TRIBUTE TO TWO ATLANTIAN.

Captain John Milledge and Colonel T. C. Howard Alluded To.

Mr. James R. Randall in his correspondence to the Augusta Chronicle of a recent date from Washington says of two distinguished Atlantians:

"The other day I had the pleasure of meeting Captain John Milledge, the Georgia state librarian, who, at the capitol in Atlanta, can liberally behold generations of distinguished ancestry looking down upon him approvingly. He had been touring northward with his good wife and glad to turn 'from lands of snow to lands of sun.'"

Since Col. Tom Howard's retirement, I am inclined to think that Georgia possesses no such captivating talker, and he charmed me during many a mile of railway travel. I keep in memory some of his reminiscences and, at some future time, may give others in correspondence the benefit of them, although I suspect that my pen will lose the witchery of his eloquent tongue.
