CHATHAM COUNTY 1798 TAX-DIGEST

EDITOR'S INTRODUCTORY NOTE: This feature of GGM is contributed by Mrs. Thomas C. Johnson and Mrs. Bess (E.A.) Stanley, both of Savannah, and will be carried in succeeding issues of GGM until it has all been published. The original of the 1798 Tax-Digest of Chatham County is in the files of the Georgia Historical Society at Savannah, in the Telfair Family Papers, Gibbons Family Group. This old tax-digest is one of a great number of old papers composing the Telfair family papers which were deposited with the Society many years ago by the Telfair family, one of oldest and most distinguished families of historic Savannah. The State Archives does not have a Chatham County tax-digest for 1798 or for any year prior to 1806. While undoubtedly a copy was made and furnished the State at the time (as that seems to have always been as now, a requirement of the Receiver of Tax Returns in the various counties of the state), it is assumed the copy sent to the seat of government at that time, 1798, has been lost.

We have not counted the names on this old tax-digest but there must be 3500 of them (an estimate). As GGM readers are aware, there are not any Census records for Georgia prior to 1820, so that these old tax-digests for those early years furnished fairly good substitute insofar as trying to determine the heads of households in a county prior to 1820. Among the returns, in addition to those who were heads of families, the returns of guardians, widows who had property but would not be the head of the household where they lived, partnerships, and other classes of tax-payers, will be found.

The law prior to sometime in the 1870s, required a tax-payer to return his property wherever located in the state, in the county where he lived, so that we know that those appearing on this tax-digest were residents of Chatham county at the time. Since the 1870s and until now, the tax-payer in making a return of his property for taxation must return the property in the county where it is located. From a genealogical standpoint, the old way was preferable, but the present way is the fairer from the standpoint of providing revenue for the various counties.

It may be explained that there are in the Telfair collection, additional lists of tax-returns and defaulters made during the following year and attached to the Tax-digest for that year (1799); these additional names are not included in this list to be published in GGM. The 1799 Digest is also in the Telfair family papers. In passing, please remember that in Georgia the term "tax-defaulter" does not mean one who has failed to pay his or her tax but rather one who has failed to make a return of his or her property for taxation. The law has always empowered the Receiver of Tax Returns (who prepares the digest from the written returns made him) to assess all property not returned, and assess it against the owner as he finds him to be; and in case of failure of the Receiver to assess, then the Tax-Collector is authorized to assess such property and add to the Digest after the Receiver turns it (the Digest) over to him to begin his tax-collecting.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Stanley undertook this rather big job on their own initiative, and the GGM editor and our readers deeply appreciate their arduous work and remembering GGM to let it be published as their contribution without one cent of remuneration. The original digest was not arranged alphabetically as is now and for many years done, so that the good ladies had to make a slip of paper for each name and then arrange them alphabetically, thus entailing much more work.

Most of the names carry the section of Savannah in which the tax-payer lived, thus "Decker Ward"; and for those outside of Savannah, the district or community in which the tax-payer lived is shown, thus "White Bluff". Many returns were made by agents for the owner and listed under the agent's name, but in this listing is listed under the tax-payer's name, followed by the agent's name. A good many foreigners were living in Savannah, judging by the foreign-sounding names found.

The Editor apologizes for this rather lengthy "introduction" but hopes his subscribers will better understand appreciate old tax-digests, after reading this "Introduction". The list follows:
