I Elizabeth Quarterman, of the State of Georgia and County of Liberty, widow, being advanced in years, do make my last will and testament as follows:

I commend my soul to God my Creator, beseeching him for the sake of his dear son Jesus Christ, the Blessed Redeemer, to forgive all my sins, which are many and great, and to prepare me by his Holy Spirit for a happy eternity in his heavenly kingdom.

I wish my body to be decently buried by my friends, that it may rest in the grave till the great resurrection-day.

I dispose of my property in the following manner.

I give and bequeath my negro slave Charles to my daughter Lydia Living during her natural life.

and, at her death to the children of my deceased daughter Ann Andrews.

I give and bequeath my negro woman slave Lenny, ~~and~~ her future issue, to the children of my deceased daughter Rebecca Quinterman.

I give and bequeath my negro slaves, Rose and Patty, and their future issue, to my grand daughter, Lydia Quinterman Andrews.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this second day of December in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and thirty.

My dearly beloved and only daughter.

20th January 1833.

Being so very infirm, and so far advanced in years, and as I wish no one but yourself, and those concerned to be troubled with the small matters I have, I will in few words, let you know what I wish, and hope you may not think me partial nor unjust. In a will, written some time since, I gave you Charles, but I hope the time is not far distant when you will have enough to support you comfortably, and Lydia S. Andrews [being] in indigent circumstances, and the one left her not likely to be to be of any service, I have, thought best to give her Charles. In the first place, I entreat you, as a mother's part to Lydia, counsel, advise and direct her, and, if agreeable, keep her with you. I commit her to God, and yourself. Next, I give you, Lydia being, the best family Bible, and that part of land I hold on the plantation I formerly lived, being thirty three acres, also my ten rooms. Next, I give Robert T. Quinterman the largest trunk, one feather bed and pillows with one quilt, pair of sheets and two blankets. Next, I give Lydia S. Andrews my boy Charles, my horse and gig, with the remaining part of my furniture, also my claim in the Land Lottery. Next, as I know of no debt what money remains, divide between yourself, Lydia Andrews and Robert T. Quinterman. I beg there may be no hard thoughts or disturbance, and that you may all consider this as such my will as the one written by Mr. Baker.

And now my dear children farewell. Live in love, and serve God faithfully, who, I know is able to keep and guide you. I commit you to him, and pray that we may all have a happy meeting in the Kingdom of our Heavenly Father, where we shall separate no more. Finally, my dear children adieu, and may the God of peace be with you.
