Father James Horton Is Going to France for Knights of Columbus

Father James Horton, who for many years was connected with Marist college and who is lovingly known by many of the boys trained there, left Camp Gordon Thursday for New York. In the near future he will go to France as chaplain for the Knights of Columbus.

Father Horton has been post chaplain for the Knights of Columbus at Camp Gordon ever since its opening, and his work there has been a splendid preparation for the larger work overseas.

He has many friends who will be interested in the news of his departure, and the boys of Marist college in particular, will wish him the best of luck in the continuance of his work over there.
