Interest Centers Around These Two Pitchers in the Games Here Thursday, Friday and Saturday—Both Teams Claim That They Have the Best Man—They Are Undoubtedly the Best College Ball Tossers in the South.

Mercer comes to Atlanta tomorrow for a series of games with the Techs. Thursday, Friday and Saturday the two teams will wage a war on the diamond, and for the most part it will be a pitcher's battle, although the fielding will be a feature of the game.

Manager Stetson has greatly strengthened his team, and it is expected to put up one of the snappiest games that was ever seen on the local diamond. But then there are many strong points in the Tech team that they will have to run up against, and until the last man is called out there will be doubt as to the winner.

Tech is also greatly strengthened by the long practice that they have had. Never before this year have they had games that they wished to win more than the three that they are to play against Mercer, and the men are putting all their heart and soul into the work they are doing.

Hall will be back of the bat for the visitors and Gunn will be able to put all his force behind his work in the pitcher's box. Nisbet will pitch one of the games for the visitors. He is a pitcher never before seen on the Atlanta diamond, but nevertheless he has a style and delivery that will make Tech guess, if they don't watch themselves.

He pitched for the Mercer team all last year, and his work was one of the features of the year. His delivery and all his work is on a different plan from that of Henley and Gunn. It was a saying at Mercer last year that when he went to the bat there were nine out of ten chances for a hit. Moses may be seen in the box for a part of a game.

Henley, Merritt and Murphy will divide the honors for the Techs in the box, but it is needless to tell of them, their work is known. Hicks behind the bat will reign supreme, and the other men in the same positions that they have held all this season.
