

BOYS' GRADUATING CLASS RECEPTION WAS SUCCESS

Miss Anne Wallace, Librarian of Carnegie Library, Honors Bright Young Men.

The informal reception Wednesday evening from 6 to 7 at the Carnegie library in honor of the graduating class of the Boys' High school was one of the most delightful of the many commencement exercises.

The class is composed of bright, manly young men, who will be the prominent business men of future Atlanta. Miss Anne Wallace, the librarian, was assisted by a bevy of charming young women. Class songs were sung and several impromptu speeches were made by the young gentlemen. "The Atlanta Spirit" was the subject of a witty speech by Mr. John Sullivan, and it was clearly demonstrated that the future Atlanta spirit would be quite up to the present mark of progress and kindness.

"The Carnegie Library" was spoken of in words of appreciation by Mr. R. L. Phillips, the class president. Mr. Phillips spoke of the good the class had gotten from the library and of the great improvement in the debates since the library had been opened. Mr. Tom Welsh spoke on "The Faculty," and Mr. Rob Johnson read a clever class prophecy.

The evening was very enjoyable and deepened the cordial feeling that exists between the library and the school.
