IRISH LANDED GENTRY.

ENTERED AT STATIONERS' HALL.

Dublin : George Healy, Steam Printer, 20 Lower Ormond Quay.

P R E F A C E .

FROM sources as authentic as any that can be found in profane records we give in our Third Edition* of IRISH PEDIGREES the "Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation," and, so far as we could find, the genealogies of the families which branched from that ancient stem ; together with the genealogies of Anglo-Irish and Anglo-Norman families which settled in Ireland from time to time since the English invasion.

In this Volume are given some 257 additional genealogies which we collected, most of them in the MSS. Library of Trinity College, or in the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin, since that Edition was compiled ; with a few of the genealogies contained in that Edition, which we have been able to enlarge or correct since that Work was published : amongst them being the genealogies of the "Bennett," "Dillon†," "MacGrath," "O'Brien," "O'Byrne," "O'Donel," "O'Shea," "O'Toole," "Purcell‡," and "Sweney" families, &c. But, in our desire to meet the wishes of friends who urged the publication of this Work "as soon as possible," we regret that all those additional genealogies are not, in their regular alphabetical order, given with the others in the early pages of the Volume : because we went to Press before we had completed our investigation of some of those additional pedigrees. It is, therefore, that some of the genealogies† are given in pp. 195-225, and others in the Addenda, in pp. 599-655.

In the Corrigenda (which commence at p. 657) we give the corrections, among which at p. 666 see No. 9 on the "Cotter" pedigree ; and we there give some of the genealogies more fully than we were able to give them in the body of the Work. Among these it will be seen are the genealogies of "Claiborne," "Cleborne," "Cleburne," "Clibborn," "Curwen," etc.: all of which, though correct in the main as they are given in pp. 197-210, we have lately been able to enlarge. As now inserted in the Corrigenda, however, these genealogies will bear the strictest scrutiny. In others of the genealogies in the Corrigenda we make only the more important corrections. But, should we live to see a second edition of this Work, and that we are sustained in its publication expenses, we shall therein give each pedigree in proper sequence and its regular alphabetical order; as well as put in dictionary form at the top of each page of the genealogies the first three letters of the name of the family pedigree thereon given; as we do in the Addenda to this Volume.

* Edition : Published in 1881 by M. H. Gill and Son, Dublin.

† Dillon and Purcell : For the origin of the surname "Dillon" see p. 669 ; and for a sketch of the "Purcell" family see p. 674.

‡ Genealogies : As errors are likely to occur in every compilation, we shall be glad to be corrected, if in error ; and to receive any information of general interest relating to any pedigrees and historical matter contained in this Volume. Any information, however, not founded upon fact, is of no use genealogically ; but if accompanied by documentary proof or authentic references, it shall receive attention, and, after careful examination and comparison, corrections will be made, if necessary, in the next Edition.

A careful perusal of some of the Papers in the Appendix, particularly those numbered 6, 7, 8, and 9, will show that in the wide field of our genealogical research we have been unable to collect all the Irish and Anglo-Irish Pedigrees; but we are satisfied that we have collected all the Irish pedigrees that are preserved in our public archives, or that escaped the ravages of the Elizabethan Wars, and the Strafford and Cromwellian devastations, in Ireland. And some of the Papers in the Appendix, particularly those numbered 8, 9, 10, 11, 16, 17, 18, 20, 27 and 28, will account for the settlement, for the first time, of some families in certain counties in Ireland; but, in the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES (which may be considered a "Companion Volume" to this Work) may be ascertained the Irish origin of many of the surnames mentioned in those Papers.

Some of the "new comers" settled in Ireland during the Elizabethan Wars*; many of them in the time of Sir William Petty;† others of them

* Wars: For a description of the state of Ireland in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, see Sir Charles Gavan Duffy's "Bird's Eye View of Ireland"; and, for a description of Ireland in the Commonwealth period, see our "Dedication," commencing at p. 4.

† Petty: It may interest our readers to know that Sir William Petty was the first to introduce into Ireland what is known as Quit Rent: that is, one penny per acre (or 10s. per quarter or 120 acres) of land held by each of the then Irish Proprietors, to be paid to Queen Elizabeth "for ever," in consideration for which each Proprietor was made to believe that he would be confirmed in his possessions, and protected by the Government against all breakers of the law. When, however, through Petty's Survey, the Government became cognizant of the extent of land possessed by each Irish Catholic Proprietor, there was almost in every case a wholesale confiscation of their Estates; the rulers of provinces, counties, or districts in Ireland largely sharing in the result of those confiscations. But that it would be invidious, perhaps, to do so, we could name several of the present families in our native county (Mayo), whose ancestors thus obtained large tracts of the land then confiscated in that county.—See p. 632 for the Indenture made between Sir John Perrott, for and on behalf of Queen Elizabeth, of the one part, and the Lords, Chieftains, Gentlemen, Freeholders, etc., in the "Countie of Mayoe," of the other part.

during the Viceroyalty of the Earl of Strafford, who ruthlessly dispossessed, particularly in the province of Connaught, almost all the Catholic Proprietors, but especially the Catholic Proprietors of the Irish race, in his time in Ireland. Of Strafford's government we read in Darcy M'Gee's History of Ireland, Book viii., p. 93 :

“The plantation of Connaught, delayed by the late King's death and abandoned among the new King's Graces, was resumed. The proprietary of Connaught had in the 13th year of the late reign paid £3,000 into the Record Office, Dublin, for the registration of their Deeds ; but the entries not being made by the Clerk employed (for that purpose), the title to every western county, five in number, was now called in question. The Commissioners to enquire into defective Titles were let loose on the devoted Province, with the noted Sir William Parsons at their head ; and the King's title to the whole of Mayo, Sligo, and Roscommon was found by packed, bribed, or intimidated Juries. The Grand Jury of Galway refused to find a similar verdict, and were in consequence summoned to the Court of Castle Chamber, and sentenced to pay a fine of £4,000 each, to the Crown. The Sheriff who empanelled them was sentenced to pay a fine of £1,000 ; even the Lawyers who pleaded for the actual proprietors were stripped of their gowns ; the Sheriff Darcy died in prison ; and the work of spoliation proceeded.”

The Irish genealogies which are collected in our IRISH PEDIGREES and in this Volume are carried down to the lineal representative of each family living when such family was deprived of its patrimony, to make room for the new settlers, according as each English or Scotch migration* landed in Ireland ; but most of the Anglo-Irish and Anglo-Norman genealogies recorded in our Works are brought down to the Commonwealth period. Members of many of the present Irish families will see in one or other of the Lists given in this Volume the names of their ancestors who first obtained grants of Land, and settled in Ireland during the Elizabethan, Straffordian, Cromwellian, or Williamite Confiscations :

And Oh ! it were a gallant deed
To show before Mankind
How every race and every creed
Might be by love combined :
Might be combined, yet not forget
The fountains whence they rose ;
As, filled by many a rivulet
The stately SHANNON flows.

* Migration : The first English migration came into Ireland in 1168, in the reign of King Henry II. From that period down to the end of the reign of Henry VIII. there were seventy-eight such migrations.—See p. 688 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES.

While O'Clery brings most of the Irish genealogies contained in his book down to A.D. 1636; MacFirbis, to 1666; and O'Ferrall's Linea Antiqua, to 1708, it is only in a few cases that, in any of those great works, the locality of any representative of an Irish family living at those respective periods is mentioned: possibly, because under the Laws of Tanistry the locality in which was situate each family patrimony in Ireland was in those times well known. To MacFirbis, however, we may look, so far as their genealogies are contained in his book, for the lineal representatives of the Irish, Anglo-Irish, and Anglo-Norman families living when the Estates of the Irish "Papist Proprietors" and of the Irish "Delinquent Protestants"* were confiscated, under the Cromwellian Settlement of Ireland.

The Books of the Commonwealth,† however, which are now deposited in the Public Record Office, Dublin (and which through the kind permission of the amiable Sir Samuel Ferguson, Q.C., Deputy Keeper of the Rolls in Ireland, we have carefully consulted), enabled us to locate nearly all the Irish families whose Estates were forfeited during the Cromwellian Confiscations. One of those Books (No. 12 on the Catalogue, p. 233 of this Volume), which is marked in the Public Record Office I. E. 10. 115, and whose Title is "Forfeiting Proprietors, Listed," gives the counties, baronies, and in most cases the localities in which resided the Irish Landed Gentry whose Estates were then confiscated; but, unfortunately, the names of the Landed Gentry whose Estates were confiscated in the counties‡ of Carlow, Wicklow, Clare, Galway, Roscommon, Leitrim, and part of the counties of Mayo and Sligo, are not included in that Volume.

No. 56 on the said Catalogue (whose Title is "Transplanters' Certificates," and) which is marked I. E. 10. 123; together with two other Volumes which are also deposited in the Public Record Office, Dublin, and there respectively marked I. C. 8c. 126, and I. C. 8c. 127, are the only ones now extant which give the names of the Transplanters from any of the * Delinquent Protestants: By this designation were known the loyal Protestants who sided, or were suspected of sympathy, with their King, the unfortunate Charles I.

† Commonwealth: The Books of the Commonwealth which are forthcoming, consist of fifty-six volumes, and are all in Manuscript.

‡ Counties: See, at p. 247 of this Work, the Preface to the Commonwealth Volume "Forfeiting Proprietors, Listed."

fifteen Revenue Precincts* into which the Government of the Commonwealth then divided Ireland. The Volume I. E. 10. 123 here mentioned includes the names of Transplanters from the City of Limerick; and the baronies of Kilmallock, Kenry, Connello, Coshma, Owneybeg, Coshlea, Coonagh, Smallcounty, Pubblebrien, and Clanwilliam, in Limerick County. The Volume I. C. 8c. 126 (whose Title is "A Booke of Entries of the Certificates returned from the Commissioners of Revenue of the severall Precincts in Mounster: By the Commissioners of Revenue within the Precinct of Clonmel,") includes the names of Transplanters from the counties of Limerick, Tipperary, Waterford, Cork, and Kerry; and the Volume I. C. 8c. 127 (whose Title is "A Booke of Entries of the Certificates returned from the severall Precincts in the Province of Leynster: By the Commissioners of Revenue within the Precinct of Dublin,") contains the "Entries of persons' names unto whome Certificates haue been graunted" in the following counties: King's County, Westmeath, Meath, Louth, Dublin, Wexford, Kilkenny, Queen's County, Kildare, and Carlow.

It thus appears that names of Transplanters in five out of the six counties at present in Munster, and in ten counties in Leinster, are given in the above mentioned Volumes; but the Volumes containing the names of the Transplanters from the Province of Ulster in the Commonwealth period are not forthcoming—are not, at least, among the Books of the Commonwealth deposited in the Public Record Office, Dublin. And there were no Transplanters from the Province of Connaught, nor from the county of Clare; for, it was in Connaught and the county of Clare, that the Forfeiting Proprietors of the other Provinces† in Ireland, who obtained Transplanters' Certificates, were transplanted. If, however, any Volume of Transplanters' Certificates of the Commonwealth period has been lost, the names of the Transplanters therein recorded are, no doubt, included in the "Inrolments of the Certificates of the Commissioners appointed for hearing and determining the Claims of Transplanted Persons, in the Province of Connaught and county of Clare: Preserved

* Precincts: The names of those Precincts were: 1. Dublin, 2. Trim, 3. Athy (in some printed State Papers this name is incorrectly given as "Athboy"), 4. Kilkenny, 5. Wexford, 6. Waterford, 7. Clonmel, 8. Cork, 9. Kerry, 10. Limerick, 11. Galway, 12. Athlone, 13. Belfast, 14. Belturbet, 15. Derry.

† Provinces: The names of the Transplanters from the Provinces of Leinster and Munster, contained in the above-mentioned Volumes, are given in pp. 328-358 in our Appendix.

in the Office of the Chief Remembrancer of the Exchequer, Dublin." The names appearing in those Inrolments are given in the Paper No. 9, at p. 359 in the Appendix to this Volume.

Judging by the "Original Marking" of the Books of the Commonwealth now extant, it would appear that at least thirty-six of those Records are lost; but it will be seen that even those of them that are forthcoming, and which are summarized* in the Paper No. 5 (p. 235) in the Appendix, throw much light on the proceedings in Ireland during the Commonwealth period:

"I am inclined to think," says Sir Bernard Burke, "that in no other country can be found a more curious or important series of historical books than these of the Commonwealth in Ireland; and, while one cannot but regret the disappearance of so many volumes not in any way accounted for, it is fortunate that so many remain; as they present in very considerable completeness the course of the Government of Ireland during the Commonwealth Rule."

In the "Books of Survey and Distribution" (to which we shall presently refer,) may be seen the names and addresses of the "Forfeited Proprietors" of the Commonwealth period, in any of the counties of Ireland; together with the names of the persons to whom those forfeited Estates or portions of them were then conveyed. As (see p. 1) the "Books of Survey and Distribution" embrace twenty large Volumes, it would be impossible for us to give their contents in this Work; but (see p. 469) the Paper No. 21 in the Appendix gives a clear idea of the nature of the information which those important Volumes contain. The reader who wishes to consult any of those Volumes, or any other Volume, Will, Record, or Document deposited in the Public Record Office, Dublin, can there do so on payment of the small fee of one shilling.

In the Paper No. 20 in the Appendix, p. 452, we give "The names in the Grants under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation" (1661-1665); and (see p. 438), in the Paper No. 19, we give a brief Abstract of the Enactments contained in those Acts.

We also give the names of the Regicides of Charles I.; the Declaration of Charles II., and the Restorees and Nominees mentioned in that Declaration; the Grantees of Land in Ireland, under the "Commission

* Summarized: The Summary of those Records in the Report of the 1st of Feb., 1882, to the Master of the Rolls in Ireland, by Sir Bernard Burke, the Keeper of the State Papers in Dublin Castle, is so lucid, that, in preference to our own voluminous Notes of the Contents of the Commonwealth Records, we have respectfully ventured to adopt Sir Bernard's Summary.—See pp. 27-52 of the "Appendix to Fourteenth Report of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland."

of Grace ;" the names in the Inrolments of Adjudications in favour of the A.D. "1649 Officers ;" and the names of those in the Catalogue of the Reports and Schedules addressed to the Court of Claims, who claimed as, or in right of, Soldiers of the Commonwealth in Ireland.

From the Book of Survey and Distribution for "Leitrim, Sligo and Tyrawley" (marked I. C. 1. 20), we give in the Paper No. 21, p. 469 in the Appendix, a few of the entries under the counties of Leitrim and Sligo ; but, as a tribute of affection for our native home, we give in their entirety* in that Paper the names of the Landed Gentry in the barony of Tyrawley and county of Mayo, in the memorable year, A.D. 1641.

For the information contained in the Papers Nos. 22, 30, 31, and 32 in the Appendix we are indebted to the courtesy of Mr. J. Casimir O'Meagher, of Mountjoy-square, Dublin ; to whom we were also indebted for information respecting the Irish Brigades in the service of France, etc., mentioned in the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES.

But, while in the Spanish Netherlands, France, Spain, and other European countries Irishmen have shed lustre on their native country, we venture to say that nowhere and under no circumstances have they displayed more heroism, magnanimity, dauntless enterprise, genius, dignity, burning zeal, good citizenship, unsullied fidelity, and administrative power, than in the Service of America.† As to them in exile the Land of the "Stars and Stripes" had been a refuge and a home, for that Land our countrymen with willing hearts have fought, and bled, and died. Whenever disaster seemed to threaten the Great Western Republic, either from foreign power, or internal discord, Irishmen were the first to grasp their swords, and the last to sheathe them ; until her foes had been vanquished, and the smiles of peace had returned to brighten and beautify her once more through the length and breadth of her vast and God-favoured Empire. It is therefore that we in Ireland should feel proud of their exploits ; and it is therefore that we ourself feel pleasure in herein recording the names mentioned in Paper No. 34 (p. 563-584) in the Appendix. In that Paper we give a List of the Officers in the Irish-American Brigades during the American War of 1861-1865, between the * Entirety : If God spares us, we mean to give in a future Work the names of all the Landed Gentry in Ireland, in 1641 ; and the names of the persons who succeeded to those Estates or to portions of them.

Northern and Southern States, on the Slave-Emancipation question ; when, unhappily, the Federal Army* of the North was pitted against the Confederate Army of the South. That Federal Army was, it will be remembered, chiefly composed of Meagher's Irish Brigade and of Corcoran's Irish Legion (two distinct Brigades), besides several Regiments and many Companies in the " Union " Volunteers, coming from certain States of the Union, all of whom served in the Federal Army ; but in the Confederate Army in that War were many distinguished Officers,† Irish by birth or descent, whose names if we knew them we would also herein gladly record. Among those were General " Stonewall " Jackson, General Patrick Clayborn, General (now United States Senator) Mahone, etc. In a future edition, however, we hope to be able to give the names of all the Irish Officers in the Confederate Army ; together with the names of any Irishmen (by birth or descent) who at any time filled the Office of President of the United States of America, or of Governor of any State in the Union ; or who in any other position in any of our Colonies shed lustre on their Nation and their Race. For any assistance which we receive in the compilation, or publication, of such a " Roll of Honour," we shall feel obliged.

We shall also thankfully receive any contributions sent to us towards the compilation of " THE ANCIENT SOVEREIGN HOUSES IN IRELAND AND THEIR MODERN REPRESENTATIVES," which we are prepared soon to publish, if we are sufficiently sustained in the publication expenses of that work ; and we shall thankfully acknowledge any assistance we receive for that purpose.

* Army : Besides the Irish Brigade and the Irish Legion in the Federal Army, there were several Regiments distinctively Irish in different States, and many Irish Companies ; besides many Irish Officers whose Companies were partly Irish, such as :

The 37th New York Volunteers (" Irish Rifles").

The 40th do. do. (" Tammany Regiment").

Colonel Cass's Pennsylvania Regiment.

Colonel Mulligan's Chicago Regiment ; etc.

So that the names of the Irish Officers in the service of America would, even with their brief records, fill a good-sized volume ; not to speak of the Irish Officers who held command in the " Rebel " or Confederate Army. We might observe that every full Regiment had about thirty-five Officers.

† Officers : The names of the Officers in Meagher's Irish Brigade are taken from Captain Conyngham's " Irish-American Brigade and its Campaigns," published in 1866 ; and the names of the Officers in Corcoran's Irish Legion are taken from the Official Report of the Adjutant-General of the State of New York. If in either Return it be found that we omitted any name which ought to be inserted, we beg to say that such omission was unintentional.

There is, we find, a large number of Irish Officers at present in the Regular Army of the United States of America.

At the end of this Volume we give a "List of Subscribers," who, up to the time of our going to press with that List, contributed towards the publication expenses of this Work. But we are bound to say that some of the Subscribers were pleased to send us subscriptions larger than those which they requested us to insert after their names ; while some Friends have requested to appear on the List as "Anonymous" ; and others have sent us Donations, with the request that their names or donations should not be published. We shall hope that others in whatever clime their lot is cast, and who are blest with means, will also kindly assist us to meet the heavy pecuniary liabilities which we have incurred by the publication expenses of this Volume.

In the fervent hope that the knowledge of the relation which the lineal descent of the present Royal Family bears to the ancient Royal Stem of Ireland, would conduce to a kindly and sympathetic feeling on behalf of her Gracious Majesty towards our suffering country, we, with profound respect, humbly forwarded to Queen VICTORIA a copy of the Third Edition* of our IRISH PEDIGREES ; in pp. 40-44 of which that lineal descent is carefully traced. It is needless to say that Her Majesty graciously accepted and acknowledged the Volume.

And, because in the Penal days of Ireland Catholic Spain generously afforded a friendly asylum to many of our then exiled countrymen, we also forwarded for the acceptance of King Alfonso another copy of that Work ; in pp. 44-45 of which is given the lineal descent of the Spanish Royal Family down to King Philip V. That Volume was also graciously accepted and acknowledged.

After the "Index† of Surnames" are given the names of other Personages to whom copies of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES were also respectfully forwarded ; and next are given the "Opinions of the Press" on that Edition, from Newspapers and Periodicals in the Old and New World.

As the Book of Genesis and the Writings of the Apostles contain expressions and conceptions respecting the Creation, which cannot be clearly interpreted unless by the latest results of Geological Science, we give in pp. xxv.-xxxi. of that Work, "Notes on the Duration of Man's

* Edition : A copy of that Edition as well as a copy of this Work may be seen in the Library of the House of Commons, and in the Library of the House of Lords, London.

† Index : In the General Index is given any word, name, or passage employed in the body of the Work, that occurred to us as of sufficient importance to bring under the reader's notice ; and in the "Index of Surnames" we believe we give every family name mentioned in any and every page of the Volume.

Existence upon the Earth*"; in which, guided by geological laws, we have ventured to interpret those expressions and conceptions, without conflicting in any manner with the account of the Creation contained in the Sacred Volume! In our great veneration for the Visible Head of the Church to which we belong, we respectfully forwarded a copy of that Edition also to Pope Leo XIII., for his gracious acceptance; earnestly requesting the consideration by His Holiness of the views which we humbly propound in those "Notes." It was our privilege to receive from the Holy Father, per the Right Rev. Doctor Kirby, Bishop of Lita, and Rector of the Irish College in Rome (through whom the Presentation was made), the following courteous reply:

"Rome, 30th December, 1881.

"DEAR SIR,

"I had the pleasure to receive your esteemed letter of the 25th instant, which was followed by your Work on the 'Irish Pedigrees' a day or two after. I hasten to inform you that I had the honour of an audience with the Holy Father on yesterday, and I availed myself of the occasion to present him with your Work, which he graciously received. I explained to him its object. He looked over it with interest, and said that he would have it placed in the Library. He was pleased to authorize me to send to you, together with his thanks for the Work, his Apostolic Benediction, which I trust will be a help and an impulse to you to continue to employ your superior talents for the advantage of our holy religion and country, in the production of works useful to both; thus meriting for yourself at the proper time the encomium and promise of Divine Wisdom: 'Qui elucidant me vitam eternam habebunt.' Wishing you every success in your most laudable undertaking, and all the blessings and graces of this holy season.

"I am, yours sincerely,

"✠ T. KIRBY, Bishop of Lita, etc.

"John O'Hart, Esq.,

"Ringsend, Dublin."

It only remains for us to express our grateful acknowledgments to Sir Samuel Ferguson, LL.D., Q.C., and the Officers in his Department with whom we came in contact in the Public Record Office; to John K. Ingram, Esq., LL.D., the Librarian of Trinity College, and his obliging Assistants; to the Rev. M. H. Close, M.A., Major MacEniry, John T. Gilbert, Esq., F.R.S., and J. J. MacSweeney, Esq., all in the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin : for the uniform kindness and courtesy which we experienced from each and every of them during our tedious researches in their respective Institutions.

As this Work unveils the ancestors of many of the present Irish, Anglo-Irish, and Anglo-Norman families of various shades of religious and political opinions, we have endeavoured in its pages to subserve no sect or party. And we beg to say that, while our IRISH PEDIGREES and our IRISH LANDED GENTRY are necessarily national in character, there is nothing in them to wound the feelings of Celt or Saxon, Catholic or Protestant, Liberal or Conservative.

Hardinge,* in his "Circumstances attending the Civil War in Ireland, in 1641-1652" (Dublin : M. H. Gill, 1866), truly says :

"In the rise and progress of Empires, as naturally as in the lives of men, there are events concerning which the biographer or historian would willingly remain silent, did not the salutary lessons to be derived from them demand publication."

That sentence we freely adopt on our Title-page, and we heartily endorse the sentiment it contains. We shall rejoice that we did not remain "silent," if the publication of the events which we record in this Work will conduce to the removal of the causes for discontent which have long distracted our afflicted country :

"Long thy fair cheek was pale,

Eiré a rúin—

Too well it spake thy tale,

Eiré a rúin ;

Fondly-nursed hopes betrayed,

Gallant sons lowly laid,

All anguish there pourtrayed,

Eiré a rúin."

DEDICATION.

TO

HER LADYSHIP, THE ILLUSTRIOUS LADY HERBERT OF LEA.

MADAM,

As an humble Tribute of my sincere gratitude for your goodness to me and your distinguished Patronage of my School during the last twenty-seven years, as well for your kind consideration of the vicissitudes of my Family, I beg leave most respectfully to inscribe this modest Work to your Ladyship: satisfied that, in the goodness of your heart, you desire the happiness and contentment of my poor bleeding country. Happily, also, there are benevolent Personages in Her Majesty's Government and in Her Majesty's Opposition, who would generously redress the wrongs—so far as those wrongs can be now redressed—which England in the past inflicted on Ireland; but for which I am bound to say the present generation cannot justly be held responsible.

Since the English Invasion of Ireland, there was no epoch more disastrous to the Irish people than the Commonwealth period; when, for their devotion to Faith and King and Country, the Estates of the Irish "Papists" Landed Gentry were, wholesale, confiscated, to make room for the Cromwellian Settlement. That Settlement drove the "Irishrie" (one of my own ancestors among them) as outcasts on the world: as Slaves to the Sugar Plantations of Barbadoes; or, as "Tories" or "Rap-parees," to seek shelter as best they could in Ireland, on the mountains, in the woods, or in caves.*

* Caves: In his Cambrensis Eversus, Lynch states that Priests were then hunted like wild beasts; and if any escaped death it was only after they had undergone unheard of sufferings in the effort at once to discharge their perilous duty to their people and to secure their own safety. In a letter entitled Apologia, still preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, Dr. Nicholas French, Bishop of Ferns, in the county Wexford, writes: "I wandered (in 1649) through woods and mountains, generally taking my rest and repose exposed to the hoar frost; sometimes lying within caves and caverns of the earth. In the woods and groves I passed more than five months;

The Civil War of A.D. 1641 is credited with being the cause of the Commonwealth Confiscations in Ireland: I have therefore, without bias, gloss, or varnish, collected for your Ladyship's information passages of Irish History from English and Irish sources, Catholic and Protestant, bearing on the causes of the Irish discontent of that period.

As a Roman Catholic, Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, K.C.M.G., in his Bird's Eye View of Irish History, when he comes to narrate the atrocities perpetrated by the English in Ireland, especially in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, says:

"Under the Tudors the assent of the Sovereign was not a figure of speech. Elizabeth personally scrutinized and sanctioned the measures adopted. She sent her thanks and even her blessing to her 'faithful George' (Carew) for his good services among the Munster Papists . . . These were the golden days of the good Queen Bess, when the gallant Raleigh flourished as a type of adventurous chivalry, and Edmund Spenser was the greatest but one of the poets who have made the age illustrious. But the gallant Raleigh was in Munster during these transactions hunting for Irish lands; he got forty thousand acres of the Desmond confiscation, and paid for them by services worthy of Nana Sahib. And the poet who was in attendance on his patron, to pick up the scraps and fragments, got also a scanty meal of forfeited lands; and rivalled Giraldus Cambrensis, to serve the adventurers, with the pen which wrote the 'Faery Queene.' Of the daughters of Henry VIII. one has descended to posterity branded by the wrath of her subjects with the infamous title of the 'Bloody Queen'; but it was not the lady who left Desmond without horn, or corn, or roof-tree upstanding: she, we are taught, was the grace and glory of her age."

In summing up the events of the Elizabethan era in Ireland, Sir Charles writes:

"Before quitting the reign of this queen it will be instructive to reiterate that her agents, not merely in the cases cited, but habitually, practised arts which we are taught to attribute only to Italian nobles and Eastern despots. To cut off dangerous chiefs some were trapped by proffers of friendship and made prisoners for life, some that, thus I might administer some consolation to the few survivors of my flock who had escaped from the merciless massacre, and dwelt there with the herds of cattle. But neither woods nor caverns could afford me a lasting refuge; for the heretical governor of Wexford, George Cooke, well known for his barbarity, with several troops of cavalry and foot soldiers, searching everywhere, anxious for my death, explored even the highest mountains and most difficult recesses; the huts and habitations adjoining, in which I had sometimes offered the Holy Sacrifice, he destroyed by fire; and my hiding places, which were formed of branches of trees, were all thrown down. Amongst those who were subjected to much annoyance on my account was a nobleman in whose house he (Cooke) supposed me to be concealed. He searched the whole house with lighted tapers, accompanied by soldiers holding their naked swords in their hands, to slay me the moment I should appear. But, in the midst of all these perils, God protected me, and mercifully delivered me from the hands of this blood-thirsty man."

were poisoned with gifts of choice food sent to them with profuse pledges of friendship, others were slaughtered on their own hearths in the exercise of hospitality to their assassins, and many were inveigled to public conferences that they might be more conveniently murdered in batches. Not the Irish annals alone, but the State papers of the period, supply conclusive evidence of this system, and of the official authority under which it was practised. It helped, doubtless, to stamp on the native mind an ideal of *Sassenach duplicity which Englishmen find revolting and incredible."

And Sir Charles adds, that in a petition to the English Commons, A.D. 1640, the Presbyterians of the counties of Antrim, Down, and Tyrone declare that :

"By the cruelties, severities, and arbitrarie proceedings of civil magistrates, but principally through the sway of the prelacy with their faction, our souls are starved, our estates undone, our families impoverished, and many lives amongst us cut off and destroyed . . . Our cruel taskmasters have made us, who were once a people, to become, as it were, no people—an astonishment to ourselves, the object of pittance and amazement to others."

THE IRISH WAR OF 1641.

In his Kingdom of Ireland, Walpole, writing of the Irish Insurrection of 1641, says :

"Upon the death of Strafford, the king, in deference to the views of the English Parliament, appointed Sir William Parsons and Sir John Borlace (an old soldier) to hold the office of lords justices of Ireland. The island to all appearance was in a state of complete tranquillity ; and though there were rumours of disaffection in the air, and some significant warnings were given, the lords justices paid them no attention. But, notwithstanding this apparent quiet, the minds of the native Irish were greatly stirred by many things. There was a bitter feeling of suppressed hatred throughout the country. The wholesale confiscations were neither forgotten nor forgiven, and the smouldering fire of discontent had only been prevented from bursting forth by the terror of Strafford's government. The religion of the people was proscribed by law ; and, though its free exercise was to a great extent winked at, and practically, with the exception of an occasional outburst of intolerance, there was little or no persecution, the law might be put actively in force at any moment ; and, rightly or wrongly, a very general belief had got abroad that the English Puritans had determined to stamp out Popery† in Ireland. The ruthless proscriptions of Elizabeth

* Sassenach : This is the Irish word for "Englishman."

† Popery : Some time before the Insurrection of 1641, Sir John Clotworthy declared in a speech in the House of Commons, that the conversion of the "Irish Papist" was only to be effected by the Bible in one hand and the sword in the other. About the same time Sir William Parsons asserted that, within the coming twelvemonths, no Catholic should be seen in Ireland !—See Murphy's "Cromwell in Ireland."

had done their work ; and a host of Irish had been driven over the sea with a fierce hatred of England in their hearts, to become hardy and experienced soldiers in the service of Spain, and to foster in exile the hope of revenge upon their great enemy. While, at home, Strafford's disbanded army, which was almost wholly composed of Irish Roman Catholics, was ready and waiting to be re-enlisted by the first popular leader who should concert a rising . . . All through the complicated events of the ensuing ten years we find four distinct parties, generally pulling in different directions : four antagonistic forces which nothing could reconcile. There was the old Irish party, whose aim soon resolved itself into separation from England ; the old Anglo-Irish party, whose object was civil and religious liberty, and no separation ; the Puritan party, which became complicated with the Presbyterian interest of the Scotch in Ulster, and was strongly anti-Irish in every sense ; and there was the Royalist party, personified by Ormonde, which trimmed between the three others, and had as its ulterior aim the crushing of the third by means of the other two." . . .

Major Wood-Martin, an Irish Protestant, writes at pp. 2-3 of his *Sligo and the Enniskilleners :

"It must be allowed, however, that the intolerance practised by Protestants in former reigns provoked retaliation ; and to the rivalry of creeds may be attributed, as much as to bad government, the fierce outburst of religious fanaticism in 1641. The Irish priesthood were proscribed and exiled, and Protestant ministers filled their places. Laws were framed by Protestants in favour of Protestants, and penal statutes aimed at the extinction of the Roman Catholic religion and the annihilation of its priesthood . . . Roman Catholics were excluded from all military and public employment. From the Lord Lieutenant to the humblest official, from the Commander-in-Chief to the lowest subaltern in the army, all posts were filled by members of the Protestant religion . . . The religious feelings of the Roman Catholics had been intensified by persecution and violence, and they were made bigots and fanatics by the favour shown to the Church establishment and its members."

THE IRISH CONFEDERATION.†

As Gilbert's History of the Irish Confederation (1641-1643) throws much light on the state of Ireland at that unhappy period, the following extracts from that great work are here given :

"The main objects of the Confederates, according to their own statements," says Gilbert, "were to defend themselves against attacks from the Puritans, to maintain

* Enniskilleners : According to Harris's life of William III., the "Enniskilleners" were Protestants of the counties of Fermanagh, Cavan, Monaghan, Donegal, Leitrim, and Sligo, who, in 1688, mustered in Enniskillen, and refused admission to the soldiers of King James the Second.

† Confederation : Commonly known as The Kilkenny Confederation.

the Prerogatives of the Crown, as well as the privileges and rights of the Irish Parliament; to reinstate the Roman Catholic Church throughout Ireland, as it stood in the reign of Henry the Seventh, and to annul all penal laws against its members. Declaring by public oath their allegiance to the King (Charles I.), but, resisting the authority of the English Parliament, the Confederates, through their Supreme Council, organized forces, nominated commanders and officials, collected the public revenue, levied taxes, minted coin, treated with foreign powers, and governed a considerable part of Ireland. The administration thus established was long maintained by the Confederates, in opposition to the Government at Dublin and its army, which were aided by the English and Scotch settlers in Ireland, and those associated with them, as well as by large military and naval forces from England and Scotland. . .

"For many years previous to 1641, causes of grave discontent underlay an apparently tranquil surface in Ireland, and conduced to prepare the way for revolt against the existing system of government so soon as favourable circumstances should present themselves. . .

"The arrangements prescribed for the General or Supreme Council and the Provincial Councils were as follow: The General or Supreme Council of the whole Kingdom was to be constituted of representatives of the clergy, nobility, cities, and towns—three out of each province, and one out of each city or principal town. Each province in Ireland was to have a Council composed of clergy and nobility, and consisting of so many persons, at least, as there were counties in the province, with two representatives from every city or important town. The Provincial Councils were to be subordinate to the Supreme Council; and to the latter, appeals were to be addressed.

"To 'stop the way of untruths and forgeries of political adversaries,' who issued proclamations and instruments in the King's name, the congregation enjoined that no such documents should be accepted or credited until it had been ascertained that they had truly proceeded from the King, 'left to his own freedom'; and until the agents of the Irish, to be appointed by a National Council, should have free passage to his Majesty, whereby the Kingdom might be certainly informed of his intention and will."

A.D. 1643.

On the 16th June, 1643, "A Declaration of the Lords and Commons Assembled in Parliament, concerning the present Lamentable Estate and Miserable Condition of Ireland, The Poore Protestants in some places being forced to Kill their Horses to satisfie their Hunger, and very many others having perished by Famine," was ordered to be forthwith printed and published; and on the 17th June, 1643, it was printed for I. Wright, in the Old Baily, London. From that Declaration, which exhibits the Puritan standpoint, the following extracts are here given:

“We the Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, being by severall Letters fully informed both from the Lords Justices and Councell at Dublin, and also from other parts of the Kingdom of Ireland, of the extreemly necessitous condiciō (condition) of the whole Army and the rest of the distressed Protestants of that Kingdome, out of a compassionate sence of the miseries of their brethren there, and their tender care to prevent the extirpation of the Protestant Religion so generally aimed at : have thought fit to publish to the view of all piously affected persons, the lamentable estate of that distressed Kingdome, which is now by the unhappy influence of our distractions here, reduced to that extremity that in most parts of the Army, our souldiers want bread for their bellies, cloathes for their backs, and shooes for their feete, to give them a necessary subsistence, and in some parts they have been forced to Kill their Horses to satisfie their hunger, very many of the poore English in severall places haveing perished by famine. . . Nor can it be unknowne, that whatever bee pretended by the Rebells, yet the true causes heightning them to such a degree of barbarousnesse are, the inveterate hatred they beare to the true Religion, and their ambitious desires as is most evident by the severall Commissions from the Rebells, stiling themselves the ‘Supream Councell of the Confederate Catholiques of Ireland,’ issued to Men of War whom they maintained at Sea to spoyle the trade of this Kingdome, making themselves absolute and independent of this Kingdome, and which is not a little fomented by all the Popish Party throughout Christendome, as appears by the large contributions sent from all parts thither of Money, Armes, Ammunition, and experienced Commanders. . . Not to insist how much it imports all the Adventurers, Leaders, and Contributors, all Merchants and indeede the whole Nation to advance a considerable summe to what they have (already) applyed unto that worke for the now compleating thereof. . . These things considered, we desire that all well affected people would heartily apply themselves to prevent such mischiefe by chearefully contributing to so Pious a worke, which will be an Act in the esteeme of all the world very commendable and extreemly acceptable to God and all good men.”

The Adventurers were to have Lands in Ireland at the Rents and Rates* following :

In Ulster, 1000 Acres for £200, at the yearly Rent of £4 4s. 4d., or about one penny the Acre ; in Connaught, 1000 Acres for £300, at the yearly Rent of £6 5s., or 1½d. the Acre ; in Munster, 1000 Acres for £450, at the yearly Rent of £9 1s. 6d., or 2d. the Acre ; and in ‘Lymster’ (Leinster), 1000 Acres, at the yearly Rent of £12 10s., which is 3d. the Acre.

A Million of Money was the sum to be disbursed by the Adventurers. Admitting that there existed a sufficient quantity of Escheated Land in each Province, then Adventurers would have :

* Rates : According to “A Declaration of Both Houses of Parliament, concerning the Affairs of Ireland” (London : Printed for Joseph Hunscoett, 1641) ; and which now (1883) may be seen at Mr. Patrick Traynor’s, Bookseller, 29, Essex Quay, Dublin.

In Ulster, for £250,000, or a Quarter of a Million, 1,250,000 Acres.
In Connaught, for a like sum	833,334 Acres.
In Munster, for a like sum	555,556 Acres.
In Lymster, for a like sum	416,667 Acres.

If the Escheated Land in any one Province came short of these respective proportions, it was to be supplied out of those Provinces where the Escheated Land was redundant.

The several proportions of Land to be assigned to the Adventurers in each province was first chosen out by the Commissioners, or those constituted by them, before any other of the Escheated Lands were disposed of.

Every particular Adventurer was assigned to his distinct Province by one lot; and to his distinct proportion of Land in that Province, by another lot.

On the 20th of June, 1643, according to Gilbert, the Supreme Council of the Irish Confederation issued the following Proclamation, which, from the Irish standpoint, states the causes which led to the War in Ireland, of 1641 :

PROCLAMATION.*

“By the Supreme Councill of the Confederate Catholiques in Ireland :

“Whereas his Majesties (Charles I.) most faithfull subjects, the Confederate Catholiques of Ireland, were enforced to take armes for the preservacion of their religion, for the defence of his Majesties just prerogatives and rights, and the maintenance of the rights and liberties of their country, laboured to be destroyed by the Malignant partie : And whereas his Majestie in his high wisdome and princely care of his said subjects' welfare and safetie, and att their humble suite, that his Majestie might be gratusly pleased to heare their greevances and vouchsafe redress therein, did direct there should be a Cessacion of armes, and thereuppon did authorize the Right Honorable the Lord Marquess of Ormonde to treat of and conclude the said Cessacion with the said Confederate Catholiques : Know ye that wee, the said Councill, by the express Order and Authoritie of the said Catholiques by them conceived and graunted in their Generall Assembly, held att Kilkenny on the twentieth day of the last moneth of May, and in pursuance of the said Order and Authoritie, creposing especial confidence in the wisdom, circumspection, provident care, honnor and sinceritie of our very good Lords, Nicholas Lord Viscount Gormanstowne, Donnogh Lord Viscount Musery, and our wellbeloved Sir Lucas Dillon, Knight ; Sir Robert Talbott, Baronett ; Tyrlagh O'Neale, Esq. ; Geoffrey Browne, Esq. ; Ever Mac Ennes, Esq. ; and John Waylsh, Esq., have constituted, appointed, and ordained, and by these presents doe constitute, appointe, and ordaine the said Nicholas Lord Viscount Musery, Sir Lucas Dillon, Sir Robert Talbott, Tyrlagh O'Neale, Geffry Browne, Ever

* Proclamation : The names of the Signatories to that Proclamation will give the reader an idea of the social position of the persons who constituted the Supreme Council of the Irish Confederation, and of the objects for which they confederated.

Mac Ennes, and John Waylsh, our Commissioners, and doe by these presents give and graunt unto our said Commissioners, or any five or more of them, full power and authoritie to treat with the said Lord Marquess of Ormonde of a Cessacion of armes, for one whole year, or shorter, and to conclude the same for the tyme afforesaide uppon such terms, condicions and articles as to the said Commissioners afforesaide, shall seem proper in their ratifinge and confirminge whatsoever act or acts our said Commissioners as afforesaide shall doe or execute concerninge the said Cessacion.

A.D. 1646.

On the 5th of June of this year the battle of Benburb was fought upon the slopes of ground called the Thistle Hill, from being the property of the Thistles, a family of Scotch farmers; about six miles below Kinaird (now Caledon), in the county Tyrone.

At that battle the Irish were victorious, under the command of the celebrated Owen† Roe O'Neill. The leaders under him were: Brian O'Neill,

* Bellings: This Richard Bellings, the eldest son of Sir Henry Bellings, was the Secretary and a Member of the Supreme Council of the Kilkenny Confederation. He inherited considerable estates in the counties of Dublin, Wicklow, and Kildare.

† Owen: Owen Roe O'Neill was born in Ulster, and at an early age, as “the gates of promotion were closed at home,” entered the Spanish Service. At the first outbreak in Ireland, in 1641, he was sent for; but it was not until the latter end of June, 1642, that Owen embarked from Dunkirk, with many of the officers and men of his own regiment, and supplies of arms. He sailed round the north of Scotland to Donegal, where he landed; and was immediately conducted to Charlemont, and invested with the command of the Irish forces in Ulster. Owen sustained himself for four years against Monro on the one side, and Ormond on the other; until he fought and won the battle of Benburb. In 1649, the country being exhausted, Owen made a truce with Monk, Coote, and the Independents—a truce observed on both sides, although Monk was severely censured for it by the English Parliament. On the 12th of October, 1649, O'Neill concluded a treaty with Ormond; and, ere it was signed, he sent 3,000 men under Major-General O'Farrell, to join Ormond, which they did on the 25th of October of that year. Owen himself strove with all haste to follow, to encounter Cromwell, who had marched south after the sack of Drogheda; but, although anxiously expected by Ormond, O'Farrell, and the southern corps and army, Owen was unable to reach them, for, having contracted some disease (it was believed that he was poisoned), he struggled with it for a short time, and lingered till the 6th of November following. He died at Clough Oughter Castle—then the seat of Maelmorra O'Reilly, and situated on a rock in Lough Oughter, some six miles west of Cavan. According to Meehan's Flight of the Earls, Owen Roe O'Neill was buried in the Franciscan Convent, Cavan.

Con O'Neill, Cormac O'Neill, Hugh O'Neill, and the brothers Sir Phelim and Turlough O'Neill; and the following Chieftains with their Clans :

- | | |
|-------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1. MacMahon, Bernard | 6. O'Reilly, Colonel Philip |
| 2. ——— Colonel | 7. O'Reilly, Maelmorra, known |
| 3. MacNeny, Colonel Patrick | from his great strength as |
| 4. Maguire, Roger | “ Miles the Slasher.” |
| 5. O'Farrell, Colonel Richard | |

The following families also sent troops to sustain O'Neill at Benburb. From Cavan : Fitzpatrick, Fitzsimons, MacBrady, MacCabe, MacGowan. From Connaught : MacDermot, MacGauran, MacTernan, O'Connor, O'Kelly. From Donegal : O'Dogherty, O'Donnell. From Derry : Manus O'Cahan. From Down : Sir Constantine Magennis. From Armagh : the O'Hanlons ; and from Tyrone : the O'Hagans.

On behalf of the English in Ulster, at that time, Major-General Robert Monro commanded ; and the leaders under him were—Lord Blaney, Lord Conway, and Lord Montgomery, etc.

Shortly after the battle was won, Monro's ammunition blew up ; he fled to Lisburn ; wrote an apologetic dispatch to the Irish Committee in London ; burnt Dundrum, and devastated most of Down. At this juncture, O'Neill, having increased his army, prepared to break in on Monro, with the hope of expelling the last invader from Ulster, when the command of the Nuncio reached Owen at Tanderagee, ordering him to march southward to support that Ecclesiastic. In obedience to the Nuncio, O'Neill unwillingly abandoned the fruits of his victory at Benburb, and marched to Kilkenny.

According to Murphy's “Cromwell in Ireland,” the Scotch Parliament in 1646 ordained that the Irish prisoners taken at and after the battle of Philipshaugh should be executed without any assize or process of law ! Clarendon says that the Parliamentary party had sworn utterly to extirpate the whole Irish race ; and Borlase says that “ the orders of the Parliament were excellently well executed ! ” A Captain Swanley seized a transport bound from Ireland to England, with one hundred and fifty men on board, sent by Ormond to King Charles the First. Of those captives, Swanley selected seventy, whom he threw overboard, “ simply because they were Irish ” ; and in the journals of the House of Commons of England it is recorded, that the said Swanley was called into the House, thanked for his “ good service,” and voted a chain of gold to the value of £200.

A.D. 1649.

During eight years, up to 1649, the Irish Confederation remained supreme in the government of Ireland. King Charles the First having been beheaded by the Puritans, in England, Lieutenant-General Cromwell was, on the 30th of March, 1649, appointed by the Parliament Commander-in-Chief of all the English Forces in Ireland.

On the 22nd June, his Commission as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland was read in the House of Commons ; it was resolved that the Civil and Military Power be joined in one person, that the Commission be for three years, and that a Commander-in-Chief be named under him : this latter provision meant Henry Ireton.

Wednesday the 1st of August was, by Act of Parliament, kept a Public Fast throughout England and Wales, "Appointed to call upon God for a blessing upon Cromwell's Forces, against the Papists, and others the Enemies of the Parliament of England, in Ireland"; which "hath had, among others, these results* following":

"There were 3,000 of Cromwell's Forces safely arrived at Dublin, from Chester, Liverpool, and other Parts thereabouts, which made Lieutenant-General Jones 8,000 strong in Dublin, which was then blockt up by the Marquess of Ormond, the Lord Inchiqueen, and Major-General Preston, who had the whole command of all Ireland then in their power, except only that Garison of Dublin, in Leinster ; and Londonderry in the North of Ireland, kept by Sir Charles Coot, which was then also blockt up ; and the Fort at the River mouth also of Derry taken by Sir Robert Stuart, and Colonel Mervin, who commanded the forces in the Siege at Derry.

"On the 13th of August, Cromwell, with his 'Armado,' being ready in South Wales, set out to sea towards Ireland, with thirty-two ships from Milford Haven, leaving Major-General Ireton to follow with more.

"On the 15th of August, Cromwell landed in Ireland ; and on the 16th of August Major-General Ireton also sailed from Milford Haven with forty-two sail of ships, all of which, with some others, to the number in whole of about one hundred, arrived safe at Dublin, about a week after they first set out.

"On the 11th of September, Drogheda was taken by storm, by Cromwell and his Forces, who slew Sir Arthur Aston, the Governour ; Sir Robert Hartlepoole, some Published by Authority. Printed at London for Robert Ibbitson, dwelling in Smithfield, near Hosier Lane; and to be sold by Peter Stent, over against the Bible in Giltspur street. 1650." Irish young Lords, four Colonels, forty-two Captains and Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors, forty-four Lieutenants, two hundred and twenty 'Reformadoes' and Troopers, almost all the Officers of forty-four Companies, and two thousand five hundred foot soldiers.

"On the 12th of September, Mr. Peters, the Minister, came to Dublin from Milford with the rest of the Forces to joyne his Excellencie (Cromwell). Colonel Venables took the Garison of Newry; and afterwards routed eight hundred horse commanded by Colonel Mark Trevor. . .

"On the 11th of October, Cromwell took Wexford * by storm, and in it fifty-one pieces of Ordnance, besides those in ships; forty vessels in the Harbour, and great store of plunder. Two thousand of Ormond's souldiers were slain in the town. . .

"In December, Major Stanley took Drumcree, a Garison of Ormond's. Colonel Sir Hardresse Waller, with Recruits from the West of England, landed at Kinsale, and thence marched to joyne Cromwell. . .

A.D. 1650.

"In January, Colonel Cook with Colonel Jefford took from Lord Inchiqueen the Garison of Ranous.

"Captain Barrow sallied out of Arklow, and slew some of Ormond's men that besieged it. Captain William Walker took Tymon Castle, kept by Lieutenant Bryan.

"On the 25th January, A party of Lord Inchiqueen's Forces having retaken the Castle of Deep, Colonel Cook with Colonel Shelburne marched thither and retook it.

"Cromwell took Kilkenny Castle.

* Wexford: Some breaches having been made in the walls of the Castle, the governor asked for a safe conduct for four persons to discuss the situation with Cromwell. The pass was obtained, and the four ambassadors, of whom Captain Stafford, Commander of the Castle, was one, proceeded on their mission. Cromwell, writing to England of that mission, says, "While I was preparing the answer, studying to preserve the town from plunder, that it might be of more use to you and your army, the Captain, who was one of the commissioners, being fairly treated, yielded the Castle up to us." What happened in Wexford on the capture of the town was, says Murphy, "a repetition of the infamy perpetrated at Drogheda." Archbishop Fleming, of Dublin, writing to the Secretary of Propaganda in Rome, says; "besides two thousand soldiers, many priests, some religious, and innumerable citizens were massacred." But, says Murphy, "the crowning atrocity of the massacre remains to be mentioned: Three hundred women assembled in the public square, and flocked round the great cross which stood there; hoping that Christian soldiers would be so far softened by that emblem of mercy as to spare the lives of unresisting women":

He found them there—the young, the old,
The maiden and the wife;
Their guardians brave in death were cold,
Who dared for them the strife.
They prayed for mercy—God on high!
Before Thy cross they prayed—
And ruthless Cromwell bade them die,
To glut the Saxon blade!

—See Cromwell in Ireland (Dublin: Gill & Son, 1883), by the Rev. Denis Murphy, S.J.

"On the 1st of February, Captain Heibottle, with Captain Thomas Walker took the Castle of Ballimore.

"Cromwell took Fethard, a Garison of Ormond . . .

"Major-General Ireton took Arsinom, and slew thirteen of Ormond's men in taking it.

"Cromwell settled the county of Tipperary all but seven Garisons, so that they were then to bring in £1,500 a month contribucion.

"In March Colonel Cromwell landed at Youghal from Milford Haven with more Recruits.

"The Lord Broghill and Colonel Henry Cromwell being joined with their Forces, defeated Lord Inchiqueen near Limerick. Slew 160 ; and took 120 prisoners : among them, Colonel Thompson, Colonel Jackson, and others.

"Dublin supplied with Coals and Corn from Milford Haven.

"Colonel Reynolds defeated the Earl of Castlehaven near Leighlin.

"Colonel Johnston, Lieut.-Colonel T. Langhorne, and Major Syms (all Chief Officers under Lord Inchiqueen) being taken, were shot at Cork, for deserting the service of the Parliament of England.

"Lord Inchiqueen sent desires to Cromwell, of reconciliation.

"On the 21st of March, Gowran Castle, being summoned by Cromwell and refusing to surrender, was attacked ; upon which the common souldiers (that they might have quarter themselves) delivered up their Officers—amongst whom were Colonel Hammond, Major Townley, and a 'Popish Priest.'

"Colonel Abbot took Enisnag, where two Officers were hanged, who revolted from Colonel Jones.

"Adjutant-General Sadler battered Polkerry near Clonmel ; and, the enemy refusing to come out, he stormed it, put thirty odde to the sworde, and the rest remaining obstinate were fired in the Castle.

"On the 10th of April, Lord Broghill with Captain Dean's and Captain Jennings' troops, his own and Colonel Warden's, Major Powell's and Captain Bishop's and about 800 foot of Sir Hard. Waller's, Colonel Phaire's and Colonel Rive's, fell upon the enemy at Macrump, and totally routed them ; killing many and taking prisoners their General the Bishop of Rosse, who was hanged before Carrigadrahad Castle . . .

"In May, Enniskillen taken ; and Clonmel taken.

"On the 6th of May, Colonel Reeve's Recruits landed safe at Cork and Pile, and came into Cork.

"Captain Pen took away divers Beeves and Sheep from the Garison of Inniscattery ("Scattery Island"), in the mouth of the River Shannon.

"By Patent dated 29th May, Cromwell made Ireton Lord Deputy ; and about the 30th of May quitted Ireland.

"On the 1st of June, the Lord Deputy Ireton sent a summons from Clonmel to Waterford, upon which Preston treated.

"At the Battle of Ticroghan were taken the Bishop of Clogher, General. Killed on the Irish : The Lord of Enniskillen ; Colonel The Bishop of Down ; Shane O'Cane (O'Cahan) ; Major-General Henry Roe O'Neal ; General O'Neal his son, Colonel of Horse ; Nice MacCallaKelagh ; Colonel Hugh MacGuier ; Colonel Phelémy MacTool

O'Neal; Colonel Hugh MacHahan; Lieutenant-Colonels Torlogh O'Boyle, Shane MacDonnell, James Donnelly, Phelemy O'Neal, Adjutant-General Torlogh O'Neal. Taken Prisoners: Shane O'Haggan; Henry O'Neal, Quartermaster; General Saxton. Majors Killed: Phelemy O'Neal; Don. Kannalds; Conagher; Three Priests and Fryars: 3,000 slain in all . . .

"The Parliament for manifestation of their high and extraordinary sense of so signal and seasonable mercies," says Scobell, "have thought it fit and their duty to set apart a time for publick and solemn thanksgiving, to be rendered to the Lord, the Author of these mercies. And they do therefore enact and ordain that Friday the 26th of July (1650) be observed and kept as a day of publick and holy rejoicing and thanksgiving to the Lord, in all the churches and chappels and places of Divine Worship within this Commonwealth of England, Dominion of Wales, and Town of Berwick-upon-Tweed. And that the Ministers of the respective parishes and places aforesaid be, and hereby they are required and enjoined to give notice on the Lord's Day next preceding the said 26th of July, of the day so to be observed: to the end, the people of the severall congregations may the more diligently attend the publick exercises of God's Worship and Service, then to be dispensed upon that occasion; at which time, that the people may be the more particularly informed of this great Deliverance and Successe, the said Ministers are hereby required, and (under the penalty set down in the Resolves of Parliament of the 9th of July, 1649) enjoined to publish and read the 'Act and Declaration expressing the Grounds and Reasons thereof.' And for the better observation of the Day, the Parliament doth hereby inhibit and forbid the holding or use of all Fairs, Markets, and servile works of Men's ordinary callings upon that day: And all Mayors, Sheriffes, Justices of the Peace, Constables, and other officers be, and are hereby enjoined to take speciall care of the due observance of the said Day of Thanksgiving accordingly.

The following Extract from p. 322, Part VI. of Gilbert's History of Affairs in Ireland, above mentioned, shows that some of the Irish Chiefs held their Castles against the Army of the Commonwealth, so late as June, 1652:

DONOGH O'HART.

"Articles of Agreement made and concluded by and between Donogh O'Hart,* of the one^d parte, and Major Robert Ormesby, on the other parte, in behalfe of Sir Charles Coote, Knight and Baronett, Lord President of Connaght, for and concerning the surrender of the Castle or Holt of Newtowne, in the barrony of Drumaheare (and county of Leitrim), unto the said Lord President or whome hee shall apoynt for the Parliament of the Commonwealth of England, June 3d., 1652 :

* O'Hart: See No. 120 on the "O'Hart" Genealogy, p. 193 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES."

1. "The said Donnogh O'Hart doth conclude and agree to deliver up the said Holt of Newtowne with all the armes, ammunicion and necessities of warr not hereafter excepted, unto the said Lord President or whome hee shall apoynt, at or by twelve of the clocke to-morrow without prejudice or embezzilment. In consideracion whereof the said Major Ormesby doth conclude and agree that the said Donnogh O'Hart and those souldiers in that Holt shall have quarters for their lives, and shall have liberty to march away with their bagg and baggage, without impeachment, except armes and ammunicion.

2. "The said Donnogh O'Hart (if hee desire the same) shall have a protection graunted to him and his men, to live in the State's Quarters, with his and their families, as to other protected persons.

3. "That the said Donnogh O'Hart shall have the full benefitt of the little corne that hee and those souldiers in pay in the said Holt sowed themselves, without rent, or contriucion for this yeare, and a howse assured them to keep their corne in, safe from any under the Parliament's comand.

4. "The said Donnogh O'Hart (if hee submit to protection) shall haue for this yeare the grazeing of twenty coves free from contriucion.

5. "The said Donnogh O'Hart is to haue the small boat and cotts which hee hath on Newtowne Lough without any impeachment. Lastly : the said Donnogh O'Hart is to haue six musquiteers and six pikes allowed him and his men out of their armes, which they are to deliver up, with his owne sword (in case hee submitt to protection, for his necessary defence against Tories, which hee is to give security shall not bee employed against the State."

Here, so late as June, 1652, we find Donoch O'Hart the possessor of the Castle of Newtown, in the parish of Dromleas, barony of Dromaheare, and county of Leitrim ; while in the Civil Survey and in the Book of Survey and Distribution for the County of Leitrim (see Extracts from the latter Book in the Appendix) the name of Captain Parke* is entered

* Parke : The letters "C. S." prefixed to Captain Parke's name in that entry, in the Book of Survey and Distribution, indicate that the said entry was taken from the Civil Survey, or that the said Parke was a Cromwellian Soldier ; but, in either case the entry is misleading, for the Cromwellian soldiers were not disbanded, at soonest, before September, 1653, and up to that time they certainly had received no grants of Land in Ireland. Among the names of those who (see the Paper in the Appendix, headed "Soldiers of the Commonwealth, in Ireland") claimed as Soldiers, or in right of Soldiers, who served in Ireland in the Commonwealth period, is that of Captain Parke, who is there entered as claiming "in right of pre-emption" ; but it is not mentioned from whom he "purchased" the townlands above stated to have been in his possession in 1641. Before the Books of Distribution were compiled, in 1666, Captain Parke could have purchased from the Cromwellian soldiers the townlands respectively assigned to them ; and thus Parke's name could, in the List of Claims above mentioned, appear as claiming "in right of pre-emption."

as the Proprietor of said Newtown in 1641. But, as Captain Parke was a Cromwellian soldier, and that no Cromwellian Settler obtained any grant of Land in Ireland previous to 1653, the mistake of entering his name, instead of that of Donogh O'Hart, as the Proprietor of Newtown in 1641, is quite evident. Among the Troopers* who claimed as Soldiers under the Act of Settlement, the name "Parke" first appears in this country; and, according to the Genealogical MSS. in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, there was no Parke family in Ireland before the Commonwealth period.

THE RESTORATION.

After the Restoration, King Charles II. issued his famous Declaration, dated the 30th of November, 1660, with reference to the Settlement of Ireland; which see in the Appendix. Accordingly, in the Parliament begun at Dublin on the 8th day of May, 1661, and there continued by several Prorogations unto the 26th day of October, 1665, an Act was passed:

(1) "For the better Execution of His Majesties Gracious Declaration For the Settlement of His Kingdome of Ireland, and Satisfaction of the severall Interests of Adventurers, Souldiers, and other His Majesties Subjects there" (Dublin: Printed by John Crook, Printer to the Kings Most Excellent Majestie. 1662).

And again, "An^o Regni Caroli Secundi Regis Angliæ, Scotiæ, Franciæ, et Hiberniæ, 17^o":

(2) "An Act For the Explaining of some Doubts arising upon An Act Intituled An Act for the better Execution of His Majesties Gracious Declaration for the Settlement of His Kingdome of Ireland, and Satisfaction of the severall Interests of Adventurers, Souldiers, and other His Subjects there; And for making some alterations of, and additions unto, the said Act, for the more speedy and effectual Settlement of the said Kingdome (Dublin: Printed by John Crook, Printer to the Kings Most Excellent Majestie, and sold by Thomas Dancer, Bookseller in Castle Street. 1665)."

These two Acts (which are in one Volume) are known as the "Acts of Settlement and Explanation." The following Extract from the Preamble of the above first mentioned Act (1) will, from the Puritan standpoint, throw light on the critical state of Ireland in the Cromwellian period:

* Troopers: According to Wood-Martin, the following are among the names of the Cromwellian Troopers who were disbanded in the county Sligo: Allan, Armstrong, Barber, Barclay, Benson, Black, Brown, Carter, Charlton, Cole, Davis, Dennison, Duke, Fleming, Gilbert, Gilmore, Glass, Grey, Hall, Henry, Hughes, Hunter, Irwin, Johnston, Lang, Little, McKim, Macklin, McIlroy, Morrison, Nichols, Noble, Parke, Porter, Reynolds, Rogers, Smith, Trimbel, Wallis, White, Williams, Wilson, Winne.

THE PREAMBLE.

"Whereas an unnatural Insurrection did break forth against your Majesties Royal Father (Charles I.) of ever blessed Memory, his Crown and Dignity, in this your Majesties Kingdom of Ireland, upon the 23rd of October in the year of our Lord God, 1641, and manifest itself by the murther and destruction of many thousands of your said Majesties good and loyal subjects; which afterwards univversally spreading and diffusing itself over the whole Kingdom, settled into and became a formed, and almost National Rebellion of the Irish Papists against your Royal Father of blessed Memory, his Crown and Dignity, to the destruction of the English and Protestants inhabiting in Ireland, the which Irish Papists being represented in a General Assembly chosen by themselves, and acting by a Council, called by them, 'The Supreme Council of the Confederate Roman Catholics of Ireland,' did first assume, usurp, and exercise the power of Life and Death, make Peace and War, leavy (levy) and coyn Money, and many other Acts of Sovereign Authority, treating with foreign Princes and Potentates for their Government and Protection, and afterwards acted under a foreign Authority; by all the said ways disowning* and reiecting (rejecting) your Royal Father, and your Majesties undoubted Right to this Kingdom . . . And moreover presuming to pretend his late Majesties most sacred Authority, even for their worst actions, all which they did to frighten his good Protestant Subjects from their loyalty, to blast his Majesties Honour, and to widen the breach between his said Majesty and his seduced Subjects in England: The which Ends by their said wicked stratagems they did too successfully and mischievously effect: And whereas Almighty God hath given your Majesty, by and through your said English and Protestant Subjects, absolute Victory and Conquest over the said Irish Popish Rebels and Enemies, so as they, their Lives, Liberties, and Estates are now wholly at your Majesties disposition by the Laws of this Kingdom . . . Be it enacted, etc."—See the "Abstract of the Acts of Settlement and Explanation," in the Appendix.

In 1675, the Profitable Lands in Ireland, estimated at twelve millions five hundred thousand acres, were again distributed: of which four millions five hundred and sixty thousand and thirty-seven acres, forfeited under the Commonwealth, were granted to English Protestants; while three millions nine hundred thousand acres were previously possessed by English colonists of the Protestant Faith and Church. So that out of the 12,500,000 acres classed as "profitable lands," above mentioned, nearly eight and a half millions of acres passed into the hands of English and Scotch Settlers. Over two millions three hundred thousand acres were granted or disposed of to Irishmen; while six hundred thousand acres were previously possessed by "good affectee men" of the Irish. Of the remainder the greater part was left unappropriated.

* Disowning: There seems to be a great disparity between this statement and the tenor of the "Proclamation" of the Supreme Council of the Irish Confederation above given. See also that portion of the "Declaration" of Charles II., in the Appendix, bearing on the invalidity of the claims of the Adventurers.

THE REVOLUTION.

This volume also contains the names of the Irish Proprietors whose Estates were confiscated for their devotion to King James the Second; and, as accounting for the appearance in Ireland of other strange families at that period, I give herein the names of those to whom were conveyed the Estates then forfeited in Ireland consequent on the Williamite Confiscations. According to Howard's "History of the Irish Exchequer, Dublin," there were then confiscated in this country, between the years 1688 and 1702, one million sixty thousand seven hundred and ninety-two acres, besides corn, cattle, and household chattels; and the then value of the horses and lands so forfeited was estimated at £2,685,130. While, by a return of the Commissioners in 1699 to the English House of Parliament, the Estates forfeited by the adherents of King James the Second, in 1689, were found to be 1,060,742 Irish acres, of the yearly value of £211,623 6s. 3d.; the fee simple of which was estimated at £2,685,130. Of all these confiscated estates, a fourth part was said to be returned to the former Proprietors—in accordance with one of the Articles of the Treaty of Limerick; some were sold,* and the remainder was bestowed principally upon the personal friends of King William the Third.

In 1689 King James summoned a Parliament in Ireland; in which was passed an Act annulling the Authority of the English Parliament. The personal Estates of absentees were handed over to James. A short Act transferred the Tithes from the Protestant to the Roman Catholic Clergy. The Act of Settlement was repealed; and the Act of Attainder passed—a Clause of which is the following:

"Whether dead or alive, or killed in open rebellion, or now in arms against your Majesty (James II.), or otherwise: every of them shall be deemed, taken, and reputed, and are hereby declared and adjudged, Traitors, convicted and attainted of High Treason; and shall suffer such pains of death, penalties, and forfeitures, respectively, as in cases of High Treason are accustomed."

* Sold: See in the Appendix the "List of the Proprietors in Ireland whose Estates were confiscated, and sold at Chichester House, Dublin, in 1702 and 1703"; and "List of Persons to whom were conveyed Estates and Interests forfeited in Ireland, A.D. 1688."

On the 14th of June, 1690, William III. landed at Carrickfergus, in Ireland; and on the 1st of July of that year gained the victory of the Boyne.*

After the Treaty of Limerick, A.D. 1691, William, though bound by its Articles to confirm the Irish in their Estates, escheated one million, seven hundred and twenty-three thousand, seven hundred and eighty-seven (1,723,787) statute acres for the benefit chiefly of De Ginkle, Keppel, Bentinck, and other foreigners: so that, in less than fifty years, Forfeiture reduced the property of the Catholic Irish to two millions statute acres of profitable land, against ten millions of acres held by those in whose favour the Irish Catholics were dispossessed.

On the 4th of October, 1692, William convened a Parliament in Ireland, which resolved that the indulgence accorded to the Irish people since 1691 was one of the chief causes of the misery of Ireland: "The Penal Laws subsequently enacted by the Protestant Irish Parliament against Roman Catholics were in a great part," writes Wood-Martin, "the outcome of the bitter resentment on the part of its Members against the framers of James's Bill of Attainder":

"Oh! weep those days, the penal days,
When Ireland hopelessly complained.
Oh! weep those days, the penal days,
When godless persecution reigned:
When year by year,
For serf, and peer,
Fresh cruelties were made by law,
And, filled with hate,
Our senate sate
To weld anew each fetter's flaw!
Oh! weep those days, those penal days—
Their memory still on Ireland weighs."

It is worthy of remark (without entering into the domain of polemics), that the present landed representatives of the Irish "Papist Proprietors"

* Boyne: According to Wood-Martin the rates of pay per day for the different ranks in the English Army in Ireland, in 1690, were as follows: Colonels, 5s.; Lieutenant-Colonels, 3s.; Majors, 2s. 6d.; Captains, 2s.; Lieutenants, 1s.; Ensigns, 8d.; Serjeants, Corporals, Drummers, and Privates, 3d.; Privates of heavy horse, 9d.; and Dragoons, 6d.

whose Estates were forfeited during the Cromwellian and Williamite Confiscations, are almost all Protestants; while, of the descendants of the Settlers in Ireland of the Commonwealth period and that of the Revolution, many are now Roman Catholics! It is not, however, my province to discuss the causes which have produced those results: let it suffice to say that the religious intolerance which characterized the respective reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, and the respective Parliaments of James and William, is in strange contrast with the curious fact, that, whilst almost every Catholic country in Europe is, in turn, expelling the religious and persecuting the Catholic Church, Great Britain—judging by the many Monasteries and Convents which now cover England and Scotland—is becoming once again Catholic.

With great respect I am,

Illustrious Lady,

Your ever grateful and faithful Servant,

JOHN O'HART.

11.—THE “BELLINGHAM” FAMILY,

Of Castle Bellingham, County Louth.

THIS family derives its name from the town of Bellingham, in Northumberland, England, where it appears to have been seated immediately after the Conquest ; for we read of perpetual feuds in the reigns of William the Conqueror and William Rufus between Alan de Bellingham and the Charltons of Hasleyside ; the descendants of which latter family still own a mansion near the town ; whilst the Bellinghams, once so powerful, have altogether disappeared from the county, though certain quit-rents were paid to a representative of the family for land in North Tynedale down to as late a period as 1774.

An important branch of the family settled in Westmoreland, the Estate of Levens, near Kendal, being purchased by Richard de Bellingham. His grandson, Robert, was knighted by Henry V. ; married Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Tunstall ; and by her had eight sons, several of whom became founders of different branches of the family in different parts of the country. From Richard, the second son, descended the Bellinghams of Lincolnshire ; from Thomas, the 4th son, the Bellinghams of Sussex and Surrey ; and from Alan, the 8th son, the Bellinghams of Helsington. This Alan was treasurer of Berwick, and Deputy Warder of the Marches ; and received from Henry VIII. a grant of the barony of Kendal, called the Lumley Fee. Of him was made the rhyme still to be seen on one of the windows of Levens Hall :

“ Amicus Amico Alanus, Bellinger Belligero Bellinghamus.”

Sir Henry Bellingham, of Bellingham, was made Knight Banneret by King Henry VI., after the battle of Wakefield ; and his son, Sir Roger, was made a Knight Banneret, at the battle of Stoke, in 1487, and left an only son, Sir Robert, also knighted, who d. s.p.

Sir Edward Bellingham, was Governor of Ireland in 1548 and 1549 ; he was servant of the Privy Chamber to King Edward VI., who sent him over to be Lord Deputy of Ireland, called by Leland in his Hist. of Ireland, “ a brave and experienced commander.”

Alan Bellingham, of Helsington, a benchet of the Middle Temple, was one of the King's Council at York, and M.P. for Northumberland in 1570 ; his son, Sir James, was knighted by King James I., in 1603, and d. in 1641, having married Agnes, daughter of Sir Henry Curwen.

Sir James's son, Sir Henry, was created a Baronet in 1620 ; was M.P. for Westmoreland in all the Parliaments called by King Charles I. ; and raised forces in the North for the Royal cause. His son, Sir James, dying without issue, the title became extinct.

From Alan Bellingham, of Levens, M.P. for Westmorelandshire, the genealogy of this Branch of the “ Bellingham ” family is, as follows :

1. Alan Bellingham, of Levens, M.P. for Westmoreland ; b. 1606 ; m. Susan, dau. of Marmaduke Constable, of Wassand, in York-shire and had issue. Having spent most of his fortune in support of King James I., Alan d. at St. Germain's in 1693.

2. Henry : second son of Alan. Came to Ireland during the Civil War, and received a grant of the Gernonstown Estate (now called “ Castle Bellingham ”), in the co. Louth, which was, under the Act of Settlement, confirmed to him by Charles II. This Henry was M.P. for county Louth,—which county the family represented in Parliament almost continually from 1660 to 1775. He m. Miss Sibthorpe and had an only son :

3. Thomas, of Castle Bellingham, who was a Colonel in the Army of William III., and acted as His Majesty's guide during the march of the Army from Dundalk to the Boyne ; for which cause King James's Army burnt Castle Bellingham. This Thomas, who d. 15 Sept., 1721, m., in 1678, Abigail Handcock, and had an only son :

4. Henry, M.P. for Dundalk, who m. Mary, dau. and co-heiress of Thomas Moore, Esq., and had :

I. Henry, M.P. for the county Louth, who m. Margaret, dau. of Hugh Henry, Esq., of Straffan, in the co. Kildare, and d. in 1775, leaving no surviving issue.

II. Alan, of Kilsaran, of whom presently.

36.—THE "COOKE" FAMILY,

Of Kilturra, County Sligo.

O'CALLAGHAN, in his "History of the Irish Brigades," states that this family settled in Ireland in the century after the Invasion ; which inclines us to believe that the "Cokes" in other parts of Ireland are distinct from them, and that the ancestor of this family came to Ireland in the thirteenth century with Roger De Bigod, earl of Norfolk, and settled in the county Carlow. To this day, even, the surname Cooke is very prevalent in Norfolk—more so, than in any other part of England or Ireland.

It was a member of this family who (see Bishop Moran's Monasticon Hibernicum) founded a Franciscan Abbey in their demesne, now known as "Oak Park," near Carlow, at present (1883) the property of Mr. Bruen.

We have traced this genealogy back to John Cooke, of Carlow, who was an officer in a Regiment of Horse, in the Army of King James the Second. This John Cooke and his brothers took up arms "for faith and sovereign," and so warmly espoused the cause of King James, that, in grateful recognition of their devotion to him, His Majesty granted to them the style and title for ever of The Cookes of the Cavaliers.

The family estates in Carlow and elsewhere confiscated, because of their adherence to the cause of King James, this John Cooke, after the battle of Aughrim, settled in Connaught; where he and his descendants married into some of the most respectable families of that province. One of his brothers, named Mathew, went to France as an officer in the Irish Royal Regiment of Footguards; and, most likely, was the person alluded to by O'Callaghan, in his "Irish Brigades," pages 332 and 595, as the Mathew Cooke who there died in 1740.

1. John Cooke, of Carlow, above-mentioned: living A.D. 1691. Seeing that after the battle of Aughrim the cause of King James was lost, and wishing to escape the Williamite troopers, this John Cooke crossed into Mayo and there met and married Mary Lynch, the daughter of Dr. Patrick Lynch, of Westport; by her he had issue three sons—1. Charles, 2. Thomas, 3. Mathew. Thomas died early in life; and Mathew joined the French service.

2. Charles: eldest son of John; m. in 1725, Sheela Mor O'Dowda, daughter of the O'Dowda, prince of Tíreragh, and by her had issue two sons—1. Thomas, 2. John. This John entered into Holy Orders, and became Parish Priest of Ballymote, co. Sligo.

3. Thomas: son of Charles; m. in 1770 Anna Irwin, dau. of A. Irwin, of Muckleta, and by her had: I. Charles, of whom presently.

II. Patrick, who m. Mary White, and d. s.p.

4. Charles: son of Thomas; m. in 1798 Bridget, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry Meredyth and his wife, Celia Naper,* who was the only dau. of James Naper, of Tubbercurry.† The issue of Charles and Bridget Cooke were:

* Naper: It is worthy of remark that, while Mr. Cooke, of Kilturra is the representative in the Male line of a family attainted by King William the Third, he represents through the Napers, one of the few Sligo families (outside the Coopers of Markree, and Lord Collooney), attainted in the Parliament of King James the Second: a curious disclosure, and one which shows that much "Orange and Green" is fused in some Irish families. One might well look for Patriotism in this family; for, one of the Ormsbys was Lient.-Colonel of the Sligo Volunteers in 1782, while the Right Honorable Joshua Cooper, of Markree, M.P. for the county Sligo, was one of the Delegates to the Irish National Convention of that memorable year!

† Tubbercurry: This James Naper was the direct descendant of James Napper of Tober-an-choire, (anglicised "Tobercurry"), who was attainted in the Dublin Parliament of King James the Second, A.D. 1689; Celia Naper's mother was a Cooper of Markree Castle; and Henry Meredith's mother was an Ormsby of Willowbrook. Henry Meredith's great-great-grandfather, Robert Meredith, was (along with John Cusack) M.P. for the borough of Boyle, A.D. 1613. They were the first M.P.'s. for that borough. Afterwards, in 1639, Sir Robert King and Richard Wingfield were the Members for Boyle. At p. 416 in the "Life of Mary Aikenhead," there is honourable mention made of the Cookes of Sligo, by the talented authoress of that interesting work.

- I. John, who m. Ellinor Brett, and d. s.p.
- II. Mark, who m. Bridget Henry, and had only one surviving son, who was in Holy Orders, and d. in 1880.
- III. Thomas.
- 5. Thomas: third son of Charles; m. in 1843 Katherine MacGeterick: and had:
 - I. John Ormsby Cooke, of whom presently.
 - II. Thomas King Cooke, b. in 1846, and (in 1877) a Lieut.-Colonel in the United States Service.

- III. Francis Meredith Cooke, b. in 1848.
- IV. Charles Naper Cooke, b. in 1850; now in Australia.
- V. Joseph Meredith Cooke, b. in 1851, now (1883) in America.
- VI. Edward Ormsby Cooke, b. in 1862.
- 6. John Ormsby Cooke, of Kilturra, co. Sligo, and of Wells, in the co. Carlow: son of Thomas; b. in 1845, and living in 1883.—For further particulars see “Walford’s County Families”; and “De Burgh’s Landowners of Ireland.”

37.—THE “COSBY” FAMILY,

Of Stradbally, Queen’s County.

RICHARD COSBY, of Stradbally, in the Queen’s County, d. Dec., 1623. He m. Eliza, dau. of Sir Robert Pigot, of Disert, and had four sons:

- 3. Francis Cosby: son of Alexander.

38.—THE “CRAWFORD” FAMILY.

COMMENCING with the first Earl of Richmond, this Family Genealogy is as follows:

Alan, surnamed Rufus or Fergaunt, son of Hoel or Endo, Duke of Brittany, in France. Alan, coming over to England with William the Conqueror, commanded the rear of his army in the battle of Hastings, and for his services on that occasion, and at the siege of York, obtained the Earldom of Richmond, with all the northern part of county York, previously the honor and county of Edroynne, the Saxon Earl of Mercia. He m. Constance, dau. of William the Conqueror, but had no issue. He m. secondly Ermen-garde, the divorced wife of William IX., Duke of Aquitaine, and dying in 1119 was succeeded by his son:

- Conan le Gros, m. Matilda, natural daughter of Henry I. of England, and d. 17th Sept., 1148, leaving by her a son, Hoel, who d. s.p., and a dau., his heiress:
 - Bertha, who m., 1137, Allan Niger (3rd Earl of Richmond in her right), son of Stephen, Comte of Penthrose. Her son :

Alan Niger, 4th Earl of Richmond, an active partizan of King Stephen in his contest with the Empress Maud. He m. Bertha, dau. and heir of Conan, 3rd Duke of Brittany, and by their marriage acquired the title of Duke of Bretagne, and had issue :

1. Conan le petit, Earl of Richmond and Duke de Bretagne. He m. Margaret, dau. of Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, and sister of William, King of Scotland, and had one dau., Constance, who m. three times : first to Geoffroy Plantagenet, fourth son of Henry II. of England ; secondly, to Ralph, Earl of Chester, from whom she was divorced ; and thirdly to Guy, Vicomte de Thonars, by whom she had two daughters.

2. Brian, father of Alan, Lord of Bedale.

3. Guy, ancestor of the Barons Strange, l'Estrange, &c.

4. Reginald, ancestor of the Crawford, Lords of Crawford. Being brother-in-law to King William the Lion, 1214, he became a person of great eminence in Scotland. He mar. Margaret, daughter of James of Loudoun, as below.

39.—THE "CRAWFORD" FAMILY,

Of Millwood, Co. Fermanagh.

THIS family is descended from Reginald, third son of the fourth Earl of Richmond :

Reginald de Crawford, heritable Sheriff of the shire of Ayr, which office was long held by his posterity. He married, circa 1200, Margaret, daughter and heiress of James de Loudoun, who received a charter of the baronies of Loudoun, county Ayr, (which afterwards gave the title of Earl to its possessors), and he became the first Vice-Comes of the county. His son :

Sir Hugh de Crawford, of Loudoun. He was witness to a charter, A.D. 1226, and dying, 1246, was succeeded by his son :

Hugh de Crawford of Loudoun, Vice-Comes of Ayr. He died, 1288, and left by his wife Alicia a son, Reginald, and a daughter, Margaret, who m. Sir Malcolm Wallace, laird of Ellerslie, and was mother of the immortal patriot and upholder of the freedom of Scotland, Sir William Wallace. His son :

Sir Reginald de Crawford, of Loudoun, also a distinguished patriot, was treacherously murdered at a banquet in 1297, leaving a son Reginald, his successor in Loudoun, whose only daughter, Susan Crawford, heiress of Loudoun, married Sir Duncan Campbell, knight, of Red Castle. From this marriage descended the Earls of Loudoun. The male line was carried on by :

Sir John Crawford, eldest son of Hugh Crawford of Loudoun (temp. Alex. II.). He possessed part of the barony of Crawford, and gave it the name of "Crawford-John." He left issue a son, Roger ; and a daughter Margaret, who m. Sir Walter Barelly, and to whom he gave half the lands of "Crawford-John." Then followed in immediate succession Roger, Malcolm, and John Crawford. His son :

Malcolm Crawford, of Greenock,

m. Marjory, only dau. and heiress of Sir John Barclay, of "Crawford-John." In 1499 a charter was granted to the family of the lands of Kilbirnie. He had issue :

1. Robert, his heir.
2. James, ancestor of the Crawfords of Minnock, in Ayrshire.
3. Thomas.
4. John.
5. Isabel, married to Sir Adam Cuninghame of Caprington, in 1469.

Robert Crawford, m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Semphill, of Elliotstone. His son :

Laurence Crawford, of Kilbirnie. He married Helen, dau. of Sir Hugh Campbell of Loudoun, ancestor of the Earls of Loudoun, by whom he had six sons and two daughters :

1. Hugh, his heir, who continued the elder line, a staunch adherent of Queen Mary. He m., first, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Colquhoun of Luss, by whom he had a son Malcolm Crawford of Kilbirnie.
2. William Crawford.
3. Robert.
4. John.

7. Isabel, m. to Gavin Blair of Hally.
8. Thomas Crawford, of Jordanhill.

Captain Thomas Crawford, of Jordanhill, became heir to the baronetcy of Sir John Crawford of Kilbirnie, who died without male issue, leaving two daughters : 1. Anne, m. to Sir Archibald Steuart, of Blackhall ; 2. Margaret, m. to Hon. Patrick, second son of John, 17th Earl of Crawford, and 10th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, (who assumed the name of Crawford on succeeding to Kilbirnie, and whose son, John Lindsay Crawford, of Kilburnie, was created Viscount Gurnock in 1703.) Capt. Thomas Crawford was commander of the young King's forces, and on many occasions distinguished himself in battle. On the 2nd April, 1572, he took the castle of Dunbarton, then held by Lord Fleming, and deemed impregnable. The elder branches of the family still use the crest Dunbarton Castle, with the motto Ex pugnavi, as a distinction commemorating this event. He m. first Marion, dau. of Sir John Colquhoun, of Luss, Dowager of Robert, master of Boyd, by whom he had one dau. Marion, m. to Sir John Fairley of that ilk. He m. secondly, Janet, dau. of Robert Ker, of Kersland, Ayrshire, by whom he had two sons and one daughter :

The pedigree of this family is given in pp. 442-446 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES” ; but, with reference thereto, we desire to here add the following :

The William de Tracy, whose dau. Alice m. Nicholas, who is
No. 2 on that pedigree, was a descendant of the Norman Knight of the same name who shared the guilt of the murder of St. Thomas à Becket, archbishop of Canterbury ; and is represented in the direct male line by the Lord Sudely.

Of the first five existing lines of “Daunt,” mentioned in our “IRISH PEDIGREES,” we have nothing here to say ; but of the sixth line or the Kilcascan branch of the family, represented by Mr. William-Joseph O'Neill-Daunt, of Kilcascan Castle, Ballyneen, co. Cork, we wish to record the family of his first cousin,

Richard Gumbleton Daunt, M.D.
(Edinburgh), who is (in 1883) a naturalized Brazilian, living in Campinas, San Paulo, Brazil ; and who has occupied many important public offices there :

45.—THE “DILLON” FAMILY,

Barons of Drumrany.

THIS noble family, according to Lodge, one of the best recognised genealogists of the last century (see Lodge's Peerage, vol. IV., p. 135), is said to derive its origin from Lochan or Logan Delune, or Delion (a descendant of one of the Monarchs of Ireland); who married the daughter of the Duke of Aquitaine, and, on her father's death, became Prince and Sovereign of Aquitaine.* This principality continued in his posterity until King Henry II. married Eleanor, daughter and heir to William, Duke of Aquitaine, and, about A.D. 1172, by his superior power, obtained Aquitaine; upon which event he brought over to England the two male descendants of Lochan Delion, viz.: Sir Henry Delion and Thomas, infants.†

The said Henry Delion (now Dillon), in 1185, was sent into Ireland, and King John granted to him there MacCarron's territory with part of Annaly and other vast possessions, to hold Per Baroniam in Capite, by the service of sixty Knight's fees.‡ He was then honoured with Knighthood, and by this tenure (which was attended by a kind of sovereignty) he and his heirs were entitled to have summons to Parliament like the ancient Barons of England, who held their baronies by the same tenure. He built his mansion-house, with a Church, in Drumrany, also a Castle of Drumrany; and several abbeys (as those of Athlone, Holy Island, etc.), and other Churches and Castles. He was progenitor to all who bear the name of Dillon: a name of great note in the counties of Meath, Westmeath, Longford, Roscommon, Mayo, and other parts of Ireland, where, and in many foreign countries, they have flourished in the highest departments of Church & State.

* Aquitaine: The history of these events may be found in the records of Aquitaine, now in the Tower of London, and in ancient MSS. in Cotton and Lambeth Libraries.

† Infants: The above account of the origin of this family is based on popular tradition only. According to some authorities, the Dillons did not descend from the Dukes of Aquitaine, but from a Duke of Brittany. There were, and still are, several families of that name in Brittany.

‡ Fees: That large tract of land was called, after its Lord, “Dillons' Country,” and so continued until the reign of King Henry VIII.

§ Church: Thomas Dillon, son of Sir Thomas, was bishop of Ossory; Thomas, son of Robert, lord of Drumrany, was bishop of Kildare; Edmund, his brother, was Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin. They lived in the 14th century. Arthur Dillon, brother of the 10th Viscount, was Archbishop of Toulouse; he was a distinguished prelate; died in London, in 1806, and was interred in Old St. Pancras' Church-yard. The following distinguished themselves in the State and in the Army: Sir Robert Dillon was (in Ireland) Attorney-General to Henry VIII.; and Justice of the Queen's Bench and Privy Councillor in Queen Mary's reign. Sir Lucas, his son, was a lawyer of note, and Chief Baron of the Exchequer, in 1572. The first four Earls of Roscommon; the 4th, a poet, was buried in Westminster Abbey, in 1684; the 4th Viscount Dillon. Arthur Dillon was Marshal de Camp and Governor of Toulon, in France, in 1705, he commanded an Irish Regiment when he was only 20 years of age. Arthur Dillon, a son of the 11th Viscount, was Governor of Tobago, West Indies, and was the last Colonel commanding the famous “Dillon's Regiment”; he was guillotined in 1794, and his Regiment was disbanded. Maria, the granddaughter of the 11th Viscount, m. His Serene Highness the Duke de Croy Dulmen, in 1821.

The junior branches of this family were numerous : among them being the Earls of Roscommon, Viscounts Dillon, Lords Clonbrock, besides many others.

The further history of this family is given in detail by Lodge, down to the year 1743; and of which the following is a short summary, concluding with the further pedigree of the Family* down to the year 1882.

The aforesaid Sir Henry Dillon was buried in a Franciscan Abbey of his own founding, in Athlone, and left issue three sons—1. Sir Thomas, his heir ; 2. Sir Robert, to whom he gave the Seigniori of Dunimoney ; 3. John, an ecclesiastic ; and a daughter.

1. Sir Henry, Lord of Drumrany.
2. Sir Thomas : his son.
3. Henry : his son.

4. Sir Henry : his second son ; was living at Drumrany, temp. 1 Edward III., who granted to him by Patent the custody of the manor of Kilkenny West, forfeited by Hugh de Lacy.

5. Robert : his son.

6. Gerald : his second son ; m. a dau. of the House of Desmond. Had four sons and two daughters, namely—1. Sir Maurice, his heir ; 2. Henry, a Priest ; 3. Sir James, ancestor of the Earls of Roscommon, and the Barons of Clonbrock ; 4. John ; 5. Catherine ; 6. Anne.

7. Sir Maurice : eldest son of Gerald ; m. Lady Anne Fitzgerald, of the House of Desmond.

8. Thomas : his son ; m. Jane, dau. of Sir Robert Dillon, Irish Attorney-Genl. to King Henry VIII.

9. Edmund† : his son ; m., first, Ann, dau. of the Baron of Mullingar, and by her had Gerald, his heir, and other children ; m. secondly, a dau. of Sir C. Plunket, and by her had one son, Gerald of Dunimoney, ancestor to the Viscounts Dillon.

10. Gerald : Lord of Drumrany ; third son of Edmund, by his first marriage.

11. Sir Thomas : his second son ; was Knighted ; m. Rose, dau. of Thomas Dillon, Esq., and sister to the first Viscount Dillon.

12. Gerald, Lord of Drumrany : second son of Sir Thomas.

13. James : his second son ; represented the county of Roscommon in the Parliament of King Charles the First, and was Captain of an independent troop, but was killed in 1649 or 1650, in his 34th year.

14. Richard : his fourth son ; was the last who bore the title of Lord of Drumrany : his estates being confiscated by Cromwell. Richard's mother, dau. of W. Davis, Esq., son of Sir John Davis, Knight Marshal of Connaught, Escheator and Receiver-General of that province, obtained from Cromwell's Commissioners, in 1652 (in lieu of her dower) to her and her heirs male, 3,572 acres, part of her deceased husband's estate in the county of Roscommon, as Transplantation Lands; but by his death, and during the minority and absence of her two elder sons, in France and in Rome (where they died), and by the indolence of William, her third son, who d. unmarried, no care was taken of the transplanted estate, and the whole of which (save a small pittance* assigned by her to the said Richard) was lost. The said Richard m., first, Rose, a dau. of — Dillon, of Dunimoney, and by her had—1. William (a Dominican Friar, who afterwards resided in London by the name of Dominick, and, although civiliter mortuus, was Lord Baron of Drumrany, by the said ancient tenure Cap. per Baroniam, this branch of the family never suffering any attainder); 2. Christopher, also an Ecclesiastic; 3. James, a Colonel in the Army of King James II., in whose service he (the said James Dillon) lost his life. And the above said Richard m., secondly, Margaret, dau. of — O'Molloy of Ughterheere, and by her had three surviving sons, namely—1. Gerald; 2. Thomas, who m. Mable Dillon, widow of A. Robinson, but left no issue; 3. William, who m. a dau. of the said A. Robinson, and by her had an only son, Thomas.†

* Family : According to evidence in the Record Office, Dublin, and testamentary documents in possession of the family.

† Edmund : In some Genealogies of the Family, it seems to be overlooked that this Edmund was twice married, the issue of the first marriage being Maurice and Thomas—both Priests ; Gerald, his heir, lord of Drumrany ; Robert, a Colonel ; John, an eminent lawyer, father of Sir Lucas Dillon ; Lucas, Jane, and Mary. The issue of the second marriage was Gerald of Dunimoney, ancestor of the Viscounts Dillon.—See Lodge's Peerage, Vol. IV. p. 171, note.

15. Gerald Dillon, Esq.: eldest son of Richard by his second wife; studied the law in the Inns of Court; was seated at Dillon's Grove, and married, first, Catherine, daughter of James Nugent, of Dysert, Westmeath, Esq., by whom he had no surviving issue. He married, secondly, Honora, daughter of Pierce Aylward of Ballynegar. He was living after 1743, and by the said Honora (who d. in that year) had—1. Richard, 2. Aylward, 3. Mary, 4. Margaret. So far Lodge's Peerage (Vol. IV., p. 173) which says that this particular branch of Drumrany is totally extinct, or fallen to decay. But this is correct as to the male line only; in the female line it is represented by the families of O'Connor of Milton, Roscommon, and of Purcell of Esker, Kilkenny, as we shall now see. The sons of the said Gerald, dying without surviving issue, Mary and Margaret became co-heirs, both of whom married and had issue. As in this family, in virtue of its feudal tenure (Cap. per Baroniam), the female, in default of male issue, inherited the Barony of Drumrany, consequently Mary and Margaret Dillon's respective issue, became co-heirs and co-representatives of the aforesaid Barons of Drumrany. The said Mary Dillon m. in 1749, Thomas O'Connor‡ of Milton, Roscommon, whose son and heir, Roderick, conformed to the (late) Established Church and took the Oath of Supremacy, and in conformity with the Penal Laws then in force in Ireland, became, as Protestant next of kin, possessed of the whole property of Dillon's Grove, the Catholic co-heir being disinherited.§

* Pittance: Namely, "Dillon's Grove," Roscommon.

† Thomas: This Thomas m. Margaret, second dau. of Gerald Dillon of Dillon's Grove, as we shall presently see. He was the last male descendant of the Dillons of Drumrany, leaving surviving issue.

‡ O'Connor: See Burke's "Landed Gentry" for Great Britain and Ireland.

§ Disinherited: The particulars of this disinheritance are to be found in the Record Office, Dublin.

Margaret Dillon,* the second dau., and co-heir, m. her first cousin, Thomas Dillon of Kilbane, Queen's County, Esq., the nephew of Gerald Dillon of Dillon's Grove, who had an only child Mabel. The said Mabel Dillon m. Richard Purcell, of Dunane, Queen's County, Esq., son of Redmund Purcell, who was son of Joseph Purcell of Timogue, Queen's County, son of Captain Tobias Purcell, and second cousin of Edmund Purcell† of Esker (in the county Kilkenny), and by her had six daughters (who all died unmarried) and one son, Richard Patrick Purcell, who, through his mother, the said Mabel Dillon, became co-representative of the Dillons of Drumrany.

16. Richard‡ Patrick Purcell, of Dunane: only son of Mabel Dillon and Richard Purcell, above mentioned. Left Ireland in his youth, and went to Grenada, West Indies, circa A.D. 1802, where he inherited several estates; he afterwards settled in England, at Cranford, in Middlesex, where he died in 1836. He m., in 1813, Celia-Catherine, only dau. and heiress of Thomas, grandson of — Lyndsey, Esq., of Turin, Mayo (by his wife, Bridget § Maria Purcell) and had:

17. Richard-Lyndsey Purcell,|| barrister-at-law: his heir; he m. Mary, dau. of F. Rasch, Esq., of Morton, Surrey, in 1858, and has no issue; living in 1883. 2. Henry-Dillon, who m. Julia Berkeley, dau. of — Berkeley, Esq., of Grenada, West Indies, and d. without issue in 1862; 3. Edmund-Sheridan, who m. Jane, dau. of Sir James Desanges, London, and has a son, Edmund Desanges (barrister-at-law), and a dau. Jane-Alice-Frances,

* Dillon: Margaret Dillon remained a Catholic; thereby forfeiting her property, the moiety of Dillon's Grove.

† Purcell: The said Edmund Purcell was one of the "Papist Proprietors," in the county Kilkenny, whose estates were confiscated by Cromwell; he was living at Esker Castle, county Kilkenny, in 1652; his son Redmond, of Liston, county Mayo, leaving no issue, the issue of Captain Tobias Purcell of Moyarde (who was his second cousin) became the heir of the Purcells of Esker.

‡ Richard: This Richard was, in 1825, present at the death of his mother Mabel Purcell, at Carlow, where she was buried alongside her husband, Richard Purcell who d. in 1784:

§ Bridget: This Bridget m., secondly, Thomas Robertson, Esq., of Perthshire, and had issue: James-Burton, Doctor in Philosophy and late Professor at the Catholic University Dublin, d.; John (d.), Captain in the E. I. Army, who had issue by his wife Marian, dau. of — Burn, Esq.; Fanny (d.), a nun; and Celia, who is m. to — Hunter, Esq., architect, of Hobartown, Tasmania, and has (in 1883) issue; Marian, m., secondly, J. Loughnan, Esq., and has issue.

|| Purcell: By the intermarriage of the Purcells of Esker, with the Dillons of Drumrany, this family has had to suffer from the consequences of three confiscations: the possessions of the said Dillons and of the Purcells having been respectively confiscated in 1652, 1653, and 1691; and what remained to the Dillons, as Transplantation Land, having, owing to the Penal Laws, been forfeited in comparatively modern times, viz., about one hundred years ago. This family is, also, almost the only Catholic Representative of the ancient families of the Dillons and Purcells, who flourished for several centuries, and built and endowed many Churches and Abbeys in various parts of Ireland: until, owing to their fidelity to their religion, to their King and country, they lost their estates, and had to seek an asylum in France, Spain, Austria, and the West Indies, in which countries down to the present day, there are many families—some still distinguished—bearing those names.

both living and unkm. in 1883; 4. Redmond-Percy; 5. Arthur-Dillon, a priest, and Canon of Westminster, London; 6. Maria-Isabella, who m. Professor Hermann Müller of Würzburg, Bavaria, a Deputy, in 1848, of the German Reichstag. 7. Celia-Catherine, d.; 8. Agnes-Josephine, a Franciscan nun; 9. Emily-Mary-Dillon; 10. Alice-Dillon, a Franciscan nun; living in 1883.

47.—THE “DON LEVI” FAMILY,

Princes of Ulidia.

This is the Gallic form of the Irish Mac Dunsleibhe family, Princes of Ulidia, in Ulster. The Hereditary Prince* of that territory, for his devotion to King James II., had in 1691 to quit Ireland and retire to France, where he d. at the Archbishopric of Treves, leaving an only son and heir—Andrew-Maurice, who was b. in Ireland, and d. at Coblentz on the 19th June, 1751. From him the descent was as follows :

1. Andrew-Maurice Don Levi, b. in Ireland; Lieutenant-Governor of Treves; d. at Coblentz on 19th June, 1751, leaving four children :

I. Christien-François, of whom presently.

II. Wolfgang-Frederic, b. at Coblentz on 15th July, 1738, and d. at Coblentz in 1763.

III. Wolfgang-Hartmann, b. at Coblentz 1740; d. at Coblentz 1823, leaving two children, a son and a daughter :

I. Ferdinand, b. at Coblentz, and d. in the French Army.

I. The daughter, b. at Coblentz, and m. in Paris.

I. Charlotte Don Levi, b. at Coblentz, 14th August, 1736; dau. of Andrew-Maurice, and of Anna-Margueritta Flamin.

2. Christien-François: son of Andrew-Maurice Don Levi; b. at Coblentz 17th July, 1734; m. Ursule Fisher, and had two sons :

I. Joseph-Michael, b. at Leibnertiz, in Styria (Austria), on 27th July, 1768; d. 31st May, 1811, at Vienna Leopoldstadt.

II. John.

3. John: second son of Christien-François, b. at Leibernitz, in Styria, 24th Sept., 1770; m. Thecla Kormorska; d. at Berdyczou, Voligny, in Russian Poland, leaving four children :

I. Etienne-Stanislaus, of whom presently.

II. John, b. at Berdyczou 19th August, 1814.

I. Helene, b. at Kolodno (Voligny), district of the Town Dubno.

II. Mary, b. at Berdyczou in 1809. Was twice married; the second marriage was to a Major in the Russian Army, named Matheu, by whom she has children; living in Poland, 1881.

4. Etienne-Stanislaus: son and heir of John Don Levi and Thecla Komorska; b. at Berdyczou, 26th December, 1811 (Old Style), or 7th January, 1812 (New Style); m. at Paris in 1850 Jane-Louisa Potelet, a native of Dijon, in Burgundy; no children. Living in Paris in 1883.

* Prince: This Hereditary Prince of Ulidia, on the fall of King James II., quitted Ireland for France, taking with him his only son and heir—Andrew-Maurice, then a boy; but left behind him his wife who remained in full possession of all his property. His widow (who died in 1708) married in Ireland Count O'Donnell, by whom she left no children. It appears that, till his death (in 1751) her son, Andrew-Maurice Don Levi, above mentioned, after he had attained his majority, received the rents of the landed property (situate in the counties of Down and Antrim, in Ireland), which had belonged to his father.

51.—THE "DUIGNAN" FAMILY,

Of Walsall, England.

THIS name was formerly Duigenan, one of the anglicised forms of the Irish *O'Duibhgenain ("dubh" : Irish, black or dark ; "gen," a sword or wound ; "an," one who), an ancient celebrated family in Ireland. The O'Duigenans were located at Kilronan, in the northern division of the county Roscommon ; and afterwards were landed proprietors† in the parish of Dromleas, barony of Dromaheare, county Leitrim, down to the Cromwellian confiscations. They are especially celebrated in the Irish annals for their devotion to the history and literature of their country.

In 1339, the Church of Kilronan was begun by Ferrall Muinach O'Duigenan. It stood "over" Lough Meelagh, and has a deep national interest ; as, in a vault, close to the ruins, erected for the family of MacDermott Roe, were deposited the earthly remains of the once celebrated Carolan.

At the close of the fourteenth century, Manus O'Duigenan was engaged in drawing up a considerable portion of the Book of Ballymote. Subsequently a Chronicle was compiled which, deriving its title from the locality of this family, was called the Book of Kilronan, or, sometimes, the Book of the O'Duigenans. That Book was one of the Chronicles from which the Four Masters (one of whom was Cucoigeriche or Peregrine O'Duigenan) collected their great work in 1632.

The Four Masters record, as might be expected, numerous obits of the O'Duigenan family ; each of whom is commemorated as a learned historian or philosopher.

In 1588, Duffy O'Duigenan wrote a history of the Sept of the O'Donnells.

* O'Duibhgenain : Other authorities give the name, in Irish, as O'Doighnan ("doigh" : Irish, hope ; Gr. "do-keo" to think).—See p. 221 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES."

† Proprietors : See the Paper in the Appendix, headed "Books of Survey and Distribution" ; under the barony of Dromaheare, and county of Leitrim.

Doctor Patrick Duigenan,* who was M.P. for the Borough of Old Leighlin, in the Irish Parliament of 1797, was a member of this family. That Patrick Duigenan was one of the King's Counsel, Advocate-General of the Admiralty, Judge of the Prerogative Court, Professor of Common Law in the Dublin University, Vicar-General of Dublin, a Doctor of Laws, Vicar-General of the Diocese of Meath and Leighlin and Ferns, Advocate in the Ecclesiastical Courts, etc.

In O'Clery's Genealogies the pedigree of the family is recorded down to John Ballach O'Dugenan, who was Chief of his name, when the family was dispossessed of their Kilronan patrimony; but, from his time down to the Cromwellian Confiscations, the family genealogy is not forthcoming. We have therefore been able to trace only one branch of the family; namely, that descended from:

1. John Duigenan, of Ardagh, in county Longford, who had:

2. John, who was master of the Grammar School, at Walsall, in Staffordshire, and d. there in 1845, leaving an only surviving son, and three daughters:

I. Henry Duignan, of whom presently.

I. Mary, who m. Mr. Thomas Franklin, of Walsall.

II. Emma, who m. Mr. William Totly, of Walsall.

III. Ann, who m. Mr. William Holden, of Walsall.

3. Henry Duignan: son of John; d. at Walsall in 1873, and was bur. at Rushall, leaving his only child:

4. William Henry Duignan (living in 1883) of Rushall Hall, near Wallsall, who was twice m.:

first, in 1850, to Mary, dau. of William Minors, Esq., of Fisherwick, in Staffordshire, and by her had three children:

I. Florence-Mary, the wife of George Rose, M.A.; living in 1883.

I. Ernest-Henry.

II. George-Stubbs.

The second wife of William-Henry Duignan was Jenny, dau. of Herr J. B. Petersen, of Stockholm, whom he there m. in 1868, and by whom he has three children (living in 1883):

III. Bernard.

IV. Carl.

V. Oscar.

5. Ernest-Henry Duignan: son of William-Henry; he and his brother George-Stubbs Duignan, living in 1883.

* Duigenan: Doctor Patrick Duigenan was twice married: his first wife was a Miss Cusack; his second, a Miss Heppenstal. This name reminds us of a Lieutenant Heppenstal, who, in 1798, acquired the surname of the "Walking Gallows"; from the following circumstance: "Heppenstal," writes Sir Jonah Barrington, "was a remarkably tall, robust man, and had a habit of expertly executing straggling Rebels, when he happened to meet them, by twisting his own cravat round their necks, then throwing it over his own brawny shoulder, and so trotting about at a smart pace, with the Rebel dangling at his back, and choking gradually till he was totally defunct, which generally happened before the Lieutenant was tired of his amusement. This ingenious contrivance, and some others nearly as expert, has not been practised in any other part of the world as yet discovered; but it was the humour of the year 1798, in Ireland, during martial law, and was not discountenanced by any military, or countermanded by any municipal authority; nor was its legality ever investigated or called in question by any Court of Justice.—At that time Lord Clare was Chancellor."—See Vol. II. of Barrington's Historic Memoirs of Ireland.

52.—THE “DARDITZ” FAMILY,

Of Johnstown, County Westmeath.

WALTER DARDITZ, of Johnstown, co. Westmeath, gent., had :

2. Gerald, who had :

3. Gerald (2), who had :

4. Thomas, who had :

5. Thomas (2), of Johnstown, who d. 22 January, 1637. He m.

Of Derrynashelly, County Monaghan.

ROBERT DE LA FEILD, of Knockbuy, co. Monaghan, of the family of Paniston, had :

2. James, of Derrynashelly, co.

Monaghan, who d. 19 Feb. 1638, s.p. He m. Mary, dau. of Art Oge O'Neill.

54.—THE “DOWDALL” FAMILY,

Of Kilfenny, County Limerick.

SIR WILLIAM DOWDALL had :

2. Sir John, who had :

3. Sir John, of Kilfenny, co. Limerick, who had :

4. Honora, his co-heir, and who d. 2. Oct., 1638, and was bur. in Monkstown, co. Meath. She was m. to Lawrence Dowdall, son and heir of Edward Dowdall of Monkstown, who was Registrar of Chancery.

55.—THE “DOYNE” FAMILY,

Of Kilkaran, Queen's County.

TERENCE DOYNE, of Kilkaran, Queen's County, had :

2. John, who d. 18 December, 1636. Was twice m.: his first wife was Margaret, dau. of Lysah O'Dempsey, of Deskart, King's County, by whom he had three sons and three daughters :

I. Terence.

II. Anthony.

III. John.

The daughters were :

I. Elenor.

II. Sarah.

III. Elan.

John Doyne's second wife was Helena, dau. of — MacDonell, of Tinekill, Queen's County, Esq., by whom he had :

IV. Edmond.

V. Thomas.

IV. Margaret.

V. May.

3. Terence Doyne: eldest son of John.

56.—THE “EDMUNDSON” FAMILY,

Of Braiden Island, County Antrim.

SIR JAMES EDMUNDSTON, of Duntrath, in Strivelin, in Scotland, had :

2. William, who had :

3. Archibald, of Braiden Island, in the co. Antrim, who died 25th Dec., 1636. He m. J., daughter of Archibald Hamilton, of Lanrith, in Scotland, and had two sons and two daughters :

I. William, who was deaf and dumb.

II. Archibald.

I. Hellen. II. Isabella.

4. William Edmundson : son of Archibald.

57.—THE “EULESTON” FAMILY.

HUGH EULESTON, of the House of Euleston, in Lancashire ; had :

2. James, who had :

3. Tristram (youngest son), of Drumshallum, in the co. Louth, who was Constable of Dublin Castle, and who died 21st July, 1636. He m. Eliza, dau. of — Collins, of Warwickshire, and had, besides Ann, who m. Thomas Tillesly, of Louth, nine other children who all d. s.p. Tristram's second wife was

Dorothy, daughter of William Craughare, of Lancashire, and by her had three sons and five daus. :

4. Francis, who m. Joan, dau. of — Kelly, and widow of William Price ; 2. Gilbert ; 3. Walter. And the five daughters were—1. Jane, who m. George Thomas, of Drumshallen, Clerk ; 2. Margaret, who m. Thomas Bekingham, of Bankton ; 3. Alice ; 4. Kath. ; 5. Eliza.

58.—“EVERARD,”*

Of Fethard.

AN exhaustive and able disquisition on the Irish origin of this name may be seen in the eighteenth chapter of the third volume of Dr. Lanigan's Ecclesiastical History. But whether the Everards are of Irish or Anglo-Norman extraction, Fethard† must, at all events, be considered the cradle of the Everard family of the county Tipperary. The common stock, whence all the Everards of Tipperary have sprung, is described by Molyneux as “Nicholas Everard, of Fethard, Esq.” The third in

* Everard : See the “Everard” genealogy at pp. 448-454 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES.”

† Fethard : This is the Anglicised form of the Irish Fidh-ard or Fiodh-ard, which means the “high wood.” This wood, to which the town of “Fethard” owes its name, was the property of the (Tipperary) Everard family. A very curious reference is made to it in the Will (1624) of Sir John Everard, Knight, in which it is described as the “Oken Grove.” And it is equally curious, that the modern name of the hill and townland is Grove. The “Grove” property belongs at the present day to Mr. Barton, a descendant of a French gentleman, who, years ago, purchased the property, when the descendants of its former possessor, Richard Burgh, became extinct.—Idem, p. 450.

descent from the said Nicholas was (see p. 449 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") Sir John Everard of Fethard, Knt., who about the year 1600, was one of the leading citizens of his native town, and subsequently prominent amongst the foremost public men in Ireland. On account of his great legal attainments he was surnamed "the Lawyer." He was appointed Judge, and in the discharge of the duties of that high office his career was creditable to himself and useful to his country. Trouble, however, overtook him in the form of persecution for conscience' sake; but having "great repute for honestie" and the courage of his convictions, he would not for any consideration acknowledge a doctrine which, in his heart, he believed to be false. He refused to take the Oath of Supremacy, resigned his position on the Bench, and fell into disfavour with those then in power. A signal mark of honour awaited him at the hands of his Catholic Countrymen. In the Irish Parliament summoned, in 1613, Sir John Everard was chosen Speaker* of the House of Commons. A full account of that memorable Election is given in the "Hibernia Anglicana," where in a very interesting narrative, in which the Author of that work repeatedly sneers at Sir John, are distinctly and faithfully mirrored the disgraceful and lamentable state of things, at that period in Ireland, and the unhappy relations which then existed between England and that unhappy country. The secession of the "recusant" party from Parliament, the fate of the deputation of that body to state their case before the King in London, its reception by James I., and his address to the Irish delegates, are matters familiar to ordinary readers of Irish History. Sir John† had three sons, and a daughter who was married to Henry White, an ancestor of Lord Dunally. In 1661, the male descendants of the eldest son of Sir John became extinct in the third generation. The second son was named Richard, who, a few years before his father's death, which occurred in 1624, was created a Baronet. The provision made for this son, in Sir John's Will, is as follows :

"Item. I doe apoint that my son Richard shall have and enioy all my purchased lands from Sir Patrick Murray in Clangibbon."

Sir Richard married Catherine Tobin, daughter of the chief of that name in the neighbourhood of Fethard. The date of that event has been preserved by means of the gift of a chalice bearing on its hexagonal foot the following inscription :

"Ora pro animabus D. Richardi Everard et Catharinæ Tobyne. 1627."

In the little church erected by Sir Richard within the walls which surrounded his castle at Shanrahan, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin,

* Speaker: See Carte's "Life of the Duke of Ormond," pp. 19, 20, and 22.

† Sir John: Sir John Everard possessed not only the town of Fethard, which belonged to him "for ever by several tenures," and several "castles, towns, and lands" in that neighbourhood, but he also had property in Cashel, Clonmel, Carriek, and in the city and county of Waterford. Sir John obtained licence to hold Courts "Leet and Barron" (under 40s.) within the lands in the county Tipperary, and the like in the county Waterford; to hold a Thursday market at Knockelly; a fair at Glanballyquillane (Glin?) on Friday and Saturday after the Ascension; . . . to appoint Clerks of Markets, Seneschals, and other officers . . .

that sacred vessel was used in the celebration of the Divine Mysteries. In the course of time their marriage was blessed with a son and two daughters. From the Records of the Rolls it appears that Sir Richard Everard, "Knight and Barronett," was a very extensive proprietor of land in the barony of Iffa and Offa, county Tipperary. To him belonged "the manor, castle, town and lands, of Ballyboy"; "the manor, castle, town and lands, of Shanraghin," and several other places around Clogheen. Sir Richard, in 1631, lived in the Castle at Ballyboy; close to which was the magnificent fortress of Fitzgibbon, the White Knight. About this period Sir Richard built a formidable military stronghold, which was in the form of a parallelogram, and was flanked at each angle by a small square tower. This was the favourite residence of the family, and was called "Everard's Castle." This Castle stood in the midst of a fertile plain, extending from the foot of "Galtybeg" to Clogheen; and around that stronghold were one thousand acres which, also, belonged to Sir Richard. The manor of Everard's Castle was "erected" in 1639. With the War (by some called the "Rebellion") in Ireland of 1641 came great and endless troubles for Sir Richard. On that memorable occasion the Irish were the Royalists; the English in Ireland were the anti-Royalists or Puritans. For the first two years of the War Sir Richard kept aloof from both parties; but for not joining with them the "old" Irish took away from him "160 cows, 33 stud mares, and 2,000 sheep." The tenants on his Estate were subjected to similar treatment; the richest of whom with their flocks and goods Sir Richard conveyed to "safe quarters." There were still a number of families, consisting of eighty-eight individuals, who were so poor as to be unable to remove, and these, notwithstanding the storm that raged outside, Sir Richard, acting on the defensive, maintained at his own expense, until the middle of June, 1642. "The gentlemen," says Carte,* "in this part of the Kingdom were exceeding careful to prevent bloodshed and to preserve the English from being plundered; several instances may be given thereof; but few deserve better to be particularized than Sir Richard Everard, Bart." And after narrating some of the many good deeds of Sir Richard, during that stormy period, Carte adds: "There are so many acts of horror, cruelty, and inhumanity necessary to be recounted in the history of these times, that I fancy the reader will be somewhat relieved by the relation of so remarkable an instance of compassion, tenderness and generosity to the distressed."

Later on, when the object of the Catholic Confederation was clearly known and defined, Sir Richard readily joined the popular movement, and, in 1646, was one of the Confederate Catholics who sat, in what might be designated, the "Irish Parliament at Kilkenny." Sir Richard was a man of considerable ability, courtly manners, fine personal presence and good address, and was much esteemed by the moderate party and the Catholic Bishops.

Cromwell's presence in Ireland soon put an end to the deliberations of the Confederates at Kilkenny, and desolation marked his progress throughout the land. In the Spring of 1650, Cromwell, on his way from Youghal to the siege of Clonmel, took and burnt Everard's Castle : hence its present name Burntcourt. Nothing daunted, however, Sir Richard, who was a better soldier than legislator, and whose gallant exploits at this time rendered him very popular, offered every opposition to Cromwell's march ; but he was ultimately compelled to retire to Limerick, where he proved himself one of its bravest defenders. A fair estimate of his great services in the interests of "Creed and Country" may be had from the fact that on the capture of that city, Sir Richard Everard was placed in the same category with the gallant defender of Clonmel, namely Hugh Dubh O'Neill, and the patriotic Bishop of Emly, the Most Rev. Dr. Terence O'Brien ; and, like them, was one of the illustrious band of twenty-four Irishmen, whom Cromwell's general (Ireton) sentenced to be hanged !

* Carte: In the first Volume of Carte's Life of the Duke of Ormond, the author refers to Sir Richard Everard, Bart., in pp. 264, 269, 516; in Vol. II., pp. 32, 122, 437; and in the Appendix to Vol. II., p. 132.

When victory, at length, declared in favour of the arms of the Republicans (or Cromwellians, as they were called) in this country and in England, the Adventurers who advanced money to carry on the war, and the officers and soldiers who took part in it, entered on the possession of the estates of those Irish Lords and Gentlemen who were amongst the vanquished Royalists. Incredible as it may appear, two "pretended Adventurers," named Cunningham and Dick, had the audacity to seize on a great portion of the property of the Everard family about Clogheen. Amongst others, Sir Thomas Stanley,* who ranked as Colonel in Cromwell's army, obtained another portion in that quarter. Sir Redmond Everard, who was a distinguished officer amongst the cavaliers, succeeded, on the death of his father Sir Richard, merely to the title, but was obliged to observe a respectful silence regarding the new settlers ; and deemed it prudent, also, to keep at a safe distance from his father's property during the interregnum. While the Protectorate lasted, Sir Redmond, like many other Irish gentlemen, found himself in the most unenviable and straitened circumstances. He was not looked upon with favour by the Regicide Government, because of his exertions to sustain the tottering House of the Stuarts. For above a decade of years (1650 to 1661) Sir Redmond was thus obliged to be content with his lot, till

* Sir Thomas: Sir Thomas Stanley, when the Commonwealth was at its height, was a rabid Puritan and "red" Republican. After the Restoration he became a "zealous" Protestant, and appeared a loyal subject of the son of that King against whom he rose in rebellion. And although it was manifest he was no believer in the divine right of Kings, and no friend of the House of Stuart, he was not only permitted to retain the extensive property acquired by him as a Cromwellian officer, and from which loyal subjects had been ejected ; but he obtained from Charles II. a grant of same, amounting to more than 9,000 acres in the neighbourhood of Clonmel. The following names of the chief places of note embodied in that grant will give an idea of its extent: Tickincoor, Killganibegg and Killganimore, Castlereagh, Bar Glenehery, Grangenagower, Upper and Lower Sillyheens, the town of Ballymacarbery, the town of Clonaffe (Clonmel?), Ardpaddau, Ballydonogh, Ballymachee, Clogheen, Castle Conagh, &c. (See Inrolls. 24th July, 1666. 18 Ch. II.) The sword, used even to the present day by the Corporation of Clonmel was the gift of Sir Thomas, and on it appear the Arms of the Stanley family, with the addition of a mural crown, and the legend "Ex dono Thomæ Standly, 1656." Sir Thomas was an ancestor of the Stanleys of Alderly, Cheshire.

the death, at the latter date, of the last of the male members of the eldest branch of the family (most of whom had probably perished in the previous wars); whereupon, Sir Redmond succeeded as "next heir,"—not to the Burntcourt, but to the Fethard Estates. Now that Charles II. was on the throne, one might expect that the King would not be unmindful of his Irish friends and supporters. But no: Sir Redmond among them was forced to wait for a second term of over ten years (1661 to 1673) before regaining possession of his father's property; and even then only obtained a "part" of same, as appears from the following in Patent Rolls, Ano. 25 Charles II.:—"The lands hereafter mentioned being vested in the King, by the Act of Settlement, as lands set out to T. Cunningham and Lewis Dick, pretended Adventurers, and his Majesty, considering the many good and faithful services performed by Sir Redmond Everard, Bart., who was particularly provided for in his Majesty's gracious Declaration for the Settlement of Ireland, to be restored to his estate, whereof the said lands are part, was pleased to restore the same to him and his heirs, pursuant to Privy Seal, dated at Whitehall, 24 January, 1672," viz.: the Castles, Messuages, and Lands of and in

To pay the same Quit Rents as were payable by Adventurers for Lands in the Province of Munster.

Now, the "particular provision," referred to in the above extract, and made for Sir Redmond* in His Majesty's Declaration in 1661, was, to put it plainly, a mere acknowledgment, on the part of the King, of the right and title of Sir Redmond to continue in the undisturbed possession of the family property at Fethard, to which he had a just and indisputable claim as next heir. A grant of one's own property, or a Royal Patent to retain it, seems, at present, rather strange; but, doubtless, it was more intelligible in the period of which we treat. While the 2,000 acres which he was "to be restored unto," in consideration of his services "beyond the seas," never came into his possession up to the moment of his death;† nor is there any evidence that this grant of land became, at any subsequent period, the property of any other member of the family.

Margaret, the youngest daughter of Sir Redmond, lived in Kilcash Castle, and witnessed strange vicissitudes in the history of her family and country. She never married. Her mother was of the Ormond Butlers; and it is curious what a fascination her "Kinsmen," the young Butlers, exercised over her, if we judge by the affectionate language and substantial legacies in her Will, in their favour. The more distant and poorer relations of her own name, whom perhaps she looked down upon as "odious approximations," were passed over; but, unquestionably, she was much indebted to the Butlers for affording her so safe and comfortable a retreat, when Fethard, under the new regime, became too hot for any of the name of Everard. She died in 1753, and her remains were interred "in the Vault, at Kilcash Church."

Sir John Everard, Bart., of Fethard, son of Sir Redmond, was married to Ellen Butler, eldest daughter of Pierce, Lord Cahir. He was Captain of the regiment of Horse commanded by Colonel Nicholas Purcell; was present at the Boyne; and was killed at the battle of Aughrim, in 1691. He was one of the attainted officers of the service of King James. The greater portion of his property after this was confiscated, but a miserable remnant passed to his son, Sir Redmond, and certain interests in smaller portions were, later on, allowed to Claimants* of his kindred. The great bulk of the property passed by sale or grants into strange hands. This Sir Redmond was the last of the Baronets of the family. He was married and had no issue. He lived for some years in Fethard, in the Castle built by him opposite the family mansion from which he had been ousted by the victorious Williamite soldiers. This "new" Castle, situated on the bank of the stream "Glashanly,"† is now a ruin.

In the Irish Parliament Sir Redmond represented the co. Tipperary, in the early part of the last century, the borough of Fethard, and the city of Kilkenny. With some others he strove to prevent the Enactment of the Penal Laws. Finding all efforts unavailing, and foreseeing the inevitable, he left the country, and retired to France, where, in 1746, he died.

In this paragraph the attention of the reader will be directed to the descendants of the third son of Sir John Everard, Knt. In his Will, dated 1624, Sir John made provision, also, for his son Gabriel's children, whose names were Geoffrey, Joseph, and Charles. He bequeathed to the heir of Gabriel property in the counties of Tipperary and Waterford. In his Will, and in Roll V. f. 27 of "Decrees of Innocents," the various townlands so bequeathed are mentioned. Geoffrey died in 1642, early in life, leaving behind a son James, only two years old. The minor's title to the property was admitted, but "the profits of the said estate were received by the nearest friends of Claimant, until the lands were seized by the usurped powers." The "nearest friends" were Joseph ‡ and Charles; but the former having renounced the world, and taken the habit of the Order of St. Francis, upon Charles, who previously had resided in Fethard, devolved the management of the estate and the charge of his nephew. Charles lived for a few years in that quarter and was married. His name appears amongst "the 1649 Officers"; and a superb monument erected to his memory may be still seen in the Churchyard at Churchtown, co. Waterford. James attained his majority in 1661, and lodged a petition on the "6 Nov., 14^o Charles II.," against some Cromwellian settlers who had taken possession of his property. Nearly two years after he succeeded in recovering possession, as appears from the following decree issued on the 11 July, 16^o Charles II.":

* Claimants: In the Inquisition post mortem (of Sir John, Bart.) taken at Clonmel on 24 April, 1693, Chancery, Tipperary, Reg. Will. III., appear the following names: Edmond Everard, Fethard and Carrigmore; John Everard, Clogheen; Christopher Everard, Ballybought (Ballyboe?), &c.

† Glashanly: This is a corruption of two Irish words, namely, "glaise," a stream, and "aluin," lovely; meaning "the lovely stream," which flows by Fethard.

"That Claimant be restored and that the Sheriffs of the several counties in which the lands lie do deliver the same to James Everard."

He ranked as Captain in the Irish Army, and was rewarded for his loyalty to James II., by having his entire property confiscated* by William III. His descendants, it is said, are still alive, and own "Chateau Everard," in the neighbourhood of Paris. From Charles, the grandson of Sir John, Knt., was descended Edmond Everard of Carrigmore, Gent. (Will Prerogative, 1755). The representatives of this branch, living (1883), are a young barrister, Mr. James Power Everard, B.A., Athlone; and Rev. John Everard, C.C., Clonmel. (See the "Everard" Pedigree). There are two great branches of the Everards of Tipperary, both deriving their origin from the one common stock, viz.—"Nicholas Everard of Fethard, Esq.," above mentioned.

We come now to consider the second and probably the elder branch of the family. In the "Molyneux" MS. f. iii. 27, p. 43, there are recorded six generations also of this branch of the Everard family. It is rather strange that the pedigree therein given ends with the name of a female—Mary Everard. At first sight this is misleading, and one might suppose that the male members of this line became extinct; were it not that there is ample, clear, and positive evidence to the contrary. The writer in the MS. fixes the date of the death of Mary's father (Edward) on the "29 May, 1637." Now it so happens that the Will of Mary's grandfather, who was also named Edward, is preserved in the Record Office, Dublin; and in it the date of that Edward's death is set down as occurring on the "29 Mar., 1637." No doubt of the authenticity or accuracy of that Will can for a moment be entertained, and hence we incline to the belief that the writer of the genealogy in the "Then, comrades! Fellow gentlemen!

Like brothers hand-in-hand,
Take we a last and longing look
Of our dear forfeit land!
Our honour and our stainless swords,
Our old ancestral names,
Alone are ours—all else is lost,
For Erin and King James.

All! save the Creed our fathers held,
Tho' fallen its shrines and low,
And the loyal faith of gentle blood,
Unchanged thro' weal or woe."

K. M. Stone's Poems.

Molyneux MS. made two mistakes: first, by placing the only obit recorded by him after Edward "oge," the father of Mary; and, second, by confounding the contracted form of March with May. Anyone who has any knowledge of such matters may easily conceive how readily an error may be committed in the registration of a pedigree. The wonder is, considering the havoc wrought by time, the missing deeds, the Erasures in those extant, &c., &c., that so much information may be obtained. It may be well to note that Mary had three uncles, and that her grandfather states in his Will (29 March, 1637), that should his sons die without male issue, he then bequeathes his property to "the heyers males of my late deceased father, James Everard."

It is very plain, therefore, that at that time there was no lack of male representatives of this branch of the family. Edward (whose Will is on record) and his brother Thomas were two of the six witnesses to the Will (1624) of Sir John Everard. In that Will Sir John, in the most praiseworthy spirit and manner, makes provision for his poorer "Kinswomen," and cannot be accused of being unmindful of the "blood."

It may be truly said, that in every generation from the first Nicholas of Fethard, there has been a host of male and female members of this line. Of these one of the most remarkable was James Everard of Fethard. He was Mayor of his native town when it was stormed by Cromwell. One of the sacred vessels used to this day in the Franciscan Church, Clonmel, was the gift of this James. He died in 1667, and his Will, bearing that date, is preserved in the Record Office, Dublin. In it reference is made to several members of his family; in fact, he mentions by name five male members then living, and also speaks of his cousin Sir Redmond Everard, Bart. The latter acknowledged the connection with his contemporaries; for, in Sir Redmond's Will (1687) he also bequeathed, in certain contingencies, his property "to the heirs males of the said Sir John Everard's great-grandfather." Now, this "great-grandfather" was the oft-mentioned "Nicholas," who was the common stock whence James also sprang, and whom, therefore, as "head of the house," Sir Redmond constituted his heir. James had a brother named Redmond, who had a son Edmond: this latter, instead of Edmond, the son of Charles, may have been the grandfather of Edmond Everard, Carrigmore, gent. (1755). And George, who was another brother of the above-mentioned James,* had a grandson of the same name,—George, junior, who had the ill luck of having a brother-in-law, James Butler (father of Richard Butler, first Earl of Glengall), who seemed to have not much regard for the principles of justice. (See Bill, filed 21 Aug., 1706. "Palatinate Court, Co. Tipperary"). To this branch belonged his Grace, the Most Rev. Patrick Everard, Archbishop of Cashel and Emly; who was born in Fethard, and was there taught Classics. He studied in

* James: This James had a son, Piers, of Fethard, who was a distinguished Irish Officer, and took part in the Battle of Aughrim. The legal documents of a later period refer to that circumstance in very guarded terms: "That said Piers in or about the year 1690 had occasion to go to the Province of Connaught, and from thence to Limerick, where he died."

the Irish College, Salamanca* ; was Rector of the Irish College in Paris, for ten years ; next became Vicar-General of the Diocese of Bordeaux ; and afterwards conducted a School at Ulverstone, in Lancashire, England, for the education of the sons of English Catholic Gentlemen, in which the Pension ranged from £200 to £400 per annum. He was elected, in 1810, President of the College of Maynooth ; and, in 1814, was appointed Archbishop† by the Holy See. He died of fever, in Thurles ; and his remains were interred in Cashel.

Lucas Everard, who died in 1665, was the son of Marcus, who was a brother of Edward (1637). From a Bill filed in "Palatinate Court," county Tipperary, in February, 1678, it appears the above Lucas had a son Christopher, who was father of John Everard, of Fethard. From that Bill, also, the following extract is taken : "that James Butler and his wife, taking advantage of the minority of the said John, seized upon his property in and about Fethard, and still keep the same." Knaves were encouraged in their dishonesty by the fact, that the name of "Everard" was in very bad odour under the new Dynasty.

The above John Everard of Fethard died in 1712, and his Will of that date, has been preserved in the Record Office, Dublin. He had four sons, but, though provision is made for the "Second," "third," and "fourth" Son, the only name expressly mentioned in the Will is that of Richard, the "eldest." One (probably Richard) of the four sons of the said John Everard, of Fethard, had four sons—1. John, of Clonmore, co. Tipperary, whose issue is extinct ; 2. Richard, of whom presently ; 3. Patrick, of Roscrea, co. Tipperary, who m. a Miss Kennedy and had a family, all of whom are (1883) living in America, save Martin Everard, living in 1883, s.p. ; 4. Philip, also of Clonmore, who had three sons—1. Thomas ; 2. James, who emigrated to America ; 3. Patrick, who had a son who is now (1883) in America. This Thomas, son of Philip, had three sons—1. John Everard of Clonmore, living in 1883, who is m. and has a family ; 2. Thomas Everard, m., living in 1883, and has a family ; 3. James Everard, who m. a Miss Leahy, and is (1883) living in Loughmore, s.p. The genealogy of the branch of this family descended from Richard, one of the grandsons of John Everard of Fethard, who died A.D. 1712, is as follows :

1. JOHN EVERARD, of Fethard, above mentioned, who d. in 1712.

2. () : one of his four sons, probably Richard.

3. Richard : son of No. 2. This Richard m. M. Comerford and had five sons—I. Philip, of Clonmore ; II. Michael of Longorchard (died

22. Gerald Fitzgerald: his son; living in 1883; has a sister Eleanor, unmarried.

* Geraldines :

These Geraldines ! these Geraldines ; rain wears away the rock,
And time may wear away the tribe that stood the battle shock ;
But, ever sure, while one is left of all that honoured race,
In front of Ireland’s chivalry is that Fitzgerald’s place ;
And, though the last were dead and gone, how many a field and town,
From Thomas-Court to Abbeyfeale, would cherish their renown,
And men would say of valour’s rise, or ancient power’s decline,
“Twill never soar, it never shone, as did the Geraldine.”

71.—THE "GLADSTONE" FAMILY.

IN the "Robertson" genealogy, pp. 400-401 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," the descent of this family is clearly traced from Malcolm III., King of Scotland, down to Andrew Robertson, Provost of Dingwall, who was the maternal grandfather of, "amongst other children, the Right Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, of Hawarden, in Flintshire, M.P., and First Lord of the Treasury, in 1881." This surname was originally Gledstaine ("Gleadh": Irish, tricks, humour; "stain," tin or latten), and was more lately rendered Gladstones. It was the father of the Premier that first omitted the final s from the name, and wrote it Gladstone. In the male line, so far as we can trace it, the genealogy of the family is, as follows :

1. John Gladstones, of Toft-Combes, Biggar, in Lanarkshire, Scotland.

2. Thomas Gladstones, of Leith : his younger son ; d. 1809.

3. Sir John Gladstone, of Fasque, Kincardineshire : his eldest son ; b. Dec., 1764 ; created a Baronet 18 July, 1846 ; first of the family that omitted the final s in his name. Sir John was twice married : first, in 1792, to Jane (d. s.p. in 1798), dau. of Joseph Hall, Esq., of Liverpool ; and, secondly, in April, 1800, to Anne (d. 1835), dau. of Andrew Robertson, Esq., Provost of Dingwall, and Sheriff-Substitute of Rosshire, by whom he had four sons :—1. Thomas, 2. Robertson, 3. John-Neilson, 4. William-Ewart ; and two daughters :—1. Anne-M'Kenzie (d. unm.), 2. Helen-Jane (d. 16 January, 1880) ;

I. Thomas : the eldest son of Sir John ; of whom presently.

73.—THE “HALLY” FAMILY.

THE O'h-Ailche (“ailce” : Irish, manners, behaviour) or Hally family is a branch of the O’Kennedys of Ormond, descendants of Cormac Cas. Tuatha-Fearalt, a district in the county of Tipperary (the exact situation of which cannot now be ascertained), was the lordship of the family, whom O’Heerin mentions in the following lines :

“ Tuatha-Fearalt, of the fair woods,
Is the lordship of O’Ailche ;
A plain of fair fortresses, and a spreading tribe ;
The land resembling Teltown of rivulets.”

From the topographical description here given, it would appear to have been that portion of Hy-Fogharty, in Tipperary, lying between Lyttletown, in that county, and Urlingford, in Kilkenny. Tuatha-Fearalt signifies "the country of hardy men"; from tuatha, "a district" or "country," and Fearalt, "hardy men," or "men of sinew." Or, it may signify "the possession of Fearalt," who may have been some remarkable progenitor of the family under notice. Few, if any, of the name are to be met with at this day, either in Kilkenny or Tipperary.

74.—THE "HALY" FAMILY.

THE O'h-Algaith or O'h-Algaich ("algach": Irish, noble, brave), anglicised O'Haly and Haly, are descended from Cosgrach, son of Lorcan, who is No. 103 on the "O'Brien" (Kings of Thomond) pedigree; and are to be distinguished from the O'Aílches, who, although of the same descent, are a distinct family. (See the "Healy" pedigree).

The O'Halys are of old standing in the county of Galway, as appears from the Four Masters, under A.D. 1232. The representative of the senior branch of the sept, in 1730, was Simon Haly, Esq., of Ballyhaly, who m. Eleanora, dau. of Teige O'Quin, Esq., of Adare, an ancestor of the Earl of Dunraven.

75.—THE "HARRINGTON" FAMILY.

ANNE, dau. of Henry Harrington, brother of John, Lord Harrington, d. 7 Jan., 1639. She m. Sir Thomas Roper, Lord Baltinglas and Baron of Bantre, who d. 18 Feb., 1637.

76.—THE "HARRIS" FAMILY.

SIR THOMAS HARRIS, of Coick-worthee, Devonshire, Knt., had:

2. Sir Edward, of Dromeny, Knt., a Judge in the King's Bench, who d. at Cahirmony, co. Cork, on 4 April, 1636, and was buried at Kilcredan, co. Cork. His first wife was Eliza, dau. of Anthony Fowell, of Fowelcomb, co. Devon, England, Esq., by whom he had four sons and three daughters:

- I. Sir Thomas, Knt., of whom presently.
- II. Edward.

III. Arthur.

IV. Edmund.

The daughters were:

I. Philippa, who m. Robert Tent, of Ballycerinan, co. Cork, Esq.

II. Eliza, who m. John Lancaster, of Waterford, Esq.

III. Mary, who m. William Greatreax, of Affame.

Sir Edward's second wife was Jane, dau. of — Bussey.

3. Sir Thomas Harris, Knt.: son of Sir Edward.

77.—THE “HART” FAMILIES, Of America.

THERE are several families of this name in America since the beginning of the 17th century: some of them claiming to be of Irish; some, of English; and some, of Scotch descent. The prevailing way of spelling the name, which, however, has obtained in the New World, is: “Hart,” “Harte,” “Hartt,” “Heart,” and “Hearte.”

Some of those families are descended from Stephen Hart* (or Harte), a Puritan, who, about 1632, emigrated from (it is supposed) Braintree, in Essexshire, England, to Massachusetts, United States of America; and from whom “Hart’s Ford” (more lately rendered “Hartford”) on the Connecticut river, took its name. That Stephen Hart was a farmer and large landholder; he and the company with whom he went to America settled in Braintree, Mass., and afterwards removed to Newtown (since called “Cambridge”) Mass., and there constituted themselves a church, of which the said Stephen was elected “deacon”: hence has he been called “Deacon Stephen Hart.” He was in Cambridge (Mass.) in 1632, and admitted a freeman there, on 14 May, 1634. He went to Hartford in 1635; was there a proprietor in 1639; and became one of the eighty-four proprietors of Farmington, in Connecticut, in 1672. At his death, in March, 1682-3, he was 77 years of age, and then lived at the village of Farmington, on a tract of land (bordering the present town of Avon) which is still known by the name of “Hart’s Farm.” His children were: 1. Sarah, who on the 20th Nov., 1644, m. Thomas Porter; 2. Mary, who was twice married—first, to John Lee, and, secondly, on the 5th Jan., 1672, to Jedediah Strong; 3. John, who m. Sarah —; 4. Stephen, the name of whose wife is not known; 5. Mahitabel, who m. John Cole; 6. Thomas, b. in 1643, who m. Ruth Hawkins. From those six children of Deacon Stephen Hart, have descended many of the families of distinction, now (1883) living in the Great Western Republic.

The surname of said Stephen appears as Hart, in the list of Winthrop’s New England, among those who took the freeman’s oath on the 14th of May, 1634; while his brother Edmund’s name appears in the same list as Harte, where the e final is added. The history of Dorchester, Massachusetts, makes that Edmund one of the first settlers of that town, and there he had his house-lot in 1632; but he subsequently removed to Weymouth. His children were, according to Savage, all daughters. It is worthy of remark (see p. 254 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES”), that Stephen Harte, of Westmill, in Hertfordshire, England, was the first of the name recorded as living in that country. And (see the “Harte” pedigree, in p. 253 of the said Third Edition,) it was in the 12th century that a junior branch of the “O’Hart” family anglicised their name Harte, from the Irish O’h-Airt, and first employed the e final in the name.

* Stephen Hart: See the “Genealogical History of Deacon Stephen Hart and his descendants, 1632-1875. By Alfred Andrews, New Britain, Conn. (Hartford: Lockwood, Brainard, and Co., 1875.)”

Another distinguished branch of the "Hart" family in America is that descended from John Hart, who was born at Witney, in Oxfordshire, England, on the 16th of Nov., 1651, and who went to America with William Penn. He was a Quaker preacher of note, and settled near Philadelphia. He was elected a member of the Assembly for the county of Philadelphia, and took his seat therein on the 12th March, 1683. He died at his residence in Warminster, in Sept., 1714, in the 63rd year of his age. From that John Hart is descended General W. W. Hart-Davis, of Doylestown, Pennsylvania, living in 1883. All things considered, we are of opinion that the above mentioned Stephen Hart, the Deacon; Stephen Harte, of Westmill, in Hertfordshire, England; and John Hart, the celebrated Quaker preacher, were all of the same stock and of Irish origin!

Another eminent branch of the "Hart" family in America is that descended from Edward Hart, of Hopewell township, formerly in Hunterdon county, New Jersey, who fought under Wolfe on the Heights of Abraham (Quebec). His son John Hart (see Note,† p. 193 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," was one of the Signatories who, on the 4th of July, 1776, signed the famous "Declaration of American Independence"; and is still remembered in America as:

"Honest John Hart."

This John was born at Hopewell, N.J., in 1715; and, in 1774, was first elected to the General Congress, at Philadelphia. New Jersey was soon invaded by the British Army, who devastated Mr. Hart's estate, and made special exertions to take him prisoner. He, however, frustrated their designs, by wandering through the woods from cottage to cottage, and from cave to cave, constantly hunted by the English soldiery; so that he never ventured to sleep in the same place twice in succession. The capture of the Hessians by General Washington put an end to that state of things: Mr. Hart was enabled to return to his estate, on which he passed the remainder of his life. He had two sons in the War of the Revolution: Edward, and Daniel; and three of his sons (supposed to be Jesse, Nathaniel, and John) acted as General Washington's guides while he was campaigning in New Jersey.

The said John Hart married Deborah Scudder (who died on the 26th October, 1776), and, according to entries in his writing in the Family Bible, the following were their children:

1. Sarah,	born 16 Oct. (year not legible.)	8. Abigail,	born 10 Feb., 1754
2. Jesse,	" 19 Nov., 1742	9. Edward,	" 20 Dec., 1755
3. Martha,	" 10 Apl., 1746	10. Scudder,	" 30 Dec., 1759
4. Nathaniel,	" 29 Oct., 1747	11. (A daughter),	" 16 Mar., 1761
5. John,	" 29 Oct., 1748	12. Daniel,	" 13 Aug., 1762
6. Susannah,	" 2 Aug., 1750	13. Deborah,	" 11 Aug., 1765
7. Mary,	" 7 Apl., 1752

Sarah married a Mr. Wyckoff; and her grandson, Samuel S. Wyckoff, was in 1882 a prominent merchant in Murray Street, New York City. Susannah m. Major Polhemus, an Officer of the Revolution, and was the mother of Mrs. Kurts. Deborah m. Joseph Ott. Daniel went to Virginia.

Joseph Hart, a grandson of the said John Hart, was in 1874 living on the top of Rich Mountain, in West Virginia; and H. S. Hart, of Circleville, Kansas, living in 1874, was a great-grandson, of John, the Signer of the Declaration. The said John's personal appearance was, it is recorded, very prepossessing: he was tall and straight, with black hair and dark complexion. The time of his death has been variously stated by different writers: Sanderson, in his "Lives of the Signers," puts it in the year 1780; others make the time 1778; but we believe we are correct in saying the true time is the 11th of May, 1779.

There is a Monument erected to his memory at Hopewell, New Jersey, on the Front of which are the words; "John Hart, a Signer of American Independence, July 4, 1776"; on its Right side, the words: "Erected . . . by the State of New Jersey, by Act Approved, April 5, 1865"; on its Left side, the words: "First Speaker of Assembly, August 27, 1776," and "Member of the Committee of Safety, 1775-1776"; on the Rear, the words: "Honor the Patriot's Grave." Around the Monument are the graves of those who were his companions and associates.

Patrick Hart, of Youngstown, Ohio, living in 1877, and Thomas Hart, living in 1880, near Courtland, Decalb county, Illinois, are (see p. 193 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") members of our own family.

There is yet another branch of the "Hart" family located in Pittston, Pennsylvania, which we cannot connect with any of the foregoing families, but which, judging by its coat of arms, is, in our opinion, a branch of our own family. We can trace the descent of that branch only from Jeremiah* Hart, who when a young man lived in Dutchess County, State of New York; removed to Saratoga County in said State, there married, owned a large farm, and lived and died. He had two elder brothers—1. John, 2. Richard: that John had a son John, both of whom held commissions in the English Army during the American Revolution, after which the younger John came to reside in England; Jeremiah remained faithful to the American cause; but we have learned nothing of Richard and his descendants. Commencing with Jeremiah the following is the descent from him:

1. Jeremiah Hart, of Saratoga County, State of New York, b. circa 1750; m. Abigail Purcell (nee Macomber), and had five sons and three daughters—1. John, 2. Stephen, 3. Reuben, 4. Philip, 5. Jeremiah, 1. Hannah, 2. Sarah, 3. Phebe. He died at Stillwater, Saratoga county, N.Y., about 1825.

2. Philip: the fourth son of Jeremiah; b. about 1775; m. Anna, dau. of Joseph Seeley and —— Millard, and had five sons and four daughters—1. Philip, 2. Theodorus, 3. Henry, 4. Lorenzo D., 5. Reuben B., 1. Maria, 2. Abby, 3. Amy, 4. Sarah-Anne. He d. at Pine Island, in Minesota, about 1860.

3. Theodorus: his second son; b. 5 Aug., 1809; m. Eliza, dau. of Sylvester Ruland and Rebecca Lobdell, on the 30 Mar., 1821, and had four children—1. Alonzo, 2. Theodorus,

* Jeremiah: This is another name for the Irish Dermot.

3. Adelia, 4. Marion - Ellen—all living in 1883.

4. Theodorus Hart, jun., of Pittston, Pennsylvania, U.S.A.: second son of Theodorus; born 10 Sept., 1847; and living in 1883;

m. Rebecca (b. 11 June, 1849), dau. of William Dymond and Malvina (Slocum) Eyet, and has had in 1883 one child—Mary-Lawson-Dymond, b. 13 July, 1875.

78.—THE "HAWKINS" FAMILY,

Of Wisconsin, United States, America.

THE first names of this family that we have met with are those of John Hawkins and Joseph Hawkins,* who (See the list of "The Forty-Nine Officers" in the Appendix) served Charles I., or Charles II., in the Wars of Ireland before the 5th day of June, 1649. We are, however, at present able to trace only the following generations of the Loughrea (co. Galway) branch of the family:

1. John Hawkins had:

2. Lawrence, who m. a dau. of Dominick Joyce, Esq., and had:

3. S. N. Hawkins, of New Richmond in Wisconsin, United States, America, living in 1883.

79.—THE "HEALY" FAMILY,

Chiefs of Pobal O'Healy, in the County Cork.

ASADHMUN, a son of Fergus Mor who is No. 64 on the "O'Farrell" pedigree, was the ancestor of O'h-Eilighe; anglicised O'Healy, Healy, and Hely.

64. Fergus Mor: son of Ros (known as Ros Ruadh).

65. Asadhmun: his son. Had three half brothers—1. Conmac, 2. Ciar, 3. Corc.

66. Ailsach: son of Asadhmun.

67. Oineach: his son.

68. Eoghan: his son.

69. Delbhna: his son.

Some Irish Genealogists deduce the descent of the "O'Healy" family from Cosgrach, son of Loran, King of Thomond, who was grandfather of Brian Boromhe [Boru], who is No. 105 on the "O'Brien" (of Thomond) pedigree, and who was the 175th Monarch of Ireland ; others deduce it from the "O'Haly" family, which is an anglicised form of the Irish O'h-Algaich ("algach" : Irish, noble), while O'Healy is from the Irish O'h-Eilighe, as above shown. But (see the "Hally" and "Haly" pedigrees, respectively,) the two genealogies are quite distinct, and the two families not at all descended from the same stock as "O'Healy" ; for it is the "O'Haly" family that is descended from Cosgrach, son of Loran, who is No. 103 on the "O'Brien" (of Thomond) pedigree, and the "O'Hally" family is descended from Donchuan, brother of Brian Boru, while the "O'Healy" family is descended from Fergus Mor, who is No. 64 on the "O'Farrell" pedigree. Others again say that the O'Healys of Donoughmore are a branch of the "MacCarthy Mor" family, Princes of Desmond ; but we are unable to trace that connection. It is worthy of remark, however, that the Arms assigned by Keating to the "O'Healy" family, namely—Az. a fesse between three stags' heads erased in chief ar. and a demi lion ramp. in base or., are borne by the Helys, Earls of Donoughmore : which goes to show that their name was formerly "O'Healy." The founder of the House of Donoughmore was John Hely, Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, Secretary of State for Ireland, and Keeper of the Privy Seal in 1774, who, in 1771, married Christiana, daughter of Lorenzo Nickson, Esq., of Wicklow, and grandniece and heiress of Richard Hutchinson, Esq., of Knocklofty, in the county Tipperary, whose name the said John Hely assumed. Since then the family has borne the name of Hely-Hutchinson. John Hely-Hutchinson obtained a Peerage for his wife, who took the title of "Baroness Donoughmore, of Knocklofty," the seat of the present Earl. Mr. Hely-Hutchinson was subsequently offered an Earldom, and was about to become "Earl O'Healy," when he died. The Peerage created for his wife descended, according to limitation, to their son, Richard, who, after becoming "Baron Donoughmore" by inheritance, was created Earl of Donoughmore, in December, 1800. His brother John succeeded him as Baron, and second Earl of Donoughmore ; and John, dying, was succeeded by his Nephew, John, as third Earl, who married the Hon. Margaret Gardiner, seventh daughter of Luke, first Viscount Mountjoy, by Margaret (daughter of Hector Wallis, Esq., of Dublin, and Springmount, Queen's County), mentioned in the "Wallis-Healy" Genealogy, infra, which see.

85.—THE “KELLEHER” FAMILY.

THE family of Kelleher or Keller, in Irish O'Ceileachair (“ceileach”: Irish, wise, prudent), derive their surname from Ceileachar, son of Donchuan, brother of Brian Boróimhe [Boru], the 175th Monarch of Ireland, who (see p. 103 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES,”) is No. 105 on the “O'Brien” (Kings of Thomond) pedigree. In the twelfth, and even so late as the sixteenth century, the O'Kellehers were possessed of lands in Munster; but the pedigree of the family is, we fear, lost. “Donogh O'Kelleher,” successor of St. Kieran of Saiger, i.e. Bishop of Ossory, died, A.D. 1048. The late Rev. — Kelleher, P.P. of Glanworth, county Cork, represented the senior branch of this Sept. A younger branch of the family is represented by Alderman Keller, of Cork.

* Arthur Oge: In pp. 264-265 of our “IRISH PEDIGREES,” above mentioned, the lineage is given from this Arthur Oge down to (No. 129) Sir Moroch Cavanagh, of Cloumellon, co. Carlow, living in the Commonwealth period. The descendants of this branch of the “Kavanagh” family, having been deprived of their Estates by the Cromwellian Settlement, emigrated to France in 1691, after the violation of the Treaty of Limerick.

† Dermod Lamh-dearg: This Dermod was the father of Dermod Kavanagh of St. Malins, the father of Arthur Buidhe [Boy] of St. Malins and Paulmonty, co. Carlow, temp. King Henry VIII. From that Arthur Buidhe the Kavanaghs of Borris, co. Carlow, are descended.

86.—THE “KELLY” (OF WICKLOW) FAMILY,

Chiefs of Hy-Maile.

ACCORDING to MacFirbis,* Main Mal, a younger brother of Cathair Mor, Monarch of Ireland in the second century, and who is No. 89 on the “O’Connor” (Faley) pedigree, was the ancestor of O’Ceallaigh, of Cualan.*

89. Main Mal: son of Felim Fíorurglas; a quo Hy-Maile of the Glen of “Imaile,” in the county Wicklow.

90. Tuathal Tigheach: his eldest son.

91. Fergus Forcraidh: his son.

92. Aengus Ailce: his son.

93. Etersceol: his son.

94. Carthann Muadh: his son.

95. Seanach Diodhach: his son.

96. Aodh Dubhcean: his son.

97. Ronan Cruaic: his son; by some authorities reckoned as King of Leinster.

98. Diocolla Dana: his son.

99. Gertighe: his son; living A.D. 702.

100. Ceallach Cualain (“ceallach: Irish, strife): his son; a quo O’Ceallaigh, of Cualan. Had a brother namad Fiannamhail, who was Abbot of Clonard.

101. Etersceol: son of Ceallach Cualan; slain, 721. Had seven brothers and two sisters: the brothers were—1. Crimthan (slain, 721), King of Leinster, who had Tuathal, who had Fiacra; 2. Comgan of Turrieff, North Britain (October 13); 3. Cobthach (d. 730); 4. Coincean (d. 739); 5. Aedh (slain, 717); 6. Fiacra, and 7.

Fiannamhail—both slain A.D. 707, at Selgge, in Ferthuath Laighen. The sisters were—1. Muirean, who was wife of Irgalach, son of Conaing, and had Ceneth, the 158th Monarch of Ireland; 2. Cainteghern, who was wife of Feredach (of the Dal Fiatach of Ulster), and had Faelan (January 9) of Cluan Mesena, and Strathfellan, N. B. (see Acta Sanctorum, pp. 49-50, and MacFirbis, p. 221).

102. Ceallach: son of Etersceol. Had two sons—1. Oilill, slain, 739; 2. Cathal, also slain, 739.

103. Cathal: younger son of Ceallach.

104. Madudhan: his son.

105. Dubhdatuagh: his son.

106. Flann: his son.

107. Riaghallach: his son.

108. Madudhan: his son.

109. Clochar: his son; died, A.D. 915.

110. Tuathal: his son. Had two sons—1. Amhailgadh, 2. Aedh.

111. Amhailgadh: eldest son of Tuathal.

112. Cathal O’Ceallaigh, Prince of Ui-Cualain: his son; slain with his wife, A.D. 1034. This Cathal had a younger brother Giolla-caemgin, who was slain A.D. 1057.

* MacFirbis: According to other Authorities, Ceathramhadh, a brother of Cormac Gealtach, who is No. 87 on the “O’Connor” (Faley) pedigree, was the ancestor of “Kelly” of Cualan; and the genealogy was, as follows:

87. Ceathramhadh: son of Niadh Corb.

88. Ceallach Cualain (“ceallach”: Irish, strife): his son; a quo O’Ceallaigh, of Cualan.

89. Edirsceal: his son.

90. Ceallach: his son.

91. Cathal: his son.

92. Mothudan: his son.

93. Dubhdatuagh: his son.

94. Flann: his son.

95. Raghilleach: his son.

96. Madudhan: his son.

97. Clochar: his son.

98. Tuathal: his son.

99. Amhailgadh: his son.

100. Cathal O’Ceallaigh: his son.

87.—THE “KILROY” FAMILY,

Chiefs in the Barony of Clonderlaw, County Clare.

WHEN the county Clare, like the other parts of Ireland, was devastated under the Commonwealth Government of Ireland, to make room for the Cromwellian Settlement, the old Irish families who were dispossessed and who escaped transportation as “slaves” to the Sugar Plantations of America, had to seek homes and refuges wherever they could, for themselves and their families. It was at that unhappy juncture in the history of Ireland, in the year 1653, that, according to tradition, a son of the last Chief of this family, settled in Keenagh—one of the mountain fastnesses in the proximity of Mount Nephin, in the barony of Tyrawley, and county of Mayo; from whom the following branch of that ancient family is descended;

1. () A son of Riocard; had three sons: 1. Michael, 2. Peter, 3. Mark:

I. Michael, married and had:
1. Patrick; 2. Mary, who m. and had a family.

I. This Patrick married and had: 1. Peter, 2. Edward.

I. This Peter, m. and had:
1. Thomas; 2. Patrick—both these sons living in Keenagh, in August, 1871.

II. Edward: the second son of Patrick, son of Michael, had a son named Peter—also living in Keenagh, in August, 1871.

II. Peter, the second son of No. 1; m. and had Bridget, who m. and had a family.

III. Mark, the third son of No. 1, of whom presently.

2. Mark: the third son of No. 1; m. and had: 1. Peter; 2. Bridget.

I. This Peter, of whom presently.

I. Bridget, m. — Gill, of Glenhest, also in the vicinity of Glen Nephin, and had:

I. Denis Gill (living in 1871), who m. Anne Hagerty (also living in 1871), and had issue.

3. Peter: son of Mark; m. Mary Geraghty, of Kinnaird, in the parish of Crossmolina, and had surviving issue four daughters: 1. Norah;

2. Mary; 3. Bridget; 4. Margaret:

I. This Norah, of whom presently.

II. Mary, who married Michael Geraghty (or Garrett), of Kinnaird, above mentioned, and had: 1. Michael, who m., and emigrated to America in 1847.

2. Patrick, of Kinnaird, who m. Mary Sheridan, and had issue; this Patrick and his family emigrated to America, in the Spring of 1883. 3. John, who emigrated to America with his brother Michael, in 1847.

4. A daughter, who d. unm.

5. Mary, who m. Michael Gilboy, and had issue.

III. Bridget, who was the second wife of Patrick Walsh of Cloonagh, in the parish of Moygownagh, in the said barony of Tyrawley, and had: 1. Margaret, who m. Thomas Fuery, and with him emigrated to America. 2. Walter, who also emigrated to the New World.

IV. Margaret, who m. Thomas Regan, of Moygownagh, above mentioned, and had two children—1. Mary, 2. Patrick: 1. This Mary (d. 1881), m. John (living in 1883), eldest son of Martin Hart, of Glenhest, and had issue. 2. Patrick, who d. young.

4. Norah Kilroy: eldest daughter of Peter; m. John O'Hart, and (See No. 124 on the "O'Hart" genealogy, p. 194 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") had :

I. Michael ; II. Michael : both of whom d. in infancy.

III. Rev. Anthony, a Catholic Priest, of the diocese of Killala, who d. 7th Mar. 1830.

IV. Mary, who d. unm. in 1831.

V. Anne (d. 1841), who m. James Fox (d. 1881), of Crossmolina, and had : 1. Mary, (living in 1882), who m. J. Sexton, of Rockfort, Illinois, U.S.A., and had issue ; 2. Anne, who d. unm.

VI. Bridget (living in 1881), who m. John Keane, of Cloonglasna, near Ballina, Mayo, and had issue—now (1883) in America.

VII. Patrick (d. in America, 1849), who married Bridget Mannion (d. 1849), and had two children, who d. in infancy.

VIII. Catherine (d. in Liverpool, 1852), who m. John Divers, and had : 1. Patrick, 2. John.

IX. John, of whom presently.

X. Martin, who d. in infancy.

5. John O'Hart (living in 1883), of Ringsend, Dublin : son of said Norah Kilroy ; who (see No. 125 on the "O'Hart" pedigree) m. Eliza Burnet (living in 1883), on the 25th May, 1845, and had : 1. Fanny ; 2. Patrick ; 3. Mary ; 4. Margaret ; 5. Eliza ; 6. Nanny ; 7. John-Anthony (d. in infancy) ; 8. Louisa ; 9. Hannah ; 10. Francis-Joseph, who d. in infancy.

6. Patrick Andrew O'Hart, of Dublin : son of John ; living in 1883.

A Branch of

88.—THE "KIRWAN" FAMILY, (No. 1),

Of Galway.

ANDREW KIROVANE, of Galway, gent., had :

I. Nicholas.

II. John.

III. Robuck.

I. Joan.

II. Agnes.

III. Margaret.

4. Nicholas Kirwan : son of Robert.

* Martin : The study of the origin of Family Arms has often interested us. Richard Martin (of Ballinahinch, in Connemara), M.P. for the county of Galway, the author of the Act of Parliament for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, popularly known as "Martin's Act" ; and his son Thomas Martin, M.P. for said county, used to state that the origin of the Arms borne by their family, was as follows :

In days when the various Irish septs, if they had no common enemy to oppose, were ever engaged in fighting among themselves, the Martins and the O'Flaherties were thus amusing themselves. The O'Flaherties advanced against the Martins in such force, that the utter extirpation of the latter family must have necessarily followed upon their defeat. The fateful encounter of the opposing parties took place on a Good Friday, and after a fearful struggle the Martins proved victorious, and were enabled to return home safely for the celebration of Easter. In grateful commemoration of this signal deliverance from "ye bloodie O'Flaherties," they (the Martins) adopted thenceforward for the family Arms a Calvary Cross, etc. ; with the Motto : Auxilium meum a Domino.

Another Branch of

89.—THE “KIRWAN” FAMILY, (No. 2),

Of Galway.

THOMAS KEOGH KIRWAN, of Galway, had :

III. Katherine.

90.—THE “KERSHAW” FAMILY,

Of South Carolina, U.S.A.

BLAKE, of the county Galway, Ireland, married Miss Eyre,* a sister of Colonel Eyre, of the British Army, A.D. 1798; emigrated to America; settled in Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, America; and had, with three other children :

2. Frances, who was twice m.: first to — Ramage; and, secondly, to — Swallow, of Philadelphia, by whom she had two daughters—1. Mary, of whom presently; 2. Margaret, who m. Colonel Stisted, of the United States Army, and had three daughters.

3. Mary Swallow: the elder daughter of Frances by her second marriage to Mr. Swallow. Was twice m.: first, to Charles Kershaw, of Charleston, Carolina, by whom she had two sons—1. Newman, of whom presently; 2. Charles. She was secondly mar. to Francis

Rosalind Swallow, and by him had :

1. William, b. 1819, d. 1823; 2. Thomas, who had a dau., m. to — Turnbull; 3. Anne, who was twice m., first to James Heyward Claiborne of Charleston, S. Ca., and secondly to E. H. Mathews of Mississippi, but by either marriage left no issue.

4. Newman: elder son of Mary and Charles Kershaw, of Charleston.

5. Rev. Henry Kershaw, of Baltimore, living in 1883: son of Newman; m. Adeline, dau. of Bishop Clagget.

* Eyre: In a work entitled Coleccion de los Viages y de Culrimientos (Madrid: In los Imprensa Real, y los año de 1825), Vol. II., p. 19, Doctor O'Callaghan found a List of the Crew of the “Pinta,” one of the vessels that accompanied the “Sancta Maria”—the vessel in which Christopher Columbus sailed on the voyage when he discovered America. Among other names on that List appears that of “Guillermo Ires” (anglicised William Eyre or Eyres), “a native of Galway.” This discovery by Dr. O'Callaghan would imply that the “Eyre” family, or members of it, were located in the county Galway before the Cromwellian period.

91.—THE “KNOLLES” FAMILY,

Of Oatlands, Kinsale, County Cork.

THIS family was originally “Knowles,” and is considered as of the family of Knollys, in England. In the Commonwealth period Thomas Knowles, of Killeighy and Knockabowlea, in the county Cork, who settled in Ireland at that period, married Dorothy, eldest daughter of Giles Busted, Esq., of Mount Long, in said county. From that Thomas Knowles the descent was, as follows :

1. Thomas Knowles, m. Dorothy Busted, and had :

I. Thomas Knolles, of whom presently.

I. Elizabeth, who m. in 1684, Wallis Warren, Esq.

II. Gerard (d. 1597), who m. Lucy, the widow of Albany Fetherston (d. 1596).

4. Sir Richard (b. 1530; d. 1607): son of Sir Hugh; m. Frances Middleton, and had :

I. Sir Christopher, of whom presently.

II. Sir Gerard* (b. 1561; d. s.p. 1624), Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in Ireland, who was the second husband of Grace Bellingham. This Sir Gerard's second wife was Ann Bulmer, and his third wife was Anne, dau. of Sir Laurence Parsons, an ancestor of the present Earls of Rosse (see the "Parsons" pedigree). To the said Anne Lowther's nephew, namely, Lowther Parsons, the said Sir Gerard Lowther bequeathed his Manor of St. John's, co. Wexford.

III. Sir Launcelot, of the county Kildare, one of the Barons of the Exchequer in Ireland.

IV. William, of Ingleton, in Yorkshire, England, from whom the Lowthers of Skrine Abbey, in the county Meath, Ireland, are descended.

V. Captain Hugh mar. — widow of Boroughs, who d. 1628.

I. Frances Lowther (b. 1578), who m. 10 Mar., 1594, Thomas Cliborn (b. 1580), who is No. 13 on the "Cleburne" pedigree (of St. John's Manor, county Wexford).

5. Sir Christopher, who m. Elenor

* Gerard: According to Burke's Peerage, and Foster's Yorkshire Pedigrees, the first wife of Sir Gerard Lowther, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas in Ireland, was Anne Welbury, widow (dau. and co-heir of Sir Ralph Bulmer); the second wife, Anne Parsons; and the third wife, Margaret, dau. of Sir John King. But this Sir Gerard is perhaps by them mistaken for the Sir Gerard (d. 1660), who was also a Judge in Ireland, and who was a natural son of Sir Christopher, who is No. 14 on the "Lowther" pedigree, mentioned at foot of this Genealogy.

Musgrave (d. 1603), and, with other children, had: (Sir Gerard Lowther, a Judge in Ireland, a natural son).

99.—THE “LYNCH” FAMILY,

Of Thomond.

AONGUS, a brother of Eochaidh Ball-dearg who (see the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES”) is No. 94 on the “O’Brien” (Princes of Thomond) pedigree, was the ancestor of this branch of that family. The family derives its name from Longseach (“longseach”: Irish, a mariner), a descendant of that Aongus ; and were after him called O’Loingsigh, or, anglicè, O’Lynch, and Lynch. They were lords of Owny-Tir, a territory on the border of the county Tipperary ; and are mentioned by O’Heerin as follows :

“The O’Lynches, estated chiefs,
Inhabit the wood in front of the Foreigners.”

It would appear that the “O’Lynches’ Country” was that portion of territory lying around Castleconnell, in the barony of Owny and Ara, with portion of the lands comprised in the county of the city of Limerick. The “Foreigners” here alluded to were the English.

101.—THE “MACANASPIE” FAMILY.

THIS surname is derived from Giolla-Easbuig (“giolla”: Irish, the devoted of; “easbog,” gen. “easbuig,” a bishop; Lat. “episcop-us”), who (see p. 360 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES”) is No. 102 on the “O’Hagan” (Lords of Tullaghoge) genealogy ; as are also the surnames: McGillanaspick, McAnespick, McAnespie, McAnaspie, Gillaspy, Gillaspie, Gillespy, Gillespie, Gillesbie, etc. We are, however, unable to give the pedigree of the family.

102.—THE “MACANY” FAMILY,

Of Carragh, Queen's County.

JOHN MACANY, of Carragh, Queen's County, gent., had :

2. William, of Ballyneskeagh, co. Meath, Esq., who d. 21 March, 1636. He m., first, Mary dau. of Francis Agard and widow of Henry Moore, elder brother of Gerald, Viscount Drogheda (d. 1627), and had :

“MacCoughlan now deserts his lime-white towers.”

Roman Vision.

According to some genealogists, the MacCoughlans derive their descent and surname from Coughlan, son of Flatile, of the race of Cormac Cas ; as we are informed by O'Clery in his dedication of the Reim-Rioghraidhe (or succession of Irish Kings) to Torlogh MacCoughlan, Chief of his name, in the second quarter of the seventeenth century.—See “Coughlan,” at p. 79 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES,” which is taken from the Linea Antiqua.

In 1498, Cormac MacCoghlan, son of Eoghan, son of the Bishop, an official, of Clonmacnoise died; and in 1533, Cormac MacCoghlan, lord of Delvin (i.e. of Clan Conor), and Cahir MacCoghlan, died in 1585, John, son of Art, son of Cormac, Lord of Delvin, attended Perrott's Parliament; he died in 1590, and was succeeded by his son, John Oge. This John Oge, who is the last chief of the sept mentioned by the Four Masters entered into an alliance, offensive and defensive, with Hugh O'Neill, Prince of Ulster, in 1598. His son Torlogh was lord of Delvin, in 1620. In 1622, Mathew de Renzie* obtained a grant of 1,000 acres of the forfeited estates of the MacCoghlan, on the condition that he should not take the name or title of O'Rourke, O'Mulloy, Fox, MacCoghlan, or O'Doyne, "nor receive, nor pay any Irish rent, taxes, or services, nor divide his land according to the Irish custom of gavelkind." Sir Arthur Blundell, had also a grant of a large portion of the MacCoghlan estates; and several burgesses of Banagher obtained districts or cantreds.

The Rev. Charles MacCoghlan, vicar-general of Leighlin, John MacCoghlan, of Garrycastle, Terence MacCoghlan, of same place, and Teige MacCoghlan, of Kilcolgan Castle, were the representatives of the borough of Banagher in James's Parliament.

In 1790, Thomas MacCoghlan, the last independent representative of this once illustrious family died, leaving no legitimate male representative to inherit his name. None of his descendants were suffered by the "Ma"† [Maw] to use the prefix Mac, or to claim any relationship with himself. His great estates passed at his decease to the Right Hon. Denis Bowes Daly, who likewise had no children, and who shortly before his death, in 1821, sold the MacCoghlan Estates to divers persons; the chief purchaser being Thomas Bernard, Esq., M.P. The last MacCoghlan represented the King's County in several Parliaments.

104.—THE "MACCUOLAHAN"† FAMILY, Of Banagher.

IN p. 184 of "Tribes and Customs of Hy-Many" is a pedigree of this family:

* De Renzie: Mathew de Renzie died on the 29th August, 1634; as appears by the following epitaph, copied from the tomb of the family, in the Church of Athlone:—"This monument was erected by the Right Worshipful Mathew de Renzie, Knight, who departed this life, August 29th, 1634, aged 57 years. Born at Cullen, in Germany, and descended from the family, and renowned warrior, George Castriot, alias Seanderberg, who in the Christian wars fought 52 battles, with great conquest and honour, against the Turks. He was a great traveller and general linguist, and kept correspondence with most nations, in many weighty affairs, and in three years gave great perfection to this nation, by composing a Grammar, Dictionary, and Chronicles in the Irish tongue; in Accounts most expert, and exceeding all others in his great applause. This work was accomplished by Mathew De Renzie, his son, August 29th., 1635."

† Ma: This was a title by which The MacCoghlan was then generally known.

‡ MacCuolahan: In p. 183 of the "Tribes and Customs of Hy-Many," the MacUallachains and O'Uallachains are mentioned as of the same family.

1. Carroll MacCuolahan, had :
2. Donogh Keogh MacCuolahan (living in 1602), who had :
3. Brian, who had :
4. Hugh, who had :
5. Hugh (d. 1667), who had :
6. Hugh (d. 1686), who had :

7. Daniel, a Lieutenant in the service of James II., who had :
8. Doctor John (d. 1761), who became a Protestant, and who had :
9. Hugh, who had :
10. Daniel* (d. 1841), who had :
11. Henry, b. 1817; living in 1843.

Motto : "Snadh na Sean."

105.—THE "MACDERMOTT" FAMILY,

Of Carig, County Roscommon.

RORY KEOGH MACDERMOTT had :

2. Rory, who had :
3. Teige, who had :
4. Rory, who had :
5. Bryan, who had :
6. Bryan, of Carig, co. Roscommon, Esq., who d. 8 Jan, 1636. He m. Margaret, dau. of Richard Bourke, of DerrymacLaghny, co. Galway, Esq., and had :

I. Tirlogh, of whom presently.

II. Connor, s.p.

III. Brian.

IV. Teige.

7. Tirlogh: the eldest son of Bryan; m. twice: his first wife was Margaret, dau. of Feagh Burke MacDavy. His second wife was Ellenor, dau. of William Molloy, of Croghan, co. Roscommon, Esq. But in F. S. 27 it does not appear that by either marriage there was any issue.

106.—THE "MACENIRY" FAMILY,

Lords of Connello, County Limerick.

ACCORDING to the Genealogical Tables compiled by Dr. O'Donovan from the Book of Leacan, and O'Cleary's and MacFirbis's Genealogies, this ancient family is descended from Sedna the fourth son of Cairbre Aedhbha (ancestor of O'Donovan), the tenth in descent from Olioll Olum, King of Munster, who died A.D. 234. The surname in Irish is MacIneirghe.†

* This Daniel Cnolahan, who d. in 1841, m. Frances Antisel, of Arbour Hill, co. Tipperary, and by her had issue—Hugh (d. s.p. in 1828, and Henry, living in 1843.

† MacIneirghe: This surname ("eirghe:" Irish, a rising) is distinct from O'h-Ainnerraidh or O'h-Ainnearaigh ("an:" Irish, the definite article; "nearach," lucky, happy), chiefs of Cuilleanntrach, and a quo O'h-Inneirghe, anglicised O'Henery and MacHenery; and has been variously rendered as follows: MacInneirghe [Innery], MacAneiridh, MacAngheire, MacEneiry, MacEneiry, MacEniry (which now obtains in the family). MacEnrigh, MacIndereighe, MacInnerigh, McEndrie, McEnery, McEnnery, and McKynery; and in France, Mannery. From the spelling and pronunciation of "MacIneirghe" we are satisfied that it is the surname from which Irwin, Irvine, Irving, MacNair, MacNeir, MacNeary, and Neary are derived. It was therefore our mistake to derive any of these surnames from O'Conaire or MacConaire.

The territory of the MacEniryys originally formed part of that of the Ui-Cairbre Aedhbha, and at one time extended from the river Maig to Abbey Feale on the borders of Kerry. It subsequently comprised that portion of the barony of Upper Connello formerly called Corca-Muichet, now the parish of Corcomohid, or Castletown MacEniry.

Up to the period of the Cromwellian Settlement of Ireland, the MacEniryys held considerable estates in the county of Limerick.

There are numerous references to members of this family in the Annals of the Four Masters and other authentic records :

Kenneth MacEniry, King of Conallo, slain in battle, A.D. 1029.

MacAngheiree, lord of Conaille (Connello), slain at the battle of Fermoy, near Thurles, A.D. 1081.

MacEneiry, erected a castle in Kilmoodan (Castletown MacEniry) in 1349.

William Oge McKynery of Ballyaudley, co. Limerick, an adherent of Desmond, slain at Aherb, 7th August, 1585.

John McEniry of Castletown McEniry, co. Limerick, "chief of his nation"; Gerald McEniry, his cousin and Shane McThomas McEniry, of Kilmore, co. Limerick, his brother-in-law, surrendered the lands possessed by them and their ancestors for 200 years in Cork and Limerick; receiving a re-grant thereof from the Crown, A.D. 1607.

Connor McEnurey, Petitioner in "Court of Claims" (1666), under a decree to his father (a transplanter) at Athlone, in 1656.

Symon MacEniry, forfeited (1641) the lands of Castletown, &c., in Connelloe, co. Limerick; and in the same year John McEneery, Donagh MacEniry, Mortogh MacEniry, and Andrew MacEniry, Garret and Bryan McEniry, and Thomas McWilliam McEniry also forfeited estates in the same county.

Antoine Macenery, Lt.-Colonel of Dillon's regiment, Irish Brigade, in the service of France, in 1696.

Arthur Macenery, Brigadier General in the French army, in 1748-61.

Dons Malachias and Juan MacEniry, Lieutenants in the regiment of Ultonia, in the Spanish service, in 1718.

The following is the pedigree of a branch of this ancient family :

1. McEneiry of Castletown, co. Limerick.

2. Thomas : his son ; born circa 1672 ; will dated 1745.

3. Philip : his son ; will dated 1752. Had two sisters, one named Bridget ; and two brothers—John and Thomas.

4. Thomas : his son, died in 1807 ; will dated 1807. Had a brother John and two sisters, m. ; the youngest, Elinor, d. in 1826.

5. Thomas : his son ; a merchant in Dublin ; d. 1852 ; will dated 1852. Had a brother Francis, who

d. young ; and two sisters, m.—Anne (d. 1812), and Elizabeth (d. 1861).

6. Lieutenant Henry - Francis MacEniry : son of Thomas ; d. 1873, leaving issue, a son Thomas ; had five brothers and five sisters. The elder brothers were : 1. Thomas, who d. young ; 2. Charles-James, who died in 1822. The younger brothers were : 1. Major Robert-John, living in 1883 ; 2. George, who d. young ; 3. Edmund Paul, who died in 1872, leaving issue a dau., Mary Marcella, living in 1883.

The sisters were: 1. Margaret; 2. Anne; 3. Mary, who all died young; 4. Elizabeth-Anne, who was married, and who d. in 1878, s.p.; 5. Harriette-Susanna, married, d. in 1854, leaving issue, Frederick Thomas Goold, living in 1883.

7. Thomas Robert MacEniry: son of Henry-Francis, living in 1883.

107.—THE “MACGRATH” FAMILY,

Of Ballynagilty, County Waterford.

PHILIP MACGRATH, of Ballynagilty, co. Waterford, Chief of the Clan of Sleveguor, had:

2. Donal, who had:
3. Philip, who had:
4. John MacGrath, of Ballynagilty, gent., who died 4 May, 1639.

He m. Eleanor, dau. of James Butler, of Derryloskan, county Tipperary, and had one son and three daughters:

- I. Philip.
- II. Ellen. III. Anne. III. Margaret.
5. Philip MacGrath: son of John.

108.—THE “MACGRATH” FAMILY,

Chiefs in the County Waterford.

CRAITH, brother of Roger, who is No. 117 on the “O’Sullivan Mor” pedigree, was the ancestor of MacCraith; anglicised and modernized MacGrath, McGrath, Magrath, MacCrae, Macrae, and Creeth.

117. Craith (“craith”: Irish, to weave): son of Dunlong; a quo MacCraith, implying “the son of the weaver.”

118. Donall MacCraith: his son.
119. Conor: his son.
120. Owen: his son.
121. Buadhach: his son.
122. Dermod: his son.
123. Conor (2): his son.
124. Owen MacGrath: his son.

125. Thomas McGrath, of Glenaboy, Tallow, co. Waterford: his son. Had by his wife five children of whom three were sons, namely—

1. Edward, 2. Daniel, 3. Thomas.
126. Daniel, of Lismore,* co. Waterford: second son of Thomas; b. 21st January, 1751; d. in Montreal, Canada, in 1860—at the advanced age of 109 years. This Daniel married Ellen, dau. of

* Daniel of Lismore: The marriage of this Daniel with his wife Ellen (b. 1772) was the first union of the Clanaboy McGraths with those of Clanabawn. Instances of the large stature of many of the ancient Irish families are recorded. It may be mentioned that this family was particularly remarkable in that regard; for, not only was this Daniel McGrath a tall, strong, and handsome man, but his wife was a tall, handsome and majestic woman; they certainly were noble specimens of the ancient Irish race.

Thomas McGrath,* of Ardagh, near Youghal, co. Cork, and by her had four sons and twelve daughters : one of the sons died young, the others grew up and were married, viz. :—Alderman Thomas McGrath, of Montreal (who d. in 1864); Denis McGrath, of New York, U.S. (who d. in 1846); and Daniel, who is No. 127 on this Stem. Ellen, a dau. of Denis McGrath here mentioned, and niece of Thomas Murphy, Esq., of New York, was (in 1880) the wife of Terence Murtagh of that city.

127. Daniel McGrath, of Lachine, Province of Quebec, Canada : son of Daniel ; living in 1880, "a childless widower."

109.—THE "MACHALE" FAMILY,

Of Tubbernavine, Parish of Adlargoole, County of Mayo.

IN "The Life and Times of the Most Rev. John MacHale, Archbishop of Tuam" (Dublin : Gill and Son. 1882), the Very Rev. Canon Ulick J. Bourke, the worthy Author of that Volume, expresses the opinion that the surname MacHale, as borne by Archbishop MacHale's family, is derived from Clanheil, which is of Welsh origin, and a quo the surnames Hoel, Howell, etc. In p. 288 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES" we derive that family name from another source ; but we may be wrong, and hence, in deference to the opinion of Canon Bourke, we take this the earliest opportunity of referring to the subject. It is worthy of remark, however, that some of the Archbishop's ancestors spelled their name MacCail, while his father and grandfather spelled it MacKeal ; and that in the Book of Survey and Distribution for the barony of Tyrawley and county of Mayo (Extracts from which see in the Appendix) the Clan Keale are entered as proprietors, in 1641, of Cuming and Ballymacramagh, in the parish of Adlargoole, where the Archbishop's immediate ancestors resided. The Cail and Keal portion of the name so closely resembling in sound the Keale in Clan Keale, is also worthy of notice ; as is the fact that it was from Mathew Hale, an eminent Englishman in his day, and in no way related to the Archbishop's family, that Doctor MacHale assumed the Hale portion of his name, and ceased to write it MacKeal.

In the same Book of Survey and Distribution, under the parish of Leckan, and said barony of Tyrawley, appears the name "Moyler MacHele," of Beanindicker, whose landed property was also confiscated under the Cromwellian settlement of Ireland.

The following is the descent from Seamus (or James) MacCail, one

* Thomas McGrath : This Thomas was descended from the Ulster M'Graths of Clanaboy, who were of the race of Clan Colla ; and who as late as the 17th and 18th centuries were men of influence in the county Waterford. He had by his wife Ellen (dau. of — Ahern of Shanakill, county Waterford) six children, of whom two were sons, viz. :—1. Parson Denis M'Grath, near Dundalk ; 2. Thomas McGrath, of Kilcalf, county Waterford. The Rev. Denis M'Grath here mentioned married a dau. of General McNeill, and by her had one dau., and two sons—1. Thomas Magrath, who was mar. to a dau. of the late Judge Lefroy, and 2. James Magrath : these two sons were for many years members of the East India Company, and the latter (James) was the owner of a large estate near Liverpool, England, on which he resided in 1836.

of Archbishop Mac Hale's ancestors : without saying whether that James was or was not descended from the "MacDonnell" (of Mayo) family, as we give it in our "IRISH PEDIGREES"; or from the Clanheil :

1. Seamus (or James) MacCail, living A.D. 1641, had :

2. Searun, who had :

3. Ricard, who had :

4. James, who m. Mary MacCale, and had :

5. Maolmuire (or Myler), who d. in 1790. He married Anne Moffett (d. 1795), and had :

6. Patrick MacKeal, of Tubbernavine (or Tobar na Feiné, meaning the "Well of the Fenians"), in the parish of Adergoole, barony of Tyrawley, and county of Mayo, who d. in 1837. He was twice m. : first, to Mary Mulkieran (who d. in 1806), by whom he had six sons and three daughters ; his second wife was Catherine MacCale, by whom he had three daughters and two sons. Of the daughters by the second marriage, Catherine was m. to Thomas Higgins, of Carropadden, Solicitor, Tuam, living in 1881. (See the "Higgins" Genealogy). Patrick MacKeal had a sister named Margaret* (who died in 1816), who was m. to Patrick Sheridan, joiner and farmer, from Lagan.

7. Thomas : eldest son of the said Patrick MacKeal. Had six brothers and three sisters,—the issue of his father's first marriage : 1. Martin ; 2. Myler ; 3. Patrick ; 4. His Grace, the Most Rev. John MacHale, Archbishop of Tuam, living in 1881 ; 5. Rev. James ; 6. Edmund. The sisters were : 1. Anne, 2. Mary, 3. another Catherine, who d. young.

† The MacKenna : The following is a Translation of an Address presented by the Lord of Truagh to Hugh Roe (or Red Hugh) O'Donnell, then in his 15th year of age, on the occasion of his escape from Dublin Castle (see the Four Masters, under A.D. 1587, 1590, and 1592), when the said Red Hugh was making his way home to Tirconnell :

The Truagh Welcome.

"Shall a son of O'Donnell be cheerless and cold

While MacKenna's wide hearth has a faggot to spare ?

While O'Donnell is poor, shall MacKenna have gold ?

Or be clothed, while a limb of O'Donnell is bare ?

While sickness and hunger thy sinews assail,

Shall MacKenna, unmoved, quaff his madder of mead ?

On the haunch of a deer shall MacKenna regale,

While a Chief of Tirconnell is fainting for food ?

No ; enter my dwelling, my feast thou shalt share ;

On my pillow of rushes thy head shall recline ;

And bold is the heart and the hand that will dare

To harm but one hair of a ringlet of thine.

Then come to my home, 'tis the home of a friend,

In the green woods of Truagh thou art safe from thy foes :

Six sons of MacKenna thy steps shall attend,

And their six sheathless skeans shall protect thy repose."

Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 85 on the "O'Hart" genealogy. But, up to going to press with this Work, we have not met with the genealogy of the family down to the Chief of Truagh, who, with five young sons, was murdered by Cromwell's soldiers, after sacking the place and setting it on fire. One of the Chief's sons, who was then a child at fosterage up in the mountains, escaped the massacre, and was afterwards THE MACKENNA (commonly called the "Major"), who in March, 1689, was killed defending the Fort of Drumbanagher, near Glaslough, for King James II.; and who was buried in the family grave in Donogh, parish of Donogh, county of Monaghan, and diocese of Clogher.

122. Daibhidh Mor : his son ; a quo MacDaibhidh Mor, anglicised MacDavid-Mor, MacDamore, David- son, Davis, Davison, Daws, Dawson, Davy, and Davys. Had a brother Richard. The descent from this Daibhidh (or David) Mor MacMorough is carried down four generations more on the "Davidson" genealogy, in the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," namely down to Patrick MacDavid† Mor.

123. Bhadhach ("badhach" : Irish, loving, famous) MacMorough : son of Richard ; a quo MacVaddock, in Irish MacBhadhaigh. In English this Bhadhach's name was written "Bhaday." The patrimony of this family was about Gorey, county Wexford.

Of this Sept was Teige Mac Vaddock, who was living temp. King Henry VIII. ; and whose son Donal McVaddock and Teige obtained a pardon on 20th Nov. 6 Edward VI., A.D. 1552. Thomas MacVaddock who was chief of the Sept, A.D. 1641, married Grany, dau. of Dowling Kavanagh of the co. Carlow. The name "MacVaddock" has been latterly corrupted into Wadeck.

116.—THE "MADDEN" FAMILY,

Of Longford, County Galway.

CAHALL O'MADDEN, of Longford, alias Derrylewny, in the co. Galway, Prince of his Tribe, had :

2. Donogh, who had :

3. Farragh, who had :

4. Brazill, who had :

5. Daniel, who had :

6. John, of Longford, co. Galway, gent. ; who d. 5. Feb., 1639, and was bur. in Kilnemoholg. He m. Fenola, dau. of Connor O'Horan, of Faha, co. Galway, Prince of his Tribe, and had two sons and one daughter.

I. Daniel.

II. Melagblin.

I. Anabella, who m. Daniel O'Madden, of Boluske, Galway, gent.

7. Daniel O'Madden : son of John ; m. Evelyn, dau. of Kyras Tully, of Gorbally, co. Galway, Esq.

* Donoch : Some members of the "O'Murphy" family are of opinion that this Donoch Dubh MacMorough was the ancestor of their family ; but (see the "Murphy" genealogy, in pp. 321-323 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES,) we must go nine generations farther back than Donoch Dubh MacMorough, for the ancestor of the "O'Murphy" family.

† MacDavid : The patrimony of the "MacDavid Mor" family lay about Glas-carrig, co. Wexford, and is now known as the Macnamores. Redmond MacDavid Mor was the chief of this sept. A.D. 1611.

117.—THE “MADDEN” FAMILY, Of Balbriggan, County Dublin.

THIS, according to Dr. O'Donovan, is a branch of the “Madden” (of Hy-Maine) family :

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Hugh Madden, of Bloxham, Beauchamp, gent., had : | Dean of Kilmore, D.D., who d. 1751, and who had : |

| 3. John, of Bloxham, who had : | 9. John Eles Madden, Dublin, who d. 1817, and who had : |
| 4. Thomas, of Baggotsrath, and who d. 1640. Had a brother, Robert,* and a son : | 10. John Madden, of Inch House, Balbriggan, co. Dublin, who d. 1833, and who had : |
| 5. John, of Maddentown, who d. 1661. He had : | 11. John Travers Madden, of Inch House, Balbriggan ; living in 1843. |
| 6. John, of Dublin, M.D., who d. 1703, and who had : | |
| 7. Very Rev. John† Madden, | |

118.—THE “MEEHAN” FAMILY.

THIS is a County Leitrim family ; and is the anglicised form of O'Maoithain (“maoth” : Irish, tender) and of O'Miadhachain (“miadhach” : Irish, noble, honourable), two ancient families of that county, but of different descent. The latter family was anglicised O'Mehegan, as well as O'Meehan ; but the pedigree of either family is not forthcoming.

119.—THE “MOONEY” FAMILY, Of Ringstown, County Meath.

- | | |
|--|--|
| WILLIAM MOONEY, had : | 5. Thomas Mooney, of Garishe, co. Meath, who d. unm. 30 May, 1638. |
| 2. Daniel, who had : | |
| 3. James, who had : | |
| 4. William, of Ringstown, co. Meath, who had : | |

* Robert : This Robert Madden, of Donore, co. Dublin, who d. 1635, was father of Jane Madden, the mother of Robert Goldsmith, father of Rev. Charles Goldsmith, the father of Oliver Goldsmith, M.D., who was born at Auburn, in the co. Westmeath (as proved by an entry on the fly-leaf of his father's Bible, dated the 29th of November, 1728), and d. in London on the 4th of April, 1774. This was the celebrated Oliver Goldsmith whose statue is in front of Trinity College, Dublin.

† John : This Very Rev. John Madden had an elder brother, Rev. Samuel Madden, commonly called “Premium Madden,” who d. in 1763, and who was the father of John Madden (d. 1791), the father of Samuel Madden (d. 1814), the father of Colonel John Madden, of Hilton, who was living in the year 1843, and was then the Head of this branch of the “Madden” family.

‡ Samuel : This Rev. Samuel Madden, who d. in 1800, had a son, Major Charles Madden, who was the father of the Rev. Samuel Madden, Prebendary of Blackrath, co. Kilkenny, and living in 1843.

120.—THE "MOORE" FAMILY,

Of Rahinduffe, Queen's County.

MURTAGH OGE MOORE, of Rahinduffe, Queen's County, gent., had :

2. John (second son), who died Nov., 1636, and was bur. in St. Patrick's of Stradbally. He m. Margaret, dau. Connor Hickey, of Bulton, in the co. Kildare, gent., and had :

3. John (his eldest son), who m. Susan, dau. of James Hovendon, of the Queen's County, gent. Had a younger brother Peirce, who m.

Mary, dau. of Francis Edgworth, Clerk of ye Hanaper ; and he had five sisters :—1. Margaret, who m. Richard Jacob, co. Kildare, gent. ; 2. Honora, who m. Kedagh Moor, co. Tipperary, gent. ; 3. Kath., who m. John Dempsey, gent. ; 4. Grany, who m. Murtogh Dempsey, gent. ; 5. Dorothy-Owna, who m. Oliver Grace, of Kilmanham, Queen's County, gent.

121.—THE "MULVILLE" FAMILY.

COMMENCING with Owen O'Maolmichil, who (see p. 314 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES"), in 1653, was deprived of his estate by the Cromwellian Settlement, the following is the genealogy of this branch of that family :

1. Owen, of Doon Maolmichiall and Killowen, co. Clare, living in 1653, had :

2. Hugh, who had :

3. Flan, who had :

4. Lawrence, who was twice m., first, to a Miss Stackpool ; and secondly, to a daughter of O'Grady of Cooga, lords of the O'Gonnola, on the Shannon. Lawrence had :

5. Daniel O'Mulvihill, of Knockanira, co. Clare, who d. in 1820. This Daniel married a Miss Lysaght* of Ballykeale, and had five sons :

I. Charles, who d. in 1847.

II. Daniel, of Kilglassy, co. Clare, of whom presently.

III. George, who was an M.D.

IV. William, of Gort, co. Galway, M.D., who had :

I. The Rev. Urquhart Mulville, a Protestant clergyman, living in 1881, in Tramore, co. Waterford.

V. Henry Mulville, M.D.

It will be seen that the last three sons of Daniel, of Knockanira, co. Clare, were all M.D's.

6. Daniel, of Kilglassy : second son of Daniel of Knockanira ; had three sons :

I. Captain Charles Blood Mulville, of whom presently.

II. Neptune Blood Mulville, who is a merchant in the city of Sacramento, California.

III. ()

7. Captain Charles Blood Mulville ; late of the 3rd Dragoon Guards, and living in 1881 : son of Daniel, of Kilglassy ; whose daughter is m. to a Captain Trench.

* Lysaght : It is perhaps worthy of remark that Miss Lysaght's brother John was the intimate friend of Lord Edward Fitzgerald and of Lord Lisle (? Lile) ; and that George Lysaght was her first cousin. Her mother was daughter of Major Kent, of King William's Army ; and her grandmother was a Miss Moroney of Miltown-Malbay, co. Clare.

122.—THE "MURPHY" FAMILY,

Lords of Hy-Felimy, County Wexford.

COMMENCING with Murtagh, who is No. 120 on the "Murphy" pedigree, the following is the genealogy of this branch of that family:

120. Murtagh O'Morchoe,* of Tobberlimnich (now rendered "Toberlumny"), Chief of his Sept. Had A.D. 1460, a charter to entitle him to use English law over his Sept and his country; according to a Petition still preserved among the State Papers in England. This Murtagh, together with Kavanagh, Kinselagh, and Mac-Davy Mor held their lands by descent or primogeniture, according to the English Law, and not by Tanistry—which was the Irish Custom.†

121. Teige: his son.

122. Art: his son.

123. Donal Mor: his son; Chief of his sept. Was possessed of the "Wilde Orcharde" alias "Owllarde Lyah" (more recently rendered Ouleartleagh), and was "aggressed to pay yearly as Kildaris Duties for the defence of 'O'Moroghe Country,' at Michaelmas XX Kyne or X Milking, A.D. 1537." Had a brother Teige.

124. Art, of Tobberlimnich: son of Donal Mor; Chief of his Sept.

125. Donal, of Tobberlimnich: his son; Chief of his Sept.

126. Conall, of Tobberlimnich: his son; Chief of his Sept; died October, 1634, and was buried at Castle Ellis.‡ This Conall mar. Joan, dau. of Donal an Spaineach§ Kavanagh, of Clonmullen, co. Carlow, and had five sons and seven daughters: The sons were—

1. Teige, of whom presently;
2. Phelim, who d. unm. in 1634;
3. Pierce, living in 1634; 4. David (or Daniel), living in 1634; 5. Gerald, living in 1634; the daughters were:
1. Joan, who mar. James, son of Donoch O'Morchoe, of Ruanmore, gent.; 2. Ellen or Elinor, who m. Edmond O'Morchoe of Ballymacdonaghfyn, gent.; 3. Mary, who married Thomas Synnot, of Clone.
4. Ellenor, living in 1634; 5. Elizabeth, living in 1634; 6. Honor or Onora, living in 1634; 7. Margaret, who married John Rowe, of Ballybrennan. This Conall O'Morchoe had a brother named Brian, whose son Art of Ouleartleagh escaped the Cromwellian Confiscations.

127. Teige: eldest son of Conall. Succeeded his father in 1634, being then of full age; married Anne, daughter of David Redmond, of

* O'Morchoe: This surname is now rendered Murphy: See the "Murphy" Genealogy, at pp. 321-323 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES.

† Custom: This sept, however, cared but little for "English Law," as they still continued to follow their ancient laws and customs; retaining power and jurisdiction, as well as territory, for a considerable period subsequent to that date—their chiefs keeping gallowglasses (or armed soldiers) for offensive and defensive purposes, and for levying dues from their subjects. In the middle of the sixteenth century "The O'Morchoe" (Donal Mor, No. 123 on this pedigree) enforced "cain" (cain: Irish, rent, tribute, fine) due to him as Tighearna or Chief of the Sept.

‡ Castle Ellis: According to "Molynaux's Visitation of the County Wexford," preserved in the Office of Ulster King-of-Arms, Dublin Castle, this Conall O'Morchoe died in 1634, and was buried at Castle Ellis.

§ Spaineach: See No. 128 on the "Kavanagh" pedigree.

Rahin-Callengallen (or Rabinedrumgullion), gent., and had Art, of whom presently. This Teige

"was seized in fee on 23rd October, 1641, of Tobberlimnich and Tourknick: 170 acres; Garrybranagh, 182 acres; Monganbo, 111 acres; Crymure and Kilmaloney, 109 acres: Total, 572. Barony of Ballaghkeene, county Wexford. Being so siezed, he was in actual rebellion, and commanded a company of 500 Rebels, with whom he marched towards the City of Dublin, where he was slain in battle; when his lands were forfeited."—Inquisition taken at Wexford, 7th May, 1663. Anno 15 Charles II.

128. Art (or Arthur), of Ballyellen, co. Carlow: son of Teige; living in 1690; d. s.p. Had two younger brothers—1. Teige, who d. unm.; 2. Edmund, born 1693, died 16th May, 1763, and was buried in Old Leighlin churchyard, county Carlow. This Edmund had four sons.

I. David, b. 1723; d. 3rd Sept., 1777.

II. James, b. 1730; d. 12th October, 1754.

III. Daniel, b. 1740; d. 27th December, 1777.

IV. Andrew (of whom presently), b. 1741; d. 28th Sept., 1793. (As far as we can find, David, James, and Daniel, here mentioned, d. unm.)

129. Andrew, of Ballyellen: fourth son of Edmund, who was the third son of Teige; b. 1741, d. 1793, and was buried also in Old Leighlin churchyard, co. Carlow; mar. Margaret Dunn, and had five sons and one daughter:

I. Edmund, b. 1779; d. unm. 17th December, 1837.

II. James, b. 1782; d. unm. 26th December, 1857.

III. Daniel (of whom presently), b. 1785; d. 17th November, 1846.

IV. David, b. 1789; d. 8th May, 1829; m., and left two daus.

V. Michael, b. 1790; d. unm. 30th November, 1862.

I. The daughter d. young.

130. Daniel Murphy, of Ballyellen, co. Carlow, Ireland, and afterwards of Montreal, Canada: third son of Andrew; b. 1785; removed to Canada in 1824, where he resided till his death, in 1846. He mar. in 1817, Mary, dau. of Peter Byrne, of Knockullard, gent., and his wife, Diana Rudkin, of Corris, co. Carlow, and had five sons and two daus.:

I. Edward, b. in 1818 in parish of Dunleckney, co. Carlow (see No. 131 infra on this Genealogy).

II. Peter-Sarsfield, b. in Corris, co. Carlow; m. in 1851, to Jane-Amelia, dau. of Allen Perry: issue (in 1883) one son, Edward-Albert, b. 1864; and three daughters.

III. Bernard-Rudkin, b. in Corris, co. Carlow; dead.

IV. Daniel, born in Montreal, Canada, 1824; dead.

V. Patrick-Alexander, born in Montreal; unm. in 1883.

The two daughters were:

I. Margaret-Diana, born in Montreal; married in 1865, A. A. Meilleur, son of J. B. Meilleur, m.D., and LL.D., of Montreal.

II. Eliza-Anne, b. in Montreal; dead.

131. Edward Murphy, of Montreal, Canada, J.P., Knight of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre: eldest son of Daniel; b. 1818, and living in 1883. Married, first, in Jan., 1848, to Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas M'Bride, of the co. Donegal, Ireland, gent., and by her had two sons and three daughters:—I. Edward-Byrne Murphy, d.; II. Patrick-Sarsfield Murphy, d.; I. Mary, m. in 1871, to Edward C. Monk, son of the Hon. Samuel Cornwallis Monk, one of Her Majesty's Justices of Appeal for the Province of Quebec ; II. Elizabeth-Diana, a nun, in religion " Sister Mary Edward," d.; III. Emily-Hester, living in 1883. Secondly, in Feb., 1863, this Edward Murphy married Maria-Georgiana, dau. of the Hon. William Power, Judge of the superior Court of Quebec, Canada, and by her had one son and three daughters: III. William-Sarsfield Murphy, who is No. 132, infra ; IV. Grace-Maria, living in 1883 ; V. Amy-Susan, living in 1883 ; VI. Alice-Lily, d.

132. William-Sarsfield Murphy, b. 1865: eldest surviving son of Edward, of Montreal ; living in 1883.

123.—THE "MURPHY" FAMILY,

Of Ouleartleagh.

TEIGE, a brother of Donal Mor who is No. 123 on the foregoing "Murphy" pedigree, was the ancestor of this branch of that family:

123. Teige O'Morchoe, of Ouleartleagh, or "Fracht Lea," as it was sometimes called: son of Art.

124. Art: his son; obtained a pardon A.D. 1551—6 Edward VI.

125. Hugh Ballach, of Ouleartleagh and Cooleknock: son of Art.

126. Brian O'Morchoe, of Ouleart-leagh: his son. Surrendered his possessions to King James I., and, by Patent dated 6 June, 1618, got a grant of the town and lands of Ouleartleighmore, Teneberney, Ballybodagh, Cooleneboy, and Rear, all in the barony of Ballaghkeen, co. Wexford: at a Crown rent of £2 4s. 8d., per annum, English.

124.—ANOTHER BRANCH OF THE "MURPHY" FAMILY,

Of Ouleartleagh.

BRIAN, a contemporary of Conall O'Morchoe who is No. 126 on the "Murphy" (Lords of Hy-Felimy) pedigree, p. 113, was the ancestor of this branch of that family:

126. Brian: son of Hugh.

127. Art, of Ouleartleagh: his son; escaped the Cromwellian Confiscations.

128. Daniel, of Ouleartleagh: his son. Will dated 26th May, 1679; and proved 5th June, 1680. Left his Estate of Ouleartleagh, Ballinbodagh, and Tighehernie, to his eldest son; desired to be buried at Kilmolocke; "Mr. John Dalton and well-beloved cousin Edward Kavanagh of Borris (co. Carlow), to be his Executors and overseers."

The following are two extracts from this Daniel's Will:

"6thly. I leave fourtie pounds if any other children come to perfection of mine.

"9thly. I leave thirtie shillings to the Clercie (clergy) for my Soule, that is to say fifteen shillings to the Parish Priest, and the other fifteen shillings to the rest of the Clercie, as my overseers will order."

129. Arthur Morchoe, alias Murphy, of Ouleartleagh: his son; a Minor in 1680. Will dated 28th March, 1761; a codicil dated same day; Probate to his son

Thomas Murphy on 21st April, 1761; desired to be buried at Kilmolocke. Married Rebecca, dau. of Thomas Taylor, of Balcahy, co. Wexford. This Arthur had a brother George,* and two sisters—
1. Eleanor, who was bequeathed £50 by her father's Will; 2. Bridget, who in case of the death of her brother Arthur, s.p. was, according to the said Will, to have a lease of the Estate for one hundred years, at £5 per annum.

130. Thomas Murphy, of Ouleart-leagh: son of Arthur; living in 1761.

125.—THE "NETTLETON" FAMILY.

THOMAS NETTLETON, of Thornhill, in Yorkshire, England, had:

2. George (the second son), who d. 9 July, 1640.

126.—THE "NUGENT" FAMILY,

Of Carlinstown.

SIR THOMAS NUGENT, of Carlinstown, Knt., had:

II. William.

III. Jasper.

The daughters were:

I. Eliza.

II. Mary.

4. James Nugent: son of Walter.

127.—THE "O'BALDWIN" FAMILY,

Of Mount Pleasant.

COMMENCING with Walter, who (see p. 465 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 8 on the "Baldwin" genealogy, the following is a more complete pedigree of that family, than that given in that Volume:

8. Walter, son of Henry; had two sons and one daughter.

I. Henry.

II. Samuel, who m. his cousin, Kate Baldwin, and died at Bandon, co. Cork, in Dec., 1861.

The daughter was m. to Captain Stubbs.

9. Henry: son of Walter; m. Miss Gillman, of Shancloyne, near Bandon, whose sister married Sir Emmanuel Moore, Knt. This Henry d. in France, and was bur. at Templemartin. He had:

I. Henry, of whom presently.

II. Herbert.

* George: Unless this George had died s.p. before his father's Will was made; or that he died young, it appears strange that by the said Will the Estate should be leased to Bridget, in case her brother Arthur died without issue,

III. Walter.

IV. John, who died at Mount Pleasant Cottage, in 1882.

None of these last three sons left issue.

10. Henry, who d. in Australia : son of Henry. He was twice m. : first, to Eliza Corker, of Cor Castle, Innishannon, and had two sons and two daughters :

92. Blad ("bladair": Irish, to coax; Lat. "blater-o," to flatter): the eldest son of Cas; a quo O'Bladair, anglicised Blair, Flattery, and Blood (of Munster); b. 388; left four sons:—1. Carthann Fionn Oge Mor; 2. Carthann Dubh; 3. Eochaidh; 4. Brennan Ban, ancestor of O'Brennan (of Thomond), Glinn, Glynn, Maglin, Magan, Muldowney (now "Downey"), O'Hurley, etc.

93. Carthann Fionn Oge Mor: eldest son of Blad. Had two sons:

1. Eochaidh Ball-dearg; 2. Aongus, who was the progenitor of O'Curry, O'Cormacan, O'Seasnain, etc.

94. Eochaidh Ball-dearg: son of Carthann Fionn Oge Mor. Received Baptism at the hands of St. Patrick, and d. at an advanced age, leaving two sons: 1. Conall, 2. Breacan, a quo "Ibrickan," a barony in the county Clare.

95. Conall: the elder son. Died vita patris, and left issue: 1. Aodh Caomh; 2. Molua Lobhar, or St. Molua the Leper, founder of the church of Killaloe, co. Clare.

96. Aodh Caomh ("caomh": Irish, gentle; Arab. "kom," noble; Lat. "com-is"): the elder son; a quo O'Caoimh, anglicised Coombe. Was King of Cashel. Of him Lodge says: "He was the first Christian King of this family, that became King of all Munster; and his investiture with the authority and title of King of that Province was performed at his own Court, in the presence of St. Breanan of Clonfert, and of his domestic poet MacLemein, who afterwards became first bishop of Cloyne; and also by the concurrence of Aodh Dubh, son of Cricomthan, then chief representative of the Eugenic race." He had two sons: 1. Cathal; 2. Con-gall, the ancestor of O'Noonan of Thomond and South Connaught.

97. Cathal: the elder son.

98. Turlogh: his son; b. 641. Had—1. Maithan; 2. Ailgeanan, who was the ancestor of O'Meara, Scanlan and MacArthur.

100. Anluan: his son.

101. Corc: his son.

102. Lachtna: his son. Had his residence at a place called Grinan Lachtna, near Killaloe: he d. at an advanced age.

103. Lorcan (also called Fingin): his son; was King of the Dalcassians; d. 942. Had three sons:—

1. Cineidi; 2. Cosgrach, the ancestor of Cosgrave of (Munster), and O'Hogan; 3. Lonargan, a quo Lonergan; 4. Congal; 5. Bran Fionn, a quo Sliocht Braufionn, in Wexford: a sept who took the permanent surname of O'Brien, from this Bran, when surnames were introduced into Ireland.

104. Cineadh (or Cineidi), King of Thomond*: the son of Lorcan; m. Babbion, dau. of Arcadh, son of Murrough O'Flaherty, lord of Iar Connacht or West Connaught.

105. Brian† Boromhe [Boru], the 175th Monarch of Ireland: a

* Thomond: The place of inauguration of the O'Briens, as Kings and Princes of Thomond, was at Magh Adhair, a plain in the barony of Tullagh, county of Clare; and their battle-cry was Lamh Laidir An Uachtar, or "The Strong Hand Uppermost." On their armorial ensigns were three lions rampant, which were also on the standards of Brian Boromhe, borne by the Dalcassians at the battle of Clontarf. In modern times the O'Briens were Marquises of Thomond, Earls of Inchiquin, and Barons of Burren, in the county of Clare; and many of them were distinguished commanders in the Irish Brigades in the service of France, under the titles of Earls of Clare, and Counts of Thomond.

† Brian: Brian Boromhe is represented by our old annalists as a man of fine figure, large stature, of great strength of body, and undaunted valour; and has been always justly celebrated as one of the greatest of the Irish Monarchs, equally conspicuous for his mental endowments and physical energies; a man of great intellectual powers, sagacity, and bravery; a warrior and legislator; and, at the same time, distinguished for his munificence, piety, and patronage of learned men: thus combining all the elements of a great character, and equally eminent in the arts of war and peace; a hero and patriot, whose memory will always remain famous as one of the foremost younger son of Cineadh ; b. 926, at Kincora, the royal seat of his ancestors ; and fell by the hand of Brodar, the Danish admiral, at the Battle of Clontarf, on Good Friday, the 23rd April, 1014, in the 88th year of his age. This Brian ("Brian": Irish, very great strength), was the ancestor of O'Brien, Kings of Thomond. He had eleven brothers, of whom only four left issue, viz.—I. Mahoun, the eldest brother, who was King of Munster, before Brian, and a quo many families. II. Donchuan, who was the ancestor of, among other families, Eustace, O'Kennedy, O'Regan (of Thomond), O'Kelleher, O'Beollan (or "Boland"), O'Casey, Power, Twomey, etc. III. Eichtigern (a quo Ahearne, Hearne, Heron), who was ancestor of MacCraith, (or MacGrath), of Thomond, etc. IV. Anluan, who was the ancestor of Quirk, etc.

Brian Boromhe was four times m. ; his first wife was Mor (more), dau. of Flan O'Hyne, Prince of Hy-Fiachra Aidhne, in Galway, by whom he had three sons of whom Murrough, who fell at the Battle of Clontarf, was one. Brian was secondly m. to Eachraidh, dau. of Cearbhall, son of Olioll Fionn, and had : 1. Teige ;* 2. Donal, who distinguished himself at Clontarf, and was slain by the Siol Murray in a battle fought by the Dalcassians against the Conacians.

His third wife was Gormliath, the "Kormloda" of Icelandic history ; sister of Maolmora, King of Leinster : and relict of Aulaf, the Danish King of Dublin, to whom she bore the celebrated Sitric, who succeeded his father as King of the Danes of Dublin. By Gormliath Brian had Donogh, the 176th Monarch of Ireland, who was the ancestor of Plunkett, and of the O'Briens of Coonagh, in Limerick, and of Aherlow, in Tipperary ; and a daughter Sabh, who m. Cian who is No. 109 on the "O'Mahony" pedigree, by whom she had Mathgabhuin, the founder of the family of O'Mahony, in the county Cork. Brian's fourth wife was Dubhcobhla, who d. s.p. 1009 ; she was dau. of Cathal O'Connor, King of Connaught.

106. Teige: younger son of Brian Boromhe ; m. Mor, dau. of Gilla-Brighid O'Mulloy, Lord of Fircall, in the King's County. (Another authority gives Mor as being the dau. of Melaghlin, son of Maolmora the 51st Christian King of Leinster). Teige was killed in 1022 by his brother Donogh, who thus became King of Munster. Donogh was m. to Driella, dau. of Godwin, Earl of Kent, and sister of Harold II., the last Saxon King of England ; after a reign of forty-nine years Donogh abdicated in favour of :

107. Turlogh Mor (d. in 1086), of the Irish Kings, in wisdom and valour. Brian lived at his palace of (Cean Cora) (Kincora), in a style of regal splendour and magnificence, unequalled by any of the Irish Kings since the days of Cormac MacArt, the celebrated Monarch of Ireland in the third century—the glories of whose palace at Tara were for many ages the theme of the Irish bards.—CONNELLAN'S Four Masters.

Oh, where, Kincora ! is Brian the Great ?

And where is the beauty that once was thine ?

Oh ! where are the Princes and Nobles that sate

At the feast in thy halls, and drank the red wine.

Where, oh, Kincora !

* Teige : In O'Farrell's Linea Antiqua, on the "Roll of the Monarchs of Ireland," at No. 178, this Teige is mentioned as the "eldest" son of Brian Boromhe.

who was the 178th Monarch. He m. Sabh, dau. of Teige MacCarthy, who was King of Eoghanacht Caisil, by whom he had a dau. Mor, who m. * Donogh: In 1601, this Donogh O'Brien, the fourth Earl of Thomond, assisted the English against the Irish and Spaniards at Kinsale. He commanded a thousand men, chiefly English, and the defeat of the native Chiefs and Princes was owing in a great measure to the bravery which he displayed. It is stated by Carew, in the Pacata Hibernia, that Donogh had often told him that an Irish prophet, whose writings he had often read, foretold the defeat of the Irish at Kinsale; and Fynes Morison says that the Manuscript containing the said "prophecy" was shown to Mountjoy on the day of that engagement. On the 6th May, 1605, Donogh was appointed President of Munster; and Commander-in-Chief of the English forces in that Province, on the 25th of the same month, in that year. He died on the 5th of September, 1624, and was interred in the Cathedral Church of Limerick, where a handsome monument, exhibiting a Latin inscription, was erected to his memory.

I. Maria.

II. Elizabeth.

II. Mary: the second dau. of Dermod, m. His Grace, the Most Rev. Dr. Boyle, Protestant Archbishop of Armagh.

III. Anne: the third dau., d. unm.

126. Murrough-an-Toitean*: son of Dermod; d. in 1674; was the sixth Baron and the first Earl of Inchiquin; m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William St. Leger, Knt., President, of Munster, and had:

* Toitean: Murrough-an-Toitean ("toitean": Irish, a burning, or conflagration) or Murrough of the Conflagrations, was appointed President of Munster, where he is well remembered for his cruelties, and always mentioned with an imprecation; so cruel, that in Munster it is commonly said of a person who appears to be frightened: Do chonnaire se Murcadh no an tur b-fhoisge do, "He has seen Murrough or the clump next to him." This Murrough, in 1642, at the head of 1,850 foot and 400 horse, attacked the Irish under Lord Mountgarret, at Liscarroll, and defeated them with great slaughter. He sided with the Parliament, in 1644, against King Charles the First, and was by that Parliament appointed President of Munster. In 1647, he reduced several fortified places in the county of Waterford; besieged Cahir, in Tipperary, which surrendered to him; and took "Cashel of the Kings" by storm:

"The inhabitants of Cashel," says Lewis, "took refuge in their church on the rock, which was well fortified and garrisoned. Inchiquin proposed to leave them unmolested on condition of their contributing £3,000, and a month's pay for his army. This offer being rejected, he took the place by storm, with great slaughter both of soldiers and citizens: among them twenty of the clergy were involved; and, having secured the immense booty of which he obtained possession, he dispersed his forces into garrison."

Murrough an-Toitean defeated the Irish under Lord Taaffe and Sir Alexander MacDonnell (commonly called "Alastrum Mor," who was the eldest son of Sir James, of Eanagh and Ballybannagh, No. 118 on the "MacDonnell," of Antrim and the County Clare pedigree), at the Battle of Knocknanees, on the 13th of November, 1647; for which the Parliament sent him a letter of thanks, with a present of £1,000. In 1648, he reduced Nenagh, as appears by the following letter which he wrote to his friend, Colonel David Crosbie, Governor of Kerry:

- I. William, of whom presently.
- II. Charles, slain at the siege of Maestricht.
- III. John, who served as a Captain in the United Provinces under the Prince of Orange.
- I. Elizabeth, whose second husband was John MacNamara, of Cratloe.
- II. Honoria, who m. Theobald, the third Lord Brittas (outlawed in 1691), by whom she had two sons and one dau.:
- I. John, fourth Lord Brittas,

James (FitzTheobald) Mathew, of Thurles.

"I have reduced Nenagh, and am this day marching after Owen Roe (O'Neill), either to the Boyne or Borris-in-Leix. Preston is before Athy, and being possessed of part of it three days since, it is confidently believed he is Mr. (Master) of it by this tyme. I have now only to advise you to use your best care in keeping ye country in good order, remayneing

Yor affectionate friend,

INCHQUIN.

Ballynekill,
17th Sept., 1648.

Of Murrough-an-Toitean we read in De Vere's Wail of Thomond :

"Can it be? Can it be? Can O'Brien be traitor?
Can the great House Dalcassian be faithless to Eire?
The sons of the stranger have wrong'd—let them hate her!
Old Thomond well knows them; they hate her for hire!
Can our Murrough be leagued with the rebels and ranters
'Gainst his faith and his country, his king and his race?
Can he bear the low wailings, the curses, the banter?
There's a scourge worse than these—the applause of the base!"

"Was the hand that set fire to the churches descended
From the hand of the King that uprear'd them, BOROIMHE?
When the blood of the priests and the people ran blended,
Who was it cried, 'Spare them not'? Inchiquin, who?
Some Fury o'er-ruled thee! some root hast thou eaten!
'Twas a demon that stalked in thy shape! 'Twas not thou!
Oh, Murrough! not tears of the angels can sweeten
That blood-stain; that Cain-mark erase from thy brow!"

Soon after the reduction of Nenagh, Murrough-an-Toitean changed sides: Early in 1649, he openly espoused the cause of Charles II., who in a letter from the Hague appointed Murrough President of Munster; and on the 14th April of same year he was pronounced a traitor by the Commonwealth Parliament. On the 1st of June following he sent the subjoined communication:

"To the Officer commanding in Cheeffe, Castlemaine.
"By the Lord President of Maunster:

"You, and the rest of the Warders of Castlemaine, are hereby required to be obedient to the directions and commands of Coll. David Crosbie upon all occasions, and to deliver him, if occasion shall require for his Maties. (Majesty's) service, admonition (ammunition) out of the said Castle; thereof you may not faile at yor pill (peril); and for yor soe doeing this shall be yor Warrant.

* Viscount Clare : This is the Lord Clare to whom the following lines refer :

When, on Ramillies' Bloody Field,
The baffled French were forced to yield,
The victor Saxon backward reeled
Before the charge of Clare's Dragoons.

CHORUS.

Viva la, for Ireland's wrong !
Viva la, for Ireland's right !
Viva la, in battle throng,
For a Spanish steed, and sabre bright !

Charles declined, and joined the Irish Brigade in the service of France. He commanded at *Fontenoy (1745), and distinguished himself at the head of the Irish Troops in that well-contested field; and on the eve of that Battle was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General, and Marshal of Thomond, Governor of New Brisack (in Alsace); and Captain-General of the Province of Languedock, for his distinguished services at Laufeldt, in 1747. * Fontenoy: At Fontenoy the Irish saved France from defeat when the battle was almost won by the English. As a last resource, Marshal Saxe ordered up his last reserve, the Irish Brigade, of which this Viscount Clare held the command:

"Lord Clare," he says, "you have your wish; there are your Saxon foes!"

The Marshal almost smiles to see, so furiously he goes!

How fierce the look these exiles wear, who're wont to be so gay;

The treasured wrongs of fifty years are in their hearts to-day:

The Treaty broken, ere the ink wherewith 'twas writ could dry,

Their plundered homes, their ruined shrines, their women's parting cry,

Their priesthood hunted down like wolves, their country overthrown;

Each looks as if revenge for all were staked on him alone.

"On Fontenoy, on Fontenoy"; nor ever yet elsewhere

Rushed on to fight a nobler band than these proud exiles were.

of whom four sons and the four daughters are living :

1. James, 2. Garrett-Michael, 3. John-Kennedy, 4. William-Andrew. The four daughters are : 1. Sarah, 2. Anne, 3. Bride-Anna, 4. Julia-Mary-Ellen. Of these children :

Post, of New York City, by his wife Maria Farquhar Taylor,* dau. of George Elliott Taylor, of the Taylors of Pennington, England.

142.—THE "O'DONEL" FAMILY,

Of Leitrim and Greyfield.

HUGH BUIDHE [boy], brother of Sir Niall Garbh [garv] who (See p. 350 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 123 on the "O'Donnell" (Princes of Tirconnell) genealogy, was the ancestor of this branch of that family.

123. Hugh Buidhe: second son of Con; d. 1649.

124. John: his son; d. 1665. Had two sons:

I. Hugh, who was called Balldearg O'Domhnaill ("balldearg": Irish, red spot), was living in 1690; was Chief of his Name in 1701; and left no issue.

II. Connell.

125. Connell: second son of John; appointed Lieutenant of the county Donegal, by King James the Second, in 1689.

126. Hugh of Larkfield, county Leitrim: his son; d. 1754. This Hugh had three sons:

II. John, Count O'Donel, a General in the same service who had:

I. Hugh, a Major in the Austrian Service, who was killed at Nervinden.

III. Con, of Larkfield,

127. Con, of Larkfield: third son of Hugh. This Con had two sons:

I. Hugh, of Greyfield, of whom presently.

* Jepson: For the lineage of this family, see Burke's Peerage, title "Norreys"; and for the lineage of the Taylors of Pennington, England, see Burke's Landed Gentry, and History of the Commoners.

II. Con, of Larkfield.

128. Hugh, of Greyfield, county Roscommon: the elder son of Con; d. in 1848, aged 84 years. This Hugh had three sons:

I. Con, of whom presently.

II. Hugh.

III. Robert.

129. Con: eldest son of Hugh of Greyfield; d. in 1825. This Con had an only child:

130. The Rev. Constantine O'Donel, A.B., formerly Vicar of St. Peter's, Allenheads, but now (1883) Rector of Thockington, and

Minister of Kirkheaton, Northumberland, England. This Rev. Constantine has two sons and two daughters:

I. Constantine-Richard-Annesley, of whom presently.

II. Hugh Roe, b. in 1861.

I. Mary.

II. Rose.

The three children living in 1883.

131. Constantine-Richard Annesley O'Donel: elder son of the Rev. Constantine O'Donel; b. in 1851, and living in 1883.

143.—THE "O'DONEL" FAMILY,

Of Larkfield, Co. Leitrim; and Greyfield, Co. Roscommon.

Con, a younger son of Con who is No. 127 on the (foregoing) "O'Donel" (of Leitrim and Greyfield) pedigree, was the ancestor of this branch of that family.

128. Con, of Larkfield: second son of Con; d. Circa 1835.

129. John, of Larkfield: his son; d. 1874.

130. Hugh O'Donel, of Larkfield: his son; b. 1844. Had a younger brother named John, b. in 1862: both living in 1877.

144.—THE "O'DONOVAN" FAMILY,*

Lords of Clan Cahill.

123. Donall (2): son of Donall; succeeded his father Donal I. in 1584; built Rahine Castle in 1607; burned to the ground the house of the Protestant Bishop at Ross, which had been a short time before built by William Lyon, Protestant Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross: died in 1639. In February, 1592, his brother Teige attempted to depose this Donal on the score of "illegitimacy," but failed. Had three sons: Donall, Richard, and Edmund.

124. Donall (3): his son; was a man distinguished both in peace and war, admired by his friends and respected by his enemies. During the Cromwellian wars he joined the Stuart side, with the Earl of Castlehaven. His principal seat was Rahine in Myross. His estates were forfeited by Cromwell. He died in 1660. Had two brothers: 1. Richard, 2. Edmund.

125. Donall (4): son of Donall (3); possessed none of the family estates at his father's death. He petitioned

King Charles II., to restore them to him. The King wrote to the Government in Dublin, directing their attention to the matter; the result being that a portion of the Manor of Rahine was restored to him, but no part of the Manor of Castle Donovan, which the King, by patent, in the eighteenth year of his reign, granted to Lieutenant Nathaniel Evanson. A copy of the King's letter was preserved at Banlahan, and lay in the possession of Edward Powell. In 1684, O'Donovan was put on his trial for "High Treason," but was acquitted. He afterwards became colonel of a regiment of foot in the service of King James II., and was Deputy Governor of Charles Fort (Cork), in 1690, when it was attacked by Marlborough and forced to surrender. He died about 1703.

126. Captain Richard O'Donovan: son of Donall (4); married, in 1703, Eleanor Fitzgerald, dau. of the Knight of Kerry, by whom he had several children:—1. Donall, his successor; 2. Richard, who died unm.; and some daughters, the eldest of whom was Elizabeth, who m. Sylvester O'Sullivan, head of the sept called "MacFineenduff," of Derreenavurrig, near Kenmare, in the County of Kerry, by whom she had a numerous issue.

127. Donall (5): son of Captain Richard; m., in his 18th year, Anne, dau. of James Kearney of Garretstown. He m. secondly, in 1763, in his 60th year, Jane, dau. of John Beecher, of Holleybrook (she 15 years old), by whom he had four children; she died in 1812. Donall (5) died in 1778. The children were:—1. Richard, a general in the English Army; 2. John, a Captain in the English Army; 3. Ellen, m. John Warren of Codrum, d. s.p. 1840; 4. Jane, d. unm., 1833. Donall, in his will, dated December, 1778, in case of failure of issue, male and female, in his sons, left the reversion of his estates to Morgan O'Donovan, Esq., then living in the City of Cork, and grandfather of O'Donovan, of Montpelier and of The O'Donovan of Lis Ard, near Skibbereen. He was buried in the church of Myross, as was also his second wife.

128. Richard (2): his son; born in 1764, d. s.p. in 1829. Married in 1800 Emma-Anne-Powell (d. 1832), a Welsh lady; he was Colonel in the Enniskillen Dragoons, and afterwards a General in the English Army; he was an intimate acquaintance of the English Prince Regent, and saved the life of the Duke of York during the retreat of the English Army from Holland. This Richard upset his grandfather Donall's Will "by levying fines and suffering a recovery" of the property which he willed to his wife. At her death she willed the estate to her brother Major Powell, one of whose sons—Colonel Powell—now, 1882, enjoys its possession.

By Richard's death the senior branch of the "O'Donovan" family became extinct. But (see Note (§), p. 115 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") from Edmund, a younger brother of Donall who is No. 124 on this Genealogy, the descent is continued down to our time.

145.—THE "O'GARA" FAMILY.

THE O'Garas were lords of the territory of Luighne, now forming and giving name to the barony of Leyney or Lieney, in the county of Sligo, whence they were expelled by the MacJordans and MacCostelloes (families of Anglo-Norman descent), and they were obliged to remove into Cuil-O'bhFionn, now the barony of "Coolavin," in that county. They are sometimes styled lords of Sliabh Lugha, a district on the confines of Sligo and Mayo; comprising, besides lands in the former, a large portion of the barony of Costello, in the latter county. Sliabh Lugha, as well as the country of Luighne, derives its name from Luig, son of Cormac Galeng, son of Teige, son of Cian, the third son of Olioll Olum, King of Munster, who (see the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 84 on the "MacCarthy Mor" pedigree.

Fargal O'Gara, who is No. 120 and the last name on the pedigree, and whose Estates were confiscated under the Cromwellian Settlement, was M.P. for the county Sligo, from 24 March, 1628, till 30 May, 1640. He was educated in Trinity College, Dublin; and was the first of the family that conformed to the late Established Church in Ireland.

146.—THE "O'GRADY" FAMILY.

THE O'Gradys were lords of Cineal Donghaile, a territory in the county of Clare, forming the present barony of Lower Tulla; as we learn by O'Heerin:

"O'Grady seized the entire lands
Of the profitable Cineal Donghaile;
Yellow-hilted and keen his sword,
And sledge heavy are the blows of his forces in conflict."

120. Donal, contemporary with John, who (see the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 120 on the "O'Grady" genealogy; slain in 1309.

121. Hugh: his son.

122. William: his son.

123. Donal: his son.

124. Gilla-Duff: his son.

125. Mathew: his son.

126. Donogh: his son.

127. Dermot: his son.

I. Hamilton of Crebilly.
II. Brian.
124. Brian: second son of Owen.
125. Brian (or Bernard): son of Brian; he retired to Scotland, consequent on the troublous times in Ireland, in 1798. The present representative of this Brian, is Mr.
W. J. O'Hara, of Montreal, Canada, living in 1883.

148.—THE "O'HERLIHY" FAMILY,

Of Ballyworny, County Cork.

WILLIAM O'HIERLYHY, of Ballyworny, co. Cork, had :
2. Daniel, who had :
3. William, who had :

III. Daniel.

IV. Thomas.
The second wife of Daniel was Sheela, dau. of Maelmor Mahony, by whom he had four sons :
V. Connor.
VI. Maurice.
VII. Donogh.
VIII. David.
5. William O'Herlihy: eldest son of Daniel.

149.—THE "O'HURLEY" FAMILY,

Lords of Knocklong.

THE *O'h-Urthailé or O'Hurley family derive their surname and descent from Urthailé Ard, son of Heber (of the race of Brenan Ban), son of Blad, son of Cas (a quo Dal Cas or the Dalcassians), son of Conall Eachluath, who (see p. 103 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 90 on the "O'Brien" (of Thomond) genealogy. The O'Hurleys were formerly Chiefs of the territory forming the parish of Knocklong, in the barony of Costlea, county of Limerick, where the ruins of their castle of Knocklong, and of an old church, the foundation of this family, still exist; of the parish of Kilruane, in the barony of Lower Ormond, county of Tipperary, where the ruins of their ancient castle of Rath-Hurly may be seen; of the country forming the parish of Kilcullane, barony of Small, county of Limerick, where they erected the castle of

This John O'Rourke was born at a village near the ancient castle of Woodfort, in the county Leitrim, which was the residence of his ancestors. In his 25th year of age he went to London, where he remained for five years, experiencing many disappointments, but ultimately fixed on the military profession as the best suited to his genius and disposition. In the first troop of Horse Guards he received the rudiments of arms ; but, being a Roman Catholic, he was forced to resign. He then went to France, and presented to the King, at Versailles, a petition, specifying his princely origin, and praying for a regiment. In consequence of which he was, in the year 1758, made a Captain of the "Royal Scotch" in that service. As a few instances of irregular promotions had been made in the brigade, the lieutenants were hurt at his appointment, and resolved to contest the matter with him. Accordingly this John O'Rourke, in the space of a few days, fought four duels, in which he gained great reputation—not more by his gallantry in the field, than by his honourably confessing that he thought it an injury to the national regiment, that he as a foreigner should be thrust upon them. He therefore gave up his commission, informing the French monarch that it was a dear purchase to fight for it every day. With strong recommendations from France to the Court of St. Petersburg, John O'Rourke went to Russia, which being then engaged in a war with Prussia, was a scene for adventure and fame. He was appointed first major of horse cuirassiers in the regiment of body guards; and, in the course of the war, he greatly distinguished himself, in particular, by storming the City of Berlin, which he laid under contribution. At the end of that war he returned to France with certificates of his gallant conduct from Peter the Third, Prince-General Wolkowsky, and General de Sonverow; and was appointed by King Stanislaus one of his chamberlains in the year 1764. In 1770 he was appointed by the French king a colonel of horse, was enrolled among the nobility of France, was granted a pension from the French civil list, and in 1774 was honoured with the order of St. Louis.

* O'Rourke : In the Fiant Elizabeth, A.D. 1585, July 6th, is the following :

"4732. Commission to Sir Richard Bingham, Knight, Chief Commissioner of the Province of Connaught and Thomond ; Ullick, Earl of Clanrickard ; John, Bishop of Ellyn ; Lyseus, Bishop of Ardagh ; Edmd., Baron of Athenry ; Sir Thomas Le Strange, Knt., one of the Privy Council ; Thomas Dillon, Chief Justice of the Province ; Charles Calthorp, Attorney General ; Sir Brien O'Rowirk (and) Sir Donell O'Conor Sligo, Knights ; Owen O'Harte, and others, to be Commissioners under the Statute of 11^o Elizabeth in the Province of Connaught and Thomond, to survey all the 'countries' in that Province that are not now their ground, and to divide them into counties, baronies or hundreds, or add them to any counties or baronies now being."—See Appendix to 15th Report of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Record Office, Dublin.

For interesting incidents in the life of Count John O'Rourke, the reader is referred to the Hibernian Magazine for March 1782.

163.—THE "O'TOOLE" * FAMILY,

Kings of Leinster and Princes of Imaile.

The Armorial Bearings† are: Arms: Gu. a lion pass. ar.; Crest: A boar pass. ppr.; Motto: "Virtute et Fidelitate."

COMMENCING with Cathair Mor, King of Leinster, who was the 109th Monarch of Ireland and (see the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES) who is No. 89 on the "O'Connor" (Faley) pedigree, the following is the genealogy of this family:

89. Cathair Mor, Monarch of Ireland: son of Felim Fiorurglas. Had amongst other children: 1. Rosa Failgeach, from whom descended the O'Connor (Faley); 2. Daire, ancestor of O'Gorman; 3. Comthanán, ancestor of Duff, of Leinster; 4. Curigh, who was slain by Fionn Mac Cumhal (Finn Mac-Coole); 5. a daughter, Landabaria, who, according to the "Ogygia," p. 315, was the third wife of the (110th) Irish Monarch Conn Cead-cathach (or Conn of the Hundred Battles), who succeeded Cathair Mor in the Monarchy; 6. Fiacha Baicheda.

Curigh, No. 4 here mentioned, who was slain by Fionn MacCumhal, had a son named Slectaire; and a daughter named Uchdelbh (or Uchdamhuil), who was wife of Fionn Fothart, a son of Conn of the Hundred Battles. This Slectaire, son of Curigh, had a dau. Corcraíne, who was the mother of Diarmid Ua Duibhne; and of Oscar, son of Oissin.

90. Fiacha Baicheda: youngest son of Cathair Mor; d. 220.

91. Breasal Bealach ("bealach": Irish, large-lipped): his son; a quo O'Bealaigh, anglicised Bailey, Bailie, Baily, Bayly, and Bewley. Was the second Christian King of Leinster.

* O'Toole or Ui Tuathail: The O'Tooles were Kings of Leinster and Princes of Imaile (now the counties of Wicklow and Kildare), Chieftains of Hy-Murray. Castle Kevin, Glendalough, and Powerscourt; and Omey in West Connaught. We are indebted to the Rev. Patrick Laurence O'Toole, O.C.C., Whitefriar-street Church, Dublin, for permission to inspect an elaborate genealogy of this family in that gentleman's possession; from which we here trace the genealogy more fully than we gave it in our "IRISH PEDIGREES."

† Armorial Bearings: According to other authorities the Armorial Bearings of the O'Tooles are:

Arms—A white lion on red grounds (signifying a course without relaxation);

Crest—Two palms, a Cross surmounted by a laurel branch over a princely crown;

Supporters—The shield accompanied by two battle axes and two Irish pikes; under the shield, two branches of shamrock—the national symbol of Ireland;

Motto—"Virtute et Fidelitate." One Branch of the Family has "Spero"; another: "Semper et Ubique Fideles."

The War Cry was: "Fianæ Abu," and sometimes "Ui Tuathail Abu": the former meaning "Victory to the Fenians"; and the latter, "Victory to the O'Tooles."

92. Enna Niadh: his son. Had a brother Labhradh.

93. Dunlong: son of Enna Niadh. This Dunlong slew the Royal maidens at the Claefer of Tara: in revenge of which twelve Leinster Princes were slain, and the Boromha tribute exacted. He had eight sons; and a brother named Brian* Leth-dearg, a quo Ui Briuin Cualan (or O'Brien of Cualan). Some of the children of this Dunlong were:—1. Olioll (or Ailall); 2. Maonach, a quo O'Mooney of Cualan; 3. Dubhtach; 4. Fergus, from whom descended Justus, the Deacon, and his brother Daire.

94. Muireadach: son of Dunlong.

95. Alioll (or Olioll), the fifth Christian King of Leinster: his son. Baptized at Naas by St. Patrick, A.D. 460; was at the battle of Ocha, where Olioll Molt, the 129th Monarch was slain; d. 526. Had: 1. Cairbre; 2. Cormac; 3. Felim, who was baptized by St. Patrick at Naas; 4. Mugan.

96. Cormac: second son of Olioll. Was King of Leinster for nine years; abdicated A.D. 515, and d. a monk at Bangor, 567. Had: 1. Cairbre Dubh, King of Leinster, who d. in 546; 2. Felim, from whom descended Cormac, of Tullac; 3. Iolladon, priest of Desert Iolladoin (now "Castledillon"),

128. Garret: his son; slain in 1582.
129. Tirlogh*: his son; m. Miss
 Kavanagh; slain at Dublin Castle

* Tirlogh: Deprived of almost all his family patrimony this Tirlogh lingered amongst his friends and kinsfolk on the western side of the mountains near Kiltegan, county Wicklow; expecting to be able to muster a sufficient number of his clansmen and friends to retake his family Castle and Estates of Powerscourt; as may be seen by reference to the State Papers of A.D. 1608. Writing to the Earl of Salisbury, the then Lord Chancellor of Ireland says:

" . . . Has received advertisement of stirs to be raised in Leinster during the absence of the Lord Deputy, by some of the O'Tooles, Kavanaghs, and others. Has been careful to discover their purposes. And first, for the O'Tooles: Has heard that that base uncle plotted with a nephew named Tyrlagh O'Toole to surprise the Castle of Powerscourt, within eight miles of Dublin, possessed by Mr. Marshall, to kill his ward there, to gather forces, and to enter into action of rebellion. The said Tyrlagh has also used his credit to gather lately some companies of the O'Moores out of the Queen's County (which Sept will prove a dangerous one, ready to be entertained for mischief upon all occasions), and to allow some confederates of the Kavanaghs, and in 1625. Had a sister, Winefrid, who was m. to a son of Feagh (MacHugh) O'Byrne, a celebrated Chieftain in the county Wicklow, who is No. 130 on the "O'Byrne" (Lords of Ranelagh) pedigree.— See p. 329 of IRISH PEDIGREES.

130. Donoch, of O'Toole's Castle, near Kiltegan: son of Tirlogh; slain in battle, 1690.

Patrick Laurence O'Toole, O.C.C., living (in Dublin) in 1883; 6. Anthony, of Mountpleasant Square, co. Dublin, living in 1883 (who m. Alice O'Donohoe, and had: I. Kevin, II. Alice, III. Anne, IV. Lawrence, V. Eva (d. young), VI. Cathleen, VII. Arthur — all, except Eva, living in 1883); 7. Denis, who d. 1879; 8. Sarah, wife of James Meythen, Merchant, 35, South other loose persons of these mountains near Dublin to take his part: who have all given him promise of assistance. As yet, however, he sees no fear of danger. Tyrlogh lurks secretly amongst his friends; the want of arms and munitions and powder is some stay to him and the rest, but the principal thing that stayed them is their expectation of foreign forces, the return of Tyrone, and the uncertainty of severe chastisement in the return of the Lord Deputy.

St. Sepulchre's, near Dublin,

7th August, 1608."

This Tirlogh O'Toole and his descendants never recovered Powerscourt; on the contrary, they forfeited to the Crown whatever remained of his estates in Imaile; and, as above shown, he was slain at Dublin Castle in 1625. His descendants were reduced to the position of farmers, compelled to labour, and till those lands their fathers once held in fee:

"Alas! that might could conquer right."

King Street, Dublin (living in 1883); 8. Lawrence, d. young.

135. Terence: eldest son of Denis; d. in 1872 in St. Louis, United States, America. Was m. to Margaret Barry of Buttevant, co. Cork, and had:—1. Denis, 136. Denis O'Toole, of St. Louis, United States, America: eldest son of Terence; b. 1862; and living in 1883.

164.—THE “OULAHAN” FAMILY,

Of America.

COMMENCING with Simon* Houlahan, who (see p. 261 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES”) is No. 125 on the “Hoolahan” (Chiefs of Siol Anmchadha, in Hy-Maine) pedigree, the following is the genealogy of this branch of that family:

125. Simon Houlahan, of Killea (Rahilla or Red Hills), county Kildare, who was son of William, d. 12th May, 1790, aged sixty years. He m. a farmer's dau., of Rathbride, county Kildare, named Margaret Moore† (d. 16 March, 1808, aged eighty years), and had:

I. William.

II. Pierce, of Lacka, who m. a Miss

Doorley, sister of the Gallant Captain Doorley, one of the Kildare “Rebels” of 1798.

III. John, of whom presently.

IV. Christopher.‡

This Simon (No. 125) had a brother William,§ who was father of John Oulahan, known as “Little John,” who was the father of John, who was the father of two children

* Simon: On the tombstone (or headstone) over the remains of this Simon, in the graveyard of Carna, near Suncroft, Curragh Camp, Kildare, are the following words:

“Erected by Pierce Houlahan in memory of his father Simon Houlahan, who departed this life May the 12th, 1790, aged 60 years.

“Also his mother ‘Margret’ Houlahan, alias Moore, who departed this life March 16th, 1808, aged 80 years. Also his sister Honor Houlahan who departed August 26th 1805, aged 35 years. May they rest in peace. Amen.”

† Moore: This Margaret Moore was the aunt of a saintly invalid priest, Father Moore of Rathbride, on north edge of the Curragh, who blessed a well on his widowed mother's farm which (well) became locally famous; and “Father Moore's Blessed Well” is still the resort of the afflicted, for miles around: “thousands having been cured of various diseases by its healing waters.”

‡ Christopher: This Christopher Oulahan had six children: 1. Simon, 2. William, 3. Honora, 4. Mary, 5. Pierce, 6. Christopher. And this Pierce (5) had also six children: 1. Christopher, b. in 1854; 2. Mary, b. in 1856; 3. Simon, b. in 1858; 4. John, b. in 1860; 5. Elizabeth, b. in 1862; 6. Marcella, b. in 1864.

§ William: In our opinion this William was the ancestor of the Dublin branch of this family; from him the descent was as follows:

125. William Oullahan, a merchant in Dublin. Will dated 6 Dec., 1781; proved 20 Apr., 1782.

126. Henry: his son; had five brothers: 1. William, 2. Daniel, 3. Robert, 4. Thomas, 5. Joseph; and a sister named Anne.

127. Robert: son of Henry; had six brothers: 1. John, 2. Henry, 3. William (whose son John was, in 1877, living in Baltimore, Maryland, United States America), 4. Lawrence, 5. Richard, 6. James.

128. Denis J. Oullahan, of the Firm of “Oullahan and Co.,” Miners, City of Stockton, California: son of Robert; had three children living in 1877: a sister named Kate, who then was a Nun in Canada; and a brother named Richard.

living in 1877 in the old homestead of Killea, co. Kildare.

126. John Houlahan, of Killea :
son of Simon ; b. at Killea in 1750, and d. at his farm at Tully (south of the town of Kildare) in 1834.
He was one of the leaders of the Kildare United Irishmen, in 1798.
He m. a Miss MacCabe, dau. of a farmer, near the Hill of Allen, co.
Kildare (who was the first person buried in Allen graveyard), and had :

I. Simon, who was killed at the battle of Monastereven, on the 24th May, of that year, under the command of Roger Garry.

II. John.

III. Patrick.*

And two daughters :

I. Anne, who m. a Mr. Higgins.

II. Mary, who m. Peter Mac-
Daniel.

127. John Oulahan : son of John ; b. at Friarstown, near Red

Hills, in 1790, and d. in Dublin,
29 May, 1825. He m. Alice, dau.
of Richard Byrne, of Donoughmore Mills, co. Meath (a farmer and miller, who d. in Dublin in 1856), and had two surviving sons and a daughter :

I. John, who d. unm. in Dublin,
in 1856.

II. Richard, of whom presently.

I. Mary-Anne.

128. Major Richard Oulahan, of Washington, D.C., United States of America : son of John ; bapt.
24th Feb., 1822, and living in 1883.
In 1849, this Richard emigrated from Dublin to New York, United States ; served as first Lieutenant in the 164th New York Volunteers
(Irish Legion) in the late American Civil War ; and in 1864, after muster out of the Military Service,

* Patrick : This Patrick Oulahan married Anastatia Farrell, by whom he had a daughter named Bridget, who married P. Ryan of Frenchfurze : both living at North Aams, Mass., in 1881 ; had twenty-one children—seventeen of whom are now living :
viz.—1. Mary, 2. Anne (Kane), 3. John, 4. Patrick, 5. Kate, (Madden), 6. Lawrence, 7. Bridget, 8. Joseph, 9. Frank, 10. Agnes (m. to a Ryan), 11. Teresa, 12. Thomas,
13. Jane, 14. Peter, 15. Charles, 16. Anastatia, 17. Gertrude.

According to the Patent Rolls, 15^o Jac. I. p. 1, Thomas Nolan (in Irish, Tomhas O'h-Uallachain), of Ballinrobe, co. Mayo, gent., obtained a grant by patent, of the four quarters of land in Ballinrobe, for ever, which, belonged to the "Fryers' House, of Ballinrobe." Before the date of that Grant the said Thomas Nolan resided at "The Crevaghe" (now called Creagh), in the barony of Kilmain and county of Mayo.
In the Indenture of Composition for that county, A.D. 1585, it was provided that he should have the Castle of the Crevaghe and three quarters of land thereto adjoining, free from the Composition rent, "in respecte of his sufficiencye to act as a Clerke in the said countrey." It may be here added, as a matter merely coincident, that the next grantee of those very lands in the succeeding century, under the Act of Settlement, was Mr. James Cuffe, ancestor of the late Baron Tyrawley, and of the late (if not the present) proprietor of the Crevaghe, whose first appearance here was in the capacity of clerk or secretary to Cromwell's Commissioners of Transplantation to Connaught (see Hardiman's "West Connaught," p. 251).

The above Thomas Nolan was one of the first "English Tavern" Keepers in Connaught. When the old Irish Biatachs (see Stat. Kilkenny, p. 4) and "Houses of Hospitality" ceased, they were succeeded by "English Inns" or Taverns. On 21st December, A.D. 1616, a licence was granted to John Coman of Athlone, merchant, and Thomas Nolan, of Ballinrobe, Esq., to keep taverns, and sell wines and spirituous liquors : to the former in almost every town in the county Galway, and in some towns of the counties of Mayo, Roscommon, Sligo and Westmeath ; and "to Thomas Nolan, in the town of Callow, and in the whole barony of Kilconnell, and in the town and barony of Kilmaine, in Mayo county, during their own lives and those of Barnaby Coman, brother of John ; of John Nolan, son of Thomas ; of Peter Nolan, son of Richard Nolan, late of Athlone, merchant, deceased ; and of Jane or Jennet Coman, daughter of the said John Coman." Rot. Pat. 15^o Jac. I., p. 2. d. No. 58.

he received from President Andrew Johnson, a commission of Brevet-Major of United States Volunteers, and an appointment in the Treasury Department, Washington, D.C., which he still (1883) holds. This Richard* had three sons and two daughters:

176.—THE "PURCELL" FAMILY,

Of Esker.

THE name of *Purcell first appears on record in Normandy, about A.D. 1035. We learn from a Charter of that date that the tithes of the assarts of Porceval† had been granted by the Lord of that vill to the Monastery of the Holy Trinity at Rouen. It was also embodied in the name of several other vills in the province. In the time of William the Conqueror, Hugh Porcel granted the tithes of Montmarguet, a vill on the frontiers of Picardy, and near Aumerle, to the Abbey of Aumerle. According to family tradition, Hugh was the first of the Normans to land at Pevensey Bay, the first to do a deed of Arms by storming the ruins of the old Roman Castle, where a party of Harold's soldiers lay entrenched, and the first to win a grant of Land from William the Conqueror in guerdon of the deed. He founded a Baronial family, hereditary ushers of the King's Chamber, and holding their lands by tenure of that office ; which continued in the direct male line for more than 100 years, i.e. to the end of King Henry the Second's reign, and threw out flourishing branches in several counties, some of which endured to the seventeenth century,‡ From one of these—Lords of Newton Purcell, Oxon—sprang again, according to family tradition, another Hugh,§ who took part in the † Porceval: The name is now corrupted into Perceval. The manor was feudally dependent upon the Tankervilles, Chamberlains of Normandy.

* Purcell: For the quaint legend accounting for the origin of the name, see Moreri.

English invasion of Ireland, in 1171, and was, it is maintained, the knight mentioned by Giraldus Cambrensis, as slain at Waterford; he had been left in command of the city on the King's departure for Dublin, and on the morrow, seeking to cross the river in one of the native boats to hold parley with the King, the boatmen rose upon him in the middle of the stream, stabbed him with their long "skeans," and threw the body into the river. However that may be, he was succeeded in the next generation by his sons, Walter and Hugh Purcell. The latter, before the close of the century, by marriage with Beatrix,* the childless widow of Thomas de Hungerford, and daughter of the first Butler of Ireland, acquired the Barony of Loughmore; she was at the time an only child, and thus heiress of a splendid inheritance.

The aged Butler, however, married again, and to the disgust, we may suppose, of poor Sir Hugh Purcell, left an infant son and heir at his death, in 1205. The House of Loughmore (or Loughmoe) nevertheless remained of historic eminence, and endured in the male line to the eighteenth century. In the female line it is now represented by the Purcell-O'Gormans.

Walter Purcell was Baron of Bargo,†—an extensive tract extending into Kilkenny, Queen's County, and Carlow, and stretching from the base of Slieve Margy or the Bargo Hills near the town of Carlow to the rich lands on the western bank of the Nore, and including the north-eastern portion of the present county of Kilkenny. It was originally possessed by the O'Brennan Clans. Frequent feuds took place, and we find by the Patent and Close Rolls, in 1318, Symon Purcell with other gentlemen receiving special license from King Edward II. to hold parley with the O'Brennans; and in 1327, being then High Sheriff, he was slain with twenty others by that Sept.

In 1385 ten Marks were paid by order of the Irish Privy Council to Thomas St. Leger, Baron of Bargo, for the taking of Henry O'Logan and others.

In the year 1307, Joanna, heiress to the Bargo line had been given in marriage by the Crown to Sir William St. Leger, who thus carried the barony into that name.‡ Its demesnes were reconquered in the course of the fifteenth century by the native clans, and the barony appears to have been escheated to the Crown.§ The Kilkenny manors on the Dinin were then necessarily converted into tenures, in capite, i.e. held immediately from the Crown; and in that condition accordingly we find them described in the public records of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

In the North-east of Kilkenny several cadets of the Purcells, Barons of Bargo, had been planted in contiguous manors, each guarded by one or more strong castles, stretching between the Barrow and the Nore, and † Bargo: Walter Purcell was summoned to Parliament as a Baron in 1298.

‡ Name: In 1380 Thomas St. Leger received his summons as Peer.

§ Crown: In page 68 of his History of Ireland, Hanmer says: "A gentleman of the name dwelling at Dunganstown, near Carlow, affirming himself to be directly descended from Baron St. Leger, made claim unto the title, with what success I have not searched after."

forming a barrier for the protection of the county at large. Esker (see Kilkenny Archæological Society's Proceedings, Vol. I.) was the most Northerly of these. In the records of the 17th century, accordingly, we find them as Lords of Ballyfoyle, Esker, Foulksrath, Lismayne, and Clone. They all adhered to the Old Faith and to the Royal cause; and thus they were swept away by the great "Rebellion" of 1641, and but in part regained their old seats at the Restoration. The three latter families seem to have disappeared; but that of Ballyfoyle may be traced to the present day, through a Cadet, and is now represented by Purcell-Fitz-Gerald, Boulgee, Sussex, England.* The descent of the Esker family is, as follows:

1. Redmund Purcell, living circa 1580, had issue three sons: Richard; William, of Kilneboliskepannagh; and Geoffrey, of Kilcallan. He was dead in 1612. (See Inquests in Chancery, A.D. 1615, No. 11.)

2. Richard: his son and heir. He, jointly with his brother Geoffrey, purchased the vill of Balliplogh from Sir Richard Butler (see Inquests in Chancery, as above). The said Richard had issue four sons: William, his heir; Patrick of Ballincomo, of whom presently; Geoffrey, and Edward, of Coolbane; the three latter were living in 1635, each possessed of lands in the territory of Odogh, on the borders of Queen's County (see Inquests in Chancery, A.D. 1635, No. 64).

3. William, son and heir. His will is dated July 4, 1632. He d. on July 20, following, leaving seven surviving children, viz.: Edmund, Redmund, Perse, Margaret, Ellen, Elizabeth, and Mary. He died seized of the Castle, Vill, and Lands of Esker, Castle Boban, Kilcullan, Ballincomo, and of lands in Cool-bane and Dromgoile. The premises were held "in capite" by military service (see Inquests in Chancery, A.D. 1632, No. 50).

4. Edmund,† son and heir; in 1632 was twenty-one years of age and unmarried. He was the last possessor of Esker, which was confiscated in 1653, and passed into the possession of Colonel James Hacket, of the Parliamentary Army.

5. Redmund, his heir. He obtained Listow, co. Mayo, under the Cromwellian settlement, and was M.P. for Knocktopher, co. Kilkenny, in King James' Parliament. The estate was confiscated in 1691. In Redmund the elder line appears to have become extinct, and the representation of the family to have passed to the descendants of Patrick Purcell, of Ballincomo, uncle of Edmund of Esker, second son of Richard (as above), and grandson of Redmund of Esker. Patrick was living in 1635, when he held Ballincomo by grant of William Purcell, of Esker, and divers other lands in various townships, for the most part, on the borders of the Queen's County, adjoining the vills of Moyarde, Dunane, Timogue, and Kilbane (see Inquests in Chancery, A.D. 1635, No. 64). The son and heir of the said Patrick Purcell was Tobias, of Moyarde,* Queen's County: He was attainted in 1691. Theobald (or Tobias) Purcell held a commission in Colonel Nicholas Purcell's troop of Horse, as appears by D'Alton's King James' Irish Army List; the names Theobald and Tobias being then convertible. The estate of Patrick Purcell, of Ballincomo, passed to the Wandesfords (under whom most of it had been held). They were Protestants, and although loyalists, took no part in the civil war, the heir being a minor. Their descendants hold it at the present day. (See Ormonde MSS.: Transactions of Kilkenny Archæolog. Soc., Vol. I., p. 244.)

* England: The illustrious Major-General Sir Patrick Purcell, Vice-General of all Munster in 1651, belonged to the Purcells of Croagh. After the capture of Limerick he was hanged, his head cut off and fixed on a stake over the southern or St. John's Gate of the city.—See Morison, Threnodia Hibernico-Catholica; also F. Murphy's, S.J., "Cromwell in Ireland," p. 29.

† Edmund: In 1638, when in pursuance of the unhappy policy of the Government, fines were levied upon most of the gentry under threat of making inquisitions into defective titles, he sued out a confirmation of title to his estate, and duly paid his fine, as did others of his kindred, such as Purcell of Foulkorath, of Clone, and others (see Inquests in Chancery).

6. Joseph, of Timogue, Queen's County, son and heir of Tobias Purcell, of Moyarde. He died, circa, 1700. He was second cousin of Edmund, of Esker, and became the representative of the Purcells of Esker. Near the church door at Timogue is a marble tombstone placed over "Joseph Purcell, son of Captain Purcell, who resided at Timogue"; the tombs in the churchyard were generally laid in 1700. The church contains many interesting monuments. It was built in the 17th century by Sir Walter Whelan, of Timogue Castle, on the site of the ancient church founded by St. Mochna. It is now the Protestant Church (see Trans. of Kilkenny Archæological Society, Vol. II., p. 195).

* Moyarde: Moyarde was doubtless held by leasehold tenure, and thus, under the penal laws, would unavoidably pass away from the family unless it conformed to the Established Church.

† O'Leary: Catherine O'Leary belonged to an ancient Irish family, and was related to the well known Father O'Leary, St. Patrick's, Soho, London.

7. Redmund, of Dunane, a township adjoining Timogue and Moyarde, his son and heir. He died in 1760. Being the father of six sons, and finding no career possible for them at home, under the pressure of the penal laws, he sent them all, except the youngest, Richard, to the West Indies, where they acquired considerable fortunes, and were ultimately led to settle in England. His sons were: 1. Joseph, his heir; 2. Patrick, whose only son, Patrick, of Snell Hall, Grenada, W.I., died in 1809, s.p.; 3. Perse, d.s.p.; 4. Hugh, d.s.p.; 5. Redmund, whose son, Joseph, of Harmony Hall, Trinidad, W.I., died s.p., in 1812, leaving his estate to his aunt, Bridget Foley; and 6. Richard, who m. Mabel Dillon, dau. of Thomas Dillon, of Kilbane, Queen's County, and had Richard Patrick, his son and heir, and six daus., who died unmarried. The daus. of Redmund were: 1. Bridget, who m. — Foley, of Dublin, and died in 1833, leaving Harmony Hall, Trinidad, W.I., to her only surviving nephew, the said Richard Patrick; 2. Mary, who m. — Wall, of Waterford County, and had Mary, who died in Grenada, W.I., in 1815, unmarried.

8. Joseph: his son and hier. He married Catherine, O'Leary,† widow of Archibald Johnson. He was born 1731, and d. 20th, Feb. 1803, at Somerstown, and was buried at Old St. Pancras. By his will, dated Feb. 14, 1803, after leaving a legacy to his dear granddaughter, Celia-Catherine Lyndsey, he directs his real estate in Grenada, W.I., to be sold, and together with his personal property to be held in trust for his wife, for life, with remainder to his son, Patrick-Joseph, and to his daughter, Bridget-Maria Robertson, for life, with remainder to her children, Celia Catherine Lyndsey, James Burton, George, Ann, and John Thomas Robertson.

9. Patrick-Joseph : his son and heir ; died in 1807, s.p.

10. Joseph, of Harmony Hall, Trinidad, son of Redmund ; by the demise of the issue of his uncles, became the next heir, but died in 1812, without issue.

11. Richard-Patrick* : son and heir of Richard Purcell, of Dunane (who d. in 1784), by his wife Mabel Dillon, sole dau. of Thomas Dillon, of Kilbane, by Margaret, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Gerald Dillon, of Dillon's Grove, Roscommon, the representative of the feudal Barons of Drumrany, who were chiefs of the whole House of Dillon. He m. Celia Catherine Lyndsey,† his first cousin, the sole dau. of Thomas Lyndsey by his wife, Bridget Maria, dau. of Joseph Purcell, which

Bridget married secondly Thomas Robertson, and had James Burton Robertson (the late Professor of History in the Catholic University, Dublin), John Thomas Robertson and others (as above). Richard Patrick Purcell became, by the demise of the male issue of his uncles, the sole representative of the Purcells of Esker, and through his mother, Mabel Dillon (who d. in 1825), the representative also of the Dillons of Drumrany. He inherited considerable estates in the West Indies, but settled in England, and died at Cranford, Middlesex, on 19th Jan., 1836, and was buried in the Parish Churchyard there. He left a widow (who d. in 1868), and numerous issue, viz. :

12. Richard Lyndsey : his son and heir ; Henry Dillon ; Edmund Sheridan ; Redmund Percy ; Arthur Dillon ; Maria Isabella ; Celia Catherine ; Agnes Josephine ; Emily Mary Dillon ; and Alice Dillon. For fuller particulars of the family of the said Richard-Patrick Purcell, see No. 17 on the pedigree of the "Dillons of Drumrany."

188.—THE "ROSSETER" FAMILY.

THE following is a translation from a Latin Document respecting this family, by the late Mr. Edmond Hore, of Castle Street, Wexford. We insert it because of the historical information which it contains:

"Mr. Walter Rosseter father of Ignatius Rosseter, late of Wexford, Ireland, was son of Mr. John Rosseter, of the distinguished and ancient Catholic family of the Rosseters, of Rathmaknee, in the County of Wexford, and of Dame Margaret Rosseter, daughter of Mr. Philip Rosseter, of the noble and ancient house of Slevoie, in the same County of Wexford. Said Philip was paternal uncle of the illustrious Most Reverend Michael Rosseter, Bishop of Ferns, who died in the year 1709. The before-mentioned Mr. John Rosseter was son of Mr. Walter Rosseter, of the same renowned house of Rathmaknee, who left in patrimony to the aforesaid John, his son, several townlands and possessions. The mother of the said John was Dame Margaret Rosseter, which said Margaret was first cousin of Thomas Rosseter, Esq., Knight of the Shire, for the County of Wexford—which Thomas was paternal uncle of Patrick and William Sarsfield. Said Patrick Sarsfield was Commander-in-Chief of Leinster, Earl of Lucan, and Generalissimo of the Forces of James the Second, in Ireland, a leader of most undoubted gallantry, in which position the said Patrick obtained most seasonable laws in favour of the Catholic Faith and Religion, and received the thanks of the Irish people, these were the “Conditions of Limerick,” obtained at the time when the Prince of Orange, with numerous forces, was invading the Kingdom of Ireland, with the intention of extirpating the Catholic Faith, root and branch. The before-named William Sarsfield, Knight, had for his wife, Mary Stewart, daughter of Charles the Second, King of England. The before-mentioned Mr. John Rosseter, father of the aforesaid Walter, grandfather of Ignatius aforesaid, late of Wexford, in Ireland (as stated above) was grandson of John Rosseter, Esq., heir and inheritor of the aforesaid distinguished house of Rathmaknee, and owner of several manors and possessions, in whose mansion-house, and with whom John, Archbishop of Fermo, Nuncio Apostolic, was in the habit of sojourning before the arrival of Oliver Cromwell into Ireland. Said John Rosseter had nine sisters, all of whom were joined in matrimony with knights and esquires; one of them was Dame Mary Rosseter, wife of Philip Devereux, knight, heir, and head of the renowned house of Ballinager. Another, Dame Margaret Rosseter, wife of Richard Synnott, knight, heir, and head of the famed house of Ballytrinan, and a third sister was Catherine Rosseter, wife of John French, Esq., heir and head of the noble and Catholic family of Ballitory, of whom was born the illustrious Right Reverend Nicholas French, Bishop of Ferns. A fourth was Anastatia, wife of James Wadding, Esq., heir and head of the ancient Catholic house of Ballycogly, of whom was born the illustrious Right Reverend Luke Wadding, Bishop of Ferns, who died in 1687, and was the successor of the before-mentioned Bishop French, and was succeeded by the Right Reverend Michael Rosseter, who died Bishop of Ferns in 1709, as before stated. Thus the three Right Reverend successors in the Episcopacy of Ferns, were grandsons of Mr. Philip Rosseter aforesaid * * * of Walter, father of Ignatius, named at the beginning.

There were many others of the aforesaid family of Rosseters Clergymen of distinguished sanctity, and Militarymen of singular daring and courage, who with incredible constancy, against the enemies of the Faith, fought in the front of battle, and bore the Standard of Christ, with firm foot and dauntless heart, against all the threats of tyrants—never flinching their colours from the day they came from England into Ireland, in the year 1170, and reign of Henry the Second. Descended of an illustrious race in Lincolnshire, that city and shire had many renowned families of Rosseters, and at that time were among the chief and leading men of England, and History, both English and Irish, attests that this family of Rosseters stood among the very first in Ireland.”

* Richard : This is the Captain Richard Tirrell who is mentioned under A.D. 1597, in the Annals of the Four Masters. In a note at page 621 of Connellan's Edition of that great Work, it is stated that the said Captain Tirrell was "a gentleman of the Anglo-Norman family of the Tyrrells, lords of Fartullagh in Westmeath. He was one of the most valiant and celebrated commanders of the Irish in the war against Elizabeth ; and, during a period of ten or twelve years, had many conflicts with the English forces in various parts of Ireland. He was particularly famous for bold and hazardous exploits, and rapid expeditions ; and copious accounts are given of him by Fynes Morrison, MacGeoghagan, and others. After the reduction of Ireland, he retired to Spain. The battle of Tyrrell's Pass is described by MacGeoghagan, and mentioned by Leland and other historians ; it was fought in the summer of 1597, at a place afterwards called "Tyrrell's Pass," now the name of a town in the barony of Fartullagh, in the county Westmeath. When Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, heard that the English forces were preparing to advance into Ulster, under the Lord Deputy Borrough, he detached Captain Tyrrell, at the head of four hundred chosen men, to act in Meath and Leinster ; and, by thus engaging some of the English forces of the Pale, to cause a diversion, and prevent their joining the Lord Deputy Borrough, or co-operate with Sir Conyers Clifford. The Anglo-Irish of Meath assembled at Mullingar, to the number of one thousand men, under the command of Barnwall, Baron of Trimblestown, intending to proceed to and join the Lord Deputy. Tyrrell was encamped, with his small force, in Fartullagh, and was joined in command by young O'Connor Faley of the King's County. The Baron of Trimblestown, having learned where Tyrrell was posted, formed the project of taking him by surprise, and for that purpose, dispatched his son (young Barnwall) at the head of the assembled troops. Tyrrell, having received information of their advance against him, immediately put himself in a posture of defence, and, making a feint of flying before them as they advanced, drew them into a defile covered with trees, which place has since been called Tyrrell's Pass ; and, having detached half of his men under the command of O'Connor, they were posted in ambush in a hollow adjoining the road. When the English were passing, O'Connor and his men sallied out from their ambuscade, and with their drums and fifes played "Tyrrell's March," which was the signal agreed MAOLTUILE, a younger brother of Maoldoon, who (see p. 378 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 94 on the "O'Neill" (Princes of Tyrone) genealogy, was the ancestor of O'h-Maoltuille; anglicised Multully, Tully, and Flood (of Ulster).

94. Maoltuille ("tuile": Irish, a flood): son of Maolfireach; and a quo this family name.

95. Hugh: his son.

96. Cormack: his son.

97. Cairbre: his son.

98. Owen: his son.

99. Teige: his son.

100. Connor: his son.

101. Donal: his son.

102. Murrough: his son.

103. Muirceartach: his son.

104. Conla: his son.

105. Aongus: his son.

106. Maoltuille: his son.

107. Giollabreac: his son.

108. Congal: his son.

109. Conang: his son.

110. Griorrha: his son.

111. Muriartach: his son.

112. Cathal: his son.

113. Connor: his son.

114. Cormac: his son.

115. William Tully: his son.

116. Iollan: his son.

117. Kyras Tully: his son. Was Dean of Clonfert, co. Galway; d. 31 Dec., 1637. This Kyras was twice m.: by his first wife Sheela, a dau. of Thomas O'Kelly, Esq., he had five sons:

I. Mathew.

II. Mark.

III. Luke.

IV. John.

V. Connor.

The second wife of Kyras Tully was Katherine, a dau. of John na Moy O'Kelly, of Criagh, by whom he had three sons:

VI. Edward.

VII. Conla.

VIII. Nicholas.

118. Mathew Tully: eldest son of Kyras.

201.—THE "UPHAM" FAMILY.

THIS surname is an anglicised form of the ancient Irish Uppain; a family descended from Ir, one of the sons of Milesius of Spain, a quo the Milesian Irish Nation.

There is a place called Upham in the parish of Killenaule, barony of Slieveardagh, and county of Tipperary; but we have not ascertained that any family bearing that name lives there now. One family of the name, however, at present (1883) lives in Dublin.

upon for the attack. Tyrrell then rushed on them in front, and the English, being thus hemmed in on both sides, were cut to pieces; the carnage being so great that out of their entire force only one soldier escaped the slaughter, who having fled through a marsh carried the news to Mullingar. . . . Young Barnwall being taken prisoner, his life was spared, but he was delivered to O'Neill. A curious circumstance is mentioned by MacGeoghagan, that, from the heat and excessive action of O'Connor's sword-arm on the occasion, his hand became so swelled that it could not be extricated from the guard of his sabre until the handle was cut through with a file."

Upham is mentioned in the year 1422, as situate in the Hundred of Kynwolmershee, in Wiltshire, England, (see "Kalendars and Inventories of his Majesties Exchequer," Vol. II., p. 113); and the name is also mentioned in "Doomsday Book," Vol. II., p. 36. There is also a parish named Upham in Hampshire, England.

As a surname, however, the name is first met with in the Charter Rolls in London, Vol. I., Part 1, folio 170, An. 9, John, 1208, in which Hugo de Upham conveyed by gift seven acres of land to the church of St. Maria de Bradinstock, in 1208. This church was a small Monastery in Wilts; and it appears that Bradinstock was in the "Hundred of Kinwarston, Lat. 51° 23', and Long. 1° 39' West." The name is again found in the Hundred Rolls, temp. Henry III. and Edward I., Vol. II., p. 240; and in the Fine Rolls, Henry III., Vol. II., p. 375 (A.D. 1246-1272). In all of these Records various individuals of apparent local prominence are mentioned—all in Wiltshire and in Hundreds adjoining; and, no doubt, all related to each other. About 1445 the name again appears in Charter Rolls, A. 19-23, Henry VI., No. 93, p. 385.

The surname "Upham" seems to have been represented in the above localities in England for many generations, from the beginning of the thirteenth down to the seventeenth century.

The first of the family that settled in America was John Upham. Camden Hotten says in his book, that the said John sailed from Weymouth, England, with his wife and three children, on the 20th of March, 1635, with a party of colonists which appear to have been organized in Somersetshire, headed by a clergyman named Hull, who had been of the Establishment.

After reaching America John Upham was prominent in the settlement of Weymouth and Malden, Massachusetts; and was a member of the General Court of that Colony. He died at Malden on the 25th of February, 1681, aged eighty-four. All bearing this name in the United States and in the British Provinces of America are his descendants; among whom are and have been many who have attained social distinction.

202.—THE "WALLIS" FAMILY.

RALPH WALLIS, of the City of Dublin, Esq., Clerk of the Rolls, and M.P., who acted as Deputy for the celebrated Sir William Temple, received in 1644 from the Ulster King of Arms, a Grant or Confirmation of Arms, which stated that the said Ralph Wallis was of an ancient family; set forth the Arms which had been borne by some of his ancestors; and confirmed to him and his posterity, "for ever," a Crest, Arms, and Motto;

The Crest, being: On a helmet and wreath of his colours, a hand proper, sleeved sable, holding a cinque foil common, matled gules doubled, argent;

The Arms: Per bend az. and ar. in chief a lion pas. of the last, armed and langued gu., in base a tower triple-towered sa (see Burke's Armory);

The Motto: "Victoria Mihi Christus."

He was twice married: first, to Miss Talbot of the House of Malahide, by whom he had:

I. George, of Portrane, in the county of Dublin, Esq., Ulster King of Arms, who m. Anne, dau. of Sir Richard Carney, Knt., Ulster King of Arms, and had:

I. Ralph.

II. Elizabeth.

III. Jane.

Mr. Ralph Wallis was, secondly, m. to Jane, dau. and heiress of the Very Rev. Robert Wilson, Dean of Ferns and Leighlin (by the dau. of the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ferns), whose Arms descended to Mrs. Wallis-Healy; and had:

II. Robert, of Killeny, in the Queen's County, Esq., who d. s.p.

III. Charles, of whom presently.

2. Charles Wallis: described as the only son and heir of Ralph, of Dublin; consequently the other heirs of his father were in his lifetime extinct. Charles m. Elizabeth, sole child and heiress of Ferdinando Davis, of Lisgold, in the county Fermanagh, and of Castle Derrick, in the county Tyrone, Esq. (grand-nephew of the distinguished Poet, Statesman, and Lawyer, Sir John Davis, Lord Chief Justice of England), by his cousin Dorothy, dau. of Morgan Cave of Bagley, in Dorsetshire, England. (The Davis Arms also descended to Mrs. Wallis-Healy.) By the heiress of Davis, Charles Wallis had several children, only one of whom, Ralph, left issue.

3. Ralph, of Springmount, Queen's County: son of Charles; m. Frances, only dau. of William Peisley Vaughan, of Golden Grove, in the King's County (High Sheriff of that County in 1738), by Anne, daughter of Thomas Sadleir of Sopwell Hall, in the county Tipperary, Esq. (Maternal ancestor of Richard Chenevix Trench (living in 1883), Lord Archbishop of Dublin, and of the first Lords Ashtown, Dunally, and Charleville), descended from the illustrious Warrior and Statesman, temp. Henry VIII. and Elizabeth, namely the Right Hon. Sir Ralph Sadleir, last Knight Banneret, of England; Principal Secretary of State, and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, who obtained the favour and friendship of the unfortunate Mary, Queen of Scots, during his Governorship of Tilbury Castle, in which she was confined. Ralph Wallis, of Springmount, had by his wife (and among their descendants are now the heirs of the ancient families of Peisley and Vaughan):

I. Robert, of Springmount and Knapton, in the Queen's County, who d. s.p., having m. Editha, dau. of Sir John Osborne, sixth Baronet, of Newtown, county Tipperary.

II. Ralph, of whom presently.

III. Hector, who m. Miss Drope, of Dublin, by whom he had:

I. William, who was ancestor of Mr. Wallis, of Russell Place, Dublin; and

I. Margaret, who was wife of Luke, first Viscount Mountjoy (killed at the Battle of Ross, in the Rebellion of 1798), by whom she had:

I. Margaret, who m. the Right Hon. John Hely, third Earl of Donoughmore.

4. Ralph Wallis, of Springmount and Upperwoods, in the Queen's County: son and heir of Ralph; m. Mary, dau. of — Doherty, Esq., of Dunkerrin, in the King's County, and had:

5. William Wallis, of Upperwoods, Esq., heir of Springmount, who m. Margaret, dau. of James Malone, of Ballyadams, in the Queen's County, Esq., and with other children had :

I. Mary, who m. John, son of Luke Healy, of the county of Meath, Esq., and had issue.—See No. 3 on the “Wallis-Healy” pedigree.

203.—THE “WALLIS-HEALY” FAMILY.

(See the “Healy” Pedigree.)

It is remarkable that nearly all of the Christian names borne by members of this family and by those of the Earl of Donoughmore's, in the past and present generations, are identical : a fact which, taken in connection with the similarity of Arms and surname, may be regarded as confirmatory of their common paternal origin. As will be observed by a reference to the “Wallis” lineage (which see), the branch of the Healys of Dublin, which is allied to the ancient family of Wallis of Dublin, and of Springmount in the Queen's county, is also descended with the late and present Earls of Donoughmore from a common maternal ancestor, viz.—Ralph Wallis, of Springmount, Esq., above mentioned, who was great grandfather of Mrs. Wallis-Healy, of Dublin, and great grandfather also of her second cousin Margaret, wife of John Healy, third Earl of Donoughmore, who was daughter of Luke, first Viscount Mountjoy, by Margaret, daughter of Hector Wallis, of Dublin and Springmount, Esq.

The Penal Laws* against Catholics, the turbulent character of the times at which those Enactments were in force, and the frequent firing of Records in times of commotion and wars (a cause for the non-preservation of Arms and Descents given in an old Grant of Arms to one of the progenitors of this Family, which states that such was incident to gentlemen descended from very noble and ancient families) doubtless prevented this Family as well as many others from preserving not only their property, but also more extended genealogical details than we at present possess (the loss of the one very often occasioning that of the other); and may be regarded as reasons why the present connected Records of the pedigree of the male line of the “Wallis-Healy” branch of the “Healy” family commence with the name of :

* Penal Laws :

In that dark time of cruel wrong, when on our country's breast,
A dreary load, a ruthless code, with wasting terrors press'd—
Our gentry stripp'd of land and clan, sent exiles o'er the main,
To turn the scales on foreign fields for foreign monarchs' gain ;
Our people trod like vermin down, all fenceless flung to sate
Extortion, lust, and brutal whim, and rancorous bigot hate—
Our priesthood tracked from cave to hut, like felons chased and lashed,
And from their ministering hands the lifted chalice dashed—
In that black time of law-wrought crime, of stifling woe and thrall,
There stood supreme one foul device, one engine worse than all :
Him whom they wished to keep a slave, they sought to make a brute—
They banned the light of heaven—they bade instruction's voice be mute.

1. Roderick Healy, Esq., b. circa 1740, who had two sons:

I. Luke, of whom presently.

II. Edward, formerly of Westmeath, who m. Miss Lynch, and by her had:

I. James, of Dublin, merchant, who d. unm., and to whom a handsome monument is erected in Glasnevin Cemetery, Dublin.

II. John, a Town Councillor of Dublin, who d. unm.

III. Luke, of Dublin, merchant, whose surviving children in 1883 are:—1. P. J. Healy, of Dublin, merchant; 2. Elizabeth, who m. Richard Ward, of Dublin, Esq., and has issue.

2. Luke, of the co. Meath: the elder son of Roderick; m. and had:

3. John of Tullamore, who m. Mary, dau. of William Wallis, heir of Springmount, Esq. (first cousin of the late Margaret, Dowager Viscountess Mountjoy), and had:

I. William Wallis-Healy, of whom presently.

II. John Healy, of the City of Dublin, who d. 21 Jan., 1883, leaving, with other children,—1. William-Wallis, 2. John-Francis-Wallis.

III. F. C. Wallis-Healy, of 79, Lower Gardiner Street, in the City of Dublin, b. 6 May, 1844; Author of "Memoir of Dargan," "Essay on Taste in the Choice of a Profession," Editor of the "Irish Educational Guide and Scholastic Directory," etc.

I. Mary-Anne-Louisa-Joseph, wife of A. Gibson, Esq., of Dublin; d. 8 December, 1870, leaving issue a daughter.

4. William Wallis-Healy, of 81, Summerhill, Dublin; eldest son of John; b. 17 June, 1832; m. 4 Sept., 1866, Nannie, youngest dau. of the late Michael Kirwan, of Dublin, Esq., and has (in 1883) surviving issue:

I. Joseph-Kirwan-Wallis.

II. John-Luke-Wallis.

III. Francis-Charles-Wallis.

IV. Michael-Wallis.

And four daughters.

5. Joseph-Kirwan Wallis-Healy: eldest son of William Wallis-Healy, of Dublin; living in 1883.

204.—THE "WALSH" FAMILY,

Chief Justice of the Common Pleas.

NICHOLAS WALSH, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas in Ireland, who d. in 1615, m. Mary (d. s.p.), dau. of Sir Arthur Colclough, Knt., and had:

2. Thomas, who was "son of Nicholas, but not by Mary Colclough." This Thomas m. Ellen Power.

205.—THE "WARREN" FAMILY,

Of the English Pale, Ireland.

THE name of Warren is derived from Guarenna, or Varenna, in Calais or Caux, a county in Normandy; and, according to Watson, "Warren" was in that part of France which was Neustria, now Normandy. It belonged to that noble family in France named "de Sancto Martino." Camden, in his "Remaines," says: "Mortimer and Warren are accounted names of great antiquity, yet the father of them (for they were brethren), who first bore those names, was Waltimus de Sancto Martino."

The Barony of Warren, in Normandy, vested in the ancient Earls of Warrenne, who were created Earls of Surrey by King William, after the Conquest.

The descent of William de Warren, created Earl of Surrey, who went to England with the Conqueror, is given as follows in Watson's "History of the Ancient Earls of Warren and Surrey and their Descendants." A Danish Knight had Herfastus, who married, and had a daughter married to Walter de St. Martino, whose son was William de Warrene, Earl of Warren, in Normandy, who married Forta, and had a son William, Earl of Warrenne,* who accompanied William the Conqueror to England, where he died, 24 June 1088, and was buried with his wife. Earl William married the Princess Gundreda, fifth daughter of William the Conqueror;† she was called Countess of Warren, and, dying 27 May, 1085, was buried in the Church of John the Baptist, Southover, near Lewes. The inscription on, or near her tombstone, in the arch of the Shirley Chancel, belonging to the parish church of Isfield, is as follows:

" Within this Pew stands the Tomb-stone
Of Gundred, daughter of William the Conqueror, and wife of William, the Earl of Warren, which having been deposited
Over her remains in the Chapter House
Of Lewes Priory, and lately discovered
In Isfield Church, was removed
To this place, at the expense
Of William Burrell, Esq.,
A.D. 1775."

This Earl of Warren and Surrey was seated at Reigate, or Holmesdale Castle, Castle-Aen Castle, built soon after the Conquest; and Conisborough Castle, built by the Saxons, belonging to King Harold, was bestowed by King William I. on Earl William. He was succeeded by his son William as second Earl of Warren and Surrey, d. 1135. "His other children were Edith, who married Gerard de Gourney; and Reginald de Warren, mentioned with his brother in a grant of their father to his son and heir, William the second Earl, who married Alice, daughter and heiress of William de Wimegay, and by her was ancestor to the Warrens, Lords of Wimegay."‡

This second Earl built Lewes Castle. He married Isabel, daughter of Hugh the Great, brother of Philip, King of France, and had several children, one of whom was Reginald de Warrenne, ancestor of the Warrens of Little Marlow, Poynton, in Cheshire, England; and another was his heir, namely, William, third Earl of Warren and Surrey (ob. 1148),

* Warrenne: From "History of the Warren Family," recorded by Dugdale and Banks: "Ralph Sir de Garrene (so called from a place in Normandy, afterwards named Bellencombe or Bellchamber, near Dieppe, the Baronial seat of the Warrens) was the father of William de Warrenne, who accompanied the Conqueror to England, had vast grants of land there, and was created Earl of Surrey in 1089."

† Conqueror: See Blore's "History of Rutland"; and Manning and Bray's "Surrey," Vol. I., p. 553.

‡ Wimegay: See Additions of Dugdale's Baronetage in "Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica."

who was the last of the male branch of these Earls. He married Adela Talvace, and by her had two daughters: Isabel, Countess de Warren, (d. 1199), who married William de Blois, son of King Stephen, whose mother was Alice, daughter of William the Conqueror; and Gundred, who married Roger de Beaumont, second Earl of Warwick, from whom the Sidneys, Earls of Leicester, are descended.

William de Blois was fourth Earl of Warren and Surrey, in right of his wife, and died in 1159 without issue. His widow married Hameline Plantagenet, son of Geoffrey, brother to King Henry II., who became, in the right of his wife, fifth Earl of Warren and Surrey. The Countess Isabel had by him William, sixth Earl of Warren and Surrey, who had by his second wife Maud, dau. of William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, John, seventh Earl of Warren and Surrey, who married Alice, daughter of Hugh de Brun, and uterine sister to Henry III. of England. He was seated at Peomsey Castle, Sussex; Castle Dinas Brau, in Denbighshire; and Holt Castle. He was succeeded by his son John, eighth and last Earl of Warren and Surrey, who was seated at Beechworth and Sandal Castles, which latter castle he built in the reign of Edward II. He married Joan de Bars, in 33 Edw. I. She became his widow and received dower, 21 Edw. III., and died his widow in 35 Edw. III. His son Edward Warren was born in 1366; served in the Stuart cause in Ireland; had command of the citadel of Belfast, but, having been taken prisoner at the battle of Cavan, he was sent to the Tower of London, whence he was exchanged in 1690, by the influence of a young lady, Miss Anne Spaight, who had seen him in his captivity, and whom he married on his release. In the strength of his loyalty, however, he, returning to Ireland, again joined King James's adherents; was at the Boyne, and went to France in 1692, after the capitulation of Limerick. In 1698, on the invitation of his friend Lord Carlingford (Taaffe), he established himself at Nancy, the capital of Lorraine, bringing over his wife, whom he had previously left in London. He was naturalized in 1701 by Letters Patent of the Duke of Lorraine, who appointed him Commander of the Artillery and Fortifications there, and, he dying in 1733, his son and namesake Edward Warren succeeded to his post; but, Lorraine having been exchanged against Tuscany on the marriage of Francis the First of Lorraine with Maria Theresa, Empress of Germany, this Warren followed his fortunes and obtained a similar preferment in Tuscany. He died in Florence in 1739, leaving four sons, three of whom died (without issue) in the Austrian Service; the fourth Henry-Hyacinth Warren, born in 1732, became a Major in the Tuscan Army, and died in 1781, leaving two sons: 1. Patrick-Leopold-Ledud, born in 1767, and d. at Jamaica in 1796, s.p.; 2. John-Baptiste-Joseph, b. 1769, was a Captain in Dillon's Irish Brigade, until its dissolution, when he took the same rank of Captain, successively, in 33rd and 56th Regiments of Foot (Eng.) He m. Anne-Laurence Marcilly at Pondicherry, by whom he had two sons and two daughters: The eldest son, Edmund, m. and is (1883) residing at Nancy in Lorraine; the second son Henry Hyacinth, b. 1818, d. 1851, s.p.

That the Warrens were among the early emigrants to Ireland is known from official records and monumental evidence. In a genealogical account given of the "Warren" family, seated for hundreds of years in the Pale, and especially in the Manor of Swords, co. Dublin, D'Alton says, in his King James's Irish Army List, "Edward Warren, of Swords, temp. 1642, deduces his own lineage from William de Warren, the first of the name who came to England; and that Edward Warren, a grandson of the Earl of Warren, passed over into Ireland in Strongbow's time—1172. His great-great-grandson, Richard Warren, acquired the Manor of Swords, in addition to Corduff (or Courtduff), in co. Dublin; and these estates the above Edward Warren, of Swords, temp. 1642, inherited in the sixth generation.*"

In Gilbert's "History of the Viceroy's of Ireland," the details of the distribution of Earl Pembroke's property is given; taken from the Patent Rolls of England, in 22 Edw. III., Part 2., m. 45: that relating to the Countess Warren beginning:

"Pars Johannis de Monte Kaniso: Weseforde Burgus xliij. li., xvij. d.," etc.

"Pars Comitisse Warrene: Katherlak Burgus, xxiiij. li., xii. s., iiij. d.," etc., etc.

"Johanne, secunda filia Willielmi Marecalli, comitis, nupta Warreno de Monte Caniso, de qua procreatus est Johannes de Monte Caniso, qui obiit sine herede de se, et post mortem dicti Warreni, Johanne, antedicta filia dicti Willielmi Maresealli fuit nupta Willielmo de Valentia, de quo—Andromarus. Isabel et Elizabethh."

Warren de Monte Caniso (that is the sixth Earl Warren) married Maud, second daughter of William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, and by the order of partition of Henry III., which was afterwards inspected and confirmed by Edward III., the counties of Wexford (corpus comitatus) with the assizes, perquisites, etc., valued at £50 12s. 6d., and the burgh of Wexford, valued at £42 and 17d., with the manors of Rosclare, Karrick (or Carrick), Ferns, etc., were assigned to this Joanna. She had by her husband Warren, a daughter Joanna, who married William de Valentia, who became in her right Earl of Pembroke and Lord or Earl of Wexford, by the selection of his uterine brother King Henry III. To him succeeded Andromar de Valentia,* temp. 1318; after whom the title finally became extinct in this family.

At that early period we find the name of Warren connected with the county of Carlow and the other counties included in the grant to Earl Pembroke; and in searching the annals of this section for early

* Generation: How the Irish Warrens were connected with the ancient Earls of Warren may be gleaned from the following observations: The legitimate son of Dermot MacMurrough, the last King of Leinster, having been slain while a hostage in the hands of the Irish Monarch Roderick O'Connor, Dermot's daughter Eva inherited the "Seignory" of Leinster. This Eva was married to Richard de Clare, Earl of Pembroke, surnamed "Strongbow"; and their daughter Eva was married to William Marshall, who, in her right, became Earl of Pembroke. By virtue of that right the said William Marshall received from King John, in 1205, a confirmatory grant of the seignory of Leinster; to which charter his son-in-law the Sixth Earl of Warren and Surrey (who d. in 1240) was a witness. In the right of this Lordship, this Earl of Pembroke, his sons or co-heirs, afterwards erected almost all the Corporate and Monastic Establishments now existing in the counties of Carlow, Kildare, Kilkenny, and Wexford. On the death of this Earl's five sons without male issue, his estates were divided by King Henry III. amongst the Earl's five daughters. Of the Lordship of Leinster, that part now known as the county of Carlow, was assigned to the Countess of Warren, wife of William de Blois, the Sixth Earl of Warren and Surrey.

* Valentia: From a "View of the Legal Institutions of Ireland."

mention of the name, we find, in 1311, in a Writ of Summons to the Irish Parliament (taken from the "Chief Remembrancer's Office Rolls" Dublin): "Parliamentum de Kilkeunny," the names "Alno fil. Warini, and Wilo le Fyz-Waryue" therein mentioned. And from the reading of the Summons, it appears that they both were summoned to the Parliament held at Kilkenny by the Earl of Ulster, in 1309.

In 1317, Domino Fulcone Warine (Fitz-Warren) accompanied Roger Mortimer, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, with his knights, to Dublin, and held a Parliament at Kilmainham with all the Nobles, in which was treated the liberation of the Earl of Ulster.

The Fitz-Warrens were a powerful family in Ireland at that time. They seem to have been hereditary Seneschals* of Ulster; at least William FitzWarrine was in that office in 1332 and 1375. On 10th August, 1329, Sir John Waryng, of co. Meath, Knt., was killed in battle along with Thomas Butler, younger brother of the first Earl of Carrick, and many others, while, with the English Army, invading Ardnorcher.

In 1414, John Waryng was Abbot of St. Mary's Church at Trim.

In 1485, we find the name of "John Waryng, Prebendarie of Mullaghidart, co. Dublin," which constitutes a prebend in St. Patrick's Cathedral; and at Mullaghidart (Mulhuddart) monumental records of the name are still above ground, since 1679.

Patrick Warren, of Navan, was an M.P. in 1559; and in 1566, under the head of Staplestone, in Kimber's Baronetage, is the name of "Roderigg MacWarren, or Drom MacWarren, of co. Cashell."

Thomas Waringe was an M.P. in 1585; and in 1590 we find the names of: "He. Waringe, of King's County, (and) Tho: Waringe, of the Borough-town of Navan," in a list of the "Lords Spuall (Spiritual) and Tempall, Counties, Cytties and Broughtowns as are answerable to the Plyament (Parliament) in this realme of Ireland, and souche as were sumonde unto Plyament holden befor Rt. Hon. Sir John Perrot, Knigght, lord deputie gen'all of this realme of Ireland XXV. j^o die Aprillis anno regni regine Elizabeth vicissimo septimo."

Elizabeth, daughter of the above Thomas Warren of Navan, and his wife Jane, daughter of Thomas Birt, of Tullock, married Bartholomew Aylmer, Clerk of the Peace for the counties of Kildare and Meath, 1553, and son of Sir Gerald Aylmer, Knt., of Dollardstown, co. Meath (d. 1560), Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, 1553, and had Christopher Aylmer, of Balrath, co. Meath, grandfather of Catherine Aylmer, wife of Capt. Michael Warren, of Warrenstown, co. Meath, who d. 1712.

Andrew, son of John Warrine, of Churchtown, co. Meath, gent., M.P. in 1613, had livery of his Estates in 1609, and died in 1638, leaving a son, John, of Churchtown, born 1600, and married. The attainders of 1642 presented his name, as they also did the following: Captain Edward Warren, of Swords; Alexander Warren, of Ballybine; Captain John Warren, of Castleknock; and Captain Thomas Warren of Sillogue, all of the co. Dublin; also Patrick Warren of Churchtown, co. Meath. The above Captain Edward Warren was among the Confederate Catholics assembled at Kilkenny in 1646 ; as also were Alexander Warren* of Churchtown, co. Meath, and William Warren of Casheltown, who in 1666, passed Patent for 2555 acres of land in co. Down, and also had a grant of 283 acres within the parish of Castleknock, besides parts of Carpenters-town, and the Lusk. He was called also as of Corduff, co. Dublin. He settled in tail-mail 58 acres of land in Lacken on his nephew Captain Thomas Warren of Warrenstown, by deed of 22 March, 1669.

* Seneschals: See Rymer and Davis's Discoveries, and Grace's "Kilkeniensis."

The above Captain John Warren was, in 1686, the Sheriff of the co. Dublin, and in 1689 was Deputy Lieutenant of the said county ; and in that year represented the borough of Carlow in the Irish Parliament. He was attainted as of Warrenstown, co. Meath and co. Carlow, but his forfeitures lay chiefly in the Queen's County, and in the county and town of Carlow. In 1685, he was with twenty-three others appointed "first and modern free burgesses of the borough of Carlow," by King James, upon his accession.

In 1679 he was with eleven others appointed one of the "first and modern free burgesses of the borough of Catherlogh" (Carlow), by Charles II., in 23rd year of his reign.

In 1667, he and William Warren joined in conveying 16½ acres of their Castleknock property (of which the said William had, under the Act of Settlement, obtained a confirmatory grant in 1666) to the Crown, for the purpose of enlarging the Phoenix Park, Dublin. And in 1667, this William Warren of Corduff, and his wife Anne, passed Patent for 858 acres of Land in the co. Wexford. The above Captain Thomas Warren was Sheriff of the co. Dublin, in 1687, and was, again, during the year of King James's sojourn there. He was in King William's Parliament attainted in 1691 by the description as of Corduff, co. Dublin, and of Warrenstown ; and in 1692 charges were brought against William Culliford, a Commissioner of His Majesty's revenue :

"That, for his private advantage he did take to farm the forfeited lands of Captain Thomas Warren of Corduff, from His Majesty's then Commissioners of the revenue, in the name of one Nolan, in trust for him, the said Culliford, and did seize the stock, corn, and household goods of the said Warren, to the value of £500, which were forfeited to their Majesties, and disposed thereof to his own private use."

In 1667, Richard Warren, of Carlow, passed Patent for 1,532 acres of land in the co. Wexford ; Edward, son and heir of Major Abell Warren, passed Patent for 380 acres in the co. Kilkenny ; and John Warren of Corduff, passed Patent for 6,196 acres in Wexford county.

* Alexander Warren : According to Dr. Petty's "Down Survey," Captain Edward Warren and Alexander Warren here mentioned were of the "Committee of Agents of the Army," in 1656, who had charge of settling the "division of the neat lands of Leinster and Ulster" amongst the Army ; and in 1658 they were nominated by the Army for auditing the proceedings of the "Commissioners for the setting out the lands to the Army." The former was appointed "for his zeal and industry in the business of his accommodation in the barony of Balleboy."

The names of Richard Warren, Alexander Warren, Captain Edward Warren, John Warren, and "Abell" Warren, appear very often in 1655 and 1656, as Agents for the respective regiments of Leinster and Ulster, signed to Petitions to the Lord Deputy and Council of Ireland concerning the setting forth of Lands for the satisfaction of the Commonwealth Army,

In 1687, William Warren, of Corduff, co. Dublin, as appears by the Inquisitions of that year, was seized of 283 acres in Upper Castleknock, co. Dublin, 51 acres in Carpenterstown, and 58 acres in Lacken, which he had settled in tail-mail on his nephew.

In 1689, Richard Warren, of co. Carlow, was granted estates by the Parliament during its sitting.

In 1688-1692 the following Warrens of the Pale, were in King James's Irish Army: Thomas Warren, of Warrenstown, Co. Meath, Captain; and Michael Warren,* of Warrenstown, Co. Meath (d. 1712), Ensign in his Company in the King's Regiment of Infantry, which, together with the Regiments of Fitz-James, Lord Galway, Col. John Bourke, Sir Maurice Eustace, Col. Ramsey, Col. John Hamilton, Lord Gilmoy, Lord Abercorn, James Preston, Viscount Gormanstown, Colonel Dominick Sheldon, Col. Charles Cavenagh, and Col. Simon Luttrell, constituted the besieging forces at Derry and Limerick, at the Boyne, and on the fields of Aughrim and Cavan.

Francis Warren, Ensign in Col. Hamilton's Regiment.

Lieut. Warren, and Ensign Warren, in Viscount Gormanstown's Regiment of Infantry.

Nicholas Warren, of Corduff, Captain in Col. Cavenagh's Regiment of Infantry: commission bore date of 1 Dec., 1680.

John Warren, of Warrenstown, Captain; and Richard Warren, of county Carlow, a Lieutenant in his Company, in Sir Maurice Eustace's Regiment of Infantry.

Laurence Warren, Lieutenant in Col. Bourke's Regiment of Infantry.

Edward Warren, of Swords, Captain in Sir Michael Creagh's Regiment of Infantry.

Thomas Warren, of Warrenstown, co. Meath, Cornet in Col. Luttrell's Regiment of Dragoons.

In 1692, Michael, James, and Patrick Warren, of Warrenstown, co. Meath, and Richard Warren, of Corduff, were attainted.

In 1667, Cornet Thomas Warren, of Warrenstown, passed Patent for 408 acres of Land in co. Meath.

Sir William Warren, of Warrenstown, Knt., had a son Anthony, who married Mary, widow of Sir Cahir O'Dogherty, Knt., and daughter of Christopher Preston, 4th Viscount Gormanstown.

* Warren: The above Michael Warren, of Warrenstown, Co. Meath, had, with other children, by Lady Catherine Aylmer, his wife: 1. Admiral Sir Peter Warren, R.N. (d. in Dublin, 1752); 2. Oliver Warren, of Warrenstown (sometime an officer in the Navy of Queen Anne), who was the father of the Rt. Hon. Nathaniel Warren, of Dublin, of whom the following obituary notice was printed in the Gentleman's Magazine:

"1796, 15 Jan.—At his house in Williams St., Dublin, in his 59th year, universally and deservedly lamented, Alderman Nathaniel Warren, Member of Parliament for the borough of Callan, and late Superintendent Magistrate of the new establishment for protecting the peace of the City of Dublin. He filled the office of High Sheriff of that city in 1773, was elected an Alderman in 1775, chosen to the Mayoralty (Mayoralty) in 1782; in 1786, he served the office of High Sheriff of the county of Dublin, and was also Chief Commissioner of Police for many years." For his descendants see our "IRISH PEDIGREES," Third Edition, in pp. 413-414; and Browning's "Americans of Royal Descent": Pedigrees II. and LXV,

Thomas Preston, son of fourth Viscount Gormanstown (and brother of Anthony Warren's wife), created Viscount Taragh (Tara), by Letters Patent, dated 2 July, 1650, was succeeded by his eldest son, Anthony Preston, as second Viscount Taragh; and by Margaret, daughter of the above Anthony Warren, of Warrenstown, Esq., he had several daughters and one son, Thomas, to whom King Charles II. was sponsor. He was killed on the 6 July, 1674 (aged 22), by Sir Francis Blundell, of King's County, Knt., and his brothers William and Winwood, who were all acquitted of the murder, and received His Majesty's Pardon* 19 Dec., 1674.

In 1663, there arose a general clamour in the Pale against the proceedings of the Court of Claims sitting at Dublin; the cause being dissatisfaction with the execution of the Act of Settlement; and some of the boldest spirits resolved to maintain by the sword, the Estates which they enjoyed. A great many Colonels and other officers that served in Cromwell's Army, and in the Armies of the Confederation, entered into a conspiracy for this purpose; and a Private Committee was chosen for the supreme direction of the affair. Among the men that composed this Committee were, the above Lt.-Col. Able Warren, Col. Shapecote, and Capt. Sandford. This plot, however, was abandoned; the Private Committee still continuing their meetings. But, again, in that year there was another plot for surprising the Castle of Dublin, and seizing the Duke of Ormonde, set on foot by some considerable persons; but this plot was also exposed and frustrated. When within twelve hours of being executed, his Grace caused the chief conspirators to be seized. Col. Edward Warren was taken, but Lt.-Col. Able Warren and others made their escape; and a proclamation was issued, on the 26 May, offering a reward of £100 for their apprehension.

Col. Edward Warren was tried and executed with Major Alex. Jephson and Major Thompson, on 15 July, 1663, by order of the Duke of Ormonde. The King was satisfied with these examples of his Justice, and granted his pardon to the next that was taken.†

In the "Narrative of the Proceedings of the House of Commons concerning such of their number as were found guilty of the late Conspiracy," a Bill was introduced into Parliament, stating that "Whereas this House was informed that Able Warren, etc., etc., Esq^s, members of this House, were engaged in the late wicked and horrid plot, etc., etc.," and asking for an investigation, Dated 13 Nov., 1665.†

Among the Catholic defendants in the town of Drogheda, when besieged by Cromwell in 1649, was Col. Henry Warren, and his Regiment; but Col. Warren was slain at the storming.

In 1646, a debate arose before the Parliamentary Committee as to the advisability of admitting this Col. Henry Warren and his Regiment into Dublin, as a garrison for that city. The Marquis of Ormonde said he had a very good opinion of Col. Warren; but the Regiment was, he said, a part of an army which a few days before, attempted to take the city by force, and threatened to cut the throats of all its inhabitants; that they had lately violated a peace—that of Kilkenny—solemnly concluded and by them received, and had broken out into open and violent acts of hostility; they had not been able to carry the place by assault, and were now to be received into it under the notion of defendants, and to be fed by those whom they would besiege no longer. The Marquis had certainly a very difficult part to act for the management of that party who still adhered to the king's authority; but he had, at the same time, the highest resentment against the Confederates, whose war had ruined their fortunes, and he entertained the worst suspicions of such of that party as pretended to return to duty. Besides these apprehensions, there was real danger in admitting Col. Warren's Regiment into the city; for, though the Marquis was satisfied with the Colonel himself, and that Warren had taken particular care to form his Regiment, so as it might be devoted to His Majesty's service, yet it was hard to answer for the rest of the officers.*

Captain Nicholas Warren, of Corduff, co. Dublin, had a son Nicholas Warren, of Killeen, Queen's County, who married Anne Fitzgerald, of co. Kildare, and had by her two sons, Thomas Warren and Holt Warren, of the county Kilkenny. Thomas married Anne Archdeaken (or Archdeacon), of co. Kilkenny, and by her had a daughter, Elizabeth, and a son, Michael Warren, of Sandsford's Court, co. Kilkenny (born in Oct., 1791), who married, in 1825, Sarah, daughter of Millington Eaton Swettenham, of Swettenham Hall, co. Chester, and had Thomas Willis (born 1826), and Robert, born 1836. Samuel Warren was Sheriff in 1824, and Lord Mayor of Dublin in 1837-38.

The above Elizabeth married in 1712, Eusebius, son of Edward Stratford (born 28 June, 1663), by his wife, Euseby Baisley, of Ricketstown, co. Carlow (and grandson of Robert Stratford, Member of Parliament for co. Wicklow), and had Edward, of Ballyconnan, Queen's County, Esq.

In 1687, James Warren was appointed one of the burgesses of the town of Drogheda, under the new charter granted by King James II. in that year. Henry Warren, of Granebegg, co. Kildare, Esq., had by his wife, Elizabeth (daughter of Sir John Eustace), a daughter, Anne, who married in 1660, Dudley Colley, of Castle-Carbery, Esq., and had Henry, who succeeded his father, and in 1705 erected a monument to his memory, setting forth his descent; and a son, Richard, of Granebegg, Esq., who married Mary, daughter of Henry Percy, Esq., and, dying 6 February, 1734, left William Paul, of Granebegg, who married in 1738, Frances (born 1719), daughter of Robert, son of Baron Allen, of Stillorgan, the first Viscount Allen. This William Paul Warren appeared before Parliament, 15 Oct., 1777, with a petition setting forth that, according to the true election returns of 18 May, 1776, he should be entitled to a seat in the Parliament of that year, for the co. Carlow. This petition was, however, withdrawn the following December. He had two children, Richard and Frances.

* Officers : See Carte's "Duke of Ormonde,"

Captain John Warren, mentioned above, was appointed by James II. to assess taxes on property in Queen's County, 10 April, 1690. He was at that time High Sheriff, pro temp., of that county. His estate, attainted, consisted of the town and lands of Nurny, in barony of Forth, and Ballinvally (or Ballivally) in barony of Catherlogh; Coniger or Conniger, Cappaghwater, Laraghteige or Laragh, Garronyony or Gariyounge, Ballykeeneen or Ballykinnin, Aghaclare or Aghilare, and Cooleneshigan or Coolinsygam, in barony of Forth, county Carlow. These lands were conveyed to Maurice (or Morris) Warren, of Nurny, co. Carlow, Esq., on 14 June, 1703, by the then Court of Claims, for consideration of £1,057, to hold to him and his heirs.

"Maurice Warren appears (before the Court of Claims) as claimant to £200 debt, and £6 rent-charge per annum, by bond dated 1 May, 1684, and judgment entered in Hilary Term in the 2 and 3 James II., and assigned to the said claimant by Oliver Keating, 11 Feb., 1698, and also by deed of assignment from Elinor Warren, widow, 11 Feb., 1698, on the lands of Laragh."*

In the Journal of the Irish House of Commons in the list of Sheriffs who had not closed their accounts, 19 Oct., 1722, is the name of this Maurice Warren, Esq. He was Sheriff of the co. Carlow in 1712. He had leased to him land in co. Kildare by Lord Dongan, who was created Earl of Limerick, temp. James II., for his life and the lives of his nephews Edward and William Warren, with a covenant for perpetual renewal. (This William Warren died in the Camp of Dundalk.) Maurice Warren, the lessee, left a son Gilbert, who entered upon the lands, but was unable to obtain a renewal, by reason that the Earl of Athlone, the Patentee of the Estates of the attainted Earl of Limerick, was absent from Ireland.

Henry Warren of co. Carlow, Esq., and the younger children of Captain John Warren, deceased, were by his widow, their mother, executrix for said John Warren, claimants before the Court for £200 portion, by Will dated 13 October, 1694, in the town and lands of Laraghteige and other lands: Claim dismissed.

Thomas Warren claimed before the Court, and was allowed the benefit of a leasehold interest in Lower Castleknock, co. Dublin, forfeited by Earl Tyrconnel.

Corduff in the parish of Castleknock, co. of Dublin, mentioned above, was once the property of the de la Field family; and, subsequently, of the Warren family, who lost it by Writ of Attainder in 1691, but succeeded to certain portions of the denomination afterwards. The fee of which is now (at least it was in 1875) chiefly vested in the devisee of Mr. Locke.

Castleknock, i.e. the "Castle on the Hill" (so called from its baronial fortress above mentioned), is the old burial place of the Warrens of Corduff. The old Castle at Castleknock fell into decay at the time of the Restoration, and was never repaired. Previous to the English invasion of Ireland, it was a royal Danish residence. It was given by Strongbow to Hugh Tyrrel, his "intrinsic friend." This Hugh Tyrrel was first Baron of Castleknock.

* Laragh: From the "Records of the Court of Claims of the County Carlow."

Richard Tyrrell was second Baron, temp. 1184, and his son, Hugh, the third Baron, was seized of the Manor, in 1310. His son, Robert, the fourth Baron, dying, left a daughter, who married Robert Sergeant, who was fifth Baron of Castleknock, in right of his wife. In 1486, Hugh Tyrrell was Lord of Castleknock, the last of that line; and, on his death, without male issue, his inheritance passed to those who married his daughters: John Burnell, temp. 1532, was one of them. The quantity of land forfeited in 1641, under the Cromwellian Settlement, in the barony of Castleknock, was 3,344 acres.

* Bellew : This Patrick Bellew was cousin or nephew to the Right Rev. Philip Bellew, formerly Catholic Bishop of Killala ; and Patrick's father, who was a native of Ballinrobe, had to leave Ireland on account of the political troubles of his time in Ireland.

210.—THE “BLAND” FAMILY.

Arms: Ar. on a bend sa., three pheons of the field.

Crest: Out of a ducal coronet or. a lion's head ppr.

Motto: Sperate et virite fortes.

According to Nicholson's History of Westmoreland (Vol. I., p. 253), this surname is derived from Bland or Bland's Gill, in the chapel of How Gill and parish of Sedburg, in Yorkshire, England. Thoresby says (see Ducatus Leodensis, Vol. I., p. 126), that the family took its name from the Hamlet of Blond. The earliest mention, however, that we find of the name is in the year 1132; in connection with the Abbey of Fountains, of which Richard, son of Hugh Bland, of Disford, was a benefactor. The name “Bland” was then sometimes written Blund, which has been modernized Blunt and Blount.

One branch of this family has resided at Orton, in Westmoreland, since 1377; and another settled in Ireland. The Rev. James Bland, in 1692, was Vicar of Killarney; and Dean of Ardfert in 1721. He m. Lucy, dau. of Sir Francis Brereton, of Dublin; and his son Francis, grandson James, and great-grandson Francis succeeded him as Vicar of Killarney.

213.—THE "CLAIBORNE" FAMILY.

Of Romancock, in Virginia, United States, America.

Motto : "Confide Rectiagens."

WILLIAM CLAIBORNE, the second son of Edmond, who is No. 12 on the "Cleburne" pedigree, was the ancestor of this branch of that family.

13. William* (b. 1587, d. 1676): second son of Edmond, of Cleburne Hall; was Secretary of the Colony of Virginia. (See Note "Secretis" under the "Cleborne" Genealogy). This William m. Jane Buller, of London, and had three sons and one daughter:

214.—THE "CLEBORNE" FAMILY.†

Arms: On a field argent, three Chevronets interlaced in base sable. A Chief of the last. (For Cliburne of Westmoreland; Hay-Close, Cumberland; Killerby, in Yorkshire, England: and of St. John's Manor, Wexford; and Ballycullatan, county Tipperary, Ireland.)

THE name Cliborne (from Sax. "clœia," clayey; "borne", a stream) is first mentioned in the Domesday Survey, A.D. 1086, Vol. I., 234. It occurs in a return of the Leicestershire possessions of Robert de Veci, who inherited the lands of Ethelrie; but as no manor of this name is found in any history of that county, it is inferred that "Cliborne," in Westmoreland, was for convenience, entered under "Ledecestscire." "Entries of one county," says Ellis, "are often in the Domesday placed in another; as the manors of Hanlie and Forhilmestone in Gloucestershire are entered in Herefordshire." (Domesday, 180 b.) Lapley, in Staffordshire, is entered under Northamptonshire (222 A. Freeman's Norm. Cong. 680); and Deorman's lands, in Essex, are found under Middlesex (Domesday, 130. b.) Of the descent of the manor from the 11th to the 13th century but little is known. Nicholson† (Hist. of Westm. Vol. I. 457)

* William: This (Captain) William Claiborne agreed to furnish fifty planters to the Plowden Plantation in America, in 1634.—See Articles of Agreement enrolled in Dublin Record Office, 1633-34.

† Family: This family was early connected with Irish affairs; for in the Close and Patent Rolls, 29 Edw. III. (preserved in the Record Office, Dublin), mention is made of Robert de Cliburne, who was Knight of the Shire of Westmoreland, and Lord of the Manor of Cleburne, in that county, A.D. 1336.

‡ Nicholson: Nicholson's Pedigrees and those of Atkinson (of Whitehaven, 1793) differ but slightly from the "Visitations," "Inquisitions Post Mortem," and other Public Records. Jackson follows Atkinson (Rouge Croix), in the marriage of "John, a son of Rowland Cliburn" (see the "Curwen" pedigree). Hanson's and Slaughter's Pedigrees agree (see "History of Bristol Parish," p. 166).

says, "it was early divided into two moieties: Cliburn Tailbois, and Cliburn Hervey. The former derived its name from a branch of the Tailbois, Barons of Kendal"; the latter, from Hervey-de Veci-le Breton or FitzHugh. With the latter, the arms and Breton names of Alan and Hervey indicate close alliance; but Sedgewick (Pembroke MSS. at Appleby) derives its name from "Hervey (? Grandson of Vesci), 1134, Hervey de Cliborn 1174, Alan 1217, Hervey, temp. Edw. I." According to Palgrave (Baronetage, Vol. III., 389), Alan de Clibburne was living temp. Hen. III., A.D. 1267. This Alan married Joan de Ravenswet, and had a daughter Idonea* who married Walter, son of Tancred the Seneschal of Knaresborough (Le Neve's MSS. Vol. III., 114). The issue of that marriage was George Tankard, of Borrowbridge, in Yorkshire, who died s.p. temp. Hen. III.

The following inscription is from a Brass in Cliburn Church, near Penrith, in Westmorelandshire, England:

"Ad majorem Dei gloriam atque in memoriam claræ insignisque gentis Herviæ de Cliborne, Alani scilicet de Clibburne, qui anno gratiæ MCCXVII.; Godfredi vero filii Herveii de Cleborne, qui anno MCCCXV.; Roberti quoque de Cliburn, qui anno MCCCXXXVI. floruit, quique primus extitit Comitatus Westmerlandensis eques, necnon et ipsius nepotum, hujus manerium maneriumque de Bampton Cundale Bampton Patrick ac knyve Patric in eodem Comitatu veterum Dominorum. Insuper et in memoriam Gulielmi de Cleyborne seu Claiborne primi e Secretis† Coloniz Virginienensis, qui anno vixit MDCXXVI.; Gulielmi de Cleburne prædii a sancto Johanne Comitatus Wexfordiensis in Hibernia domini; Gulielmi Cleburne de Castello Ballycullatans Comitatus Tippereriensis, qui obiit die xxii mensis Octobris anni MDCXXXIV.; Ricardi denique Cleburne de Ballycullatan Annagh deque Bunnadubber in eodem Comitatu ejusdemque fato jam functorum nepotum, hæc tabella et fenestra posite sunt."

On the south window of the said church is the following inscription:

"Ad majorem Dei gloriam et in Memoriam Gulielmi et Edwardi et Gulielmi filii nepotis pronepotemque Ricardi Cleborne de Castello Ballycullatani armigeri eorumque conjugibus et filiis. In memoriam quoque Christopheri Cleburne filii proxime supra dicti Gulielmi, qui natus est die quarto Decembris, 1793, obiit vero undecimo Novembris, 1848, ipsiusque amatissimæ uxoris Johannæ, quæ tertio die Januarii, 1862, ætatis suæ sexagesimo secundo decessit."

From Hervey, of Cliburne, who, according to the Escheats of 8 Edw. II., lived A.D. 1307, the following line is deduced:

1. Hervey de Cliburne , living 1292 (20 Edw. I.) and 1307 (Edw. II.), had:	2. Geoffrey (living in 1315), who in the Escheats of 8 Edw. II. is styled "Fil Hervei." He held, by
---	---

* Idonea: She was so named after Idonea de Leyborne, to whom, according to the Hist. of Westmd., Vol. I., p. 275, the demesne land "Cliborne" then belonged.

† Secretis: The William Claiborne (No. 13 on the "Claiborne" of Romancock, Virginia, U.S.A., pedigree), "primi e Secretis Coloniz Virginienensis" here mentioned, was not the first Secretary of the Colony of Virginia, unless the assertion means (what it does not state) that he was the first Secretary under King Charles I., and the new form of Colonial government. This William was appointed Surveyor-General of the "Old Dominion," through the influence of his mother's cousin the eccentric Anne, Countess of Pembroke, whose husband was one of the most prominent members of the London Company. The connection must have been through the Sandfords: Grace, the mother of the said William Claiborne, was daughter of Alan Bellingham, by his second wife Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Sandford of Askham; and, in the "Memoirs of the Countess of Pembroke," she speaks of "my cousin Thomas Sandford" wife at Askham."

knight service in Cliburne, Lowther, Clifton and Melkanthorpe (Collin's Peerage, p. 428).

3. Robert Cliburn, of Cliburn-Hervey (Inq. Post Mortem, 9 Edw. III., A.D. 1336), Knight of the Shire of Westmoreland, 7 Rich. II. A.D. 1384: son of Geoffrey; had a brother Thomas, whose daughter Alice m. John Wray, of Richmond (Eng. Baronetage, Vol. I. 241). Sir Robert de Cliburn m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Henry, Lord of Cundale and Kyme (43 Edw. III. A.D. 1370), and had:

4. John de Clyburn, who was the first husband of Margaret (A.D. 1392). Her second husband was John Warthecoppe, of Warcup. The issue of John de Clyburn were: 1. Roland; 2. John.

5. John Cleborne: second son of John de Clyburn and Margaret (Inq. P. M. 10, Hen. V., A.D. 1423) m. and had:

6. Rowland Clyborn, of Cliburn

Hall (Inq. Post Mort. 34 Hen. VI., A.D. 1456), who m. and had:

7. John, of Cliburne, co. Westmoreland, who d. 8 August, 1489 (Inq. P. M. 4 Hen. VII.) He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Curwen of Workington Hall, in Cumberland (see "Curwen" pedigree), and had:

8. Thomas Cleburne, of Cleburne Hall, b. in 1467 (Inq. P. M. 4 Hen. VII., 19 Hen. VIII.), who m. and had:

9. Robert, of Cliburne and Killerby, in Yorkshire (24 Hen. VIII., 1533), and Nicholas who d. unm. Robert Cleburne m. Emma (living 1482), dau. and co-heir of George Kirkbride, of Kirkbride, in Northumberland, and had Edmund, of Killerby, in Yorkshire, and a dau. Eleanor, m. to Richard Kirkbride, of Ellerton, by whom she had Bernard Kirkbride, who d. 1622.

This Genealogy is continued in the Pedigree of "Cleburne" of St. John's Manor, co. Wexford, Ireland; which comes next after this.

217.—THE “CURWEN” * FAMILY.

ACCORDING to Jackson, p. 9 of his “Curwens of Workington Hall,” the Armorial Bearings of this family are: Arms—Argent, fretty gules, a chief azure. Crest: A unicorn’s head erased argent, unguled and crined or,—horned or and argent. Supporters: Dexter, a maiden ppr. with golden hair girdled round the loins; sinister, a unicorn argent, unguled and crined or, horned or and argent. These resemble the Arms of the Flemings, and “probably” says Jackson “indicated an early marriage with that family.”

DUNCAN† I., King of Scotland, who (see p. 41 of the Third Edition of our “IRISH PEDIGREES”) is No. 108 on the Lineal Descent of the present Royal Family of England, had two elder brothers—1. Maldred (1050), 2. Cospatrik: from this Maldred the Curwen family is descended:

108. Maldred: eldest son of Beatrix; m. Aldigitha (according to “Symeon of Durham,” Vol. I., pp. 92-213), and had:

109. Cospatrik, Earl of Northumberland and Dunbar (A.D. 1072), who had: 1. Gunilda, to whom her brother, Waltheof, gave Camerton; 2. Waltheof, Lord of Allendale (1156); 3. Fergus, Lord of Gallo-way; 4. Ethelreda, who (see Note “Duncan,” infra) m. Duncan II.,

King of Scotland (who d. 1095), and had issue.

110. Gunilda: the elder daughter of Cospatrik; m. Orme,† Lord of Seaton. (See at No. 3 on the “Lancaster” pedigree.)

111. Cospatrik, first Lord of Workington: their son; d. 1179. (See Pipe Roll, 24 Henry II.)

112. Thomas, who d. 7 Dec., 1152: his son; m. Grace, and had:

* Curwen: See Note p. 96 of this Volume.

† Duncan: Duncan I., who was murdered by Macbeth in 1041, was the son of Beatrix, dau. of Malcolm II., son of Kenneth III. (who d. 994), son of Malcolm I. (who d. 958), son of Donald (who d. 903), son of Constantine (who d. 878), son of Kenneth MacAlpin (who d. 834), son of Alpin (who d. 834).—See the Saxon and Scoto-Pictish lines from the ancient Chronicles and Lavoisne’s Atlas. The Chronicle of the Picts and Scots (MS. Cott. Faustina A. VIII.) has: “Malcolm filii Dunecani, filii Betoeh, filii Malcolmi, filii Kynath,” and traces the line to “Jafeth filii Noe.” Duncan I. had: 1. Donald Bane, who d. 1098; 2. Malcolm III., who d. 1094; 3. Margaret. Malcolm III. was twice married: first, to Igibjorg (d. 1064), and had Duncan II., who d. in 1095; and, secondly, to Margaret of England, by whom he had David (d. 1153), King of Scotland, who (see p. 402 of our “IRISH PEDIGREES”) is No. 110 on “The Stem of the Royal Family of England.” Duncan II. married Etheldreda, and had: William FitzDuncan, Baron of Allerdale, who m. Alice de Romly (1160), and had: 1. Cecily, Countess of Albermarle, who m. William le Gros (d. 1179); 2. Amabel, who m. Reginald Lucy, and had Ricardo Lucy of Egremont; 3. Alice, who d. in 1210.

‡ Orme: Of this marriage of Orme with Gunilda, Jackson (at p. 3 of his Curwens of Workington) says: “No more noble and ancient strain of blood flows in the veins of any in our land, than can be deduced—and that in irrefragable evidence—through this marriage.”

- I. Thomas (1212), who m. Joan, dau. of Robert de Veteriporte (1212).—Monast. V., 610.

218.—THE "DUFFY" FAMILY,

County Monaghan.

FRANCIS DUFFY, of Kilerow, in the parish of Ematris, and county of Monaghan, m. a dau. of The MacMahon, of Dartry, and had:

2. Patrick Mor, of Attyduffy, or Attyduff, who m. Mary, eldest dau. and co-heir of Captain John Dawson, a Cromwellian Officer, who settled at Drummany, co. Monaghan; and by her acquired an interest in the lands of Drummany, Drummyarken, and Attyduff. By the said Mary, Patrick Mor had two sons and a daughter.

I. Patrick, of whom presently.

II. Rev. John, a Priest, who d. in 1744, and was buried in Ematris (otherwise called Edragoole), where his tomb still exists.

I. Mary, who m. a Mr. Colvin, of Dublin.

3. Patrick: son of Patrick; removed from Attyduff, and settled in Monaghan. His kinsmen, the Dawsons of Drummany House (descended from Dorothea, the younger of the two daus. and co-heirs of Captain John Dawson, who m. a gentleman of her own name from Londonderry), having filed a "Bill of Discovery" against him, or adopted some such process under the Penal Laws, they "ousted" the said Patrick out of his property. He was also engaged for a long time in litigation with his brother-in-law, Mr. Colvin. This Patrick Duffy m. circa 1712 Elizabeth Duffy (a niece or cousin of the MacKenna of Trough), and had:

I. Philip, of whom presently.

II. Francis of Monaghan, who had:

I. John, of Monaghan, who m. Anne, dau. of Patrick Gavan, Esq., of Latnamard (by his wife Judith, dau. and co-heir of Bernard MacMahon of Rekane, who was cousin-german of Ross and Bernard MacMahon, Archbishops of Armagh; and who was grandson of Colla Dhu MacMahon, titular Baron of Dartry). By Miss Gavan, John Duffy had two sons: I. Francis, who m. Miss Hope, of co. Westmeath, and left an only dau. Fanny, who m. William Maunsell, Esq. II. Charles, now (1883) the distinguished and illustrious Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, K.C.M.G.; formerly Editor and Proprietor of the Dublin Nation, M.P. for New Ross, and lately Prime Minister of one of our Colonies in Australia.

4. Philip: son of Patrick; m. Anne Kerr, of the co. Longford. He removed to Cootehill in 1752, and, dying in 1803, left two sons:

1. Terence, of whom presently.

II. Bernard, who, having quarrelled with his father, enlisted in the British Army. He m. Anne Jeffares of Emyvale, and had an only child, the late:

I. General Sir John Duffy K.C.B., who m. a dau. of General Campbell, and d. s.p.

5. Terence Duffy, of Cootehill: son of Philip; m. Anne, dau. of — MacCabe of Lissimy, and dying, in 1831, aged 80, was buried in Ematrix. He had three sons:

I. Francis.

II. Owen of Cootehill, from whose statement in (1865) this pedigree was compiled.

III. Terence, M.D., who went out to Bolivia, or Chili, to his kinsman, General John MacKenna.

219.—THE "FAY" FAMILY.*

Amongst the gentry of Westmeath attainted in 1641, and whose estates were confiscated by Cromwell, appears the name of Edward Fay of Dernegara and Gartlandstown. His estate, so confiscated, comprised the

* Family: There was a branch of this family seated in the county Kildare, which for many generations occupied the position of political agents and confidential trustees to the Earls of Kildare. The head of this family, Nicholas Fay of Ballinnure, was specially exempted from pardon for life or estate by Cromwell. Another branch of the family was seated at Trumroe, in Westmeath, which was similarly "favoured." Both these families appear to have recovered some part of their estates at the Restoration; as George Fay, of Jamestown, in the Queen's County, mortgaged townlands of Dernegara, Comerstown, Ballindrinan, Bartonstown, Martinstown, Cussenstown, Christianstown, Aghlost or Ankerland, Carrick, Rathbuet, Great Corr, Little Corr, Glanidan Corbally, and Knockcross, containing in the whole some 8,000 acres, and now valued by the Government Valuation at upwards of £6,000 per annum.

The above lands had been long in the possession of the family, which was early and respectably settled in the Pale. In 1219 Sir Richard De Fay was Knight of De Lacy, Lord of Meath. In 1295 George De Fay, or De La Fay, was seized of lands in Meath in right of his wife Isabelle, dau. of the fifth Baron of Delvin. In 1350 John Engelande, a trustee, conveyed to Richard FitzGeorge De Fay, Comerstown, Ballindrinan, &c., above named, in Tail Male, with remainder to Roger De Fay, who succeeded to the estate; and, dying in 1380, left a son John FitzRoger Fay, who was seated at the Castle of Dernegara, the ruins of which are still traceable on a hill a few miles south of Castle Pollard. For the early ancestry of this family, see our IRISH PEDIGREES, Third Edition.

1. Gerald Fay, of Dernegara; was Sheriff of Westmeath in 1565. He died in 1576, having had by Joan FitzGerald, his wife: 1. George, his heir; 2. James, of Christians-town; and 3. Ishmay, wife of Christopher Evers, of Retain.

2. George Fay, of Comerstown: son of Gerald; died vita patris; m. Mary, dau. of Redmond Oge FitzGerald, of Timmahoe, county Kildare (by his wife Anne Sutton), and had: 1. Gerald; 2. George, s.p.; 3. Redmond, s.p.; 4. Meyler. The eldest son Gerald, of Dernegara, m. Margaret, dau. of Robert, son and heir of Sir Thomas Nugent, of Carlanstown (uncle to the then Lord Delvin); but dying, s.p. in 1612, was succeeded by his youngest brother:

3. Meyler Fay, of Comerstown, who by Margery Nugent, his wife, had Edward, his only son; and four daughters, named in their father's Will, which was proved in 1629.

4. Edward Fay, of Dernegara and Gartlandstown: son of Meyler; m. Eliza, dau. of Theobald Nugent, of New Haggard (by his second wife, Mary, dau. of Edmond Nugent, of Carolanstown, by the latter's second wife, Mary Cusack, of Cussington, niece of Edmund, Lord Killeen). Theobald Nugent's first wife, we may observe, was dau. of Lord Trimlestown; and Edmond Nugent's, dau. of Lord Dunsaney. This Edmond was ancestor of the extinct Earls Nugent.

In 1638 Edward Fay conveyed his estates to George Aylmer, of Lyons, and Richard Nugent, of Robinstown, for the purposes of a family settlement; but, subsequently taking a very active part in the great national struggle of 1641, he was attainted, and his estate confiscated.

Ballinure in 1730; and George Fay of Castlepollard, whose Will is dated in the same year, and preserved in the Registry of Deeds Office, leaves a conditional bequest to his brother Michael "in case I (the Testator) should hereafter enjoy my estate of Tromroy": a condition of hope not unusual in the Jacobite Wills of the period.

This George was brother of the gallant Jeffrey Fay, Captain in Sir Neil O'Neil's Regiment of Horse, who gave his name to "Fay's Ford," on the Boyne, and who was popularly said to be the last man (aided by his brothers) who opposed the passage of the Williamite Army. Jeffrey was killed at the Battle of Assanno, in Italy, in 1714. —See Letter preserved in the Archives of the Franciscan Convent, Merchant's Quay, Dublin.

On the Restoration, this settlement is recited in a Decree dated March, 1663, restoring a portion of the property to Richard Nugent as trustee for the four surviving sons of Edward Fay, viz.: 1. Garret, of whom presently; 2. Meyler, of Comerstown, who d. s.p., in 1688; 3. Stephen, a Priest, who d. in 1687; 4. Thomas, of Togher, of whom hereafter.

The eldest son, Garret, resided at the Castle of Dernegaragh, and, dying in April, 1687, left: 1. Mary, m. to Luke Cashell, gent., of Sturrock, in Louth, and of Down, in Westmeath; 2. Anne,* who m., first, Nicholas Stafford, and, secondly, Nicholas Read, Esq., of Dunboyne; 3. George Fay, of Gartlandstown, a Captain of Foot in the service of King James II., who, having been included in the Articles of Limerick, saved the estate, which in 1730 was in possession of his daughters and co-heirs, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Lessac.

Edward Fay d. in March, 1685, and the male line of the family was continued by his youngest son.†

5. Thomas Fay, of Dernegara, who m., in 1660, Anne, sister of — Blake, Esq., of Castletown, by whom he had: 1. Martin, 2. John Mor, 3. Thomas Mor; and a dau. Frances, who m. Thomas Johnson, Esq., son of John O'Neil, of Dunganon, and his wife Lettice, dau. of Lord Blayney. From this marriage descend the Johnson family of Warrenstown, in Meath; and Sir W. S. Johnson, Bart., of Twickenham. In 1680 and 1684, Bills in Chancery were filed against Thomas Fay, by his brother Garret, and by J. Monk, and John Piggott, for his having entered into possession of Comerstown, Ballindrinan, &c. He was attainted in 1691, being then described as of Togher; and subsequently settled at Damaelstown, in Meath.

6. Martin Fay, of Damaelstown and Corboggy: son of Thomas; m. in 1709, Catherine, dau. of — Malone, of Possextown, (by Ann, dau. of Thomas Plunket, Esq., of Possextown and Gibbstown), and dying in 1765 left issue: 1. Thomas, 2. Patrick, 3. John. The eldest son:

7. Thomas, of Annsbrook, and Mayo House, county Meath, and Drumbirk, co. Cavan, d. Jan., 1796, aged 86, (Will dated 25 Jan., 1796), leaving two sons: 1. Patrick, whose issue is extinct in Ireland; and 2. John.

8. John Fay, of Ballyhaise, who d. Jan. 1836, aged 76, leaving: 1. Thomas, of whom hereafter; 2. James, of Moyne Hall; 3. Patrick, who d. s.p.; 4. John, d. s.p. James Fay, of Moyne Hall, d. in 1863, leaving John, of Moyne Hall, who was High Sheriff of Cavan in 1874; and Thomas, B.A., of Dublin, and Heath Lodge, who d. s.p. in 1879.

9. Thomas Fay, of Faybrook, co. Cavan, d. 4 Sep., 1878, aged 86; leaving issue four sons: 1. Patrick MacCabe Fay, J.P., Chevalier of the Legion of Honour; 2. Thomas-Francis, of Trim; 3. James-Henry, of Faybrook, J.P., High Sheriff of Cavan in 1881; 4. Charles-Joseph, J.P., M.P. for Cavan; all living in 1883.

* Anne: By her second husband (Mr. Read of Dunboyne), Anna Fay (whose Will was proved in 1735) left issue two daughters, co-heirs, of whom Jane m. Andrew Palles, of Mount Palles, co. Cavan, ancestor of the Right Hon. the Chief Baron Palles, of Dublin, living in 1883.

† Son: Edward Fay had daughters, of whom Mary m. Oliver Nugent of Mabestown, who died in 1682 leaving Henry Nugent, who m. Eleanore Burrowes of Stradone House, co. Cavan.

220.—THE "FITZWILLIAM" FAMILY.

SIR RICHARD FITZWILLIAM, m. Jane Plunket, and had :

- I. Sir Thomas, first Lord Fitzwilliam, created in 1629.
- II. Richard, "of the Rock."
2. Richard Fitzwilliam, "of the Rock": son of Sir Richard; m. a daughter of Sir Thady Duff, and had :
3. William, who married Mary Plunket,* and had :

4. Thomas (d. 1736), who m. Mary, dau. of Thomas Luttrell (No. 4 on the "Luttrell" pedigree, infra), and had :

- I. Richard, of whom presently.
- II. Alice (b. 1730), who married William Miller, No. 4 on the "Miller" pedigree, infra.
5. Richard Fitzwilliam: son of Thomas; was Governor of the Bahamas Islands in 1732.

221.—THE "JOYCE" FAMILY,

Of Joyces' Country,† West Galway.

THOMAS DE JORSE had a brother, Walter, and another, Roland.

2. Edmond, called "Edmond MacMara": son of Thomas de Jorse. Had four sons: 1. Walter, of whom presently; II. Richard, III. Edward, IV. Rickard; Edward and Rickard settled in Leinster.

3. Walter: eldest son of Edmond; had :

4. Ulick,‡ who had :

5. Thomas (2), who had :
 6. Tioboid (or Theobold), who had :
 7. Giollo (or Gill), who had :
 8. Theobald (2), who had :
 9. Edmond (2), who had :
 10. Ulick (2), who had :
 11. Theobald (called Tioboid na Caisleín§), who lived in the Castle of Renvyle, and d. 1600.
- This Theobald had :
1. Edmond, of whom presently.

* Plunket : This Mary was daughter of Oliver Plunket, the third son of Plunket, Lord of Killeen. Oliver's two elder brothers were : 1. Earl of Fingal ; 2. Sir Nicholas Plunket.

† Country : The O'Hallorans, MacConroys, and O'Kynes, possessed before the Joyces, the territory now known as "Joyces' Country," which was anciently called Hy-Orbsen.—For a historical account of the "Joyce" family, see pp. 470-471 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES."

‡ Ulick : This name implies a marriage alliance with the "Bourke" family.—See the origin of the name Ulick, in note, p. 417, ibid.

§ Tioboid na Caisleín : This Theobald was so called because of the castles and strongholds he had built, viz. : Doon Castle, near Clifden ; and Castle Kirk, on an island of Lough Corrib, commanding the entrance to his territory in that direction. He also built a stronghold near Clonbur, on the eastern boundary of his territory, and, it is believed, the Abbey of Ross Hill, adjacent thereto. He ruled from 1570 to 1600.

Renvyle (or Rinvile) Castle, which commands the entrance to Killery Bay, and which originally belonged to the O'Hallorans of West Connaught, afterwards became the property of the Joyces ; and was once unsuccessfully attacked by the famous Grace O'Malley, the mother of Toby Bourke (or Tioboid na Luinge), above mentioned who (see p. 423, ibid) is No. 28 on "The Bourkes, Lords Viscount Mayo" Genealogy.

- II. Miles, who also lived in Renvyle Castle.*
12. Edmund (3): son of Theobald; had:
13. Thomas (3), who had:
14. Ulick (3), who had:
15. Ulick (4), who had:
16. Ulick (5), who had:
17. Gill (2), who had:
18. Theobald (4), who had:
19. Giolla (or Gill) Dubh, who d. 1774. This Gill Dubh was an extensive landed proprietor, and lived in the beautiful Vale of Glanglas, which is (in 1883) in the possession of his successors.
20. Theobald: son of Gill Dubh; had:
- I. Gill, of whom presently.
- II. Edward,† who was remarkable for his incredible strength and gigantic stature.
21. Gill (4): son of Theobald; had:

22. Patrick, who had:
23. Shane Bán (or John the Fair), his only son, who d. in 1856. This Shane had, besides a daughter Mary, four sons:‡
- I. Patrick, of whom presently.
- II. Theobald.
- III. John.
- IV. Thomas.
24. Patrick§ Joyce, of Mounterowen House, Leenane: eldest son of Shane Bán. Had five sons living in 1883:
- I. John.
- II. Peter.
- III. Patrick.
- IV. Theobald (or Tobias).
- V. Thomas Francis.
- And five daughters.
25. John (3): eldest son of Patrick; living in Greggins in 1883.
26. Patrick Joyce (3): his eldest son; b. in 1858, and living in 1883 in Joyce's Country.

* Castle: See O'Flaherty's Iar Connacht (or "West Connaught"), p. 119, Note a. According to the same authority (p. 309, Note e), the Joyces assumed the name MacThomas, after Thomas who is No. 1 on this Genealogy; and, ibid, p. 45, MacThomas Joyce inhabited Castlekirk, in 1586.

† Edward: Blake, in his "Letters from the Irish Highlands" (1823), says of this Edward, or "Big Ned," as he was called: . . . "Big Ned Joyce being between six and seven feet in height and large in proportion; from the roof (of his house) hung down stores of smoked geese and mutton, instruments of fishing, and other articles which showed the remains of former prosperity."

‡ Sons: These four sons had twenty-five male children, of whom twenty-one were living in 1877; varying in stature from 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet 6 inches. Henry D. Inglis, in his work on Ireland, written in 1837, says:

"The Joyces are a magnificent race of men; the biggest, and stoutest, and tallest I have seen in Ireland . . . but Jack Joyce (No. 23 on this Genealogy) is huge even among them. He is as near akin to a giant as a man can well be, without being every bit a giant. In breadth, height, muscle, and general aspect, he is like a man—if not of another race—the descendant of another race. He looks upon himself as a sort of King of that country—Joyces' Country—as indeed he is."

§ Patrick: We are pleased to find by the report of the Land Court, presided over by Judge Ormsby, that, in November, 1882, this Patrick Joyce, of Mounterowen House was declared the purchaser in fee of the townland of Mounterowen West, upon which he (in 1883) resides; and also the adjoining village of Culloghbeg. And we congratulate Mr. Patrick Joyce upon his thus regaining even a part of the once vast patrimony of his ancestors, of which they were deprived by the Cromwellian Consecutions in Ireland.

Another Branch of 222.—THE "LOWTHER"* FAMILY.

WILLIAM DE LOWTHER, living 32 Henry II., m., and had :

226.—THE "MEYLER" FAMILY, County Wexford.

THIS family name is sometimes known as Maelor or Meyler. Camden says that "Mailor or Maylor, a renowned soldier, went out of Pembroke-shire to the conquest of Ireland with Strongbow;" the place from which he came is still called "Lough Meyler." Since then the name has been connected with the county Wexford; and from a very early period the family held the Manor of Duncormack, down to 1641.

Peirce FitzMeiler was summoned among the Magnates in 1302. Sir Ralph Mailor was first Commissioner over the Abbey of Dunbrody, before 1347; and his son Robert, of Duncormack, was married to "Rose of Ross," and died in 1356.

John Meeler, of Duncormack, was Cust. Pac. of the co. Wexford, in the reign of Edward III.; and the King committed to him custody of the county during pleasure.

Adam Meyler was summoned among the gentlemen of Wexford, in the same reign, with Horse and Arms.

Patrick Meyler, of the Dirre, was one of the gentlemen of the barony of Shelmalier, in 1608.

Nicholas Mayler (d. 1583), of Duncormack, m. Anne FitzHenry, and had two sons:

† Nicholas: This Nicholas had a cousin, Nicholas Mayler, who was Parish Priest of Tocumshane and Tomhaggard, and who, on Christmas Morning, 1653, was killed while he was celebrating Mass in a "Knock" at Linkstown, in the barony of Bargy, and county of Wexford. He was the morning after buried in the old church of Tomhaggard. His chalice is still in existence. This Rev. Nicholas lived with his brother, Thomas Mayler, at Ballyhealy, in the parish of Kilmore. Thomas was m. to Mary Devereux, of Balmagir, and d. leaving a son, Thomas, of Ballyhealy, and a daughter, Mary.

‡ Sons: Seven of those sons perished in the Darien Expedition.

§ Ellison: This Grizzle Ellison was a daughter of James Ellison, whose mother was a daughter of Sir David Lindsay.

6. Rev. Fitzwilliam Miller (d. 1825), Domestic Chaplain to His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent. This Fitzwilliam Miller was twice m. : his first wife was Anne Mac-Naughten, by whom he had three sons and four daughters.

230.—THE “VERNON”† FAMILY,

Of Clontarf, County Dublin.

Arms : Arg., a fret sa.

Crest : A boar's head erased sa. ducally gorged or.

Motto : Vernon semper viret.

WE find that this ancient family can trace its descent in the female line from Edward Plantagenet (d. 1296), Earl of Lancaster, and son of Henry III., King of England; and, in the male line, back to A.D. 1052.

Colonel Edward Vernon, of North Aston, in Staffordshire, England, second son of Sir Edward Vernon (d. 1657), of Houndshill and Sudbury, England, was one of the A.D. 1649 Officers †; he landed with Charles the Second at Dover in 1660; and by that Monarch was granted the Manor of Clontarf. From John, a younger brother of the said Col. Edward Vernon, this family is descended.

* William O'Shea: This Pedigree is authenticated by the Lord Bishop of Limerick, Ardferit and Aghadoc, under the Consistorial Seal, dated 1st June, 1818; also by the Mayor and Sheriff of the Citizens of Limerick.

† Vernon : Among the “Papist Proprietors” in Ireland, whose estates were confiscated under the Cromwellian Settlement, appears the name of “John Vernon, of Clonmore,” in the Barony of Ardee, county Louth; so that we thus find there was a “Vernon” Family in Ireland before the Commonwealth period.—See the last name in the barony of Ardee, under the heading, “Forfeiting Proprietors,” in the co. Louth, in Paper No. 6 in the Appendix.

‡ Officers : For a List of “The 1649 Officers,” see the Paper No. 10 in the Appendix.

APPENDIX.

1.—ENGLISH AND SCOTCH PLANTERS IN IRELAND

In the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth and James the First.

WHILE the Genealogies contained in this Volume are given in alphabetical order, we have thought it best to observe chronological sequence in the subjects mentioned in the Papers inserted in this Appendix ; commencing with the reigns immediately preceding the Commonwealth period in Ireland. We therefore commence with the reigns of Elizabeth and James the First.

According to Sir Richard Cox and the Carew Manuscripts, the following were "Planters" in Ireland in those reigns :

IN THE COUNTY CORK :

5.—SUMMARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH RECORDS

Mentioned in the foregoing Catalogue.

For the compilation of this Summary we are greatly indebted to the "Appendix to Fourteenth Report of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland." Commencing with our Running Number* 1, in our arrangement of the List of Books of the Commonwealth (see preceding Paper No. 4. in this Appendix), the following is a brief summary of the Books in that Catalogue.

1.—Accounts of Soldiers stated singly.—The Debt of the Regiment and Company was furnished to the Officers commissioned to set out Lands for satisfying the disbanded forces. On the other hand the Debt due to each man was stated by other Commissioners. The following is a copy of the first entry in this (No. 1) Volume :

"William Andrews—

"A private soldier in Captain Gale's Company in Coll. Hewson's Regiment and in Major Brayfield's and Major Rawlins's Company in Coll. Axtell's Regt. of Foote, from the 27 August, 1649, to the 12 of June, 1653.

"No arrears due till the 29th of November, 1649.

"46 mo. } £14 5s. 4½d.
"14 days, }

"To Josiah Pettett, Attorney in the behalf of y^e said William Andrews."

"Arthur Annesley, Esq., Attorney, in behalfe of Thos. Baker and Ann Baker, his wife, alias Anne Cooke, administratrix of her late husband, Coll. George Cooke, as by the Administration granted at Dublin y^e 22 of May, 1652."

In very many cases the Officer is made the Attorney, having bought up the private soldier's arrears.

2.—Civil List.—This Volume begins with lists of names and salaries of the Council, and of the Clerks and Messengers attendant on the Council; Commissioners General of the Revenue; Clerks, etc., of the Officers appointed to report upon petitions; Surveyor-General's Office; Commissioners at Loughrea for setting out lands to the transplanted in Connaught.

Vols. 3 and 4 are also Civil Lists.

5.—Commissions and Instructions.—Cromwell landed in Ireland on 15th August, 1649, and quitted it about 30th of May, 1650. By Patent dated 29th May, 1650, he made Ireton Deputy. Commissioners were now joined with Cromwell and Ireton; and in this Volume (5) are Instructions, dated 4th October, 1650, from the Parliament to Edmund Ludlow, Miles Corbett, and John Weaver, Commissioners for the Parliament for Ireland, to be carried out with the advice of Oliver Cromwell, Lieutenant-General and General Governor of Ireland, and Henry Ireton, Deputy-General of Ireland, or one of them.

Ireton died of the plague soon after the surrender of Limerick, on the 26th of Nov., 1650.

About June, 1652, Cromwell's commission as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland expired, and, as there was no longer a Lord Lieutenant, it was resolved by Parliament there should be no Deputy, but Commissioners. On the 24th of August, 1652, are Instructions (from the Parliament) for Oliver Cromwell, Captain-General, and the three former Commissioners, with John Jones added, or to any three or more of them.

On the 27th of August, 1654, are Instructions from Oliver, Protector, "with the advice of our Council to our right trusty, etc., Charles Fleetwood,* and to those hereby nominated of our Council with our Deputy." Commission for three years and no longer. And Colonel Robert Hammond, Richard Pepys, William Steele, Serjeant-at-Law and Recorder of London; Miles Corbet, Robert Goodwin, and Mathew Thomlinson, are named of the Council.

On the 25th December, 1654, the Lord Henry Cromwell is made one of the Council. And on the 4th of August, 1656, William Bury, of Grantham, "in our county of Lincoln," Esq., is added.

On the 16th November, 1657, Henry Cromwell was appointed Deputy,

* Fleetwood: See a letter headed "Oliver, P.," to Fleetwood, addressed "Dear Charles" (in favour of Colonel John Grace and Grace Coppinger), and subscribed "Your loving Father" (Vol. 20, p. 68). Fleetwood had married Ireton's widow, who was the Lord Protector's daughter.

and on the same day are Instructions of "Oliver, Protector," to "our dearly beloved sonne Henry Cromwell, our Deputy of Ireland, and to the Council," viz., William Steele, Chancellor; Richard Pepys, Chief Justice of the Upper Bench; Miles Corbett, Chief Baron; Mathew Tomlinson, and William Bury, Esq.

On the 6th November, 1658, Henry Cromwell was appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, for three years, by his brother Richard, Lord Protector.

6.—Commissions and Instructions.—In this Volume appear the following: 21st of March, 1655, Lists of Justices of the Peace in the thirty-two counties. 19th March, 1655, Commission erecting a Court to try "such as transplant not." Like Commission directed to the fifteen Revenue Precincts, to the Commander-in-Chief in each of them, and to the Justices of the Peace or any seven of them. Private Instructions to the Commissioners not to put anyone to death for not Transplanting, without reference to the Lord Deputy and Council. 19th March, 1655, Dr. Philip Carteret made Advocate-General of the Army, to act for the Commonwealth in prosecuting "such as transplant not." Civil List for 1656. Various appointments. 11th Dec., 1654, Hospital for Sick and Wounded Soldiers. 6th January, 1655, Commission for examining into the individual merits of those who betrayed the Munster forts and garrisons to Cromwell. Order for no quarter to Tories. 25th Dec., 1654, Dr. Henry Jones and Dr. John Harding, Commissioners to find out lands, etc., of the late Archbishops, Bishops, Deans and Chapters. 28th Dec., 1654, Commission and Instructions to the Commissioners to try claims and qualifications of the Irish at Athlone. Commissions to Judges of Assize. 16th June, 1655, Commission to the Loughrea Commissioners for setting out lands in Connaught, to the Irish, pursuant to the Decrees of Athlone. Instructions to the Loughrea Commissioners. 3rd March, 1656, Further Instructions. 13th June, 1656, Commission to Justice John Cooke to try the Qualifications of the Irish of Cork, Youghal, and Kinsale, who were aiding towards the admission of Sir W. St. Leger, President of Munster, into those towns in the first year of the Rebellion (in 1641), in order to preserve them from falling into the hands of the Irish "Rebels."

7.—Compositions for Lands of Delinquent Protestants:—The first 316 pages of this Volume refer to the setting out of Lands, principally in pursuance of Orders of Parliament to particular persons. But there are also orders for Lands to disbanded Regiments, etc. After page 316 begins a new paging for compounding Protestant proprietors.

Among other grants of lands in pursuance of Orders of Parliament is the following: To Sir Charles Coote, pursuant to orders of 10th August, 1649, and 5th December, 1650, granting him £500 a year in lands, the Manor of Gormanstown, the estate of Nicholas Lord Gormanstown, a rebel, attainted. To the same, for £1,200 a year ordered by Parliament on the 22nd March, 1653, the estate of Lord Brittas and others were set out. Similar orders were issued, as follows: 10 July, 1653, to Dr. Henry Jones for £200 a year, by order of Parliament. To the same, 5 Dec., 1650, Dunganstown, commonly called Dungan's Hill, the estate of Gerald Lynch. Also, to the same, Agher Palace and the estate of George Gernon and various others. To Lord Deputy Ireton for his arrears, Lord Mountgarret's Castle and Manor of Ballyragget, co. Kilkenny. To John Blackwell, 3rd Feb. and 13th March, 1654, the Manors of Clontarf, Templeogue, Terenure, Kimmage, and Crumlin, all in the co. Dublin. To Colonel Hewson, Governor of Dublin, 18th July, 1654, Luttrellstown, for his arrears. To Sir Theophilus Jones, 11th August, 1654, Lucan, the Estate of Sarsfield. To the children of Sir Charles Coote, deceased (viz., C. Coote, Bart.; Colonel Chidley Coote, Colonel Richard and Colonel Thomas Coote), 28th Oct., 1654, Florence Fitzpatrick's Estate in the Queen's County.

Among the Compositions of Delinquent Protestants, Lord Viscount Moore compounded for his estate, valued at £4,078 per annum, for £6,973. Lord Clandeboy, valued at £4,717, for £3,455. Sir Henry O'Neill, valued at £564, for £1,400. Eliza Dowdall, widow, valued at £325, for £768. Teige O'Hara, valued at £269, for £633. Sir George Herbert, valued at £347, for £658.

8.—Domestic Correspondence.—This and Vols. 9 and 21 seem complete for the whole period of the Commonwealth rule in Ireland..

10.—Establishment for 1655. Judges, etc. Ministers' and Pensioners' Allowances.

11.—Examination concerning Delinquent Proprietors of the Precinct of Athlone.—This Volume commences with a letter (dated 6th December, 1653) of Charles Fleetwood, Edmund Ludlow, John Jones, and Miles Corbett, to Lt.-Col. Alex. Brayfield, with a commission for examining witnesses against the Proprietors within his (Colonel Brayfield's) Precinct. Then follows the Commission (dated 17th Nov., 1653) to Alexander Brayfield, John Desborough, Rd. Coote, Robert Ormsby, Theoph. Jones, and George Southcott to take examinations touching the delinquency of Irish and other Proprietors in order to distinguish their qualifications according to the late Act for settling Ireland. According to this Act there were Eight Qualifications or Degrees of Delinquency whereby the Transplanted were to receive a larger or smaller equivalent in Connaught for the lands lost by their delinquency. Thirteen Interrogatories accompanied the Commission. The evidence was to be returned to Dublin close sealed up. The conduct of 363 Proprietors within this Precinct was questioned: the names show them to have been generally Irish; but Sir Charles Coote, President of Connaught, was included as well as George Crofton of the Mote. The first examinations were in regard to the demeanour and actings of Anthony Brabazon, of Ballynaslowe, in the Co. Roscommon, and are as follows:—

Owen Kelly, of Cryagh in the Co. Roscommon, Gent., aged 40 years or thereabouts, being duly sworn and examined, saith that he knew and was well acquainted with the said Anthony Brabazon.

1.—And, to the first Interrog^y, the examinant deposeth on oath that the said Anthony Brabazon lived in Ireland in the first year of the Rebellion (and ever since till the last summer) at Ballynaslowe, which was then and since the enemies' quarter till it was reduced into the Parliament's quarters to the garrison of Athlone, Castlecoote or Roscommon, which said garrisons were not above ten or twelve miles distant from Ballynaslowe aforesaid, and that Captain Richard St. George, an English

Protestant, who lived near the said Anthony, was forced in the said first year to remove into the garrison of Athlone.

2.—To the second Interrog^y, the examinant doth not depose but that the said Anthony kept to the defence of his own house of Ballynaslowe in opposition to the English, and never resided in the English quarters until his submission.

3.—To the third Interrog^y, the examinant deposeth and saith that in the beginning of the said first year of the Rebellion, the said Anthony raised a company of foot from the rebels and had the command of them as Captain, and with them opposed the English in a hostile manner, doing as much prejudice and injury to them as he could.

4.—To the fourth Interrog^y, this examinant saith he doth not know whether the said Anthony had any hand in contriving of the Rebellion or not, but deposeth that the said Anthony aided and abetted the Rebellion in Ireland in the beginning of the first year, and this examinant credibly heard that the soldiers under the command of the said Anthony did kill and rob several of the English in the said first year, and that the said Anthony, with his company, joined with Bryan Kelly MacKedagh, at the siege of the Castle of Athlone, in the said first year, and with a troope of horse at the siege of Castle Coote, which was garrisoned by the English in the year 1642, and that the said Anthony in the said first year, plundered and robbed Captain St. George, who then lived near him, of all his goods, and burned his house of Tullogh, in the Half Barony of Moyearnan.

5.—To the fifth, saith he credibly heard and believeth that the said Anthony was at many public meetings of the Irish in order to the promoting of the Rebellion, and principally at the meeting of the Provincial Council, of Ballinrobe, Galway, and Tuam, and such other places where they did sit.

6.—To the sixth Interrog^y, saith not otherwise as formerly in the first Interrogatory.

7.—To the seventh Interrog^y, saith he credibly heard that the said Anthony hath taken the Oath of Association.

8.—To the eighth Interrog^y, knoweth not that the said Anthony did treat or negotiate with any foreign State or Prince, but saith the Pope's Nuncio lay at his house at Ballynaslowe.

9.—To the ninth Interrog^y, that the said Anthony was a Captain of Foot in the said first year, and Governor of Ballynaslowe for the rebels, whereof he so continued until it was reduced by Lieutenant-General Ludlow, and that in the second year of the Rebellion he was Captain of Horse for the rebels, and kept the same until they were reduced as aforesaid.

10.—To the tenth, &c., this examinant doth not depose.

11.—To the eleventh, &c., saith that Captain Richard St. George lived within three miles of the said Anthony, upon lands which the Bishop recovered from the said Anthony's father, unto which the said Anthony laid claim, upon which lands Captain St. George was plundered and pillaged by Anthony Brabazon as aforesaid in the first year.

12.—To the twelfth, &c., saith he hath credibly heard that the said Anthony and his men possessed themselves of the goods of Captain

Richard St. George and other English (by no other authority than his own that this deponent knoweth of), and converted them to his own use.

13.—To the thirteenth, &c., saith that one Collins, an Englishman, was murdered by the said Anthony or his men, which is generally known to all the whole country, and that none of the murderers or actors were brought to justice, but on the contrary were sheltered, received, countenanced, maintained and entertained by the said Anthony after the said murder.

Cause of knowledge of the truth of the particulars whereunto examinant hath deposed as aforesaid is that in that the said first year of the Rebellion he did live within half a mile of the said Anthony and doth now reside there, that he is well acquainted with all passages and proceedings in the country, and doth believe that what he hath deposed and said is true.

WILL. HEYDON. (Seal).

This appears to be the only Book on this subject that remains of those taken in all the fifteen Precincts.

12.—Forfeiting Proprietors, Listed; Various Counties.—These lists contain very nearly the same names as appear in the Down Survey. They are prefaced by a letter to the Council, dated 27 January, 1656, signed “Christopher Gough,” excusing the imperfections of his return, which by order of 14 October, 1655, was (as he states) to contain the names, abodes, and additions of title of all forfeiting proprietors or of persons having claims to the Lands returned in the Civil Survey, or otherwise extant upon record. This he could not do because in many instances it was not stated in the Survey whether those forfeiting were Roman Catholics or Protestants, nor did it denote what lands had been excepted from being set out to the adventurers and soldiers.

But he had made a note in his return against the name of such persons; nor did it, as he further states, appear by the Civil Survey what Roman Catholics had proved constant good affection, or what Protestants had compounded for their estates.—See the Paper next, infra, for the names of the “Forfeiting Proprietors,” etc., given in this (No. 12) Volume of the Commonwealth Records.

13.—General Orders.—These order Books overlap the same period of time in many instances. This may have occurred from Petitions as a rule being heard on one day, and the reports upon such as were referred to the Committee appointed to report upon them being heard on another day, according to the following Minute :

“21 June, 1651.

“Petitions.

“That Thursdays in every week in the afternoon be appointed to hear petitions, and that Fridays in the afternoon in each week be appointed to hear reports upon petition.

“That the Attorney-General and Mr. Parker do peruse all petitions before the same be presented to the Commissioners, to the end that such of them as are not proper for the Commissioners to determine be returned without further trouble to the Commissioners.”

But at every meeting of the Council there were other orders made besides those upon petitions, so that it is not easy to distinguish the difference of the several Order Books. One can scarce fail to observe the regularity and completeness of the entries ; but it is to be regretted that the Petitions themselves with all the particulars they contained, most of them unnoticed in the Orders and Entries, are not forthcoming. There are probably no books in any other country containing such extraordinary details, being no less than such as arise from the displanting of one people and the implanting of another.

14.—Grants of Land.—This Volume contains for the most part Fiant, or Forms of Patents, prepared for the approval of the Lord Lieutenant or Deputy. Here they are all expressed to be made by order of the Lord Protector, 9th January, 1657. Lands of £600 a year, ordered by Parliament, for Colonel Robert Hammond by two orders in 1648, and by another order for same £400 a year value of 9th July, 1649, are by orders of the Lord Deputy and Council to be satisfied by Rickenhore, Saweerstown, Great Beallingstown and others of 1,994 acres Irish measure.

Lord Broghill to have the Manor of Blarney, returned at 9,049 acres, English measure, worth, in A.D. 1641, £793 16s. 0d. per ann. : Also the Manor of Kilree, 1,000 acres : Also the Abbey and Mills, 83 acres : Also Killecholly and other lands 566 acres : 16th Feb., 1657, Colonel Henry Ingoldsby ordered lands about Cleynoe and Cratulo, lying in the Clare Co., adjacent to Limerick, to satisfy £2,544 arrears of pay due.

Orders to W. Basill, Attorney-General, in pursuance of the Lord Protector's Order to prepare a Fiant of a Lease of the Fishing of Lough Neagh, and of the Bann as far as Toome, in the co. of Antrim to Sir John Clotworthy, for 99 years, from 13 May, 1656, on certain rent and conditions. 10th March, 1657, like order for a Fiant confirming Sir Charles Coote's purchases from the Transplanted Irish in Connaught.

15.—Issues of Money.—This and Volume 26 contain Warrants to the Treasurers of the Revenue at Dublin, Trim, Cork, and elsewhere to pay.

17.—Issues of Money.—Warrants signed by Lord Deputy Fleetwood and the Council to Mr. James Standish, Receiver-General at Dublin, to pay the several officers of the Establishment, besides extraordinary payments out of an Emergency fund.

18.—Issues of Money.—Like No. 15.

19.—Letters of the Lord Protector and Council of State, or from the Parliament of England.—This Volume contains Letters to the Governors of Ireland in favour of particular persons.

20.—Letters from the Parliament of England and Council of State.—Oliver Cromwell died 4th September, 1658. On 6th May, 1659, the Officers of the Army invited the Members of the Parliament of 1641, who had continued to sit since the year 1648 until 20th August, 1653, to resume their sitting, being resolved, according to their Declaration, to establish the Commonwealth "upon a foundation without a single person, Kingship, or House of Peers" (pp. 1 and 2). This was the recall of "The Rump," or that part of the Parliament, which, after Colonel Pride's purge (which ejected five sixths of the original members, thus fitting it to try and execute the King), was in 1653 turned out of doors by Cromwell.

On the 7th of June, 1659, it was resolved that the Government of Ireland should be by Commissioners named by Parliament, and not by any one person. It was further ordered that Henry Cromwell should come over to give an account of Ireland.

On the 7th July, 1659, an Act of Parliament was passed appointing Colonel John Jones, William Steele, Robert Goodwin, Mathew Tomlinson, and Miles Corbett, Commissioners of Parliament for the Government of Ireland.

This Volume (No. 20) also contains Richard Cromwell's submissive acquiescence in the Parliament's order to him to quit Whitehall, and on the 25th of August, 1659, the Parliament's acceptance of his resignation, bidding him "dispose of himself as his private occasions shall require."

In January, 1660, Roger Lord Broghill, Sir Charles Coote, and Major William Bury became acting Commissioners (Liber Munerum, vol. I., Part II., p. 8.

21.—Letters of the Lord Deputy and Council.

22.—Mallow Proceedings; or, "Proceedings at Mallow of the Commissioners of Clainis and Qualifications of the Irish lately sitting at Athlone, concerning the demeanour and actings of the Irish Inhabitants who formerly inhabited Cork, Mallow, Youghal, and Kinsale, in the first year of the Rebellion (1641)."

For the names and salaries of the Commissioners and Officers of this Court (being the Athlone Commissioners), see supra Volume No. 2: "Civil List." The allegations of the former inhabitants of Cork, Mallow, Youghal, and Kinsale that they joined the English inhabitants in defending the towns against the Irish rebels, and admitted the forces of Sir William St. Leger, President of Munster: all of which they proved. But as they had continued to reside in these towns, during Lord Inchiquin's relapse from the Commonwealth to the King in 1648, the Commissioners reported that they had "not adjudged constant good affection to any" (which alone saved from Transplantation), "but the law will be clear for them to have two parts in Connaught" (Letter of the Commissioners to the Lord Deputy and Council. Letter from the Lord Protector to Lord Deputy Fleetwood, dated Whitehall, 10 May, 1665, commencing—"Deare Charles," in favour of James Barry of Ballymacshanree, in the Great Island, co. of Cork (see Certificate of Colonel Alexander Piggott and others, 10th June, 1654), concludes thus:

"Indeed I have been affected with a sense of his distressed condition, and therefore pray do not forget to take some course for his relief.

"Your loving father, OLIVER, P."

At the end of this Vol. (No. 22) also is a full report of the case of the Lady Thurles, mother of the Marquis of Ormonde, 13 August, 1656.

23.—Ministers of the Gospel, etc.—This Volume begins with an Establishment or Civil List, dated 23 January, 1658. Then follow the appointments of Wine Licensers, under the Great Seal, at salaries of £600 per annum; Appointment of Ministers of the Gospel. Report of Thomas Harrison and Claudius Gilbert (in the name and by the appointment of the Ministers assembled by authority at Dublin), on scandalous Ministers, and as to what changes should be made of the districts of others,

There are intermixed a few orders for pensions made on petitions.

24.—Money Issues out of Tithe Revenue.—The Warrants for payment of the Civil List end at p. 196 of this (No. 24) Volume. On the 7th December, 1659, is the last warrant of the Commissioners of the Commonwealth, signed John Jones, Miles Corbett, Mathew Tomlinson; and on the 10th April, 1660, is the first of the Orders, signed Broghill, C. Coote, and W. Bury. Annexed are specimens of these warrants:

“Ordered—That James Mortimer, Esq., Serjeant-at-Arms, do, out of the contingent moneys now remaining in his hands, issue forth and pay unto Edmund Sexton, a Foot Post, the sum of seven pounds for and in consideration of several journeys he hath made to Cork, Galway, and several other places from this Board with publique pacquettes, and more especially with a pacquett from Athlone delivered to him by His Excellency the Lord Henry Cromwell, directed to this Board, which required him for expedition to travel both night and day; and for the said Serjeant’s payment thereof this and the said Edmund’s receipt shall be a warrant. Council Chamber at Dublin, 14th of Nov., 1656. (Signed) W. Steele. Canc.; Richard Pepys, Miles Corbett, Math. Thomlinson, William Bury.”

“Henry Cromwell—

“Upon reading the petition of Richard Carney, Esq., principal Herald att Arms within this nation, setting forth that the Petitioner obtained an order, dated the 27th of July last, from Colonel Herbert for the payment of the sum of £47 10s. 0d. unto him by Mr. John Frost to defray the charge he was att in y^e solemnity used at y^e Proclamation of his Higness within this Cittie (of Dublin) in the month of July, and that he received thereont only the sum of £54, by reason that the said Mr. Frost had no more publique money in his hands to discharge the same; upon which account the petitioner is as yet unpaid the remaining sum of £20 10s. 0d., which he is duly called for by the merchant to whom he owes it. Upon consideration thereof, etc., ordered that he be paid the same. 8 March, 1657, (Signed) W. Steele, Canc.; R. Pepys, Miles Corbett, Math. Thomlinson, W. Bury.

“For as much as itt is apprehended to be a publique concernment that y^e Society of y^e Inns of Court in Dublin do receive due encouragement and be putt into some capacity for their meeting and being together, and for that the same cannot well be without some repairs and other fitt accommodations first had and prepared, which for the present by reason of the late rebellion they are nowise capable of themselves to effect. It is therefore ordered (for this tyme) that (over and above y^e £100, received by an order of the 26th December last) James Standish do issue forth and pay unto Mr. Randolph Beckett the sum of £100 to be by him disbursed as Sir John Temple, Knt., Master of the Rolls, Treasurer to the said society shall order his hand for the purpose aforesaid, etc., 4th May, 1657.”

“Henry Cromwell.

“Whereas it appeareth by the certificate of Sir Charles Coote, Knight and Baronet, Lord President of Connaught, that Thomas Graves, Town Clerk of Galway, the 15th of September last being a horseback in y^e said town at y^e proclaiming of his Highness y^e Lord Richard Cromwell, Lord Protector of England, Scotland and Ireland, att y^e firing of the ordnance his horse started and threw him down, by which means one of his arms is broak, to the great detriment of himself, wife, three small children and y^e rest of his family whose livelihood (under God) chiefly depended on his practice. Ordered that James Standish, Esq., do, etc., pay him Ten pounds towards defraying the charge he may be putt to for physick or medicines in his recovery. 4th November, 1658, W. Steele, Canc.; Richard Pepys, Miles Corbett, Mw. Thomlinson, Wm. Bury.”

25.—Money Orders.—Like Vol. No. 17.

26.—Orders.—For the nature of this Volume and Volumes 27, 28, 29, 30, and 31, see No. 13.

32.—Orders for Lands.—See Vol. No. 7.

33.—Orders for Money.—For the nature of the contents of this and Volume 34, see No. 17.

35.—Orders of Lord Deputy and Council.—See Vol. No. 13.

36.—Original Minute Book of Colonel Herbert, etc.—This Minute Book and Volumes No. 37, 38, and 39, with the original petitions, enabled those employed on the business of the Council to make more lengthened entries of the orders of the Commissioners upon each petition. These Minutes are in fact the Dominicals of the Orders in the Order Books of the Council now in the collection. They show what great capabilities Colonel Herbert had for his office. In 1651 and 1652 Colonel Herbert was one of the Commissioners-General of the Revenue of Ireland (Vol. 27, p. 67). On 23 January, 1652, £50 was granted to Colonel Thomas Herbert towards his extraordinary charges in several journeys into England upon the publique service (Vol. 15, p. 61); 21 Nov., 1652, £100 for like service (Vol. 16); 6 March, 1653-4, £125 to Colonel Thomas Herbert, being one half-year's salary as Register of the Accounts of y^e soldiers arrears (Vol. 16). Before Colonel Herbert was appointed Secretary of the Council, Benjamin Worsley would seem to have held that office. In January and February, 1653, is found Worsley's signature to Orders of the Council (Vol. 26, pp. 551, 655); 20 March, 1652-3, is an order for £200 to be paid to Benjamin Worsley as Secretary to the Commissioners of Parliament (Vol. 16, p. 255). Mr. John Hughes was assistant secretary: Thus, 27 October, 1651, order for £39 10s. 0d. for Mr. John Hughes, secretary, assistant to the Commissioner of Parliament (Vol. 15, p. 39); 13 October, 1651, ordered, that all petitions be endorsed with the date of their being received by the Chief Secretary (Vol. 27, p. 38); 16 September, 1652, order for £20 to John Hughes to furnish himself with necessaries for his journey with the Commissioners to Kilkenny (Vol. 16, p. 45). Mr. Hughes's initials to the orders may easily be confounded with Col. T. Herbert's. The "J. H." and "T. H." are nearly alike (Vol. 26, pp. 501, 690, 715).

In 1651, 1652, and 1653 the orders are generally signed by the Commissioners: Only occasionally by the Secretary. Colonel Herbert's begin 23rd Dec., 1653 (Vol. 37, p. 1). It was on the 17th August, 1654, that the ancient form of Government in Ireland was restored, and General Charles Fleetwood, Cromwell's son-in-law, was appointed Lord Deputy with a Council (Vol. 5, p. 29); when of course Colonel Herbert, from being Secretary to the Commissioners of Parliament became Clerk of the Council.

40.—Pensions Granted for Widows, Soldiers, and Orphans.—The following shows the general tenor of the Orders contained in this Volume:

"Upon reading the petition of Joan Richardson, widdow, and the certificate thereupon, It appearing that her husband was lately slaine in the Parliament service neare Dublin, leaving the Petitioner and two small children in a low condition: It is therefore ordered that the Treasurer at Dublin, etc., do pay to the said Joan Richardson the sum of Five Shilings per week till further ordered.

"Dublin, 9th September, 1651" (p. 9).

41.—Persons Subscribing the Engagement to be faithful to the Commonwealth as established without a King or House of Lords. County of Roscommon,

Town of Athlone.—This Volume is entitled “A Registry of all such persons in the County of Roscommon and Town of Athlone as in conformity to the Declaration of the Rt. Honble. the Commissioners of the Parliament of the Commonwealth of England, dated y^e 11th of October, 1652, upon the Act of Parliament for y^e settling of Ireland, voluntarily took and subscribed the Engagement in the said Act and Declaration mentioned, viz., to be true and faithfull to y^e Commonwealth of England, as the same is established without a Kinge, or House of Lords, before Athlone, with the places of abode and condition and quality of all such persons and the tyme when they took and subscribed the same.”

“A true coppie of the originall Registry, examd. by me.

—(p. 180).

Of the Registries of the fifteen Precincts, this is the only Volume of its kind that now remains.

42.—References of Petitions.—For the nature of this and Volumes 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, and 53, see Vol. 26 (supra).

54.—Rent Roll of Lands, etc., belonging to His Highness and the Commonwealth.—This Volume refers to the “Rental and Lettings of Church and Corporate Lands, Houses in Towns, Corporate, Tithes, Tolls, and Customs of Fairs and Land Excise belonging to his Highness the Lord Protector and the Commonwealth for one year from 1st May, 1657, to 30th April, 1658.” It concerns Westmeath, Longford, King's County, Wexford, and part of Wicklow, Kilkenny, Queen's County, Waterford, Cork, Tipperary, Down, Antrim, Armagh (and Belfast), Cavan, Monaghan, Fermanagh, Mayo, and Galway.

At the end of the Volume is a Certificate dated 1st September, 1657, signed Henry Markham, Vincent Gookin, Ra. King, and Thomas Hooke, as follows:—“The totall revenue arising out of the Lands, Houses, Improprate Tithes, Excise, etc., within the Counties of Westmeath, Longford, and King's County for the present year ending the last of April, 1658, amount to the sum of £1,072 17s. 0d., as the same were let by Lieutenant-Colonel Isaac Dobson; Peter Sterne, Esq.; and Captain Henry Sankey, Commissioners appointed for that purpose. Witness our hands the 1st of September, 1657."—See p. 22 of this (No. 54) Vol.

The Lands of the Irish were all appropriated to paying the adventurers and soldiers, except four counties—Dublin, Wicklow, Carlow, and Cork: these, together with the Church Lands, Improprate Tithes, and Lands and Houses of Corporate Towns, were reserved to the State, and were let for the year. Good houses in Kilkenny and Galway, cabins in Athlone and elsewhere, are all set out with the tenants' names, and the rents reserved. So also of Tithes and Church Lands.

55.—Roman Catholic Inhabitants of the County of Cork.—This Volume contains a List of about 10,000 names arranged in Townlands, Parishes, and Baronies. No qualifications or distinctions are added, nor is there any evidence of the object or purpose of making the List. The names (and indeed the very numbers) show that they are principally of the common people.

56.—Transplanters' Certificates: Precinct of Limerick.—The Certificates contained in this Volume are in compliance with the Order of the 14th Oct., 1653, regulating the Transplantation, which Order was as follows:

"And that all persons, who are to transplant themselves, may have competent quantities of land assigned them proportionable to their respective stocks."

They were to make these returns to the Commissioners of the Revenue of their several Precincts, on or before the 20th of December, 1653, who, on being satisfied with the truth of the return, and that contribution had been paid for their crops and cattle, were to deliver to each a Certificate, having first entered the same in a special book, and on these Certificates the Commissioners of the Precinct of Galway would assign them lands for temporary use, competent to their stock of cows, sheep, swine, plough oxen, and garrans (horses), until the Commissioners, afterwards sent to Athlone, should give them a final settlement in Connaught. The following is a specimen of the Transplanters' Certificates:

"Barony of Clanwilliam, co. of Limerick. We, the said Commissioners, do hereby certify that William, Lord Baron of Castleconnell, in the co. of Limerick, hath, upon the 19th day of December, 1653, in pursuance of a Declaration of the Commissioners of the Parliament of the Commonwealth of England for the affairs of Ireland, bearing date the 14th day of October, 1653, delivered unto us, in writing, the names of himself and of such other persons as are to remove with him, with the quantities of their stocks and tillage, the contents whereof are as followeth: The said Lord Baron of Castleconnell, adged twenty-six years, brown haire, middle stature; Ellen, his wife, Lady of Castleconnell, adged twenty-eight years, black haire; Ellen Roch, adged twenty years, flaxen haire, middle stature; Edmund Bourke, tenant, adged twenty-five years, brown haire, middle stature; John Punchy, adged thirty years, brown haire, middle stature; William Meade, adged thirty, middle stature; Teige M'Keogh, adged thirty years, middle stature, brown haire; Lawrence Kemy, adged thirty years, middle stature, brown hair; Dermod M'Keogh, adged twenty years, middle stature, black haire; Joan ny* Mahony, adged thirty-three years, middle stature, red hair ; Carherine ny Dwyer, adged twenty years, flaxen haire, middle stature ; John Brown, adged twenty years, middle stature ; Daniel McMeleghlin, adged forty years, black haire, middle stature. His substance, twenty winter acres of corn ; cows forty ; forty garrauns ; a plough of oxen ; forty swine, great and small ; four geldings ; out of which he payeth contribution. The contents whereof we believe to be true." (p. 248 of Vol. 56.)

* Ny: This is another form of the Irish Ní, a contraction for "inghean" (Lat. "nata"), a daughter, which in Irish was always prefixed to the surnames of the daughters in a family: as "Mae" or "O" was prefixed to the surnames of the sons, or male descendants.

End of Summary of the Commonwealth Records.

6.—FORFEITING PROPRIETORS, IN IRELAND,

Under the Cromwellian Settlement.

"FORFEITING Proprietors, Listed ; various counties." Commencing A.D. 1657.

This Commonwealth Volume is prefaced by a Letter, of which the following is a copy :

"To his Highnes the Lord Protectors Councell for the Affaires of Ireland.

"May it please yor. Lordsp.

"In pursuance of your Lops. (Lordships) Order of the 14th October last, requiring mee forthwith to prepare a List containing the names, sirnames, places of abode, and addition of Title, of all Proprietors of Lands, or any ways entitled to Lands forfeited to the Commonwealth by the late horrid Rebellion, and returned in the Books of Civil Survey, or otherwise extant upon Record, and certify the same unto your Lops. I humbly present the ensuing List containing the names of all the Papist Proprietors within the counties of Dublin, Lowth, Kildare, Longford, Kilkenny, and Wexford, in the Province of Leinster ; in the counties of Cork and Kerry, in the Province of Munster ; in the counties of Ffermanagh, Tyrone, Cavan, Donegall, Monaghan, and Londonderry, in the Province of Ulster ; and in the counties of Sligo, and part of the county of Mayo, in the Province of Connaught.

"I further humbly certify, that severall persons in the respective counties above mentioned, whose qualifications are not distinguished in the Books of Survey, whether Papists or Protestants ; as also all such Irish Papists whose Estates have been by order of your Lops. excepted from present disposure to the Adventurers, Souldiers, or others, are, notwithstanding, inserted in this List, with a Noate nevertheless against every such name, signifying either the said defect or suspicion ; that likewise severall persons are inserted whose places of abode, or of which they are called, are not mentioned in the Books of Survey ; by reason of which it is to be feared one and the same person is severall times named in this List ; neither doth it it appear before mee how many of the persons inserted in this List have proved their constant good affections before the Court for adjudication of the Qualifications of the Irish, or have been admitted to composition for their Estates, in pursuance of the Ordinance of his Highnes the Lord Protector,* of the 2nd of September, 1654.

"I further humbly certify, that noe Surveys being as yet returned, of the Civil Surveys of the Counties of Catherlogh (Carlow) and Wicklow, in the Province of Leinster ; nor of the County of Clare, in the Province of Munster ; nor of the Counties of Galloway, Roscommon, and Leitrim, and part of the Counties of Leitrim and Sligo, in the Province of Connaught ; I find not myself capable of certifying your Lops. the names of the forfeited Proprietors in any of the said counties.

"All which is humbly submitted to your Lops.

"Signed by appointment of the Surveyor-Generall.

"CHRISTOP. GOUGH.

"Dublin, 27th January, 1656."

(The Counties are here given in the same order as they appear in the Commonwealth Volume No. 12, in the Catalogue.—See Paper No. 4 in this Appendix.)

* Protector : This was Oliver Cromwell.

* Bryan (McMany) Ffarrell : In the Commonwealth Record where this name occurs, it is written "Bryan McMany Ffarrell" ; but this means "Bryan Ffarrell, son of Many" (or Manus). In such cases therefore, in this Return, the middle name is to be taken as that of the father of the proprietor whose name is mentioned. Similarly, in such a case as "John Roch FitzThomas," it means "John Roch, son of Thomas" ; for the prefixes Fitz, Mc, and Mac are synonymous.

* Donovane: This name Daniel McNogher McDermody Donovane means: "Daniel Donovane, son of Cnogher, son of Dermody."

† O'Driscoll: The names above and below this Donogh have the surname "O'Driscoll" expressed therein. We are therefore of opinion that this name should read "Donogh McDaniell O'Driscoll" or "Donogh O'Driscoll, son of Daniel." Hence have we here and in several places, infra, in similar cases placed the surname in a parenthesis, End of the "Inrolments of the Decrees of Innocents," under the Commonwealth Rule in Ireland.

8.—PERSONS TRANSPLANTED IN IRELAND, A.D. 1653-1654.

(a). TRANSPLANTERS' CERTIFICATES.* (VOL. I. E. 10. 123.)

IN the compilation of this Return we have consulted the only three Volumes extant in the Public Record Office, Dublin, on this subject: namely, the Volume (a) there marked I. E. 10. 123; (b) that marked I. C. Sc. 126; and (c) that marked I. C. Sc. 127. The names mentioned in each of these three Vols. are given in this Return under their respective headings. The Vol. (a), which is No. 56 in our Running Number in the Catalogue of the Commonwealth Records, p. 234 ante, includes the City of Limerick; and the Baronies of Kilmallock, Kenry, Connello, Coshma, Oweybeg, Coshlea, Coonagh, Smallcounty, Pubblebrien, and Clanwilliam, in the county Limerick. The following are the names mentioned in the Index of that Vol.:

CITY AND COUNTY OF LIMERICK.†

Aha, Sara	Arthur, (Fitz Pierce)	Barckly, Francis
Alford, Anstance	John	James
Alson, Bluett	Francis	Barnewell, Martin
Anlone, Joan Ny	James	Barrett, Richard
Anster, Anstace	John	Barry, Daniell

als. Stritch, El-	Thomas	Beyle, John
linor	Walter	Blacke, John
Ellynor	Bane, Connor	Blackewall, Francis
Ellis	Edmund	Blackwall, Grace
(Fitz Garrett)‡	Barbane, Honora Ny	Nicholas
Thomas	Barckly, Ann	Blake, Any

* Certificates: Unlike the other two Volumes of "Transplanters' Certificates" above marked (b) and (c) respectively, the names in this (a) Volume are not collected in a Table of Contents; but the names of the Persons Transplanted and the names of their servants are indiscriminately given in the Index of the (a) Vol., from which we quote the names entered in this Return. The names in (b) and (c) Returns, given respectively infra next after this, are those of "Persons Transplanted" only.

† Limerick: The Records of the Persons Transplanted from any county in the Province of Ulster are not forthcoming.

‡ Fitz Garrett: Here the proper name is "Thomas Arthur, son of Garrett"; and, in similar cases in this Return, the name in the parenthesis is that of the father of the person mentioned. The prefix Fitz is the French representative of the Irish Mac; as the French De is the equivalent for the Irish prefix O'. But in the Commonwealth period, and even later, some Irish families considered it more "fashionable" to omit the prefix Mac, and to employ in its stead its French equivalent Fitz.

* Fitz-Adriel: In our opinion "Waters" is the sirname in this case: the name as it appears to us should read "Michael Waters, son of Adriel." A similar remark, we think, may apply to most of the names commencing with "Fitz," in this List. But the unhappy state of society in Ireland in the Commonwealth period may, perhaps, account for the assumption of the new surnames.

* Westonray : Claim as adventurers and soldiers.

12.—INROLMENTS OF THE CERTIFICATES

For Adventurers, Soldiers, etc., in Ireland, in the Commonwealth Period.

THESE Inrolments we fully copied for insertion in these pages; but we find them so voluminous, that, with the other Returns which we are giving herein, the above mentioned Inrolments would swell this volume to a very inconvenient size. They are preserved, however, in the Dublin Public Record Office; and may be seen in the "Records of Ireland" (Marked "1821—1825"), deposited in the Library of the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin. The names of the places assigned to those Adventurers, Soldiers, etc., are given in the "Index Locorum to the Inrolments of the Certificates for Adventurers, Soldiers, etc.," pp. 434—521 of the said "Records of Ireland"; to which the Reader is respectfully referred. As, however, in pp. 704—711 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," we give the List of the "Names of the Cromwellian Adventurers for Land in Ireland in the 17th Century," the reader can refer to that List for the names of the "Adventurers," or of their heirs and assigns. In this Volume (see the Papers Nos. 10 and 11, respectively, supra in this Appendix) we give "The 1649 Officers," and the "Soldiers of the Commonwealth."

13.—DECLARATION OF KING CHARLES II.

"CHARLES THE SECOND, by the Grace of God King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, etc. To all our loving Subjects of our Kingdome of Ireland, of what degree or quality soever, Greeting:

"It having pleased Almighty God out of His great mercy and compassion towards Us, and all Our Subjects, to restore Us in so wonderful a manner to each other, and with so wonderful circumstances of Affection and confidence in each other as must for ever fill Our hearts (if We are in any degree sensible of such Blessings), with an humble and grateful acknowledgment of the Obligation We owe to His Divine Providence . . .

"We well remember the Cessation, and the Peace which Our Royal Father of blessed Memory had been forced during the late troubles to make with the Irish Subjects of that Our Kingdome, and by which he was compelled to give them a full pardon for what they had before done amiss upon their return to their Duty, and their promise of giving his Majesty a vigorous assistance, and that from that time divers persons of Honour and Quality had not (that We know or have heard of) swerved from their Allegiance towards him or Us. We could not forget the Peace that Our self was afterwards necessitated to make with our said Subjects in the time when they, who wickedly Usurped* the Authority in this Kingdome, had erected that odious Court for the taking of the Life of

* Usurped : Alluding to Oliver Cromwell.

Our dear Father ; And then no body can wonder that We were desirous, though upon difficult conditions, to get such an United power of Our own Subjects as might have been able, with God's blessing, to have prevented that infamous and horrible Parricide* . . .

“And therefore in the first place, in order to a Settlement of that Interest claimed by the Adventurers, although the present Estates and Possessions they enjoy, if they were examined by the strict Letter of the Law, would prove very defective and invalid, as being no wayes pursuant to those Acts of Parliament upon which they pretend to be founded, but rather seem to be a structure upon their subsequent assent, both to different Mediums and Ends, than the observance of those: Yet We being always more ready to consult (where the prejudice can onely reflect upon Our self) with our natural inclinations to mercy (We praise God We can say so) than with the positive reason of Law : We do hereby declare, That all the Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, of which all or any of the Adventurers were possessed the Seventh day of May, One Thousand Six hundred and Fifty nine, having been allotted or set out to them, or enjoyed by them as Adventurers in satisfaction of, and for their Adventures, shall be confirmed and made good to them, their Heirs and Assignes for ever, with allowance, or correction of the Admeasurement, according to the Tenor and Directions of the respective Acts of Parliament of the XVII. and XVIII. Caroli (Charles I.), as to English or Plantation Measure; except as is hereafter excepted: And that the deficient Adventurer, either in part or in whole, shall be satisfied out of the Moiety of the Counties of Limerick, Tipperary, and Waterford, in the Province of Munster; the King's County, the Queen's County, and the Counties of East-Meath and Westmeath, in the Province of Leinster; and the Counties of Down, Antrim, and Armagh, in the Province of Ulster, not yet set out to the Adventurers; as also the Forfeited Lands in the County of Lowth (except the Barony of Atherdee in the said County) and said Province of Leinster, such Adventurers claiming and making their deficiencies appear before the First day of May next: And in case the said Lands so far supply of deficiencies set forth, shall not be sufficient, We will appoint some other convenient Forfeited Lands for their satisfaction, so that all their deficiencies shall speedily be supplied.

“And whereas the Officers and Souldiers now of Our Army in Ireland, and that have been formerly of the Army in Ireland, have had also Lands set out to them respectively, in satisfaction of their Arrears of Pay for their Service in that Our Kingdome, and are accordingly possess of the same by former pretended Orders and Powers then in being: And although the incompetency of such Powers may justly render such Possessions and Estates liable to question, to Our very great advantage . . . Yet in regard to Our Letter to General Monck from Breda, in the Twelfth year of Our Reign, and of Our several Declarations and Proclamations concerning the Army, and of the full assurance of the forwardness and readiness of the said Army, and loving Subjects in Ireland to contribute, as in Duty bound, all that in them lay for Our Restoration, We are pleased of Our special Grace and Favour to Declare, and do hereby Declare, That all Officers and Souldiers, their Heirs and Assignes, who have been, and are of the said Army in Ireland, and to whom Lands have been given out in satisfaction of their Arrears for their Service in that Our Kingdome, and have by the general Convention of Ireland, or by any other publick Act declared Submission and obedience to Us, according to Our said Declaration of the $\frac{4}{14}$ of April last, dated at Breda, shall enjoy their respective Estates conferred on them for their Arrears, for Service in the Kingdome of Ireland, according to their respective Possessions on the said Seventh day of May, One Thousand Six hundred and Fifty nine, in full satisfaction of all such Arrears, for which Lands were set out to them as aforesaid . . . That such Protestants whose Estates have been given out for satisfaction of Adventurers or Souldiers, or otherwise disposed of to any other persons shall be forthwith restored to their former Estates.

“And whereas We understand, that by the late usurped Powers, during the Distempers of these Times, several Irish Proprietors of the Popish Religion have been dispossessed of their Estates, meerly for being Papists, and have sued out Decrees, and are possessed of Lands in the Province of Connaught, and County of Clare, in compensation of their former Estates . . . We declare, That all Innocent Papists, being such as shall prove themselves to have been Faithful and Loyal unto, and never acted against Our Royal Father or Our self, since the two and twentieth day of October, One Thousand Six hundred and Fifty one, though they have sued out Decrees, and are possessed of Lands in the Province of Connaught, or County of Clare, in lieu of their former Estates, shall notwithstanding be restored to their said Estates by the second of May, One Thousand Six hundred and Sixty one” . . .

14.—RESTOREES OF CHARLES II.

THE following are the names of the persons mentioned by Charles II., in his famous Declaration, who were to be restored to their former Estates in Ireland :

“And as to those who continued with Us,” continues Charles II., “or served faithfully under Our Ensigns beyond the Seas, We think fit and accordingly declare, That they shall be restored to their former Estates, if they by themselves, or Agents authorized by them, have not prosecuted and obtained Decrees and Lands in the Province of Connaught or County of Clare, in compensation of their former Estates . . . And whereas divers persons, for most of whom a general provision is made by this Our Declaration, who, or their respective Fathers, have eminently suffered for their adhering to the authority of his Majestie (Charles II.), or his late Father of blessed memory, in this Kingdom (of Ireland), against the Nuncio and his Party; or who were among the Citizens of Dublin and Drogheda who remained loyal until the Royal Authority was withdrawn from Ireland in 1647, and who did not at any time after adhere to the Papal Clergie, or other the Irish Rebels in opposition to Royal Authority; or who have for reasons known unto Us in an especial manner merited our Grace and Favour, particularly—

“And we are graciously pleased further to Declare, That every Adventurer and Souldier, their Heirs and Assigns, settled in Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, as aforesaid; And every person restored unto, or Reprized for his Estate, as is formerly mentioned, shall pay unto Us, Our Heirs and Successors yearly, for ever, the Rents following, viz.—

“For every Acre in the Province of Leinster Three pence; For every Acre in the Province of Munster Two pence farthing; For every acre in the Province of Connaught One penny half-penny; And for every Acre in the Province of Ulster One penny, accounting as to the payment of the said Rent onely, One hundred and Sixty Pearches to the Acre, and Sixteen Foot and a half to the Pearch. And all such as receive satisfaction for their Arrears out of the Houses and Tenements in the several Corporations in Ireland, one shilling (and) six pence yearly out of every Twenty shillings Rent, so that the Rent formerly reserved on such Estates so to be restored, exceed not the Rent hereby reserved . . .

“And We do lastly declare, That Protestant Plantations shall be settled, Corporations created, Churches erected, Maintenance for Preaching Ministers provided, within the limits and precincts of the land so to be settled on the Adventurers and Souldiers, in such manner as by the Commissioners to be nominated and directed by Us, shall be set down.

“Provided always, That this our Declaration shall not extend to any person or persons who have had any hand in the plotting and contriving the Surprisal of Our Castle of Dublin, in the year One thousand Six hundred (and) Forty one; nor to any persons that sate as Judges in the pretended High Court of Justice upon the life of Our Royal Father of blessed memory, or who sentenced him, or signed or sealed the Warrant for Execution, or who were of the Guard of Halbertiers, assisting to put the Bloody Sentence of Death in Execution upon the 30th of January, One thousand Six hundred Forty and eight. . . .

“Given at Our Court at Whitehall the 30th day of November, 1660. In the Twelfth Year of Our Reign.

End of the Names of the Nominees, to whom King Charles the Second granted Capital Seats in Ireland.

18.—COMMISSION OF GRACE,

Or, Enrolments under the “Act of Grace,” in Ireland.

THE following Abstract contains the substance of a number of Grants from the Crown, made at the close of the Reign of Charles II., and during that of James II., which, from the circumstances under which they were issued, are considered to be a special class of Documents, detached from the general series of Letters Patent of those Reigns, and distinguished by the name of Enrolments under the Act of Grace. Their origin was as follows :

“Charles II., in the thirty-sixth year of his reign, caused a Commission to issue, dated the 14th March, and directed to the Duke of Ormond, then Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and others : which recites “That several Lands to which the King is entitled, either in right of his Crown or by virtue of the late Acts of Settlement and Explanation, which remain still undisposed of, the possessors of which are therefore much disquieted, on pretence that their Titles are defective ; and by discoveries that have been endeavoured to be made thereof, and of Commission of Enquiry that have issued out of Offices and Inquisitions that have been taken to find the King’s Title thereto, as concealed Lands ; as also the several Patentees or other Owners or Proprietors of Lands are subject to much question respecting their Titles, either because they have no Letters Patent for them, nor can derive any Title from the Crown, or because the Patents granted to them have been found to be void, insufficient in Law, defective, imperfect, voidable, defeasible, or so obscure that much trouble and disquiet may arise to them in their proof of Title, so as to discourage them from the improvement of such Lands, and consequently tend to the general detriment and damage of the Kingdom.” It then proceeds to state, “that, to remedy those inconveniences, the Commissioners herein stated have been appointed with power to compound with persons holding Lands under the circumstances above recited, and to grant them new Tenures direct from the Crown, for such Fines and Rents, or increase of Rents, and under such Tenures as the Commissioners shall think fit," with a special proviso, however, that on all such new Grants or Confirmations, the ancient Rent paid to the King, or more, must be reserved. This Commission, from its similarity to former Patents issued by James the First and Charles the First, was styled, like them, a Commission of Grace. The death of Charles the Second set a legal close on it; but, as several Proprietors, who had applied for new Patents under it, and had previously to that King's demise lodged the consideration money required by the Commissioners, had not procured Patents, a King's Letter was issued in the first year of the ensuing Reign, directing that the Patents of all such as were so circumstanced should be completed. This Letter bears date at Whitehall, 21st April, 1st James II.

These Grants being subsequent to those of the Acts of Settlement and Explanation, and appearing to a certain extent to have arisen out of them, may be considered as forming a kind of Sequel or Appendage to those Acts, and have been therefore considered worthy of having their contents digested into a special Abstract of similar character to the Abstracts of the Grants published by the directions of the late Commissioners for arranging and digesting the Records of Ireland, not only for the convenience of official reference, but to facilitate the researches so frequently made, and every year increasing in number, relative to Property held under those Acts.

The counties in which the Lands alluded to in the Grants above mentioned, and the names of the Townlands so granted, can be ascertained in the Commission of Grace—commencing at p. 5 of that Vol. The following are the names of the Grantees therein given :

* John Brett and Miles Cooke: No nation presents so many melancholy vicissitudes, so many remarkable incidents, and so many sad reverses in its history as does Ireland; and no other nation's history presents so many extraordinary anomalies, so many strange facts and episodes. Party spirit, Celt and Saxon rivalries, and sectarian jealousies, Clan war, Race war, and Class war, have at one period or another been the bane of our unhappy country; and yet we often find names representative of the most antagonistic prejudices strangely placed side by side. Here, for instance, amongst those Assessors we see allied the names of men who differed in everything but in loyalty to their Sovereign; here we find representatives of the old Catholic families of the Bretts and the Cooques selected to adjudicate on the same commission with the Protestant Lord Kingston and Sir William Petty. Yet stranger still is their after story: Lord Kingston became the founder of an Earldom, and a junior branch of his family became the Viscounts Lorton; while from Sir William Petty, who was "the son of a clothier at Romney," descended the noble Houses of Shelbourne and Kerry, and, more lately, the Marquisate of Lansdowne.

Of the descendants of Miles Cooke, here mentioned, some left Ireland for foreign Aungier, Francis, Lord, to be restored to his Estates.

Avery,* Samuel: His Adventure in Limerick vested in the King, to satisfy an Exchequer debt for Excise.

Bagnal, Dudley, confirmed in his property in the county Carlow.

lands, and died in the service of France and Spain; while a junior branch of the family, "with all lost save honour," eked out a precarious existence in Connaught, and, as a gifted author has said (speaking of the Irish Catholic Gentry): "If they were not more speedily trampled into the very lowest grade, was due, in first place, to their pride of lineage, which supported them in their assumption of a position which their fortune was quite inadequate to support; and, in the second place, to the sympathy of the native population, whose love for the 'old stock' was faithful through good and evil report, and who never denied the fallen gentleman the respect which his ancestors enjoyed." And in their humblest day this "pride of lineage" urged them to associate and connect by marriage with some of the best Catholic as well as Protestant families in Connaught; as may be seen in the "Cooke" genealogy, recorded in p. 45 of this Volume.

The Brett family lived at Derroon House, near Ballymote, co. Sligo, and were Squires of the Taaffes, who were Viscounts of Ballymote (as the Cookes were Squires of the House of Norfolk, in England). When Ireland was chosen as the battle-field on which the cause of King James II. was to be fought, at least five members of the Cooke family served as Officers in His Majesty's Army, and another served as Deputy Lieutenant for the county Carlow; while one member of the Brett family is recorded as being in His Majesty's service, namely—John Brett, who was M.P. for Sligo, in King James's Irish Parliament. The last legitimate representatives of John Brett were three daughters, of whom Mrs. Hemans makes the Irish Bard, Carolan, say, as in the following lines:

"Voice of the grave!

I hear thy thrilling call.

"But thou art sent

For the sad earth's young and fair,
For the graceful heads that have not bent

To the wintry hand of care!

They hear the wind's low sigh,

And the river sweeping free,

And the green reeds murmuring heavily,

And the woods—but they hear not thee!"

Carolan's "Prophecy" respecting one of the Misses Brett is related in the Percy Anecdotes of Imagination, thus:

"It is somewhat remarkable that Carolan, the Irish bard, even in his gayest mood, never could compose a planxty for a Miss Brett, in the county of Sligo, whose father's house he frequented, and where he always met with a reception due to his exquisite taste and mental endowments. One day, after an unsuccessful attempt to compose something in a sprightly strain for this lady, he threw aside his harp with a mixture of rage and grief; and, addressing himself in Irish to her mother, 'Madam,' said he, 'I have often, from my great respect to your family, attempted a planxty, in order to celebrate your daughter's perfections, but to no purpose. Some evil genius hovers over me; there is not a string in my harp that does not vibrate a melancholy sound when I set about this task. I fear she is not doomed to remain long among us; nay,' said he emphatically, 'she will not survive twelve months.' The event verified the prediction, and the young lady died within the period limited by the unconsciously prophetic bard."—See Carolan's "Prophecy," in The Poetical Works of Mrs. Felicia Hemans.

End of the Names of Persons in the Grants under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation.

21.—BOOKS OF SURVEY AND DISTRIBUTION.

THOSE Volumes, which are in Manuscript, are very voluminous ; and may be seen at the Public Record Office, Dublin. Each of the Volumes (see p. 1, ante.) records the Names of the Proprietors of, at least, one county in Ireland. In some cases two counties, and in some cases three, or portions of three counties, are included in one volume. They are all arranged under the following headings : The parish and barony ; the “ No. in ye Plott ; ” Proprietors in Anno 1641, according to the Civil Survey ; Denominations of the Lands, according to the Downe Survey ; No. of Unprofitable Acres : No. of Profitable Acres ; and the Names of the persons to whom in each case the forfeited lands were then conveyed.

From the first of those Volumes which we consulted, namely, that for the County Limerick, “ Vol. Ye Vth,” we have taken at random from the thirty-four parishes in the barony of Connello (the first barony mentioned in the Volume), the following few names ; that the reader may see therefrom the nature of the valuable information which the "Books of Survey and Distribution" contain. In this paper the names of the parishes and townlands are spelled the same as they are in those Volumes. The Running Numbers in the following Lists are ours :

COUNTY OF LIMERICK, BARONY OF CONNELLO.

* McHenry : This family surname is in Irish MacIneirghe, which is now anglicised MacEniry ; and is quite distinct from MacHenry.—See the "MacEniry" Genealogy, in pp. 103-105 of this Volume.

† Order : Judging by the date of this Order, it is evident that the "Books of Survey and Distribution," from which these entries are taken, were compiled in the reign of Charles II., by the Commissioners appointed by that Monarch to execute his Declaration.

Names of Proprietors in 1641.	Denomination of Lands.	To whom the Forfeited Lands were conveyed.

22.—IRISHMEN WHO SERVED IN THE SPANISH NETHERLANDS.

THE sympathy with France, cultivated by the House of Stuart, led to the formation of several Regiments of Irish in that service during the Exile of Charles II. Of these a Regiment of Horse, commanded by the Earl of of Bristol, served with distinguished reputation during the campaign of 1652 under Marshal Turenne; and towards the close of that year an Irish Regiment in the Service of the Duke of Lorraine entered the same service. The French had laid siege to Bois-le-Duc, garrisoned by these Irish; a deadly conflict ensued; the Regiment of Picardy at length entered; but the garrison defended their barricades, the streets and houses, until driven to the upper town and citadel by superior numbers.

The Great Condé then Generalissimo of the Spanish Armies approached to relieve the place, the French returned to the siege, a breach in the upper town was immediately assaulted, but the storming party were valiantly beaten off. A fresh breach was, however, soon after effected; and, the town and citadel being no longer tenable, the garrison surrendered prisoners of war. The Irish considered they owed a paramount duty to their own King (Charles II.); and, as soon as the surrender of Bois-le-Duc had discharged them from the Standard of Lorraine, they made a tender of their services to the Duke of York, which was accepted by Cardinal Mazarin. Their numbers had been much reduced during the siege; so that, not being qualified to act as a separate body, they were incorporated with the Duke's own Regiment. The Irish were now opposed to Irish in the campaign of 1653, in the French and Spanish armies; Moinon, on the Meuse, in that year withstood an obstinate siege. The York regiment with those of Picardy and Turenne mounted the trenches alternately. The Spanish and Irish garrison defended the place with unusual bravery. The Duke of York and his regiment took a very distinguished part. The skill of engineers and the perseverance of the troops ultimately forced the garrison to a capitulation, after seventeen days of open trenches.

Before the opening of the campaign of 1654, 800 Irish quartered at Eterre and Gorque were surprised by Count de Broglio. These villages were divided by the Lis, and had been guarded by the Spaniards and Irish during the winter. The Spaniards had suddenly withdrawn, leaving the Irish unsupported, exposed to the attacks of the enemy, and unable to act unitedly in any emergency, being divided by the river. The French, with their wonted activity, assailed, routed, and nearly destroyed the whole corps.

At the lines of Arras, gained by Turenne over the Spanish under Condé, the regiments of York and Dillon shared with the French the honour of that great victory.*

29.—SKETCH† OF THE IRISH BRIGADES IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

THE foreign military achievements of the Irish began on their own account: at an early period they conquered and colonized Scotland; frequently overran England, during and after the Roman dominion in that country; and more than once penetrated into Gaul. During the time of the Danish invasion they had enough to do at home; but the progress of the English settlement in Ireland, brought our countrymen again to battle on foreign ground. In the Brigades wherewith Edward I. ravaged Scotland there were many Irish soldiers. Yet Scotland may be content; for Scotch soldiers in their turn have helped to ravage Ireland. The lords of the "Pale" took an active and prominent part in the "Wars of the Roses" in England; and their vassals shared the victories, the defeats, and the carnage of the time.

In the continental wars of Edward III., and Henry V., their Norman-Irish soldiers served with much distinction; and the invaluable services during the short war in France, and especially at the siege of Boulogne, of the Irish soldiers whom Henry VIII. demanded of the Irish government, are well known.

At the submission of Ireland to England in 1603, O'Sullivan Bearra,

Purchasers*: In "The Book of Postings and Sale of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland in 1702-1703," from which the foregoing Return is compiled, the Postings and Sale of the Estates forfeited in all the counties of Ireland are given, save those of Leitrim and Fermanagh. Besides the names of the persons recorded in that "Book of Postings and Sale," the reader will find in the "List of Claims as they were entered with the Trustees at Chichester House, College Green, Dublin, on or before the Tenth of August, 1700," the names of others who succeeded to Lands forfeited in Ireland at the period of the Revolution, and whose claims were allowed. The Claims of others were disallowed, and many were dismissed; but to give in this Volume the 3,103 (or more) names of the Claimants in Chichester House, A.D. 1700, would render it too bulky for our purpose. That "List of Claims" can be seen at Mr. Patrick Traynor's, Bookseller, 29 Essex Quay, Dublin, to whose courtesy we are indebted for its perusal.

†Sketch: For further information on this subject see O'Callaghan's "Irish Brigades in the service of France;" "National and Historical Ballads, Songs, and Poems," by Thomas Davis (Dublin: James Duffy & Sons. 1874); and the Paper No. 34 in this Appendix.

and others excepted from the amnesty, took service and obtained high rank in Spain; and after the "Flight of the Earls" (O'Neill and O'Donnell), in 1607, many Irishmen entered into the Continental services. From Strafford's Letters we discover the estimation in which the Irish were held as soldiers in foreign services during the early part of the seventeenth century: we find them holding commissions in Spain, France, Austria, and Italy. The Spanish government in particular seems to have been extremely desirous of enlisting in Ireland; their own troops, especially their infantry, being at that time equal, if not superior, to any in the world.

Nor were the Irish troops less active for the King of England: Strafford had increased the Irish Army; these he paid regularly, clothed well, and frequently "drew out in large bodies." He meant to oppress; but, during the wars which followed 1641, some of these disbanded troops which Strafford had raised, being well disciplined, served Ireland. In 1639, when the first row with the Scotch took place, Wentworth was able to send, with other forces, a garrison of 500 Irish to Carlisle, to assist King Charles the First. And the victories of Montrose were owing to the valour and discipline of the Irish auxiliaries under Sir Alexander ("Coll-Kittagh") MacDonnell.

Many of the Irish who had lost their fortunes by the Cromwellian wars also served on the Continent.

The Duke of Tyrconnell increased the Irish Army in the reign of James II.; but numbers of his Regiments, when real work began in 1689, were disbanded as having neither arms nor discipline. His sending of the Irish troops to England hastened the Revolution, by exciting jealousy, and they were merely a handful to resist; they were forced to enter the service of German princes, especially the Prussian.

After the Treaty of Limerick, the Garrison of that city landed in France, and the second Irish Brigade was formed. It is not our purpose to here mention all the battles in which the Irish Brigades in foreign countries were engaged. The Peace of Utrecht put an end to the war in Flanders; but still many of the Irish continued to serve in Italy and Germany, and thus fought at Parma, Guastalla and Philipsburg. In the next war the great and peculiar achievement was at the Battle of Fontenoy, which (see note, p. 135) was almost lost to the French, when Marshal Saxe, who commanded on the occasion, ordered up his last reserve—the Irish Brigade:

"And Fontenoy, famed Fontenoy, had been a Waterloo,
Were not these exiles ready then, fresh, vehement and true."

On that day it consisted of the Regiments of O'Brien (Lord Viscount Clare), Lally, Dillon, Berwick, Roth, and Buckley, with Fitzjames's Horse. Aided by the French Regiments of Normandy and Vaisseany, the Irish Brigade was ordered to charge with fixed bayonets upon the flank of the English, without firing; they were led by Lord Clare to immediate action, and the stimulating cry of Cuimhnighidh ar Laimmeach agus ar Fheile na Sacsanaigh ("Remember Limerick and Saxon Faith") was re-echoed from man to man in the Brigade. At that battle victory the most decisive crowned the French arms. It is recorded that Louis,

King of France, who was present on the occasion, rode down to the Irish bivouac, and personally thanked them ; and George II., King of England, on hearing of his defeat at Fontenoy, uttered the memorable imprecation on the Penal Code in Ireland : "Cursed be the laws which deprive me of such subjects." The one English volley, and the short struggle on the crest of the hill, cost the Irish dearly : one-fourth of their officers, including Colonel Dillon, were killed ; and one-third of the men.

The history of the Irish Brigade after Fontenoy may be easily given : in 1747, they carried the village of Laufeldt, after three attacks, in which another Colonel Dillon, 130 other officers, and 1,600 men were killed ; and in 1751 they were at Maestricht. Lally's Regiment served in India ; and the other Regiments in Germany, during the war from 1756 to 1762. During the American Revolutionary War the Irish fought in the French West India Islands. By that time they were greatly reduced ; and, at the French Révolution the Irish Regiments in the service of France, were completely broken up.

30.—THE "WILD GEESE.*"

By an Abstract from the Stuart Papers of a "Memoire touchant des Moyens pour avoir Recrues d'Irlande, 1693," it appears "An agent was to be established at Dublin, who was to have agents to act according to his directions in several counties. They were to enlist recruits, and to facilitate their escape from Ireland" (to France).

Primate Boulter, writing from Dublin, in January, 1710, mentions that some Officers in the French Service had men engaged to sail with those recruits from Bullock ; that the Commander of the Forces ordered fifty Foot and four Dragoons to march to Bullock to seize or disperse those persons ; and, when his soldiers came there, they found about forty men listed for abroad, and four or five French Officers with them.

In 1726, Captain Moses Nolan, who hailed from Carlow, was hanged in Stephen's Green, Dublin, for having "shipp^d off 200 men those two months past, and had 100 more to go off the night he was arrested."

In 1746, Captain Anthony M'Donagh (who distinguished himself at Fontenoy), with a Mr. O'Brien, was sent to the county of Clare to recruit for the Brigade.

Through the arbitrary suppression by England of the Irish Woollen Manufacture, and the constant limitations to employment in this country by the constant additions to the Penal Code† in Ireland, the causes of such intercourse with France were necessarily increased. Well equipped

* Wild Geese : "The recruits for the Irish Brigade were generally conveyed to France in the smugglers which brought foreign wines, brandy, etc., to the West Coast of Ireland, and were entered on the ships' books as 'Wild Geese': hence this became the common name for them among the country people."

—DUFFY'S Spirit of the Nation.

† Penal Code : See Note, p. 183, for a Stanza from p. 222 of "The Book of Irish Ballads," edited by Denis Florence MacCarthy (Dublin : James Duffy, 1869), which will give some idea of the Penal Laws in Ireland.

smuggling vessels, freighted with claret, brandy, laces, and silks, constantly plied to the coast of Kerry, Clare, and Galway; having Irish Officers on board, possessing influence with their countrymen. In exchange for the smuggled commodities, cargoes of wool and hardy recruits were returned. The periodical emigration in the French Service, fancifully styled, "The Flights of the Wild Geese."

Those enlistments for the Irish Brigade in the Service of France were, down to the Peace of Aix la Chapelle, most extensive. Prohibitory measures were subsequently adopted by the Government in Ireland, and thenceforth the enlistments may be said to have comparatively ceased, yet they did not do so altogether; for, in 1756, Morty-Oge-O'Sullivan, of Bearhaven, who held a Captain's Commission in the French Service, fell under the vengeance of the law, for enlisting men for the Irish Brigade; and, later on, informations were sworn against James Herbert, otherwise Thomas Fitzgerald, "who calls himself a French Officer," for having on four several occasions enlisted men at Kilfinnan and Kilmallock, and shipped them at Bantry for the French Service.

In 1759, the French Government commanded preparations on an extensive scale to be made for the invasion of the British Isles. Twenty-five thousand men, including the Irish Brigade, were to take part in the enterprise; and the enthusiastic Franco-Irish Officers did not doubt that, if this force could once land and obtain a first success, the whole Catholic population of Ireland would rise to support it. Referring to the return of the Wild Geese, the composer of a contemporary Gaelic ballad exclaims:

"The Wild Geese shall return, and we'll welcome them home:

So active so armed and flighty;

A flock was never known to this island to come,

Since the years of Prince Fionn the Mighty."

—O'DALY'S Poets and Poetry of Munster.

The defeat of Admiral Conflans at Quinberon Bay by Admiral Hawke, and the capture of Thurat O'Farrel's ships at Belfast Lough, prevented the realization of the poet's hopeful anticipations.

End of the Irish Brigade in the Service of France; Paper No. 2.

34.—THE IRISH-AMERICAN BRIGADES.

Hark, from yon stately ranks what laughter rings!
Mingling wild mirth with war's stern minstrelsy;
His jest while each blithe comrade round him flings,
And moves to death with military glee!
Boast Erin! boast them, tameless, frank, and free.
In kindness warm, and fierce in danger known—
Rough nature's children, humorous as she;
And he, yon Chieftain!—strike the proudest tone
Of thy bold harp, Green Isle, the HEROES ARE THINE OWN!"

SINCE A.D. 1775, when the United States of America achieved their independence, there has been "a thorough identification of Irish feeling with American success;" for, as did France and Spain and Austria, America, like a tender mother, did also with open arms, receive our exiled fellow countrymen in the dark days of wrong and ruin in Ireland. True, therefore, to the high and noble instincts of their race, those Irish exiles have proved the depth of their gratitude and the warmth of their attachment to the land of their adoption, by sacrifices the greatest that human nature can make; for many of the ablest and most distinguished Chiefs, and a large proportion of the flower of the American army who fought, and bled, and died in the cause of America, in the time of the immortal Washington, as well as more recently in the time of the humane and upright Lincoln, were Irishmen.

Even amongst the fifty-two Signatories to the "Declaration of American Independence," we find (See Note, p. 109 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES) a few names which had their origin in Ireland. And in this sketch we feel we cannot select a more appropriate name to commence with than that of Maryland's "First Citizen," Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, who was the only Signer that fearlessly wrote his address* on that memorable "Declaration;" in order, as he said, that his identity should be unmistakable. By signing that Declaration he and the other Signers risked fortune, life, everything but honour, in the cause of their adopted country. He d. in 1833, at an advanced age.†

Of Oliver Byrne, the great Mathematician, it was said, "that he did more than any man in America to infuse into his emigrant countrymen a military spirit."

The father of the American Navy was John Barry, a native of Wexford; he was sometime employed in the Land Forces, and gave effectual aid to the Commanders with whom he was associated.

There were several Butlers who occupied important positions: one of them was a Major-General, who figured well in Mexico.

Major-General Carroll held command, and rendered fine services in several engagements.

Charles Clinton emigrated from Longford in 1729, and took with him three sons who afterwards became famous: Colonel James Clinton, in New York, was one of the first to join the Revolution; and his brother, George Clinton, was considered worthy to succeed the renowned Montgomery, as Brigadier-General.

General Coffee received high compliments for his soldier-like conduct.

General Conway was one of the leaders who went from France to aid America in her struggle for independence.

Colonel Fitzgerald was Aide-de-Camp to Washington; and at the battle of Princeton gave proof of a fearless spirit and tender heart: a fearless spirit, by his dauntless efforts to rescue his Chief; and a tender heart, by his "tears of joy" when he found that great Chief had escaped almost by a miracle.

Of the five sons of "Honest John Hart" (see p. 85), one of the Signers of the Declaration of American Independence, two of them were engaged in the War of the Revolution, and three of them acted as General Washington's guides while he was campaigning in New Jersey.

Jackson, Commander-in-Chief of the Seventh Military Division, United States Army, received his first wound at the age of thirteen, in the Revolutionary Contest; and in his after-career was remarkably successful. In his Indian wars, Jackson trained Carroll, Coffee, Higgins, Armstrong, Donaldson, and many other officers, who became well known for their ability and intrepidity.

There are few nobler characters in history than Major-General Montgomery, who was born in Ireland in 1736, and, at a very early age, evinced the qualities of a true soldier and hero: he possessed judgment and keen sagacity, courage and humanity; and it has been said of him "that his soul was as noble as his cause, and his honour as bright as his own sword."

It was an Irishman who struck the first blow for American Indepen-

* Address: Charles Carroll wrote his address on the "Declaration of American Independence;" because it was said at the time that the Signers of the Declaration could not escape the consequences of their conduct as Signers, in the event of the American Revolution not being successful.

dence ; and for that act Brigadier-General John Sullivan's name shall ever be remembered in America.

In this Return we preserve, as far as we have ascertained, the names of the Irish Officers (by birth or descent), who served in the Irish-American Brigades in the Federal Army of the United States, during the War (of 1861-1865), on the Slave Emancipation Question.

End of O'Meagher's Irish Brigade in the Service of America.

CORCORAN'S IRISH LEGION.*

THE Irish Legion (also known as "Corcoran's Irish Legion") was composed of New York State Volunteers; and consisted of four Regiments, namely:

1. The 69th Regiment, New York Heavy Artillery.†
2. The 155th New York State Volunteers.
3. The 164th " "
4. The 170th " "

THE 69TH (OR SENIOR) REGIMENT OF CORCORAN'S IRISH LEGION.

The Sixty-Ninth (or Senior) Regiment of Corcoran's Irish Legion (or, as it was also called, "The 182nd Regiment, New York State Volunteers,") was organized in New York City, to serve three years. It was Mustered into the Service of the United States on the 17th of November, 1862; it was Mustered out of the Service on the 15th July, 1865, in accordance with Orders from the War Department.

Brigadier-General:

Michael Corcoran.‡

Brevet Brigadier-General:

(Colonel James P. M'Ivor, who was a Colonel in the 170th Regiment, infra, was the last Commander of Corcoran's Irish Legion.)

* Legion: The names in this List are taken from the Official Roster of the Adjutant-General, State of New York.

† Artillery: The 69th Regiment New York Heavy Artillery was also known as "The 69th National Guards Artillery," etc.

‡ Corcoran: At the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1861, between the Northern and Southern States of America, Colonel Corcoran was under Court-Martial, for refusing to parade his regiment (the 69th New York State Militia), to honour His Sullivan, Dennis L.

Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who had then visited New York. That Regiment having volunteered for the field, Colonel Corcoran was relieved from the Court-Martial, and he started with his command for Washington. His Regiment built "Fort Corcoran," on Arlington Heights, across the (river) Potomac, in Virginia, for the defence of Washington. At the first battle of Bull-Run he was captured, and held a prisoner for one year in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va. When Colonel Corcoran was exchanged, President Lincoln gave him a Commission as Brigadier-General, to date back to the 21st July, 1861, the day of his capture ; with authority to recruit a Brigade in New York State. Thus was the fighting "Irish Legion" in America originated and organised.

* Not Mustered : This means that, although the Officer had received his Commission from the Governor of the State of New York, the United States Military Authorities would not "Muster" him, if his Company was found reduced by the casualties of war, below the minimum of 43.

† Coonan : As in the case of this Lieut.-Colonel John Coonan who was promoted to a Colonelcy, the names of other Officers who were promoted appear twice in this Return.

‡ Reid : It pains us to have to record the "dismissal" of any Officer, but, as the observation occurs in the column of Remarks in the Return before us, we feel bound to give it, that for reference' sake, this List may be as accurate as possible,

Adjutants :

McIvor, James P.	...	Promoted to Colonel, 4th Feb., 1863.
Murphy,* Michael C....	...	"Dismissed,* 4th January, 1864."

* Dismissed : The cause of Lieutenant-Colonel Murphy's "dismissal" was, that, against Orders, he carried in some of his wounded from between the two lines of battle ; that was all. It may, therefore, be hoped that, in the other cases of "dismissal" recorded in this Return, the causes were some similar violation of military discipline ; and nothing more--See Note ("Reid,") p. 571.

End of the Names of the Privy Council.

II.—THE HOUSE OF LORDS.*

In 1797.

The Peerage of Ireland at that period consisted of the Lord Chancellor (who was the Earl of Clare), 4 (Protestant) Archbishops, 3 Peers of the Blood Royal, 1 Duke, 5 Marquises, 71 Earls, 54 Viscounts, 18 (Protestant) Bishops, and 54 Barons. There were five Peers of Ireland who had no Seat in Parliament, either from being Roman Catholics, or Minors; their titles and names are given at the end of this Return. The following is an Alphabetical List of the Lords of Parliament at that period: the first column gives their titles; the second column, their family names; the numbers in the third column indicate their "degrees of Nobility,"† The following contractions will simplify reference to the Return: Abp. stands for Archbishop; B. for Baron; Bp. for Bishop; D. for Duke; E. for Earl; M. for Marquis; R. E. for Royal Earl; V. for Viscount.

* Lords: Compiled from the "Irish Court Registry," of 1797.

† Nobility: The "Degrees of Nobility" here mentioned must be understood as expressing the order of Precedence assigned to each Archbishop, Duke, Marquis, Earl, Viscount, Bishop, or Baron, in his respective grade of the Peerage; for, as the word Nobility ("no-bilis" or, more correctly, "gno-bilis": Lat. noble, or majestic; Irish "gno") properly means descent from distinguished ancestors, it will not be affirmed that all the names included in this Return could well claim the attribute of "Nobility" in the correct sense of the term. In Ireland and Scotland each ancient family had its own Chief; under the Tanist Law those Chiefs (see the "Laws of Tanistry," p. 732 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES) constituted the ancient Nobility in those sister countries. That Law (see "Gavelkind and Ancient Tenures," p. 648, ibid) continued in Ireland down to the reign of King James the First. In England the "Wars of the Roses" cut off almost all the ancient English Nobility; but, for political or other services, the Sovereigns have from time to time since raised to the Peerage and thus ennobled many of their subjects. It may be observed, however, that some of the persons so "ennobled" could, by virtue of their ancient Lineage, and descent from "distinguished ancestors," well lay claim to Nobility, before they received the Titles under which they afterwards graced the Peerage.

End of the Parliamentary Constituencies in Ireland, at the period of the Union.

37.—FOREIGN RELIGIOUS FOUNDATIONS BY IRISHMEN.

According to the Journal of the Kilkenny Archaeological Society, Vol. II., 1858-59, pp. 386-390, "The following noble List of early Christian Foreign Foundations, whose memory has lived and reached our times, through so many ages of changing scenes and sceptres, is a glorious Monument to that Mission-spirit of Christianity and Civilization which actuated the Irish nation from the fifth to the thirteenth century; and utterly confutes that vulgar idea of the illiterate, dark, and savage history of the same period, so generally received as hers."

IN ENGLAND :

Circa 675. Maidluff founded a school and monastery at Malmesbury.

Circa 637. St. Fursa founded a monastery at Cnobersburg (now Burgcastle in Suffolk).

St. Hilda, Whitby, Northumberland,—Farramer—Abingdon.—Venta—Boschan.

St. Piran, known in Ireland as Kieran of Saigir, born, according to Camden and Usher, circa 350, obit 5th March, 480, founded a church at Perran-Zabuloe, on the north coast of Cornwall, about the close of the fourth century.

St. Ia, one of Piran's missionary companions, also founded a church at St. Ives, in the same locality, and his name is identified with the place to this day. Glastonbury is said to be an Irish foundation, and was noted as an early seat of Irish learning.

IN SCOTLAND :

St. Columbkil, or "Columb of the Churches," born A.D. 521, founded Iona; he was the great apostle of the Picts, and to the Hebrides. In Townley's Bible Literature, sixth century, p. 205, he says: "Of the schools or seminaries of this age none excelled in the study of Scriptures than the monastery of Iona, once the luminary of the Caledonian regions; it became chief seminary of learning at that time, perhaps in Europe. It supplied above 300 churches which Columba had founded, and many neighbouring nations, with learned divines and able pastors." . . . The Book of Kells, allowed by our best judges to be one of the most elaborate and elegantly executed manuscript examples of early art now in existence, is attributed to Columbkil.

St. Patrick founded the church of Kirkpatrick, at Durham; at Mongray, in Kircudbright; and at Fleming, in Dumfries.

Melrose, St. Modanus, Abbot of Dryburgh, sixth century. Kill-Cathan in Bute, Kill-Carmarthen, Kill-Drinan. Irish foundations—Campolungen, Hinbano, Elenus, Alech, Blednan.

IN BELGIUM :

Namur.—Saints Farraman and Eloquius.

Liege.—St. Ultan; the saints Foilan and Ultan, brothers of St. Fursey, were invited over by St. Gertrude (daughter of Pepin), Abbess of Neville, in Brabant, to teach her community sacred music ; which shows at once the superiority and advancement in science of the Irish over their continental neighbours in the seventh century. These saints erected a monastery at Fosse, and St. Ultan became the first Superior of the Monastery of St. Quintin, and died about the year 676. Gueldres, St. Wiro ; Treves, St. Disibode ; Malonia, near Namur ; Hautmont, in Hainault, a monastery founded by Madelgan, in the seventh century. Soignes, not far distant, a monastery by the same Madelgan. In 638, St. Livinus suffered martyrdom ; Treves, St. Hildulph ; Odielraburgh, diocese of Liege, St. Wiro, seventh century ; Nassonia, same diocese, St. Mono, eighth century ; Eloquius and twelve disciples preached in Belgium. Saints Faranuar and MacAllum, successive Abbots of Vasoar on the Meuse. Irish foundations at Hannonia, Altimont, Sonég, Turnin, Mont St. Peter, Walciodor.

IN GERMANY :

St. Finloy, patron of Metz, and Abbot of Simphorian. Ratisbon, two Irish monasteries, St. Peter and St. James : St. Peter's erected, 1068 ; St. James, 1140. Mentz, St. Dysibod, 675. Franconia, 750. St. Kylian, who was earliest missionary to Cologne and Wurtzburg, lies buried in the Cathedral of Wurtzburg. St. Macarius, 1152, Mechlin. St. Rumold, 775, Cologne, monastery of St. Martins. Erford, an Irish monastery, in 1061. Nuremburg, the church of St. Egidius, 1159, and another at the same place, and in the same year, founded by Declan. Vienna, a monastery by Gregory, in 1152. Eichstachl, Worms, St. Rupert, ob. 719. St. Dobdan, with fifty companions, accompanied Virgil to Bavaria.

IN FRANCE :

The Religious Foundations by Irishmen in France were at Poitiers, monastery of St. Hilarius, St. Fridolinus, Abbot. Peronne, St. Fursa (ob. 648) founded a monastery at Lagny, also ; and his disciples, St. Foilan, St. Gobhan, and St. Dicuil, were his co-labourers. Emilius, another of his disciples, was Abbot of Lagny in 646. It was this Fursa who founded the monastery of Cnobersburg in England. St. Arbogast, consecrated Bishop of Strasburg, 646. Toul, St. Mansuetus, Bishop of, in the fifth century. Lorraine Breuil, St. Fiacre built a monastery at ; he flourished A.D. 622 ; another at Malde ; he was patron of Meaux ; ob. 670. Luthra founded by St. Deicolo or Dichuil. Strasburg, Florentinus, a monastery here, and another at Hasle ; he died Bishop of Strasburg, in 687. Angouleme, Helias, A.D. 862. Hasle, Alsace, Arbogast, an Irish Scot. Amboise, St. Florentinus, 576. Beaulieu, near Verdun, Roding or St. Rouin, Abbot. Luxeuil and Fontainis, founded by St. Columbanus, whose name is still held sacred through Lombardy, Burgundy, and Champagne. St. Jonas arrived in Burgundy, A.D. 589. St. Fridolin was the son of an Irish King, and founded several monasteries in France, Helvetia, and on the Rhine ; he flourished about the close of the seventh century. A.D. 772, Clemens, head of a great school just then established at Paris, and his companion Albinus, same date, made head of another school just founded at Pavia, in Italy.

IN SPAIN :

St. Sedulius, Bishop of Oretó in the beginning of the eighth century.

IN UPPER SAXONY :

Albin, Bishop of Buraburg, A.D., 771.

IN AUSTRIA :

St. Virgilus, Bishop of Salzburg in 756 ; he and his companion, Modestus, first Bishops of Carinthia.

IN ITALY :

The Religious Foundations by Irishmen in Italy were at Tarentum, by St. Cathaldus, in the seventh century. St. Cathaldus was a native of Munster, and a professor in the celebrated school at Lismore, where it is said he erected a church. Lecce, in Naples, St. Donatus, Bishop ; he was also made Bishop of Fiesole, in Italy ; he died in 861. Faventum, St. Emilion, patron. Lucca, St. Frigidian, Bishop for twenty-eight years, and still patron ; obit, 588. Pavia University, founded by John Albin. Bobio, in the Appenines, founded by St. Columbanus, who died there in 615. St. Columban is the favourite saint also of this place. Andrew, disciple of Donatus, founded a monastery at St. Martins, near Fiesole. Dongal, one of the most learned men of his time, was made professor of the school of Pavia, by King Lothaire, in the middle of the ninth century. Livinus, an Irish Bishop, suffered martyrdom in Flanders, A.D. 633.

IN SWITZERLAND :

St. Gall.—This saint gave name to the Canton of Monast. St. Fridolin founded a church and monastery at Seckingen.

IN ICELAND :

In 874, Ernulfus and Buo built a church at Esinburgh ; and St. Ailbhe sent twenty-four of his disciples to Iceland.

St. Cuthbert, the celebrated Bishop of Lindisfarne, is said by good authorities to have been an Irishman, though his name is not to be found in some of the Lists of Irish saints ; but there is no doubt that he was educated an Irishman. The two Ewalds, who were martyred at Cologne, were English by birth, but Irish by Education. St. Willibroard, whose tomb at Utrecht is pointed to by Holland and Belgium as of their first Christian missionary, was also English by birth, but Irish by education. The few English examples here introduced (which might be easily extended) are in point, for they show that in the age under consideration, Ireland supplied the school for Englishmen, as well as the professor and missionary to the continent. And it must be kept in mind, that one of the great objects in the early monastic establishments was the culture of literature, and the study of architecture. Witness the numerous literary works and Manuscripts copied and preserved through their means, and the many important and elegant examples of early architecture.

designed and executed by bishops and abbots of the time. An important fact, also in point, is, that the great work published a short time since, known as Zeuss's Grammatica Celtica, and which was ably reviewed by Dr. O'Donovan in the "Ulster Journal of Archæology," owes most of its importance to the great antiquity of the Irish Manuscripts which Zeuss discovered in the continental colleges and monasteries, relics of those very missionaries above enumerated; the famous glosses and manuscripts, thus discovered, being far more ancient and valuable than any to be found to the present time in Britain or Ireland.

End of the Foreign Religious Foundations by Irishmen.

ADDENDA.

[THE Genealogies recorded in pp. 195—225 were printed before we had fully compiled the following pedigrees. Should, however, this work reach a Second Edition, all the Genealogies therein contained will be given in regular sequence and alphabetical order.]

232.—THE “BARRY” FAMILY,

Of Sandville, County Limerick.

A CADET of the “Barry” family of Buttevant got by marriage, early in the fifteenth century, a considerable estate in the Clangibbon country, near Kilmallock, in the co. Limerick. A member of the family intermarried* with the family of Bourke of Clanwilliam, in the same county.

234.—THE "BROWNE" FAMILY.

THE family of Le Brun, anglicised Browne, is of Norman origin, and springs from the Counts of Marche in Poictou. The name is inscribed on the Roll of Battle Abbey. One of the family, Hugh le Brun, married Isabel, of Angouleme, widow of King John. Their son William de Valence, Baron by Tenure, was created Earl of Pembroke, by Henry III. Aymer de Valence, son of said William, was Baron by Writ, 1299; and, afterwards, Earl of Pembroke. At his decease, without issue, the Barony and Earldom became extinct, in 1323.

Sir Hugh le Brun, son of Geoffrey (or Godfrey) le Brun, and uncle of Hugh aforesaid, was one of the Lords of the Marches of Wales; from him we trace the genealogy, as follows:

1. Sir Hugh le Brun, one of the Lords of the Marches of Wales, had:

2. Sir Stephen, who m. Eva, sister of Griffith, Prince of Wales, and had three sons: 1. Hugh; 2. Sir Philip; 3. Sir William, of whom presently. Sir Stephen and his sons supported King Stephen against the Empress Maud.

I. Hugh, the eldest son, having rendered important services to King Henry II. on his invasion of Wales, was permitted by that Monarch to inherit the father's large estates; but

II. Philip and

III. William, having distinguished themselves in the Civil Wars against Henry were, to escape his resentment, obliged to join in the invasion of Ireland, in 1170, in which year Sir Philip,* of Mulrankan, was appointed Governor of Wexford. The Brownes of Mulrankan remained in Wexford till their property was confiscated in the Commonwealth period, under the pretence that William, of Mulrankan (see ante, p. 40), had joined in the War of 1641.

3. Sir William: youngest son of Sir Stephen; landed in Ireland with the Earl Marshall; went against Dublin, then in possession of the Danes, and settled near Clondalkin. One of his descendants, Fromond le Brun, was Chancellor of Ireland in 1230, 1259, and 1272. Sir William had two sons:

I. Sir Nicholas.

II. Walter, of whom presently. Sir William and his son Sir Nicholas were witnesses to the foundation Charter of Dunbrody Abbey, co. Wexford, in 1182.

4. Walter: second son of Sir William; had:

5. Sir Stephen, who had two sons:

I. Stephen, who settled in Meath:

II. Sir David.

6. Sir David: second son of Sir Stephen, was companion-in-arms of Rickard de Burgo, the Red Earl of Ulster, with whom he was connected by marriage, and obtained extensive possessions near Athenry, the capital of the Anglo-Norman settlers in Connaught. He d. at David's Castle; having with his son Aymer built the Castle of Carrabrowne, in Oranmore.

7. Stephen: son of Sir David; was at the Battle of Athenry in 1316; and Dundalk in 1318, in which he was engaged under Richard, the fourth Lord Athenry, and his brother Sir John Bermingham, the first Earl of Louth. He m. Katherine de Bermingham, dau. of Lord Athenry, and with daughters had four sons:

I. Henry, of whom presently.

II. John, of Stradbally.

* Philip: Sir Philip of Mulrankan is said to have been the ancestor of the Matthew Browne of Mulrankan, from whose son Sir John Browne are descended Lord Kilmaine and the Marquis of Sligo.

III. Robert.

IV. William.

8. Henry, of Ballydavid: eldest son of Stephen; joined his relatives the Berminghams in the Civil Wars between the Anglo-Irish Nobles, and subsequently accompanied the Earl of Kildare to France, where he joined the Forces of Edward III. On his return he m. Christian, dau. of Sir Ambrose Browne of Kent, and had with other issue:

9. Philip, who m. Lily, dau. of Walter Blake, eldest son of Richard Blake alias Caddle, Sheriff of Connaught in 1304. Philip, while young, was killed in a battle with the native Irish, and was succeeded by his son:

10. Thomas, who m. Kate, dau. of John Bowdekine, Provost of Athenry, by whom he had a numerous family.

11. Henry: son of Thomas; m. Sheela, dau. and heiress of Dominick Mullally, and had:

12. Thomas, who m. Mabel, dau. of William Browne, Provost of Athenry in 1420.

13. John: their eldest son; m. Mary, dau. of Walter French, Mayor of Galway in 1445, and had:

14. William, who m. Mary Athy.

15. John: their eldest son; m. Honoria de Burgo; joined William de Burgo and others who rose against the oppression of England, and fell at the Battle of Knock-atuath in 1504, after which Athenry and Galway surrendered.

16. Stephen: son of John; m. Eveline, dau. of Geoffrey Lynch, Mayor of Galway in 1487, and, besides a dau., had six sons:

I. Andrew, who d. while Mayor of Galway in 1574.

II. William, of whom presently.

III. James.

IV. John.

V. Patrick.

VI. Nicholas.

17. William: second son of Stephen; m. Anastatia, dau. of Valentine Blake (by his wife Eveline French, dau. of Geoffrey French), and had four sons:

I. Andrew, of Gloves.

II. Dominick, of Barna, of whom presently.

III. Richard.

IV. Thomas.

18. Dominick, of Barna: second son of William; Mayor of Galway in 1575; was with other Chieftains a party to a composition which they entered into in 1585, with Sir John Perrott on the part of Queen Elizabeth, for their properties in Connaught. This Dominick m. a dau. of Sir Morogh O'Flaherty, by whom he had a dau. Jane (the wife of Alderman Patrick Kirwan, ancestor of the Kirwans of Cregg and Bawnmore), and seven sons; he d. in 1596, and was buried in the family vault at the Franciscan Abbey, Galway. The sons were:

I. Oliver, of whom presently.

II. Edward, who went to Germany, attained to distinction there, and had issue.

III. Geoffrey, ancestor of Lord Oranmore.

IV. Marcus, ancestor of the Brownes of Connaught More, who are now extinct.

V. Thomas, ancestor of the Brownes of Brownville, and also of Newtown, Ardskeagh, and Cooloo.

VI. James, who had four sons:

I. Peter, who was Sheriff of Galway in 1647.

II. Thomas.

III. Nicholas, ancestor of John Browne, J.P. of Tuam and Greenville.

IV. Peter, who joined his relations on foreign service.

VII. Andrew, Alderman of Galway, ancestor of the family of Clonkeely and Moyne.

19. Oliver : eldest son of Dominick ; served as Sheriff of Galway in 1593, and as Mayor in 1609.

20. Martin, of Coolarne : his son ; was a staunch adherent of Royalty, and therefore, under the Commonwealth Rule in Ireland, his property was confiscated, including the handsome Mansion* he had erected in Galway, in Abbeygate Street. He m. Marie Lynch, and left two sons :

I. Oliver, of whom presently.

II. Sir Dominick.

21. Oliver,† of Coolarne (called "Captain Oliver") : son of Martin ; m. Julia Lynch, and had at the Restoration a re-grant of part of his father's lands. He left, with daughters (one of whom Elizabeth m. Marcus Lynch of Barna), three sons, of whom the eldest was Martin.

22. Martin, of Coolarne : eldest son of Oliver ; had issue :

I. Robert, of whom presently.

II. Anthony.

He had several daughters, one of whom in 1717, m. John Bodkin, Esq., of Annagh. This Martin on the 25th October, 1729, joined his son Robert and his grandson Martin in the execution of a Deed affecting the Estates. He is supposed to have been the builder of the Castle now in ruins, standing in front of the modern house of Castle Ellen ; the letters "M.B." and "M.K." (supposed to signify Martin Browne and Mary Kirwan) are engraved by the side of the principal fire-place in the ruin.

23. Robert : son of Martin ; lived at Kilskeagh.

24. Martin, of Corlarne : son of Robert ; m. Christian, daughter of Geoffrey, and sister of Dominick Browne, of Castlemacgarrett, in the co. Mayo, by whom he had three sons and a daughter :

235.—THE "CARROLL" FAMILY,

Of Dundalk, County Louth.

THE ancestor of this family was Cearbhall ("cearbhall": Irish carnage), a younger brother of Eochaidh, who (see p. 189 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES) is No. 90 on the "O'Hart" pedigree; and was King of Orgiall in St. Patrick's time. This Eochaidh, who was father of St. Donart, was an obstinate Pagan, and opposed the Apostle, who, on that account, prophesied that the sceptre would pass from Eochaidh to his brother Cearbhall, a quo O'Carroll, of Oriel; and the O'Carrolls continued Kings of Oriel (or the county Louth) down to the twelfth century, when they were dispossessed by the Anglo-Normans, under Sir John De Courcy. In co-operation with St. Malachy, then Archbishop of Armagh, Donoch O'Carroll, Prince of Oriel, the last celebrated Chief of this family, founded, A.D. 1142, and amply endowed, the great Abbey of Mellifont in the co. Louth. At present we are unable to trace the descent from that Prince of Oriel down to—

1. James Carroll, of Drumgoolin, who was b. in 1699, and d. 6th June, 1776. This James m. Anne Taaffe, and left one son:

236.—THE “CARROLL” FAMILY.

Of Maryland, United States, America.

In the “Journal of the Royal Historical and Archæological Association of Ireland,” for October, 1883, No. 56 (Vol. VI., 4th Series), is given a very interesting paper, communicated by the learned Frederick John O'Carroll, A.B., Barrister-at-Law, and entitled “Stemmata Carrollana, being the true version of the Pedigree of Carroll of Carrollton, and correcting that erroneously traced by Sir William Betham, late Ulster King-of-Arms.” That Pedigree commences with Fionn (slain 1205), who (see p. 107 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES) is No. 114 on the “O'Carroll” (Princes of Ely) Pedigree ; and proceeds, as follows :

114. Fionn, King of Ely (slain 1205), who had :

115. Teige, Chief of Ely, who had (Maolruanaidh and) Donal, who settled at Litterluna.

116. Donal, Chief of Ely, who had :

117. Donough Dhearg (d. 1306), Chief of Ely, who had :

118. William Alainn (the Handsome), Chief of Ely, who had :

119. Donough (d. 1377), Chief of Ely, who had :

120. Roderic, who had :

121. Daniel, who had :

122. Roderic,* who had :

123. Donough,* who had :

124. Teige, who had :

125. Donough, who had :

126. Daniel, who had :

127. Anthony, who had :

128. Daniel of Litterluna, who had two sons : I. Anthony ; II. Charles :

I. Anthony, of Lisheenboy, in the co. Tipperary (will proved 1724), who had four sons :

I. Daniel.

II. Michael.

III. James, a Captain in Lord Dongan's Regiment of Dragoons, from whom descend : Anthony R. Carroll and Redmond F. Carroll, of Dublin ; and Alfred Ludlow Carroll, of New York.

IV. Charles (will proved 1724).

* Roderic and Donough : Omitting these two names, this pedigree corresponds exactly with the Linea Antiqua, and, says Mr. F. J. O'Carroll, “it is actually so given in another part of the Carrollton MS. A comparison of the dates with the number of generations, however, corroborates the accuracy of the version given in this text.”

II. Charles, who settled in Maryland, in 1688.

129. Charles: second son of Anthony; received a large grant of land in Maryland, and arrived there 1st Oct., 1688, with a commission constituting him Attorney-General. He m. a dau. of Colonel Henry Darnall, a Kinsman of Lord Baltimore, and was appointed by that nobleman his Agent and Receiver-Gen.

180. Charles: son of Charles.

181. Charles, who d. 1833: his son; was the last survivor* of the Signers of American Independence.

A quo — Charles Carroll, now (1884) of Carrollton, and Hon. John Lee Carroll, ex-Governor of Maryland.—See pp. 109-110 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES.

* Survivor: This is the Charles Carroll, Maryland's "First Citizen," mentioned in the last line of p. 563, ante; "as became him, he was the most earnest and active in every measure taken in opposition to the encroachments of the British Government." His latest words were:

"I have lived to my 96th year, I have enjoyed continued health, I have been blessed with great wealth, prosperity, and most of the good things which the world can bestow—public approbation, esteem, applause; but what I now look back on with the greatest satisfaction to myself is, that I have practised the duties of my religion."

The line of Carroll of the Caves expired, says Mr. F. J. O'Carroll, in the male line in the person of Charles, son of Charles Carroll, of Annapolis (the descendant of the celebrated Ferganaim O'Carroll) . . . "and is now represented, through the female line, by General John Carroll of 'The Caves,' Baltimore, the name 'Carroll' having been assumed in compliance with the will of the last male representative in bequeathing his vast estates and possessions."

240.—THE “COTTER”* FAMILY,

Of Rockforest, Mallow, County Cork.

IN Gibson's "History of Cork," this family is stated to be of Danish origin. The name "Cotter," also spelled "Kotter" is common through Denmark and Northern Europe; and, so far as this family was concerned, was in Ireland anciently written "MacCottyr," "MacCotter," and "McCottir." Sometimes the name was in Irish written McCoithir, as well as MacCothir. The head of the family in the Commonwealth period was William, son of Edmond Cotter, of Coppingerstown Castle, near Midleton, in the co. Cork. That William forfeited his Estates under attainder, consequent on his taking part in the Irish War of 1641. It would appear (see p. 274 of this Volume) that, for the same cause, William Catter, of Gearigh, in the barony of Imokilly, co. Cork, then also forfeited his Estates: which inclines us to believe that the two Williams were identical; as there is no other William Catter or Cotter mentioned in the List of the "Forfeiting Proprietors in Ireland, under the Cromwellian Settlement."

Edmond Cotter (son of Garrett Cottir, of Innismore; son of William Cottyr, of Innismore, co. Cork; son of William Cottyr, temp. King Edward IV.), the kinsman and contemporary of the above mentioned William Cotter, of Coppingerstown Castle, was the ancestor of this branch of the family. That Edmond Cotter held considerable property, chiefly Ann Grove, which was his principal residence, and situate near Carrigtwohill; he also had property in Innismore, where he held a great part of the site of Queenstown (or "The Cove of Cork"), and land in other districts. While, however, the said Edmond was possessed of considerable wealth, it appears by his Will, that he held his Estates for the most part subject to head rents.

1. Edmond Cotter, of Innismore and Ann Grove, co. Cork; son of Garrett Cottir; was twice m.: first, to Elizabeth, dau. of John Connell, Esq., of Barry's Court, and by her had three sons and three daus.:

- I. Garrett, who d. unm.
- II. Sir James, of whom presently.
- III. John, who m. and had two sons and one daughter.
- I. Ellen, who m. John Evans, Esq.
- II. Mary, who m. William Barry, Esq.
- III. Catherine, who m. John Gwinn, Esq.

Edmond's second wife was Ellen Sarsfield (of Lord Kilmallock's family), and by her he had three sons and three daughters:

- IV. Edmond.
- V. William.
- VI. Patrick.
- IV. Anne.
- V. Eleanor.
- VI. Alice.

"He d. in 1660, as is recorded on the monument surmounting the ancient vault in Carrigtwohill Abbey."

2. Sir James Cotter (d. 1705),

* Cotter: There is a family of this name in the county Cork, whose Irish patronymic is Ua-Coiteoir or O'Coiteoir ("coiteoir:" Irish, a cottager, a boatbuilder). The prefix Ua or O' of this "Cotter" family clearly shows that it is of Irish extraction; for, while some Danish and other foreign families that settled in Ireland assumed the prefix Mac, they never ventured to assume the prefix O'.

of Ann Grove, Knt., and M.P. : son of Edmond ; was twice m. : first, to Mary (d. s.p.), dau. of Sir William Stapleton, Bart. ; and, secondly, on the 30th July, 1688, to the Honble. Eleanor Plunkett, eldest dau. of Matthew, the seventh Lord Louth, and by her had two sons and two daughters :

I. James, of whom presently.

II. Laurence, who d. aged 88 years, unm.

I. Mary, who m. Wm. Mahony, Esq., Barrister-at-Law.

II. Alice-Monica, who d. young.

This Sir James was Commander-in-Chief of King James's Forces in the counties of Cork, Limerick, and Kerry.

5. James Cotter, of Ann Grove : son of Sir James ; b. 4th Aug., 1689 ; was, for his devotion to the cause of the Stuarts, executed on the 7th May, 1720 ; m. in 1706 Margaret (d. 1725), eldest dau. of Major George Mathew, of Thurles, and had two sons and two daus. :

I. James, who was created a Baronet on the 11th Aug., 1763, and of whom presently.

II. Edmond, who m. a Miss O'Brien, of the co. Clare, and had two sons and two daus.

I. Sir James-Laurence, of whom presently.

II. Edmond, who d. unm.

III. Rogerson, M.A., and M.P. for Charleville, who m. and had issue.

IV. Rev. George-Sackville, M.A., who also married and had issue.

7. Sir James-Laurence Cotter, Bart., of Rockforest M.P., who d. 9th Feb., 1829 : eldest son of Sir James ; b. in 1748 ; was twice m. : first, to Anne (d. s.p. in 1778) only dau. of Francis Kearney, Esq., of Garretstown, near Kinsale ; and, secondly, to Isabella, dau. of the Rev. James Hingston, of Aglish, in the co. Cork, by whom he had six sons and four daus. :

I. Sir James-Laurence, his heir, of whom presently.

II. Rev. John-Rogerson, who was thrice m., and d. without surviving issue.

III. Rev. George-Edmond (d. 6th Aug., 1880), who m. and had issue.

IV. Richard-Baillie, who d. unm. in 1843.

V. Henry-Johnson, who d. unm. in 1830.

VI. Nelson-Kearney (d. in 1842), M.D., who m. and had issue.

The four daughters were :

I. Isabella, who m. James-Digges La Touche, Esq., of Dublin, and had issue.

II. Henrietta, who m. John Wise, Esq., of Cork, and had issue.

III. Catherine.

IV. Thomasine, who m. Arundel Hill, Esq., of Graig, co. Cork, and had issue.

8. Sir James-Laurence, Bart. (d. 31st Dec., 1834), of Rockforest, M.P. for Mallow : eldest son of Sir James ; m. on 1st Jan., 1820 Helena (d. 1st June, 1876), dau. of James Lombard, Esq., of Lombardstown, in the co. Cork, and had an only child :

9. Sir James-Laurence, Bart., of Rockforest, Mallow, in the co. Cork; b. 4th April, 1828, and living in 1883; m., first, on 14th June, 1851, Julia-Emily (d. 5th Feb., 1863), dau. of Frederick-Albert Loinsworth, Esq., M.D., and had two sons and one daughter:

I. Sir Ludlow, Knt., of whom presently.

II. James-Lombard, b. 1st Sept., 1859, an Officer in the 28th Foot.

I. Jane-Louisa.

Sir James-Laurence Cotter, m., secondly, on 30th April, 1864, Jane-Vergette, dau. of W. K. Maughan, Esq., of Sedgwick House, in Middlesex, England, and by her had:

III. Guy, b. in 1865, but who d. in infancy.

10. Sir Ludlow Cotter, Knt.: eldest son of Sir James-Laurence, Bart.; living in 1883.

241.—THE "COWELL" FAMILY,

Of Scotland.

IN pp. 207 and 373 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES" we show that Fearach, a brother of Muirceartach Mor MacEarca, the 131st Monarch of Ireland, who is No. 90 on the "O'Neill" (Princes of Tyrone) pedigree, was the ancestor of MacCathmhaoill; anglicised MacCowell, Cowell, Keawell, Campbell, &c.:

"In A.D. 498, Fergus Mor MacEarca (a brother of Muirceartach Mor MacEarca, above mentioned), in the twentieth year of the reign of his father, Muredach, son of (Eugenius, or) Owen, son of Niall of the Nine Hostages . . . with a complete Army, went into Scotland to assist his grandfather Loarn, who was King of Dalriada, and who was much oppressed by his enemies the Picts, who were in several battles and engagements vanquished and overcome by Fergus and his party. Whereupon, on the king's death, which happened about the same time, the said Fergus was unanimously elected and chosen king, as being of the Blood Royal, by his mother; and the said Fergus was the first absolute king of Scotland, of the Milesian Race: so the succession continued in his blood and lineage ever since to this day."—Four Masters.

As the MacCathmhaoill family here mentioned is descended from Fearach, a brother of the said Fergus Mor MacEarca, it is, no doubt, the Cowel (or Campbel) family mentioned in Jacob's Peerage;* for, according to said Peerage, we find that by letters-patent, bearing date at Kensington, the 23rd June, 1701, Archibald, the 10th Earl of Argyle, was created "Duke of Argyle," and, amongst other titles, that of "Earl of Campbell and Cowel." And (see No. 99 on the "Kiernan" pedigree, p. 270, and p. 545 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES") there was another MacCathmhaoill family located in Tirowen, Ireland.

* Peerage: "A complete English Peerage, containing a Genealogical, Biographical, and Historical Account of the Peers of this Realm; together with the different branches of each family; including a particular relation of the most remarkable transactions of those who have eminently distinguished themselves in the Service of their Country, both in the Field and in the Cabinet, from the Conquest down to the present time. To which is prefixed a succinct history of the Houses of Brunswick, Brandenburg, Saxe-Gotha, and Mecklenburgh. By the Rev. Alexander Jacob, Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majesty, and Chaplain to His Grace the Duke of Chandos. London: 1767."

In connexion with the Scotch "Cowell" family, it is a strange fact that the 74th Regiment, called when originally raised the "Argyll Highlanders," wear a dark tartan, relieved by streaks of white, known as the "Lamond." As Fearach was the ancestor of the family, and that the Lamonds were called the Clan ic Earachar, who were afterwards known as the "Maclamans of Lamonds," it is easy to understand that the Lamonds were the most ancient proprietors of Cowell. As the traveller passes through the Kyles of Bute he can look up Loch Striven at the rounded tops of the "Cowell" mountains; and, on his right, will see, at the entrance of the Loch, Port Lomond. It is therefore not wonderful, that a Regiment, called at its first raising the "Argyll Highlanders," should wear the colours of a Clan dwelling of old in Airer Gaedhil,* anglicised Argyll and Argyle.

242.—THE "COWELL" FAMILY,

Of Armagh.

In the will of Robert Cowell, of Tynan, co. Armagh, dated 4th June, 1627, the said Robert speaks of his son Henry; of his daughter Magdaline, who was then wife of Hugh Acline; of Matthew Lord and Robert Lord his executors; "out of my most certain lands in the co. Monaghan;" the land of the Errighe and the Grange; his son Henry was to be educated at the Dublin University; Hugh Acline (or Echlin), his son-in-law, and his daughter Magdaline, to have the reversion of his property in case of the death of his son Henry Cowell; but said Hugh and Henry were killed in action.

243.—THE "COWELL" FAMILY,

Of Logadowden, in the County of Dublin.

The Arms of this family were entered in 1771, at the Office of Arms, Dublin Castle.

Of the sons (1) Colvill, (3) George, and (6) Bryan, we find no marriage recorded; but the

* Airer Gaedhil: According to Dr. Joyce, the most important colony from Ireland which settled in Scotland was that which in the fifth century was led by Fergus Mor MacEarca and his brothers, as above mentioned; and which was known by the name of Airer Gaedhil, meaning the territory of the Gael or Irish.

issue, so far as we can trace it, of each of the three sons (2) Thomas, (4) Bartholemew, and (5) John, is here given down to the present time. Commencing with said Thomas, the following is the issue :

4. Patrick Cowell, of Enniscrone, co. Sligo: third son of James ; m. and had issue, of whom were (in 1884) :

I. John, of whom presently.

II. James.

III. William.

5. John Cowell : eldest son of Patrick, of Enniscrone ; living in 1884.

245.—THE "CULLEN" FAMILY,

Of Belfast.

MURTAGH CULLEN, of Eskragh, co. Tyrone, who was b. circa 1747, was the first of this family that settled in Ulster. He m. Bridget, daughter of Mark Devlin, of Glenoe, co. Tyrone, and had six sons and one daughter :

I. Patrick.

II. John.

III. James.

IV. Charles.

V. Hugh, of whom presently.

VI. Michael.

I. Nancy.

The said Murtagh d. at Belfast, and was bur. at Donoughmore, co. Tyrone.

2. Hugh : fifth son of Murtagh ; b. at Eskragh in 1790 ; d. at Belfast in 1853. He m. Esther, daughter of Thomas Carbery, of Eskragh, and had six sons and three daughters :

I. John.

II. James.

III. Hugh.

IV. Bernard, of whom presently.

V. John, b. 3rd March, 1864.

I. Mary. All these children, save Zachary, living in Belfast in 1884.

4. Joseph Cullen : eldest son of Bernard ; b. 29th Oct., 1851, and living in 1884.

246.—THE “DE COURCY” FAMILY.

THIS noble family derives its descent in the male line from the House of Lorraine, of the race of the Emperor Charlemagne, who died A.D. 814; and, in the female line, from the three first Dukes of Normandy. According to Lodge, the family of Courcy, Courcie, Curey, Cursie, or Curcie is allied to most of the princes of Europe. Tracing the descent from Charlemagne, down to Wigelius De Courcie, we find that Balderic, the eldest son of Wigelius, married the niece of Gilbert, Earl of Brion, in Normandy, and daughter of Earl of Clare, and had seven daughters and six sons. By Norman writers that Balderic was styled Teutonicus, possibly because he had spent some time with his friends in Germany; and described as a stout and warlike commander.

Robert De Courcy, who was Lord of Courcy in Normandy, was the third son of Balderic Teutonicus; he was succeeded by his son:

Richard, who accompanied William, Duke of Normandy (known as William the Conqueror), in his expedition to England, and was present at the decisive battle of Hastings, fought on Saturday, the 14th October, 1066; after which the said Richard was granted several lordships in England, one of which was that of Stoke, in the county of Somerset, which, with the other lordships, he held per integram baroniam.

Robert De Courcy, who died in 1098, was succeeded by his son Robert, Lord of Courcy in Normandy, and Baron of Stoke-Courcy, who was “Sewer” or Steward of the Household to King Henry I., and to his daughter the Empress Maud: by the former of whom the said Robert was in 1133 made one of the greater barons at Westminster; and in that year was, with Stephen, Earl of Moreton (afterwards King Stephen), and others of the nobility, a witness to the Confirmation Charter of the said King Henry to the Prior and Convent of St. Bartholemew, London; this Robert was the founder of the Nunnery of Cannington, in Somersetshire; he married one of the six daughters of Hugh De Grantmesnil,* Lord of Hinckley, in the county of Leicester, who was Lord High Steward of England, and who died 22nd February, 1098.

Robert De Courcy, Baron of Stoke, temp. King Stephen, was principal commander of the English forces against the Scots at the battle of Northampton; he died in 1171, in the reign of Henry I., leaving two sons and a daughter:

I. John De Courcy, first Earl of Ulster, of whom presently.

II. Jordan De Courcy, or, as he was also called, Jordan Teutonicus, who was the ancestor of the De Exeter Jordan† family; and who in 1197 was killed in Ulster by an Irish retainer.

I. The daughter was married to Sir Almeric Tristram, ancestor of the Earl of Howth.

* Grantmesnil: According to Mill’s “History of the Crusades,” Vol. I., Third Edition, published in 1822, two brothers, William and Alberic De Grantmesnil greatly distinguished themselves during the Crusades. For further information respecting the families of De Courcy and De Grantmesnil, see Dugdale’s Monasticon; and Ordericus Vitalis, Historian of those times., viz., A.D. 1000 to 1098.

† De Exeter Jordan: The reader who desires more information respecting the “De Courcy” and “De Exeter” families, is referred to the following authorities: “Roll of Battle Abbey;” “Doomsday Book;” “Giraldus Cambrensis;” “Dugdale;” “Madox’s History of the English Exchequer;” Hume’s and Smollet’s “History of England,” &c.

John De Courcy having served King Henry II. in his wars in England and Gascoigne was sent by that Monarch to Ireland in 1177. Of the Anglo-Norman invaders of Ireland, John De Courcy was the most renowned. He was a man of great strength, of gigantic stature, and indomitable courage. Holingshed states that De Courcy rode on a white horse, and had three eagles painted on his standards, to fulfil a prophecy made by Merlin, viz., "that a knight riding on a white horse, and bearing birds on his shield, should be the first of the English who, with force of arms, would enter and conquer Ulster." De Courcy had his chief Castle at Downpatrick; he assisted William Fitz Adelm in the government of Ireland, from 1177 to 1179. Among the Religious Houses endowed by De Courcy was the Abbey for Benedictines at Downpatrick, circa 1180, to which he gave a Charter which was witnessed by his brother Jordan De Courcy; and St. Andrew's Monastery, in the Ards.* In 1181, he was created Earl of Ulster, to which dignity was attached the lordship of Connaught; he was the first of the Anglo-Norman invaders of Ireland whom Henry II. dignified by any title. In 1182, De Courcy married Africa, daughter of Godred, King of the Isle of Man; and he unsuccessfully invaded Connaught in 1188. His great rivals were the De Lacys, Lords of Meath, with whom he had many contests.

While, according to the religious devotions of that period, walking unarmed and barefoot five times round the churchyard of Downpatrick doing penance before the shrines of three of Ireland's greatest saints there buried, namely, Saints Patrick, Columkille, and Bridgid, John De Courcy, who was accompanied only by his two nephews—sons of his brother Jordan De Courcy—was attacked by De Lacy's followers; when the two nephews were slain while defending their uncle, and he, having nothing to defend himself with but the pole of a Cross which he had picked up from the ground, was overpowered and made prisoner after a desperate struggle, in which, we are told, he slew thirteen of De Lacy's men.† Through the

* Ards: In Vol. I., p. 13, of Lewis's "Topographical Dictionary of Ireland," we find that Ardglass ("ard-glass": Irish, the high green) is a sea-port, post-town, and parish in the barony of Lecale, county of Down, and province of Ulster; five miles and a half S. E. by E., from Downpatrick; and is so called from a lofty green hill of conical form called the Ward, situated to the west of the town. From the remains of several Castles it appears to have been formerly a place of some importance: "Jordan's Castle" is memorable for the gallant and protracted defence that it made during the insurrection of the Earl of Tyrone, in the reign of Elizabeth; and derived its present name from its loyal and intrepid proprietor, SIMON JORDAN, who for three years sustained the continued assaults of the besiegers, till he was at length relieved by the Lord Deputy Mountjoy, who sailed with a fleet from Dublin, and landed here on the 17th June, 1611; and after relieving the garrison pursued the insurgents . . . ; and Jordan was rewarded for his services by a Concordatum from the Queen.

† Men: As evidence of the great strength of members of the De Courcy family even in the 15th century, the Four Masters, under A.D. 1472, make special mention of a MacJordan who was descended from a branch of that family:

"MacWilliam Burke marched with an army into Hy-Maine, to aid Teige Caoch O'Kelly, and after gaining power over the Hy-Manians, from the Snick (river) westward, and taking hostages from them, great punishment was executed against them ultimately; for six-and-twenty soldiers, along with the grandson of Walter Burke, the sons of MacMaurice, the sons of MacJordan, the son of MacAnveely, and others having fled (or strayed) from their forces, were taken, and all put to death by the Manians, except alone MacJordan, who made his escape, though wounded, through his valour; MacWilliam returned home in sorrow."

influence of De Lacy, sustained by King John, John De Courcy was banished from Ireland; he died an exile in France, A.D. 1210.—See Darcy McGee's "History of Ireland." According to Giraldus Cambrensis, John De Courcy died without leaving a son to succeed him; but, according to other authorities, he had a son Miles,* who abandoned his claim to the Earldom of Ulster. He was then created "Baron of Kinsale." Patrick, the second Baron of Kinsale, married the daughter of Miles De Cogan, who, say the Four Masters under A.D. 1316, was :

"The noblest baron in his time in Ireland."

In consideration of their ancestors the successors of the barons of Kinsale were allowed the peculiar privilege of wearing their hats in the Royal presence: a right which, we are told, the Baron of Kinsale exercised on the occasion of King George the Fourth's visit to Ireland, A.D. 1821.

247.—THE "DILLON" FAMILY,

Of Athlone, County Roscommon; and of Dillon's-Brook, County Galway.

RICHARD DILLON, of Athlone, co. Roscommon, and of Gort and Dillon's-Brook, co. Galway, was descended from a younger branch of the family of the first Viscount Dillon. He was twice married: first, in 1759 to Mary (died in 1760), sister of Gerald Dillon, Esq., of Annagh, Coolvock, and Doonis, in the co. Westmeath, and by her had an only child:

I. Christopher-Henry, born 1760, and of whom presently. Richard Dillon (who d. in Dublin in the early part of this century),	m., secondly, in 1762, Mary,† dau. of Francis O'Kelly, Esq., of Gort, co. Galway, by whom he had one son and two daughters:
---	--

* Miles: In the History of Ireland, by John James McGregor, Second Edition (1829), it is stated that "The persecution by the De Lacys against the De Courcys, after the imprisonment of Sir John De Courcy in 1203, was so great that the De Lacys procured the assassination of the natural son of De Courcy, viz., John De Courcy, Lord of Raheny or Ratheny and Kilbarrock, county of Dublin."

This name Miles, originally "Meiler," and more lately "Myler," is now rendered "Myles;" and is to this day a favourite name in the Jordan family, as well as in other families in Ireland.

† Mary: In a Deed dated 1762, executed on the occasion of this Richard's marriage with his second wife Mary O'Kelly, he is described as of "Athlone in the County of Roscommon, Merchant." He is afterwards, in other Deeds, described as of "Gort and of Dillon's-Brook, both in the County of Galway, Gentleman." His Gort property went to his elder son Christopher Henry, who sold it in 1796; and now comprises part of the "Lahiff" estate. Dillon's-Brook went to his son (Francis Kelly Dillon), by the second marriage.

II. Francis Kelly Dillon, of Dillon's-Brook, who died circa 1853.

I. Jane.

II. Mary.

2. Christopher-Henry: elder son of Richard; b. 1760; was educated for the Legal Profession. He m. at St. Nicholas, East, Galway, on the 10th February, 1794, Margaret, daughter of Joseph Lynch, Esq. (eldest son of Sir Peter Lynch, Knt., of Petersburgh House, co. Mayo, by his wife Mary Anne Mannion), and had ten children, of whom the first child Joseph died in infancy. This Christopher-Henry some few years after his marriage settled in Dublin, where he d., and was buried in 1815.

3. Christopher: second son of Christopher-Henry; born at Ballyhaunis, co. Mayo, on 29th Sept., 1797, where he resided with his father's step-brother, Francis Kelly Dillon, of Dillon's-Brook, and received his early education. This Christopher also was educated for the Legal Profession; in 1815 or 1816 he left Ireland and settled in England, where he died in 1837. He married on the 26th December, 1821, at St. John's Church, Hackney, in the co. of Middlesex (and a few days afterwards in Jan., 1822, at St. Mary's Catholic Chapel, Moorfields, in the City of London), Mary Ann Hammond* (who died 12th August, 1861, and was interred at St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery, Kensal Green), eldest daughter of Joseph Hammond, gentleman, of Tottenham and Islington, in Middlesex (by his wife Arabella-Maria Blount). The issue of that marriage were six children:

I. Christopher, of whom presently.

II. Francis, who died young.

III. Richard, who died in 1882.

I. Mary, who m. Mr. Patrick P. Power, and was in 1883 residing with their only surviving child, Margaret, in Victoria, Australia.

II. Teresa, living unmarried in London, in 1884.

III. Margaret, who died young.

This Christopher Dillon died at his residence in the New North Road, Hoxton, New Town, on the 15th February, 1837; and was buried at the Catholic Church, Parker's Row, Bermondsey, Surrey.

4. Christopher, of Hornsey Rise, London: his son; born in London, 1st Dec., 1828; living in 1884; m. in 1856, Mary Ann, daughter of Patrick and Catherine Walden (or "Waldron"), of the Kiltulla family, and has had six children:

I. Christopher-Gerald, of whom presently.

II. Francis-Richard, born 26th Nov., 1861, and living in 1884.

III. Thomas-Edwards, born 6th April, 1868, and died in 1868.

I. Mary-Ann, living in 1884.

II. Elizabeth-Alice, who died in 1858.

III. Catherine-Eleanor, living in 1884.

5. Christopher-Gerald Dillon, of Hornsey Rise, London: eldest son of Christopher; born 18th September, 1859, and living in 1884.

* Hammond: The descent of Miss Hammond through her grandmother Mrs. Blount, who was a grand-daughter of Robert, third son of John Edwards, Esq., can be found in Burke's "Landed Gentry," under the heading "Edwards of Ness Strange."

248.—THE (SIR DE LACY) "EVANS" FAMILY.

COLONEL GRIFFITH EVANS, of Wales (a relative of the Lord Carberry Evans of that Principality), was in 1650 an Officer in Cromwell's Army; and was present at the expulsion of the O'Mahony from Castle Mahon (now called "Castle Bernard"). Struck with the charms of The O'Mahony's daughter, Griffith Evans "fell in love with her;" and, being possessed of an Estate in Wales, he resigned his commission, and married her. Dispossessed of his Castle and Estates, The O'Mahony settled on the confines of Limerick and Kerry.

1. Colonel Griffith Evans, who m. Miss O'Mahony, had three sons:

I. Francis, of whom presently.

II. Griffith.

III. John.

2. Francis: the eldest son of Griffith; was possessed of lands near Shanagolden, in the county Limerick; removed thence to Cork, where he acted as Agent to Colonel George Evans, of Carass Court, the first Lord Carberry. Francis m. and had four sons:

I. John, of whom presently.

II. Martin, who spent much of his time at Carass Court. He m., and d. in Cork.

III. Thomas.

IV. David, who d. in one of his own ships, coming home from the West Indies.

3. John: eldest son of Francis; m., and had three sons and one daughter. The sons were:

I. Francis, of whom presently.

II. David.

III. George.

4. Francis: eldest son of John; m., and had a son and a daughter:

I. George, of whom presently.

I. Elizabeth, who (see the "MacElligott" pedigree,) m. John MacElligott, of Limerick, and had issue.

5. George: son of Francis; m. and had:

6. John Evans, who m. Miss de Lacy,* of Miltown, co. Limerick, and had two sons and a daughter:

I. J. de Lacy Evans, the author (see infra, the "MacElligott" pedigree,) of the beautiful Poem to the memory of his relative Richard Pierce MacElligott, given in that genealogy.

II. The late Sir G. de Lacy Evans, K.C.B., who was a distinguished General in the British Service in the Crimean War.

The daughter m. Mr. O'Leary.

One of the "Evans" family was m. to Hodges, of Shanagolden.

* De Lacy: This family is descended from Sir Hugo de Lacy, to whom, in 1172, King Henry II. granted the Kingdom of Meath; and the lineal descent from whom is given in pp. 473-474 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," down to Pierce de Lacy, living in 1691. The descent of Miss de Lacy, above mentioned, was as follows:

Standish Barry, Esq., of Leamlara, m. in July, 1708, Eleanor, youngest dau. of Thady Quinn, Esq., of Adair, in the co. Limerick, and had three sons and six daughters: The sons were—1. David, 2. Garrett, 3. John; the three of whom d. unm. Of the daughters, Catherine m. John Anthony, Esq.; Elizabeth m. Patrick de Lacy, Esq., of Miltown, co. Limerick, whose dau. was the Miss de Lacy, above mentioned; and Margaret m. John Stack, Esq.

249.—THE (DE EXETER) "JORDAN" FAMILY,
Lords of Athleathan, in the Barony of Gallen, and County of Mayo.

Arms: Gu., a lion rampant betw. three Crosses crosslet or.

Motto: Percussus Resurgo.

THIS Mayo family is descended from Jordan De Courcy, who (see the "De Courcy" genealogy, ante,) was a younger brother of John De Courcy, the first Earl of Ulster; from him they derive the surname MacJordan, now Jordan. When, however, the first of the family came to Ireland with the English invaders, A.D. 1168 (or, according to Lodge, and De Burgo, in 1169), they were known by the name De Exeter, because they came from Exonia or Exeter, in England; but when, to be "as Irish as the Irish themselves," the descendants of the Anglo-Norman invaders of Ireland began to assume Irish patronymics, the De Exeters called themselves "MacJordan," after their ancestor Jordan De Courcy, above mentioned.

Jordan De Courcy or Jordan Teutonicus, as he was also called, was, in 1197, killed by an Irish retainer; leaving many sons, two of whom were slain while striving to protect their uncle, the first Earl of Ulster, from the attacks of De Lacy's followers in the churchyard of Downpatrick, as stated in the "De Courcy genealogy."

In Vol. II., p. 59, Sect. 3, of The Antiquities of Ireland, by Sir James Ware, revised by Walter Harris, we find that:

"The De Exonias or De Exeters submitted to be called MacJordans, from one Jordan De Exonia, who was the first founder of the family."

The "Jordan" portion of the family name originated, it is said, in the fact that Jordan De Courcy went as standard-bearer with the English Crusaders to the Holy Land, and, in a great battle which took place between the Christians and the Saracens on the banks of the river Jordan, was so vigorously attacked by the Saracen host, that on three or four occasions his standard, which was the Banner of the Cross, almost disappeared from the view of the Christians, who, therefore, greatly feared for his safety; but, from his extraordinary strength, and the help he received from his followers, De Courcy re-appeared with his standard, as if miraculously, and on each occasion dealt destruction to the enemy. Hence the adoption by his descendants, the De Exeters, of the name Jordan, in memory of their ancestor's remarkable prowess on that occasion; and the addition of the Cross, Crosslet, and Lion to their Arms, with the Motto, Percussus Resurgo. According to Mill's "History of the Crusades," Vol. I., Third Edition (1822), two brothers, William and Alberic De Grantmesnil, who were closely connected by marriage with the De Courcy family in England, went to the Holy Land,* and greatly distinguished themselves during the Crusades. It is believed

* Holy Land: From the many pious associations connected with Palestine, exclusive of the Crusades, Christians from other nations went there in the middle ages to perform Pilgrimages. Members of some of the ancient Irish families went there for that purpose. Under A.D. 1224, the Four Masters say:

"Hugh O'Connor, of Maonmoy, died on his journey home from Jerusalem, on the River" (Jordan).

And, under A.D. 1231, they also say:

"Ualgarg O'Rourke, lord of Brefney, died on his Pilgrimage to the River" (Jordan).

that Jordan De Courcy accompanied those two brothers, as a Crusader ; and, on his return to England, remained some time in Germany : and that hence the adfix Teutonicus to his name, as in the case of Balderic, one of his ancestors, mentioned in the "De Courcy" genealogy. It is here worthy of remark that "Jordan Teutonicus" was also the name of the Dominican Monk who succeeded St. Dominic, as General or Provincial of that Order. De Burgo states in cap. 3 of his Hibernia Dominicana :

"Anno Domini 1220 sint celebratum Bononia primum Capitulum Generale a B. Dominico, et Anno sequenti scilicet 1221 B. Dominicus secundum Capitulum Generale celebravit Bononia . . . in quo capitulo Frater Jordanus Teutonicus qui nondum in ordine annum compliverat factus est provincialis Lombardiæ."

And again :

"Frater Jordanus Teutonicus qui nondum in ordine annum compliverat factus est Provincialis Lombardiam fundatis jam per ordinem circiter sexaginta conventibus qui in octo provinciis erat distincti : scilicet Hispaniam, Provinciam Provinciæ, Franciam, Lombardiam Romanam, Teutoniam, Hungariam, et Angliam.

In the *Hibernia Dominicana De Burgo says that the family came to Ireland in 1169 ("Henrico II. Rege"), from Exonia, in England, and was therefore called De Exonia† or De Exeter :

"Laudatum stirpem apud Anglos domicilium fixisse Exoniæ, Agri Dwoniensis (vulgo Devonshire) Civitatis Capitalis, a quo suum desumpsit cognomen ;"

and that the name was afterwards changed to Dexter, Dextera, and MacJordan ; the same as DeArcie has become Darcy and Devereux :

"De Exonia, fere De Exeter, anglicè per syncopen Dexter, hibernicè MacJordan ; sicut cognomina quæ olim De Arcie seu Arcy ac De Eureux postea D'Arcy ac D'Eureux, tandemque Darcy ac Devereux passim scribuntur."

And De Burgo says that, in 1269, Richard De Exonia was Viceroy (Proregem) or Lord Deputy of Ireland :

" . . . Richardum de Exonia, Proregem fuisse Hiberniæ, Anno 1269."

To that fact, Ware, Harris, and O'Heyne also bear testimony.

The De Exeters made settlements in ancient Meath, where (see infra) they built the Castle of Castlejordan ; in the territory of Galenga,‡ which

* Hibernia Dominicana : In that great work we find many references to the "MacJordan" family, from which we extract the following : "Jordanus Teutonicus," "Jordanus De Exonia Athlethanæ (anglicè Athleathan) Dominicus," "Ex Anglica hac familia de Exonia, quæ magni olim fuit nominis in hoc tractu multi, nunc Hibernico more MacJordan, id est Jordan Filii appellantur."

† Exonia : The name De Exonia is sometimes met as De Exon. The latter name would indicate that it derived from EXON, the name given to the Commander of the Body-guard of the Royal Household. In Lodge we find that Robert, Lord of Courcy in Normandy, and an ancestor of this family, was (see the "De Courcy" genealogy, ante,) Sewer or Steward of the household of King Henry I. of England, and of the household of his daughter the Empress Maude.

‡ Galenga : The Galenga territory here mentioned comprised the entire of the Diocese of Ardagh ; and included the patrimonies of the families of O'Hara and O'Gara, whose tribe name was Gallenga. That name, or its anglicised form "Gallen" (which was so late as 1537, called "MacJordan's Country"), derived its appellation from Cormac Gaileang, to whom the Irish Monarch Cormac MacArt, in the third century, granted that territory. Cormac Gaileang, who was son of Teige, son of Cian, son of Olioll Olum, was a relative of King Cormac MacArt ; and was the ancestor of the "O'Hara" and "O'Gara" families.—See the "O'Hara" genealogy in the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES.

gave its name to the present barony of Gallen, in the county of Mayo; and in the north of Tirawley (now the barony of Tyrawley), in the said county, where, about five miles north of Killala, they founded in 1274 the Abbey of Rathbran, or, as it is now spelled, "Rafran."*

Under A.D. 1247, in the Annals of the Four Masters, we find the De Exeter family name there first mentioned as "Siurtan Dexetra:" the word "Siurtan" being Irish for Jordan; and under A.D. 1249, the name "Jordan."† In 1355, Stephen De Exeter fought for the O'Maddens against the Bourkes; in 1394, "John, son of Meyler, was slain by the sons of John De Exeter;" in 1416, MacJordan De Exeter attacked O'Hara's sons and plundered the country, the people of the territory assembled against him, and he was defeated and slain; in 1426, Richard MacJordan, of the "Wood," was taken prisoner by Owen, son of O'Flaherty, and was given up to MacJordan Dubh, by whom he was slain. In 1428 an incursion was made by MacJordan De Exeter into Tyrawley against Thomas Barrett and his sons; in 1472, the sons of MacJordan deserted (or strayed) from the army of MacWilliam Bourke, and all were slain except MacJordan; in 1486, O'Donnell, of Tirconnell, mustered an army, entered Tyrawley, and took John MacJordan and others, prisoners, etc.

Under A.D. 1253, the Four Masters say:

"A Monastery‡ was founded for the Dominicans at Athleathan, in Lieney, by the De Exeters, Lords of Athleathan, barony of Gallen, and county of Mayo."

* Rafran: Of that Abbey, De Burgo, in his Hib. Dom., says:

"The family of Dexter, who afterwards took the name of MacJordans, founded a Monastery here for Dominican Friars, in 1274;" while in pp. 279-280 of that work, he also says:

"De fundatore autem valde anceps Waræus ibidem aïens; sunt qui cænobium canditum afferunt a familia de Exonia qui postmodum MacJordans ut Hiberniæ morem gererent se cognominarunt prout haud ita pridem exponibam."

† Jordan: The several changes in this family name has rendered it difficult to arrange the history of the family: In 1273, we find the name "Jordan Dexetra;" in 1289, "De Exeters;" in 1294, "De Exeters;" in 1316, "Dexeter;" in 1317, "Myler Dexeter," Lord of Athleathan; in 1336, "Jordan Dexeter;" in 1340, "Jordan Roe MacCostello;" in 1355, "Stephen MacJordan;" in 1380, "MacJordan Dexeter," and "John Dexeter;" in 1381, the "Castle of Athleathan;" in 1394, "John MacJordan" and "John Dexeter;" in 1395, "MacJordan Dexeter" and "MacJordan;" in 1416 "MacJordan Dexeter;" in 1426, "Richard MacJordan;" in 1428, "MacJordan Dexeter;" in 1438, "Jordan;" in 1472, "MacJordan;" in 1485, "Celia, daughter of MacJordan, the most exalted woman in Connaught, died;" in 1486, "MacJordan;" &c. For information respecting the Jordan family in England, the reader is referred to Hume's and Smollett's "History of England."

Jourdan, one of Napoleon the First's distinguished generals, is supposed to have been descended from the De Exeter Jordan family, of the barony of Gallen, and county of Mayo. In the "Illustrations Historical," by Dalton, we find in Butler's regiment in King James the Second's Army List, the name Jordan mentioned amongst the ensigns in that regiment. That Officer emigrated to France with other Irish soldiers after the violation of the Treaty of Limerick (in 1691), and from him possibly descended the famous General Jourdan, above mentioned.

‡ Monastery: That Monastery was in 1254 destroyed by fire, and rebuilt on another site. The ruins of both Abbeys are still to be seen at Athleathan (now called Strade), in the parish of Templemore, and said barony of Gallen, but in the ancient territory of Lieney. In Archdall's "Monasticon Hibernicum," the building and endowment of the Abbey of Athleathan is mentioned. Some authorities say it was founded by O'Heyne; but Ware says that it was at the solicitation of the wife of Ware,* Vol. I. p. 407, says that Michael of Exeter, a member of this family succeeded as bishop in 1289, and died in 1302. In p. 609 of same volume, Ware adds that the De Exeters or De Exonias assumed the name "MacJordan;" and in p. 562, same volume, we find an ecclesiastic named "Jordan" (who died in 1434) mentioned as succeeding in 1431 as Bishop of Cork and Cloyne, then canonically united.

In De Burgo's time the MacJordan family had reached the thirteenth generation (seculo xiii.) in Ireland; he says:

"F. Stephanus de Exonia, Hibernus, ex illustri hujus nominis Familia Anglica, sed qua in Hiberniam seculo xiii., jam commigrarat et apud Athleathan sedem fixerat cujus, et Dominum comparat originem ducens, natus anno 1246, et 25 Martii 1263 ad ordinem occitus in Domo Stradnessi ad Athleathan. Laudatur in Catalogo Codicum MSS. Anglia et Hibernia ubi sic legitur. Tom. II., Pag. 11, Num. 42."

And again, writing of the same Friar Stephen de Exonia, De Burgo says:

"F. Stephanus de Exonia, anglicé per Syncopen Dexter, hibernicé MacJordan, Canobii Stradnessi, a gente sua fundati Alumnus floruit Anno 1274" . . . "Auctor Annalium illorum quos vulgo Annales Montis Fernandi sive Minoritarum Multifarnæ vocamus, incipit ab Anno Domini 1245 et definit Anno 1274, quo tempore ille vixit, ut ex antiquitate characteris liquet non possum non suspicari auctorem fuisse Fratrem Stephanum de Exonia, quem natum perhibent Annalis illi Anno 1246, et habitu ordinis sui indutum in Die Annunciationis B. Mariæ Anno 1262."

The Friar Stephen De Exonia, here mentioned by De Burgo, as the writer of the Annals of Multiferan (commonly known as "Anonymous Annals"), was one of the Dominican Monks of the Abbey of Strade; and a son of De Exeter, lord of Athleathan. Of that Friar, Ware says:†

"The Annals of the Dominicans were brought down by an Anonymous Friar of that Order, to the year 1274, in which the author flourished."

The Annals of the Four Masters relate the various attacks on the Castle of Athleathan; but it still remained in the possession of the family until Cromwell confiscated their large possessions, and removed them to their present family seat Rathslevin (modernized "Roslevin") Castle, situate in the said barony of Gallen and county of Mayo, and about five or six miles south-east of Ballylahan.

The MacJordans held high and distinguished positions among the invaders, and intermarried with some of the noblest families in Connaught; viz.: A De Exeter MacJordan m. Penelope O'Connor, daughter of the King of Ireland; another m. Basilia De Bermingham, dau. of the lord baron of Athenry (both of whom are above mentioned); a daughter of Walter Jordan De Exeter, of the Island, near Ballyhaunis, co. of Mayo, m. in 1692 (according to the "Dillon" pedigree, by Lodge), one of Lord Clonbrock's ancestors; etc. And Celia MacJordan m. Rickard Bourke, from both of whom are descended the present marquis of Clanricarde, and the earl of Mayo. Of this lady, as already stated, the Four Masters, under A.D. 1485, say:

De Exeter, Lord of Athleathan, viz., Penelope O'Connor, that the Abbey was founded and endowed by her husband; while De Burgo says that it was at the solicitation of Basilia De Bermingham, sister of the Baron of Athenry, that her husband De Exeter built and endowed the Monastery. Evidently Ware and De Burgo allude—the former to the first Abbey, and the latter to the second Abbey founded at Strade; or the two statements may be reconciled thus: Basilia De Bermingham may have been the first wife of the De Exeter who founded the first Abbey at Athleathan, and Penelope O'Connor his second wife; or, the two Abbeys were founded by different members of the De Exeter family, and their respective wives were the ladies above mentioned. To this day the Monastery of Athleathan possesses some of the most perfect and beautiful specimens of ancient work on stone.

"Celia, daughter of MacJordan, the wife of Rickard Bourke, the most exalted woman in Connaught, died."

The principal residence of the MacJordan family was, as already mentioned, at Athleathan, where, in 1169 or 1170, they built their most important Castle in Ireland, which was called Athleathan Castle. It was afterwards called Baile-atha-leathan (meaning the "Town of the Broad Ford"), and at present Ballylahan. That ancient Castle is now in a state of ruin; but, judging by the extensive area covered by its remains, the Castle must have been a very large building.

Hardiman, in his description of Sir William Petty's Survey of Ireland, gives a verbatim copy of Petty's report to his Government. In that report Petty, speaking of the then De Exeter Jordan, states that he and others showed him matters of record and credit that they were barons by tenure of lands, and were summoned as such to Parliament. Petty also states that they had lands sufficient for such dignity, &c. The Cromwellian and Williamite Confiscations, however, deprived the MacJordans of much of their ancient territory. Yet, but few families still hold, as do the MacJordans, large tracts of the same lands which they possessed more than 700 years ago; and are able to trace as they can a direct and unbroken descent from the founder of their family in Ireland. It is a strange fact that, notwithstanding the Confiscations and Penal Laws in Ireland, the MacJordans have remained unchanged in Faith; and that although at one time to all appearance stricken down by tyranny and persecution, the family still maintains a most respectable position in society: as it were verifying their ancient Motto—Percussus Resurgo.

In Speed's "Theatre of Great Britain and Ireland," published in 1676, appear the names of the territories taken from the dominant Septs in Connaught: amongst them the territory of MacJordan, adjacent to Kiltimagh.

In the Topographia Hibernica we read that Strade or Straid is a fair town in the barony of Gallen, and county of Mayo. This place is seated by the river Moy.† The Sept MacJordan founded a House here under the invocation of the Holy Cross for Friars of the Order of St. Francis; but in 1252 it was given to the Dominicans. A small part of this Friary still remains, but the walls of the church, which was singularly beautiful, are still entire; the high altar is adorned with Gothic ornaments. In the centre of the altar is an image of our Saviour when an infant in the Virgin's lap, and a person in relieve within a compartment of each side. Here is also a tomb adorned with curious reliefs of four kings in different compartments, one of whom is kneeling before a mitred person; near to it is another relieve of Saints Peter and Paul.

† Moy: In Lewis's "Topographical Dictionary," Vol. II., p. 609, we read: "Templemore or Strade, a parish in the barony of Gallen, county of Mayo, and province of Connaught, four miles (south) from Foxford, on the road from Foxford to Castlebar, and on the river Moy, and Lough Cullen, containing 4,135 inhabitants. A Franciscan Friary was founded here by the Sept MacJordan; but in 1252 this House was given to the Dominicans by Myler De Exeter Jordan, Lord of Athleathan, or by his son Stephen" . . . Templemore is an ancient ruin situated a few miles from Swinford, co. Mayo; about a mile beyond it are the ruins of Ballylahan Castle.

On the 15th July, 1585, and the 27th of Elizabeth, a Commission was issued by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth:

"To Sir Richard Bingham, Knt., Chief Commissioner of Connaught; the Archbishop of Tuam; the earls of Thomond and Clanrickard; the bishops of Clonfert and Elphin; the lord Bermingham, baron of Athenry; Sir Nicholas White, Knt., Master of the 'Rules'; Sir Edward Waterhouse and Sir Thomas Le Strange, two of the Privy Council; Thomas Dillon, Esq., chief justice of Connaught; Charles Calthorpp, attorney-general; Gerald Comerford, Esq., attorney for Connaught; Sir Tirlagh O'Brien, Knt.; Sir Donnell O'Connor, Sligo, Knt.; Sir Brian O'Rorke, Knt.; Sir Richard Burke, Knt.; Sir Murrogh na Deo O'Flaherty; Francis Barkley, provost-marshal in Connaught; Nicholas Fitzsimons, of Dublin, alderman; John Marburie, Robert Ffowle, and John Brown, gentlemen: who, from motives of 'tender consideration' towards Her Majesty's loyal subjects in the Province of Connaught, then under the Rule of her right trusty and well-beloved deputy-general, Sir John Perrott, Knight, are directed to embrace all good ways and means whereby their titles and rights may be reduced to certainty: Premising that Sir Richard Bingham, Sir Nicholas White, and Sir Edward Waterhouse be of the Commission; the others as may be convenient; and commanding that all Mayors, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Constables, Officers and others to attend to the said Commission, for which they shall answer for the contrary at their peril."

Under this Commission, sittings were held at various places in Connaught: one of them was held at Dunemona,† on the 8th of September, 1585; from the proceedings of which were laid the grounds out of which Her Majesty's "tender considerations" were consequently bestowed on the MacJordans and others in Ireland.

The Jury empanelled on that occasion were:

"Piers Barrett, of Ballysakeery; Redmond MacCulladuff Oge, of Kilkeeran; Marcus MacEnabbe, of the Toher; David MacJoyn, of Kenlagh; William MacMoyler of the Neale; Sherrone MacGibbon, of Lacken; James MacMorrish, of Barrele; John MacStafford, of Ballymacstafford; Cormack O'Higgin, of Rathmorogh; Richard Oge MacThomine, of Ballycroy; Walter Leigh MacStephen, of Coran; Sherowne MacSherowne, of Moymilla; Theobold Burke, of Turlogh; Taragh MacDonnell, of the Cloomine; Richard Burke, of Ballineacarrow; Teige Roe O'Mally, of Cahernamort (now 'Westport'); Richard Oge MacGibbon, of Glankine; Edmond MacTibbod, of Knock Oile; Shane MacCostello, of Tollowhan; Moriertagh O'Killine, of Ballykilline; Robert Oge Barrett, of ———; Edward Oge Barrett, of Dowtagh; Richard Oge MacDowdall, of Invroe; Henry MacEdmond MacRickard, of Ballinamore; Henry Bourke, of Castle Key; and Walter MacCostello,‡ of ———."

* Altar: Within the last thirty or forty years that beautiful altar was removed from its ancient surroundings, and placed in a modern chapel in the neighbourhood; but the carvings thereon are now scarcely recognized, on account of the lime-wash with which they are covered.

† Dunemona: A Castle built by the O'Kellys of Hy-Maine, in the barony of Carra, but then in the possession of the Bourkes.

‡ MacCostello: Under A.D. 1585, Hardiman, in p. 301 of his "West Connaught," mentions "MacJordan," as of the English surname Dexter; "MacCostello," as Nangle; "MacMorris," as Prendergast; &c. The surname Costello is, it is said, derived from Costello, the second son of Gilbert De Angulo (a quo "Nangle"); but that Costello was, we find, so called from Caosluig, a corruption of "Caoluisge," a place near Ballyshannon, in the co. Donegal, where, in 1210, that second son Gilbert De Angulo was, with more of the English, slain by O'Neill and O'Donnell's forces.

That Jury found that the county Mayo includes nine baronies, of which Ballylahan alias Gallen was one. In Mayo they found that there were 1,548 quarters of land, each quarter containing 120 Irish acres; and, after detailing several baronies, it is found that in the barony of Gallen there is a quantity of land called Clan Stephen.*

In Hardiman's "West Connaught" is given in p. 331, under the "Countie of Mayo," the Indenture made between Sir John Perrott, for and on behalf of Queen Elizabeth, on the one part, and :

"The Reverend Fathers in God, William, Archbishop of Tuam; Owen, elect bishop of Killala; Sir Richard Bourke, of the Newtown, Knt., otherwise called 'MacWilliam Eyghter;' Walter Kettagh (Bourke), of Bealeeck, gent.; William Bourke, of Ardnaree, gent.; Edmund Bourke MacOliver, of Rappa, gent.; Richard Barrett, of Ross, otherwise called 'MacPadine,' chief of his name; Pierce Barrett, of Ballasakeery, gent.; Myler MacEvily, of Kinturk, otherwise called MacEvily, chief of his name; Edmond Bourke, of Castlebar, tanist to the said 'MacWilliam Eyghter;' William Bourke, of Ballenacarrae, otherwise called the 'Blind Abbot;' Moyler Bourke, of Castle MacKerra, gent.; Tibbot Reagh Bourke, of Boherfayne, gent.; Edmond Vagher MacJordan, of Bellalahan, otherwise called 'MacJordan;' Moyler MacJurdan, of the Newcastle, gent.; Walter Liagh MacStevane, of Corran MacStephane, gent.; Jordan MacThomas, of Bellahagh, gent.; Richard MacMorrish, of the Brees, otherwise called MacMorrish, chief of his name; Davy MacMorrish, of Castlemacgarrett, gent.; Walter MacEriderry, of Castlereagh, gent.; William Bourke, of Shrulc, gent.; Edmond Bourke, of Cowga, gent.; Richard Oge Bourke, of Loyncashill; Melaghlin O'Mealie, of Belare, otherwise called O'Mally, chief of his name; Teige Roe O'Maylie, of Cahernamart, gent.; Owen O'Malie, of the same, gent.; Dermod MacArt, of Cleere, gent.; Gilliduff MacGibbon, of Balleneskilly, gent.; Richard Oge MacGibbon, of Glankine, gent.; Shearon MacGibbon, of Lacken, gent.; Nicholas Fitzsimons, of Donmackenny, gent.; Walter MacPhilbin, of Brehan, otherwise called 'MacPhillibine,' chief of his name; Faragh MacTirlagh Roe, of Carrick Kennedy, gent.; Edmond Oge MacGibbon, of Derrymagorma, gent.; William Bourke, of Torrane, gent.; Rickard Oge MacTomine, of Ballyroen, gent.; Edmond Barrett, of Dowlagh, gent.; John Browne, of the Neale, gent.; Rickard Barrett, of Kirrenagen, gent.; and John Carn, of Downmackennedy, gent., of the other part" . . .

The Indenture proceeds :

"The said Lords, Chieftains, Gentlemen, Ffreeholders, etc., acknowledging the manifold benefits by the peaceable government of the said Lord Depty, and the just dealings of Sir Richard Bingham, and on account of having acquitted of certain Tanistry charges payable to their several chiefs willingly and thankfully, undertaking themselves and their heirs and assigns for ever to pay to Her Majesty ten shillings per quarter;† besides to supply forty able horsemen and 300 footmen well armed for battle in Connaught, when commanded to do so, and fifteen horsemen and fifty footmen for general service; and that the names, styles, and titles of Captainships and Jurisdiccions, heretofore used by the said Chieftains, shall be henceforth abolished for ever . . . And as regards the barony of Beallalahan, otherwise Gallen, it is covenanted, granted, confesced, and agreed that the above named Edmond‡ Vagher, otherwise called Jordan D'exeter, chief lord of the said barony, shall for the better maintenance of his living have, hold, possess, and enjoy to him and his heirs and assigns, the Castle and Manor of Belalahan, and eight quarters of Land with their appurtenances, whereof he is now seized as in right of his name of MacJordan; . . . together with other ten quarters of land which lie in 'Joech' Ballalahan and Cowlekearne (Coolkarney) subject to this Composition whereof he is now seized of his inheritance . . . The said MacJordan D'Exeter, his heirs and assigns, shall have a yearly rent-charge of five shillings out of every quarter of 118 quarters, the residue of said barony, in recompense of all rents, duties, and exactions by him claimed of the freeholders of the same; and that they and every of them, their heirs and assigns, shall for his or their portion of lands hold the same of the said MacJordan D'Exeter, his heirs and assigns . . . and shall do suit and service to the Court Baron and Court Lete of his said Manor of Belalahan" . . .

The Signatories to that Indenture are: William Bourke, Richard Oge Bourke, Rickard Barrett, Walter Kittagh Bourke, Edmond Barrett, and Richard MacGibbon.

The Irish Chiefs and Owners of the country, except those in the interest of the English in Ireland, kept aloof, and neither attended the Commission, nor added their signatures to the Indenture; for, feeling that the settlement made in that Indenture was only a pretext to ascertain the extent and value of the inheritance possessed by the native Irish Chiefs (and which was soon after turned to sad account against them), they did not sign the Indenture: they preferred to absent themselves, so as not to be identified with such unjust interference with their rights; but, from compulsion, they had afterwards to gladly submit. The Galway Grand Jury,* who refused to find that the Crown of England had paramount rights in the Irish soil were committed to prison, and released only on payment of heavy penalties. If we trace those Commissioners we shall find them in possession of the Estates, of which they held enquiry; for instance: Thomas Dillon† got the greater part of "MacJordan's Country," and other lands in Mayo, besides large parcels of MacDermott's territory in Moylurg; and of O'Kelly's, in Hy-Maine.

1. Jordan De Courcy, who in 1197 was killed by an Irish retainer in Ulster, leaving three sons, two	of whom were slain in Downpatrick churchyard, in 1203, while defending their uncle, John De Courcy,
--	--

* Jury: See the Preface, for an extract from Darcy McGee's "History of Ireland," respecting Strafford's arbitrary government of Ireland.

† Dillon: According to Lodge, p. 178, Dillon, who was lord chief justice of Connaught, and an ancestor of the present Lord Viscount Dillon, of Loughglynn, in the co. Roscommon, received during the reign of King James I. large grants of the lands of the MacJordans, in the barony of Gallen; with other grants of similar confiscations at the time in the barony of Costello, and co. of Mayo. Those grants included the town and Castle of Ballylahan, the Castle and town of Rathslavin, and divers other lands, rents, and hereditaments in the county of Mayo, of which the De Exeter Jordan family were deprived. In those days religious persecutions were for the most part the means, or ostensibly the cause, by which new families in Ireland were aggrandised, at the expense of the descendants of the ancient Irish Proprietors; and of the Anglo-Norman invaders of Ireland, who endeavoured to conciliate the native Irish, by adopting their manners, laws, and customs. Almost all those new families are now, we are sorry to say, as alien in race, ideas, and feelings, as when their ancestors first became the possessors of confiscated lands in Ireland! While Lord Strafford, as lord lieutenant, acted in the most tyrannical manner in confiscating the Estates of the Irish, but particularly the Catholic Irish Chiefs; yet, for that very reason, some historians appear to lament his execution! Strafford's unhappy death, however, did not restore their Estates to the Irish proprietors, whom he had so cruelly wronged.

against the attack of De Lacy's followers (as mentioned in the "De Courcy" genealogy); the third son being a mere boy at the time.

2. Jordan De Courcy or Jordan De Exeter: third son of Jordan. This boy was removed by his friends to Exeter in England, to escape for the time in Ireland the persecution* of the De Courcy family by their great rivals the De Lacys, instigated by King John. When that persecution had ceased with the death of that arbitrary Monarch, Jordan De Exeter returned to Ireland and made a settlement in ancient Meath; where he built the fortress called Jordan's Castle, and yet known as Castlejordan;† but, to assert his uncle's title to the lordship of Connaught which with the earldom of Ulster was in 1181 granted by King Henry II. to him and his heirs male, besides any other land in Ireland he (John De Courcy) could gain by the sword, this Jordan De Exeter invaded that Province with a powerful following of friends and retainers; made a settlement in ancient Galenga and in Tyrawley, as above mentioned; and built his principal Castle at Athleathan, in the barony of Gallen and co. of Mayo.

Under A.D. 1247, this Jordan De Exeter is mentioned by the Four Masters as "Siurtan De Exeter," who was then in command of the English forces in Connaught, and who caused the Irish King Torlogh O'Connor to retreat from Carra in that year, "as he had not equal forces to meet them." In 1249, this Jordan (or Siurtan) De Exeter, lord of Athleathan, was sheriff‡ of Connaught; and commanded the Anglo-Norman forces at Athenry, when, say the Four Masters, "he gained a great victory over the Irish, by the miraculous interposition of the Blessed Virgin Mary."§

3. Myler De Exeter Jordan, lord of Athleathan: son of Jordan De Exeter; m. Basilia, dau. of De Bermingham, lord of Athenry. This lady, according to De Burgo, induced her husband to build and endow the abbey of Straid, near the family residence of Athleathan Castle.

4. Stephen, lord of Athleathan: son of Myler; was also sheriff of Connaught, and with one of his

* Persecution: See Note "Miles," in p. 623, ante.

† Castlejordan: According to Vol. I. p. 354, of the History of Ireland, by Thomas Wright, that Castle was surprised by O'Connor Faley, and taken from the English, A.D. 1540.

‡ Sheriff: This term is of English origin in Ireland. The Sheriff in ancient times was entrusted with both the administration of justice and the management of the King's revenue.

§ Virgin Mary: According to Hardiman's "West Connaught," p. 265, under A.D. 1429, "The Irish nobility of Connaught went to Athenry, to prey and spoil that towne, on the day of our Lady the Blessed Virgin Mary, in the midst of harvest. . . . The Sheriff of Connaught with many Englishmen were in the said towne before them. There was a great army with Terlagh MacHugh (O'Connor). The Sheriff and Englishmen desired them in honour of the Blessed Virgin Mary, whose day then was, to forbear with them that day, which the Irish nobility refused. . . . They assaulted the towne against the will of the said Terlagh, which Jordan De Exeter the Sheriffe and Englishmen seeing, they rushed forth to meet the said Irishmen, when the Virgin Mary wrought miraculously against the said nobility."

knights named Pierce Agabard was killed in a sea-fight against Mac-Sorley (MacDonnell) off the coast of Connemara.

5. Richard (called by some "De Exonia"): son of Stephen; was, according to Ware, De Burgo, Harris, and O'Heyne, Viceroy or Lord Deputy of Ireland, in 1269. He m. in 1272 Penelope, dau. of O'Connor, King of Connaught. As the first Abbey of Straid had been burned down, this Richard De Exonia, at the solicitation of his wife, built and endowed another Abbey there, for the Dominicans. Having large possessions in Tyrawley (his lands there having been increased by his marriage with the King's daughter), he also built and endowed the Abbey of Rathbran or Rafran, near Killala, also for the Dominicans. Richard had a brother Simon De Exeter, who in 1284 was killed in a battle between his forces and those of the O'Flynnns, MacDermotts, and O'Flanagan.

6. Myler: son of Richard; was killed in a battle fought between the English in Connaught and King Calvagh O'Connor, in 1289.

7. Slemme De Exeter, lord of Athleathan: son of Myler; was in 1316, while in command of the English forces, killed in the battle of Athleathan, in which Myles De Cogan, "the noblest baron in Ireland," in his time, was with other Anglo-Normans also slain. This Slemme was succeeded by his brother Myler, who, in a fight that in 1317 took place on the banks of the river Methanagh in Drumcliff, co. Sligo, was with fourteen of his companions killed by the army commanded by Donal O'Connor. Myler was succeeded by his son:

8. Myler, as lord of Athleathan, who d. 1336. (Under A.D. 1340, the Four Masters relate that Jordan MacCostello was slain by Cathal MacDermott Gall.)

9. Slevin:* son of Myler; succeeded his father as lord of Athleathan; and built some of the Castles† in the De Exeter territory. Under A.D. 1316 the Four Masters say:

"Felim (i.e. O'Connor, then King of Connaught) again assumed the government of Connaught. He mustered another army, and marched against Athleathan, now Ballylahan, in the barony of Gallen, and county of Mayo, formerly the seat of the De Exeter Jordans, lords of Athleathan . . . He burned the town, and slew Slevin De Exeter Jordan, lord of the town, and also Gogonoch (or Miles De Cogan),‡ the noblest baron in his time in Ireland, and many others of the English; and acquired much booty."

* Slevin: From this Slevin, Rathslevin (now Roslevin) Castle, near Kiltimagh, in the co. Mayo, derives its name. The modern Castle of Roslevin is now the seat of the present representative of the De Exeter Jordan family.—See No. 30, infra.

† Castles: This Slevin and his son Stephen built as outpost fortifications placed at certain distances around their territory, for its better defence, the following Castles, the ruins of which are yet to be seen in the localities mentioned: 1. Curraue (or Caislean) Stephen, near Ballyvary, barony of Gallen, and co. of Mayo, which was a very strong fortress, and is still in a very good state of preservation. 2. Bohola, only one tower of which remains. 3. Ballinamore, the ruins of which are situate on the lawn in front of Mr. Ormsby's residence. 4. Old Castle, near Swinford, and convenient to the modern residence of Mr. O'Rorke. 5. New Castle, near the present residence of Mr. Owen O'Mally, J.P. 6. Athouse. 7. Rathslevin, near Roslevin Castle, now the residence of Mr. Myles H. Jordan, J.P. 8. Tumore, near Foxford. 9. Cloongee Castle, near Foxford. 10. Raight or Wraight, in the barony of Costello. 11. Island Castle, in same barony, and near Ballyhaunis.

‡ De Cogan: Miles De Cogan's daughter was, we have seen, married to Patrick De Courcy, the second baron of Kinsale; he was, therefore, related by marriage to the lord of Athleathan, with whom De Cogan was on a visit on that occasion.

10. Myler, lord of Athleathan : son of Slevin ; d. in 1336. Was succeeded by his brother Stephen, who was slain in 1355, as mentioned by the Four Masters. This Stephen was succeeded by his son :

11. Slevin, who with his brother John was in 1380 killed in a battle* at Athleathan fought there between the two DeBurgo rival factions :

"MacWilliam Bourke," say the Four Masters, "gave MacWilliam Oughter (Richard Oge) a great overthrow in the town of Athleathan, in which MacJordan Dexeter, lord of Athleathan, and John Dexeter were slain."

Slevin was succeeded by his son :

12. Richard, who in 1395 was taken prisoner by some of his kinsmen, and delivered into the hands of MacWilliam Bourke. "But," say the Four Masters, "Donal MacMurrough O'Connor and the Irish of North Connaught marched their forces into the territory of MacWilliam, in consequence of the taking of MacJordan, whom they set at liberty ; and peace was made between the English and Irish of the province on that occasion." This Richard was succeeded by his brother Myler, who, in 1416, with his kinsmen, made an attack on the sons of John O'Hara ; but was slain on his return home from their territory, having taken from them much booty. Myler had a son, John, and another named Richard, who was known as Richard MacJordan of the Wood.† John was in 1394 treacherously killed by his own kinsmen ; and Richard of the Wood succeeded his father, as lord of Athleathan.

13. Richard MacJordan‡ of the Wood : son of Myler ; was in 1426 taken prisoner by Owen O'Flaherty, who delivered him into the hands of MacJordan Dubh, by whom he was plundered. This Richard, lord of Athleathan, lived to a very old age ; he made in 1428 a hostile incursion into Trawley, against Thomas Barrett, whom he plundered ; he had many sons (one of whom is, under A.D. 1472 in the Annals of the Four Masters, mentioned for his valour), and a dau. Celia or Silé (d. in 1485), who married Richard Bourke, as above mentioned, and who, say the Four Masters, was "the most exalted woman in Connaught." From her are descended the present noble families of the Marquis of Clanricard and the Earl of Mayo.

* Battle : Myler, the son and heir of Slevin, being too young on his father's death to engage in active warfare, we find that in 1381 (one year afterwards) the MacDonoghs of Ballymote made a predatory incursion into Gallen, demolished the Castle of Athleathan, and carried away the gates thereof to Ballymote. Some eight years ago a curious circumstance occurred in relation to that fact : A member of the MacJordan family happened to observe in a place he had visited two beautifully carved stones on which were represented his family crest. Upon inquiring how the then owner of those stones came to be in possession of them, the reply was that they were carried from Ballymote Castle to Glen Island, in the co. of Mayo, by a retired constable of police, who looked upon them as a curiosity. The two carved stones, it is needless to say, were at once purchased, and are (in 1884) again we find in possession of a De Exeter, namely, Doctor Myles Joseph Jordan, M.D., Castlebar.

† Wood : Meaning the woody plain or plain of the woods where is situated the town of Kiltimagh ("coillte" : Irish, woods ; "magh," a plain), in the barony of Gallen and county of Mayo. In those days there were extensive woods in that locality, from which circumstance Kiltimagh derives its name.

‡ MacJordan : According to the Linea Antiqua, another "MacJordan" family was descended from Meyler, a younger brother of Costelo Oge, who (see page 437 of the Third Edition of our IRISH PEDIGREES) is No. 2 on the "Costello" genealogy.

14. Myler, lord of Athleathan, succeeded his father, Richard, in 1475; d. in 1510; and was succeeded by his son, Slevin.

15. Slevin De Exeter, d. in 1533, and was succeeded by his brother, James, who, in 1548, was succeeded by his nephew:

16. Slemme, who, in 1560, was succeeded by his son:

17. Myler, who, in 1578, was succeeded by his son:

25. Constantine, who, in 1760, was succeeded by his brother, Edward, who m. a Miss MacDonnell;† and, in 1763, was succeeded by his nephew:

26. Edmund De Exeter Jordan, who, in July, 1770, married (according to Lodge) Catherine (d. 1776), widow of Bourke, lord Viscount Mayo, who died in Pall Mall, London, on the 12th Jan., 1769.

27. Henry De Exeter Jordan, or "Henry of the Ruffles"‡ as he was called: son of Edmund and said Catherine his wife. Henry m. a Miss Burke of Ower, co. Galway (whose sister m. Sir Walter Blake, Bart., of Menlough Castle, co. Galway), and had two sons and three daughters:

I. James, the elder son, was a Barrister-at-law; conformed to the Church of England to save the remnant of the family Estates from confiscation; and m. a Miss O'Donnell, sister or aunt of Sir Neal O'Donnell of Newport-Mayo, who was created a Baronet in 1780. James Jordan and his wife did not live happy together; by mutual consent they separated after three or four years cohabitation

* Edmond: This Edmond Evagher MacJordan De Exeter, lord of Athleathan, was one of the barons who attended on Sir William Petty during his Survey of Connaught; signed the paper acknowledging the number of quarters of land he was possessed of; and produced "matters of record and credit" (as above mentioned) to show that he (Jordan) and his ancestors were barons by tenure of lands, and were summoned as such to Parliament; and Petty in his report to his Government states, that the De Exeter Jordans possessed lands sufficient for such dignity. Thus, in right of his name as "MacJordan," this Edmond "Vaghery," as he is called in the Indenture above given, was confirmed in his possessions; yet Petty afterwards reserved a portion of MacJordan's territory for John Browne of the Neale, who was an ancestor of the present lords Kilmaine and Sligo.

† MacDonnell: This lady was one of three sisters who were co-heiresses of their brother (or stepbrother), Count O'Donnell, who lost his life in the Austrian Service, and who owned the property now called "Moore Hall," in the county of Mayo, which was then known by another name. Another of the sisters m. Mr. Martin, of Ross, co. Galway; and the eldest sister m. Mr. Moore, an ancestor of the present Moores of Moore Hall, and is credited with having by some tact secured Moore Hall for her husband, and deprived her two sisters of their supposed rights.

‡ Ruffles: This Henry was so called, because, as was then the fashion, he wore ruffles in profusion.

without issue. This James was, in 1785, killed in a duel* fought between him and his relative (first or second cousin), the celebrated Colonel Richard Martin, of Ballinahinch Castle, West Galway. James, who d. s.p., had a quarrel with his mother, on account, it is alleged, of her neglect of his sisters' education, during his absence from home on travel. When dying, he willed the family Estate to a Miss Vipout, of Dublin: thus excluding, he thought, his mother from receiving her dower; and his brother, too, from inheriting the property. But Miss Vipout would take only £500, under the Will: She gave Myles De Exeter Jordan, the brother of her "lover," a clear receipt for all claims on the Estate which James's Will assigned her.

II. Myles De Exeter Jordan, of whom presently:

Henry's three daughters were:

I. Mary, who m. Charles Jordan, of Knocknaskeagh, otherwise "Thornhill."

II. Honoria, who m. Thomas Lynch, Esq., of Ballycurren Castle, co. Galway.

III. Bedilia, who m. Ignatius Kelly, Esq., of Castlebar, co. Mayo.

28. Myles De Exeter Jordan, of Roslevin Castle: second son of

* Duel: The quarrel which led to that duel originated, it is said, at an Assizes held in Galway, circa 1785, between Jordan and his relative Martin, under the following circumstances: Jordan, who went on the Connanght Circuit, was at the Assizes counsel in a case against a member of the Burke family of Ower, co. Galway a near relative of his own, for Jordan's mother, as above shown, was also a member of that family. In the course of conversation Martin, who was the friend of both parties, observed that he was sorry to find Jordan had not treated his mother with due filial respect; but Jordan, who was proud and imperious, construed the observation into an insult, and a challenge ensued. Martin, who was a noted duellist in those days, made every effort to apologise, and thus prevent a hostile meeting between them; but Jordan would not be satisfied unless the same people were again gathered together, in whose presence Martin had made use of the alleged insulting expression complained of. This would be almost impossible: so the adversaries met in a field (pointed out by the country people of that neighbourhood to this day) near the public road at Green Hills, half way between Castlebar and Westport, when Jordan received in the groin his opponent's fire, and was thence removed into the neighbouring house of Mr. Bourke, of Green Hills, where he (Jordan) lingered in great pain for three or four days and died. To the honour of Martin it should be mentioned that he arrived at the ground fixed upon by the seconds without his pistols, and in consequence it was discussed for some time that the duel could not take place, as Martin had not his weapons with him. Jordan, however, refused to leave the ground; used various threats against Martin unless the duel proceeded; and insisted upon one of his (Jordan's) pistols being handed to his opponent, who had reluctantly to accept it; and as a fact Jordan was shot with one of his own pistols!

So keenly did Colonel Martin feel respecting that unfortunate duel, that one day in the dining-room of the mansion of Castlemacgarrett, co. Mayo (the seat of the present Lord Oranmore and Browne), where the Colonel had been a frequent guest, he was observed with a carving knife in his hand, and "presented" as a pistol, unconsciously soliloquising, "I could not have missed him," meaning the said James Jordan.

The extraordinary part of the story is, that Martin and Jordan had been so intimate, they travelled together over nearly the whole of Europe, visited America, and spent a few years together in Jamaica. When Jordan returned to Mayo, after five or six years' absence, he found his sisters more or less neglected by his mother in their education: that neglect led to a feud between him and his mother; it was to that feud that Martin's kindly-meant observation referred, which led to the duel.

Henry "of the Ruffles;" m. Miss Bourke,* of Green Hills (with whom he became acquainted while his brother James was lying wounded in her father's house, after the duel of said James with Colonel Martin), and left six sons and three daughters:

I. Henry De Exeter Jordan, of whom presently.

II. Constantine,† who, in 1832, m. Anne Mary Ouseley Finglass,‡ and left issue one son:

Myles Joseph De Exeter Jordan, M.D., Windsor House, Castlebar, co. Mayo, who in 1862, m. Mary Louisa, second dau. of William Graham,§ Esq., of Westport, co. Mayo, and had issue, five sons and six daughters:

1. William Stephen De Exeter Jordan, b. 1863;
2. Myles Constantine, b. 1868;
3. Edmond Slevin, b. 1871;
4. Charles Joseph, b. 1877;
5. Henry James Graham, b. 1880:
1. Margaret Basilia, b. 1864;
2. Mary Paulina, b. 1866, d. 1883;
3. Louisa Kate, b. 1870;
4. Celia Ellen, b. 1873;
5. Agnes Maud, b. 1875;
6. Florence Minnie, b. 1882.

III. Dominick, an M.D., who d. unm. in 1847.

IV. Charles Bourke Jordan, who in 1855, m. Minnie, dau. of

* Bourke: This branch of the Bourke (or De Burgo) family were the former owners of Castle Bourke, the ruins of which are situated close to Lough Carra, in Mayo; and they claimed to be the direct descendants of the Earl of Mayo, who d. in Pall Mall, as above mentioned, on the 12th January, 1769. After some troublesome and expensive litigation, however, the Naas branch of the Bourke family succeeded in establishing their claims to the then dormant Earldom; and in their line it still continues.

† Constantine: In a duel fought in 1838 by this gentleman at Turlough, co. Mayo, he is said to have displayed great coolness and courage; and to this day the people of that district relate the circumstances attending that duel, as follows: Mr. Jordan could not close his left eye-lid without the aid of his hand. While in the act of doing so with his left hand on the occasion of the duel, he received his adversary's fire through the palm of that hand near ball of thumb. Thus he was disappointed in his aim, for the bullet from his pistol entered the ground close to his adversary's foot. Mr. Jordan, feeling himself wounded, placed the injured hand in his trouser's pocket, and demanded another shot. The seconds, on both sides, complied by again reloading the pistols; but the adversary's second, watchful for the interests of his friend, saw that Mr. Jordan must have been wounded, as blood was making its appearance through his trousers, which was of a light colour. That second, therefore, called attention to Mr. Jordan's wound, and, on consultation with the other second, the duel had to cease.

‡ Finglass: Descended from Baron Finglass, who wrote what is known as "Finglass's Breviate," which is published in Harris's Hibernica; and which contains valuable historical information respecting Ireland. Baron Finglass was of the Westpalstone Finglass family. (Westpalstone is situated in the barony of Balrothery, co. Dublin, some 12 miles N. of the city of Dublin). After this family the village of "Finglass" in the co. Dublin is so called. Lodge, in Vol. V., p. 47, says of the "Finglass" family, under "Barnwall, Viscount Kingsland": "Elizabeth m. to John Finglass, Esq., of Westpalstone, 28th June, 1607"; and again in Vol. VI., p. 195, Lodge says: "Plunkett, Lord Dunsany, first lord of Killeen (in 1446 made Chief Justice of the King's Bench), m. Genet, dau. of — Finglass, Esq." We find that Sir John Plunkett, who was appointed in 1559 Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, and who d. in 1582, held with other lands the "Manor of Finglass," co. Dublin.

§ Graham: Owner of extensive landed property in the barony of Gallen; and descended from the "Graham" family in Scotland, of whom the Duke of Montrose is the head.

Walter Eakins, of Wexford; widow of John Browne, Esq., of Brownestown, co. Mayo; and mother of George Eakins Browne, Esq., J.P., D.L., late M.P. for Mayo.

V. Myles, late Crown Solicitor for Mayo, who in 1858 married Margaret J. Graham, eldest dau. of William Graham, Esq. (above mentioned), of Westport, co. Mayo.

VI. Edmund, Barrister-at-Law, and Crown Prosecutor for co. Galway, who died unmarried in 1882, at his residence in Mountjoy-square, Dublin.

The three daughters of Myles were:

I. Jane, who married William Garvey, Esq., of Tully House, county Galway, and who died in 1880, leaving issue two sons.

II. Honoria, who m. Joseph Browne, Esq., of Claran, co. Galway; and who died in 1854 leaving issue.

III. Esmena, who m. James Jordan, Esq., of Bushfield, county Mayo, for many years Sheriff for Mayo, and who left one son since deceased.

29. Henry De Exeter Jordan, of Roslevin Castle, eldest son of Myles; succeeded to his father's estates; married Maria, daughter of M. Egan, Esq., M.D., of Tuam, county Galway, and had issue two sons and three daughters:

I. Myles Henry, of whom presently.

II. ()
The daughters were.

I. Bedilia, who died young and unmarried.

II. Jane, um. in 1884.

III. Kate, who m. J. M. Burke, A.B., M.D.

30. Myles Henry De Exeter Jordan, of Roslevin Castle, Kiltimagh, J.P., son of Henry; Chairman of Swinford Board of Guardians, and unmarried in 1884.

250.—THE "MACDONOGH" FAMILY.

Of Wilmont House, Parish of Portumna, County of Galway.

THIS is a Catholic branch of the ancient family of "MacDonough,"* Lords of Corran and Tirerill, in the co. Sligo. Of that family was Terence MacDonogh, of Creevagh, who was M.P. for Sligo in 1689; and who d. in 1718; he was the only Catholic Counsel who was admitted to the Bar in Ireland, up to his death, after the violation of the Treaty of Limerick in 1691. Since that period we find a branch of this family settled as country gentlemen and Justices of the Peace in the co. Galway; holding lands of their own, and others in lease under their ancient kinsmen, the Clan Mac William, now Marquises of Clanrickard.

MacDonough*: By reference to pp. 285, 286 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," where we give the genealogy of this family, it will be seen that "MacDonough," Lords of Corran and Tirerill, were a younger branch of the great house of McDermott, Princes of Moylurg, who were a younger branch of the O'Connors, Kings of Connaught, details of whose wealth and territories, of their wars and alliances, are given in the Annals of the Four Masters.

1. Francis MacDonogh, held lands at Gort, and at Wilmont, in the parish of Portumna, and county of Galway, in the middle of the 18th century. To him succeeded:

2. Matthew MacDonogh, who held both those places, and who d. circa 1779. He had:

I. Allen, who succeeded him, and of whom presently.

II. James.

3. Allen MacDonogh, of Wilmont, J.P. for the co. Galway, who d. in July, 1825: son of Matthew; m. Mary, dau. of ——— Doolan, of Derry, in the King's County, and had issue, four sons and four daughters:

I. Matthew, of whom presently.

II. William, who d. s.p.

III. Thomas, b. 1st Sept., 1805, d. s.p.

IV. Allen MacDonogh, now (1884) of Athgarven Lodge, the Curragh, co. Kildare, who m. Charlotte Elizabeth, only dau. and eventual sole heiress of the late George Houghton, Esq., of Leicester (by Chailoth-Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of ——— Cheatle, Esq.), and has issue an only daughter:

I. Charlotte-Murray-Houghton, who in 1871 married John Pym Yeatman, Esq., of Springfield House, Sheffield, in the co. of York, England (a Barrister of Lincoln's Inn, and of the family of Yeatman, in the co. of Dorset), and has three sons and four daughters:

1. John-Francis-Joseph-Pym Yeatman, b. 25th November, 1873.

II. William-Goel-de Percival, born 25th February, 1877.

III. Patrick-Allen-Irvine, b. 25th Oct., 1878.

I. Ethel-Charlotte-Murray-Houghton.

II. Maud-Mary-Theophila-Farr.

III. Sybil-Mary-Josephine.

IV. Olive-Mary.

The four daughters of Allen MacDonogh, of Wilmont, were:

I. Eleanor.

II. Hannah.

III. Frances-Elizabeth.

IV. Margaret.

4. Matthew MacDonogh, J.P. for the county of Galway, who died 25th Dec., 1877: eldest son of Allen; was Captain in the 10th Hussars. He married Jemima, daughter of James Lynch, M.D., of Lough, county Galway, and had an only son:

5. Frank MacDonogh of Wilmont House, in the co. Galway, b. 18th June, 1844, and living in 1884; m. on the 19th Mar., 1865, Kate-Mary, dau. of Thomas Bodkin, M.D., of Tuam, and has issue six sons and two daughters:

I. Matthew-Joseph, b. 26th Jan., 1867.

II. Thomas-Aloysius, b. 19th June, 1870.

III. Joseph-Patrick, b. 19th Feb., 1875.

IV. Francis-James, b. 5th Jan., 1877.

V. Allen, b. in 1879.

VI. Charles, b. in 1882.

I. Mary-Esmina, b. 1868, d. 17th March, 1873.

II. Esmina-Mary.

6. Matthew-Joseph MacDonogh, of Wilmont House: son and heir of Frank; b. in 1867, and living in 1884.

251.—THE “MACELLIGOTT” FAMILY.

THE earliest anglicised forms of this family name that we meet with were McEllycudd, McEllycuddy,* McKelgol, McEillgodd, McLeod, McKelgol, McElcole, McEligot, McEligott; and more lately MacElligott, and Archdeacon.

In 1259, the forces of Mary McEllycudd, of Galey, co. Kerry, invaded Scotland with the Army of Edward the First. She brought to Maurice Fitzmaurice, the second Lord of Kerry, five Knight's fees, about Listowel and Tralee. Most of those Estates were confiscated about 1559 and 1613.

In 1653, Edmund McElligott, of Galey parish, of Coolceragh, was transplanted with four of his household. This Edmund was the grandfather of:

1. John McElligott, of Limerick, who (see the “Evans” pedigree, supra), m. Elizabeth, grandaunt of the late Sir de Lacy Evans, and granddaughter to Colonel Griffiths Evans, and had:

2. Richard Pierce McElligott (1756), of Limerick, who was twice married: first, to Miss Loftus (a descendant of Loftus, Mayor of Limerick, in 1425, and “Bailiff” of Limerick, in 1422—31—41—44), and by her had three sons and four daughters:

- I. John.
- II. Richard.
- III. Pierce.

- I. Alice.
- II. Elizabeth.
- III. Mary.
- IV. Another Alice.

Richard Pierce MacElligott's second wife was Jane, daughter of Captain William Craig, of Cork, 2nd Foot Regiment; the issue of the second marriage were two sons and two daughters:

- I. Charles.
- II. Ulysses.
- I. Anne.
- II. Jane, who (see the “Ryding” pedigree), m. Stephen Nathaniel Ryding, L.D.S., and had issue.

* MacEllicuddy or MacGillicuddy: Some Irish scholars derive these names from “MacGillgoeuddy,” which they say means the devotee of the saintly. For our derivation of “MacGillicuddy,” see that family genealogy in p. 99 of the Third Edition of our “Irish Pedigrees.”

According to Miss Hickson's “Kerry Records,” the blood of the MacElligotts is inherited by nearly every respectable family in the counties of Cork, Kerry, and Limerick; and is also to be found in almost every Court in Europe.

The Motto of the MacElligotts was:

“Nulla manus tam liberilis et generalis
Atque universalis quam Sullevanus.”

In connexion with the foregoing Motto, it may be observed that the families of MacElligott and MacGillicuddy were branches of the O'Sullivan Mor family.

Some of the Castles and places of the MacElligotts were: Carriganess, Dunboy, Reendeshart, Ardea, Dunkerron, Carnebeg, Cappanacuss, Dunloa, Bodenesmeen, Castlecarrig, Ballymacelligott, Carriguafela, Ardballa, Ballynagrillagh, O'Brennan, Tullyaron (now “Chute Hall”), Lisardboully, Glandovellane, Tourreagh, Carriek, Glogbanmackin, Rathanny, Glanageenta, Galey parish, Coolceragh; and Ballyelegot, co. Waterford.

In 1590 were lost, in the barony of Trughauacmy (or Trughenacking), parish of

This Richard Pierce MacElligott was a scholar of great eminence ; his MSS. were full of interest to the soldier, the mathematician, and the linguist. Some of those MSS. have since his death been deposited in the Library of the Royal Irish Academy, and other places, in Dublin, and elsewhere ; some taken by friends ; and some borrowed by others, who, without any acknowledgment, have published their contents as their own work. Even in fortifications and Military Art our newest systems were to him already old. As a Tribute to the memory of Mr. MacElligott, the following poem on him, by one of his descendants, the elder brother of the late Sir de Lacy Evans, is here worthy of record :

Ballymacelligott, the following four castles : 1. Ballymacelligott, 2. Carrignafeala ; 3. Ardballa ; 4. Ballnagrillagh.

In 1595, the Lord of the Reeks of Bodevysmine was slain in the Desmond Wars.

In 1598, his territory was given to Barrett ; but some of it was restored.

In 1604 John MacElligott was pardoned by King James the First, who, in 1605, gave Theobald Bourk of Castleconnell a parcel of the estates of MacDermott O'Sullivan, otherwise called " MacGillicuddie," who died in rebellion.

In 1613 the lands of Ulic MacElligott were given to Sir T. Roper.

In 1624 an Inquisition on Maurice MacElligott's Estates.

In 1625 he was pardoned and allowed to grant to his nephew and heir, John MacGillicuddy, Tullygarron, Lisardbouly, Glandovellane, and Toureagh, all of which passed per a Miss MacElligott to the " Chute " family.

In 1630, Connor MacGillicuddy, of Carrig Castle, co. Kerry, drowned (shipwrecked).—MSS. Trinity College, Dublin.

In 1631, Inquisition on John MacGillicuddy's Estates.

In 1645, Miss MacGillicuddy, in the Castle of Ballingarry in Clanmorris when taken from the Parliamentary party.

In 1646, two cousins, namely, Colonel MacGillicuddy and Colonel MacElligott, at the Siege of Ballybriggan Castle, near Tralee.

In 1652, MacGillicuddy. taken prisoner at the battle of Knocknecloghy.

In 1653, Edmund MacElligott above-mentioned was transplanted, and in the same year Maurice (or " Morrice ") MacElligott forfeited O'Brennan Castle. (See p. 291 ante.)

In 1656 he forfeited Ballymacelligott, Rathanny, and Glanageenta, and was transplanted. In the same year Richard MacElligott was in Donoghue's Regiment, and taken prisoner at the then siege of Limerick.

In 1673, Colonel MacElligott and Teige MacElligott lost part of Culeagh and Garrinagh, which was given to Robert Marshall.

In 1687 Colonel MacGillicuddy, called Denis, was Sheriff of the County Kerry, and got estates under an assumed name.

In 1688 Colonel Roger MacElligott with his Regiment was in Hampton Court, and in Chester ; and with it returned to Ireland,

In 1689 Col. Roger MacElligott and his cousin Col. Cornelius MacGillicuddy, of the Reeks (who was Governor of Kinsale), were both in Parliament as Members for Ardfert. Two MacGillicuddys, one of whom was an Ensign, and the other a Lieutenant, were both in Lord Kenmare's Regiment.

In 1690 Col. MacGillicuddy was Governor of Cork when it was taken by the future Duke of Marlborough.

In 1697 Col. Roger MacElligott was released from the Tower of London, after four years' incarceration therein. He then joined the Irish Brigade in France, as Colonel, with three of the MacGillicuddys.

In 1733 we find James Mason, grandfather of Robert Emmett, in Ballymacelligott ; and, in 1778, his descendant a general in Austria.

Like the DeLacys and other Irish families, the history of Europe at that period is full of the exploits of the MacElligotts.

"Where are those days as beauteous and sublime
 As those of the original Paradise,
 When angels missioned from above came down,
 To teach the Deity's infinite wisdom, love
 And all His glorious attributes to man !
 Where are those days of beauty, gifted man ?
 When, in the original power of genius, thou
 Led'st forth thy pupil through the blooming fields
 Of Art, of Science, and of Classic lore !
 Then Archimides' self and Euclid taught,
 From thy clear brain, and fire-touched eloquent lips.
 There Homer sped his music of the soul.
 Demosthenes again sent forth, through Greece
 Those thunders which struck tyrants pale, of you ;
 Whose very echoes in our modern day
 Have taught the Turkish despot wretch to bend
 His recreant knee to mind, and own the power
 Which from on high rebukes the tyrant, and
 In blushes paints the visage of the slave !
 To reach, to feel, to teach those nobler points
 In morals, wisdom, in eternal truth,
 In Art, in Science, or in Classic lore:
 All this was thine. But higher, nobler, still,
 'Twas thine to teach the youthful mind to rise
 Above the sordid level of the crowd,
 To build its own foundations deep and strong,
 And raise the superstructure to the stars !
 To scorn each petty tyrant, as he crawls
 In reptile slime on the dishonour'd earth—
 To cherish in the heart each worthy man—
 And court assiduously that converse pure,
 Which is the prototype, foretaste, of Heaven !
 Where are those days ? Yes, yes, they yet will live
 Immortal e'en on earth, for they belong
 To Heaven's own atmosphere ; and the rich seed
 Of glorious mind, cultured by thee, shall bloom
 And fructify throughout th'embellished land !
 Oh ! may thy sons, and theirs, ascend to that High and immortal tone of sentiment,
 That vigour made of fire and sprung from Heaven !

"Ollis est ignea vigor et celestis origo."

"GLIN (co. Limerick), 11th May, 1844."

Richard Pierce MacElligott, the subject of the foregoing Poem, having been a political prisoner in Limerick Jail, in 1798, the following is an extract from a letter by him sent out, pasted with a piece of potato to the bottom of a plate :

"What shall I suffer walking up and down this dismal place from light to light, with no companion but a man, who (three times flogged) lies dying in a corner a still breathing corpse ; and legions of rats of all ages, which have forgotten the timidity of their species, and lord it here with hereditary sway :

"Hail ! solitude, all gloomy horrors hail !
 For Truth has led me to thy dismal shrine.
 In her bright face all earthly glories pale ;
 Thy darkest den is filled with light divine.

"What shall I suffer ?
 After this, Nothing.

"There were three happy fellows on every lamp on the bridge,* as I was crossing here; the lantern hoops were breaking; so I must wait till some kind friend drops off. They nearly took up (or occupied) all the little footpath, and the toes of some of them were touching it.

"As I passed, I thought what a splendid and economical plan for lamp-lighting; for, by its piercing rays, the whole earth could see into the dark hearts† of a distant people, and follow its each individual to the world's ends while he carries one grain of pride. In the glory of such bright eternal light, who would not wish to burn? Not Typhus, not Smallpox; No! No!"

Mr. MacElligott was, however, reprieved.

252.—THE "MILMO" FAMILY,

Of Mexico, United States, America.

SOME Genealogists derive this family from Maol-na-mBo ("maol": Irish, the devotee; "na-mBo," of the cows or cattle), who (see p. 294 of the Third Edition of "IRISH PEDIGREES") is No. 110 on the "MacMorrough" genealogy; and a quo O'Maoilmbó. Of this Irish surname Mildmay is considered another anglicised form.

The Milmo family, after the English invasion of Ireland, settled in Connaught, and intermarried with (among others) the ancient families of "O'Dowd," and "Crean," in the co. Sligo.

The Venerable Archdeacon O'Rorke, in his "Ballisadare and Kilvarnet, county Sligo," mentions that the "Milmo" family is one of the oldest and most respectable families in the parish of Ballisadare. Of this family is Don Patricio Milmo, of Mexico, who was born in Collooney, in the co. Sligo; and who in his youth, went to Mexico to a rich unmarried uncle, who helped his nephew to lay the foundation of his present colossal fortune.

One of Don Patricio Milmo's brothers was a Prize man of the Catholic University, Dublin, in 1856; and another brother, Daniel Milmo, was in 1888 head of the "Milmo National Bank," in Laredo, Texas.

Don Patricio m. the dau. of the celebrated Mexican statesman General Vidaurri, who, taking sides with Maximilian, shared that Emperor's unhappy fate. As an instance of warm attachment to Faith and Fatherland, for which his fathers suffered so much, it is mentioned that this good Irishman Don Patricio (or Patrick) Milmo had his eldest son educated in Dublin under a Catholic professor; and has also taken from the Irish capital a Catholic governess for his daughters; while, during the late famine in Ireland, the said Patrick Milmo sent a handsome donation to the Priests of his native county, for distribution among the distressed.

* Bridge: This observation refers to the "Rebels," who, in 1798, were hanged on the lamp-posts, on the bridge of Limerick; and there left suspended, and, as it were, standing on the flagway, exposed to the public gaze, until, through time, their bodies dropped to the ground!

† Dark hearts: "But they were not dark enough," says the Rev. Father Furlong, in a Pamphlet on the Life of Richard Pierce MacElligott, "to hang such a man; for, on the day of trial, the highest of the governing party marched in procession with white gloves, and pledged themselves for his honour."

It is to the realms of fiction that one must look for counterparts to the careers of some of our scattered Irish exiles; for, the lives of not a few of them have even eclipsed in romantic and adventurous elements any of the "forms" that imagination has ever bodied forth. Scarcely a year passes without our meeting some record of a wonderful achievement by one or other of poor Ireland's "Wild Geese," in some distant land. The life of the honoured subject of this paper is such a one; for Mr. Patrick Milmo, of Mexico, is eminently one of our countrymen who, in exile, have shed lustre on their Nation and their Race.

253.—THE "O'BRIEN" FAMILY,

Of Ballyetragh, County Waterford.

TURLOUGH MAOL, second son of Murtagh, who (see p. 125, ante), is No. 115 on the O'Brien (Kings of Thomond) pedigree, was the ancestor of "O'Brien" of Bun-Cumeragh, in the county Waterford. The O'Briens of Ballyetragh are a branch of that family. Several other branches* of the O'Briens of Thomond settled from time to time in the county Waterford, and there held large tracts of land. We can trace the Ballyetragh branch as far back as Anthony O'Brien, of Comeragh, who in 1549 obtained a pardon from the Government; and who was contemporary with Connor, who (see p. 126 ante), is No. 121 on the same pedigree. In 1598 Terlagh O'Brien, son of said Anthony, lived in Comeragh† Castle, at the foot of the Comeragh Mountains; in 1619 that Castle was unsuccessfully besieged by eleven knights of the Furlong family. According to the "Book of Survey and Distribution" for the co. Waterford, Derby O'Brien, son of said Terlagh, was the proprietor of Comeragh, in 1641; and, according to Exchequer Inquisitions taken at Dungarvan, on the 9th October, 1656, said Derby O'Brien‡ was dead in that year.

After a fierce resistance by the five sons of Derby O'Brien, Comeragh Castle was taken by Cromwell, who hanged four of them; the fifth son, John of Kilnafrabane, escaped to the sea-coast and settled near Helvick Head. From said John are descended the O'Briens, of Ballyetragh, co. Waterford.

Commencing with Anthony, and with (121) the number of Connor, both above mentioned, the following is the pedigree of this family:

* Branches: Of those branches we find that Daniel O'Brien of Ballyknocke, in 1632, was the son of Teige (d. 1620), who was the son of a Donagh O'Brien; that Murtagh O'Brien of Cottir, in 1641, was the son of Mahon (d. 1623), who was son of a Donagh O'Brien; and that Donagh O'Brien of Jemybrien, in 1641, was the son of a Brian O'Brien. There are several Inquisitions in the Chancery Records for the co. of Waterford, in the reign of Charles I., regarding the O'Briens.

† Comeragh: Salterbridge near Cappoquin, on the river Blackwater, also belonged to this family.

‡ Derby O'Brien: As this Derby was dead in 1656, it may be supposed that the Mary Brien of Kilcomeragh, who was transplanted from the co. Waterford in 1653, was his wife. Among the O'Briens who in that year were also transplanted from the co. Waterford were Terlagh O'Brien, of Cottin; Donagh O'Brien, of Kilnafrabane; and Brian O'Brien, of Ballyathin (or "Boulyattin").—See "Transplanters' Certificates," in the Public Record Office, Dublin; and "Persons Transplanted," in p. 349 of this Volume.

256.—THE "RYDING" FAMILY.

ACCORDING to some Genealogists Ryding is an ancient Welsh family; and is derived from the Welsh "ryd," a ford, and "ane," old.

In 1661, Edward Ryding held Estates from the Earl of Clancarthy, in the barony of Barrymore, County Cork.

* Gregory: This Gregory O'Byrne was attached to the Court of Louis the XVI., and was one of the 500 Royalists (many of whom were Officers of the Irish Brigade in which the said Gregory and his Uncle Colonel O'Byrne had served), who enrolled themselves as a guard of honour to, and protected the flight of, the Duchess d'Angoulême, daughter of Louis XVI., upon the occasion of her rash enterprise in appealing in person to the National Assembly.

† Nugent: This Michael was the father of Robert Nugent, Esq., of Gossfield, in Essex, who, on the 20th December, 1776, was, in the Peerage of Ireland, created "Baron Nugent and Viscount Clare;" and in the same Peerage he subsequently became "Earl Nugent." This Robert had an only dau. and heir, the Lady Mary Elizabeth Nugent (d. 16 Mar., 1813), who, on the 16 April, 1775, m. George Grenville, (b. 17 June, 1753), the second Earl Temple, who, by Royal permission, assumed on the 2nd Dec., 1779, the surnames of Nugent and Temple before that of "Grenville." This George Nugent-Temple-Grenville (d. 1813), was on the 4 Dec., 1784, created "Marquis of Buckingham;" and was in 1782 and 1787 Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

William* Ryding, b. at Charley, Lancashire, England, on 2nd January, 1769; entered, as Cornet, the Hampshire (Cavalry) Fencibles, on the 20th March, 1799; exchanged to the 18th Light Dragoons, on the 2nd May, 1800; again exchanged to the 23rd Light Dragoons, on the 5th November, 1803; and again exchanged to the 1st Royal Dragoons, on the 2nd June, 1804. He served in Spain, Egypt, and Waterloo; and retired on half pay in 1816.

1. This William Ryding had three sons:

I. John, who was an Officer in the 5th Dragoons.

II. Frederick, who was Surgeon-General in the Columbian Navy.

III. Stephen-Nathaniel, L.D.S., R.C.S.E.

2. Stephen-Nathaniel, of Limerick, L.D.S., R.C.S.E.: third son of William; m. (see the "MacElligott" pedigree, supra.) Jane, dau. of Richard Pierce MacElligott, of Limerick, and had six children: four sons and two daughters. The sons were:

I. Frederick, of whom presently.

III. William, L.D.S., R.C.S.E., who was twice m.: first, to Emeline de Vernon, a niece of General de Vernon; and secondly, to Mary Stackpoole (stepniece of Sir Burton MacNamara, of the co. Clare, and first and second cousin to Mr. Stackpoole, of Edenvale, whose youngest son, Lieut.-Colonel George-William, m. the dowager Lady Rossmore).

IV. Stephen, of Limerick, L.D.S., R.C.S.E., living unm. in 1884.

3. Frederick Ryding, of Dublin, L.D.S., R.C.S.E.: eldest son of Stephen-Nathaniel; m. on the 29th April, 1882 (see the "O'Brien," of Ballyetragh, pedigree), Mary, dau. of the late Matthew Rogers O'Brien, of Ballyetragh, co. Waterford; both living in 1884.

257.—THE "STANE" FAMILY,

Of Forrest Hall, County of Essex, England.

IN the Will of William Cleburne, of St. John's Manor, co. Wexford, who d. in 1682, and who (see p. 205, supra.) is No. 14 on the "Cleburne" (of St. John's Manor) pedigree, he provides that, in default of issue to his brother Richard, and nephew William (a son of said Richard), that all his lands shall pass to Richard Stane, of Forrest Hall, co. of Essex, England.

1. Richard Stane, of Forrest (or Polyot's) Hall, m., and had:

2. Richard (living in 1601), who had:

3. Richard (d. 1615), LL.D., who m., and had:

4. John (aged 23 in 1615) who m., and had:

6. William Stane, who m. Alice, dau. of Sir Thomas Abdy, of Felix Hall, and had issue.

* William: This William Ryding, of the 1st Royal Dragoons, wrote several large works on medical subjects, some of which were published; some very fine poetry; and also the History of the Regiment for his time in it.

CORRIGENDA.

11.—THE “BELLINGHAM” FAMILY.

THIS family (see p. 29) came originally from Northumberland, in England, where it appears to have been seated immediately after the Conquest; for we read of perpetual feuds in the reigns of William the Conqueror and William Rufus between Alan de Bellingham and the Charltons of Hasleyside. It has now entirely disappeared from the district, the name alone surviving in the chief town of Tynedale. The family ruled with great power as officers of the Scottish King Alexander III., over much of the country around Bellingham. William de Bellingham was sheriff of Tynedale in 1279, and Forrester of Tynedale under the King of Scotland. His son Richard married the heiress of Burneshead in Westmoreland. Descendants of the Charltons still own a mansion near the town; whilst the Bellinghams have altogether disappeared from the county, though certain quit-rents were paid to a representative of the family for land in North Tynedale down to A.D. 1774:

214.—THE “CLEBORNE” FAMILY,*

Of Cleburne.

Arms : On a field argent, three chevronels braced in base sable. A chief of the last. (For Cliburne of Westmoreland ; Hay-Close, Cumberland ; Killerby, in Yorkshire, England ; St. John's Manor, county Wexford ; and Ballycullatan, county Tipperary, Ireland.)

THE name Cliborne† (“elai” or “clœia” : Saxon, clayey ; and “borne,” a stream) is first mentioned in the Domesday Survey, A.D. 1086, Vol. I., 234. It occurs in a return of the Leicestershire possessions of Robert de Veci, who inherited the lands of Ethelric ; but as no manor of this name is found in any history of that county, it is inferred that “Cliborne,” in Westmoreland, was for convenience entered under “Ledecestscire.” “Entries of one county,” says Ellis, “are often in the Domesday placed in another ; as the manors of Hanlie and Forhilmestone in Gloucestershire are entered in Herefordshire.” (Domesday, 180 b.) Lapley, in Staffordshire, is entered under Northamptonshire (222 A. Freeman's Norman Conquest, 680) ; and Deorman's lands, in Essex, are found under Middlesex (Domesday, 130. b.) Of the descent of the manor from the 11th to the 13th century but little is known. Nicholson† (Hist. of Westm., Vol. I., 457) says, “it was early divided into two moieties : Cliburn Tailbois, and Cliburn Hervey. The former derived its name from a branch of the Talbois, Barons of Kendal ;” the latter, from Hervey§ (de Veci, le Breton, or Fitz Hugh), a Norman Knight. The Arms and Breton names of Alan and Hervey indicate close alliance with Fitz Hugh ; but Sedgewick (Pembroke MSS. at Appleby) derives its name from “Hervey (? grandson of Vesci), living in 1134 ; Hervey de Cliborn, A.D. 1174 ; Alan, A.D. 1217 ; Hervey, temp. Edw. I.” According to Palgrave (Baronetage, Vol. III., 389), Alan de Clibburne was living temp. Henry III., A.D. 1267. This Alan married Joan de Ravenswet, and had a daughter Idonea,|| who married Walter, son of Tancered, the Seneschal of Knaresborough (Le Neve's MSS. Vol. III., 114). The issue of that marriage was George Tankard, of Barrowbridge, in Yorkshire, who died s.p. temp. Henry III.

The following inscription is from a Brass in Cliburn Church, near Penrith, in Westmorelandshire, England :

“Ad majorem Dei gloriam atque in memoriam claræ insignisque gentis Herviæ de Cliborne, Alani scilicet de Clibburne, qui anno gratiæ MCCXVII. ; Godfredi vero filii Hervei de Cleborne, qui anno MCCCXV. ; Roberti quoque de Cliburn, qui anno MCCCXXXVI. floruit, quique primus extitit Comitatus Westmerlandensis eques,

* Family : See Note (+), in p. 201.

† Cliborne : “Ipse R. ten. XII. car. tree. in Cliborne. T.R.E. erant ibi X. car. In dño. st. III. car. VI. serui. X. villi. cū. VI. sochis. VI. bord. 1 francig. hñt. V. car. Ibi XVI. ac. pti. valuit XL. solid. modo LX. solid.”—Domesday Book, fo. 234.

‡ Nicholson : See last Note, in p. 201.

§ Hervey : Hervey le Breton held a high command, in 1086, under Alan of Bretagne (see Freeman's Norm. Conq.), and the Breton auxiliaries were led by Alan Fergeant (son of Odo, cousin of the ruling Count of Brittany), at the battle of Senlac. “Herveus Brit. was a witness to a charter between William de Vesci and the Church of Farnchieland or Farne.”—RAINE Hist. Durham, p. 122.

|| Idonea : She was so named after Idonea de Leyborne, to whom (according to the Hist. of Westmd., Vol. I., p. 275) the demesne land “Cliborne” then belonged.

necnon et ipsius nepotum, hujus manerium maneriumque de Bampton Cundale Bampton Patrick ac knyfe Patric in eodem Comitatu veterum Dominorum. Insuper et in memoriam Gulielmi de Cleburne seu Claiborne primi e Secretis* Coloniæ Virginienſis, qui anno vixit MDCXXXVI.; Gulielmi de Cleburne prædii a sancto Johanne Comitatus Wexfordienſis in Hibernia domini; Gulielmi Cleburne de Castello Ballycullatano Comitatus Tipperarienſis, qui obiit die xxii mensis Octobris anni MDCLXXXIV.; Ricardi denique Cleburne de Ballycullatan Annagh deque Bunna-dubber in eodem Comitatu ejusdemque fato jam functorum nepotum, hæc tabella et fenestra positæ sunt."

On the south window of the said church is the following inscription :

"Ad majorem Dei gloriam et in Memoriam Gulielmi et Eduardi et Gulielmi filii nepotis pronepotemque Ricardi Cleburne de Castello Ballycullatano armigeri eorumque conjugibus et filiis. In memoriam quoque Christopheri Cleburne filii proxime supra dicti Gulielmi, qui natus est die quarto Decembris, 1793, obiit vero undecimo Novembris, 1848, ipsius que amatissimæ uxoris Johannæ, quæ tertio die Januarii, 1862, ætatis suæ sexagesimo secundo decessit."

From Hervey, of Cliburne, who, according to the Escheats of 8 Edw. II., lived A.D. 1307, the descent is, as traced in pp. 202-3.

215.—THE "CLEBURNE" FAMILY,

* Secretis : See Note (+) at foot of p. 202.

The following Memoranda are taken from the Dalton and Hanson MSS.; they may be of interest to members of the families therein mentioned, Cleburne included :

Cambie and Hoyle ——— (Major) Solomon Cambie of Ballycullatan and Annaghi Castle, co. Tipperary, and Alice his wife, and Samuel Cambie (of Galway), son and heir apparent of said Solomon Cambie and Joshua Hoyle, of Kilirvinning, co. Tipperary, were parties with William* Cleburne, of the city of Kilkenny, gentleman, to a tripartite Indenture dated 20th July, 1677, for the sale of Castletown,† Ballycullatan, Killinboy, Kilbulloir (? Kilbarron),‡ Burnadubber, and part of Annagh, with all the Castles, towns, villages, lands, premises, their rights, marches and appurtenances situate in the co. Tipperary, to the said William Cleburn, gentleman, his heirs and assigns for ever.—See Indenture enrolled in Record Office, Dublin, 20th July, 1677.

Major Solomon Cambie, here mentioned, was a Cromwellian Officer; Alice, his wife, was a dau. of Henry Craine. (See Will of William Cleburn, Sept., 1684; and Indenture above alluded to, dated July, 1677). Her daughter Elizabeth Cambie m. William, son of William Cleburn; of St. John's Manor, co. Wexford, and had one child Elizabeth, who d. in 1682, aged 16 days.

Thomas (No. 13 on the genealogy), the father of William Cleburn, of St. John's Manor, had a suit with Sir Wymond Cary (or Carrie), the Queen's Lessee, about certain messuages, lands, Courts Baron and Leet in Snettisham Manor, co. Henry, son of Robert Craine, of Chilton, co. Suffolk. Sir Wymond Cary, of Snettisham Manor, was b. in 1538; Knighted in 1604; and d. s.p. in April, 1612. (Sir) Robert Craine was a Member of the House of Commons; and, in June, 1642, he advanced horses and money for the defence of Parliament, and "agreed to bring in fower horses for the defence of the King and Parliament not divided." (See List of Members of the House of Commons, 1642.)

Susan Craine m. Edward Walpole, grandfather of the Earl of Oxford. Jane, dau. of Richard Craine, of Dorset, m. George Evelyn, of Maryland.

Camby: Markham, in his Life of Fairfax (pp. 173-174), speaks of Capt. Cambie, who served under the Earl of Manchester, at Marston Moor.

David Cambie was a Lieutenant in Cromwell's Army, under Major Nathaniel Barton, in 1659. (See Journals of the House of Commons, 10th Feb., 1659.)

* William: The above named William Cleburne of Kilkenny (see No. 14 on this family genealogy, pp. 203-206, supra.) was also of St. John's Manor, co. Wexford; and was father of William Cleburn, of Ballycullatan Castle, who m. Elizabeth, daughter of Major Solomon Cambie, and who d. in Oct., 1684. To the Will of the latter, proved in Dublin in 1684, are appended the names of David Cambie (son of the above mentioned Major Solomon Cambie); and Richmond Allen, who m. Mary, sister of the above William Cleburne, of Ballycullatan.

† Castletown: Castletown, in the co. Tipperary, belonged in 1636 to John Brigg and Morish Thomas; and, in 1670, to one Bryan and the Earl of Cork.

‡ Kilbarron: Kilbarron, co. Tipperary (which contains in its church the tomb of the Cleburns of Ballycullatan) belonged in 1657 to Bryan MacMorogh.

216.—THE "CLIBBORN" FAMILY,
Of Moate Castle, Co. Westmeath.

FOR the Arms of this family, see p. 207. The following is the genealogy of the family more fully given than we were able to give it in that page :

William Cleburn, who married Margaret ———, of Rowley, Yorkshire, England (died 1660), is said to have been descended from the ancient family of Cleburne, in the county of York. He had : 1. John Clibborn, of Moate Castle ; 2. Bathsheba, who married Philip England ; 3. Anne, who married John Müller.

2. John Clibborn (born 1623), of Moate Castle : son of William ; married, first, in 1653, Margaret Crow, of Newry, and by her had two sons and two daughters :

I. George (1660).

II. William.

42.—THE "DAUNT" FAMILY.

In Note †, p. 54, read : The Kilcaskan branch shares the blood of the O'Connors Kerry ; the paternal grandmother of Mr. William O'N. Daunt and of Doctor Richard Gumbleton Daunt (both living in 1884) being of that family, and cousin-german of General Arthur O'Connor son of Roger O'Connor. That General had a daughter Donna Ereilia O'Connor d'Arlach (living in 1883), who m. General Francis Burdett O'Connor (brother of Fergus), and had an only son Don Thomas O'Connor d'Arlach, an LL.D. of the University of Chuquisaca, who in 1883 resided at the city of Farija, in Bolivia, and then had three children.

45.—THE "DILLON" FAMILY.

In this family genealogy (see pp. 56-60) a few inaccuracies occur, which will be rectified in the Second Edition of this Work. In that genealogy we give the origin of the family as mentioned by Lodge in his Peerage, and as stated in the Linea Antiqua; but, as may be gleaned by the following observations, we venture to entertain a different opinion on—

THE ORIGIN OF THE DILLON FAMILY:

Family traditions when genuine are entitled to the greatest weight; they are usually based upon truth while erroneous in details, and their very errors often serve to authenticate the story, as they show it is not the concoction of a mere pedigree-maker putting together scraps and fragments of annals and chronicles, and then dubbing it a family tradition, as is too often the case, and is indeed here instanced by the silly tale of Lochan Dilune. The rest of the story appears, at the first glance, equally absurd. No such events ever did, or could have happened at Aquitaine. For Henry acquired the province in the year 1152, and before he was King of England; and it was a perfectly peaceful acquisition. In history there is no trace of war or strife of any kind on the occasion; and there is no trace of such a name as Dillon, Delion, Deloune, or anything like it, in all Aquitaine. If, however, we turn to the history of another of the numberless provinces at that period annexed to the English Crown—to Brittany, we shall find the tale told us substantially true, and the error to lie in the substitution of Aquitaine for Brittany; and that in the latter, the name of De Leon, or De Liuns, according to the orthography of the English Chronicler (see Benedict of Peterborough, passim), was already ancient and well known. We shall find in the Breton annals and records, how the Barons and Seigneurs of Brittany rose in arms against Henry II., when, under pretext of the marriage of his son Geoffrey with Constance—the Constance of poetic fame—heiress of the Duchy, he virtually annexed it; how the De Léons were the principal leaders of the revolt; how, overpowered and crushed by the might of the English King, they at last submitted, swore fealty, and gave hostages. We are not expressly told that some of the hostages were of their kin, nor of their ultimate fate, unless, perhaps, that Adam De Leon, the Crusader who died at the siege of Acre, in the retinue of Richard Cœur de Lion, was one of them (see Roger de Hoveden, Bouquet, V. 13). Nor are we told that any of them were carried beyond the seas, and finally planted in Ireland, the last of the King's acquisitions, at a safe distance from their ancient home; but we may quite reasonably trust a family tradition to that effect, which is so well supported by history, and whose genuineness is in fact authenticated by the very error of locality, which proves it is not the concoction of a genealogist.

Dom Labineau (History of Brittany, p. 106), tells us that "The House of the Viscounts De Leon was illustrious from the tenth century. Even, Lord of that country—the terror of the Normans—built the town which was called after him, Liz-u-Even—that is, the Court or Fort of Even. Ekuara, Viscount De Leon after him, was the father of Guihomar. The latter, in the year 1021, held the rank of Viscount De Leon (Chartulary of Kemperlé and of Rennes, pp. 98 and 130). At that time, in Brittany and Normandy, it was the highest title conferred—the style of Count being reserved for members of the sovereign house; and to it was annexed a kind of palatine jurisdiction, extending over a large territory. He was succeeded by Marvan, Viscount De Leon. His successor was Guihomar II., Viscount De Leon, who gave to God and St. Melanie, and to the Monks thereof, for ever, the Church of St. Mary of Morlaix, together with other benefits. He was slain by treachery in the year 1103 (see Charters of Daoullas, Lob. Preuves, p. 128; and Breton Chron. of Nantes, Bouq. xii. p. 557). Harvey, Viscount De Leon, was his son and successor. He was a very valiant knight, says the Chronicler, and fought in many famous battles in England and in other places, and lost an eye in the wars (Guilelm. Armoric, Bouq. xii.)

Guihomar III., Viscount De Leon, his son and successor, was, says Robert de Mont, "one who feared nor God nor man." He it was who took such a leading part in the Breton resistance to King Henry II., as has been already mentioned. On his final overthrow, in 1178, he and his wife Nobilia departed on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem (see Robert De Mont, Bouq. xiii., p. 310). In 1173, he together with his wife Nobilia and his sons, urged by the warnings of God, founded an abbey in honour of Blessed Mary, at Daoullas; and for the maintenance of its Canons, and for the remission of their sins, they bestowed, in the presence of the Bishop of Guimper, various gifts (see Daoullas Charters, Lobin, Preuves, p. 128).

Guihomar's successors continued, for many generations to take a prominent part in the History of Brittany; but, towards the close of the thirteenth century, the last of the elder line being encumbered with heavy debts, sold the Viscountship and the palatine jurisdiction attached to it, to Jean le Roux, the then reigning Duke, and they remained thenceforth annexed to the Duchy. The representation of the family devolved upon the De Leons, Seigneurs de Chateau-neuf, and, in the fourteenth century, it passed by a female heir to the great house of De Rohan, who in the year 1406 carried on a great suit with the De Vitre's for the rank of premier Peer of Brittany, in right of the "Sirerie" of Leon.

Since then, the De Rohans style themselves Princes De Leon (see Ibid. Preuves, p. 458. From Rolls in the Castle of Nantes). It is noteworthy that the armorial bearing of De Leon is a Lion, and that a cadet of the House, Seigneurs de Hacqueville, gave a Lion rampant, within a bordure, charged with annulets—the very coat, with a fesse substituted for the annulets, borne by Dillon of Drumrany.

51.—THE "DUIGNAN" FAMILY.

At p. 64, in line 26 from the top, in first col., read Totty, instead of Totly; and at No. 4, same page, read: William-Henry Duignan (living in 1883), of Rushall Hall, near Walsall, who was thrice married: first, in 1847, to Esther (died s.p. in 1848), daughter of E. Jackson, Esq., of Aldridge; secondly, in 1850, to Mary, daughter of William Minors, Esq., of Fisherwick, in Staffordshire, and by her had three children (whose names are given in p. 64); the third wife of William-Henry Duignan was Jenny, daughter of Herr J. B. Petersen, of Stockholm, whom he there married in 1868, and by whom he has three children, living in 1883 (whose names are also given in p. 64).

61.—THE "ERRILL" FAMILY.

THE Errill or Eirill family ("erle": Irish, advice) was (See p. 76) located in Westmeath before the Commonwealth period. In line 6 from the top, in first col. read: Thomas Errill, of Carbery, co. Kildare, had three sons and two daughters. The sons were—I. John, II. Lawrence, III. Rev. Edward, P.P. of Carbery, who died in 1846; I. John, who married Mary Perrin; II. Lawrence, who married and went to America; III. Rev. Edward,* who was P.P. of Carbery, and who died in 1846.

77.—THE "HART" FAMILIES.

In America.

At p. 86, No. 1, read: 1. Jeremiah Hart, of Saratoga County, State of New York, b. circa 1750; m. Abigail (Macomber) Purcell, instead of Abigail Purcell (nee Macomber).

In a "History of the Hart Family of Warminster, Bucks Co., Pennsylvania. By (General) W. W. Hart Davis. Hartford: 1867," (a Presentation copy of which the General kindly forwarded to us for our acceptance), are given the Arms of that family. In those Arms are three human hearts; while in the Arms of the "O'Hart" family is one human heart, only. But (see p. 85) the first progenitor of that family in America was John Hart, who went there from England with, or a little before, William Penn; and said John was son of Christopher and Mary Hart, of Witney, Oxfordshire, England. In Note, p. 254 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," we state that the "Hart" of England family is a junior branch of the "O'Hart" parent stock. How strangely, therefore, do the three human hearts in the Arms of the "Hart" family above mentioned verify our assertion; for, Dugdale

* Edward: There is a monument in Carbery chapel in commemoration of this Priest, on which the following is the inscription: "Underneath lie the remains of the Rev. Edward Errill, late Parish Priest of Carbery and Dunforth, which he governed for 25 years with great piety and enlightened zeal. He died on the 29th Sept., 1846, in the 72nd year of his age, sincerely regretted and beloved by all his people.

Beati Mortui qui in Domino Moriantur. Requiescat in pace. Amen."

There is also a Latin inscription to his memory at Killaderry Churchyard, in the parish of Philipstown, in which he had been previously a Curate.

(Heraldry) says : "The parent House has its arms plainer, i.e. simpler, than the branches." The "Hart" family of London has also the three human hearts in its Arms ; but, from whatever cause, the other "Hart" families in England, and those in Scotland, now have not.

83.—THE "KAVANAGH" FAMILY,

Of Kilballyowen, County Wicklow.

IN Note, p. 89, at line 5 from the bottom, read : And the three daughters of the said Darby Whelan were—1. Margaret, who m. John Redmond, and had issue ; 2. Julia, who m. ——— Kavanagh, and had issue ; 3. Catherine, who m. William Byrne (d. 1881), of Ringsend, Dublin, but formerly of Redna, and had (the issue in that Note mentioned) :

92.—THE "LANCASTER" FAMILY,

Of Barton.

AT p. 96, No. 6 on this family pedigree, read : Helewise, sole heiress, who m. Gilbert Fitz Roger, Fitz Reinfrid (living in 1195), who assumed the name de Lancaster, and had two daughters and a son William de Lancaster (d. 1291, 19 Edw. III.), the last Baron of Kendal, who m. Agnes de Brus. The two daughters were—1. Alice, who m. William de Lindsay ; 2. Helewise, who m. Peter de Brus. At No. 7, same page, read : Roger de Lancaster, of Barton and Patterdale, called "fratre meo" in William de Lancaster's charter : reputed son of Gilbert, etc.

96.—THE "LOWTHER" FAMILY.

AT p. 98, No. 2 on this family genealogy, read : Sir John, of Lowther Hall, in the co. Westmoreland, England (living in 1551), who m. Lucy, . . . and, with a daughter, Mabel, who m. Christopher Dalston, had : 3. Sir Hugh, of Lowther, who m. Dorothy, dau. of Henry, Lord Clifford, and had two sons and four daughters.

At p. 99, No. 6, read : Sir John, eldest son and heir of Sir Christopher (d. 1637), of Lowther Hall, who m. Elenor Fleming, of Rydal, and had three sons and two daughters : I. Sir John, II. Christopher, III. William ; I. Agnes, II. Frances.

114.—THE "MACSWEENEY" FAMILY.

AT p. 109, for the children of Murcadh Beag, who is No. 125 on this family pedigree, read : I. Maolmuire, II. Eoghan, III. Sean, IV. Mary, V. Murcadh, VI. Kathleen, VII. Eileen. And at No. 126, on the same genealogy, read : Murcadh (Patrick Morgan) : son of Murcadh Beag ; m. Margaret, dau. of Michael O'Donovan, etc.

127.—THE "O'BALDWIN" FAMILY.

As Henry O'Baldwin, of Mount Pleasant, who (see p. 117, and No. 12 on this family genealogy) was unm., and, on the 26th September, 1883, was drowned whilst fishing in the Arigadeen river, near Timoleague, co. Cork, his brother James O'Baldwin is now (1883) the head of that family, and is known as The O'Baldwin.

128.—THE "O'BRIEN" FAMILY,

Barons and Earls of Inchiquin.

At p. 118, and the second son of Sir Edward, of Dromoland, who is No. 130 on this family genealogy, read: II. William Smith O'Brien, M.P. (born 17th October, 1803; died 18th June, 1864), the Wallace of his country, who, on the 19th September, 1832, married Lucy-Caroline (died 13th June, 1861), eldest daughter of Joseph Gabbett, Esq., of Limerick, and, besides a daughter, Charlotte-Grace (born 25th September, 1846), who is (in 1883) the good and philanthropic Miss C. G. O'Brien, of Emigration fame in Ireland, had Edward-William, J.P. (born 23rd January, 1837), of Cahirmoyle, living in 1883.

136.—THE "O'BYRNE" FAMILY,

Of Ballycapple, County Wicklow.

At p. 136, commencing at 9th line from the top, in the first col., read: I. James O'Byrne, of Carlow. II. Garrett-Michael O'Byrne, M.P. for the co. Wexford; etc. III. John O'Kennedy O'Byrne, the third son, who wrote "The O'Byrnes, Chieftains of Wicklow," and contributed several articles and sketches to the Press; he married Monica-Cecilia, daughter of Mr. Kennedy, author of, etc. IV. William-Andrew. V. Sarah (in Religion "Mother Mary Chrysostom"), Rectress of the Sisters of Charity Convent, Kilkenny. VI. Anne, married to Joseph Anderson, of Dublin. VII. Bride-Anna. VIII. Julia-Mary-Ellen, who was married to James J. Fowler, of London.

Catherine: third daughter of Garrett-Michael O'Byrne, of Ballycapple, m. James Kinsella; their daughter "Mother Mary Stanislaus" is Abbess of St. Clare's Convent, Harold's Cross, Dublin.

And in line 26, from the top, in 2nd col. of p. 136, read Anna-Frances (instead of Anna-Mary), unm. in 1883.

147.—THE "O'HARA" FAMILY,

Of Crebilly, County Antrim.

In pp. 142-143 of this Volume we were able to bring this family genealogy down to No. 125, Brian (or Bernard) O'Hara, living in 1798. We have since ascertained that the said Brian was the father of Patrick (d. 1st August, 1858), who was the father of William J. O'Hara, of Montreal, Canada, living in 1884.

153.—THE "O'KELLY" FAMILY.

Of Callagh, County Galway.

THE genealogy of this family which we give in p. 147, we extracted from the MS. Volume F. 3, 27, deposited in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin. But that family seat, while spelled "Callagh," in that Volume, has been modernized Gallagh; and is identical with the seat of Mr. O'Kelly, J.P., of "Gallagh," near Tuam. (See, in Thom's Directory for 1882, the List of Magistrates in the county Galway.)

164.—THE "OULAHAN" FAMILY.

THE Arms of this family, which is a modern form of Hoolahan or Houlahan (Irish: O'h-Uallachain), of Siol Anmchadha, are—Arms: Azure, two lions, argent, supporting a Castle of four turrets of the second, or., in the centre chief point a cross gu. in base two crescents* argent, and in chief three annulets gules. Crest:† A demi-savage, handcuffed.

At p. 247, in line 11 from the bottom, read and part of the Counties of Mayo and Sligo, instead of "part of the counties of Leitrim and Sligo."

176.—THE "PURCELL" FAMILY,

Of Esker, County Kilkenny.

AT p. 486 of the Third Edition of our "IRISH PEDIGREES," we give the genealogy of the "Purcell" family, Barons of Loughmoe, in the county Tipperary, Ireland; and, in pp. 164-169 of this Volume, the genealogy of "Purcell" of Esker and Fantrath, co. Kilkenny, and of Croagh, co. Limerick. Here we give a sketch of

THE "PURCELL" FAMILY, IN ENGLAND:

The successor of Sir Hugh Porcel, who came to England with William the Conqueror, was Dyve Purcell, who, about 1120, received a grant of the manor of Catshill, Surrey, from King Henry I. (see Testa de Neville, p. 225). He married a daughter of Nigel de Broc, a famous Justiciar of the time. In 1129-30, his elder son Geoffrey paid his relief for his father's land (see Hunter's Pipe Roll, 31, K. H. I., pp. 50 and 151), and obtained the signal favour of a royal remission of the Dane-Geld, then due by him.

* Crescents: The "crescent" is the distinctive mark of the second branch of a family. In this case "O'Madden" (a branch of "O'Kelly" of Hy-Maine, Ireland,) is the head family.

† Crest: See "Fairbairn's Crests," Plate 10. O'Dugan, in his Topography, says: "A rough fettering lord of distinguished valour is O'h-Uallachain." "O'Kelly" of Hy-Maine has this crest; and so have "O'Kelly," "Hollyland," and "Holyland," in England: a fact which would go to prove that "Hollyland" and "Holyland" are Houlahan disguised; and that "O'Kelly," of England, is a branch of "O'Kelly" of Hy-Maine. For another crest of "O'Kelly" of Hy-Maine, see Burke's "General Armory."

The original Charter of Confirmation of his lands and Court Office, subsequently issued by King Stephen, is still extant among the archives of the Duke of Westminster, at Eaton. He granted (see T. de N., p. 128,) a hide of land in the manor of Windsore, the earliest plot of ground held by the family in England, to the abbey of Reading; was shorn a monk in that House, and there died. The land was sold by King James I. to the Corporation of Windsore, and is now part of the town property. His brother and heir, Ranulph or Ralf, assumed his mother's name of De Broc, apparently in 1156; as in the Pipe Roll of that year for Hampshire he is styled De Broc, and in that for Surrey he is still called Purcell (see Hunter's Pipe Roll, K. H. II., pp. 12, 55, 172). By the former name he is known in history, being one of the most eminent men of the day. He and his brother were arch-enemies of St. Thomas of Canterbury, and it was from his castle of Saltwood that Henry's emissaries sallied forth to do their deed of blood. A Charter of Confirmation by that King (see Inspeximus in Cart. Rot. K. John, an. sept.), styling him son of Dyve Purcell, contains a long list of his acquisitions; among others his maternal uncle Wido de Broc's gift of the manor of Angmar, Sussex, the grant of which was possibly the occasion of his assuming that name. The king gave him a wealthy Shropshire heiress for his wife, but he left no male issue at his death in 1187. His barony was divided amongst five daughters or their issue, and was the subject of prolonged litigation (see Eyton's Hist. of Shropshire). Neither had his nephew Robert, who as Justiciar, is frequently mentioned in the Public Records, any male succession; he came to be represented by the De Loges and the Petos (see Test. de N., p. 87).

The male representation then passed to the family of the lords of Newton-Purcell, Oxon.; and Sharesnull, Staffordshire. Ralph, the founder of this line, inherited those manors and others in Normandy, near Rouen, together with the Court Office (viz.: Usher of the King's Chamber), from his maternal uncle, Robert Burnell, who was living in 1129-30, and enjoyed the Royal favour shown by the remission of the Dane-Geld (see Pipe Roll, K. H. II., pp. 5 and 76). About 1154, a Charter of Confirmation of his uncle's lands and office passed attested, among others, by St. Thomas à Beckett, the Chancellor (see Rymer's Fœdera, V. I., p. 43). About 1160, he made a grant of land in Normandy to the Abbey of the Holy Trinity, Rouen (see Archives of Normandy in the Prefecture, Rouen). He must have lived to a great age, as he obtained another confirmation under payment from King John, A.D. 1200 (see Harly Oblate Rolls, A.D. 1200, p. 83). He was the Patriarch of a numerous tribe in England and Ireland; one of his sons being Hugh, who, in 1171, went to Ireland, and became the Founder of the House of Purcell in that country. His heirs in name and blood continued in Oxfordshire till the sixteenth century; the most note-worthy being Sir Otwell Purcell, who is recorded in the Rolls of Parliament as insisting upon redress of grievances as Knight of the Shire for Oxon.

A Cadet, Roger Purcell, by a fortunate marriage planted the name in Shropshire at the close of the twelfth century; from whom sprang two lines, of Winsbury and of Norbury, which lasted till the seventeenth century. The earlier descents are given in full by Eyton; the later, in the Herald's Visitations. From an offshoot of the latter descended the famous musician, whose career is well known. His brother, like him a page in the Court of Charles II., became a Colonel in the army, and took part in a famous exploit—the storming of Gibraltar. He threw up his commission on the succession of the House of Hanover, and some years after died suddenly at Lord Abingdon's house in Berkshire.

In some counties of England the name still lingers among the humbler classes.

231.—THE “VERNON” FAMILY,

Of Ballyhugh, County Cavan.

At page 225, in line 8, first col., read Ballyhugh instead of “Ballyhurgh.”

THE Opinions of some of the foregoing Personages on IRISH PEDIGREES are given at the end of the Third Edition of that Work. The following Letters from others of them have been received by the Author since that Work was published :

3.—ALFONSO, King of Spain.

Madrid, 18th March, 1882.

SIR,

Having had the honour of delivering to His Majesty King Alfonso the copy of your "Irish Pedigrees," which accompanied your letter dated March 6th, His Majesty has graciously ordered me to thank you most expressively in His name.

I hear, Sir, that the book above mentioned contains, among others, the lineal descent of my own family, which is of Irish origin. You will, consequently, not be surprised at my asking you to be so kind as to send me a copy for myself, and to let me know the amount which is due to you for it.

Believe me, Sir, yours most truly,

COUNT MORPHY.

5.—PRESIDENT ARTHUR, United States, America.

Executive Mansion, Washington,
January 11th, 1882.

DEAR SIR,

Your letter of the 30th of November to the President, together with the copy of your book on "Irish Pedigrees" which you kindly sent him, have been received ; and he desires me to thank you for your courtesy, which should have been acknowledged sooner.

Yours very respectfully,

THO. J. PHILLIPS,
Secretary.

10—The Right Honourable JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN, M.P.

Highbury, Moor Green.
Birmingham, 5th February, 1883.

SIR,

I beg to acknowledge your letter of the 2nd instant ; and I have to thank you for your courtesy in sending me a copy of your interesting work on Irish Pedigrees.

Believe me, yours very faithfully,

J. CHAMBERLAIN.

12.—His Grace THE MOST REV. DR. CROKE, Catholic Archbishop of Cashel.

The Palace, Thurles, 12th December, 1881.

DEAR MR. O'HART,

Allow me to thank you very sincerely for the beautiful copy of "Irish Pedigrees," which you were good enough to have forwarded to my address; and I pray you to believe me to be,

Your very faithful Servant,

✠ T. W. CROKE, *Archbp.*15.—WILLIAM H. EGLE, Esq., M.A., M.D., Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, U.S.A.

MY DEAR SIR,

I am in receipt of a copy of "The Irish Pedigrees," and am delighted with the Volume. What an immense undertaking! I really wonder at your patience in research; I have so frequently been disappointed in historical and genealogical works. But with yours I have been highly gratified; and I do sincerely hope that your research, your zeal, and your antiquarian industry may receive the reward you justly merit. . . . I intended simply to acknowledge the receipt of your valuable work, and to say to you how interesting it is and will be to me for reference in my genealogical researches.

With very kind wishes,

I remain, sincerely yours,

WILLIAM H. EGLE, M.D.,

*Editor of "Notes and Queries."*16.—Sir SAMUEL FERGUSON, LL.D., Q.C., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland.

Public Record Office, Ireland,

12th December, 1881.

DEAR SIR,

I am much obliged for the handsome volume you have been good enough to send me. It contains a great variety of interesting matter, and does much credit to your industry.

Very faithfully yours,

SAML. FERGUSON.

42.—His Eminence CARDINAL MACCABE.

4, Rutland Square, East,

Dublin, 12th Jan., 1882.

MY DEAR SIR,

I must apologise for a mistake, in consequence of which, your letter and the book of Irish Pedigrees you sent me some time ago, have remained so long without being acknowledged.

Will you kindly send me a second copy, and let me know the price of the book.

Faithfully yours,

✠ E. MACCABE.

43.—His Grace THE MOST REV. DR. MACEVILLY, Catholic Archbishop of Tuam.

Tuam, 19th November, 1883.

MY DEAR SIR,

Will you excuse the delay unavoidable on my part in acknowledging your kind letter. I beg to thank you most sincerely for the copy of your valuable Book on Irish Pedigrees, which reached me in due course. I have read it here and there, and like it very much. I shall, please God, when I have some spare time, read it through. I am sure it will be a great treat,

Very faithfully yours,

✠ JOHN MACEVILLY.

45.—THOMAS NEDLEY, Esq., M.D.

4, Cavendish Row,
Dublin, 4th April, 1882.

DEAR MR. O'HART,

I thank you most heartily for your presentation copy of your charming and learned Book of Irish Pedigrees. Years ago I read the first edition with pleasure and intellectual profit; but the stores it contains of new historic, biographic, and archæologic lore will be new delightful food for many a day to come.

With deep gratitude, believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
THOMAS NEDLEY.

47.—JOHN NOLAN, Esq., Edinburgh.

13, Randolph Crescent,
Edinburgh, 27th November, 1883.

MY DEAR MR. O'HART,

Will you do me the favour to accept the enclosed in addition to my former subscription. If I were a man of means it would be fifty times as much. If there be a man who bears an Irish name and fails to recognise the Claim the Author of "Irish Pedigrees" has upon his gratitude and generosity, all I can say is that I am sorry for his Patriotism! For your labours, generations yet unborn will be your debtors; for your "Pedigrees" have filled a vacuum in Irish Literature.

I am, my dear Mr. O'Hart,
Yours faithfully,
JOHN NOLAN.

48.—His Grace THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

Norfolk House, St. James's Square, S.W.,
London, 10th December, 1881.

MY DEAR SIR,

I beg to thank you very much indeed for your kind present just received. It is very good of you to think of sending me your Book, and I am very much obliged to you.

Believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
JOHN O'HART, Esq. NORFOLK.

55.—FREDERICK RYDING, Esq., L.D.S., R.C.S.E.

9, Kildare Street,
Dublin, 31st May, 1883.

DEAR MR. O'HART,

I received your valuable and esteemed gift with great pleasure.

Your Book supplies in my mind one of the greatest wants of modern times, historically speaking; for what is the history of a nation without its people.

Again thanking you for your kind present,

I remain, very truly yours,
F. RYDING.

59.—STEPHEN TUCKER, Esq., Somerset Herald.

Herald's Office, E.C.,
London, 15th Feb., 1884.

DEAR SIR,

I beg you to accept my best thanks for the copy of your interesting and curious Book on Irish Pedigrees.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,
STEPHEN TUCKER,
Somerset Herald,

61.—LORD WAVENEY.

The Castle, Ballymena,
Co. Antrim, 5th Jan., 1884.

DEAR MR. O'HART,

Pray accept my best thanks for your valuable volume on Irish Pedigrees, which has just reached me. But I have had time to look through the work sufficiently to observe the general plan; and am much struck with the minute and doubtless accurate research which the "Family Stems" exhibit. The portion which will require disentanglement is doubtless where the threads of native, invading, and settler races became collected into warp and woof. I do not observe, or perhaps have rather overlooked, notice of the 17th century influx from Scotland, and from independent settlers* from England, who preceded or accompanied in chronological sequence the Jacobean Corporations. I think I am fortunate in agreement with you that the "Annals of the Four Masters" are valuable in their simplicity. . . . I observe as to the occupation of Ireland you simplify Marcus Keane's and Miss Stokes' theory; but who built "Dun Aengus"? I congratulate you on your great work, which is like a 'lode' in our Irish History.

I am, dear Mr. O'Hart,

Your faithful and obliged,
WAVENEY.

1. BALLINA HERALD : . . . "The work before us supplies for Irish families, of both high and low degree, of Irish and English descent, what such books as Sir Bernard Burke's 'Landed Gentry' supplies for the nobility and gentry of the United Kingdom; and, in so far, has a broader foundation, regarded as exclusively Irish, and should therefore command a wider circulation and a deeper appreciation in this country. It is certainly a wonderful compilation, and to read through its 800 pages would be to acquire a knowledge of the Irish nation from the remotest periods down through successive generations to the present time not to be obtained from any other publication, or, perhaps, from any collection of books. Mr. O'Hart is able even to trace back the genealogy of our Queen to the Royal Stem of Ireland; and his method of going back, both with Royal and noble, as well as ordinary families, appears to be very complete and satisfactory. . . . Mr. O'Hart, with a summary of the ancient history of the country, gives an account of its ancient literature, its antiquities, etc.; and his book, on the whole, is one of most surpassing interest, which every Irishman of any education should have in his house for instruction and reference."

2. CATHOLIC TIMES: "We have to thank Mr. O'Hart for a copy of the third edition of his 'Irish Pedigrees'. . . . It is not for us to pass a confident opinion upon the general accuracy of the contents, since the subject requires enormous study and patient research; but the whole book teems with evidences that Mr. O'Hart has laboured in the field of Irish genealogy with a thoroughness never even dreamt of by any other investigator of family stems. . . . Apart from the family ties, the work is replete with most interesting details on Irish history and customs; and there is an ingenious essay* which must be of some concern to philologists as well as to genealogists. Mr. O'Hart will here find it difficult to get many learned men to fall in with his views; but he has at all events the merit of stating his convictions candidly, and sustaining them by an elaborate chain of reasoning."

3. CONNAUGHT TELEGRAPH: ". . . . Mr. O'Hart's 'Irish Pedigrees' is a noble contribution to the History of Ireland, a work of marvellous research and industry, and well merits a place in the libraries of the children of the Gael—wherever they have found a home:

" From snow-clad lands,
To tropical sands,
All the world around."

4. DERRY JOURNAL: "'Irish Pedigrees'; Third Edition. In this valuable and handsome Edition Mr. O'Hart gives the public a revised and enlarged issue of his excellent work of the same name, published in two volumes, and of which two series have already been disposed of. We have, in the first place, to congratulate the learned author on his taste and judgment in bringing out his inestimable 'Pedigrees' in one volume, and we must, in the second place, express our gratification at the many instructive additions found in this Third Edition. Mr. O'Hart, by his indefatigable and well-directed researches into the arcana of Irish history, has succeeded in illuminating the genealogical pages of our country's records by much precious information. As we said when first reviewing 'Irish Pedigrees,' it fills a space which had ever previously been unoccupied: if this was true then, and it was, it is doubly so now, when one examines the numerous and interesting enlargements the present Edition contains. It puts it too indistinctly and modestly for Mr. O'Hart to term his compilation, 'The Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation': such a title in no way gives even an approximate notion of the quantity of historical, geographical, topographical, and genealogical details which he has collected, with what must have been almost inexhaustible patience and perseverance. What increases, moreover, the intrinsic worth of 'Irish Pedigrees' is, that its prudent author completely avoids the shoals and sandbanks of politics or party—he steers straight for the goal he set out to reach, namely, the origin of the surnames of the Irish nation, and this desideratum he has accomplished with a rare degree of success and ability. It is extraordinary how many names Mr. O'Hart shows are of Irish origin, and which it is generally believed are from a very different source. . . . Indeed, it may be said generally that Mr. O'Hart has produced such a regular cyclopedia of Irish genealogy, that it is more suitable for constant reference or occasional study, than for a single reading or even a dozen readings; and is, consequently, an indispensability in every library whose owner desires to be conversant with the history of Ireland. . . . The pages headed, 'Notes on the Duration of Man's Existence upon the Earth,' are a volume in themselves, and well merit attentive perusal. On the whole, 'Irish Pedigrees' is a singularly comprehensive and excellent volume; one which we hope will speedily find its way into every literary household."

5. DUBLIN EVENING MAIL: "The learned and indefatigable author of this handsome and interesting volume has good reason to congratulate himself on the strikingly successful result of his genealogical and antiquarian researches. A vast amount of valuable historical information connected with Ireland and Irishmen has been carefully and faithfully compiled and arranged by a gentleman who has manifestly taken the greatest pains with his literary work, and devoted the utmost attention and anxiety to the critical examination and perusal of the many ancient records and manuscripts so necessary for the completeness and comprehensiveness of a third edition of this popular and admirable publication. The numerous notes appended, in explanation of the unavoidable difficulties to be met with, almost at every step, in tracing lineal descents, and deducing relationships from ancient family stems, are evidence of the extensive reading and sound scholarship of the author; while philological and archæological investigations afford a lasting and enjoyable interest to every true student of history. The very copious appendix is not the least attractive portion of the volume, the information contained in it being in the highest degree valuable and at the same time excellently compiled from authentic sources, not easy of access to the ordinary reader."

6. DUBLIN NATION: "As we have already reviewed at length the fruits of Mr. O'Hart's laborious investigations in the field of Irish genealogy, we need not now go into the merits of his valuable work on that subject. Suffice it on that score to say that under one cover, instead of two, as before, this third edition contains a vast mass of information respecting the ancestry of hundreds, not only of Milesian but of Anglo-Irish and Anglo-Norman families that settled in Ireland since the English invasion. Mr. O'Hart, after the previous publication, continued his researches, and, in consequence, has been enabled to make some corrections and insert some dates in the present issue. From these researches, also, he has derived, amongst other interesting pieces of genealogical lore, a further list of old Irish family names, with the forms into which they have either been anglicised or modernized. The Appendix has been enriched with valuable material for the purposes of the historian. For instance, it contains a list of King William and Queen Mary's forces in Ireland, in 1690, which the compiler dug up amongst the MSS. in Trinity College Library. There is also a list of all, in whose hands lay the civil power of our island, from the Lords of the Treasury to the sheriffs, at the outbreak of the Revolution of 1688. Again, there is a list of the Irish Brigade in the service of France; a list of the Irish Legion which served under the First Napoleon; a list of Irish endowments in Austria; another of Irishmen who served or are serving in that empire, compiled from old and modern army records; another of Irishmen who served in the army of Spain; and another of persons of Irish origin now enjoying honours and emoluments in that country. The value of these to the writer of history or biography will be at once apparent. The Appendix, in short, is a repertory of recondite learning on topics connected in one way or another with Irish genealogy. We should not omit to notice, that besides the table of contents, the volume contains a copious general index, and an equally copious index to surnames, which make reference easy and convenient. The book has been well printed, and is handsomely bound in cloth. We congratulate Mr. O'Hart on its having reached a third edition, and trust that its success with the Irish public may be as great as it deserves."

7. DURHAM CHRONICLE: "To the Scotch and the English genealogical student this work is invaluable. The author must have had considerable patience and industry to have amassed such a vast amount of genealogical information. The volume contains a very learned preface, and an essay on the 'Duration of Man's Existence upon the Earth.' It further contains a very interesting appendix, and a list of the Cromwellian Settlers in Ireland."

8. GALWAY VINDICATOR: " 'Irish Pedigrees; or, the Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation.' The title of this learned and meritorious work sufficiently explains its object, which has been wrought out with skilful arrangement, with critical judgment, and with a wonderful fullness of scope. Six years ago the first series issued from the Press, and it was at once hailed as a valuable addition to Irish Literature. In 1878, when the second (and concluding) series appeared, it was even more highly appreciated; and the work has since been and shall ever be recognised as a standard book of reference upon all questions connected with Irish genealogies. The first and second series having each passed through two editions, the third edition has recently been published: one of its particular features being that the two series are compiled in one volume, 'the better to preserve under one cover,' as the author tells us, 'the Milesian Celtic genealogies which Providence brought within my reach, together with the pedigrees of some Anglo-Irish and Anglo-Norman families that settled in Ireland since the English invasion.' When we received the first and second volumes, we noticed them respectively in this column, and freely expressed our surprise and admiration of the work, which teems with evidence that Mr. O'Hart has laboured in the field of genealogical research with a thoroughness never even dreamt of by any investigator of family items. As we pass from name to name we marvel at the care, precision, and fullness of information—plain to the most untutored mind. Ancient Irish families and others more recently introduced by the Anglo-Norman invasion are traced with diligent skill; and the relations of sept to sept most carefully demonstrated whenever necessary. . . . Apart from the family ties the work is replete with most interesting details on Irish history and customs, the leading features of which are brought under the reader's notice in the Index, which is the most perfect we have ever seen. . . . There is also a learned essay on 'The Duration of Man's Existence upon the Earth,' in which the Creation is treated in a clever, vigorous, and exhaustive manner. Holy Scripture and Geological Facts are in that essay opportunely and judiciously introduced; and by a delicate yet forcible chain of reasoning it is clearly shown 'that nothing could be more absolutely coincident with the Genesis account of the Creation than are the discoveries of Geology.' Then follow almost innumerable records of descent, elaborate and faithful, constituting a perfect mine of genealogical and historical knowledge, and evincing most unmistakably unceasing industry. Almost every page is intensely interesting, especially to the old Irish and Anglo-Irish families whose genealogies are traced in the work; and the wonder is how one mind could within a life-time accomplish such a herculean task of intellectual labour. With consummate care Mr. O'Hart gives the families descended from each of the four stems of the Celtic race, in Ireland, namely: those descended from Heber, Ir, Heremon—the three sons of Milesius who left any issue; and of Ithe, the uncle of Milesius. And we observe that the MacCarthy Mor family is the stem of the House of Heber; the O'Farrell family, the stem of the House of Ir; the Coffey (of Munster) family, the stem of the House of Ithe; and the author's own family, of which he himself is the present lineal representative, is the stem of the House of Heremon. . . . The Appendix is in itself a volume, brimful of varied knowledge, and studded with extracts from ancient manuscripts, state papers, public records, and the choicest writings of some of the greatest minds and noblest Irishmen ever blessed by God or honoured by their country. . . . It appears to us that Mr. O'Hart has done everything and left nothing undone that could be brought to bear upon the elucidation and illustration of so great and important a subject. The indefatigable industry which was required in order to produce such a book can be more easily imagined than realized; but no one can hesitate to believe that it was to Mr. O'Hart 'a labour of love' to write his wonderful book. Yet, however deep his scholarship, however untiring his energies, however great his aptitude or genius, he never could have done so had he not been impelled by that high-souled patriotism which is next in purity and intensity to that burning love which, we are told, heroic souls have for God."

9. THE HARRISBURG (PA., U.S.A.) DAILY TELEGRAPH: "There has just come into our hands one of the most important genealogical works we have ever had the pleasure of examining. It is entitled 'Irish Pedigrees, or the Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation, by John O'Hart, Q.U.I., F.R.H.S., Dublin, 1881.' It is the first history of Irish families that has ever been published, excepting those which relate to the Peerage of Great Britain. The learned author has drawn from all legitimate sources, and especially from the 'Annals of the Kingdom of Ireland by the Four Masters,' a work of the seventeenth century ; and from private or family records, which have been kept for generations—besides the vast treasury of Trinity College Library and that of the Royal Irish Academy. . . . Pennsylvania descendants of the Scotch-Irish will find many interesting facts in the pages of that work, which contains pedigrees of the Irish nation from Adam down to Milesius of Spain, and from Milesius through all the Ancient Irish families from Heber, Ir, Ithe, and Heremon ; followed by one hundred pages of pedigrees of the Anglo-Irish, Scotch-Irish, and Anglo-Norman families of Ireland. A large portion of the work is devoted to the ancient Irish clans, the new settlers, and the modern nobility of each county."

10. LIVERPOOL DAILY POST: "'Irish Pedigrees.' The curiosities of antiquarian research afford no more interesting nor, perhaps, it may be said, amusing subject-matter than the records of the descent of families. . . . The labour undergone by Mr. O'Hart in ascertaining the identity of living persons alone must have been simply herculean."

11. MONTREAL POST: "'O'Hart's Irish Pedigrees.' The third edition of this celebrated work, so long expected, has at length been given to the world, by the author, John O'Hart, of Ringsend, Dublin. It is complete and exhaustive, containing, as it does, over eight hundred pages of matter interesting to the millions of the Irish race scattered over the surface of the earth, whether descendants of the sea-divided Gael, the Dane, the Norman, or the Anglo-Saxon ; for, Mr. O'Hart, as a true genealogist and faithful chronicler, has made no distinction as regards race or creed, but has written a true history of Irish names from the beginning to the present day. And the work is not intended altogether for the benefit of the present aristocracy, whether Milesian or Anglo-Irish. It was said by Curran that if the descendants of the real Irish patricians were sought for, they would be found either in the courts or camps of Europe, or working in the coal quays of Great Britain and Ireland But the race being full of vitality, this sort of thing could last only for a season. The men in Ireland have nearly recovered themselves, and their scattered brethren are taking places to which they are entitled by reason of their blood and their genius. It is true they have not yet found their proper level, but they will find it, and at all events they have advanced far enough to realize the value of 'Irish Pedigrees,' compiled for their benefit and information by one of the ancient race. Hence, this is the time for the appearance of the volume ; as we have the hour and the man, the author and his patrons, which latter are the Irish people at home and abroad."

12. MUNSTER NEWS: "'O'Hart's Irish Pedigrees' ; third edition. This invaluable national work is now published in one volume ; and, in its 850 pages of beautiful letter-press, it contains a wealth of information which has no equal in the historical literature of this country. It is not alone that it comprehends the Milesian Celtic genealogies, and the pedigrees of many English, Anglo-Irish, and Anglo-Norman families, bearing upon those of this country, but it embraces information on countless other subjects of the utmost interest. Besides all this, any of our countrymen who take up the volume to seek for the 'stem' of his own family, is delighted in finding the genealogy fully and plainly set out ; and, in addition, something in almost every other page he turns over to rivet his attention and elicit his admiration for the learned and industrious author. When one looks through the elaborate work, and learns from it—as he could not learn so well from any other—the history of the Irish race, what they were before the heel of a foreign foe was set upon them, he finds revealed a history which no Irishman can read without feelings of pride, accompanied by gratitude, to the man who has done so much to preserve its records. After the most superficial perusal of this admirable work, it is easy to understand whence the Irish have derived that tenacious love of country—that stubborn resistance to the yoke of oppression, which, no matter how often overcome, springs up anew, and stands unconquered and unconquerable. The determined spirit which exists to-day was that which was manifested for so many hundreds of years by their ancestors, whose names and pedigrees are by Mr. O'Hart traced down for ages, even to this day. Although there is improvement in the imperial policy which destroyed so many of the old families of the land, yet it is one which fails to recognize the real character of the people who are sought to be reconciled ; and it is fighting, as of yore, against the septs and the clans, which the modern organizations that are banned and riven represent under other titles. The records are so suggestive—so pregnant with information, that one feels his mind unconsciously running back over this and the other genealogical track, and halting at this event and that, to find in their consideration how history repeats itself after long intervals. Does any Irishman want to know from what branch of the early Irish race he is descended—provided he is of the Milesian stock, he will find his pedigree traced step by step, perhaps down to the very year that has just terminated. Does he wish to trace the genealogies of the sanctified and the learned, or to become acquainted with the “Glories of Brian the Brave,” or the time of Royal Tara, he will find the facts in this history, reliably, learnedly, and often eloquently set out The grand literary works of the Irish Monks are detailed and described ; the Brehon laws, and those of the fanistry, and most other points in the national history, in relation to the laws and customs of the country, are elucidated in this important volume. Of the authenticity of the information there can be no doubt ; for Mr. O’Hart has had recourse to the vast stores of historical records which exist in this country and elsewhere, notwithstanding the priceless literary treasure destroyed by Cromwellian and other spoliators. He has manifestly been at infinite pains to make his book perfect—to render it a great national work, and he has succeeded. His ‘Irish Pedigrees’ ought to be in every household—not as a book of reference to be laid up on the library shelves and taken down occasionally, but a volume for daily use ; to be used in teaching the young, and the old, too, that they have a history—a grand history, one which they should study now even more than before.”

13. NENAGH GUARDIAN : “We have been favoured with a copy of the third and much enlarged Edition of ‘Irish Pedigrees’—that most valuable contribution to Irish history, by Mr. John O’Hart, Q.U.I. No better record could be offered as a book of reference to the Irish student ; for it is a key that will open up to him the hitherto sealed store-house of genealogical and historic knowledge appertaining to this country in those far distant days, centuries before we were born. We hail with much pleasure the guidance of such a light to the long-buried treasures of the historical literature of Ireland. This book will be hereafter a noble monument of crowning glory to the memory of Mr. O’Hart ; showing his love for Irish literature, his extraordinary research, and indefatigable patience. . . This work must have been the ‘dream of his earliest love.’”

14. NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE CHRONICLE : “‘Irish Pedigrees.’ The Welshman, who, in writing an account of the history of his family, said in the middle of his book, ‘About this time the world wass porn,’ indulged in a safe boast. No one could say that the world was not born at that time ; and though the admission would be but a negative one, yet the Welshman might safely accept it as positive evidence of the antiquity of a family that flourished so very many centuries before creation. Mr. O’Hart deals with his subject more accurately. Moreover, he brings such a wealth of material and learning to bear upon his theme that his book is sure to be read with the liveliest interest, even by people who do not in the least care about pedigrees. He rightly considers genealogy to be an integral portion of history, and expresses his surprise that Irish historians should have neglected this elemental feature in treating of a nation’s growth. Some idea of the amount of reading covered by this volume may be had by looking into the preface to the first series, where Mr. O’Hart acknowledges his indebtedness to the writers he has examined. . . It would require almost as much learning as the author himself possesses to follow him, in such a manner as to satisfy the readers of this notice, through the convolutions and intricacies of his numerous historical surveys. His ‘Notes on the Duration of Man’s Existence upon the Earth’ carry us into the very beginning of things, and we read, if not with uniform conviction, at least with admiration of the writer’s learned ingenuity, the theories which he associates with the ante-Noetic and post-Abrahamic successions. There can be nothing more certain, however, than that the Irish people are the most ancient race in the world, not excepting the Jews, since these latter do not seek to carry their origin far beyond Moses ; whereas, as Mr. O'Hart indisputably proves, the Irish are the descendants of Japhet. . . The greater portion of the volume is occupied with Irish pedigrees. An inspection of the Index would make us believe that there is not an Irish name of the least consequence omitted. . . The contents of the work are singularly varied, and yet handled very harmoniously. They include several learned prefaces ; notes on pre-historic times ; an account of ancient proper names, which everybody interested in Irish history should read ; Irish affixes (adfixes) ; an account of the stem of the Irish nation from Adam to Milesius ; a roll of Irish kings, with particulars of the chief Irish families in Munster, Ulster, ancient Meath, Leinster, and Connaught. Supplementing all this is a copious Appendix dealing with ancient church property, ancient Irish literature, tributes, annals, civil wars, witchcraft, etc., in all 120 subjects. The book is eminently worthy of high praise. Mr. O'Hart has discharged an exceedingly laborious duty with grace, candour, and entire freedom from that species of enthusiasm which when imported into works of this description usually proves fatal to them. The circumstance of the volume having already reached its third edition is sufficient proof of the favour with which it has been received."

15. NEW YORK HERALD : "Mr. John O'Hart, who has for years past been known to genealogical literature by the first and second volumes of his 'Irish Pedigrees,' has now combined them, with many important additions, in a third edition of 800 pages octavo. It must not be imagined by the average reader that this book relates solely to the ancient Celtic sept, whose genealogies are carried back to exceedingly remote periods ; for, it takes particular note of the various 'settlements' of Ireland from its invasion by the Danes down to the Cromwellian parcelling out of confiscated lands. The Danes were never wholly driven out of Ireland, but in many cases their descendants adopted Irish tribal surnames ; and Danish *Mac*s are therefore quite plentiful. The same is true of the Norman invaders from England. We cannot give space to the details of the genealogies ; but, where the ancient records leave off, much research has been needed to bring the families down to modern times. Many of the families are brought down to their living representatives in Spain, France, the United States, and Australia. A glance over the book conveys clearly an idea of the present constituents of the Irish nation. The appendix, which is full of curious facts bearing on Irish history, will be found interesting to others besides Irishmen."

16. NEW YORK SUN : . . . "It is impossible to understand mediæval, or, for that matter, modern Irish history, unless the distinction made by English legislation between the so-called English Pale and the rest of Ireland is constantly borne in mind. The Irish who dwelt within the Pale and acknowledged English authority were considered as subjects, and had, to a certain extent, the protection of English laws ; but all the Irish outside the Pale were described in legal documents as 'Irish enemies,' whom it was no felony to kill even in time of peace. It appears, indeed, from the testimony of Sir John Davies, that, if an Englishman killed one of the native Irish living outside of the Pale, he was fined only a mark. The author has collected in his appendices some curious statistics relating to those successive emigrations by which so much of the best blood and brain of Ireland was transferred to the military or civil service of continental States. The Abbé MacGeoghagan affirms that his researches in the French War Office show that from the arrival of the Irish troops in France, after the fall of Limerick in 1691, up to the year 1745 (when the battle of Fontenoy was transformed at the last moment by Irish valour from a defeat into a victory), more than four hundred and fifty thousand Irishmen died in the service of France. Mr. O'Hart gives a partial but impressive list of some hundreds who held commissions, and in many instances attained high rank in the French army under the ancien régime. He also enumerates officers in the so-called Irish Legion which Napoleon, when First Consul, ordered to be made up of Irish exiles or sons of Irishmen born in France. One of these became Lieutenant-General MacMahon, whose son (living in 1883) was the late President of the French Republic. Equally striking is the list of Irishmen who served in Austria, among whom no less than seventeen became Field Marshals, and many of them Knights of the Golden Fleece. The fullest list, however, of distinguished Irish emigrants compiled by Mr. O'Hart is the catalogue of Irishmen who held commissions in the Spanish army, in which, from the beginning of the eighteenth century, there were no less than eight Irish regiments. One of these Irishmen was the famous Marshal O'Donnell; and it is not generally known that General Prim was another."

17. THE NEW ZEALAND GLOBE: "To Irishmen, and those of Irish descent, and indeed to all students of Celtic history, O'Hart's 'Irish Pedigrees' must prove of deep interest. It is a monument of persevering industry and of learned research, and is perhaps the most complete work of its kind ever published . . . One curious page attracts our attention; it is the pedigree of Her Majesty the Queen, showing her descent from the 'Royal Stem of Ireland' up to Adam. Beginning at the preface and ending with the appendix, we have a volume of much value. Mr. O'Hart has produced a book out of the beaten track; one which we hope will be appreciated in such a way as to render him substantial reward."

18. PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER: "'Irish Pedigrees; or, the Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation,' by John O'Hart, Q.U.I., Dublin, 1881. Third Edition. The previous editions of this work have been much improved, and enlarged to an octavo with superior arrangement; and it contains so many of the names which daily surround us and are before our eyes, that one might suppose this city and country to be only a continuation of Ireland. In the preface and dedication to Sir Bernard Burke, who fully indorses the correctness of it, there is a large amount of very interesting information as to the origin and early settlement of the island, and the manner in which such remote records have been preserved; the Milesian dynasty having existed from B.C. 1698 to A.D. 1172, or during a period of 2870 years. We have in our midst so many descendants of the old families of Ireland, that this volume will be deeply interesting and valuable to those who take pleasure in genealogical researches. Mr. O'Hart has shown industry, perseverance and zeal in preserving from loss the records of so many years for the use of our New World."

19. PITTSBURGH GAZETTE (PA., U.S.A.): "Ancestral pride and love of native land are sentiments common to humanity everywhere, and their encouragement is worthy and laudable. For a noble service in this direction Irishmen and their descendants owe much to John O'Hart, Esq., of Ringsend School, Dublin, author of a very valuable work entitled 'Irish Pedigrees, or the Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation.' . . . It contains a mass of information in regard to Irish history and the genealogy of families of Gaelic lineage and descent that is nowhere else accessible within a single volume; the whole compiled with scrupulous care, and very conveniently arranged for ready reference. It is a rare contribution to Irish literature, and a work that all genealogists and antiquarians must highly prize."

20. THE PRESTON HERALD: "'Irish Pedigrees; or, The Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation,' is a masterpiece of painstaking scholarship, the production of the ripe antiquarian researches of Mr. John O'Hart, of Ringsend School, in the vicinity of the Irish capital. Pedigrees, as a rule, are of no interest except to lawyers; but the patriotism of the author of this work has invested it with so much in the way of incidental illustration from song and story, that it will rivet the attention of whoever sits down to give it a careful perusal. The work forms a very handsome volume running to pretty nearly a thousand pages. Within such space as we can afford it is of course impossible for us to give any adequate notion of the rich treasures of family history that are brought together within the compass of that book; but this we can say, after a careful examination, and with a considerable acquaintance with this class of literature, that it is quite unapproached by anything issued from the press. Mr. O'Hart gives the descent of the present Royal Family of England, and, as it will no doubt surprise our readers to find that they come of decent Irish people, we venture to reproduce that descent, as given by the learned author of this work. . . . Irrespective of other portions of the work, O'Hart's 'Irish Pedigrees' is most valuable because of the papers on 'The Duration of Man's Existence on the Earth'; and the Celtic remains of ancient Hibernia, which are scattered throughout the book."

21. RICHMOND AND RIFON CHRONICLE: "O'Hart's 'Irish Pedigrees.' Third Edition. This work, though nominally an Irish one, is invaluable to the English and Scotch genealogical student, because it contains the stems of a good many names which are familiar to Yorkshiremen and Northerners. A prominent place is given to the pedigree of Her Majesty the Queen, which, in itself is invaluable. The volume also contains a very learned Preface, more philological than genealogical; and also a paper on the 'Duration of Man upon the Earth.' It contains an interesting Appendix, a table of Contents, and an elaborate Index."

22. SLIGO INDEPENDENT: "The pride of ancestry, so strong and so remarkable in the Irish character, seems, after perusing O'Hart's 'Irish Pedigrees,' to be only natural; as no other people can produce such ancient, and, to all appearance, such authenticated family records. The tomes from which this laborious writer has drawn his information are prodigious: State papers in England and Ireland; the libraries of Trinity College and of the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin; those of Stowe, &c.; the Books of Ballymote, of Leacan, of MacFirbis, &c.; the Annals of Boyle, of Connaught, of Tigearnach, of the Four Masters, &c.; O'Dugan's and O'Heeran's Topography; Documents in the Public Record Office, Dublin; ancient Manuscripts in Trinity College, Dublin; in the Library at Lambeth; in the Office of Ulster King of Arms, Dublin Castle; nearly all the ancient and medieval genealogists, and even down to the modern and aristocratic Walford, have been laid under contribution in these pages, which now contain, under one cover, the former two volumes, with several new and interesting additions, not the least notable being the 'List of King William's and Queen Mary's Forces in Ireland, in 1690.' . . . Many popular errors and popular ideas 'melt into thin air,' when tried by the stern facts and searching criticism of the author. Family names given down with high-sounding Norman prefixes, and Anglo-Saxon, or Welsh surnames, whose bearers tacked on Mac and O', with all the pride of 'rale Milaysians,' are rudely distributed in their fancied, or rather fanciful theories."

23. THE TABLET: "In the field of Irish genealogical and historical research Mr. O'Hart has laboured with a thoroughness unequalled by any other investigator of family names. He gives in his 'Irish Pedigrees' not only the origin and stem of the Irish nation, and the genealogies of the ancient Irish families down to the Cromwellian settlement of Ireland, but also the genealogies of the families that settled in Ireland since the English invasion. Many of those families have long been considered of foreign extraction; for, at one time and another, Irish families whose lot was cast in the English pale, or whose patrimonies would otherwise have been confiscated, were led to purchase peace and to secure their property by adopting English substitutes for their original patronymics; so that in our day it would be difficult to say that an Irishman with an English name is not, nevertheless, a descendant of some Gaelic clansman. Mr. O'Hart has unmasked many of those names."

24. THE TUAM HERALD: "With a carefulness of research and an accuracy of detail beyond all praise, Mr. O'Hart, has just published in one volume his very interesting work upon Irish Pedigrees. We do not suppose there are many of the old Celtic families whose names and ancestry do not find a record in this book, so that it is useful as it is entertaining. The additional essays written by the talented author upon various cognate subjects form a great attraction, and display an historical knowledge as exact as it is comprehensive. The work of Mr. O'Hart is well deserving of public favour; for it is compiled with an intelligence, a thoughtfulness, and a care that are highly praiseworthy and give the best guarantee that the information given can be neither questioned nor contradicted. The labour of compilation and arrangement must have been very heavy; but the weight of the task appears only to have made Mr. O'Hart more attentive not to err even in the smallest particulars. The work would seem to have reached attainable perfection: we do not notice any want that we could suggest to be supplied, any deficiency that should be remedied . . . We hope the work will meet with that measure of publicity and favour at the hands of an appreciative and patriotic public that a book so carefully arranged, so truthfully compiled, and so excellently edited most assuredly deserves. The author has evidently done his part with a thoroughness, and a thoughtfulness, an ability and an intelligence deserving of the best recognition."

25. ULSTER EXAMINER: " 'Irish Pedigrees,' the third edition of which has just been issued, is a wondrous example of how much useful labour can be done in a lifetime. The students of Irish History, all the world over, will be pleased to know that in the present edition of this useful work, which the demands of the public has called forth, is comprised in one single volume; thereby rendering its vast sources of information the more easily accessible to those who consult it. Animated by a desire to have the innumerable records which it contains as reliable as possible, the author has revised and added, so as to make the present edition that which he promised in the first series, and what he almost realized in the second, namely, a complete volume of Irish Pedigrees. The most cursory perusal of 'Irish Pedigrees,' as now presented to us, will, with ordinary readers, first give rise to a feeling of wonder as to how such an immense number of reliable records could, by one man, have been dragged forth to the light of day from lumber-rooms of ages past. But when we recollect that Mr. O'Hart has devoted to this task a patience that could not be thwarted, an industry that never lags, and a life, the greater part of which must have been spent in the accomplishment of his laudable purpose, we begin to realize how the pedigrees of our predecessors find now in this volume a local habitation and a name. As to the usefulness of this work we have already had occasion to speak. It is an indispensable auxiliary to a well-selected library. For consultation, it is to Irish scholars invaluable . . . The "Notes upon the Duration of Man's Existence upon the Earth," is an interesting and careful examination of recent geological discoveries, showing how they agree with the account of the creation of the world to be found in Genesis. The amount of information contained in the book, all of which carries us back to the most distant date—even to the days of our first parents—is a surprising feature of this work; but possibly still more surprising is the exhaustive and elaborate index, by consulting which the slightest item of information may be at once opened before you . . . There may be some who will undervalue the usefulness of Mr. O'Hart's labours: the enmity and national jealousy which swept so many of our old Irish records into the flames, which bridled our tongues, banned our history, and made the teaching of it a crime, may take shape, though in a milder form to-day, in the sneers of latter-day utilitarians. But the difficulties of this work still remain apparent to all Irish scholars, side by side with its usefulness, a monument of patient research and minute inquiry, which must be as a sort of index to the history of our past, and will preserve our ancient records in an accessible form to interest and guide future generations."

26. WASHINGTON NATIONAL REPUBLICAN: "Irish Pedigrees. This is the third edition of Mr. O'Hart's grand collection of 'Irish Pedigrees,' including the pedigrees of many of the Anglo-Irish families who went into Ireland with Strongbow and his land-hungry Norman knights, in A.D. 1170, and subsequently. As a verification of the authenticity of these genealogies it may be stated that nearly all of them are found recorded in the Office of Arms, Dublin Castle, now presided over by the learned and genial Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King of Arms—the official guardian of heraldry and genealogical MSS. Many of the pedigrees in Mr. O'Hart's work are traced down to the living representatives of the old clans, and nearly all of the pedigrees are brought down to Queen Elizabeth's (1558-1603), Cromwell's (1650), and Queen Anne's time (1702-1714). Nothing like this complete collection has ever been attempted heretofore. Richard Cronnelly, a learned member of the Irish Constabulary, published a few years ago—chiefly from the 'MacFibbis MS. Book of Pedigrees'—the genealogies of three of the great clans; and the greatest of modern Irish scholars, the late John O'Donovan, LL.D., gives the pedigrees of several tribes in the works he so ably translated and edited for Dublin societies. But Professor O'Hart has not copied from Cronnelly, O'Donovan, nor any published pedigree. He has unveiled the MS. of the great Michael O'Clery, chief of the Four Masters, who compiled from authentic sources the 'Annals of the Kingdom of Ireland,' from the earliest time down to A.D. 1636, and also 'The Book of Irish Genealogies.' As we have already stated, these pedigrees agree with those under the guardianship of Sir Bernard Burke, particularly in the splendid collection of the late Sir William Betham, Sir Bernard's predecessor in the Office of Arms, which collection is enriched by a large MS. book of genealogies called 'O'Farrell's Linea Antiqua,' compiled in Queen Anne's reign. No Irish-American family of Gaelic or Anglo-Norman blood should be without this authentic volume, enriched as it is by numerous genealogical and historical notes of family history. Several other valuable documents are added by the erudite and industrious author, and now published for the first time ; the result of his researches in the MS. departments of Trinity College and the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin, but which we need not enumerate. In concluding this brief notice of Professor O'Hart's priceless work, we may remark that the press of Ireland, Great Britain, America, and Australia—wherever this work has been reviewed—speak of the 'Irish Pedigrees' in the warmest language of commendation. Some of our so-called 'Anglo-Saxon' families will certainly be undeceived by a perusal of those Gaelic and Anglo-Irish genealogies. From Edward IV. (A.D. 1450-1483), through Elizabeth's reign in the sixteenth century, and all along the 'dark and evil days' of James I., Cromwell, William of Orange, but more especially during the 'penal days'—from the reign of Anne (1702-1714) to the advent of the immortal Henry Grattan, hundreds of the ancient, or Celtic, and a great many of the Anglo-Irish families—(some of) the latter having become 'more Irish than the Irish themselves'—changed, mutilated, disguised, translated, or anglicised their names for prudential or less excusable reasons. But Professor O'Hart, with great skill and patience, and having no creed or party to subserve, has classified all those 'Anglo-Saxon' (?) fugitives where they rightly belong, on 'The Stem of the Irish Nation.' We heartily commend the 'Irish Pedigrees' to all our people of Irish birth and blood, and trust it will have a large sale on both sides of the Atlantic. The work has been copyrighted in the Library of Congress by Major Richard Oulahan, of this city."

27. WATERFORD CITIZEN : "O'Hart's Irish Pedigrees ; Third Edition. Dublin : M. H. Gill and Son ; London : Simpkin, Marshall and Co. We are glad to see that the demand for Mr. O'Hart's excellent and exhaustive work has been so great as to necessitate a third edition, in which the first and second series are combined in one volume, many valuable additions being made to their contents. The title of this great work sufficiently explains its object, which has been wrought out with unceasing industry, with critical judgment, and with a wonderful fullness of scope. Every Irishman should be lastingly obliged to Mr. O'Hart for the vast services he has rendered to the history of his and their country, from the earliest ages, in a political, warlike, and social aspect ; and also to the cause of philology and ethnology . . . Though we may hesitate to assent to Mr. O'Hart's theory that Celtic was the language of Eden, we must admit that he supports it most ingeniously. We heartily wish the fruits of his great labour of love the widest circulation and the most generous patronage."

28. WATERFORD STANDARD, AND CONSERVATIVE GAZETTE : "'Irish Pedigrees ; or, the Origin and Stem of the Irish Nation.' This is a third and complete edition of a very learned and meritorious work, the first series of which was issued to the public in 1875. It was followed some few years since by a second series ; and the complete work has now attained to the respectable popularity and appreciation of a third edition. It is a great and a successful effort on the part of the gifted author to give to the Irish public what had never been previously published—the Irish genealogies. In attempting and carrying out his purpose, the compiler has had recourse to means of information which have seldom been brought together on such a subject, and which it would be difficult for any other man to collect for ordinary purposes. In his preface to the third edition of the work which is dedicated to no less distinguished a judge in such matters than Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King of Arms, the compiler says he has 'compiled this edition in one volume, the better to preserve under one cover the Milesian-Celtic genealogies, which Providence has brought within my reach, with the pedigrees of some English, Anglo-Irish, and Anglo-Norman families that settled in Ireland since the English invasion' . . . In his researches, he has had access to, and permission to make extracts from any of the Manuscripts and printed volumes in the magnificent libraries of Trinity College, and of the Royal Irish Academy, bearing on this subject, and he has also had free access to the wills and other documents in the Public Record Office, in the Four Courts, Dublin. After a somewhat extended examination of the contents of this invaluable work, it would appear to us that the compiler has done everything, and left nothing undone that could be brought to bear upon the elucidation and illustration of so great and important a subject. The indefatigable industry which was required in order to produce such a book can be more easily imagined than realized. There is much contained in the work of a character to provoke the reviewer in making extracts from its teeming pages that would deeply interest the readers of newspapers in any part of Ireland; but this would scarcely accord with either the space at our disposal or the interests of the author. There is scarcely a name or a district in which readers will not find something locally or personally interesting and instructive, so far as Ireland is concerned. All the principal families of Ireland are arranged under their respective provinces; and not the least interesting genealogy given is that of Queen Victoria, whom the compiler, Mr. O'Hart, proves to be of Irish descent, and whom he traces back to Adam. We have pleasure in commending the work to our readers as the most valuable contribution that has yet been given to the general public on the subject."

29. WEXFORD PEOPLE: "About six years ago the first edition of the 'Irish Pedigrees' issued from the Press, and it was at once hailed as a valuable edition to Irish Literature. Later on, when the second appeared, it was even more highly appreciated; and the work has since been, and shall ever be, recognized as a standard book of reference upon all questions connected with Irish genealogies and matters of a kindred nature. Quite recently the third, and most perfect, edition has been published . . . The contents are so full and varied that we cannot hope to give more than a mere outline of them. In the opening parts we have what we may term a learned essay on the 'Duration of Man's Existence upon the Earth,' in which the Creation is treated in a clever, vigorous, and exhaustive manner. Holy Scripture and Geological Facts are opportunely and judiciously introduced, and by a delicate yet forcible process of reasoning it is clearly shown, 'that nothing could be more absolutely coincident with the Genesis account of the Creation than are the discoveries of Geology.' Then follow almost innumerable records of descent, elaborate and faithful; constituting a perfect mine of genealogical and historical knowledge, and evincing most unmistakably skilful arrangement and unceasing industry. Almost every page is intensely interesting, especially to the descendants of the old Irish and Anglo-Norman families; and the wonder is how one mind could within a life-time accomplish such a herculean task of intellectual labour. The provinces including ancient Meath are described in detail and with remarkable accuracy. Referring to the devastations during 'The Protectorate,' the author with natural and perfectly legitimate pride alludes to the O'Hart's, Princes of Tara, and graphically pictures the plunder of their patrimony, and the ruthless confiscations of that incarnate fiend and hypocrite, Cromwell. The histories of the principal Irish families, the 'stems' from which they sprung, the territories where they ruled in regal yet paternal style, and many extremely important items relative to them are given. The Irish forms of the old names are explained and contrasted with the maimed and perished anglicised ones; and the right of the descendants of the old races to take the prefix O' or Mac, is earnestly advocated and incontestably proved. What Irishmen named Byrne, Neill, Reilly, Kelly, Ryan, Doyle, &c., who have read these pedigrees, can hesitate an instant to write an O' before their names that can be read a mile off . . . No one can hesitate to believe that it was to Mr. O'Hart 'a labour of love' to write his wonderful book. However deep his scholarship, however untiring his energies, however great his aptitude or genius, he never could have done so had he not been impelled by that feeling of high-souled patriotism which is next in purity and intensity to that burning love which we are told heroic souls have for God."

ERRATA.

At p. 609, under the "Claiborne" (of Halifax County, Virginia, U.S.A.) pedigree, and commencing with Leonard, who is No. 19 on that genealogy, read :

19. Leonard Claiborne, of Danville (b. 1791 ; d. 1858), m. Letitia W. Clark, and had eight sons and four daughters ; the sons were :—1. William-Clark (living in 1884), C.S.A., who m. Martha J. Haden ; 2. Richard-Henry (who d. unm. in 1845) was a Lawyer ; 3. David-Augustine (b. Jan., 1823 ; living in 1884), Captain, C.S.A., m. Elvira Cabell Clark, and (see No. 20 on the genealogy) had the children there mentioned ; 4. John-Ferdinand (d. 1856), who m. Jane A. Stone ; 5. James-Leonard (who d. unm. in 1853) was a Lawyer ; 6. Col. Thomas Doddridge, who d. of wounds in 1864, unm. ; 7. Livingston, living in 1884, who m. Lizzie L. Hairston ; 8. Felix-Grundy, C.S.A. (d. 1879), who m. Ella C. Palmer. The four daughters were :—1. Mary-Jane (d. 1876), who m. Sterling E. Edmunds ; 2. Letitia-Clark (d. 1879), who m. John Redd Smith ; 3. Elizabeth (d. 1865), who m. Doctor S. D. Drenry ; 4. Ellen-Aubrey, who m. John W. Carrington, of Halifax County, Va.,—both living in 1884.

At p. 616, in line 6 from the top, read or, instead of "of."

At p. 616, in line 10 from the top, read Loch Fyne, Lamont House, and Ardlamont Point, instead of "The Loch, Port Lomond."

At p. 616, in line 9 from bottom, read Bartholomew, instead of "Bartholemew," there and elsewhere throughout this Work.

At p. 619, in line 5 from top, 2nd col., read Lieut.-Colonel, instead of "Colonel."

At p. 674, next under the paragraph respecting the "OULAHAN" family, read : Forfeiting Proprietors, in Ireland, under the Cromwellian Settlement, before the two lines commencing "At p. 247, in line 11 from the bottom," etc. ; for those two lines have no connexion with the preceding paragraph.
