Case on appeal & Verdict.

The Court permitted the following facts to be given in evidence by the defendant by in the above case that the defendant deposited with the plaintiffs as factors and Commission merchants twenty bales of Cotton, that the plaintiffs shipped said Cotton to Charleston after having made advances of thirteen hundred and odd Dollars upon it in the usual way (and after sixty days from the time of making said Advances had expired; that when the time of payment of such Advances arrived Cotton was worth in Augusta more than twenty cents, and the Court informed the jury that as the plaintiffs had not sold the Cotton to pay themselves their Advances within the sixty days (and had shipped the Cotton as aforesaid) the defendants were entitled to the value of the Cotton in Augusta or when said Advances fell due in abatement of the plaintiffs' demand. The Counsel for the plaintiffs objected to the evidence as not admissible under the plea filed (and) object to the charge of the Court as illegal under the plea filed (and) upon these grounds move for a new trial.

Augustus B. Longstreet Esq. att.

The testimony in the foregoing case was as follows

The plaintiffs account was proved by plaintiffs & denied by defendant. And Charles J. Williams, proved that it was not the custom of Factors in Augusta to ship Cotton without orders, upon which they have made Advances. That advances by factors upon deposit of Cotton is understood to be upon a credit of sixty days (and) that the factor has a right by the custom of merchants to sell such Cotton to reimburse himself such Advances when the same fell due. This with the testimony mentioned in the foregoing note is what was delivered on the trial.
