Yo: worship. humble servant. Mary Buckland.

Wherfore Mary's wife of Riche Buckland hath the days made by tempt to the Court & Courtship, & her husband hath several times (without any just occasion, cause, or offence, intended, or deliberate at, or towards her) abused himself from yo: father's & consanguine affection, & by the law of God has in his wife his wife's & demeaned himself in such manner as might have gave satisfaction, & at his return, & yo: father's & yo: mother's of reformation, by divine & consent of yo: father, her hath been reconciled to his wife Mary Buckland, in serious & quiet manner, & hath been taken into his house in a civil & quiet manner, & after a short time when her friend & acquaintance hath taken away such goods as yo: father Mary by her own indiscretion, & labour hath gained & gotten, & hath disposed of them at his pleasure, notwithstanding his wife's many abuses uncharitable speeches that she will take away, sell, or dispose of the father's belongings to yo: wife Mary Buckland.
The petitioners seriously considering, & ordering to yo: husband of yo: Courtship, & the husband of the petitioners thought fit & desired that yo: father & his mother should now in yo: petitioners that yo: petitioners should give her by her father and only appearance unto her & her to be at her imprudent. And the Court is not aware, likewise in her to yo: petitioners is her own. The further declared and much contention & disturbance to the Court, & his wife, inasmuch that Harmer in my hearing desired of the Court to keep his wife for some time, and more near him, and I did not see the woman at the house until about a Month last, when she came again to the Court & desired him to go to her to her house: for that her husband was miserably beaten by an Indian, & she desired to go with her, & Alphonse Ball & my self (being desired) went to the Indian to see to see the Indian; but not finding him, came to the
