HUMAN FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

Editor News.—In conformity to a previous request I will endeavor to discuss a few thoughts through your columns upon the above subject.

In grasping at this great and unsolved question I must first confess my incapacity to do it justice. But I understand all forms of human government have been and are but experiments. This must be true because civilization and enlightenment are progressive, and as we steadily progress toward a higher place in these respects all conditions change with our advance and governmental forms and systems must alter and remodel themselves to conform to the continual change in the conditions they are devised to control.

To say that any fixed system of government must remain immutable in all the minutiae of its details is to proclaim against the advance of civilization, to lock the wheels of progress and compel humanity to move in one unchanging round, to extinguish genius, crush science and murder energy. It would be not only to check all advancement but to turn the wheels of progress backward and start them on that dread incline that leads to ruin and decay. The battle of life is fierce and cruel; eternal vigilance is the price of safety. There can be no hesitation, advance or die, is the battle cry; there can be no wavering no standing still even for a moment. The foe is ever watchful, even cruel stern necessity, bears abate and poverty and hunger and cold which strikes the death chill into the faintest heart.

As it is with individuals so it is with nations, which are but an embodiment of individuals, all must progress or die, therefore the science of government becomes of paramount importance and its earnest study of vital consequence to every individual. Especially is it of importance to the American citizen whose government is the subject of his will, not only is it his duty to study the vital questions which suggest themselves that they may intelligently act upon but it is necessary that all the minutiae of governmental affairs be gone into lest some shrewd and unscrupulous influence or power may by the means of legislative enactment steal away his liberty apparently with his own consent.

As life is progressive and governments necessarily required to adapt themselves to conditions—the American citizen must of necessity make careful study of the matters affecting his government, as on it depends his happiness and prosperity, and it rests with him as to how they are to be affected. The present unrest throughout the Nation, the antagonism of classes and sections, the universal impression among the masses that something is wrong, and affects them oppressively while they are uncertain as to the cause and remedy, are the results of the neglect of the people to properly inform themselves upon the great economic questions from which all these evils arise. The general impulse towards organization among the people, the masses evidence this danger, and the instinct common to all gregarious animals has induced them to rally for mutual protection. So far no clear understanding of the evils or their remedy has been arrived at but the people are in a condition to study the true principles of government earnestly and effectively.

The time has come when patriotic and philanthropic men can now influence that will be the salvation of the Nation and the people's minds are in condition to receive the seed and bring forth abundant fruit. We consider that the true way to the best results is to lay facts before the people that they may draw their own conclusions leaving their judgement unbiased. The next question which arises is where to begin to give the masses a proper comprehension of present evils, their origin, magnitude and danger, and, and means of devising a way of relief. Evidently the proper place to begin is the beginning; and, as political evils began with political government, it would be well to begin there they originated, what was their effect, or if relieved by what means. Where are we to get this information? certainly from history.

History is a record of Man's experiences, and bears evidence of the results of his endeavors to establish a just and stable form of government through the ages of history and struggles with tyrants. Experience is the safest teacher, and by a careful study of its teachings we may escape many evils which were sure to befall us should we rush heedlessly on regardless of the fate which has befallen those who have trod the same paths before us. Had people heeded the teachings of history the adage, "History repeats itself," would not most probably be true, for the record of one misfortune would have been the warning which would have prevented its recurrence. History should be the unvarying compass which should guide our ships of state through the stormy seas of political experiment and bring them safely into the quiet haven of peace, prosperity, and happiness. All forms of government are based upon the same principle, and the same principle, some of which we find to be common to all others, yet there seems to be an unvarying course followed by all regardless of the particular course adopted. All nations of history have had a rise, a period of brilliant prosperity, a decadence and a fall. The particular form or system seems not to have had any special effect, the routine has always been invariably the same none have been enduring and seem to have fallen through the same immediate cause. The fault then it seems must not be attributed to the particular form or system, as all systems have met a common fate, but we must look deeper and see if there is not a fatal error in some of the underlying principles common to all which has sapped their vitality—a fatal canker at the root that has poisoned the body politic and finally destroyed the Nation. The people of America are the arbiters of their own fortunes. Where evils exist in their Government it is they who must find the remedy. Let them study history carefully, closely and endeavor to learn from the experiences of others to avoid the sloughs in which they plunged, etc.

GEORGIA PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the above association will be held in the city of Macon on TUESDAY, May 23, at 10 o'clock a. m. J. HESTILL, President. J. W. CHAPMAN, Sec'y.

We want it distinctly understood that we are not responsible for opinions and sentiments expressed by our correspondents, or are responsible for communications of any description.

The next state convention of the Georgia Alliance will be held in Macon, August the 20th.

Griffin was the fortunate place, and the Bates farm was decided as the proper locality on which to establish the Experiment Station.

THE STATE ALLIANCE, COM. MITTEE.

Have Perfected Arrangements for the Use of Cotton Bagging.

The state alliance committee appointed at the late meeting in Atlanta to arrange for the clothing of the coming cotton crop in cotton bagging have prepared the following report:

The committee appointed to secure the manufacture of cotton bagging, upon invitation, met in conference the Southern Cotton Manufacturers' association at Augusta, to determine the best means for obtaining a sufficient amount of cotton bagging to meet the necessities of the coming year. It is our pleasure to say to the farmers of the state that the Manufacturers' association extend to us every possible courtesy and a full expression of sympathy in our efforts to carry out the recent action of the state alliance in adopting cotton as the covering for cotton.

We have arranged with manufacturers to supply the farmers of this state with cotton bagging to be guaranteed not less than thirteen inches wide and to average twelve ounces to the yard, i. e. at the mills. The members of the manufacturers' association agree to take cotton so covered at ten cents additional per one hundred pounds to cover loss of weight in light covering.

To meet the conditions necessary to begin the manufacture, we have contracted with the mills for two million yards of cotton bagging.

This contract will not be completed until it is ratified by orders from the alliance of the state, covering the amount for which we have contracted.

All orders will be promptly filled by the mills when accompanied by cash or negotiable paper or will be accepted by the mills. Manufacturers will not furnish bagging unless they are fully satisfied as to the responsibility of the parties ordering. This may be established by giving negotiable notes, suitable bank references, or forwarding through some party who is fully known to have satisfactory commercial standing.

No arrangements for the manufacture of cotton will be begun until the alliance ratify our contracts by placing orders with the mills covering the amount for which we have contracted. It will be necessary, therefore, for each sub-alliance to order the amount they may need, under the terms expressed above, so that the manufacturers may begin without delay. Otherwise the mills may be crowded, and late orders will not be filled.

Mills will begin the delivery of bagging about the first of August, in such amounts as it may be needed. The bagging to be paid for as it is delivered. All orders for bagging should be addressed to J. O. Williams, care, Lane Mills, New Orleans, or L. Lester, West Point, Ga.

Mills will not begin the manufacture until orders are in hand, stating the amount of bagging that will be needed by each alliance, and the date of delivery. We, therefore, urge every alliance to make immediate arrangements, as determined by the manufacturers.

Quite an idea upon the plan and purposes of fishing came to light at Vienna last week, when a fellow went fishing down on Gum creek. After selecting a good nice shad, and a comfortable seat, he threw his hook into the stream and drew from his pocket a newspaper and was soon lost in its columns. Directly his cork began to bobble. He began to pull from the water, and the cork to go clear under the water. Deliberately taying his paper aside, he picked up his pole and as he began to wind up his line remarked that he'd be doggone if a man could fish in peace there and he was going home.
