

GEORGIA MILITARY COLLEGE ROUNDING OUT QUARTER CENTURY OF GOOD WORK FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

GRADUATING CLASS OF GEORGIA MILITARY COLLEGE.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 24.—The Georgia Military college is rounding out almost a quarter of a century of life. The session now closing with interesting commencement exercises marks the 22d in its history.

Throughout this long period the school has done a really valuable work in educating the youth of Georgia, and has won an honorable place among the educational institutions of the state. Hundreds of young men and women have received their equipment for their life work within its walls.

The strongest testimonial to the work of any school is the record made by its graduates. Judged by this standard the Georgia Military college has abundantly vindicated its claim to public confidence. The school has recently contributed four officers to the regular United States army, three of whom won their commissions in competitive examinations, and with the preparation only which this school furnished. Two of this quartet have already been promoted, and the averages made by one of them upon the examination for promotion were so high as to win the strongest commendation from the official board of examiners.

The school has been no less successful in fitting for business and professional life. It has representatives in every calling and pursuit. As lawyers, physicians, teachers and men of affairs these young men and women have stamped their impress upon their several communities and are doing noble service for their state.

Some of the school's more recent graduates are completing their studies in the State university and other of higher institutions of learning. One is in a leading technological seminary. Without exception these young men are taking a high stand in their classes, and are marked by professors and fellow-students for character and influence. "A tree is judged by its fruits."

The college is now closing one of the most prosperous years of its history. The register has reached over 400 students for the session. The graduating class numbers 15, and is one of the strongest, intellectually, the school has ever sent out.

Organized as a department of the state university, the college provides three courses of study. One of these leads to the A. B. degree at the university and comprises the full classical course; the second leads to the B. S. degree, and substitutes a modern for one of the dead languages; the third is a business course, designed to prepare for business and commercial life. This course provides thorough training in penmanship, stenography and bookkeeping, as also commercial arithmetic and business forms.

Cadets live in barracks on the campus. The discipline is modeled closely after that of the United States military academy. Experience has demonstrated that the military system is superior to all others for the all-round training of the body and the mind. For developing the physique it is superior to the gymnasium. It gives grace of carriage, alertness of movement and the concentration of all the powers that can be acquired in no other way.

The school has very bright prospects. As the thoroughness of its work becomes known by the success of its representatives its hold on public favor becomes stronger, and its patronage steadily increases.

The next session will open on Monday, September 2.
