The Chrisimas Stocking.

The hanging of the Christmas ocking before the open fire place, to be filled with good things by Santa Claus on Christmas eve, is an old, old custom, but one that is ever kept youth-ful by the succeeding young generations.

No joy of youth transcends that

No joy of youth transcends that of getting out of the bed on of getting out of the bed on Christmas norming to find the stockings stuffed with the presents you have been praying for, and wishing for, weeks in advance. No memory of boyhood days is clearer cut, than the Christmas morning, when in early dawn, we romped and roared through the house, popping fire cruckers at the girls, loading to thebunsting point the old shot gun for a "Christmas gun," stuffing red candy, and if there was snow on the ground, a rabbit hunt over hills and woods, through fields and across streams, rabbit hunt over hills and woods, through fields and across freezeming, and home again at night, tired and smelling of powder and the fields, to dream of Sanga Claus agold and country.—Constitution, and a steeking—that would sit the long legodest boy Wrached. Rev. W. A. Simmons wishes to minounce that he will fill his appointments in the order observed pointments in the corter observed.

Christmas day.

So let the youngsters romp, say we; let them run every cat off the hill with fire crackers, and make every yellow dog in christondon how! himself hoarse with the pulse of the share of make every yellow dog in christendou howl himself hearse with the noise of toy drums and tin horns; let the boys cut off the curls from the doils of their sisters, for they will have to have a new doll next Christmas anyway; let the little girls burn and wagons; and eat all the candy wagons; and eat all the candy whey want, for that is what tops and wagons were made for; let them shoul; the old shot gun; get powder burnt, and get part of their hair singred off—that is what powder is made for. Let them have a good time; provide pleaty of indocent amusement, and teach them the trie value of the day. Let them romp and howl and rave, if the boys want to, nutilyou think they are crany; they are not. They are only full of the joy of life, and it is bursting out tunnitances, like a botte of suds, freshly opened.

Keep up the tradition of Santa Clause; and give as generously as you are able; for, among all the sweet inconcress of childhood dars the Christmas stocking and transcontains, is remembered with the keenest delight.
