S. S. WOOLWINE, Principal.
No. 26 South Cherry Street, NASHVILLE, TENN.

A LETTER FROM DR. BARBEE.

OFFICE OF PASTOR MCKENDREE CHURCH,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

I have studied Prof. Woolwine as a teacher and an administrator of school discipline. His success arrested my attention and made him an object of curious interest and thoughtful wonder to me. How does he execute perfect discipline without mechanical rules, and how inspire such studious application to books in his pupils?

It is upon the principle underlying all government—human and divine, namely, individual responsibility and mutual rights. The first makes the personal duty truly in all matters involving his individual obligations and interests, and the second secures the rights of others in so far as his obligations to them are concerned. No mechanical discipline or rod held in terrore over the heads of pupils can bring these results to pass. "Make the tree good and the fruit will be good," the Master taught.

"The fear of hell's the hangman's whip
To hand the wretch in order,
But when you feel your honor grip
Let that be your border."

The sentiment of Scott's sweet singer is the law of Prof. Woolwine's school, hence his success. The pupils appear to be on their honor to behave well, and they prosecute their studies like intelligent creatures, and not like "dumb driven cattle." In these remarks, of course, no invidious comparison with others is designed. As the delighted patron of Prof. Woolwine's school, I write of that in the abstract, and of that school only.

Respectfully,

J. D. BARBEE.

1. Chlorophyll a (Chl a) is the primary photosynthetic pigment in most plants and algae. It is a green pigment that absorbs light energy in the blue-violet and red-orange regions of the visible spectrum. Chl a is located in the thylakoid membranes of chloroplasts.

2. Chlorophyll b (Chl b) is an accessory pigment that absorbs light energy in the blue and orange-yellow regions of the visible spectrum. It transfers energy to Chl a for photosynthesis. Chl b is also located in the thylakoid membranes.

3. Carotenoids are accessory pigments that absorb light energy in the blue and green regions of the visible spectrum. They transfer energy to Chl a and Chl b. Carotenoids include carotenes (orange) and xanthophylls (yellow). They are located in the thylakoid membranes.

4. Xanthophylls are a type of carotenoid that absorb light energy in the blue and green regions of the visible spectrum. They transfer energy to Chl a and Chl b. Xanthophylls are located in the thylakoid membranes.

5. Anthocyanins are water-soluble pigments that absorb light energy in the blue and green regions of the visible spectrum. They are responsible for the red, purple, and blue colors in many plants. Anthocyanins are located in the vacuoles of plant cells.
