with the cares of this world. No, but now we have not a doubt that he is safe at home, free from all toil and pain, standing at the beautiful gate, gazing down over the pearly gates and jasper walls, waiting and watching for you. But a few hours before he died he assembled friends and loved ones who had gathered around his bed that he did not fear death that he had made his peace with God and beyond the Jordan there awaited him a crown of life. He told his wife to meet him in heaven and to raise the dear children right and train them up for Jesus. No doubt as the young wife gazed through her tears at the last sight of her dear one, she wondered why it was her poor and stay of life was taken from her and consigned to the narrow limits of the tomb and she left alone here below. Just two years before Sherman died one of his sisters passed away from earth to the fair fields of Eden. A short time before she died she told him that he too would soon pass away, that orelong he would follow her, and urged him to make a preparation to meet his God in peace. Who can imagine the joy of the meeting of the brother and sister! No doubt

FRIDAY, ... August 26, 1886.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Congress, Ninth District,
MAJ. R. R. HENRY,
Of Tazewell.

We return thanks to Hon. Alex. J. Wedderburn, Sec'y. of Grange, Camp Association of Northern Virginia for catalogue containing illustrations, programme of proceedings, speakers, etc. Exhibition from September 8th to 15th.

Our taxes for the year 1886, including State and County tax, is only 90 cts. on the $100.00 worth of property. This is a benefit our people do not properly appreciate. There many counties and especially in West Va. where it amounts to as high as $2.00 on the $100.00. This is a great inducement for capitalists to invest in our county, or for men looking for homes. Let it be known.

The acme of presumption is the Republicans claiming the platform issued by the Wytheville Convention. They are not strong enough to take issue with it. It is the highest compliment that could be paid the resolutions. Most of these new formed Republicans used to be Democrats and when they went over to the Republican camp they carried some of their Democratic principles with them and they now think they belong to the Republicans because they are there.

If they wish to have these principles carried into effect why let them come back into the Democratic camp, and help us vote for Maj. Henry. They may have some hopes of getting them inforced if they will do that.

Our temperance friends who are wasting to bring the temperance question into national politics are forgetting that they are going back on what they fought, bled and died for—State's rights—opposition to centralization of all the rights and powers of the States into the national government. The right to tax or prohibit this traffic belongs exclusively to State policy. If they propose to vote with the Republicans and let Mahone run them they will do about as much for temperance as Mahone did for the State debt. Then where is the probable Republican candidate who does not drink!

Hon. Charles J. O'Ferrall, of the Seventh Virginia District, is the most popular Congressman in the State, and secured a renomination the other day without effort. When Mr. Cleveland became President O'Ferrall went to work to re-organize the officeholding brigade of his district. There were 246—big little, old and young—in the boundaries of the seventh district who were on government pay rolls, and in precisely ninety days all the places except four were filled by good Virginia Democrats. This is a record that has never been made before nor since.—[N. O. Times-Democrat.

Resolutions of the Convention Democratic Platform.

Resolved, Whilst we recognize the necessity for such revision of the tariff as may be necessary to correct its inequalities, yet we are opposed to any reduction in the rates of duty upon foreign imports that will injuriously affect our own industries or tend to a reduction in the price of labor; and especially are we opposed to putting raw materials on the free list.

Resolved, We are earnestly in favor of repealing the entire system of internal revenue laws.

Resolved, We recognize it to be both the right and the duty of the general government to aid in educating its citizens, and we are therefore in favor of the Blair bill, or some similar beneficent measure.

Resolved, We are in favor of continued coinage of silver.

Resolved, That after the demands of the Government have been met, that surplus money that may be left in the Treasury of the United States, be applied to the reduction of the national public debt thereby stopping the interest.

Resolved, That the nominee of this convention be expected to advocate the principles announced in these resolutions.

Resolved, That no person shall be a nominee of this convention unless he shall have received a majority of the votes cast.

—Judge A. R. Heflin was called from this place on last Monday by the death of Capt. J. R. Dunlap at his home near Dublin. Captain Dunlap died of heart disease. He was a man widely and well known. Owing this death we had no Court here this week.

—We add to our list of subscribers this week Messrs. Chas. E. Thomas, Chas. W. Evans and Wm. Meadows. Mr. Meadows had been a subscriber of the Virginian ever since its inception until last spring when he stopped it. He renewed Court day saying he could not do without it. We are glad to see the Virginian is appreciate in that part of the county.

—Go to B. E. Tallant's for Cooking Stoves. He has just received a new lot which he is selling cheap for cash.

—Our friend and fellow citizen Col. W. D. Pearson is perhaps the proudest man in the county. He goes round behind the counter and shakes hands with himself. He smiles in the glass and the corners of his mouth curl up behind his ears. His eyes sparkle and his laugh goes rippling down toward the depot like a thousand of brick. His happiness is substantial, every thread wool and a yard and a half wide, warranted never to wear out at the knees. He is now the sire of a female bundle of sunshine. The Virginian makes its most profound bow.

A Big Move.—J. D. Hobbie, Lynchburg, is now negotiating with the different Rail Roads to get the lowest and special rates from the factories on Organs by the car load lots. His plan will be to put eight ten naked organs in each car tightly packed so they cannot rub. He will save in this way not only cost of the box, but freight on same which will amount to about $5 saved on each organ. This certainly shows business enterprise on part of Mr. Hobbie.

Newport Items.

What is Local Option doing for Newport? Not what the most sanguine of us expected, but nevertheless it has stopped a great deal of drinking and drunkenness in our town, despite of the intentions of its opponents to prove it a failure in reforming drunkenness. That a few Grand Jury Courts would be a great help to Local Option by increasing the chain gang, &c., is no matter of question with us. Why have laws at all if they are not enforced? It is demoralizing in a high degree! We trust to be able to report better results from Local Option soon.

Another thing which our town sadly needs is a good High School. With over one hundred pupils living under the sound of the bell, and no High School, appears badly for a town otherwise, noted for its thrift and business. This is a field for some energetic and educated young man.

It affords us much pleasure to hurrah for Henry. He is the man.

Mr. Frank Dunklee and family are visiting at Christiansburg this week. Frank has confined himself closely to his business, and a little rest and visiting will be beneficial to him as well as his family. We would recommend the same to all our merchants. It will pay in the long run.

Sheriff Taylor, Judge Easley, H. French, Esq., and Wm. French, Esq. were in town last week.

Miss Kate Scanland leaves this week for her home in Bellevue, La. Miss Laura Payne will accompany her to Charleston, W. Va., where they both will visit for a few weeks, Mr. James M. Payne. Miss Scanland has made many friends while here, who will regret very much to part with her. We hope she will visit us again and we really expect it, for those beautiful eyes have made captives, who will not allow that Southern sun to tan so fair a face.

The Newport and Pembroke Base Ball Clubs meet again the 1st Saturday in September. A good game is expected. Come to see it.

Truly, F.

"It was all run down, and Hood's Sarsaparilla proved just the medicine I needed," write hundreds of people. Take it now.

The farmers are busily engaged in getting their grain thrashed out and preparing their lands for another crop.

Our roads are pretty well cleared as our overseer Giles M. Williams is working a lot of hands daily fixing up and repairing the roads at different points.

The Pembroke Court sat on the 7th inst., and disposed of things generally. They had to hold their Court at C. W. Snidow's store as they had no other place except the public road. Our Supervisors have not made any arrangements for this Court, not being willing to allow anything for a room makes me sorry for the boys. They have to take the weather as it comes, grin and endure all hardships.

Mr. Editor, I will now tell you that Jas. H. Collins, L. M. Collins and M. H. Collins, these three men are good citizens, all brothers and good men. They concluded that they would take a bear hunt and to look up some of Mwj. Lybrook's hogs which they supposed the bear had destroyed. They struck out to the North of the Big Mountain, and when they got there on looking around they found the carcasses of four hogs and one indicated that old brain had just left, seeing plenty of signs they then concluded to watch for the bear and hid themselves in a cliff, well armed with three good rifles, in a few minutes one of the party discovered a very large bear, get on a log and about the same time three other bears accompanied the first on the same log, a distance of about 20 paces. One of the men fired the ball taking effect in the bear's head, whilst the other two fired at one of the other bears, our ball took effect in the breast and the other ball striking about the ribs, which these men deserves great credit for their bravery as they were out unarmored and stuck driving them to their camp compelled them to wait for another attact at some other time.

You will hear from Pembroke again.

Obituary.

William Stewart was born in Tyrone County, Ireland, Nov. 6, 1810. Died at home in Giles Co., Va., Aug. 4, 1886. Aged 67 years, 8 months and 28 days. Converted and joined the church at Wabash Campmeeting, Aug. 25, 1845. Married to Miss Margaret Johnston, Sept. 25, 1845. Eight children were born unto them, his wife preceded him to Heaven. Since his death about three years ago he has been anxious to follow. Brother Stewart seemed especially endowed for his time, and it may be said of him as of David "After he had served his own generation by the will of God fell on sleep." The testimony of his friends and church is that he has efficiently served his time and generation. The effect of his example, the moral force and spiritual power of his life will be felt for years to come. He was one of the members forming the first class at Pleasant Hill 1845, he lived and worked in the class every since. At one time he was Class Leader, Steward, and Sunday School Supt. He started an influence for Christ that will never die. It will ever sweep on bringing souls to Jesus until the resurrection morning, which many will rise up and call him blessed. His Christian life is worthy of study. Few men have ever lived whose lives were purer than his, a faithful Christian, good citizen, and kind neighbor no one will be missed more than he. He had very tender sympathies, and emotional nature, yet firm in his Moral character and unwavering in his allegiance to Christ. If he had faults they were so covered with virtues as to be almost if not entirely invisible, for I never saw, nor heard any spoken of. There was such a fullness, harmony, and perfectness of the Christian graces in his life; "Exhibiting a character of such elevation that his presence would shame a bad man and make a good man better." The large congregation at his funeral, and burial testified to the people's appreciation of his worth. His death was a glorious victory, a complete triumph. Speaking to me about dying he said "I have had my temptations, and trials in life, but for the last three years there has not been a cloud between me and my God, the way is clear." He had a preference for death, a desire to depart and be with Christ. He manifested a great deal of patience in his sickness, he said he had no will of his own but perfectly resigned to the will of God. Linger ing for a long time on the margin of the river ready to depart, but his life was providentially protracted, and sanctified to the good friends and family.

Bro. Stewart leaves seven children behind, all members of the church, and professors of religion, they will not forget their father's talks, and prayers, and especially his family worship. Children you have left you in your father's name, and character a rich legacy, may you emulate his example, and follow him as he followed Christ, until you meet above. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

R. A. Kelley.

A Rich Joke.

The Washington dispatches disclose a rich joke on the Senate. It has been the fashion of the Senate committees to attempt to discredit the sincerity and good faith of the President in his removal or suspension of Republican officials. They have stubbornly tried to make it appear that the President had made removals for party purposes only, and in disregard of his avowed purposes and pledges. In order to give the suspended officials a "send off" with a fine certificate of character and diploma of martyrdom, the committees have in numerous cases made reports, and spread them upon the journal of the Senate, reciting in substance that the suspended official was a faithful one and was suspended for political reasons, and for no cause reflecting on his character or conduct, personal or official.

A case has come to light which has very much shaken the value of these indorsements. Away back in the early part of Mr. Cleveland's administration he had appointed one Alonzo P. Sharp Postmaster at Mc-Cook, Nebr. Sharp was appointed as a Democrat. But he followed the bad precedents of too many Republican officials, and was soon short in his accounts. Thereupon Mr. Cleveland promptly suspended, him, and nominated one Thompson to succeed him. The papers were sent to the Senate, showing that Sharp was short in his accounts, and was no longer fit for public trust in a public office.

With these facts and undisputed proof of their truth before them, the Senate committee gravely report to the Senate the following, which will be found in the Congressional Record of June 3, page 2887:

Mr. Ingalls, from the Committee on ... February, ...

Qualities of the Republican Candidate.

The national feeling that has been aroused over the Cutting affair may still be utilized. Cutting himself is but a fit object of ridicule. He is clearly a disreputable and pestiferous adventurer, and, now that the facts are known, is seen to have been in the wrong all through.

Cutting is not a resident of Texas, but of Mexico. For more than eighteen months he has resided in Mexico, dwelling there and engaging in business under the protection of Mexican laws. It was in his capacity as such a resident that he was originally brought into court at Paso del Norte, and it has never been pretended that he protested against the exercise of its jurisdiction on that occasion. On the contrary he distinctly consented to it, ratified the judgment pronounced and undertook to discharge the obligations assigned him in the settlement. It was because of his default in this respect, because he actively circulated in Mexico, no matter where it was published, an article outrageously in contempt of the court within whose jurisdiction he resided and did business—it was for these reasons that the Mexican authorities arrested and undertook to punish him.

Everybody of intelligence, subscribes to Secretary Bayard's proposition that Mexico cannot be allowed to punish an American citizen for acts committed in the United States. Upon that hand the whole country, without reference to party, would rally as one man to the support of the government. The only question is whether Cutting's case comes within this proposition. The Mexicans insist that his offence consisted in the circulation of the article in Mexico, and claim to be able to prove that he did personally circulate ... They do not accept to Secretary ... proposition. They simply ... it does not apply to the ... question of ... it may ... ly inquiry ... official ... The Boy Knew.

Worldly mamma—Clara, you should learn something of Mr. de Vimont's income before you encourage him too far.

Willie (Clara's small brother)—I know all about it, and his outgo, too.

Clara—Willie, what do you mean by such a speech?

Willie—Well, I do. Last night his income was about 7 o'clock, and his outgo after 11 o'clock.—[The Bee.

Which scrofula has upon the system must be arrested, and the blood must be purified, or serious consequence will ensue. For purifying and vitalizing effects, Hood's Sarsaparilla has both found superior to any other preparation. It expels every trace of impurity from the blood, and bestows new life and vigor upon every function of the body, enabling it to entirely overcome disease.

Tried in the Crucible.

S.S.S.

"About twenty years ago I discovered a little sore on my cheek, and the doctors pronounced it cancer. I have tried a number of physicians, but without receiving any permanent benefit. Among the number were one or two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing constant pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was beginning to heal. My general health had been bad for two or three years—I had a boiling, crazy sort of blood condition. I had a severe pain in my head. After using six bottles of S. S. S. my cancer is well, and I grow stronger each day. I feel that I owe my life to S. S. S., and cheerfully recommend it to all who are afflicted with cancer, or any blood disease."
