

...the same by and with the testimony of the said John and Samuel Buggs, Administrators and of the said William Buggs and Benjamin Buggs one plantation or tract of land known by the name of Buggs and computed to contain five hundred and thirty five acres to hold to them their heirs & assigns for ever to them & theirs a like the plantation or tract of land then given and bequeathed unto the said William Buggs of one Negro man named Luke to him his Executors Administrators and assigns for ever then given and bequeathed unto my son Benjamin Buggs one Negro man named George to him his Executors Administrators and assigns for ever then given and bequeathed unto my three sons namely Jeremiah, Samuel, and Jacob and to them and every of their heirs and assigns for ever then and there a like the plantation or tract of land on which I now live each dwelling house and appurtenances in the whole computed to contain eight hundred and thirty acres be the same more or less and also I further give Give & bequeath again last mentioned to the said Jeremiah and Jacob and to them and each of their heirs and assigns forever then given and bequeathed unto my three sons each tract of land the names of which are computed to contain five hundred acres to hold to them the said three sons forever to them & theirs a like

[The page contains a dense, handwritten document, likely a will, written in cursive script. The text is extremely dark and heavily obscured by shadows and noise, making it largely illegible. The document appears to be a legal instrument, possibly a will, given the context of the page number and the title. The handwriting is consistent throughout, suggesting a single scribe. The document is written on a single sheet of paper, which is slightly aged and shows some wear at the edges.]

[The page contains several paragraphs of handwritten text in cursive script, which is extremely faded and difficult to decipher. The text appears to be a legal document or a letter, possibly related to the will mentioned in the footer. The handwriting is dense and fills most of the page.]

Richmond Co., GA Will Book A (1777-1798)
LWT William Bugg