FOR THE FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

The Sentenced.

BY WALLY.

Do you say then you never would sign it

Woman, mother of all mankind,

If, by the act of writing your name,

You knew pardon the criminal would find?

Tell me, where is the heart which God gave you

While bestowing that beautiful face?

Did he give you all else that was lovely

And a lonely stone in its place?

Oh, have you, cold heart, not a brother

Whom you're proud of, you honour

Whom you think as unlike to do evil

As one of the angels above?

And have you not also a mother

Whose locks intermingled with gray,

And who worship, as you do, this

brother

Whose smile bears his sorrow away?

Think, too, as you look at his father

Growing old and infirm, as you see,

With what pride he regardest that strong son

Whose stay in his old age will be.

And reflect, if in a strong passion,

Without the warning of steady thought,

This brother of yours should be guilty

Of killing the man whom he fought.

How keen 't is the anguish it would cause

you

If he judge the dire sentence had read.

And alas, "Let him be an example

That because he'd committed one murder

His brother should hang till he's dead.

Would you prate, proud girl, then of justice

If the criminal was one to you dear,

And alas, "Let him be an example

That the crowd may the laws learn to fear?"

No, no! but your heart, torn with anguish,

You'd see only in terror and dread,

Not coolly the crime and the justice,

But him, whom you love, hanging dead.

You would see him in dreams and in visions

With the proud form wasted away,

With the face which, the cold, still is handsome.

The black night has overshadowed his day.

Then think, that he too had a sister

Whose heart is now bleeding and dead,

Who, like him, this bold, handsome

brother,

Whose death will, perchance, drive

her mad.

He would leave too, perhaps, the "we know not,

A fond father and mother, both old,

Who, hearing their brave son has perished,

Would their heads bow in anguish untold.

And perhaps there yet is another

Far dearer than all to his heart,

Who has promised her life to his keeping.

And whose love death itself cannot part.

When the heart from afar that her lover

Has, from justice, received his sad

doom,

Will his bright wings fold up in his death.

And her young heart consign to his tomb.

And think how gloomy and dark too

Future life on that young heart will rise—

How the bloom will fade out of her soft cheek.

And the love-light gleam out of her eyes.

...Such a movement would, for a time, greatly disturb the industry of the South; but as it would remove all obstacle to immigration, and as our chief product would gain in price all it lost in quantity, the disorder would soon be forgotten, while ourselves and the nation would be vastly benefited in remitting a people to their own self-government, instead of keep

In the early days of our republic, parties were divided upon principles relating to the organic laws. The current, therefore, laws, internal improvements, etc., all gave rise to questions affecting the constructive powers of government and all related to its fundamental principles. Now, there is no issue upon principle. The war ended all that. It made a nation of the United States, and no question can hereafter arise but upon the expediency of measures of administration. Reconstructed as the government is, all parties 'approve, ratify, endorse,' the supremacy of the central power, and republicans and dem

What a cry—what a hubbub was raised years ago about building the Cumberland road! The whole country was on fire at the presumption of the Federal Government in this daring attempt at internal improvement and inva

...of the sovereignty of the States. Now, our Pacific ...without question, omnipotent ...and has not only connected, with ...the Atlantic and Pacific, but is manipulating the Missis

...sippi as a great highway of commerce at enormous expense, and cleaning out and preparing for higher navigation the Oconee, Chattahoochee and other rivers of the Georgia. Well, what are we losing in the discord of numerous petty state sovereignties, we are gaining in the concentrated intelligence, energy and power of the nation.

A writer, over the signature of "Barlow," in the Cartersville Free Press, gives the following statement as to the managers of the Georgia penitentiary system: "In the first penitentiary, (which is Gov. Brown's) we find the old contractors under the first lease, neither of them public officials. In the second penitentiary we find B. Gordon, United States senator, at the head. Georgia elected him to represent the state in Washington, and he must run a convict camp to keep up his finances. He is said also to have carried a private share for the Governor. In the third penitentiary, we find the Treasurer of Georgia, with his greater clerk, John Wesley Murphy."

The Baltimore Gazette says the greedy demagogues in Washington want an extra session, not for the good of the country, but to profit thereby.

Upon the 20th instant, Atlanta had ordered direct from the United States treasury $5,000 standard silver currency, and Columbus $20,000 of the same.

The Chronicle states that the force at work on the Augusta portion of the Augusta, Knoxville, and Greenwood railroad is rapidly pushing forward the grading. They have already progressed 12 miles, and only three miles of ungraded road lie between them and the river. The camp has been moved to this last section, and in a short time the entire route from Augusta to Walton's island will be graded.

A "dump register" kept at the Macon, Ga., wharves shows that since the 1st inst. thirty of these immense barges have been taken in and dumped by the city. They represented nearly every country on the face of the globe.

The "organized" say Ben Hill is dead. It may be so, but they still keep kicking.

Governor Hendricks, who is in Washington, says "the western democrats are determined not to be manoeuvred out of the presidential nomination." Possibly, the people may not want either a republican or democrat manoeuvred upon them.

THE GUANO QUESTION.—Let the price of the fertilizer be fixed at its minimum cash valuation, and the farmer, if he cannot pay the money down, merely give a lien upon a bale of cotton, with the same at his option in the presence of the owner of the lien, and thus liquidating the amount of the claim. This would give any owner of the cotton might bring to the owner and leave the manufacturer nothing to complain of. On the other hand, if prices ruled low, the planter could deliver the cotton in lieu of the cash.

OF course the weight of the bale should be predicated upon a fair average price of the staple in market for the security of the guano dealer, who, however, should be required to put down the article he sells at bottom prices.—Macon paper.

During the year 1878, 192 vessels, 76 from foreign and 116 from coastwise ports, entered the port of Brunswick. The total tonnage was 61,810, and the aggregate number of men employed by them was 1,613. There were 198 clearances, 74 for foreign and 124 for domestic ports. The total value of exports was $1,373,841.

A correspondent from Valdosta writes us as follows: "I see in your Weekly of the 18th instant you state that Atlanta was first named Marthasville, in honor of a daughter of the late Governor Lumpkin. This is a mistake. It was named in honor of Miss Martha Mitchell (then of Pike county, Ga.) whose father owned and sold the most of the land upon which Atlanta was originally founded. Colonel Peters, Dr. Thompson, G. W. Adair and all of the old inhabitants will confirm this statement."

The Camilla Advertiser thus writes: "We can truthfully state that our people are substantially better off than a few years ago. More attention has been given to supply raising. Orchards are being set out everywhere. Then, too, new dwelling houses are being built. Indeed, the progress is so steady and substantial that one can draw the conclusion that our people feel settled, at home, and do not intend to try going West."

The Brunswick Seaport Appeal claims the late earthquake was its own peculiar property, and says: "Yes, ours. We discovered it, we were shaken by it, we heard its muttered menace to our cups and saucers and china, and sideboards and contents. We felt our hearts sway, beat, move, saw the pictures rattle on the walls, heard the windows shake. Surely this is something to be proud of. It is not every day you can get up an earthquake, and they come so unexpectedly, so completely when they get ready, and are so impartial in their attentions that we feel it our duty as true chroniclers of the events of our times and especially of our city, to give a short account of this phenomenon. And first we desire to say that this is our first earthquake."

We have had Nancy Hart but no earthquake, and are inclined to believe this a sort of justification, gotten up by the earth, as our bright present and brighter prospects.

On the subject of wheat, the Thomaspine Times says: "That this cereal can be successfully planted and grown in this section, we think is now an established fact. Passing the store of Messrs. M. Isaac & Co. the other day we noticed a barrel of beautiful rounded and full grained wheat on the sidewalk. Upon inquiry, we learned that it was grown by Mr. Rosenfeld, one of our German farmers. Subsequently meeting the gentleman himself, he informed us that he raised, the past season, seventeen bushels to the acre. And what is more, after cutting the wheat he planted and raised 150 bushels of potatoes on the same acre. What section can make a better showing? Few, we think. He sold the wheat (for seed) at $2 per bushel, and the potatoes at 40 cents per bushel. Seventeen bushels of wheat at $2 per bushel and 150 bushels of potatoes at 40 cents, aggregate $94. That beats an all cotton crop out of sight."

Albany Advertiser: "From a friend of Mr. John R. Lee, of Lee county, we get the following statement showing the result of his farming last season: With six mules he made 60 heavy bales of cotton, 2,100 bushels of corn, 16 barrels syrup, 1 acre of cane for seed, 300 bushels oats (on 15 acres), 1,000 bushels potatoes, and over 200 bushels peas. He killed 18 head of hogs averaging 155 pounds. The above is what Mr. Lee made with six mules on that portion of his place which he worked himself. On his entire place, including the land worked by renters, he made 360 bales cotton with 39 mules, besides 150 bushels of corn to the mule."

THE FATHER OF TWENTY FIVE SOX.—Hiram Y. Reese died recently at his residence in Frank line county, Pa., within a few months of ninety-two years of age. He was the father of twenty-five sons, twenty of whom are yet living, the eldest being sixty-six and the youngest twenty-four.

His first wife had six sons, his second eleven and his third eight, and six of the children were twins. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and had nine sons in the Union army during the late war, two of whom were killed at the first battle of Bull Run, a third at Ball's Bluff, and a fourth was drowned during Hancock's ill-starred Red river expedition. He was a remarkably robust man, and never but once during his life did he take medicine.

Georgia's Claims. In the United States senate on Friday, on motion of Senator John B. Gordon, it was "Ordered, That the papers in reference to the claims of the state of Georgia, which are now in the files of the senate and be delivered by the secretary of the senate to Hon. W. O. Tuggle, Governor of the state of Georgia."

It is not generally known to what claims of the state this order refers. The facts are these: During the revolutionary war, the war of 1812 and the subsequent Indian wars, the state of Georgia, with other states, advanced to the general government large loans and supplies to aid in the prosecution of the wars. It appears that many of the claims of Georgia have never been paid. The matter is in considerable confusion. There are papers in the office of the secretary of state of Georgia which show that some payments were made by the state to Georgia, but it is also evident that there has only been a partial settlement of the claims. In order to get a clear and exact knowledge of the true status of the case, Governor Colquitt, a few months ago, appointed Hon. W. O. Tuggle, of LaGrange, to go on to Washington as the agent of the state. While there he will carefully examine all the papers in the federal archives touching the claims of the state. By comparing these with the papers at the state capital, he will probably put the matter in a more definite shape than it has yet assumed. At present very little is certainly known. The unpaid claims may amount to a great deal or they may not. Another contingency, which may prove more troublesome, is that when the exact amount due is ascertained, it may be paid or it may not.—Constitution.

School Commissioner Orr, of Atlanta, is interesting himself in favor of the Moffett bell punch, and has obtained from the Auditor of Virginia and other prominent men of that State, favorable opinions regarding the workings of the law in that commonwealth.

A Newnan Judge marched a couple of miles to marry a couple and after performing the ceremony in a most impressive and dignified manner, was rewarded by the blushing groom with a fee of five cents.

MARIETTA NOTES.

Corn is selling from the stores at 67 1/2 cents.

Wood haulers find the trade dull. The weather is getting warmer.

Rev. S. E. Barnwell returned from his trip to Augusta last Saturday.

The store of A. P. Taylor has been closed.

The revenue men had a skirmish with distillers in Cherokee, last Friday.

W. J. Alston returned from Charleston last Wednesday greatly improved in health.

Gen. Sherman passed through the city on the 28th for Atlanta.

About 80 negroes left this place last Sunday for the Cincinnati & Southern R. R.

Laurel Mills, Ga., for sale at the store of Haley Brothers, North East corner of the public square, Marietta, Ga.

The house of Mr. N. G. Gignil last night being burned last Sunday. The roof ignited from a burning chimney.

The Hatterly troupe will appear in Cartersville on the 31st and in Marietta the night following.

See the card of P. P. Manning. He is better prepared than ever to do Blacksmithing, Repairing, etc., at a notice and in a satisfactory manner.

In another column will be found a poem originated by a young lady of this city prior to the commencement of the sentence of George Brown.

If you wish to make a good oat crop, go to L. C. McCall's and buy his select seed of Oryza sativa.

Dr. J. C. Greer has a card in this issue, but to see things as they should be seen, call at his new office, South side of the Public Square. There you will find him, his face all smiles as usual, and with just the handsome first establishment in the city. The Dr.'s friends will now call on him.

We are notified by letter from Mr. William Griggs, of Jackson Parish, La., of the death of Mrs. Lucinda Carroll, formerly of this county. She died on the 10th inst. of dropsy of the heart.

The rats in this office succeeded last Saturday night in destroying a full set of our job rollers. We made a blow recently about being proof against cold weather. We didn't consider the rat question and feel the need of something to do them out.

Died.—On Friday night, the 24th inst., Mrs. Nancy S. Lytle, in the 80th year of her age. She had been a resident of this county for many years.

We are in receipt of a communication advising us that we, of the Field and Fireside, have been elected honorary members of the Mount Zion Lumber Society. We return thanks for the compliment and will endeavor to show our appreciation by taking further interest in the advancement of the Society.

While Col. and Mrs. J. D. Wadell were returning from Col. Atkinson's last Wednesday night, the buggy struck a log, which seems to have been placed across the road by some malicious person, and was tilted in such a violent manner as to throw Mrs. Wadell to the ground, severely bruising her head and dislocating her right arm. The ground that put up this log deserves nothing short of a lengthy sentence.

Messrs. Nichols and Smith with their excellent drays will be found day and night at all the trains. They will also do plowing and hauling. Orders left at the residence of Dr. Nichols will meet with quick response.

We would call attention to the card of Dr. A. Reynolds, Jr., in this issue, setting forth the many facilities he has for executing work at short notice and in a satisfactory manner. We would commend Dr. Reynolds to our readers as a young man of sufficient experience and in every way worthy of a liberal patronage.

COBB COUNTY ARTIST.—Mr. A. C. Rooney, a young citizen of Acworth, son of Dr. A. C. Rooney of that place has just finished life size portraits of Hon. R. Toombs, Gen. Lee, and T. A. Rooney. During the summer months of '78 he completed a course of study under Mr. Albert Querry of Atlanta, and has since produced the work above described. He has certainly struck his talent and will succeed if there is anything in merit.

MARRIED.—On the evening of the 22nd at the residence of the bride's father, Col. A. S. Atkinson, Dr. G. W. Blanton, of Dalton, to Miss Ella C. Atkinson of this county. The attendants were: Mr. H. Cate, of Dalton and Miss Hannah Lannan, of Atlanta; Mr. W. C. Carter, of Dalton, and Miss Sue Atkinson, of Lost Mountain; Mr. F. T. Reynolds, of Dalton, and Miss Ida L. Chenevix, of Cobb; Mr. W. H. Davis, of Dalton, and Miss Katie Carter, of the same place; Mr. J. G. Russell, of Dalton, and Miss Mamie Lester of Marietta. The ceremony was performed in an impressive manner by Rev. J. W. Baker. The happy couple left on the evening train of the following day for Dalton.

A COUPLE OF THIEVES.—Last Thursday night two negroes broke open the store of Mr. Moss in Cox's district and despoiled the contents to the extent of a few sacks full of dry goods and groceries. After this exploit they went on their way rejoicing and in the course of their travels crossed the Powder Springs road near the residence of Mr. A. J. Chevey, where, finding their path rather burlesque, they halted to rest and devise means of accelerating their movements. It seems that an admirable plan was conceived, for daylight found them several miles from the scene of action and Mr. Chevey's stable minus two horses. They were followed by Mr. Moss, who succeeded in capturing the lay-out, horses and all. The purloined goods now occupy their former positions on the shelves in Mr. Moss' store, the horses as of old solemnly munch their corn in Mr. Chevey's stable, while the stable captives occupy apartments in the Strophus Hotel. In this place.

Oregon Odds.

Bring out another horse!

Wanted.—Ten thousand United States troops to locate in Cobb county, for night watchmen, to keep down stealing.

Rev. A. B. Vaughan pastor of Union Grove Church, delivered an eloquent and forcible sermon at that place, on last Sunday, which was well received by a large and attentive audience.

A certain young lady, not a hundred miles from here says she had seven sweet hearts last Sunday, who were they? Don't all speak at once.

On next Saturday night a farmers meeting will be held at Oregon Court House. It will be to the interest of every farmer to attend, and they are respectfully solicited to be there.

The accomplished Miss Welch of Fairburn, Ga., is stopping here with her sister, Mrs. Emily York. Is so.

Lost Mountain.

The farmers round about here have begun work on their farms, plowing and cleaning out fence corners in a farmer-like manner.

The only excitement we have among us is about the high price of commercial fertilizers, and the farmers are calling meetings at every suitable place in neighborhoods and signing pledges not to purchase a pound over a certain price, also fixing the price on the cotton to pay for the same. They feel that they have been extorted on by monopolies long enough, and are determined to have a say so in prices hereafter. Many of our farmers are composting stable manure and cottonseed, and say they will plant less and sweeten the soil with home-grown.

Col. W. P. Ward has about finished the Lost Mountain academy. He will now proceed to starting his steam saw, wheat and corn mill near this place. There are a good many young men out here that want to marry, but are afraid they can't support another one. When they have so little confidence in themselves how can they expect the girls to have any?

Our neighborhood is healthy, with the exception of about half of the old women and a few children grinding with colic.

Around Acworth.

Give us a linen duster and a fan, please.

Oh! that sweet smelling, that nice air perfumer,—that great source of grumbling—that splendid, that precious, GRANO!

The largest cotton crop ever hauled to this town, has been brought this year, and there are not a few bales yet to come.

A "Business Directory," in the shape of a nicely painted board, five by ten feet, containing information concerning all the town interests, is a new feature on the street directly in front of the post office.

Mr. H. B. Goodwin, formerly of Powder Springs, is soon to open a full stock of goods in the brick store of Dr. Humphries. Baker & Collins is a new firm of flattering prospects; the former our clever telegraph operator. Success to them.

Is it not a sad calamity to befall a young man when he has to sit up whole nights for several weeks attempting to grind out an acrostic with a girl's name of fourteen letters in it?

One of our most interesting and sweetest young ladies, Miss Mollie Mitchell, has left for a female college in Murfreesboro, Tenn., to complete her education. She is much missed by her lady as well as gentlemen friends.

Don't you wish you were old, and reverend enough, that when sick, all the young ladies, old women, little boys and grown folks would come to see you! All the young men up here wish so, now that our old friend is well.

Notice.—Any and all persons who violate the town ordinance, by getting on or off passing trains, will certainly be dealt with to the full extent of the law. By order of the council, J. W. McMILLAN, January 31st, 1879. Clerk.

The above explains itself. Several citizens want to know if a permit has to be obtained for passengers leaving town, while others are desirous of knowing what grammar our city fathers have studied.

Great Reduction in Prices.
