THE FIELD AND FIRESIDE

MARIETTA, FEB. 13, 1879.

The Marietta Paper Manufacturing Company manufactures the best of paper and wrapping paper at lowest prices. S. A. ANDREWS, Agent.

Administrators, Guardians, Executors, Receivers, and Executors of their legal advice, you the Public are furnished with the prices usually charged for such services. Life were at home yet the Governor, in a soft, pleasant tone, would become her partner. She had a fair, girlish face, and a pair of blue eyes. There was a certain something about her that was so enlarged, so noble, so noble. The name of the Georgia contains a geological description by Prof. Little.

Ten thousand and 1,000 boys, 1,000 horses and 9,000 men were employed recently in the Hudson river harvest. The weather was 3,000,000 with the clear sky.

The time is coming when an employer will consider it an insult to be charged with having belonged to the organized democracy.

Enough has been developed in the investigation of the "cipher dispatches" to show, beyond a doubt that the organized democracy attempted to buy the electoral vote of South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana. If the people wish to run a government of their own, they will throw these organized parties overboard.

Judge W. B. Fleming has been nominated in the first congressional district to fill the unexpired term occasioned by the death of Julian Hartridge.

The Columbus Enquirer speaks cheerfully of Columbus and its growing business. The cotton receipts of this year are largely in excess of the last, and slightly surpassed by only two cities in Georgia—Atlanta and Augusta. The factories are running to their full capacity and find ready sales for all their productions, consuming some 12,000 bales of cotton and more factories are in process of construction.

We welcome among our exchanges "The Peoples Champion" published at Marietta, Ga., by J. F. Shecut. It is a handsome sheet but above all we admire it as another effort of political independence in Georgia. North Georgia took the first in freeing the people from the shackles of ring tricksters and it is gratifying to see so many able papers in middle Georgia entering the lists against the tyranny of party cliques and combinations. Let the movement go on and the people of Georgia will be free from corrupt party domination in 1880.

The Dalton Headlight "has a fable of two frogs, elevated by climbing over the heads of the multitude of frogs, to the branch of a tree where they had every thing to supply their wants, and where they lived for a long time growing fat and saucy. But, in time, the branches of the tree decayed—storms came and they fell, and, like Lucifer, they fell never to rise again." In vain their cries gathered around and attempted to raised them; other frogs were on the perch and "the sceptre had departed from India." Moral—Lookout for the train when the whistle blows.

Senator Hill in his recent speech on the Mitchell case in the Senate laid down a platform for the democratic party; "payment of no war claims, loyal and disloyal no more appropriations in any shape, for monopolies; the payment of every dollar of the public debt in good money; honesty and economy in the administration of government, confining it to its limited powers and leaving the States to their reserved sovereign powers."

Mr. Hill may very well doubt the acceptance of his platform by the party. The great "organized" as both sides have but one main object in view—the control of the government—and neither of them at this stage of the game is going to hamper itself with political success that may endanger its position. Each will frame a platform to suit the occasion as well as it can judge.

His objection to the payment of war claims, if on the ground that there are thousands in the South who are opposed to secession and were not disloyal, entitled to payment, most of whom will never apply to congress and many are not able to apply, it is unjust to tax those who are unable to pay those who are able to have their claims passed through congress.

One of the objections urged by the representatives of California to Chinese immigration was that they are pagans and would not assimilate with Christians. Another objection was that they can live on less and labor less than would sustain the most humble American laborer. Such objections have weight, but are not without answer; the only objection to which there can be no answer, in a republic considering their influx, is the fact, that they remain devoted to their own Empire and can never assimilate, politically with other systems of government, and Uncle Sam has no desire to see California an appendage of the Chinese Empire.

Matt Carpenter had a brilliant popular reception in Washington recently, but a writer thinks it was significant only of "the man on horseback" to whose fortunes Carpenter is devoted. The writer says:

"It was noticeable, too, that all those who figured prominently in to-night's demonstration were Grant men. In the hotel lobby the name of the 'old man' as he is endearingly called here, was on many lips. It was like- wise noticeable that not a single member of the Wincheston delegation in congress honored the blow-out with his presence. As if the least demonstration was to say the least defiance to some body; but whether Carpenter or Grant was meant to be the hero of the occasion, those who foot the bills can only tell. To still back, there is a movement brewing to give Chandler a stinging reception on his arrival here. It will far eclipse tonight's effort, will be more elaborate and banging out, interspersed with more choric of strong government, etc. Logan will also be handsomely treated, and of course all these spontaneous eruptions mean one for those of the silent, and a dozen for the silent. The recent Grant movement has begun in Washington, and the furor is to be kept up by using some convenient pretext, until 'the old man' in his own good time, returns to his native place."

The Free Press speaking of the prospective candidates for Governor of Georgia says: It may be Gen. Toombs, Gen. Woodford, Judge A. R. Wright; or it may be Judge Johnson, or Gen. Garret. If he is brave enough to put himself outside of the ring rule and autocratic democracy, we think the people are more determined to think and act for themselves. Once crowned, we know they will do better. It is only the democracy left worth contending for. It is the only line of principles that will perpetuate truly democratic government. It is the only democracy that is not only successful in behalf of free government, but is the democracy of the people.

The so-called "organized" democracy, with its rings and cliques, combinations and slyshing, has ceased to impress honest minds with the semblance of true democracy. It has become a vast machinery propelled by many—the people—in the interest of the few. It has established a partisan aristocracy, and none can enter the sanctum sanctorum unless capable of whispering the words of the faithful few who are admitted to close communion; or in other words, understand the true meaning of "you tickle me and I'll tickle you." That sort of democracy, however, has been weighed in the balance and found wanting.

So we repeat, the true democracy—we mean the rank and file of the people—will fix the question as to who will be the next governor of Georgia. It is true the newspapers, as a whole, will be arrayed against the people in this great struggle of establishing true democracy against rule; but we hope there will be enough of them sufficiently independent to set for and with the people on the line of genuine and true democracy.

So we do not yet know who will be our next governor. We don't care so he is a true representative of popular interests and of the people.

LONDON, February 8. Quarantine against the plague has been ordered in all Spanish ports.

A dispatch to the Times from Vienna states that from fifteen to twenty fresh cases of a disease resembling the plague occur daily at Xonthia, Thessaly, and there is a great mortality from the same cause at Raslog.

HOW THE PLAGUE ORIGINATED. LONDON, Feb. 3.—The British Medical Journal publishes the following: The Vienna Medical-Chirurgische Centralblatt of January 24th, states the origin of the pestilence in Russia as follows: A Cossack, returning from war to Wellianka, brought his lady love a shawl, which was probably a part of his spoil. The girl wore it two days and sickened with all symptoms of the plague and died. During the following four days, the other members of her family sickened and died. The disease spread rapidly, and the local authorities did not pay any attention to it till half the inhabitants of the village had died, and those remaining alive were unable to bury the victims. The epidemic had assumed serious dimensions by the 25th of November, but the Government was only informed of it officially on the 14th of December. Ten days further time elapsed before any systematic or energetic means were taken for preventing its spreading further.

The authorities have since then exerted themselves to the utmost to make up for lost time. As the only way of arresting the disease is to prevent all communications between the districts where it reigns and others which are healthy, a double cordon is being formed, firstly, in the towns and villages shutting off the streets where the plague reigns from the rest of the place, and, secondly, by surrounding the places with the troops, so that nobody is allowed to pass in or out. Quarantines are also being instituted on the borders of the infected governments and are strictly watched. The population is said to take an active part in preventing the disease from passing the frontier, which begins at Saniawak and runs upwards on both borders of the Volga to Batagansk. Four quarantines have been founded at Serepta, Irwanowka, Ottrada and Zlatitsa.

A great drawback is the want of medical men.

The panic in Russia is almost incredible. Every class and station in life have petitioned for the entire cessation of all intercourse, even postal communication, between the rest of Russia and the Volga. Letters sent from Asiatic Russia and Lezartina are not received by the persons to whom they are addressed. Some people even refuse to take paper money, fearing the germ of the infection might be communicated through it.

WORK PRODUCTION. LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Times correspondent at Berlin says: The Russian railway cars no long-are admitted to German Territory. The export of grain from Poland will suffer severely from this restriction. The Rumanian Government are discussing the expediency of prohibiting the transit of Russian provisions sent to victual the Balkan army. The Russian sanitary commission has proposed to shut off the Volga line from all intercourse with Western Russia, and permit communication only under quarantine.—Columbus Trip, Sun.
