The Hessian Hy is a small gnat or midge of the order diptera excidionyiada, or gall gnats, and genus eccidionyia. It was called Hessian fly from the supposition that it was brought to this country by the Hessian troops in some straw, during the revolutionary war. It was scientifically described in 1814, by Mr. Say, as eccided and the second of the wipical destructor. The body of the light hand the expanse of the wipical destructor. These five words sound the key note to success in Southern agriculture. No where cles in the United States of the States of the Comparison of the land under cultivation, subjected to clean tillage as in the South, and the fact is to be found the note of the rapid deterioration of ur lands. Exposed as our soids are to the burning rays of air summer's sum and the washing rains incident to our alimate they have been rapidly exhaust they have been from the soil fewer elements of fortilly than any other than the soil to the deteriorating influences of sum and rain. Hence, ences of sum and rain. Hence, ences of sum and rain. Hence, ences of sum and rain. Hence, those districts which have been given up most exclusively to cotton culture exhibit the most lamentable proofs of exhaustion. This evil will be corrected by changing our system of farming from those crops which demand clean culture to pasturage and stock raising.

Kinnebrew vs. Weather Proph

The weather prophets all stood are Cut hieroglyphics on the ground, And tried to look profoundly wise When asked as to the rainless skies

Some said 'Twill rain to-day, I think! While others only gave a shrink, And said No doubtio-night, 'twill rain But their conjectures were in vain.

The weather-people. I always knew Were ne'er so wise as Kinnebren For this old fragment said to me "Twill rain directly" vay free."

I look'd into his haunted face, And in its shadows I did trace Full many a sombre, angry cloud, And ngry, tattered "spirit" shrom He said he had the cloud's great key Would flood the rain only for me; With many thanks, Hert him talking To himself, alone, while walking.

The Urana whom the Grecians knew Was not a peer of Kinnebrew, For this old shell of human kind Controls the planets and sells his piac.
