THE following references are an amplification of a reply made a few years since to an inquiry of the late editor of the 'Genealogist,' Mr. Walford D. Selby, as to what Parish Registers had been printed. It is almost needless to say that this list might be much extended, especially were indexes to the MS. collections of Genealogical Antiquaries remaining in the British Museum and other public libraries to any appreciable extent contributed to it. As it stands it is, I believe, the only attempt which has been made to arrange in alphabetical order a list of Registers and Register Extracts which are readily available for the use of genealogists, and which, in many cases, may save them the trouble of making an original search, or a tedious and expensive journey to some country parish.

It is well to state what sources have been examined for the compilation of this catalogue, and the plan which has been followed in selecting the references. Only general extracts are noticed. When those relating only to one family are given, I have not referred to them, because so far as printed works are concerned reference to my 'Genealogists' Guide' will usually give a clue. I think I can fairly claim to have included all, or very nearly all, the Registers which have been printed in extenso as separate works, as well as those of which there are MS. copies in the British Museum and Herald's College. Amongst the principal books from which extracts are noted are the 'Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica,' 'Reliquary,' 'Genealogist,' 'Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica,' Blades' 'Genealogia Bedfordiensis,' Harvey's 'Hundred of Willey,' Malcolm's 'Londinum

Redivivum,' 'Notes and Queries,' 'The East Anglian,' Nichols' 'Topographer,' etc.

I have experienced great difficulty in determining how many extracts from a Register should entitle it to a reference in these pages, and have been unable to decide upon any general rule. In some few instances only half a dozen may be found. If those who consult this calendar deem any of my references frivolous, I shall be glad to hear their objections, and to consider how far I can amend my ways should this preliminary list become the precursor of a more extensive work.

Most of the references to MSS. are to the collection of the late Colonel Chester, now remaining in the College of Arms. I cannot pass over so important a collection as this without making some remarks upon it, and the way I have dealt with its contents. The Colonel was an omnivorous genealogist who assimilated everything in the likeness of a Register, good, bad, or indifferent, which came in his way; now copying wholesale from the contents of printed books, and again transferring to his volumes the labours of others whose MSS. he had borrowed. In many counties he probably had not made a single original search. The result, however, was eminently satisfactory, for he succeeded in getting into his hands, by these means, a far more extensive collection than would have been possible had he worked, so to speak, single-handed. In the MS. collections transferred to his pages will be found, no doubt with some exceptions, those of Rawlinson from his MSS. in the Bodleian, Mr. Arthur Staunton Larken's and Lord Monson's for Lincolnshire, the Rev. Frederick Brown's for Somersetshire, portions of the Davy MSS. in the British Museum; and among those genealogists who afforded him matter from their collections may be mentioned Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter, G. E. Cokayne, Norroy King of Arms, A. S. Gatty, York Herald, J. Paul Rylands, the Rev. J. Ingle Dredge, Rev. C. H. Mayo, R. Garraway Rice, E. J. Sage, and F. Grigson.

I have been able to detect a good deal of copying from printed books, and there is, probably, much more than I am learned enough in topographical literature to identify. Whenever I have been able to identify this form of piracy, I have carefully omitted any reference to Colonel Chester's transcript, giving reference only to the printed book. I may add that I shall be much obliged to anyone who will point out to me any extracts in print which I have here calendared as part of this MS. collection, in order that they may be added in a future edition instead of the references to the Colonel's MSS. Before laying down my pen, I must write my apology for sending to the press an index of which no one knows better than I do the incompleteness. It is but an attempt to lay the foundation of what I hope, as years roll on, may be developed by other hands than mine into a comprehensive guide to that literature of Parish Registers which is daily growing in importance. It is the first attempt of a working-man to help his fellows, and as such, I trust, merits consideration though it needs correction.
