

Happily Married.

Last night, at the Third Presbyterian church, Miss Evie Carr, of Atlanta, was united in marriage to Mr. J. D. Reeves, of St. Louis, in the employ of the Pullman Palace Car company, of that city. Rev. N. Keff Smith performed the ceremony in a solemnly impressive style, which greatly touched the large audience, who had assembled to witness it. The church was beautifully and tastefully decorated with lovely flowers by some of the bride's lady friends. Spanning the altar and the two side aisles were three arches of fragrant flowers and evergreens, which filled the church with sweet odors. On the left hand arch the bride's family name was inscribed, and over that, on the right hand, the name Reeves appeared in letters constructed of white flowers. From the central or altar arch depended a large white canopy, delicately fashioned of white daisies. At 8 o'clock, the hour appointed for the ceremony, the ushers, Messrs. W. D. Harwell, W. A. Shirah, W. F. Barton, and A. F. Kuhns, entered the church, and, dividing into two parties, proceeded up the side aisles. Just behind either party walked Miss Marie Reeves, the groom's little sister, of Calhoun, Ga., and Miss Nellie Nix, the bride's niece. Following the little girls came Miss Carr, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Edwin Carr, and Mr. Reeves, who, with Mr. Glenn Hendrix, walked up the right aisle, Prof. Helmer playing the wedding march, while Miss Carr took the left. The bride was dressed in creamy nun's veiling, her brow encircled with a wreath of oleanders and rosebuds, and carrying a bouquet of rosebuds in her hand. A long fleecy white bridal veil covered her face. Misses Reeves and Nix were attired in spotless white and carried wreaths of flowers in their hands. When the bridal party finally met at the altar rail, the children stood on platforms provided for them, facing the audience, while the bride and groom stood under the floral canopy. Rev. N. Keff Smith then made a brief and beautiful address, in which he alluded to the first marriage—that of Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden—when God was the minister and bright angels the witnesses. When he spoke of two angels having joined the hands of Adam and Eve, the two little ladies stepped forward and joined the hands of the bride and groom. At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party, with their many friends, proceeded to the residence of the bride's sister, Miss Nora Carr, No. 289 Luckie street, where a splendid collation was provided for them, the house being literally filled with flowers, and where the many handsome wedding presents the couple had received were set out. Mr. and Mrs. Reeves leave at six this evening for Calhoun, Ga., where Mr. Reeves' parents reside. From there they will go to Chattanooga, and thence to San Francisco, Cal. They will then return to St. Louis, which they will make their future home. Heartfelt congratulations and good wishes for a long, prosperous and happy life go with them from the bride's legion of warm friends in Atlanta.

Fulton's Stock Law Election.

The election yesterday in Fulton county on the stock law resulted as follows: