RURAL ECONOMY.

As fertile land is necessary to all successful farming, it becomes a matter of the first importance that the farmer should be well acquainted with the most economical methods of securing this condition. No care, or labor in the preparation of the soil, will compensate for lack of fertility in the soil itself. What do we mean then when we speak of a sterile soil? Simply a soil that is destitute of those mineral elements that constitute the nourishment of plants; or that does not contain them in a soluble or tangible form. It is now a received doctrine in physics, that a fluid there has probably not been a particle of matter created since the original creation of the world, and, then, there has not been a particle destroyed. And not only is matter now held to be indestructible, but the same is true also of force. Matter and force are at the bottom of all the phenomena of nature. An almost infinite, and endless variety of new creations are annually taking place in the vegetable and animal world, yet all owe their origin, not only to matter and force, but to the play of forces on the same old particles of matter that have existed since the first great creation, that having filled up their allotted place in the history of material things, have died, and gone to decay.

We plant a seed containing the germ of a tree. The influence of heat and moisture call into activity the vital force that has hitherto lain dormant in the germ, causing it to vegetate and grow. It sends up first a pair of leaves, to be succeeded by others. It sends down fibers into the soil to draw from it certain principles necessary for the further growth of the little stem, that is to become the trunk of a tree. The plant goes on to expanding, sending forth branches to be covered with foliage. Its leaves absorb carbonic acid from the air; this being deprived of its oxygen, is deposited in the wood, in the form of carbon, whilst the oxygen it contained is exhaled from the leaves, and thus given back to the atmosphere. This transformation of carbonic acid into wood, and oxygen, tending to purify the atmosphere, and render it salubrious.—A tree is thus produced from matter derived from the earth and from the air. Let us now cut this tree down, and subject it to combustion, and what is the result? A large part of its weight being simply water, this is first driven off in the form of vapor and steam, and becomes mixed with the atmosphere, to be condensed by cooling, and then to be returned to the earth in the form of water. The gaseous portions of our tree, supply the material (carburted hydrogen and hydrogen) for the flame of the fire. These also are returned to the air, in the form of carbonic acid and water.—Then the hydrogen and carbon of our tree disappears; and finally we have nothing left but a small residium, in the form of ashes; and when we analyze these, we find them to consist of potasse, lime, soda, sulphur, iron, &c., together with a small amount of insoluble matter. All these elements are returned to the earth whence they were taken. Now what has become of our tree. It is true it has disappeared, and as a tree has been destroyed; but yet not one atom of the matter of which it was composed has been lost. All has been returned to the earth and to the air, whence they originally came; and are fitted to contribute nourishment and produce a new tree.

Thus we see that production and decay are intended to balance each other. No new matter is needed, all that we have to do is to husband and control that which a beneficient creator made at the beginning.

How then does a soil pass from a state of fertility to a state of sterility? Simply by the force of untoward circumstances, as by unskilful cultivation.

Suppose that we cultivate a field in corn for a number of year, and carefully remove from it all the grain and fodder including stalks, that it will produce.

If it be a fertile soil at the beginning, it will produce a good crop for a few years in succession; but the crops must ultimately become lighter and lighter, until finally, we cannot obtain enough grain to pay for the cultivation. Why is this? Simply because we have been abstracting from the soil, during all these years, the elements that are indispensible to the production of a stalk of corn; and have given nothing back to the soil, until finally we have abstracted from it not only all that it contains of these elements, but all that it contained in insoluble form suitable for the nourishment and growth of the plant.

Let us now turn the field out to commons for 15 or 20 years, and we may then break its soil, and again derive from it a good crop of corn.

But we cannot afford to have capital invested thus in land that produces nothing.

Every field that does not yield enough of grain, grass, or fruit, to pay for all the labor expended in its cultivation, together with the tax on its value, and ten per cent on the capital invested in it, is an unprofitable field. We must eat daily through all our years, and hence we cannot afford to wash thus on our fields, until the action of the elements and forces of nature can renew their fertility. What must we do then? Simply return to them, year by year, all that we take off of them; or its equivalent.

The barn and its surrounding sheds is the great laboratory of the farm.—There we transport the whole of its productions, for the subsistence of animals, and of man. Our grass, or hay, straw, fodder, roots, and grain, are there fed; and the greater portion is there ultimately deposited in the form of animal excrements; and if these be duly preserved, and returned to the farm its fertility will be unfailing.

Here we have then, with a small exception to be presently noticed, the identical materials that last year entered into the composition of our crops; but, having undergone the process of decay, or slow combustion, they are again reduced to a condition for the nourishment, and production of the crop we now desire to obtain, and if we analyze this material, we shall find the very bases, salts, acids, and gases, that an analyses of the original crop would have yielded.

We must see that if we have a fertile soil to begin with, we shall always have, if we properly preserve and use them, the means at command, to preserve its fertility. The exception to which we referred is the chief ingredient of the bones of animals, phosphate of lime.—As the animals that are produced on the farm are usually slaughtered elsewhere, the phosphate of lime contained in their bones is not so readily be given back to the soil. A soil that is originally well supplied with this material, may stand this drain for a long period of time, without any falling off in its fertility; but one originally poor in this element, will need to have it supplied from some source.

We are now prepared to comprehend the subject of fertilization; and to understand the economy of fertilizing materials. Decaying vegetation, and the excrement of animals, we thus see, are the chief sources on which the farmer must rely for keeping up the fertility of his farm. The farmer who neglects to preserve and use all these substances to the best advantage, will always be found unthrifty; whilst on the contrary, his neighbor, who utilizes all these materials, will not only be rewarded with good paying crops, but will at the same time have the satisfaction of finding that his farm is yearly increasing in productiveness.

When the traveller then, in passing over large sections of our country, finds the farmers almost without exception, ignoring facts; and in practice resisting all the untoward influences, in robbing their farms of the elements needed for the production of crops, can he wonder, if he finds, in such sections, a great outcry about the scarcity of money, and oppressive taxation? Neither should he be greatly astonished to find such a population ready to indulge the hope that a change of political administration would bring a remedy for all their ills. It is no unusual sight, during the fall months, when the farmer is engaged fattening his pork, to find his feeding pen so filled with fat and lazy hogs that the rains shall wash all the excrements into a neighboring stream, that they may thus be carried away; or find him in the fall and winter months, feeding away all the fodder of his fields to his cattle, in the road outside of his fields, or along the fairs and sand beaches of a neighboring stream; or to see the manure heap at the stable neglected from year to year, until it becomes a mere pile of humus impregnated with a few insoluble mineral ingredients; his fields in the mean time starving. Now it is plain that such a man is too ignorant to be a farmer; and probably too ignorant to succeed in any vocation. But this ignorance will yield to the fertilizing materials of the farm, when we complete the prodigality of such men.

They usually try to make up in the amount of land which they plow and cultivate, for the paucity of its production, and hence, they are ever plowing, and the result is that on our hill side lands, the soil has its elements of fertility washed out of it from year to year, until it is utterly exhausted.

We have prescribed these examples of ignorant and unskilful management of land that are unfortunately to be met with almost every where, and in many places constitute the rule instead of the exception, to show by the force of contrast, the importance of the subject of which we entertain.

The benificent Creator has provided for man a goodly heritage here below; but requires of him not only that he shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, but also that he shall exercise those faculties of intellect with which he has endowed him, that by becoming acquainted with the great facts of nature, he may attain to a better appreciation, and also of the wisdom and benefiscence of the great Author of nature's laws, but also of his dependence upon him, and thus be advanced in character, in preparation for the advances in temporal comfort and well being.

LARGE AND SMALL FARMS.

Sometime ago the Richmond Dispatch contained a very judicious estimate of this question, which we regarded at the time as incontrovertible.

Some thinkers are apt to "run in the ground," as the phrase is, a new thing, and this matter of small farms is one of them. But what the Dispatch said of them is true. In illustration of this, we have recently seen an extract from a private letter contained in the Baltimore Journal of Commerce, which is to the point. The writer says:

"I traveled for two weeks with Dr. H. P. Ashe (formerly of Wilmington, N. C., now of the city of Stockton,) through the great agricultural region of the San Joaquin Valley. Dr. Ashe is the second largest farmer in California. His crop of grain this, or rather next season, will be about 7,000 bushels, if the season is a fair one.

"I was on one of his farms, 2,100 acres in extent, upon which he had five men employed in plowing and putting in seed. He told me he would not employ over seven laborers until harvest, and expected to raise 20,000 bushels grain on that farm. All this struck me as very strange—20,000 bushels grain and only seven men to do the labor; but when I looked at his gang plows pulled by six or eight horses, his sowing machine on a two-horse wagon, scattering the seed sixty feet wide, and so adjusted as to sow forty-five, sixty, or seventy-five pounds to the acre, one man being able to sow fifty or sixty acres per day; and then to his reaping machine, that goes through his fields taking the heads off them leaving the straw standing, the machines being managed by wagons of huge dimensions, and making an opening twenty or twenty-five feet wide, throwing the grain fast as reaped upon wagons, which deposited it fast as received in some convenient place ready for the thresher, which come along, worked by either horse or steam power, which thrashes and bags from 1,000 to 1,500 bushels per day; I was no longer astonished. Seventeen hundred acres of this farm will be a volunteer crop."

Here we see that a large farm is cultivated by comparatively few hands, by the aid of labor saving machines, and, no doubt, all the latest improved agricultural implements.—Petersburg Express.

This is by no means in conflict with the theory and advantages of "small farms," nor does not it prove that large farms may be made profitable. It only proves this—that by machinery you may more rapidly convert the fertility of a large area into grain or cotton than under the old muscular slave system of the South. The national wealth loses by both systems—the lands are impoverished and the farmer has only transferred the riches of his soil to his barn or pocket.

Inseparably connected with "small farms" are the ideas of improved tillage and increasing fertility. The more numerous they are the greater will be the productive wealth of the State—the value of its lands and the well-being of its inhabitants. Any land the farmer cultivates more than he can improve, is of questionable benefit to himself or the country.

COLLECTING MANURE.

The collection and application of manure should go on constantly, for the grasses and cereals and all kinds of cultivated plants make an annual draft on the soil for the ingredients which enable them to build up their stems, foliage and seeds.

No liquid or solid suited for enriching the soil should be allowed to go to loss about the homestead. Soap-suds, woodashes, soot, charcoal, sawdust, etc., may be applied to the soil with much benefit to the crops. Leached wood ashes are very useful for top dressing grass land—deepening the color of the plants and increasing their productiveness, so much, as to double the aerosdale yield of hay whenever they are applied in sufficient quantities.—Weber's Farmer.

—An unsuccessful lover was asked by what means he lost his divinity "Alas!" he cried, "I flattered her until she got too proud to speak to me!"

—Learning, if properly applied, makes a young man thinking, attentive, industrious, confident and wary; and an unlearned and useless. It is a permanent in prosperity, a refuge in adversity, and an entertainment at all times; it cheers in solitude, and gives wisdom and wisdom in all circumstances.

It was honest old Ben Franklin who believe, who as a matter of fact followed up a small account with a tradesman. In a very few years he ascertained that the amount due to the tradesman had passed from a few dollars until the number of dollars had reached a large amount settled with it for a few pence or twenty. It may not be true that old Ben Franklin ever made this the history of a small amount of a man in the way of debt-paying; but it should be set down as a fact that the prompt payment of small debts is the first step towards cash for everything. (Generally speaking) those small debts due to persons who need all the money they can command. To such, they are of immense importance; and it may be said of the person who allows these trifling obligations to remain unpaid while having the means to discharge them, that he is not, in the true sense of the word an honest man, unless, by express contract, a time for payment has been fixed, and that not arrived. Pay your small debts and big ones too. If you would be happy and comfortable, sleep sound, eat heartily, and enjoy the sweet of mind which only men with good consciences are supposed to enjoy, pay your small debts, and don't forget the printer.

AN EXCELLENT APPEAL.

The Macon Telegraph says: We understand that some of the best glee clubs of the South—and among the number Mason, Atlanta and Columbus are represented very ably—intend to give five concerts, one in Columbus, one in Savannah, Augusta, Macon and Atlanta, for the benefit of the Georgia Memorial Association.

This Association only received $5,000 from the Legislature, and it needs $40,000 more. Now the question is, where is it to come from? These ladies have at the earnest request of Mrs. Williams and Miss Greene, Trustees of the Institution, commenced in good style. It is needless to say we predict for them a glorious success. The ladies are Mrs. Ogden and Mrs. Bacon, of Macon, Mrs. Haines, of Albany, and Miss Howard, of Columbus.

The first Concert will be given at Columbus on the 4th day of January, and others a week or ten days immediately after."

No Disguise.—Don't flatter yourself, young man, that a cardamom seed, a kernel of burnt coffee, a bit of thyme, or lemon peel, a clove, or anything of that shallow sort, will disguise the bigger that has gone down your throat. The lady at your side detects the trick, and despises the artful dodger.

Happiness.—That which the world seek, but few find; yet it lingers around every man's door. The great secret of happiness, is not to be annoyed by petty thwartings, and not to aspire after unattainable objects. He who cultivates a spirit of contentment, will, in time, reap the rich reward; and he who would most effectually secure the principal ingredient in happiness must confer it upon others. He who takes it as a duty and a pleasure to make others happy, will within his own breast, a living fountain of happiness that angels might covet.—Southern Recorder.

"They may be so to you," replied the witness, "for they are both lawyers."

A Pleasant Time.

On Saturday after Christmas the children of the Marietta Episcopal Sunday School had a Christmas Tree, and a very pleasant time the children and their friends had. At 3 P. M., the new edifice was thrown open to the children and their friends in the Church, the children first sang the beautiful hymn "Hark what mean those happy voices," then followed a short spirited prayer by Rev. Mr. Hunt—then succeeded the Beautiful Church of Christ Before"—then the Superintendent made a few remarks stating that the School for the past year was one of the most pleasant and satisfactory of all the many years, since the School was organized. He then read a selection on our opportunities for doing good and receiving good. After which, a Doxology was sung—then the children and their friends formed in procession and with the beautiful Banner marched to Rev. Mr. Hunt's. On arriving within the grounds a beautiful Banner Song was sung while marching towards the house. The children were then dismissed for a while and they scattered about the grounds and enjoyed themselves finely until the bell rang to call them to the Christmas Tree.

This beautiful evergreen was beautifully arranged in Rev. Mr. Hunt's School room—the children sang a beautiful song. "Gather around the Christmas Tree," and then the fruit was soon plucked off and many a little heart made glad, while other folks were not over looked. The Superintendent was presented by the present from the Children of a splendid copy of the Book of Common Prayer, in which the inscriptions of the presentations was done almost equal to engraving. The Children had kept their secret admirably, as the Superintendent had no hint of such an intention.

The Children were indebted to Miss Fletcher for teaching them to sing the beautiful hymns.—After the fruit came a good supply of goodies—and before dark all were dismissed having had a happy, time.

It is entitled "Health and Home" and all its numbers address themselves as successfully as the first, to hearth and home.the paper will be a welcome visitor to every fireside.

☞ Packard's Monthly.—S. S. Packard 937 Broadway, N. Y., $1 per annum. This Magazine now presents a very handsome appearance and each number contains a large fund of useful reading. The January number opens with an interesting, though not very accurate sketch of the life, flight and capture of Jefferson Davis," by F. A. Pollard.

☞ Whitlock's Horticultural Recorder for December past has for its leading article a history of "Grape Culture, Past and Present." It has other articles highly interesting to the Horticulturist.—Price $1.50 per annum.

☞ Peter's Musical Monthly.—We have been heretofore pleased with this excellent work, but we are delighted with the January Number. It is is fund in elegant style, in the fund of reading enlarged and highly interesting and its Music choice and excellent. It is published at $3. per annum by J. L. Peters 126 Broadway N Y., All lovers of the Musical Art will highly appreciate this work.

We have received the January Number of this Magazine. It contains nearly 100 pages—all original matter mostly from the pen of the eminent writer who conducts it. Its design is to entertain and amuse —to instruct, elevate and conduct the youth along that path leading to the highest and noblest manhood. The work is handsomely illustrated and must prove a favorite wherever seen.

☞ Blackwood's Magazine for December, which is No. 638 of Mags, unites with other voices of the season in reminding us that time is passing away. As he passes he leaves his mark on most of us; but who bears up well against his touch as our old friend Maga?—for fifty years a monthly visitor to some of us, and yet showing no signs of its paired strength. This number is a fitting close for the issues of the past year, which, taken altogether, have been of more than average merit, furnishing a large amount not only of entertaining but of substantial literature. We have often spoken of the value of this periodical that we have no doubt most of our readers are familiar with it, at least by repute; and without going further into details, we content our selves with giving a list of the articles in the present number.

Doubles and Quits: a Comedy of Errors, Part II.—A very amusing story of mistaken identity.

Historical Sketches of the Reign of George the Second.—Another of those graphic descriptions bringing past scenes and characters before us as in a picture. The present paper gives a sketch of Lord Anson and his memorable voyage.

Kinglake's History of the War in the Crimea.—Those who cannot afford to purchase this book will find a good substitute for it in this review.

Jean Mélanon.—A biographical sketch.

Comedies of Duel.—A consideration of those favorite light-satirical comments on current ideas and events.

What is to come of it.—An article on the political situation.

Reminding our friends that among the host of periodicals now soliciting their attention, Blackwood's Magazine has an eminent claim, we recommend those who have not yet done so to enter their names early for the ensuing year.

JOSEPH CHASTAIN, Adm'r.

Marietta, Ga., Oct. 17th 1868.

J. F. Nesting, Agt., Oakley Mills Man'g Co—Dear Sir,—In compliance with your request to give my experience with the use of Flour of Raw Bone, I have to say that I used freely on Hetzels and Tuckers corn and am satisfied that it increased the yield of both those crops to more than double what they would have been without the use of Raw Bone. The Hetzel is one year old, and the Tucker corn are the largest and finest ears I have ever seen. Flour of Raw Bone is the best fertilizer on cotton that I have ever used, and I believe it lifts nearly one half of the fruit that would otherwise fall from neglect, &c., &c., &c.

Hoping that you may have abundant success in your valuable enterprise, I am, Respectfully,

R. HAMILTON.

Marietta, Ga., Aug. 20th 1868.

Mr. Rice was out at Mr. Hancock's last week and walked all over the place. He thinks it is doing finely and better promises than any other I have seen. The cotton has not shed much, also the cotton that has the Bone Dust under it, he thinks will yield at the lowest calculation one third more cotton per acre than that which has the regular guano on it.—The stalk is very full of fruit and is still making it as fast as any he ever saw. Mr. Hancock says he will make 125 Bales. Mr. Rice says between 90 and 100 Bales and with good seasons perhaps more.

Very Respectfully,

Burgess & Co.

Wm. L. Mansfield, Sec'y, Oakley Mills Manufacturing Co.—Dear Sir: In reply to your enquiry as to my experience with your Flour of Raw Bone, I will state that I used about 75 pounds to the acre on a portion of my corn crop. This was too small a quantity and hereafter I shall use more to the acre. The result however are very satisfactory and for some of the land the yield I think is doubled and on some of it more than one and a half times what it would have been without the Bone Dust. I used on a portion of my crop Guano and Bone Flour side by side. The Bone Flour stood as much the best of any I used liberally, I believe the Flour of Raw Bone will pay and pay well.

Reuben Latimer.

Powder Springs, Ga., Sept. 7, '68.

Oakley Mills Manufacturing Co.—Gentlemen: I have applied the Flour of Raw Bone on Cottonhills year and am happy to say it has given me entire satisfaction, that the Cotton is as good again when the Bone Dust is applied as when it was not put in the same field heavy. Bolls very full and is opening very fine. Surpasses any other fertilizer in opening early.

Very Respectfully,

Marion C. Kiser.

This is to certify, That I used 1 Ton of Flour of Raw Bone this year on my Cotton, and I am well pleased with it, and have this day bought one Ton to put on my Wheat—I think it will double the amount of Cotton, and will do better for wheat.

S. Axtel Morly.

Pursuant to ordered the above Flour of Raw Bone from Oakley Mills Manufacturing Co., Marietta last spring for Judge Mobly.

B. F. Hooper.
Floyd County.

Oakley Mills Man. Co.—Gentlemen: I here in give you the result of my experience with your Flour of Raw Bone on my corn crop.

Last April I bought from you 1 bl. of Bone Dust. I also bought about the same amount of Guano, and use 1 three quarters as follows: I soaked my seed corn about 24 hours in water and then rolled it in land plaster and planted the best land in the field with a table spoonful Guano to each hill of corn. I then planted the poorest part of the field with corn soaked as before rolled in land plaster and put at each hill about able spoonful of your Flour of Raw Bone. In the part of the field I left out the Guano in the hill, but only left one stalk to the hill where I had Guano. I am well satisfied that the land where I put "Flour of Bone" has at least 1/3 more corn on it than where I put the Guano, almost every stalk in the Bone Dust part of the field has a good ear of corn and there are two stalks to the hill.

I am so well satisfied with the Flour of Raw Bone, that I am now determined to use it hereafter in preference to Guano. And I invite any farmer to look at my corn and see if I am not right.

Yours Respectfully,

Abraham Cheek.

Ordinary's Office, Dec. 28, 1868.

P. S.—I have walked over the field of corn described in above and think the above statements are correct.

W. L. Mansfield.

W. L. Mansfield, Sec. O. M. M. Co.—Sir:—Having tried your Flour of Raw Bone on the present crop in justice to you, I have the pleasure of stating that I am satisfied—my use of it was a good investment. My corn stood the dry hot weather of last summer without withering or burning in the least. I used about 1 gill to the hill of corn, putting it on the seed corn before entering. From my experience I can confidently recommend your Raw Bone as a first rate fertilizer for corn and will take pleasure in showing my crop to any one who will visit my place 3 miles north of Marietta on the "Bell Ferry Road." I contemplate using your Raw Bone extensively on my wheat this fall.

Respectfully, A. S. Way.

To Oakley Mills Manufacturing Co.—I desire to say for the benefit of all concerned that I have planted eight acres of Cotton this year and put in the ground with the seed, eight barrels of your Bone Dust, one barrel per acre, part of the land very poor. The whole was planted between 15th and 17th of May. It is now the 20th of August, and I never saw such a farmer who saw it yesterday said that one acre of it would produce as much as three acres of any of the surrounding land.

Respectfully,

Joseph S. Clifton

Marietta, Ga., July 17th, 1868.

In justice to the Oakley Mills Manufacturing Co., I have much pleasure in giving the public my experience with their Flour of Raw Bone. I bought of them 200 pounds of Flour of Raw Bone, prepared it ground thoroughly. I turned it over in the fall, and this spring when I planted. I broke it tolerably deeply, and then laid off the guano in drills four feet apart and aimed to put the corn three feet in the drill, but in justice to the Bone Dust it is proper to state that planting was very imperfect, no account of my not being able to give it my personal attention. I had to employ two hands and the corn was not ready to hoe or the Bone Dust either.

The crop is a fine one myself. If it continues to rain as it has done good judges have estimated it to make eight barrels per acre, the ground was only tolerable, it was a fertilizer in our section. I presume no whole matter, both from practice and observation. I am fully satisfied that if it had been laid broad per cent in the corn crop in this county. I will state that I used about 125 pounds to the acre this year as I could. I also tried a few rows with stable manure. The corn came up and grew off vigorous by and bid fair for the above crop.

The Bone Dust, but as soon as dry weather came on and the last set in hence on it, it withered and the Bone Dust Stable Manure can't stand a drought with Bone Dust. I give this as my opinion after a fair trial. If you think this worth anything to the community you have my permission to make it public.

Yours Respectfully,

Humphrey Reid.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this extraordinary remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among nearly all nations of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, and has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protection against them. A good dose of it soon after exposure to cold and coughs, all in order forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the deep-seated affections of the throat and lungs. For the prevision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed, as they are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote.

Although settled consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease was supposed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. No remedy is in reality over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat. But the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marshy, or miasmatic districts.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Mercury, nor any other mineral or poisonous drug, it is entirely harmless on the most delicate patient. The record of its cures in the districts where Fever and Ague are justly dreaded abound, and we believe it has no rival in its power to cure these disorders. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive from all parts of the country, testifying to its complete and invariable success in curing the most obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

For Liver Complaints, arising from derangements of the Liver, Stomach, and Digestive Organs, or traveling through miasmatic districts, it is a specific remedy, producing, when taken as directed, a perfect cure.

For Liver Complaints, arising from derangements of the Liver, Stomach, and Digestive Organs, or traveling through miasmatic districts, it is a specific remedy, producing, when taken as directed, a perfect cure.

For Bilious Complaints, arising from the Derangement of the Liver, it is the most effectual remedy yet discovered.

For Dyspepsia and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing, when taken in small doses, a healthy action of the Liver, Stomach, and Bowels. Purify the blood, and restore health and vigor to the system. Under its use, Scrofulous Complaints, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, and Sores rapidly disappear, and the skin becomes clear and smooth.

STIRRING SOIL AROUND TREES.

The opening or lightening the soil around the roots of Trees, either in the Spring or fall, for the purpose of letting in warmth, and affording a freer medium for the expansion and development of the roots, is of great value in promoting the health and vigor of the tree.

All trees, whether fruit or ornamental, young or old, indigenous or exotic are vastly benefitted by this process.—In old orchards, the soil about the trunks of the trees, and to a considerable distance from them, in every direction, should be carefully broken, and the upper surface, to the depth of three or four inches, removed in the Spring, every four or five years. The eggs of the curculio and other insects are deposited in this stratum, and if not removed or destroyed, will produce insects, the ravages of which the succeeding year will be productive of far greater loss than the expense of removing the soil and replacing it with compost or loam. It is an utterly hopeless undertaking to attempt the cultivation of good fruit, when no measures are resorted to to obviate the fatal ravages of this detestable and insidious foe, and the remedy now suggested is by no means expensive, if we take into consideration the advantages otherwise resulting to the trees from its application.

Any good soil, taken from the open fields, or cultivated lands, may be used as a substitute for compost, and a very small quantity will suffice. Even if no fresh matter is applied, I would recommend the removal of the surface soil, and would replace it when convenient. Chip manure or old dung covered with straw, answers well for this purpose.—Cor. Germantown Telegraph.

DO NOT WASTE WINTER FOOD ON OLD OR INFERIOR STOCK.

[From the American Stock Journal.

Every farmer's motto in regard to stock, should be:—"Keep the best of each variety, and take the best care of it." Every farmer expects, or should expect, to make a profit on wintering stock; if he does not, why does he keep it? If an animal is worth no more in the spring then it was in the fall, there will have been a great waste of food in sustaining it through a long winter. In many cases the food, consumed through winter, would be worth more money than the animal in the spring.—In that case it would be better to have given the animal away, or to have killed it and sold the food; the labor of taking care of it might also have been turned to a better purpose.

This is a matter that needs looking into; for there are thousands of cattle wintered every year, that are not worth any more money in the spring than they were in the autumn—many of them not so much. Why do such farmers follow the business? They will tell you that they "don't know any thing else." Very true; and they don't know much about that! They are too self-conceited to read an Agricultural Journal—they don't believe in "book farming." Well, the tree is known by its fruit." A man who understands farming and has the energy to execute what he knows will make money by it. Here is the great touchstone to try his knowledge by, and it is an unerring one.

Farming is the foundation on which all other branches of industry is based, and when money can be made by any other branch of industry, money can be made by farming, if it is intelligently and energetically pursued. The profits will sometimes be greater than others. So it is with all other branches; but the intelligent, energetic farmer will always be successful. The old fogy farmer, who jogs along in the well beaten path of his ancestors, with a prejudice against reading, Agricultural Works or adopting any new mode of farming, or stock raising, cannot compete with his more intelligent neighbor, who subscribes to, and reads the current agricultural literature of the day, and profits by so much of it as may be adapted to his locality and surrounding circumstances.

A poor farmer cannot conceal the fact that he is a poor farmer. All his surroundings proclaim the verdict against him: His horses, cattle, wagons, harness, plows, fences, fields—even his wife and children bear silent, but unmistakable evidence against him. On the other hand, all these things will testify favorably on behalf of a good farmer. Every passer by can read this evidence pro or con. Thus fact, alone, ought to stimulate every farmer to do his best, for the sake of his own character, as well as interest; for he may rest assured that every passer by will pronounce judgment according to the evidence.

☞ The Post asks if it ought not to "give thanks to God" for the election to which the Norwich Advertiser responds—"No, no—give the devil his due."

SUGGESTIVE.

The following advice tendered by the Tribune to the young men of New York is not without value to our own people. We are in a new social and industrial era; the current of life has changed and is again on the flood; the wise it will wait on to fortune:

"But there is a very large class in this and every other great city who might improve their prospects by migrating, and who ought to make the attempt. We allude to the great body of our mechanics, retail traders, clerks, book-keepers, &c., who have some means ahead, but who find it difficult to add thereto by strict economy, because their families have grown so large that rent, food and clothing, absorb all they can earn. There are tens of thousands of these—heads of families, who could leave the City next Spring with, $1,000 to $5,000 each—yet who cling to the pavements because they can see no way to do better. This large and worthy class, we say emphatically, You can do better! Let us briefly show how:

One hundred such might combine their means and send one or more of their number to select and buy land; whether in the West or the South—we will suppose the latter. Ten thousand acres of land lying in a body, and consisting of one to five or six old slave plantations, may be bought for $30,000 to $100,000—the dearest probably, but not necessarily, the cheapest. Be sure that the tract is healthy, well timbered and well watered—that it includes at least one good water-power, and adjoins a railroad or navigable stream. Take along the cash to pay for it all down, and be very certain that the title is unquestionable. Survey the entire purchase into lots, after selecting the best site for a village, and fix a day when each lot will be sold at auction to the highest cash bidder, no matter whether a member of the company or not. Allow each member who shall have contributed to the purchase-money ten per cent. premium for his advance, and let certificates for the money thus advanced be received as cash in payment for any lots purchased, whether by members or others. Reserve such tracts as may be needed for public uses, and sell all the rest for cash only, taking care that timber and tillage are so divided that whoever will may buy either or both.

We are confident that such a company, buying and dividing a tract on this plan, and making one contract for the passage of their families and the conveyance of their goods, might be located next March or April on homesteads that would be worth at least double their cost, with a fair prospect of a steady increase in value. Every member who is a carpenter, mason, cabinet-maker, painter, &c., would find ample employment at his trade, in building and furnishing the houses that would be needed; while hundreds of choppers, sawyers, diggers, plowmen, gardeners, &c., &c., would be wanted, with grocers, general merchants, a lawyer, doctor, teachers, and hundreds more of workers in various capacities. He must be a poor stick who could not find some paying employment in such a colony; and, while wages would be lower than here, rent, food, and fuel would not cost half as much. There would of course be some drones, grumblers, and good-for-nothings; but these would soon drift away, leaving the settlement the better for their absence.

There are fifty thousand places in the South—to say nothing here of the West —where such settlements might be made to advantage; and there are at least one hundred thousand families in twenty millions of us who might improve their circumstances by helping to make them. And any company might agree on a treasurer in whose hands their money would be perfectly safe until required to pay for their purchases."

SHEDS AND SHELTER.

Warm, comfortable quarters for stock, will save food. They require no more to resist the cold storms. In fact this evident to every one? Why, then, is so much stock exposed to the pitiless storms? It is always at the expense of the owner, either in the life of animals, or in the extra food to sustain them.—And, how merciless to see the shivering stock, with nothing but fence corners to protect them, when the rain and sleet are pouring down. We shiver to contemplate it. And yet, not half of our stock is protected.

By all means, kind man, builds barns, stables, sheds, or something, to keep your suffering stock warm. Now is a good time. A merciful man is merciful to his beast.

HOURS FOR STUDY.

An important change is about to be made in the system of educating children in Germany. The authorities have determined to shorten the lessons in the classes. They have decided that three or four hours of good mental study, without tasks in the afternoon, will produce results than the old system of study, from morning to night, will be well if the hours of study are equally divided in our schools. The change will not only dwarf the intellectual, but ages the physical health. Instead of one half of the day be devoted to the acquiring of book-knowledge, let only one half to the gaining of bodily vigor.

And, in order to do this, the study must not be so long and hard as to encroach upon the afternoon. Let the boy go after supper ought to be free to devote to study—leaving the whole evening for some pleasant game or conversation—and, in the case of young or weak children, for sleep. Some of these views are, it is almost impossible to make teachers conform to them.

One word more. If German children should thus not be overworked, much more is it true of American children. The stimulation of the brain and nervousness of this country is something terrible. And we must encourage the physical in order to counteract the result of our social and political education, by every rational means in our power.—Rural New Yorker.

YOUNG MEN.

The following piece, although selected, we most respectfully dedicate to the "Young Men" of Marietta, to read, to ponder and to put in practice; for it contains some wholesome truths and cuts forth practical advice. Remember, "as you are a boy, so will you be a man."

"It should be the aim of young men to go into good society; we do not mean the rich nor the proud, or the fashionable, but the society of the wise, the intelligent, and the good. Where you find men who know more than you do, and from whose conversation you can gather information, it is always safe to be found.

It has broken down many a man by associating with the low and vulgar, where the ribald song was inculcated, and the indecent story told, to excite laughter or influence the bad passions. Lord Clarendon, attributed successful happiness in life to association with persons more learned and virtuous than ourselves. If you wish to be wise and respected, and desire happiness and not misery, we advise you to associate with the intelligent and good. Strive for excellence and strict integrity, and you will never be found in the ranks of pollution, or on the benches of revilers and grumblers. Once habituate yourselves to a virtuous course, once secure a love for good society, and no punishment would be greater than by accident to be obliged for a half a day, to associate with the low and vulgar."

WORKING GIRLS.

"Happy girls! who cannot love them with cheeks like rose, bright eyes and elastic step, hie cheerfully they go to work. Our reputation for it, such girls will make excellent wives. Blessed indeed will those men be who secure such prizes. Contrast those who do nothing but sigh all day, and live to follow the fashions, who never earn the bread they eat, or the shoes they wear; who are languid and lazy from one week's end to another. Who but a simpleton and pupinjay would prefer one of the latter if he were looking for a companion?—Give us the working girls, they are worth their weight in gold. You never see them mincing along, or jump a dozen feet to steer clear of a spider or a fly; they have no affectation or silly airs about them. When they meet you, they speak without putting on a dozen silly airs, and trying to show off to better advantage, and you feel as though you were talking to a human being and not to a painted automaton or a fallen angel.

If girls knew how sadly they mimic while endeavoring to show off their delicate hands, unsoiled skins, and putting on a thousand airs, they would give words for the situation of working ladies, who are as far above them in intelligence, in honor, in everything as the heavens are above the earth.

So wise then, you who have made fools of yourself through life. Turn over a new leaf and begin, though late, to live and act as human beings, companions to mortal man, and not playthings and dolls. In no other way can you be happy and subserve the designs of your existence."

—Never marry a fop, or one who struts about dandy-like, in kid gloves, canes, and rings on his fingers. Beware! there is a trap!

Shade Trees.

The present season is the most suitable for setting out shade trees and we hope all will take advantage of the opportunity. The first action of our newly elected municipal officers should be to have shade trees set out around the side-walks and in the Park, for there is nothing that can so enhance the beauty and loveliness of a city, as passable sidewalks and they properly shaded. It not only speaks, but illustrates, that we are a people of good taste and judicious judgement.

The Marietta Female College.

Our Advertising columns announce the location, organization and immediate opening of this Institution. With a city so quiet, orderly, and refined as Marietta; with material advantages so genial and health-inspiring, as its location affords; the opening of such an Institution, under the guardianship of prominent citizens and sustained by the good-will of all our people—must mark an important era in our educational advantages and general prosperity.

The gentleman selected as President, Col. J. T. MONTGOMERY is widely known, in connection with kindred Institutions—is of ripe experience, and a successful Teacher. We may add that the entire Faculty is in every respect worthy of the highest confidence.

We trust that the opening of this Institution will give an impetus to educational progress which will render our city as attractive and prosperous as its natural advantages demand.

Sunday School Convention.

The Superintendents, Teachers and Pupils of the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian Churches, assembled at the former Church on last Sabbath evening the 10th inst. The Church was crowded to its utmost capacity, rendering it difficult to procure seats for many in attendance. Col. George N. Lester was appointed to the Chair. After which the exercises were opened with prayer and singing. Mr. Wm. King and Rev. Wm. L. Mansfield delivered addresses, on a previously selected subject, in a forcible and impressive manner. And we believe all who spent their time in being present on this occasion, were amply compensated in the instruction given.

There is no city in the South, of its size and population, that has more efficient Superintendents and flourishing Sabbath Schools, than Marietta. This is truly gratifying and speaks well for us as a people. And we trust that the new year may be rich in blessings to all our Sunday Schools, and that the dark clouds which now hang over us may be driven away by a glorious sunburst of happiness and rich rewards to each and all.

Justices of the Peace.

On last Saturday morning the 2nd inst immediately after the polls were opened for the election of Justices of the Peace, J. A. Tolleson, Esq. who had opposed the holding of the election on the grounds of its illegality under the new Constitution, wrote to the Executive Department on the subject and the following answer will doubtless put a quietus to the subject. It will be seen that his view of the law was right.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
State of Georgia;
ATLANTA GA., January 4th, 1869.

J. A. Tolleson, Esq. Marietta Ga.—Sir:—In reply to yours of the 2nd inst. I have the honor to say, in the absence of His Excellency the Governor, that there is no law, authorizing the election of Justices of the Peace and that such election, before further legislation, will be held invalid by this Department.

Respectfully Yours,

Proceedings of Council.

A meeting of the Council for the present year was held on Wednesday evening, the Mayor elect, Dr. Geo. W. Cleland having been sworn in Office, made the following few remarks to Council:

Gentlemen:—By the vote of the citizens of Marietta, I have been elected Mayor of your city for the ensuing year; selected from among others more worthy than myself, and who doubtless would have reflected more credit upon the position, and notwithstanding the many fears to the contrary, I hope with an eye single to the faithful discharge of my duties, aided by your wise council, to be adequate to the trust committed to me. These Gentlemen, are new duties to me, and should I encounter difficulties and obstacles, I shall look to you, as experienced Municipal Officers for advice to enable me to surmount them. I desire gentlemen, your hearty co-operation, that by our united efforts, we may place Marietta where she justly deserves to be—the Pride of Georgia.

An election was then held for city Officers for the year 1869, which resulted as follows:

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

Farmers you ought to have read the article in the Journal of the 8th inst., copied from the "American Stock Journal" on "Rural Economy," but as I am afraid you did not read that article I want to remind you of one or two important facts mentioned therein, namely, that if you constantly gather crops from your land and put nothing back to enrich the soil it must after a while become impoverished. The next fact I quote from the writer before mentioned is that by proper care and industry you can raise in your barn yard and stables all the requisite ingredients to make your soil what it was at first except one and that one article which you cannot obtain in the barn yard or stable is bone. Your straw, your hay, your fodder, your grain and the leaves of the forest which you should haul in to be rotted and commingled with the urine and excrement from the animals gives you back every ingredient you have taken off the land except the bone and this is a very important and valuable part of the strength of the soil. Now then a fact not mentioned in the article already referred to viz: The bone can be had in its purity. The very thing that your land needs and that you cannot make at home is to be found at the Warehouse of Oakley Mills Manufacturing Company, Marietta, Ga., for $75 per ton and you will do your land and your pocket a great injustice if you do not obtain a fair proportion of this much valued article to mix with your other manures.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

FRIGHTENED TO DEATH.

One of our exchanges relates that a gentleman on going home observed in his yard a cat, with head, tail, and hair erect, every nerve trembling with excitement, looking intently at a hen which was sitting in the grass, its head also erect, looking at the cat. The cat approached cautiously and slowly to the hen. When about three feet from the chicken, and about to spring upon it, the gentleman rushed to the rescue and drove away the cat. The hen fell over on her side insensible, was picked up, carried into the house, and died in fifteen minutes.

This is as credible as an incident related to us by a friend, somewhat of a sportsman, the other day. He says that while out hunting a short time ago he "treed" a rabbit in the angle of a stone wall, where the animal was held by the dog at one angle and the sportsman at the other, so that escape was well nigh impossible. The hunter fired, but with a very unsteady aim, and the rabbit rolled over dead. On examination not a mark of injury could be found; and even when skinned and carefully dissected it was found that not a single shot had touched the animal. The poor rabbit had been frightened to death.—Scientific American.

How insensibly, when we enter the marvellous, do we pass into the incredible. We can add a story to the above told to us by our genial friend Dr. C——now of Middle Georgia. In one of his professional visits at the house of a planter given to field sports and pointer dogs, he was one day asked by him—"Doctor did I ever tell you the story of my Pointer dog?" The Doctor was about to reply when the good lady of the house interposing said, "Oh, yes, you told the Doctor." "I don't think I did," replied the husband. The facts, Doctor, are these. I went out hunting with my dog, and lost him. I had the whole country searched and was obliged to give it up. Well, three weeks later I was passing through one of my fields and I saw my dog in the attitude of pointing. I approached him and what do you think? He was stone dead.—The strangest thing about it was that I looked in the direction he was pointing and there was a partridge gazing at him. I approached it and it was dead too. The dog waited for me until he perished and the bird was afraid to fly.—MARIETTA JOURNAL.

WHO ARE YOUR COMPANY?—"He that walketh with wise men shall be wise, but a companion of fools shall be destroyed."

It is said to be a property of the tree frog that it acquires the color of whatever it adheres to for a short time. Thus, when found on growing corn, it is commonly a dark green. If found on white oak, it has the color peculiar to that tree. Just so it is with a man. Tell whom you choose as your companions and I will tell who you are. Do you love the society of the vulgar? Then you are like them in your sentiments.

WANT OF RESPECT.—When a stranger treats me with want of respect, said a philosophic poor man, "I comfort myself with the reflection that it is not myself he slights, but my old and shabby coat and hat, which, to say the truth, have no particular claim to admiration. So, if my hat and coat choose to fret about it, let them—but it is nothing to me."

MEN marry for fortune, and sometimes to please their fancy; but, much oftener than is suspected, they consider what the world will say of it,—how such a woman in their friends' eyes will look at the head of a table. Hence we see so many insipid beauties made wives of, that could not have struck the particular fancy of any man that had any fancy at all. These I call furniture wives; as men buy furniture pictures, because they suit this or that niche in their dining-parlors.

FLATTERY is a safe coin which our vanity has made current, and which will never be out of credit as long as there are knaves to offer it, and fools to receive it.

EMIGRATION SOUTHWARD.

Not the least among the results of the late civil war is the increased knowledge of the resources and natural advantages of soil, climate and productions of the South. While slavery existed, an almost unaccountable amount of ignorance on this subject prevailed among the mass of the people living at the North, coupled with an equal amount of prejudice, growing out of the systematic misrepresentation made by the opponents of the institution of slavery both religious and political. For many years this crusade against slavery had the effect of keeping out of its limits nearly all of the surplus population of the North, as well as that of Europe, who sought our shores, and who were imbued with a feeling of repugnance to that section of the country mainly on account of the "institution." Added to this, the idea prevailed extensively that the successful cultivation of the products of the South could only be accomplished by negro labor—cotton, sugar, rice and tobacco—and that the white men of Northern Europe and America were constitutionally incapable of enduring the labor of producing these articles in such a climate.

The slave system of labor also prevented the planters from seeking, or in any way encouraging an influx of white laborers, as the two were, to a certain extent, antagonistic; while on the part of the whites a reluctance to place themselves on an apparent level with the blacks had much to do with the absence of a white laboring agricultural people in the South. Hence the broad and fertile territory of the Northwest, much of which was thrown open to freedom and cultivation by the mother of States, Virginia, being free from the objections which presented themselves in the South, rich and cheap, were naturally and eagerly sought for by their labor, and by perseverance and frugality, have become rich and powerful. Their wilderness has been converted into a fruitful garden, and their influence is felt throughout the world.

The late war having resulted in the abolition of slavery and compulsory labor, has been the means, at the same time, of opening up to the world the boundless resources of the country, in soil and varied productions, its water courses and mill privileges, its mineral wealth and genial climate; all now free from the objection once urged or thought to exist there. Land is good, plenty and cheap. The old plan of colossal plantations is vanishing with the system of labor which called them into existence, and an entirely different social status is being inaugurated. There is an abundance of valuable timber, its water courses furnish an inexhaustible supply of power for mechanical and manufacturing purposes; its mines of coal, iron and copper and gold, are capable of yielding an abundant supply of these necessary and precious metals. With the modern improvements in agricultural implements, the cultivation of the staples has been brought within easy range for white labor, and must prove remunerative to all who engage in the business.

The prosperity and perpetuity of this country, as a whole, depends in a great degree on the development of all its parts; and there is every reason to believe that when we shall have peace we shall have prosperity, that the crushing hand of a despotic government will be removed and its fostering care bestowed instead; that party resentment and strife will be abandoned, and that the whole South will rise refreshed and invigorated; and with an industrious population again take its once proud position in the nation where intellect shall not be abused nor ignorance exalted. When the Ku Klux myth shall be forgotten, and the carpet-baggers shall make room for the sturdy sons of toil; when the white man shall rule under the Jeffersonian motto of "Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever persuasion, religious or political;" when fanaticism shall be banished the land, or confined to its original limits, then unmolested labor shall meet its just reward.

UNRAVELLING.—A man coming home late one night, a little more than "half seas over," feeling thirsty, procured a glass of water and drank it. In doing so, he swallowed a small ball of silk, that lay in the bottom of the tumbler, the end catching in his teeth. Feeling something in his mouth, and not knowing what it was, he began pulling at the end, and, the little ball unrolling, he soon had several feet in his hands, and still no end, apparently. Terrified, he shouted, at the top of his voice, "Wife! wife! I say wife! come here! I am unravelling."

You had better send a fox unarmed and helpless into the wilderness of ferocious wild animals, than into the world without education.

A FIRST-CLASS ROMANCE IN ONE

All about a Mysterious Farmer and his Mysterious Farm Hands.

From the Xenia Gazette.]

Not many miles from Xenia resides a wealthy land-holder, or rather a model farmer. His prosperity during the last twelve years has often been the comment of his neighbors, and observing ones have wondered from whence he has obtained the means with which he had added farm to farm and acre to acre until he holds upward of two thousand acres of the best land in the State of Ohio.

Some ten years since, we have lately been informed, there appeared at the farmer's door a young and stalwart youth who asked, and readily obtained, employment. Although ignorant at first of the duties on a farm, he applied himself, and in a short time became an adept farmer. He took as much interest in the affairs of the farmer who engaged him as did the farmer himself.

When the month of December came, the first one after his advent on the farm he informed the family that he would absent himself during the winter, but would return in early spring and work another year. He brought two trunks when he came there the preceding spring, the contents of which had never been displayed. These he left with the farmer with the simple precautionary remark to "never allow them to be disturbed, or, at least, unless it should be absent two years." If gone longer, they were at liberty to open and appropriate their contents. He carried nothing away with him except the suit he had on, nor did he accept the summer's wages when tendered by the farmer. He took his note payable in five years, and left.

April of the following year came, and the wonder of the family over the youth's strange proceedings was still fresh, when one plea ant morning they were all gladly surprised to see their help again. He brought a large trunk, similar to one of the two he had left there, during the winter. The ensuing year the young man and the farmer became greatly attached. In August the farmer privileged an adjoining farm, and paid for it in cash.

When the year's work was completed, again were the incidents of the preceding year repeated. The young man took another note, left his trunk and went away. He only cautioned the farmer's family, as before, regarding his three trunks.

When April came around again our hero returned. In May following, the farmer purchased another adjoining farm of one hundred acres and paid for it in cash. This going away and returning continued for the last ten years up to the present December. Each year the farmer purchased more land. Every year, in December, the farmer's help left him, taking the farmer's note, and every following April he returned. He never took trunk nor baggage away, but always brought more when he returned.

Last week the help, now grown to manhood, strong and sturdy in mind and frame, left the farmer, took away all his accumulated baggage, and returned the several notes the farmer had given him—made a present of them to a child of the farmer. The evening before his departure he informed his friends, who had learned to love him, of the secret which he had so long kept to himself.—He was a wealthy orphan. Doctors had told him, at the age of fifteen, that he could not live to become of age. He at once left an eastern boarding-school and came out here to the farmer's home. He returned and studied during the winter, became interested in seeing the farmer increase his domains, and invested the money with which the additions were made. The trunks contained the fashionable clothing he wore during the winter months. Secrecy regarding the money received by him had been enjoined upon the farmer during all the ten years; now he is released to do or tell all, or little, as he pleases.

The promised consumptive was saved, the aggravations of disease dispelled, and, having grown to be healthy and robust, was satisfied with the ten years effort to prevent his becoming an invalid for life. It was almost useless for the farmer to attempt to express his gratitude unbounded as it was, to orphans. He thinks of him now as a benefactor and a son, and looks on his broad acres and can hardly realize that they are his. Were we to give the name of the young man many of our readers would at once be convinced of the truth of the above. This we are forbidden to do for the present.

"THE arrangements of nature are admirable!" exclaimed a young lady during the late high winds. "The same wind that disarranges our crinolines, blows dust into the eyes of the wicked young men who would take advantage of our confusion." Truly a philosophical young lady, that.

It is a practical Journal of Industrial Progress and must prove of great value to all engaged in the useful arts. We are pleased to see a work conducted so ably and find so much information. The articles in the Number before us relate to Bridge Building, Architecture, Carpenters, Paints and Painting, the preservation of Wood, improvement in Saws, &c., &c. H. W. Beecher is a regular contributor of some articles of interest to working men.

☞ No MATTER WHAT it WANTED—no where you see it advertised, or, if not advertised of all, send to A. C. H. WITCH, General Agent, Atlanta, Ga.—See his advertisement of "The Magic Comb" in our "Extra" this week.

Mr. Witch has Something new for ladies use exclusively, which cannot be fully advertised in the public press, yet ladies need have no hesitancy in writing to him for a circular fully describing it.

☞ In Arkansas "horrors upon horrors accumulate." The spoliations, crime and oppression of which we spoke last week continues and barbarism can hardly parallel the atrocities perpetrated.—Surely some effort will be made to restore order and security to this distracted State.

COTTON KING AGAIN.

The New York Commercial Advertiser is of the opinion that cotton bids fair to mount its throne again. Arguing that the crop will realize to the South between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 it says that this sum will not have to be made over to factors who in former years took the lion's share. It will not have to be expended for doctor's bills, incurred by sick and infirm negroes; or to maintain a large floating population of slaves in comparative idleness until the planting season again begins. Huge store bills will not have to be met with enormous profits—planters supported large bodies of slaves—The whole amount can be appropriated to the recuperation and regeneration of the region desolated by the iron heel of war, and in a very few years at the farthest the South will be on her feet again.

Cotton is thus once more to become King, a king with free subjects, rich and powerful, and independent of all foreign dynasties. The Southern people can now, that slave labor has disappeared, almost indefinitely increase their cotton resources. And to this end they should do all in their power to attract Northern capitalists thither, who, bringing with them Yankee energy, enterprise, and resources, will prove of invaluable aid and assistance in developing and pushing forward Southern prosperity.

☞ No BUSINESS TO BE INDIANS.—Some of the Democratic papers are shocked at the accounts of Custar's massacre of the Cheyennes. It seems-no quarter was given except the quarter granted by the highlanders. "Quarter pe," said he "ye mun be content to be cutit in halves." Among the slain were scores of little pappooses of all ages, and, in short, Custar took for his pattern the operations of the children of Israel among the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Jebusites and the Perisites." Respared neither woman nor child, but smote them from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same. Cause your sensibilities! Have you ever considered the apology of the negro for beating his mule? "Sarve him right, suzan, what business had he to be a mule?" What business had these little infant Cheyennes to be Indians? They should have been niggers. Then they would have had equal rights—suffrage—freedmen's bureau, and all that sort of thing. But being only Indians their throats were cut, as a matter of course.—Macon Telegraph.

☞ The Confederate Memorial Concerts have been very successful and highly appreciated in all the large Georgia Cities.

Washington, Jan. 18—The Virginia Committee in body, accompanied by other Virginians and Gen. Schofield, visited Grant. Conversation turned on business of Committee, and Grant, who showed himself familiar with the Underwood Constitution, expressed himself in favor of a speedy settlement. The interview was of some duration, and the Committee expressed themselves as being highly satisfied. They afterwards visited the President.

GRATIFYING.—We are gratified to hear that the Memorial Concert, in Columbus, on Thursday night, was successful. Our information being that $1,000 was realized. The Concert in Macon will probably come off about the middle of next week.—Jour. & Mes.

ATLANTA, Jan. 16.—In the House a motion to rescind the act unseating colored members, and that they be reinstated, was lost by a large majority.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be employed for the more dangerous and fatal forms of consumption. Indeed, so complete is the subjugation against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand by every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with the antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health, by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of those here, as the most that assure the public that its qualities are fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Periodical Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Mercury, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no case injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in chalkiest cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or traveling through miasmatic districts, will be protected by taking the Ague-Cure daily.

For Bilious Disorders, and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all around the world.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has been found the greatest antidote to pulmonary disease that the skill of man has ever compounded, and the power to save the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient reduced to sound health by the use of this remedy. No one can take it according to over the directions of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, and miasmatic poisons.

As to its complaints, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The great importance of the cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe it almost a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the Federal cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. The general health is invariably restored by thoroughly expelling the malarious poison, and by protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

A LEGEND OF LOST MOUNTAIN.

BY ESCROTAIRE.

Many years ago before the feet of the snow faced people had trod the peaceful forest of Cherokee Georgia, there dwelt near the northern banks of the Chattahoochee, and old Indian chief, with his only daughter Willio, the favored child of the powerful Cherokees.

Willio from her infancy was beautiful and wise, and the sweet thoughtfulness of womanhood had crowned her tender years; she ceased to come to her fathers call, but wandering far away in the forest dells, would linger for hours, unsought for, and alone.

Such waywardness, vexed old Siloga, who had always indulged his child in her self-will 'til this, and as this change came over her mind he resolved to ascertain the cause if within his power.

In a playful manner he reproached her for this wandering, but she replied not. Fearful of some dire result, the old chief's eyes watched her, and ere the day-god had climbed the eastern hills, he detected her in the act of departure; allowing her to leave the wigwam, unperceived, as she thought, he followed her.

Soon the old chief's wakeful ears detects the faint sound of footsteps, and the next moment a little form springs in the path by Willio's side, and reveals the form of one, of the hated tribe, the rival Creeks.

The old Siloga's eyes gleamed and he quickly withdrew and returned to camp. Summoning his warriors, who were gathering as thick as the spirit eyes which look down from heaven at night, they pursued them, and soon the dark forests resounded with the battle cry of the vengeful Cherokees.

To the steep ascent of the hills near by, the wily Creek led Willio, and as she bends her eager ear to catch the returning sound of her pursuers, an arrow pierces the dense foliage of the mountain oak strikes the flying Creek, springing high in the air, he falls dead at the feet of Willio; at the same moment after her father springs through the crevices of the mountain rocks. Willio turns and flees, pursued by her old father, who calls in vain for her to return; up the steep ascent she runs, and Siloga in pursuit. The daring warriors attempt to follow, but in vain. Leaving Siloga in pursuit of his child, they return to camp and await his return. Days pass by, and he comes not, and the disheartened warriors start in search. O'er the mountain they journey, and after the first days hunt they find them, but their souls have unmoored the phantom bark, that bears their souls to the happy hunting grounds, and they both lie dead 'neath a sheltering oak, that seems to stretch its sheltering arms o'er the loved and lost. Lost among the dense foliage, the thickly growing oaks, that cover this lonesome hill, they wandered for many days unable to return, and at last their hearts grown heavy, their spirits dull and sluggish, their courage departed, and they lain down to die, and when the weary warriors after a long days search had found them, their spirits had just fled.

To-day, the happy maidens of our sunny land, gambol on the mountain side and houses spring up almost magically where once the beautiful Willio pined. Almost all traces of this legend have departed, but to this day the old settlers and hardy mountaineers of Cherokee Georgia, still persist in calling this beautiful hill the name of "Lost Mountain."

Two prisoners who recently escaped from an Illinois jail, afford a remarkable instance of thoughtfulness in a moment of success. After having gagged and bound the jailor and rolled him into their cell, they kindly put a pillow under his head, and spread a blanket over him and told him if he wanted any thing to ring the bell.

TO THE FARMERS OF THE SOUTH.

[From the Southern Cultivator.]

Editors Southern Cultivator:—Will you allow me some space in your journal to offer a few words to my brother farmers of the "sunny South!"

Brethren, what are we to learn from all the sources, by which we can arrive at a true estimate of the agricultural products of the present year? Are not the present high prices a good criterion to judge from?

Wheat, oats, rye and other cereals have been harvested. The corn crop is made, if not gathered. The cotton crop is already judged. Is there enough small grain to supply the great mass of consumers? Will corn command a high or a low price.

These are questions to be pondered well and not to be lightly judged of.

Is there a full crop of cotton? No, and a blessed thing too, it is for the planter. Herein, we should learn a wise lesson, "What man would not do for himself God has done for him." Neighbor, will you have any flour to sell your less fortunate brother? Did you provide an early pasture for your pockers, by planting peas early, and having a large eye field for them? Remember rye does not rot, nor will it germinate before its proper season, which is in the fall. Did you plant field peas in your corn fields? If not, you should have done so, for all who have tried them know how well they pay. Get the best pea, and one that will withstand the rains of fall. They are of incalculable value for hogs and milch cows.

Many plant largely of the ground pea which is better than corn to fatten hogs upon. Have you plenty planted this year? "I fear I will not have corn enough to do me. I did not plant much this year, and then it was so dry in the summer, I came near making a failure. Cotton brings a good price, and I can buy corn." So you can, and probably have the pleasure of hauling it ten or fifteen miles. Do you suppose your mules will be in good working order, when your corn crib is far from home? Poor brutes, I pity your condition and your masters too. How much money did you ever make, raising cotton upon an uncertain price, and buying corn at high prices? Have you got the figures to show me? You have got to buy meat too, have you?

Why then did you allow all that land to lie waste, when you could have just as easily sown it in rye, or planted it in field peas? My friends, you must "pay for your whistle." You must pay exhorbitant prices for what you buy. Go to work and remedy this crying evil. You are the cause of this monopoly yourself. Do not heap imprecations upon produce dealers, for doing things you, yourselves, are the prime cause of.

I am not an advocate of high prices, by any means, but I think it but right that each have his just dues. You may think you cannot raise wheat, corn and meat sufficient for your own consumption. You can do it, if you but will to do it. Perhaps you will ask how you are to do it. I will tell you before I am done.

Unless there is a better system adopted, more concert of action, a greater working together among the farmers of this country, you will ever see the actual necessities of life, commanding fabulous prices. There must be concert of action among planters, or we will ever fall far short of success.

Without a due regard to the farming interest of the South, her planters will ever remain in abject slavery to outside monopolists. We never can cope with our Western brethren, so long as we follow the old and the ruinous mode of farming. If we wish to boast of fine horses and cattle, we must make a change. The climate of this latitude cannot be urged against us.

I know I have opened here a broad field for argument. Then let it come. Our machinery is greatly out of order, and, unless we speedily repair it, I fear we will have a fearful collapse. Do not the merchants act in concert? Is your calling in life less profitable, less honorable, than the merchant's?

Organizations are good things, when based upon proper objects. Then organize into clubs, in every district, county and State. Hold—promiscuous fairs in every county and State, annually.—If you will but adopt this plan, you will see greater activity among farmers than was ever seen before in this country.—We would do well to profit by the example of the West.

Mr. Editor, doubtless you are becoming wearied with this letter, but I beg a little more indulgence "and I am done." I must now bring your attention to the last and most important subject of this letter.

"King Cotton," the hoary monarch, sits triumphantly upon his throne.—Notwithstanding the many powerful efforts that have been made to dethrone him, he still sways his mighty sceptre of avarice and fraud over the devoted heads of the farmers. And he will conquer yet, if there is not a herculean effort made to depose him from his throne. Shall we subdue him, and trample him beneath our feet, never to rise again? Oh, no. Let us not seek to bringing him to our terms, and speak to him, "thus far and no farther." He is a powerful ruler, and will require our greatest energies to overcome his alluring smiles. But for once, we must dishonor his head, "and board him in his den." Upon this great king millions have been made, (not by farmers,) and millions have been lost, (by farmers).—For a moment, think of the cotton crop of 1866. How did the figures rule? Again, that of 1867. What a vast difference in the prices of those two years. And why? In '66 there was but a small crop; consequently, prices ruled high. Last year, there was an average crop made; consequently the price of cotton was low.

Do you remember your little "money wallets," "and the fullness thereof," for your labor in raising that crop? How about those "cotton seed ear" lots bought upon cotton, and did after wards bloat of their thousands, made by buying cotton. From whom did they make those "thousands?" From the poor, despised farmer. Are you willing, still, to be the dupes of the wily speculator, and impoverish yourself? Shake off the shackles of cotton bondage and be free-men.

The partial failure of the present crop is a blessing to the farmer. If you would do justice to your poor stock, your impoverished farms and bankrupt country, you would profit by the failure of the present crop. There is no plausible reason why we should not receive just and due rewards for our labor, in the cultivation of cotton. The greater the supply, the less the demand, and the less the supply, the greater the demand. We should keep the supply limited, if we wish to prosper. Plant less cotton and manure well. Resolve to plant no more than you can manure to advantage and cultivate properly. Plant as much corn as you can, upon your best land. Likewise, the same of small grain.—Have fewer drafts, or warehouse acceptances, to meet the first of November, for provisions for the present crop, and my word for it, you will be richer in point of wealth, with due economy, in five years, than you could be with the old system of slavery again in vogue.

I. J. THOMAS.

Macon, Ga., Oct., 1868.

FASHION:—Dressing as milliners, mantuamakers and tailors dictate, regardless of good taste or common sense; the willing slaves of those who invent styles of dress that they may fleece the rich, tickle the vanity of the light headed, and give fashionable young ladies and gentlemen something to talk about. It has become a power as invisible and as despotic as the oracles of old; and the rich and independent are the most eager to worship at her altars; and others with more pride than judgment and at the expense of the necessaries of life, are seen kneeling there also. They who follow the fickle Goddess of Fashion, unless blessed with an endless purse, will in silence and sadness shed many a tear of bitter disappointment. An unfashionable bonnet, dress or pin is to many a more grievous sin, than the neglect of daily prayer or filial obedience. One would not object to the prevalent notion that whatever is fashionable is right, if the leaders of the mode, would contrive that whatever is right should be fashionable.—Recorder.

A young lady who resides at Oxford, an academy in Western New York, wrote an order to a publisher recently in which she had spelt the words very badly. She apologized by adding a postscript, as follows: "You must excuse this letter, as I pla bi neat, but spoil bi ear."

A minister was walking out one day, and passed two little boys, one of whom made a bow. As he turned back he heard the following amusing conversation:

"Why, John didn't you know that was Parson H——?"

"Yes, of course I did."

"Why did you not make a bow to him?"

"Why, mother don't belong to his church."

A Chicago preacher has been pointing out "The Way to Hell." A wicked contemporary adds: "Persons desiring a complete guide to Chicago should purchase the sermon."

If I am not so happy as I desire, it is well I am not so miserable as I deserve. I have received much more good than ever I have done, and done more evil than I have ever suffered.

[FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

☞ I am gratified to report that the entertainment given by young Ladies and Gentlemen at Nichols' Hall under direction of Mr. J. S. Nichols, and the Supper arranged and provided through the agency of Mrs. Winn and Miss Treevant has brought into the Treasury of the Marietta Free School the sum total of $116.65, to wit:

From the Supper	$41.65
" " Tableaux Exhibition	69.00
Gold Ring Sold	6.00

In behalf of the School I most heartily thank all those who have thus contributed to the intellectual development of the children under my care.

In addition to other pleasant things I add that a very nice dining party was enjoyed at the School room to day by seventy one pupils. This dinner was furnished from the bountiful supper table arranged in the Hall on the evening of the exhibition.

Once more I say, to the citizens of Marietta, thank you for your kind appreciation in behalf of the young.

Respectfully,
W. L. MANSFIELD, Superintendent.

Marietta, Ga., Jan. 26th, 1869.

P. S.—I will add that I have received a donation of a car load of wood this week from Mr. E. Hulbert, Superintendent of the W. & A. Railroad.

The Tableaux.

We know not of the time, when we have spent a more pleasant and agreeable evening than the one of the 25th ult., at Nichols' Hall. The entertainment given was one in which the Sage, the Poet, and the Divine, as well as he who is considered the "Monarch of the Fields"—the hardy son of toil—the Farmer—could have enjoyed with an equal degree of composure—with a "conscience void of offence toward God and man."

We have not the space to give as lengthy a description as it merited; but the "Rural Scene" was one that we cannot well pass, considering the circumstances under which it was gotten up, being entirely concocted by the brain of that ever enterprising and never ceasing ingenuity of our courteous friend, Prof. Nichols, who gave it but little thought until near the time of performance. It was a scene in which all appreciative minds could view with unalloyed pleasure. It called to mind Thomson's poem on the seasons:

"Soon as the morning trembles o'er the sky,
And, unperceived, unfolds the spreading day;
Before the ripened field the reapers stand,
In fair array; each by the law he loves,
To bear the rougher part, and mitigate
By numbers gentle offices her toil."

The richness of the dress of those participating in this scene, did not assimilate with the costume that is usually worn by our Rural Gentlemen. Honor, honored avocation, but there can be no cavil raised about this, for in our opinion it enhanced by beautified the brilliancy of the scene, giving an additional charm to its appearance.

The "Bridal Scene" was one which the old, the old die aged and the young, could gaze upon in silent yet undisguised admiration during its entire display, and, no doubt, it was infinitely more pleasing to that portion of the audience of sentimental young ladies who consider marriage as the ultimatum of woman's hopes and the sense of all earthly bliss.

The remainder of the scenes were acted exceedingly well and were highly interesting and attractive, giving general satisfaction, and it is gratifying to know it proved a success in every point of view.

The Supper Table was dressed exquisitely beautiful and bountifully laden with all the luxuries that would be palatable to the sense of taste; and during the intermission all was jollity, feasting, mirth, frivolity and laughter.

Messrs. Lindley and Brice, we readily discovered, are not only faithful caterers in their regular business pursuits, but are equally so around the festal board.

Mrs. Winn and Miss Treevant's names we could not conscientiously omit, for it was through their management that this mode of procuring the funds needed was so successfully carried out, and they have fairly and faithfully won the due encomium.

FARMERS!

Do not let the opportunity pass.

You now have a chance to obtain from OAKLEY MILLS MANUFACTURING COMPANY a pure article of Bone Dust.

Your land Needs it.

Why do you not at once purchase a sufficient quantity of it to put in your

CORN AND COTTON LAND.

The value of Bone is admitted to be intrinsically greater than most other manures.

Try it and you will

PROFIT BY THE INVESTMENT.

Our Agents in lower Georgia are reporting many sales and sending new orders, and we want the Farmers of Cobb to do themselves the justice to secure what they need before it is all gone.

WE annex one or two items of interest on the value of Bone as a manure.

From Prof. Darby we have the following statement:

From Prof. Montgomery:

"Bone Dust contains the most nutritious combination that can be made, far surpassing any other in my judgment."

From P. M. Compton, Milledgeville:

"Mr. H. Fraley of Hancock used one ton of your Bone Flour last season. He now wants ten tons. Please send six tons of it to Americus, and four tons to Dry Pond, Hancock County."

David Dickson of Hancock County says: "Send me ten tons of your Flour of Raw Bone to Culverton, Ga."

J. A. Barclay writes from Macon:

"Please send me at once, to Barclay's Gin House, Macon & Brunswick Rail Road, ten tons of your Flour of Raw Bone."

R. A. Beers, Esq., writes from Albany, Ga., "send immediately to B. G. Lockett, Albany, fifteen tons Flour of Raw Bone."

D. R. Coox, Esq., of the firm of Cook & Chock, Kenesaw Mills, Marietta, says, "Your Flour of Raw Bone made all the cotton for us, on our plantation near Macon, that we made at all. If we had bought more Bone Flour we should have made more money. We used Guano on about 100 acres without any perceptible benefit."

WE want to buy a good 50 horse power steam engine and boilers and will sell at a great bargain a 12 horse power engine with small burr mill stones and fixtures all ready for grinding.

WHY DO WE PRUNE GRAPE-VINES?

BY ANDREW S. FULLER.

To many persons no satisfactory answer can be given to this question.—They will point to the wild vine of the forest, and tell us that Nature never prunes these plants, and yet they produce fruit abundantly. We are also frequently informed by these same philosophers, that Nature is our best guide in these matters, and to follow and obey her teachings is the height of wisdom; all of which we are willing to admit, provided they allow us to decide what portion belongs to nature and what to art.

Nature never made an overcoat nor a silk dress, but she furnishes the materials for both; and we might with the same propriety accuse the lady who wear a silk dress of interfering with natural laws, as the man who prunes his vines; for the silk-worm must be destroyed while in the chrysalis state in order to produce our best quality of silk, and this is certainly thwarting Nature.

The same is true with our operations in the vegetable kingdom; for we plant, prune, hybridize, cultivate, and remove plants from one country to another, or from their native habitats to our gardens; and all these changes are more or less unnatural. The moment that we commence cultivating a plant, it is placed under artificial conditions, which may eventually compel us to adopt a system for controlling its inherent powers, quite at variance with its natural habits. If we take the wild vine from the wood, which bears only its few small bunches of fruit, and these of an inferior quality, and from this stock produce a variety like the Delaware, Iona, or Concord, it must be apparent that a great change has taken place, not only in the character of the fruit, but also in the plant itself. There are, however, certain characteristics, which will remain unchanged—for instance: the fruit will always be produced upon the young growing wood that springs from buds formed on the wood of the preceding year. It is just here that we can find a pretty safe guide for pruning the vine, no matter what system is adopted in training.—Suppose we take an old Isabella grape-vine, such as are found in almost every garden: the first thing to be observed is whether it has any good, well-ripened, one year-old wood; if so, every bud upon it may be looked upon as a promise for three bunches of grapes. But it must not be expected that a young cane ten feet long, containing twenty buds, can sustain sixty bunches of fruit and each weighing a half pound or more; consequently, we prune away all but a small portion—say one or two feet of the lower and stronger portion of the cane may be allowed to remain for bearing fruit.

If the vine remains unpruned, nature will make an effort to force all, or nearly all, of the buds into growth, and each young cane may show signs of fruit, but it will seldom mature; while if only a small number of buds are left, they will receive sufficient nourishment from the roots to fully develop and mature the fruit upon them. If a vine is old, and has a large number of healthy one-year-old canes upon it, each may be pruned back to about five or six buds from its base, for it is seldom a safe plan to leave more than this number upon any one cane, however strong. It is far better to prune too severely than not enough, because, as a general rule, the less fruit a vine is allowed to bear, the larger and better it will be.

Sometimes the buds near the base of a vigorous cane will not be fully developed; in that case, an extra number may be left to make up the deficiency. The time of year has now arrived for commencing the pruning of vines, although there need be no hurry about it till next month; but no harm will come, and, perhaps, some good will result, from giving a few leisure moments to this subject of pruning.

I presume that most of the readers of the Hearth and Home will attend personally to the pruning of their grape-vines, and if they will frequently ask themselves this question, "Why do we prune?" and think, as well as work, they will find that it requires far less scientific knowledge to become an expert in grape-growing than they had reasons to suppose.

"MISTER, how do you sell your beef this morning?"

"Why, fourteen cents a pound—how much will you have?"

"Fourteen cents, eh? Have you got a heart?"

"No, just sold it."

"Well, I just knowed you couldn't have a heart and ax fourteen cents for beef."

RE-ADJUSTED SUGAR.

"If the constitution is to be read according to its plain understanding, I am unable to see how this case evades the provision that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation. When you can prove to me that this property taken for the construction of a public building by the United States, is not to be paid for, then you will satisfy me that any other debt that the United States owes is not to be paid. This is not property that was destroyed by an army on its march; it is not property that was destroyed to prevent its falling into the hands of the enemy and affording him aid and comfort; it is not property that would have been destroyed by one army if it was not by the other; but is a certain amount of property that the United States took by competent authority and by public necessity for the construction of a public work; and we are just as much bound to pay for these materials, for the stone and the wood that were used in the construction of that fort, as we are to pay for the cannon that was mounted upon it or the ammunition with which the cannon was served; just as much as we are bound to pay for the supplies and the clothing that were furnished to the garrison in that fort.

This case was presented to the Senate two or three years ago. It was examined before the Committee on Claims. It was reported, I think, unanimously.

The evidence of the loyalty of this lady was presented before us to the satisfaction of every member of the committee. I am not now able to recall the evidence, but I recollect that military officers appeared before the committee, came on here voluntarily to testify upon that point, and the committee were perfectly satisfied on that point, and so reported, but did not report all the verbal evidence upon which they relied. The bill was reported from Committee on Claims. It passed the Senate. It went to the House of Representatives. In the House of Representatives they had a rule which prevented the consideration of bills of this kind. The case was so strong upon its merits that the rule was suspended in its favor, and the bill would undoubtedly have passed but for want of time."

We are delighted and the country must share in our rejoicing, to know that SUE, a rosebud of sweet sixteen, was loyal. She may starve, but never can be deprived of that honor. Let it be inscribed upon her tombstone, "Here lies a loyal female, a non-combatant, whose entire private property was taken by order of a loyal army, and compensation refused, on ground that a great many other loyal Murphy's would ask to be paid." If the stone cutter has room, he might state below, that Corcoran, a rich banker in Washington, not any more loyal than the law allowed, was paid $41,000 for use of his park, by our troops during the war.—Pittsburg Post.

ADVANTAGE OF LEARNING A TRADE.

The advice of Benjamin Franklin, to give every child a trade by which he can earn a living, if necessary, comes of an experience older than his. In some countries this has been the law; in others a common custom. St. Paul, though educated in the law at the feet of Gamaliel, also acquired the important Oriental handicraft of a tentmaker, by which he was able to earn his living while prosecuting his mission. It is a good and wise thing to do. You may be able to send your children fortunes; but "riches take to themselves wings." You may give them finished educations, and they may be gifted with extraordinary genius; but they may be placed in situations where no education and no talent may be so available as some humble honest trade, by which they can get their living and be useful to others.

I returned in hoss-cars part way. A pooty girl in spectacles sot near me, and was tellin a young man how much he reminded her of a young man she used to know in Waltham. Pooty soon the young man got out, and smilin in a seductive manner I said to the girl in spectacles—

"Don't I remind you of some one you used to know?"

"Yes," said she, "you do remind me of a man, but he was sent to the penitentiary for stealing a barrel of mackerel; he died there, so I concloed you ain't him."

I did not pursue the convesation.

"Good," said his friend, "I would rather go up hill than down any time."

LESSONS FROM THE LEGISLATURE.

It is too clear for dispute that the Legislature of a State should be forbidden to swindle the citizens of a State directly in the public expenditures. The Legislature is composed of the Senate and Representatives of the people, and is supposed to reflect directly the will of their constituents. They are also entrusted with the public money. Not a dollar can legally be paid out of the State pump without their assent, and they hold, or should hold, an [illegible] upon expenditure by every other department of the government.

The Legislature, therefore, while it is called upon to impose the burdens of taxation, holds a [illegible] legal and moral control over the proceeds; and consequently is amenable to all the grave responsibilities connected with the entire subject-matter of public revenue and public economy.

If the Legislature be lax; careless and profuse the people are without protection. If they set the example of extravagance, they may well expect every other department of the government to follow suit, and their mouths are stopped by their own [illegible].

Mr. Price, of Lumpkin, and certain other members, have recently addressed the Legislature some admonitions upon economy which we think it is time to heed. Mr. Price's speech was made in support of the bill to reduce the per diem of members from nine to seven dollars a day. We shall say little about that proposition—except that the income of members should be properly limited to the payment of their actual expenses in the public service.

To establish any other principle would be absurd. The State cannot afford to indemnify members for loss of time, because it is presumed that the [illegible] some members may be worth to them a hundred or five hundred dollars a day. The rule should be, about the cost of living at the seat of government, and it is sound policy to pay this, because, otherwise, the indigent would be excluded.—Pay the cost of a liberal subsistence, and that is enough. The members of the British Parliament are paid nothing; but that is an aristocratic feature which should be avoided.

But it is the APPOINTMENTS of the Legislature in which it appears to us a more wanton extravagance is displayed. It seems, according to Mr. Price, that FIFTY CLERKS are employed at an aggregate expense, during the last session, of $45,5521 This strikes us as beyond all reason.

Mr. Price says the Legislature of New York employs but nine clerks, and Illinois, the next highest State to Georgia, but eighteen. According to this speech, the mileage, per diem, and contingent expenses of the Georgia Legislature are about a third more than those of any other State in the Union, excepting California.

All this is nonsense. It is great injustice to a people staggering under the weight of heavy taxation, and to which the Legislators of all moral strength to resist the misappropriation and waste of the public treasure. The branch of the State government which should set a pattern of rigid and pure economy, is leading off in an example of waste and misappropriation!—Macon Telegraph.

TRUE COURAGE.

A company of boys in —— street, Boston, one day, after school, were engaged in snow-balling. William had made a good hard snow-ball. In throwing it, he "put in too much powder," as the boys say—he threw it too hard—and it went further than he intended, right through a parlor window. All the boys shouted, "There, you'll catch it now Bun, Bill, run!" They then took to their heels. But the brave William straightened up and looked sober as he said, "I shall not run." He then started directly for the house where the window had been broken. He rang at the door, acknowledged what he had done, and expressed his regret. He then gave his name, and the name of his father, and his father's place of business, and said the injury should be repaired.

Was not that noble? That was true courage. It is cowardice that would lead a boy, when he has done an injury like that, to sneak away and run and conceal it. How noble and brave it is to see a boy confess a fault, and not be afraid to face the consequences!

Give us William whenever any real bravery is called for, rather than all those boys who cried out, "Bun, Bill, run." He'll face the danger while they will sneak.

A YOUNG Albany girl, after receiving the attentions of a young man for several months, abruptly asked him when he intended to marry her. The young man said he was not on the marry. She then broke a teapot, filled with boiling water, over his head.

THE bread of life is love; the salt of life is work; the sugar of life, poetry; the water of life, faith.

R. A. Beers, Esq., writes from Albany, Ga., "send immediately to B. G. Lockett, Albany, fifteen tons Flour of Raw Bone."

D. R. COOK, Esq., of the firm of Cook & Cheek, Kennesaw Mills, Marietta, says, "Your Flour of Raw Bone made all the cotton for us, on our plantation near Macon, that we made at all. If we had bought more Bone Flour we should have made more money. We used Guano on about 100 acres without any perceptible benefit."

WE want to buy a good 50 horse power steam engine and boilers and will sell at a great bargain a 12 horse power engine with small burr mill stones and fixtures all ready for grinding.

WOMAN.

Place her amoeg flowers, foster her as a tender plant, and she is a thing of fancy, waywardness, and sometimes folly—removed by a dew drop, frozen by touch of a beautiful's wing and ready to faint at the rustle of a beetle; the zephyrs a tease rough, the showers too heavy, and she is overpowered by the perfume of a rosebud. But let real calamity come—rouse her affections, enkindle the fires of her heart, and mark her then—how her heart strengthens itself—how strong is her purpose. Place her in the best of battle—give her a child, a bird—anything she loves or prizes—to protect, and see her, as in a relative instance, raising her white arms as a shield, as her own blood crimsons her upturned forehead praying for life to protect the helpless.

Transplant her in the dark places of earth—awaken her energies to action, and her breath becomes a healing—her presence a blessing. She disputes inch by inch, the stride of the stalking pestilence, when men, the strong and the brave, shrink away, pale and affrighted. Misfortune haunts her not; she wears away a life of silent endurance, and goes forward with less timidity than to her bridal. In prosperity, she is a bud of odors, waiting but for the winds of adversity to scatter them abroad—pure gold, valuable, but untried in the furnace. In short woman is a miracle—a mystery—the centre from which radiates the great charm of existence.

HOW TO KILL A TOWN.

An exchange very ably says: "If you wish to kill a town, put up no more buildings than you wish to occupy yourselves. If you should accidentally have an empty building, and one should want to rent it ask about three times its actual value. Look as if you now come with a scowl. Turn a cold shoulder to every business man or mechanic seeking a home among you. Go about for wares, and purchase because of your own relations and not because of the same price. Refuse to advertise so that persons at a distance will not suppose any business is being done in your city.—And if you have any printing you want done, don't give it to your local paper, but send it to a neighboring city. Hire some able but unscrupulous writer to decay, through the paper of the same neighboring city, all projected local improvements. Suppress all religious instruction by refusing to give your ministers a liberal support. If, unfortunately, one of your merchants becomes involved in a difficulty, do not exemplify christian charity and benevolence by helping to extricate him, but allow him to be plunged still deeper by standing off, with your hands in your pockets, offering your sympathy but no relief. A prompt and close observance of these rules will ruin a town in two years."

TOBACCO BOYS will make tobacco men, with tobacco mouths and tobacco teeth, tobacco pockets, and a general tobacco smell. And what is worse, they will have tobacco appetites, which will crave tobacco enough in their life time to buy a small farm and raise a small family. They will moreover spit tobacco all along their way through life, to the annoyance of their neighbors, and the displeasure of their wives and families.

"MY dear friends," said a returned missionary, at one of the late anniversary meetings, "let us avoid sectarian bitterness. The friends where I have been laboring for many years, have a proverb that, 'Though you bathe a dog's tail in oil, and bind it in splints, yet you cannot get the crook out of it.'—Now, a man's sectarian bias is simply the crook in the dog's tail, which cannot be eradicated; and I hold that every one should be allowed to way his own peculiarity in peace."

A SMART young lady, in reply to an inquiry, why she did not get married, said it was because she was unable to support a husband.

MATTERS AND THINGS AT ATLANTA.

A friend of the editor of the Columbus Enquirer who has lately visited Atlanta, gives him some information about which little has been said in the Atlanta papers, but which the editor thinks should receive the attention of the people of Georgia. Having called attention heretofore to the matter, we heartily agree with him, and therefore, most cordially give these statements such publicity as our circulation affords. The editor says:

Our friend informs us that from all that he has learned there has been a monstrous waste in the expenditures by the public authorities at Atlanta, unparalleled in the history of the State. Commencing with the Executive administration, he learned that while Gov. Jenkins only had two Secretaries, Gov. Bullock has eight or ten, at about $100 per month each; that though in 1861, 1862, 1863 and 1864, (Confederate times, too,) the Clerks of both Houses of the Legislature cost the people about $187 per day, or not exceeding $200 per day at farthest, the Clerk has during the session just closed in October last was over $500 per day—the Principal Clerk in the House and Secretary of the Senate having received $2,700 each for their months, and their Assistants $880 each—the Journalizing Clerks $1800, the Engrossing Clerks $1255, and all other Clerks $3 per day; Clerks who were elected as Committees that never met more than once or twice getting several hundred dollars; and others elected Clerks of Committees several weeks after the Legislature met, getting full pay for the whole session, &c. From the commencement of the session to its close, and this, too, in face of the law which says that these Clerks shall only be paid for the days that they have actually served.

Our informant further learned that, in addition to these things, the two Houses of the Legislature, before it adjourned in October, appointed a committee to examine the books of the State Road at Atlanta, and that four or twelve of the members of this committee met at Atlanta and continued in session long enough to draw from the State Treasury near $7,000; and that another committee was to make up for some other cause, and together at Atlanta by the Committee, and that the pay of this committee was over $2,500 and $3000.

Our informant further says that while the Opera House is finely finished and looks well, most of the members and others, in private conversation, are exposing the folly on a small scale of the difficulty in leaving many things undone in the halls of the Legislature, which will have to be remodeled. Persons can better speak or be understood in the open air than in either hall.

Our friend reports what all others report, that there is no settled conviction as to what ought to be done with the negro eligibility question. He says that the Atlanta people are trying to buy off the Milledgeville people, as to the removal question, by agreeing to go in for a high military school to be established at Milledgeville, with Gen. Joe Johnston at the head of it. Some of the Milledgeville men have caught at this bait, but whether their advocacy of this measure is on account of their love for the State, or for Milledgeville, or for themselves, some others of the Milledgeville men, we think, are "a leetle in the most folly," are at a loss to determine.

Our informant further says that it is thought in Bullock circles at the point and gets Congress to give him control of Georgia, by making him Provisional Governor, that he will make some of his lately appointed officers "walk the plank"—that some of the Pauloutsky officers who declined to back him up when called on to sign a certain memorial to Congress to reconstruct Georgia, will have to go.

The last Legislature passed a resolution allowing a map to be made for each of the officers in the State House, at a cost, it is supposed, of $10 000 to $20,000. This is considered by some as a most extraordinary and most unexpendable, as these maps could have been had for $1 each. Gen M. Burns, for fifty dollars, has a Map of Georgia that has been made and printed, and is considered a very correct map of the State. No new counties have been made since it was issued, and in the opinion of many, a new map of Georgia is no more needed than a fifth wheel to a wagon. But [illegible] seems now to be some difficulty to [illegible] who is the proper person to make or revise the map. The resolution says the "Superintendent of Public Works," shall revise the maps, etc. But there is no such officer known in the law. Col. Frobel, who was no doubt appointed by Gov. Jenkins under sec. 73d of the Code to keep the Capital grounds and other State property at the seat of the government in order, is supposed to be the Superintendent of Public Works, and not long since employed several clerks, and is now working or commencing work on the map. But recently Gov. Bullock has appointed another, Mr. James H. Burns, Keeper of the Public Grounds at the Capitol, in Atlanta (Query—What Capitol grounds has the State at Atlanta?) and thereupon a resolution has been introduced in the Legislature to inquire into the tenure by which Col. Frobel holds his office. And so we go.—The State, in the opinion of our informant, would do ten thousand times more good, were she to give the Orphans Home in our city the money that is expended on this map and for the pay of these Superintendents of Public Buildings at Atlanta. This is the first time we ever heard of a State Government going into the map-making business. Heretofore individuals have anticipated the public wants in this matter and supplied them at $5 or $10 for each map.

THE WEEKLY PRESS.

We take from a sensible article of the Macon Daily Journal & Messenger the following encomium upon the Weekly Press:

"The country papers are a powerful auxiliary to their daily cotemporaries. They exercise a vast influence in their public sentiment in their respective localities, often especially constituting and are the means of diffusing a taste for reading and a feed of information not derivable from any other source. They penetrate where the dailies do not, and probably never will go, and are the only mediums between the great world without, and consumption that thigh, and, whose pages, so gilded and developed by their teachings, often decide most important questions. They are often more potent than the primer and the schoolmaster in leading from darkness to light, and pleasing in schools going with the first impulses of new born ambition, send that bear glorious harvests. They have, by the light of pine-knot fires pointed out the path to fort whose scope have illustrated fame's proudest places. They have made poets, statesmen and orators, and rescued from obscurity jewels whose light filled the world. Such is their past honorable record. We are optimist enough to believe that the future will not discredit it."

HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER.

What is a home without a mother's presence! 'Tis like a book to read without the aid of light—like the flood of nature without the sun's bright and and soothing rays—like winter, without beautiful, cheering summer—like a mariner cast upon the mighty deep without a rudder or compass to guide his frail bark safe into port—like piercing winter unclaimed by the cheering rays of spring. O, there is an inexhaustible source of pleasure and profit in that home where in a tender mother dwells, from whom may be derived the wisest maxims and rules of blissful life. In such a home may be found the obedient child, the dutiful daughter, and the tender and affectionate son. There also may be seen every virtue that can dignify human nature, and make this transient, life most truly happy. In a word, here may be acquired the beauties and knowledge of the world, without the danger of being infected by its bad example abroad.

ODDS AND ENDS.

LOVERS observe before a man can enter the abode of matrimony it is necessary he should ring the bells.

THE hardships of most situations may be alleviated by the virtues to which they may be made to give rise.

THE next style of bonnet is to be a head and two inches of ribbons, fastened with a hairpin.

NATURE, when she makes a beautiful head, is often so absorbed with admiration of her work, that she forgets the brains.

LADIES who have a disposition to pry into their husbands should remember that a little warm sunshine will melt an iceberg sooner than a northeast gale.

AN ardent youth in Chicago was proposed the other day by the romantic blood which his lips absorbed from the lips of his sweet-heart. Good for him!

PUNCH says that women who make up their faces deceive themselves, if they by so doing, they are more likely to tempt men to make up their minds.

'MY wooing wasn't heatless, sighed a discarded lover; 'for although it failed to win the daughter's hand, I got the father's heat.'

WOMEN have a much nicer sense of the beautiful than men. They are, by far, the safer umpires in matters of propriety and grace. A mere school girl will be thinking and writing about the beauty of birds and flowers, while her brother is robbing nests and destroying flowers.

☞ The American Stock Journal—published by N. P. Boyer & Co., Parkesburg, Chester county, Pa., at $1 per annum, is not only the cheapest of all the Agricultural Monthlies, but a work of great value not only for its useful information in relation to all kinds of stock but for its valuable articles relating to Agriculture.

☞ Blackwood's Magazine.—The following are the contents of the January Number. Historical Sketches of the Reign of George II—the Philosopher. The Fifteen Louis d'Or of Beaumarchais. Double and Quits: a Comedy of Errors—Part III. Kinglake's History of the War in Crimea. Christian Missions to India. Seats and Saddles. Bits and Biting. Gain or Loss?—The Statistics of the Campaign.

☞ Peters' Musical Monthly, for February, has a choice collection of New Music, the price of which, in sheet form, is $3.40—showing that this Monthly furnishes the cheapest Music published. Besides the Music there is in each Number a large fund of interesting reading matter.

This Mammoth Monthly is published by J. L. Peters, 198 Broadway, New York and is furnished at the low price of $3 per year. Sample copies, 30 cents. All those desiring to get their money's worth will do well to send for a copy.

No Musical Family can afford to be without "Peters' Musical Monthly." It gives, during the year, over $40 worth of New Music, besides the literary matter, and in order to help our friends to a good thing we will ourselves receive subscriptions, at the rate of $3 per year or club it with our own paper for $4 per year.

Part of the cropping season they were compelled to work on, for provisions, and during the Fodder season the old gentleman had a bone of his arm broken, but bandaged, he worked on setting an example of industry, perseverance and success worthy of the highest praise.

Do not let the opportunity pass.

Why do you not at once purchase a sufficient quantity of it to put in your

"The value of Bone [illegible] is intrinsically greater than any [illegible] manures."

Our Agents in lower Georgia are reporting many sales and sending new orders, and we want the Farmers of Cobb to do themselves the justice to secure what they need before it is all gone.

WE annex one or two items of interest on the value of Bone as a manure.

From Prof. Darby we have the following statement:

From Prof. Montgomery:

"Bone Dust contains the most nutritious combination that can be made, far surpassing any other in my judgment."

From P. M. Compton, Milledgeville:

"Mr. H. Fraley of Hancock used one ton of your Bone Flour last season. He now wants ten tons. Please send six tons of it to Americus, and four tons to Dry Pond, Hancock County."

David Dickson of Hancock County says: "Send me ten tons of your Flour of Raw Bone to Culverton, Ga."

J. A. Barclay writes from Macon:

"Please send me at once, to Barclay's Gin House, Macon & Brunswick Rail Road, ten tons of your Flour of Raw Bone."

R. A. Beers, Esq., writes from Albany, Ga., "send immediately to B. G. Lockett, Albany, fifteen tons Flour of Raw Bone."

D. R. Cook, Esq., of the firm of Cook & Check, Kennesaw Mills, Marietta, says, "Your Flour of Raw Bone made all the cotton for us, on our plantation near Macon, that we made at all. If we had bought more Bone Flour we should have made more money. We used Guano on about 100 acres without any perceptible benefit."

WE want to buy a good 50 horse power steam engine and boilers and will sell at a great bargain a 12 horse power engine with small burr mill stones and fixtures all ready for grinding.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

[illegible] they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Its Position and Prospects.

One little city, Mr. Editor, is an interesting object on several accounts, and especially so, because it is our home.

If we consider its geographical position, situated in the mountain's gorge, in sight of the blue range of hills, which constitute such a fine feature in the physical beauty of the country; if we consider its proximity to the Capitol of the State, which is a great railroad and commercial center, to say nothing of the intelligence, and unusual tone of our population, of such a climate, unsurpassed in its healthfulness: a soil neither rich nor poor, but capable, with proper cultivation, of sustaining any amount of population. These are advantages, which deserve the fostering care of its inhabitants.

Let us consider this; what we can do and what we cannot do; and what is practicable let us resolve to attempt; what is not, let us abandon.

No one dreams that we can ever compete with Atlanta in a commercial way. That is quite out of the question. But we have this consolation, everybody can't live there. In her abundance her measure of prosperity must run over. It is our policy to attract to ourselves and appropriate what is her excess. And to do this we will, if wise, offer pleasant homes to such of her business population as see fit to reside here, and engage in business there. While they are a Railroad center, we will be an Educational center. Let us build up first rate Schools, (and them we already have,) but let us make the world aware of it. Here the youth will be withdrawn from the contact of metropolitan life. We have good Churches—pious and eloquent divines. We will surround ourselves by a healthful, moral and religious atmosphere. We propose to have the very best and most skilful mechanics, whose superior work shall give us a name, and invite patronage from abroad, to establish manufactures, to improve, if not pave, our streets, set them tastefully with trees, and beautify our town.

The merchant and trader propose to offer inducements to come to this market; and to this end they intend to have the roads which lead out into the country lying north of us, thoroughly worked, and by a superior waggon track, they expect to retain the trade which now supports our town, and not permit it to be turned away from us to some point on the Air-Line road.

If we lie supinely on our backs and sleep while other are moving Heaven and Earth to clutch the carrying business of the country—to surround us in the meshes of railways, still giving us the go-by, we shall wake up some fine morning and find our fine town, high and dry.

We must skillfully husband our resources. Every thing we have—everything we do, must be of the very best. The Marietta trade mark, shall give every commodity currency and a quick sale in every market. Excelsior, is our motto, and energetically carried out, stately edifices shall adorn the singed and blackened sites where formerly stood the Howard House and Marietta Hotel, and the Horn of plenty be emptied upon our laps. Let all combine—let all co-operate to accomplish this.

A NEW DODGE.—FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR FURNITURE.

A correspondent of the Journal & Messenger says, the tax-payers will not have to pay for building the house, but only for the furniture, which costs less than $50,000. There are several very serious objections to this new dodge. The city of Atlanta promised to the Convention and to the Legislature that under no circumstances was the State to be at any expense for a Capitol for ten years; and now they ask for fifty thousand dollars for furniture! Secondly, there were many all the furniture from the Capitol in Milledgeville to Atlanta; therefore, they did not need any new furniture; and, thirdly, the people, through their representatives, have never ordered any new furniture. If the people of Atlanta or Gov. Bullock have ordered it without any authority, let them pay for it. By looking at the Comptroller's report the tax-payers will see several considerable sums drawn for moving the furniture from Milledgeville to Atlanta. This furniture was thought good enough for the State when it was much richer than it is now, and it is still good enough for honest people. We hope the Legislature will not permit the people of Atlanta to buy furniture at discretion, and draw on the State to foot the bills.—Federal Union.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON AFTER HIS TERM.

As the public will be curious to know what is to become of President Johnson after the expiration of his presidential term, we extract as follows from the Nashville correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal:

NASHVILLE, Jan. 29, 1869.—I will give you briefly, but accurately, a pen picture of the situation in Tennessee at the present moment.

Andrew Johnson is expected to arrive here by the middle of March. He has written to his friends to say that he will be a candidate for Governor. No one will oppose his nomination. It will be made spontaneously by the Conservatives; and his platform will consist of universal amnesty and impartial suffrage, on which the people of Tennessee have risked their claims from the first.

He is expected to do two things:

1st. He will talk to the negroes as no one else has ever talked to them.

2d. He will awaken the East Tennessee "loyalists" to a sense of the perils of the present State Government as no one else can awaken them.

Johnson is not a will like Etheridge. Nor is he as water like Colyar. But he is a prodigy of muscular power before the Tennessee masses, who consider him a child of destiny, marked by Providence to be their next Governor.

Johnson's purpose is to secure a Conservative Legislature, which will return him to the Senate of the United States in place of Mr. Fowler. But for their faith in him the people of the State—by whom I mean the disfranchised masses—would make no contest this summer. They consider the existing system a machine, and they regard its operation as little less than certain. Johnson does not.—He says he has fought a worse fight, and says he can break up the Loyal Leagues as he broke up the Know Nothing lodges. He will denounce the Ku-Klux in unmeasured terms. He will take strong National grounds on all National questions, and he expects to carry all before him.

PARAGRAPHS FOR SUNDAY.

"Be diligent in business" was Paul's advice. Paul did it up in that prompt and efficient way. But Paul didn't mean—what so many interpret the matter—that you should shave and gauge your fellow kind to your utmost. He was in favor of the "clean thing"—but not a mean shave in mercantile and some other matters.

"It is a little thing and of no consequence." Not so—the very point, in fact, why it is of consequence. It's the little cold that leads to the coffin; the little drop that leads to wreckfulness; the little venture at the gaming table that leads to ruin; the little pulsation of the heart that leads to paradise (exceptions allowed;) the little misplaced brick that destroys the temple; the little drop that makes the ocean; the little atom that makes space; the little fuel that makes you "mad;" the little baby that fills you with delight. Don't tread on little things, Mr. Johnson.

A pretty face has no chance by the side of a woman of taste and brains. It is good to please the eye, but, that is never sufficient to a man whose good opinion or affection is worth having. A majority of women have been, are now and will be plain. Let them not despair, but rather take hope and press on. Nature has simply favored them by not making them fools. They have the better and nobler task to be good in reality, instead of merely good looking. To our mind a sensible woman as far outshines a merely pretty one, as does the sun an old-fashioned tallow candle.

Deserve success and it will generally come. Lazy men get it in their way; live men in theirs. Laziness tends to rags and cheap board at the general expense; the life and drive style to good clothes and position. It is very easy to discern with the naked eye which is what, and "them from those."

Politeness pays. The fact that it is sometimes thrown away on an acquaintance that be a donkey, doesn't affect the principle. The principal thing in life is to do the agreeable to others; and if you do it to the individual you so often see in the glass, then will be no irreparable harm done, Mr. Ferguson.

Next to a positively good thing people like a burlesque of it. Mankind tend as naturally to extremes as colts to running away and spilling things, and boys to ragged trowsers, doughnuts, molasses candy, and sliding down hill.

Some author proposes to write a book on the language of love. The best work ever yet got up on that subject, or that will be, is a couple of sque zing hands and two pair of beaming eyes. The pen may be mighty, but it is mighty small in comparison with them.

Philosophy is a good thing to have in life, always providing, of course, that it includes common sense. In the minds of many people, however, philosophy is a kite that flies much higher than anything so ordinary as common sense. Let them fly it, we say, and see what comes of it.

Justice is very properly represented as blind; otherwise she would have occasion to blush incontinently for what she would be obliged to see in some of the courts in this country. Very likely she would be in the hands of an excellent most of the time.—Macon Telegraph.

THE FARMERS CONVENTION!

Which assembled in Atlanta, on the 3rd instant was very largely attended. It contained delegates from every section of the State. The spirit and energy which pervaded it indicated that there is life in the old land yet. It contained many men of great practical ability—men of eminent success, as farmers, who have spent their lives in the profitable cultivation of the soil—the noblest employment that ever engaged the genius of man.

Their deliberations embraced a great variety of subjects. There was a report on the subject of labor, which showed great care in the preparation but which presented no settled conclusions; for on this subject we are in a transition state, and nothing but experience can solve the problem. The views of the members of the Convention, showed great diversity of views. Some preferred the freedmen as a laborer—others the white man. But there was no difference of opinion as regards the policy of inviting the emigration of white men, through the agency of an Immigration Bureau, according to the plan of a Bill now before the Legislature.

The use of commercial manures was strongly endorsed; but at the same time many decidedly denounced the fraudulent fertilizers which swindlers have sold and will no doubt attempt to sell again to the farmers of this State. Let all purchasers have an eye to this.

The Flour of Raw Bone, prepared in Cobb county, was recommended by those who had tried it. Mr. David Dickson, of Hancock county, endorses it. It constitutes one ingredient of the mixture which he uses. This is a strong recommendation, because he is the most successful planter in Georgia.

Many of the plows now being sold were condemned by those who had used them. The difficulty seems to be that it is nearly impossible to have them repaired; and plowing ten acres will so wear them that they need repairing.—The Reynold's Plow was favorably spoken of by those who had tried it. It is a Georgia made plow and sells for $10.

There was a good article of Sugar and Syrup examined in the Convention.—These attracted much attention, from the fact that they were made of the Sorghum. The sugar was pronounced a good article and the syrup very fine. They were manufactured at Louisville, Ky. In the hands of an enterprising man of a small capitol, here is certainly an inviting enterprise. The raw article is extensively made and the capacity for its production, even in this latitude, is without limit.

A subject, which elicited a very spirited debate, was introduced by Gen. Phillips, of Cobb, proposing a reduction of the unequal and discriminating tariff of way freights. It is regarded as one of vital importance to the agricultural interests of the State. The subject was disposed of by referring it to a special committee, which will report to the next meeting.

The farming interests of Georgia are enjoying a revival. Cotton is again stimulating the marts of the world; and aspiring to its commercial throne. Never were the planters in higher spirits.—They seem willing to cast the past behind them, and address themselves with true hearts to rebuild their estates, and to the development of the grand resources of the State, under the changed system of labor.

There were planters there, now growing cotton in Georgia, who are fresh from the rich wheat lands of western New York, where lands sell for $300 per acre, who declared that they would not exchange their Georgia farms for those which they left in the valley of the Genisee.

There were men in the Convention, from the mountains of Norway, who assured us, that a hardy and vigorous population, in the North of Europe, are ready, on proper guarantees, to emigrate to us, and settle among us as tillers of the soil.

The foregoing is communicated to show the spirit and temper which were manifested in a body of men, marked for its intelligence, success and enterprise.

A Road Well-Worked.

We were gratified last week in observing a full turn-out of Road hands on the first section of the Powder Spring Road, under the Overseers Messrs. Phillips and Hicks. The muster was pretty strong and the working done with a good-will. Five days were employed on the work and a bad Road was made one of the best in the County. We commend the example to all having an interest in our public Roads.

PROCEEDINGS OF COUNCIL.

Whereas, the young men of Marietta are desirous of organizing a Fire Company to the advantage of the City and as a more perfect security against fire—and have offered to raise such a portion of the money as it will require to repair the Engine now belonging to the City, therefore,

Resolved, That immediate steps be taken to find out what the repairs will cost, and if not out of reason, that the same be tendered to the young men, and the City Council appropriate such portion of expenses to fix up the same as in their good judgment would not be to the injury of the City, and that the Committee heretofore appointed be authorized to act in the present.

Whereas, the financial condition of the City is very much depressed, there being no money in the Treasury to … or complete work which is absolutely necessary, the Taxes for the year 1868 being almost exclusively paid in City Orders granted by former Council, therefore,

Resolved, That the Marshal be ordered to notify each individual party against whom he holds a Tax Fi Fa that if the same is not paid by the 1st. of March 1869, he will proceed to levy the same, and that all against persons considered insolvent (owning no property) be advertised once in the Marietta Journal and sold at public outcry on the 1st. Tuesday in March, or, as soon thereafter as the Mayor and Council may see proper.

MARSHAL'S REPORT.

Respectfully Submitted,

Physician's Use Them in Their Practice.

It is almost universally the case that Physicians condemn what are generally known as "Patent Medicines." Although DR. TUTT'S LIVER PILL IS NOT A PATENT MEDICINE, yet its composition (the result of years of study) is known only to himself and so palpable are their valuable curative properties, that very many of the first Physicians in the South and West have adopted them in their practice and recommend them to their patients.

Vinegar.—We are ever ready to chronicle any enterprise which tends to build up home interest or advance our domestic prosperity, and therefore take especial pleasure in noticing, and recommending to our merchants the Southern Vinegar Factory, at Marietta, Ga. Vinegar is made at this factory superior in quality and much cheaper than a great deal of that which comes from the North. The establishment is a Southern one, with responsible owners, and the article manufactured there is warranted pure. By purchasing it at home, you save freight and other charges, and obtain something good in this line.—Augusta Constitutionalist.

Washington, February, 15.—The following is Grant's acceptance, presented to Congress to-day:

Gentlemen, please notify the two Houses of Congress of my acceptance of the important trust which you have just notified me of, my election as President of the United States, and say to them that it will be my endeavor that they, and those who elected me shall have no reason to regret their action.

GEN. GRANT AND THE SOUTH.

The Herald of the 6th., warns us all to behave, work hard and stop fillibustering. He says:

When Gen. Grant assumes the reins of government the South will soon understand that he does not mean to "make confusion worse confounded" by essaying the task of reconstructing reconstruction. The work of the past three years will not be gone over again, with the prospect that it may continue four years longer and end no where. Grant will not seize the helm of the ship of State with the constitutional scruples of Andy Johnson. He will grasp it with a firm hand. He will not have among his crew troublesome spirits who are disposed to mutiny at every unfavorable tide or unpropitious gale. In the course of his political voyage Grant will circumnavigate the sea of troubles that have so long disturbed the South, and smooth it by pouring oil where oil is needed, and so disposing of the rocks and quicksands as to make them harmless for the true navigator over the … er. All Southern fire-eating … must stand aside.

And again:

And upon a question of negro equality or no negro equality placed distinctly before the whole people, we are firm in our conviction that the affirmative would be voted down by an overwhelming majority. The sentiment of our population is undoubtedly in favor of still reserving to the several States those rights affecting social and domestic relations which but few despotic powers on earth have succeeded in usurping and controlling against the will of the people. Therefore let the South stick to its proper vocation at this time—work hard, raise good crops, be economical, save money, maintain law and order and let the mischief making politicians all go to—where they belong.

The Material Progress of the South—Cheering Signs.—Perhaps the best evidence of the sure and rapid material progress of the South may be found in the fact that the price of the bonds of the different Southern States is steadily rising in Wall street. The directors of our New York savings banks, who are proverbially conservative, cautious and sagacious, have lately bought largely these State bonds. The Southern people themselves are also adding considerably to their investments in these bonds. Other cheering signs of the energy with which the recuperative powers of the South are awakening may be found in the great cotton crop, estimated at two … ed million dollars; in the plentiful rice and sugar crops; in the abundant …ion of everything consumed by the Southern people at home; in the re… that in many parts of the South labor … become even cheaper than it used to be in the days of slavery; and lastly, in many indications that the political … which must infallibly follow the … on of President Grant will open at the South an era of good feeling and of unprecedented prosperity.—New York Herald, Jan. 30th.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

The Augusta Constitutionalist says:

All laws that tend to enlighten the people on subjects appertaining to their … resources are beneficial. The Census of the United States is taken every ten years. The regular period for taking the Census is almost upon us.—The results obtained will, in consequence of … changes in the political and social condition of the country, be looked forward to with unprecedented … As going hand in hand with … Census, we think a State … advisable. A law, similar … England, might be passed, … of the duty of every mag… a record of births and … wick. Richmond, February 11.—In the United States District Court to-day, the district attorney, under instructions from the Attorney General in accordance with the President's amnesty proclamation, entered a nolle prosequi in both indictments against Jefferson Davis, and one in those against Lee, Wade Hampton, Breckenridge, Longstreet, Wise Pryor, Seddon, Mahone, Early and thirty others. On motion of Robert Ould the court ordered the securities on the Davis bail-bond be discharged from further responsibility.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS.

Authentic Documents
ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.
Testimony of Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care of Rickett and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. B. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

Villanow, Walker County Ga., June 29, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My [illegible] … I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it. I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D's, but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. For my part I shall make it a rule to use all and any means to relieve suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases in which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

Benton Barracks Co., April 30, 1865.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case:

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

Capt. C. P. JOHNSON.
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

Dr. Bull—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It Cured Him. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cures effected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.
FOR THE CURE OF AGUE AND FEVER
OR
CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. … [illegible] …

GOSSIPING.

It is not alone in small neighborhoods that scandal exclusively operates. Out in the world it interferes with a thousand things, causing unbounded troubles. In trade, in friendship, in politics, its effects are seen; and half the evils of life that one encounters, is caused by the obtrusion of some hand in his dish besides his own. How much heart-burning is caused by it, how much bitterness, how much hatred, how much annoyance! And yet those who meddle most are often very good people, who would not do any harm for the world, and are quite shocked at the results which their abominable interference has brought about.—Everything is heard to be repeated, and suggestions are made by them which afterwards become affirmations of your own, that do all manner of harm. And yet the meddlers do not know what they have done. They might indeed weep with you over crushed hopes that their very propensity has caused and bear no malice in their hearts towards any body; as an innocent colt might, in his excess of lovingness, kick his owner's and best friend's brains out. If people would but mind their own business, there would be less bankruptcy of comfort in society, and the machinery of life in all its departments would run smoothly.

MONEY.

Man work for it, beg for it, steal for it, starve for it, and all the while from the cradle to the grave, nature and God are thundering in our ears the solemn question: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" The madness for money is the strongest and lowest of passion; it is the Molock of the human heart before whose remorseless altar all the finer attributes of humanity are sacrificed. It makes merchandize of all that is sacred in the human affections, and often traffics in the awful solemnities of the eternal.

VAIN MAN.

Whilst thou art building castles, the carpenter is building thy coffin. While deceitful illusions are gilding thy future prospects, the painter is leisurely putting the varnish upon the casket that is being fitted for thy reception. While thou art striving hard to distinguish thyself among thy fellows, the marble worker is fitting the slab that shall mark thy grave. While you are querrying as to the wherewithal you shall be clothed in, the materials for your burial suit are upon the tradesman's shelf. You add field to field, and anxiously reach out for more; but go to the graveyard and stake out the lot to which death will soon assign you. "Then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?"

A LAWYER who was sometimes forgetful, having been engaged to plead the cause of an offender, began by saying, "I know the prisoner at the bar, and he bears the character of being a most consummate and impudent scoundrel."—Here somebody whispered to him that the prisoner was his client, when he immediately continued, "but what great and good man ever lived who was not calumniated by his cotemporaries?"

PATRICK HENRY left in his will the following important passage: "I have now disposed of all my property to my family; there is one thing more I wish I could give them, and that is the christian religion. If they have that, and I had not given them one shilling, they would be rich; and if they had not that, and I had given them all the world, they would be poor."

PUT two persons in the same bedroom, one of whom has the toothache, and the other is in love, and it will be found that the person having the toothache will go to sleep first.

ALLOW a boy to run at large one year in indolence, and you have laid the foundation wherein will be built his future ruin.

THE BRIDGE OF GOLD.

She stands in a flowery meadow,
And I on a barren strand,
Where flows a broad strong river,
'Twixt me and that lovely land;
'Tis vain to beckon, 'tis vain to weep,
The river is broad and strong and deep.

I cannot swim that river,
But if my ship should come in,
Its bow like sails would carry me
To the lady I hope to win.
I trust that she her faith will keep,
But the river is broad and strong and deep.

I know she has many lovers,
For I see them woo my sweet—
They can lay land and houses
And bright gold at her feet;
Had I but these, the river would keep
Me from love, though 'twere broad and deep.

But I make a bridge of my fancies,
And I come to that pleasant land;
I weave her hair through my fingers,
And hold her hand to my hand.
And I kiss her lips in her bower at sleep,
Though the river is broad and strong and deep.

Could I build the arches of silver,
And lay the floor with gold,
Could even wishes my darling,
Not waiting until I am old—
Old and worn and withered—
O'er a bridge of gold to a grave, and weep.

MANURES.

Agriculture was coeval with the first proper and actified habitations of man, which usually followed, although they sometimes accompanied, the pastoral life. According to the Bible, Cain, the first born of woman, was a "tiller of the ground." Noah, considered the second progenitor of the race on departing from the ark, "began to be a husbandman."

The Egyptians ascribed the invention of agriculture to supernatural power, and worshiped the ox in reward for his labor and as symbolic of the art. Moses ordered, "Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together." Job spoke of those "that plow in iniquity." And Isaiah, of beating swords into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks."

Among many Greek authors, at various periods, on husbandry—Hesiod, in the age of Homer, perhaps—gave a poem in which allusions were made to the cart (ox?) with low wheels; to the rake, and other implements of the farm.—Xenophon made a discourse on rural economy. And Theophrastus, the "divine speaker," the philosopher, wrote nine volumes on the "History of Plants," and is regarded the father of botany.—He also described six principal manures to be applied, but suggested, as a good substitute, the mixture of earths—as of clay and sand.' About the same period, Mago, a renowned Carthaginian, published twenty-eight books on agricultural topics, held in such esteem that they were translated from the Punic into both the Greek and Latin languages.

Eminent in arms and jurisprudence, the Romans attained equal excellence in the practice of husbandry. It was esteemed the highest of the liberal employments. Those tribes living without the city, and cultivating their patrimonial acres, were deemed the most honorable. From these, sprang such men as Camillus and Cincinnatus. Some of the proudest, and historically the most celebrated families assumed the names of plants, in whose cultivation the founder, or at least an ancestor, had shown distinguished skill as the Lentulii from the lentil—the Fabi, from faba a bean, and Cicero from cicer a vetch, in his Georgics, Virgil is familiar with the entire round of agricultural operation; and gives directions in plowing, planting, fallowing, irrigating and enriching the land with animal manures, and with ashes. Columella, in twelve books furnished a complete treatise on rural affairs. Their implements, including the coulter, and the single and double mould board plows were not dissimilar to those employed during many subsequent centuries. Their sources of manures were as various and as numerous, and probably were as judiciously applied as those of the moderns up to the 19th century. Then, as even now, pigeon manure, (poultry) night soil and human urine mixed with sweepings of the streets, were regarded as among the best. The signal advantages of recent times consist in the new, and constantly renewing, machinery of a thousand kinds, adapted and being adapted to every branch of agriculture, and to a better knowledge of chemistry, which supplies a magic key to the vast store-houses of nature; by analysis unlocking the embraces of many compound substances, which, in other days, were supposed to be simple elements, and the process of affinity applied syntetically, uniting materials for the largest yield of which the earth is capable.

During long centuries of anarchy and wars, agriculture was neglected; its practices forgotten; the pastoral was partially resumed, because property in stock could more easily be secured on the approach of any enemy. Its principles, or rather precepts, were in a measure preserved everywhere by the priesthood around their monasteries.

The Norman conquest of England gave an impulse to the half-perished art, for many bold barons were guided husbandmen, and the Flemish immigrants aided with their better implements and industrious habits. It revived rapidly in the reign of the 8th Henry, when the first English book on the subject, by Fitzherbert, appeared recommending draining, fallowing, and manuring with lime and marl.

Early in the eighteenth century Jethro Tull, a noted Berkshire farmer, introduced, if he did not invent, the drill system, and applied it to wheat, potatoes and turnips. In these it proved a decided success. Turnips brought from Flanders produced a revolution in husbandry. They added so largely to the provender for cattle, supplied by the grasses, that their cultivation became the most universal, and an era dated for the increase and improvement of all breeds of stock. The influence of the plan of drilling seed unitarially heightened this effect. But Jethro Tull, eccentric in part of his practice, in his "Horse Hoe Husbandry" denounced all manures, and insisted on substituting for them additional tillage. In the reign of George III the two-horse plow superseded those of four and six horses. Subsequently the reaping and threshing machines were employed; the system of drainage was begun, and the sub-soil plow was invented by Mr. Dearnston, of Scotland.—Books innumerable were written on all branches of agriculture, the most valuable of which, and still maintaining their high repute, are Louden's Encyclopedias. Science enlightened Art, and the Art, by both successful and unsuccessful experiment, furnished bases for the advancement of Science. At present the press in all countries teems with agricultural literature. The grains of invention is quickened by the wonders which its own efforts have achieved.—Chemistry, with striving energy, is unveiling the arcana of nature. A fertilizer from a distant sea, known and partially used for ages on its barren coasts, but, until recently, unnoticed and neglected by more enterprising people, has accelerated the wheels of agricultural progress, and constitutes manuring, in all its phases, and of the grand events of this remarkable epoch.—Augusta Constitutionalist.

EDUCATION FOR FARMERS.

It is a great mistake to suppose that farmers do not need to be educated. Progress is sure to this direction as in all others, but it seems slow. The farmer without an education sinks to a mere drudge and can never hope to attain an equal position in society with other professions; and he may boast as he will, but he cannot make his farm produce like the intelligent, well read man who studies agriculture as a science.

The uneducated farmer wonders why his sons and his daughters are so anxious to leave the farm, so choose other occupations. The reason, my friend, is obvious; for your sons cannot plow on with you, if you persist in keeping them a century behind the times. Young men and women, of all trades and professions, are pursuing knowledge in their various callings—attending scientific lectures, reading scientific books, studying improvement in every department of labor; and mark their progress in respectability, usefulness and worth.

To the intelligent gentleman the farm holds out far more delightful inducements than any trade. He enters the profession with a desire and determination to elevate it; and he succeeds, too, just in proportion to his earnest culture. Opportunities for agricultural training are opening over the whole country, and parents would do well to place in the hands of their sons, scientific books and papers, if they wish them to remain on the farm; also, give them an opportunity to attend a course of lectures on agriculture, as they are now being delivered in many of our colleges.

Your children would soon look with altered eyes upon the farm life; and what a different aspect would many a farm house wear. Throw around your children all those helps and enjoyments so easy to carry—so reasonable, so delightful, so profitable—if you would have your farms blossom like the rose, and your homes and hearts bask in the sunshine of happiness.—Country Gentleman.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Mysterious.—We have seen planters killing the woodpecker for sport. They are regarded as a nuisance, because they peck holes in the stock, and are charged with eating corn. But is this their particular injustice is done them. If you will go to any ear they have pecked, and carefully, you will find that a worm has been there eating the ear, but the woodpecker, because the woodpecker has eaten it off the ear and swallowed it. Instead of the ear and swallowed it. Instead of eating your corn, it will generally be the worm. He is, therefore, your friend and not your enemy, and you should not kill him.

This is the name of one of Dr. John Bull's medical preparations for a sample of which we are indebted to the Messrs. Root. It is very pleasant to the taste and in its medical properties is equal in value if not superior to any compound of a similar character offered to the public.

The Weather.

Rain, wind, ice, with slight sprinkling of snow, has been our companions for several days past, rendering everything disagreeable, so much so at least, as to elicit much complaining and grumbling from fault-finders generally. Trade has to a considerable degree been retarded.

"There's Music in the Air."

During a serenade several evenings since we heard a young man sing:—"There is music in the air"—we thought it very appropriate—on one part of the street two babies were squalling—across the lot a dog was howling—and down the street a cow was bawling. The air certainly was full of music.

A Surprise Party.

The first surprise party of the season, we learn, came off during the last week at the residence of one of our citizens, whose name, owing to the delicacy of the matter, we refrain from mentioning. There was quite a crowd present, and we are glad to know that the evening was spent in a most pleasant and agreeable manner.

Hearth and Home.

For the Farm, Garden and Fireside—and attractively, instructively and admirably it is adapted to each. It is a large paper beautifully executed and filled with thoughts of the first minds of the country relating to the objects addressed. Terms $4 per annum. Address Pettengill, Bates & Co., 37 Park Row, N. Y.

Editor's Luck.

Things are not always what they seem. As for instance we picked up a little package on the sidewalk which looked like a snug roll of greenbacks and was about to proclaim our elevated distinction in an elated manner, when, lo! and behold! we opened and found it to be dirty green paper and rags. So you see how we was greened out of our fortune.

Above the Cloud.

Three young men of Marietta last week were out on a Fox hunt and after an hour and a half chase gave up the pursuit and to the summit of historical old Kennesaw ascended. While there they were completely enveloped in a cloud, and to their surprise, below them could be distinctly heard the rain copiously falling and, yet there was none fell where they were.

The Excitement in Shuffletown.

Our readers will bear us witness that we deal little in sensational news—that we have few headings marked with exclamation points, such as—"Terrible Outrage!"—"Heart-sickening Calamity!"—"Awful Murder!"—"Appalling Accident!!" &c., &c. But we will not refrain from giving insertion next week to the description of the sensation at Shuffletown.—The letter would have been published this week but that it had been "circling round" among our Post Offices and reached us too late.

The City Cemetery.

This depository of the dead, we are more than gratified to announce, is in a condition that will not be discreditable to the city in meeting the eye of a discriminating and appreciative public. In fact, it is now in better order and presents a more respectable appearance than it has in several years before. We owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Sanford Gorham, the efficient Foreman of the street hands, who had this work in charge, in taking such special care to remove all the rubbish and to beautify the last resting place of our loved ones and friends.

Our Park.

This place—our City's pride—is having that attention that it has long deserved. Our City Council are having trees set out in a systematic manner and [illegible] a pleasing appearance, which is even now it presents nothing to be compared to the increasing beauty its green foliage will present this spring.

We wish to see this place, as of old, nicely fenced and the plats all beautifully laid out and re-worked and sown in clover and grass seed, giving an additional charm to the beauty of our town.

The Marietta Fire Company.

Movements are on foot to reorganize the old Fire Company, which had its existence before and during the war. The Engine, which is as good as new but for some damages done by the soldiers of the U. S. army, is to be repaired and put in working order.—We presume there is not a young man, married man, or unmarried man, but what will consent to be a member. And it is to the interest of the property holders of Marietta that they contribute largely to have the repairs needed speedy made and the necessary accoutrements procured, so the organization can be immediately perfected.

Boys out at Night.

Too much license is given by parents to their children in permitting them to remain on the streets at night. Go when you will to the train at night and you see a crowd of youths assembled. It may be that parents send their boys after the mail, but this should not be permitted, for it would be much better to keep your boys at home at night and do without the mail until morning, than allow them to go out under the cover of the sable curtains of darkness and contract bad habits. Parents should curb their offspring while yet tractable, and the acquaintance of corrupt principles will be prevented. Nothing is so fruitful of early vice as the practice of being out at night.

T. S. Authur & Sons' Publications.

We noticed the reception last week of "Authur's Home Magazine"—"Once a Month" and "The Children's Hour," and have since received the Numbers of each for March. Without having seen these works we would have spoken with confidence of their merit from our knowledge of the writings, taste and judgment of T. S. Authur. His style is unpretending but clear and well adapted to his life-like pictures of every-day life, and sound common-sense and a warm heart point all his morals, and we have no hesitation in speaking most favorably in behalf of these, to us, new publications.

The Marietta Female College.

The friends of this Institution and of liberal education generally, will be glad to learn that the Faculty is now complete and that the Institution is in progress in a very auspicious and satisfactory manner; and that the Marietta Female College for the education of the daughters of Georgia and adjoining States, has started on a career of honor and usefulness that is worthy the patronage of all lovers of education and good society. Those that have daughters or wards to educate will secure them rare advantages if placed under the tuition and watchful care of such ripe scholars as Prof. J. T. Montgomery, Rev. Victor E. Manget and others. All the preparations, that will be advantageous to the student, in giving a complete education, has been made. A thorough education is above all price in value, and we now commend Marietta as presenting rare facilities for the social and religious culture of youth of both sexes, as well as for the most accomplished intellectual training at the several seminaries of our flourishing inland city. No other town in the South can exhibit so many beautiful residences according to population, or a more refined society.

A Summer Resort.

For many years before the war Marietta was a favorite Summer Resort with many living between us and the Sea-board from this and contiguous States. They were attracted by our Mountain scenery, healthful breezes, pure water and delightful climate and many were drawn hither from associations with the then flourishing Georgia Military Institute. The Institute is one of the wrecks of the war—not a relic left from its mass of rubbish. But we have the same scenery enhanced in interest by historic incidents never to be forgotten. Nature is unchanged and the same health—inspiring breezes, pure water and invigorating climate invite to renovated strength and health.

The war has left us too, even in its destroying track, mournful results of its character which will not fail to be regarded with interest by thousands of our countrymen, north and south. On the East side of our city are the decorated grounds of the National Cemetery—on the South side, adjoining the City Cemetery, are gathered many of the Grey Jackets resting from a fatal if not a fruitless struggle.

Our Churches—Episcopal, Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist are all supplied with able Ministers. Society is refined and genial and we will venture to say, that we have as good order and as little crime as any locality of equal population North or South.

In addition to all this we may add that Hotel and private accommodations are excellent. The country teems with all the productions of the farm and the markets afford cheap everything desired.

We had a number of visitors the past summer from the low country. Marietta will give all who come a kind welcome and will seldom fail to make their stay pleasant and profitable.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, Feb. 22d, 1869.

Call meeting of City Council of Marietta was held this day for the purpose of taking into consideration the importance of sending delegates to Chattanooga to co-operate with delegates from other parts of Georgia and Tennessee to memorialize Congress to open the Tennessee River; after a few well timed remarks by our fellow townsman Gen. Phillips (who was invited to be present) going to show the vast utility of the enterprise, the following resolution was offered and on motion adopted,

Whereas, Marietta in common with every section of our State is interested in the success of the movement as contemplated by the convention to be held in Chattanooga on the 24th., instant.

Therefore, be it Resolved, That the Mayor and City Council, attend said Convention as an evidence of their interest, and that they unite in a common effort to secure the much to be desired end of opening the Tennessee River.

Resolved, That the Mayor appoint as many as four Citizens as delegates to said Convention.

Resolved, That the Clerk be instructed to notify Col. Hulbert of the action and ask of him transportation for said delegates to and from said Convention.

Owing to the neglected condition of Confederate Cemetery and if possibly to remedy the same, the following Resolution was offered:

Whereas, there are over two thousand Confederate dead buried at this place, and fears being felt that through want of means to keep the last resting place of these brave but unfortunate men from being utterly lost sight of from neglect, the citizens having expended all that an impoverished people could spare, and whereas, the Federal dead, who sleep almost under the same sod are tenderly watched and cared for by a fostering Government, and while this act reflects credit on the friends of the Federal dead—it most painfully impresses the mind of the Southern born citizen of the poverty or want of gratitude manifested by our people for their sons and brothers.

Therefore, be it Resolved, By the Council that we earnestly bring the matter before a patriotic Legislature, and if they in their judgment think it unwise or inexpedient to appropriate money for so generous a purpose, then we ask [illegible] and the Representatives of the friends of these dead [illegible] give us their per diem for one day only to [illegible] beautifying our Confederate Cemetery and perpetuating the memory of the good and great who [illegible] among us.

And be it further Resolved, That our fellow-citizen C. D. Phillips proceed to Atlanta and lay this petition and resolution before the General Assembly, and [illegible] be receive and receipt for such sum as may be given us for the purpose before stated.

BULL'S [illegible]

To my [illegible]

I have received [illegible] ional and medical me[illegible] publications have show[illegible] The following letter fr[illegible] popular physician in Geo[illegible] most sensible communication[illegible] Dr. Clement knows exactly what he [illegible] his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

VILLAOW. WALKER COUNTY GA., June 29, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D's. but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am, sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

BENTON BARRACKS, Co., April 30, 1865.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

CAPT. C. P. JOHNSON, St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jessie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. IT CURED HIM. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure effected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my [illegible] to have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully, JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER OR CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

...Bone Dust is going off by car loads to enrich other soils.

Why do you not at once purchase a sufficient quantity of it to put in your

The value of Bone is admitted to be intrinsically greater than most other manures.

Try it and you will

PROFIT BY THE INVESTMENT.

Our Agents in lower Georgia are reporting many sales and sending new orders, and we want the Farmers of Cobb to do themselves the justice to secure what they need before it is all gone.

WE annex one or two items of interest on the value of Bone as a manure.

From Prof. Darby we have the following statement:

From Prof. Montgomery:

"Bone Dust contains the most nutritious combination that can be made, for surpassing any other in my judgment."

From P. M. Compton, Milledgeville

"Mr. H. Fraloy of Hancock need one ton of your Bone Flour last season. He now wants ten tons. Please send six tons of it to American, and four tons to Dry Pond, Hancock County."

David Dickson of Hancock County says: "Send me ten tons of your Flour of Raw Bone to Culverton, Ga."

J. A. Barclay writes from Macon:

"Please send me at once, to Barclay's Gin House, Macon & Brunswick Rail Road, ten tons of your Flour of Raw Bone."

R. A. Beers, Esq., writes from Albany, Ga., "send immediately to B. G. Lockett, Albany, fifteen tons Flour of Raw Bone."

D. R. Cook, Esq., of the firm of Cook & Check, Kennesaw Mills, Marietta, says, "Your Flour of Raw Bone made all the cotton for us, on our plantation near Macon, that we made at all. If we had bought more Bone Flour we should have made more money. We used Guano on about 100 acres without any perceptible benefit."

WE want to buy a good 50 horse power steap engine and boilers and will sell at a great bargain a 12 horse power engine with small burr mill stones and fixtures all ready for grinding.

[FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.]

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN THE LITTLE TOWN:

A Fowl-Fight but Few Play!—Interesting Particulars!!

The eleventh day of February A. D., 1869, will long be remembered by the good people of Shuttletown, for on that day an important and interesting event occurred which served to relieve the dull monotony which usually prevails in our quiet and peaceful little village, and which afforded an occasion of much exciting amusement and pleasure to many of the inhabitants.

The morning of the day alluded to, was "beautiful and bright." Not a cloud was seen to obscure the cerulean concave above. The sun, "the glorious King of day," arose as usual, "rejoicing in the east." The inhabitants of Shuttletown arose also. A red and a domineeker rooster were caught and made ready for the terrible conflict, which was soon to take place. The momentous occasion at length arrived. A ring of eager and delighted spectators was formed. The combatants were placed in the centre in formidable and hostile array; and then commenced the sanguinary struggle. Time after time did they charge upon each other's breast-works, and sometimes one was repulsed and sometimes the other, the anxious crowd all the while leaning forward, and waiting in breathless suspense, to see the issue of the bloody encounter. The writer begs leave to give the result in the following lofty, poetical strain:

In rapid succession gold off dominick
Inflict on his adversary peck after peck;
But at last the unlucky, the gallant old red,
Gave his foe such a lick on the side of the head,
As caused that to take in an instant his luck,
And retreat in disorder, crying, quack! quack! quack!

The humans were long, the lunzzis were loud,
Which then went up from that wondering crowd.
And that money was lost and money was won.

There were some old fogies about town who did not manifest the least interest in the affair; but that need not be wondered at, for there are some people in the world who have very poor taste, and who can never be brought to appreciate any thing which tends to promote civilization and refinement, and to elevate society. It is gratifying, however, to all true loves of innocent amusement, to see these indications of the return of the sublime and time-honored customs of the ancients. Don't we need relaxation, excitement and amusement; and can we expect to advance in refinement while we fail to give encouragement to the sterling, which has made other people great? Ought not our legislature to do something before it adjourns, to encourage cock-fighting and similar sports? Are they afraid to act for the good of the people? Surely those who are so much exercised in regard to rescuing the gentlemen from Africa, will take the matter in hand, and start the country on the high road to prosperity and greatness!

If the proper steps were taken we might have a cock-pit erected in Shuttletown, which would be an ornament to the place. We have an elligible site where now stands a building, put up at a trifling expense to the county, and which has proved to be entirely unnecessary and useless. I allude to what was once known as the jail-house. Let us have a cock-pit in the place of Ray all means.

Sec. 6. Demise of Mrs. Thereza Stephens.

This lady, the consort of Timothy Stephens, of this county, died at her residence on Saturday the 27th ult., at the age of 59 years. We offer our heart-felt sympathy and consolation to the bereaved husband and relatives.

I Have A Terrible Cough

You need not have it long; go to your Druggist and get a bottle of DR. TUTTS CELEBRATED EXPECTORANT, it will soon cure you. It is danger ous to neglect Coughs This valuable preparation may be found in every village and hamlet in the South and West.

Our Prediction.

We predict that there will be more summer visitors to our city this year than there has been in several years Marietta's fame as a summer resort, with all its unsurpassed natural advantages, giving it the adaptation so desirable, is widely known, and many of those who have heretofore visited other resorts will this year make Marietta their chief delight.

Something Ludicrous and Novel.

The latest fashionable "kick" in Marietta, met our eye on Monday last, it was a long trail to the dress of a femme and a colored girl gracefully following after, to keep holding it up out of the dust. We do not wish to ridicule this mode, for if you will have this superfluous piece attached to your dress, in our opinion, it would be much better to adopt the plan of this lady.

"Golden Keys."

"The latest house furnishing variety is golden keys to rosewood doors."—Exchange.

Golden keys are very useful and the invention is an old one. They will unlock most everything—They will unlock the doors of society, unlock the gates of dungeons, unlock that intricate and mysterious thing, a woman's heart, and it is believed by many that they will unlock the portals of Paradise. We should like to get one.

Cotton Manufacturing Company.

One of the greatest Southern enterprises that Southern ingenuity and capital has brought into existence, is the Cotton Manufactory situated on Nickajack Creek, in Cobb county, 7 miles from Marietta, and 9 miles from the Western & Atlantic Railroad. The construction of this Factory commenced last fall and is near completion. The machinery from New York is being received and skillful and efficient mechanics are employed in putting it up ready for operation. This is a Woollen Factory and will have in process 36 looms and 600 spindles, that will give constant employment to 60 operatives, besides other numerous services will be needed. This Factory is calculated with the preparations made to turn out on fine woollen fabrics as are manufactured North and the benefits that will spring from this Factory to this county and State are incalculable.

Success for Young Men.

We see none of our young men are developing their muscles and increasing their strength and activity by jumping. Exercise is good. It is essential to health, and is recommended by Physicians, but our Farmers are in want of spring laborers to assist in tilling the ground—the most honorable profession among men. Every young man who is believing it impossible to find employment, should at once make application to some of our farmers, and soon be convinced to the contrary. Many a young man who prides himself on being a "gentleman of leisure," and who, now and then, delights in taking what he terms "recreative exercise," can afford to do away with such a "gentleman of leisure," and become a co-laborer with and an auxiliary to our farmers, and sensibly will be thus directed that life as a reality that is exceedingly more healthy, lucrative and commendable, and he will cease to be looked upon as the worthless thing he now is.

Our City.

Unmistakably, our city is fast emerging her dilapidated, then shabby dawdling enterprise, energy, industry, and a progressive spirit. The construction of Railroads, Factories, Mills, and other enterprises are beginning to receive thought and attention. A Thousand's of wast are being removed with a will. Public and private buildings have been remodly constructed and are now receiving the finishing touch, while others are soon to be commenced. Our City Council are now having the streets worked in a creditable manner—sidewalks are being diligently paved—shade trees properly set out—public wells put in useful order, and a general shabby dilapidated appearance that was rapidly rendering our city to be a by-word, does are rapidly removing our city to be a by-word, does are rapidly removing our city to be a pointed hearts. Our merchants and men of business are buoyant and sanguine of the future prosperity of Marietta. The JOURNAL is increasing in popular favor and is sought after with avidity. Let the ball keep moving!

PUBLIC MEETING.

MARIETTA, GA., March 2, '69.

Agreeably to a previous call a portion of the citizens of Cobb County, met in Marietta, when on motion of I. N. Russell, Esq., T. M. Kirkpatrick Esq., was called to the chair and Wm. F. Groves requested to act as Secretary.

On taking the chair, Mr. Kirkpatrick explained to the meeting the object for which it was called.

On motion of J. R. Winters, Esq., a committee of five consisting of A. S. Edmonston, Mr. Moss, I. N. Russell, John Durham and John Roberts, Esqr's., were appointed to report business for the meeting.

The committee reported the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, We the citizens of Cobb county feel that we are unnecessarily oppressed by unreasonable taxation. Therefore,

Resolved, 1st, That our legislature be requested to adjourn sine die, or protect the people by a reduction of the per diem of the members and officers of the Legislature.

Resolved, 2nd, That we will make it a point in future elections to know that those we vote for are in favor of a reduction of expenses.

Resolved, 3rd, That we commend our Senator and Representatives with others who have labored for a reduction of expenses.

Resolved, 4th, That these proceedings be published in the MARIETTA JOURNAL and the Atlanta papers, and that a copy be sent to our Senator and our Representatives.

T. M. KIRKPATRICK, Chairman.
WM. F. GROVES, Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—Grant visited the House to-day and sent for Boutwell, with whom he had a long conversation regarding Georgia, Virginia, Mississippi and Texas; he also conversed with Bingham, and afterwards the members generally gathered around him. His father and sister have arrived.

General Grant opposes the unseating of the Georgia Representatives. The postponement of Georgia matters by Reconstruction Committee, is attributable to the House influence.

Gen. Young, member of Congress from Georgia, who has warm and personal relations with Gen. Grant, had an interview with him last night regarding Georgia matters. Gen. Grant said Congress could not get around recognizing Georgia as a State in the Union, and that he himself was opposed to interfering with her at all. Gen. Grant's visit to Boutwell this morning grew out of the interview.

WASHINGTON, Feb 28.—The Clerk of the House has not yet made a roll of the next House. The recent statements that he has excluded Louisiana and Georgia are, to say the least, premature; in fact, but few credentials have been presented. Regarding Georgia, it seems understood if certificates from Gov. Bullock are of usual form, the names will be placed on the roll, but if the Governor makes certificates which admit of argument or explanation, the Clerk will hold them for the consideration of the House.

It is almost impossible to move through the Capitol on account of the immense crowd. Every train brings recruits.

MARIETTA FEMALE COLLEGE.

Rev. Joseph T. Montgomery, who for a number of years had charge of the Female College at LaGrange, has now established and in full operation the above named school at Marietta. His popularity as manager of a Female College is probably unsurpassed in the South. Marietta is a beautiful town, of unsurpassed healthfulness and in every way an excellent locality for a Female College, and we have little doubt but that a large and prosperous College will soon be established there.—Rome Courier.

HANLEITER'S SOUTHERN MISCELLANY.

On or about the 15th of April, proximo the undersigned will issue, in the City of ATLANTA, GA, the first number of a

LARGE AND HANDSOME SIXTEEN-PAGE

with the above title. As its name implies, the paper will be exclusively devoted to the publication of literary matter for the entertainment and instruction of the Southern Family Circle.

The Southern Miscellany will in no wise engage in the discussion of Religious or Political questions—but this policy is adopted from no indifference to the Rights and Interests of our long-suffering People, but from a confidence in the ability of the Southern Press to do the subject ample justice.

The Southern Miscellany is intended to supply a popular want that has long been felt throughout the Southern States. The lovers of well written articles of Fiction have been forced to patronize Northern Weeklies, because of the absence of any such publication of Religious or Political questions—but this policy is adopted from no indifference to the Rights and Interests of our long-suffering People, but from a confidence in the ability of the Southern Press to do the subject ample justice.

The Southern Miscellany is intended to supply a popular want that has long been felt throughout the Southern States. The lovers of well written articles of Fiction have been forced to patronize Northern Weeklies, because of the absence of any such publication in the Literature of the South. While Stories of intense interest will fill its column, the utmost spirit will be taken that no pestiferous Social or Moral poison be injected there by their authors. One of the greatest evils of the popular Northern publications is the fearful sacrificing of Writers of fiction to the lower passions of mankind.

As the undersigned will rely on Subscriptions mainly for his profits, the number of ADVERTISEMENTS admitted in the columns of the Southern Miscellany will be limited, and confined in such neat and compact form as to enable him to keep up its full quota of reading matter.

Gentlemen of energy and ability will be connected with every department of the paper. It has been said that the Southern People will not patronize such a publication. The undersigned does not now, and never has believed the charge. The failure of success heretofore, he is satisfied was more the fault of the Publishers than of the People. The Publishers, he thinks, have never thoroughly understood their experiments, and have generally dipped into too many subjects. It will be the effort of the undersigned, with his large experience, to avoid these mistakes, and demonstrate to the Country that our People will support a liberal patronage with properly conducted weekly visitor to the Social Fireside, which shall entertain and amuse the Sons and Daughters of our much-loved Sunny South.

The name of the paper will doubtless awaken in the breasts of very many who may chance to see this Prospectus pleasant recollections of "Auld Lang Syne," inasmuch as the "SOUTHERN MISCELLANY," conducted by the undersigned at Madison and Atlanta, from 1856 until 1861, was a favorite household visitor to numerous Southern Firesides. May he not hope, through his new "MISCELLANY," to revive some of the associations which clustered around the old, and reckon among the patrons of his new enterprise at least a score or two of the generous-hearted friends of former happier days!

TERMS:

Single copies, one year, $3; three copies, $8; five copies, $13; Any person remitting us $50 for a Club of twenty (all at one time), from one office—not Post-Offices), will be furnished one copy free.—Single numbers 10cts.

ADVERTISEMENTS to a limited extent will be inserted at One Cent per word for each insertion, when set in a perfectly uniform form. If set open, (no heavy display Type will be used,) the charge will be for the space occupied and at the same rate.

For the accommodation of subscribers can be effected, a liberal PREMIUM LIST (after the manner of Northern Periodicals) will be submitted for the encouragement of Clubs. Persons willing to devote a portion of their leisure to the formation of Clubs, are respectfully invited to correspond with us. A faithful record of all such will be kept, and the proper award made when the Premium List is perfected.—If 12th Clubs address the undersigned, until the first of April, at Augusta, Georgia; after that date, at Atlanta.

DR. JOHN BULL'S GREAT REMEDIES.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS.

Authentic Documents

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1868.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchased your drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Worm Destroyer.

My son is up with his rheumatism, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also found relief.

The Worm Destroyer and Sure effected—by Dr. Gist's family in such by the use of your Bitters, helped the Colic. Bitters to pass from the system. Only in this settlement. I shall sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care of Rickst and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. B. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanac and various publications have shown to all which are genuine. The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible commendations I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

VILLAW, WALKER COUNTY GA., }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of its kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the medical society there that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it—I am aware that the use of calomel is to some extent to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular of the M. D.'s, but I can no longer conscientiously use it, believing it to be a poison. I am in no manner an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure many of the diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M.D.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA,

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

BENTON BARRACKS, Co., }
April 30, 1868. }

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Having the offer of your Sarsaparilla, and the building and bone facial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not set up a settled home since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired. And I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles of it.

CAPT. C. P. ROBINSON,
Ft. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 30, 1868, by Mrs. Jessie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skillful practicing physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he was taken with convulsions and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. IT CURED HIM. I have for five years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. From every one I have heard of, it has never failed in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very much attached to my son on account of your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hesitates writing to you for it. The wounds were terrible but I believe his will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vender of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

AGUE AND FEVER OR CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine feels confident in a positive cure of any case of Chills and Fever, whether alone or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South Western country to the hundreds of cures of the most obstinate, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure. If the directions are strictly followed in taking the medicine. In fact, it is perfectly infallible as a preventive of the disease, and a single dose has been sufficient to cure a case of chills that had been of long standing, for a week or two after the disease has been checked by the use of quinine. It is, however, a powerful tonic, and in cases where quinine will not cure, will always keep the bowels in good order, and will not fail to cure. Remember, in taking Smith's Tonic Syrup, to have taken three or four doses of the Tonic, after taking one of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

KIND WORDS.

They never blister the tongue nor lips. And we have never heard of any mental trouble arising from this quarter.—Though they do not cost much, yet they accomplish much. They help one's good nature and good will. Soft words soften not our own soul. Angry words are cast to the flames of wrath, and make it blaze more fiercely.

Kind words make other people good natured. Cold words freeze people, and hot words scorch them, and bitter words make them bitter, and wrathful words make them wrathful. There is such a flesh of all other kinds of words in our days, that it seems de irable to give kind words a chance among them.—There are vain words, and idle words, and hasty words, and spiteful words, and silly words, and empty words, and boisterous words, and warlike words. Kind words also produce their own image in men's souls. And a beautiful image it is. They soothe and quiet and comfort the hearer. They shame him out of his sour, morose, unkind feelings. We have not yet begun to use kind words in such abundance as they ought to be used.—Pascal.

CHARACTER.

We may judge of a man's character by what he loves—what pleases him.—If a person manifests delight in low and sordid objects—the vulgar song and debasing language—in the misfortunes of his fellows, or cruelty to animals, we may at once determine the complexion of his character. On the contrary, if he loves purity, modesty, truth—if virtuous pursuits engage his heart and draw out his affections—we are satisfied that he is an upright man. A man debased shrinks from association with the good and wise.—Chamming.

[From the Athens Cultivator.

MARL AND SAVE MANURE.

Editors Southern Cultivator:—The saving of manure lies at the foundation of all agricultural improvement, and yet it is neither understood nor practiced in this country. We can never afford to buy manure at any price, until we learn to harvest and apply that which is continually going to waste around us. In saving manure as in everything else, we should have a place for it. I propose a plan which, to put in practice the present year, will increase the amount of manure beyond the expectation of the most sanguine observer. Take of any good lasting material, four or six posts, (agreeable to size of pen,) sufficiently large to be substantial and set about six in the ground, and to utilize lumber all round, to the extent of about three or four feet. I would not have them more than five feet high. Underneath reduce heart plank, (such as can be picked up about any saw mill,) that will make it sufficiently long to retain the manure. If well made, they will last for years, and may be any size you about six by eight feet. But there is the most convenient places about the yard, and as to size that is governing circumstance, being regulated by which is the leaves that makes the whole lump valuable, and in a few months you have a mass of superior manure. Try it, and my word for it, if you distribute well and cultivate, you will have an abundance of vegetables, to spare.

But this is not all. You must have these receptacles or boxes also in the garden, and deposit all vegetable matter that you find it inconvenient to work into the soil, and by the addition of a load or two of stable manure, as a few months you will have just what you need to put in the trenches, in sowing seed of any kind.

By the use of charcoal about the water closets, pig pen and poultry house, you retain the fertilizing gases, prevent the unpleasant odors, and accumulate a quality of the very best manure, which may be used separately or mixed with other manure.

About your barn-lots you may save an incalculable amount of manure, by having large stables, and using an abundance of leaves and straw, by which you retain all the manure which should be taken from them day, distributed and plowed in deep.

It is a great mistake, in my opinion, that manure should lie in bulk for months until the rain, sun and evaporation has exhausted alitis strength, or until it is "rotted," before distribution. When spread on the land in its green state, and plowed under deep, all the fertilizing gases are retained in the soil, and go to the production of crops.

If the distribution is made in the fall or winter, it is better and will be good for more than one crop. It will be better generally to pen cows, sheep and hogs where you wish the manure deposited, and if penned every night, will soon enrich a large plat of ground. The use of leaves and straw, scattered on these pens, pay well for the labor bestowed.—This plan would have been good under the old system, but under the present it shall and is necessary, to adopt all the improvements, and labor-saving machinery, although it may be, by doing so, we'll be "striking a blow for farmers." We cannot afford to cultivate a large breadth of land, and the prejudice of the negro is very great against felling the forest tree. He is very much disposed to listen to the song, "Woodman spare that tree."

But I must not be tedious. I would not be understood as opposing the purchase and judicious distribution of fertilizers, but with the Railroad facilities we have here, it is economy to look at home first for a supply.

Yours, fraternally,

J. R. JACKSON.

Clinton, Ga., Jan. 4th, 1869.

GENERAL GRANT'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—In his Inaugural Gen. Grant said:

"Your suffrages having elected me to the office of President of the United States, I have, in conformity with the Constitution of our country taken the oath of office prescribed therein. I have taken this oath without mental reservation, with the determination to do to the best of my ability all that it requires of me. The responsibilities of the position I feel, but accept them without fear.—Should aid come to me unsought, I commence its duties untrammelled, and bring to it a conscientious desire and determination to fill it to the best of my ability and to the satisfaction of the people. On all leading questions, agitating the public mind, I will always express my views to Congress, and urge them according to my judgment, and when I think it advisable, will exercise the Constitutional privilege of interposing a veto to defeat measures which I oppose. But all laws will be faithfully executed whether they meet my approval or not. I shall, on all subjects, have a policy to recommend, but none to enforce against the will of the people.—Laws are to govern all alike—those who are opposed to as well as those who favor them. I know no method to secure the repeal of bad or obnoxious laws so effective as their stringent execution. The civil service, one of the greatest evils of our late rebellion, many questions will come before it for settlement in the next four years, which the preceding administration have never had to deal with; in meeting these it is desirable that they should be approached calmly, without prejudice, hate, or sectional pride, remembering that the greatest good to the greatest number is the object to be attained. This requires security of person and property, and for religious and political opinions in every part of our common country, without regard to local prejudice; all laws to secure these ends will receive my best efforts for their enforcement.

"A great debt has been contracted in securing to us and our posterity the Union. The payment of this, principal and interest, as well as the return to a specie basis, as soon as it can be accomplished without material detriment to the debtor class or to the country at large, must be provided for. To protect the national honor, every dollar of the Government indebtedness should be paid in gold, unless otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract. Let it be understood that no repudiator of one farthing of our public debt will be trusted in public place, and that will go far towards strengthening a credit which ought to be the best in the world, and will ultimately enable us to replace the debt with bonds bearing less interest than we now pay. To this should be added a faithful collection of the revenue, a strict accountability to the Treasury for every dollar collected, and the greatest practicable retrenchment in expenditures in every department of the Government. When we compare the paying capacity of the country now with ten States still in poverty from the effects of war, but soon to emerge, I trust into greater prosperity than ever before, with its paying capacity twenty-five years hence, and calculate what it probably will be twenty-five years later on, who can doubt the feasibility of paying every dollar then with more ease than we now pay for useless luxuries!—Why, it looks as though Providence had bestowed upon us a strong box of the precious metals locked up in the mountains of the far West, which we now forging the key to unlock, at the very contingency that is now upon us. Ultimately it may be necessary to increase the facilities to reach these riches, and it may be necessary, also, that the general government should step in aid to secure this access. But that should only be when a dollar of appropriation to pay secures precisely the same sort of dollar to use now, and not before. While the question of specie payments is in abeyance, the prudent business man is careful about contracting debts payable in the distant future. The nation should follow the same rule. Appropriate commerce is to be rebuilt, and all industries encouraged. The young men of the country, those who, from their age must be its rulers twenty-five years hence, have a peculiar interest to maintain the national honor. A moment's reflection as to our commanding influence among the nations of the earth in this day, if they are only true to themselves, should inspire them with national pride. All divisions, geographical, political and religious can join in the common sentiment. How the public debt is to be paid, or specie payments resumed is not so important as the plan that should be adopted and acquiesced in. A united determination to do, is worth more than divided councils, upon the wisest of plans. Legislation upon this subject may not be necessary now, nor even advisable, but will be when the civil law is more fully restored in all parts of the country, and trade resumes its wonted channels.

"It will be my endeavor to execute all laws in good faith, to collect all revenues assessed, and to have them properly accounted for, and economically disbursed; I will, to the best of my ability, appoint to office those only who will carry out this design. In regard to Foreign policies, I would deal with nations as equitable law requires individuals to deal with each other, and I would protect the law-abiding citizen, whether of native or foreign birth, wherever his rights are jeopardized or the flag of our country floats. I would respect the rights of all nations, demanding equal respect for our own. If others depart from this rule in their dealings with us, we may be compelled to follow their precedent. The proper treatment of the original occupants of this land, the Indian, is one deserving of careful study. I will favor any course towards them which tends to their civilization, christianization and ultimate citizenship. The question of suffrage is one which is likely to agitate the public so long as a portion of the citizens of the nation are excluded from its privileges in any State. It seems to me very desirable that this question should be settled now; and I entertain hope, and express the desire that it may be by the ratification of the fifteenth article of amendment to the Constitution.

"In conclusion, I ask patient forbearance one towards another, throughout the land, and a determined effort on the part of every citizen to do his share towards cementing a happy Union, and I ask the prayers of the nation to Almighty God in behalf of this consummation."

PATRONIZE HOME INSTITUTIONS.

If we combine together locally, pull together locally, pray together locally, and that continually, we shall surely grow rich and great together and rapidly. Patronize Home Institutions—don't send away for anything that can be manufactured here. Encourage home enterprises—don't ask men to deal with you and not deal with them. Lend all your influence, give all your patronage to your own mechanics—don't call them your groceries and calicoes and then send off for ready made houses, carriages, buggies, New York boots, Ohio hams and other imported and so-forths. Be liberal with those whose trade is making you rich, and don't be so mean that you only buy of them a small quantity of this or that which will last till you can order by the quantity from abroad.

ADVANTAGE OF LEARNING A TRADE.

"The advice of Benjamin Franklin, to give every child a trade by which he can earn a living, if necessary, comes of an experience older than his. In some countries this has been the law; in others a common custom. St. Paul, though educated in the law at the feet of Gamaliel, also acquired the important Oriental handicraft of a tentmaker, by which he was able to earn his living while prosecuting his mission. It is a good and wise thing to do. You may be able to send your children fortunes; but riches take to themselves wings. You may give them finished educations, but they may be gifted with extraordinary genius, but they may be placed in situations where no education and no talent may be so available as some humble honest trade by which they can get their living and be useful to others."

The Temperance Society.

On Monday night there was held at the Presbyterian Church, a meeting of the citizens of Marietta in behalf of the cause of Temperance. Mr. Wm. King was called to the Chair, and Mr. R. W. Power requested to act as Secretary. Prayer by Rev. P. L. Battelle. Mr. Wm. L. Mansfield and others, addressed the audience in a spirited, touching and forcible manner, and the result will be the accomplishment of much good.

The cause of Temperance is one which should engage, in it's state of inactivity or locked upon with indifference. But we do not doubt but what there are those present who were at an inactive rest in the life of the cause before; but let those who do feel an interest in the matter, use all the influence and energy they can command, to stimulate the rapid progress of this noble reform.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday night, the 18th instant, at the Presbyterian Church, and it is to be hoped that the attendance will be unusually large. Citizens of Marietta, male and female, old and young, we earnestly urge and solicit your presence on this occasion.

Agricultural Progress.

We see it all around us—everywhere. The Plowing is deeper and more thorough than our lands were ever before subjected to, and the demand for and the application of fertilizers are unexampled among our farmers. The result is bound to be, in increased production—increase of agricultural wealth—commercial, industrial, social and moral improvement. The hardest occupation it may—agriculture is about to become one of the most profitable and useful, but the most honorable and profitable of all the pursuits of life. Let us continue to learn and work—work and learn—and we will be quick to our children, the happiest heritage on earth.

The Value of a Newspaper.

A newspaper in one year, is worth a quarter's schooling to a child, and every father must consider that substantial information is connected with this advancement. How many parents who refuse or neglect to take a paper, and never spent twenty dollars in books of any kind for their families, would gladly have given thousands of dollars to reclaim a son or daughter, who had ignorantly and thoughtlessly fallen into temptation.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

A SHORT CHAPTER FROM ANCIENT AND MODERN HISTORY.

We read, says the Federal Union, in the fourth chapter of the book of Daniel, that on a certain day, Nebuchadnezzar, the old carpet-bag King of Babylon, was walking in his palace, indulged what, according to his own confession, was in the following strain of lying brag: "I declare—It not this great Babylon that I have built for the house of the Kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honor of my majesty."

This was all an infamous lie; the carpet-bag King had only done windwork. He had employed some of the Kimballs of Babylon to build his opera houses, his gambling saloons, his cafes, his drinking saloons, his dormitories, &c., &c.; but he had taken the money to pay for all of those fine things from the people. It was out of their hard earnings that the Babylonish Kimballs had been paid, and the Almighty to punish such lying impudence, in a moment changed him into a Bullock and turned him out to grass.

When the Legislature met in January the carpet-bag King of Georgia said to them in substance: "Is not this Kimball's Great Opera House, which I, and the people of Atlanta, built for the State House of Georgia, by the might of our own money, and for the honor of Atlanta." But like the boasting of the King of Babylon, this was all false. The Kimballs had again been paid out of the people's money, taken without their consent; and the indignence of all the people of Georgia is, that the carpet-bag king and his opera house be turned out to grass.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S CABINET.

The Augusta Chronicle thus sketches the new Cabinet. As most of the gentlemen comprising it are unknown to the country, we give the article for the information of our readers:

Mr. Washburne has been long regarded as the very particular and intimate friend of Gen. Grant, and the country expected that he would receive some prominent place, but no one was prepared to see him made Secretary of State. At this particular juncture, this is the most important and responsible place in the Cabinet, and, owing to our peculiar relations with Great Britain, growing out of the Alabama claims, and the threatening aspect of affairs in Eastern Europe, together with the revolutionary condition of Spain, requires a statesman of great skill in diplomacy, with experience and ability capable of grappling successfully with the great questions which will press themselves upon the Government for consideration and action. Mr. Washburne has been, we believe, more than twenty years in Congress, and for several sessions has been the "oldest member," yet he has never obtained distinction either as a debator or practical business member. He has been regarded by some for several years as the watch-dog of the Treasury, and, perhaps, it was this characteristic which induced Gen. Grant to give him the first place in his Cabinet.

The Secretary of the Navy is from Pennsylvania, and we believe not particularly distinguished even in the politics of his own State. We learn that he is not considered an ultra Radical, but is, and has always been a strong party man. What reason induced his selection we are at a loss to discover.

The Secretary of the Interior is from Ohio—was at one time Governor of that State, and has served in Congress without, however, ever having attained any very high position there. What his peculiar views are upon the great questions which will have to be met and grappled with by Gen. Grant's administration, we are unable to say. We presume, however, that he has been selected because of his supposed and known hostility to the payment of the Government bonds in any currency save gold and silver coin.

Mr. Stewart, the great dry goods merchant, of New York, is the Treasurer. He has never been engaged in politics, and, so far as we know, has never held office. He is not a native of this country, but emigrated here from the North of Ireland, many years ago, and is thoroughly identified in interest and feeling with his adopted country. He is said to be the wealthiest man in the United States, his income being reputed as high as a half million annually, but he could hardly have been selected on this account alone. His opposition to the payment of the bonds in greenbacks, and his success as a business man and financier, doubtless, led to his appointment.

The Postmaster General is from Maryland, and has served one term in the United States Senate. He is a very weak man intellectually, and as a politician has been fickle and uncertain. Early in 1861 he was a violent secessionist, and was one of the "hot bloods" of Maryland who threatened instant destruction to all the Federal troops which might attempt to march through that State on their way to conquer the South. He soon discovered that such a position would give him no lucrative position or place of distinction, and he changed his views to suit the times, and afterward was one of the most bitter and proscriptive of the Maryland Unionists.

The Attorney General is a bitter and vindictive abolitionist of the old school, and we believe a son of the notorious Hoar, who, many years ago, was sent from Massachusetts to Charleston by the abolition society to prevent the State of South Carolina from enforcing her laws against the introduction of colored seamen in her ports. The son is said to be a regular chip of the old block.

SOLILOQUIZING.—This is a great peculiarity with the negro, and it not unfrequently happens that it leads to the enunciation of truths which cannot be gainsayed. Who will undertake to dispute the application of the following soliloquy, emanating from a dilapidated, shockless and superfluous victim of carpet-bag chicanery? It is too true to smile at:

"Dey fab no business coax me off,
Den cuss me kaze I come;
Dey used me loog deg's wanted to,
Den turn me loose from home,
An' if de Lor' had all de blacks
In Hebin in his care,
To coax us out a' dar."

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1868.

Dr. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Calliot, who has been in bad health for several years, tried one bottle and found himself improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given your great popularity in this entire section. I think I can safely say your Cedron Bitters medicines take full—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, one of Blaket and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. H. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and unprofessional men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine. The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible and satisfactory that I have received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

VILLAW, WALKER COUNTY GA., June 22, 1868.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully effectacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of its kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I will state that the use of your Worm Destroyer, in connection with the principles and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D's, but I am not just aware of any good reason in discarding the use of the Lancet in connection with it. Should it be found necessary to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. For my part to all I think it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more learned than myself may have imagined its effects first, and received that knowledge. Moreover, I am by no means wedded to old routes or support, of the theories of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir to. Please write me and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

BENTON BARRACKS, Co., April 20, 1868.

Dr. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities of your Cedron Bitters, the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being starved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not set up a month since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to build me up. I have no more faith in your therapeutic than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please ex. press me half a dozen bottles of each.

CAPT. C. P. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1868, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. C. P. Johnson, 18, Bell—Dear Sir: My son, Capt. Dr. C. P. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Cassell's New York, where he died, leaving the place of C. P. Johnson, M. D. Although he was a surgeon he had a chronic diarrhœa and scrofula, for which I gave your Sarsaparilla and Dr. Cedron Bitters. The cure effected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores was truly astonishing. I am glad to say to you that he again have removed to your fine, healthy city. He is fearful of getting a spell of diarrhœa, but he expects to go for it. Rhubarb were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the cure of Ague and Fever, Chills and Fever, Remittent Fever or Fever and Ague. The Tonic in the combination is the truth of its claim. Many in the state who were not well to be sure, of the disease, but were broken down in health by it, the great remedy after a single dose has been restored to health. Usually, this medicine will not require more than a bottle to break the chills in a common case, but in a case of long standing, or where the system has been reduced by other diseases, it may require two or three bottles to effect a cure. TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS.

In every careful office, perfect accuracy is aimed at, but in spite of all precautions, is not always attained. It is easy enough to point out errors when it is too late to correct, but it is a very tedious task to guard against them. It has been asserted that a book absolutely free from typographical errors, has never yet been printed, This seems rather sweeping, but is very difficult to deny with proof. Many of these blunders are very amusing, for instance, when a poetess intends to say:

"For the dew drop that falls upon the freshly blown rose," and the types show "freshly blown noses," it is not difficult to 'phanzy her pheelinks.' If that was hard on the lady, blow is this for the man:

"See the pale martyr in a sheet of fire—"

"See the pale martyr with his shirt on fire."

A party newspaper in England wishing to describe the enthusiasm with which their candidate was received by the populace, say's they "rent the air with their snouts!"

Errors are frequently made by the typo's officious correction of supposed mistakes in copy, thus the office devil in looking over the corrected proof of a new classical poem, reads the lines:

"Shall reign the Hecate of the deepest hell," and, positive that there is no e in cat takes it upon himself to change it,

"Shall reign the He cat of the deepest hell."

A volume of sermons printed in England, the proof of which was very carelessly read, contained many typographical errors, one of which certainly expressed the feelings of the author: the copy read—"I princes have persecuted me without a cause;" the book reads—"Printers have persecuted me without a cause."

Punctuation is by no means of small importance in the correct rendering of a writer's meaning. Read this recommendation as it is punctuated.

"I continued on using it, and by the time I had taken five bottles I found myself completely cured, after having been brought so near the gates of death by your infallible medicine."

An omitted comma in the description of a new building in one of our cities, makes the writer wax eloquent on "the extensive view presented from the fourth story of the Hudson River!"

It was formerly the custom in the country, in sending marriage notices to the press, to add some sweet poetical quotation, suited to the occasion; in this case, the groomsman quotes from a poet, speaking of the marriage, "when heart meets heart reciprocally soft."—The naughty boys in the office, improved the line thus:

"When lead meets lead reciprocally soft," which it is possible was quite as appropriate as the original.

During the Mexican war, an English newspaper announced as important news from the scat of war, that Gen. Pillow and thirty-seven men had been lost in a bottle.

Another paper in its Police Reports, mentions a man who was arraigned for stealing a small ox (box) from a ladies work-bag!

"A rat (raft) descending the river, came in collision with the steamer St. Louis, and so great was the injury done to the boat, that every exertion was necessary to keep her afloat."

A New York paper, in an obituary notice of a person of considerable celebrity, some years since, attempted to say:

"He subsequently commenced life as a legal practitioner, but was diverted from it by his love of letters." The editor did not examine his proof, and on Sunday morning he had the pleasure of reading: "He subsequently commenced life as a legal politician, but was diverted from it by his love of bitters."

In placing a form on a Press, a letter dropped out unperceived, an edition of the Book of Common Prayer, instead of the passage "We shall all be changed in the twinkling of an eye," announces in the devout worshippers that "we shall all be hanged in the twinkling of an eye!"

An edition of the Roman Catholic Missal was once published in France, in which the accidental substitution of o for a, rendered the duties of the priest rather trying to an over modest man.—Culotte, is French for his head dress or mitre, which at a certain point in the service, is required to be taken off; but the missal was made to direct the removal of his culotte! (Anglice, breeches!)

How nice it is to see a lady gracefully sweep through a mud puddle with an empress trail; it sets the heart throb through an empty [illegible]

(From The Southern Cultivator.)

WORK FOR THE MONTH.

Where the face of the country, soil and climate vary so much as they do in different parts of the South, it is impossible to indicate a line of procedure equally applicable to all. The time for planting corn, for instance, varies from the 1st of March, or even earlier along the Gulf, to the latter part of May, in the vallies of the hill country. Again upon the first lands of the Atlantic and Gulf border, and bottom lands elsewhere, which are not thoroughly drained, it is necessary to put the corn upon a ridge, to prevent "drowning out" in wet weather; whereas, in rolling and hilly country, the best farmers recommend planting on a level with the surface, or even several inches below. Again, as to distance: This may certainly be less on flat and valley lands, particularly when rich than in high and dry localities. Climate also comes in as a disturbing cause. In cooler latitudes, where the plant naturally takes on a dwarfish habit, it may without injury, be crowded much more than in warmer zones, where the tendency is to produce a tall, luxuriant stalk.—Hence at the North, corn is planted much thicker than at the South. We beg each of our readers, therefore, to canvass all these different circumstances, as bearing on his own locality, and be sure if he errs, to err on the side of giving plenty of distance to his corn—especially if he plants high rolling lands.

In common with some of our correspondents we have already expressed our doubts as to corn being the cheapest grain we can raise. The large amount of work necessary to make a corn crop, is one very serious objection to it, but this difficulty, to a certain extent, at least, is within our control. Manure, plow and drain one acre so as to make it produce as much as 2, 3 or 4—that is the true policy. Therein lies, also, the solution of the labor question; for, unless we are greatly mistaken, the indications point very clearly to deficiency, no less than inefficiency of negro labor at the South. If so, all of our arrangements must be adjusted to a minimum amount of labor. We would not be understood, however, as advising our readers to plant small crops of corn the present year, unless they have made abundant arrangements for a full supply of provisions, from small grains, clover, &c. On the contrary, our earnest advice, as heretofore proffered, is give ample scope and verge to a provision crop, and then plant what is left in cotton.

We do not propose to argue the question of how much cotton should be planted. We take it for granted everybody will plant all they can tend, and some a good deal more. Whenever the plows can be spared from the preparation for and the planting of corn, they should be busy now in bedding cotton land.

Bed out a plenty of Sweet Potatoes.—Don't forget that where the seasons are short, the first slips set out make the finest potatoes. To have early slips, proceed as if you were going to a lot bed—fly out a foot or so of ground; put in a mixture of fresh stable manure and leaves, and a layer of good earth upon this, in which last place the potatoes—and next to vine slightly raised. The heat of the fermenting manure all bring them forward rapidly. Bed out at least five bushels of potatoes for every acre to be planted. We would earnestly urge upon our readers increased attention to this valuable crop. For a general crop, and for winter and spring use, on account of its qualities the old fashioned yellow yam. For early fall use, the Red variety or Spanish and Hayti Yam may be planted.

THORLOW WEED ON SOUTHERN SOCIETY.—From his winter retreat at Aiken South Carolina, Mr. Weed indites letters to his friends North, from one of which we make an extract:

"If the Northern people knew how cheap and fertile these lands are, and how desirable and pleasant a residence in this climate can be made, there would be a stampede, not of "carpet-baggers" merely, but of permanent residents from the North. Nor need any be restrained by an apprehension that they would be regarded as intruders.

The war, doubtless, has left its wounds deep and painful wounds—but they are healing, and ere long little but the scars will remain. There is wide-spread destitution; but the people bear their losses with a fortitude equal to the average which led them to hazard all in a struggle which resulted disastrously. In the six weeks that we have passed in South Carolina, we have neither seen nor heard anything that led us to doubt that intelligent Northern people, with a sense of what is due to others, as well as to themselves, can readily cultivate agreeable business and social relations with the same class of citizens in South Carolina and Georgia.

OUTWARD good things are no sign of God's special love. The sun of prosperity shines upon the brambles of the wilderness, as well as upon the flowers of the garden.

FALSEHOOD.

This is a vice totally unworthy a the individual who would maintain a respectable standing in society—and a great worthist has observed: "It is easy and apparently so natural, to deny what you cannot be so easily convicted of, that a savage, as well as a child, has to excuse himself, almost as instinctively as he raises his hand to protect his head." Parents should be most particular in correcting their children in breeches of truth. No vice troubles more than falsehood. It is the cankerwood that earliest takes root in the human mind, and as it increases in growth it spreads like the upas tree, every branch becomes a fresh vice, until the entire soul is poisoned with the deepest shade.

THE RADICAL PROGRAMME.—The N. Y. Express thus graphically sketches the various features of the programme by which the Radical party has brought down the country and government from their high estate, and yet seeking to drag them to a still lower depth:

Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Seward commenced by declaring, first, that the government could not endure half slave and half free, and then, that "nobody was hurt," and then, by tinkling that "little bell" which consigned scores of men to Forts Warren and Lafayette.—Then up "a Pope's bull against the comet," done by putting the ballot in the hands of [illegible] and how difficult it is to say how the ballot will stand. MARRY no man who uses tobacco or intoxicating liquor; for they are sure to destroy his manhood, and leave him a wreck upon the strands of disappointment at the period of life when most needed a strong arm and a stout heart to support you.

SOMEN years ago Gen. Grant would pied a small two-story house in Galena, Ill. situated on a steep hill, having to climb up a stair-way two hundred feet to reach it. He was then called a tanner his father's leather store.

Roswell Factory.

We are indebted to the Superintendent, Gen. A. J. Hamlet, for samples of the excellent Thread now being spun at Roswell Factory. The samples embrace Sewing Thread—for machine and hand use; Bunching Ends and Floor Sacks, and Knitting Yarns in all round, arem and strong.

We congratulate the enterprising and systematic management of Gen. Hamlet, and the Factory is again doing a prosperous business and that there is now being manufactured for $60,000 of new machinery soon to be put in operation—and to be paid for from the earnings of the Factory. Success to all such worthy enterprises.

The Temperance Meeting.

The Temperance meeting held on last Wednesday evening, at the Presbyterian Church was of large attendence, but there were not as many as was anticipated, and there were those present that could and should have been present. Dr. Moore was expected to be present, but, owing to reasons unknown to us, he did not make his appearance.—The interest manifested is suspicious of grand results. The young men seemed to be deeply exercised by the touching and pathetic remarks of the several addresses delivered, and without hesitancy enrolled their names in rapid succession under the pledge of total abstinence. The ladies, who ever willing to aid in the promotion of any cause that has good as the object of its accomplishment, gladly gave their invaluable influence in espousing the cause.

The next meeting will be held at the Methodist Church, Thursday evening, 25th inst., at 7½ o'clock, and the citizens are cordially invited to attend and give their encouraging influence that they desire to see the reformation of the inebriate and the salvation of the young men who are by degrees becoming addicted to Bacchus.

The Cattle Plague.

In the March number of the American Stock Journal is a long and valuable article by Prof. John Gamgee on the Lung Plague in Cattle. Of all the cattle diseases pleuro pneumonia is in the long run the most destructive, because the most insidious and the least likely to rouse a people to united action for its effectual suppression. To ignore its presence is, however, to insure that the cattle mortality of America like that of England, will be at least doubled in a few years' time. Rational means, energetic action and earnest co-operations between the different States and the central government may, with a moderate expenditure now, save many millions annually in the not distant future.

There are at present no proper restrictions on the sale of infected stock, and in another year or two, unless some definite and immediate action be taken, the disease is likely to find its way in so many parts of the country that its eradication will be almost a matter of impossibility.

The Editors of the Journal being extensive breeders and dealers in cattle, have printed an edition of over half a million copies for gratuitous distribution among our Farmers. We hope all will avail themselves of this generous offer and send for a copy.—Address N. P. Boyer & Co., Publishers, Parkersburg, Chester Co., Pa.

Peters' Musical Monthly.

The March number of Peters' Musical Monthly is at hand, and contains some twenty-four pages of Choice New Music, giving selections from the most popular writers, and variety enough to suit the most fastidious. We notice first, a beautiful little ballad, with Chorus, by J. R. Cox, entitled "Left all Alone," the words of which run as follows:

"I am left all alone in my sorrow,
No mother to soothe me to rest,"

Then follows a Sacred Song by George Leach entitled "The Lord will Provide."

"Though troubles assail, and dangers affright;
Though friends may all fail, and foes all unite;
Yet one thing secures us, whatever betide,
The Scriptures assure us the Lord will provide."

"Cornelius," by the Nation's Song-Writer, Will S. Hays, comes next, the chorus of which runs as follows:

"Oh! she was fair and gentle as a child had ever been,
And the school of the angels is our darling Carrie Lee."

This is followed by a sprightly Comic Song by T. Brigham Bishop, entitled "The Young Widow," and, among other things, she says,

"She doesn't want a man who sups out all night,
Or one that drinks brandy, and comes home quite tight."

There are also three Instrumental pieces, namely, "Pretty as a Pink," Barcarole, by Mack; "Fleur de The Galop," by Dressler, and the famous "Grecian Bend March," by Perrot.

In addition to the above, Mr. Peters gives fifteen pages of choice family Readings, and all for the moderate sum of 30 cents, or $2 per year—over $3 worth of New Music appearing in each number. Those of our musical friends who do not subscribe are certainly losing a rich treat, as $40 worth of music cannot be bought every day for such a small sum.

Marietta Female College.

This Institution, under the direction of Col. J. T. Montgomery and Prof. Victor E. Manget, is now officered and at work and promises to be one of the first female Colleges in the country. It commenced with 18 young ladies and now, in the space of less than two months, it numbers about 40 in the four regular collegiate classes. And the cry is, "will they come." Petty opposition is fast giving way to sober reason and facts.

We have visited the College and from all we learned of the system—especially in the Laboratory where the experiments are made by the pupils, we are satisfied no school North or South presents higher claims for patronage. To a difficult task for professors in the departments of Natural Science, to manipulate successfully in the sparatus room. But in this College the young ladies make the experiments in Philosophy, Chemistry, &c., &c. The classes are not mere spectators, but take hold of the sparatus and illustrate the principles of physical science, and to our mind, this is the only way to learn Natural Science, or any other Science profitably. One experiment and that made by the pupil, is worth a hundred theories. It does seem to us that where there are such rare opportunities offered for thorough practical training, the whole community and country do not lend their patronage. The locality cannot be surpassed and the facilities are rarely equaled in any literary institution.

But, in contemplating this beautiful spectacle of a sure enough Female College in our midst with all the appliances of the first institutions of any country, and all furnished by the President, Col. Montgomery, the question arises, what is the distinguished Board of Trustees doing?

Has a permanent building been secured for the College? Does the Board of Trustees expect the Board of Instruction to do and suffer everything to enhance the well-being of our city? Why is not Marietta the point of attraction and thus appreciate prosperity. The Trustees and City Council have the matter in their own power and to them belongs the responsibility.

We are gratified to say, that the College is a success, but regret to chronicle the apathy of our citizens in not making it immediately successful.—We have conversed with Col. Montgomery and find him quite hopeful, even confident. He deplores the fact, that after rejecting many liberal offers from various places, accepting the invitation to come to Marietta with all of his College furniture and Apparatus, that some of the good people are slow to come to his assistance. He is grateful to those who have come up like men, and still hopes that all will do the same.

He still thinks and feels that he ought not to build up the College and city without the co-operation of those who are more interested than himself in the property of Marietta. He owns no property here, but is determined if the property is secured, the College shall succeed. If new friends are wanting, old ones will come to the rescue.

In conclusion, we a journalist, and identified with all the interests of Marietta, we would urge the good people of this section, to come up to the responsibility of this enterprise, looking as it does to the good of the city, community, section, State—in a word to the South.

Will our exchanges notice the above.

The Peabody Fund.—The Savannah Republican says that a friend, who is well informed, replies to their inquiry of a few days ago regarding the share of Georgia in the above fund. He says a most liberal distribution was made last year among the public schools of the State. Savannah received $1,500; Augusta, $1,000; Atlanta, $1,000; Columbus, $2,000, besides smaller sums to other places. The object of the trustees is to encourage the formation and progress of public or free schools, to which their bounty is chiefly confined.

BULL'S CEDROX BITTERS

Authentic Documents

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

Dr. John Bull.—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cathartic Pills.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, even turned on Hot Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Coffee who has been in bad health for several years, and has been using your Sarsaparilla, says much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedrox Bitters has given universal satisfaction in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedrox Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me to Memphis, care of Rickel and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. R. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials, from professional and unprofessional men, as to my medicines, and publications have shown, all of which are genuine. The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Illinois, is certainly one of the most sensible commendations I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

Yillow, Walker County Ga., June 29, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am frustrated to that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authorities that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My objection writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.

I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular faculty of M. D's, but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its constituents. For my part I intend to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and named it to suit himself. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all diseases of the human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

Benton Barracks, Co.,
April 30, 1866.

Dr. John Bull.—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficacy of your Sarsaparilla, and its healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet, have not sat upon moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist me. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in any thing else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

Capt. C. F. Robinson,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865. to Mrs. Sarah Johnson, the mother of Dyd Johnson.

Dr. Bull—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and fever, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It Cured Him. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sore, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever is almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is far afraid of getting a medicine. I send his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vender of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER

OR

CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered for the public cure for the speedy, sure, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether slight or severe, long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of t se assertions, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in a majority of cases, certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the fever has been checked—more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order, should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken which or for the use of the Tonic, a dose or two of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

They were prepared by the most skillful hands, and their virtues were known to the whole community. Their sale was unbounded, and their cures were literally numberless. Many of the worst cases of disease that afflict humanity were conquered by them, and their wonderful power to save life was known to every man, woman and child in the land. Many of these publications have been lost, but enough remain to show the estimation in which they were held, and the results which were produced by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Its composition is the same as that of the Cherry Pectoral, and it is now offered to the public in the confident belief that it will do for the blood what the Cherry Pectoral does for the lungs.

A WORD TO THE FARMERS OF GEORGIA, ALABAMA AND TENNESSEE.

The cultivation and manufacture of the Chinese and African Cane into syrup [illegible] the East Indies have been described [illegible] from remote antiquity. The [illegible] plant which has been introduced into [illegible] botanists have noticed [illegible] But it seems to have been reserved to our day and generation, and to the indomitable energy and practical acumen of our American people to fully develop the many invaluable qualities of this remarkable plant. It is but little more than ten years since the Chinese sorgo was first introduced into this country, and at a still later period the valuable Imphee varieties were introduced from Africa. Of its properties or capabilities little was known at the time of its introduction but that it was a sugar cane hardy enough to stand the severities and sudden changes of climate. The seed was widely distributed by the Patent Office. Many experimented in a small way without either knowledge or suitable apparatus. In 1856 a paper on sorghum was read before the American Institute, in which the method of treating the cane was thus described: "Some parties pound the stalks with rolling pins, hammers and mallets, rinse out the sap with their hands, from which syrup is obtained by boiling in sauce pans and other like vessels; other parties cut the stalks [illegible] buried in water without bruising." It is not strange that with such rude implements many should become discouraged and cry "humbug! humbug!" In the same year 1856 a scientific gentleman thus discussed before the American Institute the properties of this plant:—"The seed is almost as good as oats; and in that alone pays the cost of the crop. [illegible] form, for stock. This plant is a magnificent acquisition to our country."—The value of the productions of this plant since its introduction into the country cannot be less than two hundred million of dollars. A glance at the progress made in the cultivation of this plant during the brief time that it has been known here, fills one with astonishment. It required sixty years of persistent effort to establish the best sugar enterprise of Europe. The cultivation of the Southern cane in Louisiana did not become a success until after many years failure. But this new plant has become one of the most important of farm products in years so few that they can be counted upon your fingers. It would be difficult to name any other farm product whose success has been commensurate with this. In the progress of this branch of husbandry certain facts have been fully and indisputably established, which were problems ten years ago. It is established that sorghum is adapted to our soil and climate, and is even a surer crop than wheat, oats, cotton or Indian corn; that its quality does not deteriorate by acclimation, but may be constantly improved by judicious management. Ordinary farmers can grow and manufacture upon their own premises a better article of syrup than they can purchase at less than one dollar per gallon. This plant is not only a sure one in the South but it is a profitable one. An average yield is one hundred gallons of syrup per acre, whose yield of sugar is six pounds to the gallon, leaving three pounds of syrup after the six pounds of sugar have been extracted. Such sugar to-day is worth eighteen cents per pound. The yield of sugar would be six hundred pounds per acre, worth one hundred and eight dollars, and a remainder of twenty-five gallons of syrup after the sugar is extracted. These facts being established, and taken in connection with the fact that the war in Cuba will prevent the importation of sugar and syrup in 1869 and '70, which will increase the value of sorghum sugar and syrup from 60 to 100 per cent., present an important consideration for agriculturalists. But great as has been the progress of the last ten years, much remains to be done, and the next decade will undoubtedly show still greater progress. The average quality of the syrup has improved from year to year, but there is room for still further improvement. Some farmers make a syrup as light colored as Stewart's refined, almost entirely free from the sorghum taste and nearly as thick as jelly, while others, through carelessness, or a lack of experience in manufacturing, make an article as black and rank as tar: and between these two extremes all grades are to be found.—Yet, every man, in the absence of any fixed standard, thinks his own production good. This should be remedied and will be, in a great degree, as producers gain experience and have opportunities to compare their products with a better article. Refineries are needed, located in various parts of the country, that all the various grades of syrup by refining may be made a standard, merchantable article. The refineries in this country, which have heretofore been refining New Orleans and West India molasses, now buy and refine large quantities of sorghum [illegible] the name of Golden or Silver Drop, [illegible] will soon be supplied by the erection of them all over the South. Planters should be particular in selecting good seed. Procure your seed early to prevent disappointment, and when procured sprout some of it to be sure that it will germinate. Before planting, the seed should be soaked. Of the different varieties generally cultivated, the Chinese cane is the most productive and affords a light-colored and pleasant syrup.

The great objection to it is that it is easily prostrated by winds, and sometimes falls down from its own weight.—Of the emphees, the Siberian and the Oomseeana seem to be most in favor.—The Siberian (or Red Top) has a large stalk and is hardly ever prostrated by wind. It affords a light colored, mild, pleasant syrup. The chief recommendation of the Oomseeana is in sugar-producing qualities, wherein it exceeds all the other varieties. The objection to it is it is easily blown down. Plant early even before planting corn or cotton.—Do not plant too deep. Half an inch is deep enough, and if planted too deep it will never come up. Make the rows and hills about the same distance apart that you plant corn. Plant eight or ten grains or seeds in a hill. The young plant is very slender and slow of growth, therefore care should be taken of it in the early part of the season. It is well to run a cultivator or corn plow between the rows but after the cane has attained a height of three feet plowing will break the roots and seriously injure the crop. Suckers should be removed as fast as they appear. The time for harvesting cane has been a mooted question. It was at first thought that the cane should be fully ripe before cutting, but it now seems to be pretty well settled that more and better syrup can be obtained from green cane, and that the syrup there from is much more apt to grain. Commence harvesting when the seed is in the milk. If it is desired only to make syrup the flavor is improved by curing the cane a few weeks. It may, if carefully protected from the sun and rain, be kept through the winter, but, if designed for sugar, the cane should be ground the day it is cut and evaporated immediately. In harvesting, first select the richest and sweetest stalks for seed; cut off the heads below the first joint and save all the heads and blades for fodder.

OBSERVER.

HOW GIRLS TREAT EACH OTHER.

Girls are awfully jealous of each other. We should call this the girl's distinctive fault. See them when they are introduced, or when they first meet at a ball or croquet party. See how coldly critical they look at each other, how insolently their eyes rove over every portion of their rival's dress; and read in their faces the outspoken verdict, the result of their scrutiny: [illegible] "You have done it very well, but you have made a fright of yourself, and I am much better than you." [illegible] of the more admired among them; and how excessively naughty for attracting so much attention they think that Ada or Amy, about whom the young men cluster. How bold she is!—how over-dressed she is!—and oh! how ugly she is! Sometimes, if they are deep, they will over-praise her enthusiastically; but the ruse is generally too transparent to deceive any one, and simply counts for what it is—a clever feint that doesn't answer. It is quite a study to watch the way in which girls shake hands together, or take hands in dances, the limp, cool, impertinent way in which they just touch palms, then let their arms fall as if paralyzed, tells a volume to those able to read the lettering.

LIFE AND ITS END.

Remember for what purpose you were born, and, through the whole of life, look at its end. Consider, when that comes, in what will you put your trust. Not in the bubble of worldly vanity—it will be broken; not in worldly pleasures—they will be gone; not in great connections—they cannot serve you; not in wealth—you cannot carry it with you; not in rank—in the grave there is no distinction; not in the recollection of a life spent in a giddy conformity to the silly fashions of a thoughtless and wicked world; but in that of a life spent soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world.

DO YOU MEAN TO PROPOSE.

[illegible] LADIES [illegible]

You're a [illegible] man, and a [illegible] youth,
You've a very good heart, and a very long tooth,
But now to the point—do you mean to propose?
[illegible]

The house is besieged both by rich and by poor,
Who knock all day long at grandmamma's door;
They turn up their eyes, and they [illegible]
But what is all that if they do not propose?

[illegible]
To unmarried girls is a thing quite unknown;
[illegible]

You take all the airs of a man I've preferred,
You keep off the rest, and you dont say a word,
This is not fair play—sure a fellow who shows
Such uncommon devotion should speak and propose!

I want to be married—do you understand?
You'd give me a world I—only give me your hand
One can't go on always with cons and with pros,—
Never come here again—or be frank and propose!

INDUSTRIOUS YOUNG MEN THE HOPE OF THE SOUTH.

The glory, the honor and prosperity of the South are not in the hands of old politicians, says the Augusta Constitutionalist; they are in the keeping of the young men who, as they prove industrious or indolent, great shall be their reward or terrible their punishment. What the South most urgently requires at this supreme hour of destiny is a splendid array of hard working, sober, stalwart and enterprising youths. The young men who work now are bound to be the lords of the future and the rulers of the land. No matter how lowly, industry will ennoble them and their progeny will own the seats of dominion. In the same ratio, the idle and timid will sink lower and lower as the years progress, and the traditions of their aristocratic lineage will not save them from decrepitude and final extinction. The better a man is born the more is he called upon to give proof that he is superior to the bones of his ancestors and worthy of his gentle blood. There is no excuse for him if he fails to outstrip those who have to battle against adverse fate and social ostracism. He ought to blush if the race be won by the tortoise, while he is so swift and nimble a hare.

Georgia has this day at work in the fields many a youngster whom she will in the future delight to honor with her choicest gifts. We have heard of several whose example is worthy of public commendation. The latest illustrations brought to our knowledge are these:

AMOS NORRIS, of Warren Co., with one plow and a horse, cultivated, this season, eleven acres of land in cotton and eighteen acres in corn. The land was of the poorest, and yet he made five bales of cotton and one hundred bushels of corn. Not only did he cultivate this crop without assistance, but, unaided and alone, packed the cotton and harvested the corn.

ADAM TOBB, of the same county, with but trifling assistance, made five bales of cotton on nine acres of land, and two hundred bushels of corn on eighteen acres. His land was a little better than that of NORRIS.

Well done both of you! Instead of [illegible] portions in the time to come. If [illegible] spirit of industry you [illegible] life, you need not fear for your children's or your own destiny. When the Norrises and Tobbs shall be multiplied a thousand-fold, Georgia will look down on New England and start on a path of empire which the most fervid fancy can but inadequately portray.

HOW MUCH MARKED?

We clip the following from an exchange. We advise nightly visitors of dry goods clerks to beware:

A clerk in a dry goods store retired one night, having for his bedfellow an acquaintance dating back to school days. Our informant slept in the next room adjoining, the door of which was partly open. In the middle of the night he says he was awakened from sleep by hearing the clerk, in a loud voice, exclaim, "How many yards did you say you wanted, madam? Three yards enough?" and the next thing he heard was a tearing noise; and the bed-fellow of the clerk shouting out, "What are you doing? You have torn my shirt from top to bottom." The poor [illegible] imagined himself in his store, waiting on a lady customer, who wanted three yards of calico. The shouts of merriment which the [illegible] created can well be imagined.

An Extraordinary Dream.

To sleep and manufacture dreams is more than childhood's play and is very delectable when of a pleasing nature. The one we are going to relate can be considered by the reader whether it is of a pleasing nature or not. One of our young gentlemen friends who resides in this city, whose occupation is that of a clerk, and whose name shall here be nameless, being a hungered a few nights ago boiled a quantity of eggs, we believe, to the number of thirteen, he expected to have assistance in diminishing the number from one of his colleagues in the store, but we being from the number he ate that he did not [illegible] only two for his companion to finish. The hour of retiring arrived, he was soon in bed and ere much time had elapsed he was wafted to dreamland; he, in his hallucination, became a King, and [illegible] to as beautiful and fascinating nymph as artist ever drew. [illegible] they could not be unless the honeymoon was spent on a bridal tour. Being a King, he of course, was the possessor of fine chariots, the bride and [illegible] seated in one; [illegible] of the [illegible] composed mostly of egg shells and in a manner that would be [illegible] description; he also discovered, instead of being drawn by twelve large, fine horses, he was drawn by twelve large, fine [illegible], but where the laugh comes in is, that, on their journey, whenever he was prompted to give his bride a warm embrace or a fervent kiss, she immediately became transformed into a chicken hen, and would commence a tremendous cackling.

Bad Times Coming for Dogs.

The wheels of time revolve slowly but surely and the time is rapidly approaching when each dog's day will come to a close, that is, if the owners of said dogs do not act in compliance with the city ordinance imposing a tax of fifty cents on all dogs running at large. All dogs minus a collar marked "C. M.," to be procured from the City Marshal, after the 15th of April, will be shot or otherwise disposed of. It's a lucky thing it is confined to four legged dogs for we know of many two legged dogs that would have to wear a collar marked "C. M." or "go up the spout."

Spring Goods.

Our enterprising merchant, J. T. Haley, whose business qualities is so well and satisfactorily known in this community, has just returned from market with a large [illegible] Goods for Spring. It is a complete assortment of fancy, millinery and dress goods, that will hardly fail to please the most fastidious. Mr. Haley and his handsome clerk Master Willie Gilbert, with their courteous and gentlemanly bearing are perfectly competent of giving the utmost satisfaction to each and every one who may trade with them.

Sunday School Convention.

Rev. D. W. Hamilton, of the Baptist Church, did not, owing to illness, exchange pulpits with Rev. Dr. Brantley, of Atlanta, on last Sabbath, consequently the last named gentleman did not address the Sabbath School Convention as was previously announced, but the Convention was postponed until the first Sunday in April, when that gentleman will address the congregation of the Baptist Church in the morning and the Sunday School Convention in the evening.

How it was Discovered.

A young and very pretty lady riding on the cars of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, was observed to have a piece of court plaster on her lip. When the cars had emerged from the long dark tunnel on this road into the light, it was observed to have disappeared; but the eye instantly detected it clinging to the lip of a young man on the same seat with her; they both looked as innocent as if they "hadn't been doing nothing."

A Big Fish.

Not a shad, nor a cat-fish out of the Chattahoochee or the Tennessee—such things are too common for notice; but an enormous Salmon of exquisite flavor and a present, too, from A. Green, than whom there is no better judge of a good thing in his line of trade. If you doubt it just read his advertisement and try him and if you do not find him and his goods all right, and a little more so, we will never endorse for merchant again.

Removal.

Mr. R. Page has moved his store, that formerly was owned by C. A. Hawkins & Co., to Cherokee street, one door below Page & Montgomery, where he will be glad to see old customers. He has a good [illegible] afford to sell cheap. These urbane clerks, Messrs. Gilbert and Page, are ever on hand to welcome customers and favor them with a good bargain. Give them a call and see if our statement is not veritable.

Poor House Farm.

Our last Grand Jury has recommended that the County immediately purchase land and erect suitable buildings for a Poor House. This is a wise and judicious movement and less paupers will infest our streets who continually worry one's life out of him for alms in order that they may life at leisure.—Now they will have to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow or cease begging.

Bishop Beckwith.

We see it reported in a Northern exchange that Bishop Beckwith was about to preach to an out-door gathering of Ethiop Americans in this State, recently, when he stepped behind a shed to put on his vestments. A darkey or two discovered his movements, and crying aloud, "Ku Klux! Ku Klux!" stampeded the crowd in ten seconds, leaving the Bishop alone with his thoughts.

A Mammoth Ox.

PRESENTMENTS OF THE GRAND JURY, COBB SUPERIOR COURT MARCH TERM, 1869.

The undersigned Grand Jurors selected and qualified for said term of said court.

We have examined the books of the Clerk of the Sup'r Court, and find them kept in such a neat comprehensive, and business-like style, as to reflect the brightest credit on said office.

Furthermore we examined the books of the Ordinary, and find them neatly and correctly kept, and the business of the office conducted in a satisfactory manner and take pleasure in commending this officer for prompt and faithful discharge of his duties.

We also examined the books of the County Treasurer and find only 16cts, in the Treasury, which was paid over by the former officer, he now holds county orders to the amount of four hundred and seventy eight dollars, and forty cents, and that all has been duly accounted for by proper entries on his books, which are kept in a neat manner.

The books and papers of the Sheriff's Office were shown to us by W. W. Carrell, Dep'ty Sheriff, after a thorough examination we find them kept in such a manner as to reflect much credit upon the present officers.

We recommend the Court of Ordinary to appropriate not more than one hundred dollars for the building of a Bridge across Sweet Water Creek on the line of Cobb and Campbell Counties.

We also recommend that a tax of thirty per cent be levied on the State Tax for county purposes five per cent for Bridges, ten per cent for Juries and fifteen per cent for the Poor and that the pauper tax be invested in a tract of lands on which a house shall be erected and other improvements made from time to time as the finances of the county will admit said place to be known as the Poor House Farm and that three or five commissioners be appointed by the Superior Court or Court of Ordinary for the purpose of selecting a suitable farm and for more fully carrying out the object herein mentioned.

We also recommend that the small wooden building upon the Court House lot be applied for the furtherance of this object.

We also recommend the subject of retrenchment in general and particularly on the reduction of salaries both as to county officers and members of the Legislature we believe that good and true men can be procured to serve us as Legislators at not more than three dollars per day—men who would serve us for the good of the country and for the honor and not the emoluments of the office.

This body takes pleasure in announcing to the people of Cobb county that the bad effects of the late and lamentable war are gradually passing away and trust that good society may be re-established upon a happy basis for ourselves and posterity and urge that we encourage education, foster harmony and friendly intercourse with each other and thus secure to ourselves the blessing of providence and a happy future.

We tender to His Honor, Judge Noel B. Knight, and Solicitor General S. C. Johnson, our thanks for their courtesy to this body.

We recommend that these our General Presentments be published in the Marietta Journal.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENTS OF CHEROKEE COUNTY.

We the Grand Jury, selected, chosen and sworn for March Term of the Superior Court of Cherokee county, Ga., 1869, beg leave to make the following Presentments.

The public roads are [illegible] except [illegible] on Settingdown Creek, where the water is [illegible] a dam, below, we recommend the proper authorities to have said obstruction removed as soon as possible.

We recommend the Commissioners of roads to have all the roads put in a good condition as soon as possible, as the commissioners have recently received their commissions, we feel disposed to give them time to do their duty.

We have examined the records at the Offices of the Sheriff, the late county Judge, the Ordinary and Clerk of the Superior Court, and find them neatly and correctly kept.

We find the County Treasurers books correctly kept—having paid out by vouchers all monies which have come into his hands.

We find also the books of the Tax Receiver and Tax Collector, neatly kept.

We report the Jail unsafe, and recommend its repair immediately in the following manner, the dungeon floor to be laid with lumber 3 inches thick 12 inches wide, well spiked down, one then cross laid with same kind of lumber, secured with plenty of spikes. We recommend that prisoners be chained until the jail is made secure. We recommend the Ordinary NOT to rent the Ferries or bridges on the Etowah River for the present year '69. We recommend the payment of the Ferriage of parties attending Courts as Jurors or witness for the State.

We recommend the Ordinary to investigate the sale of the bricks sold by the Superior Court, which we cannot find any account of. We find from the report of the Ordinary that the county owes between seven and eight thousand dollars.

We have examined the records of the Sup'r Court and find them neatly kept, and we find the following orders passed by the Superior Court, which we believe to be illegal and contrary to law, and ought not to be paid to wit:

One to Isaac Ingram, County Treasurer, for recording orders	$178.[illegible]
Orders to J. B. Barton, Clerk of Inferior Court for two years and six months service $552.85 being $52.85 more than the law allows	52.85
Order paid L. Holcombe, Justice of the Inferior Court for recording and bringing up James Jordan former Ordinary's books, which service he agreed to do for nothing	225.00
Order paid Dowda and Hudson, Att'ys for investigating the case of Ball Rumph reported to be a lunatic	20.00
Paid E. G. Gramling, Sheriff, on some case, which cost ought to have been paid by Alston Worley informer	10.00
Order paid James M Daniel, Tax Receiver for 1864, which service was of no use to the county	150.00
Order paid E. C. Harden for building bridge across Little River $650, being fifty more than bid off at	50.00
Order paid Joseph Donaldson for the use of the Ferry for the citizens of Cherokee for foot and horse men crossing in 1868	200.00
Order paid J. O. Dowda, for the use of his Ferry for the same purposes for 1868	175.00
We find an order passed by W R. D. Moss, Ordinary for Clerk hire, which he is not entitled to	75.00
Being of illegal or unnessary appropriations of	$1116.35

We hope our Honorable Ordinary will guard the funds of the county with more care and adhere strictly to legal duties in disposing of the county funds.

Our feelings and desires would dictate that if legal we would recommend that John McConnell, William Kemp, John L. Worley, Taylor Worley, George Fowler, O. Nichols, Addison Watson, William Worley, be paid $2 per day and N. H. Benson $3 per day for services and James R. Brown $30 for bringing horse thieves to trial.

In taking leave of his Honor, Noel B. Knight, we tender him our thanks for the courteous manner in which he has so ably discharged his duty. We also tender our thanks to S. C. Johnson, Esq., Solicitor General, for the courteous manner in which he faithfully discharged his duty.

GREAT REMEDIES.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS.

Authentic Documents

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care of Ricket and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. B. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

Villaow, Walker County Ga.,
June 29, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D's. but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

Benton Barracks, Co.,
April 30, 1865.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

Capt. C. P. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865. by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

Dr. Bull—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It Cured Him. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vender of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER
OR
CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

ADVANTAGES OF PULVERIZING THE SOIL.

The effects of pulverization or subdividing the soil are numerous.

1. It gives free scope to roots of vegetables, and they become more diffused in a loose than in a hard soil; by which the absorbers become more numerous, and such food as is in the soil has a better chance of being sought after and taken up by them.

2. It admits the atmospheric air to the spongioles of the roots of plants, which no plant can make a healthy growth.

3. It increases the capillary attraction or sponge-like property of soils, by which their humidity is rendered more uniform; and in a hot season it increases the deposits of dew, and adapts it to the roots.

4. It increases the temperature of the soil in the spring, by admitting the warm air and tepid rain.

5. It increases the supply of organic food. The atmosphere contains carbonic acid, ammonia, and nitric acid—all most powerful fertilizers and solvents. A loose soil attracts and condenses them.

Rain and dew, also, contain them.—And when these fertilizing gases are carried into the soil by the rain water, they are absorbed and retained by the soil for the use of plants. On the other hand, if the soil is hard, the water runs off the surface, and instead of leaving these gases in the soil, carries off some of the best portions of the soil with it.—Thus, what might be a benefit becomes an injury.

6. By means of pulverization a portion of the atmosphere air is buried in the soil, and it is supposed that ammonia and nitric acid are formed by the mutual decomposition of this air and the moisture of the soil—heat also being evolved by the changes.

7. Pulverization of the surface soil serves to retain the moisture in the subsoil, and to prevent it from being penetrated by heat from a warmer, as well as from radiating its heat to a colder atmosphere, than itself. These effects are produced by the porosity of the pulverized stratum, which acts as mulch, especially in heavy soils.

8. Pulverization, also, has the combined effects of several of the preparing causes, acceleration the decomposition of the mineral matter; and thus prepares the inert matter of the soil for assimilation by the plants.—Exchange.

"ANARCHY IS RECONSTRUCTION—CONFUSION IS LOYALTY."—Yesterday, by order of Congress, the government of Virginia went to pieces. We have no officers of any sort, save here and there a scalawag or a carpet-bagger. The Military Commander of District No. 1 says he cannot fill the offices, and consequently the clerks' offices, the sheriffs' offices and all other offices are closed.—Nobody can get out a writ, or levy on trade; nobody can lodge a complaint before a magistrate; no deed can go to record; no injunction can be granted from the courts; our women cannot marry. Anarchy is reconstruction and confusion is loyalty. What have the people of Virginia done to be left without any government? They are not allowed to manage their own affairs in any manner, and Congress is so busy that it only finds time to decree disfranchisement.—Richmond Enquirer, 30th.

REWARDS.—Some of the Atlanta reporters, who found Butler, Chandler, Hays and Webster in the late Georgia Senate, have been promoted by the members with gold pencils, pens, rings, &c., for the compliment.—Augusta Republican.

While there was an attack, pickaxe stock, etc., about in the shape of rewards for votes to rob the Treasury, we think these Burkes, Clays, &c., might have found themselves able to do better than take gold pens and such trumpery.—Jour. & Messenger.

ALL THERE.—Hodgson, editor of the Montgomery Mail, writes from Washington that every stockjobber in the country is there, especially from the South. The greater the swindle the better the chance for either. With a stocked House and a stocked Senate, what could be expected except that the honor of the base should rise to the surface? If a gentleman gets an office it will be by accident.

The young lady who shut sixty cats up her sleeves, and within half the hour on to get breakfast, or indulge dancing, and afterwards, with pincushions and sewing smiles, puts the house in order without the assistance of her mother, is worth a thousand parlor boarders, who, from want of exercise, almost die of laziness. The former will make a good wife and tender hearted mother, while the latter is a useless piece of furniture, and will to the annoyance of the household go whining to her grave.

The Marietta Female College.

We learn from Col. Montgomery that the Board of Trustees of this Institution consisting now of twenty four members will meet on the 8th inst.—A committee will be at the Depot to meet and assign lodgings to visiting Trustees. Col. Hulbert, the Superintendent of the Western & Atlantic Railroad, tenders free tickets to members of the Board when attending its meetings, so that members from a distance can attend free of expense.

We are pleased to learn from the President of the College that its present patronage justifies the statement that it is "a fixed fact" and from the signal success attending its judicious system of instruction a future for it, gratifying to all concerned, is confidently anticipated.

There is no reason why we should not have in Marietta Institutions of this character unsurpassed in excellence. With our home-like comforts—social refinement—natural scenery, and health inspiring climate, surely our Southern people will reflect upon these home advantages before sending their children North to acquire an education.

The Two Classes.

Some men have a natural propensity of appropriating other people's goods for their own, and there are some young men who presume to know more than Daniel Webster ever knew or conceived of. These perverted creatures live in the corporate limits of Marietta. These egotistical, self-conceited, young men, never have a word to say in favor of the Journal, but their tongue, seems to be, "set on fire of hell," whose hydrophobic affliction causes them to froth and foam at the mouth, and poisonous slander and abuse of everything that is good, pure, or beneficial to the community is the result, whose sense if weighed, would be "found wanting" to such an extent, that it would not balance a feather from the tiniest humming-bird.

Now comes that class of men whom we will term the bad exemplars of society—they have refused time after time to subscribe for the Journal, are always first to borrow or steal it from our honest subscribers. If our subscribers will send us the names of these penurious creatures, we will publish them in large type under the head of "Steal-All's," or "Pick-a-Peny's,"—the begging, cringing, purloining reprobates deserve it.

Temperance.

There is no mistake but the people of our city are awaking up to a sense of their duty in regard to temperance. On Monday night last there was held at Nichols' Hall a meeting of large attendance in behalf of this cause, which must inevitably be felt and result in the perfection of an organization of men and women, youths and maidens, who, with a bold and defiant determination, will fight King Alcohol and all his host of emissaries, until the blighting and fatal curse of his potent power to do evil shall be subdued.

The penetrating eloquence, the touching pathos, the interesting illustrations, and well-meaning and impressive language of Rev. Dr. Brantley, of Atlanta, who addressed the large audience on this occasion, seems to have given new impetus to exertion and the number of members are multiplying beyond our expectations.

Butter.

Now it is well known that we are a butter consuming people in Marietta and that we are not so parsimonious but what we are willing to pay a good price for fresh clean butter that has not been amalgamated with the yellow of an egg, after its weight has been handsomely augmented by a plentiful supply of fresh hog's lard, in order to give it the desired color. When we make these statements we do not do so to excite your laughter nor neither do we exaggerate, for they are simple facts. Good butter is a scarcity in this market and the fact is indisputable, and what does come in is as above mentioned, or has been stored away, waiting for the price to advance, until it has grown to such manly vigor that it can resist strongly the weight of an iron wedge, even the merchants, when you ask them if they "have any good butter?" answer, that "it is old enough to speak for itself."

How the "Journal" is Received.

It is quite gratifying to us to receive such words of high appreciation of our labors as a journalist as the following:

This gentleman gave one of his wire-walking entertainments in our city on Monday evening last. He made his appearance about 3 o'clock, clad in a glittering paraphernalia and went through his daring fool-hardy feats to the wonder and amusement of about five hundred men, women and children.—His customary collection was taken up and the crowd liberally responded, filling his plumage hat with greenbacks.

Since the above has been placed in type we learn that Prof. Bond in performing at Dalton fell and broke his right leg and arm injuring himself seriously internally.

To Sceptics.

The almost daily receipt of voluntary testimonials from every part of the country, Physicians, Clergymen, old and young, male and female, is sufficient to convince the most sceptical that Dr. Tutt's Expectorant is the most valuable Lung Balsam of the age; many wonderful cures have been performed by it, as may be seen by hundreds of certificates in the hands of the proprietor. Try it and you will doubt no longer.

A Thrilling Incident.—Mrs. Ignalls, A Baptist Missionary in Burmah, among the Buddhist priests—* * * We were pleasantly entertained this morning by Mrs. Ingalls, a missionary from Burmah, who came to our office, accompanied by President Sears, of Brown University and while here related many interesting experiences of her missionary labors, and made frequent references to the valuable aid afforded her by the "Pain Killer," which, is, she says, frequently called by the natives the "God Medicine," and sometimes worshipped by them.

One instance she relates as follows: One stormy day I was sent for to visit one of their God men, or high priests, who had been severely wounded, the messenger saying that he was killed. I told him it was no use then for me to go, as my medicine could not raise the dead. But he persisted, saying, "the God Medicine would not surely fail to do him some good." My native preachers, who better understood the extravagance of their language, urged me strongly to go, feeling that God had in this way opened a door to the gospel in answer to our many prayers. But I still hesitated, fearing for the reputation of my medicine, which had become a powerful [illegible] At length I yielded and taking in my hand a bottle of the "Pain Killer," the charm that had opened this door, I followed my guide through the monastery into the inner or most sacred place where lay the wounded man upon the ground, a ghastly object, covered with blood and apparently dead.

I knew something of the dangers that surrounded me, and, notwithstanding my trust in him who said "I will never leave nor forsake you," I could not wholly divest myself of fear. Standing beside the dying man I said to the monks or priests who had followed me in, or were there before me, that my medicine could not raise the dead, nor bring back the departed spirit; and, should it fail to restore their friend, they ought not to condemn the medicine.—Still, I would do all in my power for the wounded man; but, to begin with, I must have some bandages. They had none, and knew not where to get any. I pointed to the altar curtains, but that could not be touched except by the high priest. It was the sacred yellow cloth. I started to leave, saying it would be useless for me to remain, as I could do nothing without bandages. But they would not let me go. Pain-Killer

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used on any emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influences of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in Perry Davis' "Pain Killer," the fame of which has extended all over the earth. Amid the eternal ices of the Polar [illegible] and beneath the burning sun of the tropics, its virtues are known and appreciated.

And by its suffering humanity has found relief from many of its ills. The effect of the "Pain Killer" upon the patient, when taken internally in cases of cold, coughs, bowel complaints, cholera, dysentery, and other affections of the system, has been truly wonderful and has won for it a name among medical preparations that can never be forgotten.

Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy in cases of burns, bruises, sores, sprains, cuts, stings of insects, and other causes of suffering, has secured for it the most prominent position among the medicines of the day.

Beware of Counterfeits and worthless imitations. Call for PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER, and take no other.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine. The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

Villanow, Walker County Ga., } June 29, 1866. }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the oldest au[illegible] the contrary they are [illegible] upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it. I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D.'s, but I see no just cause or good reason in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient [illegible] I may be ignorant of [illegible] I make it a rule to [illegible] suffering humanity [illegible] not hesitating to [illegible] and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate of [illegible] of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon, and inform me of your best terms. I am, sir, yours respectfully,

Julius P. Clement, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

Benton Barracks, Mo., } April 30, 1865. }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case:

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in any thing else. I wish that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

Capt. C. P. Johnson,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson, [illegible] Dr. C. S. Johnson was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It Cured Him. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
Jennie Johnson.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER

OR

CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

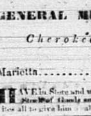
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them: those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Friday Morning April 9, 1869.

MARIETTA, GA., March 30th, 1869.

MR. GOODMAN,

Dear Sir: I wish through your paper to vindicate my own cause, and the cause of my country. On yesterday in our Sup't Court an attorney volunteered his services and made a speech at considerable length apparently vindicating doctrine contrary to my interest in the case I was then having tried, and I think contrary to law, and the interest of our country. He said that his ideas were substantially those Judge Warner advanced to him on some two occasions while in consultation with him; but said at the same time that they were his own ideas before talking with the Judge. I dont say I will exactly speak his words; they are substantially the same, and it was this: that to pass a law setting apart a homestead exempting everything a man owned did not impair the obligation of a contract and likened it unto a man who gave his note for a house and that night had his house burned down: did that impair the obligation of his contract? He said certainly not; I say it did, if that was all the property he had; not in a moral or legal point I admit; for he was just as much bound morally and by law as ever to pay the obligation. But if he was not able to pay the obligation was impaired by the burning of the house as his not being able to pay made the note of less value. I cant see any similarity in the two cases, I insist when a man gives me a note due on a certain day that he not only obligates himself to pay on that day, but obligates himself to abide by the laws of the land governing the collecting of the same, if not paid on that day. It is true that such obligation is not expressed in the note, but that understanding is implied as there is a law out-side of his moral obligation which says if you don't pay the law will oblige you to pay and that such of your property shall be sold to pay your honest debts and it is understood between the parties at the date of entering into the obligationthat the law as it then stands shall govern the collecting of the same, and I contend that no person on earth has the just right to pass a law that does not give to the plaintiff as sure and speedy a remedy to collect his note under it, as the one standing when the debt is made. If you have a right to say more property shall be exempt than is allowed by law when the debt is made you have a right to say everything a man has and everything a man shall ever own shall be exempt, and then as my friend said the obligation was not impaired according to his notion. I would say it was not only impaired but wholly worthless and note notes out of ten would not be worth the paper they were written on. Take away the obligation of the law that is understood and implied at the time a note is given and it will lose nine tenths of its value. Under these circumstances will any one and does any man say and obligation is not impaired when you pass a law that gives to a man the right to pay or not to pay a note that the law once compelled him to pay. It is simply ridiculous—it is nonsense to talk in such a way. The homestead law is a curse and blight in our once favored land and I hope for the sake of the rising generation if not for our own, it may be pronounced unconstitutional by our great men of the present day; there are but few men who avail themselves of its supposed advantages and cloak their illgotten gains under it. The great masses of the people are against it, and ought to be; it has ruined their credit, and why? because few have ever and above what is allowed by law and the poor men of the land who are greatly in the majority are mostly injured, their credit is gone, and they can't come to the rescue of their friends. They can't give bonds to install them in office or to keep them out of jail or to administer on their deceased friends estates. The Courts require that persons to go our security, must own real estate to the amount of two thousand dollars and personal property to the amount of one thousand dollars to be computed at a gold valuation and enough over and above that amount to cover the indemnity. Persons are daily sent to jail and estates taken charges of by parties that are not the choice of parties at interest. Fifty men might own one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of property in the aggregate who could not give a valid bond for five hundred dollars. If such be the law of the land the sooner we can get a set of wise and good men together to change the present system the better; it is true the most of men are against the homestead law and would not take advantage of it; but who can judge who they are? Consequently the masses of honest men must suffer to accommodate a few with such a law as will allow them to hold on to other men's property; for it is a fixed fact, if I buy a man's property and sell and change the investment twenty times over he ought to be allowed to divest me of all I have if it required that much to settle the demand. The homestead is simply of no use to an honest man, but a curse; it destroys his credit without his consent as it fastens his property upon his family at any time, and creditors can't tell when it may be done. The Legislature tried to do a thing for the people in general which they had no right to do. They had no right to say what property a man held at the time the law was passed should not be subject to the debts he then owed, and they have no right to say any man's property shall be exempt who does not want it exempt. If a man wishes his property set aside for the use of his family, himself or any one else, by paying all of his debts and leaving his property unencumbered he has a perfect right to do so, now, and always had. Any law voluntarily enacted by the Legislature setting up homesteads for families and assuming an agency that don't belong to them rightfully, is wrong. The Legislators of the day are devoting too much time to class legislation in passing local and individual bills. I for one think it is time for us to open our eyes and look to our interest and try to change members of the General Assembly who are voting for such laws.

Yours &c.,

WM. P. ANDERSON.

[FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

THE KITCHEN.

We will give to intellect, to immortality, to religion, and to all virtues, the honour that belongs to them. And still it may be boldly affirmed that economy, taste, skill, and neatness in the kitchen, have a great deal to do in making life happy and prosperous.

Nor is it indispensably necessary that a house should be filled with luxuries.—All the qualifications for good housekeeping can be displayed as well on a small scale as on a large one.

A small house can be more easily kept clean than a palace. Economy is most needed in the absence of abundance.

Taste is as well displayed in placing the dishes on a pine table as in arranging the folds of a damask curtain.

And skillful cooking is as readily discovered in a nicely baked potato, or a respectable johnny-cake, as in a nut-brown sirloin or a brace of canvas-backs.

The charm of good housekeeping is in the order, economy and taste displayed in the attention to little things; and these little things have a wonderfull influence.

A dirty kitchen and bad cooking have driven many an one from home to seek for comfort and happiness somewhere else.

Domestic economy is a science—a theory of life, which all sensible women ought to study and practise. None of our excellent girls are fit to be married until they are thoroughly educated in the deep and profound mysteries of the kitchen.

See to it, all ye who are mothers, that your daughters are all accomplished by an experimental knowledge of good housekeeping.

WHAT SHALL THAT BOY DO?

Who will tell? The boy who reads this, what will he do? When he becomes a man will he do manly things? Will he read and so be intelligent? Will he bring the powers of man and body into exercise and so be useful, and healthy, and strong? Will he pray, and be pious, good—of a noble and virtuous soul? Will he write and so be graceful in speech, ready in communication, and of strong influence?

Say, my boy, what are you going to do? What you like to do now, you will be very likely to do by-and-by. Do you swear now? Do you cheat, deceive, lie, steal? Do you do dishonorable things? Are you disrespectful to, or do you disobey your parents and teachers? Remember the boy makes the man. If the boy is bad the man will be.

CLEAR LOGIC.

A man, who was up to a thing or two, once offered to bet that he could prove that this side of the river was the other side. His challenge was soon accepted, a bet was soon made; when, pointing to the opposite side of the river, he shrewdly asked:

"Is not that one side of the river?"

"Yes," was the immediate reply.

"Agreed," said the man; "and is this not the other side?"

"Yes."

"Then," said the man, "pay me the ten dollars, for by your own confession I have proved that this side of the river is the other side."

The best kind of Agricultural Fairs.—Farmers' daughters.

DON'T COMPLAIN.

Don't complain of your lot. Your training, your employment, your friendships; never fancy that you could do something if you only had a different lot or sphere assigned to you. God understands his own plans, and knows better than you do what the very things that you most desire are spiritual limitations and obstructions, or probably what you most want. If you call hindrance and discouragement, they are probably God's opportunities, and there is nothing to dislike his providence. Not any certain proof that they are so, but a trust to all such dispensations. Choke that devilish envy, which is gnawing at your heart because you are not blessed the same lot with others; and look into your soul, or rather bring it to God, and receive God's will and do it there. Make your sphere under your cloud of circumstances, against your temptations, and then you shall find that your condition is never opposed to your good, but really consistent with it.

A SIGHT THAT I SAW.

Once when I was a little girl, there was an old drunkard lived in sight of my father's house. His wife had been highly raised and was still refined, notwithstanding the misery and wretchedness that surrounded her. They had a little boy named George, who was very sickly, and mother used to send me with tea and coffee for his breakfast. Poor little George! he was as gentle as a lamb, though he looked the picture of death. His mother was too feeble to procure him any comforts, and his father would not, but still he never complained; he knew his mother too much for that.

Once, when George had just recovered from a severe illness, his mother was taken sick, and was very low for many weeks. At last she began to recover, and one day when she was just able to sit about, as I and my little friends were going by there to school, we heard a most awful noise you ever heard, mingled with screams, shrieks, groans and curses. We ran and looked through the fence, and saw old Hankin with a rope around George's neck, trying to hang him across the yard and pretending he would hang him, while Mrs. Hankin and the two girls filled the air with their screams.

O! it was horrid! I can shudder now, and always shudder when I think of it. My friend and I ran home crying, and the people on the opposite side came and rescued George from his brutal father.

After the nighbors left, he went to his wife. She died for her child. The mother took her in her arms, but the poor creature was frightened nearly to death. It was painful to see her start and tremble at every noise, until she was finally carried to jail; and then she went to her miserble home.

This is a sad story for you to hear, but it is true; and I have a reason for telling it. It will show you what a terrible evil is drunkenness. A kind lady told me that she remembered when Mrs. Hankin was the handsomest girl in the village—the belle and pride of the place. She was ruined by a husband who was a drunkard.

Old Hankin, when young, was said no doubt a nice young man, but the demon rum would not leave him alone, and he had strong drink brought to him by some old brute that tried to keep him company, little boy and kill his poor wife.

A SINGULAR FACT.

Four gentlemen out on a hunting tour were assailed on the highway by a band of robbers, who demanded their money. On occasion of all their being in the habit of carrying pistol ready kept to be used in case of attack, they refused to give up their money, as he was on his way to pay a bill in a distant city. The robbers, seeing the men, "being generous fellows," told them all his money back because you are a preacher, and accordingly they retired a short distance from the highway and commenced dressed themselves.

"Gentlemen," the one said to the others, "I thought you were preachers, but I see you are not so are you? they had not the honesty to pretend to be preachers, but were themselves, neither, I presume, were they dressed of all the clothes they had on their own profession; and on examination, found that they were all preachers except one, and he was a lawyer. Pretty hard lots and all of them, but the lawyer got off with the least suffering.

Sabbath School Convention.

The Sabbath Schools, of Marietta, met in Convention, at the Presbyterian Church, on last Sabbath, Rev. W. F. Cook, of the Methodist Church, was called to the Chair. Prayer by Rev. W. L. Mansfield. Dr. Brantley was introduced and proceeded to address the parents, teachers and scholars in his usual eloquent, instructive and edifying manner, showing that the parent's responsibility was not transferable, that the Sabbath School was intended only as an auxilliary in the accomplishment of the work—"teaching the child the way it should go." That the teacher's duty is to teach and to teach the TRUTH, and that prayerfully and studiously, with mental illustrations, and the knowledge imparted will be received accordingly, and the instruction will be indelible and lasting, and that knowledge when once acquired is: influence—wealth—power.

A few remarks were made by Col. Montgomery, that were pertinent and interesting.

Mr. Gray, also, addressed the audience for a brief while, securing the undivided attention of all and especially the children, who listened with much interest.

The day was somewhat cool, yet it did not prevent a large attendance, the children are ever punctual on such occasions, more so than adults, and as May Day is fast approaching, we hope to see their little hearts made glad with the realization of superabundance of pleasure, mirth and gaiety. The children look forward to this day with bright and buoyant expectations and to ignore their claims, or disappoint their hopes would be cruel beyond measure.

The Convention adjourned to meet again in June.

The Marietta Temperance Society.

An organization was perfected under the above name on Monday night last. The Constitution and By-Laws were submitted and adopted, and the officers, for the first quarter, were elected as follows:

Rev. Wm. L. Mansfield, President.
S. T. Anderson, 1st Vice-President.
H. A. Duxwoth, 2nd Vice-President.
W. S. N. Neal, Secretary and Treasurer.

It is said by an eminent writer that "all enterprises in its first stage is first ridiculed, argued, and then adopted," and this certainly has been the case with this enterprise, the object of which is the promotion of morality and sobriety. As the movement is now established, and the ridiculous has failed to suppress it, it was argued that its existence would be of short duration; but, now, absurd prejudice is giving away to rational judgment, and it has been adopted as an institution worthy of fostering care, and is cherished as a means of grace by which the most inveterate dram-drinker can find sympathy, encouragement and assistance in crushing his foe to mortal joy. For liquor is a destroyer of happiness, a spoiler of hope, a destroyer of reason.

There were but few of the ladies, who are members, present on this occasion, but we attribute the cause to the cool weather and the time and place of meeting not having adequate publicity. The ladies would do well to remember the assertion of Dr. Brantley, that they can "make or unmake drunkards," for if persistent absence is continued, the effects, we fear, will be deleterious. It is the ladies that give it the nutritious stimulant of existence. Withdraw their influence and the power to do good dwindles into insignificance. We would put the members in remembrance of the next appointed meeting—Thursday night, April the 15th, at Nichols' Hall.

"Marietta."

Mr. Editor:—I have been a considerable itinerant; have visited many cities, towns and villages, North and South, but in all my travels, have never met, with a spot, more congenial to my taste, than "Marietta." I was desirous on my first arrival, on observing the numberless edifices, both public and private, which had been demolished, during the fury of war; expected that the natural effect would be, a disheartening of its citizens. To my agreeable surprise, I discovered nothing, save a determined energy, and resolution to resuscitate. They appear inclined to take "Davy Crockett's" advice, as did, sauto, to-wit: "Pick your flint, and try it again." Should they proceed as rapidly, as they are now doing; in a brief period, they will be able to exclaim, in the language of Shakespear, "Richard is himself again." Places of business appear to be flourishing; in short, everything is indicative of a bright future.

There are two characteristics, of which I would take special notice. The salubrity of the atmosphere, and sociability of the citizens. The first, cannot be surpassed, the latter (in my opinion) is unparalelled. These, present attractions that are irresistable, and must inevitably result, in a rapid increase of population.

May my predictions be realized, is the sincere wish of one, who will ever feel grateful, for the attentions and friendly acts extended to,

A Visitor.

Explanatory.

It has been our wish to publish a paper the influence of which should find its way in social life, like some placid rivulet enriching and dispensing good to every object it touches. But in this mixed up world of ours it is not possible always to keep the even tenor of the way and a newspaper must find occasionally in the mangers, customs and prejudices prevalent, matter to cause frequent rifles in the transaction of thought.

We have a "Chiel among ye, takin notes" who last week was, it may be, a little vehement, in regard to these matters. Sound principles and improving judgment will prompt him to deal gently with the erring, to bend as he sees too heavily—perhaps to prove himself a successful writer "by winning golden opinions from all sorts of men." He may attain the cherisee, thankless fame of the reformer by assailing abuses wherever discovered; or, he may do more good for himself and fellows by proving so far "all things to all men" as to lose the good will of none; truths which others than ourselves may appropriate to advantage.

Bullard's Panorama of New York City.

This immense panorama will be exhibited in Marietta to-day and to-morrow—Saturday the 10th. It covers over eighteen thousand feet of canvass representing in life like manner forty-one miles of the great City of the Union. None will regret having seen this great work. The Columbia (Tenn.) Herald says:

> The Memphis papers state that over fifteen thousand people visited it during its two weeks stay in that city. The Appeal in speaking of it says: "The interest to see this faithful representation of our great commercial metropolis is increasing, and may be said to amount to anxiety. No panorama, concert, minstrel troupe, or anything of the kind, except in one or two instances, has created so great a furore. An interesting descriptive and statistical lecture is delivered as the panorama passes."

The admission is only 50 cents, and 25 for children. See advertisement in another column.

The Old Lion.

There lived a lion in the days of old,
(So in the fable we are plainly told,)
Who was the forest king, and feared by all
The other beasts, both great and small.
But finally this king of beasts grew old,
His frame was feeble, still his step less bold;
A wreck was he, all powerless and sick,
Then all began his majesty to kick.
These gross indignities the lion bore
With patience, till his very bones were sore;
At length an ass, most cautiously sail slow,
Backwards advanced, and dealt a furious blow.
The poor old lion then exclaimed, "alas!
All I can bear, but kicking from an ass!"

Poor hapless Graphic! may thy rhyming scion
Compare thee to the sick and aged lion!
O! many ills hast thou already borne,
Robbed of thy sacred rights, despised, forlorn:
Thy present grief all former grief surpasses—
Now ass an being kicked by senseless asses!

J. B. Mitchell.

This gentleman's INVITATION to visit his store will be found in another column. He designs it to be universal, none need, therefore, feel slighted—Mr. Mitchell comes among us as a citizen identified with the interests of Marietta, and as a merchant, we solicit a generous public to give him as liberal patronage as his enterprise seems to merit, prices and his prices are so low all can buy. He occupies part of Capt. J. M. Wilson's new building. Give him a call, for he is determined to build up a good business, and he has commenced the right way to do it—by advertising.

Young Men's Debating Club.

We are more than glad to announce that this Club is again to be revived. The good accomplished in Debating Societies, properly conducted, is invaluable to young men. It is there the mind can be properly trained and cultivated for future usefulness, and we hope the young men of Marietta will take advantage of such rare opportunities that are so beneficial. All the old members and as many new ones as will join, are requested to assemble over Joseph Elsas store, Tuesday night, 13th inst., for reorganization.

Capt. J. M. Wilson.

This great dealer and manufacturer of tin-ware, and whose stores are of the most improved and convenient style, has moved to his new building on the West-side of the Square, where he will in the future as he has in the past, give his undivided attention to supplying the wants of those in search of such articles as are confined to his line of trade. None need go anywhere else, for he is determined, prompted by a courteous and generous disposition, to give you a more favorable bargain than you get from any one else. Come to see him.

Beyond a Doubt.

More diseases are the result of a derangement of the Liver than from any other cause. When that organ is deranged, every part of the system sympathizes with it, and general prostration and decline is the result. The best, safest and speediest remedy for Liver Complaint, and all diseases that follow, is Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, they are peculiarly adapted to the climate of the South. They are sold by Druggists everywhere.

To Boys.

We in the kindest manner imaginable, inform you for your own benefit, that Capt. Lyons, our efficient City Marshal, will be present at the next meeting of the Temperance Society and will take great pleasure in escorting you to the egress portion of the building, provided you act as rude and unbecoming as you did at the last meeting.

Mistaken Individuals.

It seems that some personages are more willing to supply our "loquacious" article to themselves than to the public at large. If they mistrust, the Local is, most assuredly, not to blame. It only verifies the aphorism, that "a guilty conscience needs no proof."

Prof. Bond.

This gentleman is not so seriously hurt as reported. He writes to the Atlanta Intelligencer, dated Dalton the 4th inst., the following statement:—"While performing to this place on the 30th, the wire being very low, I slipped from it, but fell on my feet, spraining both ankles, one very slightly."

The Confederate Cemetery.

A large force is now employed, thanks to the Ladies whose musical exertions secured the means, in improving our Confederate Cemetery in this place—The work is in good hands and is urged forward with energy and good taste.

Literary Entertainment.

There will be a literary entertainment by the young ladies of the Marietta Female College, at 7½ o'clock this evening (Friday 9th inst.) The Trustees, Patrons and Friends of the institution are invited to attend.

Butter.

Since the appearance of our article on Butter, published last week, we have been shown a very superior article of Northern Butter by Mr. J. B. Mitchell which he is now offering for sale at the very lowest figures. Call and see for yourself.

R. M. Marchman.

It gives us pleasure to call the attention of the public to the above named gentleman's card in another column. Customers will find it to their interest to favor him with a call.

Spring Sports.

Little girls have commenced their exhilirating spring exercises of jumping rope—while boys are going for marbles with an intensity peculiar to their age.

Episcopal Church.

Rev. Mr. Epps, rector of St. James Church is expected to arrive this week, and to preach next Sunday. Hours of service, 10½ o'clock, A. M. 3½ o'clock, P. M.

Wheat.

This cereal is very flattering of abundance, the prospect is encouraging, indeed, to see the verdant fields sown in this grain so uniform and luxuriant.

Time.

Fruit.

☞ We have for April both of those valuable Southern Agricultural Monthlies, "The Southern Cultivator" and "The Maryland Farmer"—each with their usual compend of useful knowledge for the farmer.

☞ "Scott's Magazine" for April contains several continued tales of unusual interest apart from other articles of a high order of merit. This work should have ample Southern support.

The Hog Thief Played Out—Cuffee's Occupation Gone.—In a recent conversation with an enterprising and intelligent friend on his plans for the future as a farmer, he told us that he should make hog raising a speciality—(and here's the point)—that he should every three weeks give each of his hogs a quarter of a spoonful of strychnine.—We gave our friend a look and he went on to say, that he did this for two reasons: one was, that it helped the hog, and the other was that if a hog-stealing rascal tasted a morsel of one of his swine for three weeks after it got its installment of poison, it would kill him as dead as Julius Cæsar. Now we cannot tell ourselves how many other enterprising men besides our friend has this new secret of policing his hog pen,—and—for fear our colored brethren may let their carnal appetite for hog get them into trouble, we here ventilate the secret, and warn them accordingly.—Atlanta Constitution.

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

Dr. John Bull.—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

The fifth one has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—has improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care of Rickel and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. B. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as many almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most remarkable communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

Villaow, Walker County Ga., }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am

I know no remedy recommended by the above authors that is so certain and speedy in the effects as the century they are uncertain to the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it. I am sure that I can do you a large trade. I am a stranger to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the popular lines of M. D's, but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its constitution. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—and finding by me come some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, but am ready to prove that my statements to which human flesh is heir. Please see, and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

Benton Barracks, Co., }
April 20, 1865. }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being shot so often my wounds have not healed up, and have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

Capt. C. M. Johnson,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson:

Dr. Bull—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. S. Johnson, was a skilful surgeon and physician in Central New York before he died, having the degree G. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a disease called scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It Cured Him. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sore, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it. The cure effected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP,

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER
OR
CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, speedy, certain and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. It is used in the entire Western and South-western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case where it will it fail to cure, if directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose will be sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order, should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of Smith's Tonic Syrup, one of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

Friday Morning April 16, '69.

[FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

MR. EDITOR: A few morning's since, as I paid a visit to our friend Grant's Photograph establishment, I'm sorry to say, I beheld a slight secretion of [illegible] by a refined lady, stood near the fire place. We unshipped our beaver, made (we flattered ourself) a very graceful bow, and, of course, anticipated a reciprocity of politeness. Figure to yourself, gentle reader, our astonishment and mortification, at not perceiving the slightest recognition of our polite salutation. She stood, motionless as Lot's wife after her saline transformation: a personification of proud aristocracy. We turned on our heel, made a hurried exit, and sought, in another part of the mansion, for the artist; to whom, when we found him, we related our adventure. Again were our feelings trampled on; for instead of sympathising, he burst into a hearty laugh. We were perfectly thunder-struck; but soon as the spasmodic attack subsided, and he entered into an explanation, our flow of risibility surpassed his. It seems, that our old optics had deceived us, that there was nothing feminine, in what they had beheld, save the costume; the balance being naught; but a product of trees. We had, once before, been deceived, but, it seems have not verified the old adage, "A burnt child, dreads the fire."

Be careful, gentlemen! Before you salute anything in female; ascertain its component parts.

ADRIAN.

LOVE IS THE BEST FORCE.

Once two little boys were on their way to school. They were brothers, and their names were John and Frank. John was the older of the two, and he liked to rule Frank by sharp words; but Frank did not like to be ruled in that way.

"Come on—quicker, quicker. What a slow coach you are!"

"It is not late, and the day is hot," said Frank.

"I tell you I want to get to school in time to clean out my desk," said John. Come! you shall come."

And then John tried to pull Frank along by main force; but, the more John pulled, the more Frank made up his mind not to yield.

While the dispute went on, they came to a place in the road where a man was trying to make a horse pull a great load of stones. The horse had stopped to rest, when the man began to beat him.

This the horse did not like, for he had tried to do his best; so he stood stock still. In vain did the man lay on the lash: the horse would not start. In vain did the man swear at him: the horse did not mind his oaths.

Just then a young man came up, and said to the man with the load of stones, "Why do you treat a good, brave horse in that way? He would pull for you till he died, if you would only treat him kindly. Stand aside, and let me show you how to treat a good horse."

So the man stood aside; and the young man went up, and put his arms around the neck of the horse, and patted him on the back, and said, "Poor old fellow! It was too bad to lash you so, when you were doing your best, and just stopped a moment to take breath."

And so the young man soothed the poor beast, by kind words and soft pats with his hand; and then said to him, "Now, good old horse, see what you can do! Come, sir! we have only a few steps more to the top of the hill. Get up now. Show you will do for love what you would not do for hate."

The horse seemed to know what was said to him; for he started off at a strong, brisk pace, and was soon at the top of the hill.

"There my good friend," said the young man to the driver, "I hope you see now that love is the best force; that even beasts will do for you, when you are kind, what they will not do when you are harsh."

John heard all these words, and they set him to thinking. At last he said to Frank, "It is a hot day, Frank; and it is not late. Let us walk through the lane to school."

"Now John," said Frank, "I will take naught, and ourselves were unborn.—naught, and will walk just as fast as you want me to. So, come on."

"Frank," said John, "Love is better than hate,—isn't it?"

"Oh, a thousand times better!" cried Frank.

As chance would have it, they that day read in school a fable, two thousand years old, which I now tell you.

The North Wind and the Sun had a dispute as to which could show the most strength. They agreed that the one that could strip a man first of his cloak should be the victor.

First the North Wind tried his strength; he blew, and blew, with all his might; but, blow as hard as he could, he could not do much. The man drew his cloak round him more tight; he would not let it be torn from him. So at last the North Wind gave up the fag, and called on the Sun to see what he could do. The Sun shone out with all his warmth. The man could not well bear the heat; he soon grew so warm that he had to take off his cloak; and so the Sun became the winner in the trial.

"Love has more strength than hate.

[From the New York Union.

THE COMING EMPIRE.

Hardly had Gen. Grant been sworn in as President before there were rumors in political circles that a paper was soon to be started in Philadelphia, advocating the establishment of an Empire in this country, and in favor of proclaiming Grant Emperor. This was at first looked upon as a mere rumor, but it is now proving to be something more. A gentleman purporting to represent those engaged in the movement recently visited this city and Albany, to see how far the Republican leaders would lend their sympathy. This person stated that leading members of the Union League of Philadelphia were enlisted in this programme, and had furnished the means to establish a paper to advocate it; also, to establish secret societies for the promulgation of that doctrine. Further, that a paper would soon be published in that city to be called the Empire, the motto of which would be, in the words Napoleon and Grant, "The Empire is peace," and "Let us have peace," while its columns would be devoted to arguments and proofs showing that this Republic had proved a failure, urging the necessity of establishing an Empire, and advocating Grant as the man for Emperor. This sheet, we understand, is ready to appear, and only waiting the moment to arrive when these engaged in the work of organizing societies announce that the time has come to remove the mask.

Our information comes from a gentleman who was invited to join one of these societies—a gentleman who was an applicant for office under Grant. He was told that becoming a member would assist him in obtaining an office; also, that recommendation was the best card he could have with the President. It was also claimed that Gen. Grant was in full sympathy and accord with the movement. As an illustration of this fact, was cited the circumstance of his appointing his relatives and intimate personal friends to office, in order that, when the time came for the coup d'etat, he could have men in position who would be bound to him by double ties—those of office and blood. How far this assertion may be true, we have no more evidence than the public generally, who all see that President Grant, like the crowned heads of Europe, in his placing his family and relatives, even to the most distant, as well as those bound to him by personal ties, in public office. During the late Presidential campaign Francis P. Blair, Jr., announced that Grant was elected President, he would proclaim himself Dictator before the end of his term. Can it be that he had an inkling of this scheme which is now being made known to the public, or that his words are to prove prophetic!

EDITING A PAPER.

Many of the great men of the world have been in some way connected with the press. It is one of the best steping stones to fame known to man. Ben. Franklin was a printer; so is Greeley, Bonner, Prentice, Bayard Taylor, Willis, Morris, Pomeroy, the Messrs. Gales and Seaton, our Vice President, present Speaker of the House, U. S. Congress. Now, we have it, that Louis Napoleon is to be an editor. His son, the Prince Imperial, has been working at the case for years, as a part of his education.—Several French papers intimate that the Emperor of the French is at the head of a society of capitalists, organized a few days ago, for the publication of a penny paper, called Le Peuple. The capitol of the society is to be two hundred thousand dollars, and Clement Duvernois, formerly of the Epoque, is to be the responsible editor of the Le Peuple. The real editor and capitalist is, however, according to Figaro his Majesty Napoleon III.

MEMORY.

None of us remember when we did not remember, when our memory was ourselves were unborn.—Memory is the promise of our sensations it dates our immortality. Nestling ever in the twilight of our earliest recollections it rallies our nativity, canopies our hopes and bears us back out of our bodies to sustain them; opening vistas alike into our past and coming existence. The thread of our experiences, it cannot be severed by any accidents of our mortality; time and space, earliest found and last to leave us, fading and falling away as we pass into recollections which these can neither date nor confine—the smiles that welcomed, the tears that dismiss us, being of no age, nor place nor time.

PEACE.

The Montgomery Advertiser of the 7th calleth says:

"The idea of stabling to the country an impression on the consciousness of the people of the Radical party leaders is more than preposterous. The conquered are ever born and never lose sight of the conquerors, and in the place of conscience is only the passion of the weak and the strong.

"What single thing did the party ever do that was not in the interest of the party? It fired the Union with a passion for secession, it forced it from one end to the other with fratricidal blood. Was this conscience? It perfidiously invaded the most sacred property rights of the citizens of half the Union, and forced them to take up arms in their defence, and then, to crown their lawless desolation and destruction. Was this conscience? It has always broken faith with its own unhappy people of the North and West, has poisoned its ancient institution of government, and beaten down their pride of citizenship, while holding over them the iron rule of an Oligarchical Caucus at Washington. Is this conscience? There is not the height of folly to imagine that a Southern committee, honestly representing Southern sentiment and Southern interests, might not as well sue for peace at the wall as to the Radical Congress! They have their fixed purpose, founded on what they conceive to be their personal and political advantages, and they would send Truth, Justice, Reason and Conscience into the abyss of hell, if they thought there was any danger of their interference with their selfish pursuits of Ambition, Greed and Lust.

"Thank God they are not only our Tyrants and Masters, but equally the Tyrants and Masters of the whole conquered people of the United States. Consequently every white Radical as willing as we and tool, there are still five hundred thousand majority of white men with muscular arms who sit still and suffer themselves to be fatten'd and the lash to be applied to their backs.

"As for ourselves here in the South there is nothing for us to do except to face our savage and brutal enemy with the contempt and hatred he deserves.—Cease then your pitiable whine—it will do no good—and wait. Perhaps the Democracy of the North and West may themselves become unwilling to bear all injustice and suffer all wrongs."

THE MISERIES OF A RICH MAN.

The New York correspondent of the Rochester Democrat is responsible for the following:

Alexander T. Stewart clears one thousand dollars per day, Sunday excepted all the year round. Cornelius Vanderbilt pleads guilty to just that sum, while William B. Astor rates his income at four thousand three hundred and thirty dollars per piece. Sleeping or waking, the last named gentleman finds a three dollar bill dropping into his hat every minute of the twenty-four hours. He cannot sit down to talk with his physician without having a little more wealth, if not health; he cannot unburden his mind without feeling his burden increasing in his pockets, and he cannot walk Broadway, because the weather may be, without seeing a shower of money. As every horn sash stares him in the most insolent manner; banks fling there dividends at his feet; ruthless financiers beat him with deepening impiety and insolence; corporations dump their loans in his door-step, and contemptuous bill stickers plaster his door with greenbacks. One might wonder what that fellow has done to merit this treatment, and the only charge that can be brought is that he is a rich man's son, and therefore most safely.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.

There once was a man who fed from his master and hid in a cave. He had not been there long ere a large lion came in. Seeing the man he went right up to him. The lion held here his foot. The man bathed it and bound it up. For two long years the man and the lion lived together, and the lion getting the game, and the man cooking part for himself, and giving the remainder to the lion.

At the end of two years the man left the cave, and upon going into a neighboring city, was captured by the Consul's soldiers. The slave was tried and condemned to fight in the amphitheatre with the wild beasts. The day came, and the man was put in the arena. The great door was opened. In leaped a huge lion, who ran toward the man. The lion stopped, and, with signs of affection caressed the astonished slave. It was the lion once wounded in the cave. He would not touch him; and the king, looking on the circumstance, ordered that the man be given to the man, while the vast multitude approved with shouts of applause.

A JUSTICE was once asked whether he had been charged to the grand jury. Judge. "Well, Squire, what do you fellow that sits up on the judge's bench kindly hears it over the country to talk, but I don't know whether he charges anything or not."

The Literary Entertainment.

It was with no ordinary pleasure that we attended the entertainment given by the ladies of the Marietta Female College on last Friday evening. And in answer to the notice given to the public, a large, intelligent and appreciative audience, of Trustees, Patrons and Friends, prompt to the hour were seated in the "Recitation Room," awaiting the opening of the entertainment. The stage was decorated with artistic grace and elegance, and on each side of it were seated the fair and beautiful of the College, whose soft eyes, like stars, shined on us with brilliancy from the heaven of their lovely faces. The excellent organ-music—made with its sweet swell and pleasing dwindling tones and died upon the gentle wind, like the sweet Hymn upon Pleasant and with a grateful love, greeted the audience with its intellectual feast by reading their Compositions, on various topics—

We would like to particularize, but the want of space will not admit, therefore, we will not attempt it for we could not do justice in the space allotted, for some of the compositions would be creditable to older heads, and would elicit from us our sincerest and unqualified praise; but the plaintive tones of the "Maniac," the concluding piece, performed by Miss MARIE MONTGOMERY, was rendered so audible, perfect and pathetic, that it quickened the chords of sympathy and caused "Pity to shed a tear."

The exercises were admirably arranged and the execution conducted with the most pleasurable and gratifying skill and taste, and the young ladies acquitted themselves in a most creditable and highly honorable and satisfactory manner, and we feel proud that such an institution is in our midst.

Cobb County Election.

The following gentlemen were elected on the 3rd., to the Offices of Justices of the Peace and Constables in this County:

Marietta, 838th., District—Justice Peace, J. A. Tolleson—Constables, Jno. T. Robertson, Thos. J. Dorsey.

Acworth, 851st., District—Justice Peace, B. F. Hanson—Constables, J. C. Nalley, J. B. Johnson.

Lemona, 902nd., District—Justice Peace, G. T. Carrie—Constables, Green B. Chastain, John Tate.

Oregon 1017th., District—Justice Peace, D. N. Mc. Eachern—Constables, John A. Dobbins, A. P. Griggs.

Powder Springs, 845th., District—Justice Peace, James Lindley—Constables, Samuel H. Sanders, William D. Smith.

Cox's, 858th., District—Justice Peace, B. Bullard.

Gritter, 911th., District—Justice Peace, Sam'l. R. McCluskey—Constables, Robert Bryan, A. J. Morris.

Roswell, 854th., District—Justice Peace, Joseph King.

The Justice of the Marietta District is invested with pleasure powers without the intervention of a Jury to try all cases that do not amount to a felony—thus giving him more power than were granted to the Judge of the County Court. This office is a responsible one and requires a man of sound legal judgment. We have no doubt Mr. TOLLESON will fill it with credit to himself and satisfaction to the community.

Will He Get Her?

And old bachelor friend of ours, who resides not far from Marietta, wants us to hunt him up a wife—he is a strange old creature, and will not agree to have any woman who is not strictly amiable, artless, affectionate, affable, accomplished; pacific, benign, benevolent; chaste, charming, candid, cheerful, comfortable, charitable, constant, confiding; dutiful, dignified; elegant, easy, engaging, entertaining; faithful, fond, faultless, free; good, graceful, generous, governable, good humored; handsome, harmless, healthy, heavenly minded; intelligent, industrious; just; kind; liberal, lively, lovely; modest, mindful, mannerly; neat, notable; obedient, obliging; pleasing, peaceful, pure; quiet; righteous; social, submissive, sensible; temperate, true; upright; virtuous; well formed; young and zealous.

Now, the fact is, we have been looking around, but have only been able to find two ladies who come entirely up to his requirements—eight of these are already married, one is a young widow who never intends to marry again, and the tenth and last one is a beautiful young lady of our acquaintance who forcibly requests us not to mention her name to any one at present, and if we know our own interest we don't think we shall.

Young Men's Debating Society.

The importance and value of this institution met such interest and appreciation among our young men as to call together quite a respectable number over Mr. JOSEPH ELSAS' store on last Tuesday night, which resulted in reorganization. The election of officers for the first month were as follows:

WILLIE C. MANSFIELD, President.
JESSE N. HARDAGE, Vice President.
JOHN D. WHITE, Secretary.
GEO. W. NORTHCUTT, Treasurer.
WATSON L. FREEMAN, Librarian.

After the election of officers and all unfinished business transacted, they had quite a spirited debate on the subject in "Dueling Honorable. The subject chosen for next debate is: "OUGHT GOVERNMENTS TO TAX ITS SUBJECTS TO SUPPORT FREE SCHOOLS"—and it is desired that the old members who did not make their appearance at the last meeting will do so at the next, which will take place over Mr. Joseph Elsas' store, Saturday night, 17th inst.

Admitted to the Bar.

Our young friend, H. A. DUNWODY, son of Dr. W. E. DUNWODY, of this city, we are more than pleased to announce, has been admitted to practice law. Judge KNIGHT informs us that he stood the test admirably and made a highly complimentary of his abilities. This will be gratifying news to his old classmates of the Georgia Military Institute as well as to his many other friends.

There is spread out before him a bright future and in his anticipation and inexperience, we would tell him to "steer clear of the shoals" and with the pure and holy influence of her whom he has lately taken unto himself, to share the "sorrows and joys" of life, which should tend to unite him on to "deeds of valor," take our motto as his guide and with a strict adherence, success and renown will crown his labors.

—"Let all the ends thou aim at be, thy Country's, thy God's and Truth's."

First it detaches from the bronchial or wind tubes the mucus or matter which, sometimes adheres to them with the tenacity of glue. Secondly, It mitigates the pain and removes the constriction of the bronchial tubes and muscles of the chest. Thirdly, It revisits the progress of inflammation and admits the lungs to throw off the irritating matter which accumulates.

Its Human Nature.

Let no one expect that by acting a good part through life he will escape slander. There will be those even who hate them for the very qualities that could to procure esteem. There are some folks in the world—we could say IN HOME—who are not pulling that others should be better than themselves.

Pain-Killer

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals—so inevitable is it declared, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used on any emergency, when we are subject to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influences of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in Perry Davis' Pain-Killer; the fame of which is known to all over the earth. Amid the eternal snows of the Polar regions or beneath the intolerable and burning sun of the tropics, its virtues are known and appreciated.

Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy, in cases of burns, bruises, sores, sprains, &c., sting of insects, and other causes of suffering, has secured for it the most prominent position among the family remedies of the day.

Beware of Counterfeits and worthless imitations. Call for PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER, and take none other.

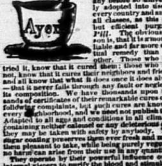
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by the human family as a cathartic, nor was any one ever offered to mankind so generally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as the mild but efficient Cathartic Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have used it, know that it cures what they have previously relied on for relief, and that it does always what is required of it. Its sugar coating renders it pleasant to take, and being purely vegetable no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and restore it to its healthy action. To remove the obstructions of the stomach, liver, and bowels, and purify the blood, restoring their irregular action to health, is the only way to cure disease. Hence these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, you should take them to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Dysentery or Bilious Colic, and Bilious Fevers, they should be taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, when caused by derangement of the digestive organs, they should be occasionally taken, as they change the blood and the secretions, and relieve the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Fevers and Bronchial Swellings they should be taken freely, as they determine to the skin and produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Rheumatism and Chronic Fevers, Bilious Fever, Congestive Chills, Dumb Chills, and on Sunday should be without it. CHILLS AND FEVER cured by occasionally cured; whether of recent or long standing. Do not shake any longer, get a bottle and be cured. Price $1.

As a Dinner Pill, take one to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists to take them, as they will often check that a disease in its first stage. Keeping the bowels regular is important to health. Purging is sometimes necessary, and a cathartic is required. Then take Ayer's Cathartic Pills, and their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive organs will restore health.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS

SOUTH WESTERN

Authentic Documents

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 21, 1868.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and he says they are doing him health inducing.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Coffee who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially if your Cedron Bitters did better cures. Ship me six Memphis, case of Rocket and Nicely.

Respectfully,
C. H. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as to the safe and certain operation of pills we have shown, all of which are genuine. The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what Dr. Dictor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

VILLAW, WALKER COUNTY GA., June 29, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. I have failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the above authors that is so effectual, promptly in its effects. On the contrary they are offensive, in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it. I am aware that the use of worm pills is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D.'s, but I look on pain from a good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of the composition. For my part in all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its secret. So far, I have received your knowledge Mentor. I ask by all means to publish it, or support it, or of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood this country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

PERTON BARRACKS, Co., }
April 30, 1865. }

DR JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and its fulfilling and best qualities in existence, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not set up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired and I need something to build me up. I have more faith in your sar-sparilla than in any thing else. I think that it is generally. Please fill me up half a dozen bottles, and oblige.

Capt. F. JOHNSON.
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My son, Capt. F. Johnson, was a skilled surgeon and physician in the Confederate Army, and was left by the order of G. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and scrofula, for which I tried your Sarsaparilla. It was the first I ever have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever and ague, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases at scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very much so for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of using it in question article, knowing nothing to you for it. His wounds very, terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

OR

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine would...fully for it is superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country for the truthfulness of the truthful statements made in no case whatever will it fail to cure. If the directions are strictly followed. Some cases require but a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case, safer certain to cure, if its use is continued for a week or two after the disease has been broken up, as a more permanent cure especially in difficult and long standing cases. Should the disease return after the first dose, keep the bowels in good order, and the second dose, however, requires a calomel purge to be taken before the second dose is administered.

MEMORABLE DISPATCHES.

Some regard the following dispatches as a hoax; but if they are they are not without point:

Washington, April 9 1869.

Dear Foster:—I've just seen Grant. The d—n old fool is drunk as usual.—Can't make him "see it." All I can get out of him is "Georg-a-n-e-nuin man." Glorious old Ben. is still hopeful. Hope you've kicked out the old sneak Summers from the P. O. Make a clean sweep and be sure you give some of the colored brethren a place. R. B. B.

Washington, April 4, 1869.

Friend Foster:—By the advice of old Ben. I went with him to see Forney last night. He advised that I should report through his paper that old "Hard head" was on our line, and that whatever Congress might do would be right. You will see a flaming report of our conversation in this morning's Chronicle. Between us, it is all a d—d lie, but it will work. Don't be discouraged. Keep your eyes on the City Hall. Russell must walk the plank. R. B. B.

Augusta, April 5, 1869.

Dear Rufus:—You make my heart glad. I know that you and old Ben. are equal to any emergency. Pile it on. Don't be afraid to draw it strong. Bob. McW. will back up anything you say. The Rebs look gloomy here. They got a big scare last night—called Council together, and have appointed a milk and cider Committee to go on to Washington. You will be surprised to find some of our old friends on the Committee. They'l bear watching. I shall expect the Mayoralty at once. Bully for you.

FOSTER.

Washington, April 6, 1869.

Dear Foster:—We are in great trouble, old "hard head" has got sober and swears that the report I published is all lies. Bingham and Skenck called on him to-day, and he told them I had lied. That's right hard to bear, but I must stand it for the "public good." Don't you laugh. It's mighty hard to be skunked by one's friends. R. B. B.

Augusta, April 9, 1869.

Dear Rufus:—Don't be a damn fool. Draw on the 4th National Bank for money. Cash will "fetch" the business. If the six hundred and fifty thousand bonds now in bank won't do, put more in soak and draw. Draw like hell. It's the d—d rebels' money and make it squat. Thirty thousand more will buy Skenck and Bingham right. Try it. We're ruined if you fail. FOSTER.

Washington, April 8, 1869.

Dear Foster:—I have the rhino.—Drew yesterday for $30,000. But those lousy rascals McWhorter and Hungerford, and Ayer are drunk all the time and spend more money than they are worth. What am I to do with them? I can't kick them off. They stick tighter than a tick to a lean cow. They are such shabby rascals that they have disgusted our friends with our party in Georgia. Can't you get them away from here? They'll play hell with the whole affair. R. B. B.

Augusta, April 9, 1869.

Dear Rufus:—Drink 'em, bribe 'em, curse 'em, damn 'em—do anything but fail. Remember the bell sets here—the K. K. K's. Our hides won't hold peas if reconstruction fails. You may say good-bye to all our good things in Atlanta, if this fails. Keep your gizard on the right side and plenty of sand in it. FOSTER.

Washington, April 9, 11 P. M.

Dear Foster:—We are in a death struggle. Old Ben works like a lion, but it is all up hill. We are in a tight. Old "hard head" is still sober. What are we to do? Can't you help us with your counsels? We miss you so much. The d—n drunken asses McWhorter and Ayer and Hungerford are puking about like whipped kittens. It's mighty hard, Foster, to be killed by our friends. Pray for us, dear Foster. My eyes fill with tears when I think of your services now all have to be lost. Pray for us, Foster. We need your help.

R. B. B.

Augusta, April 10, 1869.

Dear Rufus:—You tell me to pray. Hell, man, you know I can't pray, but I'm some on a swear. What do you want me to swear to? Name it and I'll take the oath as glibly as I did the Iron-Clad. I'll do all the swearing you want, but as for praying you must get Bob. McWhorter and Joe. Adkins to help you on that line. Run your face, Rufus. Look grand! Look like a martyr. Roll your eyes as in a deep phrensy of despair. Show in your appearance the great injustice done to loil people in Georgia. But don't call on me to pray. I'll do all the swearing. In haste.

FOSTER.

Washington, April 10, A. M., 1869.

Dear Foster:—All is lost. We are busted! Gone to hell and ruined forever. How the damned hyenas, the K. K's will yell when they get the news.—Oh, Foster, my head bleeds at every pore. But I've made the State Treasury bleed also. I'll try and save something for you if the greedy dogs McW., H. and A. don't use it all up. What miserable vermin they are. They care for nothing but to have their bellies full of mean whisky. "Oh, Foster, Foster! I had not thought we would come to this. Do you think I can go in safety back to dear old Atlanta? Will Dear "Maggie" meet and console me there? Do see her for me. R. B. B.

Augusta, April 10th, P. M., 1869.

Dear Rufus:—Go anywhere, but don't come here. I'm nearly crazy now. The damned rebels are grinning at me from every street corner. Every little "nig" winks and grins when they see me. Oh, Rufus! Dear Rufus! You have ruined me and mine. What a d—d fool you were to think you could beat old Joe Brown in any sort of rascality. There lies our trouble. You must make up with Joe and let McW. and A. and H. go to hell. Make for Joe. Draw on the 4th National and grease him. That's the way to do it. Let Kimball and his old owl roost alone. Make for Brown. Set up with him. Pray with him, but above all ply him with money. Don't come here. Keep shy of this town.—They are all Hell-cats here.

FOSTER.

GLORYING IN ONE'S SHAME.—

Louisiana follows close in the track of Kansas in ratifying the suffrage amendment.—Think of a slave State taking such action! Verily, "things is changed!" A few years ago no degree of insanity would have pardoned a man for even dreaming of such an event. Well can we exclaim, Shakspearely, "Oh! St. Paul, the world goes bravely on!"—Evening Dispatch, (Radical).

Thus do the Radicals exult in what is their shame! We repeat the language of the Dispatch—think of Louisiana taking such action! A few years ago no degree of insanity would have pardoned a man for even dreaming of such an event as Louisiana's ratifying a constitutional amendment for establishing negro suffrage throughout the United States! And why would no degree of insanity a few years ago have pardoned a man for even dreaming of such an event? Why but because no degree of insanity a few years ago would have pardoned him for even dreaming that a time was coming when the dominant party of the country would enfranchise Louisiana negroes, disfranchise all her respectable and decent white men, subjecting them to negro rule, and sustain and uphold the negro power by the whole military might of the republic? Is there any especial occasion to "exclaim Shakspearearly" and fall to swearing by "St. Paul" because Louisiana negroes, mounted by the Federal Government upon the necks of the white race, go for creating negro suffrage throughout the country? Did "any degree of insanity ever dream" that the negroes, if the requisite power were theirs, would use it otherwise?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TRUE AS GOSPEL.

Dr. Franklin remarks that a man as often gets two dollars for the one he spends informing his mind, as he does for the one he lays out in any other way. A man eats a pound of sugar and it is gone and the pleasure he has enjoyed is ended, but the information he gets from a newspaper is treasured up to be enjoyed anew, and to be used whenever occasion or inclination calls for it. A newspaper is not the wisdom of one man, or of two men; it is the wisdom of the age and of past ages too. A family without a newspaper is always behind the times a year or so in general information; they can never think much nor find much to think about—and there are the little ones growing up without any taste for reading. Who then would be without a newspaper, and who would read one without paying for it.

FOR LADIES ONLY.—A story is going the rounds of a party of ladies who were caught in a shower having the color washed from their cheeks. A young lady at our elbow thinks the color of some of the gentlemen's noses wouldn't be washed out without a waterspout—some of them would have to go through a patent wringer besides.

THE IMPERIALIST.

The following is the platform of the Imperialist published at New York:

"Though unannounced, this journal is not unexpected. It is the expression of opinions long held and cherished by thousands of intelligent men and women, in all parts of the country, who will hail its advent as the beginning of a new era in the political history of America.

"The object of this journal is necessary; its object is to prepare the American people for a revolution that is as desirable as it is inevitable.

"We believe Democracy to be a failure. Though theoretically plausible, in its practical workings it has been found totally inadequate to the want of the American people.

"We believe the national faith, if left in the keeping of the populace, will be sullied by the sure repudiation of the national debt; and that an Imperial Government can alone secure and protect the rights of national creditors.

"We believe that an Imperial Government, in its paternal relation to the people, will care equally for all citizens, and, while guaranteeing security to the rights of capital, will jealously protect the interests of the industrial classes.

"We believe in short, that Democracy means lawlessness, corruption, insecurity to person and property, robbery of the public creditors and civil war; that the Empire means law, order, security, public faith and peace.

"This creed the Imperialist will advocate, earnestly, fearlessly and without compromise; thereby expressing the honest convictions not only of those who contribute to its columns, but of an intelligent and powerful constituency. In the discussion of political and social questions now agitating the mind of the American people, the Imperialist will unite the high tone and thorough culture of the standard British weekly press, with the lighter and more popular features of the best current literature of the day, and its columns will be free from the low and commonplace vulgarisms that have heretofore disgraced American journalism."

SENATORIAL CORRUPTION.

Senator Sprague said recently in the Senate "that he knew a legislator, a member of a committee, who had been asked to report upon a certain matter, and the temptation held out before him was one hundred thousand dollars." But, says an exchange, Senator Sprague "did not tell the whole truth, for that same legislator did report in the way desired, and the presumption is the money was paid. Let Mr. Durant, of Pacific Railroad notoriety, be put upon the stand, and compelled to tell all that he knows in regard to the integrity of certain Radical Senators and Representatives and he will a tale unfold that will disclose very much more than Sprague even is willing to tell. When the list of the stockholders of the Pacific Railroad comes to see the light, it will astonish the country how many members of Congress held an interest in that concern."

A GLANCE.

"We have in the country two great religious societies not only controlling religion, but politics and the social life of the people. Two great railroads stretching across the continent are here before the Senate contending for vast powers, and he asked the people of the United States if it was a pleasant spectacle to them to see Senators ranged on one side or the other of these corporations.

The words which he uttered to-day had perhaps been uttered before, but they had not taken the hold of the popular heart that they did now. Never before had the future of this country appeared so gloomy to the people of the United States as now. They were weighed and pressed down by dire forebodings; they knew not what to do, and they looked to Congress for relief. He would have been glad to have gone and hid himself from sight rather than to witness the impending ruin which was surely to come upon this country, unless the policy of this body was reversed.

WILL OF THE DRUNKARD.

I die a wretched sinner; and I leave to the world a worthless reputation a wicked example, and a memory only fit to perish.

I leave to my parents sorrow and bitterness of soul all the days of their lives.

I leave to my brothers and sisters shame and grief, and reproach, of their acquaintances.

I leave to my wife a widowed and broken heart, and a life of lonely struggling, want and suffering.

I leave to my children a tainted name a ruined position, a pitiful ignorance, and the mortifying recollection of a father who, by his life disgraced humanity, and at his premature death joined the great company of those who never to enter the kingdom of God.

The Marietta Journal.

Marietta, Georgia.

Friday Morning April 23, '69.

To Local's Prophecy Verified.

It will be remembered when the Sabbath Schools from Ashgata and this place had their Picnic last May at Kennesaw Mountain, that the festivities of the day were concluded by the ballooon trial of our good natured friend and relive, J. F. HEDLEY, for libelously and rebellion against the noble old "State of Matrimony." After going through due process of law, the jury, of young ladies, found him "guilty" and was recommended for clemency to Her Majesty, the Queen," (Miss GEORGIA DOWER, of Atlanta,) who, nothing his unfortunate condition, gave, until the 1st of May, 1869, to consummate his nuptials, in which if he failed, the law would be enforced. It will also be remembered, that in our notice of the same, we said that there need be no uneasiness, for "on May 1st rolls round the 'Bachelor's List' would be minus a member."

Now we do not make any pretensions to be a prophet, especially when Cupid has anything do with it, but it seems that we must have had an eye to futurity when the assertion was made, for JOY, whether under fear of the penalty or not, (be that as it may, he has made a lovely escape, for May is not for distant,) married one of Cobb County's fairest and most accomplished daughters, on Thursday night 15th instant.

And to JOY and his bride, who, in the April morning of their days, have launched their bark on the sea of wedded life, we extend our best wishes and warmest congratulations. May their voyage be pleasant and prosperous, under the canopy of never skies and over the surface of waters flashing the remembrancebeliefs of love; may no storm pour its rude strength upon them, and no rugged rocks appear in their path! With Love and Hope at the helm, may they sail on through the reefs and quicksands of Sorrow, and coast by the verdurous and blest Islands of conjugal life!

Lake's Circus.

The great "Napoleon of Showmen" comes among us Saturday, May 1st., in all the glory of his pageantry. He comes heralded by grand and beautiful pictures and the voice of the press. He comes favorably endorsed as having the "greatest, finest and most wonderful exhibition" that ever visited the South.—Wherever it has been it has given general satisfaction, and the Press speak unbroken chorus of its merits in the most favorable terms. He advertises wonderful things, but he comes fully prepared to perform all. There is no mistake about this Circus. The features of this model establishment are great riders, most daring gymnasts, most renowned acrobats, best general performers, most famous vaulters, best trained horses, most astonishing mules, monkeys, goats and trained dogs. And in short a concentration of the "Stars of the Circle," selected from the prominent companies from Europe and America. The Grand Procession, it is said, will be over a mile long, headed by a Golden, Dolphin Chariot, containing Prof. ECKEHART'S Silver Cornet Band, and this grand spectacle is sufficient in itself to bring everybody from the country to witness it, besides the amusing Velocipede race that will be publicly exhibited in our streets. Come, everybody, and give old BILL LAKE a welcome. The people will have fun and amusement, it is part of life, and there is nothing so pleasing as a Circus, with their Clowns' jokes and witticisms and the grand and lofty tumbling and somersaulting of Nature's children.

African Ingenuity.

Necessity is said to be, the mother of invention. We witnessed an illustration of its being a fact. A few days ago we beheld passing through the streets of Marietta, a very novel looking vehicle, which we will attempt to describe:—Wooden trucks were the substitute for wheels, the sides were constructed of rough rails; the ends of clap-boards. The team consisted of two miniature steers, harnessed under the yoke. We had curosity enough to enquire the name of the proprietor of the novelty, and was informed that ANTHONY CHERRY, a colored man, who lives six miles from town, and has in cultivation 20 acres of bottom land, 10 of which is in cotton and 10 in corn, was the owner, inventor and manufacturer of the concern. He deserves not only credit for his ingenuity, but his admirable adaptation to the financial depression of the times. It would seem that not only our laws are to be the subjects of reconstruction, but our vehicles also. We advise ANTHONY to apply for a patent.

The Fields

"Look far greener than ever." Never was prospect more cheering than that which the Wheat fields now present. Should there be no future disaster the crop will abundantly reward the farmer for the increased care and skill bestowed upon it.

The first planting of upland Corn is just making its appearance above ground. The farmer is generally forward with his work. Cotton is being planted, but not, as we feared, to such an extent as to endanger a sufficiency of more important Crops. Sorghum will be produced to a considerable extent; but not as largely as it will be in future years. Arrangements have been made, near Marietta, to produce Sugar from the forthcoming Crop which will add greatly to the cultivation in future. All things considered the agricultural prospect is highly inspiring to the farmer.

The Marietta Debating Club.

At the last debate of this Society, the subject, "Ought Governments to Tax its Subjects to Support Free Schools," was decided in the affirmative. The question for the next debate is: "WOULD IT BE BENEFICIAL FOR THE SOUTH TO IMPORT IMMIGRANTS IN SUBSTITUTION OF BLACK LABOR." The next meeting will be held Monday night. With last, over Mr. JOSEPH ELSAS' store. Members will please keep it in remembrance.

Marietta Temperance Society.

This Society met on Thursday night, 15th instant, at Nichols' Hall. A gentleman from Stony Mountain, of the Temperance Society of that place, was present and extended a cordial invitation to the Society to attend a Temperance Celebration to be held at that place, 8th of May. After further transaction of business the Society adjourned to meet Thursday night, 20th of May. Addresses will be delivered.

We have for May the "HOME MAGAZINE" "ONCE A MONTH" and the "CHILDREN'S HOUR."

The publishers of "ONCE A MONTH" offer to send the first six months' numbers for 1869 (from January to June), for fifty cents, in order to let the people see the Magazine and become acquainted with the rare excellence of its reading matter. If you want nearly 600 pages of about the best and most entertaining reading to be had, send T. S. Arthur & Sons, Philadelphia, the trifle of 50 cents, and you will, take our word for it, make a first-class investment. "ONCE A MONTH" is not surpassed for beauty, excellence and variety by any magazine published.

The Aborigenes Used It.

The medicinal virtues of Roots, Herbs and Barks which were used by the "Medicine men" of the Indian tribe and which long experience has proven to possess the most efficient alterative properties for the cure of Scrofula, King's Evil, Ulcers, Cancerous and Indolent Tumors, Mercurial and Syphilitic Affections, Enlargement of the Bones, Tetter, Ringworm, Boils, Pimples and diseases resulting from a depraved state of the blood, and all female diseases, are contained in a highly concentrated form in DR. TUTT'S SARSAPARILLA AND QUEEN'S DELIGHT.—It is a very popular medicine, and deservedly so.

OPPRESSIVE TAXATION AGAIN.

MR. EDITOR:—When we speak to some men of the enormous taxes that are wrung from a poverty-stricken, subdued and down-trodden people, it is enquired, "what good will it do to complain, how can we help ourselves?"—The latter part of this question admits of an an easy and practical solution. While it is true that we cannot prevent the vindictive and malignant oppression of a radical Congress, yet we have the power as citizens of Georgia, not should exercise the right, to command, instruct and control those whom we elect and constitute our agents and representatives to carry on our county and State government. We certainly are not so completely bound hand and foot, as to be unable to make the least resistance, while members of our own household, who do not wear blue coats and epaulets, are devouring and robbing us. We should say to such office-seeking and money-loving gentry, "thus far shalt thou go, and no farther." With such, their motto is, "the lay and the profits—especially the profits." With them patriotism is out of the question. They care not what becomes of the country, or the people, so long as they can make money. The true sentiment of each is,

"Of all my father's family,
I love myself the best;
So Providence provides for me,
The devil take the rest?"

No class has a right to subsist at the expense of others; and those who do not render, in some way a just equivalent for what they receive from others, are certainly morally guilty of extortion and robbery, especially when they vote to themselves unjust and unreasonable wages. These are plain, self-evident propositions, and should be practically applied. In some instances there is much sin in submitting to wrong as there is in doing wrong. Let us guard with eternal vigilance what few rights are left us and our children, and trust to the great Dispenser of all blessings, for the restoration of those which have already been wrested from us, for

"There is a divinity that shapes our ends, Rough hew them as we may."

Let us encourage whatever tends to promote education morality and religion; and as we have abundantly experienced that the declaration of holy writ is true which says, "While the wicked rule the people mourn," let us hereafter elect our purest and wisest men to positions of trust, honor and profit, we ourselves being the judges and not them. Then, and not till then, may we expect the flock to be cared for as well as the fleece.

Our county levies heavy contributions to pay off the debts recklessly and extravagantly made in the past. Many of the principal tax-payers have bought up its bonds and orders at heavy discount—when they are paid-off we hope for a more economical administration of affairs.

We suppose the convention intended to make a certain class believe that they were conferring a great favor upon them by fixing the poll-tax at the nominal sum of one dollar. Does this relieve that class of their part of the burden of unjust and oppressive taxation? By no means, for the effect is to lower wages lower and rents higher. Let none be deceived then by the tricks of mean demagogues, for all alike are being crushed by the wheel of oppression. I have thrown out these reflections without much regard to system—I have spoken as one of the people. Let them concerned take heed!

P. H. B.

TASTE NOT.

Drunk! Young man, did you ever stop to think how terrible that word sounds! Did you ever think what misery you brought upon your friends, when you degraded your manhood by getting drunk! Drunk! How it rings in the ear of a loving wife! How it makes the heart of a mother bleed!—How it crushes out the hopes of a father, and brings reproach and shame upon sisters. Drunk! See him as he leans against some friendly house. He stands ready to fall into the jaws of hell, unconscious as to his approaching fate.—The wife, with aching heart, sits at the window to hear her husband's footsteps, but they come not! He is drunk!—He is spending the means of support for liquor, while his family is starving for bread, his children for clothing.—Drunk! His reputation is going, gone! His friends, one by one, are leaving him to his fate. He goes down to his grave unlamented and unmourned. Drunk!

A Literary Curiosity.

The following remarkable little poem is a contribution to the San Francisco Times from the pen of Mrs. H. A. Dening. The reader will notice that each line is a quotation from some one of the standard authors of England and America. This is the result of a year's laborious search among the voluminous writings of thirty-eight leading poets of the past and present. The number of each line refers to its author below:

LIFE.

1. Why all this toil for triumphs of an hour?
2. Life's a short summer, man is a flower.
3. By turns we catch the vital breath and die—
4. The cradle and the tomb, alas! so nigh.
5. To be is better far than not to be.
6. Though all man's life may seem a tragedy;
7. But light comes after darkness, gloomy griefs are dumb
8. The bottom is but shallow whence they come.
9. Your fate is but the common fate of all;
10. Unmingled joys here no man befall.
11. Nature to each allots its proper sphere;
12. Fortune makes folly her peculiar care.
13. Custom does often reason overrule.
14. And throw a cruel sunshine on a fool.
15. Live well; how long or short, permit to Heaven;
16. They who forgive most, shall be most forgiven.
17. Sin may be clasped so close we cannot see its face.
18. Vile intercourse where virtue has no place.
19. Then keep each passion down, however dear,
20. Thou passion between a smile and tear.
21. Her sensual snares let faithless Pleasure lay,
22. With soft and soul, to soften and betray.
23. Soar not too high to fall, but stoop to rise;
24. We masters grow of all that we despise.
25. Oh then, I conjure that impious self-esteem;
26. Riches have wings, and grandeur is a dream.
27. Think not ambition wise because 'tis brave;
28. The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
29. What is ambition? 'Tis a glorious cheat—
30. Only destructive to the brave and great.
31. What's all the gaudy glitter of a crown?
32. The way to bliss lies not on beds of down.
33. How long we live, not years, but actions tell.
34. That man lives twice who lives the first life well.
35. Make then, while yet ye may, your God your friend.
36. Whom Christians worship, yet not comprehend.
37. The trust that's given guard, and to yourself be just;
38. For live we how we can, die we must.

A REAL HERO—A SCENE AT SEA.

Two weeks ago, on board an English steamer, a little ragged boy, aged nine years, was discovered on the fourth day of the outward voyage from Liverpool to New York, and carried before the first mate, whose duty it was to deal with such cases. When questioned as to the object of his being stowed away, and who brought him on board, the boy, who had a beautiful sunny face, and eyes that looked like the very mirrors of truth, replied that his stepfather did it, because he could not afford to keep him, nor to pay his passage out to Halifax, where he had an aunt who was well off and to whose house he was going. The mate did not believe the story, in spite of the winning face and truthful accents of the boy. He had seen too much of stowaways to be easily deceived by them, he said, and it was his firm conviction that the boy had been brought on board and provided with food by the sailors. The little fellow was very roughly handled in consequence. Day by day he was questioned and requestioned, but always with the same result.—He did not know a sailor on board, and his father alone had accreted him, and given the food which he ate.

At last the mate, wearied by the boy's persistence in the same story, and perhaps a little anxious to inculpate the other sailors, seized him one day by the collar, and dragging him to the fore, told him that unless he confessed the truth in ten minutes from that time, he would hang him to the yard arm. He then made him sit down under it on the deck. All around him were the passengers and sailors of the midway watch, and in front of him stood the inexorable mate, with his chronometer in his hand, and the other officers of the ship by his side.—It was the finest sight said our informant, that he had ever beheld—to see the pale, proud, sorrowful face of that noble boy, his head erect, his beautiful eyes bright through the tears that suffused them. When eight minutes had fled the mate told him he had only two minutes to live, and advised him to speak the truth and save his life; but he replied with the utmost simplicity and sincerity, by asking the gate if he might pray.

The mate said nothing, but nodded his head, and turned as pale as a ghost, and shook with trembling like a reed with the wind. And there, all eyes turned on him, this brave and noble little fellow, this poor waif whom society owned not, and whose own stepfather could not care for him—there he knelt, with clasped hands and eyes upraised to Heaven, while he repeated audibly the Lord's Prayer, and prayed the dear Lord Jesus to take him to Heaven.

Our informant adds that there then occurred a scene as of Pentecost. Sobs broke from strong, hard hearts, as the mate sprang forward to the boy and clasped him to his bosom, and kissed him and blessed him, and told him how sincerely he now believed his story, and how glad he was that he had been brave enough to face death and be willing to sacrifice his life for the truth of his own word.—New York Sun.

FARMERS VISITING EACH OTHER.

This is one of the most useful employments a farmer can be engaged in. He is getting the necessary knowledge for his business. Not only the best farmer, but the poorest also, may be visited with advantage. An eminent farmer once said he never visited a farm, of whatever character, but he found something useful to him.

A man's failures are instructive as well as his success. To know what to avoid is often very important. It is always to be regarded as in its exercise the closest judgment is often required. What we have about us, what we see, instructs us, whether at home or abroad. At home it is of the most importance.—This is especially so with farming. Our land adjoining our neighbor's comes much under the same condition of success. What grains will do best on such and such soil, what grass, what fruits, especially—as health have a decided influence on the many varieties—all this is important and must be tested. It is so important that it can hardly be overestimated. Our neighbor tests it for us, we need, then, but to engage for it, avoiding the failures, and accepting the success.

We should make this a business; take pains to do it; make it as regularly a part of farming as sowing and sawing manure. Direction must always precede everything, and this comes under this head. Farmers are always willing to communicate, and a man see for himself—he needs but keep his eyes open. How much benefit has resulted from an observation of John Johnston's mode of farming! The whole country has been benefitted, more or less, by his system of drainage, his mode of raising wheat and other grains, and his feeding of sheep and cattle on the farm. And there are others; without every neighborhood has them. And we have all kinds of successes and unsuccesses. We need but look, and see, for ourselves alone; many know more than one.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.

A USEFUL TABLE.

To aid farmers in arriving at accuracy in estimating the amount of land in different fields under cultivation, the following table is given by an agricultural cotemporary:

Five yards wide by 978 yards long contains 1 acre.

Ten yards wide by 484 yards long contains 1 acre.

Twenty yards wide by 242 yards long contains 1 acre.

Forty yards wide 121 yards long contains 1 acre.

Two hundred and twenty feet wide by 198 feet long contains 1 acre.

Sixty feet wide by 726 feet long contains 1 acre.

Two hundred and forty feet wide by 181½ feet long contains 1 acre.

BLESSINGS OF POVERTY.

If there is anything in the world that a young man should be more grateful for than another, it is the poverty which necessitates starting life under very great disadvantages. Poverty is one of the best tests of human quality in existence. A triumph over it is like graduating with honor from West Point. It demonstrates stuff and stamina. It is a certificate of worthy labor faithfully performed. A young man who cannot stand this test is not good for anything. He can never rise above a drudge or a pauper. A young man who cannot feel his will harden as the yoke of poverty presses upon him, and his spirit rise with every difficulty that poverty throws in his way, may as well quit work to some corner, and hide himself. Poverty saves a thousand times more than it ruins, for it only ruins those whom wealth would have ruined.

"TO OUR MERCHANTS.—The merchant or man of business who enters the vast arena of commercial enterprise, and determines to struggle for success without the aid of the press—the great Archimedean lever—builds his house castle upon an unsubstantial basis, and will inevitably witness its demolition. The files of the Pioneer for the last 20 years will furnish abundant evidence of the fact that those who advertised liberally, and with judgment in its columns, never failed to reap the anticipated reward. To our merchants, then, we would say, be frugal if you will in your expenditures, but look to it that in curtailing your advertisements you are not actually diminishing your receipts.

The Marietta Journal.

Marietta, Georgia.

Friday Morning April 30, '69.

To the Citizens of Marietta.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: We the undersigned members of the "MARIETTA DEBATING CLUB AND LIBRARY ASSOCIATION," having been appointed a Committee to solicit contributions to our Library, do hereby appeal to you for assistance in the good cause of establishing in our city a Young Men's Library.

All contributions of Books, Money, or other articles, which you see proper to contribute, will be received and turned over to the proper officers by either of the undersigned.

Respectively,

J. N. HARRIDON,
T. F. SMITH,
W. S. N. NEAL,
Committee.

This appeal emanating from the source it does, surely will need with that consideration and response that it deserves. These young men, of Marietta, have organized themselves into a Society for intellectual improvement, that a more thorough and complete education may be acquired and to awaken slumbering and latent endowments and energies to nobler spheres of action. They cannot accomplish the end aimed at, unless they have books. To obtain them, they have appealed to you for assistance. Will you give it? They sanguinely expect it. Will you discourage them by disappointment? If you do, you may put out more than one spark of genius, that would, under circumstances, reflect brilliant lustre and credit upon our noble old State.

You, who have the means, and who desire the salvation of the youth of the land; you who tell them that they must qualify themselves in youth to occupy in the future responsible and prominent positions, that are now occupied by others, come to their assistance in the contribution of valuable and useful books to their Library. If the ladies wish to see those young men act any part in the cause of humanity and to be ornaments to society, when they take their position in the world, let them exert their holy influence and assistance in the collection of books for their Library, that science may be diffused and cultivated in their minds. If you heed their appeal, the future may reveal some of these young gentlemen as bright and shining stars among the constellations of earth. If example is mightier than precept, how many examples of liberal donations, during the beautiful month of May, will we be permitted to chronicle?

Mr. JOSEPH ELSAS, our esteemed and worthy merchant, is the only citizen that has manifested any interest in behalf of this Society since its reorganization. He has donated the Hall, above his store, for their assemblage, gratuitously, and furnished it with a table and seats. And he does not stop there, but like expressed his willingness to contribute money for the purchase of valuable books. How many will imitate his highly appreciated, noble and benevolent example!

Onward.

Captain Mayne Reid's magazine bravely maintains to its May issue the promise of its title in progress towards better things, showing a steady advancement in interest and value. In the "Vis-a-vis with Subscribers, Contributors, and Exchanges," printed as a fly-leaf prefatory to the number, the editor takes occasion to disclose the public mind of the impression that ONWARD is designed for children, though we cannot see how such an impression could ever have been created, seeing that no number has ever appeared without paper of such thoughtful excellence as well deserved the attention of the most matured intellects. There is much in this May number to challenge approval, and something, it may be, that will not meet with a ready assent, however unobjectionable in argument, as for example that Paris is the place of all others to be avoided as a "Fountain of Foulness," whence issue streams of demoralization to all parts of the earth. "Safe on Board a Blockader," by a Paymaster in the U. S. Navy, who details very pleasantly his reminiscences of the late war, from his standpoint at sea, will lead the reader to desire more of the same sort. "Street Cars" deserves commendation as a useful hint for an improvement in the management of our metropolitan city railways. The writer suggests the passage of a law rigidly prescribing a stoppage "at every second cross street, but nowhere between" under a penalty of one hundred dollars. We are truly gratified to see the evidence of a determined purpose on the part of editor and publisher to push Onward onward to the most triumphant success.

Annual Floral Tribute to the Confederate Dead.

It is a beautiful custom which calls us to that solemn resort, annually, with garlands of beautiful flowers in our hands, and perhaps with tearful eyes, to garnish the mounds of the last resting place of those who sacrificed their lives in defence of the "Lost Cause." Marietta's fair daughters, who will ever revere the memory of our fallen ones, resorted to the Confederate Cemetery on last Monday evening, in variegated costumes, and with their tribute of remembrance—cedars and flowers—with fair and delicate hands, performed the ceremony of decoration. This is the noblest tribute that can be offered to those who "sleep the sleep that knows no waking," and is more touching and magnificently beautiful than the erection of marble cenotaphs.

The scarcity of flowers rendered it difficult, to the fair sex, to bedeck the graves as their taste dictated, yet the appearance showed excellent taste and exquisite floral beauty. It would be a grand supposition, if judiciously carried out, for the "young ladies to cultivate flowers more extensively, for this purpose, so there may be an abundance, and all, who will, may annually

"Bring flowers to lay upon the graves
Of her'd more—noble, true and tried,"

and it will be a much more endearing and affectionate one than that which gold and silver can purchase.

ADRIAN.

The Blessing of the Age.

No more Sick Headache, no more Dyspepsia, no more Indigestion, no more Piles, no more Chills no more Liver Complaints, no more Jaundice, no more Pain in the Back, no more Kidney Diseases, no more Costiveness, nonsense Heartburn. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILL is a sovereign panacea for all these distressing complaints.

The Reason Why.

Why are you looking, sir, so sad?
Sad, indeed! I am almost mad—
To think, that with a large stock on hand;
So limited is the demand—
I've got the finest goods in town,
Silks, That are bright and soft as down;
Cassimers, Broadcloths, velvets too,
With calicos, of every hue;
Black, crimson, purple, red, blue, green,
The choicest that were ever seen—
Boots, shoes, domestic, white as snow,
Why do they all, so slowly go?
My brother merchants, boast of sales;
My goods are selling as theirs, what ails
The folks? why do they rush my door,
And purchase at some other store?
I think friend, I can tell you why—
Of advertising, you're fought shy;
Whilst, notices known men, appear
In Newspapers—one thing is clear;
No matter, how large your supplies;
If you neglect to advertise,
Quite limited your sales will be,
Until the printer gets his's fee.

A DRUNKARD.

The Central Georgian gives us the following item on Liquor selling, and drinking. If the Judge's decision prevails there will be a great many people in danger:

"A great many dealers do not know that it is a violation of law to sell liquor to an individual who is intoxicated. It is nevertheless true, and a person so offending is subject to the same panes and penalties as if guilty of selling without license. At Wilkinson Superior Court, Judge Robinson defined what it required to be under the influence of liquor, so that parties might make no mistake.—Said he, it is not necessary that a man should be wallowing in a ditch or bumping his head against your posts, that you may know him to be drunk; but if conversation begins to tell the same thing over twice then he's drunk!"

☞ In Georgia there are in process of erection seventy-two mills for the production of cotton and woollen goods alone, and attention is turned in the direction of calicoes and printed fabrics. This is a surprising fact; but it is a natural consequence following on the events of the last five years. At Augusta one factory has turned out the last year 6,140,000 yards of cloth, and has a capital of $200,000.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS

Authentic Documents

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 22, 1866.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing Drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the chronelas for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters, and I use Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care of Hicket and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. H. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanac and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Here is what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

VILLAGE, WALKER COUNTY GA., }

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance it has been prescribed for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I am aware that the use of such articles is contra to the teachings and practice of great majority of the regular line of M. D's, but I see no just cause or good reason in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. You my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to relieve suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more learned than myself may have denounced it as Quack Stuff, and scorned their knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please write me and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

BENTON BARRACKS, Co. }
April 30, 1865. }

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing qualities of your Cedron Bitters, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. About one year ago my wound since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist it, and have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in any thing else. I wish that it genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

CAPT. C. A. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: My husband, C. P. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon, and physician in Central New York, when he died, leaving me three C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhœa and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, liver sore, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure effected in some cases of scrofula and liver sore were almost miraculous. I am very much obliged for my son to again have occasion to use your sarsaparilla. He is fearful of nothing else. Please send me an article, by writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible, but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER

OR

CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all other Tonics offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, and all forms of Fever, whether slight or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country for many cures in every case of which it has been used, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a very many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and where families have been cured by a single bottle, with perfect regularity of health ever after. It is, however, prudent, and in every case necessary to cure, if by use or exposure in sugar dose for a week or two after the disease has been checked more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, three bottles will do the work. Be careful to keep the bowels in good order, and the liver active, however, require a dose of Bull's Cedron Bitters, taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient

Pain-Killer

Pain is supposed to be the result of an over taxation of the nerves, and is classed as disease, and liable to appear in some form or other. It is therefore, a symptom, and the agents should be combined and used on any part where pain exists. We are made to feel the necessity of keeping hartshorn in the house.

Such a remedial agent exists in Perry Davis' "Painkiller." The fame of which has extended all over the earth. Amid the eternal lines of Pulse reglets or beneath the lattice-able and burning sun of the tropic, its virtues are known and appreciated.

And by its suffering humanity has found relief from many of its ills. The effect of Davis's Pain Killer" upon the patient, after taking internally a few drops, is truly wonderful and how soon it allays the most excruciating pains. Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy, is equally effective, bruises, burns, scalds, cuts, cramps, colic, and all other causes of suffering, are soon cured for it is the most prominent position among the medicines of the day.

Beware of Counterfeits and worthless imitations. Call for PERRY DAVIS' PEDTRAL PAIN KILLER," and take none other.

PEOPLE WILL TALK.

We may get through the world, but 'twill be very slow,
If we listen to all that is said as we go;
We'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew,
For meddlesome tongues must have something to do—
For people will talk, you know.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed
That your humble position is only assumed,
You're a wretch whom clothing, or you're a fool;
But don't get excited, keep perfectly cool—
For people will talk, you know.

If generous and noble, they'll vent their spleen,
You'll here something bout him that you've seldom
If upright and honest and fair as the day,
They'll call you a rouge in a sly, sneaking way—
For people will talk you know.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart,
Or are slight inclination to take your own part,
They'll call you an upstart, conceited, or vain,
But keep straight ahead, don't stop to explain—
For people will talk, you know.

If threadbare your coat, old fashioned your hat,
Some one, of course, will take notice of that,
And linger strong that you cant pay your way;
But dont get excited whatever they say—
For people will talk you know.

If you dress in the fashion, don't think to escape,
For they'll criticise then, in a different shape;
You're ahead of your means, or the tailor is paid
But mind your own business, there's naught to be said—
For people will talk you know,

If a fellow but chance to converse with a girl,
How the gossip will talk, and the scandal unfurl,
They'll accuse your waste every word of your means,
And say you're engaged to a dozen in her teens—
For people will talk you know.

They'll talk fine before you, but then at your back,
Of venom and slander there's never a lack,
How kind and polite in all that they say,
But bitter as gall when they're out of the way—
For people will talk, you know.

The best way to do is to do as you please,
For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease;
Of course you'll meet with all sorts of abuse,
But don't think it an step there, 'twill be of no use—
For people will talk, you know.

THE COUNTRY PRESS

The following truthful article is taken from one of the ablest papers in the country:

Our duty is too often overlooked.—Go into one halt the houses of the country, and there will be found New York newspapers, and Philadelphia magazines, and foreign literature of every kind; while of newspapers interested in advocating the interests of the State and their own county, not one can be found. This is grossly unjust. If a man has two dollars a year, or ten cents a week, to spend in information and literature for his family, his duty as a citizen is to take his own State and county paper. Let him imagine, if he can, what his State would be without a paper within her borders, and then ask himself what he is doing for their support.

But some excuse themselves for taking a metropolitan paper, on the ground that they contain more reading matter than these published at home. True enough—simply for the reason that they are supported. Every dollar sent to a foreign newspaper, by a citizen who takes no local paper, builds up that paper at the expense not only of his own local paper, but of the interests of his own State and county.

We do not ask this for the local press as a matter of charity, but of justice. A good paper can do more good for any town than any town can do for a paper. But few appreciate the local press as they ought. They overlook the fact that its conductors are the most self-sacrificing men in the country.—From one year's end to another, they devote their talents and their energies to the building up of their localities, even to the neglect of their own pecuniary interests.

Yet the local press is sneered at, and given the cold shoulder forgetting that the little pebble is as necessary for making the mountain, as the bolder or huge mass of granite. The local press holds as important a position as the rill does to the river which goes oceanward. It is bad policy to starve them to death, as it would be for the mouth of the stream to dam up the fountains from which it obtains its supply. The interests of the city persons and the local press are identical and they should be fostered alike, as each bes its work to perform in its peculiar province. The conductors of the country press may sometimes err in judgment or fail to carry out their plans to the fullest extent—but the metropolitan press is open to the same charge. We repeat, that it is the first duty of every man—a duty that is imperative—to sustain his local press with a liberal hand, and not let it languish for want of that support.

SOMETIMES a girl says no to an offer, when it is as plain as the nose on her face she means yes. The best way to judge whether she is in earnest or not, is to look straight into her eyes, and never mind her nose.

THE SPRAGUE FAMILY AND THEIR POSSESSIONS.

The house of Sprague started with Amasa Sprague, the grandfather of Amasa and William, the present representatives of the house. He was succeeded by his sons Amasa and William, and thus the firm of A. & W. Sprague came into existence. At the death of the "Old Governor," as William Sprague, the uncle of the "two boys" who now control the house of A. & W. Sprague, is generally called even now, the business had not yet assumed anything like its present giant proportions. That even occurred in 1860, and there were at that time only six calico printing machines in the print works at Cranston. Since then, however not only his addition after addition and extension after extension been put to the works, until the mills form an extensive village in themselves, but every species of improved machinery has also been procured and set in motion. Instead of six color machines, the highest number any machine was capable of printing at the death of the "Old Governor," there are in the works at Cranston to-day machines which print twelve. There are now thirty machines in the works, and 50,000 pieces of cloth can be printed and finished in a week. This immense establishment is driven by six engines, varying from 40 to 300 horse power, and the consumption of coal per day is not short of 100 tons. Twenty-five donkey engines are scattered over the establishment to do special duty wherever needed. Trimming machines washing and drying machines, dyeing apparatus, engraving machines, all the immense and complicated machinery necessary to the manufacture of the material for a new dress. The villages where the operatives reside are built after a uniform model, and consist of story and a half double houses. In the store at Cranston an immense business is done. The Spragues do their own slaughtering, and kill about 25 head of cattle per week, and sheep and hogs in proportion. The meat is furnished to their operatives four and five cents per pound cheaper than it can be bought in the Providence market, and the "store" sells goods of every kind at a proportionately low figure, the sales in a single year amounting to $400,000.

Amasa Sprague resides at Cranston, about one mile from the city of Providence, and William lives with his mother in the city of Providence. What this woman has had to do with building up an immense business, the influence which is felt everywhere in the country, has never been told. "The boys" habitually resort to her for advice, and the "old Governor" was accustomed to hold her judgment in the highest esteem. Her counsel to the old firm of A. & W. Sprague have been transferred to the new house, and have proved as beneficial to her sons as the their father and to their uncle. She is now and old lady of seventy years, but her faculties are as vigorous as ever.

The hours of A. & W. Sprague, as at present constituted, resembles the old house of that name in a striking degree. Amasa Sprague, at his home at Cranston, is much like Amasa Sprague, his father. As the father hated politics, so, too, the son dislikes the turmoil of party, and devotes himself to his family, his business, and his trotters. He has new in his stables, near the Narragansett Race Course, an association of which he is president, much thorough and blooded stock—the famous horse Rhode Island and the Dutch Girl among the others. Of Rhode Island he is especially confident, and expects him to test his mule in 2220 at the June meeting at the Narragansett Park. But William Sprague the nephew, both naturally took to politics. Both were Governors of the State, and both Senators of the United States. In his recent contest in the Senate, William Sprague the younger, only did what would have been done by William Sprague the older under like circumstances, and it would have been done by the latter with the same intrepidity, the same disregard of consequences, and the same defiance of the opinions of others that the former exhibited in the past few weeks.

In these bold acts, apparently so incapable of explanation, Sprague may have calculated to some extent upon his "Rhode Islanders." In the words of Scranton 2,000 hands are employed, besides those engaged at their other mills. In this there is a power as great as in 250,000 spindles, fed by the ingenuity and foresight of Senator Sprague and his brother. He boasted in one of his speeches—or, perhaps, rather complained—that small manufacturers were breaking down because they could not do as he does. It was very vaguely put, and was not generally understood. He simply meant that his purchases of stock were so immense that those who could not buy in like immense quantities cannot compete with him. But he also meant to say that he can make better goods out of inferior material than any one else. His great point however, was that persons who do not own an immense capital cannot borrow, owing to the courses of legislation in the last few years, and that men like himself, by their great facilities and large capital, crush their neighbors either willingly or unwillingly. Ten thousand bales of cotton, 2,000 casks of sanditer, and proportionate quantities of drugs, is no unusual single purchase. They consumed 17,000 bales of cotton the last year, and within the past five months have bought at least 10,000,000 yards of cloth from other manufacturers, and printed it for their works at Cranston.

The Spragues have mills at other places besides Providence, even as far away as Augusta, Me. Their "Rhode" mills are an immense array, as are the "Goldrick," "Natick," "Arctic," and "Central Falls." They have besides many outside interests. Their farm at Cranston alone contains 2,000 acres of land, worth from $200 to $800 per acre, and in all the following companies they have a controlling or a very large interest:

Rhode Island Locomotive Works, Perkins' Sheet Iron Company, Phœnix Iron Foundry, Rhode Island Horse Shoe Company, American Horse Nail Company, Nicholson File Company, Boston Wharf and Bread Company, United States Flax Manufacturing Company, Providence and New York Steamship Company. This view scarcely gives an idea of the immensity of the enterprises, into many of which they become engaged by taking hold of the falling enterprises of others. The immensity of the whole can only be judged from the immensity of any one of the undertakings named in the foregoing list. All are so great in themselves that the successful conduct of any one of them would stamp a man as eminently successful in business, and give him the prestige and social influence of great wealth.—New York Tribune.

CHANCES OF MARRIAGES AMONG MAIDS.

The following curious statement is made by Dr. Granville. It is drawn from the registered cases of 876 women and is derived from their answers to the age at which they were respectively married. It is the first ever constructed to exhibit women their chances of marriage at various ages. Of the 876 females 3 were married at 13 years of age, 11 at 14, 16 at 15, 42 at 16, 45 at 17, 60 at 18, 115 at 19, 118 at 20, 86 at 21, 83 at 22, 59 at 23, 53 at 24, 26 at 25, 24 at 26, 28 at 27, 22 at 28, 17 at 29, 9 at 30, 7 at 31, 6 at 32, 7 at 33, 0 at 34, 2 at 35, 0 at 36, 2 at 37, 0 at 38, 1 at 39, 0 at 40.

From this our fair readers may form a pretty accurate judgment of the chances which they have of entering into the holy state of matrimony, and of enjoying the sweets (we say nothing of the bitters,) of wedded love. It will be seen that for them the chances of marrying at 30 years is not one in a hundred and at 40 there is no chance at all. Twenty has three times the advantage of sweet sixteen. The reason the Doctor assigns for the rush of marriages at nineteen and twenty is that the girls at that time of life begin to fear the frosty approach of old maidenhood, and therefore rush into the arms of the first opportune suitor that presents himself. At fifteen and sixteen the little misses feel themselves secure; they are saucy, independent, wayward, coquetish, and believe any time opportunities which do not present themselves at a later age. The Doctor is of the opinion that if a young girl wishes to make a matrimonial hit in life she must do it between the age of fifteen and seventeen. It is at this age that the full side sets in on the affairs of woman.

Major Campbell Wallace, Sam Tate, Wm. Smith and the President of Nashville and Decatur Railroad, have become contractors for the construction of the North and South Road in Alabama, which will run from Decatur to Montgomery, a distance of about 300 miles. It will cost about $6,000,000, and two years and six months given to complete the contract. These facts, we elicited from Major Wallace, on Sunday last, was then on his way to Montgomery to begin operations. The principal management of the whole work has been committed to his hands, which is a sufficient guarantee that the enterprise will be pushed forward to an early completion.

We expressed our appreciation to Major Wallace that there was a good chance to lose him as a citizen of our State, now that he had become so extensively engaged in another field. "Never," said he, "I expect to live and die a citizen of Georgia and Marietta."

No gentleman ever came into Georgia as perfect a stranger as Major Wallace, who proved himself to be more of a gentleman, and was more highly esteemed and beloved by our people universally.—Cartersville Express.

Story of the Seven Brothers.

One of our earliest recollections is from Tennessee—a State which has furnished many wonderful stories. We recollect with what rapt interest we listened to the recital that the brothers riding along discovered that they were pursued by a "Hoop-Snake." How they fled and in vain. How the snake struck his fatal sting into the new Boot of one of the brothers. His death and burial. How another of the brothers put on the deceased brother's Boots and died—each of the other brothers following his example likewise perished before it was ascertained that the fatal horn or sting had been left by the snake in the Boot.

We have, at last, seen one of these veritable snakes—Hoop-Snake, Horned-Snake, whatever you may call it. While living in this country we have heard many say they have seen it—some that they had killed them, and we have often thought if we could get hold of one alive we would send it to some Museum as a great curiosity. One day last week in passing a locality where some Masons were employed blasting Rock we were told they had just killed a Stinging Snake. We found it to be about 2½ feet long—a slightly flattened body—black on the back with alternate stripes of red and black beneath. The top of the head seemed slightly corrugated flat and less acute than other snakes. The Horn had been cut from the end of the tail resembling in color the sting of insects, larger and as hard as the "Rooster's Spur." Pressing it on the Rock with a stick it bounded against Johnny's Boot who shook himself several times on his way to School.

Rome Fire Company.

This fine company passed up the road on their way to their mountain home in the beautiful city of Rome, on Tuesday night last, from a grand gala trip to Atlanta. Their magnificent Engine passed several hours in advance. The Editors of the Courier and Commercial, as well as the good people of Rome in general, may well feel proud of their troop of firemen. We only wish Marietta could boast of as much. The people of Marietta will not appreciate the importance and want of a Steam Engine with a splendid equipped Company, until their business houses are again wrapped in conflagration, then their voices will go up as one, "Oh! that we had been wise and contributed of our effects for the protection of the remainder!"

But then it will be too late. There will have been enough property destroyed to have bought several Fire Engines. If the citizens of Madison had known their own interest and purchased a Fire Engine, we dare say, that the recent fire in that city, would have left more than one business house and $300,000 worth of property would not have been destroyed.

If the property holders of Marietta would contribute $50 apiece, and the City Council would sell the old worn out Fire Engine and appropriate a sum from the city treasury, there would be a sufficient amount to buy a number one Steam Engine and it will be a better protecting policy than you can get from Insurance Companies. Citizens, of Marietta, when will you act? "Delays are dangerous."

Our Pic-Nic Excursion to Cartersville.

In response to the invitation extended to the citizens of this place, we, with a large number of our citizens entered the cars enroute for Cartersville to enjoy the festivity of a bright summers May day.

On arriving there we marched to the beautiful shady grove designated for the occasion and made ourselves as comfortable as possible. After an interval of half an hour we were then addressed by Mr. Harrison who was introduced by Gen. Wofford—who, in behalf of the citizens of Cartersville and Bartow County made welcome both those of Marietta and Atlanta, and delivered an address quite appropriate to the occasion. In reply, Col. Gaskill of Atlanta paid his compliments to Mr. Harrison and spoke of the recreation it afforded them, and at getting away from the smoke and bustle of Atlanta, and that these social gatherings were calculated to give praise to God and man. We would like to give a full detail of the excursion but space will not admit of it. After the delivery of the addresses we were called upon to partake of the sweet-meats prepared for the occasion.—We then refreshed ourselves by partaking of ice-cold lemonade, ice-cream, &c., then, made way for the cars, and all being seated, moved off, delighted with the prosperity of the surrounding country of Bartow.

Marietta Debating Club and Library Association.

The election of officers, for May, took place at their regular meeting on last Monday night, at Elsas' Hall, as follows:

A. W. York, President.
W. S. N. Neal, Vice-President.
A. B. Gilbert, Secretary,
W. E. Gilbert, Treasurer.
H. D. McCutcheon, Librarian.

This Society is composed of the young men of Marietta and is auspicious of valuable results. Their meetings are conducted with propriety and decorum. Parliamentary rules are strictly adhered to. The Constitution and By-Laws, it is said by competent judges, equal if they do not surpass, any that has ever been drawn up for any Society. If each family in Marietta would appreciate such an institution, pregnant with as much good as this, by contributing one book, and there are few but what can, it would establish a large Library, that would be a handsome and valuable acquisition to our city, as well as advantageous and gratifying to the young men of the Society.

Keeping up With the Times.

The well-known Drug Establishment of William Root & Sons has recently received large additions to its stock of Paints, Oils, &c.

Among the Paints, of which they have a large variety of colors, in convenient sized Cans, we notice the new Brands of White Lead in 25 lb. Cans—viz:

Marietta—Strictly Pure.
Kennesaw—Brilliant White.
Blue Star—Low Priced.

The Marietta has been tested by an expert and pronounced strictly pure. All are ground in pure refined Linseed Oil and put up expressly for the Messrs. Root, who have the exclusive control of these brands, the qualities of which, they have satisfied themselves as experienced dealers, will suit all demands.

They have also a brilliant green for Window Blinds, and, in fact, any Color you want.

We have merely mentioned Paints, but if you visit their extensive establishment you will see a stock and variety rivalling many Drug Stores in our larger Towns.

A Velocipede in a Printing Office.

The first velocipede made its appearance in our city, on last Saturday, with Bill Lake's show. It was quite a curiosity to all. The first glimpse we had of it, was in our office. The gentleman in charge was a skillful rider, and propelled it among our presses and composing stone with dexterity.

LINES DEDICATED TO "EFFIE."

I know that e'er the lapse of years,
  Have sown these locks with silver grey,
This form, by friends, perchance with tears,
  Shall to its rest be laid away.

I know that when the turf shall lie,
  In grassy verdure on my breast,
That few will pause, of passers by,
  To think of him who there shall rest.

I know that soon my humble name,
  Shall sink amid life's busy din,
And not a sole memorial claim
  To witness that I e'er had been.

'Tis well—for little would I care
  To swell the rolls of high renown;
'Tis fondness all of empty air—
  The prince shall moulder with the clown.

Yet would I, in some faithful heart,
  That once had loved me long and well,
Still share an undivided part,
  And there, still unforgotten dwell.

Yes! let some friend—warm—true—sincere,
  Whose generous soul could bear with me—
Remembering with a silent tear,
  Not what I was, but what would be.

Let such, although but one be found,
  Still think of me when life is o'er,
And be my memory cluster'd 'round
  That faithful heart—I'll ask no more.

The Storm.

There was quite a storm visited our city on Saturday night last. Dark and heavy clouds began to roll up, about 7 o'clock, in threatening aspect, the wind rose in power and might, and swayed the trees to and fro, lifting one, on the edge of the pavement near the Journal Office, up by the roots and hurling it with majestic fury across the street, making a complete blockade. Next it prostrated one of the side-shows, and those inside of Lake's Big Show were scared out of their wits, expecting every moment to be pressed to the ground by the large canvass. At one time the wind raised the inside poles, that were attached by ropes to stakes drove in the ground, as much as four feet, knocking the seats and lamps of the musicians into one pile; the rain in torrents came down rendering the situation unpleasant. But such things do not last always, for when the King of Day arose, next morning the dark clouds had drifted into obscurity, the violent winds had died away into gentle zephyrs, and sunshine and serenity reigned.

Southern Cultivator.

The May No. of the Southern Cultivator has been received. This old journal, (now in its 27th., year), may not have as many pictures as some of the Northern monthlies, but it is a strictly Southern enterprise, is printed on paper made within a few miles of its office, and owned and edited by gentlemen who, born and reared in the South, and long engaged in planting there, must be, to a great extent, familiar with the peculiarities and wants of Southern farming. It will be found, moreover, by any one who will take the trouble to examine a copy of the Cultivator, (and all are invited to call at this office and do so,) that the larger part of its contents is made up of communications from experienced farmers living all over the Gulf States. This we regard as an extremely valuable feature—giving, as it does, a peculiarly practical cast to this magazine. Published at Athens' Ga, by Wm. & W. L. Jones, at $2,00 a year.

Marietta Female College.

We are pleased to learn that the Beth Haema Society of the Marietta Female College has received the following contributions, viz: "Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine" and "Peterson's Lady's National Magazine."

For the Society we tender thanks to the Publishers of these world-wide popular periodicals.

We are happy, too, to learn that the Libraries of both Societies are filling up with standard literary works contributed by their liberal and magnanimous friends. Let every friend of female education aid these, Clariosophic and Beth Haema, Societies connected with our flourishing College.

VIRGINIA CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION.

Richmond, April 29.—The Conservative Convention assembled this morning, and the minority report was withdrawn to make way for a resolution to adjourn until ten days after President Grant's proclamation for a State election. This resolution was defeated by a majority of two-thirds. The majority report was then adopted with few dissenting voices. The debate pointed unmistakably to Walker Conservative Republican, as the person to be supported by the Conservatives for Governor.

The spirit of the debate in the Convention this morning by those who favored the minority report, urging the people to vote down the constitution, was that while negro suffrage might be forced on the people by the government, yet Virginians should not themselves assist in the degradation. Those who favored the majority report urged that that sort of argument was a thing of the past, negro suffrage was an accomplished fact, and the white people of the State, instead of sullenly resisting the general government, which is our government, should carry out reconstruction in good faith by accepting what the government gives us, and making the best of it. It was urged that the election of Gilbert C. Walker, a northern Republican and administration supporter for Governor, would give the people of the North confidence in our professions, and induce immigration to the State. The minority report was advocated by ex-Governor Wm. Smith, and the majority report by Jno. B. Baldwin and Jno. R. Edmunds.

Richmond, May 1.—The Southern Opinion announces its last publication this morning. The editor says he has for some time thought that, perhaps, the mission of the Southern Opinion had been fulfilled, and adds that "the distinct Southern principles upon which the paper was founded were dead in the hearts of the people." Another fact which we cannot but recognise is, that no fact, however just and good, can long outlive defeat.

Philadelphia, May 1.—The Cuban meeting last night met with immense success, all political parties participating. A permanent committee of thirteen was appointed to consult and act with the Cuban Junta. Resolutions urging very strongly the recognition of Cuban independence and an extra session of Congress were passed.

BULL'S CEDRON BITTERS.

Authentic Documents

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

Dr. John Bull.—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given you great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me via Memphis, care of Ricket and Neely.

Respectfully,
C. B. WALKER.

BULL'S WORM-DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

Villaow, Walker County Ga.,
June 29, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D's, but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combinition. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—not hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

GOOD REASON FOR THE CAPTAIN'S FAITH.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

Benton Barracks, Co.,
April 30, 1865.

Dr. John Bull.—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case:

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

Capt. C. P. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

Dr. Bull—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. C. P. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhœa and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It Cured Him. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER
OR
CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

"HOLD YOUR TONGUE."

BY REBEKAH.

My Grandfather used to tell me a story that had a strange fascination, while at the same time it vexed me because it was never finished. He would begin:

"Once there was a King, who had three daughters, and he promised to give each of them anything they would ask for.—There names were Orange, Lemon and Hold Your Tongue. Now tell me their names as I call for them, and I will tell you what they asked for. What was the name of the first one?"

"Orange," was my prompt reply.

"Well, Orange said she would like to have a gold watch and chain with charms on it. What was the second daughters name?"

"Lemon, Grandpa."

"Lemon said she would like a horse, and saddle, and bridle, beautifully ornamented." "You shall have it my dear, said the king." "Now," said my Grandfather, "what was the name of the third daughter?"

Here I always felt a little timid and replied in an under tone, "Hold your Tongue." Then my Grandfather would invariably add, "There my little granddaughter has told me to hold my tongue, and of course I can't go on."

One day I had staid from school, partly sick with a cold, and felt restless and tired out when evening came on, doing nothing; when my Grandfather, with a quizzical look, said, "Lucy would you like to hear about the king's three daughters?"

"O yes," said I, delighted to have anything to amuse me, and as he went on I had a vague feeling that this time grandpa would really tell me what the third daughter wanted. When, therefore he came to that point, and I received the same old answer, I rushed from the room to my mother's bed-chamber, and hid my face streaming with tears, into her lap. As soon as I could speak, I told her my grievance, and she kindly laid down her work, and putting her arms around me, tried to make me understand that the story was just made up to have this little catch in it.

So we talked it over and at length laughed about it together, and I said:

"Well, I do not think at any rate, that 'Hold Your Tongue,' is a pretty name for any one."

My mother said she did not think it was a pretty name, but she thought the three words contained a lesson that I and every other girl and boy ought to learn early and remember; that is, that it is far better to hold ones tongue than to let it run saying wrong things, speaking ill of others, and meddling with other people's affairs. She went on to tell me of a good old Quaker, whose aim always was to do to others as he would be done by, and who never allowed himself or his children to speak of the faults of others and especially, never to ridicule any one. One evening a man was visiting at his house, and amused the young people with the most ludicrous description of the peculiarities of a mutual acquaintance. Years after when that young man was surrounded by a family of his own, he used often to tell them of that evening; and how just after one of their peals of laughter, he observed from the other side of the room, a pair of mild blue eyes, fixed steadily on him; and then how the old Quaker leaned forward, and said in his firm but kind, Quaker language, "Now has thee nothing good to tell us of him?" This remark of the old Quaker became a "household word," and was often quoted in mild reproof by the various members of the family whenever any of them spoke unnecessarily or too severely of the faults of others. If all boys and girls—yes, and older people too—who hear their associates ridiculing or speaking ill of persons who are absent, would ask them the Quaker's question, "Now has thee nothing good to tell us of him?" we should have a happier and better world.

STOP THAT BOY!

"Stop that boy! A cigar in his mouth, a swagger in his walk, impudence in his face, a care for nothingness in his manner. Judging from his demeanor, he is older than his father, wiser than his teacher, more honored than the Mayor of the town, higher than the President. Stop him; he is going too fast.

He don't see himself as others see him. He don't know his speed. Stop him ere tobacco shatters his nerves, ere pride ruins his character; ere the loafer masters the man; ere good ambition and manly strength give way to low pursuits and brutish aims. Stop all such boys! They are legion; the shame of their families, the disgrace of their town, the sad solemn reproaches of themselves."

AFTER DEATH.

"From this beautiful world," said the sensuous Greek, "I shall not utterly die, for beyond the power of Mars comes the edict of Hades. I shall enter some other body. Before the throne of a powerful necessity, the thread of my new life will be drawn and woven into some fresh existence. Not so deeply shall I quaff of the water of oblivion but that I shall remember the follies, the faults and the delights of my former state!"

"Hush!" cries the Buddhist, "disturb not my self enjoyment. From the infinity of space, I passed into the region of nothing, and the idea of nothing.—Now for the blessed Nirvanna—total extinction."

"Burn plenty of din on my grave," says the Chinese, "and keep up my worship. Let the ancestral tablets be kept unsoiled, that I may have due honor in the world of light, nor have my angry spirit torment you for your neglect."

"I go," said the Scandinavian, "red with the blood of battle, to the Valkyries who fill the hour in the Hall of Odin. Eternal conflict, eternal wassail, until the Ragnarok, the gray twilight of the Gods, which will lead us to the All Father's eternal abodes."

"The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and of Jacob," cries the Jew—"the sole Ruler of Heaven and earth, without beginning or end. Into his hands I render the breath of life he gave.—God's my God, what can I fear?"

"Behold I am on the borders of the child dark river," says the Protestant Christian. "I catch the gleam of the Eternal City, and goodly company of the Blessed await me in shining garments. Not in my works do I trust—naked of all but faith in the atonement, I come, O Lord, to Thee. Nay—I have no fear, for Him in whom I trust has trod the waters! In te Domini sperave!"

"Mea culpa," cries the Catholic, striking his breast, "let masses be said and the prayers of the faithful be invoked for a soul in purgatory. Too good works I leave unfinished, let prayer accomplish. Let my purification be brief, that I may enter into the eternal reward of those who have tried to serve the Lord."

"Allah!" cries the Mohametan—"there is but one God, and Mahomet is his prophet! The two black angels cannot keep the soul of the true believer from Al Jannat, with its margins of camphire, its tree Tuba, and the melodious voice of Israel mixes with the songs of the daughters of Paradise."

We listen to these diverse utterances, as diverse as the customs, habit of thought, or natural difference of the people who utter them. After death, who sneers at it? Where is the skeptic so firmly intrenched in his indifferentism to articles of religious faith, who yet does not share the human passionate yearning, to plunge into its mysteries and bring back true tidings of the solemn, unbroken silence.

"After death" is either a realm glorious beyond the speech of man, or an utterly starless night to which no morn cometh. Reason, tracing the dissolution of the earthly particles, is silent, or she argues from analogy, and analogy only brings a partial conclusion. It, in return, points to Hope, and Hope, like its own rainbow, reflects the glittering coloring of other things.

But there is a voice which speaks, and those who hear it receive unquestioningly the Divine Evangel of promise. The faith in Revelation, the garnered words of those who did see the dead arise, is the Christian anchor in the tempests of doubt. This century, when we can look back to the fulfillment of the darkest prophecies of the inspired Book, should not doubt the one episode of the Resurrection.

Time has either driven other creeds into dark corners, where the sun of civilization cannot penetrate, or utterly swept them from the face of the earth. Christianity alone walks hand in hand with progress, the most faithful expounder of the heights humanity can attain in time, the one faithful prophet of what it can aspire to in the eternities.—New Orleans Times.

A PRINTER in the Columbus Sun office and a young companion with more nerve than discretion have recently been seeking to eclipse the William Tell romance. At a distance of forty yards one of them held a target not four inches above his head and allowed his companion to shoot at it with a Potter's rifle.—The ball very nearly centered the bull's eye.

A GENTLEMAN once thus addressed a letter to his bride: "My dearest Maria." The lady replied: "My dear John, I beg that you will mend your morals or your grammar. You call me dearest Maria; am I to understand that you have other Marias?"

THOU canst not better reward a liar than in not believing what he speaketh.

THE CONFLICT OF RACES.

What a Radical Editor Says of It.

Races of men are always in conflict whenever they come together. There can be no mixture. That is not in the order of nature. If, as some believe all the races are of a common origin, that origin must have been so many millions of years back that to us it as though they never had been one. Two of the races show no marks of progress, and these two are perhaps the oldest—the African and the Australian. No examinations of Africa or Australia have discovered any evidence of a social, or civil condition among those people above what they are now. This is not so with any other race. No other seems to have been created and destined to live to the end barbarians, except where a higher race not only lifts them up, but every moment sustains them above that level. With the Indians we find the remains of a better condition enjoyed by them long before the white man came to their country. They reached the acme, and fell subsided before we knew them. The Mongolians, too, of Eastern Asia, though they have made no progress in thousands of years, yet have a civilization of their own, which, in some respects, will bear a favorable comparison with our own.

In a conflict of races—as we say, it always comes when two are in competition—the superior race overcomes and roots out the inferior, unless the former are so weak in numbers as to have no chance of success. Such is the case in the West Indies, where the whites are so few that they may eventually be driven out, as they have from St. Domingo, unless arbitrary power restrain the inferior. But where they have any chance the superiors—superior in mind, though they may not be physically—will win the day if equal advantages may be given.

With the inferior, their language, their blood, their features, and their cast of mind will disappear—in Africa, the negro type, within the memory of man, has not extended north of the great desert, where the Arabs and Moors prevail.—They have been brought there as slaves, and been brought there as captives in war, but they have never mixed with the people to adulterate the blood or gain the ascendancy by numbers. So it has been in the South of Europe.—The Moors at one time were very numerous in Spain and highly civilized, but in the conflict with the Caucasians they were destroyed or exiled.

In Italy the Africans that were brought to Rome during the long years of Roman triumphs, all disappeared.—How no negroes they were we have no means of ascertaining; but it is estimated that no less than a million of negroes were brought there and mixed with the people; but to-day the Italian shows not the slightest taint of African blood. The African has been absorbed in the main stock, and, as in taking food into the stomach, what would not assimilate has been rejected and cast out.

It is the same in Egypt. There from the earliest ages the African has been a slave, and though a few mulattoes are found there, the greater part of the people show no traces of African blood. It will be the same in this country. There may be swamp lands in Louisiana, Florida or other States, which will be deserted by whites, in which the negro may thrive; but in those sections where the races will be in competition, though the African may have the majority now, they will gradually disappear. When they were slaves they were kept separate and the care of the white man was to have them increase; but the more they mix with the whites the fewer they will become, and the less the white is bound to do for them the quicker they will sink. So we see that in all the Northern States they have rapidly disappeared, and the bleaching progress gradually works South. Fifty years ago Massachusetts had as many blacks as New York now has; and one hundred years hence Virginia will have no more than New York has to-day. It is the order of Providence—the law of God, that the higher shall overcome the lower, the superior occupy where the inferior have been; otherwise there would be no progress.

THE cause of the ladies' teeth decaying at much earlier a stage of life than the other sex, has been usually attributed to the friction produced by the constant action of the tongue. It has however, been suggested, with more gallantry, and perhaps with equal truth, that it is owing to the sweetness of their lips, as it is well established by popular belief that sweet things spoil the

The most attractive adornment, man can supply himself with, is a hat. A fine new hat gives a handsome young man an additional charm, and hides defects in the uncouth and still less graceful. And the old man who has, in the elapse of years, in accordance with nature's treatment, been deprived of the beautiful and vigorous growth of head of hair, can have the "bare places" completely covered by visiting the large "Hat Emporium" of J. W. Holbrook in Atlanta. We have been there, and been made the recipient of one, and, therefore, we know whereof we speak. He has hats of every shape, dimension, color and style, that is in vogue. There the fastidious gent can have his taste pleased to perfection.—Holbrook is the man for the times, and you would do well to visit him on Whitehall Street, Atlanta, and purchase one or more of his cheap hats. You will find no trouble in making a good trade with him, for he is one of the most accommodating men in Atlanta, (excepting newspaper men of course,) and his generous heart yearns to do you a favor. Handsome clerks of courteous disposition delight to wait on you and show you that which you are in quest of, and you would act contrary to your interest and do an injustice to your cranium, to fail to visit the largest hat store this side of New York and make a purchase.

The Crops

We have had some fine weather for farm work and it has been pushed with earnestness. The crops all planted are mostly now worked over and look clean and promising. Wheat continues to flourish with no threat of disaster, promising an unusual yield. We know of fields of our poorest ridge land on which the wheat will compare favorably with the most fertile lands of other sections—a result of good tillage and fertilizing.

[We regret to hear from the country below that the cold weather of the past week has injured the crops; that the cotton plant is dying out on sandy lands, and it is feared stands will be destroyed, and the crop have to be replanted, which will make the season late.]

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

WHAT CUBA IS GOOD FOR.

Since the island of Cuba engrosses today a very considerable share of public attention and interest in our community, we have thought it well to lay before our readers a succinct statement of what Cuba really is, physically geographically, agriculturally and financially.

Including the circumjacent keys and islands, Cuba contains about 40,000,000 acres, of which at least four-fifths are lands of almost unsurpassed fertility. Her cultivated tracts, however, are comparatively very few, the entire extent which produces crops being under two million acres, her virgin woods and natural pasturages embracing some fifteen million acres. The lands on which her crops of sugar, coffee, and tobacco are raised are in most cases cleared land. With this very insignificant proportion of the soil under cultivation, Cuba produces crops to the extent of not less than one hundred and thirty million dollars per annum. In this amount, sugar, the great staple of the island, figures to the sum of sixty or seventy millions, tobacco to some fifteen or sixteen millions, and coffee to about five and a half million dollars. For the production of sugar probably no other lands in the world are so admirably adapted, both from their character and geographical position. While the Louisiana planter is obliged to replant his fields every year, there are many sugar estates in Cuba which yield enormous crops consecutively from forty to fifty years without replanting. Sugar is cultivated more or less all over the island, but the most important sugar districts are in the jurisdiction of Cardena, Matanzas, Sagua, and Remedios on the north side, and Cienfuegos Trinidad and Santiago on the south. The sugar estates are owned almost entirely by native Cubans, with the exception of a few large ones belonging to some of the wealthy Spaniards of Havana.

The coffee crop is obtained almost exclusively from the extreme eastern end of the island, in the hilly districts lying back from the ports of Santiago de Cuba and Guantanamo. Formerly coffee was extensively cultivated in the Vuelta de Abajo—that is, in the districts on the south coast lying west of Havana; but the price of the article falling some 30 years ago to about 4 cents a pound, the planters began to abandon their plantations, and transfer their slaves to the districts back of Matanzas and Cardenas, where good uncleared sugar lands were cheap, and devoted themselves to the cultivation of sugar. Sugar-making, moreover, offers many advantages over coffee planting, both to large and small capitalists. In the first place, sugar cane can be cut eight months after it is planted, whereas the coffee plant bears only in the third or fourth years of its growth, thereby excluding persons of small capital; and secondly, be the season good or bad, too wet or too dry, cane always yields some proceeds, while the coffee planter is always exposed to the danger of losing the whole of his crop by an unseasonably heavy rain while the bush is in flower.

The Cuban coffee planters of to-day about Guantanamo and Santiago are in nowise related to those who abandoned their coffee plantations in the western part of the island. They are, in fact, almost a distinct race, both in origin and language. They are mostly descendants or families driven out of Santo Domingo at the time of the revolution, who, finding land eminently suited for coffee planting, transferred their industrial pursuits and social institutions to Cuba. Even now French is the almost universal language on these estates both among the owners and their slaves. As an agricultural pursuit, coffee planting is infinitely preferable to sugar making. The estates are generally on elevated and hilly lands, free from the intense heat of the low, seething sugar districts; the nights are always delicously cool, and the labor is infinitely less severe on the field hands.

The tobacco districts are to the southwest of Havana. The estates are in the hands of small planters, who in some cases pay enormous rent for very choice lands, and obtain equivalently enormous prices for their crop. Tobacco of inferior quality is raised in other districts, such as Puerto Principe, Yara, and Santa Clara.

The central portion of Cuba, including the large jurisdiction of Puerto Principe known locally as Camagguey, is the great pastoral district of the island. The cattle estates in this section of the country are of very great extent, consisting of virgin woods and savannas in about equal proportion, and affording admirable pasturages for very large herds. Havana derives her principal supply of cattle from this portion of the island. The average annual value of cattle sold is estimated at over five million of dlars. The enormous amount of large and valuable timber, of which the untouched woods of this section are full, including mahogany, cedar and innumerable other kinds must some day draw capital thither. At present, owing to the want of facilities for getting timber from the interior to the coast, this branch of commerce is almost neglected. Moreover, the district of Camagguey is the most sparely populated of the island. Geographically few countries in the world offer such advantages for commerce as Cuba, from the very large number of splendid harbors with which her coasts are studded from Maisi to San Antonio. Of these, many are entirely unknown, such as the magnificent ones of Nipe and Levisa on the north shore, in the Eastern Department.

The population of the whole island of Cuba is under one and a half million.—The last census of 1862, which was pretty accurately compiled by the government, gives the figures at—white 764,707; free colored 221,417; and slave 373,071; total 1,359,238. We are not inclined to believe that the population has greatly increased since 1862, the excess of births over deaths of the white and free colored races being more than counterbalanced by the decrease of the slaves. The number of the latter can only be maintained in Cuba by importation from Africa, which thank God! are ended, unless the Spaniards should succeed in reconquering the island.

The apparent anomaly that only about one twentieth part of an island so prolific of valuable crops should be under cultivation is explained by the statistics of its population. Crops are raised in Cuba exclusively by slave labor, or, in other words, deducting one half of the number of slaves for young children and old men and from the remainder at least 25 per cent. for slaves employed as house servants, coopers, lightermen, &c., we find that some one hundred and fifty thousand field hands raise agricultural crops to the annual value of one hundred and thirty million dollars, an enormous average of over $850 each. The freedmen are very exceptionally seen in the country. Where unmanumitted they take, as elsewhere, to the cities.

The profits arising from commerce, trade, and manufactures in the cities of the island, 1861, are authoritatively stated at $154,770,000, and in this statement the city of Havana figures for ninety-three millions. In other words the industry of Cuba, in cities and country, produces annually nearly $300,000,000.

Real estate in the country,	$330,000,000
Real estate in cities	170,000,000
Capital invested in trade	774,000,000
Total	$1,324,000,000

These figures are reduced, at the current rate of interest on the island, ten per cent. from the annual income derived from investments of all sorts, which amounts to about $132,000,000
—New York Sun.

THE BILLIARD LAW.

For the benefit of parties interested, says the Quitman Banner, we publish the following law, which was adopted by the last General Assembly:

"SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of same, That from and immediately after the passage of this act any owner or owners or persons controlling any billiard table or ten-pin alley, that shall or may permit any minor to play or roll on the same, without the consent of the parent or guardian, shall on conviction of the same be fined in a sum not to exceed one hundred dollars for each and every offence or imprisonment for twenty days or both at the discretion of the court.

"Young America" may deem this law oppressive; but we are of opinion it is a wise provision, designed to correct a social evil, the effects of which are beginning to be felt. It will check the appetite for gambling which is born over the billiard table or bowling alley, exterminate the faro bank, and frequently dies in a State prison.

☞ The Northern scantlonists and political gamblers, fearing lest the excitement against the Southern people should cool down and harmony be restored, are reviving "The Octoroon" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which are having great "runs" on several of their stages.
—Savannah News.

We Have Survived the Shock.

Our esteemed fellow-townsman, Rev. Wm. L. Mansfield, with a heart ever swelling with noble impulses, writes for the Atlanta papers in behalf of the education of black and white, dreading in the future great evil to the State if we fail in the effort to elevate and inform the popular mind.

It seems to us that we are now suffering from an ignorant citizenship all the evils that the future can have in store for a people—thanks to our wise general government which placed us at the mercy of an ignorant if not depraved rabble. Our social condition and future legislation can have nothing worse in store for us.

But, will you not improve this State of things?—How? Providence never designed that two races utterly distinct should live together in the same society on terms of equality. He gave the white man and negro separate countries and if they have ever mingled it has been as superior and subordinate or in depravity and disorder.

Send the blacks to Africa and no one will refuse to aid them in education. Give them a State to themselves and we are willing to be taxed to perfect their civilization. We are even willing to encourage and aid, liberally, their schools where, instead of paying, they shall receive, from the proceeds of labor provide, through State Legislation, for their education as citizens of the State in collusion with a distinct race. The Government declares them Citizens. It has guaranteed to them political rights.—Let them enjoy them. This has been forced upon us in violation of natural law. We submit; but only with the view that this violation of natural law will be abated—and that there is no occasion for State Legislation to provide for the elevation of the negro or degradation of the white man in order to secure a common basis of citizenship, for both; a thing naturally impracticable and impossible for any good purpose.

While we heartily concur with Mr. Mansfield in the abstract, on the subject of education, and while we applaud and esteem him for his noble efforts, it seems to us, in the practical bearing of the question, at present, there are obstacles to educational provisions, by State Legislation, it is worth while to consider. We do not wish to see provision made for the perpetuation of our present state of political society, with all the ameliorating influences education can possibly afford it, and think, if we will be patient and enduring; natural law will come to our aid and relieve both races sooner or later of their unnatural position.

Department of Agriculture.

We are in receipt of the Report for March and April of the Department of Agriculture now under the control of Hon. Horace Capron. It contains a great deal of useful information on a great variety of subjects especially interesting to the farmer.

The following paragraph will afford a precaution ary hint to dealers in Commercial fertilizers:

"The legislature of Maine has enacted a law providing that commercial manures sold in that State shall have affixed to every barrel, bag, or parcel thereof, which may contain 50 pounds or more, a printed label specifying the name of the manufacturer or seller, his place of business, and the percentage which it contains of soluble phosphoric acid, of insoluble phosphoric acid, and of ammonia. Dealers failing to comply with this provision, or who affix false labels, are to be punished by fine of $100 for the first offence and $20 for every subsequent offence; and any purchaser may recover in an action of debt $5 cents for every pound of soluble phosphoric acid, six cents for every pound of insoluble phosphoric, and 35 cents for every pound of ammonia deficient. The act takes effect on the 1st of July next."

Ames' Circus.

In recommending this grand Menagerie, Circus and Aviary to our people, we do so believing that it is the best show that has made its way South in the last two years. The success it meets with in all the places it has exhibited is extraordinary. They come with a reputation of having more beautiful ladies, more accomplished artists, more trained animals, and better music than any similar traveling exhibition. They introduce and exhibit some of the most daring and brilliant feats ever portrayed to the imagination. Their advent into the town will be one of unusual attraction and interest, presenting the unheard of novelty of leading lions, tigers and leopards loose in the streets. Col. Ames would have none other but the best. Come next Wednesday, 26th, and see if it is not true.

A Stabbing Affray.

An old feud, between Mr. Wade White and John Bedford, ripened into a combat, on Saturday evening last. Mr. White, we learn, was proceeding homeward late in the evening and when opposite the African Methodist Church he was struck back of the head with a rock, which knocked him almost senseless, but recovering himself, he opened his pocket knife between his teeth and commenced a vigorous work on his assailant. After the parties were separated it was discovered that Mr. Bedford had received two severe flesh cuts and twelve other cuts were found in his clothing. Mr. Bedford was incarcerated in jail on Monday, as he was the assailant, but managed to make good his escape on the same night, by outsiders breaking the door open.

"Once a Month" for June completes the first six months' volume of that beautiful magazine. In noticing the May number, we mentioned that the publishers had offered to send the first six months of this for 50 cents, in order to let the people see how richly freighted it was with good reading. To this offer a wide response has, we learn, been made, and people everywhere are surprised at the amount and excellence of the literary feast set before them. The publishers, T. S. Arthur & Sons, of Philadelphia, continue their offer, and we advise all to avail of it. Such an opportunity for getting nearly 600 pages of the very best magazine reading to be found for the trifle of 50 cents, will hardly occur again. It is made now only in order to get the magazine into the hands of the people.

Peters' Musical Monthly

For May is to hand, and well sustains the proud title it bears—"The Prince of Musical Monthlies," for if there is any one periodical adapted to suit the wants of all Lovers of Music, professional or amateur, it is certainly this Magazine.

When Music is furnished so cheap, what Musician can afford to be without such a publication? $4 worth of good Music cannot be picked up every day for 20 cents, and we feel justified in saying that a subscription at $3 will give as much Music, (vocal and Music, 100), as you can buy for $20.

☞ On Wednesday afternoon last a combined Mower and Reaper was in operation on the farm of Dr. Stewart near Marietta, cutting clover and reaping Barley. We understood it was handsomely done and satisfied several that Clover can be grown and cut here to great advantage.

There is no amusement in which the human race indulges as much exercise or fun as "pitching quoits," and some of our young gents, taking advantage of a leisure moment, left the tape and yard-stick and began to measure terra firma with each footstep in a heated game of ball. The ball ball changed hands time and again, and all enjoyed it seemingly well, until Mr. Kiser, stepped the fun by throwing the ball with such velocity, that it went crashing through the large glass window of our silver-smith, Mr. A. B. Brady, flying "end over" with a lot of watches and jewelry. Instantly hilarity was exchanged for solemnity, for the bill of damages was $10.

Wheat Crop.

Reports of the Wheat Crop from the West and especially from Tennessee give promise of an unprecedented yield. In this and adjacent Counties the crop was never more promising. In the vicinity of Marietta are some "long" fields in which some of our friends are "premising." We have no doubt the "shelling out" will tell a flattering tale to many of them.

Dr Tutt's Expectorant.

All who have used his favorable medicine for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Spitting of Blood, Croup, Inflamation of the Lungs or Chest, Hoarseness, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Lungs attest its usefulness. For Lung affections it has no equal.

☞ Contributions to Beth Hacha Society. A handsome book by Mr. Henry Rice. Five valuable works by Bledsoe & Brown. Magazines for 1868 by Walter Montgomery "Peterson's" Magazine for 1869 by C. J. Peterson. Two volumes by Miss Lena Pages. One volume by Miss Carrie Burkhalter.

"Onward"

Is the motto of Mayne Reid's Magazine, published by Carlton, New York. To those who have seen it, commendation is unnecessary. Whatever exception may have been taken to its occasional sectional bias in matter will not fail to enlighten and please even Southern readers.

COMPLETION OF THE PACIFIC RAIL ROAD.

Special Announcement—Telegraphing the Hammer Strokes—Rejoicing and Congratulations—Ringing of Bells and Other Demonstrations.

Promontory Summit, Utah, May 10, noon. To the Associated Press: The last rail is laid. The last spike is driven. The Pacific railroad is completed. The point of junction is 1086 miles west of the Missouri river, and 690 miles east of Sacramento.

THE NEWS RECEIVED IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 10.—The last spike in the Pacific railroad was driven to-day at five minutes past 3 o'clock P. M., N. Y. time. San Francisco, Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Plaister Cove, and the cable, were connected with Promontory Point by telegraph, and the hammer strokes on the last spike were duly transmitted according to arrangement.

When the news was received in New York a hundred guns were fired in the City Hall Park, and Mayor Hall forwarded a congratulatory message to the Mayor of San Francisco. A commemorative celebration had previously been held in Trinity Church, at which a telegram forwarded by the Chamber of Commerce to the Chamber in San Francisco was read, and an address delivered by the Rev. Dr. Vinton.

After prayer and reading of portions of the Episcopal service, the organ pealed and chimes rung as the large congregation left the church. Flags on the city hall and on many public and private buildings were displayed all day in honor of the great event.

RINGING THE BELLS IN PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, May 10.—At 2:30 o'clock P. M. precisely, Philadelphia time, news was received of the driving of the last spike of the Pacific railroad. Word was sent to the mayor, and in a few minutes the bells in Independence Hall and the various fire stations were rung, drawing crowds into the street under the impression that a general alarm of fire was rung. The people soon ascertained the reason of the ringing of the bells, and flags were immediately displayed everywhere. A large number of steam fire engines ranged in front of Independence hall with screaming whistles and hose carriage bells ringing. Joy was expressed in every face at the completion of this great work of the country. The sudden flock of the people to the State House reminded one of the reception of the news of the surrender of Lee's army, when a similar scene was enacted.

THE REJOICING AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 10.—The celebration of the completion of the great inter-ocean railroad connection to-day was the most successful affair of the kind that ever took place in Chicago, and probably in the West. It is entirely impromptu, and therefore every man, woman and child in the city done their part towards making it a success. The procession was unique in appearance and immense in length, the lowest estimate putting it down at seven miles. During the moving of the procession Vice-President Colfax received the following despatch.

"Promontory Summit, Utah, May 10.—Hon. Schuyler Colfax, Vice-President: The rails were connected 15-day. The prophecy of Benton is to-day a fact.—This is the way to India.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor has ever any before so universally adapted to the wants of every one; and as it is a more reliable and active but efficient purgative pill than any one we know of, it is worthy the confidence of the whole people. Those who have tried it, know that it corrects the derangements of the digestive organs, stimulates the vital functions, and all have what they want—a thorough cathartic—that is never fails through any fault or neglect in its compounding, or any decay in its virtues. Hence the thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, that are constantly appearing in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in this climate, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by any one. Being purely vegetable, every dose will benefit the system, and make them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood, and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, where they exist, such diseases or disorders as are the first origin of disease.

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Foul Stomach, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Bilious Fevers, Inflammation of the Bowels, Piles, Rheumatism, Gout, Colic, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Kidneys and Loins, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to change the diseased action of the system. When taken for Worms, Jaundice, Dropsy, or Scrofula, large doses should be taken to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression of the Menses, one should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restoring the appetite, and invigorating the whole system. For Costiveness or Constipation, take one dose as directed in the box. One who feels unusually well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him sick, showing that they were their cleansing and renovating effect in the system they require.

The Marietta Journal.

Marietta, Georgia,

Friday Morning May 28, '69.

HOW WE MAY GAIN OUR INDEPENDENCE.

A correspondent of Macon Journal & Messenger furnishes that paper with the following sensible platform. We would only add one plank. Every spare dollar that cannot be judiciously invested in the improvement of the soil should be employed in building up other industries:

"We have tried the sword and spear, and failed. If we now try the plow and spindle we may, in less than four years, be the most independent and prosperous people in the world.

"Let us determine to make our own provisions, and meat, sugar and syrup. We can do this, and make as much cotton as we should wish to make besides. If we only make cotton enough to supply the European demand, we will get about as much money for it as we would for twice the quantity.

"Let us make everything we need that is made out of wood, iron and leather. We have every variety of timber growing on our land. Let us use it, and pay our own mechanics.

"Let us sell our cotton for gold. We will then have a currency that will go at par all over the world. Besides it will bring about direct trade with Europe, a thing which every Southerner should do every thing in his power to encourage.

"Let us invest every surplus dollar in manufacturing, and in a short time we shall not only be able to manufacture our own supplies, but able to convert a large portion of our cotton into its most valuable form before we sell it, and secure to ourselves the profit heretofore realized by the New England manufacturers.

"In short, let us stop the drain of money from South to North. When we do this, we will have gained our independence, and shall have it in our power to levy an embargo on commercial intercourse with the North, and to dictate to those who are doing everything in their power to oppress and degrade us, the terms upon which it shall be removed.

"But in order to succeed in this great enterprise, there must be concert of action and combination of capital. But few persons have sufficient capital to go into manufacturing alone, but if we form companies, and combine our capital, we can put in operation a factory in every county where cotton is grown. Let there be at least one manufacturing company formed in every county where cotton is grown. Let the stock be let out in small shares so small that every farmer can take stock. So soon as there is sufficient capital raised to start a factory—even a small one—let us send to England for the machinery and a competent person to put it in operation. Even a small factory would be a blessing to the community. It would give employment to indigent women and children, and open a market to the farmers for many articles of food that they could not otherwise dispose of.

"Let there be an agricultural association formed in each county, and let each county be represented in the annual State Conventions, and let each State be represented in a Southern Agricultural Convention, to be held at some central point, at least once a year. In this way we may secure harmony and concert of action.

"Let the press, and our leading and most influential citizens throughout the South take hold of this matter in earnest, and devote their minds and their energies to the emancipation and elevation of the South. If we do this we are bound to succeed. We have slept over our privileges long enough. Let us at once adopt that policy that cannot fail, in a few years, to render the Southern people the most independent, the wealthiest and happiest on the face of the globe.

"With the most delightful climate—a soil capable of supporting perhaps one hundred million people—with our fine navigable rivers, and water power sufficient to run, perhaps, all the machinery in the world—the South is, to-day, the poorest section of the United States.—While New England, with an unpropitious climate, poor soil—incapable of supporting the present population, is the wealthiest. How happened this unnatural state of affairs? Simply because through our stupidity the New York merchants and New England manufacturers have managed to appropriate to themselves the profits of our labor for fifty years past, leaving us a bare subsistence. Where are the proceeds of the unnumbered millions bales of cotton produced in the South for the last fifty years? All thrown away and gathered up by our enemies.

"Slavery, no doubt, was at the bottom of this evil. The slave owners realized enough from the sale of their cotton and rice to render them comfortable, and they therefore did not trouble themselves with those enterprises that were necessary to build up the material wealth of the South. Slavery is now gone, and it becomes necessary for us to change our system, and adopt that policy which we should have adopted fifty years ago. The manufacture of cotton and the mechanical arts should have started with the production of cotton.—If the three branches had grown up together and kept pace with each other to the present time, the South would be today the grandest and wealthiest, and greatest manufacturing district in the world.

It should be borne in mind that if we act wisely, and prudently, we can have no competition in our industrial pursuits. New England may boast of her great wealth, and her unlimited machinery and facilities for manufacturing, but the fountain head of her great wealth is, to a great extent, in our power, and if we choose to control it, her wealth will soon disappear like the morning dew. New England cannot produce cotton, and unless we furnish the cotton their machinery may rust and rot. And unless we produce too much cotton, so as to come into competition with each other, in the foreign market, we can have no competition at all.

SOUTHERNER.

FISH CULTURE.

The following paragraphs on the profits of raising fish are from the "Hearth & Home," and ought to prove of suggestive value to many of our readers in upper Georgia:—

"That the culture of all fresh-water fish as a branch of farming will pay where the natural advantages exist, cannot be any longer considered an open question. It has been too often and too clearly demonstrated to admit longer of a doubt. Seth Green bought his now famous fish farm near Mumford, N. Y., for $2,000. He fitted it up with hatching-apparatus, and a year afterward sold a half interest in it for $5,000. In 1866, his profits were $1,000; the next year they amounted to $5,000. During 1868 his sales of eggs and young fry alone amounted to $10,000, leaving out of consideration the principal income from the sale of the fish. Mr. Green, speaking from his experience, once said, that "an acre of good water can be made to produce twice as much food as an acre of land." It was Francis, the first fish farmer of England, who said that a sowing of fish was twice as valuable as a sowing of corn. Dr. Thaddeus Norris estimates the annual cost of breeding ten thousand yearling, eight thousand two-year old, and seven thousand three-old trout at $706 60; the receipts from the sale of their product, without decreasing the stock on hand, at $6,100—a net profit of over $5,000. Mr. Ainsworth, of West Bloomfield, N. Y., found on his farm, when he purchased it, thirteen or fourteen small springs, no one of them of sufficient volume to fill a good sized quill. But by collecting their several streams into one he secured a volume of one inch of rather variable water—variable not only in temperature, but ingredients; yet he makes this supply of water sufficient for a pond fourteen feet deep, and covering sixty rods of ground—formerly a useless marsh; and in this pond and accessory pools he keeps from fifteen hundred to two thousand trout, which he feeds to his family, and about a dozen farm laborers, and yet manages to sell eggs to the value of at least $500 a year. In England and Scotland, entire rivers are farmed in this way. The Galway, Scotland, was rented in 1852 to a fish farmer named Ashworth, who began to stock it with salmon. In 1853 he took one thousand six hundred and three fish; in 1854, three thousand one hundred and fifty-eight; in 1861, eleven thousand and fifty-one, and in 1864, twenty thousand five hundred and twelve—all this without decreasing the original stock. At the same time the same gentleman rented the river Tay for $40,000 per year; in 1854, he had to pay $45,000, and in 1864 the rent had advanced to $75,000. The profits of the fishery were so great that not only was the lessee justified in paying this rent, but he was enabled to build a breeding establishment superior to any outside of France.

"Every farmer in the United States who has the necessary supply of water can in like manner become a breeder of fish, with like profit to himself, and aid also in stocking public waters with his surplus eggs."

YOU WON'T BE MISSED.—It is vain to stick your finger in the water, and pulling it out, look for the hole; and equally vain to suppose that, however large a space you occupy, the world will miss you when you die.

ON GOING SURETY.

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

Ought a man ever to go surety for another? Why not? It is a most friendly act. If prudently done, it may be of the most eminent benefit to a neighbor. It gives him the benefit of your good reputation when he is not known. It lends him your credit where his own is not sufficient. It puts him in funds which otherwise he could not command. Such service to a friend is generous, and sometimes even noble. No better use can be made of one's money than to help a true friend. We are commanded to "remember those in bonds as bound with them." To be sure, this was originally applied to bonds of a different kind, but with not a whit more propriety than to pecuniary bonds. A man who, by a few thousand dollars, can save his friend, and perhaps his family, from bankruptcy and want, could hardly spend his money in a manner which, all his life long, he would remember with more satisfaction.

But, there are certain moral and prudential considerations which should always be borne in mind in going surety for a friend. You should make up your mind how much property you have, and how much you are willing to give away, absolutely, for that friend whom you endorse. For no blunder can be worse than to indorse on the supposition that you will not have to pay. Never indorse without saying to yourself, "This may come round upon me. I may have to pay it; and, if it comes to that, I am able and willing." Nine out of ten of the fatal mistakes made by bondsmen arise from taking the opposite course to this. They consider the act of indorsing a friend's paper as a mere commercial form. "There is no risk. I shall not have it to pay. He is abundantly able to take care of his paper. I shall help him without harming myself, and he is a stingy man who will not do that." This is the calculation on which a man binds himself to pay a friend's debts in case the friend cannot pay them himself. But how do these things turn out? One need not go far to ascertain! Every village has an illustration. The borrower was more involved than you supposed, or, perhaps than he himself knew, and his creditors closed on him and wound him up, and were overjoyed to find such a good name as yours on his paper. Or, the sanguine scheme on which he had ventured, which seemed sure of success, almost without possibility of failure, suddenly, like a loaded wagon, slipped off a wheel and upset into the dirt! Or, just as every thing was at the point of success, your friend sickened and could not look after his affairs, some critical matter was neglected, or some dishonest person brought in and crooked matters; your friend died, the estate went into executors' hands for settlement, was badly managed, warped and crooked, and finally turned out insolvent.

And what became of you? Why, you were surety for the full amount of what you are worth! In an hour, you find yourself confronted with a debt that sweeps away your house, your farm, your little sum in bank, and leaves you just where you began twenty five years ago, with this difference, that then you had only yourself to provide for, and now you have a wife and eight children. Then you were twenty-five years old, and life was all before you, and now you are fifty years old, and life is pretty much all behind you! You have given away your children's bread. You have not saved your friend but ruined yourself. Perhaps your friend had settled on his wife a small property. So much the better for her, if he had. Of course she will divide with you, since it was to save her husband, that you were ruined. Yet, if she will not, (and human nature is made up of [illegible]) and [illegible] to school, while yours stay at home; and if they live in a comfortable house, plainly furnished, while you are hiring a few rooms in the cheapest quarter of the town, then I suppose that you will show the end of a great many bitter reflections.

When it is too late you will be very wise. You will say to yourself, it may be, "A man is a fool who signs for any larger sum than he can conveniently pay." Amen say I!

"Before a man puts his name down on another man's paper, he should ask himself, Am I willing to give this person as much money as I sign for?" Amen, say I!

"To sign a bond on the supposition that it is a mere form, and that you will have nothing to pay, is to put one's head into a fool's noose." Amen again, say I!

There is no harm in signing for a neighbor if you have got the property; if you are able to pay the amount without harming your own household; and if you love the man for whom you sign enough to be willing to give him outright the sum covered by your indorsement. Otherwise to go surety for a neighbor is a folly, a sin and a shame.

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more fortunate who can suit his temper to any circumstances.

Marietta, Georgia.

Friday Morn. May 28, 1869.

On the Farm.

On Friday last after a plea sant drive we found ourself at the earliest hour, and where are said to rest the laborers of Mr. Alex. Scrutchin, Sexton, Watkinsville, Clarke county. The drive of thirty years ago, at present the plantation of Mr. I. N. Ritchell, some six miles South of Marietta, embracing about seven hundred and fifty acres, five hundred cleared, two hundred of which is Creek bottom land and mostly of the very best quality.

The farm is well cultivated. About forty acres of the upland is in wheat, generally good, but all greatly improved by a small three acre field of old ridge land which it is believed will produce One Hundred bushels. Thirty more acres of upland is in Oats and the remainder some two hundred acres in Cotton, eighty six acres of which is in "Peeler" Cotton, which shows itself already in this latitude conclusively to be more prolific, hardy, and kindly disposing of the ordinary Cotton. The difference is very apparent standing very highly to the otherwise superior claims of this Cotton.

There are some two hundred acres of bottom land in cultivation—all in or to be in Corn. As high as [illegible] bushels per acre have been the yield on a portion of this land. One field of forty acres, a level tract formerly a cane brake, seemed to us all equal to this product.

Fertilizers have been extensively used on the upland. On Cotton alone some eight hundred dollars have been expended. The ground is well pulverized the upland cultivated on the horizontal plan and the bottom lands well drained and worked with plow and harrows and all in excellent condition everything seeming to have combined nature, industry and skill, to make this farm profitable to the owner and a delight to the beholder. It is worked on the tenant system principally under the care of Messrs. Benjamin Brown who are as assiduously industrious as enmeshed be with such a farm.

While near we paid a flying visit to Concord Manufacturing Company and were shown by the gentlemanly Superintendent, Mr. Wood through the mazes of the process of manufacturing Wool from its condition when clipped into a nice and substantial article of Jeans. The machinery is all excellent and the Factory will have in a few weeks sixteen Looms in operation capable of weaving each thirty yards per day. The buildings of the Factory and Merchant Mill are of stone and substantial and those for the operatives comfortable and convenient. We were gratified with our visit to this no-about locality of Cobb.

Marietta Advertisers.

The Lafrange Reporter gives a list of the business interests of that place embracing about fifty of the various trades, professions and callings, all advertising in their local paper, a fact which speaks well for the enterprise, intelligence and business of Lafrange. We regret to see from the Banner that the business interests of Athens are not so well represented in its papers only some eighteen or twenty houses advertising in the Banner. People at a distance look to the local paper as the organ or medium of the business of a place and form from it their opinion of it when there is no expression there. The business community of Marietta, we state with pride, is unsurpassed in liberality and a proper regard for their own interests. All, with but one or two exceptions, advertise their business in the JOURNAL. Below we give the line of business and names:

Marietta Brass Band.

The young gentlemen of Marietta are making efforts to raise an adequate amount of money to purchase musical instruments to discourse sweet music to our citizens. The amount necessary to make the purchase is $475.00 and the young men propose to raise $250.00 of it, and ask the citizens to assist them by contributing the remainder. Prof. PEYTER, an accomplished gentleman of musical notoriety, will render his valuable services as Leader and this alone should give assurance that it will prove a success, if the citizens will give pecuniary aid. They can have the gratifying pleasure of knowing that the Brass Band can be made tributary through musical entertainments, concerts, and numerous other ways, in decorating and beautifying our Confederate Cemetery and City Park, which it is so much in need of, and more, it will be attractive and entertaining to visitors to our city in the summer, in making their stay one of pleasure. Those who wish to contribute can hand the amount with Mr. A. T. Cargill or Mr. Benj. F. Montgomery at their respective business houses, on Cherokee Street.

Sunday School Celebration.

On Tuesday 18th., inst., the Episcopal Sunday School held their [illegible] Annual Celebration. This school numbers sixty Scholars and twelve Teachers, who, with their friends, met in St. James Church at half past three P. M., and after a short opening service Address by the Rector, and reading of the Annual Report by the Superintendent, and the singing of suitable hymns by the scholars to the occasion, a procession was formed in front of the Church, the children carrying three beautiful banners, going forward and a goodly number of friends following to the Rectory—where another beautiful hymn was sung a short address made and then old and young scattered to enjoy themselves, while a bountiful feast was being spread—this being ready all were enjoying themselves freely until a shower of rain scattered the company and soon after a parting hymn was sung, and although the rain interfered, yet on the whole it was a pleasing time for all present.

Temperance Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Society was held last Thursday night at the Methodist Church. A large audience of ladies and gentlemen were present to hear the address of Rev. W. E. Evans, of the St. James Church. The address was well conceived and delivered in good style, enchaining it forcibly by its strong and impressively beautiful. The Society regretted very much that they [illegible] Rev. W. L. Mansfield, was absent on this occasion.

Our affable friend R. J. T. Agricola, has moved his Confectionery and Bakery establishment to the large building on the west side of the square, formerly occupied by R. H. FRANCE.

New York, May, 24.—The Herald's special Paris correspondent says: Washburne, addressing the Emperor, said he had been authorized to express the hearty wishes of the President of the U. S. for the happiness and health of His Majesty, and for the prosperity of France, and an earnest desire of government and people to uphold and perpetuate the traditional friendship of the two countries. He trusted, while guarding the interests confided to him, his residence near the Court of His Majesty would contribute to the continuance of the existing friendly relations.

The Emperor replied:

He was glad to welcome Washburn as the representative of the U. S. and pleased to receive assurances of a Government with which close sympathy and amicable feeling had existed uninterruptedly for a hundred years. He heartily concurred in the hope expressed of the continuance of these relations, and happy to welcome, as the Minister near his Court, a gentleman so distinguished in the history of his country.

Douglass the negro printer, employed by Clapp, applies to Simon Wolf, Register of Deeds, for a Clerkship saying in consequence of combinations entered into by the Printer's Unions, throughout the country, he is unable to get employment as a printer. Simon Wolf responds favorably to Douglass' application, concluding thus: "I am particularly happy in being the means of encouraging you, for as a descendant of a race equally maligned and proscribed, I have a feeling of common cause and whatever may be [illegible] what the stone the builders reject may become the head stone of our political and social structure.

A resolution recommending all States to repeal the usury laws, adopted.

The Committee on Commerce, Manufacturing and Mining, reported in favor of States freeing from taxation capital invested in work developing the resources of the country.

MOBILE, May 22.—The Presbyterian General Assembly, South met on Thursday, the 20th. Rev Dr. Robinson of Kentucky, was elected Moderator; H. H. Payne, of Mississippi, temporary clerk. Rev. Dr. Waddell, of Mississippi, preached the opening sermon.—There are one hundred Comissioners in attendance from the Southern States and Ohio, and Louisville, Kentucky, was chosen for the next place of meeting.

Reports show that there are two hundred and fifty students preparing for the ministry; about twenty foreign missionaries; a prosperous publishing house, and vigorous efforts to sustain feeble churches.

A committee was appointed to mature plans for the better instruction of the blacks, of which Rev. Dr. Girardeau, of South Carolina, is chairman.

The Old School Assembly on a motion fixing Tuesday for the discussing of reunion, a gentleman from the Potomac Synod said they were not yet ready to consider that subject. Rev. Mr. Johnson spoke in favor of the resolution.—Taylor, of Georgetown, opposed it. A motion to table whole subject, was rejected and the matter referred to a special committee of three members and three elders, to be appointed by the moderater. Other business confined to the usual routine.

TEXAS.

The following article is from the Waxahachie Argus. Apart from the interest which our readers take in the prosperity of every portion of the South, the very just and truthful statement of the [illegible] of the two races in the South will make its impression upon all who read it:

"During the last week, we have had copious rains, and all nature is clad in robes of beauty. Our farmers are in the very highest spirits. An ample supply of corn has been planted, and is, generally, in an advanced stage of growth and cultivation.

The scarcity of seed wheat last Fall caused but a short crop of that product, but for the amount sown, an unusually large yield is promised.

Cotton has been planted in quantities that would astonish one who had not become accustomed to the exhaustless resources of our energetic white farmers, and the general good behavior of the few blacks still remaining among us.

Before the war, Ellis county did not produce two hundred bales of cotton annually. This year, with such a season as any one of the last three, we will produce at least five thousand bales. Ellis county, with population on the whole but slightly increased, is producing now fully double the value of stock and farm products that it did in the days of slavery.

And now let us look coolly and candidly into the future.

On the strong arm of white men depends the future wealth, prosperity and happiness of our whole country. The black race have been, and are still, more sinned against than sinning. Without any particular fault on their part—more than grows out of their organism they have been, as a race in our country, put in a gradual course of extinction. They are, and have been, and will ever be as a mere clog upon our wheel of progress. The same number of white laborers can and will, as is now demonstrated, produce twice the amount that can, in any way, be drawn from the labor of blacks. His loss is our gain.—And yet he is the handiwork of our God. He made him, and his destiny is in His hands. Let us not abuse him, but in every way consistent with his and our happiness, contribute to the amelioration of his condition. At the same time we should learn to be self-containing in all respects. Upon the labor of our hands we must and will rely, and, in the end, make our own Sunny South a very paradise of prosperity and happiness, in spite of the machinations of fools and demagogues."

NEBRASKA REAL ESTATE.

A citizen of Nebraska posts an Eastern correspondent who speared a variety of questions as to the territory and life there:

"What kind of a country do you live in?"

"Mixed and extensive. It is made up principally of land and water."

"What kind of weather?"

"Long spells of weather are frequent. Our sunshines comes off principally during the day time."

"Have you plenty of water—and how got?"

"A good deal of water scattered about, and generally got in pails and whiskey."

"Is it hard?"

"Rather so when you have to go half a mile and then wade in mud knee deep to get it."

"What kind of buildings?"

"Allegoric, Ionic, anti-baloric, log and slabs. The buildings are chiefly out of doors, and so low between joints that the chimneys all stick out through the roof."

"What kind of society?"

"Good, bad, hateful, indifferent and mixed."

"Any aristocracy?"

"Nary one!"

"What do you people do for a living mostly?"

"Some work, some loaf around, one's a shrewd business manager, and several drink whiskey."

"Is it cheap living there?"

"Only five cents a glass, and the water thrown in."

"Any taste for music?"

"Strong. Buzz and buck saws in the day time, and wolf-howling and cat-fighting nights."

"Any pianos there?"

"No, but we have several cow bells, and a tin pan in every family."

"What could a genteel family in moderate circumstances do for a living?"

THE PRESENT AND FUTURE.

For the past seventy years the ratio of increase in the population of the United States has been 34 per cent for each decade. This ratio would give us 42,000,000 population in 1870. And though the war interferred with the increase, it is hardly probable that we shall fall below 41,000,000, against 38,000,000 returned by the last French census, and less than 30,000,000 in Great Britain. If this is so, the rate will establish 54,000,000 in 1880, more than 71,000,000 in 1890 and about 95,000,000 for the twentieth century.

The extension of our territorial boundaries during this time has been more than proportionate to the increase of our population. This may be most readily exhibited by the following table:

In 1783 we had	sq. miles	815,615
1803	Louisiana added	930,928
1821	Florida added	59,268
1845	Texas added	237,504
1846	Oregon added	280,425
1847	California added	649,762
1854	Arizona added	27,500
1866	Alaska added	577,390
	Making in all	3,578,392

An increase of 2,762,777 square miles in 87 years, acquired from England, France, Spain, Mexico, Russia and all contiguous countries. The New York Bulletin says: There is much in this to prove that our present great wealth and power will continue to increase, though not in a corresponding ratio perhaps; and that, at the close of the century, our population will equal 100,000,000. In 1840 a calculation of future growth for the future decades of the century was made, that has been verified within three hundred thousand on every occasion and within less than one hundred thousand in a majority of instances. That estimate places our census at 31,753,824 in 1860; it was 31,445,080; at 41,328,432 in 1860; 56,450,241 in 1880, 77,266,989 in 1890, and 100,355,985 in 1900. This estimate was further followed to 133,000,000 in 1920, 177,000,000 in 1940, 236,000,000 in 1970 and 383,000,000 in 2000. The correctness of so much of the calculation as has been tried lends probability to the rest.

THE FRIENDS AFTER DEATH.

A father once related the following parable to his children:—The Viceroy of a certain Island was once summoned by his lord the King to render an account of his government. Some of his friends on whom he had placed the greatest reliance, let him depart without stirring themselves from their places; others, in whom he had not a little confidence, went with him only as far as the ship; but some, in whom he had scarcely trusted at all, accompanied him through the whole of the distant journey even to the King's throne, spake in his behalf and obtained for him the grace and favor of the King.

The children did not understand who these friends could be; so their father said, "Man also has three kinds of friends on earth; but, for the most part, he does not know them well till the time when he is called from this world, in order to give account of his conduct.—The first of these friends, wealth and possessions, remain behind; the second, his relations, accompany him only to the grave; the third his work of faith and labor of love, follow him into eternity, even to the throne of God, where they will be recompensed to each according to his works, and even the cup of cold water which is given to one who thirsts will not be unrewarded. How thoughtlessly, then does the man act who does not concern himself in the least degree about such true friends!"

"Do good on earth: for all thy words of love,

☞ DR. DRAPER makes out a very strong case in favor of "coffee as a civilizing agent." He says:

"Those who have made it a subject of study and examination, tell us that when prepared as a strong infusion, without milk, coffee acts powerfully on the sympathetic nervous system and the organs supplied by it, quickening their action and increasing their vitality. That it renders the contraction of the heart and other muscles more powerful; enables the body to resist cold, moisture, and the deadly poison of the miasmatic districts; counteracts the languor of torrid climes; prevents or ameliorates attacks of spasmodic asthma; alleviates laxity of the kidneys and bladder, and it is even said that calculus is not as common since it has been generally used. It also acts with energy on the brain, removing the sensation to fatigue and disposition to sleep, which has always made it a favorite with students. It obviates the effects of indulgence in the use of wine and spirits; is an antidote to opium, belladonna, and the vegetable poisons that act on the brain; and relieves the nervous headache to which they are subject. In brief, it is not merely a fashionable potation—it is one of the great civilizing agents; for, by increasing his power of accomplishing brain and muscle work, it has increased the power and influence of man.

THE FIRST PAIR.

The Revolution, Madame Cady Stanton's strong-minded paper, translates from a French writer the Hindoo legend of the creation of the first pair. It represents them as both created at the same time, and endowed with speech and conscience. They were placed on the Island of Ceylon, and ordered not to leave it. But after some time Adam became restless, and taking Eve with him rambled about the Island. At last he came to the sea, where there was a narrow bridge of rocks leading to another land, which Adam, taking up Eve, crossed. There was an instant convulsion of nature, and the bridge of rocks disappeared beneath the waters. In all their proceedings, Eve had constantly begged and entreated Adam to desist, and not disregard the will of God. For this obedient spirit, Brahma or God appeared to her and comforted her with the assurance that she should give birth to a Redeemer.

This varies a good deal from the Hebrew version, which represents Eve as not created until after the sixth day, as a sort of accident or afterthought, and as the first to transgress and tempt Adam to follow her example. On this account the Hindoo version is far more agreeable to the strong-minded, and they very cheerfully regard it as the more orthodox.

THIRTY CENTURIES OLD.

The oldest relic of humanity existent, is the skeleton of the earliest Pharaoh incased in its original burial robes, and wonderfully perfect, considering its age which was deposited eighteen or twenty months ago in the British Museum, and is justly considered the most valuable of its archaeological treasures. The lid of the coffin which contained the royal mummy was inscribed with the name of its occupant, Pharaoh Mykerinus, who succeeded the heir of the builder of the great pyramid, ten centuries before Christ. Only think of it—the monarch whose crumbling bones and leathery integuments are now exciting the wonder of numbers of gazers in London, reigned in Egypt before Solomon was born, and only about eleven centuries or so after Mizraim, the grandson of old father Noah, and the first of the Pharaohs had been gathered to his fathers! Why, the tide-mark of the deluge could scarcely have been obliterated, or the gopher-wood knee-timbers of the ark have rotted on Mount Ararat, when this man of the early world lived, moved and had his being. His flesh and blood were cotemporary with the progenitors of the great patriarch. His bones and shriveled skin are cotemporary with the ninth century, and the date of the crucifixion is only about midway between his era and ours.

NORTHERN IMMIGRATION.—The Augusta Chronicle says: "Not many days since we received a visit from two well informed gentlemen, natives of the State of Connecticut and men of means, who had come to Georgia recently on a prospecting expedition. They informed us that seeing an advertisement in the Chronicle and Sentinel of a large plantation for sale in Burke County, they had visited the place and being pleased with it, had purchased the whole property. The plantation was the property of G. W. Lamar, of Savannah, and the price paid for it was $9,000. It is situated on Buckhead Creek, in Burke County, and contains [illegible] hundred acres of land, of which [illegible] hundred are under cultivation. The purchasers have determined to divide the whole property into small tracts of forty to fifty acres each, which they will [illegible] Connecticut immigrants whom they will bring to this State as soon as possible. The gentlemen have already returned to their New England homes, and we may expect them to arrive here in a few days with fifteen or twenty farmers from the "Nutmeg State."

Dr. L. F. W. Andrews, long a Georgia Editor in Macon, Americus, and elsewhere, recently [illegible] by Gov. Bullock as Guano Inspector, has turned Universalist preacher, and is [illegible] under the banner of that branch of the Church militant. We can sympathize with the Doctor in this to some extent. For [illegible] there surely ought not to be any future punishment; they get a plenty on this earth. On the other hand, however, if there's no hell for [illegible], there ought to be. So [illegible], we conclude to stick to the orthodox theory, that there is not only a hell hereafter, but [illegible] one for all the workers of iniquity who die without repenting.—[illegible]

A young lady in [illegible], Ohio, mistook a bottle of violet ink for perfumery, in the darkness the other evening, and put some on her handkerchief, which she used to wipe her face, and going to church immediately after, she created an immense sensation.

Pic-Nic Excursion.

Mr. EDITOR:—We would like to hear from a few lines in regard to the rightest trip we enjoyed on last Saturday the 29th inst. About 8 o'clock A. M. two wagon loads of Marietta's daughters and sons left for Mr. Scribner's farm on the Chattahoochee river to enjoy a pic-nic excursion. We arrived about that hour and received a courteous reception from Mr. JOHN CHENEY, Superintendent of the Sardis Sabbath School. Assembled on the ground were the pupils of the School for the purpose of participating in the festivities. After whiling away a short time in recovering from the fatigue of the drive, we crossed the famous Chattahoochee into Fulton, near a field of delicious strawberries, where each one gave their undivided attention in showing their friends that the invitation to partake should not be slighted. After this refreshing repast we re-crossed to the Cobb, where were spread out in rich profusion a supply of substantials and delicacies, that was not only pleasing to the sight but to the taste, especially the nice fish we were made the recipients of from Mr. GREEN.

Dinner being over, the crowd began to scatter through the beautiful grove, some coupled off to enjoy a tete-a-tete under the overhanging foliage and others went a boat sailing, and thus time was spent on this beautiful and bright day of May.

It was a trip that will occupy ever in memory's casket a jewel's place, it is an episode in life never to be forgotten. The ladies were in every respect social and kind, and to say they were not beautiful, intelligent and genteels, would be perpetrating a falsehood that would be irreparable, and our own sex (the readers were not desirous of that suavity of disposition in making the occasion one of pleasurable delight.

Mr. GREEN, and others, did everything to make it agreeable, and well did he succeed, and for which he has our unbounded gratitude. We arrived home after two hours drive well pleased and more than delighted.

NEVERSON.

A Stubborn Fact.

There is scarcely any disease in which purgative medicines are not more or less required, and much suffering might be prevented were they more generally used. No person can feel well while a costive habit of body prevails, besides, it soon generates serious disease which might have been avoided by a timely use of Cathartic Medicines. For this purpose Dr. TUTT'S Vegetable Liver Pills are confidently recommended; they are mild, safe, prompt and uniform in their action. They contain no Mercury. Persons may eat and drink as usual, and they may be taken at any time.

The Pic-Nic.

We accept Mr. Green's kind invitation to attend the Pic-Nic on Saturday of Mr. Scribner's farm, on the Chattahoochee river, was highly appreciated and regretted very much the necessity of having to remain at our "post of duty." Although absent in body, we were present in spirit. It will be seen by the communication of "NEVERSON" that the occasion was one of felicity.

A Foot Race.

Mr. Owsley, our city Constable, had a foot race on last Monday, after a darkey. He overtook the gentleman after repeated cries, "Stop him! Stop him!" No doubt this will be heralded North as a "Ku Klux Outrage," as it affords about as much ground for the Radicals, as they have heretofore had in doing the Northern brain.

Sale Day.

Farm work is now absorbing the attention of our farmers to such an extent that there were but few here in town on sale day. If good crops can be made by assiduous industry, this will be a year remarkable for abundance, for they are working as most every worked before.

The Crops.

The complaint is general over the South of the injury of the cold and rainy spring to Cotton. Favorably reports from the Wheat crop are without exception. We find in some fields in this section that rust made its appearance in many fields of ripening grain.

Rev. Mr. Weary.

This gentleman, from Virginia, preached one of the most cogent and eloquent sermons at the Methodist Church on last Sabbath night, that we have ever had the pleasure to hear.

Literary Festival.

(Written expressly dedicated to the Soldiers' Orphans' Festival.)

There is Music in the spring-wood,
That whispers to the trees;
There is music in the rolling brook,
That murmurs to the breeze;
There is music ever heard in Nature's realm,
And in the wild bird's song,
And music, mirth, and melody,
To Love also belong.
The soul is filled with music sweet,
And into thee is given,
The power to chain the heart of man
When fogs oppose its driving;
They come like an angel's melody
Its tones so pure and clear,
That oft' we think, on hearing them,
A spirit form is near.
The world may prize its wealth and fame,
And deem their gems divine—
But the sweet notes of love are the
The jewels of the mind.
Then Oh! so long as life shall last,
May they to thee belong,
And thou possess the attributes
Of music, mirth, and song.

R. M. GOODMAN, Esq.,
Marietta, Ga.

Dear Sir: I take the liberty of writing you to ask you about land in your part of the Country. A friend of mine from Kentucky has been in this County some time, his health is bad and he wants to go to a healthy part of Georgia. He wants a small farm to raise fruit, &c., and some stock. He thinks as soon as he can get a good Orchard on the place the principal thing he wishes to do is, to dry fruit and put up in cans, and also to can up Vegetables, such as Tomatoes, Corn, Beans, &c., he thinks sheep would pay and I thought he might get a place near Kenneaw Mountain or part of the Mountain, it would do well for sheep.—He has some fine mining property and would like to trade it for land, and would be pleased to know what he can buy land for, for cash. He would like to know what kind of crop of fruit is on the trees now, as if he goes South this summer, he would like to get a place with some trees on it and dry some fruit this fall. He has some kind of patent drying kill. I thought from what he said that Marietta would please him. Any information on the subject you can find time to give me will be thankfully received. How is Marietta coming out, improving I hope? How are all the old residenters? I have been in this Country some four years. I am doing very well—but my health is very bad, and I am going to California in about nine months. We have nine months of winter—snowed yesterday six inches deep.

Yours very truly and Respectfully,
J. M.

[Just the sort of men we need. Land here can be bought from $5 to $20 per acre according to quality and locality. Plenty of fruit, peaches, apples, cherries, berries, &c., &c., together with vegetables for canning and all other purposes. Sheep husbandry and with a shephard connected with turnip and wheat culture would be found highly remunerative.—Lands moderately productive but susceptible with easy tillage of producing large crops of the cereal, cotton &c. Climate of unsurpassed healthfulness, water scarcely equalled and Society as good as any country affords. Many of the old residents of Marietta are here in their accustomed routines of life; many new ones adding life and vivacity to the town. Some ante-bellum buildings, and new ones generally up in place of those destroyed. You'd better sing friend M. "Carry me back."]

Ceres in all her Splendor.

Ceres in all her splendor has nothing more attractive than the golden ears of wheat (to the eyes of bread eaters). Some of the contestants for the wheat premium have amassed themselves during the last few days making a mathematical estimate of the exact yield of an acre. They have counted the stalks in a given area, in various portions of the field; and, having obtained the number of stalks to the acre, have counted the kernels in various heads, by which they have figured out the number of kernels of a complete demonstration of the yield, but the size of the kernels. But taking the average figures, "laid down in the books," they cypher out the most gratifying results. The figures totally refuse to show anything less than fifty bushels to the acre, while if the grains should prove "as large as they ought to be," the yield will run considerably higher! Altogether, the rivalry among the different contestants is interesting.—Dr. Hamilton, Mr. Hammell, and Mr. Bloomfield are, we believe, the leading competitors for the premium. Several others are right after them.

The Civil War in Cuba.

The Spanish loss at Sabana Neuva, or Bonilla, amounts to 771 officers and men, independent of colored troops that passed over to the insurgents, which included the Spanish loss to nearly 1,200. The Cubans lost about 1,000 officers and men. The battle made extremely popular heroes at Quesada, the Marquis of Santa Lucia and Angel Castille with the Cubans, while it has sunk General Letona's popularity with his fellow Spaniards to many degrees below zero.

Escalante arrested and shot five ex-Cuban insurgents to whom General Letona had given amnesty papers. He was called to account for this, when he accused Letona of selling the papers and of making the amnesty business a matter of speculation. The Spaniards have recently shot a very prominent Cuban, Don Antonio Rodriguez, and six more persons of less note, accused of being spies for the insurgents.

These executions, together with Count de Valmaceda's black flag proclamation of April 14th, and Captain-General Dulce's confiscation decree, have rendered the insurgents desperate, and they have replied to the Spanish orders forfeiting their lives and properties with a declaration of war without quarter and mercy. They have burned down the mills and dependencies of three more sugar estates, and fourteen coffee plantations, and shot a number of Spaniards. So far, no less than twenty-three sugar estates and forty coffee plantations, the properties of Spaniards, have been destroyed in the district, which demonstrates the ravages of war.

UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE AND THE EMPIRE.

Following the agitation for universal suffrage in this country comes naturally from various sources the suggestion of an empire. The two things though seeming wide apart are really correlated. It would be no paradox to say that an empire is as legitimately as a republic the product of universal suffrage. Look at France! There is a country where the suffrage is universal, and there is an empire in which the power of one man is greater and more absolute than in any other European nation, save Russia.—In this connection it is not necessary to contrast the merits and faults of the Napoleonic government. Our business is only to show that there is an empire in which the right to vote is a fact as freely exercised as in this republic; and we only desire to call the attention of thoughtful persons to the comparatively unsuspected dangers which lurk at the bottom of that much overpraised institution, universal suffrage. So far from being a guarantee of our liberties it may prove their destruction. Instead of insuring the perpetuity of the Presidential office and the other present republican forms, it may, if unchecked, some day put an Emperor on a throne, make the Senate a mere pension house for imperial favorites, and pack Congress with the willing fools of some daring genius who has won the hearts of the people and clothed himself with the imperial purple. Universal suffrage actually makes the astounding revolution in our system possible. Universal suffrage is the only thing that does make it possible. In universal suffrage is the danger and not the protection of the republic.

For us the hour has not come, nor the man. Perhaps they never may, and we earnestly hope they never will; but if at some time the nation should be convulsed with political discussions, and sick of mismanagement, perpetual change and uncertainty, and desirous of peace, even though its price should be slavery to an Emperor, and if at that crisis a President of genius, supreme egotism and unflinchinging courage, should appeal to the people to rally around him and make him Emperor as the only hope of peace and safety to the country, the advocates of universal suffrage would then learn how soon and how many of their pupils would forget the principles of republicanism which they have been taught, and would vote for an empire as readily as Louis Napoleon's subjects do under his adroit management.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION COMPANY OF ST. LOUIS MISSOURI.

To the Planters of the South:

The above named company is now organized and is completing its arrangements to supply the Southern planters with Chinese laborers, to be collected at St. Louis and be distributed through the South in time for the crop next year.

The labor question is obviously the great problem to be solved in connection with the restoration of the South to anything like its former prosperity.—The solution of that question is most readily and successfully found in the vast and overflowing population of China, and the cheapness of Coolie labor, the peculiar adaptedness of that race to the climate of the South and to the production of Southern staples, and in the cheap and convenient transportation afforded by the Pacific railroad. This road is now completed from the Mississippi river to San Francisco, and this company is now ready to correspond with Southern planters in reference to furnishing Chinese laborers for their plantations.

There are in California between two and three hundred thousand Chinamen at the present time, and many more are constantly arriving from across the Pacific. We wish to begin the transportation of them to St. Louis as soon as practicable, and to have a large supply of them on hand in time for the crop next year.

In answer to the principal inquiry in regard to the introduction of Chinese labor in the South, (we mean cost,) we can only say at present that we estimate the expense of transportation to Selma at about $50 per head, the cost of his labor at from $4 to $5 per month, and fed. In recommendation of the Coolie as a laborer, it may in conclusion, be said, that it is easy to make him a permanent fixture when he once becomes located, as he can be contracted with without difficulty for a series of years together, as he is noted for his faithful and religious adherence to his contracts.

Address, F. H. HAWKS, Ag't,
Care B. M. Woolsey,
Selma, Ala.

WHAT IS "ONE-HORSE POWER?"

The use of the term "horse-power" is very common; yet few, except good mechanics and engineers, attach a definite meaning to it, but regard it as indicating loosely about the power which one horse could exert. It is, however, when used in the sense under consideration, as definite as possible, and means the power required to lift 33,000 pounds avoirdupoise, one foot high in one minute.

A horse hitched to the end of a rope over a pulley one inch in diameter placed over a deep well, traveling at the rate of about 2½ miles per hour, or 220 feet per minute, will draw up 150 pounds, the same distance he travels.—The force thus exerted is called in mechanics, "horse-power," it being in approximation to the average amount of continuous power it is fair to demand of a strong horse. If we multiply the weight raised (150 pounds) by the number of feet was moved per minute (220) the product will be the number of pounds which the same power would raise one foot high in the same length of time (33,000 pounds.)

The dynamometer is an instrument made for measuring power, particularly that exerted in drawing. Those used for testing the draft of agricultural implements are simply very strong spring balances or strong spring steelyards, graduated to indicate the power required to raise any weight, within reasonable limit, at the rate of two and a half miles per hour. When we apply the dynamometer in ascertaining the draught of machines, if the index indicates one hundred and fifty pounds, it is shown that the horse is required to draw just as hard as he would do if raising 150 pounds, out of a well with a rope over a pulley one foot in diameter, at the rate of two and a half miles per hour and so for other weights.

The velocity at which a team moves is to be considered, as well as the weight to be raised, or the load to be drawn. If the horse travels faster than two and a half miles per hour, while raising one hundred and fifty pounds out of a well, he exerts more than one-horse power. If he walks slower than this, he does not exert a force equal to one horse power.

In ascertaining the draught of a plow, or mower and reaper, by drawing faster than two and a half miles per hour, the dynamometer would indicate more than the correct draught; and by driving slower, the draught would appear to be less than it really is. In testing the draft of mechanics a team should always move at the rate of two and a half miles per hour, or 220 feet per minute, which is the universally accepted rate with reference to which dynamometers are graduated, and an easy one to which to approximate in driving with almost any kind of team.

A DOUBTER.

There was a man who lived in Cass county, Georgia, many years ago, who had once been in the State Legislature, and never neglected an opportunity to emphasize the fact. He was a perfect infidel as to new discoveries and new sciences, being well satisfied that if the world should turn over all the water would spill out of his well, and only giving in to steam cars by slow degrees.—But all the vials of his contempt were poured out upon the idea of a telegraph, and he was went to say that nobody need try to come "the green" over him in that way, for he had been to the Legislature. Finally, the State road was built, and one day workmen began to put up telegraph posts right in front of the house and to stretch the wire. His exultant neighbors thought they had him on that occasion, asked: "Well, old fellow, what do you think of telegraphs now?" He was cornered, but died game. Drawing himself up an inch taller, he said: "Gentlemen, when I was in the Legislature I gave this subject my very attentive consideration, and I said then, as I say now, that it may do for letters and small bundles, but it will never take a cotton bale, never!"

ROUND ABOUT.

Relics of the Inquisition.

In making excavations for the improvements of Madrid a singular discovery has been made near Porte de Fuencarral. The ground at a depth of more than three feet and covering a surface of about forty feet was literally composed of carbonated human bodies, being the remains of the funeral piles of the old inquisition which was established upon this spot and where its victims were buried. There were also found many skulls, &c., which have been carefully deposited in one of the cemeteries in Madrid. A great number of instruments of torture were also found.

A JUNIOR student at the Cornell University, in rendering an account to his father of his last term's expenses, entered as an item, "Charity, $30." His father wrote back, "I fear that charity covers a multitude of sins."

THE YANKEES AND THE BEAR.

Two yankees strolling in the woods, without any arms in their possession, observed a bear climbing a tree, with its paws clasped around its trunk. One of them ran forward and caught the bear's paws, one in each hand. He then called out to his comrade: "Jonathan, run home, and bring me something to kill the varmint, mind you don't stay, or I am in a fix."

Jonathan ran off, but staid a long time. During the interval the bear made several attempts to bite him who held it. At length Jonathan came back.

"Hello, what kept you so long?"

"Well, I'll tell you. When I got home breakfast was ready, so I stopped to eat it."

"Well," said his comrade, "come you now, and hold the critter while I kill it."

Jonathan seized the bear's paws, and held the animal.

"Well, [illegible] you hold of him?"

"I guess I have."

"Very well, then, hold fast; I'm off for dinner!"

HOG KILLING AND HOUSE BURNING, NEGRO LEAGUES IN NORTH CAROLINA.—The editor of the Raleigh Sentinel, says:

"We can name thirty farmers who used to butcher annually, 150 hogs, since 1865 they have not been able to keep a hog upon the plantation. In Perquimans, last fall, on one of the largest and most valuable farms in that county, we saw every hog on the plantation in the pen, to be made pork of. There was not a sow left out for the next year, as sixty hogs had been stolen in as many days. In Granville, a thrifty farmer informed us he usually killed 150 hogs; last year he killed 13 shoats only, not a hog among them. His hogs had been stolen by League men, who would not work, and had to steal.

A gentleman of Granville informed us that, in his own immediate neighborhood, more than $50,000 of property had been burnt by the incendiary, consisting of mills, granaries, tobacco barns, etc."

North Carolina, we believe, is generally considered by the Radical party, and the administration, particularly, the very best "reconstructed" State of all.

SERVED RIGHT.—A fashionable lady of more show than substance, residing in Nassau street, New York, lately went into a thread store in the Bowery, and after busying the clerk for nearly two hours, purchased a single spool of thread. She thought it too vulgar, however, to carry it home, and requested to have it sent. No sooner had she left the store than a hand cart was procured, the spool deposited in it, taken to the door of her residence, and dumped upon the sidewalk, after the fashion of a ton of coal; for which she was obliged to fork over twenty-five cents cartage money. Some people won't believe this.—New York paper.

THE BEAUTY OF LOTTERIES.—A poor woman in New York took her bonnet to a milliner for repairs in April, and did not call to take it away till September. During that time she had "played policy" every day, paying "only fifty cents a day" for a ticket. She at last drew a prize of six dollars. At this success she was overjoyed, until a friend made the calculation and showed her that she had actually paid out seventy dollars to gain the six, when her joy was changed to tears. This is but the history of thousands, who purchase lottery tickets.—What a fountain of pauperism a lottery is!

A FEW days since, a man well known in New York society—not young, and who could not dance—was sitting at a party near a young lady, and watching the dance of the "German." He turned to her, knowing her well, and said: "I wish you would let me put my arm around your waist." Of course she looked at him in amazement. "Why?" said he, "you know I can't dance, but I don't see the difference, legally these young men have their arms about the girls' waists, and why should not I have the same privilege, though I sit still?"—That man's head is level, I think so.

SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES.—A gentleman in Pittsburg, Penn., publishes the following offer: "I will donate twenty dollars for every passage of scripture where the immortality of the soul is mentioned, to any Church or Sunday School the finder may elect." His address is John A. Best, corner of Fifth avenue and Tunnel street, Pittsburg.

A LADIES MAN.—We asked a friend a day or two ago, about a gentleman who had just left him. "Mr. ——," he answered, "he is one of those fellows that the ladies think so much of—they are all on excellent terms with him, you know—they ask him to go to places with them and when they get there they talk with somebody else."

Rev. Wesley Prettyman, who was appointed Post Master at this place several weeks ago, took charge on last Monday morning. He seems to be a very attentive and affable gentleman, and if there is a combination of that disposition to please which he has so far manifested, there will be no cause of dissatisfaction. He has displayed wisdom in retaining our clever young friend, Master Johnnie White, as Clerk.

A Goodly Report.

And we may add, by good authority. Judge N. B. Knight who has just returned from the upper counties of his Circuit informs us that the condition of society in those border counties is improving, and Tennessee was never better there and scarcely better anywhere. Crime in all its phases has nearly disappeared and the people in the enjoyment of as much happiness as flesh is heir to. The crops are promising and everything, climate, scenery, industry and virtue, are blessing those mountain people.

"Willie."

By Carl Berth.

Deep in a tangled wildwood,
Where the rose and violet grew,
And the daisy, looking upward,
Bloomed in the morning dew,

Rose a headstone and the flowers
And the only mark it bore
Was "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, Thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

"Somebody's darling" rested here,
And the brown leaves as they fell,
Covered the grave from hand to fear,
Of the soldier in the dell,
But the spirit had left this vale of tears,
And crossed to the "golden shore,"
Of "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Under the folds of the flag he lived,
He fought for the Stars and Bars;
But now he rests from the battle charge,
On the bloody field of Mars.
His sword is sheathed—his brow is cold,
And lies sober, in hearse so sere
Of "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Old Kenesaw! your mountain sides,
Are filled with memories dear,
And bosoms are thy rugged heights,
Which rise before us there;
But nothing that thou hast can seem
So full of heartsore here
As "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Mixed Juries in Charleston.—At a special meeting of the City Council of Charleston on Saturday, the following juries were drawn for the June term of the City Court: Grand jury, whites, 5; blacks, 4; petty jury No. 1, whites 12; blacks, 4; petty jury No. 2, whites 7; blacks, 7; petty jury No. 3, whites, 8; blacks, 6. The good people of Charleston may expect mixed justice. The weather being warm there will very probably be very few hung juries. [Sun. Republican.

The City Council of Charleston have unanimously decided to appropriate so much of the $10,000,000 devoted to the purpose of establishing a direct railroad connection to the Southern Atlantic and Gulf ports, to the line making a direct connection with Chattanooga. Three routes were in contemplation—one by Knoxville, one by Nashville, and the other by Chattanooga. The decision in favor of the latter will be of immense advantage to the State Road, and the Georgia interests generally.

Washington, June 8.—The election results in one negro Register of the city —an important office; one negro Alderman—same as last year; seven negro Councilmen—gain of six. The Radicals swept every ward. The Common Council is unanimously Radical. Only two Conservative Aldermen.

The Human Form Divine.

What sad havoc Scrofula inflicts on the human system. How Rheumatism distorts the frame. What misery the injudicious use of Calomel entails. How sad the effects of Syphilis transmitted from parent to child. Would you avoid these terrible afflictions, fail not to use Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight. It penetrates every fibre of the system, even into the bones, and eradicates every trace of disease.

Our New Post Master.

Rev. Wesley Prettyman, who was appointed Post Master at this place several weeks ago, took charge on last Monday morning. He seems to be a very attractive and affable gentleman, and if there is a combination of that disposition to please which he has so far manifested, there will be no cause of dissatisfaction. He has displayed wisdom in retaining our clever young friend, Master Johnnie White, as Clerk.

A Goodly Report.

And we may add by good authority. Judge N. B. Knight who has just returned from the upper counties of his Circuit informs us that the condition of society in those border counties of Cherokee, is Tennessee—was never better there and scarcely better anywhere. Crime in all its phases has nearly disappeared and the people in the enjoyment of as much happiness as flesh is heir to. The Crops are prosiling and everything, climate, scenery, industry and virtue, are blessing those mountain people.

Marietta Debating Club and Library Association.

This institution is meeting with encouragement from a few of the citizens that is truly gratifying to the young men. Some very prominent citizens were in attendance at the last meeting and took a part in the discussion that proved highly instructive and edifying. The Library is not very extensive, yet it contains some very valuable and useful works.—The young men have no objection to being placed under obligations to, our citizens for donations to their Library, but to the contrary would urgently solicit contributions.

WILLIE.

BY CARL BERTH.

Deep in a tangled wildwood,
Where the rose and violet grew,
And the daisy, looking upward,
Bloomed in dew;

Rose a headstone 'mid the flowers,
And the only mark it bore
Was "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, Thirtieth, 'Sixty four."

"Somebody's darling" rested here,
And the brown leaves as they fell,
Covered the grave from hand to fast,
Of the soldier in the dell.
But the spirit had left this vale of tears,
And crossed to the "golden shore,"
Of "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Under the folds of the flag he loved,
He fought for the Stars and Bars;
But now he rests from the battle charge,
On the bloody field of Mars.
His sword is sheathed—his brow is cold,
And lips, sedate, in keeping are
Of "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Old Kenesaw! your mountain sides,
Are filled with memories dear,
And bosoms are thy rugged heights,
Which rise before us there;
But nothing that thou hast can seem
So full of bosoms bore
As "Willie, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Mixed Juries in Charleston.—At a special meeting of the City Council of Charleston on Saturday, the following juries were drawn for the June term of the City Court: Grand jury, whites, 5; blacks, 1; petty jury No. 1, whites 12; blacks, 4; petty jury No. 2, whites 7; blacks, 7; petty jury No. 3, whites, 8; blacks, 6. The good people of Charleston may expect mixed justice. The weather being warm there will very probably be very few hung juries.

[Sun. Republican.

The City Council of Charleston have unanimously decided to appropriate so much of the $10,000,000 devoted to the purpose of establishing a direct railroad connection to the Southern Atlantic and Gulf ports, to the line making a direct connection with Chattanooga. Three routes were in contemplation—one by Knoxville, one by Nashville, and the other by Chattanooga. The decision in favor of the latter will be of immense advantage to the State Road, and the Georgia interests generally.

"WILLIE."

BY CARL BERTH.

Deep in a tangled wildwood,
Where the rose and violets grow,
And the daisy, looking upward,
Rose a headstone 'mid the flowers,
And the only mark it bore
Was "WILLIE, killed on Kenesaw,
June, Thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

"Somebody's darling" rested here,
And the brown leaves as they fell,
Covered the grave from head to foot,
Of the soldier in the dell.
But the spirit had left this vale of tears,
And crossed to the "golden shore,"
Of "WILLIE, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Under the folds of the flag he loved,
He fought for the Stars and Bars;
But now he rests from the battle charge,
On the bloody field of Mars.
His sword is sheathed—his brow is cold,
And the notes to heard on more
Of "WILLIE, killed on Kenesaw,
June, thirtieth, 'Sixty-four."

Old Kenesaw! your mountain sides
Are filled with memories dear,
And beauteous are thy rugged heights,
Which rise before us there;
But nothing that thou hast can seem
So full of beauteous lore
As "WILLIE, killed on Kenesaw,

MIXED JURIES IN CHARLESTON.—At a special meeting of the City Council of Charleston on Saturday, the following juries were drawn for the June term of the City Court: Grand jury, whites, 5; blacks 4; petty jury No. 1, whites 12; blacks, 4; petty jury No. 2, whites 7; blacks, 5; petty jury No. 3, whites, 8; blacks, 6. The good people of Charleston may expect mixed justice. The weather being warm there will very probably be very few hung juries.

The City Council of Cincinnati have unanimously decided to appropriate so much of the $10,000,000 devoted to the purpose of establishing a direct railroad connection to the Southern Atlantic and Gulf ports, to the line making a direct connection with Chattanooga. Three routes were in contemplation—one by Knoxville, one by Nashville, and the other by Chattanooga. The decision in favor of the latter will be of immense advantage to the State Road, and the Georgia interests generally.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The election results in one negro Register of the city—an important office; one negro Alderman—same as last year; seven negro Councilmen—gain of six. The Radicals swept every ward. The Common Council is unanimously Radical. Only two Conservative Aldermen.

Col. R. P. Lester, of Dalton has been appointed by Governor Bullock Private Secretary, vice B. B. DeGraffenreid, resigned.

JAPANESE IMMIGRANTS.

Arrival of Three Families in San Francisco

Several More Expected

From the San Francisco Alta Californian.]

Herr Schnell, a Prussian gentleman, for ten years past resident in the Northern Principalities of Japan, has arrived in San Francisco with three Japanese families. These families are the precursors of forty Japanese families now on the way for port, and of a further accession of eighty families making in all one hundred and twenty families, or say four hundred persons, are coming here for permanent settlement. They are mostly silk cultivators and manufacturers; some are tea culturists. They bring with them 50,000 trees of the Morus alba, three years old. This is the most tender leaf of all the mulberries, and it makes the best silk in that country. They bring a great number of bamboo plants of the large variety, useful for a thousand purposes. They are twelve feet high. Also, five hundred vegetable wax trees, four feet high and three years old. They bring also 6,000,000 of tea nuts. The seed of the tea plant is a small nut.

Herr Schnell was Interpreting Secretary to the Prussian Legation, and later Minister of Finance to the Northern Principalities at war with the Mikado. He is complete master of the Japanese language, and was attached to Prince Idsi, under whom he held an important command. The defeat of the North has obliged him to seek elsewhere for peace and occupation. It is not improbable that three Princes will follow him and share his fortunes. Herr Schnell possessed one hundred and twenty retainers and their families. They look to him for means of living, and he charges himself with their care, support and guidance in a way to conform to the ideas and usages of our country. They are not serfs, but free. If the Princes come they may bring many more industrial families. They are highly educated and polished gentlemen, with families brought up in the highest refinement. They fully comprehend our laws and usages, and will conform to them.

It should be understood that the Japanese conduct themselves with dignity; but they are prompt to repel insult and imposition. They cannot safely be treated as Chinamen often are. They come with their families; they bring skill and industry to develop our resources. Herr Schnell means to buy government land, not in the valleys which are unsuited, but in the cheaper hill or mountain lands.

These gravelly loams are best adapted to the healthiest growth of silk-worms and the finer qualities of silk; and especially is it an axiom, "Hills for the fine teas, dales for the coarse." He knew that we were over-stocked with common mulberry trees in nursery, with very few set out for permanent plantation, as he has brought his own trees.—He does not intend to feed worms, till his trees, now, three years old, have another full years growth. The Japanese do not esteem either eggs or cocoons foul, like ours, on cuttings of trees rooted in the nursery. Three feet is the standard height of plantation mulberries in Japan. They never bare the stem, but the branches are allowed to grow clear to the ground, thus giving the bark protection from sunscald. Their mode of feeding is to cut off the entire branch, instead of plucking the leaves, and thus the worm has always a cleanly feeding place. We are doing the same, and we give it approval. Herr Schnell would rear our California cocoons this year if he could find them of merchantable quality. But such are at Neuman's exhibition would not answer at all. They are fit only for shoddy.

"A HUMMING bird once met a butterfly, and, being pleased with the beauty of its person and glory of its wings, made an offer of perpetual friendship. "I cannot think of it," was the reply, "as you once spurned me and called me a drolling dolt." "Impossible," exclaimed the humming bird, "I always entertained the highest respect for such beautiful creatures as you." "Perhaps you do now," said the other, "but when you insulted me I was a caterpillar. So let me give you this piece of advice—never insult the humble, as they may one day become your superiors."

"ARE you alarmed at the approach of the King of Terrors!" said a minister to a sick man. "Oh no, I have been living six and thirty years with the Queen of Terrors—the King cannot be much worse."

THE best lessons are often learned by experience. So are some of the worst. Experience is one of the very oldest of teachers, but its prices are sometimes ruinously high.

THE GREAT WIND-UP IN BOSTON.

Boston is about to give out the hymn; let the rest of mankind handle their psalm books. Boston is about to raise the tune; let "fregpond" clap its hands, and Bunkerhill be joyful altogether. Boston is about to lead in prayer; let the gentiles draw near, pull off their hats, and listen to the most eloquent petition that was ever addressed to a human audience.—Boston has proclaimed a grant National Peace Jubilee, "to be held in the city of Boston, June 15th, 16th and 17th" of the present Anno Domini, to commemorate the restoration of peace throughout the land. Boston is arranging a grand orchestra of one thousand musicians, the first to sing national airs and hymns of peace, and the last to swell the aforesaid national airs and hymns to celestial dimensions. Boston is erecting an immense coliseum, capable of accommodating over fifty thousand persons, for the occasion, to be magnificently decorated with emblems expressive of Boston notions, sentiments, ideas and emotions. Boston invites the rest of mankind to attend and participate in its enjoyments, at the ruinously low figure of one hundred dollars the season ticket, admitting three persons or thirty-three dollars, thirty-three cents and a vulgar fraction for each individual. Boston is about to do the thing in style; but like the thrifty consort of the renowned Gilpin, while she is bent on pleasure, she retains her frugal disposition, and intends to realize a profit on her anthems and thanksgivings.

Boston rejoiced greatly over the war. She led the timbrels, and headed the dance which circled around the caldron when the poisonous mixture which made men bloodthirsty was preparing. Of all the noxious ingredients that entered into the compound, here was the most deadly. Although she did not manifest superior alacrity in sending her sons to the conflict, she sang the war song, danced the war dance, and screamed the war whoop with a vigor and persistency that left nothing to be desired. Her clergy breathed forth threatenings and slaughter from the pulpit. Her learned pundits poranabulated the land, blowing the war trumpet from the platforms of lecture halls; making merchandize of their belligerent sentiments, at the price of fifty cents for the admission. Her senators and representatives took the lead in every measure which served to make war inevitable, and to foster and intensify the evil passions and cruel hatreds which war is calculated to awaken.

Boston has attained her ends, and Boston is satisfied. She did nothing to promote the return of peace; she is doing what lies in her power to make the peace only formal. The country is only formally at peace, not actually. It is the peace of exhaustion, not of consent, the pledges of which are the privations of right, political constraint and military despotism. But it is a peace that is after the heart of Boston, and therefore Boston proposes to celebrate it with songs and thanksgivings; with the "greatest feast of sublime and inspiring harmony that has ever been heard in any part of the world." As Boston was inspired with an ardent love of the beauties of war, so now Boston is inspired with an ardent love of the beauties of peace. She discovers that all mankind are brethren.—She wonders how they could have done otherwise than love each other. She is willing to embrace the survivors of those whom she sent forth her hands to destroy, to admit a share in her rejoicings—provided they pay the regular fees for admission—those whom she labored to impoverish; and to show the whole world how little malice she has against those whose destruction she sought to accomplish. Magnanimous Boston, who takes the lead in celebrating the closing of the temple of Janus when it was no longer in her power to keep it open, and when finding war times no longer marketable, sets her organ to a peace melody, grinds away with the air of a composer, and passes around the hat with the confidence of a benefactor!

There is no objection to the musicians of Boston assembling together and making all the harmonious uproar of which they and all the machinery they are able to press into the service are capable.—There is no objection to their putting as high a price as they please upon their performances, and making out of them all the profit of which the thing is susceptible. But a celebration such as is contemplated, upon the predicate adopted—a grand national festival on the restoration of peace throughout the land, and that, of all the places in the world, in Boston, is, beyond measure, impudent and insolent.—St. Louis Republican.

"HAVE you seen my black faced antelope?" inquired Mr. Lescope, who had a selection of animals, of his friend Bottle Jack. "No, I haven't. Whom did your black faced aunt elope with?"

THE Christian is very frequently the only Bible the world will read. How and that the copy should be so defaced!

MOST of the shadows that cross our path through life are caused by our standing in our own light.

ITEMS FOR FARMERS.

ONE of the secrets of successful farming is to sell when others are buying, and buy when others are selling.

Pens should never be taken to the field direct from the swamps. It should be exposed to the atmosphere for six months or more, the longer the better, and composted with lime or unleached ashes.

THE Ohio Farmer, with its long experience, says that by using a two-horse plow, cut the four of soiling his boots, and to cut two rows of corn—ten furrows at once—while a Mississippian will take ten times over the same ground at the expense of his shoes, if not his toe-nails, to accomplish the same work.

EVERY bushel of wood ashes applied to the corn crop is worth one dollar.—The truth of the assertion has been practically demonstrated by the results of experiments accurately conducted. On all light soils the action is highly energetic and salutary, they exert a warming and invigorating influence, and promote the rapid growth of almost every species of vegetable production.

THE productive power of soil depends mainly upon its mechanical condition and chemical composition. Geology ascertains the one and analyzes the other.—Without analysis we are almost as ignorant of the properties of our soils as of their suitable methods of treatment as we are, in the absence of geological survey, of the minerals which lie beneath them. By analysis we find out what our soils contain and what they need; geology shows how and where the ingredients lacking may be supplied.

MANURES.—How few avail themselves of the great benefit they could derive from domestic manures! The barn yard, the rich guano of the poultry yard, the leached ashes, wood piles, fence corners, where manures have been accumulating for thirty years, ditch banks, the rich virgin soil in close proximity to the hill from which it slid, the road beds on the creeks in contiguity to their farms, daily come under our observation, and yet we will not profit by their use. How promotive of health if these things were removed to the fields to contribute to our wealth, instead of being a nuisance!

No man who cultivates the earth need expect remuneration without preparing his lands properly. If level, and likely to suffer from wet, it should be effectually drained; if rolling, or hill land, it should be encircled with ditches to retain the soil, and plowed horizontally.—No vegetable matter allowed to be burned but turned under. Both hill and level land may be made productive by deep plowing. Mere surface skinning will not pay—will not make a support. The best level land will soon tire, and yield but moderately, from shallow plowing, and even with good plowing will tire by continuous cropping.

A BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT.—A naval officer, being at sea in a dreadful storm, his wife who was sitting in the cabin near him, and filled with alarm for the safety of the vessel, was so surprised with his composure and serenity, that she cried out,

"My dear, are you not afraid?—How is it possible you can be so calm in such a dreadful storm?"

He rose from his chair, walked on the deck, supporting himself by a part of the bed-place, drew his sword, and presenting it to the breast of his wife, exclaimed:

"Are you afraid of that sword?"

She instantly answered, "No."

"Why?" said the officer.

"Because," rejoined the lady, "I know that it is in the hands of my husband, and he loves me too well to hurt me."

"Then," said he, "remember, I know in whom I believe, and that he holds the winds in his fist and the water in the hollow of his hands."

A BEAUTIFUL ALLEGORY.—A traveler who spent some time in Turkey relates a beautiful parable which was told him by a dervish, and which is one of the more beautiful than Bunyan's celebrated figure of the accusing spirit and recording angel. "Every man," said the dervish, "has two angels, one on his right shoulder and one on his left. When he does any thing good, the angel on the right shoulder writes it down and seals it because what has been well done is done forever. When he does evil, the angel on the left writes it down, and he waits till midnight. If before that time the man sows repentance, exclaims, 'Gracious Allah! I have sinned; forgive me!' the angel rubs out the record; but if not, at midnight he seals it, and the beloved angel on the right shoulder weeps."

Justices Brown and McCoy of the Supreme Court have decided that the negro is eligible to office the former by virtue of the 14th article of the Constitution declaring him a citizen, the other by virtue of his having participated in the formation of the State Constitution. Judge Warner dissented insisting that he could only hold office by special enactment, and that he had no such right under the common law or by statute.

[From the Georgia Clipper of Wednesday.

THE RADICAL OUTRAGE IN WARREN COUNTY.

We regret the necessity (and apologize to our readers for the insult) which compels the appearance of the name of J. C. Norris, in the columns of the Clipper. We had long since determined that our columns should not be befouled by the name of this despicable villain; yet such are the circumstances which surround us that our determination, in this instance, must succumb to the public good.

On the 12th, of March, 1869, J. C. Norris, sheriff of Warren County, having incited and counseled Dr. Darden to murder, and [illegible] Chas. Wallace, the former editor of this paper, and having witnessed the cowardly consummation of the murderous deed, abandoned his office, absconded, stole away in the darkness of night—a refugee from justice and his own murderous conscience, if conscience he ever had.

At the April term of the Superior Court, no sheriff appearing to execute its orders, Mr. John Raley, an upright, honest, high toned gentleman, was appointed according to law as sheriff of Warren. Mr. Raley has filled the office to the satisfaction of the entire County, white and black alike acknowledge his affability and justice.

Norris wended his way to Atlanta, allied himself with Bullock & Co., and to cover his own villainies, denounced the people of Warren as murderers and outlaws, and represented himself as a refugee from their wrath. The lying scoundrel, knowing all the while that he, J. C. Norris had advised and urged Darden to commit the cowardly assassination of the lamented Wallace. This charge he dare not deny.

Unable to convince the North by lying dispatches that Georgia, and especially Warren county, was disloyal—that the lives of Republicans were unsafe—that civil law was powerless—that blood flowed as free as water, and the murderers went unwhipt of justice—that the people were in deadly hostility to the North, and the administration of justice but the will of a mob—Bullock selects the [illegible], J. C. Norris, as a tool, and attempts to [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] On Tuesday, the 8th, instant, armed with Gubernatorial Orders which have not even the semblance of legality looking to his reinstallation to the office of sheriff, he visited Warrenton. From some cause not known to us, he returned to Atlanta on the following day. Monday he returned here with one hundred and fifty troops—increasing the garrison at this place to something over three hundred men.—[illegible] we expected and anxiously awaited it, for we regarded it as a "blessing in disguise."

We [illegible]—confident of the [illegible] of our citizens and [illegible] of their ultimate triumph. He assumed command of the military, and [illegible] prepared for his tyrannical work. He professed to be sheriff of Warren county, notwithstanding he had left the office of his own free will and accord, without appointing a deputy, without permission save his, of himself, and at a time when the law demanded his presence. His first act was to arrest Mr. John Raley, the present sheriff, and place him under military guard. Mr. Raley demanded his authority and the right to know for what he was arrested. Norris refused to accede to the demand and ordered the guard to carry him to the jail. A writ of habeas corpus was served, demanding the release of Mr. Raley.—Bail, to any amount was tendered. Norris refused to accept or acknowledge anything save the workings of his fiendish heart, and placed Mr. Raley in the dungeon of a county jail, remarking as he did so, "That is good enough for you." Showing by his every act and look the principle of a scoundrel and the animalism of his polluted heart, he closed the door of a felon's cell upon one of the purest citizens of our county, one whose life has been a continuous stream of morality, and whose status in every respect places him as high above Norris as heaven is above the fathomless depths of the infernal regions.

The high handed, lawless, arbitrary arrest—illegal in every sense—naturally aroused the indignation of every man who regarded his rights as respected law. Yet, we are proud to say, they calmly submitted to the indignity against them and the [illegible]. Unable to intimidate the proud spirit of Mr. Raley by threats and insults, he sought other victims. His cowardly heart forbid him making other arrests during the day, while his fiendish soul suggested the darkness of night for the prosecution of his personal grudge and fiendish schemes against our citizens.

A few hours after nightfall, a small party of young men were quietly enjoying themselves as amateur musicians. Norris regarded it as a demonstration in honor of Mr. Raley, and ordered them to desist.—Notwithstanding these gentlemen were upon private property, in no way contiguous to the jail, they obeyed the decree, and obtained permission to continue their enjoyment, provided they would perform inside of a building, and not on a piazza or street.—The ready compliance of these young men to this outrageous demand completely nonplussed the [illegible] tyrant. Where he expected resistance he found obedience.

Angered at the failure of his cherished hope, he attempted to force resistance. Summoning the military to his aid, and placing them at the door, he entered the room, insolently attempted to frighten the gentlemen by his impudent stare, [illegible] eyes upon Mr. E. E. Cody, asked his name, placed him in arrest, and with the assumed air of an Emperor ordered him to jail—neither exhibiting a warrant or assigning cause of arrest. Mr. Cody [illegible] submission to this illegal proceeding, [illegible] innocence of crime and confidence in the ultimate supremacy of civil law. His threat to chain Mr. Cody to the damp floor of a dungeon was met with a calm retort which dared him to do his worst, as he [illegible] [illegible] intimidation of such obnoxious scum as [illegible]

After this incarceration and apparently indiscriminate arrest of citizens was commenced, houses were entered and husbands dragged from the bosom of their families; fathers, brothers and relatives were taken from their homes at the dead hour of night and placed in a felon's cell; scenes of domestic consternation and grief [illegible] pleased the fiend in human form, and not until the [illegible] was exhausted (two o'clock, A. M.) did this rule of Radicalism cease. During the night the following gentlemen were imprisoned: Edward Cody, H. Martin, J. M. Cody, and Capt. A. J. Hartley. As in the case of Mr. Raley and E. E. Cody, no warrant was exhibited or cause assigned for their arrest. Still, the people [illegible] to the whims and [illegible] of the [illegible] fiend, J. C. Norris. Are people who submit to such high-handed indignities against their [illegible] rights, and patiently await their vindication by civil [illegible]

Early in the evening a writ of habeas corpus was served by the [illegible] upon Norris, which he refused to answer, and even threatened to imprison the [illegible] for discharging this duty.

On Tuesday morning Col. E. H. Pottle and J. [illegible] Hubert succeeded in forcing him to recognize the law and produce Mr. Raley before the Court. [illegible] claiming the extent of the law, Colonel Pottle demanded the right of bail for his client, and Mr. Raley was released upon a bond of $10,000 ($300,000 was offered) for his appearance before an examining court.

Norris having resorted to every villainous [illegible] to precipitate a conflict between the military and the citizens, endeavored to justify his illegal [illegible]. The Court patiently heard him, but couldn't see the "legal point." He then made his last, desperate [illegible] by fairly begging the citizens to turn the soldiers out of the Court House, but Col. Pottle informed him that the citizens had nothing against the soldiers [illegible] to their remaining.

At one o'clock an injunction against Norris was [illegible] from Judge Andrews, and civil law opened the jail doors to our honored citizens, and placed Mr. Raley our legal sheriff, in possession of the office [illegible] had been wrested from him by that skunk of creation, Chip Norris, backed by three hundred United States soldiers, who for the time being were disgraced by being compelled to obey his orders.

We would do injustice to Major Van Voast and the officers and men of his command, as well as to our own citizens, were we to close this article without expressing the thanks of our community and the gratitude of the gentlemen who were confined, for the gentlemanly manner in which the military conducted themselves while performing their disagreeable duty, the kindness extended to the prisoners, and respect shown by them for the supremacy of the civil [illegible] of the State.

The Marietta Journal.

Marietta, Georgia,

Friday Morning June 25, '69.

FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHEROKEE COUNTY.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—As one of your number, feeling a deep interest in the welfare of our once grand old State, and an especial interest in the honor, and the material and moral prosperity of our own county, I beg leave to call your attention to the following facts and suggestions, in view of the election next fall for a representative in the State legislature. The time will soon arrive. Let us not sleep over our interests, but let us begin to think and to act in the premises, so that we may put the right man in the right place. In order then that an end so desirable shall be accomplished, I propose that all who take an interest in the matter meet at Canton on the FIRST TUESDAY in August next, and select the men who will properly represent the views and interests of the people.

I propose 1. That we vote for no man who shall previously announce himself a candidate, for such an act is very presumptious, and there is "more hope of a fool than there is of a man who is wise in his own conceit."

2. That we vote for no man who is incapable of attending to his own business, for if such is the case, we may rest assured that he cannot and will not attend to ours. Let us therefore require in our candidate, sobriety, good common sense, and attention to business.

3. Let us support no men for the office (if we know it) who desires the position for the sake of the mileage and per diem, and as a test, let us require the man for whom we vote to pledge himself to vote against all extravagant appropriations Nine Dollars per diem included.

1. The State Road is a political machine, instead of a money machine which it might be if properly managed. It ought therefore to be put into the hands of others and help to pay our enormous taxes It is said that certain responsible parties agree to pay in advance for its use, fifteen thousand dollars per month more than it has been paying the lessee for some time past. That would be an extra annual income of $180,000,00—a nice little sum to be worse than lost! Our representative then should solemnly pledge himself to use all his influence to hire out, rent, or lease the State Road on such, or anything like such terms.

5. The man whom we elect to represent us should go pledged to do something to assist the young men in our midst who were wounded and disabled during the war, in acquiring an education. The man who would refuse to do such a thing, has a little mean soul, if he has any at all. Justice, humanity, patriotism, interest, all plead for that noble and unfortunate class. Let us not incur the guilt and shame of neglecting them.

The above suggestions are submitted by a "plain blunt man" who desires good government, and its attendant blessings peace and prosperity, for himself, his children and for all.

A FARMER.

☞ George D. Prentice has been a constant drinker for forty years. For ten years he has been a drinker of the lignum vitæ order. Here is a temperance lecture by him—worth a score, at least, of the templar exhortations and mirror-presentations:

"Men have tried many things, but still they ask for stimulant.

"Men try to bury the floating dead of their own souls in the wine cup, but the corpse rises. We see their faces in the bubbles. The intoxication of drink sets the world whirling again, and the pulses to playing music and the thoughts galloping, but the fast clock runs down sooner, and unnatural stimulant only leaves the house it filled with the wildest revelry, more silent, more sad, more deserted, more dead.

"There is only one stimulant that never intoxicates, duty. Duty puts a clear sky over every man, into which the sky lark, happiness, always goes singing."

MECHANICS.—They are the palace builders of the world; not a stick is hewn, not a stone shaped in all the lordly dwellings of the rich, that does not owe its beauty and fitness to the skill of the mechanic. The towering spires that raise their giddy heads among the clouds depend upon the mechanic's art for their strength and symmetry. Not an edifice for devotion, or business, or comfort, but bears the impress of their hands. How exalted is their vocation, how sublime their calling. Their path is one of true glory, and it is their own fault if it does not lead them to the highest point of honor and renown.

HOW TO MANAGE PRECOCIOUS CHILDREN.

[From Bulwer's "Philosophy of Living."]

Many of the most prominent children are sacrificed to a desire to bring them forward in advance of other children, and this desire is stimulated by natural instincts. Every living creature rejoices in the use of the faculties which God has given it, "as a strong man to run a race." The boy whose muscles are well developed will never keep still, but is ready for anything, good or bad, in which he can stir himself. To such a one study is a punishment.

But the boy whose muscles are feeble, and whose brain is largely developed, sits still and reads, and the appetite, of course conforms to the kind and amount of exercise. If he wastes his muscle in exercise, his appetite will demand the muscle making nitrates to supply the waste. If he wastes the phosphorous of the brain by study, he will desire phosphatic food to restore it. While the fat and stupid boy, who has neither muscle or brain, will crave carbonaceous articles to feed his stupidity; and indulgence in these appetites will of course increase the peculiarity.

I have seen the little king bird, after an hour of extraordinary exertions in driving from the neighborhood an intruding hawk, devote the next hour to catching bees and hornets, which abound both in nitrate and phosphorates, as a means of restoring his muscular and vital energy. The bird is safe in following his inclinations, living as it does according to natural laws; and having no abnormal development of faculties, and no abnormal appetites, it can eat what it desires and as much, with perfect impunity.

But the child changed in its condition, as it may be, by the ignorance and folly of its parents, even before its birth, is abnormally developed, and of course, has abnormal appetites. Indulging these appetites, in case of precocity of the brain, of course increases the excitement of the brain, and the result is inflammation and premature death.

A child with a precocious brain, or who is very forward, to use the common expression, is of course more liable to dangerous diseases of the brain than other children; but if parents would give the subject thought, and use their reason in this as in other less important matters, those diseases might generally be warded off.

If our eyes have been overworked, or are weak and liable to inflammation, we avoid overusing them, especially in the strong light, and if so inflamed that too much light and all use of them gives pain we shut out light altogether, and give them rest till they recover. Both light and seeing are pleasant to the eyes in health, and absolutely necessary to give them health and strength, but when diseased are both alike injurious, and we avoid the influence of both till they recover. And when only weak, and not absolutely diseased, we are careful to have the light or use the eye only moderately or carefully. So of any other organ or faculty—that which is necessary to it in health must be carefully used in tendency to disease.

Apply this principle to a precocious brain. The brain is as dependent on appropriate exercise and a supply of phosphorous in health as is the eye on exercise and light; and as we withdraw the exercise and light in weakness and disease, so should we allow the brain rest from exercise and phosphatic food in case of disease and premature development.

A TOUCHING STORY.

The Hon. A. H. Stephens, of Georgia, in a recent address, at a meeting at Alexandria, for the benefit of the Orphan Asylum and Free School of that city, related the following anecdote:

"A poor little boy, on a cold night, with no room or roof to shelter his head, no parental or natural guardian or guide to protect or guide him on his way, reached at nightfall the home of a wealthy planter, who took him in, fed and lodged him, and sent him on his way with his blessing. These kind attentions cheered his heart and inspired him with fresh courage to battle with the obstacles of life. Years rolled round. Providence led him on, and he reached the legal profession; his host had died; the cornerstone that prop up the substance of man, had formed a conspiracy to get from the widow her estates. She sent for the nearest counsel, to commit her cause to him, and that counsel proved to be the orphan boy long before welcomed and entertained by her deceased husband. The stimulus of a warm and tenacious gratitude was now added to the ordinary motive connected with the profession. He undertook her cause with a will not easy to be resisted; he gained it; the widow's estates were secured 'to her in perpetuity'" and Mr. Stephens added, with an emphasis of emotion, that sent an electric thrill throughout the house, "that day stands before me!"

A LOVE-LETTER

The following is sublimely splendid, and we recommend it as a model to letter-writers:

"MY DEAR Miss M.—Every time I think of you my heart flops up and down like a churn-handle. Sensations of unutterable joy caper over it like young goats on a Scotch hill. As a gosling swimmeth with delight in a mud-puddle, so swim I in a sea of glory. Visions of ecstatic rapture thicker than the hairs on a blacking brush, and brighter than the hues of a parrot's pinions, visit me in my slumbers; and, borne on their invisible wings, your image stands before me, and I reach out to grasp it, like a pointer snapping at a blue-bottle fly.—When I first beheld your angelic perfections I was bewildered, and my brain whirled around like a bumble bee under a glass tumbler. My tongue refused to wag, and in silent adoration I drank in the sweet infection of love as a thirsty man swalloweth a tumbler of beer.—Since the light of your face fell upon my life, I sometimes feel as I could lift myself up by my straps to the top of the steeple, and pull the bell rope for church. Day and night you are in my thoughts. When Aurora, blushing like a bride, rises from her saffron couch, when the chanticleers's shrill clarion heralds the coming morn; when the awakened pig arieth from his bed and grunteth, and goeth for his morning refreshments; when the drowsy beetle wheels his droning flight at sultry noon-tide; and when the lowing cows come home at milking time, I think of thee—and like a piece of gum elastic, my heart seems to stretch clear across my bosom. Your hair is like the mane of a sorrel horse, powdered with gold. Your forehead is smoother than the elbow of an old coat. Your eyes are glorious to behold. When their fire hit me upon my manly breast it penetrated my whole anatomy, as a load of bird shot would go through a rotten apple. Your nose is from a block of Parian marble, and your mouth puckered with sweetness. Nectar lingers on your lips, like honey on a boar's paw; and myriads of unfledged kisses are there, ready to fly out somewhere, like birds out of a parent's nest.—Your laugh rings in my ears like the wind harp's strain, or the bleat of a stray lamb on a bleak hillside.

"I am dying to fly to thy presence, and pour out the burning eloquence of my love, as thrifty housewives pour out hot coffee. Away from you, I am as melancholy as a sick rat. Sometimes I can hear the June bugs of despondency buttoning in my ears, and feel the cold lizards of despair crawling down my back.—Uncouth fears, like a thousand minnows, nibble at my spirits; and my soul is pierced with doubts, as a choore is boared by the "auger." My love for you is stronger than the kick of a young cow, and more unselfish than a kitten's first caterwaul. As the song birds hankers for the light of day, the cautious mouse for the fresh bacon in the trap—as a lean pup hankers for pow mill, so I long for thee.

"If these few remarks will enable you to see the inside of my soul, and me to win your affections, I shall be as happy as a sparrow in a cherry tree, or a calf in a green pasture. If you cannot reciprocate my thrilling passion, I shall pine away like a poisoned bed bug, and fall away from the flourishing vine of life, and untimely branch; and, in the coming years, when the shadows grow from the hills, and the whippoorwill frog sings his cheerful evening hymn, you, happy in another's love, can come and drop a tear and catch a cold upon the last resting-place of JULIUS EUPHEMIUS MUGGINS."

BENEFITS OF A LOCAL PAPER.

Speaking of local papers, an exchange truthfully remarks that they enhance the value of property; they secure manufactories for peace; they call attention to locality; they benefit particularly merchants, real-estate owners, and farmers thrice the amount yearly they pay for their support. There is nothing that would do a county, or town, or city more harm than to be without a newspaper. This every sensible man knows. The local paper is necessary. You need not think that the publisher of a paper can run it for your benefit and pay the expenses out of his own pocket. Give your home paper a good advertising patronage and a respectable subscription list, and you will have then just such a paper you will wish.

THERE were two classes in the day of Noah's flood, those who were inside the ark, and those who were without; two in the parable of the Gospel net, those who are called the good and bad; and those who are called the bad; two in the parable of the ten virgins, the wise and foolish; two described as fools; two in the account of the judgment day, the sheep and the goats; two sides of the throne, the right hand and the left; two abodes when the sad sentence has been passed, heaven and hell.—Southern Churchman.

The Marietta Journal.

Marietta, Georgia.

Friday Morn. June 25, 1869.

Marietta Female College Exhibition.

Marietteans should be thankful that when stagnation reigns in the air of our own social circles, the educational institutions, with which we are fortounded, occasionally favor us with an entrance into their literary and musical atmosphere. Marietta has of late been chary of her entertainments and the best public has sighed in vain for a repetition of those delightful recitals which have formed such pleasant episodes in previous school years; but with the coming of spring, of summer, of birds and flowers, the powers that be" relented, and the literary and musical genius which has been perfecting for months within academic walls, was permitted to blossom for the inspection of patrons and admiring friends.

The entertainment at Nichols' Hall, both Thursday and Friday evenings, surpassed public expectation, high as that had been raised. We have attended other performances where everything passed off so smoothly, but there was much of pleasing novelty attending this which others have lacked, and which will cause it be recalled with more distinctiveness. That the entertainment had great attraction for post sliders was verified by the large attendance both evenings and especially the last evening of the performance, it being impossible to seat all in attendance.

The exercises the first evening was opened with prayer by Rev. J. E. ROGERS, and the second evening by Rev. W. F. COOK.

The juvenile did remarkably well in the delivery of their declamations, and the Essays by the young ladies, caused by our fickle pen fossils that gained which they merited, and which we briefly note each composition, we hope our failure to do justice, will not be attributed to a want of willingness to do so, but to our inability.

The first essay, on "Youth," by Miss Julia Anderson, was listened to by us with marked attention.—It was very creditable.

Miss Emma Baker's essay on "Perseverance," visited a severe rebuke on those who habitually say, "I can't." It was well composed and ideally interesting.

Miss Lee Boozman elucidated eternal truths in her composition entitled "Mother," a name that we love to dwell on in sweet meditation.

Miss Estelle Burton's essay on "Science," was "rich, rare and racy," and carried the house by a storm of merriment. She has a voice that is clear and shrill, giving her composition that taint of witty sarcasm, that makes it inexpressly interesting.

Miss Maggie Chaloner (from Troup County,) Ga. She so beautifully portrayed and eulogized our country, that it awakened within us a love for it, that we were previously unconscious of.

The essay "Try," by Miss Lizzie Haynes, was one that pleased all in its comical sayings. Miss Lizzie acquitted herself with praise.

Miss Mollie Henderson's essay, "Nature and Art," was one which showed medium study, it was elaborately and beautifully conceived, and read apparently without embarrassment.

"Night," in its quietude and loveliness, was most excellent, by the light of intelligence from the brain of Miss Delia Lowery.

"Pride" was dissected of its costly garments and held up to scorn and contempt, by the modest Miss Lizzie Marlow.

Miss Julia Morris taught a wholesome lesson to those who are of that turn of mind of enquiring into other people's business. If was not more idle curiosity that prompted her to choose the subject of "Curiosity" for the consideration of her theme.

Miss Lottie Nutting treated us to a rich description of "Country Life," that reflected much credit to herself.

Miss Minnie Nutting knew exactly how to please us, or she would not have made "City Life" so beautiful. It was an excellent production.

Miss Ella Page showed truthfully the evil effects of "Idleness," and she put well-meaning words in each sentence, but not for the idler.

Misses Lotty Page and Leola Reid, both enhanced our pleasure by their beautifully composed essays on the "Sabbath," showing the goodness of God in the wise provision of setting apart one day out of seven for man and beast to cease from labor.

To show that "To Educate Woman is to Refine the World," was the task of Miss Laura Wallace, and well did she succeed.

"Conversation," in its purity and loveliness, as well as in its ruinous and odious aspects, was portrayed to the audience, by Miss Mamie Lester, in language that did justice to the subject and credit to herself.

"A Modern Belle" would not have been pleased to hear the practical truths so set forth by Miss Georgia Jones, in her faithful portraiture. Miss Jones, we opine, will make a graceful and favorite writer.

Miss Bessie Bell spoke in tones of pride as well as those of love in reading "Excelsior," it was an able and eloquent production and received our profound admiration.

The "Odes of the Infant Bramin," by Miss Carol Berkhalter, was rendered peculiarly interesting and was executed with tact and talent.

"Woman's Influence" was palpable even while Miss Ella Curry enlightened us in regard to its potency for good or evil. Sweetness of composition and elegance of style of this essay, was well calculated to wield an influence for good.

"The Creation" was dedicated to our conception in such lucid language that we had almost become persuaded that we viewed its beauties with the natural instead of the mind's eye. We pronounce it a splendid composition, and one that reflects great credit upon Miss Ella Pandee the authoress.

After "The Creation" came, "The Judgment," by Miss Marie Pandee, that was soul-stirring and pathetic, and a production that might be styled "good Readers," and of course delight to peruse.

Miss Mattie Harris' composition, "Take a bright shell from its bliss on the Sea, &c.," was one long grand praise and displayed an intellect of no ordinary caliber.

Miss Mamie Montgomery's "Charm String" was beautiful in language as well as testimonials, and from which we readily perceived that she possessed great descriptive powers.

Miss Mattie Marshall proved, no doubt, "How to make old age honorable and comfortable," whether she did it or not we cannot say. In all this gesticulation there was considerable confusion near the door, owing to the crowded state of affairs, that caused the delivery to be very indistinct to us.

The composition, "Man was made to mourn," by Miss Katie Phillips, is what we consider excellent.—Miss Katie is a fine reader and has an eloquent delivery.

"My Ring, or the Old Mission House," by Miss Ella Randell, was very lengthy and highly interesting, owing to the fact that it was founded on facts. It embodied language that showed genius.

"The Picture" was pictured by us in bright and glowing colors, by Miss Dimple Reid, encouraging and animating to despondent humanity.—Miss Dimple is a young lady of fine intellectual culture and wields a pen with tact and practical ability and of whom the city of LaGrange may well feel proud.

In regard to the music which was interspersed during the reading of the essays, we must say that all the performers seemed to be gifted with that musical gauge which so many make the born musician, as the "Divine afflatus" does the poet. We imagine that Miss Clifton, the musical teacher, as well as President Montgomery, Prof. Marget and others, must have been satisfied, at least, with their training.

Methodist Sabbath School Anniversary.

The Twenty fifth Anniversary of the Marietta Methodist Sunday School was held on last Sabbath afternoon at the Methodist Church. The exercises were opened with singing an anniversary hymn by the School, and prayer by Rev. Mr. Rogers, of the Presbyterian Church. Rev. V. E. MANGET, Superintendent, read the annual report setting forth many living results, the report was followed by Mr. Wm. ROOT, Superintendent of the Episcopal Sunday School, in some interesting remarks concerning the history of the Sunday School work in this city, showing how, from a very small beginning, in the form of an adult school, the work had enlarged and number of schools increased.

Impressive addresses were delivered by Hon. Wm. H. ANDREWS, Rev. Mr. ROGERS and Maj. PATTON, of Alabama, to which the children and the grown up people listened with like attention and interest. After which, our young friend, FRANK SMITH, in behalf of the class of which he is a member, presented in a very appropriate speech a handsome gift to their teacher.

The exercises were interspersed throughout with delightful singing by the children. Taken as a whole, it was an interesting occasion, affording agreeable entertainment for two hours to the large audience assembled, and gratifying encouragement to those immediately connected with the school.

We take great pleasure in alluding to the fact, that the Sunday School cause is being most zealously promoted in our city. Each Church has a flourishing School under its care, and the occasion we have been describing, indicated very clearly, that the Methodists are not disposed to lag behind the rest, in this good work.

A Distinguished Georgian.

At the Annual Convocation of the University of Toronto (Canada) we find the following interesting portion of the proceedings:

"Dr. McLeod then rose to introduce the Prince of Wales' prizeman, Mr. M. CUMMING. In doing so he said that it was with peculiar pleasure that he presented the prizeman, because it was the proceeds of a fund given to the University at the time of the visit of His Royal Highness to this country. It differed from all other rewards in that it is for general proficiency. In presenting Mr. Cumming, he did not propose to read the figures which, as general proficiency, which he obtained by being first in metaphysics and English, 1st in mathematics, second also in classics, a combination never before achieved. He felt a peculiar pleasure at this result, because from the very first outbreak into the Universe, the recipient's conduct, demeanor and progress had been most satisfactory. But there was another reason, and lastlyought there would be a large amount of sympathy accorded the recipient on the same account. He came from the south of the dominion but it is to the north and the neighboring country, and was not a Canadian. They lost the pleasure for some years back in welcoming friends from the other side, and he very distinctly remembered that three years ago one from New York was the under their names high in the list of academic honours. After that they found that Kentucky took the lead, but now, last of all, Georgia has stepped there by her son.—The father of the prizeman resided in Marietta just before the war a relative we believe of our townsman Hy. R. S. SWEAT."

☞We would call the attention of all who desire to obtain a perfectly pure liquor to the advertisement of Risbrgen & Co., (established 1778, No. 15 Beaver St. ext, N. Y.) published in another column. Their "Risbrgen's Old London Dock Gin" is especially designed for the use of the Medical Profession and the Family, and the high reputation of that well known firm is staked upon the excellence of this standard article.

Risbrgen's "Old London Dock Gin" has long been in favor with the profession as a remedial agent. It has the peculiar advantage over other difficile alcohol, that it exhilarates without creating any thirst or an unhealthy character, it soothes while it absorbs/etc., and is a powerful nervine as well as an active tonic, and it possesses all the qualities that can be desired for the highest and noblest uses of all wines or liquors. Its ingredients are the distilled juices of carefully selected grains, made delicately pungent and flavorous with the aromatic fortune of the Juniper Berry.—Any lie-molested all the wounded aromas, and gives an exquisite mildness—a smooth, oily body—an almost BALM in the liquid, which renders it delicate to the sense of smell and taste alike, while its sparkling liquid purity leaves nothing for the dregs.

Wonderful Southern Discovery

In the South where Liver complaint and bilious diseases prevail to so great an extent, there has long been felt a need of a medicine that would act speedily and promptly on the LIVER, restoring it to its normal functions, and at the same time be safe, free of calomel, and yet so simple that it might be used by any one. It is claimed that Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills supplies this want. They act directly on the Liver, the constant use will not injure in the slightest degree the most delicate constitution. It makes at any period they use them with great benefit and receives great relief from the distressing causes which they experience at certain times. These pills are not recommended as a universal cure all, but simply for diseased Liver, and those maladies which follow a disorganized of that important organ, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Costiveness, Piles, Jaundice, Sour Stomach, Ladies Heartburn, Chills and Fever, Foul Breath, Restlessness at night, and Dizziness. These pills should be in every Drug Store of any note in the South and West.

Railroad Bridge on Powder Spring Street

We learn that the Superintendent of the W. & A. Railroad, Mr. HUBBERT, was in our place a few days since and that among other matters on which he expressed an interest was the rebuilding of the above named bridge destroyed during the war.—While it is a work coming properly under the official duties of Mr. HUBBERT he will permit us to say that in its accomplishment he would very much gratify the people of Marietta.

A VISIT TO MARIETTA.

It sometimes happens, even to a busy man, that he is privileged to throw away, for a time, his toil, and suffer distance to make an imperfect of the sadness of home. Such seasons of recreation are indeed pleasant and furnish green oases in our desert life. Never, however, has it fallen to our lot to spend a day more pleasantly, than was passed last Friday in Marietta, the Queen City of North Georgia. It is indeed a great city, whether as a place of trade, intelligence, beauty, wealth, or a place of pleasure. Marietta is a great city. Macon has her attractions, Atlanta her capitol and railroads, Columbus an extensive trade, Augusta her unrivalled facilities, Savannah her commercial interests, but Marietta is a great city. The traveller in quest of pleasure may search Georgia complete, gaze with admiration upon her mountain scenery, magnificent waterfalls, foaming cataracts, and every other beauty which nature has so profusely scattered throughout her vast domain, but to Marietta he will find all that mind could wish or heart desire.

That Middle Georgia is favored by pleasant reminiscences of boyhood's happiest hours was the most desirable portion of this green spread earth. Later down in life's sinful course we have contemplated South-Western Georgia with all the enthusiasm of early manhood; but now we assert that Marietta is a great city.

She has broad and shady streets, a population unsurpassed in intelligence and business tact, daughters unsurpassed in beauty and loveliness, one of the springlitest weekly journals in the State, and she is emphatically a great city. Pardon this digression, Mr. Editor, for I only intended to notice briefly the closing scenes of the Semi Annual Examination of the Female Institute. "Female College" under its able Faculty. I tell you that Friday night was indeed a gala night. The young ladies who read compositions on that occasion will exert a more powerful influence upon their Alma Mater than all else besides. They are indeed an honor to the Institution and the Faculty have just cause to be proud of them. Especially so,—if the class will pardon a seeming partiality—was this true of the compositions of Misses Barkhalter, Fambro, Montgomery, Phillips and Randell. The reader Miss Jessie Hall has few equals. Indeed where each young lady acquitted herself so creditably, comparisons would be odious. Take it altogether, I hazard nothing in saying that the exercises of the Junior and Senior Classes have not been excelled by any kindred institution of the land. And I could but feel after being entertained with the "feast of reason and the flow of soul," that there was life in the old land, yet.—Our visit was much enhanced by a pleasure in meeting with President Montague. We had not seen him for years; hence time had not estranged us in feeling, and we could but congratulate him upon his class. We also made the acquaintance of Professor Stringer, his accomplished assistant, whom if we mistake not is one of nature's noblemen. Marietta should indeed be proud of her College, and strive to render it yet more of an ornament to her State. It must not neglect Miss Clifton, the accomplished Instructress in Music. I know her well, have known her long, and feel that she is entirely competent for her sacred trust.

After the exercises the young folks forgetting the restraints of College life passed a few hours in the innocent amusement of the dance. Being an old man we could not appreciate this finale as we would have done in "days lang syne," but then we must confess, (if you wont tell the pastor of our church) that we did feel somewhat inclined to participate in the "hilarity" of the occasion. Had enough! I have been to Marietta and feel richly compensated by my trip.

Eubanks, Ga., June 21st 1869.

THE only way to be a gentleman is to have the feelings of one; to be generous in proper acceptation; to be elevated above others in sentiment rather than in situation, and to let the benevolence of the heart be manifested in the general courtesy and affability of the demeanor.

ONE more flower has been dropped upon the Arlington graves, in the shape of the Washington riots—the rose of summer—or the first rose of summer, no matter which it is either name it smells equally sweet.

FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.
COMMUNICATED.

NEAR POWDER SPRINGS, COBB CO., GA. June 18th, 1869.

Youth is a beautiful season of life. It is full of brightness and radiant with smiles. It may well be compared to a rivulet that has just left its mountain, bubbling source, which dances along amid the beauty and freshness of the upland scenery, kissing the flowers that dip their fragrant lips in its silvery waves, before it reaches the great sparkling stream to which it is unconsciously hastening."

Oh, youth, out of the Sunny South only, idol of the United States, youth of once free and noble America, rise up and stand in the time and the good! You have no time or strength to waste. Your duties are upon you. Evils are starting you in the face. It is yours to meet them with a noble defiance, and stay their progress of ruin.

Let an humble citizen admonish you to do away with the lethargy which does not see exciting so powerfully, and so ruinously, all over this whole land and country. Trample under foot the carelessness of the hour, and the petty interest of the day," and be what Washington, the Father of our Country, desired it to be, a united people—friends and brothers.

"Brothers again, my sons, be one as ours,
Nor stain your country with her children's gore."

The times call for high born, self-controlled youth. "The age beseeches for holy meditation, and calm resolution in its high duties, on the part of the rising generation."

Nations are begging in solemn earnestness, for nobler leaders. States are asking for wisdom and prudence to sit in their chairs of authority. The masses of mankind, bound by the chains forged in their own passion-fires, are calling aloud for deliverance. Who shall answer these calls, but the youth of to-day? Who shall learn to control the world, by first controlling themselves, and stepping, with eye bent above, upon the ladder of truth and progress," but the youth of the nineteenth century? Never before were the calls upon the young so powerful and distinct as now, and I will here remark, that it is not for your country alone that you should labor, but in connection therewith, the good of your immortal souls. See you that your own prosperity, peace, and happiness, that the harmony and progress of the social compact, and the usefulness, power, and glory of your country, are to be measured by the degree of wisdom with which you control and direct the mighty and immortal powers which God has placed in your hands. Be pointed to the side about you for assistance in this great and noble work, "to the experience of the world, the wisdom of age, the great examples of virtues, the word of God." And all but, you meditate upon your ways, and be wise, that you may grow into temples of spiritual beauty and everlasting peace.

THE MYSTERY OF EDITING.

Some individual, whose head is perfectly level, hath the following to say about editors:

"We eat a hasty dinner, but do not think of the farmer that raised the materials thereof, or the cook that prepared them with infinite pains and skill.—But a cook of vegetables, meats, pastries, and infinite bonbons, has a particular idea to wedge in with each editor. He lets his pen run in review all the exchange newspapers. He is to know all their contents, and to mark for other eyes the matter that requires attention. His scissors are to be ready to clip with incessant industry all the little items that together form so large an interest in the news department. He passes in review each State in the Union, through the newspaper lens. He looks across the ocean, and in strange lands, and following the sun, he searches all round the world for material. It will require but two seconds' time for the reader to take in what two hours' search produced. By him are read the manuscripts that swarm the office like flies in July. It is his crown that dooms them. It is his hand that sends them on their page into a line. It is his sternness that restrains sentimental obituaries, that gives young poets a twig on which to sit and sing their first lays.

And the power behind the throne in newspapers, as in higher places, is sometimes as important as the throne itself. Correspondents, occasional or regular, stand in awe at that silent power, which has the last chance at an article, and may send it forth in glory or humility. And in short, as the body depends upon a good digestion, so the health of a paper depends upon that vigorous digestion which goes on by means of the editor. Ought they not to be honored? And since little can attend to them, they should at least have their reverence comforts made plain. From that dark and dismal den in which they have so long had purgatorial residence, they are at length translated.

A MINISTERIAL COMEDY.

Mr. Fly used to tell a little story of a brother clergyman, Rev. Mr. Gay, of Suffield, which story was a good illustration of Yankee "cuteness." Several similar anecdotes have appeared in print; but this is a genuine one, we believe.

Among Mr. Gay's parishioners was a well-to-do farmer named Brown, of whom, who was especially desirous of his free-will tithes as good minister. This farmers errand and "chore" boy getting big enough to take his place at the plough, a new boy was engaged to service. Enough, arrived at his home, I dined from the poor house. To this the promoted boy discovered quite readily—"You boy get full pretty nice place, I tell you, and if you behave they'll use you well, give you plenty of good victuals, a suit of broadcloth, winter clothes, white shirts (and not work you too hard. But one thing—you'll have to go on errands to the minister's pretty often, and lug big baskets of things; and the worst of it is that you'll never get nothing but thanks from the parson and his folks—as much as a dollar for your pains."

Johnny heard and pondered; and it happened that the very next morning he was sent to the minister's with a heavy quarter of veal, about the meet he could carry. The way was long, and the weather was warm, and when he reached the parsonage he was not in the sweetest of tempers. He marched into the breakfast room without knocking or removing his hat; and, setting down his basket, said gruffly:

"Ah! indeed," said the minister, blandly. "I am obliged to him. Are you Mr. Brown's new boy?"

"Yes."

"Well, my lad, when you have been in his family a while longer, your manners will doubtless improve."

"Why, what's the matter with my manners?" asked the boy with a look of stupid astonishment.

"Why, my boy, they are little shrewd and discourteous. Now your way of presenting Mr. Brown's present was not just what it should have been. I think I can show you, so that you will know what to do next time. I will personate you, and you may pretend you are me, for a few minutes."

Saying this the minister took up the basket, went into the entry and closed the door. Then he knocked gently.

The boy having seated himself in the ministers chair, and put on a grave and reverent aspect, called out, "Come in."

Entering very quietly and deferentially, though with difficulty preserving his gravity, holding his hat in one hand and the basket in the other, the minister approached his proxy and said, with a low bow, "Master Brown sends this complimentary and begs that you will accept this quarter of veal, Mr. Gay."

"I am very much obliged to Mr. Brown, and to you, too, my boy," said Johnny, with an air of unusual gravitation; "but it seems to me that it's a big load for so small a lad to carry."

Just take it to the kitchen and ask Mrs. Gay to give you a quarter of a dollar."

Nobody ever enjoyed this story better than Mr. Gay himself, except, perhaps, Mrs. Gay, who promptly paid over the quarter to the clever little actor.

He ought to have made a great lawyer. Perhaps he did, and ended his days on the bench.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN GEORGIA.

The Protestant Episcopal Church in Georgia is now in a flourishing ground. The Bishop, there are thirty clergymen in union with the Diocese, representing thirty-five churches and ten missions; six hundred and sixteen communicants, (two hundred and twenty-five added during Convention year, ending May 5, 1869), the baptisms were sixty-two adults, three hundred and sixteen infants, and three hundred and fifty confirmations; Sunday schools, four hundred and forty added, one hundred and seventy-nine removed, thirty-one deaths and five withdrawn. An evidence of the earnestness and liberality of the church people in supporting their own, the whole sum of $16,000 was contributed for missionary aims, Diocesan missions, foreign missions, other dioceses, and charitable objects, exclusive of the large sums of thirty-five churches and one hundred and eighty-four dollars and seventy-five cents. This is at least about $25 each by women, and reflects much credit upon the ladies of the church, especially in view of the fact that they are excellent managers of their own finances. It is not improper to add that the Bishop's salary is $2,500 per annum, and that he is doing much to build up the Church throughout the State.—The Orange Democrat.

Rev. D. B. Hamilton.

We learn that Rev. Mr. HAMILTON of the Baptist Church intends leaving and stay among us. Rev. Mr. Hamilton is an able and learned Divine and a forcible speaker and we regret very much losing such an excellent citizen. His place cannot be easily filled.

Sabbath Breakers.

Parents where are your boys during the Sabbath day; are you sure they are at the Sabbath School or Church? We had hinted to us, that if it had not been for the timely aid of a negro, a little white boy o Marietta would have been drowned while in swimming at Meigs' Pond last Sunday. Here is work for the army of Sabbath School Agents.

The Wheat Crop.

The wheat product of 1869 has seldom been equalled. Abundant crops have been produced in the West, and in the South the yield was never better. Prices in Tennessee, "will be about $1." In North Georgia, at $1.50. In this vicinity at about $1.25. Of course prices will remain unsettled until the crop comes in more freely.

Water-Proof Sidewalk.

Economy is the thrifty housewife that turns everything to advantage and Maj. WINN recognizing this fact has constructed on the west-side of the Masonic Building a "water proof" side-walk.—Having had the Masonic Building newly roofed he took the old roof and did as above stated. It makes a better side-walk than most people may imagine.

Burke's Weekly for Boys and Girls.

This paper is steadily progressing to public favor. The "Two hundred" paid, received—completes the second volume. The third volume begins in July, with a new and thrilling story, by the author of "Jack Hazard and a Boy's Adventures in Texas," to be called The Adventures of Toby Trotter, the Texas Runaway. Now is the time to subscribe. Terms $2 a year, or three copies for $4.50.

Address J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Georgia.

A Strike.

The Confederate Cemetery lands have been on a "strike" for higher wages. Railroad contractors have made laborers scarce in this vicinity, and those colored individuals being aware of the fact thought it the time to take advantage by demanding their own price, and immediately made a "strike," leaving the Superintendent without any one to bury the large number of dead bodies that had already arrived. The Superintendent did not accede to their demand and consequently these would be regulators of the price of labor, are promenading the streets in their "good clothes" enjoying peace and freedom.

Maxims for Business Men.

When a business man reaches the point where he thinks that he can not spare any time to examine matters of financial and commercial information, he may safely conclude that his business is not well managed.

When a business man finds himself in a financial situation so embarrassing that he can not afford to publish every publication that would throw some light upon his business transactions, he should not delay making arrangements with an auctioneer to close out his stock to the highest bidder.

The above maxims are taken from the columns of The N. Y. MERCANTILE JOURNAL, which is the best as well as one of the largest monthly newspapers ever published in the United States. Its market reviews and carefully revised lists of jobbers' prices, embracing almost every quotable article of merchandise, together with its judicious editorials, fill more than thirty-five (35) columns every week. The subscription price is only $5.00 per year, (less than 10 cents per week, and less than 1½ cents per day.) Parties desiring this valuable publication, should address The New York Mercantile Journal Co., 350 Pearl street, New York City.

LAUGHABLE.—A laughable incident happened at our leading theatre, the other night, which seriously compromises the reputation of one of the cleverest members of the corps dramatique.

In one of the spectacles now being played, it was necessary to have an Elephant—a genuine live one was not to be had, consequently one was improvised, and Mr. —— was selected to do the fore legs of the beast, and move his eyes and ears—a happy thought struck him, although rarely discussed in the sequel. Towards the close of the performance the audience observed that the Elephant was very unsteady in front, and finally, amid much merriment, plodded howling into the orchestra stall, carrying his under posterior with him—crushing musicians and basket-into a pulpy stricken mass. Upon raising the unfortunate elephant behind the scenes for "reconstruction" two bottles were found bearing the suggestive label, "Bishop's Old London Dock Gin —a delicious tonic, especially destined for family and medicinal use. No. 15 Beaver Street, N. Y." Two had placed the bottom of the bottles so as to represent the eyes of the Elephant—keeping his mouth in support with the snout.

"THE NATION'S JUBILEE."

The Time, the Week, the immortal Month
May shout "all hail the glorious Fourth"
And common ancient with Southern guns,
May hollow as in days of yore:
To me these sound like Freedom's knell:
A pale of woe my soul to hell;
While hunters sweet from rest to rest,
On this "the nation's Jubilee!"

Rejoice! let all who can, rejoice!
And to my heart and note my voice,
Yet this day sacred day I'll keep,
And sit by Liberty's throne and weep;
And think of life-ships that are lost,
Of those who gave, and what they cost—
My harp is on the willow tree,
On this "the nation's Jubilee!"

Land of homestead! Washington!
O land of gallant Marion!
Was it for this swung it for Bunker
For weary years our Father's fought?
Was it for this their bleeding feet
Oft pressed the earth and stained the sleet?
Was it that ignorant slaves might reign
And bind the free with galling chains!

Go ask the sea, and mid its roar,
"No!" shall indignant upon the shore!
Go ask the gently flowing river,
And it will murmur "never!" "never!"
Go ask the stillest trees which wave
Over many a freeman's hounded grave;
And go for replyers justly then.
The waving trees will answer "no!"

No! yet it is my Country's fate
To be oppressed and down-trod!
How long? O Lord! how long till then
Shall bleed the chains which bind us now?
How long shall dire oppression reign,
And helpless victims pay in vain?
Kind hearers! we lift our eyes to thee,
On this "the nation's Jubilee!"

Marietta Bible Society.

The annual meeting of this Society, being its Twenty-Third Anniversary, was held on Sunday afternoon, June 27th, at the Presbyterian Church.

In the absence of the President and Vice President, the meeting was opened with the reading of Scriptures, Prayer and Singing by the Rev. W. A. Parks, Agent for the American Bible Society for this District.

From the Report of the Treasurer and Depositary, Mr. Wm. Root, it appears the transaction of the Society during the year have covered an aggregate of $319.27.

Interesting addresses were made by Col. Gov. N. Lester and Rev. Mr. Parks, after which a subscription was taken up amounting to $21.85.

The old officers were unanimously re-elected. After singing doxology and benediction, meeting adjourned.

An Executive meeting was then held, when it was decided to have monthly meetings hereafter of the Executive Board, on the Second Monday in each month at 9 o'clock A. M. Place of meeting to be designated from time to time by the Board.

RESOLUTIONS OF CITY COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Council present His Honor G. W. CLELAND and a full board of Aldermen present, the following resolutions was passed:

Resolved, That we tender to the Hon. E. HULBERT the able, efficient and satisfactorily Superintendent of the Western & Atlantic Rail Road, our thanks for the interest manifested in the growth and material prosperity of our City, especially so, for the recent passed building of the rail road bridge on Powder Springs Street.

Resolved further, That it is the sense of this body, that while he as a citizen of our sister city of Atlanta and of right feels a commendable interest in the material welfare growth of that city, yet his heart is warm enough, and mind expansive enough to take in every hamlet, town and city on the line of his work—thus securing by his energy and efficient labor, the greatest good to the greatest number, for which, he should receive the united thanks of the people, of not only of Cherokee, but of the State.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the JOURNAL and that the Clerk of this Council forward a copy to Hon. E. HULBERT.

WHITE MEN EATING NEGROES.

Can there be such Cannibals in North Carolina? or, is there a fault in the grammer. An exchange says:—

"We glean from the North Carolina papers that Dr. Grissom, the head of the Lunatic Asylum, invited the legislative committee to dine. The committee appeared to eat his good things, prominent among them a lusty African, named Howe."

THE NEGRO AT THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.—A Washington special says:

Congress last winter passed a law over the veto of Mr. Johnson striking out the word white from all local laws in this District. The first practical effect of it was witnessed the first of the month in the election of colored city officials. The second result came off to-day in an order from the Judge of the Criminal Court of this city to the Marshal not only to make no distinction on account of color in impaneling juries, but to select at once for this term of the court a number of negro petit and grand jurymen.—The Marshal, who is a brother-in-law of the President never enforced the law before, but to-day he is giving it the full construction, and has summoned a dozen colored men. Even here, where the color question is so constantly agitated, this curse creates a decided sensation.

ANDY JOHNSON PROVING HIS LOYALTY.—The Bristol News says, Andy Johnson went to register as a voter in Greenville last week, and had to "prove his loyalty," which put Andy to his trumps—inasmuch as he had stolen nothing—always kept white company—a clean face and whole breeches—could read and write, never stoned his mother or kicked his wife out of doors. The Commissioner of Registration decided that "the fax was agin him," and it took all of Johnson's tactics and stubbornness to work through. But he did it, and is now recognized as a legal voter in East Tennessee.

WAR AND PESTILENCE IN CUBA.—The Cuban patriots, we are told, have been doubly blessed this summer. They prayed for the appearance of yellow fever to thin the Spanish ranks, and have not only received that, but the cholera in addition. A correspondent of the New York Times says: "The cholera has broken out with incredible force among the troops at Nuevitas and other points on the coast, and is already marching with fearful strides toward the interior. The Havana journals keep this fact secret. At a meeting of the Board of Health yesterday (June 12) it was resolved to allow the steamers Triumfo and Pajaro to land their passengers and freight, without subjecting them to quarantine or even to fumigation; but it was resolved to fumigate all vessels arriving after that date. To give you an idea of the strength of the cholera, I barely cite two instances: Seven Cubans captured a Spanish Lieutenant and three men, who had gone on a hunting expedition near Nuevitas, and were leading them towards an insurgent encampment. They rested during the night near Altamisal. In the morning only one Spanish soldier was alive, the other ten having died during the night. The second case is that of the family of a Spanish officer in Nuevitas, his wife, two children and a servant died within three hours. The Cubans were not wrong when they relied on the yellow fever to thin the ranks of the Spaniards; but they did not calculate that cholera would also make its appearance. The Spaniards lose fearfully, but it is equally certain that the mortality among the Cubans is very great, although it is impossible to obtain reliable figures."

CURE FOR SMALL-POX.—As the season for small-pox is approaching, we would call attention to the following cure for that dreaded malady, which is communicated to a German paper in New York by a correspondent in China. It is said to have been discovered by a surgeon of the British army on duty in China. The mode of treatment is as follows:

"When the preceding fever is at its height, and just before the eruption appears, the chest is rubbed with croton oil and tartaric ointment. This causes the whole of the eruption to appear on that part of the body, to the relief of the rest. It also secretes a full and complete eruption, and thus prevents the disease from attacking the internal organs. This is said to be now the established mode of treatment in the English army in China, by general orders, and is regarded as a perfect cure."

☞ We are happy to learn from parties who have visited it, that the Poor Farm, gotten up by our efficient Ordinary, Judge Dismuke, is proving a decided success. There are only two paupers out on it—both old, infirm persons. A class of people who have heretofore had support from the county do not desire to go out on this farm, and have suddenly found they can live without being an expense to the county.—There are some hands employed on it under the superintendence of an efficient overseer, and the prospect is it will pay the treasury a handsome revenue. The expense so far has been only about $800, while for the whole of the past year, when paupers received money, the amount expended was over $4000. If every county in the State does as well as Spalding, these poor farms will pay handsomely.—Dalton Star.

A HELISH PLOT UNCOVERED.—The Atlanta New Era publishes a letter from Frank Joseph, a Northern Methodist preacher, who, in his professional travels in Georgia, found darkies who said they were acting under instructions to procure the negroes to kick up a row with the whites, and get the State out of the Union. They were to have arms and mules for doing it.

THE LARGEST YIELD YET.—The Griffin Middle Georgian says that Mr. T. J. Thrasekeld, of that place, has just threshed out a long lot of wheat, and the result is fifty-eight bushels to the acre.

Washington, June 28.—The Cubans have lost favorable advices. The Spanish have been defeated in two recent conflicts. The Cuban army is comparatively healthy, confident and in position and well paired. The cholera, yellow fever and dysentery among Spaniards are decreasing and demoralizing them.

Tunno, the negro postmaster at Macon Georgia, departed South yesterday, with his consolation.

Washington, June 28.—The Cubans have further encouraging advices. The Report that the cholera and fever were in the Spanish army has been confirmed.

The reinforcements which were sent from Cienaguer to Cinco Villas were attacked by the Cubans and defeated, with a loss of three hundred. The Cuban loss was one hundred. The cubans captured Palmidas.

The expedition which landed at Nuivas Grandes had joined the insurgents. They number six hundred and are in good health and spirits. The health of the Cuban army is comparatively good, they occupying a healthful position, some distance from the coast.

RICHMOND, Va., June 28.—Gen. Canby writes a reply letter to B. W. Gillis, of the State Journal containing an argument to sustain his position in requiring members of the Legislature to take the iron clad oath. He contends that the Reconstruction acts require it, and he is acting in conformity with all precedents in enforcing it.

MEMPHIS, June 28.—A meeting of the citizens of West Tennessee, North Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas has been called for July 13, to consider the means of securing Chinese immigration.

BRIDGEPORT, June 28.—The Great Eastern is six hundred and ninety-seven miles out. The signals are perfect. The difficulty heretofore reported is owing to imperfect connections on land.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Simmon's Pyralipe, its curative properties are manifested; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for those unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrefuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases. Then, instead of pale sallow faces on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vitality would and should appear. The Pyrefuge will not only annihilate the pyhrizinic poeyies, and do away with the horrid effects of taking quinine, arsenic and all other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition! Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Joseph Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

BEECHER ON EARLY MARRIAGE.

At no period, perhaps, in th ir life, do young men need the inspiration of virtuous life and the sympathy of a companion in their self-denying toil, as when they first enter the battle for their own support. Early marriages are permanent moralities, and deferred marriages are temptations to wickedness. And yet every year it becomes more and more difficult, concurrent with reigning ideas of society, for young men to enter upon that matrimonial state which is the proper guard of their virtue, as well as their courage and enterprise. The battle of life is almost at the beginning. There it is that a man needs wedlock. But a wicked and ridiculous public sentiment puts a man who is in society for that matter, largely on the ground of condition, and not of disposition and character. The man who has the means wherewith he can visibly live ample is in good society, as a general rule. The man that has virtue and stern manliness, but has nothing withal external to show, is not usually considered in good society. Ambitious young men will not therefore marry until they can meet their expenses; but that is deferring for years and years the indispensable virtue.—Society is laid where two cannot live cheaper than one! and young men are under bad influences who, when in the very morning of life, and better fitted than at any later period to grow together with one who is their equal and mate, are debarred from marrying for scores of years, from mere prudential considerations: and the heart and the life are sacrificed to the pocket. They are tempted to substitute ambition for love, when at last, over the ashes and expiring embers of their early romance, they select their wife. It is said that men who wait until they are forty or forty-five years of age select prudently. Alas for the wife who has not first a sweet heart! Prudence is good, but is a piece-meal servant of sixteen! Prudence is good, but what is prudence? It is the dry calculation of the head leagued with the pocket.—Is there no prudence in taste, nor prudence in the inspiration of a generous love? Is there no prudence in the faith by which, banded, two young persons go down into the struggle of life, saying: "Come weal, come woe, come storm, come calm, love is a match for circumstances, and we will be all to each other!" We be to that society in which the customs and the manners of the times put off beyond the period of romance and affiancing, the wedding. You have adjourned the most important secular act of a man's life. You have adjourned it out of Eden into the wilderness!

DEATH IN A GAMING HOUSE.

About half-past 9 o'clock, last night, an unknown man fell dead in the gambling house at No. 66 St. Charles street. As usual on Saturday night, the house was crowded to suffocation.—The young and the old, the rich and the poor, had gathered in to spend the earnings of the week. The light of many a brilliant gas jet flashed over a crowd of men, earnest and eager in the passionate excitement of the game. Suddenly a tall, dark looking man from the other side of the tables rose from his seat, and walking a few steps unsteadily, fell back upon the floor. One convulsive shudder passed through body and limbs, and the man was dead: died from heart disease or the excitement of gambling. For a single moment a stillness like death fell upon the crowd, and then some one said he'd only fainted, and the game went on. But life was extinct.

"He's dead," some one cried, and then men rose hastily from their seats and left the room. The game was stopped, and a little circle gathered around the dead man on the floor. The face had grown waxen; the death look had settled darkly around him. It was a foreign looking face—an Italian or Spaniard—and in life had been handsome, but now its rigid lineaments wore a scared expression, as if the heart had struggled vainly to but live to get out of that bad place.—New Orleans Picayune 20th.

A PATENT DEVOTEE.—Deacon B— of Ohio, a very pious man, was noted for his long prayers, especially in his family. One Monday morning the Deacon and his wife were alone, and, as was his custom after breakfast a prayer was offered. There being an unusual amount of work that day, the Deacon's prayer was short, and seizing his hat and milk pail, he started for the barn. His wife, being deaf, did not notice his absence, but supposed him to be still engaged in prayer. On his return from milking, he was surprised to find her still kneeling. He stepped up to her and shouted, "Amen," when she immediately arose and went about her work it nothing had happened.

THE HOUSE THAT RUM BUILT.

BY WILLIAM MAY.

The Almshouse: This is the house that rum built.

The Drunkard: This is the beast that that lives in the house that rum built.

Appetite: This is the chain that binds the beast that lives in the house that rum built.

Intoxicating Drink: This is the serpent in flowery guise, with artful tongue and dazzling eyes, that welds the chain that binds the beast that lives in the house that rum built.

The Rumseller: This is the monster who holds the rein over the serpent who welds the chain that binds the beast in cruel pain that lives in the house that rum built.

Wholesale Liquor Dealers: These are the demons of the land, who hold the monster at their command, and to the serpent say, together we will take our way, and weld the chain so strongly now, that every beast to us shall bow, and dwell in the house that rum built.

Temperance Law: This is the star of promise bright, that stops the demons in their delight to scare the monster in his career, and to the serpent lend a fear, that he no more may weld the chain that binds the beast in his artful train, who lives in the house that rum built.

Good Templars: These are the soldiers who take the field, with the star of promise for their shield; they go together hand in hand, to hunt the demons who infest the land; they'll stop the monster in his course, and destroy the serpent from his source; they'll break in two the welded chain, and set the captive free again, who lives in the house that rum built.

The Temperance Pledge: This is the banner the soldiers bear; it waves forever bright and fair; with their banner bright, and their starry shield, they are the conquerors of the field; the demons flee in all their hour; the monsters, too, desert their post; they'll drive the serpent from the land, and keep him down at their command; they'll help the captive break the chain, and make the beast a MAN again; they'll fold him with their banner bright, and, with him, battle for the right; they'll never fear, nor be afraid to destroy the house that rum has made.

THE NEGROES CLAIM ADMISSION TO THE MILITARY SCHOOLS AT WEST POINT AND ANNAPOLIS.—The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette says:

The President must take better care of his "race and color" Jarvis Hall he has done in the selection of West Point Cadets, if he expects to maintain his present hold upon the affections of his fellow citizens of African descent. Every section of the country is represented here by colored envoys, and I learn that every man of these, from Langston (a Professor in the College in which the white lady, brutally violated yesterday, was a student) down to the statesmen of the A ll C school, bitterly denounced the invidious distinction observable in the favored list against the black "man and brother." "What!" say they, "are colored men to be restricted in social intercourse to the mechanical classes, and their sons and heirs to be refused admission to the national academies at West Point and Annapolis! Perish the thought!"

Germane to this matter, is the report here that old Fred. Douglas was the real inditer of the "Ku-Klux-Klan" letter sent to his son at the Government Printing Office, and that its object was to prop the pretensions of his fourth and favorite son to a cadetship at large. It is understood that this pater familias resents with becoming spirit all objections on the score of nepotism, and his recriminations are not without point. It worries him to the very gizzard to think that the Douglasses of his blood are thought to be worthy only of association with Government clerks and Government printers and Government bricklayers, &c., &c., &c.

AN Exchange says:—"An inhuman wretch, said to be a wholesale liquor dealer agent, from New York, was arrested in New Haven, Friday, for driving a horse a long distance after one of its fore legs was broken."

O, that is not very "inhuman" act for a liquor dealer.. We have known men engaged in this business to completely break a man's physical constitution, deprive him of all his property and then break his credit and his good reputation, break up his family, break his wife's heart and make his children wretched in the extreme. We have known them to continue to dispense benzine until they had thus broken up several families in a community; and display no shame in consequence. What is more than this, we have known just such men to secure a fat office under both a Republican and Democratic administration.—Detroit Herald.

ADVANTAGES OF YEARS.

You are getting into years. Yes, but the years are pitting into you—the ripe, rich years—the genial, mellow years—the lusty, lucious years. One by one the crudities of your youth are falling off from you, the vanity, the egotism, the insulation, the bewilderment, the uncertainty. Nearer and nearer you are approaching yourself. You are consolidating your forces. You are becoming master of the situation. On the ruins of shattered plains you find your vantage ground. Your broken hopes, your thwarted purposes, your defeated aspirations, become a staff of strength by which you mount to sublimer heights.—With self-possession and self-command of all things, the title deed of creation, forfeited, is reclaimed. The king has come to his own again. Earth and sea and sky pour out their largest of love. All the crowds pass down to lay its treasures at your feet.—IKE MARVEL.

A PARISAN SHOP SCENE.—A Paris paper relates the following: "Mme. X—, an elegantly dressed lady entered one of the emporiums of fashion yesterday, and requested to see some Valenciennes lace, but after some time, not finding any to suit her, withdrew without making any purchases. She had, however been observed by one of the shopmen to slip a piece of the goods under her shall. Nevertheless she returned home as it were unnoticed, but on reaching the door of her house was accosted by a messenger, who handed her a small parcel and a letter, which was thus worded:

"Madame—I am afraid that the fifteen yards of lace which you selected in my shop will not be sufficient to trim your dress; I therefore take the liberty of sending you a second piece of the same pattern. I beg to be informed whether you accept it."

The signature was that of the master of the establishment. It is needless to say that the lady was only too glad to escape by a prompt payment of the whole from some very unpleasant consequences."

PROBABLY but a few of our readers, says a N. Y. paper, are aware, now that the Pacific Railroad is completed, that a journey around the world can be made in eighty days, which estimate allows for ordinary delays incident to traveling. Moreover, the entire distance can be traversed by steam either on land or water, save about one hundred miles in India, between Allahabid and Bombay, over which a railroad is now constructing. The particulars of this marvelous trip—for it is even more than marvelous—we condense into tabular form, for convenient reference, as follows:

	DAYS
New York to San Francisco (rail).....	7
San Francisco to Yokohama (steamship).....	22
Yokohama to Hong Kong (steamship).....	6
Hong Kong to Calcutta (steamship).....	12
Calcutta to Bombay (rail).....	3
Bombay to Cairo (steamship and rail).....	14
Cairo to Paris (steamship and rail).....	12
Paris to New York.....	11

COMMERCIAL PROGRESS.—The Philadelphia Age well says that there are now more important movements projected or in progress intended to benefit the trade relations of the world than at any other period in its history. The Pacific Railroad is finished; the Suez canal is rapidly approaching that point; the tunnel under the Alps is progressing in a favorable manner; a new line of ocean telegraph is about being stretched from France to the United States; an American company has been started to connect all the leading cities in China, by means of the word speaking wires, and a ship canal is in contemplation across the Isthmus of Darien, by means of which vessels can pass backward and forward from the Atlantic.

JUBILEE POETRY.—The Boston Journal publishes this "jubilee" poetry which Horace Greely does not like:

Let the great bells ring
And the loud cannon roar
Sound the glad tidings
From "shore to shore."
Join in the chorus,
Let it reach o'er the sea,
"Our country is saved
And the niggers are free!"

AN OLD MAN'S ADVICE.—Never attempt to strike the guilty, where, by a misdirected, or too hasty blow, the innocent, the gallant, and the good, may suffer. Never attempt to expose any villian, if your efforts in doing so are likely to injure those who have been the unsuspecting dupes of his artifice. Never shake hands with a man if you are not really glad to see him. Never forget when you meet, to remember your friends, and treat more equal to your salutation to those that are your superiors. Never quarrel without a sufficient cause, but if it be necessary to take up a quarrel, then see that quarrel firmly put to an end. Never betray confidence of any kind, but more particularly that of a woman.

Independence Day—Results not Glorious.

A few of the colored and white people of Marietta celebrated Monday the fifth, instead of the 4th which came in on Sunday. There were a few negroes from the country in attendance who imbibed too much "corn juice," and one of them, from the effects of which used language that caused him to leave with "foot steps quick."

Seated in our office engaged in our accustomed duties, in a state of forgetfulness of this memorable day, there came a rumbling noise as of thunder, and a sudden shock as of an earthquake, when we were reminded that this was the day agreed upon for the celebration of the National Independence. This noise and shock was not the effect of either of the above elements, but was from the discharge of an artillery piece on the hill of the National Cemetery. Soon after a second discharge was made, but this was not attended with the same results. It seems that three colored men were reloading the piece of artillery when by some unaccountable means it was discharged, prematurely and powder-burning all three of them. Marion Jackson and George Graham slightly, but seriously burned and George Mathias from the right side of his face down half the body; he will with care and attention recover.

Sandie seems to be the worsted party in all the privileges that has been conferred upon him. We advise him hereafter to leave loading of cannons to some one else and stick to the Cotton patch, and he will find it a great deal more remunerative and less fatal to life.

Marietta D. C. and Library Association.

At the last meeting of this Society, the following officers were elected, and among them we recognize our friend, Maj. W. T. WINN, as President of this honorable little body. The young men have secured a good officer in the selection of Maj. WINN, and, we doubt not, the Society will become one of increased interest and importance:

W. T. WINN, President.
J. ELRAS, Vice President.
F. C. SHEPARD, Secretary.
W. J. WEBB, Treasurer.
H. D. MCCUTCHEON, Librarian.

It is desired that there be a full attendance of the members at the next regular meeting, as business to which their co-operation is needed is to be transacted.

It is startling to draw the Hair with; is Lyon's Katharion.

Something Wrong.

From the first issue of the JOURNAL to some time last Spring we received regularly in exchange The Macon Daily Telegraph and we appreciated it we did not fully reciprocate the obligation. It was then discontinued for some cause unknown to us and we have missed the reading of a very excellent paper. This week we again find on our table the Telegraph. How is it?

One word to our Daily Exchanges. A Weekly paper should justly estimate your value; but we are afraid in this instance it is not always reciprocated—

We think the Daily paper loses nothing by exchange with a well-conducted Weekly even when no pay is rendered, as is generally the case, in advertising.

Briely

Is a name familiar as a household word among the farmers of the South. It is true, with some of them it is associated with a celebrated Plow; but on Friday last the inventor of that Plow—Mr. T. C. BRISLY, of Louisville, Ky., made his appearance in person at the JOURNAL OFFICE. We regret our absence as we dearly love to look upon a go-ahead—inventive—energetic Southern man.

We learn that Mr. BRISLY had with him the model of a machine for bending, and giving shape to plow handles, and that he proposes forwarding for this section a light one-horse turning plow, a thing highly adapted to our wants.

Marietta Female College.

This Institution of learning opened on the Monday after two weeks recreation from the "routine of studies." We hope to see that College prosper and there should be no reason why it should not. Under an able Faculty, as it is, it affords advantages that are rare. Marietta is known far and wide for her natural, and should be known far and wide for her educational advantages.

Fireman's Meeting.

Some one whose heart is bound up with love for Marietta, posted in conspicuous places around town notices of a "Firemen's Meeting" to be held that evening (Tuesday), but it appears it was only a hoax, for no meeting was held. Whoever the individual may be, he has sounded the trumpet of warning.

The First Cotton Bloom.

Mr. H. D. MCCUTCHEON, has laid on our table a full open Cotton Bloom from the plantation of our genial friend, JOHN W. HIXE. This is the first one we have seen of the season and promises well for Cotton in this section.

Unprecedented Success.

While the past year, fifty thousand boxes of Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills have been sold; and not a single instance is known where they have failed to give satisfaction. If you would enjoy life, have a fine appetite and robust health, use these pills.

The Hearth and Home,

Published by Pettengill, Bates & Co., New York is an illustrated and highly valuable Journal. No. 20 begins an interesting romance. The matter and appearance of this paper are pure.

Rain—Rain!

As we go to Press and just as the farmers have nearly got through with Wheat—threshing and cleaning their Crops, a general fructifying rain sets in. Let us be thankful.

[FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

Powder Springs Seminary.

Mr. Editor: We had the pleasure of witnessing the examination of the students of this School, on the 1st and 2nd inst., and it is with much pleasure we make the following report:

We are satisfied that the examination of the pupils was a fair exhibition and no deception and that we feel sure the patrons and friends of the School have cause to appreciate the services of Prof. C. M. Hammond, who has evinced so much zeal and energy in advancing the educational interest of those committed to his care.

We were pleased with the progress of all the classes in their several studies and each student in particular, the speeches and compositions of many of the students did them great credit, and can scarcely be surpassed; all did well.

At 2 o'clock P. M., of the second day, the Rev. G. W. Yarbrough of Marietta was introduced to the audience by Prof. Hammond, who delivered a very eloquent and impressive address on the subject of "Education." The speaker's positions were strong and arguments conclusive.

The second session of this School will commence on the third Monday in July, 19th inst., and we would recommend the advantages of this School and its healthy location to all those who may wish to invest it with their patronage.

Kind Words—Miss Hattie Lindley.
The Use of Flowers—Miss Mattie Mitchell.
The Use of Tears—Miss Georgia Hall.
Flights of Time—Miss Georgia Hall.
Asia—Miss Ellen Kolb.
The Beauties of Nature—Miss Kittie Bryson.
Education—Miss Ida Kiser.
What is it?—Miss Georgia Lindley.
I would be a butterfly—Miss Edith Hunter.
Woman—Miss Jessie Bryson.
Moonlight Music, Lyric and Flowers—Miss Ella Reynolds.
Life is a strange system of Trees and Flowers with Silas and trouble filled—Miss Louella Baker.

COMMUNICATED.

When we violate the laws of nature we must suffer the penalty if it be death. We have left our purse with both ends open for many years, in the hands of a reckless and corrupt Legislature, and now we are receiving the just reward of our folly. Our taxes are oppressively high, and our laws are made to defeat justice, and to protect rascality. But let us not despair; there is a remedy. Every county has reliable and competent men willing to do the work that we want done. Therefore, let every county send only such men as can be relied on, to the next General Assembly. Let the Constitution be changed, fixing the salary of the members at two hundred dollars a year. If this is not done they can take one hundred just as easy as they did nine dollars; let us look at the past. The members of Congress received on an average $3.70 dollars a year until 1855, when it was raised by them to 11.20 dollars; about 1860 it was raised to 5000 a year, and about 1866 they increased it to 5000 dollars a year, and yet, this great salary does not procure good men. Clay, Calhoun, Jackson, Webster and many others that were better men than the present Congress, served at 6 dollars per day, and none of them resigned nor complained of their salary being too small, and these are what we call the better days of our republic.

The Legislature of Georgia use to serve for four dollars per day, but nine dollars a day, does not satisfy them now, and if they are not stopped they will soon take fifty, and in proportion to their pay they will fatten their brother-hood in office at the laboring man's expense.—They have more clerks and officers than are necessary, and they could have the same work as well done for half the money. Our method should be live and let live. High and unreasonable salaries have corrupted our State and Federal Governments, and all unnecessary expenditures are oppressive as well as unjust.

We know if the Clerks, Door keepers, Messengers &c., in the past Legislature would not have served for half they got, there were hundreds of others equally competent that would. Then if there are some men that will not serve themselves and their country for a just compensation pass them by, and select such as are competent and willing. Now, it we cannot remove the unjust oppression that is upon us, we are to be pitied, but if we will not strive to throw off the burthen our punishment is just.

THE IMPERIALISTS.—A N. Y. paper has a story that a secret society has been formed, having branches in the principal cities of the Union, for carrying the country over to Imperialism. Its members are sworn to promote and support what is termed a "Free Empire." It is proposed to establish an aristocracy, with executive powers in the hands of a council with one man at the head, who shall hold the position for life and be designated Consul of the Free Empire of the United States, the title of Consul to be thrown away for that of Emperor as soon as the public sentiment will bear the change. The man for this position has already been selected by the leaders of the movement. Savannah News.

OUR TEA CROP.—The experiment of cultivating tea is to be made in California by those acquainted with the business on a scale to fully test its practicability. Agents of a Japanese country have purchased lands in the foot hills of El Dorado county, which the Japanese think is well adapted for silk and tea culture. If they are not mistaken they think there are many thousands of acres of land in that State which can be devoted to the purposes mentioned, and the day may yet come when California will be as noted for its teas and silks as it has been for its gold.—Courier Journal.

THE SOUTHERN RAILROAD.

Nearly half the voters of Cincinnati went to the polls on Saturday and elected to appropiate $10,000,000 to the building of what is to be known as the Southern railroad. The total number of votes cast was 16,978, of which 15,439 were in the affirmative and only 1,500 in the negative. This would indicate that ninety per cent of the population favor and ten per cent oppose the undertaking. This is regarded as an extra ordinary result when the magnitude and supposed risks of the enterprise are considered. The Cincinnati Gazette thinks the importance of that road to Cincinnati cannot be over estimated, and adds:

A glance at the map shows how valuable it must prove. Nature has given us the shortest and best route to the South—to a point connecting with the great and growing system of southern railroads. It only remains for us to make this great natural advantage available. But, as natural advantages are available. But, as natural remarked, the value of the proposed railroad connection cannot be overestimated. This nation is now one in a former period. It rests every where upon the basis of free labor, with one flag, that floats in triumph over free territory.—Under the system of slave labor the South prospered and was wealthy, but the past affords no basis upon which to estimate the future. In even greater proportion than the West will the South grow under free labor. It is the most inviting field in the world for young men, and the time is near at hand when the great rush of emigrants will be in that direction.—From the harvest that will follow, Cincinnati, with her short and direct trunk road, will be in a position to gather more than her share of the fruits. Between the extreme East and the extreme North, Cincinnati will stand in the direct road, and here will be the great depot for the exchange of commodities. We shall also be on the direct and, what will ultimately prove to be, the most practicable route to the Pacific—a line over which there will be uninterrupted communication during the entire year.

With railroads branching out in every direction; with our great water channels, with a canal at the falls of the Ohio that will pass the largest vessels that float on the Missisippi; with the shortest and best line to Europe, via Baltimore, with our great manufacturing interests: with our immense mineral resources, as yet only partially developed; with our great mercantile capital, and with a hard-working and industrious population in city and suburbs of 375,000, who can predict the future of Cincinnati?

GEN. SHERMAN'S MARCH—EXPERIENCE BETTER THAN BOOKS—PRACTICE VS. THEORY.—I have oftentimes been asked by my friends, familiar with General Thompson, Hume and Jomini, in which of these books I had learned the science of leading armies on long and difficult marches, and they seemed surprised when I answered that I was not aware that I had been influenced by any of them. I told them what I now tell you in all simplicity and truth, that when I was a young lieutenant of artillery, I had often hunted deer in the swamps of the Edisto, the Cowpens, and the Santee, and had seen with my own eyes that they could be passed with wagons; that in the Spring of 1811 I had ridden on horse-back from Marietta, Georgia, to the Valley of Tennessee, back to Augusta, passing in my course over the very fields of Allatoona, of Kenesaw and Atlanta, where it afterward fell to my share to command armies and to utilize knowledge thus gained. Again, in 1818 and 1850 I was in California, and saw arrive, across that wide belt of two thousand miles with a single blanket-roll as a covering, and a sack of parched corn meal as food. With this knowledge, fairly acquired in actual experience, was there any need for me to look back to Alexander the Great, to Marlborough or Napoleon for example?

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Cubans here have the following: The Spanish troops have attacked Jordan near Holguin. After an eight hours fight the Spaniards were repulsed, and compelled to take refuge in the fort. The Cubans had also two wounded. Killed on the Spanish side, including Henry Americans. Spanish loss about the same. The Spanish force consisted of 500 infantry and one hundred cavalry. Cubans two to one.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever, dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say hope! A remedy has at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Jappman's Pyrafuge. Its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, whose otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians practice, and do away with the horrid effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

FORGOTTEN.

A CHAPTER OF HEART HISTORY.

Yes, I was betrothed to Paul Edgeworth; and, as I look at the ring, I kissed it again and again. Every loving impulse of my heart flowed to awaken; and oh, how I longed for him to be with me forever, that I might never again experience my love in the many fond words or a true, tender heart can invent. The hours spent with him were seatedly to be called time, so swiftly they flew; and when he left me, his ever tender and endearing word was received again and again. Every day, my idol!

For three months we were continually in each other's society; for I was visiting his sister, Clara, and she, half suspected our affection for one another, was ever contriving to leave us together.

It was always Paul who was selected to accompany me if we were going to ride, although she had three more brothers who would have been called equally entertaining. If by chance one of them invited me to go anywhere, they were sure to ascertain that Paul was not near to hear. This I did not at first notice, though, as it became more and more evident that I was dear to him, I inwardly thanked them for their generosity.

But it could not always last; and I found my sunshine suddenly turned to darkness when I one day received a letter from home, in which my mother wished me to return immediately. I was arranging a bouquet for Clara in the summer-house when I received the letter from Paul's hand.

"There's good news from home, pet; what will you give me for it?" he said, laughingly, holding the letter a little too high for me to touch it with my fingers.

"Give you! Why, what do you deserve for tormenting me so?"

"This, little one."

And snatching a kiss from my upturned, face he threw the letter into my lap, and sat at the farther end of the summer-house, saying he could be good for ten minutes, while I enjoyed my letter, which promise he kept by throwing rose-leaves at me.

I broke the seal with a beating heart thinking how happy I would make my mother when next I wrote, by telling her of our betrothal. Glancing at the date, I exclaimed, "Why, this has been a long time coming, for so long as usual."

Then, without looking up, I began to read.

At the first line my heart stood still; and I must have turned pale, for Paul quickly came to my side, and placing his arm around me, inquired anxiously, "What is it darling?"

"Oh, Paul, I must leave you—leave you and all this sweet summer happiness, and go to my home so far away; and there comes over my heart a presentiment that we shall never meet again if I go now."

"Then do not go my darling; stay with me; be my own sweet bride now. Why need a few years make any difference, even if you did promise not to marry until of age! I had promise is better broken than kept."

"No, no; I cannot."

And the tears would come in spite of every effort to subdue them; but Clara's merry laugh as she came down the path to the arbor, disturbed our sweet communion, and flushed with the exercise of running from Paul's Newfoundland, Dante, she bounded into the arbor, and threw herself down at my feet, completely exhausted. Paul rose silently; and the seat where he had been sitting, Clara soon took; throwing her arms around me, calling me sadly, "Sweet sister."

Not until her words called fresh before me my great sorrow, did she see that there was something amiss, as my tears flowed unrestrainedly, when I laid my head in her lap and told her all; and she wept with me.

Then there came into my heart all the former presentiment. Why was it?—Soon I must bid adieu to all so dear to me, and the foreboding that it would be forever I could not banish; something told me that no more would I roam through those grand avenues shaded with tall pines, with him; no more would we gaze on the moonlight shining on the waters of that loved lake by whose side he had told me his love, and first called me "Darling."

Oh, that word, sweetest of all to women from him she loves! Would my heart's cry for his love never be answered after we parted? Must I forget him then, or would I ever have a bright day for me? Indeed, when he would come to my home in the North, and take me to the scenes now so dear to me!

But why linger over our parting!—Every nook and corner where Paul and I had ever been together was entered, and as we sat in the summer-house for the last time he drew me towards him, and placing his hand beneath my chin, he looked deep into my eyes, and said, "Only one year, pet, and then I trust I shall sit here with Kate Edgeworth instead of Kate Randall. I will seem a long year, darling, but we will try and be patient."

And he stooped to kiss away the tears gathering in my eyes.

Throwing my arms around his neck, I sobbed out my grief upon his bosom, thought that this might be the last time I ever would rest my head on his heart. Why was it? was so haunted?

The next night found me on my way to the North, leaving all that was dear to me, and going among strangers; for we had only lived there a short time, and I could not feel at home so soon among those who cared nothing for me.

At home, I was greeted warmly by all; yet my heart cried for one that had left, and would not be comforted.

In a few days came a long, loving letter from Paul. How precious every word! How I lived those never to be forgotten days over again. How every word he ever spoke seemed ringing in my ear, and my idol became more and more exhalted!

New friends came around me in my new home, and all were valued according to their comparison with my standard of excellence—Paul. I only counted time by the regularity with which I heard from him.

For three months my heart was fully satisfied with his frequent loving letters. With his dear picture before me, I read them, and imagined he almost smiled on me in my happiness. Then there came a change. I waited long, but no word came from him; in agony I wrote again, and received in reply a cold, formal letter; "he was well, hoped I was not concerned about him, but really his time was so occupied, he could not write so often as he had formerly done."

I was unreasonable; I chided myself for being so thoughtless. I knew he was very much absorbed in his law studies; why had I doubted him? So I tried to still the pain in my heart—to smother the desire for one loving word from him.

Was I was my fear a shadow of coming events? I shuddered, and tried not to think. If he was going to strike the dagger of disappointment into my heart, why not do so now? not torture me with half-love.

I could endure suspense no longer; I must know if I was loved no more; and in desperation I wrote again. After months of weary waiting, the strain proved too much for my nerves; for weeks I lay at the point of death; and when I awoke to consciousness, I cried out in agony, "Oh, why did I not die? why must I live?

When I was well enough to receive it, they gave me a letter from his sister, that sweet one who would not wrong or wound the heart of the most ineginificant. She knew all, for by accident she found a portion of the letter which he had torn up and thrown to the four winds when he received it from me.—How sweet was her sympathy! Could I only have laid my head on her bosom and wept, my heart would have been less heavy.

Weary months have passed since then, and the day that was to have been my wedding-day has gone by long ago. Still in my heart re-echoes the old longing; and when others have come to me with tales of love, my heart has turned to stone. They call me heartless; and well they may, for never can love bring back the warmth that his coldness has frozen.

There are rumors that he is about to marry anybelese. Oh, could she know the words he has spoken to me—could she hear the vows uttered beneath the shade of those lofty pines—could they speak, she would tremble for her happiness, and could guess why he turned from me to her.

Cold lies the snow all over the earth; chilly winds moan around the house and penetrate every crevice; but colder and more penetrating comes the snow of despair to a broken heart that is is forced to live, but longs for death.

TOMATO BATTER CAKES.—The season for that highly esteemed vegetable, the tomato, being again at hand, we take occasion, says the Columbus Enquirer, to recommend a mode of serving them obtained from a newspaper, and which, after trial, we can pronounce excellent. Let us slice them, when ripe, cover them with batter, and fry on a griddle, like other cakes. They should be seasoned while frying. Large and solid tomatoes are the best for this dish. These cakes are fine for tomatoes will take new delight in them fried in this way for breakfast; and we believe that many, who have not fancied them in the usual style of serving, will find them a delicious addition to the table.

GREEN MANURES FOR POOR LANDS.

Perhaps nothing in the whole province of farming impresses so much the attention of those interested, as the question of preserving or increasing the fertility of the soil.

It is not difficult to make worn-out and barren land produce goods crops, as one would suppose from a hasty view of the innumerable failures to be seen all around. If the needful crops will grow crops are not in the soil, it is easy to put them there; or if they are there, but locked up, without first taking the necessary conditions to render them free and give them vitality. Every observing farmer knows that it is for useless to grow grass than wheat, and a common remark among farmers is "I can't raise a crop of clover I am sure I can raise wheat." One of the means of raising land is to get it in good condition, and plow it down, when in full bloom—But clover contains a large per centage of potash, and in soils already abundantly supplied with this, such as slate and slate lands, it is better to mix the clover with other grasses.

Farmers know that an old sod field formed in corn, yields the largest crops, and that the best crops of wheat are raised from it. When The field has been left lying until different kinds of grasses have grown up, each one gathering different substances from the atmosphere, and carrying them down into the soil through the roots, and enriching it. Hence when a crop of corn or wheat is planted all the substances for its growth and perfect development have been provided for its use.

By the application of lime on such soil the decomposition of fibrous matter in the soil is hastened, and they are converted into plant food. If too much is applied, a heavy growth of straw is produced, and it will grow so rank as to lodge and yield very little grain. By using a smaller quantity of lime, so as to make a healthy growth of straw, the heads will fill well and the grain mature; for it is found that when the straw does not make an overgrowth the head generally fills perfectly. The object to be sought is to know what elements are needed in the soil and in what conditions, to produce the crop we wish to grow.—There is no doubt that if we should give to the soil all the constituents of the crop, each year, we could always count with reasonable certainty on a large yield. Were the constituent elements of wheat inexhaustible in the soil, we might sow and reap, year after year, without diminution in the yield or quality. On the contrary, they are easily exhausted, and unless supplied it is not long until we can raise no crop at all.

Wheat contains lime, soda and chlorine make common salt. The sowing of common salt on wheat fields must be advantageous. It is believed to strengthen the straw and make it hard, thus preventing rust. Rust appears only on straw of a soft, luxuriant growth, which cracks open easily, leaving the juices to ooze out and escape. The action of the hot sun and moisture upon this readily produces rust. Especially is this the case with wheat grown in low soil where the dampness is great.

The never failing quantity of plant-food floating in the atmosphere is ever available for promoting the growth and development of plants. In this availability there is a marked difference between that in the air and the vegetable nutriment looked up in the soil. The atmosphere is here to nourish growing plants whenever the tender leaves open their pores to take in the nourishment it furnishes. It builds up the stem and develops the various parts of the plant. It may send forth its rootlets in every direction, seeking food, and yet finally droop and die, because the vegetable matter is not in an available condition to promote its growth. As it is impossible for every farmer to get stable manure in sufficient quantity to enrich his land, he must look to the green vegetable matter supplied by nature. It is the principal source of manure on the earth, and as such it must be applied by the farmer if he would secure his own greatest advancement. By green manures is, of course, meant vegetable manures plowed down.

Observing farmers are well aware that green manures fructify the soil, and that it pays best to plow down clover, mixed grasses, oats, buckwheat and weed sorts. They should not fail to sow a crop of buckwheat or peas to plow down for the sacrifice of one crop will enable them to raise half a dozen crops with profit. Every poor or worn out crop should be plowed down, in the absence of stable manure, and thus enrich it. It will handsomely repay the cost of the seed, as well as the labor of plowing it down, and also greatly enrichen him who does it. Experiment for yourself.

"BRICK" POMEROY has placed the business management of his papers in the hands of C. P. [FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

I desire to say to the people of Marietta and Cobb county that I shall in your next issue publish a definite account of the educational interest of the community. For the present I will only say that I have had partial success. But to secure the benefit of what my trip has done, the people of Cobb must aid me with willing hands and hearts and as far as possible open purses. This I think most of the citizens will do as far as practicable. If the people at home will contribute as much as I have received abroad, we shall have two good school buildings in town and secure a permanent educational interest here equal to any city in the State.

The Weather and the Crops.

On going to press last week the clouds had gathered and the rain began to fall, and we confidently looked for general and refreshing showers; but like many human hopes these came to grief. The clouds passed away and the days of the past week have been almost beyond parallel in their heat, burning the earth and vegetation to the great damage of its denizens and the growing crops. We have heard of partial showers, but the drought is very general and even now there is but little prospect of rain.

RADICAL DOUBLE DEALING.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette says: "Whatever may become of this Cuban imbroglio, one thing is manifest—and that is, that the leaders in this country of the "Cuban cause" have been villainously sold by this double-dealing Administration, whether we succeed in buying the island of the Spanish authorities or not.—In any settlement of questions between Spain and the United States, the owners of the bonds issued by the Revolutionary Government must 'be left out in the cold.' Besides, it is out of the question that a single dollar advanced by them to newspapers in the Radical interest, which have since 'gone back' upon them, will be returned. It is even believed that a majority of them will, with brazen impudence, deny the genuineness of their own receipts for the money."—Savannah News.

ANOTHER [illegible] TURNED LOOSE.

George Fowler, a negro, convicted of murder and sentenced to be hung by the Superior Court of Worth county, has also had his sentence commuted by Bullock to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary.

This abuse of the pardoning and commuting power of the Executive is infamous. It has become impossible to hang a negro in Georgia for anything, except when the people take the law into their own hands and protect the peace of society. This is grievously wrong, but what help have we for it? Impeachment is the only remedy, and that, however deserved, cannot be ventured upon at this time with entire success.

It has been a favorite theme with the Radical press and politicians that lawlessness exists at the South, and no effective steps are taken to punish offenders. How is such a thing possible when a State has such a Governor as Bullock to interpose his authority and screen from punishment every convicted criminal? They now see how powerless are the people and the courts so long as the highest authority of the State habitually sets all law at defiance and publicly allies himself with the cause of criminals. How long can society exist without the protection of law? Circumstances justify Georgians in propounding this question and in casting about for a remedy.—Sav. Republican.

THE FOURTH IN CHARLESTON.

At nine in the morning a procession was formed at the corner of Calhoun and Meeting streets, headed by the negro volunteer companies, the African Blues, Lincoln Light Infantry, Lincoln Republican Guards, Masons, Loyal League, &c., besides whom "about a hundred colored and four white citizens were gotten into line." Three carriages contained the carpet-bag Mayor and Aldermen promiscuously seated. Arrived at the platform which disgraced the Battery and which was draped with the emblem of American liberty, the herd, men, women and children, gathered round to hear the spouting. The officers were announced: A. J. Runseer, negro, President, with twelve white and twelve black Vice Presidents, three white and nine negro Secretaries. The exercises were commenced with prayer by "Rev." W. H. Brown, colored, who was introduced by the President.—Brown, during his prayer, said he thanked God who had made the colored people free after two hundred and fifty years of bondage, and had placed them in triumph over the white man; that the "colored people now had the white men down in the dest and their feet upon their necks."

The declaration of independence having been read, "in a bungling manner," says the News, by a negro named Dickerson, who pronounced with particular stress the words "all men being born free and equal," the scalawag Alderman T. J. Mackey made his appearance as orator of the day.

The News says "there was very little attention paid to the oration, the assemblage collecting into small groups and discussing in a loud tone any every subject that was presented. Some twenty or more of the males coiled up under the stand and went to sleep. The oration was not of the kind to suit the tastes of the colored people; there was no praise of them, no appeals to their passions, no harangue about social equality and their fitness for office."

Tiring of the harangue, the loyal freedmen soon dispersed, without regard to order, leaving speakers who had come "cocked and primed" for a colored spread eagle flight to fold their pinions in silent disappointment. The News says that in and around the Battery there could not have less than eight or nine thousand colored people, one-twentieth part of whom were engaged in selling refreshments. Notwithstanding the vast amount of root-beer, ginger pop, goober peas, ginger-bread and molasses candy disposed of, there was very little drunkenness or disorder, a fact certainly creditable to the freedmen of Charleston."

GEORGIA SUPREME COURT.—Of the Justices who compose this Court at the present time, there is not one native Georgian. Warner was born in New England, McCay in Pennsylvania, and Brown in South Carolina. It seems that they grow worse as they come South in their nativity.—Sav. Rep.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Grant has expressed to several gentlemen his satisfaction with the result and his gratification with the peaceable Virginia election.

Georgians here are urging the establishment, partially to be supported by the government, of an asylum for aged and infirm negroes of the State.

Wofford and Jenks, of Mississippi, visited the President to-day. They have assurances of his utter impartiality in the approaching contest, so far as the administration is concerned, and have assurances that the commanding Generals will be restrained from any show of partiality.

There will be a free and unbiased contest between the people provided violence and ruffianism can be avoided, which is all the administration requires. It will only interfere in behalf of peace.

RICHMOND, July 7.—The State, according to the latest returns to-night has gone by nearly forty thousand for Walker, and there is a Walker majority of fifty on joint ballot in the Legislature. The Walker people elect all the Congressmen, but three, who are Platte Porter, and Norton (col'd). This complete disaster to the Wells ticket results from first, the unreliability of the negro vote, which, in the country districts, has gone largely for Walker; and second, because of the failure of their calculations in some of the counties bordering on Tennessee and North Carolina, where the white votes for that ticket were chiefly expected. In that quarter counties that were expected to give him five hundred majority went against him by a thousand. The Walker State Executive Committee telegraphed President Grant this morning congratulating him on the triumph of his policy in Virginia, and thanking him for his [illegible]. Several Walker colored men have been elected to the Legislature.

ARRIVAL OF CHINESE.

A Curious Scene in San Francisco—Smuggling Opium.

Ten days ago the steamer Great Republic arrived at San Francisco from Hong Kong with thirteen hundred Chinamen on board. The San Francisco Herald describes the scenes which ensued:

All was bustle and confusion. Babel's voices would have been drowned in the clatter which ensued. The aft-gang plank was first put in place, and the cabin passengers suffered to disembark. Then the Chinese from the steerage commenced pouring out like the countless thousands from a disturbed ant hill. But they came, a continuous string, along the narrow gang-plank, loaded with boxes, bags and bundles; some carrying them on their shoulders, some in their arms and some on the ends of bamboo sticks. They were dressed in their best attire, and evidently had donned for the occasion garments which they had never worn before. As a class they are above those who arrived recently by the sailing vessels heretofore referred to. As rapidly as they reached the wharf a force of custom house officers directed them where to deposit their luggage, which was laid on the wharf awaiting examination. For an hour this mass of humanity from another world poured out. The wonder was when it would cease, and how the ship could contain them all. And when they had landed, they covered, like a sea, nearly half of the immense wharf.

There were not many women on board—perhaps twenty. A few of those were dressed in silks. They were evidently imported for some of the Chinese merchants or officials (for the Chinese have a commonwealth of their own, entirely independent of the laws of our land,) and were carefully escorted from the wharf by policemen as soon as they landed. The others were placed standing in a row while they were thoroughly searched by officers for smuggling opium, after which they were escorted from the wharf by policemen.

After the swarm (one thousand three hundred in number) had landed, the search of persons and baggage commenced. Boxes and baskets emptied of their contents, and sounded to see if a hollow side or false bottom did not contain opium. Blankets were unrolled and carefully manipulated; bundles of bamboo sticks and pipe stems were emptied; jars were broken into, and every conceivable space which could contain opium or other dutiable merchandise was thoroughly examined. As rapidly as the search was completed, the owners, who also were searched, were allowed to take their luggage and depart. The officers (about a dozen in number) were frequently rewarded by finding opium. It was stowed away in every conceivable space—in false bottoms and sides of baskets and boxes, sewed inside of bedding and clothing, and even in the hollow soles of their clumsy shoes. Several jars, labelled "chow-chow," were found to be partially filled with opium and covered on the top with chow-chow. One cute genius had about a half pound stowed away in the double crown of his bamboo hat.—Another was observed to keep a suspicious looking Chinese umbrella in his hand, which, when searched, was found to contain in its hollow handle about a pound of their favorite drug.

The search proceeded quietly and without interruption. The discovered opium was confiscated, its owners taking their loss with the utmost stolidity. It took until about nine o'clock in the evening to complete the examination of the crowd and their baggage. The streets leading from the wharf to "Barbary Coast" were thronged by the fresh importations all the afternoon. Where they were all going to, and where they could be stowed, was the wonder of all who had not seen them pour out of the steerage of the ship.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial? Are we still to be fixed, and have a remedy that will permanently expel chill fever, chills and [illegible] linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

SO-CALLED SOUTHERN STATE GOVERNMENTS.

Some one writing from Georgia for the N. Y. World on the condition of affairs in the South makes the following points:

And now for the Southern white what of him? There is but one way to put it, and that is, that "the old Confed," as he loves to style himself, doesn't care a d——n. He is growing rich, this victim is. Despite every ill of these eight years past, this wonderful, this most amazing country is bearing him up as a strong swimmer would bear a little lost child to the shore. He has gold at home and as like as not a little something put away over there beyond the water, in British trust. Of course you will not see or know this if a casual observer; neither is it to be gathered from the columns of the Southern press. Macaulay talks somewhere of that singular style of architecture which prevails in despotic countries, where houses look mean and gloomy without, but are filled with Persian rugs and golden Arabesque within. So there is hereabouts a moral architecture which tells by a plain exterior nothing of the refurnishing and refitting of fortunes within. It may be a revenue man with a new despotism or one of those lice of despotism, a detective, that is peering about and asking questions, and small satisfaction will either of those birds get. It takes a long and wide look, but the money's there. As for what the papers say, it is a trick of the trade to talk of the extreme poverty of the South, for the gentlemen of the press, be it known, are sometimes apt to hang on to a good grievance for the sake of the fine periods it enables them to turn.

The moral influence of the citizens of the South has gutted the reconstructed State governments. They stand as mere hulls, and by the natural law of growth will soon be thrown off as inofficious vesicles are expelled the human frame. In such case their financial obligations will receive a strict attention.—Where the stealage is but a small per cent, and the proceeds of the bonds issued has gone to public purposes, there will not be much question as to their recognition; if otherwise, overboard they go.

A MANLY TEMPER.—Horace Bushnell in one of his essays, gives the following forcible description of the man who has learned to comprehend and control his own weakness and variations of mind.—And what true man has not done so?

"Now a wise man is one who understands himself well enough to make due allowance for such insane moods and varieties, never concluding that a thing is thus or thus because just now it bears that look; waiting often to see what a sleep or walk, or a cool revision, or perhaps a considerable turn of repentance will do. He does not slash upon a man or a subject, from the point of a just now rising temper. He maintains a noble candor, by waiting sometimes for a gentler spirit, and a better sense of truth. He is never intolerant of other men's judgment, because he is a little distrustful of his own. He retains the dislikes of prejudice, because he has a prejudice against his dislikes. His resentments are softened by his condemnations of himself. His depressions do not crush him, because he has sometimes seen the sun, and believes it will appear again. He revises his opinions readily, because he has a right, he thinks, to better opinions if he can find him. He holds fast, sound opinions, lest his moodiness in change should take all truth away. And if his insane thinkings appear to be toppling him down the gulf of skepticism, he recovers himself by just raising the question, whether a more sane way of thinking might not think different? A man who is duly aware thus of his own distempered faculty, makes a life how different from one who acts as if he were infallible, and had nothing to do but just to let himself be pronounced."

LITTLE THINGS.—Little martin boxes of homes are generally the most happy and cosy; little villages are nearer to being atoms of a shattered paradise than anything we know of; and little fortunes bring the most contents, and little hopes the least disappointments. Little words are the sweetest to hear; little charities fly furthest, and stay longest on the wing; little lakes are the stillest, little hearts the fullest, and little farms best tilled. Little books are the most read, and little songs the most loved. And when nature would make anything especially rare and beautiful, she makes it little—little pearls, little diamonds, little dews.

LET your pleasure come in as recreation—not as the business of your life.

ASTONISHING FEAT FOR A BOY.

A boy circus rider performed the astonishing feat of turning twenty-five consecutive somersaults on horse back in Louisville the other day. A dispute having risen between him and the manager as to how many he was capable of turning, the latter promised him the horse, pad and bridle with which he performed the feat if he turned twenty-five times. After being introduced into the ring, and performing a number of very difficult, but beautiful acts of horsemanship he threw aside the whip and prepared himself for the trial. Until he completed his tenth somersault, the crowd remained quiet, but when fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen were called the most itense interest was manifested, and when he had fairly accomplished his twenty-fifth somersault, the applause was deafening. Immediately after his great act, without leaving the back of his steed, which he had fairly won, he successfully accomplished the perilous and difficult act of turning five backward, back somersaults making thirty in all. The horse and equipments are valued at two thousand dollars.

HINTS TO MAKE HOME HAPPY—BY A MAN WHO MARRIED LATE.—Endeavor every morning to get out of bed on the wrong side. Always ring for your hot water with a vehemence of one who thinks his house is on fire, and scold the servant through the door for her tardiness in bringing it. Never get your breakfast without grumbling that the eggs are always boiled too much or else not half enough; and that by no chance can you ever get a decent cup of coffee. Except for purposes of diet, or else to make a disagreeable remark, don't open your mouth until the meal is finished.—If your wife attempts a little cheerful conversation, stop it by a grunt; and eat with the newspaper propped up before your plate, as a hint that you don't want her to bother you by talking.—Never positively tell her whether you'll be home to dinner; and be careful on the days when you are certain you'll dine out, to express yourself so that she will be sure to wait an hour for you.—When you quit the house, leave a last word with the servant, as opposite as possible to what you told your wife, so as still more to prevent her knowing what to do, and give you further chances of complaint at her not doing it. Of course, be sure when you go out to bang the doors.

WOMAN ANALYZED.—A Philadelphia paper says that a young woman of that city, who had acquired the habit of whitening herself with cosmetics from head to foot, recently took a medical bath, and on emerging from it, was horrified at finding herself as black as an Ethiopian. The transformation was complete. Not a vestige of the supreme Caucasian race was left. Her physician was sent for in alarm and haste. On his arrival he laughed immoderately, and said: "Madam, you are not ill, you are no longer a woman, but a sulphuret. It is not now a question of medical treatment, but of simple chemical action. I shall analyze you. Come, I shall submit you to a bath of sulphuric acid diluted with water. The acid will have the honor of combining with you; it will take up the sulphur—the metal will produce a sulphate, and we shall find as a precipitate, a very pretty woman." The good natured physician went through with his analysis, and the belle was restored to her membership with the white race.—Young ladies who are ambitious of snowy complexions should remember this, and be careful what powder and cosmetics they use—if they use any at all.

ADVANTAGE OF LAW.—A young man who studied law in Connecticut became acquainted with the following facts, which are very remarkable, though not so very singular: A farmer cut down a tree which stood so near the boundary line of his farm that it was doubtful whether it belonged to him or his neighbor. The neighbor, however, claimed the tree, and prosecuted the man who cut it for damages. The case was continued from court to court. Time was wasted, temper soured, and money lost; but the case was finally gained by the prosecuter. The last my friend knew of the transaction was, the man who 'gained the cause' came to the lawyer's office to execute a deed on his whole farm, which he had been compelled to sell to pay his costs! Then, houseless and homeless, he could thrust his hand into his pocket and triumphantly exclaim, "I've beat him!"

A POOR tailor dunning for an old debt other day, wrote as follows: "Dear Jim—This little account has been standing seven years, and I think it is high time it was paid." To which Jim replied on the same sheet of paper, while Snip's boy was wa[illegible]: "Dear Sam—I don't, and may [illegible] opinion never alter [illegible] a splendid [illegible]

SAVED HIS WHIPPING.—A little urchin seven or eight years old, in one of our schools where a Miss Blodgett was teacher, composed the following and wrote it on his slate at prayer time to the great amusement of the boys:

"A little mouse ran up stairs,
To hear Miss Blodgett say her prayers."

The teacher discovered the rhyme, and called out the culprit. For a punishment, she gave him his choice, to make another rhyme in five minutes, or be whipped. So after thinking and blinking, and scratching his head till his time was nearly out, and the teacher was lifting the stick in a threatening manner, at the last moment he exclaimed—

"Here I stand before Miss Blodgett; She's going to strike, and I'm going to dodge it."

He was sent to his seat.

MASONIC DUTY.—None have stated the duties of Masonry more succinctly and clearly than DeWitt Clinton. In 1893 he said: "A Mason is bound to consult the happiness and promote the interests of his brother; to avoid everything offensive to his feelings; to abstain from reproach, censure and unjust suspicion; to warn him of the machinations of his errors; to advance the reputation of his family; to protect the chastity of his house; to defend his life, his property, and what is dearer to a man of honor, his character, against unjust attacks; to relieve his wants and his distress; to distil into his mind proper ideas of conduct in the department of life which he is called to fill; and let me add, to foster his schemes of interest and promotion, if compatible with the paramount duties a man owes the community."

They don't leave their implements scattered over the farm, exposed to rain, snow and heat.

They repair their tools and buildings at the proper time, and do not suffer a subsequent three fold expenditure of time and money.

They use their money judiciously, and do not attend auction sales to purchase all kinds of trumpery because it is "cheap."

They practice economy by giving their stock good shelter during the winter, also good food, taking out all that is unsound, half rotten, or mouldy.

READ THE PAPERS.—Those planters who take a newspaper, pay for it and read it regularly, are the men who bear the highest reputation as agriculturists, and who are the most valued in their respective neighborhoods for shrewdness and sagacity in their business transactions. Many a planter, if the truth were known, saves more than ten times the price of his subscription in the course of a year, by the information that he obtains through the columns of his paper. It is useless to argue the point, the man who does not read the papers is a long way behind the age.—Journal & Messenger.

SECRET SORROWS.—"Ah! this beautiful world! Indeed, I scarcely know what to think of it. Sometimes it is all gladness and sunshine, and Heaven itself seems not far off. And then it changes suddenly, and is dark and lowering, and clouds shut out the sky. In the lives of the saddest of us there are bright days like this, when we feel as if we could take the great world in our arms. Then come the gloomy hours, when the fire will neither burn in our hearts, nor on our hearths. Believe me, every heart has its own secret sorrows, which the world knows not."

A BLIND horse wandered into White river, at Indianapolis, and getting beyond his depth, swam around in a circle, trying to find his way out. His distress attracted another horse, not far away on the bank, who first went to the water's edge and tried to direct the blind horse by neighing. Failing in this, he took to the water and swam out to his relief, and after swimming around him for nearly a quarter of an hour, he finally got the blind horse to understand in what direction the land lay, and the two horses came to the shore side by side, amid the cheers of upward of one hundred persons who had become spectators.

☞ The President's order for the election in Mississippi contains precisely the same provisions as were prescribed for the election in Virginia. The constitution proper, the disfranchisement clause, and the test oath clause, will be voted on separately. There is some talk of placing a first-class man on the ticket with DENT for [illegible] Governor, and should the C[illegible] be elected, making [illegible] States Senator.— [illegible] on the fourth [illegible] next.

The Marietta Journal.

Marietta, Georgia,

Friday Morn. July 30, 1869.

The School Fair.

Our citizens should remember that Marietta's enviable reputation for intelligence and hospitality is at stake at the coming Fair. It should be seen to that it be not stuffed. Visitors will be here during the Fair and will expect all that has been promised and all, therefore, can see the importance of complying with Mr. MANSFIELD'S request in regard to furnishing lodging, &c. Those who feel disposed to be accommodating can report to A. W. YORK and W. L. MANSFIELD, at once.

That the Fair will prove a success, we do not entertain a doubt. The City Park has been tendered by the City Council for the purpose and preparation to place it in a suitable condition will be immediately commenced. Merchandise consisting of the most valuable and useful articles will be offered for sale at reasonable prices. Pianos of the latest improved style—trinkets of the most gaudy will be arrayed for public patronage. Different kinds of amusements such as Concerts, &c., with the best of Music, each night during the Fair, will be an additional and interesting feature.

The purpose of this Fair is for the establishment of two good schools in our city. One for the gratuitous education of the poor and orphan children of the departed heroes. The other is a high grade—a Female College—for the education of the daughters of our fair Sunny South. Let no effort be left undone to make this magnificent public charity a fit sequel to all that ever moved man for his own and his country's good.

Almost Another Fire.

Mr. NORWOOD, our clever citizen, informs us, that on his return to business last Monday morning, he discovered that two boxes of matches had been knocked off the shelves, by some prowling animal inhabiting the house, and entered burned to coal.—As luck would have it, the lodgement of the matches was on material destitute of igniting qualities, and the fire was thereby happily extinguished.

This should urge those, who have in charge the important duty of soliciting contributions too add to the $500 donated by the City Council for the purchase of a Fire Engine, to immediate action. Gentlemen, we beseech you in the interest of Marietta not to delay this matter for it is dangerous. You trifle with the prosperity of Marietta by being indifferent.

If the matches, which we above spoke of, had fallen on combustible material, the finest block of buildings in Marietta would have been in ruins, (all for the want of a Fire Engine,) for there would have been no possible means to have extinguished it.

Our citizens should be very careful where they leave these "Parlor Matches," they are too easily ignited.

The Crops.

Since the great freshet, six weeks ago, but partial showers have fallen upon this and contiguous territory until yesterday. The Corn is greatly injured: On many farms a half crop will not be gathered.

In view of this fact and of the reports from the West of the failure of the Corn crop, and in anticipation of the scarcity and high price of this important grain, it is very essential that our farmers should avail themselves of every advantage still within their reach while the seasons last. Let them not only carefully secure abundant forage of every description to lessen the necessity for corn in subsisting stock, but let them now sow for an abundant crop of that valuable product the TURNIP. Now is the time. Pulverize the land deep and thoroughly. If not already rich use fertilizers, and you may have a crop which if judiciously used will lessen very greatly the drafts on the Corn crib.

In view of an enlightened system of husbandry we should not neglect to seed this fall as much land as we can judiciously in the Grasses. It is not only the most economical mode of providing subsistence for Stock, but the best mode of improving our lands.

Excursion of the Members of the Press.

We have received from Col HULBERT a letter of invitation to the members of the Press to participate in an Excursion on the 25th proximo, with a view of observing and directing attention to the varied and valuable resources of the Country contiguous to the W. & A. Railroad, and with the hope that the development of these resources may be thus facilitated.—The Excursion will extend to Chattanooga, thence by steam to the Iron Works on the Tennessee River, returning to Chattanooga thence to Rome; thence down the Coosa by steam to the Iron Works on that River. Returning to Rome, the party will go down the Selma, Rome & Dalton Road to the Iron Works on its line, thence return. The trip to occupy about twelve days.

The JOURNAL will be represented and will give all the influence to an object so laudable.

Grant's Morgan Mare.

A writer giving the startling intelligence that the President's favorite Mare „is dead" calls upon all loyal men to prove their loyalty by their confidence on this great bereavement, and says "If any man has a "Morgan Mare" let him become the great Curtius of the times; let him save his country and give the President that Mare! Let him do this and future generations "shall rise up and call him blessed!"

These are very great considerations and perhaps greater, in the estimation of many people lie behind them. The President's sense of obligation can be most profoundly struck, perhaps, by "horse" gifts; but he must excuse us. "Coolie" has ploughed our Corn "crop" and has so won upon us that we can't make up our mind to part with her, for the most distinguised consideration.

Summer Visitors.

Marietta at this time is thronged with summer visitors. That fine and elegant Hotel, the Kenneaw House, is crowded. Private residences are resorted to for board. We seldom step out, without meeting strange faces, no matter what street or place we visit. We welcome them, and appreciate their good taste in selecting the health-inspiring breeze of Marietta, with its surrounding beauty, delightful mountain scenery and lovely sparkling water, as a summer resort and hope their stay may be one pleasant and agreeable.

A Just Tribute.

Dr. HUNTER, during his visit to Marietta said to us: "You have the most pleasant city that I know of. I am perfectly delighted with it. It is well adapted for a summer resort, for for those who wish to get out of the smoke and noise of city life." Dr. HUNTER, as an eminent Physician, discovers health and beauty in Marietta unsurpassed, or he would not speak as he does. He only pays a just tribute to truth.

A Change.

After going through the process of roasting and baking for several weeks past, we are now in the enjoyment of a stirring and cooling breeze, as the effect of copious rains. All seem to take it quiet and easy

Beautiful Women.

It gives a pure blooming complexion and restores Youthful Beauty.

Its effects are gradual, natural and perfect.

It Removes Pimples, Freckles and Blotches—Tan, Sunburn and Freckles, and makes a lady of thirty appear but twenty.

The Magnolia Balm makes the Skin Smooth and Pearly; the Eye bright and clear, the Cheek glow with the Bloom of Youth, and imparts a fresh, plump appearance to the Countenance. No Lady need complain of her complexion when 75 cents will purchase this delightful article.

The best thing to dress the Hair with, is Lyons' Katharion.

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine.

If you have a cough, do not neglect it; thousands go to an untimely grave by neglecting what they call "a slight cold." These slight colds are very insidious. They soon become deep-seated and defy all remedies. Dr. TUTT'S EXPECTORANT will cure it. It can be had of any Druggist.

Dr. Hunter.

This eminent physician visited our city on last Saturday, by special request of some of our citizens. He also called in at the JOURNAL OFFICE. We find him to have the qualities of an intelligent and affable gentleman, as well as undoubted ability in his profession.

Authorised Agent.

Dr. WM. ARNOLD will receive and receipt for subscriptions for the JOURNAL at Lost Mountain and vicinity. Single subscribers $2 per annum. Clubs of five subscribers and upwards $1.50 each.

Ordinary of Cobb

Gov. Bullock has appointed Mr. C. J. SHEPARD, Clerk of Ordinary of Cobb county. A good appointment.

Rain.

The heaviest rain we have ever been permitted to witness fell in this locality on last Tuesday evening; for the time being it was a successful deluge.

RELIGION OF THE CHINESE

A correspondent from San Francisco gives us a striking feature of the Chinese religion showing their regard for Providence from their stand-point. They believe "that God is good and kind and merciful; that he will under no circumstances do the Evil one hates us and is ever watching an opportunity to injure and destroy us, and we must conciliate him. So Joss or Devil houses are erected and incense is burned constantly and offerings made to conciliate the Devil."

The same writer continues:—

They believe in the sweet influence of departed spirits, that the dead are constantly around them, to watch, and guard, and help. They make offerings of food at their graves, not, as is said, with the idea of feeding the dead, but to show them that they are remembered. Their name for God, and for the influence which those departed exert, is the same as that which expresses the soft warmth and effect of a Southern sun falling upon a slope which looks toward the South.

They send their dead home to bury them in the family line, so that the chain of ancestry may be complete, and the sweet influences of the spirit world flow through the line uninterruptedly. If the line is broken by an absent dead one, the influences are less regular, and the wandering spirit is not at rest, and instead of watching to do good, desires to injure and make trouble in return for the neglect of his body. Three times a year offerings are made to departed spirits, and a late Emperor has decreed that the Government make offerings also three times a year to the spirits at large, that is to the spirits of such as have died in battle, or have been lost at sea and left unburied or not returned to the graves where the family line is laid. This Emperor had lost some of his family at sea, and, after much mourning over his broken line of buried ancestors, he hit upon the remedy thus described.

There is much that is beautiful and poetical in what they term their religion, and much that shows a mind susceptible to religious truth. The missionary field is being brought to our very door in California. The great societies of our country cannot move too promptly in efforts to educate and Christinize these pagans, skilled in all labor and accomplished in a thousand ways, and whose coming will bless the country in many important respects. The wave is setting in upon our shores strongly, and Christian missionary effort should be immediately put forth to reclaim and mould this new element in our wealth and advancements.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question! Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shaking with chills, without any hopes of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is HOSTETTER'S PREPARED STOMACH BITTERS. The wonderful success for the last decade has made it a household necessity. Every family should be prepared for those invidious visitors and have a bottle of PEPSINE in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases. Indigestion invades on the citadel of the four stomachs, and otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would not abound appear. The PEPSINE is destined to banish forever the physicians practice, and do away with the hortful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. PEPSINE is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

THANKSGIVING FOR A DEMIJOHN OF WHISKY.

Mr. Editor:—I believe in the Press—"the fourth estate of the realm." No man knows its power. Its Briareon hands touch every sphere of life and affect every department of activity. The influence of the press is felt in every fibre of our civilization. It discusses all questions. There is no issue so grave but that it may be flippant in the disposal of it; there is nothing so trifling that, upon occasion, it will not magnify it into grave importance. Its voice directs those great movements of the people that make or unmake administrations and it determines the results of an election for constable. It sets forward a grand enterprise of science and energy like the Atlantic Cable or the Pacific Railroad and reports the proceedings of a village debating society; it tells the world of political revolutions that give new governments to millions, and parades, in a perfect ecstasy of interest, the details of the last prize fight to the trotting match. The press wields the best and the worst, the most conservative and the most destructive agencies that give shape to society and sow the seeds of histories yet to be. It is ubiquitous and irrepressible. No man is beyond its influence; one cannot stay in society and avoid it. To escape it he must get out of the world—as he would escape the atmosphere.

The press and public opinion are the Siamese twins of society; what moves the one inspires the other. Public opinion is reflected in the press and the press forms public opinion. The one may be judged by the other. The utterances of the press give us the diathesis of the times. The newspaper is a sliding scale by which we may measure the rise and fall of public and private virtue. Do the conductors of the press generally know the tremendous power of this engine? The words of Cæsar were but the hand of a child to this Hercules of our civilization.

Is the press outside the great law of responsibility to God that binds every soul to "obedience of the truth?" Are publishers and editors, like railroads and other corporations, without souls? and shall they, along with Railroad Superintendents and Directors, claim for themselves utter irresponsibleness to God and man? Is it not true of publishers and editors, as of other men, that the abuse of a great power is the perversion of a great trust? a heinous sin against God and a grievous wrong upon man?

We give thanks that among the conductors of the press are earnest and true men who fear God and labor for man's peace "as ever in the great Taskmaster's eye." There are some who have words of cheer for every good thing, and who, unmoved by bribes or frowns, look sin in its brazen face and, in God's name, rebuke it—always and everywhere.—Heaven grant them reinforcements, for in the wide harvest-field such "laborers are few."

What the press is, what it ought to be and what it may be, what influence it is now exerting, are questions of grave importance to every good man who thinks.

It is a matter for thanksgiving that certain classes of publications do not have their origin in the South. There is not a Southern city that would sustain such treasuries of villainous woodcuts, obscene recitals and diabolical suggestions as are paraded before the country in those darling organs of Pandemonium—the "Police News," and "other creeping things" "after its kind."—When the depraved among us delight their prurient tastes with such rare-bits of sensualism they are obliged to import it. It takes New York or Chicago to cater successfully to such appetites.—Up to date, Southern Bishops and divines—Heaven be praised!—have not entered the columns of Beamer's Ledger—trotting for pay with "Master" and Beecher. But the carnal appetency is showing itself. The importation of this depraved literature is constantly increasing and, if the truth may be spoken—our secular press is largely responsible for it. Some of our Southern papers are doing their utmost to debauch Southern sentiment. If this result is intended, it is criminal in the last degree, as conspiring with the Devil against the life and purity of society; if it is not intended, and the wicked things that are written and approved by some of our editors are simply spontaneous expressions of the thoughts they think and the principles they entertain; if they write as they do, because, being what they are, they cannot write otherwise; or, if, indifferent to the good or evil they may accomplish, they only "spread for the loft," in any case the character of many of our daily papers demonstrates the mental and moral unfitness of their managers and editors for the places they have presumed to occupy.

The time has come when—"for the money"—the most disreputable business may be advertised and the most unworthy adventurer be editorially endorsed in the columns of three-fourths of the secular papers in the country. The re is not a vagabond gang of tenth-rate minstrels—too mean for editorial commendation; there is not circus-troupe so meagre in its appointments, so contemptible with its spavined horses and so loathsome with its drunken men and [illegible] that editorial rhetoric cannot be bought to exalt it into a "magnificent cortege"—"a most delightful entertainment;" there cannot come this way an imitation of Black Crook, or other Devil's show—so appallingly nude, so revoltingly obscene, but that editorial sanction shall immediately glorify it as "a chaste exhibition"—a "spectacular drama of thrilling interest." Of the majority of the papers there is hardly a single issue that is not defiled with disgusting personalities, with half suppressed blasphemy, with low jests and double entendres that may amuse the wits of the bar-room and the bagnio, but that make every pure woman blush and every right-minded man ashamed. If to any charitable person these remarks should seem unduly severe, I only ask that he will attentively consider what evidence of their truth the next dozen papers, he may chance to see, will afford, and I am persuaded that he will object to my statements only because they are deficient in fidelity of analysis and energy of expression.

On last Sunday morning two, at least, of the daily papers published in this city presented to their patrons—along with religious notices—for Sabbath reading, *extravagant laudation of a certain "ale house" and drinking shop that in the local column had won editorial favor by the munificent present of a whole "*Demijohn of Whisky!" Is it there these gentlemen into a state of preternatural mental activity while they invoked both prose and poetry to express their unutterable gratitude. You may say that my account of the affair is mere burlesque, but I assure you, sir, there was no burlesque about their gratitude—it was sincere and rapturous. One of our city papers has repeatedly, within the last few months, publicly returned thanks to various barkeepers for so small a favor as a single "bottle of whisky." In this latter case it is not easy to determine whether so violent a strain upon courtesy and gratitude is the evidence of uncommon thirst or of extreme "impecuniosity."

Not long since we were regaled with an editorial leader, strong and eloquent, in commendation of a certain "Lottery," located here and run in the name of Masonry and benevolence; for which I refuse to believe that Masonry is responsible, and upon which—since it so antagonizes the Pauline and Christian methods of benevolence, I cannot expect the blessings of Heaven to rest. I rejoice to know that there was one paper, in Atlanta, that could not be bought over, by "the management," to the advocacy of this immoral device for making an easy living. When, sometime since, it was charged that the late managing editor of the New Nonpareil had sold the influence of his paper "for a consideration," a howl of indignation was raised that startled the sleeping virtues of "the Fourth Estate," from Maine to Oregon. What is the difference? That the Tribune man could not be bought with "demijohns of whisky" nor other such beggarly bribes. Chiefly therefore a difference of price.

If such things as are under consideration were private affairs, mere expressions of individual tastes and opinions they might be passed by in commiseration of their weakness or contempt for their venality.

But, Mr. Editor, a newspaper can in no wise be made a private affair. It claims to reflect and guide public opinion. Its utterances concern the peace of society, the sobriety, virtue and destiny of our children.

Those of us who do not believe that the amount of whisky a man consumes is a true measure of his civilization nor a conclusive proof of his fitness for the office of editor, are entitled to demand that, if every low sink of iniquity and appliance of demoralization must be advertised, it shall not, at least, receive editorial endorsement; that those who assume to guide our opinions shall not thus unblushingly proclaim to the world that their own are for sale.

This evil is not peculiar to Atlanta.—It is epidemic to a most alarming extent. Venality is the sin of the age, and the Press furnishes hundreds of conspicuous and shocking examples. I suppose that there is no business man of our cities who does not know that a good "fee" will command for the merest stranger the strongest editorial endorsement; that for money enough laudations can be purchased, of which their writers do not believe one word. This has gone so far that no man who is acquainted with these moral idiosyncracies of the Press pays the slightest attention to any commendation of an advertiser that can be made. That man must be green indeed who, going as a stranger into one of our cities, would enter a place of business simply because the Editor had recommended it.

Who does not know that the majority of these papers will publish a more emphatic and extended notice of "Kenny's Ale-House" for a "demijohn of whisky" than of the oldest and most reliable establishment in the city that confines itself to legitimate advertising?

I do not hesitate to say, and with all possible earnestness, that such conduct is criminal and injurious to the last degree. As far as such newspapers have influence it is exerted to make vice respectable. It tends to confuse the moral perceptions of the young, to blunt their sensibilities, to accustom them to vice and harden them against the truth.

It is true that the abuse of a great power is the perversion of a great trust.—The greater the power the more criminal and destructive is a careless or malicious use of it. It will not answer for these gentlemen of the Press, who recklessly play with thunderbolts, to raise their hands in horror when they behold the wreck and ruin that has been wrought and exclaim—"I did not intend it."—They are under every sanction of human and divine law to intend not to do it.—If fire break out, and catch in thorns, so that the stacks of corn, or the standing corn, or the field be consumed therewith; he that kindled the fire shall surely make restitution." If I, for one, did not see that a licentious Press is responsible for the ruin of thousands of our fellow citizens; if I did not recognize in the Press a most potent agency for good or evil, I should hold my peace. If a pure Press is "the mightiest of the mighty means, on which the arm of Progress leans," a perverted Press is the most destructive agent of sin and ruin that can be developed upon earth from Faith and from Liberty. Hell's great leader is terrible not simply because he is wicked but because he is also powerful; he is Satan and Apollyon, but he has been "Lucifer, Son of the morning."

I have written these plain words because silence has ceased to be a virtue; because with my convictions, silence would be as wicked as the iniquities I deplore.

Such persons as may find themselves embraced in the indictment have no just ground for complaint. If they believe what they say they should thank me for extending a knowledge of their sentiments; if they do not believe it and only publish what is paid for without regard to the truth, they should not blame me, since they themselves have already advertised their insincerity to the extent of their circulation.

I ask you, sir, in solemn earnestness, whether there are not enough good men in the country to sustain a secular paper that we shall not fear to take into our houses; a paper that will not be the organ of cliques—that shall be free and pure—that, taking the heaven-tempered sword of Truth in loyal hands shall "smite with fiery force" the most hoary untruths and the mightiest and most inexpugnable corruptions of the rulers and of the people?

ATTICUS G. HAYGOOD.

Atlanta, Ga., July 9, 1869.

WHAT DID MARY SAY?

During the trial of one Coggeil, for kidnapping, which took place lately in Hillsboro, N. C., an incident occurred which caused considerable fun at the expense of the wags and the counsel. A Miss Sloan was testifying, and was requested to state all that she knew about a certain transaction. Witness—"I was in the sitting-room when Mary came from the kitchen hurriedly and Coggeil after her. He caught hold of her at the sitting-room door, and said, 'Mary, you have been here long enough; come and go home now.' "What did Mary say?" Attorney for the State—"Stop there; I object to the question." Here a discussion of nearly four hours took place, in which four lawyers participated; after which the Judge held a long, serious, and exciting discussion on the subject, and finally, in a very formal and pompous manner stated that it was the opinion of the court that the question should be answered. The court room was crowded to almost suffocation, and the most intense interest was manifested at this stage of the proceedings. The question was repeated, "What did Mary say?" and the witness answered: "She didn't say a word."

TO CRITICISE a paper is an easy task, but to print one to please everybody and the rest of mankind is no small undertaking. Those who find fault with every little item which does not suit their ideas of right and wrong, should buy type and publish an organ of their own. Let them try it for a while, and they don't get some new ideas out of the subject, we are no judges on [illegible] ture.

A Standard History by Gen. Lee.

A Book by Gen. Lee will awaken such special interest, that we are glad to call attention to it. The University Publishing Co., of No. 4 Bond Street, N. Y. announce that they have now in press, and will issue in a few weeks, "Memoirs of the War," by Gen. Henry Lee, thoroughly revised and corrected by Gen. R. E. Lee, who has added, also, an entirely new biography of his father, prepared by him from private and personal materials never before used. It will be a large and handsome octavo volume, illustrated by new steel portraits of Gen. Henry Lee and Gen. Nathaniel Greene; beautiful steel engravings of "Marion Crossing the Pedee," and the "Surrender of Cornwallis," and five original maps and plans. Our readers need not be told that this is a work of great interest and value. It is the standard history of military operations at the South during the revlutionary war and as such is a book which every reading man should possess; but its interest and value are both greatly increased by Gen. Robert E. Lee's thorough revision and correction, and by the valuable biography of his father which he has written and added to it.

We are sure that this announcement, alone is sufficient to give the book a very great sale, but when we add that Gen. Lee is personally interested in its publication, such a sale is made certain.

As we learn that the book is to be sold by canvassing agents only, those who desire to engage in its sale should make early application to the publishers.

Farming.

We spoke last week of the importance of the Turnip Crop and of preparing lands to be seeded in Grass. Our low lands are naturally best adapted to the grasses; but it is most judicious to reserve them for grain and to seed down upland as they may not only this way be made most highly profitable but put in the process of improvement. An acre of upland well seeded in grass will keep a horse, with very little grain, in as good working order, as five acres of ordinary land devoted to Corn; and the expense is not so great while you are adding to the land's fertility.

Observation and experience has suggested to us this season that our lands, especially our grey soils, are not improved with Turning Plows. The turning should be very shallow—the subsoiling and pulverization as deep as possible to ensure the greatest production of all crops and to avoid the effect of drought. In a large portion of country around us where the corn crop is cut off one-half or more with such pulverization and a wider distance given to the corn good crops would have been made.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no to! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its beautiful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrefuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the horrid effects of taking quining, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

"I WISH I HAD CAPITAL"

So we heard a great strapping young man exclaim the other day. We concluded that he wanted practical advice, and we shall give it to him.

You want capital, do you? And suppose you had what you call capital, what would you do with it? Haven't you hands, feet, muscle, bone, brains, health, and don't you call them capital? What more capital did God give anybody?

"Oh! but they are not money," say you. But they are more than money, and nobody can take them from you.—Don't you know how to use them? If you don't its time you were learning.—Take hold of the plow, or hoe, or jack plane, or broad-ax, and go to work.—Your capital will then, in due time, yield you a large interest.—Ay, but there's the rub; you don't want to work; you want money on credit, so you can play gentleman and speculate, and end by playing the vagabond.

Or you want a farm, with plenty of hands upon it to do the work, while you run over the country and dissipate; or you want to marry some rich girl who may be foolish enough to take you for your good looks, that she may support you.

Shame on you, young man! Go to work with the capital you have, and you'll soon make interest enough upon it to give you as much money as you need, and make you feel like a man. If you cannot make money on what capital you have, you would not if you had a large amount in cash. If you do not know how to use bone, muscle and brains, you would not know how to use gold. If you let the capital you have lie idle, and waste and rust out, it would be the same with you if you had gold; you would only know how to waste it.

Then don't stand about idle, a great helpless boy, waiting for something to turn up, but go to work. Take the first work you can find, no matter what it is, so that you do it well. Yes, whatever you undertake do it well; always do your best. If you manage the capital you already have, you will soon have plenty more to manage; but if you can not or will not manage the capital God has given you, you will never have any other to manage. Do you hear young man?

REMEDY FOR THE TURNIP FLY.

S. Edwards Tedd, in the Working Farmer, proposes to rid the turnip crop of this pest by the use of ashes. He says:

As soon as the young plants can be seen, let a light sprinkling of wood ashes be sifted over the rows. It will not injure the housewife's sieve that is used to sift Indian meal. Ashes cannot be applied satisfactorily with the hand. The aim should be simply to cover the minute leaves with fine ashes sufficient to prevent their being devoured by the turnip fly. When ashes are applied by hand without a sieve, which should be held close to the ground; careless operators are very liable to throw it on so bountifully as to smother the tender plants,

THE FARMER'S CREED.

We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation.

We believe the soil loves to eat as well as the owner, and ought, therefore, to be well manured.

We believe in going to the bottom of things, and therefore, in deep plowing and enough of it. All the better if it be a sub-soil plow.

We believe in large crops, which leave the ground better than they find it—making both the farm and farmer rich at once. We believe that every farm should own a good farmer.

We believe that the best fertilizer of any soil is the spirits of industry, enterprise and intelligence—without this, lime, gypsum and guano will be of little use.

"I SAY, Mister, did you see a dog come by here that looked as if he were a year, or year and half or two years old?" said a Yankee to a Countryman, at the roadside. "Yes," said the countryman, thinking himself quizzed. "He passed about an hour, or an hour and a half, or two hours ago, and is now about a mile, or a mile and a half, two miles ahead; and he had a tail about an inch, or an inch and a half, or two inches long." "That'll do," said the Yankee; "you're into me foot or a foot and a half, or two feet."

WHAT EVERY YOUNG MAN SHOULD DO.

1. Every young man should make the most of himself, intellectually, morally, socially and physically.

2. He should depend upon his own efforts to accomplish these results.

3. He should be willing to take advice from those competent to give it, and to follow such advice, until his own judgment or convictions, properly founded, should otherwise direct.

4. If he is unfortunate enough to have a rich and indulgent father, he must do the best he can under the circumstances, which will be to conduct himself very much as though he had not these obstacles to overcome.

5. He should remember that young men, if they live, grow old and that the habits of youth are oftener than otherwise perpetuated in the mature man.—Knowing this fact, he should "govern himself accordingly."

6. He should never be discouraged by small beginnings, but remember that nearly all great results have been wrought out from apparently slight cause.

7. He should never, under any circumstances, be idle. If he cannot find the employment he prefers, let him come as near his desires as possible—he will thus reach the object of his ambition.

8. All young men have indienable rights," among which none is greater and more sacred than the privilege to be "somebody."

FASHIONABLE WOMEN.

Fashions kills more women than toil and sorrow. Obedience to fashion is a greater trangression of the laws woman's nature, a greater injury to her physical and mental constitution, than the hardships of poverty and neglect. The slave woman at her task will live and grow old, and see two or three generations of her mistresses fade and pass away. The washerwoman, with scarce a ray of hope to cheer her in her toils, will live to see her fashionable sisters all extinct. The kitchen-maid is hearty and strong, when her lady has to be nursed like a sick baby.

It is a sad truth that fashion-pampered women are almost worthless for all the good ends of life; they have but little force of character; they have still less power of moral will, and quite as little physical energy. They live for no great ends. They are dolls formed in the hands of milliners and servants, to be dressed and fed to order. They dress nobody, they bless nobody, and save nobody. They write no books, they set no rich examples of virtue and woman's life. If they rear children, servants and nurses do all, save to conceive and give them birth. And when reared, what are they? What do they ever amount to, but weaker scions of the old stock? Who ever heard of a fashionable woman's child exhibiting any virtue and power of mind, for which it became eminent? Read the biographies of our great and good men and women. Not one of them had a fashionable mother. They nearly all sprung from strong-minded women, who had about as little to do with fashion as with the changing clouds.

MANNERS.

Young folks' should be mannerly.—How to be so is the question. Many a good boy and girl feel that they can not behave to suit themselves in the presence of company. They feel timid, bashful, and self-distrustful the moment they are addressed by a stranger, or appear in company. There is but one way to get over this feeling and acquire graceful and easy manners, that is to do the best they can all the time at home, as well as abroad. Good manners are not learned from arbitrary teachings so much as acquired from habit. They grow upon us by use. We must be courteous, agreeable, civil, kind, gentlemanly and womanly at home, and then it will soon become a kind of second nature to be so everywhere. A coarse, rough manner at home begets a habit of roughness, which we cannot lay off we try, when we go among strangers.—The most agreeable at home. Home is the school for all the best things, especially for good manners.

An old author quaintly remarks:—"Avoid argument with ladies. In spining yarns among silks and satins, a man is sure to be worsted and twisted. And when a man is worsted and twisted, he may consider himself wound him up."

BEECHER says that men confess everything but their own besetting sins.—They steer clear of these. Who ever heard a man say, "O Lord, I am as proud as Lucifer; humble me;" or "O Lord, I am so mean and stingy that 'tis only with great pain that I can unloose my fist; make me generous."

NEGRO ELOQUENCE.—Man is de first animal in de creation; he springs up like de hopper grass, hops about like a popper grass, and dies de same as a jackass!

REVENUE LAWS.

"Where ignorance is bliss 'twere folly to be wise," is doubtless a very acceptable motto to most men, but where ignorance entails more trouble and expense than bliss, 'tis always best to be "posted," particularly on the latest Internal Revenue decisions. As several of our merchants and traders have suffered of late from this very cause, we present to our readers some of the latest decisions, and advise all persons interested in or affected by them to be on their guard against infractions:

"Parties using paper collars must use them from the original package; that is, from the box in which they have been purchased; and a three cent revenue stamp must be attached to each one when put on. When the collar becomes soiled and is turned with the clean side out, it must receive another three cent stamp, and must also be conspicuously stamped with the word 'turned.' Boxes, when emptied, cannot be used a second time, but must be destroyed in the room where emptied, and the assessor furnished with a certificate of the fact. If thrown out at the window, or carried out in the coal scuttle or washtub, such boxes will be subject to export duty.

"Bootblacks are required to use their blacking just as they find it when the box is opened, adding nothing to it whatever. The act of spitting in the box and smearing the contents with the brush constitutes the bootblack a mixer, or rectifier, or manufacturer of blacking, and he must pay the ordinary manufacturer's license. Each boot blacked for which the sum of five cents is paid by the wearer, must receive, at the expense of the bootblack, a four and three quarter cent stamp.

"All Englishmen of the name of Hale who are engaged in the business of pronouncing the word without the H, shall be considered manufacturers of 'ale, and must pay the license required of all brewers and distillers.

"Parties engaged in building castles in the air with the proceeds of the highest prize in future drawings of the lotteries, must be assessed twenty per cent. on the amount thus received and invested, which twenty per cent, shall be paid in gold."

WEAR A SMILE.—Which will you do? smile and make others happy, or be crabbed and make everybody around you miserable? You can live among flowers and singing-birds, or in the mire surrounded by fogs and frogs. The amount of happiness which you can produce is incalculable, if you will only show a smiling face, a kind heart, and speak pleasant words. On the other hand, by sour looks, cross words, and a fretful disposition, you can make hundreds unhappy almost beyond endurance. Which will you do? Wear a pleasant countenance; let joy beam in your eye and love glow on your forehead. There is no joy so great as that which springs from a kind act or pleasant deed, and you may feel it at night when you rest, and at morning when you rise, and throughout the day when about your daily business.

WHAT FARMERS CANNOT CONCEAL.—

A poor farmer cannot conceal the fact that he is a poor farmer. All his surroundings proclaim the verdict against him:—his horses, cattle, wagons, harness, plows, fences, fields—even his wife and children bear silent, but unmistakable evidence against him. On the other hand, all these things will testify favorably on behalf of the good farmer. Every passer by can read the evidence pro or con. This fact alone, ought to stimulate every farmer to do his best, for the sake of his character, as well as interest; for he may rest assured that every passer by will pronounce judgment according to the evidence.

A CELEBRATED author once wrote, 'A French woman will love her husband if he is either witty or chivalrous; a German woman if he is constant and faithful; a Dutch woman if he does not disturb her ease and comfort too much; a Spanish woman if he wreaks terrible vengeance on those who fall under her displeasure; an Italian woman if he is dreamy and poetical; a Danish woman, if he calls her native country the fairest and happiest on earth; a Russian woman if he holds all westerners to be miserable barbarians; an English woman if he is of the nobility; an American woman if—he has plenty of money.

BAD company is like a nail driven into a post, which after the first or second blow, may be drawn out with little difficulty; but being once driven in up to the head, the pincers cannot take hold to draw it out and it can only be done by the destruction of the wood.

THERE is no "nigger on the woodpile" any longer. He is now in the hotel, the theatre, the jury box, at the ballot box, in the State Legislatures and almost in Congress.

"I WISH I HAD CAPITAL."

So we heard a great strapping young man exclaim the other day. We concluded that he wanted practical advice, and we shall give it to him.

You want capital, do you? And suppose you had what you call capital, what would you do with it? Haven't you hands, feet, muscle, bone, brains, health, and don't you call them capital? What more capital did God give anybody?

"Oh! but they are not money," say you. But they are more than money, and nobody can take them from you.—Don't you know how to use them? If you don't its time you were learning.—Take hold of the plow, or hoe, or jack plane, or broad-ax, and go to work.—Your capital will then, in due time, yield you a large interest. Ay, but there's the rub; you don't want to work; you want money on credit, so you can play gentleman and speculate, and end by playing the vagabond.

Or you want a farm, with plenty of hands upon it to do the work, while you run over the country and dissipate; or you want to marry some rich girl who may be foolish enough to take you for your good looks, that she may support you.

Shame on you, young man! Go to work with the capital you have, and you'll soon make interest enough upon it to give you as much money as you need, and make you feel like a man. If you cannot make money on what capital you have, you would not if you had a large amount in cash. If you do not know how to use bone, muscle and brains, you would not know how to use gold. If you let the capital you have lie idle, and waste and rust out, it would be the same with you if you had gold; you would only know how to waste it.

Then don't stand about idle, a great helpless boy, waiting for something to turn up, but go to work. Take the first work you can find, no matter what it is, so that you do it well. Yes, whatever you undertake do it well; always do your best. If you manage the capital you already have, you will soon have plenty more to manage; but if you can not or will not manage the capital God has given you, you will never have any other to manage. Do you hear young man?

REMEDY FOR THE TURNIP FLY.

S. Edwards Todd, in the Working Farmer, proposes to rid the turnip crop of this pest by the use of ashes. He says:

As soon as the young pants can be seen, let a light sprinkling of wood ashes be sifted over the rows. It will not injure the house-wife's seive that is used to sift Indian meal. Ashes cannot be applied satisfactorily with the hand. The aim should be simply to cover the minute leaves with fine ashes sufficient to prevent their being devoured by the turnip fly. When ashes are applied by hand without a seive, which should be held close to the ground; careless operators are very liable to throw it on so bountifully as to smother the tender plants,

THE FARMER'S CREED.

We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation.

We believe the soil loves to eat as well as the owner, and ought, therefore, to be well manured.

We believe in going to the bottom of things, and therefore, in deep plowing and enough of it. All the better if it be a sub-soil plow.

We believe in large crops, which leave the ground better than they find it—making both the farm and farmer rich at once. We believe that every farm should own a good farmer.

We believe that the best fertilizer of any soil is the spirits of industry, enterprise and intelligence—without this, lime, gypsum and guano will be of little use.

"I SAY, Mister, did you see a dog come by here that looked as if he were a year, or year and half or two years old?" said a Yankee to a Countryman, at the roadside. "Yes," said the Countryman, thinking himself quizzed. "He passed about an hour, or an hour and a half, or two hours ago, and is now about a mile, or a mile and a half, two miles ahead; and he had a tail about an inch, or an inch and a half, or two inches long." "That'll do," said the Yankee; "you're into me foot or a foot and a half, or two feet."

WHAT EVERY YOUNG MAN SHOULD DO.

1. Every young man should make the most of himself, intellectually, morally, socially and physically.

2. He should depend upon his own efforts to accomplish these results.

3. He should be willing to take advice from those competent to give it, and to follow such advice, until his own judgment or convictions, properly founded, should otherwise direct.

4. If he is unfortunate enough to have a rich and indulgent father, he must do the best he can under the circumstances, which will be to conduct himself very much as though he had not these obstacles to overcome.

5. He should remember that young men, if they live, grow old and that the habits of youth are oftener than otherwise perpetuated in the mature man.—Knowing this fact, he should "govern himself accordingly."

6. He should never be discouraged by small beginnings, but remember that nearly all great results have been wrought out from apparently slight cause.

7. He should never, under any circumstances, be idle. If he cannot find the employment he prefers, let him come as near his desires as possible—he will thus reach the object of his ambition.

8. All young men have inalienable rights," among which none is greater and more sacred than the privilege to be "somebody."

FASHIONABLE WOMEN.

Fashions kills more women than toil and sorrow. Obedience to fashion is a greater trangression of the laws woman's nature, a greater injury to her physical and mental constitution, than the hardships of poverty and neglect. The slave woman at her task will live and grow old, and see two or three generations of her mistresses fade and pass away. The washerwoman, with scarce a ray of hope to cheer her in her toils, will live to see her fashionable sisters all extinct. The kitchen-maid is hearty and strong, when her lady has to be nursed like a sick baby.

It is a and truth that fashion-pampered women are almost worthless for all the good ends of life; they have but little force of character; they have still less power of moral will, and quite as little physical energy. They live for no great ends. They are dolls formed in the hands of milliners and servants, to be dressed and fed to order. They dress nobody, they bless nobody, and save nobody. They write no books, they set no rich examples of virtue and woman's life. If they rear children, servants and nurses do all, save to conceive and give them birth. And when reared, what are they! What do they ever amount to, but weaker scions of the old stock! Who ever heard of a fashionable woman's child exhibiting any virile and power of mind, for which it became eminent! Read the biographies of our great and good men and women. Not one of them had a fashionable mother. They nearly all sprung from strong-minded women, who had about as little to do with fashion as with the changing clouds.

MANNERS.

Young folks' should be mannerly.—How to be so is the question. Many a good boy and girl feel that they can not behave to suit themselves in the presence of company. They feel timid, bashful, and self-distrustful the moment they are addressed by a stranger, or appear in company. There is but one way to get over this feeling and acquire graceful and easy manners, that is to do the best they can all the time at home, as well as abroad. Good manners are not learned from arbitrary teachings so much as acquired from habit. They grow upon us by use. We must be courteous, agreeable, civil, kind, gentlemanly and womanly at home, and then it will soon become a kind of second nature to be so everywhere. A coarse, rough manner at home begets a habit of roughness, which we cannot lay off sir we try, when we go among strangers.—Be most agreeable at home. Home is the school for all the best things, especially for good manners.

An old author quaintly remarks:—"Avoid argument with ladies. In spining yarns among silks and satins, a man is sure to be worsted and twisted. And when a man is worsted and twisted, he may consider himself wound him up."

Beecher says that men confess everything but their own besetting sins.—They steer clear of these. Who ever heard a man say, "O Lord, I am as proud as Lucifer; humble me;" or "O Lord, I am so mean and stingy that 'tis only with great pain that I can unloose my fist; make me generous."

Negro Eloquence.—Man is de first animal in de creation; he springs up like de hopper grass, hops about like a popper grass, and dies de same as a jackass!

REVENUE LAWS.

"Where ignorance is bliss 'twere folly to be wise," is doubtless a very acceptable motto to most men, but where ignorance entails more trouble and expense than bliss, 'tis always best to be "posted," particularly on the latest Internal Revenue decisions. As several of our merchants and traders have suffered of late from this very cause, we present to our readers some of the latest decisions, and advise all persons interested in or affected by them to be on their guard against infractions:

"Parties using paper collars must see them from the original package; that is, from the box in which they have been purchased; and a three cent revenue stamp must be attached to each one when put on. When the collar becomes soiled and is turned with the clean side out, it must receive another three cent stamp, and must also be conspicuously stamped with the word 'turned.' Boxes, when emptied, cannot be used a second time, but must be destroyed in the room where emptied, and the assessor furnished with a certificate of the fact. If thrown out at the window, or carried out in the coal scuttle or washtub, such boxes will be subject to export duty.

"Bootblacks are required to use their blacking just as they find it when the box is opened, adding nothing to it whatever. The act of spitting in the box and smearing the contents with the brush constitutes the bootblack a mixer, or rectifier, or manufacturer of blacking, and he must pay the ordinary manufacturer's license. Each boot blacked for which the sum of five cents is paid by the wearer, must receive, at the expense of the bootblack, a four and three quarter cent stamp.

"All Englishmen of the name of Hale who are engaged in the business of pronouncing the word without the H, shall be considered manufacturers of ale, and must pay the license required of all brewers and distillers.

"Parties engaged in building castles in the air with the proceeds of the highest prize in future drawings of the lottery, must be assessed twenty per cent. on the amount thus received and invested, which twenty per cent. shall be paid in gold."

WEAR A SMILE.—Which will you do?

smile and make others happy, or be crabbed and make everybody around you miserable? You can live among flowers and singing-birds, or in the mire surrounded by fogs and frogs. The amount of happiness which you can produce is incalculable, if you will only show a smiling face, a kind heart, and speak pleasant words. On the other hand, by sour looks, cross words, and a fretful disposition, you can make hundreds unhappy almost beyond endurance. Which will you do? Wear a pleasant countenance; let joy beam in your eye and love glow on your forehead. There is no joy so great as that which springs from a kind act or pleasant deed, and you may feel it at night when you rest, and at morning when you rise, and throughout the day when about your daily business.

WHAT FARMERS CANNOT CONCEAL.—

A poor farmer cannot conceal the fact that he is a poor farmer. All his surroundings proclaim the verdict against him;—his horses, cattle, wagons, harness, plows, fences, fields—even his wife and children bear silent, but unmistakable evidence against him. On the other hand, all these things will testify favorably on behalf of the good farmer. Every passer by can read the evidence pro or con. This fact alone, ought to stimulate every farmer to do his best, for the sake of his character, as well as interest; for he may rest assured that every passer by will pronounce judgment according to the evidence.

A celebrated author once wrote, 'A French woman will love her husband if he is either witty or chivalrous; a German woman if he is constant and faithful; a Dutch woman if he does not disturb her ease and comfort too much; a Spanish woman if he wreaks terrible vengeance on those who fall under her displeasure; an Italian woman if he is dreamy and poetical; a Danish woman, if he calls her native country the fairest and happiest on earth; a Russian woman if he holds all westerners to be miserable barbarians; an English woman if he is of the nobility; an American woman if—he has plenty of money.

Bad company is like a nail driven into a post, which after the first or second blow, may be drawn out with little difficulty; but being once driven in up to the head, the pincers cannot take hold to draw it out and it can only be done by the destruction of the wood.

There is no "nigger on the woodpile" any longer. He is now in the hotel, the theatre, the jury box, at the ballot box, in the State Legislatures and almost in Congress.

Mammoth Watermelon.

We are indebted to Mr. Hirsch, for a Watermelon of enormous proportions for which he will accept the thanks of all hands.

Dr. Smith, Sr.

We ... to ... that Dr. B. Burgh Smith, Sr., ... Surgeon and Physician, has permanently located in Marietta.

Preparation.

A large wooden building and several shanties have been constructed in the Park for the Fair.—Other arrangements are being perfected.

Progress.

The three brick buildings that were destroyed by the late fire, are being rapidly reconstructed and will in a few weeks be ready for use.

Fruits.

Fruits in abundance, of all kinds, are now stocking the market. Peaches that come in are very tempting, but the apples that we see, we don't think would tempt our mother Eve to sin again.

Important to Tax Payers.

We advise tax payers in Georgia not to send money to any one to correct their tax list. If there is any mistake you will have sixty days notice and you can then perfect your list and pay your tax without further cost.

A Week of Prayer.

The Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South have agreed and requested that a week be devoted to Prayer, beginning Friday, (to-day) 13th.—Services will be held this morning, in this city, at the Methodist Church, beginning at 11 o'clock and also this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Eclipse.

Heavy clouds veiled from view this grand sight last Saturday. But, not wishing to be disappointed, careful watching gave us a minute's observation, as the silvery clouds were shifting themselves, then they would close up and obscure from our vision its evanescent beauty and awful splendor and allow shadowy darkness to supercede.

A Healthy Digestion.

Life is rendered miserable when the digestive organs are impaired. Food becomes repulsive; the body emaciated; the mind depressed, and melancholy broods over you. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills is the remedy for these evils; they produce sound digestion; create a good appetite, impart refreshing sleep and cheerfulness of mind.

The Concerts.

The most pleasing features during the Fair will be the Concerts at night. From what we know of the programme they will be sufficiently rich in themselves to fully repay the time and money spent by those who may be present and we hope there will be a large crowd in attendance, that the laudable object for which it is gotten up may be hansomely remunerated pecuniarily.

One of the Best.

We observe at the office of our friend Wm. J. Mansfield a beautiful seven Octavo Piano a donation from Chas. M. Stieff to Marietta School Fair.

This instrument excels in sweetness of tone and beauty of finish. Mr. S., is a Baltimore Manufacturer and his instruments are very popular where they have been used. His liberality to Marietta, justly entitles him to patronage, especially as he makes such excellent instruments. Mr. Mansfield informs us that he can duplicate the instrument now on hand at manufacturers prices.

SOMETHING NEW.

Arctic Soda Fountain.

Go every body to Guthrie's Arctic Soda Fountain at Agricola's Store, and buy Tickets for the Famous Arctic Soda. You will find Syrups made from the juices of the fruits and as good soda water as is made in the State all kept Ice Cold from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M.

The School Fair

Next Tuesday this looked for exhibition will commence. The preparations, whether satisfactory or not, will have been completed. The people will begin to arrive and suitably lodge themselves.—Around and inside the Park will be gathered the crowd to patronize an institution of charity, that should make the most penurious unclasp the hand of close-fistedness, and dispense in a lavish manner their monies, that the blessings of education may be made as free as the air we breathe. Those of you who have not responded to the call of Mr. Mansfield, do so to-day, that success may crown the efforts of this energetic and good man, who has the interest and welfare of the people at heart.

Fire and Water.

A good and very influential gentleman of our city, under the nom de plume of "Citizen," contributes an article this week presenting his views in regard to many fires that occur, and says it is by "criminal carelessness," and asks, in substance, "What use of a Fire Engine without water in the Cisterns?"—Now, with great deference to the mature judgment of "Citizen," we would, in answer to his interrogatory, ask: What use of water in the Cisterns without a Fire Engine? We took for granted, when urging upon the citizens the necessity of a Fire Engine, that the City Council would hardly be guilty of the injudicious folly of going to the trouble and expense of getting a Fire Engine without making efforts to use it to an advantage afterwards. They would undoubtedly and successfully make efforts to have the cisterns filled with water. That fires do occur, whether by intention, accident or carelessness, is a fact, and it is best "in time of peace to prepare for war." It is the duty of the citizens to get a Fire Engine, and whether they first fill the Cisterns with water, or first buy the Engine, the object for which we wrote the article, will, in either case, be accomplished.

The Marietta Fair.

One of the leading features of the Fair will be the sale of the numerous and valuable articles contributed for the benefit of our Schools. Among these we notice a superb Piano from the Baltimore House of Chas. M. Stieff. There is valuable Mill machinery and Agricultural Implements. A large quantity of the most reliable Fertilizers and valuable articles in every department of trade are among the contributions.

These articles are "the best the market affords" and of course will induce active competition among buyers.

"Fresh as a Maiden's Blush"

Is the pure peachy complexion which follows the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm. It is the true secret of beauty. Fashionable ladies in society understand this.

The Magnolia Balm changes the rustic country girl into a City Belle more rapidly than any other one thing. Redness, Sunburn, Tan Freckles Blotches and all effects of the summer sun disappear where it is used, and a genial, cultivated, fresh expression is obtained which rivals the Bloom of Youth. Beauty is possible to all who will invest 75 cts. at any respectable store and insist on getting the Magnolia Balm.

Bishop Andrews.

The good and beloved Bishop Andrews was in our city on last Sunday and in the morning of that day he delivered a very beautiful and affecting lecture to the children of the Methodist Sabbath School. That the sermon he preached, from the words, "He hath shewed the, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" Micah, 6th ch. 8th v., was highly appreciated, was demonstrated by the close attention given by those present. The nicety and simplicity of words, with sound, judicious judgment and their beautiful arrangement, enchained the minds of his hearers, with deep interest. They dared not move, for fear they would thereby lose some of the sacred truths, as they emanated from the pure heart and fell from the holy lips of this veteran disciple of God. Such a sermon has been much needed in Marietta, and being delivered in charity and love, it is well calculated to accomplish that whereunto it was sent. The Bishop's feeble step and silvery locks tells us that he must be near eighty years of age.

A Good One.

Mr. Goodman:—I have been using my "scissors," as you see—and send you a scrap for the Journal. If there are any offending "Bubby's" about Marietta, who are oblivious to Poor Richard's maxim—"Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man (and maiden) healthy, wealthy and wise," they had better take warning:

"A Good One.—A young blood residing not a half-dozen miles from this place was the victim of a rather good joke one Sunday night recently. He was trying to be particularly 'sweet' to a young lady, and had paid her a number of visits at the residence of her parents. The old folks had somehow got an idea into their heads that the children were too young to "keep company," and conveyed the desired hint by calling the girl out of the room and sending her to bed at nine o'clock, the lady of the house astonishing the young gent by bringing into the parlor a huge piece of bread and butter, nicely spread with sugar, which she presented to him, saying, in her kindest manner, 'There, bubby, take this and run home to your mother; it's time little boys were in bed.' The would be gay young beau hasn't felt as though he wanted any more sweetness from that source since."

Don't you like my scrap? I had a hearty laugh over it all to myself, and as I am not selfish, I want all your readers to laugh too; and if any of them have occasion to use a slice of "bread and butter with sugar nicely spread," I know they will like the suggestion.

Viola.

FIRE AND WATER.

Mr. Editor:—I noticed in the last Journal that another fire had just almost happened and as the writer says, for want of a fire engine a fine block of stores might have been burnt. I take this view of the matter. First, our merchants with but few exceptions are I wish to say, criminally careless about their matches. Most or all of them know that rats and mice will gnaw boxes containing matches and yet they keep matches laying around loose on Counters and Shelves and sometimes even in the window, thus risking the destruction of their own and neighbors property. Had the boxes of matches mentioned fell in the right place of course a large fire would have been the result and who was to blame? Can you say nobody? Wood box matches are as dangerous as paper boxes, because they will roll off a shelf or counter and then take fire. I have but little doubt that was the cause of the late fire—for as yet, I have not heard any cause given.

Now I would ask of what use will a Fire Engine be with no water at ready command? There are four cisterns on the public square and there is no single one of them supplied with water or any provision made to fill them and to keep them filled? I think the reply will be not one! And whose duty is it to see to it?

I for one believe that a good supply of water should be first attended to and then as soon as the money can be raised one or two moderate sized Fire Engines that can be readily taken to a fire and and worked by a small force. A large heavy engine cannot be managed over our rough streets and roads nor be worked to the same advantage with such supplies of water as can be readily got at.

Washington, August 6.—The President says that where offices have been held for eight years, the incumbents, however capable, must give place to persons equally capable who suffered from the war. This ruling applies to Kentucky and its operation is illustrated in the case of Edgar A. Needham, Assessor at Louisville. The President has directed Needham's suspension and a commission for Horace M. Bulkley. Secretary Boutwell insists that Needham, having been a faithful officer, should be allowed to resign. This policy was adopted, and Needham telegraphs to day asking whether there are any charges, and was answered "None whatever."

It is generally conceded that Tennessee has gone for Senator overwhelmingly, perhaps by forty thousand. No county, so far as heard from gives Stokes a majority.

The N. Y. Tribune says: "For a long time the result of the Tennessee election has been conceded on both sides. The fight made by Mr. Stokes has been the hardest kind of uphill work, and his chances diminished more and more certainly as the time for voting drew near. The few returns at hand as we write indicate that the majority for Senator will reach even a larger figure than claimed by his adherents."

The Herald says: "A most gratifying point of the news is that the contest passed off quietly, and that all the refreshment saloons were closed during the day."

Wilmington, Aug. 7.—The Streets and house tops were crowded with people to witness the eclipse of the sun this evening. The following observations were taken from the top of the Dawson Bank building Washington time being the standard: Time of greatest obscuration, 6¼ minutes past 6; duration of total phase, 1 minute 30 seconds; time of beginning of total phase, 5 minutes past 6; end of total phase, 6½ minutes past 6; beginning of eclipse penumbra, 5 minutes past 5; end of eclipse penumbra, 54 minutes past 6. It was the grandest spectacle ever beheld here. During the total obscuration the stars shone almost as brightly as at night, the fowls went to roost three quarters of an hour earlier than usual, and business was almost suspended in the city, so great was the impression produced.

Tennessee Election.

Washington, August 8.—Nashville additional returns indicate 65,000 majority for Senter in Tennessee.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

TO YOUNG MEN.

It is easier to be a good business man than a poor one. Half the energy displayed in keeping a head that is required to catch up when behind will save credit, give more time to business, and add to the profit and reputation of your word. Honor your engagement. If you promise to meet a man, or do a certain thing at a certain moment, be ready at the appointed time. If you have work to do, do it at once, cheerfully, and therefore more speedily and correctly. If you go out on business, attend promptly to the matter on hand, and then as promptly go about your own business. Do not stop to tell stories in business hours.

If you have a place of business, be found there when wanted. No man can get rich by sitting around stores and saloons. Never "fool" on business matters. If you have to labor for your living, remember that one hour in the morning is better than two at night. If you employ others, be on hand to see that they attend to their duties, and to direct with regularity, and liberality.—Do not meddle with any business you know nothing of. Never buy a thing simply because the man that sells it will take it out in trade. Trade is money. Time is money. A good business habit and reputation is always money. Make your place of business pleasant and attractive, then stay there to wait on customers.

Never use quick words or allow yourself to make hasty or ungentlemanly remarks to those in your employ, for to do so lessens their respect for you and your influence over them. Help yourself, and others will help you. Be faithful over the interest confided to your keeping, and all in good time your responsibilities will be increased. Do not be in two great haste to get rich. Do not build until you have arranged and laid a good foundation. Do not—as you hope for success—spend time in idleness. If your time is your own, business will suffer if you do. If it is given to another for pay it belongs to him, and you have no more right to steal it than to steal money. Be obliging. Strive to avoid harsh words and personalities. Do not kick every stone in the path; more miles can be made in a day by going steadily on than by stopping to kick. Pay as you go. A man of honor respects his word as he does his lord. Ask, but never beg. Help others when you can, but never give when you cannot afford to, simply because it is fashionable. Learn to say no. No necessity of snapping it out dog-fashion, but say it firmly and respectfully. Have but few confidants, and the fewer the better. Use your own brains rather than those of others. Learn to think and act for yourself. Be vigilant.—Keep ahead, rather than behind the time. Young men, cut this out; and if there is a folly in the argument, let us know.

"A FULL HAND'S GOOD,"—The good old times are not gone forever. Here is an incident: On the recent trip of a Mississippi steamboat, the cabin had allotted the last state-room and was about to close his office, when he was astonished by the apparition of a tall Missourian, who exclaimed: "I say stranger, I want one of them chambers." "Sorry, sir," said the official, blandly, "but our staterooms are all taken." "The d—l they are!" regrinded Missorri; "I've paid my fare an' I want one of them chambers." "Allow me to see your ticket," said the still polite clerk. Putting his hand to the back of his neck, the passenger pulled out a ten inch bowie-knife, and drawing it quivering into the counter, said: "I'm from Pike county, young feller, and that's my ticket. I want one of them chambers." Before the steel had ceased to vibrate the prompt clerk quietly shrunk a loaded and capped six-shooter under Pike's nose, and coolly, answered: "I've only got "six chambers," and you see they are all full." The Missourian edged out of "range," and putting up his "toothpick," ejaculated, "A full hand's good."

"Is Mrs. Brown in?" inquired a gentleman of a servant who was cleaning his ring at the door. "The best Tonic "No sir, she's now wo

A STRANGE ACCUMULATION.

Thomas Dick puts the hoarding of wealth in this striking way:

Suppose a man could lay up a stock of clothes and provisions sufficient to last him for 300 years what would it avail him since he can live at most but 70 to 100 years? Suppose he laid up in a store house 50,000 pair of shoes to what end would it serve if he could make use during his whole life, only the hundredth part of them? He would be in the same condition at a man who had a hundred dishes before him for dinner, but could only take one; or of a person who had a hundred mansions purchased for his residence, but who could only occupy one. How ridiculous it would appear if all that could be said of a man while he lived was simply this—that his whole life was occupied in collecting and laying up in a store house 60,000 mahogony chairs which were never intended to be used for the furniture of apartments, or 80,000 pair of trowsers which were never intended to be worn! And where is the difference in point of rationality and utility between such absurd practices, and hoarding thousands of guineas and bank notes which are never brought out for the benefit of mankind? There is no conduct connected with the pursuits of human beings that appears more absurd and wicked than such practice (however common,) if examined by the dictates of reason and the word of God.

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.—"Did you ever hear the story of the two Irishmen and the horse-radish?"

"No; how was it?"

Well, seeing a dish of grated horse-radish on the table where they had stopped for dinner, each helped himself largely to the "sauce" supposing it to be eaten as potato squash; and the first putting a knife full into his mouth, jerked his handkerchief from his trowsers and commenced wiping his eyes.

"What troubles ye, Jammy?" inquired his comrade.

"Sure and I'm thinkin' of my poor old father's death, when he was hung," he replied shrewdly.

Presently the other, taking as greedily of the pungent vegetable had sudden use for his handkerchief whereat Jammy

"And what troubles ye' Pat?"

"Troth," he replied, "That you was not hung with your father."

IS YOUR SOUL INSURED?—"Pa," said a little boy as he climbed to his father's knee, and looked into his face as earnestly as if he understood the importance of the subject, "Pa is your soul insured?"

"What are you thinking about, my son?" replied the agitated father.—"Why do you ask that question?"

"Why, pa, I heard Uncle George say that you had had your house insured, and your life insured; but he didn't believe you had thought of your soul, and he was afraid you would lose it; wont you get it insured right away?"

A LITTLE apologue in one of the Boston papers relates how a worldly merchant of that neighborhood missed valuable goods, and watched the most faithful appearing clerk in his store, with the idea that he was a "one." He thought he had him one night when he had concealed himself in the store, and this youth was the last one in it, but changed his mind when he beheld the good youth read his Bible and heard him pray for the amendment of an ill-behaved brother clerk. And the next day he increased this youth's salary $300 a year, and turned off the other fellow.

Two Irishmen stopping at the Island House, Toledo, lit their gas, and with windows open, sat down to enjoy a chat. The hungriest of Toledo mosquitoes soon flocked in and drove them desperate. The clerk, who was summoned to devise some defense against them, told them to close the windows and put out the gas. They acted on the suggestion and placed themselves between the sheets. Just as they began to doze, a lightning bug, which had strayed into the room, caught the eye of one of the travellers. He roused his companion with a punch. "Jamie, Jamie it's no use! Here is one of the [illegible] sarchin' for us wid a lantern!"

THE BEAUTY OF THE FAMILY.

We leave it to you if the "beauty of the family" don't invariably "turn out" the worst of the lot? If she don't exhibit the outside of her head to the total forgetfulness of the inside? If she is petted, and fondled, and flattered, and shown off, till selfishness is written all over her? If she is set once to peeling some lazy fellow, or drunken brute, or will bruise her body—or heart, to a jelly, and be glad to come, with her forlorn children for a morsel of bread, to the comfortable home of that unnoticed member of the family who was only "one sister" or Martha," and who never by any possibility, was supposed by them capable of doing or being anything? We leave it to you, if the "beauty of the family" be a boy, don't grow up an ass? If he is not sore to disgust everybody with his conceit and affection, while he fancies he is the admired of all eyes—even if he don't squander all the money he can lay his hands on, and die in the gutter? We never see a very handsome child of either sex, upon the family pedestal to be admired by that family and its friends to the exclusion of the other children, that we do not feel like petting those children on the head, and saying, "Thank Providence my dears, that you were not born beauties."

A STORY FROM 'NED BRACE'

A friend sends us the following story from 'Ned Brace' the famous humorist of 'Georgia Scenes.' We do not the member to have heard it before and do not think it has ever been in print:—Columbus Sun.

Mr. Bacon, of Edgefield, S. C., the hero of the Georgia Scenes, under the name of Ned Brace, was once courting a lady either in Georgia or South Carolina. She had refused him frequently, and he as often renewed his suit. At the interview she became exceedingly annoyed at his importunity, and told him she could not marry him, that their tastes, opinions, likes and dislikes were totally different; 'in fact,' said she, 'Mr. Bacon, I don't think there is one subject on earth upon which we agree.'

'I assure you, Madam, that you are mistaken,' said Mr. Bacon, 'I can prove it.'

'If you will mention one thing about you.'

'Well,' said Mr. Bacon, 'I will do it. Suppose now, you and I were travelling together, we arrive at night at a hotel, and there are only two beds vacant, in one there is a man and in the other a woman, which bed would you select to sleep in?'

She arose indignantly and replied, 'With the woman of course, sir.'

'So would I,' earnestly replied Mr. Bacon.

READING ALOUD IN THE FAMILY.—Books and periodicals should be supplied in every household. They are sure to bring us the golden fruits of thought and experience from other minds and other lands. As the fruits of the trees of the earth's soil are most enjoyed around the family board, so should those that grow upon mental and moral beings be gathered by the entire household. No home exercise could be more appropriate and pleasing than for one member to read aloud for the benefit of all. If parents would introduce this exercise into their families, they would soon see the purity and giddiness that make up the conversation of too many circles giving way to refinement and dignity.

A CERTAIN man, who is very rich now, was very poor when he was a boy. When asked how he got his riches, he said: 'My father taught me never to play till my work was finished, and never to spend my money till I had earned it. If I had but an hour's work in the day I must do that the first thing, and if I had but an hour after this I was allowed to play and then I could not be induced to leave my pleasure then if I had the thought of an unfinished task before me. I early formed the habit of doing everything in time, and it soon became easy to do so. To this I owe my prosperity more than every one who reads do likewise.

The XIX Century.

The August number of this beautiful Southern Monthly is before us; and we venture the assertion that a Magazine more deeply interesting in every department is not published north or south of the Potomac. There are no continued stories, and every article is fully and conclusively written. The name of

The XIX Century" is that it is not dry. We have in this number a very personal sketch of Early Southern Authors from the pen of William Gilmore Simms; a thrilling Episode. "In the Surf," by an officer of the U. S. Navy; the capture of the blockade runner Margaret and Jessie; Reminiscences of Public Men, by a distinguished Ex-Governor of South Carolina; Description of Medical Life in Paris, by Prof. F. P. Porcher; Personne's "Shoulder to Shoulder;" some pleasant Reminiscences of Gen. H. L. Stone; a tale of the Grecian Archipelago; and a score of other good things calculated to enliven the fireside, and make men and women think.

The leading newspapers of the North evidently established that any good can come out of Nazareth, have been unqualified praise on the Magazine, have republished its articles, and declare it to be equal to the best Magazines published in America. Let our Southern people see to it that "The XIX Century" receives their hearty support.

The School Fair.

There has so much transpired, under our observation, and commanding our attention, during the Fair, so many themes to write about, that it is quite difficult, with the limited space this week, to enumerate or describe as lengthy as we would wish to do. We could tell you much. We could tell you of the beautiful day, of which not a cloud obscured the horizon, on the first day of the Fair; then in a moment, of its fickleness, and could speak of the numerous and valuable donations, one by one; or we could tell you of the perfectness of the preparations, or we could with delight dwell on the transcendant beauty of the ladies, who so gracefully and courteously caressed to the wants of those who were present from abroad and at home; how their smiles charmed, how their loveliness captivated (the youths who are subject to the tender passion;) the various costumes worn, their elegance, their richness, the money spent, exquisite pleasures afforded by the aerial, self-propelling swing, (a novel construction of ingenuity by Mr. ISAAC MANSFIELD, of our city.) famous Arctic Soda Water as dispensed by Mr. GUTHRIE, (in greater demand on account of his beautiful assistants;) we might continue in this strain, and speak of ice cream, lemonades, wiands the most palatable and refreshing of hopes realized, of hopes disappointed, but we presume it would to be all alike, uninteresting and unedifying, taxing your patience and infringing too much upon our space, and therefore we must be content with a very coarse report of what transpired.

As was expected, the Fair opened on last Tuesday with bright prospects, host of visitors but not as many as was anticipated. The Star Light Band from Atlanta discoursed sweet music throughout the day and at night, rendering the occasion more delightful and vivacious. But the most discouraging fact was at noon of the day, when the extensive tables, laden with delicacies and substantials, were ready for the entertainment of guests, a most terrific and frightening rain-storm suddenly burst upon them, upsetting and disarranging and spoiling the eatables and dampening many articles and thoroughly saturating the apparel of the ladies and gentlemen indiscriminately. After an hour's time, the clouds, which were such a dark phase and from which torrents of water had been poured, ceased to frown and held up its copious waters to give way to the genial rays of the sun, making the evening far more agreeable.

The Concert of that evening, and also of Wednesday evening, were successful and possessed throughout the entertainments, in the various songs and inimitable pieces of humorousness, unabated interest. The night Wednesday and at night, was further stretched by the splendid band from Cartersville, which did full justice to the occasion. It was a delightful sight, both evenings of the Concert, to behold the many bright, intelligent faces, beautiful in the freshness of innocence and happy childhood, and see them acquit themselves so successfully and creditably.

Miss EUDICE CLIFTON, a lady of unmistakable kindness and intellectual endowments, is entitled to the encomiums of an appreciative, intelligent and discriminating public for the patience and untiring energy displayed in the training of these young minds. Mr. MANSFIELD'S unquestionable philanthropic spirit, was manifested also in the successful accomplishment of these results. His intellectual qualifications, uniform uprightness and integrity and model perseverance, will not be slack in working up the most happy results for which the Fair was gotten up and designed. The Fair has so far passed gratifying and has been a source of almost enchanting pleasure, as well as it will be, in most durable and permanent good. It is still progressing and will, according to understanding, close this evening, when, in our next issue, we hope to be able to give in a more satisfactory manner the events that occurred, genius-like, and success attained.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these 1 rrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the checks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enters into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

MR. EDITOR:—As I see your paper seems to encourage industry and agricultural improvements, I will give you my experience of the past year. I was driven to the necessity of going to work in my old age; so I studied what way to cultivate my farm for the best. I adapted the plan of seeding two years on the same land and tending in corn one, then in oats, and turn the stubble in September and sow my wheat in October and harrow it in with a two horse harrow. I find it paid me better than to cultivate so much in corn. I have done better since then when I rented my land. I raised oats to feed on all the year, which is a great saving of corn. This year I made nine hundred dozen of oats, I threshed six hundred dozen of them that made three hundred and thirteen bushels, leaving three hundred dozen in the sheaf for feed, which is worth half my crop of corn. My wheat made twelve bushels to the bushel sowed, the crop over, on old land which beat all my neighbors from one third to half that sowed corn land. I never expect to sow any more stock land in wheat in Georgia.

THE DIAMOND RING.

There is an old story of a mother, whose son was going far off to distant lands to be away for a very long time. She had always watched him closely, and tried to lead him in the ways of virtue. But he was now going far from his mother's eye and warning voice.—As she bade him farewell, she placed a ring upon his finger. She warned him never to be guilty of an action which he would be unwilling for her to see, and begged him never to lose her last gift, for there was power in the ring, and it would remind him whenever he did wrong.

It is said that the under part of the stone had a very sharp point, and in some strange way, whenever he was doing wrong, it could sink down its golden scything and stick his finger. He bade his mother farewell, and touching his fine horse with the spur galloped away, while she watched his bright plume waving in the morning sunlight.

Day after day he continued his journey, and at last joined a company of soldiers; and as he was well informed and a pleasant youth, he was soon appointed to an official position, and a bright sword was given him. He had not been long in the camp before he was urged to join in pleasure which he knew his noble mother could not approve. True enough the magic ring pierced his finger, so that with a sickening feeling he left the camp and wandered away from his companions. But the merry laugh reached him and he began to think perhaps his mother had not seen the world, and did not know that he could enjoy its pleasures without being hurt.

He returned; but again the sharp monitor told him he was doing wrong.—He could not endure this—he was resolved that he would taste, for a little while, the pleasures of the camp, and yet he could not bear this piercing friend which gave him no rest. His mother's last gift—he dared not take it off or fling it away; so he took a small piece of lint and slipped it between the diamond end of his finger. Now that he had silenced his little teacher, there was nothing to keep him from pleasure. He forgot the object of his journey, and passed week after week joining in everything which came up among the wild and lawless soldiers.

One day, thoughts of home, of his mother, came over him; and as his eyes fell upon the diamond, whose unchanging brightness should have shamed his dark doings, he thought of the little flint which he had inserted. A dim sense that he had been false to his promise made him take the flint away.

Soon the troops were ordered to move their camp; but he still went with them, charmed with his wandering, lawless life, every day of which saw some deed which he would not have owned to his noble mother. But the ring now more reminded him of her; worn away by the flint.

Do you know that [illegible] blunt that you [illegible] You know how sweet it is [illegible] have done right for your mother's [illegible] ing eyes to look upon you, and [illegible] loving voice to tell you she [illegible] because you are good.

THE COMMERCIAL VALUE OF THE SOUTH.

Well might the North buckle on all its armor to keep the South in the Union, for, apart from political considerations and the patriotic sentiment of maintaining the grandeur and glory of the republic intact, that part of our common country is the source of our commercial wealth and more valuable to the North than ever India was to England. According to the latest statistics the value of [illegible] two hundred and fourteen millions, while that of the North was a little less than two hundred millions. There is this great difference, too, in the nature of the exports of the two sections, that a large portion of those of the North is in precious metals, which in a measure impoverishes the country while those of the South are the products of the soil and bring us gold of its equivalent.—Cotton, of course, is the great staple, through tobacco is a valuable product, and sugar, rice and other things form a part of the exports. The domestic trade of the South is still more valuable to the North, for it supplies our manufacturers with the raw material they need and takes back Northern manufactures in return. These great and valuable exports and this vast trade, too, have been desolated by war. This not only shows the surprising wealth of the soil, but the astonishing energgy of character, and recuperative power of the people. Yet it is this rich and beautiful country and these citizens which are kept under the heel of military despotism and made the football of scheming politicians years after the close of the war. But this state of things must soon come to an end, and the South will rise from its ashes to be the richest country in the world.—N. Y. Herald.

WANTS.

Many people are in perpetual fear that they will come to want: but when is there a time in any one's life that he don't want something? some one thing and some another.

The baby wants to stick his thumb in his eye, kick over the teapot, and wants three meals a day. The little boy wants a top, a rocking horse, and a picking at regular intervals. The little girl wants a beau, and boy wants a "how-and-arse."

The young lady wants a piano and a Grecian bend, invitations to the opera, and exclusive use of the front parlor Sunday nights.

Mature matron wants a select circle of society, the best pew in Church, presidency of some fashionable benevolent society, wealthy matches for her daughters, and no foolishness.

Masculine maturity wants safe investments, few friends, plain clothes, daily paper, and a prompt dinner. Old age wants to get up a pretence of being young sometimes, but only wants a quiet place to die in.

There are millions of wants on this earth, without considering whether or not the other planets are inhabited. A vast multitude want situations, while another horde, finding themselves in a bad situation, want to get out of it.—One wants a new bonnet, another wants a divorce. Grant wants peace, and Mrs. Dr. Walker wants a Government office. Thousands want lodgings at night.—Thirsty loafer knocks at saloon door at 5 P. M.; he wants to get in. Captured convey in jail; he wants to get out.—Some want glory and enlist at thirteen dollars a month to get it. Some want hair on the top of the head, some want a leg or an eye; thousands want to get married, few want to die, and all want money.—Fat Contributor.

A GENTLEMAN called on a rich miser and found him at the table endeavoring to catch a fly. Presently he succeeded in entrapping one, which he immediately put in the sugar bowl, and shut down the cover. The gentleman asked for an explanation of this singular sport.—"I'll tell you," replied the miser, a triumphant grin overspreading his countenance as he spoke, "I want to ascertain if the servants steal the sugar."

THE BARRISTER AND THE WITNESS.

There is a point beyond which human forbearance cannot go, and the most even of tempers will become ruffled at times. At the assizes held during the past year at Lincoln, England, the judges and counsel had much trouble to make the timid witnesses speak so that they could be heard by the jury; and it is possible that the temper of the counsel may thereby have been turned aside from the even tenor of [illegible] through the various stages of examining, and had coaxed, threatened, and even bullied witnesses, there was called into the box a young cotter, who appeared to be simplicity personified.

"Now, sir," said the counsel, in a tone that would at any time have been denounced as vulgarly loud, "I hope you shall have no difficulty in making you speak out."

"I hope not, sur," was shouted, or rather bellowed out by the witness, in tones which almost shook the building, and would certainly have alarmed any timid or nervous lady.

"How dare you speak in that way, sir!" said the astonished counsel.

"Please, sur, I can't speak any lesser," yelled the witness, attempting to speak louder than before, evidently thinking the fault to be in his speaking too softly.

"Pray, have you been drinking this morning?" shouted the counsel, who had now thoroughly lost the last remnant of his temper.

"Yes, sur," was the reply.

"And what have you been drinking?"

"Corfee, sur."

"And what did you have in your coffee sir!" shouted the exasperated counsel.

"A spune, sur!" innocently screamed the witness in his highest key, amidst the roars of the whole court—excepting only the now thoroughly wild counsel, who flung down his brief, and rushed out of court.

RATHER DARK.

A minister was travelling in the back woods, and, espying a cabin, entered it on a mission of mercy. The lady of the house (she being present alone, and rightly judging his errand) when she saw him approaching seized the Bible and as he entered was to all intents busily engaged in perusing the volume. He noticed, however, that she held the letters reversed, or, in other words, upside down. After the usual courtesies the minister inquired what she was reading.

"Oh, 'bout the old prophets," was the evidently self-satisfactory reply.

"It is very edifying to read of the sufferings of Christ," said the minister.

"And so that good man is dead, is he?" asked the matron, evidently getting interested.

"Certainly he is."

"Well, that is just the way; I've been at John a long time to get him to take the newspaper but he wont. Every body in the world might die, and we not hear a word 'bout it," said the woman, in a rapid tone.

"Ah, woman, you are in the dark!" said the preacher, with an elongated face.

"Yes, I know we are. I've been at John a long time to put a window in at the fur end of the house, but he won't do that either."

"I perceive that you are dark in knowledge."

"I know that I am weak and I expect if you had the billious fever, and been taking saxafrax and cataract pills as long as I have, you'd be weak too," replied the woman, in rather an angry tone of voice, and half an octave higher than usual.

WELSH MAGISTRATES.

A traveller having made an excellent supper at an inn in North Wales, observed that "nobody could have made a better."

"Stop, stop," said the landlord, "we are in Wales, sir, and must not make personal comparisons without asking the Mayor consent."

"Ah," rejoined the other, "I except neither Mayor nor Alderman; for no man could have made a better supper than I have done."

"Will you not?" said the landlord. "Then let me tell you, you must pay five shillings."

"Fined or confined?" asked the guest. "I'll not except a sou of [illegible]."

"Fresh as a Maiden's Blush"

Is the pure peachy complexion which follows the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm. It is the true secret of beauty. Fashionable ladies in society understand this.

The Magnolia Balm changes the rustic country girl into a City Belle more rapidly than any other one thing. Reduces, Sunburn, Tan Freckles Blotches and all effects of the summer sun disappear where it is used and a genial, cultivated, fresh expression is obtained which rivals the Bloom of Youth. Beauty is possible to all who will invest 75 cts. at any respectable store and insist on getting the Magnolia Balm.

The Georgia Press Convention.

The members of the Press of the State, met in the City Council Chamber, in Atlanta, last Wednesday to form a permanent organization to regulate and govern the Press of Georgia in the transaction of business and to protect them from impositions and being swindled out of what they honestly make.—There were some forty papers represented, and after the interchange of words of greeting and mutual friendship between most of these old newspaper men, the meeting was opened and organized by the election, viva voce, of the following officers:

President—Joseph Clisby, of the Macon Daily Telegraph.

Vice-Presidents—A. R. Wright, of the Augusta Daily Chronicle & Sentinel, H. H. Jones, of the Cuthbert Appeal, and J. H. Christy, of the Athens Watchman.

Secretaries—A. R. Watson, of the Atlanta New Era, and C. H. C. Willingham, of the LaGrange Reporter.

Col. Styles, of the Albany News, introduced the following for committees to be appointed and to act upon: 1st. Committee on Permanent Organization; 2nd. on Legal and General Advertising; 3rd. on Agencies, Cash and Credit System; 4th. on Constitution, By-Laws and Rules; 5th. on the Press.

These committees are to make their report at the next meeting, subject to the call of the President, during the Fair in Macon.

It is but justly due to the fraternity to say that throughout, good feeling, harmony and unity prevailed.

The Press were placed under many obligations to many citizens of Atlanta, and especially to Mr. W. R. Hanleiter, for a supply of Fans, "a small Token of esteem," which kept them cooled down, until an invitation from a certain firm of the city was read, then Fitch, of the Griffin Star, began to sparkle and grow brilliant in wit, in anticipation—until Styles wished to appoint him Chairman of Rev. Mr. Haygood's favorite theme, on which he gave to the public a dissertation. This last invitation didn't work well, they became restless and indulged freely in expressions of anxious adjournment until evening, but Maj. Steele didn't like the idea; he wanted the whole evening for it; Rans Wright didn't favor Major Steele's "wants," he wanted to engage in business, that was the object of assembling, and it was best to use the evening for that purpose; he thought most of the members would be able to get back if Major Steele couldn't. However the meeting adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock that night at the City Hall. What was done at this adjourned meeting we are not able to say, as we left on the evening's train.

Col. Hulsey, Mayor of Atlanta, tendered an invitation to the members of the Press of, a free ride over the city, which was accepted and gave to the members a fine view of this growing city. Starting from the United States Hotel, we traversed all the principal streets.

Whitehall street with its magnificent buildings, was soon passed over, and we found ourselves entering the city of West End. A city from the fact that it has been duly incorporated, by our last Legislature, and it has its Mayor and Aldermen, and is quite a place. It has a population of some 1200, and Real Estate commands almost as much there as in its mother city—Atlanta. Leaving West End we approached McPherson's Barracks, the home of U. S. soldiers stationed in Atlanta. The buildings are large, two story and are beautifully neat and arranged in a systematic order and present an appearance in some respects similar to the once flourishing Georgia Military Institute. It is here we saw the Prison House wherein was confined the Columbus Prisoners. The Barracks is situated on the grounds of the old race track. This property was bought by Mr. Alexander for a pitiful sum, and by exercising the spirit of tenacity, he has leased it to the Government for ten years at the rate of $1000 a year, with no stipulation as to the buildings erected thereon; at the expiration of the ten years, he will come in possession of his property and demand of the government his own price, one or two hundred thousand dollars and the Government of course will give it, and Mr. Alexander's fortune is made.

We were wheeled away from this place, of swords and bayonets, back towards the centre of the city. We soon arrived in front of the great State Capitol which has been the grand topic of a good deal of comment, for the purpose of visiting Glenn, Wright & Carr's establishment. Here we were shown "The Utley Cotton Press," by Mr. Glenn, who explained, while in motion, its modus operandi very satisfactorily, but we being no mechanical genius, could not tell much about it. One of our companions, however, thought it was a success, (it beats the sweat box) and is destined to take the place of all others. In simplicity, economy and durability, it stands unrivaled in the United States. We recommend it to those interested.

After being hurriedly driven through the beautiful street called Marietta, and Walton and others, we emerged into the most desirable street in Atlanta, Peachtree. It is here Real Estate brings high figures. On this street we saw in course of completion, the finest and most magnificent edifice, as will be when finished, in Atlanta. Its architecture is surpassingly fine. Its splendid grandeur is calculated to excite admiration from the most fastidious. It is the property of Col. James, a young man and a successful Banker.

In fact we were pleased with our ride and view of Atlanta, and Mayor Hulsey and Council have our warmest thanks for their hospitality and liberality. He, as Mayor of Atlanta, has our cordial endorsement.

The inquiry is often made, what gave Atlanta her rapid growth? What raised this pigmy to this immensely proportioned Giant? While the citizens of Atlanta have exercised unusual energy and enterprise in raising its ashy remains to its symmetrical grandeur and swelling dimensions, they have not done so without assistance. The Government since the war has expended her millions in Atlanta. The stationed troops have been prodigal with their money, the construction of Barracks and numerous other buildings, has been no small auxilliary in its growth, while Northern capital invested and used has been an item of considerable importance in its enlargement. And Atlanta has no competing city, there is none able to compete with her, of any size under one hundred miles distance; she is surrounded with two hundred miles of productive territory that is tributary to her prosperity, besides the various Railroads that empty untold wealth into her lap. Then with no contiguous competing city of five thousand inhabitants, while her population is thirty or thirty five thousand, it must be conceded that she has a solid foundation of prosperity that is indestructible. Her growth is the natural offspring of active and surpassing advantages.—In five years from this she will be the largest city in the State, and in ten years the largest inland city in the South. Houses are inadequate to the demand of those who wish to rent. The most wealthy and influential men of the city are turning their attention and money in the direction of erecting buildings "to let." They find it a source of investment that brings a handsome revenue. Long may she grow in beauty, wealth and size, until she reaches that point of fullness when she will readily cry, ENOUGH!

The Press Excursionists passed up the road last Wednesday morning. We regret that our immediate presence, at that time, was in demand at home, as we would like very much to have been an humble participator in the festivities of so dignified and intellectual a body.

FAIR DAYS.

Mr. Editor:—The Bazar gotten up by our enterprising Mr. Mansfield, opened yesterday August 17th., and thinking you might enjoy a season of fair days, will give you a peep from the out-side.

Early we were there at work making order out of confusion; man's ingenuity and woman's taste working wonders with the chaotic heaps of material.—We had, however, enjoyed "the work of our hands" but a short while when a young flood with quite an overbearing disposition, routed sellers and purchasers, caterers and eaters, without the least respect to person or employment.

Would it be charitable to wish that you could have seen us, Mr. Editor, crowded together in the "big shanty" drenched, and miserably discomfitted? Yet who does not enjoy a scene at once doleful and comical.

Scampering may be an undignified term to apply to the action of young ladies and gentlemen and even old folks, but it is truthfully what we did when the blinding sheets of rain whipped under our dining awnings, and the wind drove it into our distressed faces scented with the prodigious quantity of floating onions, which, by the way, are our special detestation. How the bold courageous men tried to do their duty at the dining tables! but the rain, not knowing or caring that they had already paid for dinner, swept all before it, and as one sentiment pervades the bosoms of the brave we arose en masse and did what I have already called scampering. But the shed did not afford the expected protection, and drenched with rain and disappointment we set about making ourselves "masters of the situation." So now was the time for observations. Some dresses the rain had lengthened out and draggled mercilessly; others, as if disdaining the proximity to mud and dirty mixture, shrunk within themselves, growing by degrees "smaller and beautifully less." Our ruffles and flounces that we had awhile before looked with admiring eyes, were now but as "filthy rags," and as we looked over the dismal, dripping scene the thought occurred that humanity with all its pretentions was after all nothing; one tiny blast from omnipotent hands upsetting its grandest designs.

But what had we there? Articles to tempt the most fastidious, and to suit the most frugal expenditures. Flower stands that would have been ornaments to the house of a Croesus; tastefully ornamented chairs; tete a tete china setts that were very suggestive; wearing material; books for lawyers, preachers, young folks, old folks, with charming faces behind their handsome covers tempting you to buy. Fancy articles too numerous to mention; toys to please all the children; candies and nicities of all sorts; sewing machines; farming implements; a most ingenious self operative swing; fruits, hard ware and even the old woman living in the shoe of nursery tradition, with its wonderful population peeping through the crevices, swinging on the strings tumbling over the sides, and the loving mother with her handy rod eager to make "early impressions." Then there was the "grab bag" the delight of the little ones whose laughter was heard outside, above the babble of voices. But I cannot think of half the articles that are there for sale to assist a good and holy cause, and we beg the people to come and see for themselves, and most cordially we of the dining tables invite our guests to return to their dinners where we hope no more storms await them.

Night came on clear and pleasant so the entertainment of the children was largely attended, and the satisfaction of the audience complete. Teachers and scholars both deserve commendation, and the rapid improvement of the children will, we are confident, secure for the enterprise the liberal support of our citizens and all interested in the cause of education.

Wednesday, Aug. 18th., 1869.

Marietta, Aug. 23rd., 1869.

Mr. Editor:—The Fair closed on Saturday evening with an auction where many of the goods were disposed of, while those remaining were safely stored away for future sale, and the park was vacated for Sunday's rest. All who passed through the busy, exciting week were well capacitated to enjoy the day of rest that followed that six day's labor. But if success be the laborer's "hire," we are ready at any time again to co-operate with our chief in his plans for the public good.

In my first letter I left you at the close of the first nights entertainment so I must tell you of those that followed.

The second day unlike the first, was undisturbed by a storm, and our guests enjoyed the tasteful dishes that we brought in pride from our culinary department, and we are ready to pronounce Mr. Whitlock chief of caterers. All who partook of dinner were well served and went away full—y satisfied with the result of paying for a dinner ticket.

The exhibition of that night was better even than that of the previous evening. The children acting their parts without any hesitation or embarrassment, several doing themselves much credit, among whom may be mentioned Misses Genevа Sanders and Mattie Anderson, though all deserve praise.

The speeches forming an interesting feature of each morning were well listened to and frequently applauded by the appreciative part of the audience. Mr. Butler, of Madison was particularly entertaining and racy in his remarks. But I refer with more than pleasure to the concert given on Thursday evening by the Quartette Club of Atlanta, assisted by the Misses Clifton and Warren, Prof. Hensler of Atlanta and Mr. Milan of Cartersville. Few of us can remember an entertainment more pleasant than this, and we hope the Club will again favor us with the beautiful strains of "stars of the summer night" and "kisses." The violin and piano under the magic touches of Mr. Milan and the Professor yielded their sweetest tones, delighting the audience and receiving vociferous applause. Prof. Hensler with his fun and genial spirit won many friends, and should he ever return on a professional visit we wish him success.

The following days were busy and full of sunshine. The lovely sales women doing their duty with charming grace, persuading many to buy the tempting articles they displayed. But the place for a good laugh was in the "Art Gallery." As we explained to our visitors the "art" which one poor artless soul could not find, our own appreciation grew keener and our laughter heartier. As we explained the "early impressions" that a neatly hung switch was intended to convey, a thought of being early impressed must have flitted through the mind of our guest, for his head went suddenly back and a lusty haw! haw! rung out from his lips.

The sale of goods amounted to $2000; the gate receipts $500; the expenses for music, ice cream, &c., amounting to $700. Those donations yet remaining we hope will be disposed of without trouble. Valuable assistance was tendered by Messrs. Whitlock, Root, Clifton and several others whose kindness will not be forgotten. The excellent entertainment of the Quartette Club was entirely gratuitous, and was appreciated as it deserved to be, not only for its excellence but for its kindness.

We wish Mr. Mansfield more success in future, and hope this is only the beginning of an enterprise yet to be stupendous in its results.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

MATERIALISM.

The North British Review furnishes an article showing that the conception of God is not universal—that there are people living in tribes without such an idea. European writers of great eminence assert that we have no evidence—no facts upon which to found the conception of a God, and we have just received a large and handsomely printed paper from Chicago devoted to the "religion of fact" which it thus distinguishes from ordinary Theology. It is of the school of POSITIVISTS. It applies to mental as to physical science the same rigid rules and inductive method—nothing admitted which does not rest upon well established facts.

The devotee whose mind is panoplied in faith may avoid the arena of reason; but it is useless to suppose that the human mind will not be more and more accessible to and influenced by reason as time advances. Dr. PALEY foresaw this and gave us his admirable work on Natural Theology; but even his admirable reasoning is insufficient for the con- [illegible] the source of argument—it must be fact. Very well—let those who believe in an over-ruling Providence meet the issue.

HUMBOLDT thought he could show "why and how this world and the universe itself is a Kosmos—a divine whole of life and intellect; namely, by its all pervading LAWS. Law, he said, is the supreme rule of the Universe, and that law is wisdom, is intellect, is reason, whether viewed in the formation of planetary systems, or in the organization of the worm."

The materialist never reaches, and yet, can never avoid the immaterial.—Observe: if it be conceded that LAW is the supreme rule of the Universe; that it is wisdom, intellect, reason; then we must conclude that it is God—that God is law and law is God. The inference is unavoidable that, if matter, by virtue of its laws, has not only developed reason, intellect; but actually possesses all those attributes which we are capable of conceiving as belonging to Deity, then we but find in Matter the Infinite Intelligence—the Power, Wisdom, Goodness, which we ascribe to the Creator. Is it not more rational to hold that "His unseen things from the creation of the world, His eternal power and Godhead, are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made;" that though we may not understand all of the conditions of spiritual life, that God is a Spirit; that mind may exist independent of matter; that though—

"All are but parts of one stupendous whole Whose body nature is and God the Soul."—

Yet, that man, through whose organization has been developed, "wisdom, intellect, reason," has derived these attributes, not from matter, but from the essence of the Great Spirit?

"Law," says Justice BLACKSTONE, "in its most general and comprehensive sense, signifies a rule of action; and is applied indiscriminately to all kinds of action, whether animate or inanimate, rational or irrational. Thus we say, the laws of motion, of gravitation, of optics, or mechanics, as well as the laws of nature or nations."—"Thus, when the Supreme Being formed the universe and created matter out of nothing, he impressed certain principles upon that matter, from which it can never depart, and without which it would cease to be. When he put that matter into motion, he established certain laws of motion, to which all moveable bodies must conform. If we further advance from mere inactive matter to vegetable and animal life, we shall find them still governed by laws; more numerous, indeed, but equally fixed and invariable. The whole progress of plants, from the seed to the root, and from thence to the seed again—the method of animal [illegible] tion, digestion, secretion, and [illegible] branches of vital economy—are not [illegible] to chance, or the will of the creature itself, but are performed in a wond[illegible] involuntary manner, and guided by unerring rules laid down by the great Creator."

It is no longer questionable that all nature, physical and mental, is controlled by law; and it is only where the conditions of matter or mind are adverse to the operation of law that we find discord, and the constant effort of law to produce or restore harmony. In many instances, so impressive are these efforts of law that we are apt to ascribe its natural operations to the special interposition of Deity, and as all nature, physical and moral, is the agency through which the Divine Mind produces the results we contemplate, we are forced to the recognition, though these results are immediately subordinate to law, of the presence of God, especially when in connection with the results, we discover contrivance, intelligence and beneficent design.

The conception is most remarkable under the natural development of the human mind. Under strong moral impulses and guided by the light which adventitious circumstances afforded, examples have been furnished, in all ages, of the belief in supernatural or Divine influence, in suggesting the thoughts and shaping the conduct of men. And, it is not easy for the mind, impressed with the obligations of a great moral purpose, or mission, to divest itself of the impression that it is being moved by such supernatural influence; but there is certainly no more reason to believe in immediate supernatural influence in the development of human thought than in the adaptation of matter to vegetable life; or vegetable nature to animal existence. Vegetable life—animal nature—human thought, are clearly controlled by law, and the results are only varied by adaptations affecting the development. Still, the consciousness of a great purpose—of a great mission—will continue to excite the emotion arising from the conception that "God is with us," and certainly we are near to Him when filled with His own truth—His own great purpose—and in accordance with His moral laws, we seek the accomplishment of His beneficent designs.

Intuitively man has turned from matter to intellect—from physical nature to God, and wrought, according to his mental development his theology and forms of worship. The instinct is just and natural; its object is only to be justly conceived progressively, under the law advancing mental development.

The materialist may say we do not differ in our facts, while he denies our inference. He recognizes with HUMBOLDT the sublime order of Nature but denies that the facts prove a CONTRIVER. Very well; if it is possible that there can be law without a law-maker; if it is possible there can be this sublime order without a disposing Power and Intellect, let us see if there are not other facts "to show us the light of God's countenance." First we give a fact which one or two exceptions, if there are any, do not affect. Take ST. PIERRE's statement of it:

"All nations have the sentiment of the existence of God; not that they all raise themselves to Him after the manner of a NEWTON and a SOCRATES, in contemplation of the general harmony of his works; but by dwelling on those of his benefits which interest them the most. The Indian of Peru worships the Sun; he of Bengal, the Ganges, which fertilizes his plains; the black Iolof, the ocean, which cools his shores; the Samoiede of the north, the rein-deer which feeds him. The wandering Iroquois demands of the spirits which preside over the lakes and forests plentiful fishing and hunting seasons. Many worship their kings; but all nations, to endear to men those august dispensers of their felicity, have called in the aid of some divinity to consecrate their origin. Such are in general the Gods of the nations.

The character of a people and its religion are the same. Man feels this celestial impulse so irresistibly, that on ceasing to take the DEITY for his model, he never fails to make one after his own image."

Now you may call the concept[illegible] God, thus [illegible]

[illegible] processes of the mind. They obey them involuntarily. Just so it is with the instinct which points them from nature, physical and mental, up to nature's God. The recognition is instinctive—a natural result of the organization of the human mind and will forever find expression in some form or other of a Higher Power. The precisian may strive to content himself with Hero Worship; but he sinks immeasurably his Heaven born instinct when he thus substitutes the Creature for the Creator, even below the Idol worshipper though he pay his devotions to Newton, Bonaparte or Abe Lincoln, as the heathen invests the object of his devotion with conceptions of superhuman power.

Recognition of Deity is instinctive—a natural result of the organization of the human mind, and all effort to ignore it is vain. A recent writer says "every branch of knowledge passes successively through three stages: 1st. the supernatural or fictitious. 2nd. the Metaphysical or abstract. 3rd. the positive or scientific. In the theological stage Nature is regarded as the theatre whereon the arbitrary wills and momentary caprices of Superior Powers play their varying and variable parts. In the Metaphysical stage the notions of capricious divinities is replaced by that of abstract entities, whose modes of action are however invariable. In the positive stage the invariableness of phenomena, under similar conditions is recognized as the sum total of human investigation and beyond the laws which regulate phenomena it is considered idle to penetrate."

Among the objections, to such reasoning, it may be said, that it discards as worthless every theological conception of the past and rejects all future efforts in the same direction, though such conceptions are instinctive, and confirmed and sustained, by the wisdom and beneficent design which the laws of nature unfold. It discards as useless all that mental philosophy has taught, the peculiar province of which has been to explain the laws of mind. It is true that both the theology and philosophy are defective. How could they be otherwise under a law of progressive development? But, the idea, that we have passed, or must pass, through both stages, without learning a single truth from either, to that positive stage, wherein there is no God, is not only repugnant to human nature which disdains such a stage, but contrary to the operations of the law of progress which advances the mental development of man by the gradual evolution and accumulation of truth.

No branch of knowledge carries the student of nature beyond the theological stage. The positive truths of Astronomy, instead of obliterating the conception of Deity, sustains, enlarges and refines it.

"What though no real voice or sound
Amid the radiant orbs be found!
In reason's ear they all rejoice
And utter forth a glorious voice
Forever singing as they shine,
The hand that made us is Divine."

Blind Materialist! Why, with simple faith, did the Egyptian, the Persian, Hindoo, Greek and Roman, from a common impulse look up to Deity in fear and hope? Why does man, place him where you will, or find him where you will, resolve, as almost the first business of life, his religious worship? What gives him this involuntary, instinctive, mental direction? Is it not God, Himself; or if you choose, His laws? If it were not so,—if religious worship had no foundation in truth; if there were no God—nothing above us to love and adore as the Infinitely Perfect, would man repeat, continually, everywhere, the absurdity of religious worship?—Heathen or Christian—Savage or Civilized, place him where you will he turns to his worship as instinctively as he obeys any of the operations of the mind resulting from the existence of organic law.

The truth is we have not, and cannot, pass through either stage unless the organization of the human mind can be changed. There is but one stage for theology, mental philosophy and physical science, and it is only necessary that they be harmonized, to teach the true positive philosophy. From the progressive development of physical science, mental philosophy may discover [illegible] accurately the [illegible] design and prevailing [illegible] the creation, and [illegible] may learn to [illegible] harmoniously, the [illegible] of the Soul.

[illegible] has some "music in his [illegible] cheerful and sooth[illegible] are the blend[illegible] a tea-kettle, a [illegible] baby.

Going North.

The Savannah Advertiser says that merchants of the interior are going North to buy goods when as fine goods at as low prices can be purchased in Savannah. How are the merchants of the interior to know this when the merchants of Savannah do not advertise in the interior papers?

Chattanooga Daily Telegraph.

The "Telegraph Printing Company" will commence on the 3rd of September the publication of a Daily paper to be styled as above. It will advocate universal suffrage. What that means we do not yet exactly understand, with the claim set up for negro and woman suffrage. The paper, however, is to be conservative.

Ills that Flesh is Heir To.

Scrofula or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Neuralgia Swelling of the glands and Joints, Eruptions of the Skin, Secondary Syphilis with all its train of evils, Immure Blood, Female Diseases, Low Spirits, Liver Complaint, Jaundice, &c., &c. for all of this same kind. But happily they have their antidote. Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight possesses the qualities to expel them from the system; restore perfect health, and produce happiness where all was misery.

The Press Excursion.

The object of Mr. HUMBUG doubtless was to bring more fully before the public the boundless resources which may be made tributary to the wealth of the State in connection with the State Road. With this view the Press of the State was very generally represented. We regret that other motives should have been suggested less honorable and that Bullock was made a party to the excursion. Mr. Hull-bert is a good business man and his annual exhibit may even make "the $25,000 a month," all satisfactory; but he can't carry Bullock too.

Armstrong, Cator & Co.

We have had some business transactions with this House and we know that to recommend it we need but state that they gave us no trouble in these relations. It is a firm of long standing and they offer superior inducements to Merchants. Their goods for quality, cheapness, and durability, and even to add their gentlemanly punctuality and fairness at dealing, cannot be surpassed. We ask our merchants to patronize this Baltimore House and they will afterwards find it to have been to their interest. Their advertisement will be found in another column.

Marietta Brass Band.

We believe that the efforts of those who have been engaged in raising the amount necessary for the purchase of the instruments for the Band are about to be crowned with success. If they are in lack of the adequate amount, we hope our generous hearted citizens will not see them fail this time, but will respond to their demand. All right thinking men, and men of taste, can see the importance of a Brass Band. We hope we will be able to announce before long that Marietta has a real, live, soul-stirring Brass Band. "Just think of it! Won't it be nice!" as a fair person said on our left.

A Valuable Discovery

We most congratulate our friend, Dr. R. H. McCUTCHON, on his successful discovery of a remedy that will perfect an immediate and permanent cure of the Ague, Chills and Fever. The "Enrvis Ague Specific" is the title of the new and valuable Medicine. That there is something new under the sun is exemplified by this discovery. And that it is what it is represented to be, many citizens in this county and elsewhere will testify. We wish him success, and may it not only be a benefit to him pecuniarily, but a blessing to mankind.

Pretty Women.

A comparatively few Ladies monopolize the Beauty as well as the attention of Society. This ought not to be so, but it is; and will be while men are foolish and single out pretty faces for compliments.

This can all be changed by using Hagan's Magnolia Balm, which gives the Bloom of Youth and a refined sparkling Beauty to the complexion, pleasing, powerful and natural.

No lady need complain of a red, tanned, freckled or rustic Complection who will invest seventy five cents in Hagan's Magnolia Balm. Its effects are truly wonderful. To preserve the Hair use Lyons Kathairon.

Marietta Quartette Club.

A few of the young men of Marietta have formed a Quartette Club for the purpose of developing and exercising their musical talents. We do not doubt after sufficient practice that they will give the public a benefit of their "melodious voices of sweet sounds."

For instance, long after twilight, when the gay and busy throng of the city are in calm repose oblivious of what is transpiring outside of their abode, perchance some fair one, the favorite of some particular one, will hear in accents too audible to be mistaken for the silent utterings of a dream—

"Lady wake! bright stars are keeping
Fair watch, O Lady fair,
O'er thy head while thou art sleeping.
Sweet music fill the air."

We say success to the Marietta Quartette Club.

Thirty Years Ago.

One bright August morning a young man came to Marietta in the old Stage Coach of those days, looking for a location for business. After locating around for a day or two (the stage only running three times a week), he concluded to go no further. He rented a little house, then in use as a carpenter shop, and the only room to be had at that time, on the West side of the square, and fixed it up on the 2nd day of September, 1838—Thirty Years Ago to day—and commenced a business which has continued until the present time—carrying and improving and striving to keep up with the times and with a liberal use of Printer's Ink, he has done a successful business. We allude to our, now getting to be, old friend Wm. Root, who is as active as ever and with his Sons, all Marietta Boys, now engaged in business with him. Though nearly used up by the War they have gradually rebuilt and refitted their large Store House, and have during the past month considerably improved their premises. They have now one of the largest and best arranged stores in the city, well adapted to their business and well stocked with their line of goods. Examination of their Advertising Columns will show what that consists of. Their Building, all occupied by themselves, is 100 by 20 feet, two stories, and a Back Store 40 by 25 feet, for Fertilizers, Steel Plows, &c.

They inform us that although their business does not quite equal in amount their sales before the war, yet it is gradually improving all the time, and we have no doubt if an active desire to suit the various wants of their customers and a liberal use of Printer's Ink will avail, they will succeed.

King of Chills never fails.
Substitute for quinine, King of Bills.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we allow ourselves to be afflicted with those maladies to which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial? or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippmann's Pyrafuge, the curative properties of which are wonderful. Even the first dose gives beneficial effects as felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the health of the dear ones, whom otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physician, practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippmann Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

BULLOCK AND ANGIER

Angier, the State Treasurer, is out in the Atlanta Era, occupying a column, denouncing Gov. Bullock. He heads it "To the People of Georgia," and introduces his subject by saying:

"The publicity given to a case of a malignant attempt at persecution in the shape of the most malicious prosecution, by the individual styled the Chief Magistrate of Georgia, against the Treasurer, forces that officer to respond in a statement of facts, and make some disclosures to the public heretofore unknown."

Angier then in severe language accuses Bullock of almost everything bad, of drawing large sums of money without a reason or authority, of pocketing all monies that were pocketable, finally administering a few blows from the shoulder, as follows:

"This is the man, with all his corruptions, squandering of the State's funds by thousands in his own interest, in violation of law, with mind so perverted that it seems to be his pleasure to shield and reward iniquity, and punish honesty and virtue, who has the superlative littleness to commence a vexatious, malicious prosecution against an official because he dares tell the truth and act honestly, and he finds plenty to join him in the cry, 'Crucify him! crucify him!' who can get their hands in the State Treasury through Executive patronage. Thus, by his reckless extravagance and inroads upon the Treasury, does he find willing accomplices, and forces poor Georgia to furnish the dagger to cut her own throat."

[From the Newnan Herald.

RED CLOVER, GRASS AND ETC.

Mr. Editor:—For three or four years past I have been experimenting with clover and several varieties of grass.—A great many persons have made inquiries concerning them; and, hoping that it may assist those who have decided to have a clover lot, and stimulate others to an effort in the same direction, I have concluded to give you the result of the experiment. Clover, like any other crop, to grow successfully, requires rich land. It would be just as sensible to expect a first class crop of cotton or corn on poor land as a good crop of clover.—The land must be naturally rich, or made so by liberal application of manure, and then I know of no crop raised in this country that will return larger profits than a combination of orchard grass and red clover.

In the fall of 1866, I prepared a small plat of ground, about one acre and a half. The land was naturally rich and did not require any fertilizer. About the first of October with a turn plough, followed by a subsoiler, I broke the land ten or eleven inches deep, fifteen would have been better, but I find it impossible with any plough that I have used to break stiff red land more than ten or twelve inches. I sowed it best, covering it with the harrow. Two weeks later sowed twelve pounds of clover seed and one bushel and a half of orchard grass, not covering at all. In a short time I had a fine stand of wheat, grass and clover.

After cutting the wheat the following year, a great number and a great variety of weeds came up and grew so rapidly that I lost sight of the grass and clover. In August, when the weeds were in full bloom, I cut them, and [illegible] close to the ground, and I have not been troubled with weeds on that lot since that time. The clover and grass grew off vigorously and made a fine grazing crop during the following winter. On the 15th of May 1868, I cut the grass and clover, and they averaged four feet all over the lot. Towards the latter part of June I cut again, the average height being about two feet. A third crop grew during the same summer which matured a large quantity of seed. I did not weigh the hay, but the lowest estimate by any of my neighbors who saw the bulk after being dried, was three tons per acre; equal to ninety dollars in any market. In cutting, shocking and housing, one hand was employed about four days. This covers the entire expense of the crop, excepting the [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] she never gave less than [illegible] gallons of milk per day, and a few days [illegible] four. Since June she has been on [illegible] grain feed, but her milk has not fallen [illegible] one gallon per day. My mules [illegible] at least one-third less corn, but kept in better condition than they would have been on full rations. I am particular to [illegible] ing these statements to show that [illegible] there is nothing that will make [illegible] a better quality of hay, than orchard grass and clover, there certainly is none [illegible] ing superior to them for grazing pu[illegible]

[illegible] clover and [illegible] combined [illegible] serve in any other crop. For [illegible] grazing it is better than the clover, in fact it is better than anything I know of. It does not stop growing even in the coldest spells of winter, and starts off much faster than rye or barley, and one seeding is all that is necessary in a life time. Clover runs out in five or six years.

September is the proper time for sowing grass and clover, and I hope every one who can will prepare a lot for one, two, three, or five acres. Prepare the land deeply, manure highly, sow eight pounds of clover seed and one bushel of orchard grass to the acre, cover, if at all, with a light roller, and my word for it, you will never live to regret the operation. If you sow wheat or oats as they do in the Northern States, you need not expect a crop of clover the first season. Which the grain is cut the plants are so tender the sun shocks their growth until summer is over.

It is, and has been the general impression that clover will not grow in this latitude. But few have tried it, and when there has been a failure, the [illegible] undoubtedly, has been in the experiment, not in the climate. I have traveled in Virginia and Tennessee, in all seasons of the year, and I have seen better clover in this country than I ever saw in either of those States. Between this and Augusta, in different localities there are large fields of clover that have been growing for several years, as successfully as any in a higher latitude.—There is no deficiency in the climate.—This climate will grow almost everything north of the tropics, and it is probably superior, or at least equal to any in this world for the growth of all the clovers and grasses. This operation will, in my judgment be fully verified in a very few years, for as labor becomes scarcer and higher, grass lots and clover fields will begin to appear all over the country; then, and not till then, can we talk in earnest about renovating our old fields; about fat hogs, mutton and hogs, and fine horses.

Yours, etc., J. R. T.

HOLD YOUR PEACH.

We would say to the thing who signs himself Rufus B. Bullock, Governor of Georgia, that the thing has come to a point where it would be humiliating in him to cease lying upon the people of the State. For more than a twelve-month he has been impersonating Congress to put the State under military rule and to appoint him Dictator. He has traveled northward, and told the credulous crowds which listened to him the [illegible] were in danger in Georgia, and that his people were persecuted and murdered by the hundreds by day and night. He has charged that the members of the Legislature are the leaders of the Ku-Klux Klan, and his lies have grown great and small have re-echoed the slander. Yet he admits that he has invited this Ku-Klux Klan to go on an excursion with him. Even more: he has filled sundry cars with whiskey, sardines, champagne and other fine liquors, and has put thereon sundry Ku Klux and guises therein that he will, to travel by night and by day for the space of twelve days or more. The only protection he has secured is that of a body guard composed of Wells, Fargo & Swayne, Burd, and the aforesaid slaughterhouse. The Ku-Klux, on the other hand, have unlimited access to whiskey with which to inflame their passions, and opportunities beyond counting to shoot Bullock effectually, or to kill Mr. Bullock effectually, and then charge the murder with shooting Bullock. And yet he goes with his gang by special appointment, without a shiver, after tramping over the North vaunting his great power and superficial cowardice. We say it is time to [illegible] even Bullock should quit lying, and that the slander will [illegible] for want of custom. Enough.—Columbus Sun.

Our County.

Several gentlemen from Southern Georgia who are prospecting for settlement in our midst expressed their appreciation of our many natural advantages in the most gratifying manner. For Marietta, they said, we needed nothing to render it the most beautiful and desirable of localities but a little more enterprise among our people in building up Schools and extending our Hotel accommodations. With such energy rife among your citizens, they said, we would be astonished at the influx of strangers among us.

Pretty Women.

A comparatively few Ladies monopolize the Beauty as well as the attention of Society. This ought not to be so, but it is; and will be while men are foolish and single out pretty faces for companions.

This can all be changed by using Hagan's Magnolia Balm, which gives the Bloom of Youth and a refined sparkling Beauty to the complexion, pleasing, powerful and natural.

No lady need complain of a red, tanned, freckled or rustic Complexion who will invest seventy-five cents in Hagan's Magnolia Balm. Its effects are truly wonderful. To preserve the Hair use Lyon's Kathairon.

A Beautiful Home.

Home and Mother are considered the sweetest words known to humanity, and when the home (as that is what we wish to speak of) is a beautiful one, it seems to us it would enhance our appreciation to a very high estimate. But by reference to another column it will be seen that there is advertised "A Beautiful Home," with an hundred acres of desirable land, for sale, that can be bought at a very low estimate, in that delightful little village, Powder Springs, which is so well known for its healthfulness, good water and intelligent society. Here is a bargain for some one.

The Southern Cultivator,

Which so especially devotes itself to our farming interests is always readable and valuable, and the September Number especially so. Among its numerous articles we notice one on the subject of immigration, advancing the propositions, 1st. The resources of the South can be fully developed by her own people. 2nd, If we invite emigrants at all they should come from China. 3rd. As we need laborers for wages under the supervision of southern planters.

We are inclined to respond affirmatively to each proposition. Under new systems of labor the Southern people will develop all of the resources of the South and if allowed to do so, will preserve their peculiar civilization untainted with the isms and degrading tendencies of the mongrel civilization of the North. Chinese laborers, said to be the best in the world will in no way interfere with this ascendancy of the Southern people, while it will necessarily be accompanied by heavy immigration from Europe.—Besides these latter emigrants will not come as laborers for wages, but as proprietors, to purchase at present low and ruinous prices the heritage of our people. We are not sorry to learn from Col. Weil that there is insuperable prejudice in Europe against emigration to the South. Enough of the better class will come to render all the aid desirable and not too many to prevent their becoming identified with Southern interest and sentiment.

[For the Marietta Journal.

Having intended to furnish a short article in reference to the Fair recently held in our public Park, I now proceed to make a short synopsis of results for the information of all persons interested.

The total receipts for all sales and admission fees was about $2,900 The expenditures for Dinners, Ice Cream, Music, etc., etc., was about $300. Expenses for freight to Rail Road about $200. Amount of goods on hand not sold $300.

I expect to try to do something in the way of a Free School building very soon. I am now looking for a suitable lot.

Our Fair week was a pleasant and agreeable time to all parties, young and old that had part in it.—The Music was good, the Soda Fountain attractive and Mr. George Sharp's Jewelry was magnificent.—Mr. Sharp donated one half of his profits to the enterprise for which the Fair was inaugurated.

Quite a number of our citizens made donations to the Fair which were sold for cash, among them I mention Mr. Hirsch, Mr. Agricola, Mrs. Shornhall, Mr. Elsas, Mr. Rob't. Campbell, Mr. J. R. Brumby, Rev. Mr. Rogers and Messrs. Cook & Cheek.—Our Ice Cream was supplied by Mr. Hirsch and he besides other donations was kind enough to make a liberal deduction from his bill. But I cannot further particularize. Suffice it to say that every person seemed anxious to make the fair a success and we think it was. I hope our friends will the foreign Merchants and Manufacturers abroad who made donations.

I want a lot upon which a Free School building can be put up immediately. Will any one give me one. I am waiting for a lot. How long shall I wait?

Exercises of the Marietta Free School will begin on Monday, 13th September. Persons who desire to send children should call on the Superintendent and make arrangements.

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc, from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful, from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Washington, Pa., June 25. 1866.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:

Dear Sirs—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that terrible scourge the cholera.

In administering the medicine I found it most affectual to give a teaspoonful of the Pain Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar. Then after about fifteen minutes, give a tablespoonful of the mixture EVERY MINUTE until relief is obtained.—Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach and bowels with the Pain Killer, clear, and rub the limbs briskly. Of those who took the medicine faithfully in the way stated, about eight out of ten recovered. Yours truly, R. GOOD ADVICE.

The N. Y. Tribune furnishes the following useful hints to Southern enterprise. The view taken of our interests is a correct one and we would be glad to see our energies more generally directed in the way indicated:

"Other regions, as India, Egypt, Brazil, and the African coast, can supply to the clamorous looms of Lancashire sufficient cotton for lower grades of cloth, for the coarser yarns used in filling. But for long, fine threads required in the muslins, lawns, fine prints, and highest grades of shirtings and sheetings, American thread cannot be replaced. Cotton thread, fine, strong and even, is the precise article which England most needs from us, and she must continue to require it as long as she has that immense surplus population beseeching work that they may live, requiring additional looms to keep them from the poor loaf and thin soup of pauperism. These cotton yarns can be spun at the South at less cost, with less waste, by as cheap labor, fed by as cheap food, as in any part of the world.

There are immense pine forests to supply fuel, the weather is so mild that spinning houses wanin consume but a trifle for heat, and spinning can be done by that large class of half hands, the crippled, the old and young, those feeble in body and abased in spirit, with whom the South abounds. For manufacturers of the highest class, arts which require vigilance and skill, a trained eye and a nice touch at every stage of an operation, the South does not now furnish a full supply of the grade of labor required. But to tend the cylinders, cards, jack-frames, and ring-traveler frames, by which cotton lint is converted into cotton yarns, numbering from 20 to 40, does not require a better operative than the plantations and the pine woods of the Cotton Belt can turn out in abundance.

A spinning-house, fully equipped with every wheel and spindle required for converting annually a thousand bales into yarn, with comfortable cabins for spinners, can be put up for $50,000.—The net profits of such a mill may be about $20,000 a year. Think of the immense increase of wealth and power to a community to be gained by supplying such an empire as the British with an article of prime necessity and pocketing twenty dollars a bale gain over and above the profit of growing the cotton! The South thinks she needs more agricultural laborers, more Africans or Asiatics. That is her error. She needs more of the descendants of Japheth, not Normans with hereditary pride of blood and of acres, but the patient, skillful, industrious artisan, the artificer in brass and copper, the man who thinks in iron. Upon this class depends the world wide vigor and grasp of the British Empire—this class it was that gave the North her victory. The South does not lack the foresight and the thrift to see that her future power and unchallenged equality in national affairs depend not on a plow-beam but on a cog-wheel."

THE RIGHT SORT OF IMMIGRANTS FOR THE SOUTH.—We find the following agreeable information for Georgians in the Augusta Chronicle & Sentinel of Sunday:

From Mr. J. Howard Brown, of the Central Georgia Railroad Estate Agency we learn that Mr. Ephraim Train, of Rhinebeck, New York, was in town yesterday. He visits Georgia with a view to select small farms for himself and neighbors, who wish to immigrate this fall. He reports a large number of Dutchess county farmers as coming in October to settle. We hope they will bring some of their fine stock with them. If they will raise and fatten as fine beef and mutton, and make as fine butter as we have eaten from Dutchess county, here, the sooner they come the better.—Mr. T. complimented our merchants, after visiting several establishments, by stating that he intended selling all his "traps," and purchasing what he needed here, as the prices were no higher than in New York. If old farmers like Mr. T. undertake a journey of [illegible] miles to see our lands, we may look for a harvest.

We wrote the

THE LABOR QUESTION.

A Marietta Correspondent of the Macon Journal & Messenger presents some suggestions worthy of consideration on the above subject, though we do not suppose that discussion will much affect the solution of the problem:

"I would like to know, in the name of humanity, what we expect to do with the Chinaman when we have so signally failed to succeed to our advantage, what we have with us—and I am not speaking speculatively as the manner in which labor is controlled in this section of Georgia, (for it amounts to nothing, isn't controlled at all,) but have had three years' experience in the cotton belt proper and know whereof I speak.

Already enough labor is in the South, and actually pretending to work, (not taking into account the great number doing nothing,) to make with all ease in the world double the product now produced.

Do we wish to arrange, and is it to our interest to work to suit the pecuniary interest of the Northern States and Europe to the detriment of our own?—Suppose we add a little more tact and system and learn to control properly, as to our interest and to his vital interest, the native negro, and leave Chinese immigration for a time to work out its own destiny!

Suppose we induce and coax into this country a mongrel race of Chinamen and the scum of the four corners of the earth, devoid of intelligence, and mix them with the negro already here and clear and wear out more land, push madly and wildly on till we might reach five or even ten million bales cotton, and what might be the mighty results or disastrous consequences of such a course? Time alone can tell.

Is it not far better to encourage system, science and economy, instead of foreign immigration, thereby producing five or six million bales of cotton and a bountiful supply of provisions with the same labor now actually pretending to work? Who, that has made tests and experiments in subsoiling, fertilizing, and nice culture, will doubt for a moment that we can double our present average product with the same labor now in the country. It can be easily accomplished. Let us employ our laborers for wages, and pay them as good a price as we are able to do, and then see that they fill the bill to a letter—convince and force them to go that capital must and will control labor, and not labor capital, and that the sooner they fall into line properly the better for them and their posterity."

MR. PEABODY.—We take the following allusion to Mr. Peabody from the oration delivered by Hon. H. W. Billiard, at the late Commencement of the Wesleyan Female College at Macon:

"There is great danger in this fault-utilitarian spirit. Men may deal so much in money as to estimate everything by it—friendship, love, liberty, religion. We have made such a rapid advance in material civilization that we seem fairly open to the criticism of Burke upon his own time, extorted by the fate of the lovely Marie Antoinette, Queen of France: 'But the age of chivalry is gone; that of sophists, economists and calculators has succeeded.'

"Wealth is entitled to consideration when it comes to reward honest toil and honorable enterprise. It is worthy of all praise when it is employed for the advancement of the happiness of our race. George Peabody rivals John Howard in the veneration of mankind. Both will go down to the coming generations with the noblest of all earthly titles—Philanthropists. But nothing is so vulgar as wealth when it is hoarded with meanness, or lavished to pamper pride, or exhibited with insolent ostentation. The social position which it enables one to attain, who lacks true nobleness of nature, only exposes him to contempt.—The lines of Burns still thrill the heart of every true man and every true woman:

"'The rank is but the guinea stamp,
The man's the gowd for a' that.'"

The Fire in Atlanta.

The Fire in Atlanta on the 10th extended from Marietta St., to National Hotel, consuming property to the estimated value of $100,000. Insurance $50,000.

Accident.

We regret to learn of the accident breaking the leg of our friend Mr. W. J. M'CLATCHEY, last Tuesday, by the wheel of a heavy loaded wagon passing over it. Dr. G. TENNANT is in attendance.

Educational Meeting.

Do not neglect the call for a meeting of the citizens of Marietta and vicinity this evening at the Baptist Church. Important subjects connected with our educational interests will be under consideration.

Episcopal Church.

Some of the ladies of this Church have recently bought and placed in its chancel a beautiful pair of Walnut Arm Chairs, handsomely cushioned with some damaske red material, which is very appropriate and adds much to the appearance of the chancel.

Asking too Much.

A publishing house in Atlanta, the benefit of the publications of which are withheld from us, does not hesitate to ask us to "notice" its enterprises. Though always willing to aid the Printer we rather think this is asking too much.

Georgia Marble Works.

These valuable works, situated in Pickens county, are now under the sole control of Mr. W. A. RICHARDSON, and are conducted by experienced and practical agents. All orders will be promptly and in the most satisfactory manner.

Author's Publications.

We are in receipt for October of those excellent works "Hallow's Home Magazine"—"Our Own Monthly," and "The Children's Hour." They are admirably executed and contain much valuable reading.

☞ The "XIX Century" Publication Co., at Charleston, have been so successful in their liberal concessions that they are distributing hundreds of choice Standard works free to the purchasers of the Magazine. Ask for it at the Book Store of R. T. Brumby & Sons.

Steam Flour Mill.

W. L. MANSFIELD & SON, have their new Steam Flour Mill in operation ready for the accommodation of customers. It is located on Cherokee Street below their Warehouse and is an important acquisition to the growth of our city.

Horse Thieves.

We learn through a gentleman just from Campbell county, that horse thieves are giving the citizens much trouble there. In one neighborhood eight horses were stolen in two nights, during the last week; and the owners so far have been unable to effect their recovery.

Come One! Come All!

There will be a public meeting of the Citizens of Marietta and vicinity, at the Baptist Church this evening the 17 inst., at early candle light, in furtherance of the educational interests of the city and surrounding county.

All are interested, and are urged to attend the meeting, as matters of importance will come before it, Sept. 17 1869.

MANY CITIZENS.

The Confederate Cemetery.

The work of improvement on these grounds is being urged forward with vigor and excellent taste by those in charge. We trust that the funds necessary to complete the work will at no time be lacking, as they will be expended with zeal in earnest, and as it is a work which should enlist universal sympathy.

We invite attention to the Card of Miss Mary J. GREEN, "Trustee of the Georgia Memorial Association," and urge a liberal response. Contributions can be handed to her directly or left at the Store of WM. ROOT & SONS.

To Our Musical Friends

Believing that the musical interests of our neighborhood will be benefitted by the introduction of Peters' Musical Monthly, we have made arrangements with the Publisher to offer as follows—our paper one year and Peters' Musical Monthly for six months, (one volume,) for $3; or any one sending us a Club of two subscribers, at $2 each, will be presented with a half yearly subscription to Peters' Musical Monthly—and when we tell our friends that this is equivalent to giving them at least 60 pieces of Music, they will see that we wish them all to "sing, play, and be happy."

Pretty Women.

A comparati vely few Ladies monopolize the Beauty as well as the attention of Society. This ought not to be so, but it is; and will be while men are foolish and single out pretty faces for companions.

This can all be changed by using Hagan's Magnolia Balm, which gives the Bloom of Youth and a refined sparkling Beauty to the complexion, pleasing, powerful and natural.

No lady need complain of a red, tanned, freckled or rustic Complexion who will invest seventy five cents in Hagan's Magnolia Balm. Its effects are truly wonderful. To preserve the Hair use Lyon's Kathairon.

A Noble and Charitable Surgical Operation.

We are informed that Dr. Cleland of our city, assisted by Drs. Dunwody, G. Tennant and Lewis Tennant, performed an important, charitable and praiseworthy surgical operation on an aged and penniless Freedman (George formerly the slave of Mr. William Barber) a few days ago at the residence of Judge Kirkpatrick's by amputating the leg of the said freedman about four inches below the knee, evincing great caution and performance of said [illegible]

We can [illegible] suffering [illegible] years. [illegible] Marietta, August 9th, 1869

Ills that Flesh is Heir To.

Scrofula or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Neuralgia Swelling of the glands and Joints, Eruptions of the Skin, Secondary Syphilis with all its train of evils, Impure Blood, Pimples, Blotches, Low Spirits, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, &c., fall to the lot of mankind. But happily they have their antidote. Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight possess the qualities to expel these from the system; restore peppet health, and produce happiness where all was misery.

The Maryland Farmer.

For September is an excellent Number, its matter being admirably adapted to the season upon which we are now entering. We will copy next week some of its well-considered and valuable articles.—Those wishing the work will address S. Sands Mills & Co., Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore has become an extensive manipulator of Fertilizers. A new variety has for its base the Fossil Bone Phosphate of South Carolina and the proprietors claim that it contains 10 per cent more of Bone Phosphate of Lime than the best ground bones. The price is $30 per Ton in Bags. These Fossil Beds, if as rich as reported, will prove immensely valuable to the agriculture of the South.

Crops and Trade.

Notwithstanding the blighting effects of the drought in all this region of country we learn that the upland Corn is generally better than was expected and that the bottom lands will turnout a good yield. Turnips have been extensively sown and the Sweet Potato product may prove abundant. Good weather has prevailed for saving forage, and, altogether, with economy in the use of what we have, very little money need be sent abroad for the purchase of articles of subsistence.

The Cotton Crop will doubtless prove an average one for this section, which, with a fine price, will make money easy if not plentiful, and in anticipation of a lively trade this and winter we are pleased to see that our Merchants with a good deal of animation are laying in abundant stocks and preparing for "lively times." To our Country friends we will say that now here will they find most reliable goods or more favorable terms or accommodating traders than in Marietta.

To the Citizens of Marietta.

You are well aware of the Confederate work, in your midst, in which I have been engaged, during the past summer. The Legislature of 1868 made the appropriation for it, of $2000, and with the assistance of a few patriotic ladies of our State, I increased that sum by $2000 more.

With this amount, I have removed to the Cemetery here, the remains of 1125 Confederate soldiers from the battle-fields of Northern Georgia, and have endeavored to beautify their last resting place in a manner that would accord, with the wishes, and tastes of our people.

A few weeks more work will place the grounds, in a condition to withstand the winter rains—and without which, a great deal of work done, will be utterly ruined. But although the utmost economy has been used, in the expenditure of the money, the Treasury is now almost exhausted—and I am compelled to appeal to you, citizens of Marietta, feeling sure, that your generous hearts will prompt you to come to my assistance. You requested that the Cemetery might be located here, and now you will show your appreciation of the honor conferred upon your town, in a manner, worthy of the object and yourselves.

PERRY DAVIS'

VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER,

The Great Family Medicine of the Age.

Perry Davis' Pain Killer needs no recommendation. It is widely and favorably known throughout the land. "COMMERCIAL," Newburn, N. C.

At this season, when coughs and colds are so prevalent an effectual remedy, and one easily obtained is Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer. It is no new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of more than twenty years; and those who use the article, internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor. Hastings Chronicle, C. W.

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 25, 1866.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:

Dear Sirs—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for the maladies amongst the natives.

In administering the medicine I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of the Pain Killed in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar. Then after about fifteen minutes, give a tablespoonful of the mixture EVERY HOUR until relief is obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach and bowels with the Pain Killer, clear, and rub the limbs briskly. Of those who took the medicine faithfully in the way stated, almost eight out of ten recovered. Yours truly, R. TELFORD.

PERRY DAVIS & SON,
Manufacturers and Proprietors,
Providence, R. I.

To Be, or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible nervous diseases which afflict our country? Shall we be afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that shall promptly expel chill fever, dumb chills, fever and ague, etc., from our systems? Shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any help or relief? We say no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose the painful sufferer begins to feel a change, and should be persisted in for three consecutive days to insure a bottle of health. Those in the interior, away from physicians and all other medicines, can rest assured that the Pyrafuge will cure them, and that all other remedies will prove worthless and should be thrown away. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians practice, and do away with the horrid effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared by the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug-House, Savannah, Georgia.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While scarcely a sufferer forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given to the victims of the consumption, and relief is sure to follow its administration in the throat and lungs. As a protection against the attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, it should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. no complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. Nothing else could reach them, hence the Cherry Pectoral is the only remedy needful.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Hoarseness, and Bronchial Affections of the throat are speedily relieved by its virtues. Even when no cure is effected, a trial of its power will be productive of benefit.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all around the world.

The True System of Farming.

Trying to do too much is a common error into which the farmer often falls. His great eagerness in striving to be rich is doubtless the cause of his error. He is ambitious and industrious, and forms his plans on a large scale, too often perhaps, without counting the cost. He buys a large farm, and wants to be called a "large farmer" without understanding or considering the true elements that constitute a real farmer. He fancies the greatness of that profession, as is too often the common estimate to be in proportion to the number of acres, not to say cultivated, embraced within the boundaries of his domain. The fact is now being spread abroad, that a large farm does not make a man either rich, contented or happy, but on the contrary, the reverse of all these, unless well tilled, when his labor is rewarded by ample crops and fair success in the various departments in which he is engaged.—No farmer can realize the full benefits of his profession without adopting a thorough system of culture. His success, commensurate to his wishes, always depends upon the manner in which he prepares his grounds, plants his seed, and rears his stock. Neither of these departments, which may be considered the cardinal ones of his profession, will take care of themselves. The soil may be rich, but it needs culture. His seed may be sown, but it should be in due time, and always on soil well prepared and of a suitable quality for the production of the crop desired. His stock must be constantly cared for—it derives its thrift from the soil, and sends again to that soil the sustenance it requires; but this is not done in a loose or haphazard way. The farmer's care is required, and all his better judgment be exercised in keeping up this system of reciprocal benefits that may be realized by every intelligent and industrious farmer.

Thorough cultivation and systematic attention to all parts of his business is indispensable to a good degree of success. The very corner stone to this whole system of farming, is do what you do thoroughly—nature will not be cheated, and never gives full returns to the half way work that is practiced by so many too many calling themselves farmers. If the land has been worn, the extent of that exhaustion and the food required must be first considered. When ascertained, the full measure of these requirements must be given, to bring out full returns. If the farmer has but a small stock, and consequently but a small amount of manure to replenish his land, it is obvious that but a small farm can be supplied with it; and good judgment at once dictates that to cultivate properly a large farm, artificial fertilisers must be used if good crops are obtained. And so with the labor, two men cannot suitably till one hundred acres of land, when the labor of two and perhaps four, might be profitably employed on seventy-five acres.

This is the great error in farming—Two men strive to do what four can hardly do, and thus thousands of acres are run over, half tilled, and producing half crops. The land is run over till worn out, sustaining year after year the unnatural tax, till its energies are entirely exhausted, and it fails to yield even a feeble crop, because its life is worn out. Much of the soil in Virginia and other Southern States is a type of this. Thousands of acres entirely useless and exhausted, and will ever remain so, till the first elements of its power are returned to it. This process is going on in many of the Western States. The soil is treated like an inexhaustible mine; the tillers crying give give! till in a few years it will have nothing to give. The boast of the West is, large farms, and large fields of grain; plough, sow and reap, is the business of Western farmers, drawing out the very life of the soil, sending away in the heavy exports that are constantly going onward, without returning to the soil the food it requires to make it productive.

The light that is being spread abroad on this subject is beginning to [illegible] this practice to some [illegible] instances very [illegible] soil to keep in [illegible] of [illegible]

Southern Prosperity.

A writer in the [illegible] very sensibly argues that 2,000,000 bales of Cotton will pay the South [illegible] money as 6,000,000; but as there is [illegible] supply of breadstuffs, [illegible] to keep our money at home, and [illegible] money invested in Manufactories, [illegible] make the South the richest and most prosperous country in the world.

"We want," as the Central Georgian [illegible] linked all over the [illegible] producing portions of the State. We want to put the magnificent water power that has given us and so long [illegible] waste, to driving thousands of [illegible] looms, giving employment to [illegible] legs, and manufacture those [illegible] which we have in [illegible] upon Lowell, Manchester [illegible] places. Why cannot [illegible] prints, bunting, cloths, [illegible] We can do it. We [illegible] need go out of Georgia to [illegible] featured state, except at much [illegible] five prices. We might [illegible] superiority of the Southern [illegible] defer it for the present. But we want to convert our resources into [illegible] available shape without paying [illegible] fabulous prices to do it for us. We want furnaces and foundries dotting the hills and valleys of upper Georgia. We want more railroads and less discriminating against local freights. We want to go to work in the right direction, and such a future as there is in store for Georgia no man can foretell."

Southern Products.

In addition to the immense production of Cotton in Louisiana, four Parishes alone producing 230,000 bales, the State produces 500,000 hogsheads of Sugar, and yet, it is said, not a moiety of the lands are in cultivation. Labor—ample labor—is the first necessity now of the South.

Ashes for Wheat.

A correspondent of the Rural Gentleman, writes very strongly in favor of ashes to prevent rust in wheat, supports his arguments by facts adduced from his own experience. He has in numerous instances found them to possess a marked value, exerting a three-fold power for good. We extract from the article the following paragraphs:

1. The ashes operate as a manure upon the wheat, even in the limited quantity of eight bushels per acre.

2. They push the wheat forward several days, and in time to escape the hot sultry days, which so often prevail about the time of the "heading out" of the wheat, and,

3. They strengthen the stem, giving it substance and solidity.

I may here add one or two more properties to the ashes; they offered just that kind of pabulum or food which is best for the development and perfection of the grain, and will, in my opinion, also prevent the ravages of the fly in wheat. I would here venture the remark, that whoever tries this experiment will thereafter spread his wood ashes upon his wheat as above indicated; and in so doing he will effectually guard against and prevent the rust in his wheat.

Claims for Captured Property.—

The total amount of claims filed against the Government for the capture and destruction of private property during the late war amount to three million dollars. A goodly portion of these claims have been audited and adjusted, but Secretary Boutwell has given orders that not a cent shall be paid.

"Just compensation" says the constitution, "shall be made for all private property taken for public use." It says then, the government that refuses it is a repudiator. In view of the great assistance to justice to the citizens, to investigation of the titles of hundreds of millions of Southern property without any compensation to its rightful owners, the Southern States to repudiate debts contracted in good faith, as refusal to discover greenbacks into bonds when the former bear the guarantee in black and white on their face, how can it be [illegible] if the contagion of its [illegible] stricks among the people and [illegible] newer NAY to all payments [illegible] of the war debt? A [illegible] is worth anything [illegible] it will be [illegible]

WASHINGTON. Pa., June 25. 1866.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:

Dear Sirs—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that terrible scourge the cholera.

In administering the medicine I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of the Pain Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar. Then after about fifteen minutes, give a tablespoonful of the mixture EVERY HALF HOUR until relief is obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach and bowels with the Pain Killer, clear, and rub the limbs briskly. Of those who took the medicine faithfully in the way stated, about eight out of ten recovered. Yours truly, R. To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible maladies diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, stake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, whose otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. SORGHUM AS A FARM CROP—HOW TO MANAGE THEM.

Mr. N. Pratt, of Bradford county, Pennsylvania, made some sensible remarks recently, before the American Institute Farmer's Club. He was giving his experience in the management of grass lands. He stated that it was his practice after seeding down to grass not to plough the land again in less than eight years. He has one meadow which has been mowed for sixteen successive years, and "it was never better, to-day than now." Indeed he has found that his meadows under the right treatment "grow better as they grow older."

Now what is this right treatment?—Simply to return annually to the soil the constituents of manure which have been taken from it in crops. The whole secret of successful farming lies in that one sentence.

But this thing is to be understood.—No land that is naturally poor and thin will grow good crops of grass, or of any thing else, for any successive number of years. The presumption is, and we do deem the fact from Mr. Pratt's general mode of farming, that he never puts down any land to grass that is not naturally rich or has not been made so by high manuring. This is the first consideration—the second is that the soil shall be deeply and thoroughly ploughed and reduced by repeated plowings and harrowings to the finest possible condition of filth—no clods—no stones—no balks. The third is that the soil shall be clean; that there shall be neither weeds nor briars nor wild grasses to run out the cultivated ones. When land so enriched and so prepared there is no earthly reason why grass should not improve from year to year as Mr. Platt says that it does.

"I keep up my meadows," he says, "by returning to them all the hay that was taken from them and by sowing a bushel of plaster per acre each year." That is to say, he feeds off all his hay on the farm, and returns it to the meadows from which it was taken in the shape of manure. This manure he applies annually as a top-dressing. The result is that it produces as much worth in grass as it would have done in grain, and reproduces again in turf. And here follows an important matter. "My turf," he says, "when ready for ploughing under is a solid body of grass roots, twelve inches deep or more, and so thick on top that no soil can be seen."

It is the custom of English landlords in letting their farms on long leases to stipulate that one-third of the land shall be kept in permanent grasses. The consequence is that on soils adapted to grass the sod improves year after year, being thickened annually by the dropping of the under leaves, which thus cover the soil with a mat of dead leaves, keeping it moist in the driest weather, and rich by the gradual decay of the leaves.

We have always urged on large farms, where the soil was suitable, that dairy farming on the lines of railroad, within easy distance of great cities, should be combined with the cultivation of the coarse dietary crops. By this means the hay, straw and fodder is fed on the farm instead of being sold from it, and the manure so produced lands gradually to enrich the soil without having to resort to commercial fertilizers. Where dairy farming cannot be pursued, stock feeding will often be found desirable. We do not mean stock raising; that is a very different matter, but the purchase of a certain number of lean cattle annually and fattening them for market. In this way the value of the hay, straw, fodder, roots and corn is returned to the soil in the form of beef, and there is the extra profit of large quantities of manure besides.

Extravagant as the statement Average Mr. Pratt said that the wheat crop in Pennsylvania, for his section of country was, in his opinion, not more than [illegible] bushels per acre. Corn [illegible] forty bushels per acre. The [illegible] hay [illegible] tons per acre.

[illegible] extensively should adopt [illegible] farms as fast as [illegible] manures as that kind [illegible] and the corn of tobacco, exhaust the soil very rapidly. Nor do they accomplish the merely by what they take from the soil. There is a further exhaustion, constantly going on by the exposure of the soil [illegible] to the bleaching sun and washing rains. Lands laid bare to these influences, even if no crops were taken from them, speedily lose their fertility—much of what is now desert in Egypt was the rich arable soil, and so careful were the ancients of the country that thousands of years ago to keep up this fertility they irrigated the soil by a vast network of canals, and so long as these canals were kept up the land was prosperous and fertile. As they became neglected the land became an arid waste. So also, wherever an attempt is made to [illegible] lands in the desert a grass seeds has speedily sprung up about it. With an nature proceeds to renovate worn out lands in her own slow but certain way.

But [illegible] to cover exhausted fields with grass, [illegible] lands or other small tracts, and as soon as these shade the ground with their foliage the process of exhaustion is stopped and the process of renovation is commenced. As they thicken their foliage attracts moisture, and their annual rainfall becomes heavier, and thus with masses of roots below and a constant accumulation of decaying leaves above, a new soil gradually forms, and from [illegible] to gradually the process of restoration goes on. [illegible]

Is there no lesson to be taught us by this? Do we not know that the natural condition of the soil is to be covered?—This covering is essential to its fertility, for when it is stripped of it we [illegible] ably find barrenness.

It may be urged that our climate will not allow of lands being kept after [illegible] in grass; that drought kills the grasses, and thus frequent [illegible] is necessary. In some soils this is doubtless true; in others it is not. The late Mr. Dearing showed how a lawn could be kept perpetually green—green even in the dry [illegible] "Drench the soil," he said [illegible] very rich, and you need fear no drought." Now this must be done with permanent meadows. They must be ploughed deep and made rich. As soon as the grasses are established they will shade the soil and check evaporation, and with each succeeding year the underlying grasses will be dropping their leaves, and thus furnishing in their own decay fresh food to the roots beneath. Add to this an annual top-dressing of manure equivalent to the constituents drawn from the soil by the crop, and who can doubt the result!

THE DROUGHT IN VIRGINIA.

The telegrams to the Louisville Courier-Journal have the following upon the drought in Virginia:

A letter from Louisa county, Virginia, gives a gloomy account of the effects of the recent drought which still continues. It is believed that the crop of corn this year will average from one-third to one-fourth of the usual quantity made on the land. The land has been so dry that very little if any fallowing has been done. Some farmers will begin to cut tobacco this week. The best judges say that the tobacco crop this year will be of a very inferior quality, and in consequence will be but little more than one-third of what was made last year. Many farmers who planted from 15,000 to 20,000 plants last spring, will not make more than an average of one hundred pounds per acre. A good many negro men near the town of Spottsylvania and Louisa court-house, finding that the farmers can give them no employment, are leaving the country and going to Fredericksburg and Washington. The negroes are beginning to fear that there will not be many work-days next year. Many farmers have failed to employ hands next year, and will not have provisions to [illegible]. A majority of the creek mills [illegible] and Spottsylvania are dried [illegible]

No Amusements.

At present amusement is a desirb in Marietta. Nothing of the kind has been in our midst since the Fair, only a weekly "Hop," which but few religionists could participate in. Couldn't you, dear ladies, give us a Concert or Tableaux to drive this dull monotony to seek other habitation? We dare say its proceeds of which you could charitably use.

The Brass Band.

After many unsuccessful attempts, the young men have finally succeeded in getting a Brass Band.—The instruments arrived on last Monday and are now ready to go through that "blowing" process which culminates into "sweet music." Boys, you will find it takes a quantity of grind, but never mind that, go in we like it better. There is nothing like music, especially when you have "bewitching smiles from fair ones to compensate you for your trouble.

Fifteen Months for $2.

The publishers of the Weekly Argus for Boys and Girls" propose to send their paper to all new subscribers, or to old ones desiring to renew their subscriptions, from the first of October 1869, to the first of January, 1871, for $2. This is a rare chance to procure the best juvenile paper in America at a reduced price. The "Adventures of Big-Foot Wallace" are alone worth double the money. Address J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Ga.

Ills that Flesh is Heir To.

Scrofula or King's Evil, Rheumatism, Neuralgia Swelling of the glands and Joints, Eruptions of the Skin, Secondary Syphilis with all its train of evils, Impure Blood, Female Diseases, Low Spirits, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, &c., fall to the lot of mankind. But happily they have their antidote. Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight possesses the qualities to expel them from the system, restore perfect berlth, and produce happiness where all was misery.

Pretty Women

[illegible] ty as well as the attention of Society. This ought not to be so, but it is; and will be while men are foolish and single out pretty faces for companions.

This can all be changed by using Higgins's Mexnolia Balm, which gives the Bloom of Youth and a refined sparkling Beauty to the complexion, pleasing, powerful and natural.

No lady need complain of a red, tanned, freckled or rustic Complection who will invest seventy five cents in Higgin's Magnolia Balm. Its effects are truly wonderful. To preserve the Hair use Lyon's Kathairon.

A Beautiful Sight.

Tuesday night last we witnessed a beautiful meteor moving through the vast space of the universe with a train of light, in the form of a cross-hair lens. It moved from the North-west portion of the Heavens and directed its course South—east, until it found, apparently, a lodgment among the "fixed stars," where it continued to dazzle with brilliancy its tail of luminous substance, for near five minutes, then it gradually expired into a faint, mellow light, and then ceased to be visible. It created quite a confab, among the few who saw it, in regard to its cause, strangeness and splendor.

We don't Know.

An inquiring friend wishes to know what was done in regard to getting a Fire Engine by the Committee appointed for this purpose? We in answer to our friend, as to what has been done, must say that it is a mystery of which we have no light of in operation to divine a solution. That a Committee was appointed, and $500 appropriated, by the City Council, is an undeniable fact, but like all other enterprises for the public good, in Marietta, inertness for mindedness seems among its professed friends, where it will repose undisturbed until the destructive element of fire again sweeps some of the most valuable buildings of our city into oblivion, then it will be aroused to the necessity to agitate the minds of those damaged, with reguvia of its ephemeral existence.

The Southern Cultivator

For October has reached us. We can do our planting friends no greater service than to call their attention to this agricultural Magazine. It is the leading representative of that revolution in Southern farming, which has been inaugurated since the war, with such happy results. Its original, though progressive, are evidently cautious men, attaching great weight to experience, as is shown by the large number of articles in every issue, written by practical farmers, and all of Southern Soiled. Reverse of dull, fallacious is unrivalled. We notice that the publishers are going to furnish to new subscribers, the letters of the present year, and the whole volume for 1870 evidence and practice. These alone are worth 20 years subscription. If you have never seen the paper, send a stamp to Southern Cultivator, Atlanta, Ga., for a specimen copy, and examine it for yourself. Price $2.00 a year.

The First Ride

We think if any one man deserves that title it does belong to T. E. C. Brinly, of Louisville, Ky. He has given many years of study and study to perfecting a series of Plows adapted to all sorts of work. Among his latest improvements is his One Horse Universal Steel Plow with moveable points. This Plow like Mr. Brinly himself is stout, strong and well made—and like all his plows will do, we have no doubt, all that can be expected of a good plow. Put in the right team and a good workman at the handles and the result will surely tell on the crops.

Wm. Root & Sons have the Brinly Plows for sale and we advise our Farmers who want to have good plowing done to go and buy Brinly's Plow.

Difficult to do.

With some people who are considered "ready writers," it is not difficult with their pen to produce reams out of the web of day a most interesting article to satiate the avidity of constant readers; but with us it is difficult to do. Local paludum at this time, in lieu of the thoughtful, as to occupy time and talent of many "ready writers," who have brought various viands for literary consumption.—Our community being a peaceful law-abiding one, we do not have the chance of recording how "A Horrible Outrage," "A Dastardly Murder," "A Vicious of Mis-placed Confidence," (as many married men are,) and all such items as some of our exchanges contain. We, in our perambulations in search of news, consequently, are unsuccessful. Occasionally we get a glimpse of gay and beautiful ladies as they modestly disappear behind the silken folds of window curtains; or behold lovers bathing their eyes in mutual contact and talk soft nothings and breathe the spell of cluster's rich perfume; or see the glittering plaston of the opulent pass, then the yeoman's son or male team; or hear the sad soliloquy of departed "good times," from some pennyless freedman; or the merchant speaking of the immense profits to be realized from a certain business transaction; or next we hear truthfully uttered the advantages Marietta has as an educational centre; or some unemployed in a plaintive tone ask for work; or why our men of business do not display more enterprise in the prosperity of our city; and more important still, why is it, all do not advertise in their only local paper?

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible internal disorders with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, colds and fevers, ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge. Its curative properties are wonderful, as the daily death list of Cholera, etc. Every family should have a bottle of it in the house, there is no telling when fever and ague, or the more dreaded cholera, making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

INTERMITTENT FEVER.

Ague and Fever is a disease of very common occurance in the Southern and Southwestern States, especially in low marshy situations.

Each paroxysm USE of an Intermittent Fever is divided into three different stages, which are called the cold, the hot, and the sweating stages, or fits.

The continuance of the cold stage, is extremely various, from a few minutes to several hours when the second or hot stage comes on, and the whole surface breaks out on the forehead, and by degrees becomes a sweat, which finally extends over the whole surface of the body. These paroxysms usually come on with great regularity, leaving the patient weak and feeble. Many doctrines [illegible] and modifications of symptoms, that prevail in intermittents evincing that the disease is of a very malignant form, such as long and cold or paroxysms attended with delirium, vertigo or dizziness, and when to these are added the symptoms of Diarrhœa, or of cholera morbus, the case may be considered of the worst character. If neglected, Ague frequently gives rise to other chronic complaints particularly dropsical swellings, and enlargements of the liver or spleen, termed Ague Cakes; which cause much misery, misery suffering, and often in the end, prove fatal. The secret of the success of the Ague Cure of the intermittents [illegible] EUREKA [illegible] can be entirely eradicated from the system, the less the danger from the above complaints, and these are only a few of the many that might be mentioned brought on by this disease. To do this in the shortest, safest, and most permanent manner, the Eureka Ague Specific is now in use in the [illegible] of the United States, and in all this country and elsewhere who have tried its virtues, a cure is the result in every instance. Many have used it as a preventive of the chills when exposed to miasmatic atmosphere and thereby escaped its effects.

The price of this medicine places it within the reach of every one. It is put up in fifty cents and one dollar bottles, with full and explicit directions for using and testimonials of its virtues. SPECIFICS will be forwarded to any address upon receipt of price, to any part of the United States. I also have confidential Circulars for Husbands, who have delicate wives, containing much valuable information, and which will be mailed to any address upon the receipt of a three cent postage stamp.

Dr. R. H. McCutcheon, Dear Sir: I have been in the practice of medicine for the last [illegible] years, and have used a great many remedies for the cure of Ague and Fever, but have never found any one that would cure as certain and as speedily as your Eureka Ague Specific, which I have used in my practice for the last [illegible] years, and I recommend it as a safe and speedy remedy for Ague and Fever. I have used it in my own family for the last [illegible] months, and have found it to be a good medicine. I have also had the Liver and Ague, and it has never failed to cure [illegible] without an exception.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as to absences and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

WILLOW. WALKER COUNTY GA., June 29, 1868.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given [illegible] wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the ablest authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D's. but I see no just cause or good sense in discarding a remedy which is known to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to command—and desiring further information on more ingredients than myself may have [illegible] reflects first, and secured that knowledge. [illegible] no remains an advocate or support of worthless nostrums that deal [illegible] support to cure all manner of diseases. [illegible] flesh is heir. BENTON BARRACKS, Co., April 20, 1865.

Dr. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken [illegible] moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

CAPT. C. P. JOHNSON.

St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jessie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It CURED HIM. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and genital debility. Reopens has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,

JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER

OR

CHILLS AND FEVER

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if the use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, the disease will not require any aid to keep the intermittent off, but it should be patient however, prepare a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a dose or two of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

[FOR THE MARIETTA JOURNAL.

MR. R. M. GOODMAN, Editor of Journal:—The political whirlwinds and revolutions which have swept over our country have in a manner subsided.—The pleasant breezes of social and domestic peace now play in soft zephyrs around the "vine and fig tree" where once were enjoyed, by an unbroken circle, and comforts of a plenteous and beauteous home. Their pinions are laden with sweet memories, which lull to mental reverie and repose—with dreams, hopefully, of a return of those halcyon days, but stern reality awakes to a realization of the fact that "times have changed," and the the present calls for policies to correspond.

A new era has evidently dawned upon the farmers of our Southern Country, and one which calls for changes to meet the new aspect of the times. Feeling this we have followed the example of sister sections and formed a farmer's club, the Constitution and By-Laws of which we send begging that you give it publicity—in the hope that it will have some influence, for good, in this vital and essential direction.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS OF THE POWDER SPRINGS AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

ARTICLE I. This Association shall be known as Powder Springs Agricultural Society of Cobb County, Georgia.

ART. II. The object of this Society shall be the mental improvement of its members in agriculture, stock raising and the advancement of the arts and sciences connected therewith; and for any and all improvements which will benefit the Society: as well as contribute to the public good, in method of labor, plan of culture, application of fertilizers, &c.

Art. III. The officers of this Society shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Art. IV. The Officers of this Society shall be chosen annually, on the first Saturday evening in October, by ballot, and shall hold their offices until their successors are elected.

Art. V. This Society shall be composed of such members as shall have their names subscribd to the Constitution and By-Laws and shall pay one dollar as initiation fee.

Art. VI. Premiums shall be awarded by the Society to the member who is most proficient in attaining any one of the objects of the Society.

Art. VII. Each member and officer shall pay annually, the sum of one dollar as dues to defray expenses &c., such fund only to be used by order of the society, signed by the Secretary, and countersigned by the President.

Art. VIII. This Constitution may be altered or amended at any regular meeting by consent of two thirds of the members of the society; due notice of the proposed amendment having been given at the preceding regular meeting.

BY-LAWS.

I. No person will be admitted to membership in this society, unless said person be engaged in some honorable employment for a subsistence.

II. Accepting or rejecting candidates for membership or expelling members, shall be decreed by a majority vote of the members present.

Yet any member has the right to appeal from such decisions to the society. He shall reprimand any member or other persons who shall be guilty of indecorum or disorderly conduct during the proceedings of the society; a repetition of the offence may be punished by fine or expulsion, at the discretion of a majority of the members present.

IV. The Vice-President shall preside in absence of the President.

V. The Secretary shall keep a regular minute of the proceedings of the society, necessary to be written.

VI. The Treasurer shall keep a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all money received by him; and shall make an exhibit of the same, to proper committees, when called upon.

X. These By-Laws shall only be changed by a majority vote of the society.

Last but not least, we do most earnestly covenent and resolve: That whenever a member shall loose a horse or mule or any other stock by theft: that it shall be his duty or rather privilege to inform immediately some member of the society of the fact; and whenever so informed, it shall be the indispensable duty of each and every member forthwith to go in search, and to search diligently, for the missing property and the thief, and if found, bring the rogue or rogues to speedy justice, having an eye to the good of our community and the honor of our country.

LETTER FROM GENERAL LEE.

LEXINGTON, VA., Sept. 13, '69.

Dear Sir: I have had the honor to receive your invitation to attend as an honorary member of the Commercial Convention to assemble at Louisville on the 12th., of October next. The important measures proposed to be considered by the Convention will attract the earnest attention of the whole country, and, I feel assured, will receive the calm deliberation which so momentous a subject as the advancement of the interests of all the States, and the development of the wealth and resources of each, require from American citizens. If we turn to the past history of the country and compare our material condition with that of our forefathers when they undertook, in the face of difficulties which surrounded them, its organization and establishment, it would seem to be an easy task for us to revive what may be depressed, and to encourage what may be languishing, in all the walks of life. We shall find it easy if we will cherish the same principles and practice the same virtues which governed them. Every man, however, must do his part in the great work. He must carry into the administration of his affairs industry, fidelity, and economy, and apply the knowledge taught by science to the promotion of agriculture, manufactures, and all industrial pursuits. As individuals prosper communities will become rich, and the avenues and depots required by trade and commerce will be readily constructed. In my particular sphere I have to attend to my proper business, which occupies so much of my attention that I have but little time to devote to other things. I am unable, therefore, to accept your kind invitation, but am happy in the belief that the enlightened delegates that will be present at the Convention will do all that can be done for the good of the country.

Thanking you for the kind manner in which your invitation has been extended, I am, with great respect,

Your obedient servant,
R. E. LEE.

Colonel Blanton Duncan, Chairman Committee of arrangements.

Aim at perfection in everything, and although good aims do not always produce perfect results, yet those who strive for the BEST, and persevere, will come much nearer to it than the one whose laziness and despondency makes him give it up as unattainable. Be not overcome by small failures, but redouble your efforts and renew your determination to succeed.

A young lady explained to a relative the other day, the distinction between printing and publishing, and on the conclusion of her remarks, by way of illustration, she said: "You may publish kiss on my cheek but you must not print it."

Beautifully Shorter.

The days are growing decidedly shorter. Those having noted fallibig due, find them uncomfortably so. In order to be even, let the notes grow shorter.

Living Institutions of the Age.

The dogs of Marietta are among the living institutions of the age—they live a happier, and by odds, a much more independent life than any of their watchful masters, save old bachelor friends.

The Popular Ben.

The most popular fact about town is BEN ZEIS—he is a genuine sire of OLD BLENDUM. One reason Ben is so popular is, he is always "smiling." It would be well to remember, that one may smile and smile and be a villian.

The Atlanta Constitution.

This excellent journal come to us handsomely enlarged and benefitted. We are glad to see the prosperity of the Constitution, and with Colonel AVERY and WHEBBY success, more than they have yet met with.

Mr. Hirsch

Does not exagerate in his advertisement in regard to the quantity, quality or prices of his goods.—He is up to progress in his line and it is a pleasure to look over his extensive and varied stock and especially so if you are desirous of renewing the outfit.

A Valuable Hint.

Persons who desire to do well and appear well in the world, should at all times be seen in good spirits and in good dress. To insure the former, take proper exercise in the fresh air, and to secure the latter, call around at EGAN' cheap store and purchase some of the best of his new goods.

Brinly's Universal.

We tender our acknowledgments to Mr. T. E. C. BRINLY for a present of one of his excellent Steel Plows. We can add little to the reputation of these implements, as, wherever known or used they have given the most complete satisfaction. The Messrs. ROOT are the Agents in Marietta.

Mothers be Advised.

Always keep a bottle of Dr. Tutt's Celebrated Expectorant in the house. It is a certain and pleasant cure for Croup, Coughs, Colds, &c. It is agreeable to the taste, and children take it readily. Go buyone Druggist and get it at once, it may save the life of your little one.

Hitchcock's New Monthly Magazine

This is a superb Musical Monthly, beautifully printed and illustrated, and filled with choice Music, Art, Notes and select reading for the Family Circle. Its musical taste has won the highest encomiums of the Press. Published by Benj. W. Hitchcock, 21 Jackson St., New York.

He Forsakes the List.

It will be seen by the following, that our young friend, HENRY B. BOSTWICK, formerly of this place but now of Wesson, Miss., is soon in the enjoyment of that happiness which alone survived the fall:

MARRIED—At the residence of Col. JAMES M. WESSON, in Wesson, Miss., September 27th, 1869, Mr. H. B. BOSTWICK to Miss KATE WESSON.

The Rural Carolinian.

The first number of which is before us is one of the neatest Magazines ever published in the South and presents evidences of thorough ability and excellent taste in all the departments to which its pages are devoted. These comprise Agriculture, Horticulture, the Mechanic Arts, Domestic Economy and the Intellectual, Moral and Social Improvement of the people of the South. Our Farmers will be pleased with the work. Price $2 per annum. Address Walker, Evans & Cogswell, Charleston, S. C.

Be Beautiful.

If you would have a beautiful complexion, use Hagan's Magnolia Balm. It gives a soft, refined, satin-like lustre to the complexion, removes Roughness, Redness, Blotches, Sunburn, Tan, &c., and adds a unique and Pearly Bloom to the plainest features. It seems the very Bloom of Youth to the fading cheek and changes the rustic Country Girl into a Fashionable City Belle.

In the use of the Magnolia Balm lies the true secret of Beauty. No lady need complain of her Complexion who will invest 75 cents in this delightful article.

Public Debate.

The question "Should the Sale of Ardent Spirits be Prohibited by Law?" will be debated in public at NICHOLS' HALL, Friday night, October 15th.—The following are the speakers:

Affirmative—FRANK C. SHEPARD and JESSE N. HARDAGE.

Negative—H. D. MCCUTCHEON and JOSEPH ELSAS.

Other names may be added as the day approaches. An address will also be delivered by a prominent gentleman. The public are invited and respectfully urged to attend.

African Wit.

We had related to us by one of our truthful citizens a conversation that occurred a few days ago between two city darkies. No doubt their wits were considerably "greased" and sharpened:

JOHN.—Say, Sam, I need de biggest, fattest hog to-day ever was.

SAM.—What?

JOHN.—De de country ob hogs.

SAM.—How fat was he?

JOHN.—So fat he couldn't make a shadow.

SAM.—Look here, nigger, hush dat foolishness. You know dat am not de truf.

JOHN.—It am as I tells you—he couldn't make a shadow.

SAM.—How was it den, he no make a shadow?

A Bad Move.

We learn that many of the good citizens of Cherokee county are making preparations, as soon as their corn is gathered, to migrate to Arkansas, the land of Eden. And, again, where they propose to get rich under negro radical rule. We learn there will be a train of some ninety wagons. Almost as many as Bragg's army had. This is a bad move, and one to be regretted, and we hope that they will deliberately consider the many disadvantages of leaving the rich, fertile lands of good old Cherokee and stay at home, and let the sentiment of Georgia's illustrious son, Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, be the loud cry, rolling passion of their hearts. The cause of Georgia is the cause of us all—and with such a spirit, and will to do, we will soon be the happiest and most prosperous people in the world.

Cobb Superior Court.

Court opened on Monday last with Judge N. R. Knight, presiding. No important cases have been tried that would be of interest to the public to notice. Those in attendance at the Bar are Gartrell & Winn, Lester & Thomson, W. D. Anderson, A. N. Simpson, N. R. Green, Wm. T. Winn, C. D. Phillips, Hon. David Irwin, of Marietta, E. L. Littlefield, Acworth, John M. Edge, Campbell County.

Our genial business friend, R. M. Hammett, Clerk of the Court, was punctual, obliging and courteous in the discharge of the weighty duties of his office, as were also Sheriff Baldwin and Perry.

The following gentlemen compose the Grand Jury:

J. B. Blackwell, Foreman, J. B. Reid, W. R. Montgomery, W. A. Austin, H. B. McConnell, D. S. Blackwell, J. L. Dodgen, D. N. McEachern, T. J. Perkerson, N. G. Gignilliat, W. C. Strickland, J. W. Bozeman, Thomas Manning, T. J. Atkinson, G. M. Daniell, J. S. Kemp, B. Kemp, H. J. Hopkins, J. Williams, W. W. Simpson, W. M. Dobbs and B. Lowrey.

The Marietta Brass Band.

Our gallant band of musical gents, have procured the services of Prof. CLARK, of Atlanta, to instruct them in the rudiments of music. He gave the first lesson last Tuesday night. We are glad Prof. Clark has been engaged, for if the young men will but give that application that is necessary, we are confident that he will make it a success. His musical talent is such, that he is devoting his entire time to the dissemination of the science, giving universal satisfaction. The community should be pleased in the effort the young men are now making in cultivating the science of music, that tends to elevate the moral standard of society. Music charms the very soul and makes finer the rougher nature of man, and sweets acceptably in the hearts of the most savage of men, a responsive vibration, awakening better feelings, that accords with Christianity, and really fills one with emotions of unspeakable joy.

Those composing the membership of the Band are A. W. York, A. T. Coryell, T. L. Hunt, J. E. Page, J. P. Leake, W. M. Mansfield, W. M. Simpson, W. G. Gable, J. J. Brown, A. B. Gilbert and J. B. Campbell.

Filibustering Rampant.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Herald's Key West special says a Cuban expedition four hundred strong, commanded by Gen. Cristo, escaped from N. Y. harbor on Monday, and reached the Florida coast where she was joined by the Cuban privateers Sicilian and Tenasr, with sixteen hundred men under Gen. Gozzo. The Sicilian fleet is freighted with 10,000 rifles, 5,000 sabres and twenty guns, ranging from six to twenty four pounders. Another body of men and a Steadman and Magruder is about embarking from a gulf port for the eastern coast of the Cuban coast. The Sicilian will soon be at that point, and the Cuban patriots will then privateers Hornet and Cuba, carrying each fifteen guns, some of which are hundred pounders.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—Another political row occurred last night, and eleven persons are known to be seriously wounded—viz: three Democrats, four Republicans, and three citizens acting as policemen. The Democrats drove the Republicans from their headquarters and destroyed their transparencies.

ZANESVILLE, OHIO, Feb. 20th '69.

Messrs. J. N. HARRIS & CO.,

I believe it is the best preparation extant, for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and I feel it my duty to say the same to any one I can, so that others may try it and get relief.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Dyspepsia's Pyrafuge. Its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose the health of the system is felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the horrid effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House, Savannah, Georgia.

INTERMITTENT FEVER.

Ague and Fever is a disease of very common occurance in the Southern and Southwestern States, especially in low marshy situations.

Each paroxysm of Ague and Fever is divided into three different stages, which are called, the cold, the hot, and the sweating stages, or fits.

The first stage or fit of the cold stage, is extremely various, from a few minutes to several hours when the second or hot stage comes on, after which a muscifuge breaks out on the forehead, and by degrees becomes a sweat, which finally extends over the whole surface of the body. These paroxysms usually come on with great regularity, leaving the patient weak and feeble. Many deviations however from the ordinary course of intermittents often occur. The most common symptoms of these are added the presence of dysentery, or of mucous motions, the case may be considered of the worst character. If neglected, Agues frequently give rise to other chronic complaints particularly dropsical swellings, and enlargements of the liver or spleen, termed Ague Cakes, which cause much misery and death, and often in the end, prove fatal.

M'CUTCHEON'S EUREKA

the most effectual remedy ever discovered for the entire eradication of Ague and Fever, from the system, is entirely eradicated from the system, the less the danger from the above complaints, and there can be a few of the many that might be mentioned but I will not by this disease. To do this in the shortest time and most permanent manner the Eureka Ague Specific has no equal in the history of Medicine. A trial is all that is necessary to convince the most skeptical of the superiority of this Medicine over all others.

AGUE

I have many friends in all parts of the country, from well known and respectable citizens of this County and elsewhere who have tried the Eureka, and are willing to certify to its merits. Many have used it as a preventive of the chills when exposed to miasmatic atmospheres and thereby escaped the effects.

SPECIFIC

The price of this medicine places it within the reach of every one. It is put up in fifty cents and one dollar bottles, with full and explicit directions for using and will be forwarded to any address upon receipt of price, to any part of the United States. I also have confidential Circulars for Females in which are many valuable receipts, containing much valuable information, and which will be mailed to any address upon the receipt of a three cent postage stamp.

READ THE CERTIFICATES:

JEFFERSONVILLE INDIANA, }
August 31st 1869. }

Dr. R. H. McCutcheon. Dear Sir:—The two bottles of Eureka Ague Specific which you sent me in June, has completely cured my wife of the fever and Ague with which she had been suffering for a long time and now is natural to their country. I can recommend it for the married contains much valuable information, and is just the thing that it is represented to be.

Respectfully,
ANDREW W. GRAY.

MARIETTA, GA., Sept. 9 '69.

Dr. R. H. McCutcheon. Dear Sir:—I take great pleasure in certifying to the efficiency of your Fever and Ague Medicine the Eureka Ague Specific. After suffering over twelve months with the chills, and trying a great many different medicines in vain, I was induced to purchase a bottle for chills and fever. I commenced using it, and effected a permanent cure. I have since recommended it to my neighbors who had the Fever and Ague, all of whom have been cured by it without an exception.

Respectfully,
BUTTFORD OSBEEN.

NEAR MARIETTA, Aug. 5th 1869.

Dr. R. H. McCutcheon and the battle of your Eureka Ague Specific cured me of a very obstinate case of Chills and Fever. I recommend it to the best of my knowledge.

THE LAW OF WORK AND PLAY.

People are in the habit of expending a vast amount of sympathy for the overtasked children of toil, the dradges on a tropical plantation the weavers in fac-

[illegible] who grade railroads across continents. But these are not the hardest workers in the world. Brain has to pioneer for muscle in every department of industry.—Whitney had to lie awake nights studying out the construction of the cotton gin, before a million tawny hands could separate the seed from the fibre.—Ericeson had to torture his brain to invent the monitors, before a thousand men, obeying his grand thought, went to the furnace and the forge. Watt, and Fulton, and Stephenson had to work out the deep problems of mechanical force, before the legions of common men could plow oceans and penetrate continents with steam travel. So, in all the vast history of industrial life by whose process civilization has been carried forward the thinkers have been the chief, and likewise the most unrecognized martyrs. In the case of multitudes of these, neither inward zeal, nor the demands of the world, would allow the requisite measure of repose and recreation. But if any man has a right to [illegible] and twelve hours sleep out of twenty-four, it is the man who drafts the patterns by which other men work. Blind Tom plays the symphonies of Beethoven, and grows fat like any other animal who has plenty to eat, and lives wholly in the realm of instinct. But a great brain had to make wearisome pilgrimages into the labyrinths of harmony in order to the mechanical movements of those black fingers. And the world [illegible] found in a nervous and petulant hypochrondriac, considering what a wonderful work he achieved in the domain of creative art.

We have heard of the famous drives of a certain great railroad king after his fast trotters, and the daily game of whist with which he forgets the vexatious cares of the counting room. Surely if any man in America requires such sort of safety valves, he does. Had he not had them, doubtless he would have been in his grave, or maybe in an insane asylum, a score of years ago. It would be both interesting and suggestive to look over the history of literature, and catalogue the toys of great students, the fiddle of Martin Luther, the fishing rods of Walton and Paley, the dog and gun of Wilson, the saddle horse and tent of Scott, the tame hares of Cowper, the sail-boat of Keats and Byron, the fancy farm of Webster, for even these sober and practical institutions must be considered play things for the men who used them, and the purposes for which they were used.

The fundamental truth is, that work and not play is the grand business of life. And, moreover, the quality and quantity of his work shall prescribe the measure of his recreative privileges.—It is a grave error which people indulge, that money gives one an immunity from toil, and a permission of habitual lounging. Recreation is, in fact, an impossibility to a man who never puts faculty on the stretch for any great purpose of personal culture and the advancement of the world. What implement of honest work has that man re-created who never does anything but dose and play from one year's end to another? What right has a man to fish for trout, who has never fished for souls? What right has a man to go to Chammounix or the Rhine, who never has grown weary for just once, in some noble errand for the world's good? Consider, likewise, as I have suggested, the quality of a man's work, as bearing upon the measure of recreative privilege. A man who retails dry goods or groceries, who makes entries in the day-book, who engages in mechanical labor, can, with average health, work his eight hours a day, without personal damage, for three hundred days in the year. But compel him to the task of original composition by such a scale of duty, and unless he is a wholly exceptional instance of endurance, you will break him down in less than six months. So with any other branch of industry, which imposes tasks specially upon nervous force through the great centre and source thereof.—J. L. Corning, in The Journal of Health.

ROME.—The City Council of Rome has passed the following resolution:

Resolved, further, That all capital and machinery employed in the manufacture of cotton and woolen goods, or agricultural implements, in the limits of the city, shall be free from city taxation for the period of ten years from the 1st of January next; provided the same shall be so employed within the space of two years from this date.

RECONSTRUCTION OF VIRGINIA.

The President Desires that the State be Restored to the Union—the Duplicity of Andy. Johnson.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30, '69.—In conversation with Lieutenant Governor Lewis, of Virginia, who recently visited Washington, President Grant said:

"There will be no difficulty about the admission of Virginia after the meeting of Congress, and all that is required is that they act as though they (the Legislature) were acting in good faith and de-[illegible] general government." He spoke at some length about President Johnson's duplicity towards the South, and said that his (Grant's) whole action had been with the single idea of restoring peace. He was confident that Virginia reconstruction would not be further retarded. Senator Wilson, of Massachusetts, who was present at the interview, expressed himself decidedly in favor of the immediate admission of the State under the reconstruction laws, and said that no further obstacle should be offered by Congress; that they were tired of the long delay and hoped for a speedy restoration, and that he would cheerfully advocate the removal of the disabilities of every one who should express himself willing to return to the old government in good faith, but cautioned against the adoption of the ideas of the old political hacks and stagers, who were counselling acceptance of admission only upon the grounds of their qualifications to office. The President had been frequently solicited to express his preference for the gentleman [illegible] U. S. Senators, but declined offering any expression out to either gentleman proposed, but said that it would be required that Virginia Senators should take the iron-clad oath.

THE CHOSEN CANDIDATE FOR THE SPANISH THRONE.

At last the Ministerial Council at Madrid have agreed upon a candidate for [illegible] of Spain, and have nominated the young Duke of Genoa as their choice. Don Ferdinand, of Portugal, having declined because he preferred the comfort and ease of private life; the King of Portugal having refused because he is resolved to live and die a Portuguese; the Duke of Edinburgh (Prince Alfred of England) having said, "Thank you. No, I prefer the quarter deck of the Galatea to the Escurial," and Prince Napoleon having begged to be excused, because his eyes are fixed on another and larger throne nearer home—the Spanish Council have been fortunate in their choice. The Duke of Genoa comes of an old stock. He is not a Bourbon of any branch of that unhappy house. He is a mere boy, so that Serrano and Prim will be the real monarchs for years to come, and his uncle, the King of Italy, has very pronounced opinions in favor of constitutional government.

The Duke of Genoa is the eldest son of a younger brother of Victor Emanuel, and is about sixteen or seventeen years of age. The only remaining question is, will the Spanish people sustain the Ministers' nomination?

THE CHINESE.

A writer in the N. Y. Sun, who knows the Chinese well, thus daguerreotypes them.

"I have lived nearly two decades in California, and know of the people of whom I write. They are barbarous, cruel, thievish, unreliable, and wedded to nameless practices that to mention is sufficient to make the flesh creep. Their morality is nothing, unless you can call abominable vices negatively so. Every hen roost and clothes line in California has to be guarded against their depredations. They systematically coin and issue counterfeit money—a business at which they are quite adepts. The few women that leave China are bought and sold as so many sheep in the shambles. Every China woman in California is a prostitute, and they spread among the young people where they reside every form of vice, and besides, maladies of the most horrible character."

These would be desirable acquisitions indeed!

A young lady contemplating matrimony was one morning handed a testament by her father, with the leaf turned down at the following passage: "He who giveth in marriage doeth well, but he who giveth not in marriage doeth better." She immediately returned it with the following reply written underneath: "Dear father, I am content to do well; let these do better who can."

The young men who went serenading with match-boxes, tamborine and quills, a few nights since, will no doubt oblige the young ladies by repeating it.

An Iowa editor solemnly vows that he will not support a man for Representative who is a whiskey barrel in the morning and a barrel of whiskey at night.

Listing.

Our friends of the Atlanta Constitution, in connection with our present of a Brinly Plow, invokes for us "the cultivation of a good list."

Our list is already long and constantly lengthening; but, while life lasts we hope never to throw it up. Brinly's Plow is an admirable implement; but listing—we beg our friends of the Constitution "to list, oh list!"—when we get ready to rehearse our experience with the plow, and "we will a tale unfold" that will make them think that listing generally is not specially.

Be Beautiful.

If you desire beauty you should use Hagan's Magnolia Balm. It gives a soft, refined satin-like texture to the complexion, removes Roughness, Redness, Blotches, Sunburn, Tan, &c., and adds a tinge of Pearly Bloom to the plainest features. It brings the Bloom of Youth to the fading cheek and changes the rustic Country Girl into a Fashionable City Belle.

In the use of the Magnolia Balm lies the true secret of Beauty. No lady need complain of her Complexion who will invest 75 cents in this delightful article.

Public Debate to Night.

The Public Debate, which comes off this evening at 7 o'clock, at NICHOLS' HALL, promises, from the interest manifested, to be largely attended, and we see no reason why it should not be. It is a subject that every Divine and every intelligent gentleman and lady in Marietta could well hear discussed, especially so, when it is to be debated by young men. The question is: "SHOULD THE SALE OF ARDENT SPIRITS BE PROHIBITED BY LAW?" We importunately and deferentially ask, in behalf and with encouragement to the speakers, that a due appreciation be given by an unusual large attendance.—Ladies will find that good order will be maintained, and the occasion one in which they can wield a potent influence for good. Come out and hear the boys!

Our Literature.

If our people knew the many good things every month published in the "XIX CENTURY"; if they fully appreciated the fact that this Southern Magazine with Ex-Gov. Perry, Wm. Gilmore Simms, Rev. Dr. Hicks and others, for contributors, is equal to the best of Northern Monthlies, if they realized that it is in itself a "circulating library" of choice literature, cheap at $3.50 a year, they would like ourselves welcome it to their homes and firesides. The Oct. No. is before us, full as usual of entertainment. Miss Annie M. Barnwell furnishes "The Bandits of the Hartz Mountains," a thrilling legend; Dr Simms, continues his Reminiscences of Southern authors; "Personne" gives us another chapter from "The early scenes of the war"; Rev John Bachman D. D. furnishes an interesting personal sketch of Humboldt, and in the "Political Crisis," which is evidently from the pen of a statesman is suggested the remedy for the present misfortunes of the South. There are many choice articles in prose and poetry besides, attractive to both young and old. The "XIX Century" may be had at the store of R. T. Brumby & Sons.

"King Hans."

"He who dared these affections misplace,
Must now meet the 'dam-sel' face to face."

This genius and captivator of woman's affections, has at last found himself surrounded with inextricable trouble, and in bitter grief is shedding tears from both eyes, as the consequence of an untimely expose by a correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution, of his "love-making" to one of Marietta's daughters.—He wrote to that paper wishing the package suppressed conveying the intelligence to his "wife and six children," who are now in Constantinople.

Now, "Hans," you can't get out of this little domestic infelicity so easy. You need not say that you did not "make-love" as alleged; for the young lady avers that you did, and vowed true constancy by the silver light of the moon and spake of the beauty of the stars in comparison with her two brilliant orbs. She is out in search of you, and you can't evade meeting this little "dam-sel" "face to face." She don't believe a word about your "wife and six." Your juvenility will not admit of so numerous a progeny. And we warn you in time, if you don't redeem the broken vow by making her your assistant Editor-rest, the slumbering volcano of her righteous indignation will burst forth and consume you before you can escape to the city of Constanti-looping. She is determined her feelings shall not be trifled with, by no Dutchman of a "Hans" if he is a "King," with impunity.—

GENERAL PRESENTMENTS OF THE GRAND JURY OF COBB COUNTY, OCTOBER TERM, 1869.

We the Grand Jurors selected and sworn for the October Term of Cobb Superior Court beg leave to make the following presentments:

We congratulate our countrymen upon the moral condition of our Country, more especially that of our county as there is not a homicide to stain the record of our Court. And upon the interest manifested in the great cause of Education, Agriculture, and the development of the mineral interests of the County.

After a careful examination of the Office books of the Clerk of the Superior Court, we find them neatly and correctly kept, so much so as to reflect great credit upon the Clerk for his efficiency.

We also find the books of the Ordinary well kept, and entirely satisfactory.

We also find the Sheriff's Books well kept and in good condition, exhibiting the untiring energy with which the present incumbent discharges his duty.

We also find the books of the County Treasurer, very satisfactory, showing a disbursement of Six Thousand, three hundred and seventy-nine dollars, and sixteen cents, ($6379,16), for which he holds vouchers, leaving a balance on hand of Two Hundred, sixty-eight dollars, and sixteen cents, ($268,16.)

We also carefully examined the Tax Collectors book, and find them very well kept, showing a complete balance sheet thereof, which should be very cordially received by the Tax payers.

Upon examination of the public buildings we find them very sorry—as the new Court House is not at all suitable for the purpose for which it was intended, neither can it be made so, nothing remains of the former Court House but ruins. And we have not been able to find out what has been done with the brick, rock, and iron, except a portion which is accounted for on the Ordinary's books of 1866, amounting to ($42.80) Forty-two dollars and eighty cents.

And we request that the Ordinary look after and see what has become of the brick and other material of the old Court House.

The public roads of the county as a general thing, are in much better condition than formerly, except the old Roswell road from Marietta camp ground to Roswell, the bridge over this road, being almost unpassable; also the road from Acworth to Cherokee line. And the road commencing at the Lowe house, on the Marietta and Atlanta road, leading by Dodgen's mill, to Cox's Court ground, is in bad order.—Also in Oregon District three bridges, which are in bad condition and unsafe.

We earnestly recommend that mile posts and sign boards be put on all the public roads in the county. We also recommend the present Commissioners of the Poor House Farm to act in concert with the Ordinary and take immediate steps to further the object for which it was designed by building a few small houses, and opening the same for the reception of our poor.

We also have had under special consideration the and under the direction, and superintendance of our enterprising fellow-citizen the Rev. Wm. L. Mansfield, in Marietta.

The history of the rise and progress of this Institution is too well known to this community, for us to do more than refer to it; from our own personal knowledge, and the information obtained from others of moral, intellectual and religious, as well as literary training inculcated in this Institution and of the numbers of children of the destitute who have been brought into its genial influence and taught the ordinary branches of education we feel free to say that among the many new inventions and projects which have sprung up out of the ruins and desolation of the late war, this is the most worthy of our notice and commendation and the more especially so, when it was conceived, inaugurated, and reduced to its present system and order by the indomitable energy and perseverance of one of our own fellow-citizens.

It meets our most hearty approval, and judging from the past, we are led to believe that it will be, and is now a fixture, and not an experiment, but a fixed fact.

But its progress would be greatly accelerated if it were provided with the necessary grounds, rooms, and comforts for imparting instruction.

To aid therefore in giving permanency and efficiency to the Institution, and comfort to the pupils, we would most earnestly recommend that the Female Academy house and lot be converted to the use of this Institution.

This property is a private corporation created for educational purposes, but for many years past the essential objects of its creation have failed to be carried out. The only vitality remaining is in the board of Trustees and they are not active, but mere nominal Trustees, using none of the authorities granted them by law, which were to elect their teachers, fix their salaries, terms of Office, prescribe the course of studies, manage the finances, adopt rules, &c. This authority has not been exercised by said board for many years back, and the object of the law, thereby being defeated, and the property permitted to be occupied by casual teachers, independent of the contract of the Trustees.

To aid therefore in giving permanency to this school, we recommend that the Ordinary of this County do immediately pass an order, directing and authorizing the Trustees, (if there is a quorum, if not, the Ordinary himself,) to lease to the said Wm. L. Mansfield and his successors, the said Female Academy lots and its appurtenances, for the purpose of teaching a free white school of boys and girls as it is now organized. The terms specified to continue so long as the Institution shall be kept up. Granting to the said lessees a full and unlimited privilege to improve the premises by the erection of such additional buildings and improvements as they may deem necessary for the purposes aforesaid—That the Ordinary so provide in said lease that should any unforeseen event take place as to cause said Institution to be ousted from possession of said premises, that said Mansfield and successors shall be entitled to the improvements put thereon by them.

In taking leave of His Honor Judge Knight, we cordially tender him our sincere congratulations upon the faithful and impartial manner in which he presides over his Court. We also tender our thanks to our efficient Solicitor General S. C. Johnson, for his prompt attention to this body and especially for the laudable anxiety manifested in the morality of our county.

We recommend that these presentments be published in the MARIETTA JOURNAL.

Do you shake? Use King of Chills.
King of Chills never fails to cure.
King of Chills is the malarol antidote.

To Be or Not to Be?

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with these terrible malarious diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed and have a remedy that will permanently expel, chill fever, chills and fever dumb ague, etc., from our systems? or shall we linger on, shake and burn at intervals, without any hope of relief? We say no no! A remedy is at last found that will not only break up, but permanently cure this scourge of our southern and western communities. That medicine is Lippman's Pyrafuge, its curative properties are wonderful; from the first dose its healthful effects are felt. Every family should be prepared for these unwelcome visitors and have a bottle of Pyrafuge in the house, thereby preventing chills and fever and other malarious diseases from making inroads on the cheeks of the dear ones, where otherwise health, bloom and vivacity would and should appear. The Pyrafuge is destined to revolutionize the physicians' practice, and do away with the hurtful effects of taking quinine, arsenic and other drugs, neither of which enter into its composition. Pyrafuge is prepared in the laboratory of Jacob Lippman's Wholesale Drug House Savannah, Georgia.

INTERMITTENT FEVER.

Ague and Fever is a disease of very common occurance in the Southern and Southwestern States, especially in low marshy situations.

Each paroxysm USE of an Intermittent Fever is divided into three different stages, which are called the cold, the hot, and the sweating stages, or fits.

The continuance of the cold stage, is extremely various, from a few minutes to several hours when the second or hot stage comes on, after which a moisture breaks out on the forehead, and by degrees becomes a sweat, which finally extends over the whole surface of the body. These paroxysms usually come on with great regularity, leaving the patient weak and feeble. Many deviations however from the ordinary course of intermittents often occur. There are many symptoms M'CUTCHEON'S and modifications of symptoms often present in intermittents evincing that the disease is of a very malignant form, such as long and violent paroxysms attended with delirium, vertigo or dizziness, and when to these are added the presence of dysentery, or of cholera morbus, the case may be considered of the worst character. If neglected, Agues frequently give rise to other chronic complaints particularly dropsical swellings, and enlargements of the liver or spleen, termed Ague Cakes; which cause much unnecessary suffering, and often in the end, prove fatal. The sooner EUREKA the miasmatic poison can be entirely eradicated from the system, the less the danger from the above complaints, and these are only a few of the many that might be mentioned brought on by this disease. To do this in the shortest, safest and most permanent manner, the Eureka Ague Specific has no equal in the history of Medicine. A trial is all that is necessary to convince any one of the superiority of this Medicine over all others. AGUE I have many testimonials from well known and respectable citizens of this County and elsewhere who have tried its virtues, a cure was the result in every instance. Many have used it as a preventive of the chills when exposed to miasmatic atmosphere and thereby escaped its effects.

The price of this medicine places it within the reach of every one. It is put up in fifty cents and one dollar bottles, with full and explicit directions for using and SPECIFIC. will be forwarded to any address upon receipt of price, to any part of the United States. I also have confidential Circulars for Husbands, who have delicate wives, containing much valuable information, and which will be mailed to any address upon the receipt of a three cent postage stamp.

THE WITCHCRAFT OF COMMERCE.

Persons unaccustomed to estimate the results of science in hastening the advancement of mankind in the path that leads to mental and, through that, to physical emancipation, are very much amazed, and often incredulous, when suddenly confronted with the leading facts.

When for instance, we tell them that the machinery of England alone performs, for the comfort of mankind, for their clothing, housing, nourishment, provision with fuel, transportation, etc., the work of 13,650,000 horses, and add that this total is equivalent to the labor of 54,6000,000 men, or nearly twice the whole population of Great Britain, and more than the working ratio found in a population of over 200,000,000, the entire aggregate of all Europe being but 235,000,000,—they are startled. Nevertheless, this is the plain truth, and the grand total of machine work done to-day is much beyond the ratio of human toil yielded by the whole population of the Globe. If we, then, add the unassisted labor of men, we find that the result attained is as though the inhabitants of our Earth had been doubled in number.—Now, the most of this grand result has been attained since the application of steam, and consequently, in the present century. What then may we not look forward to for the next fifty years? At the present rate of accelerated invention and adjustment of steam, air, water, chemical, and magnetic power to the freshly arising necessities of the hour, we shall, in following out the reasoning already exemplified, have, as it were quadrupled the actual population of the Globe by the close of the year 1899.

With the aid of steam, . . . in all other branch of knowledge has advanced. Improved agriculture has brought us vastly enhanced production and new commodities. Mankind are, in the aggregate, much better clad, fed and housed than they were fifty years ago.—Better meat, butter, milk, cheese, fruit, vegetables, grain of all kinds and more of them, in larger variety are among their acquisitions. Beet-root sugar has become a common article, supplying millions who once had no sugar at all.—Canned provisions extend wholesome food to the uttermost ends of the earth. Mechanical appliances procure fresh water in the wastes of Sahara.

Chemistry has given us new dyes, new forces, and metallurgy has discovered endless resources of the ordinary and the useful metals to sustain the manufactures that steam extends, while supplying and creating wants together.

In the meantime intelligence and information increase among the masses of mankind, and, while exploration penetrates every region hitherto hidden, the printing press comes hastening on the wings of steam to instruct, and electricity follows to give speech to the remotest tribes. Humanity discovers its brotherhood; its mutual dependence; its reasons for common feeling and common destiny, and from island to continent, and from shore to shore thrills its universal speech. The whole Earth has found eyes to behold, understanding to comprehend, and a voice to utter the sympathies and longings of our common family while exhaling, in all tongues and for all races, the worship of God.

SALT FOR THE THROAT

An exchange says: "In these days when disease of the throat prevail, and particularly a dry, hacking cough, which is not only distressing to ourselves but to those with whom we are brought into business contact, those thus afflicted may be benefitted by trying the following remedy: Last fall we were induced to try what virtue there was in common salt. We commenced by using it three times a day—morning, noon and night. We dissolved a large tablespoonful of common salt in about half a tumblerfull of cold water, and with this we gargled the throat most effectually just before meal time. The result has been that during the winter we were not only free from the usual coughs and colds to which, as far as our memory extends, we have always been subject, but the dry, hacking cough has entirely disappeared. We attribute it entirely to the salt gargle, and do most cordially recommend it to those of our readers who are subject to diseases of the throat."

LOUISVILLE SOUTHERN CONVENTION.—Oct. 14.—Committees from each State have been appointed on the following subjects: Southern Pacific Railroad; Railroads Generally; Direct European Trade; Immigration; Mississippi and Tennessee River Improvement; Levees; Direct Water Communication with the Atlantic; Mississippi Outlets; Protection of Labor; and Reduction of Taxation.

SAVANNAH.

We proudly refer to the election yesterday in proof that the government of Savannah is firmly and permanently fixed in the hands of her own people—people who own the property, pay the taxes, and must rise or fall with her. The Conservative candidate for Mayor is undoubtedly elected by near three thousand majority! and the entire Board of Aldermen by nearly the same vote. There is much that is gratifying in this result. Two years ago it was difficult to say on which side rested the strength, while the county gave a large Radical majority. Now, Radicalism has completely collapsed. The poor deluded negroes have abandoned the iniquitous and sinking hulk almost in a body, while the white Republicans are, nearly to a man, identified with the conservative wing of the party and opposed to all further adverse legislation towards the South. In a Dent or Walker contest in Georgia, they would all be found voting with the true men of the South.

We point to this result as a feather in the cap of Savannah, and as assurance to all the world that there is at least one city in the South where the Southern white man is paramount, and by the consent of nearly all its inhabitants—that decent people can live here in peace, and that rights of person and property will be religiously respected. The losses, annoyances and humiliations to which . . . citizens and their investments are subjected in most other Southern cities, are here unknown, with a guarantee that the hydra-headed monster of Agrarianism will never be able to raise its head amongst us.

And one word as to the means by which this revolution has been accomplished. It has not been done by fighting the negro, but by friendly intercourse with him, enlightening his mind upon his true interests and duty, showing his identification with the Southern people in all things, the willingness of the latter to do him justice and confer on him every right that he is capable of exercising discreetly, by exposing the fraud and wickedness of his Radical deceivers, and in all matters acting fairly and squarely toward him. This is the policy that has opened the eyes of the colored people and inspired them with confidence in the Southern whites. Satisfied on these points, they feel no further interest in politics, and are perfectly willing that white men whom they know to be sensible and honest shall have exclusive control of the government. Let this same system be pursued everywhere in the South—act fairly toward the negro, make him feel that he is safe, and deceive him in nothing—and our word for it, in twelve months Radicalism will find no foot hold in our broad domain.—Sav. Republican.

THE LOUISVILLE CONVENTION.

A correspondent of the Macon Telegraph writes from Louisville, October 11th, says:

The city is absolutely jammed and overcrowded already with visitors and delegates. But first let me say that I had the pleasure to-day of looking upon the mild and bland feature of ex-President Millard Fillmore. He is here for the purpose of acting in the capacity of President of the Convention. He had a grand reception to-day in the east wing of the Court-house. It was a most brilliant affair, and the distinguished visitor presided over all with that ease, dignity and grace with which almost the entire country is familiar. I have not the time to give you details of what was said and done. Many other men of note are also in the city, among whom I may mention ex-Governor Oglesby, Hon. John C. Breckenridge, ex-Gov. Bramlette, Acting Governor Stephenson, the famous George Francis Train, (who lectured two nights last week in Masonic Temple,) Koopmanchap, the agent for Chinese immigrants, and a host of lesser lights.

The committee of arrangements have chosen the Louisville Opera House, as the place for the deliberations of the convention. It has the capacity to seat about 2,500 persons, but that is not near large enough.

It would surprise you to see the gigantic preparations which are going on for the great procession which will come off on Thursday next. Every artist in Louisville is overrun with orders and actively engaged in lettering or designing, to illustrate the different trades and professions which will be represented in grand display. Every manufactory, machine shop and foundry will contribute to swell the mighty cavalcade.—Railroads, telegraph offices, express companies will likewise lend a helping hand. Everybody seems fully awake to the grand occasion, and from all the indications now around me, I am constrained to believe that we are going to have the most splendid demonstration ever witnessed in the West.

Mothers be Advised.

Always keep a bottle of Dr. Tutt's Celebrated Expectorant in the house. It is a certain and pleasant cure for Croup, Coughs, Colds, &c. It is agreeable to the taste, and children take it readily. Go to your Druggist and get it at once, it may save the life of your little one.

Be Beautiful.

If you desire beauty you should use Hagan's Magnolia Balm. It gives a soft, refined, satin-like texture to the complexion, removes Roughness, Redness, Blotches, Sunburn, Tan, &c., and adds a tinge of Pearly Bloom to the plainest features. It brings the Bloom of Youth to the fading cheek and changes the rustic Country Girl into a Fashionable City Belle.

In the use of the Magnolia Balm lies the true secret of Beauty. No lady need complain of her Complexion who will invest 75 cents in this delightful article.

M. C. & J. F. Kiser, Atlanta.

It is said that a man had just as well be out of the world as to be out of the fashion, and if this be true, and we have no reason to doubt it, it is a matter of taste and policy to be in the fashion, and in order that you may have no trouble in regard to decorating the "seat of wisdom" with a beautiful covering, in the shape of a hat of the latest fashion, we would cordially recommend you when visiting Atlanta to visit also the Store of M. C. & J. F. Kiser, where you can be pleased without difficulty, not only in hats, but in their whole line of business. It is here we were placed under obligations for a fine hat, which shows they are generous as well as good business men. They are well known to many of our citizens and are worthy of patronage.

The Concord Manufacturing Company.

We have demonstration now of the successful operations of this enterprising Company, in the form of a present of ample material for an excellent suit.—The article is called Gold-mixed Jeans and is not only handsome but strong and well woven. We will do the Factory the honor of wearing its colors.

And now a word to our people on our own industries. You can get [illegible] factory is turning out as anything like the same price from abroad. Why should you send your money away instead of building up the interests of your own locality. It is manifestly your interest to foster and encourage every useful enterprise at home because they bring population, capital and a market for your own interests. If we would build up our prosperity by all means encourage the enterprises and industries at home. There is no other way.

Bishop Beckwith.

This Divine of celebrity, preached in the Episcopal Church, both Monday and Tuesday nights, to [illegible] Protestants of that [illegible] scholarship and profound learning as to clothe his thoughts in language that never fail to enrapture one with reverential and deep interest. He employs no inapt words, but with a steady handling, chooses just such words as will convey forcibly and impressively, the heart's entirety to the souls of dying men. His gesticulations are faultless and in themselves attract admiration. There is something grandly beautiful in him, that vividness of mind is dimmed as an effort to portray. Concise discernations are characteristic of arise men and his is not an exception, for they are short, sound, argumentative, logical and indefensible, and none but an argus eye could detect a crevice to insert an objection.—We admire the Bishop, for he is unexceptionably a fine elocutionist, and we would be delighted to hear him often.

Dr. Hunter Re visits Marietta.

We take pleasure in stating that Dr J. A Hunter, the eminent specialist of New Orleans, who has been spending the summer in Georgia, will at the earnest solicitation of his patients revisit Marietta, beginning (Saturday Oct. 23) and remain until afternoon of

The following from the Macon daily Telegraph is highly complimentary to the Doctor:

"The attention of our readers is respectfully directed to several testimonials signed by residents of Nashville, Atlanta and Macon, speaking in the highest terms of Dr. Hunter's system of treatment by Inhalation and his efforts in combating a class of diseases hitherto believed to be incurable. Several whose names are attached to these testimonials are persons of the highest respectability and standing in the communities in which they reside; and therefore their statements are unquestionable. The endorsations of Dr. Hunter's skill and ability, should entitle him to the confidence and respect of the citizens of Macon and the afflicted everywhere.

"THE NEGROES GENERALLY VOTED WITH THE DEMOCRATS."—Such is the report of the Savannah city election.—In the fact stated it will be seen that the Southern Democracy are beginning to understand their true game. It is to get the negro vote; and they can get it, if they try, everywhere South, because everywhere—having the land and "those mules"—they can outbid the carpet-baggers."—Herald.

CLEARANCE OF THE FIRST BRITISH STEAMSHIP FOR LIVERPOOL.—The British steamship Zoe, Captain Cloake, having received extraordinary dispatch, was cleared at the Custom House yesterday by her agents, Messrs. Bolgiano, Holst & Co., for Liverpool, with a cargo consisting of 4,810 bales cotton, weighing 854,604 pounds, and valued at $216,489,97. The Zoe is the first steamship that has left this port for Liverpool this season.—Sav. Advertiser 15th.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.—The material growth of the South during the last four years is strikingly shown by the editorials in some of the Southern papers. The official figures at the Department estimate that the cotton crop of the Southern States this year will be worth $240,000,000; while the total value of the exports of the South is set down at $328,500,000. At this rate, the value of Southern products is about $31.32 per head for the entire Southern population. These figures go to show that the South is even now the richest section of the country.—Washington Special N. Y. News.

That is really a momentous question. Shall we always be afflicted with those terrible intermittent diseases with which our country has been afflicted from time immemorial or shall we be freed? INTERMITTENT FEVER.

Ague and Fever is a disease of very common occurance in the Southern and Southwestern States, especially in low marshy situations.

Each paroxysm USE of an Intermittent Fever is divided into three different stages, which are called the cold, the hot, and the sweating stages, or fits.

The continuance of the cold stage, is extremely various, from a few minutes to several hours when the second or hot stage comes on, for which a moisture breaks out on the forehead, and by degrees becomes a sweat, which finally extends over the whole surface of the body. These paroxysms usually come on with great regularity, leaving the patient weak and feeble. Many deviations from this the ordinary course of intermittent often occur. There are many symptoms and modifications of symptoms often present in intermittents arising from the disorganization of some important form, such as long and violent paroxysms attended with delirium, vertigo or dizziness, and when to these are added the presence of dysentery, or of cholera morbus, the case may be considered of the most [illegible]. If neglected, Agues frequently give rise to other chronic complaints particularly dropsical swellings, and enlargements of the liver or spleen, termed Ague Cakes, which cause much unnecessary suffering, and often in the end, prove fatal. The manner EUREKA son can be entirely eradicated from the system, the less the danger from the above complaints, for which a moderate use of the many that might be mentioned brought on by this disease. To do this in the shortest, safest and most permanent manner, the Eureka Ague Specific has no equal in the history of Medicine. A trial is all that is necessary to convince any one of the superiority of this Medicine over all others. AGUE I have many testimonials in my possession from persons well known and respectable citizens of this County and elsewhere who have tried its virtues, a cure was the result in every instance. Many have used it as a preventive of the chills when exposed to miasmatic atmosphere and thereby escaped the disease.

The price of this medicine places it within the reach of every one. It is put up in fifty cents and one dollar bottles, with full and explicit directions for using and [illegible] to any address upon receipt of price, to any part of the United States. I also have confidential Circulars for Husbands, who have delicate wives, containing such valuable information, and which will be mailed to any address upon the receipt of a three cent postage stamp.

HEAD THE CERTIFICATES:

JEFFERSONVILLE INDIANA, August 21-1869.

Dr. R. H. McCutcheon. Dear Sir:—The two bottles of Eureka Specific which you sent me in June, has completely cured my wife of the fever and Ague with which she had been suffering for a long time since we moved to this country. Your circular for the married contains much valuable information, and is just the thing that it is represented to be.

Respectfully,
ANDREW W. GRAY.

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 9 '69.

Dr. R. H. McCutcheon. Sir:—I take great pleasure in certifying to the efficiency of your Fever and Ague Medicine the Eureka Ague Specific. After suffering one twelve months with the chills, and trying a great many different remedies in vain, I was urged by your agent to procure a bottle which I did. I commenced using it, and effected a permanent cure. I have since recommended it to my neighbors who had the Fever and Ague, all of whom have been cured by it without the exception.

Yours Truly,

AGRICULTURAL IMPROVEMENTS IN THE SOUTH.

From the Baltimore Sun.]

That there is a great deal of intelligence and practical good sense applied to the agriculture of the South no-one, we suppose doubts but Mr. Horace Greeley and the truck-patch farmers who assemble weekly in New York to enlighten the world and to amuse, "the rest of mankind." Mr. Greeley was not content to make himself ridiculous in his patronising speech at Lynchburg, in which he delivered a lecture on the drought and deep plowing, but going back to New York he lectured the Farmer's Institute for having allowed somebody there to speak in favor of shallow plowing, by which the poor farmers of the South had been misled to the loss of so many million bushels of corn. Had as Southern farming is, Mr. G. really thinks there is some excuse for it in the unwise talk reported from the centre of truck-patching. Southern farmers must take notice of this and take courage. In the course of time it may be that they can maintain to the great distinction in agriculture of raising patches of potatoes, which will sell for fifty dollars apiece, and vindicate their claim to rank with the Greeley and Solon Robinsons of Agriculture. In the meantime let them be modest with their 3,000,000 bales of cotton and their $300,000,000 of surplus production, and listen to Mr. Greeley's lecture on deep plowing.

We began with the purpose of remarking on a publication made recently in a Southern journal, by a farmer of North Carolina, of experiments in manuring and their results, and on the general spirit of energy in the South in the direction of agricultural improvement. It is seems to us that never before was there so much of wholesome excitement as is exhibited in the very numerous agricultural exhibitions throughout the Southern States, while individuals everywhere are competing with each other in intelligent and well directed experiment. Not only are the best methods of cultivation taught and practised, but immense sums are expended both in crop making and in the more permanent improvement of the land. Southern agriculture has laid aside with slavery its nomadic character. It was profitable in former days to migrate with a large working force to fresh lands and give away, if need be, the fields which had been skimmed of their first fertility—Now landholders can only afford to stay at home, and more than ever before they are clinging to the old homesteads endeared to them a thousand fold by the misfortunes and disasters of the years past, and are building them up again and investing them afresh with the beauty and fertility of their first estate.

The author of the article above alluded to, a North Carolina farmer, is giving his own experience on several points of practice, and remarks on the occasion he finds for diminishing the extensive cultivation of corn, a most exhausting crop, and substituting others as more productive of food at less cost to the soil. Whether we may concur or not in his judgment on this point, what he says still illustrates our remark as to effort after more profitable modes of culture. He says: "Now any farmer who will quit corn except as cleansing crop, or upon highly improved lots, and who will use brains and pain and Baugh's Phosphate (or any of the many equally good, perhaps,) on small grain and clover, and more brains and more pains on root crops, with stable manures and Baugh's Phosphate alternated, will find his net profits increased fifty per cent., and his land rapidly improved. To prove this to the most skeptical Rip Van Winkle, I need only say that a bushel of potatoes has always been, is, and will always be, equal in value in the market to a bushel of corn. I never knew in this region of more than seventy-five bushels of corn being made to the acre, and that was on a highly manured town lot; and the average yield is not above five bushels per acre, worth five dollars. I raised on an old field, the first time it was ever manured in the memory of man, five hundred bushels of potatoes per acre, and my neighbor did the same on an ordinary field of new ground.—The same manuring might have perhaps produced fifty bushels of corn, worth fifty dollars, while the potatoes were worth five hundred dollars, showing a difference in favor of root culture of four hundred and fifty dollars per acre.—Further, a bushel of ruta bags is worth more in Wilmington to-day than a bushel of corn, and Major Lynch has made five hundred bushels of turnips per acre."

While wheat is shown to be an unprofitable crop, as commonly cultivated, he says: "Wheat must enter as an important element in any intelligent farming system in this State, but never without a fertiliser. It requires but little labor, it leaves the land exposed but a short time to sun and flood; and as a foundation stone of root culture, the straw and the succeeding crop of clover hay furnish food to winter cattle on at almost no cost at all; and the cattle in their turn furnish manure for roots.—On wheat, $10 per acre in Baugh's Phosphate will make ten bushels, and only two and a half would have proved without; five bushels, worth $5 of clear profit the first year, being fifty per cent. on the money invested, and 100 per cent. on the previous net yield, with the same labor. The same $10 in phosphate that made the wheat is a perfect specific for red clover. The first crop of this clover is worth in the market or for home consumption $15 in clover hay, a profit of 150 per cent. on the money invested the year before, and already paid in wheat, and the second crop turned, (never pastured), will, with $10 in phosphate again, make fifteen bushels of wheat, showing an increased productiveness of 50 per cent.

Could greater encouragement be offered to owners of the poorest land, than this, which, in its immediate results, overpays largely all cost, and leaves the ground, for all the future, self-sustaining! The point of successful clover-growing determines the capacity of land to preserve its fertility and to increase it indefinitely, and only gross ignorance and criminal carelessness will allow it to fall again below that. Let this be well understood, and if the success of a North Carolina farmer shall prove to be of general application, the fields of the South will soon be brought back to the condition from which they fell under the peculiar circumstances of a wide domain of accessible fertile soil; and an amount of available labor inadequate to the profitable cultivation of all, and incapable of increase while the condition of slavery repelled immigration. It was found cheaper to work new and extremely fertile lands than to renew and re-enrich those which had gone through long years of exhaustion, and men went where there was room to do it. Now it will be found more profitable as well as more pleasant to stay at home.

Speaking of the facility with which stock may be raised and be included in the items of profit, he says: "The cow enters a very important element into this system of farming. Where there is a range, as is generally the case with us, a cow, worth, in beef, hide and tallow, $20, can be raised with fifty cents worth of salt; and if her manure be considered, she can be raised at a good profit in manure, and then sold for $20 clear cash profit. There is the great advantage in that South of being able to raise and keep stock through the winter with scarcely any provision of food or shelter, so that in a suitable range such as every farm almost affords, cattle can be raised in numbers proportioned to the extent of range at a mere nominal cost.

"In this Southern landholders have a great advantage, that they may concentrate their available labor as much as they please, using fertilizers largely, and cultivating such crops as give a large return per acre, as tobacco, cotton, and, where readily saleable, potatoes, etc., and throwing the lands not thus appropriated into pasture, can make a profit of cattle, sheep, hogs, etc., that need no labor, and make useful adjuncts in manuring the arable land."

Of hogs, the writer says, that with corn at $1 per bushel, they cannot be raised on corn at less than $15 per hundred, and that pork is worth there but $10 in the market; yet "on potatoes the ordinary stock of hogs can be raised at $6 per hundred of actual cost. I fattened my hogs on potatoes last fall and know whereof I affirm,) and if the potatoes are exchanged for bushel for bushel for corn, as Dr. Mebane and Maj. Lynch did, the cost of pork is still further reduced, as a bushel of corn that is worth only a bushel of potatoes in the market is worth two bushels of potatoes in a hog. What can be done by improving our stock of hogs I am not prepared to say, but it is a generally received statement that the feed which make 200 pounds of pork from the ordinary hogs will make 200 pounds if fed to the improved hog, and this improved hog is now offered at our doors at Penny's market price."

All these points made indicate, what we note in a thousand other directions, that the energy and intelligence of Southern agriculturists are working in the way of improvement.

Took the Premium.

At the State Fair at Little Rock, Arkansas, the Brinly Plow took the premium over all others.

Save Your Bacon!

The Pork market in Cincinnati opened at fifteen cents net. We advise every one, who can do so, to save his own bacon.

Removal.

We notice that Messrs. R. T. Brumby & Sons are removing their Drugs and Stationery to the new store, on the West side of the Square, expressly and elegantly fitted up for their business.

Atlanta Nurseries.

Now is the most favorable time for transplanting and opportunely we publish the card of Messrs. Harden, Cole & Co., of Atlanta, whose plants, of every description, will be found as recommended.

Farming

Our noble monarchs of the field are now busily engaged in sowing wheat. Beautiful weather, notwithstanding a mingling of cold and wind, has predominated, making it a favorable season for this purpose.

Periodicals.

The Southern Cultivator for November, an excellent number, has been received. Also the number for this Month of that beautifully printed and valuable work The Rural Carolinian, published by Walker, Evans & Cogswell, Charleston, S. C.

The Foreign Reviews,

Are handsomely republished in New York by Leonard Scott & Co., at very moderate prices. All who wish to move in currents of thought of the highest practical value can hardly do without such works. Blackwood and the Four Reviews are furnished for $15.

Farm for the Poor.

We are gratified to learn from our Ordinary that in pursuance of recommendations of Grand Juries a farm has been purchased near Ruff's Station and that arrangements will be perfected at the beginning of the ensuing year for the accommodation of the poor of the County.

Runaway Accident.

On last Saturday, the horse of Mr. W. W. Donahoo, of this county, which was attached to a small wagon, took fright at the falling leaves and made a speedy run knocking Mrs. Donahoo, who was standing near by, down and seriously injuring her hip. Being an old lady it will be quite a lapse of time before she recovers.

The Pet Deer.

We observed a beautiful little deer following a gentleman a few evenings since, in the square, and was as playful and frisky as a dear little coquette. The scarcity of this animal in these blessed surroundings caused us to watch him with eager eyes.—There are other dears we watch with eager eyes, for their iron-clad modesty is a menace to warn us to keep our distance, leaving us no other alternative. It would not be an injustice to say that this little deer is the dearest pet this gentleman has, for he is affectionately devoted to single-blessedness.

The Babb Affair.

We regret that our City Policeman misconstrued our remarks, in our last issue on the above named affair, into a reflection of neglect as to the discharge of his duty. We did not wish to offend our worthy Policeman, nor any of the civil authorities, but only wished to show the vital importance of arresting the guilty parties, which up to that time had not been done, that a repetition might be prevented, which the next time might prove more serious in its results. Types are funny things, and their impressions are perused by eyes sometimes, that attribute to us motives we are not conscious of, until those thus reading and construing apprise us of the fact. However the guilty parties have been since arrested and dealt with as the law directs.

Disorder.

We have borne witness to the good order which has for a long time prevailed in our County. It is equally our duty to speak of our disorders, and we regret to say that intemperance with its accompanying evils, is on the increase among our people.—Public days are ordinarily chosen for extra indulgence and on such occasions our roads become disagreeable and often unsafe thoroughfares. Cursing, and pistol-shooting are often indulged by both white and black very much to the annoyance of quiet people. If we have men who will drink until they become worse than brutes there should be some mode of compelling them to keep all their "glorious independence" to themselves. We hope yet to see police regulations to arrest and lock up every one, as soon as known to be drunk, in town or country, at home or abroad, and a fine imposed to promote sobriety and orderly habits. Such regulations would cheat the Penitentiary and the gallows of many a victim.

Railroad Accident.

While the up passenger train Saturday night was moving off from Vining's Station, nine miles below this place, Mr. C. W. Johnson, one of the train hands, made an effort to get on and fell and was thereby precipitated between the cars on to the track and had his left leg and right foot fearfully crushed. Some four coaches passed over him before the train was brought to a stand still. He was, after the arrival of the train here, left at the Kennesaw House, where Medical treatment, by Drs. Dunwody and Setze of our city and Dr. Hamilton of Rome, was given. The right foot just below the instep was amputated by the above named Doctors, and after the arrival of Dr. Crawford from Atlanta, they succeeded Monday evening in cutting off the left leg above the knee, after experiencing a good deal of trouble in getting the patient under the influence of chloroform. Mr. Johnson has a wife and four children, whose place of residence is at Stone Mountain. His wife is now with him at the Kennesaw House, rendering that assistance and sympathy that only a wife can. Those of intimate acquaintance speak very highly of him, and say that he was very cautious, always trying to avoid any accident such as he has now unfortunately met with.

Physicians Use Them in Their Practice.

It is almost universally the case that Physicians condemn what are generally known as "Patent Medicines." Although Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills is not a Patent Medicine, yet its composition (the result of years of study) is known only to himself and so palpable are their valuable curative properties, that very many of the first Physicians in the South and West have adopted them in their practice and recommend them to their patients.

JUDAS' CRIME!!

BY CARL BERTIE.

I.

Fiends take back your blood stained pieces,
For which I stand a traitor unto Him;
With every thought my cursed sin increases,
Until my cup is fill'd unto the brim.

II.

I will go forth to wander o'er the earth,
Upon which I cast so foul a stain,
And from Heaven's light, which gave birth
[illegible]

III.

Oft I have gazed, upon his manly features,
And felt my heart, as it throbbed with pride,
But now I stand, the lowliest of creatures,
And wish that I, in my infancy had died.

IV.

See! the royal robe in mockery he wears,
While aloud no word of suffering,
Escapes him, and as, the heavy cross he bears,
They in derision proclaim Him King.

V.

Why do I live to behold this scene;
I cannot live, and behold that Eye,
Too long a slave, to the world I've been,
I will go forth, but 'tis to die.

The Secret of Beauty

GOING! GOING!—Georgia's money continues to go at an alarming rate.—The papers say Bullock has brought one of the finest carriages ever seen in this benighted region—a regular car of State. He must be a splendid financier to make his salary of a few thousand dollars "go so far." Yes, we'll admit, if Bullock is doing the fair thing, financially, with the people of Georgia, he is a wonderful manager. He is a better hand at making things "spin out" than the great Spinner of the Treasury Department at Washington.

Gorgeous editorial excursions—special trains for the Georgia delegations to distant conventions, with eating, drinking and smoking arrangements in upper-ten order—and all for the purpose of feeling the pulses of sickly Democratic children, and finding out what cases the all-powerful greenback soothing syrup would benefit or cure! Tax-payers groan beneath their burden; thinking, honest men tremble for the future of our commonwealth, and begin to look out for a place to go to—but still the money goes.

REMARKABLE GROWTH OF LOUISVILLE.—In the grand industrial procession at Louisville on the 14th instant, during the sitting of the Commercial Convention in that city, one real estate house, in placards on their wagon, gave the following interesting facts:

Louisville in 1860—population, 68,000; assessed value of property, $21,000,000. Louisville in 1869—population, 150,000; assessed value of property, nearly $75,000,000; increase since 1860 over 300 per cent. The city of Louisville and Jefferson county pay more than one-fifth of the whole revenue of the State. Louisville has 30,000 buildings. Louisville has 400 streets and alleys, 400 miles of sidewalks, and nearly 50 miles of single-track railroads.

NEGRO JURORS.—It was discovered to-day, says a Washington dispatch, that two-thirds of the grand and petit jurors of this district who were summoned yesterday were negroes, and that half of them could not read and write. —The National Republican, a strong Radical paper, comes out with a loud cry against such a proceeding.

Rheumatics, Listen and Learn.

Prof. Kayton, the popular and celebrated manufacturer of Kayton's Oil of Life, the best and surest liniment for rheumatism known, has now discontinued his travels throughout the States to see the lame and the cripple, and those otherwise afflicted by rheumatism, or neuralgia, or pains in the side, &c., for he argues and well too, that the people can cure themselves without him by using his Oil of Life, the virtues of which are universally acknowledged. Some people were foolish enough to think from the swift and speedy cures made on the spot, before their eyes on their friends, that the Professor's hands were bewitched, but we assure all that the sterling virtue lies only in the Oil of Life and good rubbing. For rheumatism, neuralgia, pains in the back, joints or sides, or wherever a liniment can be used that Kayton's Oil of Life is acknowledged as great and without an equal, giving the patient almost instantaneous relief by one rubbing. For sprains or bruises, it has also been used with marked success.

Kayton's Dyspeptic Pills, purely vegetable, are an excellent cathartic. McKesson & Robbins, wholesale agents, N. Y. Jacob Lippman, Proprietor, Wholesale Drug House Savannah.

How Hostetter's Bitters Cure Dyspepsia.
THE WHOLE STORY IN A NUTSHELL.

The office of the stomach is to convert the food into a cream-like semi-fluid, called "Chyme." This is effected partly by the action of a solvent, called the gastric juice, which exudes from the coating of the stomach, and partly by a mechanical movement of that organ, which churns, as it were, the dissolving aliment. The Chyme passes from the stomach into the duodenum, or entrance to the bowels, where it is subjected to the action of the bile, and the nutritious portion of it converted into a fluid called Chyle, which eventually becomes blood.

Now, it is evident that if the great solvent, the gastric juice, is not produced in sufficient quantity, or if the mechanical action of the stomach is not sufficiently brisk, the first process of digestion will be but imperfectly performed. It is also clear that if the liver, which plays such an important part in changing the nourishing portion of the chyme into the material of the blood, is congested, or in any unnatural condition the second process will not be thoroughly accomplished. The result of the two failures is dyspepsia, complicated with biliousness.

The mode in which "Hostetter's Bitters" operate in such cases is this: they invigorate the cellular membrane of the stomach, which envolves the gastric juice, thereby insuring an ample sufficiency of the fluid to completely dissolve the food. They also act upon the nerves of the stomach, causing an acceleration of the mechanical movement necessary to reduce the food to a homogeneous mass. They also act specifically upon the liver, strengthening it, and so enabling it to produce an ample and regular supply of bile, for the purpose of converting the nutritious particles of the Chyme into Chyle, and promote the passage through the bowels of the useless debris.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.
WHAT THE DOCTOR'S SAY.

AMOS WOOLEY, M. D., of Kosiusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used Allen's Lung Balsam extensively, in my practice and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medical properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action — remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ludicrous Result of an Advertisement.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial, Oct. 4.]

The Springfield (Ohio) Daily Advertiser of yesterday tells how a Cincinnatian was nicely cooked in a way of that town who had answered his advertisement for correspondence with a view to matrimony. After giving some choice selections from the correspondence the Advertiser asserts that finally arrangements were made with his dear unknown and, agreeably to them, the young Saturday landed in Springfield—a modern Japhet, though in search of a nearer than a paternal one.

Saturday was a rainy day, and prevented the lovers meeting. Several looks were passed, and the anxious heart of the found expectant brought speedy interview. A note from A requesting him to stay over Sabath, was received, from the hands of an ebony hued youth, and a tender billet doux dispatched, according to it. Finally the hour and place for the rendezvous was fixed—time, Sunday afternoon, 2:30—place, the Opera House corner.

Meantime the affair got whispered abroad, and on Saturday afternoon, and Sunday the Murray House was besieged by throngs of merciless jokers, whose hearts knew no pity when there was fun afloat. Their countenances were distorted with smiles, as it some huge joke had crept in them and it was giving them pain to keep it in. Side glances were had at the strange gentleman, who, as the approach for the interview, walked restlessly up and down the pavement, at times glancing at his watch, then smoothing his silky beaver or setting his collar and tie to a nicety. But a few minutes are lacking and the hour of his happiness has come. So, taking a parting look in the office mirror, and scattering the scanty ringlets over the place where it was painfully bare, he sauntered alone and unobserved leisurely down Main street to the Opera House. He passes it slowly stopping occasionally to look around, and walking on, crosses the street, and returns with the same measured gate, recrosses the street, steps in front of the building, and leans composedly upon the railing at the entrance to the basement of the Opera House.

By this time hundreds had assembled, and Main street was one broad grin. The crowd kept looking upon the victim who was soon to be sacrificed.—At this juncture the same darkey who had carried his note to Japhet stepped up to Japhet and handed him a note. He eagerly opened it and read the story of the "sell" together with some salutary advice in regard to the danger of advertising for a wife. He slowly refolded the note and started on—and then broke forth a regil from two hundred throats. He kept on to evade the laughing demons, and sought his hotel by a back entrance, but unhappily found it closed, and he was forced to pass in by the front portals. He hastened from the sight of men, and in the solitude of his chamber, mourned over his sad experience. He recovered, However, and began to look at the matter as lightly as possible, but his stomach was very heavy. He complied with the request of the last letter furnished funds to wet the throats of his persecutors, breathing a prayer no doubt, that it might turn to prussic acid in their guzzles.—He left the city on the earliest train, a bachelor, it is true, yet wiser far than when he came.

"NOBODY VISITS THEM."—Such was the sneering remark of a lady while gossipping in one of our dry goods stores the other day, in speaking of a very respectable family, who make no pretensions to high life, and have little intercourse with what are called fashionable circles.

"Nobody visits them!" And are they the worse because the butterflies of fashion daily in more congenial circles and flutter by them in disdain? Are their household idols less dear because they find no worshippers amid the giddy votaries of luxurious pleasures, in which they take no delight? Are they less happy, when from the active duties of the day, they gather around their cheerful firesides to commune with each other —to read—to teach childhood its innocent games—to rehearse the day's experience, and offer the evening prayer—because, forsooth the gay and heartless "do not visit them?"

And are they less respected, by the rational, the good and pure, because they deny themselves luxuries they cannot afford, and discard the follies for which they have no taste! By no means, and the cold being who thus sneers at unpretending virtue, or struggling poverty, is unworthy to be the menial of those she seeks to ridicule.—Southern Banner.

PRINTERS AND PARADOXES.

A printer is one of the curious being living. He may be a bank, coins, and not be worth a cent; have small caps, and have neither wife nor children. He may run fair, but he gets swifter by getting fast. He may be making impressions without conscience; may use the ivy without conscience, and be living truths, while others cannot stand up. He may set, he can set standing; and he may sit the same time; have to use furniture, and yet have no dwelling; may sometimes have many, and never see a pic, much less eat it during his life; be a human being and a rat at the same time; may press a great deal, and ne ask a favor; may handle a composing iron and know nothing about a rifle, gun or pistol; be may have a letter that moves the world, and yet be debarred from moving the globe as a mole-hill; spread sheets without being a housewife; he may lay his form on a bed, and yet be obliged to sleep on the floor; he may use a dagger without shedding blood, and from the earth he may handle stars; he may be of a rolling disposition, and yet never desire to travel; he may have a sheep's foot and not be deformed; never without a case, and yet know nothing of law or physic; he always correcting errors, and he be growing worse every day; have embraces, without having the arms of a girl thrown around him; have his form locked up, and at the same time be free from all watch-locks or other confinement: his office may be a hell in it, and not be a bad place after all; he might be plagued by the devil, and be a Christian of the best kind; and what is stranger still, be honest or dishonest, rich or poor, drunk or sober, industrious or lazy, he always stands up to his business.

RICH FOR A MOMENT.

The British ship Britannia was wrecked off the coast of Brazil, and had on board a large consignment of Spanish dollars. In the hope of saving some of them, a number of barrels were brought on deck, but the vessel went to pieces so fast that the only hope for life was in taking at once to the boats. The last boat was about to push off, when a young midshipman went back to see if any one was still on board. To his surprise there was a man on deck, with a hatchet in his hand, with which he had broken open several of the casks, the contents of which he was now heaping up about him.

"What are you doing there?" shouted the youth. Don't you know the ship is fast going to pieces?'

"The ship may go," said the man; "I have lived a poor wretch all my life, and I am fat resolved to die rich."

We should count such a person a madman, but he has too many imitators. Men seem determined to die rich, at all hazards. Least of all risks do they count the chance of losing the soul in the struggle, at any moment at all. And yet the only riches we can hope to enter in soon with joy, in our dying hour, are the riches of grace through Jesus Christ, which we must make ours before the dark hour comes. Oh! how rich have many died in their garrets and huts, while kings and princes have entered on the other side more destitute than beggars. Who would not rather choose to be rich for eternity, than rich for the fleeting moment in which the ship is sinking into the dark waters!

ST. PAUL.—The following is Renan's description of the personal appearance of St. Paul: "Paul had a sickly appearance, which did not, as it appears, correspond with the greatness of his soul. He was ugly, short, thick-set and stooping, and his broad shoulders awkwardly sustained a little bald head. His sallow countenance was half hidden in a thick beard; his nose was aquiline, and his eyes piercing, and his black and heavy eye brows met across his forehead. Nor was there anything imposing in his speech; his timid and embarrassed air and his incorrect language at first gave but a poor idea of his eloquence. He shrewdly however, glorified in his exterior defect, and even drew advantages therefrom.

THREE IMPORTANT THINGS.—Three things to love—Courage gentleness and affection.

Three things to admire—Intellectual power, dignity and gracefulness.

Three things to wish for—Beauty, frankness and freedom.

Three things to pray for—Faith, peace and purity of heart.

Three things to avoid—Idleness, loquacity and flippant jesting.

Three things to contend for—Honor, country and friends.

Three things to govern—Temper, tongue and conduct.

Three things to think about—Life, death and eternity.

CASKET OF JEWELS.

He who knows much is mistaken often.

Spare moments are the gold dust of time.

The memory of good actions is the starlight of the soul.

There is not a wakeful moment without some duty.

It is best not be angry; and best in the next place, to be quickly reconciled.

There's beggary in the love that can be reckoned.

Sisyphus the sled down the hill. Repentance drove it back again.

The generous heart should scorn a pleasure that gives others pain.

What pleasure like that of giving!—There would be no rich men if they were capable of feeling it.

A guilty conscience is like a whirlpool, drawing in all to itself which would otherwise pass by.

Of all human actions, pride seldomest obtains its end; for aiming at honor and reputation, it reaps contempt and derision.

They who laugh aloud at the storms of fortune are more virtuous and victorious in the end.

It is ordained in the eternal constitution of things, that men of intemperate minds can not be free; their passions forge their fetters.

To preserve equality of temper, when goaded by the shafts of calumny and malice, requires such an extraordinary degree of fortitude and passive courage as few individuals possess.

Words are little things but they strike hard. We wield them so easily that we are apt to forget their hidden power.—Fitly spoken, they fall like the sunshine, the dew and drizzling rain—but when unfitly, like the frost, the hail and the desolate tempest.

CHARLES O'CONOR.

The greatest lawyer in New York, was once a newsboy "of the old school." His first glimpse of his father to know him was in a Debtor's Prison, whither embarrassment and not disgrace had cast him. Mr. O'Conor is childless, but according to a recent biographer, he "has made his life rhythmic with beauty—the beauty of an unalterably lofty goal in his profession, the beauty of earnest and unwitting love for justice, and this alone for his clients; the beauty of broad and manifold charity, and last and not least, the beauty of a pure private life."

EMIGRATION FROM ENGLAND.—Emigration was the subject of an animated discussion at the Social Science Congress, recently held at Bristol, England. It was suggested that $5,000,000 should be appropriated by the government, and that a like sum should be raised by the over-peopled districts. The income of this fund, it is asserted, would enable 57,000 families to emigrate every year. In this way, it was contended, the balance between labor and employment would in a few years be restored. The question was also discussed, whether the emigrants should be sent to the British colonies or to the United States, many of the speakers contending that the colonies would consider the new settlers as a burden, while the United States would furnish sufficient employment to and be happy to receive the emigrants. It was decided that no aid should be granted to single men desiring to emigrate, but only to entire families.

The loviest valley has a muddy swamp the noblest mountain a piercing blast, and the prettiest face some ugly feature. The fairest face is most subject to freckles; and the handsomest girl is apt to be proud; the most sentimental lady loves cold pork, and the gayest mother lets her children go ragged. The kindest wife will sometimes overlook an absent shirt button, and the best husband forgets to kiss his wife every time he steps outside of the gate, and the best appointed children in the world, get angry and squall; and the smartest scholar will miss a lesson, the wittiest say something stupid, and wisest essayist write some nonsense; and stars will fall, and the moon suffer eclipse—and men wont be angels, nor earth heaven.

An old resident was out on the street the other morning about 8 o'clock and was asked: "Are you going to attend the wedding this morning?" "Wedding"—replied the old man. "No, sir. I attended one about twenty years ago and haven't had a day of peace since."

An Irishman who was drinking the health of a bishop, gave this toast: "May your riverence live to eat the last that scratches over your grave."

MARIETTA, GEORGIA.

Friday Morning Nov. 12, 1869.

McCutcheon's Eureka Ague Specific.

This Medicine is giving general satisfaction to the afflicted. It has not failed to cure in any instance we know, whatever used.

Refined Syrup.

We are indebted to Mr. Cofer, Superintendent of the "Georgia Sugar and Syrup Refinery" near Marietta for a specimen of refined Syrup which we pronounce excellent.

Fresh Meats.

We would refer the reader to the advertisement of Owen & Nix, who are engaged in the distribution to customers of nice meats, from the dainty steak of the beef, to nice mutton chop and pork the most inviting, which the most delicate will find suitable to their taste. Their Market House is well arranged and convenient and we solicit for them a liberal patronage.

Periodicals.

We have received the number for October of Burke's Weekly for Boys and Girls, the best work for the young published in this country.

We have the November number of Peters' Musical Monthly, the best Musical Periodical published.

We have, also, for November The Maryland Farmer, which we heartily commend to the Georgia Farmer.

Hunting Season.

The hunting season has arrived, and hunters are now making the woods resound with the crack of guns. Squirrels and the feathery tribe are now falling from the high estate of their freedom in roaming at pleasure. Hunting presents a pleasure that is singular in its impressions from all other sports, and one our inclination never tires of, although our body may be excessively fatigued.

The Couplet

"The heart that is first open to the flowers,
Is the first to be touched by the thorns,"

Is one we have felt these cold mornings to be in direct conformity with the fact, that the first up, is the first to be pinched with the cold. We wonder in thought, as we shiver in reality, why it is so cold when we first raise the body to a perpendicular attitude after a night's sleep.

Rain.

The dust which has been flying promiscuously loose for sometime, filling the air, and breathed and inhaled by us, so much to the aversion of our cleaner feelings, has been allayed by a bountiful supply of rain, during the first of the week, and all is now lovely and well, except the repulsive thought, that unwelcome crowds in, that we have eat enough dust during the last week, that would in quantity be of sufficient bulk to form a human being as large as Acton of the Constitution.

Misapplication.

We would suggest to the kind Local of the Atlanta Constitution that the "wag" of the Marietta Journal, is Mr. W. S. N. Neal and not the Senior Editor of the Journal.

As the Senior Editor has penned the above and from which we infer that he does not wish to have the nomenclature of "wag" applied to him, we of course must accept it with the best grace possible; but in doing so, would remind our friend Whitby, that a "wag's" wit for "prosperity lies in the ear of him that hears it, never in the tongue of him that makes it."

The Work of the Flowing Bowl.

The Sabbath was given to man for rest, and is a day ordained in the eternal creation of all things by Divine fiat, to be kept holy, and is the very sweetness of consecrated love, manifested by God, to man. We mourn the act that violates the sacred law—"Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy."—Fancy pictures, while thoughts Heavenwardly turn, that angels weep, when men by force of habit, persist in setting apart the day of rest, that is Divine in origin to gratify the clandestine passions of an unholy heart. A soul glutted in the frequent imbibing of that which "at last biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder," is bereft of reason, by excessive indulgence, is beastly and that from the very fact, that reason no longer holds sway—but dethroned she lies senseless and bleeding, where the feet of Prudence walked and gave caution to beware!

But her warning falls lightly and unheeded by those, who take one drink, but never intend to be drunkards. But remember,

"We are not worst at once; the source of evil
Begins so slowly, and from such slight source,
An infant's hand might stop the breach with clay;
But let the stream grow wider, and Philosophy
Ay, and Religion too, may strive in vain
To stem the headlong current."

It sounded harshly on our ears, when on last Sabbath we learned, that men of once proud standing in society blessed with Christian parents, and doated on, by them, for their childhood purity and innocency, and reared with the promise that their lives would be of some advantage and the world the better for their having lived in it, were incarcerated in the City "Lock up" for drunken revelry and a total disregard of the Sabbath. Would it were not true, but it is. And they cannot challenge us for wrong in noticing it, for rest assured there is no pleasure in it, but sorely dolorific to the heart. If they are ashamed to have their follies known, they should be ashamed to act them. And we commend our City Policeman for what he did; he acted in accordance with all right of law and from the impulse of a noble feeling, when he refused to give way to the claims of drunken men in preference to those of God. Order is the first law of Heaven, and we hope our Marshal will secure it, not only every Sunday, but every day. Incarcerate indiscriminately every intoxicated individual found on the streets, and the good people will sustain you.

Oh! man, made in the image of your Creator, and placed but little lower than the angels, why will you deface that image and continue in a course that is so suicidal to your present and eternal happiness!—Whiskey is ruining the country! It is incapacitating our best and most influential men in the exercise of the high prerogative of free and unfettered action in preserving the liberties bequeathed to us by the forefathers of our country. When will men arise and in the dignity of their strength banish from them this self-inflicted curse!

The Secret of Beauty

Lies in the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm for the Complexion.

Roughness, Redness, Blotches Sunburn, Freckles and Tan disappear where it is applied, and a beautiful complexion of pure, satin-like texture is obtained. The plainest features are made to glow with Healthful Bloom and Youthful Beauty.

Remember, Hagan's Magnolia Balm is the thing that produces these effects, and any Lady can secure it for 75 cents at any of our stores.

To preserve or dress the Hair, use Lyon's Kathairon.

Physician's Use Them in Their Practice.

It is almost universally the case that Physicians condemn what are generally known as "Patent Medicines." Although Dr. Tutt's Liver Pill is not a Patent Medicine, yet its composition (the result of years of study) is known only to himself and so palpable are their valuable curative properties, that very many of our first Physicians in the South and West have adopted them in their practice and recommend them to their patients.

(COMMUNICATED.)

Mr. Editor: We see other corporations are agitating the question of who should and who shall be their City Officers for the ensuing year and as we do not intend to be behind all the time Mr. Editor, we therefore suggest the present board of Aldermen, or so many as will accept, as we think they merit a continuance in office for their past labors in working the city out of debt and giving us the best streets we have ever had.

MANY CITIZENS.

Butter Ducks.—We saw, and were enraptured by some Butter Ducks at the Fair. Rich yellow butter moulded into the most beautiful and perfect little ducks that can be imagined. Mrs. Whitehead, of Polk, was the maker.—Young ladies, turn your attention to these things. Half the young men in Georgia had rather have a wife who could housekeep well than one who could only simper French, German and Italian, and murder operatic music. Beauty alone wont carry you far.—Then learn to make your husband's house happy. Oh! those dear delightful ducks!—"King Hans" of the Rome Courier.

Gentle reader, King Han's wife has six children and they are all girls!

A TRIP TO THE FAIR GROUNDS.

Through the courtesy of a friend, we yesterday afternoon paid a "flying visit" to the Fair Grounds, behind as fine a piece of horse flesh as ever struck his heels earthward. We found the roads vastly improved, hollows filled up, hills materially leveled, and the crooked paths made straight. There is a large force still at work on the upper Vineville road, and they will, no doubt, have it in splendid order by the opening of the Fair.

Our first visit was to the rink being built by Mr. W. A. Huff, and said to be the largest in the world—capable of comfortably seating four thousand persons. Suffice it to say that it is a "big thing," and no mistake, and will undoubtedly attract much attention.

Our next visit was to the victualing department, now being put in complete order by Mr. E. Isaacs. Suffice it to say that we found that he was making every preparation to feed the crowd, and if any one goes away hungry from his tables, it will be their own fault. He is fitting up very nicely for the ladies, and in addition to his fine, large Ordinary, he has a neat dressing room arranged for them.

We then went into the Fair Building, and found everything progressing well, and feel assured that it will be in perfect order in ample time for the opening.—The main hall or exhibition room, is certainly one of the grandest in the world, being three hundred and ten feet in length by fifty in width! We are confident that there is no such hall in the big city of New York, and when filled with the multifarious articles on exhibition, will present a magnificent appearance.

Colonel Lewis, the Secretary of the Society, will remove his office to the grounds on Saturday next, and under his personal supervision, everything will soon be arranged in this magnificent hall

A dash around the trotting track convinced us that it was just the thing to bring out the fine points of blooded stock. It is as smooth as glass, and a good rain will make it as hard as a rock.

In the centre of this track is the Hippodrome, which it is said will accommodate twelve thousand persons. In the circle of this the Tournament will come off and all the public speaking be done. From the elevated seats of the Hippodrome the speed and beauty of animals can be seen to the very best advantage.

With a "swing around the circle," we then headed homeward, well pleased with our trip, and more than ever convinced that the State Fair is going to be a great thing, and a most decided success—Journal & Messenger.

Rheumatics, Listen and Learn.

Prof. Kayton, the popular and celebrated manufacturer of Kayton's Oil of Life, the best and surest liniment for rheumatism known, has now discontinued his travels throughout the States to see the lame and the cripple, and those otherwise afflicted by rheumatism, or neuralgia, or pains in the side, &c., for he argues and well too, that the people can cure themselves without him by using his Oil of Life; the virtues of which are universally acknowledged. Some people were foolish enough to think from the swift and speedy cure made on the spot, before their eyes on their friends, that the Professor's hands were bewitched, but we assure all that the sterling virtue lies only in the Oil of Life and good rubbing. For rheumatism, neuralgia, pains in the back, joints or sides, or where ever a liniment can be used that Kayton's Oil of Life is acknowledged as great and without an equal, giving the patient a most instantaneous relief by one rubbing. For sprains or bruises, it has also been used with marked success.

WHAT THE DOCTOR'S SAY.

AMOS WOOLEY, M. D., of Kosiusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used Allen's Lung Balsam extensively, in my practice and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County Ohio says: "Allen's Lung Balsam not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medical properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success as an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., Middlebury, Vt., says: "I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

How Hostetter's Bitters Cure Dyspepsia.

THE WHOLE STORY IN A NUTSHELL.

The office of the stomach is to convert the food into a cream-like semi fluid, called "Chyme." This is effected partly by the action of a solvent, called the gastric juice, which exudes from the coating of the stomach, and partly by a mechanical movement of that organ, which churns, as it were, the dissolving aliment. The Chyme passes from the stomach into the duodenum, or entrance to the bowels, where it is subjected to the action of the bile, and the nutritious portion of it converted into a fluid called Chyle, which eventually becomes blood.

Now, it is evident that if the great solvent, the gastric juice, is not produced in sufficient quantity, or if the mechanical action of the stomach is not sufficiently brisk, the first process of digestion will be but imperfectly performed. It is also clear that if the liver, which plays such an important part in changing the nourishing portion of the chyme into the material of the blood, is congested, or in any unnatural condition the second process will not be thoroughly accomplished. The result of the two failures is dyspepsia, complicated with biliousness.

The mode in which "Hostetter's Bitters" operate in such cases is this: they invigorate the cellular membrane of the stomach, which envolves the gastric juice, thereby insuring an ample sufficiency of the fluid to completely dissolve the food. They also act upon the nerves of the stomach, causing an acceleration of the mechanical movement necessary to reduce the food to a homogeneous mass. They also act specifically upon the liver, strengthening it, and so enabling it to produce an ample and regular supply of bile for the purpose of converting the nutritious particles of the Chyme into Chyle, and promote the passage through the bowels of the useless debris.

[From the Maryland Farmer.

MANURES, FERTILIZERS AND COMPOSTS.

We have so often referred to the advantage of making composts, that to repeat the story seems almost superfluous. Yet there is nothing more certain than that the manure heap is the farmers' bank of deposit, that home-made manures are the most economical of any, and that the quantity of these may be vastly increased by giving due attention to the making of composts, which shall contain all or nearly all the fertilizing ingredients required by the soil. Nevertheless, in nothing is the foresight of many of our farmers found more wanting than in the preservation of his manure piles. In a large number of instances the liquid portion of the manure, containing in a concentrated form the richest fertilizing ingredients, are suffered to run to waste, whilst the solid portions are thrown out into the barn-yard to be leached by rains, wasted by drying winds, and suffered to become fire-fanged and comparatively worthless through inattention and neglect. Every acre fertilized from the barn-yard is an acre yielding a larger profit at harvest, and every additional acre rendered fertile by the application of organic and inorganic substances, derived from sources outside of the barn-yard, and supplementing the manure thus obtained, adds not only to the general productiveness of the farm, but to the market value of the land. We do not underrate the advantage of commercial fertilizers, for we know that, in a concentrated form, they furnish, when prepared by the best and most trustworthy manufacturers, and amount of soluble plant food to the soil. But commercial fertilizers, when liberally applied—as they ought to be if their action is to last through several season, and they are to assist in the process of a permanent restoration of the soil—such fertilizers, we say, cost a considerable amount of money, and the main reliance of every farmer who desires to economise his means, should be upon barn-yard manures and well made composts. Wherever stock is housed, well fed, and kept in good condition through the winter, every ten cart loads of manure, saved as it should be with all its enriching salts, will convert twenty additional cart loads of rough fibrous material, woods' earth, &c., into a compost that will be equal, load for load, to the barn-yard manure itself, and the properties of this compost will not be fugitive, but will assist greatly in the permanent renovation of the soil. Here, then, are thirty loads of first-rate manure made upon the farm out of every ten loads piled up in the barn-yard. There are few farms of a respectable size, where a reasonable quantity of stock is kept, that cannot turn out two hundred cart loads of manure annually, and that two hundred cart loads may be made six hundred by collecting an adequate quantity of materials for compost and converting the whole by fermentation with barn-yard manure into a fertiliser of the best quality. Does any man doubt this?—Let him read that admirable pamphlet, "Dana's Muck Manual." which, though issued years ago, still remains a standard authority on the subject.

The process, too, is easy. It involves no extra outlay of consequence. It is simply putting to excellent use the permanent hands of the farm, in collecting materials for compost, and the horses of the farm, that might otherwise be standing idle, in bringing those materials home.

The following process, published by the writer of this article nine years ago, has stood the test, and, if strictly followed out, will satisfy any farmer of its unquestionable value. It is proper also to add, that the suggestions were derived from the Manual to which we have already referred:

"In the first place, the barn-yard should be so constructed as to retain all the liquid portions of the manure that is derived from the stables and cow sheds. It should be hollowed in the centre, and the soil of which it is composed should be made as compact and retentive as possible. It should have a firm broad roadway encircling the hollow provided for the reception of the manure, so as to allow the passage of carts and wagons for convenience of loading, and also for the better accommodation of the stock, when turned out either for water, or for an airing. All the central portion of the yard should be deeply saddled with refuse straw, woods' earth, and every variety of rough fibrous materials that it is possible to collect together, and upon which the voidings of the cattle are to be thrown. This underlying strata of rough material will serve to absorb the liquid portions of the manure and thus prevent it from running to waste. Near the barn-yard may be heaped up, for subsequent use, an abundance of the same material—woods' earth, the scrapings of ditches, marsh weed, turf or hedge rows, sea ores, where it is to be had, and, in short everything about a farm of vegetable origin that is capable of being decomposed."

"During the winter, as the manure accumulates from the stable, and cattle sheds, and hog pens, fresh additions from the heap collected outside, should be made to it in the proportion of two thirds of rough material to one of barn-yard manure. These additions should be regularly made, from time to time, until the spring is about to open, when the whole contents of the barn-yard should be thoroughly mixed and incorporated together, and then thrown into heaps to undergo the process of fermentation, without which the substances of which they are composed would fail to be sufficiently soluble to meet the immediate wants of the spring crops."

"Another, and, perhaps, with some farmers, a more desirable mode of preparing composts is to haul the materials for the compost heaps to the fields which are to be fertilized, and to haul out to the same place the manure which has accumulated in the barn-yard, and there build up the compost heaps, layer by layer, taking care to make the first layer entirely of rough material, then following with the manure drawn from the barn-yard, and so continuing the heap with alternate layers, making each successive layer thinner than the one that preceded it. After the heaps have thus well set in, break down the heap and mix as before.

GREAT TRUTHS IN AGRICULTURE.

The farmer who starves his fields, is as unwise and improvident as he who starves his working cattle—as both cases do to diminishing the ability of a faithful servant to be useful to him.

The farmer who obtains from a field not properly fertilized ten bushels of grain, when by manuring he might have obtained twenty, is adding his labor at half its value.

He who does not give back to his fields as much as he takes from them, sells their fertility in his crops—and the fertility of the soil is the farmer's capital.

The farmer who will keep these truths in view, and act in accordance with the rules they suggest, will find his competition in the increasing products of his farm, in the augmentation of his wealth, and in the promotion of general prosperity.—Maine Farmer.

THE EFFECT OF CHINESE EMIGRATION.—In California negroes are called "Fourteenth Amendments," and the Chinese "Fifteenth Amendments."—The Augusta Chronicle, speculating on what will be the effects of an inundation of some forty millions of Celestials, as promised by Senator Patterson in a late speech on the subject of Chinese immigration, says:

An immigration by the hundred thousand, under the "Fifteenth Amendment," will soon control the political destinies of the republic, as "the genius of our institutions admit them." They are to be assimilated, but we suppose that, in the process of assimilation, action and reaction will be mutual.—Should the Celestial Empire spare us forty millions, which she is likely to do, as, according to the Senator, "she will never miss them," these "Fifteenth Amendments" will regenerate and reconstruct the republic according to Chinese standards. We shall then have progress, Celestial progress. Opium will take the place of whiskey, as the source of legislative inspiration, and the beetle that of tobacco.

THE BRINLEY PLOW.

The Brinley Plow took four premiums at the Rome Fair—one on the No. 1 Universal Plow—one on the the Brinley Subsoiler—one on the Double Shovel, and one on the Brinley Two-horse Plow. They made a very strong impression on the spectators, and were sold at the rate of fifty a day.

REMARKABLE WILL.—The Hon. Rufus Dwinel, of Bangor, Maine, who died last week, was one of its wealthiest citizens, and left a remarkable will. He gave, among other bequests, ten thousand dollars, divided in different sums, to trustees to be used "merely and solely for charitable purposes;" one thousand dollars each to the editors of the Bangor Whig, to show his "appreciation of their valuable services in the good cause in which they are engaged, politically and socially," and two thousand dollars to a friend, in proof of his "appreciation of his friendship, and not because he needs it."

"Do you call this a trunk?" growled a dejected porter. "It only needs a lightning rod to be mistaken for a boarding house.

Billiard saloons are birth places of drunkenness.

TAXATION IN THIS COUNTRY.

The American Republic has not only the greatest cataract, the longest river, the largest mountains and the greatest lake of the globe, but she has furnished the most extensive rebellion, the most bloody civil war and the largest debt contracted in five years, that was ever imagined by any nation. We are now showing all the world how a free country can stand the heaviest taxation amounting to about $700,000,000, including National State

The net profits of the capital and labor of the country amount to $2000,000,000 a year, and over 33 per cent. of this net profit is paid out to the National State or municipal governments. And yet we can stand it and still thrive. But what is the use of standing it, since the expenses of the general government should not be over $100,000,000, and $126,000,000, equal to $165,000,000 in currency, should pay the interest on the debt.

This would make $300,000,000 currency more than enough to collect in the taxation, instead of $486,000,000 as now—a difference of $164,000,000, which should be applied to the payment of the debt.—Cincinnati Times.

This exceedingly cheerful aspect is from a Republican point of view. Only seven hundred millions annually, and no attempt to reduce the taxes. How long we can stand it and thrive, each man must answer for himself. The increasing columns of Sheriff's sales, diminished trade and scarcity of money is beginning to tell the tale. There is evidence all around us that the strings are being tightened. Government securities are being forced upon the market by savings banks on a downward market, whilst the certain decision of the Supreme Court against the constitutionality of the legal tender act, before January, will derange values and precipitate commercial disaster. Yet Republican sophomores persuade themselves that seven hundred millions can annually be extracted from the labor of the country and thrive, perhaps.—Pittsburgh Post.

THE NEW YORK ELECTION.

The loss of the State of New York, of which the Radicals have held entire possession for more than a decade, is a very disconcerting and uncomfortable event to that party. They had shaped everything for an indefinite and interminable occupancy. They had legislated so as to put the bulk of the local corporation patronage in the hands of the State officials, and this is what Gov. Hoffman refers to when he proposes that the Democrats shall restore the right of local self-government to the people. This action enabled them to fill nearly every office in the State with their partisans, and the political revolution has been a full blow at thousands of snugly incumbents who must give place to Democrats. Moreover, the next Legislature elects a United States Senator in place of Mr. Conklin, whose fortunes are seriously menaced by this triumph.—Lastly it comes on the heel of Republican success in Pennsylvania and Ohio which must be regarded as little better than auguries of defeat.

The complete triumph of the Northern Democracy, in all the great States, is simply a question of time, constancy, prudence and patriotism. If they will recommend themselves to the people by a large and manly policy of moderation, justice, prudence and patriotism, the country will be restored to their control in a few years. But let them imitate the reckless dishonesty, corruption and violence of the so-called republican party, and they will see a re-action which will leave their case hopeless. The people have lost pretty much all confidence in the honesty and integrity of political parties. They know, indeed, that Radicalism is as synonymous with political corruption; but they say Democracy is no better.—That the standard of political morals is so utterly base and corrupt that knavery is the rule, and honesty, so rare an exception that it has come to be laughed out as the vice of fools.

If the Democracy of America cannot once more upraise the fallen and dishonored standard of constitutional law, public virtue and political accountability, it has no mission on earth worthy the notice of any sane or honorable man. The republic is dying of moral and political dry rot, and if we did not believe the Democratic party embodied morality and patriotism enough to stop the progress of decay and ruin, we should care nothing for it.—Memphis Telegraph.

JONATHAN MORGAN, a lawyer, linguist and mechanician, who constructed the first steamboat ever seen on a New England river, is now living at Portland, having attained the ripe age of 91 years. He is very eccentric and for many years lived alone in a small attic room, which served as office, bed-room and kitchen. He often boasted that his entire expense of living did not exceed fifty dollars a year, and those who are acquainted with his entire frugal habits and the mode of living were quite willing to take him.

The Marietta Journal.

MARIETTA, GEORGIA.

Friday Morning Nov. 19, 1869.

Our Rule.

We publish no Communications unaccompanied with the name of the writer.

We would call the attention of the City authorities to the destructive wash on Cemetery Street.

Divine Service.

Rev. T. E. Smith, of Carterville, will preach in the Presbyterian Church in Marietta next Sabbath, November 21st.

The Atlanta Constitution.

The Editors of the above named paper have our best wishes for the clever and catholic spirit displayed towards the JOURNAL. For fairness of dealing towards the country papers, this paper as a daily, is indeed remarkable. We are glad to see evinced [illegible] filled columns of editorial, selected reading matter, and the latest telegraphic news, with the spice, talented and interesting Locals, it is winning steady and increased popularity. Long may she wave as a true exponent of Right and the best interest of the people.

Macon Telegraph and Messenger.

Mr. A. W. Reese has bought out the Journal of Messenger and consolidated it with the Macon Telegraph, and it comes to us now as the TELEGRAPH AND MESSENGER. We are indeed more than glad to welcome the return of the bold, unflinching, talented Reese, with his fertile pen, again to the journalistic chair editorial. While we liked his predecessor, Wm. H. Brown, who so ably edited the paper which has been bought, we like the solid genius and sound logic, of our friend Reese, better, and we wish the Editors of this large and handsome Daily a prosperous and successful career in their combination.

Cheering Words.

We have the following appreciative words from an Alabama correspondent who formerly resided in this place:

"We have one complaint to make, and that is the JOURNAL don't come regular. Can't you blow up the P. O. department or somebody else and let the said JOURNAL come regular. I notice in the Local column a piece headed, "Workings of the Sewing Bowl." Who wrote the piece? and who were the guilty parties? I can't imagine who they were—The piece is a singer and speaks my sentiments exactly. Also "Enterprise" in the Editorial column. That is "Bully!" Take the JOURNAL as a whole, and it is a "Bird," and so is its "Way Editor."

Our correspondent has our ineffable thanks for the warm interest manifested in behalf of the JOURNAL, and while we cannot answer his inquiries as desired, as it would be personal, we hope he will like our efforts more the less in trying to avoid all impure sentiments and offensive personalities. We shall try to make the JOURNAL not only acceptable as a pure reflector of passing events, but prized for its information. And as for the irregular reception of it, the fault lies not with us, for it is mailed regularly, but it is among some of the Post Masters, and we have received here of late several complaints of non-reception from different Post Offices. We hope our Postmasters will not deal unkindly with us, by failure to send us detention, but will hasten the JOURNAL on to its destination that it may gladden the hearts of those in waiting for it.

Marietta Female College.

We desire to call your attention to the communication of Col. Wm. L. Goodyear, which appears in this issue. Read it ye Citizens of Marietta and Cobb—all of you who have daughters to educate—all who feel an interest in the prosperity of Marietta. Our city undoubtedly has the advantage of any other place in the State, in point of desirableness, for the location of Schools and Colleges, and if we will but make a united effort, and give cordial support to the efforts made in our behalf, looking to the building up of such institutions, we will reap a rich reward in the growth and prosperity of our city, and not of the city only, but of the entire county. The hope of Marietta is in building up school-out institutions. Now is the golden opportunity; if we let it pass unimproved, we may never have another. Marietta will dwindle into a mere railroad station, and "Ichabod" will signify its doom. Let us then resolve to give Mr. Rogers a cordial support. If we will do our part, he will do his. He will be the right man in the right place, but he needs our assistance to insure success. Can we not assure him of our cordial and united support? What say you fathers? What say you property holders? What say you merchants? What says everybody? All are interested, vitally interested, in this movement. Its success is the success of Marietta. Its failure is the doom of Marietta. Let us be up and doing, resolved, earnestly resolved, that the Marietta Female College shall be a success.

Marietta.

Ten thousands resolves have been made by our citizens to secure their influence and capital to the then immediate re-organization of prosperity to our beautiful little city, in building Colleges, Factories, Railroads, and other beneficial institutions of like character, that would add wealth to our city, county and State. But these resolves, decrees and motions of the mind, which was done so easily, have come to naught. Can we not carry into effect some of the stupendous thoughts that have engaged the public mind, and breathed a fresh new life that will give impetus to a sure and rapid strides to prosperity of our city in all the gradations of trade? We think so.—Why not then invest in that which you cannot fail to be benefitted by? Other men, in other cities, do not hesitate to venture in investments that but promise a glimmer of success, and the result is they make money, bring population and add every way to the growth of their city. Have up not the last, energy and ability that they have? Ventures makes merchants, and we wish to see more ventures made by our moneyed men. Evidently we are not doing anything in the way of material prosperity. Railroads are being built all over the country and around us but none of them pass through Marietta, but the State Road. Factories are going up all over the South, but not one in Marietta. Colleges are blessing the people of other portions of the State, but Marietta is indifferent as to their accruing benefits and importance. When for sufficient interest and assistance we could found, with our wide spread reputation and unsurpassed advantages, the next Female College in the South. These are matters you are all concerned in and without more effort and enterprise Marietta will be left out on dry land. The productions of the farmers of this country and those contiguous, you allow to go to Atlanta and other places; make Marietta the market for these products. Now is the time to come to the rescue. Arouse the slumbering sensibilities of your natures to the true interest and danger of your own city. Rightly apply the latent money that is corroding for want of use. Remember this is the "Age of Progress" and those cities that do not keep pace dwindles into insignificance.

BALLOU'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—We are in receipt of this marvellously cheap and handsome Magazine for December. In table of contents is variel ain't charming, embracing the usual fine variety of serials, sketches, stories, poems and attractive engravings. The publishers announce in the prospectus for the coming year, a serial story for adults, by the popular Magazine writer, JAMES FRANKLIN FITTS, and a juvenile serial by the young people's favorite HORATIO ALGER, JR. The price of this periodical is a marvel to everybody—a hundred page first class illustrated Magazine for fifteen cents, or $1.50 per year, is indeed wonderfully cheap. Elliot, Thomes & Talbot, Publishers, Boston, Mass.

[illegible] which is before us, is a very handsomely printed weekly from Athens, Georgia, Edited by M. O. Fulton and S. A. Atkinson and furnished at $3 per annum. It is, we believe, the first weekly journal published in Georgia devoted exclusively to agriculture.

The November Number of "The XIXth Century," maintains the high character of preceding numbers. It is a work peculiarly adapted to Southern tastes and sentiment and is worthy of generous Southern support. Published by XIX Century Company, Charleston S. C.

We have glanced at the opening article in this number—"Reminiscences of Public men of South Carolina," by Ex-Governor Perry—in which it is said Mr. Calhoun expressed to the writer, the opinion "that the love of the Federal Union is stronger than the love of liberty with the American people," than the love of liberty with the American people," to which though then dissenting, Mr. Perry now says:—"But, it would seem from our present political condition that he was right and I wrong. A large portion of the Northern people seem willing to re-[illegible] a military despotism to preserve the Union.'

Arthur's Home Magazine—The Publishers of this excellent Magazine have issued a glowing Prospectus for 1870; full of attractions both in the way of embellishments and original papers. Physician's Use Them in Their Practice.

It is almost universally the case that Physicians condemn what are generally known as "Patent Medicine." Although Dr. Tutt's Liver Pill is not a Patent Medicine, yet its composition (the result of years of study) is known only to himself and so palpable are their valuable curative properties, that very many of our first Physicians in the South and West have adopted them in their practice and recommend them to their patients.

REVERSALS OF HISTORY.—The past few years have seen some astonishing attempts at reversing long settled historical questions. But the peculiar genuises lauded by Fronde are outdone in audacity, if not in shrewdness, by the Manchester Union, which declares "The Democratic party never rebelled —the South never rebelled." What an astonishing revelation is this! There never was any rebellion!—Statesman.

A great deal of reputed history will be reversed by the dispassionate judgment of the future. Greeley's "Great American Conflict" and similar books by similar men, may pass for authentic history during this generation; but by and by some writer who will have no motive to pervert the truth and no popular prejudice to conciliate, will re-write the record of the last twenty years, and show who the "rebels" were.

We do not propose to undertake this work. We will only say that the ultimate opinion of the rebellion—for there was a rebellion—must necessarily rest upon those who broke the faith we all owe to the Constitution. It will always be a pleasant memory in our newspaper experience that the Statesman once concurred with us fully in our estimation of the evil designs and tendencies of Abolitionism. And moral rebellion began twenty years ago; and the political rebellion consisted in the prosecution of such a policy of insult, irritation, violence and menace, as compelled a self-respecting people to remonstrate and resist.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

How Hostetter's Bitters Cure Dyspepsia.

THE WHOLE STORY IN A NUTSHELL.

The office of the stomach is to convert the food into a cream-like semi fluid, called "Chyme." This effected partly by the action of a solvent, called the gastric juice, which exudes from the coats of the stomach, and partly by a mechanical movement of that organ, which churns, as it were, the dissolving ailment. The Chyme passes from the stomach into the duodenum, or entrance to the bowels, where it is subjected to the action of the bile, and the nutritious portion is converted into a fluid called Chyle, which eventually becomes blood.

Now it is evident that if the great solvent, the gastric juice, is not produced in sufficient quantity, or the mechanical action of the stomach is not sufficient, or the bile is not secreted in sufficient quantity, or is not properly mixed with the chyme, the process is imperfectly performed. It is also clear that if the liver, which plays such an important part in changing the nourishing portion of the chyme into the material of the blood, is congested, or in any unnatural condition the second process will not be thoroughly accomplished. The result of the two failures is dyspepsia, complicated with biliousness.

The mode in which "Hostetter's Bitters" operate in such cases is this: they invigorate the cellular coat of the stomach, which envelopes the gastric juice, thereby insuring an ample sufficiency of the solvent; they also tone the liver. They also act upon the nerves of the stomach, causing an acceleration of the mechanical movement necessary to reduce the food to a homogeneous mass. They also act specifically upon the liver, strengthening it, and so enabling it to produce an ample and regular supply of bile, for the purpose of converting the nutritious particles of the Chyme into Chyle, and promote the passage through the bowels of the useless debris.

In this way, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS cure dyspepsia and liver complaint. Such is the explanation in plain, simple, philosophical, and true.

WHO SHALL REAP THE BENEFIT?

The rapidity with which Georgia lands are rising in price, and the heavy margin still left for increasing valuation, suggests the inquiry who shall reap the benefit of the rise? Shall it be the strangers or the children of the soil? We beg every man to note the signs of the times. Three years ago, could hardly give away these lands at a nominal value. Plantation property was not worth the improvements upon it. Now, very quietly, all the eagerness are buying, and the rise since that time has been 200 per cent. or more. In three years from this time the rise will have been as great. There is no business in the world, with a more assured future before it than Southern agriculture. Save your money, then, young men, and buy lands. Turn your attention to farming, and abandon the fatal less manly and in no profitable and unprofitable avocations of the town.—Don't wait till the operations or Northern and Western speculators show you the value of Georgia soil, before you buy your homestead and devote your selves to farming, and become and return upon your own standing.—Macon Telegraph.

COTTON MANUFACTURES IN THE SOUTH.

The Augusta Factory has declared a quarterly dividend of five per cent. and the Graniteville Manufacturing Company a dividend of two and a half per cent. The facts show what extensive manufacturing will do in the South. It is the most profitable branch of industry in which capitalists can embark. The manufacturing of cotton in the South is bound to become large and extensive. The surplus profits arising from the production of the raw material will necessarily be invested in a manufacturing establishment. A little more cause no other investment will pay such handsome a profit; second, because there will be nothing else to invest their surplus in. If laborers could be multiplied by the ten or twenty thousand, as was the case in the days of slavery, huge amounts of each year's profits would be invested in labor and lands for increased production. But this is not the case now. We have a limited supply of labor. No amount of production, no extent of price will enable planters soon to increase the area of their crops.

The surplus profits cannot lie idle.—Cotton manufacturing is the nearest approach to their life long vocations, and to this new branch of industry the greater portion of their money will be invested. In a few years all the cotton grown in the South will be required to keep the looms and spindles of the American mills in operation. The South will in that time require for her own mills a million bales, and perhaps much more. We are in our infancy now in this branch of industry, and yet we find that the consumption of cotton the past year in the Southern States reached 163,253 bales, increased consumption of the Northern mills last year over that of the previous year was only 22,196 bales, notwithstanding the demand. Cotton manufactures is increasing in a greater ratio than the production of the raw material. The indications are that the South will show a much larger increase in consumption than the North, and but a few years hence this section will not be dependent upon the North for its cotton fabrics.—Nashville Union and American.

SAVANNAH FINANCIALLY.

According to the report of the Mayor and Treasurer the value of the taxable real estate of Savannah for 1869, is set down at $12,219,140, which, with $17,502,17 worth of railroad stock, etc., and public property belonging to the city valued at $1,209,795.79, makes the total resources of the city foot up $30,931,077.96.

A young farmer asked an old Scotchman for advice in his pursuit. He told him what had been the secret of his success in farming, and concluded with the following warning: "Never Sam die, never sell above all things—never get in debt, but if you ever do, let it be for manure!"

Speaking of Tare Gentility.—Depend upon it, religion is, in its essence, the most gentlemanly thing in the world. It will alone genialize, it tunnished with cant, and I know nothing else that will.

Aim High.—It is a mark of generous spirit to aim at what is lofty, to attempt what is arduous, and ever keep in view what it is impossible for the most splendid talents to accomplish.

The tongue is like the mysterious organ that turns thought into sound.

THE DRUNKARD'S HOME.

Of all the woe, and wail, and anguish, sickness, with sudden and untimely death, of all the scenes of misery which call loudly for sympathy; there is none that so harrows up the feelings as the drunkard's home! Look at him who began life with the love of friends, the admiration of society, the prospect of fame and wealth before him, in a few short years, when he has learned to love the draught, which, we shall see while we say it, reduces him to the level of the brute. Where is now his manhood? where the admiration he once drew? where the love of a wife, or a child, can cling to him in his degradation. Look at the woman, who, when she repeated "to honor and obey," would have shrunk with terror and the faintest shadow of the "worse" fallen upon her young heart. Is she the whom her bridal day was greeted with such gestures and tokens of joy? Ah, me! what a sad change! And the children, for whom he thanked God, at their birth; the little ones of whom he had been so proud, whom he had blessed, died on his knee, and taught to lisp God endearing name of father—are they not trembling before him, and crushed at the "worse" fallen upon her young heart. Is she the whom her bridal day was greeted with such gestures and tokens of joy? Ah, me! what a sad change! And the children, for whom he thanked God, at their birth; the little ones of whom he had been so proud, whom he had blessed, died on his knee, and taught to lisp God endearing name of father—are they not trembling before him, and crushed at the sight of his degradation? Look at the empty basket, and the full bottle, the natural wants of the body denied, to satisfy the unnatural cravings of a depraved appetite.

Oh, God, have pity upon the drunkard's home!

A Yankee—Anecdote of Old Abolitionist John Brown visited this town on Saturday last. He was attracted here, doubtless, by a desire to view the spot where his distinguished father's spirit began its marching on.—Church and What Has Just Passed

A locomotive, at an average speed of thirty miles an hour, would reach the moon in eleven months, and the sun in three hundred and fifty-two years.—Light travels from the sun to the earth in eight minutes.

ANNEXATION OF ST. DOMINGO TO THE UNITED STATES.—The recent departure of several United States vessels-of-war to the West Indies is creating no little speculation. The New York World says:

Less day or two St. Domingo will doubtless be occupied by United States troops. The sailing of the man-of-war Albany for that place on Wednesday has created intense excitement among the Cubans and sympathizers with the [illegible] in favor of a definite policy of the United States Government in favor of the revolution. The Spaniards in the city and their sympathizers construe the matter in another way, but are in doubt as to the exact meaning of the movement.—They would like to consider it a movement designed to aid in suppressing the rebellion, but, knowing the American sentiment on the subject as well as they do, they are much in doubt as to whether it means friend-ship or hostility to the Spanish Government.

The New York Sun, says:

Unless our information is greatly in error, the extensive additions just made and still making to our active naval armament intended to fight either Spain or England, but simply to keep [illegible] the annexation of the Dominican Republic to the United States.

We understand that the conditions of annexation have been fully agreed upon between Gen. Babcock, a confidential officer of Gen. Grant's staff, acting [illegible] President, and the authorities of St. Domingo. The treaty, these terms are similar to those of the annexation of Texas, is to be laid before the Senate on the opening of Congress, and, as all the members of the Dominican government and all the leading men among their people are anxious for the ratification and consummation of the measure, it is not expected that any considerable time will elapse before the senate approves the acquisition and authorizes the Executive to complete it.—Gen. Babcock left Washington for New York on Saturday last, and will leave there for the West Indies. are sent there at the request of President Baez and his advisers. When the stars and stripes come to be raised in Dominica, one or more of those men-of-war will be found in each of the principal seaports, with a small force of the United State, marines or infantry will be landed to occupy the forts and render the transfer secure and peaceful. There is no danger of any real trouble; but the revolutionary faction under Carbral, though impotent to influence or resist the action of the Dominican people, would be very likely, if no precautions were taken, to make the annexation of the republic the occasion of seditious [illegible] disturbances."

WIDE AWAKE MINDS.

If you desire to accomplish anything of importance in the world, children, you must have your minds wide awake.—Many mountains in a doze all their days. Things pass before their minds, but [illegible] no more thought and feeling than the pictures of a dream. Just as these little every-day matters are passing, they are forgotten by thoughtful minds that have given rise to the greatest inventions and discoveries.

When cities lit the lamps of the Catholic Church had been filled with oil, it was [illegible] swinging by its brazen chains. Probably hundreds of listless worshippers had watched similar movements of the Cathedral lamps; but Galileo was the first to notice that those movements were in equal times. And then the thought flashed through his busy brain, that this principle might be made of use in measuring time. It took him fifty years to perfect his invention of a pendulum, but it is one of the greatest service to us, and of untold importance in astronomical science.

So when Sir Samuel Brown was studying over the subject of a cheap bridge across the Thames, he got an idea in his morning walk through his garden that led to the greatest results. And who do you suppose his teacher was? A tiny spider which had thrown a dew-sprangled net across his path.

"Why not construct a bridge of chains or iron rope," he thought, "to span the river?" and so the wonderful suspension bridges was invented.

The little ship-worm gave the first lesson to the great engineer, Brunel, about the construction of the Thames tunnel; and a lobster-shell suggested to [illegible] Watt the plan of an iron tube to carry water along the uneven bed of the river Clyde.

We should not despise lessons of wisdom from even the humblest of God's creatures. Remember who it was that said, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise." You must shake off sloth and indifference, and have your mind wide awake if you would find "books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything."

Mrs. Partington hearing of a Yankee's great feat, wondered if they "rubbed him all at walking.

The plot has been matured, it is said, to sell out the Democratic party of Georgia—the Democratic State Senators and Representatives to be the auctioneers. Bullock is to go to the U. Physicians Use Them in Their Practice.

It is almost universally the case that Physicians condemn what are generally known as "Patent Medicines." Although Dr. Tutt's Liver Pill is not a Patent Medicine, yet its extraordinary (the result of years of study) is known only to himself and so palpable are their valuable curative properties, that very many of our first Physicians in the South and West have adopted them in their practice and recommend them to their patients.

"PROGRESS IN TURKEY.

We have taken occasion to note the facts indicating that for a nation long supposed to be moribund, Turkey is adopting some extraordinarily lively and progressive measures. A law just passed ordains universal education of the people on a very comprehensive basis. Every village and district must have its primary school, and each religious denomination may have its own, but the attendance of children will be compelled. Girls as well as boys must attend. Normal schools are instituted for male and female teachers. The studies of the higher primary and preparatory schools include Turkish, Persian, Arabic, French arithmetic, geography, history, geometry, natural history, political economy. The population of the empire numbers about forty millions—enough for a first-class power—and that there is "life in the old land yet" is pretty well proved by this educational law. There are sicker men in Europe to-day than the Sultan, and with the infusion of liberal modern ideas among his people, his pow er should be, and probably will be, greatly invigorated.—Savannah News.

THE FAIR.

The writer took occasion of the Thanksgiving Holiday to walk over the Fair building and grounds. Whatever opinions may be expressed to the contrary, the exhibition is magnificent. It far exceeds in magnitude the anticipations of the Telegraph. The whole of that immense building—the Laboratory—is filled with trophies of art and ingenuity, and the upper floor—a hall between three and four hundred feet in length, is crowded with interesting objects. Splendid pianos, costly furniture, beautiful pictures, plate jewelry, embroideries, cloths clothing for ladies and gentlemen, books, carpets, boots and shoes, crockery, harness, plants, fruits, confectionaries, preserves, and many hundred articles of household and personal adornment and utility are here in endless detail.

Below in the first story the show in machinery and agricultural implements is literally grand, and fills the whole space. Outside are horse powers, cotton presses, [illegible] stock and fowls, besides a great many outside shows of all kinds.

The sight at the amphitheatre or hippodrome was literally magnificent. That immense circle built to accommodate ten thousand people was crowded—not a foot's space was lost. It was a living bank of human flowers—brilliant with all hues and radiant with Georgen loveliness. The hippodrome contained eight or ten thousand. The grounds ouside were thronged. The Laboratory building was literally a press above and below, and Huff's Rink, outside and inside was a sea of life. The whole represented an assemblage of fifteen to twenty thousand people and constituted one of the most brilliant scenes we ever beheld.—Macon Telegraph.

THE RADICAL LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA.

The Montgomery Mail thus describes the Radical negro Legislature of that State, which assembled in Montgomery on Monday last. The editor says:

The Legislature convened yesterday in regular session, at 12 a. m. All the thieves, penitentiary convicts, Yankee-bummers bigamists, barbers and shoe-blacks were in their seats. Had there not been present a score of true Alabamians, in the shape of the little band of Democrats, the concern might have been mistaken for a lunatic asylum or a penitentiary. The Assembly may be generally characterized as low-browed and empty-pocketed. It is suggestive of wharf-rats, pluggities and sneak-thieves. Tobacco spittle trickles down from the corners of its mouth. Crow-feet radiate from the contracted eyes. The skin is drawn tightly over its nose. Its breeches are greasy. Its boots are unblacked, it smells of cheese and odor d'afrique.

His head is about as large as a coon's, and recedes so rapidly from the root of his nose that if a stream of water were poured perpendicularly upon his brow, none of it would run off the back of his head than off his face. His organs of intellection, if he ever had any, have vacated and taken up their abode in the posterior part of his brain which makes the cerebellum appear like a market basket hung to the back of his head. His teeth seem to be all gone, and his gums close up to keep his chin out of danger. His nose looks like the butt end of a blood hound, and his eyes look like auger holes in a mushmelon rind.

An Example to the Young.—The Telegraph & Messenger learns from a friend that Mr. J. T. Dowling, a very young farmer of Putnam county, has picked and packed twenty-five bales of cotton from seventy-five acres of land—each bale weighing five hundred pounds. One acre of this crop yielded three thousand five hundred pounds of seed cotton. This, besides twenty two bushels of wheat to the acre, and premiums for "best and largest variety of grapes under successful cultivation," and best wine from said grapes, and abundance of corn, speaks well for Putnam County.

The Radical Platform.—Sherman leaves down the Radical platform for Georgia as follows: "If the General Assembly re-seats the colored members, that is what we want. Then Congress can enforce the 14th amendment in all of the States as it had an undoubted right to do, and our General Assembly will be straightened out."

It would have been better for the people of Georgia, if it had been straightened out, at first.

Negro Emigration to the South-west.—The Chronicle and Sentinel of Sunday says:

Four cars filled with negroes passed through here last night en-route for Louisiania to work on plantations. They are emigrating from the Carolinas.—This will be a good way to "remove the veil and lift the pressure" from South Carolina.

The Live Democracy.—The New York Herald, which has been talking for months about the moribcund state of the Democratic party, now says: "The significant fact that the Democratic party is still strong and has a great hold upon the people stands out prominently in the results of the elections."

WHAT THE DOCTOR'S SAY.

AMOS WOOLEY, M. D., of Kosciusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County Ohio says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medical properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success, as an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever used or known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., Middlebury, Vt., says: I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

Rheumatics. Listen and Learn.

Prof. Kaynton, the popular and celebrated manufacturer of Kaynton's Oil of Life, the best and surest limiment for rheumatism known, has now discontinued his travels throughout the States to see the lame and the cripple, and those otherwise afflicted by rheumatism, or neuralgia, or pains in the side, &c., for he argues and well too, that the people can cure themselves without him by using his Oil of Life; the virtues of which are universally acknowledged. Some people are foolish enough to think from the small and speedy cures made on the west, before their eyes on their friends, that the Professor's hands were bewitched, but we assure all that the Professor's virtue lies only in his Oil of Life and good rubbing. For rheumatism, for pains in the back, for sprains, bruises or wounds of every description can be used that Kaynton's Oil of Life is acknowledged as great and without an equal, giving the patient almost instantaneous relief by one rubbing. For sprains or bruises, it has also been used with marked success.

Kaynton's Dyspeptic Pills, purely vegetable, are an excellent cathartic. Metcalf & Robbins, wholesale agents, N. Y.

How Hostetter's Stomach Bitters Operate.

THE WHOLE STORY IN A NUTSHELL.

The object of a cathartic is to convey the contents of a person's bowels. This is effected partly by the peristaltic motion of the intestines, called "Dysmotility," and partly by a secretion of a peculiar fluid, called "Chyme." This is of a faetid purgative character, and is also called the gastric juice, which exudes from the coating of the stomach, and partly by a mingling therewith of that secretion, which, when diseased, is bitter, the disease called "Dyspepsia." The Chyme passes from the stomach into the duodenum, or entrance to the bowels, where it is subjected to the action of the bile, and the nutritious portion of it converted into a fluid called Chyle, which evenually becomes blood.

Now, it is evident that if the great solvent, the gastric juice, is not produced in sufficient quantity, and the mechanical action of the stomach is not sufficient to do the first process of digestion will be but imperfectly performed. It is also clear that if the Bile, which plays such an important part in changing the nutritious portion of the chyme into the material of the blood, is congested, or in any unnatural condition the second process will not be thoroughly accomplished. The result of the two failures is dyspepsia, complicated with biliousness.

The medicine which "Hostetter's Bitters" operate in such cases is this—they invigorate the cellular membrane of the stomach, which excites the gastric juice, thereby insuring an ample sufficiency of the fluid to completely dissolve the food. They also act upon the nerves of the stomach, causing an acceleration of the mechanical movement necessary to reduce the food to a homogeneous mass. They also act specifically upon the liver, strengthening it, and so enabling it to produce an ample and regular supply of bile, for the purpose of converting the nutritious particles of the Chyme into Chyle, and promote the passage through the bowels of the useless dchris.

"EVERY LIGHT HAS ITS SHADOW."

BY

J. C. C. BLACKBURN, ECHARLE, GA.

Morning peeps above the horizon and lo! it is day. The gloom of night disperses, and clouds tipped with pink and gold float around the glorious orb that is again to brighten up and cheer all nature. The flower sits with pride upon her slender stem, and rears her head in scorn of any coming evil. The bird chirps so sweetly and hops about so gaily from bough to bough, never dreaming of the morrow. The lamb sports and frisks by mother's side in gay defiance of future harm. The fish swim about in their limpid water, visiting the coral caves and the sea-weed banks without a thought that aught is ever to mar their future happiness. Even the worm, that poor unsignificant thing, which is beneath the notice of every one, has its joys; it can bask in the sunshine for awhile, feed enjoy itself in liberty for awhile, and never dream that a shadow is near.

What can compare to the rainbow's hue as it spans the arch above emblematic of good tidings? Or the tiny wing of the insect with its variegated down antistinguished to the naked eye, and

Who ever saw the sea with scarcely a ripple to disturb its surface, smilingly catching each sparkling ray, and reflecting it back to some sister wave? A light boat skims along, and the hearts in that boat are light and gay. The heaven above is blue, and all things within and around them speak joy.

But morning has its night; its dark dreary cheerless night, with nought around but damp and darkness. The flower lavishes full its fragrance, gone! its leaves lie scattered around—the work of some rude hand. The little hummer's wings are broken, its life has fled, brought from the lofty bough by the hand of man. The little fish are serving as food to some huge monster of the deep; and the worm is trampled underfoot by some heedless passer by. The rain bow's colors fade and pass away.—The gay butterfly and insect are decoyed into the spider's web and there their brightness dies. The calm unruffled sea is agitated by the impending storm.—Her waves rise mountain high, and become terrible in the mighty ruin they involve. The bark has sunk and the light hearts are dead, the black waves cover all their joy and sunshine.

And thus it is ever with man. Each joy brings its sorrow, sooner or later; each smile has its briny tear, each pleasure has its pain. To-day we are glad and threading the mazy dance—to-morrow we are watching by some friend stretched on the bed of sickness.

To-day we are on the battle field, wild in the joy of having a victory—to-morrow the same field finds us bleeding at every vein, and mingling our life blood with another's gore. To-day we are being crowned with the poet's wreath—to-morrow we are cast into the dust by some bitter criticism. Such it seems to me is life; every thing goes by contradictions. If we even look on the pages of history, we find many of those who have shown as the brightest stars, becoming suddenly eclipsed, and giving up their glorious lives in the darkest death struggles.—Alexander after having climbed the dizziest heights of his ambition, his temples bound with chaplets dipped in the blood of countless nations, looked down upon a conquered world, and wept that there was not another world for him to conquer—set a city on fire and died in a scene unworthy of a man.

Hannibal, after having to the astonishment and consternation of Rome, passed the Alps, after having put to flight the armies of the "mistress of the world," and stripped their bushels of gold rings from the fingers of her slaughtered knights, and made her very foundations quake, fled from his country, hated by those who once exultingly united his name to that of their God, and died at last by poison administered by his own hand, in a foreign land, unwept and unlamented for.

Cæsar, after having conquered eight hundred cities, and dying his garments in the blood of a million of foes, after having pursued to death the only rival he had upon earth, was miserably assassinated by those he considered his nearest friends, and in the very place it had been his greatest ambition to attain.

Bonaparte, whose man late kings and princes obeyed, after having filled the earth with terror of his name, closed his days in lonely banishment, almost literally exiled from his friends and the world; yet when he could some times see his country's banner waving o'er the deep—but this banner would not or could not bring him aid.

Thus we may take these four men as representatives of all whom the world calls great—these four, who, in time made the earth tremble to its very center, by their simple heads, severally died—one by intoxication, or as some suppose by poison being mingled in his wine; one a suicide; one murdered by his friends; and one in lonely exile.

How are the mighty fallen, and what dark shadows seem to be cast by the "light of other days!"

ECHARLIE, GA., Nov. 27th, '69.

Mr. Editor:—This closes my contributions to your excellent JOURNAL. I have been but a poor contributor at best. And now I bid you and your readers adieu.

I leave my native state for the far, far off west, in quest of fortune and friends.

I leave my noble old commonwealth with regret, but fate has so decided.—We part with childhood friends with regret. Our heart is too full for utterance; the fountain within our soul is overflowing; but we have erected an altar within our heart upon whose shrine shall ever rest the loved images of our friends, and in the solemn hour of prayer their names shall mingle with those of home and heaven. God bless you and prosper the JOURNAL.

Yours truly,
J. C. C. BLACKBURN.

FOX-FIRE.

BY F. H. O.

When I was a boy, my father was a farmer, and I had three brothers older than myself. They were full of their pranks and seldom allowed an opportunity to pass unimproved to play off some joke on one another. I remember one night while I lay in my trundle-bed in a lower room, the brother next above me went up to his chamber to go to bed, but presently he hallooed and screamed in great fright, and came rushing down stairs with all possible speed. The older boys had prepared a fright for him in this wise: One of them had been chewing that dry in a stumpy lot, and many decaying roots were brought up by the plow and they ascertained in the evening that many pieces were phosphorescent.

Phosphorescence is the quality of emiting light without heat. There are many substances that possess this quality, and among others, decaying fish and wood. Under favorable circumstances they will be nearly as luminous in the dark as a live coal. Decayed wood in this condition is commonly called fox-fire.

They brought their pockets full of fox-fire to the house, and slipped up to his chamber unobserved; they cut it into suitable pieces and strips, and then arranged them in the form of a skeleton on top of his bed. The head was very large with an enormous mouth and frightful teeth; and in general outline the whole resembled the human form. It was a dark night, and brother William—he was the scared one—approached his bed unsuspectedly, and as was his wont, without a light. He was naturally rather cowardly in the night, and then in those days we believed in witches, goblins and spooks. Young people nowa-days are more correctly instructed, and scarcely one can be found simple enough to cherish such false and superstitious notions.

Suddenly the fiery picture fell upon his sight, as he turned around the large chimney to approach his bed. His excited imagination filled out what may have been imperfect in the image, and it seemed to him like a veritable ghost, which he declared it to be on recovering his speech after he came down stairs.—There was a great uproar in the family for a few minutes, but of course it was soon all made plain, and William crept under his comfortables, vexed at himself that he should be frightened by so familiar a thing as fox-fire, or spoke-wood as we used to call it.

If he had exercised presence of mind, he would have prevented the most of his fright, and his subsequent mortification. A second thought would have revealed the whole plot to him, but he was too impetuous—he could not wait for a second thought. This is a failing in many people, and all should watch and guard against it. We often hear girls, and even young ladies, shriek as if mortally hurt, from a very slight cause. This infirmity can be to a great extent controlled by habit of thought—by cultivating self-possession—presence of mind. We should all try, and that continually, to not be frightened—not to be caught off our guard.—School Day Visitor.

Mr. DALTON, of England, has by careful examination, shown that where there is mellow soil three feet under any crop, it can defy the weather and come to maturity without a drop of rain after the 1st of June. This shows that successful tillage husbandry on the arid plains of the far West depends wholly on deep plowing.

What is society, after all, but a mixture of mister-ies and miss-aries!

Sale Day.

Last Tuesday was Sale Day and we have not witnessed a larger assemblage of the men of the County in quite a long time. A Good deal of money changed hands in the sale of real estate and in other business transactions.

Longevity in Georgia.

A remarkable instance of longevity in Georgia was that of a Mrs. Elizabeth Herrington who recently died in Pierce County at the age of [illegible] years 10 months and 5 days. We know of one other instance of a man who died some years ago in Jones County at an age reaching 140 years.

Marietta Brass Band.

Right glad were we to observe, through the organ of hearing, the marked proficiency this Band had attained in the "sphere of music." Monday night they were out greeting the citizens of Marietta with "sweet music." More practice, young gentlemen, and you will excel the inventor of the instrument, in making music, which you now so understand aptly "blow."

More Music.

Our young men seem to be full of music. Not content with the music of the brass band in our city, a number of our young men have right [illegible] a String Band. Practicing is now consuming their leisure moments after twilight. Well, "variety is the spice of life," and with the competent teacher, which we learn you have, we wish you much success.

Beautiful Residences.

We see many beautiful residences being constructed in the city limits. This is a favorable indication of increasing prosperity, and to make this property valuable, as well as all of the city property, let every exertion be made by all the citizens to build up the Marietta Female College. Take an interest in this matter and you will be more than compensated in the increased value of trade and property.

Periodicals.

We invite attention to the prospectus of the Publishers of the Foreign Reviews. We take pleasure in doing all we can to extend the circulation of these valuable works.

The Rural Carolinian and Southern Cultivator for December 1st have been received. These works for 1870 will be highly interesting to our farmers.

We also acknowledge the receipt of that excellent work, Peters' Musical Monthly, which all lovers of classic and valuable Music should have.

Christmas.

Sparkling eyes and merry hearts of little ones have been in anticipation of the approach of "merry Christmas" for many weeks past. They ever look forward to that day with interest and glee, and we are glad to be able to tell them that two more weeks plenty in their perspective. Already preparations are being made by housekeepers for "a feast of reason and flow of soul," in the purchase of nice eatables and drinkables. Turkeys, chickens, eggs and butter, are scarce and will bring a good price until that day arrives. The venerable Santa Claus, the good [illegible] and [illegible] is busily engaged in the happiness and fun of the good children, is now doubtless gathering up his toys and trinkets and laying out his programme for distribution. Be quiet the night his advent with the day, when we will all "merry, merry be."

Death of O. D. Chester and B. B. Green.

Within the space of a week, two of Marietta's highly esteemed young men have had the chords that gave vitality to existence severed by the cold hand of death. The first, O. D. CHESTER, son of Dr. N. L. Chester, breathed his last on Wednesday night, the 1st instant, and the other, BYRON B. GREEN, son of Judge N. B. Green, silently passed away into the "great unknown" on last Monday night, the 6th instant.

Both of these young men have for a long time been lingering with that incurable disease, Consumption, preying upon their very vitals, and after having the best Medical treatment that could be obtained, which proved of no avail the obstinate and unrepressible invader, Death, subpoenaed the grand Judge in the respective family circles and claimed them as his own, and they now repose in the "Silent City of the Dead." To the bereaved families of these young men, we tender our indulgent condolence and sympathy and ask them to commune [illegible]

The Old Tale.

We seldom ever have to chronicle the movements of Cupid in his strategy of weaving the tangled web around unsuspecting hearts. A rustic girl of some beauty entered our city a few days ago in search of her swain, who had so irvily covenanted to still the bondings of love hearts as one" in the ceremony of nuptial fellowship. From the fragments of words gathered [illegible] we learned that her lover had come to town under the necessitous plea to "find employment" and had never returned to make good the vow that he would, and thus the idol of his exposed affections was being increasingly neglected. This infidelity on his part, and sincerity on hers, began operations in her mind as to the probable treachery of his heart and suspicion moved her to know of his whereabouts, and for that purpose she was in our city. At last accounts she was unable to find him and was mourning the fungs of misplaced confidence, "that love never did run smooth."

No doubt the world has entered the part of the deceiver and excused himself in order to place himself beyond the reach of the plaintive voice of injured innocence, and, without doubt, has long ago helped an unsuspecting [illegible] to swell the tide of emigrants "westward bound."

We pity her in heart, for she is desolate.

"And thus she wanders on—shall sad, half blest,
Without a mate for the pure lonely breast,
Their yearnings, throbs within her virgin breast,
Never to find its lovely counterpart."

Is it Wise?

Educational appreciation is at low ebb in Marietta if we are to judge from the attendance of the Educational Meeting last Monday night. Painful emotions course every fibre of our nature when we behold the sordid indifference and "don't care" spirit pervading the minds of our citizens. It seems an utter impossibility to assemble the citizens of Marietta together for any purpose whatever. When the vital spark of your city depends on education—in building up a Female College—for further existence, in any way of enlargement and prosperity, you clothe yourself in the gloomy habiliments of apathy and sit at home in your easy-chair, uttering, (as we interpret by your silence) that you have no interest in such affairs. When Marietta's life blood will have been sucked out by more enterprising and liberal cities, then you will be startled with the impression and the belief, for evade you cannot, it will stare you in the face that you did have some interest in such things. We do urge you in the entreaty of reasonable discretion, not to be as dickers rested in institutions that concern your own city's growth and prosperity.

Westward, Ho!

The inclination to go West is still uppermost in the minds of a large portion of the population in this section of the State. On last Tuesday night, over one hundred men, women and children, from the counties of Forsyth, Milton and Cherokee, took the train at this place for Arkansas and Texas, and we learn there will be as many more to start from Pickens county, for the same destination, during the next week. Never before have a people been moved in sentiment that was as delusive as this Texas fever is to those going West. From many of those who have settled there, we come back the intelligence of dissatisfaction. They find their hopes turning to ashes on their lips. Agonizingly they utter their disappointment for home friends and among those who are unable to help them. While some portions of Texas and Arkansas are indisputably desirable yet, for "every pound of honey there is two pounds gall," for health is a perfect stranger to the inhabitants. After making a prosperous crop, sickness prostrate, in nine cases out of ten, it being gathered by those who cultivated it. We learn from parties who formed it there last year, that after making a splendid crop, which they were forced by sickness to sell it as it stood in the field, unpicked, at reduced value. Some young men who left this county two months ago, write back from Texas, that they intend to return immediately and their relatives who have been living there for a number of years will return with them. Those of you now selling comfortable homesteads and scattering your upholstery and dispensing with well-raised stock, can learn that it is extreme folly and a want of an acquaintance to your best interest to persist in such a course. God never blessed a country in more natural gifts, in fertility of soil, mineral productions and salubrity of climate, than He has the one you are leaving, and we warn you to remain in Georgia, for she is destined, with her recuperative powers constantly in action, to be proudest and respected in Federal legislation, as well as powerful in wealth. To more West, is a practical reality and ignorance will not afford you alibis after deception, that you have followed, is stripped of its false and glittering promises, and it would be well to give sober reason and second thought sufficient territory in your minds before you blindly push on to this land, not "flowing with milk and honey," but fever and ague. If after deliberate consideration you [illegible]

Confederate Cemetery.

MR. EDITOR:—Will you permit me through your paper to mention, for the information of those interested in the State Cemetery for the Confederate dead—that I have recently received as a donation for the improvement of the ground, a large and valuable collection of handsome Evergreens, Willows, and Roses, from Rochester and Charlotte Nurseries, Rochester, N. Y., owned by Mr. H. L. Fairchild—Last fall, the Agent, Mr. S. C. Carpenter visited our Cemetery—and observing how destitute our grounds were of ornamental shrubbery, (for the reason that we were expending all our means in the more important work of providing a decent burial for our dead,) his kindly sympathies were excited—and forgetting all differences of sections over the graves of a brave foe, he exercised his influence, and generously sent this box of plants—valued at $150 to $200.

My thanks are due also to Rev. W. L. Mansfield for a barrel of bone dust.

The City Council having kindly furnished the necessary hands, for setting out the shrubbery—that energetic and noble hearted citizen—Mr I N. Russell who feels a deep interest in every thing so connected with our sacred dead, and exhibits that interest by deeds—has kindly undertaken to superintend this work, in a manner to insure the lives of the plants.

I have now closed my work here for the year—having exhausted the appropriation of $2000, made by the State and $2000 more gained by our Concerts last winter. With this amount I removed from the battle fields of South Georgia during the past summer 1127 bodies—besides having a great deal of work done, in the way of improving the other sections, by walks and drives—making stone gutters and turfing the graves &c.

It now remains for the people of Georgia to say whether this work shall be continued, until the last soldier who gave his life for duty passed, and lies scattered over fields of corn and wheat and by lonely road-sides—shall receive that kin country ears him—a burial in consecrated ground.

Respectfully, MARY J. GREEN,
Treas. "Georgia Memorial Association."

Some people were foolish enough to think from the swift and speedy cures made on the sick, halt, and blind by his friends, that the Professor's hands were bewitched, but we assure all that the sterling virtue lies only in the Oil of Life and good rubbing. For rheumatism, neuralgia: pains in the back, joints or sides, or wherever a liniment can be used that Kayton's Oil of Life is acknowledged as great and without an equal, giving the patient almost instantaneous relief by one rubbing. For Coughs, and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure, and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be few cases of fatal consumption. It causes the phlegm and matter to raise, (loosens irritating tissue, relieves organs of the Lungs,) and without producing constipation of the bowels. It also gives strength to the system, stops the night sweats, and changes all the morbid secretions to a healthy state.

A Wrong Impression Corrected.

Many persons believe that there is no value in anything that does not come from "the North." How humiliating! However, this impression is being gradually corrected. It is now settled that no remedy or agent has ever been discovered, North or South, that possesses in so eminent a degree, the power of eradicating from the system all foul distempers as Dr. Tutt's Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight. Whereas, Zebulin Williams, Administrator of John W Holbrook represents to the court in his petition duly filed in my office that he has fully administered John W Holbrook's estate. This is therefore to cite all persons concerned kindred and creditors to show cause if any they can why said administrator should not be discharged from his administration and receive letters of dismission on the first Monday in December 1869. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any remedy been so universally and so deeply implanted upon the confidence of mankind, as has the Cherry Pectoral, during many years of trial. Through a long series of years, and among all classes of the people, from the highest to the lowest, and higher in their estimation, as the years have rolled by, it has fully proved its power to cure the various affections of the throat and lungs, to make it known as a reliable protector against them. While subjected to the most distressing diseases to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for their protection. Its early use in time of dangerous affections of the throat and lungs, As a preventive against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and in all localities where these diseases prevail. Though it may not be considered necessary for the daily use of those whose general health is good, it is nevertheless a comfort to know that such a remedy is at hand, and that it will be found prompt and reliable, when required. Its occasional use will keep the system free from those irritating colds and coughs which, if neglected, fasten themselves upon the lungs. As a pectoral remedy, it is unsurpassed. Its composition is thought to be unknown to the physicians who use it, and it is believed that no other remedy has been so completely cured, and the public may rest assured that the use of the Cherry Pectoral, no compound in its mastery over the diseases for which it is recommended, will be found the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else can relieve the suffering victim, under the lingering decay of pulmonary consumption, the Cherry Pectoral will frequently arrest the disease, and restore the afflicted sufferer to sound and good protection from it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses. Few are the victims known that we need not publish, to prove its power over this disease, and many more the public can call to mind who have been restored to health and comfort by its use.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chills and Fever, Remittent Fever, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., are conquered by this remedy. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Mercury, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is novelty powerful antidote for the poison and influence of the miasm in the blood. Nor is it less effectual in the cure of all Liver Complaints, when arising from this cause, as it invariably does in the districts where Fever and Ague prevails. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through these districts, should be fortified against the fatal influence they inhale, by having their systems thoroughly imbued with the antidotal principles of this remedy. Travellers and residents are alike liable to the disease, and should be provided with it. Those who have been habitually afflicted with the disease, and have been broken down in health by the repeated administration of Quinine, will find in this remedy a perfect substitute for that drug, and one which will not prostrate the nervous system. Being purely vegetable, it is as harmless as sugar. Children may take it with perfect safety. As a Dinner Pill, it is the best now before the public. It will cure Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Jaundice, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Dropsy, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ulcers, Eruptions, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Boils, Pimples, Blotches, Tetter, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Canker, Worms, Female Irregularities, and Complaints incidental to females, and for the Purification of the Blood, it has no equal. Its effects are wonderful, and its cures are numerous and truly astonishing. Every dose will benefit the patient, and a trial will prove to the most skeptical that it is the best Liver Medicine ever used. Being sugar coated, it is pleasant to take, and is the cheapest cathartic in the market.

HOW MRS. LINCOLN PROPOSED TO PAY FOR A DINNER.

It is said that an one time B. B. French's life was made wretchedby Mrs Lincoln, who, as mistress of the White House and leader of society, believed that she owned, held, and possessed, the miserable Master of Ceremonies. When old Plon-Plon, courteously called Prince Napoleon, visited Washington, a grand dinner was given him at the White House. Commissioner French had charge of the entertainment, and it was a great success. After it was over, the imperious mistress of the Executive Mansion congratulated Monsieur French on its results, but she added :

"Now, you've got to pay for it."

"Me, Madam," exclaimed the astounded Commissioner, "My God, it cost all of seven hundred dollars."

"I don't care what it cost. "You've got to pay for it, I say."

"Why, it would ruin me."

"I don't mean that, you old goose. It was a public dinner, given for the credit of the government, and the government's got to pay, and its your business to see to it, that's all."

"But there is no appropriation," plead the unhappy Commissioner."

"What do I care for that. Go to old Seward ; he gave a dinner, too, and got the money out of the government, I bet. Go and tell him to put both dinners in."

Away went the disconsolate Commissioner to the old diplomatic Joe of the State Department, and related his grievances. The venerable Seward at first started in astonishment, and then laughed until he shook all over, and said :

"It won't wash Frenchy. Go and tell Mrs. Lincoln that the State Department is not a restaurant, and I have hard work to pay for my own dinners."

The Commissioner returned and tried to argue with the irate lady. But it was to no purpose. He was forced to run over all the appropriations. All were expended but that made for the manuring of the public grounds.

"Take that," cried the lady.

It grieved the soul of the Commissioner, for, in addition to other high offices, he was President of the National Agricultural Association, and to have the money appropriated to fertilize the barren grounds of the Capitol—to give a top-dressing to the squares and triangles —to have this misapplied to Prince Plon-Plon's gourmandizing was fearful. But he had no alternative, and the money was taken.

I don't know how the secret escaped the sorrow-laden breast of the Commissioner, but it leaked out, and there was a Congressional row that brought the affair to the ears of the President.

"Is this true?" he demanded. The Commissioner plead guilty, but put in extenuation the orders of Mrs. Lincoln.

If you ever do such a thing again, whether instigated by Mrs. Lincoln or the devil, I'll have you arrested, sir," roared the President, bringing his fist down on the table with a bang that made Monsieur French jump a foot high.—"There," he added, "take the check, and replace the money."

Clean faces, clean clothes, clean shoes, and clean finger-nails, indicate good breeding. Never leave your clothes about the room. Have a place for everything and everything in its place.

Rap before entering a room, and never leave it with your back to the company. Always offer your seat to a lady or old gentleman.

Never put your feet on cushions, chairs or tables.

Never overlook any one when reading or writing, nor read or talk aloud while others are reading.

Never talk nor whisper at meetings or public places, and especially in a private room, where any one is singing or playing the piano.

Be careful to injure no one's feelings by unkind remarks. Never tell tales, make faces, call names, ridicule the lame, mimic the unfortunate, nor tease or cruel to insects, birds, or animals.

—"Mother, what did father pray to General Grant so much in church for yesterday?" asked the bright little daughter of a ministerial friend, lately.

"I don't know that he did sis."

"Why, yes; dont you know? He was always saying, "Grant, we beseech thee."

"Do you call that a veal cutlet, waiter?" said an old gentleman, dining at a restaurant. "Why, it's an insult to every calf in the country." "Well, sir, I didn't mean to insult you," returned the waiter.

The question, "are we intellectual people?" is well answered by the statement that there are ten billiard tables to every school house, and forty saloons to every church, in the United States.

—Jones said to Nibbles, "Poor Lucinda took that circumstance very much to heart." Nibbles replied: "Did she indeed? The dear girl! I wish I was that circumstance."

It is estimated that America, when her productive power is fully developed, will be able to feed four times as many persons as there are now on the face of the earth.

ARKANSAS HEARD FROM.

Testimony Medical Men.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.
Dr. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Last February I was in Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gist who has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

years—stomach and liver affected—he improved very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given me great popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship one via Memphis, care of Rickel and Neely.

Respectfully,

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine. The following letter from a highly esteemed and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible commendations I have ever received. Dr Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves to be written in letters of gold. Read what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER.

VILLOW, WALKER COUNTY GA., }
June 29, 1866. }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the allopath or those that is so certain and speedy to be relied on. On the contrary they are uncertain in its results. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get upon easy terms, I shall use a great deal of it—as I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the teachings and practice of a great majority of the regular line of M. D.'s. But I see no just cause in a good sense in discarding a remedy which we know to be efficient, simply because I may be ignorant of its combination. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate or effecting humanity which I may be able to command—and hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have learned its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means a slave to the support of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, that purport to cure all manner of diseases to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your best terms. I am sir, most respectfully,

JULIUS P. CLEMENT, M. D.

Dr. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not got up a sound one yet. The ball passed through and thigh. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have never been in your city, and the most of my citizens. I much that the Sarsaparilla will prove me half a dozen times over, and oblige

Capt. C. P. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written in April, 20, 1865 by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My son Capt. C. P. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhœa and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. It CURED HIM. I have forten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were miraculous. I am now in the most extreme old age, and would be ungrateful to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, therefore writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe He will recover.

ASUE AND FEVER
OR
CHILLS AND FEVER

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for certainty, safety, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of t assertion, that in no case when it was given in full time, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and in both families have been cured by a single bottle with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case where a cure is sure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order, during the paroxysm, however, reduce a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic. A single box of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

[COMMUNICATED]

POWDER SPRINGS, GA., Dec. 4, '69.

MR. R. M. GOODMAN:—There are embraced in the Agricultural Reports [illegible] excellent ideas, and acres full of good advice to Farmers, which we should not let pass by unheeded.

The worthy Commissioner of Agriculture most truthfully remarks: "The modest reserve and quiet independence of our rural population have heretofore barred the great interest of agriculture from its proper prominence in the legislation of the country; while other interests more active and clamorous, with advantages of association, abundant means, and concentrated effort, have often secured special protection at the expense of the farmer. Unfortunately this disinclination to self-seeking, and lack of ambition for public station, result too generally in the selection from towns and cities of national legislators, from towns and cities of national legislators, from other avocations, some of whom have little knowledge of the peculiar wants of the farming class, and many others may have connection with other interests that may be brought into frequent antagonism with those of agriculture.

Instead of this, farmers should be so educated and trained as to be qualified to do such work for themselves. Their occupation should take its proper position as a profession, and exert its proper hands influence, civilly and politically, as it heretofore has physically.

Again. How can farmers' boys be made to love farming? By cultivating fruit to such an extent that they shall love the farm that produce it. Their home must be made pleasant, tasty, and symmetrical in its external appearance, beautiful in surroundings and in its internal construction, and orderly in its management. Peace, harmony and quietness must exist between the parents and throughout the household.—A firm, decided and mild government must control all the children, boys and girls, alike. The children must be early led to feel a degree of interest and responsibility in the success, prosperity and respectability of the family as a whole, and of each individual member of it. Give the children as thorough an elementary education as practicable, and always furnish them with a good variety of agricultural books and periodicals. Show them that you are yourself interested in farming, and do not go to your work grudgingly.

Mr. Editor, the agricultural Society of Powder Springs had a very pleasant an interesting meeting on this afternoon. The subject of upbuild ing our lands and of making the various fertilizers, was the prominent. How the different manures should be made, of what material, how kept and how applied. This subject elicited some fine remarks and good suggestions from various members, and upon the whole we feel much benefited by being a member. We hope to see many, very many more agricultural clubs formed in our county and State.

Very Respectfully Yours &c.,

A. C. MCINTOSH.

GEORGE PEABODY.

Funeral Ceremonies in Westminster Abbey —The Queen and the Dead Philanthropist.

Yesterday, a little after noon, the remains of the late Mr. Geo. Peabody were deposited in their temporary resting place in Westminster Abbey, there to await their removal to America. It is understood that although the departed philanthropist used to express a wish to end his days in England, he had constructed, or ordered to be constructed, a mausoleum in his native State of Massachusetts, looking forward to the day when his bones should rest among his own people.

The hour of the arrival of the funeral at the Abbey was fixed for 1:30; and about 1 o'clock the funeral cortege set out from the residence of Sir Curtis M. Lampson, No. 80 Eaton Square, where Mr. Peabody died. It consisted of a hearse drawn by four horses, preceded by a lid of plumes, and followed by five mourning coaches. In the first were Sir Curtis Lampson and Mr. Chas. Reed, M. P., the two executors, his Excellency the United States Minister and Mr. Benj Moran. In the second carriage were Hon. F. Morse, United States Consul-General; Mr. Josiah Nunn, Vice-Consul, and Messrs George and Henry Lampson. In the third were Russell Sturgis, Mr. J. S. Morgan, Mr. Somerby and Mr. Norman Lampson. In the fourth were Mr. C. Gooch, Rev. Thomas Nolan, Dr. Gull and Mr. W. H. Covay, (the medical attendants of the deceased gentleman,) and in the last carriage were Mr. Grinnell and Mr. Winters (valet to Mr. Peabody.)

After the mourners a long string of private carriages brought up the rear of the procession, including those of the Queen, the Prince of Wales, Sir Curtis Lampson, Mr. Chas. Reed, M. P., his Excellency the Minister of the United States, the United States Consul.

Following the line of route past St. Peter's Church and along Victoria street, the procession arrived at the Abbey about half-past one. The pavements on either side of the streets and also the windows of many of the houses were observable that the crowd was largely composed of the class which was so largely benefitted by Mr. Peabody's munificence, and not a few were dressed in mourning. The crowd was most orderly and decorous, and showed all possible feeling of respect for the good man who was being carried to the Abbey.

On reaching the Abby the coffin containing Mr. Peabody's remains was received by, at the western entrance, the Canon in residence, Canon Nepean, Rev. Lord John Thynne Archdeacon Jennings, Rev. S. Flood Jones, Rev. Federick Harford, and the rest of the Cathedral clergy, together with the Vicars choral and choristers. These were reinforced with a considerable part of the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral, who had volunteered their services on the occasion. They walked before the body, two and two, up the nave, and under the triforium into the choir. The coffin, which was covered with handsome black velvet and surmounted by a wreath of immortelles, was carried by ten men and deposited on a stage in front of the steps leading up to the altar.

The mourners took their places on seats reserved for them on either side of the sacrarium, and inside the rails of the Communion table were seated the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs and Under Sheriffs, in their official robes, together with Mr. Gladstone and Lord Clarendon, who were in private dress, as likewise was General Grey who attended as the representative of Her Majesty. The "Sentence," "I am the Resurrection," having been sung, and the nineteth Psalm, "Lord, Thou hast been our refuge," having been chanted by the choir, Archdeacon Jennings read the lesson from one Corinthians, Chapter XV. The lesson ended, the funeral procession was resumed, and while an anthem was sung, the coffin was carried back, as before, into the nave and placed by the side of an opening three feet deep, into which it was lowered, the services at the grave being impressively read by the Sub-Dean, Rev Lord John Thynne. At the conclusion of the service, the "Dead March" in "Saul" was played on the organ by Mr. Turle, with his usual skill and power.

The interior of the Abbey, to both the nave and choir of which admission was given by tickets, presented a very marked appearance, from the fact that every one was dressed in mourning. It was observed that a very large proportion of the spectators present were unmistakably Americans; and indeed, we believe that in the distribution of tickets the executors showed every possible anxiety that as many of Mr. Peabody's fellow-countrymen as desired should be present on the melancholy occasion.

While the "Dead March" in Saul was being played the mourners, one after another, stepped forward to take a parting look at the coffin as it lay in its shallow receptacle near the third arch from the western door of the nave. The mourners having been withdrawn into the Jerusalem chamber preparatory to rejoining their carriages, the rest of the congregation were admitted to see the coffin, and the large crowd dispersed, but very gradually, the Americans present being apparently anxious to avail themselves of the opportunity to gaze leisurely at the monuments in the nave and the transepts of the Abbey. We should add that a strong body of police were present, who had no difficulty in keeping order, in spite of the enormous crowd both within and without the sacred edifice.—The funeral arrangements, which were under the charge of Messrs Banting & Co., were in every way satisfactory. We

The Queen had expressed a great wish to see Mr. Peabody again, and to have some conversation with that excellent man. In fact, just before he left England, on the last occasion of his staying in this country, Her Majesty wrote a letter to him requesting him to let her know of his return to England, whenever that he should be. Immediately upon his arrival here, Mr. Peabody communicated the fact to Her Majesty. The Queen was aware that he was in delicate health, and conveyed to him her wish that on her return from Balmoral, he would visit her at Windsor, where, without being obliged to dine with her, or to go through anything which might be a fatigue to him, she could see him "quietly." When Her Majesty was made aware of the serious access of illness under which Mr. Peabody was laboring, she proposed to come and see him at Sir Curtis Lampson's house, in Eaton square, where he was staying. The rapid termination of his disease, however, rendered this impossible, to her Majesty's deep regret.

CIRCULARS &c.

We have just received a lot of Letter and Cap Paper for Job Work and are ready for orders.

Dr. J. C. Greer.

We omitted to call attention last week to the Dental Card of Mr. J. C. GREER. He does good work and will give satisfaction.

Demorest's Illustrated Monthly.

The Model Parlor Magazine of America, for January has been received, a more particular notice of which, will be given in our next issue.

An Invitation.

We have received from the Superintendent of the W. & A. Railroad a Circular inviting us to attend a meeting of Coal Miners, dealers and Manufacturers using Coal to be held in Atlanta Tuesday next. The object is to give additional impetus to the development of this great interest of the State and of the Road.

North Georgia Conference.

The above named Conference of the M. E. Church South, held its annual session at Rome, Ga., during last and present week. We learn that Rev. W. F. COOK, who has been stationed here for the past three years, has been assigned for the ensuing year at Rome, and will be succeeded here by Rev. Mr. JARRELL. Rev. G. W. YARBOROUGH goes to Dalton.

Christmas!

HIRSCH offers unusual attractions for the holidays. His Confectionaries are unsurpassable—his Toys excellent and numerous, and his fire works will be the delight of the young.

Other merchants of Marietta are doing their part to make the great festival a happy one for young and old. Our friend AGRICOLA has many rare and nice things and our Drug Houses could not altogether resist the inclination to do something for the special occasion. May they receive and impart any amount of innocent joy.

Life Insurance.

Our friend W. H. Tucker of Marietta has taken the Agency for the Southern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Louisville, Ky. We feel safe in recommending this Company as one of the safest and best managed Life Companies [illegible] State. It has a large Cash Capital, is strongly endowed and recommended to the Southern people by his Excellency Governor Stephenson, the present Governor of Kentucky, Col. D. Howard Smith, State Auditor and other officials of the State. Its officers and Managers are experienced financiers and first class business men. The Editor has a Policy in this excellent and well established Company and has known of its management for several years, and we hope our friends in Georgia will patronize it liberally as no other Company will do better for them. Rev. Fazel Lowrey is also Agent for this Company.

"Root Hog or Die."

From the appearance of the side-walk by the side of the JOURNAL building, it would make one believe that demons had entered the swine of our city as they did in days when He walked the earth and cast them out of men, but in place of drowning themselves, they are rooting the terra firma of the side walk turned into a preparation suitable for seed planting. These hog rooters seem to be indued with the same spirit that BULLOCK is, (indeed we think there is a good deal of affinity in the two animals,) rooting where they can find the most food regardless of who it hurts. They can out root any set of rooters of their and Bullock's kind, that ever rooted after the roots of the trees that adorn said side walk. If at once the proper authorities do not fix this walk, pedestrians will be unable to pass where these rooters have so effectually rooted. Don't delay this matter, for these rooters still continue to root as if it was "Root Hog or Die."

Progress in Southern Manufacturies.

Southern Manufacturies, Phoenix like, are springing up all over the South as if by magic. We are again permitted to chronicle one more, [illegible] taring Company, situated 7 miles from this city on Soap Creek. It is now in successful operation and [illegible]

Who will take Pity?

A young man in our city—who is well off not only in a happy disposition, but possesses a physiognomy that would captivate one irresistibly with its red rose-bud loveliness, and the gentle curve of his upper lip is not devoid of the compatible encumbrance of a tender progeny that tonsorial caresses have given animated beauty and growth to; his mental endowments is vivaciously good; he handles money lavishly in the utility of a fair remuneration, and the yard-stick is often used as an auxiliary that is important in augmenting his prosperity; neatness of apparel, is a speciality of his, very commendable, —has summoned adequate moral courage to venture far enough, in the matrimonial propensity of his mind, to purchase an elastic doll baby, which, by a gentle pressure, delights him with the usual melodious music, that the originals are distinguished for creating. He safely stores it away in his pantaloon pocket, where ever and anon faint strains emanates, warning him to "prepare to meet thy blissful counterpart." We desire that some young lady in our burg will have compassion upon his youthful longings and relieve him of single-blessedness. What young lady will spontaneously perform the designated part? Don't all speak at once.

Dead Eloquence.

We notice that the matrimonial fever is raging to an extent, in nearly all the cities in Georgia, that is sweeping from the theatre of celibacy its principal actors. In our city, we do not violate truth in saying, that matrimonial concretion among the white denizens are "like angels visits, few and far between." The conjugal wand, which is wielded with so much success in other cities, seems to have lost all its sweet influences and charms to our young men and it falls like dead eloquence upon their hearts.—They seem to be devotedly attached to the organization of a Brass Band, String Band, Social Band, and different other kinds of Bands, but not one express a desire and carry it out to become a "life long member" in the Hymen Band. As the holidays approach the warm blood of excited youth may again awaken to renewal the dormant Hymen to vigorous action and some of our young men may probably enter the arena and bear off a maiden prize. Father Time is rapidly delving the sepulchre for the year 1869, and before it expires, surely some one of our young men will make, (so "they say") some woman miserable by the tie of wedlock.

Welch-Fowler Homicide.

We omitted to notice, as is our usual custom to [illegible]

[illegible]

the whole crowd and said he could whip the whole crowd, [illegible] Fowler told him he did not want to fight, he was going off that night and did not want to be detained. Welch and Woodward went back up to Stone's Saloon and Woodward went off to supper, in about half an hour Welch and Waters went back down to the Depot—witness went out of the Saloon in about five minutes and saw some one strike, the men fell down, he struck two licks and some one of Fowlers party went for a gun; shortly after that Welch and Waters returned to the Bar Room (Stone's) and Welch had a gun and said he had whipped out the party, and captured a gun and wanted to know if the gun ought not to belong to him.

Small Fruit Recorder & Cottage Gardener

We are in receipt of this valuable little monthly paper, edited by A. M. Purdy, (successor to Purdy & Johnston) of Palmyra, N. Y. Send stamp for a specimen copy and circular containing offer to those getting up clubs.—We notice any person getting up a club of six has one copy gratis.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

LAND FOR THE FREEDMEN.

Senator Sumner is coming up, it seems, like a man to the 'forty acres and a mule' pledge the performance of which has been so long delayed. The correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune writes from Washington: "Senator Sumner has prepared a bill, which he will present to the Senate during the week, providing for the appointment of a national commission to aid and facilitate the settlement of freedmen on lands they can own and work. The power of appointment is vested with the President, and the commission is to be similar to that appointed to settle the Indians on reservations. The President is favorable to the movement, and will give his countenence to the bill. There are now a few private associations with the same object in view, but they fail to meet the requirements of the case.—Lately several Boston gentlemen purchased a plantation of two thousand acres of land in the State of Georgia, and have divided it up into farms of twenty five acres each, and have allowed freedmen to work them and pay the cost as they earn it. The freedmen are also charged with the cost price to the persons who purchased the land for them. This plantation was bought in a portion of Ga., where the owners of land will not sell to colored people."

We will wager the Senator a bottle of Bear's oil for his incomparable locks, that in five years he will find out that nine-tenths of his colonies will have either sold out or starved out. When he commences to carry out his plan for getting rid of the negro—for that is really what it means—he will find him not half as anxious as he supposes to live away from the white settlements.—[Sav. Repub.

COMING SOUTH.

A New England paper says: "We learn that in many of our cities organizations of colonies are being formed with a view of exploring the Southern States, and of establishing at suitable localities the nucleus of manufacturing towns and cities. These combinations among artisans of different callings is a much more sensible mode of improving their condition than trades unions to coerce higher wages. The contributions required to support strikes, if applied to sending delegates to spy out the fertile fields and inviting opportunities awaiting their embrace would enable many families, now struggling for existence in crowded North, to become independent in a few years in the sunny South, where now there is no class so welcome as the manufacturer and the skilled laborer.

THE EXODUS TO TEXAS.—The Vicksburg Times has the following:

Early each morning as the sun climbs up the eastern sky, whether that sky be clouded or bright, may be seen long trains of loaded wagons descending the hills of Vicksburg toward the river bank. These wagons belong to migrators from their distant and former homes in Alabama, and the north eastern portions of Mississippi, and are filled with household goods, on the road to Texas. Hundreds of these movers have passed through this city during the past ten or twevle days, and we learn that more are to follow. It would seem as though a company had been formed among them for the purpose of colonizing portions of the State of Texas, but such is not the case, we are told; each family being on its own independent hook. We learn that these people have relinquished the possession of considerable land and comfortable homes in many cases, by far more comfortable than they will be likely to find in the wilds of Texas, and with families embracing the old and feeble and tender, are seeking new fortunes in a strange and far-off country.

It is not the men of bluster that do the real work of the world, but they of steady purpose and quiet but determined wills.

You needn't have such a reverence for truth as always to stand at an equal distance from it.

CIRCULARS &c.

We have just received a lot of Letter and Cap Paper for Job Work and are ready for orders.

No Loss.

It is a noted fact where one citizen moves from Marietta to another locality, two take his place. So we are gainers in such move-ments.

To Delinquents.

As the year 1869, is rapidly drawing to a close it would be pleasing to us for all delinquent subscribers to pay their dues for the JOURNAL at once.

"Look Sharp."

Owners of cows, hogs, goats, sheep, horses, dogs and other animals, will find it to their interest to read the "Notice" of Capt LYONS in another column.

House Hunting.

House-hunting and moving are amusements now freely indulged in by a large number of our citizens, who are making sure a habitation for the coming year.

B. H. McCutcheon & Bro.

These young men have a splendid assortment of Dry Goods and Groceries and also many Clothing articles, cheap. Fallterers by Proprietors and clerk will be in-stinctively displayed towards you. Give them a call.

Snow.

"Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow," so white, so pure, came drifting down in feathery flakes, on last Saturday morning, until the heretofore verdureless sod shutely in white; but soon it began to disappear and to trickling drops of water, leaving nothing for its remembrance only the mirrored impression that it was "a thing of beauty."

"Let Us Have Peace."

Many Northern men of means have purchased property in this county for the purpose of permanent location, and are not afraid of the "insecurity of life." Bulloch's columnious accusations to the contrary notwithstanding. Nothing seems to cast their shadows before." The rapid prosperity of the South from the ravages of the war is an item of attraction Come on, no better country than Cobb.

Our Carrier Boy.

To-morrow the Carrier-Boy of the JOURNAL will visit you for something in the way of "small favors." His Address pathetically appeals to your plethoric purses, soliciting an unloosing of strings that bind liberality. He is not very exacting in his wittingly determined to know the amount of the milk of human kindness that such one that may come to his range possesses. We give gratis the advice that it is the best policy to "give the devil his due."

Gignilliat & Lindley.

As the holidays have approached many presents will be given, and discretion would prompt now to give just such as Gignilliat & Lindley's Dry Goods House contain. There you can find every conceivable article that you may want in their line of business. The anxiety of customers to wait good advice at moderate prices, was as if by intuition, understandingly known to these energetic and first class business men and they have met the demand and can accommodate you easily.

Marietta Female College.

By reference to the above named advertisement, it will be observed that the Spring Term begins February 1st, 1870, with Rev. W. A. ROGERS, A. M., as President, late President of the Griffin Female College. With the reputation and ability that he has, success will crown the institution and it will be made the best Female College in the State. Labor, money, and a competent corps of Teachers, with the finest and most suitably arranged ed fice, with every modern up-stratus and convenience, will give it advantages over all others, that will insure its permanence and prosperity This is no veteran's eulogy, but one which posses the ring of genuine truth. The complete education of the daughters of the Sunny South.

Stone & Murray's Circus.

The Circus that is combined with excell nce, unsurpassed in marvellous display and thorough training of performers of both men and horse will exhibit in Marietta, January 1st, 1870. THEY it is the best and most completely equipped traveling Circus, receiving the commendations of the press and people, we need but give the following from the Atlanta Constitution to establish it:

Its appointments are complete; everything is going to up in the handsomest style. The performers are thoroughly drilled, and all of surpassing excellence; and perhaps the greatest merit of all the order and system are thorough. Not a second's time is lost between the parts, everything moves like clock-work and shows the manag-ment of a superior executive mind. We riding is of the very first order The animals are superbly trained.

We venture that we do not exaggerate when we say that there is not a superior, if there is an equal Circus to this in the country.

Rev. W. F. Cook.

The valedictory sermon of Rev. W. F. Cook, who has served as Pastor of the Methodist Church in this place for the past three years, was delivered on last Sunday morning. His text was, "For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ in them that are saved, and in them that perish: To the one we are savour of death unto death; and to the other the savour of life unto life." (II. Cor., 2nd ch. 15th and 16th verses).

He spoke at length of the grand mission of the Preacher; the dignity of the calling; the responsibilities of the office; its successes, its trials, its finality and eventually a reward in the presence of Christ-many in a short space of divine beauty, light ed up with eloquence, that was free from extravagant expressions of sophistry.

Scarcely before those whom he had broken the "spread of life" for, for the period of three years, and attachments had so strongly interwoven the soul with this people, by the beauties of association, and the graces of Christ, in view of his separation from them, his heart was full to overflowing, and his soul went out with every word and sentiment, deeply affecting, some to tears, those of his devoted flock that were present.

As a Minister of God, he is one that loves the work, as his faithfulness and zeal at this place, for three years will attest, and we have the more to express our grief in losing so true his embodiment of Christianity in every sense of the word.

We trust this station may grow to the beautiful city of Rome, where we wish him and his family every conceivable blessing and happiness that our Divine Master is capable of bestowing.

Look to Your Laurels.

"The recent renewal of hostilities," against the side-walk of the JOURNAL building by secret bands of Ku Klux Hogs, to the damage of person and property by the manner in which they have visited said much travelled walk, indicating a concert of action to defy the laws; it behooves every good citizen of the commonwealth of Marietta to be no further injured by these Ku Klux Hogs, and as the civil authorities have not yet repaired damages done to said side-walk it seems proper that "in the end that no motive may be wanting to stimulate" an interest in this matter, we do hereby offer a reward of Five Thousand Dollars in Greenbacks to the party or parties, with out distinction or discrimination, for the re-construction of said side walk two days after publication of this proclamation.

Serenade.

On last Monday night the JOURNAL OFFICE was honored with a serenade from the Marietta Brass Band. The stirring notes of "Dixie" that rang out with such clearness upon the midnight air, was exciting to our wearied nature, and thrilled us with emotions of musical pleasure and vivacity. We love "Dixie." It is full of the poetry of song" and commends itself for its sweetness, elegance, and ecstatic flow. And boys we consider it an honor indeed to be made the subjects of your praiseable music, which was rendered so charmingly delectable. To wish you all success, would only be wishing that you have already accomplished. With our young friend, WILLIE MANSFIELD, as Leader, who seems to be one of Nature's gifted children in music, we could not but expect anything short of success. It is said that "Patience is bitter, but its fruits are sweet," and if true, you have a sufficient guarantee of much pure sweetness, for you all have exercised a remarkable degree of patience, but without which there is no excellence. Come again!

"It Stingeth like an Adder."

Again another fatality to be supplemented to those that cannot be numbered for their multitude. Information comes to us, through a friend, that a young man, who had reached the age of 17 or 18 years, living about ten miles from Marietta in the county of Cherokee, by the name of MORGAN HEWEY, during last week visited a neighbors home, by the name of Mr. John Brawley, for the purpose of "house raising," and while there it was proposed by some of the boys in Mr. Brawley's absence, to have a little more "whiskey of it," by using the stored away Christmas whiskey. It was found—drank with a taste equal to the quantity, and Mr. Hewey was soon oblivious of all earthly things; he was drunk. The young man not visiting his parents that night under the circumstance, put him to bed for the night, in order that he might through the greatest physic ever administered—recover from its effects, and once more realize the sweets of home. But, alas! in the morning he was found under the bed dead. Morgan Hewey was found dead in the bed. The light of his soul was eclipsed by the darkness of death, caused by drinking whiskey. It could that "some of us" were known to be drunk before, and was an estimable young man of respectable parentage.

Another heart-rending on the wall for young men to read, and ponder over and profit by. And all by the light of pre-cut knowledge. Will there be elicited a peer f our ably young man who may read this sad and lamentable event? Surely not. But if they should, what a set of judgment! Your first drink may not let the life current out into the urn of death, but your second may. Your presumptive ability to refrain when you please after habituation, is such a wide demarkation from rationality, that we pity you. You never expect to be slayed by the sting of the adder, yet you cunningly nurse it in your bosom. Neither did Mr Hewey. But he had its forebeing it and presumptive ability over ruled by the anticipation of a little merriment in drinking just a little whiskey, and was led in a state of inebriation into death's grim cave, a captive forever.

Rheumatism, Listen and Learn.

Prof. Kayton, the popular and celebrated manufacturer of Kayton's Oil of Life, the best and surest liniment for rheumatism known, has now dispentioned his travels throughout the States to see the lame and the cripple, and those otherwise afflicted by rheumatism, or neuralgia, or pains in the side, &c., for he argues and well too, that the people can cure themselves without him by using his Oil of Life, the virtues of which are universally acknowledged. Some people were foolish enough to think from the swift and speedy cures made on the sick, before their eyes or their friends, that the Professor's hands were bewitched, but we assure all that the sterling virtue lies only in the Oil of Life, which relieves instantly all neuralgic pains in the back, joints and side, or where ever a liniment can be used that KAYTON'S Oil of Life is acknowledged as great and without an equal, giving the patient almost instantaneous relief by one rubbing. For genuine or knives, it has also been used with marked success.

A Wrong Impression Corrected.

Many persons believe that there is no value in any thing that does not come from "the North." How be undating! However, this impression is being gradually corrected. It is now admitted that no remedial agent has ever been discovered, North or South, that possesses in so eminent a degree, the power of eradicating from the system all foul blotches as Dr. TUTT'S Sarsaparilla and Queen's Delight. The secret is, it assists nature to do this through its own channels. It is composed of vegetable substances alone, ever one of which grows on Southern soil. It is the BLOOD PURIFIER OF THE AGE.

The Great Pictorial Annual.

Hostetter's U.S Almanac for 1870, for distribution gratis, throughout the U.S. and all civilized countries of the Western Hemisphere, will be published about the first of January, and all who wish to understand the true philosophy of health should read and ponder over the valuable suggestions it contains. In addition to an admirable medical treatise on the causes, prevention and cure of a great variety of diseases, it embraces a large amount of valuable information interesting to the merchant, the mechanic, the miner, the farmer, the planter, and professional man; and the calculations have been made for such meridians and latitudes as are most available for a correct and comprehensive National Calendar.

The native, town, and extraordinary sanitary effects of "Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the rapid tonic and alterative of more than half the christian world, are fully set forth in its pages, while all who are afflicted with personal ill-nstructions, valuable receipts for the household and farm, humorous anecdotes, and other entertaining and astonishing matter, original and selected. Among the Annuals to appear with the opening of the year, this will be one of the most useful, and may be had for the asking. Send for copies to the Central Manufactory, at Pittsburgh, Pa., or to any druggist dealer in "Hostetter's Stomach Bitters." The Bitters are sold in every city, town and village, and are in extensive use throughout the entire civilized world.

Dr. A. L. SCOVILL is the inventor of several medicinal preparations which have become very popular, and have been liberally used. Among his inventions are "Hall's Balsam for the Lungs" and "Liverwort and Tar." For the past six years a better Lung remedy has been offered to the public. Read the following letter from Dr. Scovill referring to it:

Messrs. J. N. HARRIS & CO. Gents:—I make the following statement from a perfect conviction and knowledge of the benefits of Allen's Lung Balsam in curing the most deep seated Pulmonary Consumption. I have witnessed its effects on the young and old, and I can truly say that it is by far the best experiment remedy with which I am acquainted. For Coughs, and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure. And if every family will keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption. It causes the phlegm and matter to ease, without irritating those delicate organs—(the Lungs)—and without producing e-nsiquation of the bowels. It also gives a straight to the system—stops the night sweats, and changes all the morbid secretions to a healthy state. Respectfully,

A. L. SCOVILL.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Influenza and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this wonderful remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and amid most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and by yeilding readily to it at the same time the most effectual remedy for the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs, it is the duty of every one to know that no other remedy can be relied on with the same confidence, or is as speedy in its cures. Against confirmed consumption, which fastens its deadly fangs upon the strongest and most healthy of family, and which, as all have seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. Those bottled up and cried were by the Cherry Pectoral, restored they outside and dangerous. Even in advanced stages of consumption, where great protection from its use, relief is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, as all will rest assure the public that its qualities are fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from malarious marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

At its same implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither arsenic, nor mineral poison whatever, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever. It is safe to use in any quantity, but the number and importance of its cures in the same districts, are literally beyond credence, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Not only in the broad districts of our country, but the receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed, or protracted persons, subject to periodical ills, or perverted by taking the Ague Cure, or by the use of any of the usual antidotes, arrested from the vitality of the Liver to an extent that only a remedy, exhibiting the Liver too healthy action.

For Bilious and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cure, where other medicines had failed. Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and for all round the world.

GEORGE MCKENZIE, }
vs. }
CHAS. G. BAYLOR and }
LOUISA G. BAYLOR. }

Mortgage in Cobb Superior Court Oct. Term '69

It appearing to the Court by the petition of George McKenzie, (garnished by the Sheriff and answered) that on the 15th of Nov. 1865 and the 15th of January 1866 respectively, the defendant C. G. Baylor, made and delivered to the plaintiff on the first named day his promissory note for five hundred dollars payable six months after date, with interest on the second named day his due bill for four hundred dollars, payable on demand with interest, both for value received. And that afterwards, on the 6th day of March 1866, the defendants, the better to secure the payment of said note and due bill executed and delivered to the plaintiff, their deed of Mortgage, whereby the said defendants mortgage to the plaintiff, a lot of fair building lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the town of Marietta, in the county of Cobb, and State of Georgia, adjoining Kenneson Hall, the property late of Governor McDonald, and containing four acres of land, the said premises being the same premises which were conveyed to the said Chas. G. Baylor, in the year 1861, by deeds duly recorded in said County of Cobb. And it further appearing that said note and due bill, remain unpaid, it is therefore ordered, that the said defendants must be, to Court, on or before the first day of the next term thereof, the principal, interest and costs, due on said note and due bill, or show cause to the contrary if any they can. And that on failure of the defendants to do so, the equity of redemption, in and to said mortgaged premises, be forever therefore barred and foreclosed. And it is further ordered, that this rule be published in the Marietta Journal, once a month for four months, previous to the next term of this court, or service in the manner required by law. April term of this Court.

H. M. HAMMETT, Clerk

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any remedy won so widely and so deservedly upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent Pectoral. Its unparalleled compounds, and the wide series of remarkable cures attained by it, have made it known to the world, higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its sedative character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and for the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to such attacks, no one should be provided with this antidote for them.

Many of the worst colds, coughs and hoarseness, are easily cured by a few doses, while even formidable cases where the disease has become settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

And even it always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

For generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, as do many that assure the public that its qualities are fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Chills, Remittent Fever, &c. Agent, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic nor Quinine, Blemish, Poison, or anything else that is hurtful, it is entirely harmless at any age. Nevertheless, in view of the number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unaccustomed persons, either resident in, or travelling through, those districts, should not be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaint, and the various disorders which it occasions, it is an excellent remedy, invigorating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Dyspepsia and Debility, and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other remedies had failed.

Stony Point, White Co., Ark., May 23, 1866.

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: Last February I was a Louisville purchasing drugs, and I got some of your Sarsaparilla and Cedron Bitters.

My son in law who was with me in the store, has been down with the rheumatism for some time, commenced on the Bitters, and soon found his general health improved.

Dr. Gleaf has been in bad health, tried them, he also improved.

Dr. Coffee, who has been in bad health for several years—stomach and liver affection—received very much by the use of your Bitters. Indeed the Cedron Bitters has given your property popularity in this settlement. I think I could sell a great quantity of your medicines this fall—especially of your Cedron Bitters and Sarsaparilla. Ship me to Memphis, care of Eicker and Neely.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

I have received many testimonials from professional and medical men, as my almanacs and various publications have shown, all of which are genuine.—The following letter from a highly educated and popular physician in Georgia, is certainly one of the most sensible communications I have ever received. Dr. Clement knows exactly what he speaks of, and his testimony deserves the attention of all.

Hear what the Doctor says of BULL'S WORM DESTROYER:

YELLOW WALKER COUNTY Ga., }

Dr. John Bull—Dear Sir: I have recently given your "Worm Destroyer" several trials, and find it wonderfully efficacious. It has not failed in a single instance to have the wished for effect. I am doing a pretty large country practice, and have daily use for some article of the kind. I am free to confess that I know no remedy recommended by the almost authors that is so certain and speedy in its effects. On the contrary they are uncertain in the extreme. My object in writing you is to find out upon what terms I can get the medicine directly from you. If I can get it upon cost terms, I shall use a great deal of it.—I am aware that the use of such articles is contrary to the views of a majority of the profession, but the regular force of M. For my part to all I make it a rule to use all and any means to alleviate suffering humanity which I may be able to find, without hesitating because some one more ingenious than myself may have devised its effects first, and secured that knowledge. However, I am by no means an advocate or supporter of the thousands of worthless nostrums that flood the country, and are daily used by all manner of unwashen to which human flesh is heir. Please reply soon and inform me of your terms. I am, dear sir, very respectfully,

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficacy of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of facts:

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: My son Dr. J. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Fort York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhoea and was far gone, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. IT CURED HIM. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for Fever Sore, Fever and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in many cases of scrofula and fever sore almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER

OR

CHILLS AND FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to his statements of the people of South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of it assertion, that in no case does it ever fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed. Not carried out. In a great many cases it does fail. And in every case more certain to cure, if the use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the fever has been checked. more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in order, should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S WORM DESTROYER

To my United States and World-wide Readers.

GEORGIA.

The order from the War Department at Washington assigning Gen. Terry as Military Commander pending reconstruction remands Georgia to her original condition under the reconstruction acts.

The President construes the recent act of Congress repeal of all laws passed under the State government since the war.

It is said that the Act clothes Bullock with despotic power. That depends 1st, on the Legislature, which may disappoint him; and Gadly, on the possible absence of all effectual opposition to the ratification of the 15th Amendment. That accomplished, by Congressional deposition, Georgia becomes a State of the Union and may regain, in spite of her enemies, her self control, though she will have lost, with all the other States, every vestige of State sovereignty.

Bullock has summoned the Legislature to meet on the 10th of January next.

Some of our people advise members to resign, so to refuse to take the new oaths. That is the only way, perhaps, to make Bullock an impeachable Governor.

"REPUBLICAN IN FORM."

A few of the Republican members in Congress, and the ablest, are, says the Hartford Times, worried over the destructive work of their party. They see the dangers and speak of them. Messrs. Dawes and Hoar protested against the other day against the unconstitutional acts, and finally voted, with two other Republicans, against the new outrage upon Georgia. Mr. Dawes, of Massachusetts, also expresses alarm. He fears the dangerous precedent. He hardly knows what may follow, or to what extent Massachusetts and New England may be made to suffer, when the constitutional guarantees are all gone, and the rights of the States are entirely destroyed by usurping Congress, a passive people uttering no word of rebuke. Mr. Dawes tries to quiet his conscience. He says he consents to the Georgia bill on the ground that the Constitution requires Congress to guarantee to each State a government "republican in form." Is Mr. Dawes honest in this? He knows that Georgia has had a government republican in form for nearly a century, that the Constitution was adopted September 17th, 1787, "by the unanimous consent of the States present," and that Georgia was one of those States. She was a slave State, and never allowed her

[illegible]

Nor did any of the States that made the Constitution allow negroes to make laws for them.

The Constitution was signed by George Washington, as well as by William Few and Abraham Baldwin of Georgia.—Having been a party to the formation of the Constitution—having delegated to Congress all the powers it has had, Georgia is received in the Union three-quarters of a century, a slave State, and [illegible] with a representative government [illegible] Mr. Dawes knows this. But Georgia has abolished slavery, and has become a free State.—Is her government less "republican in form"? It is a representative government, but she does not permit negroes, minors, nor females to sit in her Legislature. In this respect Georgia is like Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, and nearly all the States. Massachusetts has a property qualification, and she does not permit women to be elected men of twenty years of age to sit in her Legislature. Has she a government "republican in form"? Rhode Island has a representative government republican in form. It shall not be at one man power—a despotism.

That is the meaning of the clause quoted by Mr. Dawes. And he knows further that the States created the Union, as well as the power of regulating their own affairs—everything not specified in the Constitution. He knows that Congress was never authorized to delegate to any State the qualifications of its State representatives, and he knows that Congress is now usurping power, and that its decisions are dangerous. He says so; and he does not help the case much by calling the usurpations "precedents." Constitutional precedents are not dangerous. Usurpations are.

What is going on in State and municipal government are the liberties of the people. Take from them the control of their legislatures, the regulation of suffrage qualification, the right to delegate who may and who shall not represent them—take away from the people this right of local self-government, and you take away their liberties. You leave them at the mercy of a central power. This is what Congress is doing. This shames Messrs. Dawes, Boutwell, Frank Smith and others. But the tyranny is already so great that they dare not speak their own sentiments unreservedly.

ANOTHER COLONY.—Yesterday after noon two hundred and fifty colonists from Austria reached this city. They come to settle on land purchased in Henrico for them by the father of Mr. Emile Mahl, who has resided near Richmond for some time, and who will assist persistent their settlement. They are substantial people, and all have something to commence with. Moreover, they have been reared to work, and, like those who have preceded them will prosper. They bring a priest from Austria with them, and will have their own church in which to worship.—[illegible]

John Chinaman is the suggestive name of an Illinois farmer. When he peels himself and goes cheerfully to his work, he must bring water to the eyes of his

THE PRINTING OFFICE IS A SCHOOL.

For a young man who is not altogether a fool, who has had the advantages of an ordinary education, the printing office is undoubtedly a capital school for intellectual advancement. In regard to general knowledge no class who labor for a living can approach the printer.—The students among them, if their natural gifts be not below the level of mediocrity, have equal chances with the members of the so-called professions, to acquire both worldly honors and literary fame. From the days of Caxton to those of Franklin, and from his days to our own, the craft has produced eminent men in profession and every walk of life.

A printer is generally a critic, not only of language and punctuation, but of the intrinsic literary merits of whatever comes under his hand. It is impossible that he should be otherwise, since so great a part of his life is made up, as it were, of fact that enforce reflection. The labor that employs his hands gives his mind neither exercise nor care. His fingers move intuitively to the exact points requisite for the proper appointment of his work, while his mind seizes the idea sought to be conveyed by the writer whose work he is engaged on, and is only expelled therefrom after his judgment has passed sentence upon its merits.

Many a one, without knowing it, possibly owes some unknown compositor or proof reader much more reputation as a writer than he would be willing to acknowledge. If by changing of a sentence without affecting its meaning, he [illegible] as a good printer asks no questions about the matter but change it at once.

There are some printers, it is true, who can never learn the plainest rule of composition or punctuation. To such a one might we use the identical words spoken by a well-known divine, speaking to a young, but particularly silly confidant for matrimonial orders:—"Young man, you have made a mistake; you have been called to another—the certified."

CONTRAST.

Contrast is the spring of happiness, and it is the rule of Nature ar well as constant change. Daylight is appreciated in opposition to darkness—the cool evening is refreshing when compared with the heat of noon—the pleasures of rest are enjoyed in contrast—the arid desert wearies the eye—the swelling land breaks the monotony of the level—the shade relieves the glare. The sea reflects the varied tints of clouds, contrasting the darkest with the lightest hues. Human joys are by contrast, and without the knowledge of misery who could feel the delight of pleasure? The rich snatch with eagerness at any novelty to break the tame and endless monotony of life, rendered so monotonous by the possession of wealth, which procures for them every want and induces indifference—a life so highly polished that it glides like a billiard ball, and becomes stationary till a fresh impetus sets it again in motion. Nature is in constant motion and perpetual change. The world and planets hold on their giant course, each revolving on its own axis,—the component parts of these vast globes are obeying the same laws. The sea is ever restless—the minutest portion its wide waters have forced and will form through all eternity into ceaseless waves, which break, and other forms arise from the one destroyed. It shakes and rubs itself along the shore, altering the form of the sands or shingle, or undermining lofty eminences till they totter into the raging gulfs below.

DON'T BE EXTRAVAGANT.

If the poor-house has any terrors for you, never buy what you don't need.

Before you pay three cents for a jews-harp, my boy, ascertain whether you don't make just as pleasant a noise by whistling, for which nature has given you the machinery. And before you pay fifty dollars for a coat, young man, find out whether your lady-love would not be just as glad to see you in one that could be had for half the money. If she would not, let her crack her own shell nuts and buy her own clothes.

When you see a man spending two or three dollars a week foolishly, the chances are five to one he'll live long enough to know how many cents there are in a dollar, and if he don't, he's sure to acquaint that knowledge to his widow.

When a man asks you to buy that for which you have no use, no matter how cheap it is, don't say yes till you are sure somebody else wants it in advance.

Money burns in some folks' pockets, and makes such a big hole that everything that is put in drops so far through that they never find it.

Men can carry on business without advertising, and so can a wagon run without greasing, but it is very hard work.

When is a good tune most relished? When it's your own.

A merry Christmas was ours, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. Now, that it is "no more," we are imbued with the spirit of "ON WARD!" Notwithstanding the gloom that overcasts our political horizon, we are still undismayed in effort to present you a paper that you can appreciate. "NIL DESPERANDUM," shall be our watchword, and to success and prosperity we shall energetically strive, believing that our labor to benefit our patrons will not be in vain, for as we cast our eyes through the vista of fancied future we see much tranquil encouragement.

Gone, forever gone! is the year 1869. Before us, in swaddling clothes, stands the year 1870. As if to typify to us, not by precept, but by example, that bitter prejudices should be obliterated, animosities conciliated, bad feelings extirpated and made good ones, and that purity in its pristine beauty should overspread the wrongs recorded by 1869, the New Year came in weeping copious tears bedewing things terrestrial, then gently covered all with her mantle of "beautiful snow." Then as it pleased, lifted her eye-lids on the following morn and kissed affectionately, for the first time, the Sun. From the effects of this embrace, melted slowly her covering that she was robed in, and stripped of this, she moves on with Father Time reconciled and willing to meet unabashed that which the future may be fraught with.

Communicated.

MR. GOODMAN—It always gives me pleasure to see the efficiency of good officers chronicled to the public; I would therefore like to have recorded an act of one of our old-time officers in quelling a disturbance which like to have happened here one day last week.

Our usually quiet and peaceful little city was thrown into unusual excitement on the arrival of the morning train of cars from Atlanta having on board a lot of freedmen en route for some western plantation; as the train stopped, one of our old citizens, contrary to some people's ideas of propriety, stepped up to a good looking member of the colored persuasion and says "Where are you from Uncle?"—"From Virginia Massa." "Going to work on Rail Road?" "Oh no, goin' to Mississippi to make cotton." At this time a chip of one of the F. F's. V., steps off the cars and says "d—d—n you! you can't talk to my negroes without you have this stick broke over your head." "I had rather talk to him than you, he is the likeliest man of the two;" with that the F. F. V. raised his stick a wave over his head as if to strike him, but just to give him a [illegible] of the common was in it," when our old gent just tripped up his trotters and laid him on the track waiting for the downward train to come along and punish him a little for carrying an unseemly stick, contrary to his idea of propriety; in the mean time making his thumbs and fingers familiar with his eyes, nose and jetty soap-locks; when our aforesaid officer interferred and said, "Let us have peace"—and the cane was not broken. "DOWN THE RIVER."

BY CARL BERTIE.

Ever down Time's rapid river,
On towards the Strange Forever,
Is our life still floating ever,
From this mortal shore.
Is our life forever gliding
With no pause and no abiding,
'Till Time's tide is o'er.

Lo! the parting distance groweth,
And the river deeper floweth,
And the light no signal showeth,
As we pass along.
Without boat or pilot floating,
And unseen, our ears are noting,
Currents flowing strong.

Now, we near the heavenly aiden
And our sins, so heavy laden
Bear us down; we are afraid, and
Wish our pilgrimage was o'er.
God be with us on life's river,
Guide us to the great forever,
Pilot us to shore.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expediated or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and anti-bilious properties with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs. Though the stomach upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principle, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

ROBACK'S STOMACH BITTERS

Roback's Stomach Bitters, unlike all other Bitters in the market, possess intrinsic merit. Most Bitters, so called, are merely wishiwashy stuff, sold as a beverage. Dr. Roback's Bitters are not a beverage in any sense of the word, but contain the most expensive drugs known to science for the radical cure of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all cases where a tonic and stimulant are required. They restore the vital forces in a remarkable degree, and give tone to the system.

It is now eleven years since Dr. Roback, the celebrated Swedish physician, from Stockholm, Sweden, came to this country and introduced the Scandinarian Blood Purifier; since which time thousands have been cured, by its use, of Scrofula and other blood diseases. It contains, besides the Iodide of Potassium and Syrup of Stillingia, drugs imported from Sweden for its express manufacture, unknown and not kept by apothecaries in this country. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful value.

BLOOD PURIFIER

Dr. Roback's Blood Pills are unsurpassed by any Pill manufactured for a similar purpose. One trial invariably establishes them as favorites with all who use them.

The reasons why Dr. Roback's Blood Pills should be kept in every family are: Because they can be employed in all cases where a "family physic" is required, and are perfectly safe in their administration at all times; Because they are made both with and without sugar-coating, thus adapting them to the use of everybody; Because they can be purchased at any drug store at the extremely low price of twenty-five cents per box.

Bull's Sarsaparilla.

Good Reason for the Captain's Faith.

Read the Captain's Letter and the Letter from his Mother.

BENTON BARRACKS, Co., }
April 30, 1865. }

DR. JOHN BULL—Dear Sir: Knowing the efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, and the healing and beneficial qualities it possesses, I send you the following statement of my case.

I was wounded about two years ago—was taken prisoner and confined for sixteen months. Being moved so often my wounds have not healed yet. I have not sat up a moment since I was wounded. I am shot through the hips. My general health is impaired, and I need something to assist nature. I have more faith in your Sarsaparilla than in anything else. I wish that that is genuine. Please express me half a dozen bottles, and oblige

CAPT. C. P. JOHNSON,
St. Louis, Mo.

P. S.—The following was written April, 20, 1865, by Mrs. Jennie Johnson, mother of Capt. Johnson.

DR. BULL—Dear Sir: My husband, Dr. S. Johnson, was a skillful surgeon and physician in Central New York, where he died, leaving the above C. P. Johnson to my care. At thirteen years of age he had a chronic diarrhœa and scrofula, for which I gave him your Sarsaparilla. IT CURED HIM. I have for ten years recommended it to many in New York, Ohio and Iowa, for scrofula, fever sores, and general debility. Perfect success has attended it.—The cure affected in some cases of scrofula and fever sores were almost miraculous. I am very anxious for my son to again have recourse to your Sarsaparilla. He is fearful of getting a spurious article, hence his writing to you for it. His wounds were terrible but I believe he will recover.

Respectfully,
JENNIE JOHNSON.

DR. JOHN BULL,

Manufacturer and Vendor of the Celebrated

SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP.

FOR THE CURE OF

AGUE AND FEVER
OR
CHILLS AND FEVER

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanent cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and South-Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked more especially in difficult and long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient

PLANS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

While our people are laying plans and forming purposes for the new year why should not, each for himself, form the bold and resolute purpose to be independent—to live as a Georgian should do, upon his own bread and meat—to disregard the idle, ridiculous and extravagant fashions which are imported here from the North—to abandon painful and inconvenient ostentation and display in dress and equipage—to cultivate frugality, sobriety and simplicity in all his habits and demeanor?

Nothing pained the Southern man more than the eagerness of our sons and daughters, after the close of the war, to copy the dress and habits of those who had gained a sudden and factitious wealth in the subjugation of our people. The war had evoked the most noble, patriotic and devoted spirit in the daughters of the South. They had become unhappily so familiar with the most calamitous changes in fortune, that mere externals had been divested, to a greater extent of their importance. The noblest of their country women were clad in homespun, and thousands of them were homeless and destitute. This had taught them that the gauds and gewgaws of fashion formed no essential part of the true gentlewoman and no condition of happiness. Simplicity, kindness and a generous hospitality and affability were, in those dark days, more than ever the characteristics of the Southern people, and refrained so until the marts of trade were again stored with the appliances of an unworthy and frivolous ostentation.

We have ever abandoned that simplicity of life which became us so well during the war, and would have been a wreath of glory round our brows as a conquered people—defenceless, insulted and oppressed by our enemies! Surely within ourselves and, divesting our society of all useless, expensive and unœstrelious ornamentation, consult only comfort and utility—that time is now. Without friends outside ourselves, if we would be our own most efficient friends, and extort respect from our enemies, it would be in the course of something like a Spartan simplicity of life and demeanor. This would soon free us of debt—surround us with all the real neccessities and comforts of life, and enforce the respect of outsiders from whom we required and received little or nothing.

If our young farmers now, in this new year, will put a sudden stop to their inordinate lust for large cotton crops, and resolve hereafter to look first to their own food supplies—if they will learn to put their own farms and dwellings and barns in order—get supplies of good stock and surround themselves, as their first care, with that we believe will be the first true step towards a solid agricultural independence and prosperity.

In one word, the most useful lesson for the times is to look to ourselves and act on our own fasions—form our own social habits and our own associations as a people. As the outside world assails us with obloquy, persecution, oppression, treachery and misrule, we should learn to gather closer together as one family of Georgians for mutual succor, support, consolation and enjoyment. To draw from our own friendly soil all our sustenance, and cultivate a spirit of disregard and indifference for the fashions of our enemies, instead of servilely copying them.—Macon Telegraph.

WHO ARE THE YOUNG?

The feelings which are conventionally assumed to be the accompaniments of age are not its especial consequences. We meet with old men and old women who have not yet, according to common parlance, reached their prime. The beauty of youth has faded in them, or been crushed out of them. The candle of life though not half burned down to the socket, seems already to emit that "sable smoke where vanishes the flame." Sometimes suffering, sometimes sin, and not unfrequently both—the one the consequence of the other—produce the ordinary effects of age prematurely; while on the other hand, we occasionally meet with the freshness and elasticity of youth in people who have long passed the grand climacteric. But in this "fast" era elderly youths are more common than youthful veterans. No man can walk the streets of our towns and cities without admitting that fact. Men who live rationally, moderately, in accord with the true purposes of life, are generally young in spirit to the last; but the sordid, the sensual, the unsympathizing, whose hearts are set wholly upon material things, always grow old before their time, and find in the end, that the idols they have worshipped, at the expense of all that is good and noble in human nature, can give them neither help nor solace.

WHAT IS THINE AGE?

"Father," said a Persian monarch to an old man who according to oriental usage, bowed before the sovereign's throne, "pray be seated; I cannot receive homage from one bent with years, and whose head is white with the frosts of age."

"And now father," said the monarch, when the old man had taken the proffered seat, "tell me thine age, how many of the revolutions have thou counted?"

"Sire," answered the old man, "I am but four years old."

"What," interrupted the king, "forest thou not to answer me falsely or dost thou jest on the very brink of the tomb?"

"I speak not falsely, sire," replied the aged man, "neither would I offer a foolish jest on a subject so solemn. Eighty long years have I wasted in folly and sinful pleasures and in amassing wealth, none of which I can take with me when I leave this world. Four years only have I spent in doing good to my fellow men; and shall I count those years that have been utterly wasted? Are they not worse than a blank, and is not that portion only worthy to be reckoned as a part of my life which has truly answered life's best end?"

NOBODY'S FOOL.

A gentleman traveling in Ireland hired a pure native as a servant, who he thought could give him information of the country. Observing a beautiful residence at some distance the following colloquy ensued:

"Patrick who lives there?"

"It's Mr. Fitzgerald, that's dead, sir."

"What did he die of?"

"His died of a Thursday sir."

"How long has he been dead?"

"If he had lived till next Thusday, he'd been dead a year."

The gentleman thinking Pat's wits were wool-gathering, asked—

"Have you taken anything to drink today?"

"I will sir."

"Well, what shall it be?" Will you take raw liquor, or will you have grog or shall I make you a toddy?"

"If yer honor plase, I will take the raw liquor first then I can be drinking the grog while you are making the toddy."

HOW TOWNS GROW IN THE WEST.—The New York Tribune illustrates it by the following notes upon Duluth in Minnesota:

This is how they do things in Duluth. On the 24th of April of this year there was not lumber enough in the town of Duluth to build more than one house—and the entire population, all told, numbered but 110 souls. Since that time 180 buildings have been erected, among them one hotel, the Clark House, costing $50,000, and another, the "Bay View," costing $12,000; an Episcopal church which cost $8000 and is completed and organized, and is a beautiful structure; a Presbyterian church of large size and modern design, which when completed will cost some $16,000; twenty-six stores, all of which are of commodious size, and one steam planing-mill. Blacksmith and carpenter shops are quite numerous.

A brewery has been erected on Minnesota Point a mile below Franklin Square. The demand for teams is unabated, and a span of horses and a wagon readily command $7 per day. The demand for real estate during the past month has been active and sales made at advanced prices. A lot, 33x65 feet, on Superior street, has been sold for $1700 cash; four lots on First street for 700 each, and other lots at about the same rates. $20,000 cash was bid for fifty acres of land on what is known as the Nettleton tract, in Duluth proper, and declined. This is $5000 per lot for average lots.

NOT AS BAD AS THEY SEEM.—A shrewd friend figures out at length in a letter, that Sirs in Atlanta are not going to be as desperate as they seem.—We hope not, but it behooves the people diligently to enquire into the way of salvation. It seems to be understood and conceded all round that the leading feature in reconstruction is to be plunder. The two items of the Opera House and Mitchell Claim alone will make a cool seven hundred thousand dollars, and offer such extraordinary facilities for greasing palms that Dame Honesty may well shake in her shoes.—Macon Telegraph.

A soldier having by order of a court martial, been sentenced to receive corporal punishment, one of the drummers ordered to inflict it, absolutely refused, saying "it was not his duty." "Not your duty," repeated the adjutant, "what do you mean?" "I know very well," replied the drummer, that it is not my duty. I who present at the countermartial as well as you, and I heard the colonel say he was to receive corporal punishment. I'm not a corporal; I'm only a drummer."
