

•
THE ATLANTA JOURNAL

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 2, 1918

Lieutenant Gable Is Decorated With the British War Cross

BROOKS, Ga., June 1.—Lieutenant Linwood M. Gable, son of Dr. N. W. Gable, of this place, with ten other American lieutenants, has been awarded the British war cross, according to news received here.

Lieutenant Gable graduated from the medical department of Emory university in 1916. He spent a year in the Atlanta hospital with Dr. Thomas Hancock and later served as interne at the Polytechnic hospital in New York City. He was at that institution when he received his commission as a first lieutenant in the medical reserve corps. Since last July he has been with the British army in France.

comb Norvell, state regent of that organization, served as sponsor.

This is the third Ferris type vessel launched at Beaumont for the government within three weeks.

Lieutenant Gable Is Decorated With the British War Cross

BROOKS, Ga., June 1.—Lieutenant Linwood M. Gable, son of Dr. N. W. Gable, of this place, with ten other American lieutenants, has been awarded the British war cross, according to news received here.

Lieutenant Gable graduated from the medical department of Emory university in 1916. He spent a year in the Atlanta hospital with Dr. Thomas Hancock and later served as interne at the Polytechnic hospital in New York City. He was at that institution when he received his commission as a first lieutenant in the medical reserve corps. Since last July he has been with the British army in France.

comb Norvell, state regent of that organization, served as sponsor.

This is the third Ferris type vessel launched at Beaumont for the government within three weeks.

Lieutenant Gable Is Decorated With the British War Cross

BROOKS, Ga., June 1.—Lieutenant Linwood M. Gable, son of Dr. N. W. Gable, of this place, with ten other American lieutenants, has been awarded the British war cross, according to news received here.

Lieutenant Gable graduated from the medical department of Emory university in 1916. He spent a year in the Atlanta hospital with Dr. Thomas Hancock and later served as interne at the Polytechnic hospital in New York City. He was at that institution when he received his commission as a first lieutenant in the medical reserve corps. Since last July he has been with the British army in France.

comb Norvell, state regent of that organization, served as sponsor.

This is the third Ferris type vessel launched at Beaumont for the government within three weeks.