Special to The Journal.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 19.—Col. Charles Colcock Jones, Jr., died of Bright's disease at midnight at his home, "Montrose," Summerville, near Augusta. He was 62 years old, and the first and only president of the Confederate Survivors' Association, and the survivors and soldiers will unite with the citizens in paying tribute to Augusta's foremost and best loved citizen and historian.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The funeral will be from the residence tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. Old servants will bear the coffin and the honorary pall-bearers will be Joseph B. Cumming, W. W. Montgomery, P. H. Langdon, P. J. Berckmans, James G. C. Black, M. A. Stevall, Joseph Ganahl and Frank H. Miller. He leaves one daughter, the wife of Rev. S. B. Carpenter, of Florida, and one son, Charles Edgeworth Jones, of Augusta.

COL. C. C. JONES, JR.

Col. Chas. Colcock Jones, Jr., was one of the best known men in Georgia. He was a literateur of the finest water, a brave confederate soldier and an admirable citizen in every respect. His history of Georgia is a work of incomparable value to the state and to the historical literature of the times. He was at one time mayor of Savannah, but since the war has lived at his beautiful home, "Montrose," on the Sand Hills, near Augusta. Avery's history of Georgia, published in 1881, says of Col. Jones:

"The undisputed head of our Georgia historic writers is Colonel Charles C. Jones, Jr., a gentleman of the highest literary culture and a born antiquarian. He has published twenty-five books and pamphlets relating to Georgia matters and is now engaged upon a three volume work covering the entire field of Georgia history from the founding of the colony to the present. 'His most important work that has attracted the attention of the literary savants of Europe and won him the degree of LL. D. from the University of the City of New York, is the 'Antiquities of the Southern Indian, Particularly of the Georgia Tribes.' This volume has a large scientific value, is a model of ornate and strengthening style, and is the fruit of antiquarian research, critical, accurate, and profound.

"Colonel Jones numbers among his other valuable publications 'Indian Remains in Southern Georgia,' 'Monumental Remains of Georgia,' 'Historical Sketch of the Ocmulgee River,' 'Ancient Tumuli in the Savannah River,' 'Ancient Tumuli in Georgia,' 'Historical Sketch of Tomochichi, Mico of the Yamacraws,' 'Reminiscences of General Henry Lee,' 'Kosmopolis,' 'The Siege of Savannah in 1779,' 'The Siege of Savannah in December, 1864,' 'Sergeant William Jasper,' 'General officers of the Confederate Service,' 'The Dead Towns of Georgia,' 'The Life of Commodore Josiah Tatnall,' 'Aboriginal structures in Georgia,' 'Hernando DeSoto—His March Through Georgia,' 'Memorial of Jean Pierre Purry,' 'The Historical Society,' 'The Colonial Acts of the General Assembly of Georgia, 1764-1774.'

"Besides these important publications, whose scope and variety give token alike of the literary labors of this classical writer and accomplished antiquarian, Col. Jones has contributed innumerable articles with the same care.

He was too old to leave the service, but he died of Bright's disease.

Dr. Ware before the war was quite wealthy. After the war he was in charge of "Ware's" drug store, a noted place in Columbus.

A son, Mr. Robert Jones, of Macon, two daughters, Mrs. W. B. Hall, and Mrs. Martin, of Columbus, are surviving.

GENERAL HOLTSZLAU DEAD.

The Brave Confederate General Passed Away Yesterday Afternoon.

Special to The Journal.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 19.—From the illness General James H. Holtzslaw, railroad commissioner of Alabama, contracted in Atlanta on last Memorial Day he died here late yesterday afternoon. General Holtzslaw was born at McDonough, Ga., in 1833. He entered the Confederate army as a private soldier in the Montgomery True Blues and was promoted several times for bravery. When the war closed his title was that of a brigadier-general.

General Holtzslaw was widely known and popular throughout the south.

DEATH OF MRS. ANDERSON.

Special to The Journal.

LITHONIA, July 19.—After several months of illness Mrs. J. J. Anderson died at her home in Lithonia yesterday at 1 o'clock. She was fifty-six years old, and leaves a husband and four children, one of whom is Mr. N. T. Anderson, of Atlanta, besides a large circle of friends and relatives. She was a consecrated Christian, and a devoted, unselfish wife and mother.

DRIFT OF A DAY.

Judge Adam Pools has opened the post-office for South Atlanta in Henderson's store. The lack of rain in that locality is attributed by Judge Pools to the fact that the brethren don't pay their preacher.

"While the question of a swimming pool is being agitated," said a thoughtful citizen this morning, "I want to suggest an admirable location for it. I refer to the place where the cyclorama building stands. It is not only near the artesian well, but is near a large sewer. It is centrally located, amply large and in fact just the place for such an institution."

W. F. Dorsey, one of the leading citizens of Athens, passed through the city this morning en route to Marietta.

Mr. S. W. Powers killed a large rattlesnake near Powers' Ferry Monday afternoon. It had ten rattles and a button.

Mr. S. S. Moore has invited everyone in Atlanta to attend a free barbecue to be given by him tomorrow at No. 9 West Mitchell street.

The Ladies' Benevolent Association of the Church of the Immaculate Conception will give an entertainment at Hibernian hall August 15th. The proceeds will be used for a charitable purpose.

Mary Flemister, a negro, was adjudged insane by a jury before Ordinary Calhoun today.

Tonight the members of Cobb's and Phillips' Legion will meet in Sheriff Barnes' office for the purpose of arranging for the reunion of the legions to be held in August.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock Miss Pearl Griffin will be united in marriage to Mr. Gus Maner at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. A. Griffin, at 75 Marietta street. Miss Griffin is a well known young lady of this city and Mr. Maner is a very popular young man, connected with the Western and Atlantic road. Many nice presents have already been sent the young couple by their numerous friends.

The many friends of Tom Brock, an old Atlanta boy, now living in San Antonio, Texas, are glad to see his smiling face on the streets again. Tom looks young and happy.

A mass meeting will be held tomorrow evening by the Young Men's Prayer Association of the Central Presbyterian church in the lecture room of the church. It will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

WATER QUESTION SOLVED.

The Workers at the State Road Shops Drink Mineral Water.

Mr. Lamar Collier, the master mechanic of the Western and Atlantic railroad, has solved a vexed problem that has been troubling him for a long time.

That problem was where to get good drinking water for the men at work in the shops. They had been drinking from a well, but several of them were stricken with typhoid fever, and one man not working in the shops but using water from the well, died from the effects of the fever.

When coming about in his mind for some good water Mr. Collier remembered the old mineral spring close to the Central railroad, and not far from the W. and A. shops.

"I remembered," said he, in speaking of it, "that I went out with my father when I was a boy shooting squirrels in the swamp when workmen were grading for the State road roundhouse. There was a great big poplar tree standing on the side of the hill, and I shook a bush while my father shot a squirrel out of the top. I then came down in the swamp and
