

SHE IS MARRIED.

Miss Sallie Aughtman, Who Was Duped by Fleming, the Bigamist, Marries.

Miss Sallie Aughtman, the young lady whom Fleming, the blind bigamist, duped some time ago, was married on the 15th of January to Mr. Columbus J. Ray, and the couple now live together happily on De-Wald street, in a cottage next to Mrs. Ray, the mother of the groom, while Fleming spends his time working with the convicts at the works of the Chattahoochee Brick company.

Before Miss Aughtman met the deceptive Fleming she boarded with Mrs. Ray, and was a good friend to Mr. C. J. Ray, her present husband. But when Fleming began deceiving her she grew cold toward Mr. Ray, and finally moved to a house on Peters street.

After her marriage with Fleming, his expose by the wife from Illinois, his trial and conviction, she went back to board with Mrs. Ray.

The friendship between her and Mr. Ray was renewed, and finally resulted in a happy marriage.
