

CURTISS-EDDY.*A Quiet Wedding at the Church of the Redeemer this Noon.

The chapel of the Church of the Redeemer was the scene this noon of a pleasant event, in which the people of the church felt no little interest. It was the marriage of Miss Alice Maud, daughter of Rev. Dr. Eddy, pastor of the church, and Mr. Edward C. Curtiss, of Detroit, Mich. The bridal party reached the church promptly at 12:30, and preceded by the ushers, Messrs. Walker and Beck, passed up the main aisle to the altar, the groom being accompanied by the bride's mother, and the bride following with her father. The beautiful marriage service was pronounced by Dr. Eddy in a very impressive manner, and upon its conclusion the party moved out of the church to the inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, rendered by Mrs. C. H. Chase, the organist.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss left the city at 1:30 p. m. and after a short bridal trip will go to Detroit, their future home. Mr. Curtiss holds a responsible position with the Michigan Central railroad, at Detroit, and is a gentleman in every way worthy of the prize he has taken from Atlanta.

The bride is a lady of unassuming nature, whose charms of manner and remarkable gifts of intellect have made her well known in the world of literature. Her poems and stories have delighted thousands. During her residence of less than two years in Atlanta, she has drawn about her a large circle of warm friends, and will bear with her to her Northern home a wealth of love, and good wishes for her future happiness and prosperity.
